

TROLLEY RAMS PARKED TRUCK, DRIVER KILLED

Woonsocket Man Meets Instant Death Near Laurel Park—Mortman Bound Over On Manslaughter.

Mortman William Tighe of the Connecticut Company was bound over to the March term of the Hartford superior court under bonds of $1,000 by Judge Raymond A. Johnson on a manslaughter charge in Manchester Police Court this morning as a result of an accident near Laurel Park last night when William Marotte, 37, of 47 Arnold street, Woonsocket, R. I., met his death.

Doesn't Testify

Tighe who is 40 years old and who lives at 33 Bodwell street in Hartford, declined to take the stand in court this morning remarking that he had nothing to say now. The testimony introduced by Sergeant John McGlinn and three other persons who were with Marotte was not refuted and Judge Johnson said the case was a serious one and in view of the uncontradicted evidence, he was probable cause for ordering the case to a higher court. The bond was expected to be furnished during the day.

The Accident

Marotte was driving one of two trucks on route for Rhode Island. At the time of the accident he was in the act of making repairs. A Manchester-bound trolley car manned by Tighe struck the truck from the rear and Marotte was thrown under the heavy rear wheels of the truck and instantly killed.

Filing Generator

Marotte had stopped the five-ton truck he was driving to set up his generator which was not functioning properly. He stopped the truck close to the trolley tracks and apparently failed to realize that the rear end was too close to the tracks. Marotte was standing on the front running board bending over the engine working on the generator when the collision came.

Are Light Out

Mortman Tighe said that he left the Laurel Park switch at a moderate rate of speed and was progressing with his arc light off because of the approaching automobiles on the curve at the top of McLean hill. The small incandescent headlight was turned on. Tighe said he did not see the truck until he was within 30 or 40 feet of the machine. The moon, however, was shining brightly.

No Lights On Truck

Tighe said there were no lights to protect the truck. This was due to the fact that the battery in the battery was working over defective ignition and wiring at the time. Neither was there any reflector on the rear of the truck, according to Harold R. Germaine, claim adjuster for the Connecticut.

RICH PUBLISHER IS ASPHYXIATED

Courtland H. Young, of "Young's" Magazine Fame Is Found Dead In Room.

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Courtland H. Young, wealthy magazine publisher, was found dead today in his apartment in West Fifty-fifth street, apparently asphyxiated by smoke from a fire which swept the living room.

He was discovered lying on the floor of his bedroom, his head almost on the threshold of the living room door.

Mr. Young, who founded "Young's Magazine" in 1899 had published it ever since. "Breezy Stories," "Yellow Book" and "Brook Stories" were others in his list of publications. He was born in New Orleans in 1876.

For five years Young's marital difficulties were in the courts intermittently until in December, 1928, Vice Chancellor Lewis in Paterson, N. J., granted him a divorce decree from Dorothea R. Campbell, who was then 28.

In 1923 he had been sued for separation by his young wife on the allegation he went on long debauches and beat her. The next year he was arrested for disorderly conduct when his wife accused him of trying to take their three-year-old daughter away from her, but the charge was dismissed.

Litigation for the custody of the child followed. Young sued his wife for divorce charging misconduct and she countered with legal requests for separation, alleging cruelty and seduction.

MAYFLOWER POT IS DISCOVERED

Experts Say It Belonged to John Alden When He Started Housekeeping Among the Pilgrims.

Waterloo, N. Y., Dec. 3.—(AP)—The kettle which John Alden might have given Priscilla to start house keeping with is believed by antique authorities to have been located here.

Brought to America on the Mayflower and thought to have been used in preparing the first Thanksgiving feast, the blackened receptacle is in the possession of Mary Wright McLean, direct descendant of Sir Roger Conant, colonial governor of Massachusetts.

It now is known as the "Conant Kettle" after the family which acquired it from Alden, the original owner. It is without a handle and is otherwise unserviceable.

Roger Conant and his brothers came to America three years after the Mayflower landed at Plymouth Rock.

TIMOTHY LYNCH, ROCKVILLE, DIES

Prominent Citizen Succumbs Suddenly After Attending Annual City Meeting.

Special to The Herald.
Rockville, Dec. 3.—Timothy Lynch, one of Rockville's best known citizens, dropped dead at his home, 170 East Main street, at 9:45 last evening. Mr. Lynch had just returned from the annual city meeting and was about to tell his wife about action taken there, when he died of heart disease.

Death a Shock

Mr. Lynch's attendance at the city meeting and his death immediately afterwards, made the news of his demise a distinct shock to his many friends. Always prominent in city affairs, a man of unusually fine, and particularly reasonable judgment, it seemed scarcely possible that he had died so soon after taking an active part in the city's government. At the meeting earlier in the evening he had moved that the representa-

OVER 1,000 KILLED TO LIBERATE TWO

Red Army and Government Troops Battle In China To Free Two Missionaries.

Peiping, China, Dec. 3.—(AP)—There has been severe fighting during the last few days between the so-called First Red army and government troops which are attempting to secure release of the American missionary, Rev. Nelson and the Norwegian missionary, N. Tvedt. Both are held prisoners by Communists at Hawangan, in Hupes province. The government side admits 200 casualties but claims losses totaling 1,000 have been inflicted on the Reds. A telegram from the United States consular at Hankow says Reds have captured some of the emissaries sent to effect the release of the missionaries and are being held.

Suffers from Cold

A letter from Nelson, dated November 12, just received at the U. S. Legation describes the increasing hardships of his position. He still was wearing summer clothes despite the bitter cold and was being fed on a little rice and vegetables and only occasionally was given a piece of meat. The bandits were constantly threatening to kill him unless his ransom was paid.

A Chinese relief expedition brought the missionary, Mrs. L. O. Hayward and Miss E. Gomersall safely to Paotow when late this afternoon they rescued them from bandits who captured them last week as they came down the Yellow river on a raft.

Both Deer and Hunter Dead After Fight in the Woods

Milford, Pa., Dec. 3.—(AP)—A grim hunting season tragedy was constructed today by Pike county woodsmen who found the carcass of a deer and the body of a hunter lying together in the brush.

A hunting knife gripped in the hand and a gun at the side of the body of Welling De Groat of Matamoras, N. Y., were found about ten miles from here yesterday. His chest had been crushed.

REICH SLASHES ALL EXPENSES TO PAY DEBTS

Expected Opposition By German Fascists Fails To Materialize — Debate Postponed Until Tomorrow.

Berlin, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The German Reichstag met today for the first time since last October, listened to the finance minister's outline of financial reforms which will slash the nation's expenditures by $345,000,000 a year, and adjourned debate on this all-important issue until tomorrow.

It was a quiet session while Finance Minister Hermann Dietrich spoke for an hour about the drastic measures for economy contained in Chancellor Bruening's emergency decree issued yesterday. He told them what the nation already knows—that Germany must resolve herself to a life of Spartan simplicity for the next three years so that she can climb out of debt.

Taxes Boosted

Taxes have been boosted to the very limit, Dietrich said, and there is no other way out of the financial woods except through the most rigid economy. Government salaries must be slashed, administrative appropriations must be cut to the bone, unwieldy governmental agencies must be reorganized on a more efficient basis, and the program of economy must extend not only throughout the national government but also to every state and community.

Every measure in the budget, which totals $2,458,010,000, has been so constructed as not to conflict with the constitution, said Dietrich, and he reminded a Reichstag which contains an important refractory element, that its support of emergency measures would have a salutary effect on industry and finance, making things easier for German merchants who work in world markets.

His Address

In his appeal for approval of the budget Finance Minister Dietrich said: "When the government's financial and economic plan was made public, the government's determination was revealed in it that the German house must be set in order to make it possible for us to remain debt-free abroad, despite disturbances at home. By approving this budget our credit will be permanently established. The Reich faces no acute danger. Help us to overcome these last worries and the whole-some affects upon private industry will also be noticeable."

Dietrich expressed regret that the government was compelled to resort to an emergency decree but said that conditions made this inevitable. His parting shot at the Reichstag was: "The danger exists that the authority of a Parliament in which no large parties which merely say 'no' and other places—even as far westward to Chicago and Kansas City and other places—even as far as Colorado. Thousands will move to the vast markets of New York, Philadelphia, the New Jersey cities and the population centers of New England, itself."

REPORT ON PRISON BEFORE CHRISTMAS

Public Hearings End and Governor's Board Is Now Studying Mass of Evidence

Wethersfield, Dec. 3.—(AP)—With its public hearings concluded the governor's committee inquiring into the administration of the Connecticut State Prison at Wethersfield today faced the task of wading through a mass of evidence adduced during the past two weeks from prison officials, welfare workers and critics of the prison administration.

Upon this evidence and upon reports which will be submitted to it by three experts named to aid in the investigation, the committee will base its report to Governor John H. Trumbull. Homer S. Cummings.

Bang!—And Senate's Vacation Ends

A few seconds after this picture was taken—at the stroke of noon—Vice President Curtis' gavel descended and the United States Senate was in session again after five months' recess. Newly elected senators were escorted to the Vice President's desk and sworn in while crowded galleries watched the nation's legislative machinery go into motion.

OVER SIX MILLION TREES ARE CUT FOR CHRISTMAS

Start Today For All Points In the Nation — Half Million Less Than Last Year; Cutting Does Not Destroy the Forests.

Boston, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Six million, five hundred thousand trees, fir and spruces from New England's hills, have begun their Christmas trek to the homes of a nation.

For many weeks past, the staccato song of the axe has rung through the aisles of the forests. Then came the procession of the trees to the shipping terminals—the sorting, bunding, and inspection. All told, the crop this year is somewhat smaller than that of 1930, according to estimates of the Boston and Kansas railroad, for more than 7,000,000 trees were shipped last year.

The little trees will travel far with their message of Christmas, some will go as far south as New Orleans and Dallas, some will go westward to Chicago and Kansas City and other places—even as far as Colorado. Thousands will move to the vast markets of New York, Philadelphia, the New Jersey cities and the population centers of New England, itself.

Cooperative Marketing

One lot of 700,000 trees, an experiment in cooperative marketing in the northernmost county of New Hampshire, are carrying greeting tags explaining the cutting of Christmas trees is not necessarily destructive to forests. "Greetings from the White Mountains," reads each tag. "This tree brings a Christmas message from the great outdoors. Its cutting was not destructive, but gave room for neighboring trees to grow faster and better."

Many of the trees are cut from the edges of woodland where the trees are encroaching upon cleared pasture-land. The market, in these instances, is the owner's return for his labor in keeping his pastures clear.

Forestation experts have pointed out that if the cutting in the forests be well supervised and wisely done, damage will not result. With care in cutting, they say, most coniferous sections will furnish an endless supply of trees for Christmas decorative purposes.

NYE TO DELVE FURTHER INTO P. A. PRIMARIES

Chairman of Senate Committee Says He Has Uncovered $272,312 Spent For Davis-Brown Ticket.

