VARGAS IS CHOSEN BRAZILIAN CHIEF

Leaders Reach Agreement After Long Dispute—Vargas Says He'll Take Post.

Pernambuco, Brazil, Oct. 23.—(AP.)—The Brazilian insurgents' four-cornered fight for control of the government, left without a head by deposition of Dr. Washington Luis, was believed here today to have been settled finally with selection of Dr. Getulio Vargas to lead the new regime.

Advices from Rio de Janeiro indicated a clearing up of the situation created by rival political antagonisms of the military junta which ousted Dr. Washington Luis as president. Vargas, leader of the southern Revolutionary Army, insurgent elements in Minas Geraes, and Captain Juarez Tavoras, leader of the northern revolutionary army. Captain Juarez received a telegram from the chief of general staff, stating: "General Vargas (head of the military junta) has invited Dr. Vargas to assume charge of the government. Accordingly hostilities should be suspended immediately. 'Previously the president of Rio Grande do Sul (presumably Dr. Osvaldo Aranha, president pro tem) had telegraphed the northern leader to continue his march beyond Bahia, where he is not located, if he felt it necessary."

Willing to Accept.
Captain Juarez is understood here to have indicated to friends his willingness to accept whatever solution of the situation that may be worked out at Rio de Janeiro, choosing despite a considerable popularity in the north to subordinate his own political aspirations for the present.

In a message to Mauricio Lacerda, Liberal deputy, he said that he favored a transitory dictatorship to allow avoidance of precedent which might hamper "hygiene and moralization" of judicial and administrative policies.

Hartford, Oct. 23.—(AP.)—A co-operative association for the purpose of purchasing 150,000 baby chicks this year was organized at a meeting of twenty three Connecticut poultry men held in the office of the State Department of Agriculture, according to an announcement made this morning by Samuel Kostolefsky of Rockville, extension agent for the Jewish Agricultural Society. The chicks purchasing association is the first of its kind in this section of the country and involves poultry men who produce broilers and eggs.

Approximately $30,000 will be spent by the members for baby chicks. The first order will be placed within three weeks and will be for 50,000 to be used for broiler raising. A committee of five was appointed to represent the members of the association within the State, negotiate for their purchase and make adjustments between the members of the association and the seller. It is hoped to make a saving of at least 25 percent in the cost of chicks.

Dry Probers Are Puzzled Over Nation's Big Problem

Washington, Oct. 23.—(AP.)—The variance of conditions prevailing under the prohibition law in different sections of the country is proving a problem to President Hoover's law enforcement commission.

Not only do the multitudinous prohibition reports now in the hands of the ten men add odd women on the commission show varying results in scattered sections of the nation but they reveal fluctuating conditions in the same localities. "Despite the problems besetting them, however, there is evident a determination within the ranks of the commission members to get the job of reaching a decision on the prohibition question over with us as soon as possible. There is every expectation here that the report or reports will be ready for consideration by President Hoover and Congress before the end of the year.

TO BUILD SKYSCRAPERS ALL OF ALLOY NEXT

Walls and Floors to be of Metal, Says Engineer; Empire State Building in New York Being Built That Way

Pinehurst, N. C., Oct. 23.—(AP.)—A day when skyscrapers will be constructed almost wholly of steel alloy was envisioned today by Charles N. Fitts, of Boston, president of the American Institute of Steel Construction.

In an address to the eighth annual convention of the institute, he predicted the early general use of all-metal walls for tall buildings, asserting they would prove cheaper, more lasting, more economic and more efficient than masonry walls.

"Our industry," he said, "is facing a tremendous transition which is coming whether we will it or not. The battle-deck (steel) floor has been adopted despite the spathy of most fabricators. Welding is gaining space and is destined to play an important part in our industry. Alloy steels, developed for specialized uses, are affording buildings something new to think about."

Chrysler First
Fitts said the Chrysler building in New York was the first to use alloy steel to any extent in its exterior walls and that the Empire state building in New York would have an even greater proportion.

"The next step," he said, "will be all-metal walls. Assembling the institute must lead in this development, he said it must at the same time not lose sight of beauty in construction."

Must Be Beautiful
"We must recognize," he said, "the aesthetic possibilities in what we construct. If we are to win a popular approval of our efforts. That the skyscraper is today contributing a new architectural form, beautiful in its line and mass, cannot be denied."

Fitts urged the institute to give their consideration to the steel leader, the American Institute of Steel Construction, which has been spent, he said, in promotional efforts along that line.

"Probably as much again," he added, "will be spent before the idea is generally appreciated by the homeowning public. That day will come, however."

KING GEORGE SPEAKS AT PARLIAMENT

Reads Message As Session Opens—Touches On Unemployment and On India.

London, Oct. 23.—(AP.)—King George, convening Parliament today, read the following message, drawn up for him by his government, headed by Prime Minister MacDonald:

"My Lords and Members of the House of Commons: It has given me much pleasure to receive my ministers from the Dominions and representatives of India who are attending the Imperial conference. I watch with deep interest the progress of their labors, the satisfactory result of which I shall cordially await."

"I hope soon to welcome representatives of the princes and people of India who are about to join with members of all parts in both Houses of Parliament to consider the future constitutional position of India."

"My intention is to inaugurate this conference, and I earnestly trust that at the conclusion of its proceedings may be found agreed and wise solutions of those important questions upon which it will be called to deliberate."

Friendly Relations
"My relations with the foreign powers continue to be friendly."

"I was very glad to entrust my son, the Duke of Gloucester with the duty of representing me at the coronation of the Emperor of Ethiopia."

"My government took an active part in proceedings of the Assembly of the League of Nations in September last. General agreement was reached upon the treaty of financial assistance to states which may be victims of aggression which recently was signed at Geneva. Application of this treaty is conditional upon the coming into force of a general disarmament convention which I trust will shortly be concluded."

"I follow with grave concern and sympathy continuance of heavy unemployment among so many of my people. Economic depression unfortunately continues to dominate the markets of the world and the accompanying restriction of international trade is felt with particular severity in those industries which are especially dependent on export."

"My government will persist in its efforts to develop and extend home, imperial and foreign trade and to help in measures which will" (Continued On Page 3.)

Insurance Chief Blames Depression on Politics
Chicago, Oct. 23.—(AP.)—Political conditions in the view of James S. Kemper, president of the Federation of Mutual Fire Insurance Companies, are the greatest deterrent to rapid recovery from the present business depression. He spoke today at the opening session of the organization's annual convention.

"There has been entirely too much experimenting in government," Kemper said, "Increasingly, it seems, we are accumulating a debt which prospectively cannot be insured by legislation, and yet we have before us the prospect of an in-

HATTERS PLEAD FOR REDUCTION IN TARIFF ACT

Importers Ask for Decrease of at Least 50 Per Cent in Present Duties—Say Business is Threatened Now.

Washington, Oct. 23.—(AP.)—The reorganized tariff commission, holding its first public hearing under the altered flexible provision of the 1930 Tariff Act, today headed representatives of straw hat importers ask for a decrease of at least fifty per cent in present duties on this product.

All six members of the commission were present at the hearing opened before a table piled high with straw hats. It was the first of fourteen hearings to be held by the commission on various products during the next two months.

S. George Wolf, of Baltimore, representing the straw hat group of the Hat Institute of America, told the commission domestic manufacturers were willing to "rest the case" with the investigations conducted in recent weeks by the commission's investigators if the importers would do the same.

Importers Plea
J. G. Whitelaw, of New York, representing the National Council of American Importers and Traders, Inc., declined to accept this invitation and asked relief for importers. Whitelaw contended that under the present tariff rates on the higher grade straw hats English, Swiss and Italian imports had decreased so drastically that the business of importers in this country was seriously threatened. He asked that either the specific duty of $3.50 on blocked or trimmed hats be eliminated, leaving only the 60 per cent ad valorem duty, or that the specific and ad valorem duty be decreased fifty per cent.

Bernard Krushinsky, of New York, speaking for importers of lower priced straw hats, contended that even a fifty per cent decrease in rates would not bring foreign and domestic prices into line.

PRESIDENT CALLS BASELESS, CHARGES MADE BY KELLEY

PAPE WILL REMAIN MEMBER OF PARTY

Declares He Will Not Bolt; Says He Will Remain "Painfully Regular."

Waterbury, Oct. 23.—(AP.)—William J. Pape, publisher, who ran for comptroller on the Prof. Levitt ticket, will not bolt the party as the professor announces he will do.

Mr. Pape stated today he will remain "painfully regular." He expressed the opinion that the best way to recapture the Republican state machine is to be guided by leadership of Republicans who remain in good standing.

In an interview Mr. Pape said: "Everybody who is familiar with the career of Mr. Roraback will appreciate the distinction which Prof. Levitt finds between it and the life of Dean Cross."

Up To Republicans
"The dean does not suffer by the comparison. Personally I agree with it and admire it as a fine piece of writing but I do not follow the professor in his conclusion to support Cross for governor."

"Conditions being as stated, the best way to improve them is for the Republican voters to work for the recapture of the Republican state machine which has been taken from them."

"This can be accomplished only under the leadership of Republicans who remain in good standing."

"They who intend to remain a regular Republican," he was asked, "Painfully regular," replied Mr. Pape.

TREASURY BALANCE

Washington, Oct. 23.—(AP.)—Treasury receipts for October 23, were $4,719,197.95; expenditures, $11,212,972.95; balance, $225,954,383.21.

COAL MINE EXPLOSION TRAPS TWENTY-NINE

Hope Abandoned for Men in Lower Levels—Cause of Blast Unknown—Rescuers Are Forced Back.

McAlester, Okla., Oct. 23.—(AP.)—Gas today drove rescue workers from the lower levels of the Wheatley No. 4 coal mine, tomb of 29 miners since an explosion last night, and officials virtually abandoned hope that any of the trapped men would be found alive.

One man, William Donnelly, was killed at the head of the mine by the blast. Bodies of four trapped miners were sighted on the 16th level.

Several rescue workers were overcome by the gas, known as coal damper, and one, John Moore, was carried from the mine.

The damp sent rescuers—numbering about fifty—back to the tenth level of the mine where ventilation was good. Efforts were being made to obtain brattice cloth to curtain off mine entries and air ventilation lower down.

Rescue Work Slow
Workers estimated it would require six men five hours to carry one body from the lower levels, because of the mass of debris to be traversed.

Denounces Them As An Attempt to Fasten Oil Scandal Upon His Administration—Declares Falsity of Claims Could Easily Have Been Determined by Investigation; Asserts They Were Made to Supply Material for Political Foes.

Washington, Oct. 23.—(AP.)—President Hoover today denounced as an attempt to fasten an odious oil scandal upon his administration the charges by Ralph S. Kelley, former head of the Denver Field Force of the Department of the Interior, that oil companies were obtaining illegally valuable oil shale lands from the government.

The President said that while publication of the Kelley charges in the newspapers did not represent the high standard of American journalism, the newspapers might have been misled. He said Kelley or the newspapers publishing his stories could have determined the falsity of the charges by investigation.

Mr. Hoover said that though Kelley came to Washington last July and arranged the sale of his story to a newspaper, his charges were delayed so they could not be put into the political campaign. He said the newspaper that purchased the story was of political faith opposite to his own.

Kelley, in Mr. Hoover's opinion, could himself have established the falsity of his charges by reference to his own records.

Instead of 8,000,000 acres of oil titles worth millions of dollars being approved by this administration, the President said, apparently only 43,000 acres of titles granted and these could be bought, the chief executive added, for a few dollars an acre.

Of the 43,000 acres, the President said, 20,000 had been approved by Kelley himself.

No Verification
The President said a proper inquiry and sound criticism by the press was a safeguard of good government, but in this instance the newspaper circulating Kelley's story, which he did not name, had gone further and apparently had made no effort to substantiate Kelley's charges.

Mr. Hoover pointed out that Kelley was in Washington for six weeks last year and during that time approved by reference to the charges to his superior, the Secretary of the Interior, the President added. Kelley was negotiating for the sale of these charges to a rival political party and even held them up for some weeks so they might be launched in the middle of the political campaign.

When charges unsupported by evidence reflecting upon the honesty of a man of the character of Secretary Wilbur have been made, the President said, they should do more damage to those who make them than to the man attacked.

Kelley first made his charges a month ago today in a statement to the press. At the same time he announced his resignation after more than 25 years service in the west.

Secretary Wilbur refused to accept the resignation and suspended Kelley pending an investigation which he asked the Justice Department to make.

Attorney General Mitchell on Monday reported Kelley's charges to be unsubstantiated.

President's Statement
President Hoover, in a formal statement, said: "The Department of Justice has not published the result of its examination into the sensational charges made by Ralph S. Kelley, employee of the land office, that Secretary Wilbur and other officials of the Department of Interior had been guilty of dishonesty and misfeasance in adjudication of title claims to oil shale lands running into hundreds of thousands of acres into losses to the government of scores of billions of dollars. It is an attempt to charge odious oil scandals to this administration."

Facts of the Case
The facts are that out of 8,000,000 acres of government holdings of such lands the whole matter boils down to the item that this administration had approved odd title claims for some 43,000 acres sitting under the mineral law prior to 1920, under any orders no leases or titles have been passed under the new law. Of these odd claims Kelley himself approved about 20,000 acres.

The courts ordered about 16,000 acres and about 5,000 acres came up on an appeal to the heads of the department for decision, only part (Continued On Page 3.)

Plans for the observance of Armistice Day in a manner fitting the occasion were made last night at a joint committee meeting preceding the regular meeting of Dilworth-Cornell Post, American Legion at the State Armory. Tentative plans were drawn to make Nov. 11 a holiday, insofar as possible, with local manufacturing plants and stores cooperating to commemorate by a full day's observance, the twelfth anniversary of the end of the World War.

