

TOWN PAUSES TO HONOR VETS OF WORLD WAR

Morning Parade and Memorial Service to Be Followed by Football Game This Afternoon; Dance Tonight

Under cloudless skies, Manchester paused to honor its hero dead today on this, the twelfth anniversary of the signing of the World War Armistice. Early morning gave promise of a fine day, and although the full observance was not general throughout the town, all bodies participating in the parade were out in force for Manchester's first morning parade in two years.

The Parade

The parade started at 9:45 on South Main street in front of the Army and Navy Club led by a platoon of police headed by Lieut. Baron, followed by the Marshal, Major John Mahoney and his aides. The Salvation Army band headed the column of local National Guard Companies.

As the parade approached the Center and the reviewing stand erected on the east lawn of the Center Congregational church, all through traffic was stopped and the marchers filed by the reviewing stand before Governor John H. Trumbull and aides, Gold Star Mothers and Manchester officials.

March Three Miles

North of the reviewing stand, at the foot of Center hill, the parade was halted for rest, later continuing to Depot Square and counter-marching to Haynes street and the Memorial Hospital, a distance of nearly three miles.

On arrival at the Hospital, the service organizations were massed directly in front of the entrance to the building, the National Guard Companies on the left, and the Legion, Army and Navy Club, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts next in order. The colors and standards of all organizations were massed in front of the columns.

Memorial Service

The Memorial Service opened at 11 o'clock, the date and hour of the signing of the Armistice, with the Salvation Army Band playing "America." President George Kennedy of the Army and Navy briefly addressed the gathering on the significance of the day's observance and prayer was offered by Rev. F. C. Allen of the Second Congregational Church.

Rev. Robert A. Colpitts, pastor of the South Methodist Church, the Armistice Day speaker, outlined the significance of the three words, "Remembrance, Remembered and Remembering." Taking the first word, "Remembrance," the speaker described the custom of honoring those who had made great sacrifices as a beautiful and uplifting ideal, and

BRITISH DIPLOMAT DIES FROM WOUNDS

Was Shot by Chinese Gunmen Who Invade His Home in Peiping.

Peiping, China, Nov. 11.—(AP)—A telegram from Tientsin today announced the death of Bertram Simpson, British author who wrote under the name of Putnam Wylie, from wounds inflicted by three Chinese gunmen who invaded his house and shot him in the back.

Simpson, a British subject, was commissioner of Customs at Tientsin under the rebel northern General Yen Hsi-Shang. The attack which resulted in his death took place October 1. Mr. Simpson was at work when the group of gunmen presented a card and asked for an interview.

Assailants Flee

He was escorting the visitors to his study when one of them drew a revolver and fired twice. One of the bullets entered his spine, and his assailants fled.

Mr. Simpson, who had American connections by both descent and marriage, was the grandson of Sarah Holles Putnam, a granddaughter of General James Putnam, leader in the American Revolution. In 1917 he married Mary Louise Parrott of San Francisco.

His Books

Perhaps the best known of his books is "Indiscreet Letters from Peiping" which criticized diplomats and former General Putnam during the siege of Peiping. Last June he was placed in charge of the Tientsin customs, but was in trouble from the start when military officials refused to recognize his authority. At the time of the attack, which resulted in his death, he had the affairs of his office functioning normally.

JURY DECIDES IN FAVOR OF GENE TUNNEY

Former Manager Loses Suit for Half Million on Alleged Contract to Divide Purse—Tunney Happy.

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Gene Tunney, retired boxing champion of the world, does not owe Timothy J. Mara a cent, a Supreme Court jury decided today.

Mara claimed a $528,812.42 share of Tunney's ring earnings for helping to arrange the match at Philadelphia in 1928 in which Tunney won his championship from Jack Dempsey.

Contract Void

The jury held for Tunney in his contention that Mara, a New York bookmaker and boxing factor, was enlisted only to try to have the fight held in New York, and that since it was not held here the contract was void.

The court had instructed that Tunney owed Mara all or none of the half million dollars, which represented ten percent of Tunney's Philadelphia purse, twenty percent of his earnings as heavyweight champion and interest on both sums to date.

The jury had been out an hour and a half when its verdict favoring the retired champion was brought in before a courtroom filled with waiting spectators.

Public Interested

Justice Hatting had finished his charge at 11:30 a. m., bringing to its close a trial upon which interests of fight fans and the general public had been focused for many days.

For well past an hour, the court had heard with meticulous care the status of the litigants and their relation to the testimony itself. He had cautioned the jurors not to disregard the testimony of either but to reject any evidence which the jurors might deem false, regardless of the identity of the witness.

Jurors said they had stood 10 to 20 for Tunney from the beginning of their deliberations. Three polls were taken, before the unanimous verdict was obtained.

The pivotal point of the case, the

ACCUSES RUSSIANS IN MILITARY PLOT

Eight Men Charged With Negotiating With French Ministers For Attack.

Moscow, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Eight Russians, in a broad indictment published today by N. V. Krylenko, assistant people's commissar for justice and public prosecutor of the R. S. F. S. R., are accused of negotiating with Raymond Poincare and Aristide Briand of France for a military attack on the Soviet Union.

The charge of plotting with the former president and premier and the foreign minister of France is one of a long list of accusations contained in the indictment, which names Mm. Ramsin, Kalimikov, Laritchev, Tchirnovyky, Fedotov, Kuprimov, Ochkln, and Sltin.

"Industrial Party"

The eight men, members of a so-called "industrial party," a counter-revolutionary organization, are accused of participation in anti-Soviet activities, industrial and political, and of preparing favorable conditions for foreign armed intervention.

"Simultaneously the accused, through a trade and industrial committee entered into criminal relations with ruling circles in France in the persons of the former head

New Theater Ticket Scheme To Foil Speculators O. K.

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—With the first night's results for proof, officials of the League of New York Theaters and of the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company were of the opinion today that their co-operative plan to sell tickets at a normal increase over the box-office price was a success.

Harlow D. Savage, executive secretary of the League, Clinton E. Alsopp, vice-president of Postal, and former Governor Alfred E. Smith, the people's representative on the league's board, witnessed the redeeming of the first postal orders at various theaters last night and said they believed the system would mean the end of the "gyp" ticket speculator.

According to the plan, patrons bought their tickets to Broadway shows at various Postal stations and received orders on the box office for their seats. These were redeemed without confusion or complaint at 25 houses for the first time last night. The additional cost was fifty cents.

The majority of the 16 theater managers who comprise the league were satisfied with the initial result, although some pointed out that speculators had secured a small percentage of the Postal orders and had sold them for higher prices. The general public, however, secured greater theater value than under the old system, they said.

Hoover Starts Red Cross Drive

"I trust that the Red Cross membership drive this year may be more successful than ever before. The Red Cross is our national insurance against the suffering of disaster in any part of our country. It is not charity in the normal sense of gift without obligation." Thus said President Hoover, who is president of the American Red Cross, at the opening of the annual membership drive. And here you see him being enrolled by Judge John Barton Payne, right, chairman of the organization.

SAYS U. S. IS OPPOSED TO LIMIT WAR EXPENSE

Our Envoy at League Parley Says Publicity on What is Spent is Best Method of Limitation.

Geneva, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Unalterable American opposition to any limitation of armaments through a method of budgetary restriction was announced by Hugh Gibson, the Washington representative, at the session of the preparatory commission on disarmament here today.

Ambassador Gibson's announcement was made during discussion of the budgetary method of limitation, which the British and Italian representatives said their governments favored, although not to the exclusion of more direct methods of limitation.

The American envoy declared that the American government after recent examination of the question minutely had found it could not change its attitude of opposition to the plan. He asserted that the United States was not likely to sign any convention imposing this method, although not objecting to other nations limiting their expenditures.

"We already practice a system of limitation by direct means plus full publicity for expenditures," Mr. Gibson said. "We believe this the most effective method of limiting armaments. In short, we believe it easier to conceal the application of a dollar than to conceal the existence of a rifle."

Lord Cecil presented the British viewpoint on the subject, emphasizing the tremendous importance of a limit for war materials in British opinion in the future war, he predicted, will be fought by armies with high technical equipment.

It is not sufficient, he pointed out, to limit the personnel of armies as the numbers of men now are less important than the material equipment of armies. Publicity of armaments, he said, is a useful method, but one that exists already, a good basis but utterly insufficient.

Direct limitation is in principle most effective. He declared, but in practice this also is insufficient, the result of armaments, or competition "vest pocket" cruiser, demonstrating this weakness in direct limitation by enumeration.

Only limit of expenditures, he declared.

FESS AS LEADER OF "DRY" FORCES

Warns Against Any Repeal Movement By Republicans—Expect Reversal.

Washington, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The drys are girding for battle in Congress, buttressing their defense around the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution.

A recognized star of the friends of prohibition pushing an educational campaign all over the country has been called for by Senator Fess of Ohio who now carries the duties also of chairman of the Republican National committee.

Fess As Leader

In his stand was seen today a warning against any repeal movement within the Republican party. Fess has been mentioned by prohibitionists as a potential leader for reorganized dry forces. In the movement for rebuilding the prohibition attack group indications appeared that some of burden of the political activity would be lifted from the Anti-Saloon League which for many years has borne the brunt of the task.

To Renew Battle

Both drys and wets in Congress are expecting a renewal of conflict sometime after the prohibition report of the President's law enforcement commission is given out.

SAILORS TELL OF WILD DAYS DURING STORM

Crew Taken Off Sinking Schooner in Nick of Time; Another Ship Sends Out SOS Calls that Bring Help

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Ten grizzled sailors came to port today and told the story of the loss of their ship, the schooner Dunham Wheeler, in a howling gale off Florida three days ago.

The Wheeler, largest of coastwise traders, 254 feet long and a typical five masted "windjammer," went down last Saturday morning amid seas described by Captain Jack McIver as the largest he had seen in years. The United Fruit Company liner Aztec, which caught the Wheeler's SOS sent by another ship and raced to the rescue, brought home the skipper and his company.

One small handbag containing the log and a few other papers was saved from the schooner.

Captain's Story

"The gale tore us to pieces," Captain McIver related. "About eight o'clock Friday night I saw it was no use and we cast anchor southeast of Cape Canaveral, Florida.

"We had been sending up distress rockets and doing our best to keep afloat."

In this critical situation the steamer Uphur saw the schooner's flares, but the Uphur was having her own troubles battling the storm with disabled engines. She flashed the SOS that saved the Dunham's crew.

Oil pumped upon the waves finally enabled the Aztec's boats to take off the Dunham Wheeler's crew at daylight.

The Dunham Wheeler formerly was owned by Pendleton brothers of New York but had been sold just before her last voyage to Frost & Crabtree, of Boston. She left La Piedra, Venezuela, Oct. 23, for Jacksonville, Fla., and was on her way to Philadelphia. Sixty of his years have been spent at sea.

FIVE MEN KILLED BY POISON BOOZE

Victims of Two Day Drinking Bout in Stamford "Jungle"—One Hartford Man.

Stamford, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The fifth victim of a two day drinking bout at the "Jungle," a hobo resort in the city dump, died in a hospital here today from the effects of denatured alcohol.

He was Leslie Russell, 36, son of Dr. R. J. Russell, Ansonia dentist, and a World War veteran who at one time was an inmate of the Soldiers Home at Noroton.

Two dead men were picked up on streets near the dump yesterday morning while two more died in a hospital after being found in a semi-conscious condition in their rude "Jungle" hut.

They were Frederick Sweet, 50, Hartford; Arthur Woods, 40, home unknown; William Carroll, said to be a Pennsylvania coal miner, and Joseph J. McGrath, Stamford.

Check All Garages

Police today began a check of all city garages to learn if possible the location of the denatured alcohol which was brought by one of the men to the dump in tin cans which bore the label of a patent antifreezing solution for automobiles.

According to a story told police yesterday before he died the participants in the drinking bout, the exact number of whom is not known, the alcohol was "cooked" over a fire and drunk "straight" or merely mixed with a little water.

They began drinking Sunday night and continued until Monday, Russell, the last victim, so far as police know, was found about 9:30 o'clock last night, huddled in an abandoned automobile.

Man Lost in Maine Woods 7 Days; Keep Up Search

Skowhegan, Me., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Early today, the seventh day since Mitchell B. Kaufman, wealthy Massachusetts manufacturer, disappeared in the dense woods of Jackman, a searching party led by expert woodmen again set out to scour the forests in hope of finding the 37 year old hunter alive.

Kaufman separated from his guide and the remainder of his hunting party last Wednesday, planning to meet his guide later in the day. That was the last seen of him. He wore heavy clothing and carried equipment and chocolate enough to last 48 hours.

There was a possibility that becoming exhausted he lay down to sleep and succumbed to exposure. The weather had been very cold especially at night.

SILENT TRIBUTES MARK WORLD ARMISTICE DAY

Passes a Fake Check On State Auto Dept.

Hartford, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Joseph J. Barty, who gave as his address 38 White street, Hartford, and Route 4, Box 464, Putnam, is held in Willimantic for the State Police on a charge of issuing a fraudulent check to the state motor vehicle department.

This morning Barty appeared in the Willimantic Police Court where he was fined $10 and costs for improper registration of a motor vehicle and $15 for evading tax charges.

GEN. PERSHING HOPES FOR END OF ALL WARS

"May There Never Be Another One," He Says; Secretary of War Hurley and Gen. Summerall Speak.