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Chairman Nye of the Senate campaign fund committee said today his committee has uncovered expenditures of $272,312 for the Davis-Brown primary ticket in Pennsylvania over the $368,962 reported to the committee last May.

Nye read the total of $641,274 expenditures in concluding a session of his committee to delve further into reports of discrepancy in the accounting of campaign funds spent for the ticket headed by Senator Davis and Francis Shunk Brown, gubernatorial candidate.

A total of $19,500, he said, represented funds reported by county campaign treasurers as having been received from the Davis-Brown committee headed by Samuel Vaucian, but for which no accounting had been made by the latter in reports either to the secretary of the committee or to the Nye committee.

Made No Reports

Nye also read from records showing more than 25 county campaign treasurers had made no reports of campaign expenses. He pointed out, however, that under the state law they are not required to report unless $50 or more was spent.

At the outset of today's session of the Senate, Senator Black, Democrat, Alabama, read without comment the resolution adopted by the Senate in seating Senator Newberry, of Michigan, eight years ago with "severe censure" for the expenditures of $195,000 in his campaign.

HEARING BEGINS

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—With James J. Davis seated as junior Senator from Pennsylvania over its protest, the Senate campaign funds committee today resumed its trial of expenditures for the Davis-Brown Republican ticket in last May's primaries.

Chairman Nye reported to the Senate yesterday his committee had records of $368,962 having been spent for Davis and his gubernatorial running mate, Francis Shunk Brown, but from recently disclosed evidence it was the committee's view the total would go well over $600,000.

The Senate ignored this, however, and seated Davis after rejecting 58 to 27 a resolution by Nye to refer the former labor secretary's credentials to the campaign funds committee.

After the vote, Nye predicted further examination would disclose Davis-Brown expenditures in excess of a million dollars.

The first witness, George F. Weaver, of Philadelphia, testified on a $74,000 claim for an unpaid printing bill against the Davis-Brown organization.

Estimating $24,000 was spent in Davis' interests, he said the Senator had denied authorizing any such expenditures but expressed a willingness to contribute toward payment of the bill equal to an amount subscribed by other candidates in the primary.

When pressed by a collection agency to get in touch with the candidates, it was shown in the correspondence, Davis disclaimed any liability.

William R. Douglas, of Camp Hill, Pa., secretary to Walter S. Vane, and organizer for Brown, testified under questioning that expenditures would have been as great in the Pennsylvania primary if Davis had been off the ticket. He added the cost probably would have been the same if Davis had been the only one on the ticket.

"It's just the cost of conducting an election machine," he said.

A Fair Start

Senator Dale of Vermont, Republican member of the committee, asked if $500,000 would be a "fair" start for a campaign chest in Pennsylvania.

"Very fair," Douglas replied.

"How much of that would be allotted for Davis, assuming that that was the goal set?" Nye asked.

"That's a hard matter," Douglas replied, "It's unfair to charge most to him. Mr. Davis was a popular candidate."

Douglas said he was not associated with Samuel Vaucian, treasurer of one of the campaign committees, but collected funds for the committee.

WHAT, NO EMPLOYMENT? HOW ABOUT THESE JOBS?

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Jobs are going begging in the Bureau of Internal Revenue. They pay $8,800 at the beginning and there are 24 vacancies, but only lawyers need apply, and good ones at that.

In last year's Treasury supply bill funds were advanced for the employment of 25 additional attorneys by the general counsel of the bureau. Only one man has been added.

PRESIDENT NAMES DOAK FOR CABINET

Heads List of Over 200 Nominations Sent To the Senate—Mexican Envoy.

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The name of William N. Doak of Virginia to be Secretary of Labor today headed the list of more than 200 nominations which President Hoover sent to the Senate.

J. Reuben Clark of Utah, was named ambassador to Mexico; Hoffman Philip of New York was selected to represent the United States in Norway; Nicholas Roosevelt of New York to be minister to Hungary, and J. Butler Wright of Wyoming to be minister to Uruguay.

D. J. Lomen was named district judge for the District of Alaska.

Other nominations were to be minister resident and consul general to Liberia, Charles E. Mitchell of West Virginia; to be member of the Federal Reserve Board, Eugene Meyer of New York.

Samuel E. Winslow was reappointed a member of the Board of Mediation.

Charles D. Mahaffie, who has been serving under a recess appointment, was nominated to the Interstate Commerce Commission and Frank McManamy, present chairman of the commission was reappointed.

Farm Loan Board

Floyd R. Harrison was reappointed to the Federal Farm Loan Board. David Burnet of Ohio was nominated commissioner of internal revenue and Harry J. Anslinger of Pennsylvania, was selected to be commissioner of narcotics.

James W. Clift, of Michigan was named examiner in chief of the United States patent office.

Lawrence A. Glenn of Illinois and Lieut. Colonel George E. Spaulding were named members of the Mississippi river commission. Douglas MacArthur was named general with holding the office of chief of staff of the Army.

Henry P. Fletcher of Pennsylvania, Thomas Page of Virginia, John Lee Coulter of North Dakota, Alfred P. Dennis of Maryland, Edgar B. Crossart of Illinois, and Lincoln Dix of Indiana were nominated to be members of the United States Tariff Commission.

James W. Gilson was nominated for postmaster at Hartford, Conn.

Asked if he would embark while the ship remained in port the professor emphatically answered "no." Frau Einstein, however, intervened and said, "of course we will not at-

U. S. PROBLEMS SHOVE ASIDE WORLD COURT

Senate Working For Postponement For a Year of This Controversial Issue; Other Issues Important.

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Senate leaders see no chance for disposition of the controversial World Court issue at this session as they await the protocol from President Hoover.

Negotiations are under way looking to a postponement of the question by the foreign relations committee until a year hence, although Chairman Borah has said he would refuse to accept responsibility for such a delay.

"I most certainly am opposed to injecting the World Court into this short session," Senator Watson, the Republican leader, reiterated today.

Domestic Problems

"Above all else I want to dispose of the emergency domestic problems confronting us and do this without the necessity of an extra session in the spring. We can't complete that program and take up the World Court too."

The foreign relations committee met in regular session today. Mr. Hoover had not sent up the protocol and it therefore received no consideration.

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader and Swanson, of Virginia, ranking Democrat on the foreign relations committee, likewise say they see little opportunity for action on the World Court at this session. Swanson favors its postponement.

FEDERAL STATUTE FOILS LAND RUSH

Oklahoma Men Stake Out Homestead Claim On Seven Million Dollar Plot of Land.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Dec. 3.—(AP)—The homesteading urge of 1930 model pioneers cooled today after Rock Island railroad employees had removed their claim stakes from a $7,000,000 plot of ground in the Oklahoma City business section.

Led by Sam Barton, 67-year-old veteran of the land rush of 1889, a small group staked claims yesterday after the Rock Island had removed its down-town passenger station and tracks as a part of a new Union station program.

Barton claimed the land reverted to the government with its abandonment for railroad purposes and therefore was open for homesteading.

The arbor of Paul Power, justice of the peace, who said he had been asked to represent the claim stakers as attorney, warned with his discovery of a Federal statute of 1922, which, he said, provides that a government grant land abandoned by a railroad reverts to the municipality.

REPORT DISAGREEMENT

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—House and Senate conferees on Muscle Shoals legislation virtually agreed today to report a disagreement and sent the Senate bill for government operation to the House for a vote.

The Senate conferees rejected all proposals by the House delegation to compromise between the Senate and the House bills, the latter of which calls for private operations. Chairman McNary, of the Senate conferees, proposed the conference report a disagreement. He said the three House members present agreed to the proposal tentatively but did not want to agree finally until they could confer with their two missing colleagues.

CANTOR SELLING OUT

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Eddie Cantor, who in "1930 A. C." (after crash) dictated the gag, "Brother, I wasn't in the market; I was under it," today offered for sale all his realty holdings in and about New York.

But the only reason he's selling out, the comedian said, is that he's moving to Hollywood to devote himself to making talking pictures.

Included in his new house at Great Neck, Long Island, which he called "The Cantor Home for Girls"—He and Mrs. Cantor have six.

Also for sale are 100,000 square feet of lots at Great Neck and a Brooklyn apartment house.

TREASURY BALANCE

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for December 1 were $5,056,512.35; expenditures, $6,776,591.45; balance, $82,947,599.45.

DECLARES JUDGES IN CITY ILLEGAL

New Haven Newspaper Says That It Has Made a Startling Discovery.

New Haven, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The New Haven Register says that a "discovery" has been made that judges of the New Haven City court are "apparently improperly appointed and that the governor, under the law, has no part in the appointments to these posts."

After quoting the constitution and statute law applicable to judges, the Register said the 1917 amendment to the New Haven charter which changed appointment of the judges from the General Assembly to the governor, the latter's appointees to be confirmed by the General Assembly, is not legally effective.

MAKER OF STILL GETS STIFF FINE

Judge Edwin S. Thomas in the U. S. District Court here today, Judge Thomas granted the motion to suppress evidence in the case of A. J. Cutler, alleged bootlegger to Yale students in New Haven who was arrested by Federal agents in October. The motion to suppress was requested by Attorney Julius Narsetz on the ground that the search and seizure was illegal.

ACTRESS MURDERED

Los Angeles, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Police here have assembled evidence indicating Mrs. Thelma Mells, Swedish vaudeville actress, missing since April, 1928, was murdered on the desert near Hesperia, Cal. Detectives said Mrs. Mells quarreled with her husband and left their car near Phoenix, Ariz., as they were driving across the desert from Los Angeles.

SENATE ASKS REPORT

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Senate today adopted without debate a resolution by Senator Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, requesting President Hoover to submit the report of his unemployment commission, provided it is not "incompatible with public interest."

DEATHS

HENRY W. GOTTSCHALK DEAD IN ROCHESTER

Former Local Nurseryman Passes Away Yesterday at the Home of His Mother.

Henry W. Gottschalk, for 15 years a resident of Manchester, died of a complication of diseases at the home of his mother, Mrs. James Gottschalk, 99 Evergreen street, Rochester, N. Y., at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. As a resident of this town

Henry W. Gottschalk (The above photograph of Mr. Gottschalk was taken when he joined the C. R. Burr Company 15 years ago.)

Mr. Gottschalk was employed by C. R. Burr and C. E. Wilson, local nurserymen as a salesman, leaving Manchester to accept a position with the Lovett Nurseries in Red Bank, N. J., until his health failed a month ago.

Besides his mother Mr. Gottschalk leaves his wife, Jane, who is the owner of a home on Henry street, this town.
The deceased was a member of the Elks, Masons, the Manchester City Club, and of the Connecticut Valley Nurserymen's Association.

BUCKLAND CLUB'S SALE ON FRIDAY

Parent - Teachers Association, Active Group, To Hold Annual Affair This Week.

Friday evening is the date set for the annual Christmas sale and program of the Buckland Parent-Teacher association, the most active organization of its kind within the confines of Manchester. This club of parents and teachers is ever up and doing something for the benefit of the school children and the people of the Seventh District.