According to present plans the Legion will join with the Army and Navy Club and other service organizations to conduct the usual Armistice Day memorial exercises Tuesday morning, Nov. 11, at 11 o'clock, forming and parading in the Memorial hospital where both the Army and Navy Club and the Legion will conduct services and decorate the memorial trees.

A committee representing the Legion will meet with a committee selected from the Army and Navy Club at 8 this evening to select a marshal for the Armistice Day parade. A football game between the Cubs and a team yet to be selected will take place in the afternoon, and at 8 in the evening an old-fashioned and modern dance will be held at the State Armory. Music for dancing will be furnished by Al Behrend's orchestra and the services of an old-time dance promoter will be secured for the old-time numbers.

The Legion Armistice Day planning committee will make every effort to induce all local manufacturers to declare a holiday, and already have assurance from Cheney Brothers that as far as possible all departments will be closed for the day.

"Proposals will be laid before you for promotion of increased settlement and employment on the land, and of large scale farming operations, and for acquisition and improvement of agricultural land, and in need of reconnoitering, and for organization of producers for marketing purposes.

"I purpose immediately to set up a commission to inquire into the entire question of unemployment, insurance and in particular to allegations of abuse of its provisions. The commission will be asked to present interim reports on the most pressing questions and, if required, legislation based upon them will be introduced. In the meantime a measure to make a further provision for an unemployment fund will be laid before you.

"My ministers' purpose to introduce legislation to secure for the community its share in the site value of land.

"Measures will be submitted to you for raising of the age of compulsory school attendance, for amending the laws relating to trade disputes and trade unions and for setting up of a consumers' council.

"A measure of electoral reform will be submitted to you.

"Bills will be laid before you to enable ratification of the Washington hours convention and of the international convention for safety of life at sea, and for establishment of a new statutory authority to deal with passenger traffic in London.

"I pray that under the blessing of God the outcome of your deliberations may advance the happiness and well being of my people."

DISABLED VETERANS TO SEEK FUND HERE

Forget-Me-Not Campaign to be Conducted Locally on October 30, 31 and November 1.

The Disabled American Veterans of the World War are asking the co-operation of the townspeople in their annual Forget-Me-Not campaign, October 30-31 and November 1. Once a year the D. A. V. appeals to the generosity of the public in their sale of Forget-me-nots, as a means of raising funds for the ever increasing need of welfare work among the disabled men.

So time as was concerned the war may be over but not so for these disabled men, disabled in the line of duty, clearly shown on their honorable discharge, which is the one requisite for membership in the Disabled American Veterans of the World War and which makes it distinctly separate from the other authorized veterans' organizations.

The campaign has the whole-hearted endorsement of President Hoover, General Frank T. Hines, Administrator of Veterans Affairs, and George E. Cram, Director of U. S. Veterans Bureau. Meegan-McKenna Chapter, under whose jurisdiction Manchester's disabled veterans, come, are confident that Manchester's public will do their share, by contributing to this needy cause.

The Phenomenons, a Manchester High school girls' club, have very kindly donated their services for the sale of the For-Get-Me-Nots on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and will canvass the streets, professional offices and business houses on the above days.

BISHOP DESCRIBES CHINA'S RED WARS

turbulent times here in China, Bishop O'Shea said. "Civil war, banditry and Communism are everywhere. Many of our mission stations have been spoliated and some burned; this latter is principally the work of the Reds, who during the past year or so have fairly overrun the province.

"The danger is so threatening and imminent that I was forced to send the Sisters of Charity to Shanghai. Kanchow alone of this vicariate is garrisoned by soldiers; all other places are under Red control. Red armies frequently overrun the entire territory and within the past five months have made two unsuccessful attempts to take the city. Naturally under such circumstances our missionaries have to lead more or less vagabond existence, here one day, there another."

Despite the turmoil Bishop O'Shea said "We have been able to carry on in a fashion and minister to our many Christians."

The Herald Hears

Two girls were seen in front of a local store window last night, and from their frequent giggles, and secretive attitude, the subject under discussion must have been suitable for the snappy joke books. When they had reached the climax of their little tale, both turned their heads to see a man within three feet of them, operating a new radio set. They turned the color of round steak and fitted out of sight, writhing in laughter. The man in the window appeared not to have heard the good news for he was nothing but CARDBOARD.

That the girls were out in force last night to see the "Little Accident" at the State.

That every few days somebody's pet dog or cat is injured or killed by thoughtless drivers.

That these accidents can be attributed to the "watch me make him jump" attitude of some drivers.

That if one of the innocent victims of their thoughtlessness turned out to be one of their own pets, it might curb them of this cruel practice.

DUD DEED

There is a deed in the town clerk's office that has one unusual feature. It was filed recently for record. It relates that on a date early in the current month the owner of a certain piece of real estate in Manchester sold properly and proceeds to a long description of boundaries, etc., followed by the signature of two witnesses and a notary's acknowledgment—but many signatures of the grantor. It is, of course, of no effect. Town Clerk Turkington has advised the parties in interest that it would be a good idea to have another deed pass, properly signed as well as witnessed.

NAVY DAY VISITORS

New London, Oct. 28.—(AP)—One thousand, five hundred and forty-three persons were Navy Day visitors at the Submarine Base yesterday, where all were shown about the reservation by guides. Besides the visit to the base, the Navy entertained 1,300 persons here. Eight hundred inspected the submarine O-2 and 500 went aboard the O-3. These submarines were at the municipal wharf during the day.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 28.
SPEED LAW MIXUP
 It is difficult to understand the reason for the State Highway Department's order, said to have been issued to the selectmen and police commissioners of the town of Fairfield, to remove the words "speed limit" from the signs placed on the Post Road to indicate what is regarded as "reasonable speed" within certain zones.

This system of designating rational speeds was originally fostered by the Motor Vehicle Department, co-operating with the authorities of the town of Stratford, and has been adopted in many other towns, presumably with the sanction of the same department.

Now it appears that the Highway Department, which has nothing to do with automobile operation but does control the physical borders of the highways where the signs are placed, insists that there is no speed limit in Connecticut and that if any signs are put up they must merely bear the number of miles per hour as an entirely unofficial suggestion.

It looks on the face of it as though the Highway Department and the Motor Vehicle Department were working at cross purposes in this matter, if not in actual opposition.

In any event the position taken by the Highway Department that there is no such thing as a legal speed limit is ridiculous. There are plenty of places on the roads where a speed in excess of forty miles an hour is unquestionably unreasonable under any conditions and other places where a speed of more than thirty miles an hour is unquestionably unreasonable. And being unreasonable such speeds are in violation of the statute.

However, the complication that has arisen is just one more bit of evidence that the elimination of the prima facies from the speed law was a foolish and mistaken piece of business. The incoming Legislature will find plenty of support among the people if it puts an end to this "reasonable speed" nonsense and equips the speed law with teeth that will bite.

JUSTICE WHEELER
 It is understood that the session of the Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors that opened at Bridgeport this morning will be the last over which Chief Justice George W. Wheeler will preside, though technically he will not retire until December, when he reaches the age limit of 70 and will be succeeded by Justice William B. Maithe of Hartford.

Chief Justice Wheeler has had a very distinguished career. During his seventeen years as a member of the bench of the Superior Court he suffered fewer reversals of decision by the appellate court in proportion to the number rendered than almost any judge in the history of the state. He has been a member of the Supreme Court for twenty years, the latter half of which he has been chief justice. Many of the opinions of the court during that period have been from his pen and they have been models of clarity. Few appellate judges anywhere have ever possessed the gift of making decisions, even in complicated and abstruse cases, so understandable to the laity. Judge Wheeler seems always to have been construing the law for the intellects of the people and to have succeeded in his purpose.

Now that he is laying down the burden of his high office it is possible that Judge Wheeler, who is still in the very prime of his intellectual vigor, will take the opportunity that is peculiarly his of assuming leadership in the movement, already definitely stirring in many lawyers' minds, for reforming the abuses that have crept into the practice of our courts, particularly of the criminal side. He has expressed himself strongly in favor of such reforms in the past; and he is hardly the man to rest content, even after all these years, with remaining inactive in the face of a public service that so badly needs doing.

TROLLEY FARES
 For years the business of the Connecticut Company, this state's own special electrical transportation octopus, has been dwindling. The company has laid all its woe to the competition of the automobile. Its idea of compensation for the loss of patrons has always been to get more cash out of those who did ride. Long ago it adopted a policy of increased fares. That policy has failed to produce the desired result.

A corresponding concern is the Public Service Company of New Jersey. Conditions in its territory are precisely the same as those in the territory of the Connecticut Company. It has been operating recently on a basis of four tokens for a quarter. Now it is getting ready to return to the straight nickel fare. It has discovered that an advance from five cents to six and a quarter cents knocked three and a half million dollars off its revenues in the first nine months of this year.

What would happen if the Connecticut Company were to cut its rate from the outrageous eight-and-one-third cent fare to a nickel, and provide cars and buses enough to carry the business that would result, is more or less speculative. But there isn't the slightest doubt that such a course would enormously increase the volume of its intake. Probably it would mean the difference between continually pulling the devil by the tail and earning a handsome profit for its stockholders.

When such concerns as the Boston Elevated and the big New Jersey company find that six and a quarter cent fares kill the transportation business and turn to the nickel fare to restore their prosperity, it would seem as though it were about time for the Connecticut company to take a long hard look at its own eight-and-a-third cent token.

NEED TO ORGANIZE
 There would seem to be important possibilities in the announcement of State Forester Hawes that there are 50,000 cords of wood in Connecticut state forests that can be converted into fuel by unemployed men and in the offer of the Forestry Department to supervise the labor of getting it out.

Obviously, however, considerable organization will be necessary in order to make this opportunity of large practical value. Few of the unemployed are individually in a position to take advantage of the free raw material thus placed at their disposal. A couple of cords of worked-up stove wood piled in the midst of a state forest isn't going to do much good to a jobless man whose home is ten miles away unless he has some way of hauling it home; nor is he liable to be able to get to the forest and work up the wood if there is no way of getting there but to walk.

This is a matter in which the wood seekers must be helped to help themselves. And one of the things that the various communities might find it useful to do is the organization of the workers into crews and provide transportation for them and their product.

Which reminds us that Manchester is one town—one town among many, to be sure—which as yet has not formed any general committee to deal with those features of the unemployment problem in which organization and competent direction is quite as important as the matter of funds. What body is there, for example, whose natural function it would be to help make available this offer of free wood?

SPORTSMANSHIP
 It would have contributed to the fast fading reputation of the colleges for true sportsmanship if a prompt disavowal of all questioning of the legality of the Army's tying touchdown in the Yale game on Saturday had been forthcoming from New Haven. In view of the disproportionate amount of publicity given to the character of the play in question it is disappointing when the Yale authorities do no more than say that they will not protest the game.

The rule, a violation of which is said to have been disclosed by motion pictures, is the one against pushing or otherwise assisting the man with the ball in gaining ground. The pictures are reported to show that Kilday was pushed over after having been brought to a halt. This rule is like the prohibition law, only partly enforceable. It is violated over and over again and the eyes of officials are not quick enough to detect anywhere near all the infractions. If all the college football games were to be re-judged by moving picture disclosure afterward, goodness knows what season's games would have to be made. The affair in question was just one of the breaks of the game. Really good sportsmanship would demand Yale insistence that the picture revelation, if any, be utterly disregarded by everybody.

SHALE LAND FLOP
 As this newspaper pointed out at the very beginning of the Ralph S. Kelley-shale lands episode, that aggrieved and sometimes fairly convincing gentleman spoiled his crusade against the Interior Department by talking about the diversion of property worth "forty billion dollars" when the actual value of the shale lands is represented by a zero mark at present and is extremely problematical from the most sanguine speculative point of view.

Attorney-General Mitchell knocks the Kelley charges into a cocked hat by making exactly the same point—that the shale lands are at present of no value whatever. Then he proceeds to knock the cocked hat into the gutter by showing that only a very few thousand acres of shale lands have been disposed of without the approval of Mr. Kelley himself.

It is obvious that all this hurrah about the shale lands was a feeble attempt to start, in a congressional election year, a new oil scandal where nothing scandalous existed. It has been a terrible flop.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 28.—Oh, ho... and have you heard that Manhattan's swank parties now have pigmy golf courses rigged up on the dance floors of hotel rooms where diners are being given?

And just the other night, by way of further variations on the golfette theme, one of New York's more original hostesses allowed her guests to select their seats at the table by making trick golf shots.

The Liliputian golf idea on the dance floor, however, threatens to become quite a vogue. Many of the steeper swank folk are wearied of the average canes and jazz bands and seek innovations. The floor—as reports of the event come to me—is covered with some rough material and their chair legs, table legs and such are part of the scheme of hazards. The game is played over the floor and about the room itself.

The matter of selecting seats is worked out by being at certain numbered locations, the person who achieves the goal most easily getting that number at the table. When lovely ladies are likely to be one's partner, the competition for best score is, quite apparently, keen.

And while on the subject of vagues and such—it seems that the skyscraper influence has overtaken men's socks. One clock arrangement actually has clocks designed as replicas of the famous cloud-touchers of New York. Clock designs, as a matter of fact, are going to become too fuzzy for the likes of me. Everything from an oriental suggestion to a Venetian candlestick may be found upon an assorted collection of hose that passed before my astonished gaze in a Fifth avenue shop the other day.

I'm waiting for holes in the heels to become fashionable. And then will I swagger?

Which further reminds me that milliners and hat dealers are all hot and bothered by the persistence with which their popularity hangs on. Just a season ago the hatters were weeping because men wore no hats at all—that is, rather, thousands of them went about the street bare-headed. And now they go about in berets—here, there and everywhere.

And the women appear to find the beret habit similarly incurable. Just the other night, I saw a woman in evening dress swing into a theater premiere—wearing a white beret. What to do—cry the milliners.