Washington, Nov. 11.—(AP)—"May there never be another war," From his office in the War Department, General John J. Pershing uttered these words today as he headed back to the first Armistice Day and the trying days when he headed the A. E. F.

"This is a day of hallowed memory," said the general, now chairman of the American Battle Monuments Commission.

"Twelve years have elapsed since the ending of the greatest war of all time.

"For America they have been years of peace and progress. It is well to recall on this day that these benefits have come to the American people through valor and heroism on soil that is the richer for the blood they gave it.

Dead Rest Peacefully

"The dead comrades rest peacefully. For the living there remains the obligation of carrying on, of adhering steadfastly to those ideals of peace and justice which have ever been the inspiration of our people.

"May there never be another war. But it is the duty of the living veterans of the great war to guide the destinies of this nation that should war come it will find the

MAN IS TORTURED AND THEN KILLED

Feet Held Over Fire Until One of Them Is Burned Off, Coroner Says.

Cleveland, Nov. 11.—(AP)—A statement that an unidentified man whose body was found yesterday in a woods near here, was tortured and then murdered was offered today by Coroner A. J. Pearce. Helpless to escape, the man was still alive when his bare feet were held in a fire until one of them burned off. Then the victim was killed by striking his head with a pick axe.

The man had been dead only about 24 hours when his body was found. Labels had been removed from the clothing and even his false teeth had been taken. A pair of spectacles and finger prints were the only clues to the identity.

Roosevelt in Boston

Boston, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York arrived here early today and after breakfasting with his son, James, moved to Groton, where his younger sons, John and Elliott, are attending school. Governor Roosevelt was welcomed at the South Station by a committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, whom he will address tonight. He will also address a gathering of Gold Star mothers late this afternoon.

Treasury Balance

Washington, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for Nov. 8 were $6,174,119.65; expenditures $18,140,301.02; balance, $1,491,157,885.23.

Wartime Allies Give Anniversary Its Salute of Silence; Even Germans Join In Day's Ceremonies; American Officials Give Their Views in Brief Speeches; Solemn Services at Nation's Capital and in Cities and Hamlets All Over Country.

By Associated Press.

The world of the wartime allies gave the Armistice anniversary today its annual salute of silence.

At Arlington National Cemetery by the sepulchre of the symbolic slain, at the cenotaph in London with His Majesty King George standing in uniform among his subjects, at the Arc d'Triomphe in Paris, at the monument to the war dead in Lisbon and in the fields of the League of Nations at Geneva there was the reverent hush of homage.

Even the roar of the man-made birds that ride the air between England and France was still in tribute. A British passenger plane flying 2,000 feet above the fields of Kent throttled its engines while its passengers stood bareheaded in their places for the two minutes of silence.

Germans Join Also

The captain and crew of the giant German seaplane DO-X, riding gently at anchor off Calshot, England, in waters where 12 years ago no German craft would have dared show itself, joined in commemoration of the end of the war. They stood bareheaded on one of the ship's floats, the flag of the German republic flying at half-mast behind them.

The chief of all American fighting men in France during the war, General John J. Pershing, spoke from his office at Washington. "May there never be another war," Secretary of War Hurley and General Charles F. Summerall expressed the hope for tranquility and for the maintenance, as the secretary said, of the principles of freedom, justice and democracy which have been won through fighting.

In Washington there was tribute in Washington Cathedral at the tomb of Woodrow Wilson, and President Hoover, after placing a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, spoke before the Goodwill Congress of the World Alliance for International Friendship.

America celebrated the day with exercises, parades and gatherings in city and hamlet with men of the Army and Navy joining.

Against a background of peace at Geneva, Hugh S. Gibson, representing the United States, expressed to the preparatory commission on disarmament his country's unalterable opposition to any limitation of armament through a method of budgetary restriction.

Albert King of the Belgians, laid a wreath at the monument to the war dead of his country, and in nearly all of England coat labels bloomed with a Flanders poppy emblem to aid the veterans' fund.

President's Address

Washington, Nov. 11.—(AP)—President Hoover, reflecting on the hideousness of the Great War that ended twelve years ago, today pleaded anew for American adherence to the World Court and for freedom of the seas for foodstuffs, and forecast a possible extension of the Kellogg-Briand pact to mobilize world opinion against its violators.

In his Armistice Day address before the 300th Will Congress of the World Alliance for International Friendship through the churches, the President said the outlook for peace is happier than for half a century, yet we cannot overlook the fact that nations in many ways are always potentially in conflict.

"The purpose of our government is to co-operate with others," he said, "to use our friendly offices, and short of any application of the use of force, to use every friendly effort and all good will to maintain the peace of the world."

Lays Wreath

Before going to the Washington auditorium for his annual Armistice Day address, the Chief Executive led the Nation in its tribute to the dead and living veterans of the World War by placing a large wreath of yellow chrysanthemums upon the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

With Mrs. Hoover he stood at reverent attention in front of the tomb for a moment with his hat over his heart. After he had laid his wreath, the First Lady stepped forward and placed two white chrysanthemums beside it.

The President and his wife were accompanied to Arlington by Secretaries Hurley and Adams and Major Florida peninsula and just before he reached the Nicaraguan coast line. The direct route between New York and the Canal Zone is not quite 2300 miles.

130 Miles An Hour

Captain Ammel's little monoplane the Blue Flash, averaged about 130 miles per hour between New York and the Canal Zone. He arrived at 2:44 p. m. He flew over Washington, Atlanta, Jacksonville, Miami, Cuba and Nicaragua.

Captain Ammel said he met some bad weather but had little actual trouble except at his take-off at Barren Island, N. Y., when he barely cleared some high tension wires. Once when he was over the Caribbean he went to sleep, awaking to find himself in a vertical bank at a speed of 150 miles an hour. He snapped out of it and thereafter sang loudly in order to keep awake.

FIRE VICTIM DIES Hamden, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Burs suffered while playing about an incinerator Saturday proved fatal today to eight-year old Julia Amaranis.

Without the knowledge of her parents, she started playing about the papers which were being burned in the incinerator in the rear of her home. Her highly inflammable dress ignited. A neighbor heard her screams and extinguished the blaze. At a New Haven hospital she was found to have suffered burns to the hands, face and body.

TWO CAR GARAGE BLAZE DESTROYS STORED GOODS

Afternoon Fire Wipes Out Building at Rear of E. J. Silcox Home on Scarborough Road.

A two car garage owned by E. J. Silcox at 28 Scarborough Road, valued at $500, was completely destroyed by fire shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon. The garage was used for housing one car owned by Mr. Silcox, who had just driven out. The west side of the garage was used as a store room for merchandise such as heavy shoes, heavy workmen's jackets and sweaters which Mr. Silcox has sold for several years.

Just what caused the fire is not known but it was the opinion of Chief Albert Foy that possibly the "back fire" from the automobile set fire to the goods which were stored in the garage. Mr. Silcox and his family moved from 98 Church street about two years ago to the home just completed in the Hollywood section. While living on Church street, his goods were stored on racks in the basement. He made trips to northern New York and would ship directly from his place here on hurried orders.

In moving to the Hollywood section he stored much of these kinds of goods in large paper boxes. These did not keep out the water or chemical which was applied by No. 3, the first company to arrive, and the boxes when pulled from the shed fell apart causing more damage. A total loss of $1,500 is estimated.

GARDEN CLUB LISTENS TO WINTER CARE LORE

E. H. Anderson Talks on Protection of Plants—Club Names Officers for the Year. Edward H. Anderson of the Wilson Tree Farms at Cromwell, a branch of the Wilson nurseries here, gave the Manchester Garden Club members many pointers on preparing the garden for winter and the proper mulch to use to snugly cover the roots of perennials and biennials to protect them, not from the intense cold but from the alternate thawing and freezing and the wind which pulled from the snowless days. He told of the method of hilling up roses about their roots for the same object, and gave the gardeners much valuable information on a variety of subjects related to successful growing of flowers and shrubs.

At the close of his talk he was kept on the floor fully an equal length of time answering questions put to him by the garden enthusiasts. Reports of the secretary and treasurer for the year were read. The report of the nominating committee for new officers and members of the executive board, made by Mrs. Mary Chapman was accepted and the following chosen: President, Mrs. W. J. Taylor; vice-president, George E. Rix; secretary, Mrs. Mabel Rogers; treasurer, Mrs. W. W. Beels. The new members on the executive board will be Mrs. J. R. Lowe, and Mrs. R. K. Anderson.

A roll-call developed that the club now numbers 100 members. The December meeting will be held in the Robbins house at the Center church party. It will be the annual Christmas party, with exchange of garden trifles, refreshments and games. R. K. Anderson. The attendance prize donated by the retiring treasurer, Mrs. Gertrude B. Purcell, was won by Mrs. Rose Campbell who will furnish the attendance prize at the January meeting.

of the French government, Raymond Poincare, and the minister for foreign affairs, Aristide Briand, who were preparing a military attack on the U. S. S. R. Later the accused, with officers of their headquarters in France, Mm. Jouanville, Janin, and Richard, elaborated a plan for military attack on the U. S. S. R. thus committing a direct act of high treason.

In the further course of their treasonable activities the accused directed their destructive activities toward disorganization of the economic and military growth at demoralization in the main branches of industry for 1930, the time indicated by the French headquarters for military intervention in the U. S. S. R.

Secret Information The indictment adds that the accused persons maintained contact with the French headquarters "through persons in the French service, 'K' and 'R', especially appointed for this purpose" and received and executed its orders. Later, it alleged, they spied on, and obtained in accordance with headquarters orders, necessary information of a secret character relating to the military forces and defense of the U. S. S. R.

"Upon instruction of the same headquarters," the indictment continues, "the accused organized a special group to assist the French government in its interventionist policy, and to carry out its interventionist policy by undermining and disrupting the social structure, electric stations, railways, and military works."

Jurors said, was the testimony of Allan Carruthers, attorney for the incompetent Billy Gibson. Tunney's flight manager, Carruthers testified that he dictated the disputed contracts in his office, in Mara's presence and that Mara interrupted and asked that any mention of New York be left out of the contracts. Tunney had contended that Mara was hired only to bring the Tunney-Dempsey bout to New York, and in this finally was upheld.

In his testimony, Mara denied that he was even in Carruthers' office when the contracts were drawn. The jury just had sent out for the Carruthers testimony minutes during their early deliberations. Neither Mara nor his attorney was in court when the verdict was read. Spectators applauded the finding of Justice Handing, who mended the jurors on their decision. Tunney Happy Tunney, standing in smiles before the counsel table, shook hands with each juror as he filed past.

"The verdict is just," Tunney exclaimed. The courtroom became the scene of an informal reception as more and persons from all parts of the Supreme Court building flooded to the room where Tunney was holding fast and pushed up to shake his hand. As soon as he could free himself, Tunney telephoned to his wife, the former Polly Lauder, and told her the verdict. Outside the courthouse more than three thousand persons yelled and cheered as the ex-champion left the building. The retired pugilist beamed his pleasure. For a moment newspaper men saw in his face the time victor look. In an instant he was engulfed in the milling crowd. Four burly policemen forced their way to his side. The situation called for the best they had.

ABOUT TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Hallett and family of Clinton, Mass. and Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Wilkinson and family of Meriden were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Denton of Middle Turnpike West.

Another employee of the Chance-Vought company of East Hartford moved to Manchester today, when Mr. and Mrs. John Hoppers of Brooklyn, New York, took up residence at 36 Summit street. Mr. Hoppers is chief tester of aeroplanes and also chief instructor of aviation at Chance Vought. A few years back he was mechanic for Eddie Rickenbacker, famous United States ace, who just the other day was decorated by President Herbert Hoover with the Congressional Medal of Honor.

An automobile accident in front of the State Theater at 10 o'clock last night involved cars driven by Dwight Gordon of 235 Farmington avenue, Hartford, and Fred Johnson of Church street. No great damage was done. Johnson was driving north on Main street as car driven by Dwight Gordon swung out of Lowell street over to the east side of Main street. There were three in the car, all riding in the front seat. Johnson was over as far as he could get to his left and was unable to get out of the way of the other car. There was considerable damage to the fenders, came together. Arguments ensued but no arrests were made.

The Women's Home League of the Salvation Army will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock for work on the Christmas sale articles. All members are urged to be present.

President Mrs. Ethel Cowles of the Woman's Benefit Association, urges members of Mystic No. 2 to reserve the date of Tuesday evening November 18, when the local review will be hosted to the district meeting. Delegations from 20 different towns are expected. Supreme Regional Director Miss Rose Miller of Pawtucket will be present and other supreme officers. All guards and officers are requested to appear in white. Banquet at the Hotel Sheridan is scheduled for 6:30 and all those who have not already made reservations are urged to notify Mrs. Thora Stoehr, dial 6886, or Mrs. Cowles, not later than Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Elizabeth Colletto, manager of the hotel, desires to know how many to plan for at that time.

Several automobiles filled with members of the British-American Club and British War Veterans left early this morning to take part in the parade and reunion at Avon and to attend the dance at the Country Club there this evening.

TEN CHILDREN SAVED IN TENEMENT BLAZE

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. James Didiro and ten little Didiros, ranging in age from two months to 16 years, were passed to safety in the arms of the law early today after a small fire filled their east side flat with dense smoke.