The coming sale will begin in the assembly hall at 7 o'clock. There will be booths for the sale of home made food, fancy gift goods, aprons and towels and last but by no means least a country store where all sorts of food staples, fruits and vegetables will be disposed of to swell the funds. Admission will be free.

At 8:30 dancing will be enjoyed to music by Cass's orchestra, and many of the old-fashioned dances will be interspersed with modern, with a prompter to guide the dancers through the Paul Jones and other old favorites.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The stock market slowly retreated today, as an ooze of molasses-like liquidation appeared in its path.
The cautious advance of the past three days has been too unimpressive to attract a following, and President Hoover's report that conditions did not warrant continuation of the 1 per cent income tax reduction was an adverse psychological factor, although Wall Street bankers have traditionally favored a conservative fiscal policy.

NOON STOCKS

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Share prices drifted uncertainly in another sluggish session of the Stock Market today.
Prices followed their recent course, sagging during the early trading but making substantial recovery before midday. Such stocks as U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical, Washington Electric Air Reduction and Macy made fairly complete recovery after losing a point or so.

necticut Company, who worked all night investigating the accident. Another truck figured in the case. Both were owned by the Laramee Transit Company which operates in Fall River, New Bedford, Providence and other places in that locality. The two trucks were empty and on their way back to Rhode Island. One truck, leading the one struck, stopped to tell Marcotte his lights were bad. Marcotte pulled up second in line to work on his generator.

Skull Crushed The collision knocked Marcotte off the running board and the right rear wheel passed over the man's neck and part of his head. Death was instantaneous and was due to a crushed skull. The impact drove the rear truck into the one in front of it but the damage was much greater to the trolley car which was disrupted as far back as the first cross seat. Motorman Tighe barely escaped injury. There were six passengers in the trolley at the time. It was due at the south end terminus here at 11:15. The accident occurred at 11 o'clock, the location being just west of the top of McLean hill near the first tobacco shed or about 400 feet east of the Laurel Park switch.

Pushed Ahead In court this morning, Sergeant McGinn brought out the fact that there was some question as to whether or not the arc light of the trolley car was on before the accident. He quoted Tighe as first saying "Yes" and then "No." Pelouin, Goulet and Enright testified that the rear truck was rammed ahead half its length into the other truck which was shoved considerable distance further. They said the brakes of the truck first hit the car at the time which would tend to prove that the trolley car was traveling at a fast rate of speed.

Dead Man's Family Marcotte is married and has two children. The body was returned to Woonsocket today where the funeral will be held. Other Truck Drivers Medical Examiner Dr. William R. Tinker said Marcotte died from a crushed skull but his neck was broken as well. John Enright of North Main street was sitting on the front seat of the truck at the time. The occupants of the other truck which was rammed from the rear by the truck hit by the trolley were Joseph Pelouin of Blackstone, Mass., and Walter Goulet of Woonsocket.

TIMOTHY LYNCH, ROCKVILLE, DIES

tives of the city petition the state to put Union and East Main streets on the state highway system. His motion was unanimously carried.

Never Office Holder Although so active in city affairs Mr. Lynch had never held public office. He was a candidate for representative in the state election last month but was defeated. He made an excellent run, however. Though a staunch Democrat his opinions were highly respected by leaders of all the political parties.

79 Years Old Mr. Lynch was born in Ireland on December 24, 1851. He came to this country in March, 1870, being at first employed as a printer in the Cambridge Press, Cambridge, Mass. Later he moved to Hockanum, this state, where he worked in the building of the Connecticut Western railroad through Satan's Kingdom. Then he moved to Stafford where he was employed as a weaver with the Rhode Island Worsted Company. There he married Miss Ellen Bowler, on May 29, 1877.

Recently Retired Almost immediately after his marriage Mr. Lynch and his wife came to Rockville where he was employed as a weaver in the Rock mill and later in the Hockanum Mills. He remained with the Hockanum Mills Company until five years ago when he was retired. On May 29, 1927, Mr. and Mrs. Lynch observed their Golden Wedding anniversary.

Funeral The funeral services will be held Friday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Bernard's church and burial will be in St. Bernard's cemetery.

START BALCH & BROWN BUILDING REPAIRS

Corner To Be Squared So That More Space Will Be Available In Murphy Drug Store.

The contract for alterations to the Balch and Brown block at the north end has been awarded to the Manchester Construction Company and work was started this morning. The job is estimated to require 13 working days.

The plan is to square out the building which at present sets back some thirty inches on the Murphy drug store frontage. The corner, now round, will be squared out, thus giving more interior room, and leaving room for a larger window on the north side. This extension will be built up only one story at present but eventually will continue to the present height of the building which is three stories. Changes are also to be made in the window and doorways of the Karl A. Keller store.

CHRISTMAS EFFECTS AT WEST SIDE DANCE

The Christmas spirit will prevail in the decorations at the West Side Rec. tonight for the dance given by the West Side Club for the basketball fund. Christmas bells and streamers will be used in an appropriate manner. A large crowd is expected and a good time should be had by all who attend if the last party is any criterion.

Harry White and a corps of assistants are busily engaged making all arrangements for a real old fashioned get together.

NEW G. O. P. LEADER

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—W. Kingsland Macy of Bayshore, Long Island, was elected chairman of the New York Republican state committee today, succeeding William J. Maier.

Macy is 40 and a comparative newcomer in state politics. Wealthy by inheritance, he never has sought political office for himself. He came into state political prominence in 1928 as one of the first county leaders to take a stand for Hoover for president.

The new Republican state chairman has been a frequent critic of the Democratic administration and also of leaders in his own party, whom he has charged with inefficiency. He stands for state party reorganization. He has never committed himself of the prohibition issue.

INFORMER NAMES COPS IN COURTROOM

testimony as police who participated, he said, in the arrest on immorality charges of women who were turned over to lawyers and bondsmen and mulcted out of money for fees. He said many of the arrested women were innocent.

Acuna was the first to testify today at the resumption of open hearings into the city courts.

First Case The first case Kresel asked about was that of Mary Palmer and Elizabeth Wilson, who Acuna said had been falsely arrested. He named the arresting officers, John F. McHugh and William O'Connor.

Mary Palmer testified she and her cousin, Elizabeth Wilson, paid $375 to obtain their release from "dramed" charges against them. "She said $500 was paid to a bondsman named Harry Katz, who told her the money was 'to take care of everybody,' including 'the cops.'"

After her testimony Kresel read a transcript of the record from Magistrate Court in an attempt to show that Officer O'Connor testified in such a way as to excuse the arrest but to assure an acquittal.

Same Procedure The same procedure was followed in the case of Margie Wharton and Winifred Grayson, Acuna returning to the stand to read their testimony about their arrests. He said they were arrested with no evidence.

Winifred Grayson took the stand and declared she and Miss Wharton were in an apartment where they were told a jeweler was repairing Miss Grayson's wrist watch.

She said just as they were about to enter the apartment with two men, six policemen burst into the building and began slapping the women. She said she asked one of the officers "what's it all about?" and was told, "don't be so dumb!"

Hit By Cop One of the officers seized her purse, she said, and told her he would keep it for the jewelry in it. She protested and was struck again, she testified. She declared she pushed down the stairs, thrown into an automobile and "made love to" on a drive down Fifth avenue and through Central Park, she asserted.

She said she rebuffed the officers and was locked up, as was her cousin. She declared she was not allowed to telephone to her family, though a bondsman obtained her mother's name and collected $50.

OFFICIAL HOSTESS Hartford, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Alice Sanderson Cross of New Haven, daughter-in-law of Governor-elect Wilbur L. Cross, will be the latter's official hostess at the inauguration ceremonies on January 7, the governor-elect announced today. Mrs. Cross is the wife of Wilbur L. Cross, Jr., and is the daughter of the late Robert L. Sanderson, professor of French at Harvard University and later at Yale University.

POLICE CONCERT TO AID CHARITY

Will Give 75 Per Cent of Proceeds Towards Needy; Schendel Chairman.

At a meeting of the Manchester Police Mutual Benefit Association held last night at police headquarters it was voted to conduct a benefit concert in the State theater as has been the custom the past few years but 75 per cent of the proceeds will be given to local charities. The board of police commissioners conferred with the policemen and it was the suggestion of the commissioners that the concert be suspended this year because of the need of money for charitable purposes. The policemen were not in favor of giving up their annual concert which have come to be an institution in town although they were willing to give a share of the receipts to charity. As a result the compromise of 75 per cent for charity was reached. The police benefit fund is in excellent condition at present and there have been no serious drains upon its treasury lately.

No definite date for the annual concert was set but it will be held the first part of February. The following committee was named to be in charge: Captain Herman O. Schendel, chairman; Patrolmen Arthur Seymour, Rudolph Wirtala, John Crockett and Michael Fitzgerald.

NATIONAL DEFENSE BUDGET REDUCED

President Recommends Cut of 34 Millions—U. S. To Spend About $690,000,000.

Washington, Dec. 3—(AP)—The United States will spend $690,000,000 for national defense in the next fiscal year, if Congress adheres to the budget estimates forwarded today by President Hoover.

This is nearly $34,000,000 less than defense appropriations for the current year, but the contemplated use in 1932 of unexpended balances would almost offset the decrease.

The President asked $28,300,000 for construction of naval vessels next year, a decrease of $21,000,000. But utilization of a large unexpended balance resulting from delay in building pending negotiation of the London treaty would bring the 1932 construction total to $51,600,000.

These funds would be used to carry forward on the aircraft carrier and several of the light cruisers carrying 8-inch guns authorized in 1929, and for work on the incomplete light cruisers and submarines being constructed under prior authorizations.

New Construction
The construction of those vessels now authorized which are permitted by the London treaty should now go forward without delay, the President said.

He noted that the government could build three more 8-inch gun cruisers by 1935, under the London pact, if it desired, but that the remaining five under the 1929 fifteen-ship program would have to carry guns of less than 8-inch caliber.

As estimated 1932 expenditure of nearly $30,000,000 for army and navy aviation was listed. This contemplates the procurement of a minimum of 787 airplanes, engines, and accessories.

A total of 392 planes would go to the army, leaving a possible shortage of only 66 in the authorized total of 1,048. The National Guard now has its full complement of 182 planes.

The naval aviation expansion program authorized by Congress and calling for 1,000 planes and two rigid airships will be completed this fiscal year, as far as the planes are concerned. The estimates therefore provided only for procurement of 277 naval replacement planes and $1,675,000 for the completion of one airship and construction of the other.

LIFE OF MOTHER JONES IS A THRILLING STORY

Mother Jones

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here is the first of three stories on the remarkable career of Mother Jones, famous labor organizer, who, at the advanced age of 100 years, died the other day.

By BRUCE CANTON
Staff Writer for NEA Service and The Herald

She was a white-haired old lady with a wrinkled face but she was at all refined or lady-like. She was rather profane, and she had been in a great many jails, but she was one of the greatest fighters that ever came out of Ireland; and she had a terrible temper which she invariably lost whenever she saw any fellow human being getting mistreated by power who had more money and power than was good for them; and, all in all, she was a great thorn in the side of a good many American industrialists for something like three-quarters of a century.