Not since the famous cloche hat scare of a few seasons back have they been faced by such a calamity. Any of the girls will remind you of the time when cloche hats fairly deluged the world and no one would buy expensive hats. This year, with economy waves and depression, the beret seems to fit the pocketbook as well as the head. The cloche situation was met, by the way, through a national advertising campaign and the calling in of a very expensive publicity consultant. And also by the way, have you noticed that the Saturday Evening Post has finally succumbed to cigarette advertising? With the understanding—so they tell me—that it will not refer to women smokers? But, thanks to women smokers, the mere men have won several victories in New York. For years there was a rule against smoking in one of the largest restaurant chains. These were frequented largely by working women and girls who announced flatly that they intended to smoke or eat elsewhere. Women, having more courage in such matters, soon won the battle. Men now also smoke in these cafes. GILBERT SWAN.

GOOD SPINE—GOOD GOLF
 The astonishing growth of the midget golf links brings a new and healthful sport to millions of Americans, and if you are glad to see that the game has taken hold on the popular fancy. There are many reasons for its success; it takes the players out into the fresh air and, because it can be played at night, is a recreation and exercise for the office worker. It may be played by the whole family and is not a tiring game, so that even the older people may enjoy it.

Sometimes, after eighteen holes, an enthusiastic golfer may find he has a sore spot somewhere along the spine. In swinging the golf club for a long shot a certain twisting motion is used, and if the twist is not performed smoothly, it brings about too much strain and the result is that the vertebrae of the spine may be slightly twisted. If the vertebrae are pushed sufficiently far out of their normal places there will result an impingement on the nerves coming from the spine, which may lead to a very sore back. Of course, if the swing is carried through correctly and smoothly, very little strain is given the back, but the new player is often awkward from a lack of skill and will play in such a way as to jolt the back, leading to what might be called a golf spine. This would not have occurred if the spine had been kept in good condition, and there is no doubt that you can make your shots smoother and more accurate if your spine is properly developed, for you will then have a balance and smoothness in your swing which cannot otherwise be present.

Should your back hurt after a golf practice, the best plan is to consult an osteopath or chiropractor and have the vertebrae adjusted which will also relieve the pain, but you should also learn to develop your spinal muscles so that they are strong enough to maintain the vertebrae in a normal position, even though subject to strain. There is no better way of bringing about this normal spinal development than by systematic physical culture exercise. These develop the muscles to such a degree that after the vertebrae are in their right places they are firmly held there and even the hardest swings will no longer give you "golf spine."

Some good exercises for strengthening the spine can be taken while lying face downward on the floor. One good exercise is to clasp the hands behind the neck, then raise the head, shoulders and elbows as high as possible, at the same time drawing the legs up to the chest. Another good exercise is to raise and lower the right and left legs alternately keeping the knees stiff and bending the legs backward at the hips. Now try the exercise, still on the face, with the hands

(Reducing)
 Question: Mrs. J. O. asks: "May one, while on a reducing diet, drink tea with lemon once a day?"
 Answer: It is better not to drink any liquid except water and fruit juices while reducing.

(Underweight)
 Question: C. O. writes: "I am a girl twenty years old and am very much underweight for my height. Will you please suggest a diet and appetite stimulant. I have decided this failure to gain is due to a sunken chest. I have had several corrective gym teachers tell me this is so. Do you think it is the cause of my underweight? Can this be corrected?"
 Answer: The teachers may be right about the sunken chest being responsible for your underweight. At your age, if you will take the proper physical culture and breathing exercises you can surely correct the chest deformity.

(Paraffin Oil)
 Question: Mrs. W. K. asks: "Is liquid paraffin oil a safe laxative to take?"
 Answer: Paraffin oil may be used as an intestinal lubricant, but cannot be considered a laxative. It is a safe thing to use while you are correcting constipation through removing its cause.

RATING BUREAU MOVES INTO LARGER QUARTERS
 The Manchester Rating and Collecting Bureau, Inc., has removed to larger quarters in the State Theater building where it will be able to carry on its rapidly expanding business far more satisfactorily. Previously the office of this firm has been in the same building but in a room that was much smaller. The present location is where the State Beauty Parlor was before removing to Center street.

The new office of the Manchester Rating and Collecting Bureau faces Main street whereas the previous one was in the rear of the building with no windows on any side, the light coming from a skylight overhead. The new location has been divided into three sections, the entrance where payments are made, the bookkeeping department and the office of the officials where persons may have private conferences. The Manchester Rating and Collecting Bureau was organized in February, 1929 and its scope of business activities has expanded greatly.

WASHINGTON LETTER
 BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington.—If John P. Frey becomes the next secretary of labor succeeding James J. Davis, the country is likely to hear a lot about the five-hour day which some labor leaders propose as the most adequate remedy for unemployment.

Frey is secretary of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor and lately has been the most prominently mentioned among those being considered by President Hoover for the Labor Department post. At the recent A. F. of L. convention in Boston he offered the five-hour day resolution. In a report to the metal trades department he suggested that industry should run on the basis of a strong demand for government regulation for that purpose.

Frey is a distinctly conservative labor leader. The most likely reason for his appointment as secretary is thought to be that while his ideas are not sufficiently radical to worry anyone he is not reactionary or selfish enough to arouse as much opposition as two or three other labor leaders who have been suggested for the job. If he has any degree of vision, he is at least considered honest, sincere and industrious. As chairman of the federation's resolutions committee he used to be Sam Gompers' right hand man at conventions, but he was ill during the Portland convention in 1923 and Vice President Matthew Woll grabbed that place and held it subsequently. He is a fierce opponent of public ownership and a strong believer in cooperation between labor and capital. He is a Republican, but has not used his position as a labor leader in political campaigns. He would be delighted to get Davis' job. He is 69 years old.

Folks in the Labor Department thought for a while Hoover might name Woll, who is not exactly popular with the progressive element in the labor movement. But lately labor people here have heard that Woll was making too much money to be able to afford the honor, considering the uncertainty of tenure after 1932.

Both William L. Hutchison, president of the Carpenters' Union, and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, have been considered. Each has been described as the hard-boiled type of labor leader. Each has actively supported Republican campaigns despite the A. F. of L. non-partisan policy. Each heads a seriously weakened union.

Hoover once had the idea of replacing Davis with W. N. Doak, vice president and Washington representative of the railroad trainmen's union. Doak, a lawyer, was in the United States for several years last year. But the other three railroad brotherhoods objected and the idea was dropped, although Doak has since been mentioned as a possibility.

Frank Morrison, secretary of the federation for about 35 years, has been urged by printers' and other unions, but is not considered seriously.

There has also been some talk of Meyer Bloomfield, a lawyer and industrial relations specialist of New York City. The progressive labor element has no hope of seeing the appointment of anyone whom it would consider especially satisfactory. Its leaders are almost unanimously in favor of Miss Grace Abbott, head of the Children's Bureau and an internationally famous social worker. They also recommend such men as President Charles F. Howard of the International Typographical Union, Secretary Victor Olander of the Illinois Federation of Labor, President Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and Secretary Thomas F. Flaherty of the National Federation of Post-office Clerks.

KABUL GOES BACK TO ANCIENT WAYS UNDER NADIR SHAH
 Peshawar, Northwest Frontier India. (AP)—Kabul, capital of Afghanistan, is gradually slipping back to many of the picturesque native customs which ex-King Amanullah tried to abolish after his tour of Europe in 1928.

Travelers from Kabul say that the last "jirgah," a native mass meeting, summoned by Nadir Shah, was attended by more than 300 tribal representatives from various parts of Afghanistan. Various subjects of vital interest to the country districts were discussed.

All the delegates wore tribal dress, a strong contrast to the practice under Amanullah when all were urged to don European dress and some of the tribesmen, never having seen a frock coat before they arrived at the capital, had to be instructed in how to wear one.

It was stated at the "jirgah" that the roundup of rebels in Kohistan and Kohistan was proceeding apace, and that the prisoners included the father of Bacha Saksu, "the water boy of the north," who dethroned Amanullah, but was subsequently beaten and hanged by Nadir's men. Most of the captives from last summer's uprising have been blown from cannon.

GHOST OF OLD REGIME HAUNTS TROUBLED SPAIN

Madrid.—(AP)—The political ghost of the dead dictatorship continues to stalk the forums of Spain. Emittes engendered and partisan alignments made during the seven years' rule of General Primo de Rivera are agitating his country after he has gone to his grave.

The political groups which supported Primo's dictatorship, and the men who held high office during that regime, are these days being attacked by rival groups—left-wing labor, social and political elements—that were suppressed under the dictatorship.

This is the explanation of a considerable part of Spain's present disturbances, although, of course, not all. It is a movement of labor and political bands that opposed the dictatorship and were curbed by it. Now they turn the tables and give the enemy a taste of his own medicine by breaking up or annoying as much as possible political meetings of those who, while Primo ruled, had his favor.

In addition, Spain is harassed by student unrest which has caused strikes at various universities; by some socialist and communist agitation, by widespread labor troubles and strikes caused by a combination of political and economic conditions—and back of it all, and merging directly or indirectly into a good deal of the trouble, the movement for a republic in lieu of a monarchy.

The fight between Primo's old supporters and opponents takes specifically the form of opposing forces of the "Monarchical Union" and an alignment of labor and political left groups, sometimes including self-styled communists and socialists.

These elements oppose the "Monarchical Union" not so much because they are against the King, although some of them are, as because they are still bitter against those who backed that dictatorship. Primo organized what he called the "Patriotic Union." It was for all practical purposes, his personal political machine. After he got it founded around 1918 and finally reorganized as the Monarchical Union, and the left leaders and other elements they can sway, fight this ghost of Primo largely for revenge.

Beyond all this are groups that are straight-out republicans. Their strategy is to try to alienate dissatisfied workers, restless students, disgruntled social groups, the politically disaffected and any other elements they can find. This way they hope some time to triumph. Meanwhile the Army and the government support the monarchy. They are potent forces and the government says: "We are prepared to meet any situation."

The only time a water gets in wrong taking a dip, may happen. Max is when it comes from Wall Street.

DETROIT HARD HIT BY UNEMPLOYMENT

Survey Shows Most Suffering There—N. E. Council Suggests Registration.

Washington, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The President's emergency committee for unemployment today announced it had received recommendations from the New England Council at Boston that every neighboring community make immediate provision for the voluntary registration of persons waiting work.

The council also informed the committee that the industrial section of the forthcoming sixth New England conference to be held in Boston November 20 and 21, will devote itself exclusively to development of a program for the mobilization of all available work and applying it to the needs of the greatest possible number of workmen.

"The New England committee feels," its message said, "the important objective is to get a knowledge of the actual effects of unemployment in order that assistance through productive jobs may be made available first where most needed and most needed."

Colonel Woods is expected to return to Washington tomorrow to name additional regional advisers to carry on the work. In the meantime the working organization of the closer coordination of its efforts with those of state and municipal governments and with industry.

It is expected that the National organization will be functioning at full speed in a few days. Additional Drives President Hoover was told today that although the financial programs of 220 cities with community chests had been increased approximately seven per cent this year, additional drives probably would be needed during the winter to care for relief work.

Burns said there already was much suffering in large industrial centers but through the efforts of the several government and relief organizations "no one is going to freeze or starve to death this winter."

Detroit was described as the city hardest hit, with Cleveland, Toledo and other cities also feeling the pinch of suffering. The Cleveland community chest has increased its quota from $750,000 to $4,050,000 this year and expects to raise that amount, Burns said.

General conditions are spotty he asserted, with very little suffering on the Pacific coast and the south feeling the situation less than the midwest and east.

500 SPANISH STUDENTS BURN THEIR TEXTBOOKS

Seville, Spain, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Nearly all of the 500 students at the University of Seville went on strike today and rioted in the various buildings, breaking classroom windows and doors.

The strike was a protest against the operation of Spanish universities under a plan devised by Senor Callejo, who was minister of public instruction under the Primo de Rivera dictatorship.

Ramon Carnava, rector of the university, promised the students he would telegraph Madrid and request that the Callejo plan be withdrawn. It appeared that no one was injured in the demonstrations but great excitement prevailed. When the students burned textbooks and newspapers in the patio, some one called the fire department and the rush of fire trucks to the school increased the confusion.

The students said they felt the Callejo plan was inefficient in the standpoint of studying that it was too severe in depriving them of personal liberties.

FLIER'S NARROW ESCAPE

Sydney, New South Wales, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Captain F. P. Matthews, who recently flew from England to Australia after a run of bad luck which greatly delayed his flight, barely escaped death or serious injury today as his plane crashed at Lismore while flying from Brisbane to Sydney.

The plane struck a wire fence and hit the ground with such force that the shock absorbers pierced the floor and shot up between Captain Matthews and the dash, just missing him. Matthews was not even scratched.

New York—Sir Philip Gibbs believes that Great Britain is likely to have a woman prime minister some day. His latest book, "Since Then," published by Harper's, says Lady Astor would do the job rather well.

Elstree, England—Though George Bernard Shaw picked Carpenter to beat Dempsey he believes he knows how to fight, at least for the movies. A scrap between a lady's admirer and her husband in the filming of a play of his did not have enough action so he showed the leading man, rolling around the floor with him.

POLICE HEADS OUSTED

Detroit, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Acting on the recommendation of the Wayne county Grand Jury, Police Commissioner Thomas C. Wilcox today removed from active service Robert A. MacPherson, deputy chief of detectives; Norval Marlett, head of the Blackhand Squad and Detective Lieutenant Max Waldfoegel.

The Grand Jury recommended the immediate removal of the three officers last Friday. Commissioner Wilcox acted today after he had gone before the jury in an effort to learn the motives behind that body's recommendation.