Summoned by the family's cries, three patrolmen were driven back by fumes from the stairway leading to the third story home. Then they stationed themselves at intervals on the fire escape and handed the shivering children, some of them unclothed, to the street. With his brood gathered about him, Didiro set up a hue and cry by announcing that one of the children was missing. A thorough search, however, revealed all present. The girl, revealed all present. The girl, revealed all present. The girl, revealed all present.

OBITUARY DEATHS

WORRIED OVER HEALTH TAKES LIFE BY GAS

Frederick J. Lord, Retired Farmer, Commits Suicide At Home Yesterday Afternoon.

Frederick J. Lord, retired farmer living at 26 Hill street, took his life by gas poisoning at his home late yesterday during the absence of his wife. He had been out of health and despondent, disappointed when an operation several months ago failed to restore his physical condition. Yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. Lord went out to do some shopping, her husband locked himself in the kitchen, turned on the gas at the range, sat down in a chair with his feet on another and inhaled the fumes until he lost consciousness.

When Mrs. Lord returned home at half past five she smelled gas, hurried to the kitchen and found her husband apparently dead. She ran to the home of Dwight W. Blish close by and summoned help. Blish telephoned for Dr. N. A. Burr but when the physician arrived he saw at once that life had departed. Dr. Burr notified Dr. W. R. Finkler, medical examiner, who went to the home and declared it to be a case of suicide.

Mr. Lord, who was 71 years of age, was a native of Wapping. He came here to make his home about 17 years ago. He was a member of the Wapping Congregational church. His wife survives him as does one brother, Mordecai E. Lord, of East Hartford.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at two o'clock at the Lord home on Hill street. Burial will be in the Wapping cemetery.

BURKE, HARTFORD FIRE VICTIM, DIES OF BURNS

Second One To Die From Miller Block Fire Was a Native of Manchester.

James F. Burke, 65, a native of Manchester, died yesterday afternoon at St. Francis hospital where he was taken after being rescued from the Miller building fire last Friday in Hartford. His death was the second to be caused by the conflagration, Mrs. Anna Geidel being burned to death in the building. Burke was burned badly about the head and shoulders and his condition was announced as critical when admitted to the hospital. Born in Manchester, Burke lived here for 60 years. He was a son of the late John and Catherine (Tobin) Burke and for thirty years worked in Cheney Brothers as a weaver. Outside of a sister, Mrs. Blacker, and a brother, Edward, of New York, he is a near survivor.

He was a cripple having lost both legs in a railroad accident in East Hartford many years ago. He managed to get about on artificial limbs. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 8:30 at the funeral home of J. P. O'Brien at 104 Main street, Hartford, with requiem mass at St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock. Burial will be in St. Bridget's cemetery in Manchester.

SILENT TRIBUTES MARK WORLD'S ARMISTICE DAY

General Charles F. Summerall, chief of staff of the army. Pointing out that various treaties and methods had been worked out for peaceful settlement of international difficulties, Mr. Hoover said in his address that in the development of these methods, "A great hope lies in ever extending the body and principles of international law on which such settlements will be based."

Phrases World Court The World Court is now a strongly established institution amongst 45 nations as a continuing body," he said, "performing and facilitating justifiable determinations which can only be accomplished sporadically under special treaties of arbitration. Its permanence is assured and from it there is steadily growing a body of precedent, decisions and acceptance of law in the formulation of which we should have a part, not alone in our own interest but in the advancement of peace."

Retracting his proposal of a year ago for freedom of the seas, the President said food supplies should be immune from interference in time of war and their security guaranteed by neutral transport and management.

U. S. Not Involved "I proposed it not alone upon humane grounds but that the haunting fears of nations who must live from the sea might be relaxed and the sacrifices which they make for naval strength might be lessened," he asserted. "Our food supplies are assured, and it is therefore from a humanitarian standpoint that I would make for prevention as well as limitation of war."

SHOT AT SUPPER TABLE

Roxbury, Vt., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Raymond Wheeler, 65, of Williamstown, was detained in Washington county jail today in connection with investigation of the slaying last night of Birney Pecor, 27, who was recently released from state prison. Pecor's wife was housekeeper for Wheeler while her husband was in prison from January until three weeks ago. Pecor was shot in the back as he sat at the supper table in the home of his uncle, Arthur Pecor. The shot was fired through a window. The investigation which followed resulted in Wheeler being taken into custody at his Williamstown home. The victim of the shooting served his prison term for the theft of wire from power and light companies in the vicinity of Barre where he resided.

STATE OBSERVES ARMISTICE DAY

Cities and Towns Join With Rest of Nation in Remembering Close of World War

New Haven, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Connecticut cities today join with the rest of the nation in a common observance of armistice day, signifying the end of the World War. Ceremonies ranging from parades to band concerts were arranged to pay tribute to the soldier dead and to honor the living veterans. City and state offices and banks were closed. Many schools and stores also declared a holiday. War veterans organizations their auxiliaries and Gold Mothers assembled on the central green of New Haven at 10:45 a. m. for a simple ceremony. Captain Martin Doran, newly appointed chaplain of the 102nd infantry delivered a brief eulogy after wreaths had been laid on the war memorial. A volley was fired by a firing squad and a bugler sounded taps. Later a short memorial service was held in Center church.

Planes Take Part

An airplane general Gold Star mothers took off from the Hamden Airport and dropped carnations on cemeteries within a ten mile radius of the city in tribute to soldiers buried there. Out over New Haven Harbor flowers were to be cast into the water in memory of sailors who died in the war. Parades featured the day's observance in Bridgeport, Hartford and Waterbury as well as many other cities.

In Bridgeport

Bridgeport expected 5,000 in its parade which was to move soon after 11 o'clock and proceed to the central high school where a program was to be presented. There too an airplane threw flowers on the graves of veterans and upon United States Commissioner Hugh Lavery gave the chief address of the day.

Governor Trumbull and Hartford

review the capital city's parade this afternoon from a stand in front of the Old State House. A simple service was held this morning at 10:30 o'clock in Colt park where 211 trees have been planted in memory of Hartford men who made the supreme sacrifice. Wreaths were placed by Boy and Girl Scouts and a brief address was made by Rev. Stanley B. Crossland, chaplain of the 169th Infantry. Exercises tonight in Bushnell Hall will end the program.

In Waterbury

Band concerts by the United States Army band, a parade tonight and a short service at the city's honor roll in Liberty park this morning marked Waterbury's observance. Congressman Ed Edward W. Goss was the chief speaker at the latter service which was concluded with the firing of a salute and the sounding of taps. Many other cities also planned similar ceremonies and the majority were to bring the day to a close with dances and balls tonight.

SAYS U. S. IS OPPOSED TO LIMIT WAR EXPENSE

clared, will meet the needs of the situation. He acknowledged that America might find it difficult to accept the budgetary method but he said he hoped she would find a way, remarking that it would be very hard to arrive at a useful treaty if the United States stood out.

Gibson's Views

Ambassador Gibson told the commission that the United States never would be object to a treaty which bound the other powers to limitation by budgetary restrictions while leaving the United States free to employ her own system of limitation.

"The direct limitation of armaments with full publicity is the most practicable and useful method of limitation which exists, we believe," the ambassador declared.

Germany Takes Sides

Germany took a position with America. Count von Bernstorff protesting that direct limitation was a method indispensable to any disarmament convention if Germany was to sign it.

Italian views were presented by General De Magiis, who, opening the discussion of the scheme, reaffirmed his government's support of limitation by budgetary restrictions for war materials both in use and in stocks.

He declared that world armaments had increased greatly during the last eighteen months and that much of the increase had been in war materials. Italy, he said, favors limitation of materials both by direct and indirect methods, which he regards as not mutually exclusive.

GEN. PERSHING HOPES FOR END OF ALL WARS

American people prepared, materially and spiritually." Hurley's Statement Secretary of War Hurley and General Charles F. Summerall, chief of Army staff, expressed a desire for tranquility and the advancement of the nation, the former saying: "On this day we express affectionate remembrance of those with whom we served and pause to pay homage to those who suffered and died for the victory we commemorate. We solemnly pledge our support to our nation in peace. More than half the world is in revolution. It should be our purpose to keep our own nation tranquil and to maintain the principles of freedom, justice and democracy which have been won through fighting for and which have made us a great and happy nation."

General Summerall said that

"when the thunder of the guns died down to nothing 12 years ago our nation rejoiced but was not surprised. "We felt a thrilling access of relief that the letting of blood had ceased, that a long travail of suffering was over, but we had never doubted the issue," he continued. "America's way is a path of victory. No obstacles, material or immaterial, work of man or work of nature, have ever stayed our progress. Armistice Day is a day of rejoicing; it is also a day of dedication. It gives us the opportunity to resolve highly that the patriotism, the devotion and the valor which brought us to victory in war shall continue to work for the advancement and happiness of our country."

OUR PRISON PROBERS VISIT WETHERSFIELD

Hartford, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Two members of the Governor's special commission to investigate the state prison at Wethersfield, Homer S. Cummings of Stamford, its chairman, and Judge Walter H. Clark of Hartford, visited the institution this morning on a preliminary survey of the plant.

Aside from the gathering of data on which the probe will be based, it is the first move undertaken by the commission, whose work was delayed some weeks ago when it was James T. Moran, of New Haven, would not return to the state until November 17.

Attorney Cummings arrived in Hartford shortly after 11 o'clock, and he and Judge Clark went down to the prison together, planning to spend most of the afternoon there, inspecting all the prison buildings, and conferring with Warden Charles S. Reed and various other officials. Nothing definite is expected from the visit, Judge Clark stated this morning.

RIOTS IN SANTIAGO; STUDENTS-FIGHT COPS

Havana, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Dispatches from the Santiago correspondent of the newspaper El Mundo today said that city was under martial law as a result of clashes between students, workers and the Nationalist police in which one man was killed and 50 were wounded.

The disturbance was precipitated, the dispatches said, when a band of students threw a statue of Jose Barceles, governor of the Oriente province, into the ocean, and marched toward other statues in the city park, armed with hammers and crowbars.

Dock and factory laborers abandoned their work to take part in the demonstration, and police arrested several of the mob.

Several shots were exchanged as the rioters attempted to free the prisoners, but the mob eventually was dispersed.

Santiago Algeciras, the Nationalist leader who recently was released from the fortress at Cabanage where he was detained on charges of subversive activities, and Pedro Flores, another Nationalist leader, were among the prisoners.

OPEN FORUM

WASHINGTON TRIP

Editor of The Herald, Dear Sir:

After reading your editorial in Saturday's Herald, Nov. 8, on "Sound Economy" we think it quite unfair that you put into the person of the members of the Senior Class of the Manchester High school.

Our parents were asked for their personal opinion on the matter. All those who have planned to go received a written permission from their parents, therefore it is the responsibility of our parents, and not anyone else in Manchester.

We could mention a great many other things which take money out of Manchester, but not wishing to hurt any one's feelings, we will not do so. Why, then, must you choose us, the Senior Class, to comment upon?

We, also, can not see how you figure that we are taking money out of town. We have been saving our money for the past four years in anticipation of this trip, therefore, the town will not prosper any by us staying home. We have saved our money and if it doesn't go to Washington, we will keep it ourselves.

You do not figure all the business would get. We must have extra clothes for such an enterprise. Will not this mean better business for Manchester?

We have started out on the work for carrying out such an enterprise. Our work is carried on by the cooperation of the citizens of Manchester. If they help support us, they do not think it an uneducational enterprise, and if the citizens of Manchester do not think it wrong, why should you?

We have started our work, and we shall carry on. This letter was written by Charles G. Pirie and signed by 89 members of the Senior class of Manchester High school. So, Manchester, Conn. Nov. 10, 1930.

SECRET PRACTICE FOR YALE ELEVEN

New Haven, Nov. 11—(AP)—Yale intends to keep the football tricks which it has in store for Princeton and Harvard a secret.

Coch-Mal Stevens began private workouts in the Bowl yesterday and expects to continue these secret sessions for the remainder of the season.

With the exception of Lindenbergh, end, and Beane, a back, the entire squad is expected to be in condition for the Princeton game Saturday.

McLennan, Albie Booth's understudy, and Tyson, a guard, who have been on the injured list returned to the squad yesterday and were reported as fit for Saturday's contest.

TUNNEY AND MARA ENTER LAST ROUND

New York, Nov. 11—(AP)—Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion today was in the final round of a court bout with Timothy J. Mara for a purse of $526,812.42.

Only the judge's instructions remained to be given before the jury retired to decide what if anything the former champion owes Mara, who claims ten percent of the $200,000 purse for the Tunney-Dempsey fight in Philadelphia and 25 percent of Tunney's earnings as champion.

PUBLIC QUICKLY ANSWERS APPEALS OF DESTITUTE

Needy Cases Column In The Herald Gets Ready Response From Big Hearted Citizens.

Through the generosity of three public-spirited families in Manchester, needy case No. 1 has been assured of food, clothing and fuel for the present. A card system will be kept by Miss Reynolds at the Board of Health office in the Municipal building, and those that desire to be identified with the relief program in this way will be given a definite place in this connection.

Description of needy cases will appear in The Herald until the situation has been cleared up and the many cases which need concerted assistance from Manchester's willing citizens have been assured of clothing for the cold weather, food in plenty for parents and children and fuel with which to keep the home warm. In the case of sickly, charitable services of the town ends and the good offices of citizenry begin. This can only be done by visitation, and a personal touch that is more valuable where dependency exists, than cold-blooded giving. Do your part to free Manchester from every form of suffering, mental or physical.