That was Mother Jones in her prime—the woman who was born Mary Harris in Ireland a century ago, and who came over to America and fought the workingman's fight for as many long, turbulent years as her old bones would carry her around.

Throughout most of her active life Mother Jones was considered by all of those prosperous and substantial citizens whose opinions really mattered—to be a public nuisance, an unbalanced old soul and an obnoxious agitator. But toward the last public opinion changed. The indomitable old lady quit the wars and became a public character, honored even by those who had fought her hardest.

From John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and others she got telegrams on her birthday. She became "respectable".

Changed Public Opinion
But it wasn't Mother Jones who had changed. It was public opinion. Her lifetime of fighting had had its effects. The workingman these days gets a far better break than he did when Mother Jones first entered the arena; and a part of this improvement, at least, is due to Mother Jones herself; to Mother Jones, who used to tell strikers, "Fight like hell until you go to heaven!" and who put her hand over the muzzle of a national guardsman's machine gun once to keep a group of miners from being shot down.

Mother Jones was born a century ago. One of her first memories date back to the time when she was four years old. Her detachment of constabulary came rooting through her little Irish town one night, looking for her father, Richard Harris, a revolutionary agitator. They found occasion to use their bayonets freely in the hunt, and little Mary Harris saw some things that are not good for children's eyes; and she never in her life, forgot them.

Father Flees to America
Her father escaped to America, and on the next boat Mary Harris and her mother followed him. As she grew up she went through grade and high schools and as a starter, became a teacher in a convent in Monroe, Mich.—strange beginning for a Mother Jones! Then she went to Chicago and opened a dressmaking establishment. After a few years she moved again, this time to Memphis, Tenn. There she married George Jones, an iron mold-maker whose name she was to bear the rest of her life.

Her husband served in the Confederate army during the Civil War. After peace came they were reunited in Memphis, and there they lived quietly until 1867, when a yellow fever epidemic struck the city. One by one, their four children fell victims and died. The last had hardly been buried when Jones himself sickened and died. Mother Jones we can call her that from now on—went to work among the other sufferers of the epidemic, nursing them and doing what relief work she could.

Then Mother Jones went to Chicago, where she opened another dressmaking shop. This lasted until the great fire of 1871, when her shop was destroyed. Once again she was left at a loose end.

Was a Born "Firebrand"
Mother Jones had been, one might say, born to the life of a firebrand agitator. Her earliest recollection was of soldiers hunting her father, with fixed bayonets. As a little girl, she had listened for hours while her father talked of the age-long fight for human freedom, the necessity for striking at oppression wherever it was found. Then there had been her husband—an ardent union man, full of the idea that workingmen must always stick together. It was inevitable that she should get into exactly the kind of career that was eventually hers.

The seventies were a period that made agitators anyway. American industrialism was establishing itself as a prodigious power. Mines, factories and railroads were under-going enormous expansion. The men who owned them recognized no obligation to the men who worked for them. Labor was cheap, due to the huge flood of immigration, and every business man in the country wanted it to stay that way. Henry Ford had not yet promulgated the revolutionary theory that it was to the employer's interest to pay high wages instead of low wages. The American working-man in those days was getting the short end of everything.

Becomes Labor Organizer
So Mother Jones became a labor agitator and organizer, right at the time when American labor needed courageous fighters of her type. She traveled back and forth across the country, organizing unions striking the enthusiasm of striking workers. She was in Chicago at the time of the great Haymarket bomb outrage, when some anarchist tossed a bomb and killed several policemen; she saw the crime pinned on labor leaders who had been agitating for an eight-hour day, saw the leaders hanged and saw the others sent to prison for long terms. It was there, perhaps, that she first used one of her favorite slogans—"Pray for the dead, and fight like hell for the living!"

In the late eighties there was a coal mine strike in Arnot, Pa., and Mother Jones went down to take a working-man in those days was getting the short end of everything.

Mother Jones went there and found that many little children were tramping in the mills. Working conditions were atrocious. The machinery lacked the proper safeguards. Many children had lost fingers, thumbs or whole hands while on the job.

Mother Jones marched a dozen or more of these maimed children in Philadelphia and shouted that the Philadelphia mansions were built "on the broken bones and quivering hearts of little children."

Legislature Changes Law
"Here's a text book on economics," she cried. "He gets three dollars a week and his sister, who is 14, gets six. They work 10 hours a day in all the strikers and armed them with mops, brooms and dishpan water. She drew them up about the mine shaft, at the top of a hill, and waited for the battle.

A deputy sheriff led the strike-breakers up the hill. Instantly Mother Jones' army began to hammer its dishpans, making a tremendous clamor. The deputy sheriff tapped her on the shoulder.

"Don't frighten the mules!" he cried.

Mother Jones waacked him vigorously over the head with her dishpan, and he fell into a creek.

"To hell with the mules, and you too!" was her rejoinder.

Dishpans Stampede Mules
The mules took fright at the racket, and stampeded. Down the hill they went, pell-mell; and presently the strike breakers were running after them, with the dishpan army in full pursuit. The strikebreakers did not come back, and later the strike was won.

But not many of Mother Jones' exploits had a humorous side. Often she fought in scenes of tragedy instead of comedy. There was for instance, the time of the textile strike at Kensington, Pa.

TWO MEXICANS KILLED BY PATROL AT BORDER

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 3—(AP)—Two unidentified Mexicans were slain and six companions were routed in a gun fight along the international border last night with three U. S. immigration border patrolmen they attempted to trap.

Three patrolmen attracted to Cordova Island, the "no man's land" between El Paso and Mexico, narrowly escaped death when the Mexicans began shooting. The patrolmen had been following the band, suspecting them of being aliens.

Seeking cover on American soil, the patrolmen returned. The five Members of the Mexican band in ambush in a thicket of willows gave battle for several minutes, then fled, leaving two men dead on the American side of the monument marking the boundary. None of the patrolmen was wounded.

POLICE NOW CHARGED WITH TICKET GRAFTING

New York, Dec. 3—(AP)—Information that police have reaped $365,000 annually in graft from ticket speculators has been received by Isador Kresel, counsel at an inquiry into Magistrates Courts.

Representatives of three agencies have told Kresel that patrolmen collected $5 a day from some 200 speculators for the privilege of having their wares in front of theaters and other amusement places.

In spite of this, Kresel heard, many speculators were arrested and their tickets confiscated. Usually the tickets went to the clerks of the courts in which the prisoners were arraigned in return for discharges.

He was told, H. Bushel, a lawyer and former magistrate, has been questioned by Kresel relative to a charge that he had received a $7,000 fee from a "fence" some years ago. The payer, charged with receiving stolen goods, subsequently was freed in Magistrates Court.

A LETTER TO MY WIFE

Dear Helpmate:—

I am about to write on a very delicate subject. It concerns the Christmas gift you are going to select for me.

I would not be cruel enough to refer to last year's mistakes, but I am determined to help you avoid a repetition of them.

What, you ask, is the key to the situation? I will tell you as briefly as possible.

My shirt size is 15½, my hosiery size 10½, and I wear a medium pajama. I am very fond of dark red and golden brown, which are exactly the colors of some dressing gowns I recently noted at Williams.

That by the way, is my favorite store. I need say no more.

Lovingly,
Your Husband,
Jim.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3.

necessary commitments distinctly do not apply to bona fide relief and employment measures. Without in any way going counter to the spirit of the message Congress can go as far as it likes.

This message is no clarion call, no magical incantation likely to restore prosperity in a week. But if it means anything it means that the one big job before Congress is to foster employment and relief measures. And when you come to think of it what sort of advice could be any better than that?

NEW DEAL SOON

It is highly probable that nothing contributed more to the reduction of the Republican vote in Connecticut at the recent election, and consequently to the election of a Democratic governor, than the antics of Deputy Attorney-General Averill in the Levitt-Public Utilities Commission case.

In another month Connecticut will have a new attorney-general. It is sincerely to be hoped that he will take an entirely different attitude toward this matter and all other matters where equality before the law is concerned.

The law directs that under the initiative of the people the Public Utilities Commission shall be put upon trial as to its stewardship. Mr. Averill has not obeyed that law. He has employed his time and the state's money in endeavoring to find some way of dodging the law. We doubt if any act of any public official in this state in the lifetime of the oldest citizen has created so much and such deep resentment. That resentment found expression at the polls.

We don't believe Attorney-General Burrows will follow this line of conduct. He will realize the evil effect of it, if he have made any correct estimate of him, and will, in this or any similar case, take the law as he finds it and govern himself accordingly.

The trial of the Public Utilities Commissioners is under the law a matter of superior court jurisdiction. Mr. Averill has taken upon himself to try and acquit them of inadequacy. That was never his job. We don't believe his successor will regard it as his.

"HUNTING PARTIES"

There is an interesting sidelight to the tragedy at East Otis, just over the Connecticut boundary in Massachusetts, where four men from this state were burned to death in the destruction by fire of a cabin by the side of a lake.

It appears that fifteen men were sleeping in the shack, members of a hunting party, all the survivors being more or less injured in their escape.

Such gatherings as this constitute a new feature in sportsmanship. Two or three guns operating from a single base simultaneously used to be regarded, even in the days when game was plentiful, as fairly intensive shooting for any particular region. If small armies of hunters are to get together and shoot over the same territory—by that we mean the territory within tramping distance of the meeting place—the wild life would seem to have a pretty poor chance. That is, of course, providing that such groups as this really go hunting in any serious way. If there are many of them, and if they actually do go into the woods to hunt game, all the king's horses and all the king's men and all the fostering of wild life by fish and game boards will hardly suffice to keep the woods and fields from presently being made barren of game birds and animals.

Perhaps, however, such assemblages are, as a rule, only hunting parties by courtesy but promoted for sociability and by way of "something to do." In which event they are likely to be less dangerous to the game than to themselves.

ABOUT DONE

Senator Nye says he cannot understand the vote of the United States Senate which resulted in the prompt seating of the new member from Pennsylvania, former Secretary of Labor James J. Davis. This is a confession of peculiar naivety on the part of Senator Nye; the vote is very easy indeed to understand. Mr. Davis was overwhelmingly decided to be entitled to his seat because the people of the country have become thoroughly disgusted with this business of "polking" into the costs of primary elections whenever there seems to be a chance of throwing somebody out; because it is supremely ridiculous to accept as a United States senator such persons as Huey Long, Cole Blaise or Tom Heflin, whose elections are notoriously achieved by the unconstitutional exclusion of a large part of the voters from the polls, and then reject such an able and reputable member as Jim Davis because some candidate for the governorship had a barrel of money spent in his behalf in a primary fight.