MacPherson was the officer whom Patrolman Adolph van Coppenolle last winter accused of plotting to kill Inspector Henry J. Garvin.

The open miniature golf championship was played on Lookout Mountain. This is the height of something or other.

RAILROAD DENIES PINCHOT CHARGES

Pennsylvania Directors Issue Statement Answering Some of the Accusations Made.

Philadelphia, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company today gave cogent denial of charges made against it and its officers in the present political campaign in Pennsylvania, principally by Gifford Pinchot, the Republican candidate for governor, by issuing a statement to stockholders, its employees and the public, denying the various charges made.

W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, recently resigned as a member of the Republican National committee giving as a reason that he could not support the entire Republican state ticket. Before and after that action Atterbury has been attacked by Pinchot, who in a speech referred to the railroad president as "my arch enemy."

The statement issued by the directors but does not mention Pinchot but quotes some of his declarations, said that "charges against the Pennsylvania railroad and its officers have been recklessly and repeatedly made. The integrity and good faith of the management have been impugned, and the effort has been made to place the company in a false and unjust light before the general public, the owners of the securities, and its employees.

Some Accusations. "It has been accused of delinquency in its obligations to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, of neglect and discrimination against the city of Philadelphia, of permitting the funds of the city to be used for improvement of the company's property and of dictating to its employees how to vote."

The statement denies a declaration that the company does not pay one penny of taxes on its real estate holdings in Philadelphia and adds that the amount of such taxes paid was $1,564,232 for this year.

The company states it does not owe the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania "one cent for taxes legally due;" that all tax bills rendered have been paid "except items now in litigation."

Macht-Newberry

A pretty home wedding took place Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents in the Hop River district, when Miss Ethel Grace Newberry was united in marriage with Wm. Macht Jr. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Howell of Waterbury, a former pastor of the Columbia church, under a green and white floral wedding bell, in the presence of about 40 relatives and friends. The wedding march was played on cornet and piano by Mr. and Mrs. John Rising of Windsor, Mrs. Rising, who is a sister of the bride, also singing "I love you truly."

The bride's gown was rose tan and crepe trimmed with dark brown, and she carried carysanthemums to match. The maid of honor was Miss Yvonne Marrott's of Willimantic, who wore a dark blue tulle dress with black. She carried yellow carysanthemums. The bridegroom was attended by Howard Newberry, brother of the bride. The bride's mother wore Yale blue crepe, trimmed with rose tan and the groom's mother wore dark green flat crepe. The bride's gift to her maid of honor was a hand carved rose pendant, and the groom's gift to the best man was a cigarette lighter.

Following the ceremony a buffet lunch was served, including two large wedding cakes made by the bride's mother.

The young couple left later in the afternoon on an automobile trip, destination unannounced. Mrs. Macht wore a dark blue tulle dress with hat to match, and a short fur coat. On their return they will make their home for the present with the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Macht of Columbia.

Both bride and groom attended Windham High school and the groom was a student for some time at Mt. Hermon. They received many pretty gifts from their friends.

The young bride during the past week has had three showers given by her friends. On Tuesday afternoon a miscellaneous shower was given her in Windsor by her sister, Mrs. Rising and Tuesday evening also in Windsor a personal shower was given her by her friend, Miss Vivian Sandberg. Wednesday evening at her home in Columbia she was given a shower by Mrs. Lynde Porter, about 40 being present.

The Ladies Aid society met Thursday afternoon at the parsonage, 33 ladies being present. After a brief business meeting, assorted sandwiches, cookies and coffee were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Melinger and Miss Anne Dix. The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Richard Arnold, and Mrs. Philip Isham and Mrs. Henry Hutchins will serve as hostesses with Mrs. Arnold.

The town schools were closed Friday that the teachers might attend the Teachers Convention held at Hartford.

Mrs. George Fiske of Rockville has been spending a few days at the home of Mrs. Jennie Hunt, returning home Sunday.

Head of National Fund Says Money Collected by Jews Goes to Assist Arabs.

Jerusalem, Oct. 28.—(AP)—A statement that the "game of the last thirteen years or so is finished; this is one good result of the British government's declaration," was made to the Associated Press today by Menahem Ussishkin, head of the Jewish National Fund.

The British statement of policy in Mr. Ussishkin severely attacked Palestine, which aroused widespread Jewish protest.

"For thirteen years the government in London misled world Jewry by declarations of sympathy," he said, "while practically jeopardizing our every step in Palestine. Now the whole Jewish people knows that the British government is resolved to destroy the hope of Jewish people returning and rebuilding their country."

DEPRESSION HITS PRISON

Jefferson City, Mo., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Business depression has hit the Missouri penitentiary here.

The prison today started a four-day working week in all five factories, where about 1,400 convicts have been working, although the normal force is about 2,000. Director John I. Burnett said the change was caused by "business depression and lack of orders," explaining orders had dropped about 33-1-2 per cent in the last six weeks.

Annual production in the prison factories, averages more than $2,000,000.

Merchants' Night At State Theater Every Wednesday Night

George Arliss In His Best-Loved Role, "Old English" Combined With Merchants Night Expect To Pack State

"Old English," starring George Arliss in Warner Brothers Vitaphone version of the famous John Galsworthy play of the same name, is to be the next attraction at the State Theater, opening there tomorrow night.

This is the screen version of the greatest Arliss stage success, in which he starred for three years in New York and on the road. A special cast, many of them members of the original stage company, give Mr. Arliss the most expert support he has ever enjoyed in a picture and Alfred E. Green, who directed "Disraeli" and "The Green Goddess," also directs "Old English."

Dialogue for the screen version of the famous play was written by Galsworthy himself for this production and the picture carries his enthusiastic endorsement. Mr. Arliss considers "Old English" his best part. George Arliss was only six years of age when he made his first public appearance. He did not "come on" before the footlights. He merely ran around the block of his home in London, dressed up in a fantastic costume made by his sister. His purpose was to startle his neighbors. Even then his mimetic ambition was at fever heat. After that spurt, nothing could keep him from the stage.

Amateur Theatricals There followed the usual amateur theatricals with an improvised stage and an audience of eight children. With two friends he staged plays with such frequency that the parts had to be begged. Most important for him in these formative years were the types he could observe in the Museum Tavern, hard by the London Museum, where his father lounged with his cronies—quer literary and theatrical devotees who preferred the pot-house to the pen. "I had no idea then," Arliss writes in his autobiography, "Up the Years

From Bloomsbury, "that I should ever use these characters on the stage, but they fascinated me and I used to steal into the Tavern like an alien spy and watch them from a corner seat. Without my being aware of it, they all fell into a pocket of my memory. And afterward, when I went on the stage, I used to find them popping up and begging for reincarnation. In a play called "The Elder of Youth" of which Leonard Merrick was part author I was cast for an old professor. When I came to study the part, at once there jumped upon me from my Tavern memory-bag, Mr. Oldfield! The plays he gave with his friends were not highbrow; they lacked problems; but as he himself says, they reflected the melodrama then in vogue on the stage. Plays like "The Lights of London" and "The Silver King."

Enters Publishing Office In deference to his father's wishes, he entered his father's publishing office, but the work irked him. He preferred acting, and he spent his evenings giving recitals, readings, entertainments at concerts, church meetings, workingmen's clubs, workhouses—anywhere so he could be heard. He founded an amateur dramatic society of his own, and then, deciding to throw his lot with the stage, quit his father's business and made his stage debut, as a super with the Elephant and Castle Stock Company in London in a melodrama called "Saved From the Sea."

Silent roles for a whole year—but Arliss was happy. Then the exciting experience with an English province company, where he gained valuable experience playing varied parts. Sometimes the company would be impeccable and the manager would slip away leaving the actors stranded. He played the old English comedies in Margate, getting the job on a bluff; here he would act before Ellen Terry who would come down to see her son

Gordon Craig, a pupil of the company. A gift of fifty pounds induced him to turn actor-manager, with disastrous results to the fifty pounds. Then the ambition of every aspiring English actor—an engagement in the West End. George Arliss had arrived! He was acting with Mrs. Patrick Campbell, and becoming popular with audiences.

Comes to America George C. Tyler, the producer representing Liebler & Company, came from America, and engaged Mrs. Campbell and Mr. Arliss for an American tour. Arliss thought he was leaving for a single season. How could he foresee that his popularity would be such that twenty years would elapse before he again made an English appearance?

Belasco Engagement This was in 1901. He was especially successful as Cayley Drumme in Finero's "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," and as the Duke of St. Oliphant in the same dramatist's "The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith." David Belasco next engaged him for the part of the sinister Sakhuri in "The Darling of the Gods," with Blanche Bates. He was a leading member of Mrs. Fiske's notable Manhattan company for several seasons, as Steyns in "Becky Sharp," Raoul Berton in "Leah Kleschna," and Brack in "Hedda Gabler."

He was first starred in Franz Molnar's "The Devil," which opened on August 18, 1908. A rival producer put on the same play that same night, causing a furore in New York. Since then, he has always starred in plays. W. J. Locke's "Septimus" did not attract the public, and Arliss was at his wit's end for a good play. "If Septimus," he says, "had been more prosperous, George Tyler would never have said to me, 'It's about time you got a success,' and if he hadn't said that I should probably never have played 'Disraeli'."

"Disraeli" "Disraeli" was really the turning point in his career. He brought to it intelligence and genius. Beginning with a poor start in Chicago, it soon acquired impetus, and became an outstanding success. Arliss played the title role for five years. George Tyler Commissioned Louis Napoleon Parker to write the play for Arliss, who gave the part the quintessence of his talents. The New York run began on September 18, 1911, at Wallack's Theater.

"It seems to me that in the five consecutive seasons during which I played it, I appeared in every corner of the country. I am always grateful to George Tyler that he never made any attempt to cheapen my company throughout the long period. The performance in the most obscure one-night stand was on the same plane as that given during the New York season."

Playwright Also Two biographical dramas followed, Edward Knoblock's "Faganini" and "Alexander Hamilton," on which Arliss collaborated with Mrs. G. W. Hamlin. He scored in the leading role of William Archer's "The Green Goddess," which Warner Bros. presented in Vitaphone all-talking garb. Successful too, was he in John Galsworthy's "Old English" and his first Shakespearean role, that of Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Adventure enters the life of CELIA MITCHELL, 17, when she learns the father she has supposed dead is alive and wealthy. She leaves her unpretentious home in Baltimore to live in New York with her father, JOHN MITCHELL, and her aristocratic grandmother.

MARGARET ROGERS, Celia's mother is now a widow, having divorced Mitchell and remarried later. BARNEY SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl and before leaving Baltimore Celia promises to be loyal to his love.

Mitchell asks EVELYN PARSONS, beautiful widow, to introduce the girl to young people. Mrs. Parsons agrees, considering Celia a means to win Mitchell's affections. She soon becomes jealous of the girl and schemes to get rid of her. Mrs. Parsons introduces Celia to TOBY JORDAN, fascinating but of dubious character and does all she can to encourage this match even after the Mitchell forbids Celia to see the young man.

LISI DUNCAN, socially prominent, becomes Celia's loyal friend. The girl goes to Mrs. Parsons' Long Island home for a lengthy visit and Jordan calls there frequently. He and Celia attend the races and there she encounters Barney Shields, now employed by a New York picture company. Celia meets Shields next day and they have dinner together. He asks if she still cares for him and Celia admits she has lost her heart to Jordan.

A few days later Mrs. Parsons opens her apartment in town and Celia goes there as her guest. She meets Shields on the street one afternoon and is with him when Jordan suddenly appears.

"No, ma'am. We're just out. I'll have more in the morning."

"Oh, well—well, give me a quarter of a pound of the salted pecans."

"Yes, ma'am."

Barney Shields eyed the girl curiously while the order was being filled. He noticed Celia's quick glance down the street as they stepped to the door.

"Celia," he said, when they were on the street again, "why did you go in there?"

"Why, to buy nuts!"

"Oh, no you didn't. You know that wasn't the reason. I want to know why you did it."

"What in the world makes you say such a thing?" Her flush was tell-tale.

"Of course, if you don't want to tell me it's all right."

They walked in silence. Celia turned her head away but she could not master the uncomfortable feeling that she had deceived Barney, and he knew it. She was in the wrong, and the sensation was disagreeable.

At the corner they paused to wait for traffic lights to change. It was several seconds before the light turned green. Then Celia looked up and smiled shame-facedly.

"You're right," she said. "I did go into the store as an excuse. It was because I didn't want to meet someone."

"Oh, I see," Shields' tone was cool. "It was to buy nuts, was it?"

"Yes, to buy nuts," she said. "I don't know who. And I didn't want him to see me with you." The girl hesitated, then, noting the change that had come over Barney Shields' countenance, she hurried on.

"Oh, please, don't misunderstand. I mean it would take a lot of explanations. You mustn't think for a minute that I—well, that I don't want you to meet my friends. I do know that you and I would like each other a lot and I want you to meet them only that just now—"

"Oh, don't bother to explain. I get the drift all right."

"Barney, you mustn't talk that way. You must make me feel dreadful!"

"Well, why should you want your millionaire friends to see you with a no-account like me?"

"Barney, please—"

He saw the hazel eyes filling with tears. Instantly Shields was compassionate.

"See here, Celia, forget about it," he told her roughly. "I didn't want to hurt your feelings. Sure, you've got a right to do what you want to. Don't think about it."

"Then you won't call yourself a no-account any more and think I don't want people to meet you?"

"Not if it makes you feel badly. No, I won't."

"Why, you mean you looked embarrassed. His voice was near tears and it was always embarrassing for Barney to show emotion. He changed the conversation to something about a building they were passing.

"When they were in front of the apartment where Evelyn Parsons lived Celia said with an effort:

"Won't you come up and meet Mrs. Parsons? She's the friend I'm staying with."