DISTRICTS MERGER MEETING NOV. 21

Selectmen to Invite Authorities to Discuss Consolidation Problem Again.

The first step towards discussion of school consolidation in open meeting was taken last night by the Board of Selectmen when it was voted to invite various school authorities to confer with the Selectmen on Friday evening November 21. Practically all the committees, boards and officials having anything to do with the schools in town will be asked to attend this special session.

Aspect Changed Some members of the present Selectmen believe that school consolidation can be brought about this year if the figures are presented in the right light. Now that the Ninth district owns all its school buildings the aspect has been considerably changed and the ratio of credit for buildings will be different from that offered when school consolidation was presented two years ago.

This decision on the part of the Selectmen was taken last night after all the routine business of a monthly session had been completed. Several hearings were held at the meeting opened. The acceptance of Franklin street was approved by a group of property owners on that street and the next town meeting will be asked to accept the street. Concrete curbing and gutters on Proctor Road were ordered installed following a hearing. Work will be started immediately.

Routine Business The former William Lewis gasoline station on Charter Oak street now being operated by Robert Douglas was approved. The bonds of several constables newly elected were received and approved. Voters made this fall were listed and presented to the Selectmen for certification. A trust agreement between the Manchester Trust Company and purchasers of cemetery lots for the care of the lots was read and approved.

Mrs. Ethel L. Crosby of Robert Road petitioned for an additional electric light on that street. The lighting committee is to investigate. Lights were also asked for on Parkers street, Victoria Road and Lancaster Road. The appointment of Miss Hattie Strickland as assistant town clerk by Town Clerk S. J. Turkington was approved as was the appointment of R. K. Anderson as assistant recorder of vital statistics.

The report of Building Inspector Edward C. Elliott, Jr., was read and accepted and the town's current bills were ordered paid. Copies of these will be found elsewhere in today's Herald. Overpayments of tax were refunded as follows: To Gaston Polito, building lots, $10.76; to Charles J. Johnson, Ridge street, automobile, $3.08.

Special Constable Attorney William J. Shea asked the Selectmen to take action on the claim of Miss Connors for damages resulting from a fall on a culvert cover on Benton street. The public safety committee will recommend action at the next session of the board. John Boyle of Manchester Green was named special constable to serve at affairs at the Manchester Green Assembly Hall. Raymond R. Bowers accepted the appointment of Examiner of Public Records. Several other acceptances of appointments were received.

The Selectmen's committee on garbage disposal was authorized to make a survey with regard to ascertaining the best possible means of collecting and transporting garbage either to the town dump or to an incinerator that may possibly be recommended. Several highways in the western section of the town up for acceptance were referred to the highway committee for investigation.

Plays Comedy Role in H. S. Production

Austin Johnson

The part of Ernest, a young English nobleman—one of the important comedy roles in the Sock and Buskin production, "The Admirable Crichton"—will be enacted by Austin Johnson. Ernest is a witty and rather agreeable young fellow, who is very much interested and pleased with himself and his epigrams.

Johnson has had previous experience in dramatics, and also in public speaking, through his debating activities. "The Admirable Crichton" is one of Sir James Barrie's most effective plays, and it contains some unusual lines and situations. It will be presented in the high school auditorium on Friday, November 14. Tickets may be procured from members of the Sock and Buskin club.

MOTHERS CLUB TO HEAR MRS. CLEMENCY SCHALL

Legion Auxiliary Executive To Speak At November Meeting To Be Held Friday Night.

The Manchester Mothers' club's November meeting will take place Friday evening of this week at the South Methodist church. The guest speaker will be Mrs. Clemency Schall of New Haven, whose subject will be "Patriotism." Mrs. Schall until recently was state president of the American Legion auxiliary and is now national executive committee woman of the same organization. She paid an official visit last year to the auxiliary unit of Dilworth.

Mrs. Schall is by birth an English woman. She was educated in this country and is now a loyal American. Commander Alexander of Meriden head of the state Legion Post, who retired from that office at the same time as Mrs. Schall, presented to her a miniature set of the colors in appreciation of the commendable work she accomplished with the women's units throughout the state.

The committee of hostesses for the meeting Friday evening is as follows: Mrs. J. Seymour Brown, Mrs. J. E. Elliott, Mrs. Joseph Tedford, Mrs. Beattie Howe, Mrs. William A. Knoffa, Mrs. H. L. Griswold, Mrs. Allen Thompson, Mrs. Clarence Wood, Mrs. Merton Strickland, Mrs. Harold Symington, Mrs. Walter Waddell, Mrs. Albert Todd, Mrs. James W. Foley, Mrs. Raymond Goslee, Mrs. James H. McVeigh, Miss Bertha Goodrich.

PREPARES FOR PROBE Stamford, Nov. 11—(AP)—Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the special committee to investigate conditions at the state prison at Wethersfield, went to Hartford today to confer with Probate Judge Walter H. Clark about opening the investigation.

No witnesses will be heard he said last night until James T. Moran of New Haven, the third member of the committee, returns from a trip to the west.

CONSTABLES WARY OF WARRANTS NOW

Town May Find It Hard To Get Officers To Serve Tax Writs After Duffy Case.

The lawsuit of Salvatore Reale against Constable James Duffy, in which a Superior Court jury awarded a verdict of $1,400 to Reale to compensate him for injuries inflicted by Duffy in a fight over Reale's arrest on a tax warrant, bids fair to become an affair of importance to the town of Manchester. For several years Constable Duffy has been active in the collection of overdue taxes by the warrant method. He has made almost no arrests, if any, having found the power of the warrant sufficient to induce payment in practically every case where payment was possible. He has collected a great deal of money for the town.

But since the rendering of the Reale verdict the collection of back taxes by this method has stopped. No constable can be found who is willing to undertake the service of tax warrants when it is possible for him to lose, as the outcome of a single row with a recalcitrant tax debtor, many times as much money as he could expect to earn through the service of many warrants.

Want Protection Constables who have been approached on the subject assert that they will have nothing to do with tax warrants unless they can be protected against liability to civil suit. There has been some talk in official circles here as to whether the town can afford to let this situation continue. This in turn has given rise to some question as to whether or not Constable Duffy's bond of $1,000, which it has heretofore been taken for granted was solely for the protection of the town against any financial lapse on the part of the constable, did not also, as a matter of fact, protect the constable against legal attack in such cases as this Reale suit. It is understood that this aspect of the case is to receive immediate study by the town authorities.

No Attachment Meantime, though numerous creditors of the winner of the lawsuit have served garnishee orders on Constable Duffy to the total amount of $875 in hope of thus collecting their claims against Reale, no attachment has been placed on Duffy's property in the interest of the successful plaintiff. Altogether, though no notice of appeal has been given in behalf of Duffy, it seems probable that the end of this unusual case has not yet been reached.

OLD EMPLOYEE DIES New Haven, Nov. 11—(AP)—John E. Kilroy, 70, the oldest employe in point of service on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, died here last night. Kilroy entered the railroad's employ as a water boy 61 years ago. He was a baggage master on the New York-Boston run at the time of his death. Two sisters survive.

PRESIDENT LAUDS ADMEN OF NATION

Tells Advertisers They Contribute To Sound Government—Public Has Confidence in Them.

Washington, Nov. 11—(AP)—President Hoover told the Association of National Advertisers last night they contribute to sound government in policing their own business without interference of government. In a brief address before the annual convention of the organization the President reminded his listeners that the success of advertising as a medium of stimulating demand and consequently production rested upon maintaining the confidence of the public.

"And to maintain this confidence of the public," he said, "you and the mediums which you patronize have an interest that others do not violate confidence and thereby discredit the whole of advertising."

"You have recognized that responsibility. The better business bureau and the vigilance agencies which you have set up to safeguard the general reputation of advertising are not only sound ethics but sound business."

CARTOONIST'S FUNERAL Redding, Nov. 11—(AP)—Funeral services for James M. Conde, famous illustrator and cartoonist, will be held in Georgetown tomorrow. Conde, a resident of Redding since 1907, died at his home in Redding Center late Sunday evening. He was 62 years old. He was famous for his illustrations of the literary works of Albert Bigelow Paine and Chandler Harris and for his own independent series of drawings. As a young man he was a staff artist of the New York Herald.

Everyone knows that sunshine mellowers—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray. LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating!

"It's toasted" Your Throat Protection—against Irritation—against cough

Consistent with its policy of laying the facts before the public, The American Tobacco Company has invited Mr. Lucius Boomer to review the reports of the distinguished men who have witnessed LUCKY STRIKE'S famous Toasting Process. The statement of Mr. Boomer appears on this page.

ERNEST TORRENCE OFFERS SURPRISE

Will Make Initial Bow As Pianist In "Call of the Flesh."

For the first time in the history of the talking screen, a concert pianist displays his art on the silver sheet.

Torrence plays the piano in "Call of the Flesh," Ramon Novarro's new musical film.

In 1901 he went on the stage in London as an operatic baritone with the Savoy Opera Company.

Torrence and Ramon Novarro have always been close friends, having been drawn together by their common love of music.

One of Torrence's best known compositions, "What An Irishman Means By Madness," is a feature number on John McCormack's concert programs.

ARTHUR MANNING WINS COMPENSATION SUIT

Commissioner Kleiner of New Haven Finds For Local Man Badly Hurt In Fall Off Shed.

Arthur R. Manning, well known local tobacco grower, who was badly injured on March 13, when he fell from the roof of a tobacco shed near Laurel Park, today won his suit for compensation.

Mr. Manning's case had been presented to Judge J. Noonan of this district by Judge Raymond A. Johnson.

It was found at the time of Mr. Manning's accident that he would be paralyzed. At first he lost the use of his arms and legs.

AMERICANS PLEASE ETHIOPIA'S EMPEROR

Addis Ababa, Abyssinia, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Picturesque gifts, symbolic of Africa, were presented to the American representatives at his coronation by Emperor Haile Selassie just before their departure from the capital for Djibouti.

The emperor presented H. Murray Jacoby, special ambassador of President Hoover, with a silver and gold encrusted Abyssinian sword and a hippopotamus hide shield embellished in gold.

Mrs. Jacoby was given a hand-woven Ethiopian national costume trimmed in gold and set with superb bracelets, anklets and necklaces to match.

Brigadier-General William W. Harts received a silver embossed hippopotamus hide shield and Charles L. Cooke, secretary to the special mission, was presented with a long steel sword and scabbard.

To Addison E. Southard, United States minister resident at Addis Ababa, went the most gorgeous gift of all—an Ethiopian warrior's costume, a lion skin with a magnificent helmet of lions' manes and a silver mounted lance.

The Emperor today expressed to Mr. Southard deep appreciation for the help received from the United States in making the coronation a success. As a special mark of his gratitude for Mr. Southard's personal assistance, the monarch conferred upon the minister the Grand Cross of Haile Selassie I which is the highest decoration ever conferred upon any foreign diplomat here.

ROCKVILLE

Ward Caucuses

Little interest was taken in the ward caucuses which were held last evening by both the Republican and Democratic parties.

The first Republican ward caucus was held in the Town Hall Memorial Building, and William Dowling, present councilman, was renominated.

The Democratic caucuses here were but two nominees, Leo Fisher for councilman in the first ward, and the third ward. The other nominees will be named by the Democratic committee before Friday.

Give Potatoes To Needy The Connecticut Valley potato growers had a meeting recently and realizing the need of several hundred families because of the unemployment situation, have donated five hundred bushels of potatoes for distribution through a city organ.

Jerusalem, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Ancient historical times were recalled today by an attack of 1,500 Wahabi horsemen on the Trans-Jordan Howaitat tribe.

The Wahabis, after robbing the Howaitat of their camels, cut the herdsmen's hair and beards.

"Go to your Emir and tell him that next time your heads will be cut off," said the leader of the Wahabis.

she never would sing for the sound films or the radio. "I have never sung for the radio and never will," she continued. "Radio and talkies are like collision situations—they make medicated stars. Radio, with its amplifiers which change the voice in timbres and dynamics, is not what I want to trust my voice to."

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 11.

AN ORDINARY TOWN

We have never thought of Meriden as being a particularly tough town. A place, to be sure, "on the main line" and presumably afflicted with its normal share of ne'er-do-wells, minor crooks and hard eggs. Not perhaps so remarkably orderly a community as Manchester, yet no "Little Detroit." Just an average small city with at least an average good police force, where decency and respectability pretty well had the upper hand of things.

Wherefore there is considerable basis for serious thinking in a story printed by the Meriden Journal—in its turn a respectable, responsible newspaper—about the prevalence of hi-jacking in the city. According to the Journal hi-jacking seems to have developed into a major activity down there. We are told that it is the regular thing for speakeasies, gambling houses and jakey shops to be raided by gangs who help themselves to liquor, money, slot machines, cigars, cigarettes—anything and pretty much everything in sight—and who escape arrest and prosecution because the victims dare not make complaint to the police.

An interesting example is provided by the Journal, which says that recently in the middle of the evening three young fellows entered a slot machine in the back room, threw the machine out of a window, loaded it into the proprietor's automobile and drove off with it. The Journal says it is even reported that the owner of the place bought his own car back from the hi-jackers.

The newspaper also tells about one speakeasy proprietor whose place has been raided three times in four months, each visit costing him from $150 to $250.

The tale takes on a pretty sinister aspect when it is intimated that the illegal and therefore unprotected victims of these operations are rapidly working themselves up to the point where they are liable to put somebody "on the spot." That, of course, means that the gang murder is liable to become one of the problems of a matter-of-fact Connecticut small city.