The day for excluding regularly elected and certified senators on any other ground than that of personal unfitness for membership in the

CREATE SOME JOBS

The only kind of unemployment relief, aside from the elementary process of doling out charity, that is worth a hoot in the dark is the creation of jobs. You can start employment agencies and card indexes and such things till the cows come home and you get nowhere in particular that you wouldn't have arrived at anyhow. By this we do not mean to criticize that sort of service—far from it. It does really do some good in individual cases, and anything that does any good is worth doing. But the idea is that organized distribution of jobs already in existence is likely to mean putting A in a job that B would have found for himself if it hadn't been filled by A. In times of industrial stress there are very few existing jobs that don't get filled because employers can't find anybody to fill them. And when they're filled they're filled.

Job distribution on an organized basis therefore means little more than a more convenient and perhaps a little quicker way of doing a thing which, left to itself, would have done itself a little less smartly.

Job creation is a wholly different matter. To create a job in hard times is to really do something; something that never in the world would do itself.

Also, to create a job, inevitably and invariably you have to have money or its equivalent. If the town of Manchester is going to create any jobs for this winter it will have to raise some money and spend it. If it isn't willing to do that it might as well admit that it isn't going to do anything serious about unemployment, and content itself by transferring next summer's jobs to the coming cold months as far as possible.

All of which means that the new Unemployment Committee might very well bring all the influence it possesses to bear on the proposition of developing Middle Turnpike West. That project would mean the actual creation of jobs. It would mean the receipt by the town of 100 cents of value for every dollar invested. And it would be doing something that will not, somehow or other, do itself.

THE MESSAGE

While President Hoover's message to Congress may be a little disappointing to those ardent admirers who had confidently hoped for something rather magnificent in leadership at the present critical moment, it nevertheless contains elements of strength which are highly important.

It showed a very definite and very statesmanlike grasp of the situation when the President pointed out that Congress should concentrate its power of expenditure as completely as possible upon enterprises which will give employment and provide relief during the next six months and should not by any means give its sanction to programs running into the far future. To our mind nothing else in the message is so important as that.

Also it is a newer thing, in the way of Presidential communication to Congress, than may be realized at first reading. We have not been very well accustomed to have our Presidents center their admonitions on the idea of "do it now." It shows at least that the head of the government realizes the urgency of the immediate situation and that he is thinking of concrete facts and not of remote probabilities.

There has been some criticism of the message from the opposition on the ground that it "does not go far enough" in the matter of providing employment and relief. We can find in the document no justification for such criticism, since there is not the slightest indication that Mr. Hoover would not go quite as far as Congress might go in that direction. His warning against all un-

Senate body is probably over. At all events the hearty support given to Mr. Davis by Democrats as well as Republicans indicates that the Senate is about through with its craze for selectivity based on primary election expenditures.

PRISON PROBE

We fully agree with Governor Trumbull in his theory that those tender hearted individuals, whose interest in the happiness of prison inmates is so keen that they are forever criticizing the severity of prison life, would be better employed in directing their sympathies to the families of the convicts who, in the majority of cases, are considerably greater sufferers than the institutional inmates.

We are glad that the governor has spoken as freely as he has on this subject. Our only quarrel with him in this matter is on the ground of there having been any investigation at all. We didn't believe at the beginning of the rumpus that there was even a good excuse for one, let alone a sufficient reason; we have seen nothing to make us change our mind and it is our considered belief, right now, that the whole business of a special commission, of public hearings, of engaging "specialists" with views to air, has been causeless, unjustifiable and silly.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 3.—Have you a trick monicker for your country home, flat, or place of residence? It's quite the vogue among the veguers. They all go into the nicest little huddles and play a game in which the prize goes to the person suggesting the most apt and wisecracking name for a dwelling place. Does it sound silly? Oh, well, this is such a busy city! No one has time for anything after spending three hours at lunch!

Naming summer houses always was something of an indoor sport. Every beach and hill town has its quota of Bide-a-Wees and Ramble Inns. Alexander Wolcott, the broadcasting critic, was one of the first to make them take this matter seriously. After much discussion and debate he named his dwelling place "Wit's End." Ever since, there has been quite a race to catch up to that one.

A well-known writer who moved out to Yonkers hung out this discouraging shingle, "Pasture Station."

A former Jewish character comedian calls his domicile, "Honorable Mansion." My own eight-by-eight hide-out has been titled "Off-hand Manor." Some of the recent suggestions which have been accepted or discarded by the monicker mongers include: "Something Done," for a certain cabaret figure; "Journey's End," for a certain commutator; "Tummy Acres," for a certain speakasy magazine, and—of all things—"Tres Pas," if you get it!

Nor have you any idea how column writers perspire in an effort to lasso an idea for their heading.

There have been all sorts and conditions of column caption. A friend who writes for a Manhattan daily paid good money for "Wit and Wit-out." I inquired why he didn't go all the way and call it "Wit and Half-Wit."

For years I tried to peddle an idea to any editor who would listen. In almost every instance the office boy was instructed to take me out for air. Having had some experience in the ways of some columnists, I suggested that the heading read, "Here Lies."

Alas, it never got to first base. Several years ago, I was intrigued by a title, which was invented, I believe, by James W. Dean, who fathered this particular department. It was "However, Comma—." A gent who writes a radio department has long contemplated this one: "The Patent Mike"—you have to say that one fast.

And many an author and playwright has found himself stumped for months on a name which would best suggest a certain character in his creation.

Sinclair Lewis once told me that he had spent almost as much time selecting the name "Babbitt" as he had writing the novel which is reported to have won him the Nobel Prize.

At the moment, young Mr. Benn W. Levy is getting some applause in these parts for names given characters in his plays. Having written of a somewhat fantastic feminine character, it took him four months to name her Mrs. Moonlight.

James Barrie, the English master of whimsy and fantasy, is said to have spent no end of time and effort on the name "Peter Pan," which seems to be about as apt as any monicker for that character could be. And Wendy and others in the play caused him many a troubled hour. His play titled, "The Twelve Pound Look," has always been a puzzle until you found out what it was all about. This season, "The Vagabond Tree" has the town boys guessing.

My own favorite has always been "George Spelvin," an anonymous title, invented by the theatrical profession to fit any person who has to

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer.

Washington.—The organized dries, who have watched the Republican and Democratic parties torn by disagreement about prohibition, also find themselves in a state of disorientation and discord. Angry at a lack of able leadership in their movement and the failure to combat the recent wet trend with vigor, prominent dries are coming to the big dry conventions here early in December with fire in their eyes.

There will be a strong, organized attempt to produce a dry generalissimo comparable in stature to the late Wayne E. Wheeler. The dissatisfied lieutenants in the dry army also hope for a federalized agency of their various organizations which will carry on a constant, centralized warfare in defense of the Volstead act and the eighteenth amendment.

No one has succeeded to Wheeler's mantle. Instead, there is a divided command in the dry movement, with various factions paying allegiance to such leaders as General Superintendent F. Scott McBride of the Anti-Saloon League, Dr. Clarence True Wilson of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, young Stanley High of the Christian Herald, and Ernest H. Cherrington, head of the league's educational work and the World League Against Alcoholism.

Cannon Is Broken

It seemed for a while as if Bishop James Cannon of Virginia was to become the recognized spokesman and leader of all dries. But now Cannon lies broken in health, prestige and influence. Few men have collapsed so quickly and completely after rising to what seemed to be heights of power.

The malcontents in the dry ranks who now demand genuine leadership and aggressive action include some of the ablest workers for the cause, among them certain state superintendents of the league.

Unless dries really unite and fight, they declare, they can consider themselves badly licked. The recent election results, although no cause for despair, they nevertheless believe, to have presented a problem as serious as any the dries have faced in the past.

Whether or not there are public fireworks, Dr. McBride will be severely criticized by some delegates to the various conventions. McBride is recognized as sincere and earnest, but his critics say that he is the rural clergyman type, not quite fitted to command a militant dry movement. Friends of the late Wheeler say McBride's made general superintendent by Wheeler so that the latter, holding the post of legislative superintendent, could hold complete control of the dry movement while McBride remained in contented obscurity.

Offended Hoover

After his death, they add, McBride insisted on taking over both jobs so that no new legislative superintendent might rise to overshadow him. McBride is said in some way to have offended President Hoover during or near the time of the 1928 campaign, so that relations between the Whites House and the league—once so close—are now scarcely existent.

Recently a movement began to place Congressman Franklin Fort of New Jersey, the dry candidate defeated by Dwight Morrow in the senatorial primary, at the head of a new centralized dry organization. Fort is said to be agreeable, but the movement probably will fail.

Dr. Wilson is also said to hope to commend the whole dry cause, but he also has influential enemies, especially in the league. His publicity methods are criticized as "too narrow" in respect to cigars, movies and other "evils."

Thus far no one man has been put forward by the rebellious group as one fitted for high command. But the sentiments of this group are strong support among the Protestant churches, Church journals, including some of the most influential, have been critical of the lack of able leadership.

May Bolt G. O. P.

The Association of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment—there are 31 of them and the association will convene here along with the others—is "dead," according to the insurgents. With no money, no office and no staff, the complaint is, it hasn't done anything. Its most active officer has been P. H. Callahan of Louisville.

There will be much excited but private discussion of President Hoover's future attitude toward prohibition. The best informed dries, who still maintain certain White House contacts, believe that Hoover will not associate himself with any modification or repeal movement. But they concede that he may veer somewhat if it seems practically wise late in 1931 or early in 1932.

If the Republican party should go wet in 1932 and renominate Hoover, a seemingly general sentiment among dry leaders was a declaration for the wet Democratic candidate in an attempt to utterly destroy the G. O. P. Leaders boast that in the past they have invariably expended great effort toward the political destruction of any man or woman who deserted the cause. At the same time in case of such a state of affairs in 1932, the dries would bend themselves in a supreme effort to hold Congress.

MILLIONS IN U. S. REMAIN UNCLAIMED

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Millions of dollars the United States has borrowed and wishes to repay lie in the Treasury unclaimed.

This money, President Hoover's budget message showed today, is part because of the special precautions taken to prevent it. The disease occurs most often in the temperate climates, and most frequently attacks those between the ages of fifteen and thirty. It is the most common of all the long continued fevers.

A definite micro-organism, the bacillus typhosus, has been identified as the cause. This bacillus practically always enters the body through the mouth, most frequently in food, and every hour keeps getting this part because of the special precautions taken to prevent it. The disease occurs most often in the temperate climates, and most frequently attacks those between the ages of fifteen and thirty. It is the most common of all the long continued fevers.

In all there is $31,715,370 in the Treasury awaiting the owners of the matured paper. To get it all they have to do is present the securities.

Washington.—The organized dries, who have watched the Republican and Democratic parties torn by disagreement about prohibition, also find themselves in a state of disorientation and discord. Angry at a lack of able leadership in their movement and the failure to combat the recent wet trend with vigor, prominent dries are coming to the big dry conventions here early in December with fire in their eyes.

There will be a strong, organized attempt to produce a dry generalissimo comparable in stature to the late Wayne E. Wheeler. The dissatisfied lieutenants in the dry army also hope for a federalized agency of their various organizations which will carry on a constant, centralized warfare in defense of the Volstead act and the eighteenth amendment.