"Yes, she's my friend," Celia said. "Thanks," he said. "I'll have to be getting along. Got a night assignment and I want to drop in at the office to see the boss." Still he hesitated.

"Why didn't you answer my note?" the girl asked.

"That? Oh, say, I'm sorry about that. All my fault! You see they keep us chasing in and out of town so much. I've been meaning to call you up, but somehow I didn't get to it."

His tone was unconvincing, but Celia overlooked that. She said slowly and with a smile:

"Well, you may ask when you're gone, 'Why didn't you call?'"

Barney grinned.

"I'd like to see you tonight—if it weren't for the Communists. Some sort of Red rally down on Fourth street this evening. The real cause, the thing that's worth a damn, is worth my valuable time."

"Are you going to make pictures?"

"Yes, it's likely to bust into a riot. That's why I'm to be there."

"Oh, Barney, maybe it'll be dangerous."

He laughed.

"Nothing like that, child. Those guys go in for lots of oratory, but that's about all. Maybe you'll see some of my pictures in tomorrow's papers."

"I'll look! Only it scares me to think of you going to such places."

"Say—if that's all I had to worry about! Why, this will be just nothing at all. Don't give it a thought. Honestly, I will try to call you up during the next few days. Maybe we can get together for dinner or see a show."

"I love that, Barney. I'll love to see you."

"Well, I'll telephone. Got to be going now. So long."

Celia entered the building and rang the bell for the elevator. She felt happier than she had been for days. Barney was willing to be friends again. As the lift bore upward she hummed a tune under her breath.

Mrs. Parsons' apartment was on the 22d floor. It faced westward, with a magnificent view of the cross-town skyline from the windows of the living room. The rooms were furnished in ultra modern manner. Squat, dark wood tables and cabinets, low chairs and divans upholstered in blue and silver, curious metallic ornaments and hangings of eggplant gauze at the windows—all called herself in. She pulled off her hat, patted her hair into place and walked into the living room.

"Oh, here you are!" Evelyn greeted her. "I've just sent Rose to bring tea. My dear, I'm simply exhausted! I've been in every shop on 57th street looking for those ribbon sandals Fannie told me about. You know she said she got them at Bandel's, but that can't be true, because they told me they haven't even ordered any. I don't know how I'm to get them. I simply went everywhere."

"Couldn't you have them made?"

"Well, I'm going tomorrow to Harrison's. They made those blue pumps everyone thinks I bought abroad." Evelyn sank back against the divan. "I'm so worn out I've telephoned I won't be able to go to the Parker's this evening. They'll look up and smile shame-facedly. 'You know she said she got them at Bandel's, but that can't be true, because they told me they haven't even ordered any. I don't know how I'm to get them. I simply went everywhere.'"

"I'm glad we're going to have tea," Celia said. "I'd like some, too."

"Have you been walking?"

"Yes, I went to the park and then I got to looking in shop windows and forgot all about the time."

The maid appeared with a large silver tray. She set it on the table before Evelyn.

"Um—macarons! I love them!" Celia exclaimed. Mrs. Parsons poured a cup of tea and handed it to the girl.

"Macarons are fattening," Evelyn cautioned.

"Yes, but not just one or two," Celia helped herself to the plate of cakes. "I'm glad you're going to be here this evening," she said. "I'd got something on and I was worried about what I could do to amuse myself."

Evelyn sipped her tea.

"Think I'll lie down a while before dinner," she said presently. She rose and left the room.

From where Celia was sitting she could look across toward the western sky. The sun had sunk behind the horizon of jutting spires and masses of steel and concrete. There were towers and spires and others were monstrosities. The brilliant lights, soon to transform the top of the metropolis into a firmament, were not yet glowing.

Celia lingered until the sun's rays faded and the first gray of dusk appeared. She went to dress for dinner. There was half an hour. The meal would be served at seven o'clock.

She selected the blue chiffon which was one of the frocks bought on her first shopping trip with Mrs. Parsons. Celia bathed and powdered and got into her fresh garments hurriedly. She was back in the living room before Evelyn.

There was a ring at the door and the maid entered. Celia recognized Lisi Duncan's shrill soprano and hurried to meet her.

"Lisi!"

"Hi, sweetheart. Listen, you've got to let me dress here. I'm going to meet Dicky at 9:30. Brought my camera. Lisi held up an overnight bag.

Mrs. Parsons had entered from the opposite side of the room.

"Good evening, Lisi," she said. "I'm so glad you've come. Celia and I need company."

Lisi explained her errand: She put aside the overnight bag and went in to dinner with Evelyn and Celia. Afterward she went to Celia's bedroom and reappeared in a flaming gown of yellow taffeta. Lisi came into the room dancing.

"Let's have music!" she cried, beginning a tap dance.

Celia obligingly turned to the radio. A rousing fox trot filled the room. Lisi shifted her step to fit the rhythm.

The tune ended. There was a pause and then the announcer cut in crisply:

"We are interrupting the program at this time," the voice said, "to report that fire costing from 30 to 50 lives tonight wrecked the building in which a Communist convention was being held at Fourteenth street and Third avenue. Victims were trapped when smoke cut off escape by a single stairway."

Celia waited no longer.

"It's Barney!" she gasped. "Come on!"

A THOUGHT

Come, let us return unto the Lord; for he hath torn, and he will bind us up—Isaiah 61.

Repentance is second innocence.—De Bonald.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.

BY ALICIA HART
© 1930 BY NEA SERVICE INC

Make a shrine to beauty! And perform your rites there every morning and every evening, using yourself as the goddess whose mirrored face you want to shine on you with gratitude.

Don't expect to buy a row of crystal bottles, a silver jar or two, a brush and comb and mirror whose pink or blue-yellow is the color of your complexion and they blossom with the fire of an enchantment.

You won't! Your dressing table should be a laboratory dedicated to the proposition of sending you to the office or store or drawing room looking as lovely as you ought to look. They're called "Not-Ornaments."

You will need a hair brush for this laboratory. One with long, flexible bristles. The outside doesn't count. The bristles do. You can't make an ornament out of it, either. It should be kept under cover, to make it scientifically clean.

This rule applies to your comb and to the eyebrow brush which is another article on the altar of beauty.

You will need a good cleansing cream, cleansing tissues, mild soaps, a skin-tinting lotion, and an eye lotion for bathing your eyes night and morning.

There are pasteurized creams and gels for face bathing, as well as other cleansing aids which are also helpful in making a more effective service.

Don't overlook absorbent cotton, as you will need it in your daily rituals.

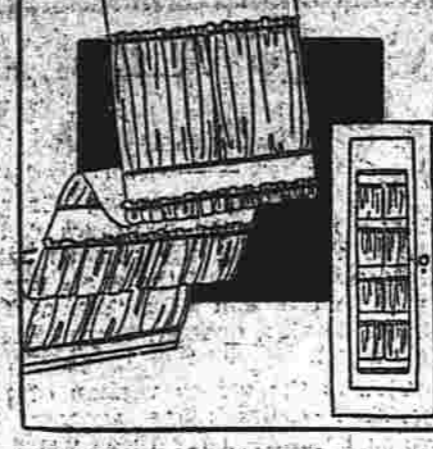

Beauty isn't given away very often. And when it is, it is likely to tarnish if you don't keep polishing it.

If you attend to your devotions regularly—and incidentally there are some exercises involved, too—you will get returns from the mirror and the eyes of those who look your way.

Even if Wickersham's proposal to abolish the juries is carried into effect, the chances are great some will find immunity because of rheumatism or lumbago.

MAKE IT YOURSELF

Useful and acceptable for the stylish friend who has a weakness for pretty footwear is the Christmas gift of a full-length closet door shoe bag.

Such a bag should be made of durable, washable glazed chintz or fine cretonne, either figured or plain colored in the shade of the room's decoration.

Three and a half yards of material are needed. Make the back of the shoe wardrobe not quite the length or the width of the door, so that it will not stand in the way of the door's closing. Bind all the edges with bias braid or pieces of the material. Cut four widths of the material for pockets which will measure 12 inches when finished. Finish the tops of these strips with hems and run elastic through them, stitching it securely when you stitch the pockets onto the back. After stitching all the pockets in place, a few inches apart, stitch down through the center of each, dividing all four into halves, each of which still is large enough to adequately house a pair of shoes.

This shoe bag should be put up with thumb tacks the same color as itself. To make sure this is done, put eight thumb tacks into an envelope and attach it to the corner of the bag when you send it.

YOUR CHILDREN

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
© 1928 BY NEA SERVICE INC

By the time he is 6 months old, a child has enough sense perception and bodily activity to add to his knowledge of people and things in the world around him.

He becomes so attentive that it often is hard to distract him from the object of his interest. Periods of such attention sometimes last half an hour or more.

He takes great interest in watching things fall, then in purposely throwing them down. He recognizes the sight of his baby carriage and his mother with a hat on and knows that these signs mean he is going out. He takes an intense interest in animals. He knows his own name and looks up when it is spoken.

At 7 months, names of the family are recognized.

At 8 1/2 months, the meaning of "no" is known.

At 9 months, he knows a few words.

By 10 months he has a little vocabulary of his own, with sounds that are intended to indicate de-

TESTS SHOW CHANGE OF POSTURE AFFECTS PRESSURE OF BLOOD

RISE FROM LYING TO STANDING POSITION ALSO BRINGS INCREASE IN THE PULSE RATE

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

One of the few physical measurements of his own body that the average man can make is to count his pulse.

Variations in the pulse, he will find, if he does count it accurately, are not at all infrequent. As far back as 1897 investigators proved that the pulse and the blood pressure will change in a person who has been lying down suddenly stands up or vice versa.

Usually when a person who has been lying down stands up, his pulse rate becomes more rapid and his blood pressure a little higher. Apparently it makes no difference whether the person gets up on his own account or is helped up by someone else although active use of the muscles will make a somewhat larger increase than the change helped by outside efficiency.

If the blood pressure does not rise in the change from lying to standing according to Dr. D. G. Christ, the person is assumed to be somewhat lacking in proper tonus of his blood vessels. The term tonus indicates that the dilating and constricting of the blood vessels is being held under proper control by the nervous system.

A steady fall of the blood pressure may result in the appearance of symptoms of shock, including fainting or unconsciousness. Quite recently, Doctor Christ undertook a number of careful studies of effects of change in posture on blood pressure and pulse rate. The persons studied were permitted to lie horizontally on a table.

After ratings of the blood pressure, and pulse seemed to be standard, they were gradually changed to inclined positions by an electric motor moving the table, and was continued until the patient was in an erect position. Following each change of from 15 to 25 degrees in the angle of the table, estimations were made of the blood pressure and the pulse rate.

Twenty-three women and 17 men whose average age was about 47 years were studied. It was found that a gradual change from a lying position to a standing position causes a rise in the blood pressure of about 12 millimeters of mercury and a rise in the pulse rate of about 15 beats.

Following the determination of the normal response, similar studies were made on persons suffering with various types of disease. It was found that people with high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, diabetes, and asthma who complained of general weakness did not have a normal rise of blood pressure on standing.

The following rule uses the pulse rate to advantage. Lemon juice, salted whipped cream can be added as a garnish when the salad is ready to serve.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

An excellent way to add fruit to fall menus is by way of fruit salads. This type of salad always is popular and has many points in its favor.

Few family dietaries contain enough fruit, its serving being usually restricted to breakfast. The practice of serving fruit salads and fruit desserts is commendable from a health standpoint.

Very often a fruit salad can be made up of odds and ends of fruit. One orange, one banana and two apples or an equal quantity of some other fruit will make enough salad for four persons, but otherwise the fruit would be inadequate for a meal.

Fresh and canned fruits can be combined with good results. Dates, apples and raisins are always available and are an acceptable addition to any fresh or canned fruit combination.

Few Varieties Needed

The perfect fruit salad does not use too many fruits in its composition. However, when it is a "family affair" and a matter of economy, a variety can be used with good effect.

Care should be taken that any inedible portions, such as the seeds of grapes or raisins and the membranes covering the sections of orange or grapefruit, are removed.

Children ordinarily are fond of fruit salads and they are a satisfactory concoction for the juries.

The dressing is of most importance. A delicacy of flavor is essential. The tartness should be brought out by the salt and sugar. The fat light and pleasantly noticed, salt and pepper and mustard used sparingly. Whipped cream often is used with standard dressings to gain the blandness of flavor so desirable.

The custom of combining whipped cream with mayonnaise or rich cooked dressing makes a dressing that is exceedingly rich, a bit too heavy for a dinner salad.

The following rule uses the pulse rate to advantage. Lemon juice, salted whipped cream can be added as a garnish when the salad is ready to serve.

URGES NAVAL DEFENSE

Kansas City, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Paul C. Wolman, Baltimore, National commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, advocated an "adequate naval defense both as a preventive of war and as a means of limiting the toll of conflict should wars prove inevitable." In a Navy Day address issued at national headquarters here today.

Declaring overseas veterans an eye-witness, he said the value of an adequate Navy. Commander Wolman characterized as "both silly and ridiculous" the frequent accusation that former service men are militarists and jingoists.

"The veteran," he said, "who actually saw service is the only true patriot. He learned at first hand the realities of war."

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about the value of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y.

STOMACH UPSET

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets help arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, people rarely suffer from indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no smiling or merry, trouble with undigested foods? Try Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All druggists. 15c, 30c and 50c. Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like.

Runyon May Succeed Bruen As Manager Of Madison Arena

Famous Sports Writer Seen As Likely Choice for Much Sought Position; Others in Running Too.

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Covetous eyes all along cauliflower row are yearning today for the manager's post in Madison Square Garden, the driver's seat of boxing that Tex Rickard vacated in death and Frank January Bruen relinquished of his own accord to return to the management of the Hialeah Race-track in Miami, Florida.