All this is bringing the tide of demoralization pretty well up to our own doorstep. Meriden is a bigger town than Manchester, quite a bit. But it isn't enough bigger to be in a greatly different class. It is a manufacturing community, like this. Its population is a somewhat mixed one, more or less like ours. Its traditions are not so different. What happens in Meriden, as the result of deep seated causes, is reasonably certain to happen in Manchester in the course of time, from the same causes. If bootlegging grows out of prohibition in Meriden, and if (as) of bootlegging grow hi-jacking, racketeering, gangs and gang murders and gang wars, the unsettling of community security and the destruction of community self respect—how on earth can we expect to escape, for the fullness of time, similar fruits from similar seeds, in this good town of ours?

Surely it is time to be thinking seriously.

OVER-FISHING

That lovable old gentleman, poet and sportsman, Dr. Henry van Dyke, celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday yesterday by saying, among other things that he has never cared very much for the question "Whose fault was it?" because it is so much more important to ask, "How can we cure it?" He was talking of course, like everybody else, about the business depression.

Without questioning the kindliness underlying Dr. Van Dyke's suggestion it would be fair to ask him what he would do about a fished out trout stream? There is scarcely anything that the post-anger doesn't know about trout streams. He has fished all the good ones in Europe, America and New Zealand. We haven't the slightest doubt that in his later years he has fished some that his once-knew to be good, only to find them empty.

And we don't believe that, in such event, the good doctor has failed to interest himself in the cause. He has doubtless expressed regret, not altogether without indignation, that overfishing has been permitted to destroy the angling. He might say, with a sigh, there was nothing to be done about the emptied stream but to restock it—but we seriously question whether he wouldn't, at the same time, add that it would also be necessary, if the stream were not to be again robbed of its life, to establish safeguards against the taking of too many fish from those waters.

In other words, Dr. Van Dyke would have to deal, in the case of the trout stream, with causes as well as cures.

There is a very general tendency, in the discussions of business depression and potential restoration, to adopt this attitude of disregarding the causes. Yet until the causes of economic ills are traced out, any attempts at curing the disease are just so much shooting in the dark.

There are a great many people who believe that the business stream was emptied of customers by over-fishing, so to speak. Top much fine selling tackle and too many glittering lures were employed. The fishermen were never content except with bigger and bigger creels. Presently there were no more of the golden fanned trout—nothing but minnows who were interested only in the ground feed, the lowly meal-and-potatoe sort of customers who couldn't aspire to costly dew-dads even on the installment plan. The stream was fished out.

Somewhat the streams will have to be restocked. It's liable to prove a much bigger job than a good many folks yet realize. Also, when it is accomplished—as somehow it will be because it has got to be—it is highly probable that something will be done to prevent hogging the brook, so to speak; and the using of scented bait—which any fisherman knows is not only unsportsmanlike but calculated to ruin the fishing.

LOST IN WOODS

The six days' search of the Maine woods for Mitchell Kaufman, rich Massachusetts business man and hunter, in which several Hartford companions have been participating, is another instance of a condition that most people find it very hard to understand. It is practically impossible for the average citizen to realize how easily and how suddenly one may become lost in a great forest and how difficult it is for even the most expert woodsman to trail and find such a person. Those of us who have obtained our woods lore from fiction are inclined to believe that a really first class guide or trapper is almost as well able to track a man in the woods as though the lost person were in plain sight. This is not by any means always the case. A good many people have been lost in the Maine woods—and remained lost. There is record of one young man, son of a very wealthy and prominent citizen, who strayed momentarily from the company of his guide, and of whom not the slightest trace was ever found despite the fact that three hundred of the finest woodsmen in the state searched the forests of two counties for him for three or four weeks. The father spent a fortune in the search but it was utterly fruitless.

There is every reason to hope, at this writing, that the missing Boy State man may be found. But there need be no surprise that he hasn't been found yet. The wonder is, rather, that more city bred hunters do not permanently disappear in the Big Woods.

A JOB FOR CROSS

Governor-elect Cross has lost no time in starting to learn the job he is to take over at the beginning of the year. He was in Hartford yesterday conferring with Governor Trumbull and Finance and Control Commissioner Edward F. Hall, posting himself on budgetary matters.

Dean Cross, during his campaign, dealt very largely with items of expenditure and it is natural that much of his attention at this time should be centered on fiscal matters; particularly when he has developed quite extensively the theory that these have not been sufficiently tied up with humanitarian considerations. It is to be hoped, however, that the new governor will find time, before he prepares his initial message to the Legislature, to give very serious consideration to the automobile speed law situation.

That reform of the existing law is desperately needed is the conviction of many thousands of Connecticut people. It is notorious that many drivers from outside the state have just one fixed impression concerning the speed laws of this commonwealth and that is that there is simply no legal limit. No such purpose underlay the existing law as the removal of all limits to the speed at which an automobile may be driven; but that is absolutely the understanding of uncounted motorists, both non-resident and resident. At the same time the absence of prima facies makes it almost impossible for the police to obtain convictions in many cases of utter recklessness unless there has been a resulting accident—and even then the difficulties of the police are, unnecessarily multiplied.

There is no demand for ungenerous restrictions. On the contrary the popular feeling in the matter of speed is extremely liberal. But little progress can be made in the reduction of the frightful death toll on the roads and streets unless we have laws that are susceptible of distinct interpretation not only by courts and the police but by the ordinary driver.

At the very least the authority of the municipal governments to establish speed limits within settled areas—albeit vaguely created by a roundabout and unsatisfactory method—ought to be incorporated into the state law and properly conditioned to prevent the erection of oppressive "speed traps."

We don't believe that Dr. Cross, if he gives this matter the attention it deserves, will at all subscribe to the flattering notion that Connecticut's speed law is a model. We believe he will find it to be a very bad law indeed and the formulation of a much better one a task of no inconsiderable magnitude whatever.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 11.—Going places and seeing things. . . The dizzy winter season gets under way. . . Literary teas, movie teas, theatrical teas, radio teas. . . Everyone being introduced to people they already know. . . Celebrities being trotted out for the lion tamer.

And so, in the course of hectic evenings, up in the swanky uptown place studio of Lowell Thomas, the writer-adventurer-soldier - of - fortune, who 'ook Floyd Gibbons' job as headline spieler for Literary Digest. Which is said to pay something like $2500 a week of thereabouts.

And Thomas fell to telling of strange adventures in strange lands; and of Lawrence, the hero of that extraordinary Arabian adventure, and of a section of Hindustan seldom seen by white-skinned men concerning which he has penned a book, "Land of the Black Pagoda."

After which he showed some films of the colorful pageants and strange customs of the people, seemingly all the more dramatic thanks to a salon crowd and a spruce crew of caterers.

And in a corner sat the ivory-skinned, red-haired Francine Larrimore, one of my favorite actresses. . . Yet she seemed getting a bit too plump for my tastes. . . Whereas a few feet away was Burton Rascoe, the Chicago 'ad who became a most important person in the book world. . . He was bemoaning the fact that Mlle. Larrimore had not known who he was. . . And she was the third person met in a single evening to say they had not so much as heard of him. . . And I said that he was just like New York. . . You don't expect people at a literary party to know the literary figures. . . They're generally too busy trying to get a look at authors.

And besides, said I, only the day before I had met someone who hadn't even heard of Heywood Brown.

So down to the Ritz crystal room where the staid old firm of Lippincott had to decide to get young and gay again, to the tune of marimba bands and Spanish guitars. . . And Margaret Arkin, who sings cowboy songs and has been prowling about the New Mexican desert spots, told of a grand dream of bringing the native Indian art of this land to the big cities to show the Americans what their homelike folks can do.

Just around the corner, slim little Marion Johnson, the ficker, was straining to the hostess. And I learned that she had been far from satisfied with the parts she recently had been given, believing that to continue them would be to spoil her career. . . Wherefore, she had left the First National 'ad and was looking about for a new film lot.

My little Allison, of Variety, and myself fell to commenting on how all the tiny Hollywood stars had grown more and more petulant since the talkie came. . . Time was when most of them were content with what we know as "gaga" parts. . . But as the sophisticated pictures came talking their way into our midst and as Ruth Chatterton, Claudette Colbert and others went zooming into stardom, the little ladies of the silent days began to yearn for sophisticated roles.

Within the week I had heard murmurs from Lois Moran, Nancy Carroll—and heaven knows who all—yet I cannot but wonder if all of them are mature enough for roles of which they dream.

Staying overlong at gabbling, I rushed into the street, only to all but knock over an elderly man leaving a taxi. . . And looking up saw it was Paderewski. . . And even as I was apologizing a sliding taxi knocked an old woman to the street before my eyes. . . And as I turned the corner within a few doors of the office, mounted police were hammering Communists over the heads in mid 34th street. . . So decided that things were happening too fast around this town and went home before something happened to me.

HEALTH-DIET ADVICE
 By Dr. Frank McCoy
 "The Best Health in the World"
 "The Best Diet in the World"

IF YOU DO CATCH A COLD

If you have already caught a cold you will not only want to know the quickest way to get rid of it, but will also want to use a method of treatment which is least likely to bring on complications such as pneumonia, bronchitis, tuberculosis, discharge from the ears and a generally rundown condition which may follow severe colds.

When a cold has started, the best plan is to assist the body in opening up all the channels of elimination. Large amounts of water should be taken in order to thoroughly flush out the kidneys and carry away excess wastes. One or two enemata should be taken to wash out the toxic wastes from the colon. The activity of the pores of the skin should be increased by several sponge baths daily, or through inducing copious perspiration.

A sweating treatment is probably the best method to be used to get rid of the toxins which exist during a cold. After taking a thorough enema, the patient should then take a hot water bath, or a steam bath, and get into bed using only coverings for the body which are made entirely of wool. Hot water bottles should be placed at the foot of the bed, and several woolen blankets used to cover the patient. He should be tucked in or pinned in so that no air enters under the covers or around the shoulders. A nurse should then prepare an infusion made by pouring hot water over a grapefruit which has been cut into pieces. The skin and all should be used; a quart of water to each medium-sized grapefruit, under way. . . Literary teas, movie teas, theatrical teas, radio teas. . . Everyone being introduced to people they already know. . . Celebrities being trotted out for the lion tamer.

The patient should be induced to sweat for as long as necessary until there is no abnormal temperature, and the sweating should not be interrupted for any reason during the first hour or two. As soon as the temperature is normal and patient feels relieved he should be changed to warm dry clothing but kept covered for several hours. It is better to wait a whole day after the cold has gone before the patient takes much exercise, but from then on it is important to increase each day in order to gain strength.

When you have a cold it is a good plan to use soft tissue handkerchiefs

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Falling Hair)
 Question: G. H. asks: "Will you kindly tell me what causes the hair to fall out in spots. I have never taken ether. Some say that causes such a condition. Am apparently in good health, 30 years old."

Answer: When the hair comes out in spots it is often because of some glandular derangement in your body, but may be due to the local infection from a micro-organism which has located in your scalp. Have your head shaved, take ultraviolet treatments on your scalp, take a short fast and then live on a diet as recommended each Friday in this column.

(No Starches With Fruit)
 Question: J. J. asks: "Is it true that we should not combine starches with fruit or acids? What effect does it have on the body?"

Answer: Starches taken with less trouble if no fruits or sugars are used at the same meal. This is a proven fact, no matter what theories are formulated to account for it. The simple reason seems to be that starches are digested in an alkaline medium, and that fruits and sugars only stimulate more of the acid digestive fluids of the stomach. This certainly cannot assist in the digesting of starches, and appears to interfere with it.

(Dyspepsia and Acidosis)
 Question: I. L. H. asks: "Are dyspepsia and acidosis caused by the same condition? May both be overcome by the same diet?"

Answer: Any kind of dyspepsia may be caused by the same things which cause acidosis. Acid dyspepsia means poor digestion due to overacidity of the stomach. A well-balanced diet will correct any kind of dyspepsia or acidosis.

The powdering stones that fence an empty space:
 A village that is dust and ashes now,
 Peace was declared in councils of The armies halted, momentarily at peace,
 But in the battlefields the ruins
 wait;
 No mutilated tree is given release.

This is the body of the earth betrayed,
 The mystic archetype of human dead,
 That cruel barbed vine of wire is lightly laid,
 A crown of thorns about a wounded
 head.

Peace after war is sorrowful, for still
 She mourns her cities shattered by the sword;
 Like Mary weeping on Golgotha
 hill,
 About the broken body of her Lord,
 But time will mend the temple and restore
 Leaf to the tree and flesh to the white bone.
 After the darkness of that final war
 Angels will roll away the heavy stone.

Aid: Peace Eternal, beautiful and proud,
 Will greet an earth whose agony is done,
 Like Mary, haloed by celestial cloud
 Before the risen prince of her Son.

"SECOND TO NONE"

In memory of my brother, Sergeant Cyril Barlow Mosher, Battery D, Twelfth Field Artillery; killed in action, June 18, 1918, Belleau Wood, France and his comrades of the Second Division.

"Second" all-glorious,
 Ever victorious,
 Honor to thee!
 Thine altar fire burn bright
 With an eternal light.
 I glory in thy fight.
 "Second" to None!

Thy name and fame are known Where'er thy flags have flown—
 Honor is thine;
 Homage I offer thee
 Straight from the heart of me.
 Knowing thou'st'er shall be,
 "Second" to None!