No one has succeeded to Wheeler's mantle. Instead, there is a divided command in the dry movement, with various factions paying allegiance to such leaders as General Superintendent F. Scott McBride of the Anti-Saloon League, Dr. Clarence True Wilson of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, young Stanley High of the Christian Herald, and Ernest H. Cherrington, head of the league's educational work and the World League Against Alcoholism.

Cannon Is Broken

It seemed for a while as if Bishop James Cannon of Virginia was to become the recognized spokesman and leader of all dries. But now Cannon lies broken in health, prestige and influence. Few men have collapsed so quickly and completely after rising to what seemed to be heights of power.

The malcontents in the dry ranks who now demand genuine leadership and aggressive action include some of the ablest workers for the cause, among them certain state superintendents of the league.

Unless dries really unite and fight, they declare, they can consider themselves badly licked. The recent election results, although no cause for despair, they nevertheless believe, to have presented a problem as serious as any the dries have faced in the past.

Whether or not there are public fireworks, Dr. McBride will be severely criticized by some delegates to the various conventions. McBride is recognized as sincere and earnest, but his critics say that he is the rural clergyman type, not quite fitted to command a militant dry movement. Friends of the late Wheeler say McBride's made general superintendent by Wheeler so that the latter, holding the post of legislative superintendent, could hold complete control of the dry movement while McBride remained in contented obscurity.

Offended Hoover

After his death, they add, McBride insisted on taking over both jobs so that no new legislative superintendent might rise to overshadow him. McBride is said in some way to have offended President Hoover during or near the time of the 1928 campaign, so that relations between the Whites House and the league—once so close—are now scarcely existent.

Recently a movement began to place Congressman Franklin Fort of New Jersey, the dry candidate defeated by Dwight Morrow in the senatorial primary, at the head of a new centralized dry organization. Fort is said to be agreeable, but the movement probably will fail.

Dr. Wilson is also said to hope to commend the whole dry cause, but he also has influential enemies, especially in the league. His publicity methods are criticized as "too narrow" in respect to cigars, movies and other "evils."

Thus far no one man has been put forward by the rebellious group as one fitted for high command. But the sentiments of this group are strong support among the Protestant churches, Church journals, including some of the most influential, have been critical of the lack of able leadership.

May Bolt G. O. P.

The Association of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment—there are 31 of them and the association will convene here along with the others—is "dead," according to the insurgents. With no money, no office and no staff, the complaint is, it hasn't done anything. Its most active officer has been P. H. Callahan of Louisville.

There will be much excited but private discussion of President Hoover's future attitude toward prohibition. The best informed dries, who still maintain certain White House contacts, believe that Hoover will not associate himself with any modification or repeal movement. But they concede that he may veer somewhat if it seems practically wise late in 1931 or early in 1932.

If the Republican party should go wet in 1932 and renominate Hoover, a seemingly general sentiment among dry leaders was a declaration for the wet Democratic candidate in an attempt to utterly destroy the G. O. P. Leaders boast that in the past they have invariably expended great effort toward the political destruction of any man or woman who deserted the cause. At the same time in case of such a state of affairs in 1932, the dries would bend themselves in a supreme effort to hold Congress.

BAY STATE CITIES ELECT OFFICIALS

Fall River Holds Limelight Because of Upset; Results of 13 Municipal Elections.

Boston, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Fall River held the limelight today as the results of yesterday's municipal elections in 13 Massachusetts cities poured in. Mayor Edmund P. Tolboth of that city was defeated for re-election by City Councilor Daniel F. Sullivan after six years in office. His defeat was attributed to recent financial difficulties of the city, which had become a political issue.

In New Bedford it was the old, old story. Mayor Charles S. Ashley, non-partisan was re-elected for his 25th term. The veteran mayor polled more votes than the combined total of his three opponents.

Quincy voters re-elected Mayor Thomas J. McGrath for a third two-year term. It was the first time that Quincy has had a third term mayor.

Gardner held the distinction of probably electing the youngest mayor in the commonwealth in the person of George C. Sweeney, a 35-year-old lawyer.

In other cities Salem did not select a mayor but the councilor fights were featured by the defeat of Omer P. Theriault, city councillor for 14 years and former president of the council, by Edmond Talbot, Jr.

Mayor J. Leo Sullivan of Peabody was re-elected by a majority of 322 votes and in Haverhill, Mayor Forrest V. Smith was returned to office by the narrow margin of 55 votes.

In a non-partisan contest in Gloucester, Mayor John E. Parker, was re-elected by a wide margin over former Mayor Henry H. Parsons. In Attleboro, Stephen H. Foley former city councilman, was elected by a plurality of 245 votes. Mayor William T. Dillon of Holyoke carried every ward in the city to defeat former Mayor Fred G. Burnham.

There was little interest in the off-year election at Taunton, where city councillors were chosen. At Leominster scarcely more than one-quarter of the registered voters voted to name five councilmen.

$15,000,000 NEEDED TO STOP SMUGGLING

Rum Runners Are Highly Organized Now and Work Along All Our Coasts.

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—So highly organized is liquor running on the borders that the Coast Guard will require more than $15,000,000 to conduct its anti-smuggling operations next fiscal year.

The House appropriations committee reported today that half the Coast Guard's expenditures go to protecting the borders against contraband, most of it liquor. It recommended a total of $38,507,582 for the Guard's 1933 appropriation.

Rear Admiral Francis C. Billard, commandant of the Guard, in hearings before the committee said the breakup of "rum row" on the Atlantic Coast had not ended liquor running because "the rum interests since then have become highly organized, have large amounts of money at their disposal and now operate in a different way."

"Smuggling continues," he added, "the rum vessels moving from place to place. Off the coast of Florida there is smuggling in small boats from the adjacent Bahama islands. The conditions there is about the same as it was last year."

Canada's act in denying clearance to liquor vessels bound for the United States, he said, has resulted in a marked reduction of smuggling activities on the Great Lakes, but "on the other hand appear to be more vessels engaged in attempting smuggling on our ocean coasts."

"The Coast Guard is combating this smuggling earnestly and energetically," he continued. "It is doing the very best it can with available resources. The smuggling interests are now using an extensive and efficient system of radio communication in which they employ secret codes and ciphers."

Before a vessel is boarded for liquor-running, the Coast Guard "knows all about them," Billard told the committee. "We never board anything we should not board."

REPORT ON PRISON BEFORE CHRISTMAS

zings, chairman of the committee has indicated that the committee plans to have its report ready for the governor by Christmas.

The committee during its final public hearing yesterday heard Warden Charles S. Reed of the prison describe "false, malicious and slanderous" charges that inhumane and brutal treatment had been inflicted on prisoners. The warden also defended the prison, which he characterized as one of the best of its kind in the country.

Many Suggestions
Numerous recommendations for improving the facilities and activities at the prison are included in the stenographic records of the public sessions. The records also contain a defense of solitary confinement as a method of punishment and a criticism of the solitary confinement cells, six of which are located in the basement of the prison and which were described as "black holes" by the Rev. Dr. William H. Smith, former chaplain of the prison, who appeared as the principal critic against the prison administration.

The governor's committee plans to confer during the latter part of the week with Sanford Bates, superintendent of Federal prisons, Dr. Frank Robertson and Dr. Geo. W. Kirchwey, the experts named last week to aid in the inquiry.

The Swiss government has decided to restrict as far as possible the building of new hotels for a period of five years. This is the outcome of a view that there is a surfeit of hotels.

No Cowboys Needed When Harry's Around

It Isn't Any Easy Trick to Catch a Calf in the Dark But When It's Hungry—That's Different.

Lost: One healthy calf. Weight about 70 pounds. Somewhere between Manchester and Bolton. Reward.

Which might have been necessary if the "critter" had not been found by Harry Seaman early Monday night. Here's the tale:

Harry Seaman was making delivery of one calf for a friend somewhere in Bolton Saturday afternoon. The animal was tied to the back of the truck and on the trip to Bolton slipped its moorings. When the Manchester men arrived at their destination the calf was gone.

It Was Gone
Back they went, driving slowly hoping to find the junior cow parked somewhere along the road severely injured or at least cured of playing hookey from the back of a moving truck. No luck. Sunday... Monday... ditto.

Harry still persisted in the search. Monday night, long after dark he again drove slowly over the road and suddenly spotted something moving at the edge of the roadside brush ahead. The much-bunted bossy, sure enough. He rummaged through the car for a piece of rope to lasso the culprit but found... not even a string. A heavy chain used for towing was found and armed with enough steel to hold all the calves in Connecticut, Harry sneaked down the bank after his prey.

Slittish
Bossy was slittish. She didn't like the idea of that clinking chain and started to retire to the nearby underbrush. Strategy was imperative. "M-o-o-o-o—" coaxed Harry in his best cow-language. A moment of silence.

"M-o-o-o-o—" answered the calf scenting the presence of a friend. Step by step the hunter and hunted advanced towards each other in the cold November darkness. Bossy opened her mouth and clamped her gums on Seaman's fingers, hungry for any kind of a meal—even from human fingers. In short order the calf was parked on the front seat of the coupe with the driver enroute to a real meal and a warm bed.

Slim Brazilian Senorita Is Rio's Municipal Engineer

Washington—(AP)—If some movie magazine glimpses Carmen Velasco Portinho while she is in the United States, the roads of Rio may suffer.

Here she is—slim, suave, charming, flashing-eyed. And she is municipally engineer of Rio de Janeiro. She was sent to Washington as delegate to the sixth international road congress.

Senorita Portinho is the only woman delegate among 300 men from all over the world. With a trunkful of clothes bought in New York the little engineer was swept off her feet at the round of dances and receptions given here.

She will visit Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago on this, her first visit to America. Her large brown eyes are constantly flying open in surprise, her hands making eloquent gestures as she tries to express herself in English.

She has supervision of public buildings in Rio de Janeiro, but good roads to connect the buildings are essential—hence Senorita Portinho's presence at the congress.

"I come partly from curiosity, partly because I am delegate," she explains. "I have always been interested in road building. I studied engineering in college because I preferred it to any other study."

Senorita Portinho looks about 21. She confesses to 25. In her smart black silk frocks

HUMAN HEART STUDY BY THE GOVERNMENT

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—In searching the human heart to learn why its failing is the prime cause of death the government will spend $10,000 next fiscal year.

The fund was provided in the annual Treasury supply bill reported to the House today after health officials testified heart diseases have replaced cancer as "the major cause of death," and that as the infant mortality problem is eased, the adult-death rate increasingly is brought to scientists' attention.

The House committee set aside $11,900,000 for the Public Health Service's job of guarding the nation's physical wellbeing for the year. Big items in the account were rural sanitation, epidemic prevention work, laboratory and field investigations and narcotic farms.

"None of us adults who have passed our fortieth year have any reason to believe we will live any longer at all than our ancestors," Assistant Surgeon-General R. L. Thompson told the House committee. "In fact, probably we are not going to live as long, if we get down to facts."