Bruen resigned yesterday after serving as manager and vice-president of the Garden since June 1929. William F. Carey, head of boxing's wealthiest corporation, announced Bruen's retirement with reluctance and declared that only the pressing duties of Rickard's successor in Florida prompted the change.

Those along Broadway say his successor will be chosen from among four men.

Leading the list is Damon Runyon, sports writer who promoted the Schmeling-Paulino fight in 1929 and the Schmeling-Sharkey match last summer for Mrs. Randolph Hearst's milk fund. Among others under consideration are Wilton Farnsworth, sports editor associated with Runyon in these promotions; Jimmy Johnson, American manager of Phil Scott, and George Blake, of Los Angeles, pilot of Fidel La Barba, former flyweight champion and well known developer of amateur stars on the Pacific coast.

So far, Carey announced, no decision had been taken toward choosing Bruen's successor. The Garden president will handle the job himself for the time being as he did when he stepped into the breach after Rickard's death and staged the first battle of the Palm Beach between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling at Miami Beach, Fla.

Nothing in college football has been so depressing in years to the experts as the sudden threat of South Carolina and Clemson college authorities to forbid the dissemination of any news of their annual scrags at Columbia, S. C., by radio, telegraph wire or telephone, while the game was on.

The fact that the original order was rescinded after a flood of protests did not altogether cool off the hot Southern blood of journalists who refer to the proposal by such harsh terms as "treachery" and "base ingratitude."

By reason of a long-existing and very intense partisan interest throughout South Carolina, this game was and usually has been a sell-out, packing the State Fair grounds at Columbia and bringing all business to a standstill for the day of battle between the Carolina Gamecocks and Clemson Tigers.

University authorities, therefore, were not in a position to worry about the gate receipts for this particular day, yet it seemed the more commercially minded among them feared for the future.

In short, they arrived at a point of reasoning that by popularizing the Carolina-Clemson game to the extent of allowing its glory details to be widely disseminated, the public would stay away in large numbers from ensuing contests of the season, somewhat in horror, perhaps, but at any rate in the hope of getting further returns by the simple twist of a wrist on the radio dials.

How long would college football last, as a paying business, without the columns of preliminary balmy-hoo devoted to it gratuitously by the newspapers?

Not very long, most any graduate manager with a keen eye for his job and his business will tell you. There is, therefore, no cause for immediate alarm that the reactionary germ developed in South Carolina will spread. This is not to say it might not be all for the best to suppress much of the epidemic of words pouring forth each Saturday from the press boxes all over the country. Some university authorities decry the natural tendency of an alert reporter to dramatize, the sport and its principal figures, overlooking the fact that it is his proper job to do so.

Yet none of these authorities, so far as we know (outside of South Carolina entertains any idea of discouraging altogether the details of what little Johnny Whattis is doing for dear old Whoozis.

Rather, the tendency is to make things easier and more comfortable for the boys of the press.

TO FORM BOWLING LEAGUE TONIGHT

Meeting of South End Teams at Charter Oak Alleys at 8:30 to Start Work.

A meeting of representatives of any organizations or groups wishing to participate in an eight-team bowling league will be held this evening at 8:30 at Joe Farr's Charter Oak alleys.

The league will be formed by Manager Farr and Manager Fred Murphy of Murphy's bowling alleys which have been recently opened after a thorough remodeling. The league will operate at the two alleys and may be known as the Community League.

This circuit will be an outgrowth of The Herald League which has had a big success in the past few years. It is expected that among other organizations, the Centers, British Americans, Sons of Italy, Charter Oaks, Murphy's Night-hawks, West Sides and others will be represented at tonight's gathering.

LIPTON IS COMING OVER HERE AGAIN

To Have Another Shamrock Ready Two Years Hence He Says Upon Embarking

London, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Sir Thomas Lipton, entraining for Southampton to take the Leviathan for America stated that he had determined to have another Shamrock ready in two years to race for the America's Cup. It will be one, he said, that "will make the Americans sit up."

"Am I going to contest for the America's Cup next year?" said Sir Thomas. "I don't think so, unless I have a boat like the Americans have." He laughed. "But by following year I'll have a Shamrock ready that will make the Americans sit up."

"We Scotch-Irish don't easily give up," Sir Thomas said as his train moved away. "I'm going to have another Shamrock in the cup but this time I'll win."

The merchant-sportsman evidently was in high spirits. He looked bronzed and fit and said that he was killing two birds with one stone this time, combining business with a holiday overseas.

"After I've attended to my interests in New York," he said, "I'll have a general look around and renew acquaintance with my old cronies."

Enthusiastic writers who have seen Newman fling those long accurate forward passes and lead the team wisely in the games with Purdue and Ohio, have taken to calling him "another Benny Friedman." He is hardly that as yet, but he seems to be on the right track.

Friedman himself guided the young man in the proper direction. At the boys' camp in New Hampshire, where Benny was an instructor, the former great Michigan quarterback schooled Newman in the arts of place-kicking and passing.

The most effective use of the forward pass lies in discretion. You have noticed how football teams in desperation have hurled pass after pass in the closing minutes of a game. Few of them ever click.

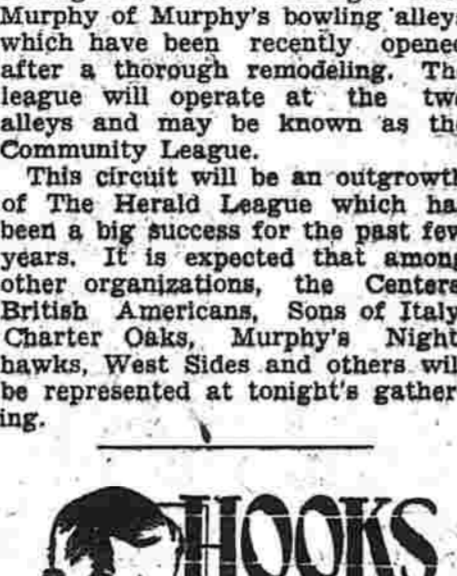

Newman throws few passes. But he throws them at surprisingly the right time. Against Ohio, Newman threw two passes. They brought on both the touchdowns that Michigan made. One of the passes was from midfield, to Strahl, and it brought the ball to Ohio's one-yard line. The other, to Wheeler, advanced the ball 21 yards to the 19-yard line.

Against Purdue, a pass at the right time, Newman to Daniels, scored the touchdown that won the game.

Look over a few of the good teams, Yale, Notre Dame, Georgia, Army, Northwestern, Pitt, Purdue and others. And look at their quarterbacks, Booth, Carideo, Downs, Bowman, Hanley, Baker and White.

How Albie Booth Was Stopped In Army-Yale Football Game

These Herald-NEA Service pictures tell the story of why the crowd that sat through a pouring rain at the Yale-Army game in New Haven, Conn., hoping to see Albie Booth, got only a brief glimpse of the little Yale quarterback in action.

Entering the game in the second quarter for the first time, Booth intercepted a forward pass on his 5-yard line—and the photo at the top shows strikingly how the Army gridsters descended on him. His first play was his last, and in the center picture the motionless form of the diminutive star is seen being lifted from the muddy ground by his teammates. In the lower picture he is shown being carried from the field on a stretcher. He was confined to the Yale infirmary by a head injury. Yale, without his aid, held Army to a bitterly fought 7-to-7 tie.

Michigan got good quarterbacking. The generalship on the part of the Ohio State signal-caller was not any more than you could expect from a lance corporal. Ohio State has good material. Taking the team as a whole, it is the equal of the Michigan eleven except in one respect. That respect is "this Harry Newman."

This Harry Newman seems to be the answer to Michigan's supplication for a signal-caller. The Wolverine has needed a field general for several years. "This Newman" seems to be the leader.

The Pass Discreet Enthusiastic writers who have seen Newman fling those long accurate forward passes and lead the team wisely in the games with Purdue and Ohio, have taken to calling him "another Benny Friedman."

Against Purdue, a pass at the right time, Newman to Daniels, scored the touchdown that won the game.

Look over a few of the good teams, Yale, Notre Dame, Georgia, Army, Northwestern, Pitt, Purdue and others. And look at their quarterbacks, Booth, Carideo, Downs, Bowman, Hanley, Baker and White.

A quarterback is a handy fellow to have around.

Decision On Gridiron Court Of Final Appeal

By FIELDING H. YOST
Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Football court of last resort holds sixty-minute sessions on a chalk lined field.

Each session is final, for advocates (the teams) and arbiters (the officials) never meet again in the same capacities.

A football game is not a parcel of land or a mass of metal of certain value to remain constant during judicature. It is a constantly moving procedure with every play depending upon the decision of the play before it, and decision upon each play must be final and without appeal.

Yale recently made a touchdown against Georgia when a southern fumble of a kickoff was plucked from the air by Barres, who continued across the goal line.

After the game an appeal to the rule book disclosed that Barres should have been given the ball on recovery, at Georgia's 20-yard line. It was a rule officials, players and coaches apparently forgot.

None can tell what might have happened had the correct decision been made. Yale, with the ball on the 20-yard line was in position to score and might have done so.

Time's taker up and the defensive wear and tear on Georgia, might have prevented the third and winning Georgia touchdown.

Because of the mistake, an entirely different game was played from the one which would have followed the correct decision. It might have been a better Yale game?

It might have been a better Georgia game? The game was played, however, and decided at New Haven, October 11, 1930.

Mistakes in rules or mistakes in judgment perhaps have occurred in every football game. The exact facts possibly are known, about very few plays.

Such conditions will continue as long as we humans play games with line decisions as in tennis; first base decisions as in baseball and out of bounds and many similar decisions as in football.

Experienced and honest judgment of the facts are all we can expect in games. The efforts should be to prevent as many mistakes as possible by securing men of greatest intelligence, the largest experience and the most proved efficiency as officials.

The arbiter's decision must stand where every play is dependent upon conditions produced by preceding decisions.

In football the court of last resort is on the chalk-lined gridiron. Officials make human mistakes, but are an important part of football. In the handling of the greatest game known to the college men of the United States, we have not found a better method.

DAKOTA LOSES YUDICKY AT END

Yale Also May Save Booth for Harvard Game; Syracuse Meets Brown.

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—For those who like their football with a dash of intersectional flavor, the program for the coming Saturday is one to tickle the pigskin fancy.

Ten clashes on home and foreign fields pit the east against the west from points as far away as Kansas and North Dakota, and Mississippi college in the south.

Princeton and Pittsburgh wander into far fields, the Tigers to tackle Amos Stagg's warriors at Chicago while the Panthers travel to Lincoln for a duel with Nebraska's corn-buskers. North Dakota visits Army, Kansas invades Pennsylvania, William and Mary comes to Harvard, Mississippi College is the visitor at Colgate, Marquette romps into Boston College, Wakeforest quits the south for a go at Temple in Philadelphia, and Davis Elkins entertains Oklahoma City in the hills of West Virginia. Duke is the guest within the walls of Villa Nova.

The remainder of the gridiron fare is scant but choice among the Major eleven. Dartmouth with one crack end, Stan Yudicky, on the sidelines because of injuries, tackles New Haven, where the Elis aren't at all sure Albie Booth will be fit and ready for the powerful onslaught from the Hanover hills. Syracuse greets an old rival in Brown, and Cornell comes to New York with every prospect of a smashing victory over Columbia.

New York University visits Pittsburgh for the annual clash with Carnegie Tech. Fordham holds the metropolitan spotlight with the Violets away from town and West Vt. furnishing the opposition.

Other interesting battles along the line are the engagements of Rutgers and Holy Cross, and Bucknell and Penn State. Wesley has a breather in West Virginia-Navy.

New Haven.—It seems that you never can tell what Albie Booth is going to do, on the football field or off. Despite his injuries in the Army game he reported early for practice and ran the Yale varsity through signals but the doctors say it is doubtful that he can face Dartmouth Saturday.

Hanover.—Dartmouth is moaning low over injuries with the Yale game just around the corner. Stan Yudicky, blonde end, is down for two weeks with a torn knee ligament. Lee, a field general who should be good, has a pulled tendon.

Cambridge.—Harvard has decided that a good defense doesn't win football games and a few offensive tricks are in the making on the banks of the Charles. Army and Dartmouth could only score a touchdown against the Crimson.

Newark, N. J.—Kid Chocolate, Cubs, knocked out Mickey Doyle, Pottsville, Pa. Toronto—Marty Gold, Philadelphia, outpointed French Delanger, Montreal, Ia. Des Moines, Ia.—Sammy Mandell, Rockford, Ill., outpointed Tony Ligouri, Des Moines, Ia.

St. Louis.—Babe McGorgary, Blackwell, Okla., stopped Tommy Murphy, Youngstown, O., 10.

Naples, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, Italy's leading heavy-weight, arrived here yesterday from the United States. He was given a tremendous welcome.

He denied he is on the verge of matrimony and said he was "going all out" for the world's title which he predicted he would win in 1931.

In his American tour the giant Italian pushed over numerous opponents but lost in his final engagement to Jim Maloney of Boston.

Army Corps Resents Yale's Feeling About Booth and Touchdown

Soldiers Insist Albie Was Downed Hard But Legally and That Booming From Ell Stands Was Entirely Unwarranted.

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Football students had the problem "when is a touchdown not a touchdown," before them today as walk-off as the growing speculation that all is not as well as it might be in the football relations of Yale and Army.

Football officials at Yale announced yesterday after viewing motion pictures of Saturday's Army-Yale game that Tom Kilday, cadet halfback, had scored an illegal touchdown in putting Army in a position to gain a 7-7 tie. The claimed pictures, viewed in private by head coach Mal Stevens, Line Coach Adam Walsh, Tad Jones, Dean Clarence Mendell and Harold F. Woodcock, general manager of the Yale Athletic Association, showed that Kilday was knocked over the goal line before he had been stopped short of the goal in a charge from the Yale on-yard line.