Thy Cheftans staunch and strong
 Thrill at thy battle song;
 Theirs to command!
 Never in battle's heat
 Have thy men known defeat,
 Or heard the word "Retreat,"
 "Second" to None!

Thy sons are true as steel,
 And crush beneath the heel
 The tyrant foe.
 In Heaven's Book of Gold,
 Shall their deeds be told
 Until the Judgment Day unfold,
 "Second" to None!

Thy host of valiant dead
 Forever, Ye have said,
 Shall rest in peace.
 Thy torch they bore on high
 Was given to you, who did not die,
 So great their faith,
 "Second" to None!

And so, adown the years,
 Thy ranks, through smiles and tears
 Shall "Keep the Faith,"
 And when Earth's legions yield,
 Their arms to God on Heaven's field,
 "Second" to None.

—Beryl E. Mosher.

ARMISTICE DAY

(From The Daily News)
 Out of the dust they came Joyous! With life afame!
 Fashioned by God on high
 Peaceful pursuits to ply
 Under His friendly sky.

Then they were plunged by fate
 Into a war of hate!
 Fed was their youth and vim
 Unto the cannon, grim . . .
 All for a madman's whim.

Back to the dust they went;
 Boys who by God were meant
 For painless, life-and-play!
 For fireless, bright and gay!
 For death . . . by a gentler way.

Armistice Day once more!
 Up from the dust they soar!
 Unseen, as they swing along;
 Unuttered, their wailing song . . .
 But felt by the marching throng.

—Nick Kenny.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Nov. 11.—One of the hardest things to find these days is a Republican who does not admit privately that Herbert Hoover is not a popular president.

There are plenty of Republicans to explain that Hoover's unpopularity is not his own fault. Or to say that, despite his previous hard luck, Hoover is still having property. Instead of hard times the Hoover stock would still rate high with most folks. A return of prosperity is Hoover's one best bet for being re-elected.

Promised Prosperity
 An objective evaluation of Hoover's presidency can also afford to ignore the fact that Hoover promised the country a continuance of prosperity in his campaign speeches. Republicans dislike him because he doesn't play their brand of politics and hasn't given them leadership.

Independents and liberals who supported him in 1928 are now mostly agitated that his most spirited president in any respect worth mentioning. Democrats, with their new publicity bureau, have given him the worst razing they ever gave any Republican president. Either the wets or dries would rush to his support with a whoop if they could be sure he was one thing of the other. As it is, both groups look askance at him.

Most observers believe Hoover could have done something, much or little, to offset his hard luck and his handicaps if he had taken a spirited stand now and then, demonstrating a willingness to fight and to speak right out in meeting.

They believe that nothing short of a display of political courage can re-establish him and deplore the fact that his most spirited declaration to date has been a vehement attack on Ralph S. Kelley, an Interior Department subordinate who charged maladministration of the oil shale reserves.

Merchants Again Cooperate with State Theater for Weekly Distribution Of Gifts—"Call of the Flesh" Feature Picture

"Call of the Flesh," Ramon Navarro's newest starring vehicle, which will open tomorrow night at the State theater, will permit picturegoers to hear Navarro's voice as an opera singer for the first time. To sing in opera has been a lifelong ambition of the star, and in the new photoplay he achieves at least a partial fulfillment of this desire, via the Hollywood microphones.

Navarro, who expects to make his debut abroad in grand opera during the coming year, has given private recitals since 1925 in his "Teatro Intime" in Hollywood, but has never sung in public. He hopes in the near future to be able to divide his time between operatic work and motion pictures and his present contract stipulates that a certain amount of his time shall be his own for concert tours or grand opera. The young Mexican star's voice was first heard by picture followers in "The Pagan" and in "Devil May Care," and in "Gay Madrid" Navarro sang several romantic ballads.

The operatic numbers which Navarro sings in "Call of the Flesh," are in English, Spanish and Italian, so that followers of the film star in foreign countries will have their first opportunity to hear him render popular and classical songs in their native tongue.

Appearing as a young opera singer who finds himself in love with a dancer and a little convent girl, Navarro will sing several compositions by Herbert Stothart and Clifford Grey as well as a number of operatic arias, including "Ridi Pagliacci," perhaps the best known aria of the late Enrico Caruso, and "Questa o Quella" from "Rigoletto." In the foreign versions of the picture he will replace the "Pagliacci" number by arias from "Traviata" which he claims are better known across the Atlantic.

Dorothy Jordan will again be

Picturesque Scenes in "Call of the Flesh"

One of the most important problems in connection with the making of motion pictures is that of getting accurate background or atmosphere for a screen story.

The acting of your star and cast may approach perfection; the direction may be superb; the plot surfeited with excitement, and yet audiences will feel a lack of something in a production whose settings are lacking in accuracy. When the story doesn't ring true, the effect is flat; consequently the matter of proper atmosphere is one of the first details taken up by directors in preparing a vehicle for the screen.

It was for just this reason that particular care was taken in re-producing Spanish settings for Ramon Navarro's latest picture, "Call of the Flesh." Dorothy Farnum, scenarist, spent six months abroad last year, gathering atmospheric material for her script and purchasing various props many of which could be found only in provincial Spanish villages.

According to Miss Farnum, one of the hardest research problems which she encountered was that of locating a Spanish police-patrol of about eighty years ago. When it was finally located it proved to be a small one-horse wagon with a simple iron cage on top of it. The set opposite the star and the cast includes Ernest Torrence, Nance O'Neil, Renee Adore, Mathilde Comont and Russell Hopton. The picture was directed by Charles Brabin who produced "The Bridge of San Luis Rey."

Renee Adore

—that was too distant to take the chance of their safe transportation across the ocean, but we found decorations in Spanish churches in Mexico which were exactly what we needed for the Cathedral scenes and made arrangements to obtain their temporary loan."

One thing required no reproduction whatsoever, Miss Farnum explained, namely an outdoor scene in which director Charles Brabin wished to show typically Spanish flowers. This was simple, for California and Spain have a certain wild flower in common—daisies. Wild daisies brought from the San Jacinto valley were planted on location when it was learned that this same flower grows wild about the suburbs of Seville where the story is laid.

An amusing detail in connection with sticking to accurate atmosphere, was Miss Farnum's story of the argument which arose when it came to hiring several blonde girls for extra roles.

"Several of the technical aides claimed that blonde girls were a rarity in Spain while others decided that there were enough of them to make them typical of the country. My own experience has been that there are as many beautiful blondes in Spain as in Hollywood. People picture Spanish women as dark and graceful. Of course, there are a great many brunettes, but on the other hand, the Andalusians who inhabit an entire province in Spain, are almost all blondes."

"Moreover, Hollywood pictures, setting the style in Spain as elsewhere, have made blonde hair fashionable, with the usual result. You will find that blonde and bobbed-hair flappers are plentiful in Madrid and elsewhere."

Makes Renewed Appeal For Adherence By The U. S. To the World Court and Broad Participation of This Country in Friendly Efforts To Maintain the Peace of the World—Points Out That the Kellogg-Briand Pact for Outlawing War Is One Method of Fostering Peace.

(Following is the full text of President Hoover's Armistice Day address today at the Annual Conference and Good Will Congress of the World Alliance for International Friendship through the Churches.)

Upon this day all thoughts must turn to our heroic dead whose lives were given in defense of the liberties and ideals of our country. Their contribution to these priceless heritages was made without reservation; they gave the full measure of their intelligence and energy and enthusiasm, and life itself, forfeiting their portion of further happiness—all that we and our children might live on more safely, more happily, and more assured of the peace of the world against the horror and irretrievable wastage of war. Much has been done, but we must wage peace continuously, with the same energy as they waged war.

This year 1930 has been rendered notable in peace annals in the achievement of the London naval treaty. That has disposed of one of those major frictions among the great naval powers—that is, competition in naval construction—and it has made a sensible advance in the reduction of warships.

The promotion of peace and prevention of war, however, can not rest upon the accomplishment of any one year's work. The outlook for peace is happier than for half a century, yet we can not overlook the fact that nations in many ways are always potentially in conflict. There are not only the accumulated age-old controversies and ambitions which are alive with prejudice, emotion, and passion, but you may be assured that there will always be an unceasing crop of new controversies between nations.

Every shift in power, every advance in communications, in trade and finance daily increases the point of contact of one nation with another. The diffusion of their citizens and their property abroad increases singly, in groups and overlaps into the four corners of the earth. The many inventions of these citizens, their ceaseless energies, bring an hourly grist to our foreign offices of contested territory, of rights, of claims, of interests. It is true that many of these contacts make for understanding and good will; it is indeed of the first importance to peace that these happy influences be cultivated and that the happy ones be disposed of with justice and good will.

The Kellogg-Briand Pact, signed a little over two years ago to further safeguard against the dangers from these conflicts, has already become a powerful influence in international affairs. Several further states have adhered to it since last November, bringing the total number of nations up to 58 which have renounced war as an instrument of national policy and have agreed to settle conflicts of whatever nature by pacific means. Five other states have expressed an intention to adhere, which will bring the total to 63, a figure comprising all but two nations.

By the recognition of this fundamental principle of peace and from the convenient itself presents, this agreement has become one of the most potent instruments for peace which the world has ever forged for itself.

There has been much discussion as to the desirability of some further extension of the Pact so as to effect a double purpose of assuring methodical development of this machinery of peaceful settlement, and to insure at least the mobilization of world opinion against those who fall when strain comes. I do not think that some such further step may not some day come about.

Such a formula would be stimulating and would appeal to the dramatic sense of the world as a mark in the progress of peace. But less dramatic and possibly even more sure is the day-to-day strengthening and buttressing of the Pact by extension from one nation to another of treaties which, in times of friction, assure resort to well-tried processes of competent negotiation, of conciliation, and of arbitration.

Great Advancement

And we can in our own relations record great advancement in these fundamental but less dramatic supports to the Pact during the two years since its signature. Up to the signature of the Pact our country was bound by arbitration treaties to seven other nations. It is now bound to 26 nations by conciliation treaties, both bilateral and multilateral. Since that time we have completed treaties with 15 more countries, and in addition we have signed further arbitration and conciliation treaties with 45 nations, of which 26 have been ratified and the others are either before the Senate or in course of presentation to it.

By these treaties of arbitration we pledge ourselves to the acceptance of the judgment of a disinterested third party in all controversies of a justifiable character. By treaties of conciliation we pledge ourselves to submit all other types of controversy to negotiations or the mediation of commissions which embrace representatives of disinterested nations.

It is our purpose to develop in every way the machinery of peaceful settlement in our relations with foreign nations.

Other nations of the world have likewise been engaged over years in the building up of the machinery for pacific settlement of controversies. There are hundreds of arbitration and conciliation treaties existing directly between them. Indeed the covenant of the League of Nations provides for arbitration and conciliation amongst 54 nations of the world.

It is my belief that the world will have become firmly interlocked with such agreements within a very few years, and that it will become an accepted principle of international law that disputes between nations which it has not been possible to determine through the ordinary channels of diplomacy shall in future be submitted to arbitration, or to international conciliation commissions.

In the development of methods of pacific settlement, a great hope lies in ever extending the body and principles of international law on which such settlements will be based. The World Court is now a strongly established institution amongst 45 nations as a continuing body, performing and facilitating justiciable determinations which can only be accomplished sporadically under special treaties of arbitration. Its permanence is assured and from it there is steadily growing a body of precedent, decisions, and acceptance of law in the formulation of which we should have a part, not alone in our own interest but in advancement of peace.

Freedom of Seas

A year ago I made a suggestion of a practical contribution in settlement of an age-old controversy of freedom of the seas. I proposed that food supplies should be made immune from interference in time of war, and that the security of such supplies should be guaranteed by neutral transport and management. I proposed it not alone upon humane grounds but that the haunting fears of nations who must live from over the sea might be relaxed and the sacrifices which they make for naval strength might be lessened. Our food supplies are assured, and it is therefore from us a disinterested proposal. It would be for prevention as well as limitation of war.

We, as a Nation whose independence, liberties, and securities were born of war, can not contend that there never is or never will be righteous cause for war in the world. Nor can we assume that righteousness has so advanced in the world that we may yet have complete confidence in the full growth of pacific means or rest solely upon the processes of peace for defense.

With the progress the world has made in the installation of the methodical processes for the settlement of controversies, the larger problem emerges as to fidelity to agreement to use these methods. The thought of nations who are disinterestedly directed to the question as to what the nations of the world will do in case of a failure to use them. It is useless for us to say that we have no interest in such events.

Since our experience in the World War no one will deny the dangers which foreign wars bring to our shores or the interest we must have to the peace of the world at large. But I do not hold that our obligation in these matters lies wholly on the basis of self-interest. It is upon its moral and spiritual strength that the advancement of the world must rest.

Our basis of cooperation to preserve peace lies in the fact that different from that of the other great nations of the world. The security of our geographic situation, our traditional freedom from entanglements in the involved diplomacy of Europe, and our disinterestedness enables us to give a different and in many ways a more effective service to peace.

The nations of Europe, bordered as they are by age-old dangers of which we in the Western Hemisphere have little appreciation, beset as they are by long-inherited fears, believe that they must subscribe to methods which in the last resort will use force to compel nations to abide by their agreements to settle controversies by pacific means. We, in our great state of safety and independence, should make no criticism of their conclusions which arise from their necessities.