New York, Dec. 3.—Domestic corporate bond and foreign corporate bond interest totaling $198,000,398 will be paid in December. Standard Statistics Co. says. Maturities, redemptions and calls for these classes will total $110,360,173 for the month.

A committee consisting of John E. Bjerwirth, Frank S. Connett, and O. P. Graham has been formed to protect the interests of holders of first mortgage 15 year, 8 percent bonds of the Ajax Rubber Co. The company recently announced that the Dec. 1 installment due on the bonds would be omitted.

After showing some improvement in August and September, the volume of new orders received by the furniture industry in October dropped appreciably. Seidman and Seidman, Grand Rapids, Mich., accountants serving several large furniture manufacturers, say new orders received in October were 19 per cent less than the previous month and 57 per cent less than the same month a year ago. With only a meager amount of unfilled orders on their books, manufacturers must look almost entirely to new business to keep their plants running this winter, the accounts find.

The National Electric Light Association reports that production of electricity by the light and power industry of the country was 1,680,443,000 kilowatt-hours for the week ended November 29, a decrease of 41,943,000 from the previous week because of the Thanksgiving holiday. Output was 3.8 percent below the figure for the corresponding week of 1929 and 4.7 per cent above.

"Iron Age" says a leading steel producer is preparing to announce an advance of $1 a ton to apply on first quarter business. "Motives for such action," asserts the publication, "are to be found in mounting costs, vanishing earnings and a belief that a stronger market will bring out latent business. Similar increases in prices were made during periods of depressed production in 1927 and 1922. Current ingot output is estimated at 39 per cent of rated capacity, a drop of 2 per cent in the past week.

The decline in pig iron production, uninterrupted since May, was accelerated in November, says "Steel," which estimates the daily rate for that month at 62,150 gross tons, a slump of 11 per cent from October and the lowest since August, 1924. November's total of 1,865,415 gross tons is 13.8 per cent below the October aggregate. On November 30 only 107 of the country's 310 stacks were active, the smallest number since October, 1921.

The "Iron Age" finished steel composite price is unchanged at 2.135 cents a pound for the eighth consecutive week, but pig iron has

MORROW TAKES OATH

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Dwight W. Morrow was administered the oath today as Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. Morrow's entry completed the membership of the Senate, the New Jersey Senator was accompanied to the desk of Vice President Curtis by Senator Keam, of New Jersey, at the beginning of the session to receive the oath.

Mrs. Morrow and the Senator's daughter, Elizabeth, were in the gallery but Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, of his family did not come to Washington.

The political composition of the Senate for this session now stands: Republicans 53; Democrats 42; Farmers-Labor 1. This is a gain of three for the Democrats who will have 46 seats in the next Senate.

ANTI-CATHOLIC RIOT

Liverpool, Eng., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Two hundred anti-Catholics demonstrated during the night blocked the approach to Notre Dame convent here and prevented Dr. Downey, Catholic archbishop of Liverpool from entering to attend a prize giving and threatened him with violence if he persisted in his efforts. The cause of the outbreak was not determined but such scenes are in no wise without precedent here, where Orangemen and Roman Catholics are at variance.

NEW APPOINTMENT

Hartford, Dec. 3.—(AP)—When Judge E. A. Inglis took his place on the Superior Court bench at Norwich yesterday a vacancy was created in the judicial council which has been filled by Governor Trumbull's appointment of Edward M. Day. The incident illustrated again the honors which come to an executive secretary. Mr. Day served as such to Gov. G. E. Lounsberry, 1899-01, and again to Governor Henry Roberts 1905-07.

New England Has Had The Reputation Of Being Thrifty!

Much fun and derision has been poked at it at times but its a reputation to be proud of. It has instilled into us a spirit of confidence and self support. We have weathered business depressions in a better manner than many of our neighboring states and have risen up and rebuilt after disaster without outside assistance.

Being thrifty doesn't mean being miserly. There are hundreds of thrifty people in Manchester but nevertheless our city is one of the best kept and attractive ones to be found anywhere. Being thrifty means having foresight to save a part of one's income.

DRY ACT OFFSHOOTS NEED MORE FUNDS

ed these sums, it heard testimony from the heads of each branch, relating accomplishments and aims. Dr. J. M. Doran, industrial alcohol commissioner, said while alcohol production had dropped 12 1-2 per cent, principally because of the business depression, the number of legal units handling the regulated product had decreased but little. His bureau supervises about 167,000 permittees who buy, sell, use or manufacture alcohol legally.

He reported few conflicts with the new prohibition bureau over matters the two offices handle jointly.

No Conflicts
"If there was not rather a large degree of harmony it would conceivably result in buck passing and irritations and annoyances to the business public," he said. "I am happy to say that condition is not evident at this time."

Illegal conversion of alcohol, he said, has decreased. There has, though, been a proportional increase in the quantity of illicit liquor made from "raw materials."

For the Narcotics Bureau, Commissioner Harry J. Anslinger saw a busy future. He spied a bulky difficulty in the lack of assistance from states which have no enforcement laws.

Most of the illegal importation, he said, is from Turkey, and not China. About 700 pounds of forbidden derivatives were exported from the land of the crescent to the United States last February. He suggested the state department should not yet make of formal protest to Turkey since "we want an ironclad case before we take up the matter."

Despite the influx of smuggled opiates, Anslinger saw encouragement in the results of work by Federal agents. Because of that work, he said, an ounce of narcotics now costs the addict an average of $500.

Since July 1, the bureau has seized between 5,000 and 6,000 ounces of morphine. Informers last year got $94,282 for expenses and $31,748 as rewards while it cost $123,240 to buy evidence for prosecutions. Both bureaus heads said they intended to spend $10,000 next year in educational work.

The world's first long tunnel was built by the Roman Emperor Claudius nearly 2000 years ago and was about four miles long. It took 30,000 men 11 years to do it. Today 400 men with modern devices would be able to do it in six months.

URGENT QUICK ACTION ON DROUGHT RELIEF

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Department of Agriculture today recommended an appropriation of $25,000,000 for seed, feed and fertilizer loans to farmers in drought areas.

Informed there was greater need for seed loan legislation than ever before, Chairman Haugen called a meeting of the agriculture committee tomorrow to consider the recommendation.

The agriculture department urged quick action. "In view of the enormous number of individual applications for loans that will have to be examined, and the desirability of putting funds in the hands of farmers by the time they have actual need for them."

Bills have been introduced in both Houses for an appropriation of $60,000,000 for seed and feed loans. Representative Twell, Louisiana, ranking Democrat on the House agriculture committee, predicted that the Congress would appropriate at least that much for drought relief.

Now that Gene Tunney is defendant in a suit tried before a Judge Hatting, expect him to greet the justice with a "Hi, Hatting!"

Ancestors of President Swiss, Searcher Thinks

Prof. Hermann F. Macco of Berlin believes Jacob and Elizabeth Huber (above) of Switzerland, were ancestors of President Hoover. The family name was changed on the boat list (inset) when they left the family home (top).

Basel, Switzerland—(AP)—President Hoover's ancestors originated in Switzerland, believes Prof. Hermann F. Macco of Berlin, after three months' searching of archives in this city.

Professor Macco came to Switzerland with the intention of tracing the Hoover family ancestors further than American biographers, whose researches ended with Andrew Hoover, a land of 15, emigrating in 1788 from the Palatinate to Pennsylvania.

"I came here to catch a little fish, I actually got a whale," the professor said.

A parchment adorned with the Huber family coat of arms—the German spelling was Huber, until the Dutch shipowners listed the departing Andreas Huber as Hoover—and dating back to the fourteenth century has been discovered by Professor Macco.

The Huber family of Ellerstadt emigrated to the Palatinate in 1685 with thousands of other Swiss after the Thirty Years War.

In 1685 John H. Huber, a linen-weaver of Oberkum in the canton of Argovia, also left for the Palatinate. Professor Macco avers he is the direct ancestor of Herbert Hoover. The parish registers of Oberkum show traces of the Hubers as far back as the 13th century.

The majority of them were farmers with a few also acting in the capacity of bailiffs and others as judges.

Italy Guesses Mussolini Favors Elder Statesmen

Rome. (AP).—Mussolini's appointment of Giovanni Battista Giuriati as secretary general of the Fascist party, thus making him the most important man in Italy after the Duce himself, has given rise to the belief that Mussolini is turning from his oft-vaunted "government of young men" to a regime of more experienced statesmen.

Signor Giuriati, who continues as president of the chamber of deputies, has reached the age of 54. His predecessor, Augusto Turati, was appointed to the same position at the age of 37, and left it at 42.

The appointment of Giuriati came as a surprise to everyone. Although many knew that Turati had been seeking for some time to resign, they believed his successor would be one of the two vice-secretaries-general of the party, Starace or Melchiorre. No one thought of Giuriati, entrenched as he was in the position of president of the chamber, in which he seemed destined to remain to the end of his active life.

He was too old, everyone believed. They remembered the Fascist idea of administration by the young and middle-aged. They pointed to Dino Grandi, foreign minister at 35 and to General Balbo, air minister at 33.

Why was the appointment made? Opinion here says it was because of Mussolini's growing conservatism. Some years before the Duce became the Duce, he was a socialist at heart. He was in 1912 director of the socialist newspaper "Avanti." But ever since he became head of the Italian government he has been edging toward conservative platforms. True, he makes sabre-rattling speeches now and then, but they are intended mostly to keep up the morale of Fascists. He has often said that Fascism is the antithesis of Bolshevism.

Signor Giuriati found plenty of work before him. He took office in the midst of the campaign to improve the standards of the Fascist party and in the midst of the reform of the Fascist militia, or black shirt army.

His predecessor Turati was most popular with the younger majority of the party, in whose sports he was keenly interested. Turati was himself a cyclist and an international champion in fencing.

Giuriati is not a sportsman, nor does he have the hold on the younger Fascists that Turati had. How this section of the party will look on their new chief is the subject of much talk, all of it, of course, subdued.

Trick Sleeves Rule London Styles While Waistlines Seem To Waver

London. (AP).—Elaborate sleeves represent the models shown by Bond street designers this year, check of that women's fashion center shows.

Not content with single cuff for each, some of the smarter models are showing twin cuffs on each sleeve, one at wrist and the second at the cuff proper.

Because of its radical departure from the broken lines, this style is being watched closely. A handicap to the general adoption of the idea, designers here said, was the plumpness which is returning to women's arms. The double cuffed model shows to better advantage on slimmer arms.

Collars on the smart shops' winter frocks run to two and three colored lace effects, many of them featuring artificial braid stitched into designs resembling coarse point lace.

Accessories run to bracelets of varying numbers of strands of both precious and semi-precious stones. The most popular of the trinkets is one made of about a dozen strands twisted rope like and secured with a jeweled clasp.

AILING WORKERS REST IN FORMER HOMES OF CZARS

Sukhum, Abkhazia Republic, U. S. S. R.—(AP)—The soviet government is looking after the health of its workers.

The entire Black sea coast, from this city to Yalta, is being lined with sanatoriums and rest homes for sick and broken down communists.