At the same time the Yale officials said they would accept the official decision giving Army the touchdown it was pointed out however that rule 10, section one, says "No player of the team in possession of the ball may help the runner except by interfering for him and there shall be no interlocked interference."

While officially maintaining silence, refusing quotations, supporters of the cadets expressed wonder at the existence of motion pictures of the game and took little pains to hide their feelings. So far as the Army side was concerned, the sportsmanship of the Ell rosters.

Yale mentions that the pictures also show the play on which Albie Booth quarterback ace, was smothered by cadets and bruised so he was forced to retire from the game on the first play in which he participated. The Ell version is that the pictures show Booth had been stopped after intercepting a long Army pass and that the referee had signaled the play at an end when Army players picking up speed suddenly leaped into the mass on the ground, among that mass was Booth.

Army spokesmen commented bitterly on the scenes that followed. They insist Booth was downed hard but legally and the cadets corps, cheering his gallantry was booed by the Ell section. Later when an Army man was injured, Yale cheered again and this time the cadets think the Ell's had something else in mind.

While the game was hard fought and at times bitter, it is felt among the wiser minds that any ill-feeling that might have cropped out will die away with the excitement of the day. Head Linesman A. C. Tyler said last night in Providence, R. I., that there was no question that the ball was over the goal.

"I was standing on the line" he said. "Kilday dived at the mass of players, halted in mid-air just short of the line and then moved ahead far enough so the ball went over. I was not in a position to tell whether he received any assistance or whether he went ahead by the drive from his own legs."

RABBI WISE ILL
New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, prominent rabbi, has been admitted to the Doctors' hospital for an indefinite stay. He collapsed of acute indigestion at the Hotel Half Moon in Coney Island on Saturday. He was said to be suffering from a general breakdown brought about by overwork.

BAILLY RESIGNS
Hartford, Oct. 28.—(AP)—A term of service extending over 34 years was ended today with the resignation of Major Herbert Grant Bailly, superintendent of the city charity department. Major Bailly pleaded ill health.

Many have ventured the opinion that the Majors will run wild against the Cubs this year, but there is little solid ground for this idea. A victory for the Majors, though, would be no startling surprise, while a Cub triumph would positively be an upset. If the Majors can't win this year with their 20 out of town players used to date, it is hard to see when or how they will be able to recapture the town title.

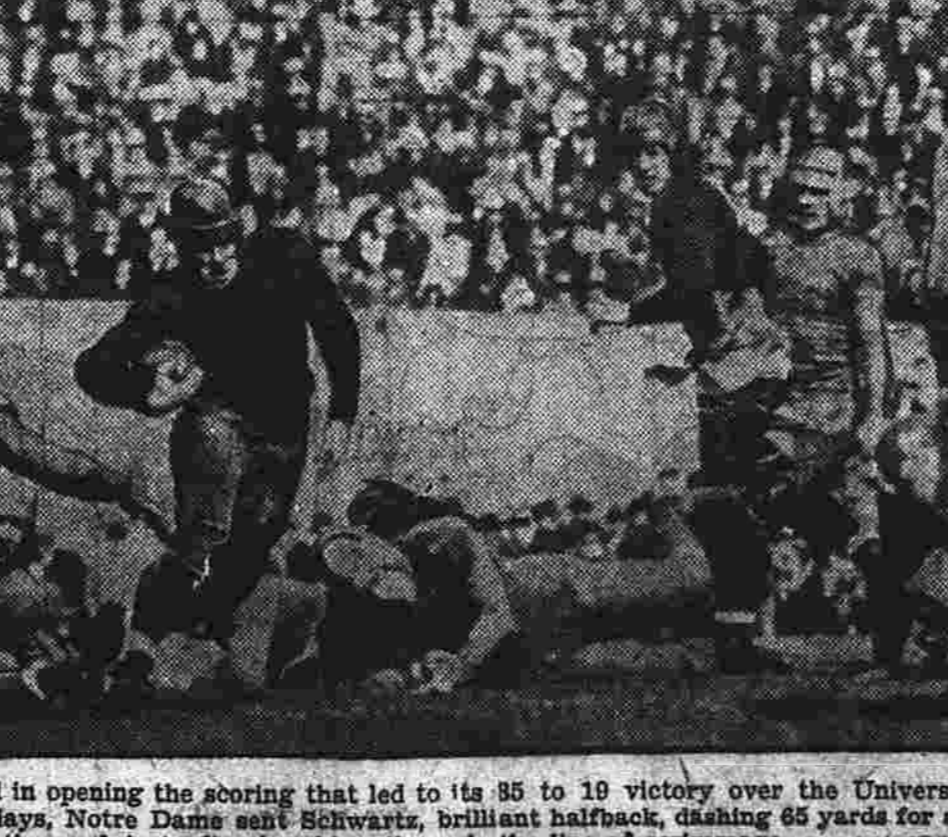

BLIND AUSTRALIAN BOY 'COVERS' BOXING BOUTS
Sydney, Australia.—(AP)—Surgeons here are baffled by the sixth sense of Edward Collins, a 19-year-old boy of Marrickville, Sydney, who, though totally blind, can "see" by intuition.

He can "see" almost every blow struck in a boxing bout, can describe city buildings and street scenes accurately and ride a bicycle through traffic.

He was stricken with blindness during infancy, and it has been proved he is totally blind. After attending a boxing match he describes the bout, blow for blow, his friends say.

A newspaper which investigated his strange powers was so impressed that it has commissioned him to write special boxing descriptions.

SCHWARTZ GOES 65 YARDS FOR A SCORE

Notre Dame lost no time at all in opening the scoring that led to its 35 to 19 victory over the University of Pittsburgh. Getting the ball when Pitt punted after two line plays, Notre Dame sent Schwartz, brilliant halfback, dashing 65 yards for a touchdown on its first play. Schwartz is shown here scampering toward the goal just after breaking through the line of scrimmage.

THE BEST LIGHT ON ANY SUBJECT CAN BE HAD BY A LITTLE REFLECTION.

CITIZENS GUARD CITY AGAINST COMMUNISTS

Port Arthur, Ont., Oct. 28.—(AP)—A force of 800 auxiliary policemen, armed with pick and hammer handles, patrolled the streets of Port Arthur last night as a result of Communist demonstrations.

Wearing distinguishing white arm bands, the citizen police marched through the downtown streets in ten groups but no untoward incident occurred. Meanwhile, at a meeting of the City Council, demands of $25 million in interest on the bonds of the Unemployed Association, were read and referred to a special committee of the council named to select employees for relief undertakings.

The extra force of police, composed largely of city employees and workers in various industries, was sworn in as special constables after disturbances that started Monday night crystallized yesterday. A police officer was assaulted and a prisoner released from custody. After adjourning of the council, the auxiliary force marched to the armories, where they were thanked by Mayor Gibbon.

A detachment of Royal Canadian mounted police has arrived from Regina, Sask., and Linnipeg, Man., but will not take up patrol duty unless called upon by the city police.

HIGHWAYS SYMBOL OF STATE PROGRESS

Ernest E. Rogers Says Connecticut Has Most Miles of Modern Roads in U. S.

New Haven, Oct. 28.—Connecticut's highways are the finest in the country, and the people of this state will be satisfied to trust the rural road problem to the Republican party, Lieutenant Governor Ernest E. Rogers, Republican nominee for governor, declared last night.

His remarks, which were broadcast over the radio, were made at a rally and dinner at the Hotel Taft which was also addressed by five of the six candidates of the state ticket, Congressman John Q. Tilson, majority leader of the House of Representatives, and Sheriff James Geddes.

Lieutenant Governor Rogers spoke in part as follows: Symbol of Progress

"More than anything else a state in this country can point to as a symbol of modern progress is its highways. The standing and reputation of almost any state in our Union is dependent upon its highway system, for it is upon her roadways that all visitors, and many residents as well, gain impressions and make their decisions as to the state itself.

"Connecticut, of course, is somewhat small in area, but even with this advantage over other states, it is an inspiring thing to be able to make the statement that Connecticut has the most miles of modern highways of any state in this country. Our highways, the history of their development, and their present status, is a story which abounds in almost unbelievable accomplishments.

"It is only within the past ten years that we have witnessed the tremendous improvement in highway construction, and today, as we ride over our wide concrete roadways, we often do not realize that most of our reinforced, permanent built roads are products of the last eight or ten years. Cut-offs, grade elimination, straightening out of roads to get rid of dangerous conditions, widening, landscaping—all of these things are of recent vintage. Our automobile licenses pay for these things. Our operators' licenses assist too. Connecticut was the pioneer state to collect the gasoline tax in its present form. That tax goes a long way toward paying for our highways.

"The bonded debt of the state, which has developed one of the finest highway systems in the country, and we have paid for every cent of the expense of that construction out of current income. The motorist does not feel it when he pays the gasoline tax. Our motor vehicles are very reasonable, when compared with other states. So, as a matter of fact, we have our roads all paid for without such payment being a burden to anyone.

Comparative Position

"Application of our position in the matter of highways applied to them is complete in Connecticut with some of our neighboring states. The United States Department of Commerce figures for 1927, which are the most recent compilations available, show that New York is bonded for highways to the amount of 260 million dollars. Interest on this amount, at four per cent, amounts to more than ten millions a year! Think of it! The bonded debt for road purposes in the other nearby states are just a few millions. Pennsylvania, 14 million; Rhode Island, six million; Massachusetts, 14 million; New Jersey, 9 million and New York, 29 million. What must these same figures be today? Would Connecticut taxpayers want to carry the interest payments on highway construction in a similar fashion?

"I just want to tell you one more thing about our highway department tonight. Its method of budgeting is something in which I believe you would be interested. The largest proportion of the highway department's receipts come into the state treasury during the winter months. For pay for your automobile licenses during November and December, and for your operators' licenses during February. The height of the highway construction season is during the summer months. It is the job of the highway department to put every dollar which will be available for its use during the year to work. Idle money does no good in the highway accounts. In order to successfully accomplish the matter of striking a balance at the end of the year, and avoid either a deficit or a large balance of unneeded money, the highway commissioner, during his construction season, borrows money from the state treasury, without interest, in anticipation of receipts which will be available at the end of the year.

Finances

"Let us illustrate with last year's figures. The total receipts of the highway department were $14,464,480.33. The total disbursements were $14,317,625.86. There was a balance of receipts over disbursements of $146,854.47. Just about 99 per cent of the money which should have been spent in highway work during the year was actually used even though a large part of the money had to be carefully apportioned, anticipated and carefully checked through the fluctuating seasons of income and construction. This, more than anything else, attests to the ability of the highway department, in my estimation, and is only one of the many reasons why we rank as we do in the matter of our highways.

"Three years ago we began to develop our state-aid roads. Already our expenditures have doubled in work done on these roads. The present Republican platform promises substantial appropriations for our rural roads, the third and natural step in our ultimate development of highways in the state. Are the people of Connecticut satisfied to trust the rural road problem to the Republican administration which will undoubtedly be elected November 4th? I believe they are, without question of doubt."

DAUGHTER OF PRESIDENT DIES IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Relatives here this morning announced receipt of word that Mrs. James Robert McKee, daughter of the late President Benjamin Harrison, died early today at her home, Berkeley Lodge in Greenwich, Conn.

For years Mrs. McKee was an active worker in the D. A. R., of which her mother was the first president general. She was a member of the Central Presbyterian church in New York and of the First Presbyterian church at Greenwich.

The war time was an active period of her life and she took part in home relief work as treasurer of the "Military of Mercy" organized by Mrs. John Hays Hammond. She also was an officer of the Bird and Tree Club, organized for relief work after the war, and active in the affairs of the "Christie Street House" here.

She was educated at Indianapolis and at Gontz Seminary in Philadelphia, where she continued active work in the seminary's kindergarten work.

Her club membership included the Work Club and Girls Service Club in New York; the Woman's Club and the Propylaeum of Indianapolis.

PERSONAL INCOMES IN U. S. SHRINKING

Treasury Shows Decrease of 150 Millions in the Collections This Year.

Washington, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Shrinkage of personal incomes accounted almost entirely for the nearly $150,000,000 decrease in income tax collections for the first nine months of 1936.

A treasury analysis of the collections so far this year showed collections from individual returns were $132,972,000 below those for the first nine months of 1935, while corporations taxes declined only $15,314,000.

The same symptom was emphasized in the returns from New York state, the largest contributing district, which showed a decrease of $48,800,000 from last year, of which only $4,280,000 was accounted for by corporation taxes. The total for the period was $695,012,119.

Some Increases

In spite of the total shrinkage twelve districts showed increases in total collections. These were Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Kansas, Nevada, South Dakota, Washington and Alaska, and portions of New Jersey, Ohio and Pennsylvania. Increases in individual collections, however, were shown in only five districts: Connecticut, Delaware, South Dakota, Washington and the eleven Ohio districts.

North Dakota's total tax was the smallest for the period, amounting to $343,155, a decrease of $170,000. The national total of collections was $838,535,855 from individual returns and $941,026,271 from corporation taxes.

STICKLERS

THE PROFESSOR has sensationally discovered a new gradient for lines in arithmetic. It means that since his last book at least three volumes, a bookworm has bored a hole straight through, from the first page of the first volume to the last page of the third volume. The leaves are together two inches thick in each volume, and every cover is exactly one-eighth of an inch thick. How long a tunnel did the bookworm bore?

SENSE AND NONSENSE

The advantage of owning both a house and a car are undeniable. You can always use one to get away from the other.

Big Town Bill—Why the traffic here is nothing. In New York a man is run over every twenty minutes. Small Town Susie—How dreadful! The poor man.

The worm always turns... when his wife tells him to from the back seat.