But we believe that our contribution can best be made in these emergencies, when nations fail to keep their undertakings of pacific settlement of disputes, by our good offices and helpfulness free from any advance commitment or entanglement as to the character of our action.

Use Friendly Efforts

The purpose of our government is to cooperate with others, to use our friendly offices, and to exert our implication of the use of force, to use every friendly effort and all good will to maintain the peace of the world.

The war that ended on this day 12 years ago taught us one thing, if nothing else, and that is the blessing of peace. When we look back upon its splendid valor and heroism then displayed, when we remember the magnificent energies poured forth by young and old, when we recall the marvelous exercise of the greatest virtues that glorify the human race—unselfishness, self-sacrifice, cooperation, both by men and women—we are looking not upon qualities which war creates but rather upon the traits of the human race which war makes seem more vivid by contrast with its own horrors. These same qualities are exercised, but are unused and unmerited, in times of peace. Those who died displaying them would have displayed their living, and would have wrought their

STATE'S FINANCES SHOW BIG BALANCE

General Fund Increased By $2,137,817.03 As Compared With Year Ago.

Hartford, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—The balance in the general fund on October 31, 1930, was $6,998,145.18 as compared with $6,820,427.15 on the same date last year, an increase of $177,718.03, according to a statement on the financial conditions of the state submitted to Governor John H. Trumbull yesterday by State Commissioner of Finance and Control Edward F. Hall.

The receipts for the month of October this year amounted to $1,091,632.29, an increase of $12,566.46 over the same month last year. The receipts for the period of July 1, to October 31, 1930 were $12,991,044.95 an increase of $1,090,255.84 over $11,900,789.11 for the same period last year. The general fund expenditure for October amounted to $1,982,434.10, an increase of $385,703.70. Due largely to the expenditures on the state office building there was an increase of $348,912.98 in the amount expended for capital improvements in October over the same month last year, the total expenditure last month being $495,617.94. The general fund balance of $6,998,145.18 does not include $2,000,000 loaned to the highway fund in September 1930 and the 1929 balance did not include $1,500,000 loaned to the highway department in September 1929 and repaid in December.

Highway Fund

In the highway fund the receipts for October, 1930 were $1,078,228.82, an increase of $198,886.36 over October 1929.

The receipts from July 1 to October 31 were $3,176,372.13 which was $7,961.41 less than for the same period last year. In October 1930 the highway expenditures amounted to $1,619,442.31 which was $364,744.43 more than during the same month last year. The highway fund balance on October 31 was $676,104.18 which as compared with 1929 balance of $1,248,838.98 is a decrease of $572,734.80. Both these balances include the money borrowed from the general fund in 1929 and 1930.

EDISON'S KIN MARRIED IN UNIONVILLE, CONN.

Unionville, Conn., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Charles F. Stillwell, 69, brother-in-law of Thomas A. Edison, and his bride, the former Mrs. Minnie L. Latham, of Atlanta, Georgia, were on a honeymoon today.

They were married here Saturday by the Rev. F. H. Sawyer, pastor of the Methodist church.

Stillwell's sister, Mary, was Edison's first wife. He went to work for the Edison Company when he was 12 years old and was associated with Edison in the development of the incandescent lamp.

He was the first manager of the Edison Company's Canadian enterprises. He lost his sight while making an experiment at the company's plant at Hamilton, Ont.

His first wife died in 1916. He has three sons and four daughters.

Oviedo, Spain, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—One person was killed, 23 were seriously hurt and fifty others slightly hurt today, when the floor of a church at Celorio collapsed while services were in progress.

RUNAWAYS EXCITE FASHIONABLE FOLK

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Two dappled grey work horses stole the spotlight from the noblest horseflesh in America last night by staging an unscheduled runaway act before 7,000 terrified spectators at the horse show.

The Social Register clientele in the boxes was thrown into an uproar as the team, drawing a large truck, dashed into the ring and galloped twice the length of the enclosure, shaking off judges and groomers who tried to stop them. Finally one horse became entangled in a wing and 5 dozen attendants leaped upon the pair.

As the subdued equines were led from the arena, society readjusted its composure and the show went on. Old timers declared it was the most exciting moment since the exhibition started in 1883.

DEER HUNTER KILLED

Portland, Me., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—The sixth fatality among deer hunters since the season opened on that game was recorded in the death last night of Reginald Metcalf, 28, of East Andover. He was shot and killed by his brother in law Leon Abbott, of Bethel, while in the woods near Andover hunting deer.

Abbott said he saw something move. Whistled. There was no answer so he fired, thinking it was a deer.

Bond Bread has the same home-like flavor as unsliced Bond Bread

ALWAYS FRESH AT YOUR GROCER'S

WHEN grocers first told their customers that they could buy Bond Bread either sliced or not sliced, it was good news. Housewives who purchased sliced Bond Bread quickly recognized the familiar home-like flavor of the unsliced loaf, the flavor that makes Bond Bread the popular loaf everywhere. And they found that sliced Bond Bread retains its home-likeness until the last slice is eaten. That's because Bond Bread has more flavor to begin with than ordinary bread.

Whether you buy Bond Bread sliced or in the uncut loaf, you see at once what a difference pure bread ingredients and perfect baking make.

Increasing consumer preference proves that, sliced or unsliced, there is no bread like

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CELIA MITCHELL, 17, leaves Baltimore where she has lived with her seamstress mother, MARGARET ROGERS, to join her wealthy father, JOHN MITCHELL, in New York. The parents are divorced and Mrs. Rogers is a widow following a second marriage.

BARNEY SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl. Mitchell asks EVELYN PARSONS, beautiful widow, to introduce his daughter to other young people. Mrs. Parsons agrees, considering Celia a means to win Mitchell's affections.

She soon becomes jealous of the girl and schemes to get rid of her by encouraging a romance between Celia and TUD JORDAN, fascinating but of dubious character. Although Mitchell forbids Celia to see Jordan she goes about with the young man frequently. LISI DUNCAN, a girl of Celia's age, becomes her loyal friend. Shields comes to New York to work for a photographic service and meets Celia. She tells him she has lost her heart to Jordan, but later realizes it is Shields whom she loves.

Mrs. Parsons goes to Mitchell and tells him the girl has been meeting Shields surreptitiously. Father and daughter quarrel and Celia leaves for Baltimore. Her mother is not without all clues to Mrs. Rogers' whereabouts. Mitchell arrives. He and Celia become reconciled and return to New York after he has promised to locate Mrs. Rogers. Meanwhile, Mrs. Parsons invites Shields to dinner and tells Celia she is to marry Jordan. Later when Celia telephones, the young man avoids an appointment. Celia and Lisi go to a matinee and encounter Jordan, who takes them to tea. All three are together when they meet Shields.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER LII
Celia caught Lisi's arm and drew her back. "Wait for me, you two," she said to Lisi and Jordan. "There's someone I want to see. I'll only be a moment." Then she hurried to where Shields stood.

He had turned away and did not see her approach. Celia touched his sleeve. "Barney!" she said. "I'm so glad to find you here. I don't think you understood this morning."

Hartford Girl Made Happy

MANY times a child has everything to make her happy and still is dissatisfied. This may not be the youngster's fault. Often it is due to a condition easily corrected. Take the experience of Mrs. Margaret Newbury, 21 Millford Street, Hartford, Conn. who says: "Nothing seemed to please Helen. She was fretful and feverish, suffered a lot from colds. She was constipated. 'We saw California Fig Syrup advertised and got some. It relieved her trouble promptly; made her bright and happy again. We have used it since then for all her upsets.' Mothers by thousands praise this pure vegetable product. Children love it. Doctors recommend it to relieve constipation, feverishness, fretfulness, headaches; to open the bowels in colds or children's ailments. Appetite is increased by the use of California Fig Syrup; breath is sweetened; coated tongue is cleared; digestion and assimilation are aided; weak bowels and stomach are strengthened. For your protection, the genuine always bears the name California. CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP LAXATIVE-TONIC FOR CHILDREN laughed caught in her throat. "Please don't try to tease now," she said. "You—when I almost thought you meant 'I'm frightened of me'!" "I beg your pardon," the young man answered, still formally. "I had no intention of appearing humorous but I suppose I am from your viewpoint."

"Why, Barney?" Suddenly Barney Shields lost his pose of frigid dignity. "Look here, Celia," he said, "hadn't you better be going back to your society play-mates? You know you don't really mean a word you're saying. I feel for it one. But that doesn't mean I'll do it over again! What's the idea of pretending anyhow?" Disbelief, then terror crossed the girl's face. "What do you mean?" she cried. "Has someone been telling you things that are true?" "No one's been telling me anything you shouldn't have seen for myself."

Celia caught his arm. "But it's all wrong!" she insisted. "Father's Shields stepped back. 'Father too public place to become emotional, isn't it?' he said quietly. 'Besides, I'm sure we understand each other. May I bid you good afternoon?'" "Just a minute. Now it was the girl whose words were slow, tangled with restrained anger. Celia's face had gone white. "I believe I begin to see what you mean. You're trying to tell me that—everything's over! Is that it?"

"Well, if you insist on plain terms," "Don't bother about trying to spare my feelings. Oh, I see I have made a mistake. A great one. And it's better that we shouldn't see each other again. Very much better!" Celia paused for a moment but Shields did not speak. "My friends are waiting," she said. "Goodbye, Barney."

"Goodbye." Neither seeing nor hearing anything around her, Celia walked away. She held her head high. Though her lips trembled she was determined not to give a way to the terrific sensation that everything in the world had stopped overwhelmed her. The blurred objects ahead meant nothing. The only thing was to get away.

Celia reached the entrance of the hotel. She did not see Lisi Duncan or Jordan until she heard Lisi's voice. "Darling, we've waiting an age. What were you doing—writing your memoirs?" Jordan laughed but stopped short as he caught the expression on Celia's face.

"Is anything wrong?" he asked. "Don't you feel well?" Her answer was forced. "Nothing's wrong. I'm feeling perfectly all right." "You're sure?" "Why, of course. Hadn't we better be starting?"

Lisi put her hand on her friend's arm. "Say—you are pale around the girls! Let's get out in the fresh air. May be that'll help." They stepped out on the street. At the doorman's signal a cab drew near and halted. Jordan helped the two girls in and followed. "You can leave me at Celia's," Lisi said. "My car there. If you're going anywhere, Tod, I'll give you a lift." "Thanks, but I'd rather not bother you."

"No bother! And you may have been caught. I had an interesting session with a traffic cop this morning. I hope he's off duty by this time." Jordan's eyes were on Celia. "I think you're all in, honey," he said to her. "Here lean against my arm. I'll be better."

WHAT New York IS WEARING

Here's a stunning dress you'll love to have in your Fall wardrobe. It's smartly feminine and wearable too, interpreted in black and white crepe.

It has the flattering cowl neckline in white crepe, carrying out the fashionable black and white theme. It is caught with a black enameled jeweled buckle. The pointed cuffs of the long fitted sleeves are a detail. The natural waistline of the easily moulded bodice is marked by a cover at the left side. The hips are snugly fitted. Graceful animation is given to the skirt through a circular godet at the front whose pointed seaming does much to conceal hip breadth.

It's the most simple dress imaginable to make. It takes but 3 1/2 yards of 38-inch material with 1/2 yard 85-inch contrasting for the woman of average figure. Style No. 2718 is designed in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 inches bust.

More dressy occasions demand transparent crepe and sheer metal brocade. Another very charming idea is a metal embroidery on a crepe in new red shade with the draped vest of light pink plain crepe. A brown and tan crepe woolen with plain tan contrast, you'll find exceptionally practical and smart for all-around daytime wear. Crepe marocain, plain flat crepe silk, crepe Roma and light-weight tweed are also suitable for this slender snappy model. Our New Fall and Winter Fashion Book shows how to dress up-to-the-minute at very little expense. You can save on every dress and on the children's clothes too, which means better frocks for you and yours. It costs 15 cents a copy, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered same time as pattern.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

You are perfectly familiar with the light that lies in woman's eyes. But if you don't keep it shining, bright illumination, dust and weariness are going to dim it considerably. Eyes, which are infinitely more important than teeth or hair, or skin, deserve to be given the same attention. Eyes must be healthy, first of all. Tired, weak eyes have no lustre. Crow's feet, disfiguring puffs, and dark halos will tell the truth about your age.

Four steps should be observed daily in the care of the eyes. Cleansing, exercise and nourishing of the delicate tissues around the eyes are important. In the morning your eyes will be full of sleep particles. At night they have the day's accumulation of dust. An eye bath should be part of your toilet schedule twice daily. A cleansing lotion especially prepared for this purpose is better than plain water, as water is seldom entirely free from germs or hard mineral matter. Your eyes will emerge with a new clearness and brilliance after their bath, due to the release of the secretions.

The skin around the eyes is constantly being creased and drawn into many little lines and wrinkles. When you smile and squint your eyes, this always happens. If these tissues are supplied and well-nourished, the lines will disappear. Therefore, a special cream which will nourish worn cells and impoverished tissues is advised. Eye exercise, in which you roll your eyes around in order to relieve the too-vigilant corner muscles, is an object, are very beneficial to your eyes. Constant focus puts too much pressure on some nerves, while others do not have enough. Eye gymnastics give them all a chance. A special astringent is necessary for the firming of the tissues around the eyes and over the lids. Certain very rare and healing balms are found in a special astringent.