Along this coast aristocrats of the old regime had innumerable palatial villas. All have been taken over by the soviets and now are used as rest homes and sanatoriums.

The resort at Gagri, north of here, is one of the most popular. Hundreds of patients take daily sunbaths on the beach, and most of them do not trouble to wear even bathing suits.

Yalta, just across the Kerch strait at the bottom of Crimea, probably is the largest of these health resorts. It has 21 sanatoriums and 10 rest homes, in addition to numerous hotels.

Nearby the winter palaces of Nicholas II and Alexander III have been converted into sanatoriums for those with tuberculosis.

In the past five years 31,000 patients have visited Yalta. With new institutions, it is expected the number of patients will reach 168,000 by 1933.

Charges of the sanatoriums are 150 roubles (about $75) a month per patient. If the patient is without funds, the union provides them. Children with bone tuberculosis are cared for in special hospitals, 6,000 of these patients having been treated during the past year.

OPENING STOCKS

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Stock Market was narrowly irregular in today's initial transactions, with net changes predominating downward. U. S. Steel, General Electric, American Can, and Columbia Gas lost about 1-2. N. Y. Central moved up about 1-2.

The list turned distinctly heavy for a few minutes after the opening but the decline was checked at the end of the first hour. North American recovered a point after dropping 1 3-4, and several shares dropped fractionally after making extreme losses of 1 to 1-1/2, including U. S. Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, Low's, American Water Works, Air Reduction, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, and Safeway.

Trading was in comparatively small volume, and bearish efforts were unable to bring out any considerable liquidation. The overnight news developments, however, were in the main not very encouraging. Montgomery Ward reported November sales 25 per cent below the like month of last year. The weekly petroleum statistics showed another substantial gain in gasoline stocks on hand. Freight car loadings declined to the lowest since 1921.

Nevertheless, rumors persisted in the steel trade that an advance of $1 a ton in quotations on plates, shapes and bars would be announced soon. Producers do not find current quotations profitable, and a determined effort to improve the situation is expected.

Foreign exchanges were about steady, with sterling cables moving a shade higher to 4.85 5-8.

NOTRE DAME GRID TEAMS MUST LOSE FOR TURNOUT

South Bend, Ind.—(AP)—Notre Dame has more than good football teams. It has a student body which knows just when to turn out receptions of welcome.

When Notre Dame wins away from home, the student body takes it for granted. Only a few meet, the returning heroes.

But when the big exception turns up—a Notre Dame defeat—almost every student on the campus and many of the citizens of South Bend meet the returning team with cheers—and the "forget about it" spirit.

TWO FAR HEEL COACHES FINISH WORK THIS YEAR

Durham, N. C.—(AP)—Two of North Carolina's veteran gridiron coaches—Jimmy DeHart of Duke university, and Pat Miller of Wake Forest college—pass the reins to other hands at the end of this year.

DeHart, who has guided Duke's football destinies for several years, steps aside as Wallace Wade moves over from Alabama and Pat Miller quits June 1.

POLO GOES DEMOCRATIC IN ARGENTINE CAPITAL

Buenos Aires—(AP)—Polo in the Argentine has gone democratic. During the matches here between the Argentine and American army teams seats along one side of the field were filled with all classes.

They belovied "Argentines" during the contests as though a baseball game was in progress. On the other side of the field, however, the aristocrats kept their poise.

A sports writer deplors the fact that the clamor is for touchdown instead of ethics. But in football, what team can see any point in ethics.

Do Men Begin To 'Slip' After 50? Most Of Nation's Chiefs Are Older

Washington.—(AP)—The ages of men who make and interpret the nation's laws provide a striking rebuttal to the contention that man reaches the zenith of his ability in the forties and begins to "slip" in the fifties.

Gray-haired maturity is the rule and "snappy youth" the exception in high administrative, legislative and judicial positions in Washington.

President Hoover, 56, is three years younger than the average member of his cabinet. Secretary Mellon, dean of administrative officials, is 75.

Patrick J. Hurley, "juvenile" member of the cabinet, is 47. He is the only one of the President's official family under 50.

The average age of Senate members is 57. Vice President Curtis, president of the Senate, is 70. Senator Gillett of Massachusetts is retiring at 79.

The "young senators" are LaFollette of Wisconsin who is 35, and Nye of North Dakota, who is 37.

The leaders of both parties and of the progressive bloc in the Senate are all of the "veteran" class. Watkins of Indiana is 68, McNary of Oregon is 66, Robinson of Arkansas is 58 and Walsh of Montana is 71. Borah of Idaho is 65 and Norris of Nebraska is 69.

It is to the Supreme Court, however, that champions of the sagacity of age turn for their most formidable evidence. The average age of the nine justices is 68.

Patriarch of official Washington is the virile and brilliant-minded Oliver Wendell Holmes, who will be 90 in March. Chief Justice Hughes is 68. The youngest man on the Supreme bench is Owen Roberts, who is 55.

It is up to women

Windham, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Percy V. Walden, of New Haven, as chairman of the Women's organization for upholding prohibition told the Windham county group yesterday that women of the state towns would have to be relied on to stem the agitation for repeal of the present state enforcement laws.

Murder At Bridge

By ANNE AUSTIN author of "THE BLACK PIGEON" "THE AVENGING PIGEON" "MURDER BACKSTAIRS" "COULD BE A KILLER"

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SPECIAL INVESTIGATOR DUNDEE is summoned to the house of JUANITA SELIM, murdered during a bridge party. He believes that the woman has been shot by one of her guests. Dundee orders the guests to take the place they occupied from the dealing of the "death hand" until the body was found, and learns the following things: FENNY CRAIN, KAREN MARSHALL, and CAROLYN N. DRAKE are playing bridge. LOIS DUNLAP and TRACEY MILES are in the dining room. JUDGE MARSHALL comes in soon after the beginning of the hand. JOHN DRAKE comes in just before the end of the hand.

DEXTER SPRAGUE and JANET RAYMOND come in together at the end of the hand, and go into the dining room. FOLLY BEALE and her fiancé, CLIVE HAMMOND, are in the solarium.

In the hall, Dundee sees FLORA MILES, who hysterically says that after telephoning her home she went to the guests' lavatory, to make up.

After learning that no one was seen outside, Dundee sends the guests to the living room, and tells CAPTAIN STRAWN his findings. Suddenly he exclaims, and throws open the door to the closet. Flora confesses that she went to the closet, after telephoning, to recover a note sent to Nita at luncheon, which she thinks is from her husband.

It is an extremely affectionate note from Dexter Sprague. While Flora is in the closet, Nita comes in, singing. Flora hears a bang or bump, and thinking that Nita is coming to the closet, faints, coming to consciousness on hearing Karen scream.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

Flora Miles seemed to be dazed by Dundee's vehement question. "Why, yes—Nita's own tune. That's what she called it—her own tune."

"But Mrs. Miles," Dundee protested, ashamed that the hair on his scalp prickled with horror, "do you mean to tell me that Nita was not dead then—when Karen Marshall screamed?"

"Dead?" Flora repeated, more bewildered. "Of course she was, or at least, they all said so—Oh, I know what you mean! And you don't mean what I mean at all!"

"Steady, honey-girl!" Tracey Miles urged, putting his arm about his wife. "I'd better tell you, Dundee... When we all came running into the room, there was Nita's powder box playing its tune over the door."

"Oh!" Dundee wiped his forehead. "You mean it's a musical box?"

"Yes, and plays when the lid is off," Tracey answered, obviously delighted to have the limelight again. "Well, of course, it's a musical box, not put the lid back on, it was still playing... What was the tune, honey?" he asked his wife tenderly. "I haven't much ear for music at best, but at a time like that—"

"It was playing 'Jimmie'" Flora answered wearily. Over and over—"Nita, Jim-a-nita, be my own fair bride," she quavered obligingly. "Only not the words, of course, just the tune. That's why Nita bought the box, I suppose, because it played her namesake song—"

"Maybe one of her beaux gave it to her," Tracey suggested lightly, patting his wife's trembling shoulder. "Anyway, Dundee, the thing ran on and on, until it ran down, I suppose. I confess I wanted to put the lid back on, to stop that damn thing, but Hugo said we mustn't touch anything—"

"And quite right!" Dundee cut in. "Now, Mrs. Miles, about that noise you heard—Did you hear anyone enter the room? No? Well, then, did you hear hits speak to anyone? You said you thought it might be Lydia, coming to get something out of the closet."

"I didn't hear Nita speak a word to anybody, though she might have and I wouldn't have heard, all muffled up in that velvet evening wrap and so far back in the closet—"

"Did you hear the door open to the porch—it's quite near the closet—"

"The door was open when we came in, Dundee," Tracey interposed. "It must have been open all the time."

"I didn't hear it open," Mrs. Miles confirmed him wearily. "I tell you I didn't hear anything, except Nita's coming to sing, then the powder box playing its tune, and that bang or bump I told you about."

"And just where was that?" Dundee persisted.

"I don't know!" she shrilled, hysteria rising in her voice again. "I told you it sounded fairly near the closet, as if—as if somebody bumped into something. That's what it was like! That's exactly what it was like! And I was so frightened of being found in the closet that I fainted, and didn't come to till Karen screamed—"

She was babbling on, but Dundee was thinking hard. A very convenient faint—that! For the murderer, at least! But why not for Mrs. Miles herself? Or for the shadowy faint! Why hadn't she trumped up some excuse immediately and left the closet as Nita was entering the room? Was it, possibly, because she could think of nothing but the great relief of finding it was Sprague, not her husband, who had been writing love letters to Nita Selim? A jealous woman—

"Miles," he began abruptly, "I think you'd better tell me how your wife became so jealous of you and Nita Selim that she could get herself into such a false position."

Tracey Miles reddened, but one of his embrowned hands restrained the wife's passionate defense of him. "It's the truth that Flora is jealous—"

"And I suppose—"

"I did meet his wife's—"

"I did see her a little bit jealous of her old man. Sort of makes a pretty important to somebody!"

"So you were just having a bit of fun with your wife, so far as Mrs. Selim was concerned?" Dundee asked coldly.

The blood flowed through the thinning blond hair. "We—oh, not exactly," he admitted frankly. "You see, I'd take a shine to Nita, and if I do say so myself, she liked me a lot... Oh, nothing serious! Just a little flirtation, like most of our crowd have with each other—"

"Mrs. Miles," Dundee interrupted with sudden harshness, "are you sure you don't know that that letter was from Dexter Sprague before you looked for it?"

"Sir, if you are insinuating that my wife carried on a flirtation of an affair with that Sprague insect—"

Tracey began to bluster.

But Dundee's eyes were on Flora Miles, and he saw that her sallow skin had tightened like grayish silk over her thin cheek bones, and that her eyes looked suddenly dead and glassy.

"You fainted, you say, Mrs. Miles," Dundee went on inexorably. "What is because, by any chance, that this note—and he tapped the sheet which had caused so much trouble—"revealed the fact that