Little Johnny was at the farm for the first time, and after watching the man milk the cow he was asked: Mother—Now you know where the milk comes from: Don't you? Johnny—Yes, you give the cow some breakfast food and water and then you drain her crankcase.

For bringing the young folks closer together there's nothing beats the rumble seat.

With so many filling stations it is easy to fuel all of the people all of the time.

If all of the cars in the country were parked end to end the chances are some driver away up front couldn't get his started.

Helen—Fred is certainly polite. Calvin—How come? Helen—He took me for an auto ride and walked all the way home with me.

Flapper—I use red lipstick but I don't need it. Sheik—Gosh, I'll say you don't; a bum road needs no stop signs!

She—Oh, isn't the desert wonderful, dear? I believe the poets are right when they say that it is only in the great open spaces that one finds himself.

He—Well, this is a good chance to prove it. We're thirty miles from the last town, the sun is going down, we're almost out of gas, and I've gone and lost our road map.

Well, anyway, we never heard of an airplane stalling on a railroad crossing.

Harold—How did you make out with the chicken you had out last night? Homer—Aw, Heck! She flew the coupe.

The man's excuse: "I didn't see her hand out" would be eliminated, if the ordinance was changed to read: "a leg should be extended outside the car"—no man would admit he didn't see that.

Mrs. S.—My husband always has the last word in his business. Mrs. P.—What does he do? Mrs. S.—He's a traffic cop.

A doctor tells us that jumbago and sciatica are the only two diseases that attack a person suddenly.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

Clothes may make the man, but good sports clothes don't make good sports.

ly in the back. Readers must remember that motor-car is not a disease.

A woman has her car trained better than her children.

Motor cars may be almost as deadly as war but they don't make you salute all day and scratch all night.

OH, PAPA! Freddy: Mamma, does papa kiss our kitty? Mamma: Why, no, Freddy. What makes you ask such a question? Freddy: Well, this morning when I passed the maid's room I heard papa tell her that she was ten times better than kissing the old cat.—Pathfinder.

SELLING HIMSELF He was a clerk in a big department store and was proposing to the light of his eyes. "Remember," he said, "this is the last day of this astounding offer."—Tit-Bits.

ONCE UPON A TIME. A man in a suit is sitting at a desk, looking at a document.

At 14, Harold Sanford, noted orchestra conductor, built a locomotive that actually ran. He intended to become an engineer, but gave up a $6-a-day factory job when offered $150 for two hours violin playing in an eating house.

The answer to the bookworm puzzle is two and one-half inches. You will find that, when three books are placed together, as in the sketch, the first page of the first volume and the last page of the third volume are the ones that are actually nearest to the middle volume. That means that the bookworm has only four covers and the distance of the middle book to go, which is a total of two and one-half inches.

SKIPPY

I CAN'T UNDERSTAND IT, I CERTAINLY CAN'T. I KNOW HE DIDN'T RUN AWAY, BECAUSE WE'VE NEVER HAD ANY SECRETS BETWEEN US. HE'S NEVER KEPT ANYTHING FROM ME. I'VE BROUGHT HIM UP SO THAT IF THERE'S EVER ANYTHING ON HIS MIND HE'LL TELL ME. I KNOW IT ISN'T THAT. I HATE TO GO TO A POLICE STATION UNTIL I'M ABSOLUTELY SURE THAT HE'S MISSING.

WELL, I'LL WALK DOWN ALONG THE BAY. THERE'S ONLY ONE THING LEFT TO DO AND THAT'S HOPE—JUST HOPE WITH EVERYTHING I'VE GOT, IF WE DON'T GET SOME NEWS OF HIM, IT'LL BREAK HIS MOTHER'S HEART.

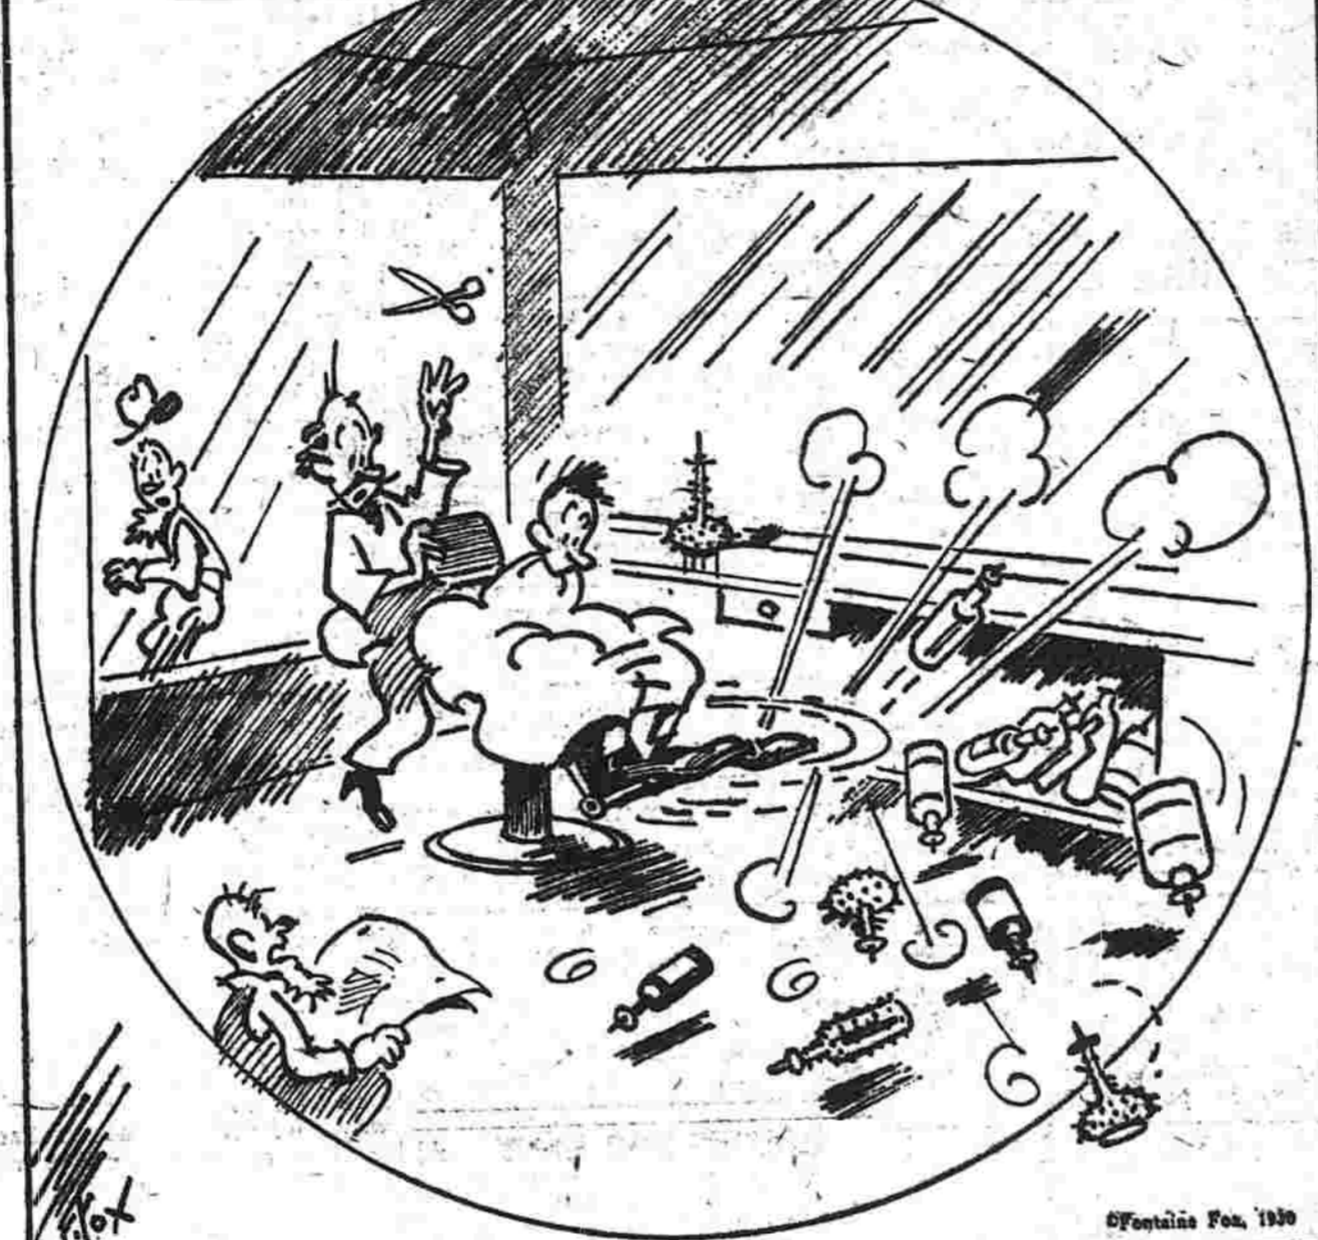

THERE'S NO EVIDENCE THAT HE HAS BEEN AROUND THE WATER AND NONE OF THE BOYS HAVE SEEN ANYTHING OF HIM ALL DAY. IT LOOKS MORE SERIOUS THAN EVER. I WANT TO OWN TO MYSELF, HOW CAN I GO TO HIS MOTHER AND SAY THAT I HATE HAD NO WORD FROM HIM? IF THE COUNTRY HAD THE RIGHT KIND OF LEADERS WHO TRIED TO SERVE THE CITIZENS INSTEAD OF POLITICIANS, WE NEVER WOULD HAVE HAD THIS DISGRACEFUL EXHIBITION OF NATION WIDE BACK SHOOTING. IF THE GOVERNMENT DOESN'T DO SOMETHING TO PREVENT THESE CHEERFUL GUNMEN IN THEIR CRUSADE OF OPEN HATED OFF, THE CITIZENS MUST! THEY MUST TO BE DRAWN OUT LIKE RATS FROM A BRF. I WONDER HOW MANY OF THE CITIZENS REALIZE THAT WE, AS A NATION, ARE THE LAUGHING STOCK OF COUNTRIES WHO CAN CONTROL THEIR CRIMINAL ELEMENT, EVERY MOTHER AND FATHER IN THE LAND HAS CAUSE FOR WORRY WHEN CRIMINALS HAVE CONTROL OF THE COUNTRY. OR, IF I COULD ONLY SEE MY BOY AGAIN.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

HOWDY! WE'RE FROM CENTRAL! HAVE YOU GOT A ROOMER HERE BY THE NAME OF GERFLUG? MAYBE HE AIN'T GOING BY THAT TAG, BUT HE'S GOT ONE OF THOSE SCOOP NOSE AN' CHIN MUGS IN MAKES YOU THINK OF A TROPICAL BIRD!

WASHINGTON TUBBS II

DO YOU KNOW HOW IGBAY UMBAY CAME TO SELECT YOU TO LEAD HIS ARMY AGAINST MY REVOLUTIONISTS? NO? IT WAS I WHO SILLY SUGGESTED IT, KNOWING HIS BURNING HATRED FOR YOU.

OH, SO YOU ARE THE GUY? I'VE THOUGHT YOU'D BE A COUPLA EASY MARKS FOR YOU, EN?

YOU SEE, I SHOULD HAVE BEEN LOST IF YOU HAD BEEN REINFORCED. MY ONLY HOPE WAS TO LURE YOUR ONE ARMY DEEP INTO THE HILLS, TO CONVINCING THE SIMPLE FOOLS THAT I WAS A HORRIBLE GHOST, AND TO SO FRIGHTEN THEM THAT THEY WOULD FLEE AND SPREAD TERROR TO THE OTHER ARMIES.

MY PLANS WORKED PERFECTLY—EXCEPT THAT YOU FOUGHT SUPERBLY AND NEARLY WRECKED ME TIME AND AGAIN. BUT EVENTUALLY YOUR MEN BROKE AND FLED, AND MY ACCURSED UNCLE TOOK HIS LIFE WHEN HIS OTHER ARMIES MUTINIED IN FEAR OF MY SIMPLE MAGIC.

How Hilo Grabbed the Throne

OH, NO! THERE WERE TWO REASONS. ONE, BECAUSE I WAS SURE HE WOULD NOT ENTRUST A LARGE ARMY TO YOU. SECOND, BECAUSE I BELIEVED YOU WOULD STEAL MARY FROM HIS CASTLE, AND SO ENRAGE THE VILLAIN THAT YOU WOULD NEVER DARE RETREAT OR SUMMON AID.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Back to the town the Tinies went. The friendly Travel Man soon sent wee Scouty to a boat dock for some tickets on a ship. Said he, "It's time we're leaving here, to seek new sights to bring us cheer. We're going to Valencia. You'll all enjoy the trip. The town is pretty as can be and lots of quaint sights you will see. Now, hurry up there, Scouty. Soon as you return, we'll go." "I'll hurry just as fast I can," wee Scouty cried. And off he ran. He bumped into a fat man and the whole bunch laughed, "ho, ho!" "Well, goodness me," the man cried out, "what is this racing all about?" Scouty said, "I trust that you're all right. I didn't mean to bump you, sir, and never again will it occur." "That's all right," said the man. And Scouty ran right out of sight. He came back in an hour or so

A MODEST FORECAST

Pinehurst ventures a little forecasting. Next week we will have an election. (That isn't the forecast.) After election we shan't hear quite so much about unemployment. (That is.)

We're far from specializing in politics but we've always noticed that just before election the country's either going to the dogs or it's just on the point of winning a lottery prize, so to speak.

Meantime, there's a heap of work being done. The food keeps coming to market—and it doesn't produce itself. And folks keep on wearing out clothes, and buying new ones. And you see some shining new automobiles—somebody makes 'em. And as far as Pinehurst can see folks are continuing to get away with three meals a day—a good deal of the material for which comes from this store.

After election—it's our guess—there won't be nearly so many clouds in the sky.