STUDYING OUR HIGHWAYS
Hartford, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Tsun Tu Chang, of Kirm, Yunnan, China, representing the Manchurian government in America, is in Hartford for the purpose of making a study of highway construction and management in connection with a general study of transportation conditions in this country. Mr. Chang has been in this country two and one-half years and expects to return to China early in 1931 to make his reports. Mr. Chang was in Hartford all last week and expects to remain here another week or ten days. He had spent two months in New Haven studying the railroad transportation problems, the trolley system and motor buses of the Connecticut Company.

REPORTS GEM THEFT
Kansas City, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Morris Fetberg, 40-year-old diamond broker of Los Angeles, reported to police that a pouch containing diamonds valued at $40,000 had been hidden from him in a trunk in which he arrived here today from Wichita, Kan. He said the theft apparently occurred when he went to leave, leaving the coat in his berth. The pouch was in an inside pocket. "The jewels were not insured," he reported. Diamond wristlets valued at $30,000 which he carried in a trouser pocket, were not taken, he said.

YOUR CHILDREN

What are the greatest factors in training the child at home, during the period from one to six years of age?

Most people would put obedience first and so would I, but obedience is a result and not a primary factor in his handling. It comes if other things are right. So it is necessary to go back where we started and consider the methods the parent should use in getting that obedience and in bringing out a well-rounded child who is content, energetic, and not filled with poisonous fears and complexes.

First of all, regular habit of living regular untrampled hours for sleeping, eating, and eliminating are corner-stones of normalcy and emotional stability. This cannot be over-emphasized. Physical well-being invariably controls our mental state.

Removing Handicaps
Rested nerves, properly nourished tissues, clean cheerful surroundings are fertile ground for good behavior. They do not always mean good behavior of the fact remains that the child without them is handicapped from the start. It may surprise some parents when I put suggestibility next, but so firmly convinced am I of the fact that critical reference to a little child's misbehavior shapes him in his own estimation as a "no good" that I consider it the greatest menace to real discipline.

The child under four accepts unquestioningly everything he is told. He has not established his own relationship with the outside world. He is, technically speaking, disinterested in himself as an individual. It might make it clearer to you if this word is used in the sense in which he might regard a strange little boy. It is after four that he looks on people and objects with regard to his personal being. With all this in mind it is clearer to understand why he takes himself at our word. He has no reactions with which to deny what we say, or to vindicate himself. We say he is bad. Then he is bad. That strange little boy is bad. That settles it.

Retards Initiative
He suffers embarrassment and his effort has lost a plug, but there is no resentment. It is that strange little boy again who must be paid. His mother said so, so stupid he is. Convinced that he cannot do that thing, he won't try again. Besides, he doesn't enjoy criticism, so he will avoid it. How does all this affect obedience and discipline? By drying up self-respect, by getting the idea that he is bad, or wrong, or a nuisance, or a dummy. And a child without self-respect is the last one to try to obey or to please. If he decides he cannot please, what is the use of his trying to be good? The right type of suggestibility is praise on every possible occasion. Let him think you admire him and he will give you something to admire.

Fear is another factor, but it is a story in itself. The obedience that has fear behind it instead of love and respect does not go on as well as that which falls at the first breath, and the parent loses something that nothing can replace: his child's love and confidence.

BUSINESS PICKING UP
Detroit, Nov. 11.—(AP)—An optimistic view of the business outlook was expressed today by William J. McAneeny, president and general manager of the Hudson Motor Car Company, as 1,000 additional employees were called back to work at the company's plant. "Business is beginning to come back in a normal fashion," he said. "The depression has been nothing but fear chiefly and the returning confidence probably means better business." One thousand more employees are to return to work next week, bringing the total number engaged to 7,000.

HENRY LANG DIES
Montclair, N. J., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Henry Lang, 66, vice-president of the Ingersoll-Rand Corporation of New York and socially prominent here and in Nantucket, Mass., died today of a complication of illnesses. Mr. Lang, who was born in Martinsburg, West Virginia, had lived here for 40 years, making his summer home in Nantucket. He was a yachtsman and a collector of yacht models. His widow survives him.

Protect Woody Plants
Material placed on the surface soil gives protection to roots and crown of herbaceous and woody material. If tops of woody plants are subject to injury from winter and early spring weather, additional precautions need to be taken. Gardeners usually protect tops of plants with straw, evergreen boughs, or some fabric cover such as burlap. Here again protection is intended to prevent sudden changes in temperature rather than to keep out cold. The warm sun in early spring will draw up into woody plants prematurely and the night following may bring freezing temperature. This condition gives rise to bark splitting and flower bud injury. If sunlight is kept from the plants by covers, the temperature remains more uniform and damage is less likely. Support All Covers If a fabric is used to protect plants, erect a frame to support the material so that the cover does not touch the plants. This is essential for broadleaved evergreens. To prevent damage from wind and ice storms, support with stakes or guy-wires those plants that may be weighted down and broken. Precautions now will be considered well worth while when an inventory of winter injury is taken next spring.

HEALTH

BIG DROP IN VOLUME OF BLOOD CAUSES SERIOUS ILLS IN CHILD

Editors: This is the last of a series of four articles by Dr. Morris Fishbein on nutrition of the child. By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

While the facts that have been mentioned in the previous articles in this series relative to the appearance and development of the normal infant are usually apparent to any sensible father or mother, the average person is not able to make a judgment as to whether or not the content of the blood of the child are satisfactory. In order to make such a determination, it is necessary to examine the blood. The examination of the blood is a technical process, requiring special apparatus. It falls, however, information of the greatest importance in relationship to the health of the child.

How important the blood actually is for the health and development of the child is indicated by the fact that the total amount of the blood as well as the number of red cells and red coloring matter in the blood is higher at the time of birth than at any other period in life. A considerable destruction of excess blood occurs during the first week or two of life, and thereafter the volume is fairly well maintained. At the time of birth the volume of blood represents about 15 per cent of the body weight. After the first few weeks it falls to nine or 10 per cent of the body weight.

Just as soon as the blood volume is too greatly decreased, there is impairment of the circulation. The hands and feet become cold and obviously nourishment of the important tissues and organs does not go on as well as in the periods when the circulation is normal. The amount of red coloring matter in the blood, or hemoglobin, which is of particular importance to breathing, would be in the infant about 100 or 120 per cent for a normal adult. By the end of the third week this has usually fallen to 90 per cent and it slowly decreases for the next four or five months, so as to reach 75 or 80 per cent.

Most human beings have a hemoglobin content of 75 to 80 per cent as compared with the normal figure of 100 per cent. The amount of hemoglobin depends on the nature of the feeding and on other factors. If the child receives milk as the only substance in his diet, there is likely to be a progressive decrease in hemoglobin. When green vegetables, meat and eggs and a proper amount of iron are taken in the diet, there is not likely to be any further reduction in the amount of hemoglobin. As the child grows, the volume of blood increases and unless the hemoglobin develops at the same time, there will be a less amount proportionately. Neither human milk nor cow's milk contains a great deal of iron.

When these form the sole diet of the infant, the amount of iron that it gets is not sufficient to provide for the formation of the required amount of hemoglobin. As is now well known, liver contains a good deal of iron that is usually absorbed by the system. The liver of the child at birth contains a fair amount of iron and this is drawn up by the blood for the manufacture of hemoglobin. However, by the end of the first hour or five months the reserve supply of iron in the liver of the child is exhausted and unless an additional amount of iron is supplied by green vegetables, eggs, meat and

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colic, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting. Learn all its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.—Adv't.

AT PARSONS'S, HARTFORD

"The Street Singer"
Queenie Smith, heading a notable cast of singers, dancers and comedians, will come Monday night, Nov. 17, for three days with Wednesday matinee, to the Parsons's Theater, Hartford, in her latest London, New York and Chicago starring success, "The Street Singer."

This latest piece is heralded as a rollicking comedy of wealthy Americans pleasure hunting in Paris and more directly deals with a young man's experiment in which he tries to remodel a smart, wise-cracking street singer and flower girl of the cafes into a lady of the upper strata of society.

The story is embellished with one of the brightest musical scores in current musical comedy features the well known hit number "So Beats My Heart for You" which may be heard almost every night from any radio station.

Supporting Miss Smith are George Hassell, Harry K. Morton, Nick Long, Jr., Archie Leach, Helen LaVonne, Audrey Maple, Ed Garvie, Frank Lator and a fast and "riotous" dancing chorus.

NO CHANGE

The professor's wife was speaking. "I must say, James," she said, "that you do not look so well-dressed as you used to."

"That's strange," replied the professor, thoughtfully, "for they are the same clothes!"—The Humorist.

NEW GOVERNOR'S PLANS

Bridgeport, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Governor-elect Willbur L. Cross will meet and confer with Governor Doyle E. Carlton of Florida and Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York on his pending trip to Palm Beach, it was reported today, if arrangements now being made are completed.

Dean Cross will leave Nov. 17 with National Committeeman Archibald McNeil, State Chairman F. B. O'Sullivan and Town Chairman John A. Cornell of Bridgeport to spend about ten days at McNeil's home in Palm Beach.

Governor Carlton and his staff are expected to meet the Connecticut party at Jacksonville and escort them to Palm Beach. On the return trip, it is planned to call at Warm Springs, Ga., to visit Governor Roosevelt who is expected to be there at that time.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

ARMISTICE DAY

Tuesday, November 11, 1930, we celebrate the anniversary of the ending of the most destructive war of history. Twelve years have passed since the final gun was fired in the murderous conflict that cost millions of lives, billions of dollars and that brought untold misery. The original Armistice Day was marked by wild jubilation. People were so happy that the terrible war had ended that they fairly shouted aloud. The streets were thronged with men and women with faces of joy streaming down their faces. They had been delivered from the nightmare of war, with its daily casualty lists, its constant threat of death and destruction to loved ones. Twelve years ago the world knew that war was vicious, destructive and horrible. The boys under arms knew it better than any others. They fought because they wanted to end war forever. Armistice Day should be devoted to the ideals that were blest and died for. This means that every Armistice Day should be a day devoted to peace. Peace based upon democracy. Upon equality of rights. Upon Liberty and Justice for all. That is the way to pay reverent tribute to those who gave their lives for us in Europe. Let's pay reverent homage to those sleeping heroes whose deeds in '17 and '18 covered the pages of history with glory. Whose courage, unselfishness and love of country and flag promoted them to make the Supreme Sacrifice so that we, who remain might continue to breathe the air of Security, Freedom and Happiness. We can never repay them, but we CAN offer them a silent tribute today.

Super-Salesman—Now, this instrument turns blue if the liquor is bad—green if its good. Prospect—Sorry, but I'm color blind. Got anything with a gong on it?

A man bought a large mantel clock, one of the kinds that strikes the hours and half hours. One night he was awakened by the striking of the clock. Something had gone wrong with the mechanism, and the chimes instead of stopping with the usual 12 kept right on sounding. The farmer counted them, and got up to 102. Then he awakened his wife: "Mary, get up! It's later than I've ever known it to be before."

Bertha—Well, I know one woman who thinks her husband is perfectly wonderful. Beatrice—So you've just come from a wedding?

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The oranges that the Tinies got were quite refreshing 'cause 'twas hot. They sat down 'neath a shady tree and all began to eat. "I know the way 'they taste the best," wee Clowny said, to all the rest. "Just bite a tiny little hole and draw out juice that's sweet. "It's just like drinking orange juice. Gee, this sure tastes mighty good to me." Then Scouty said, "I guess I'll try that clever plan out, too." He promptly bit a big bite loose and started drawing on the juice. "This is a real smart thing to do." The Travel Man just laughed. Said he, "Well, that is not the way for me. I much prefer to peel my orange and eat it slice by slice. Of course, most any way, they taste real good and there is little waste. All eat them as you best see fit. They're bound to be real nice." In 'bout an hour they started out to look around and walk about.

The Travel Man said, "I've a plan that ought to please you all. I know where there are almond trees and we can travel there with ease. The walk will do us lots of good. We'll make some almonds fall." "I hope the man who owns them will be willing that we have that thrill," said Carpy. "I love almonds, but I've never seen them grow. Just lead the way. We'll follow you." The next thing that the Tinies knew, they stood right near the almond trees and Clowny shouted, "Oh! "They look just great!" The owner said, "If you want almonds go ahead and knock some down. I'll watch you." And right near the trees he sat. The knocking down was shortly done and all the bunch had heaps of fun. Wee Coppy made a whole lot fall by tossing up his hat.

William Prentice, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Prentice of East Middle Turnpike, arrived home from Texas yesterday after spending the past year and a half traveling about the country.

Mrs. Emil Dickenson of 482 Adams street, was admitted to the Memorial hospital Sunday and will undergo an operation later in the week.

Mrs. M. R. Walker of 25 Mather street will be hostess to the meeting of the Ladies Aid society of the North Methodist church tomorrow afternoon at 2:15. Important matters of business will come up for discussion and a full attendance is hoped for. Mrs. John Wittmann of Bolton will assist the hostess.

The Ladies Aid society and the Ladies Sewing Circle of the Lutheran Concordia church have decided to combine forces in a Christmas sale for the first week in December.

Loyal Circle of Kings Daughters will conduct its annual fall rummage sale Thursday beginning at 9 a. m. in the store in the State theater building adjoining the soda shop. Mrs. William Kean and Mrs. Harold Belcher are co-chairmen. The committee will make a collection on Wednesday and also be at the store to receive donations. The proceeds of the sale for King's Daughters work among the shut-ins and needy in the community.
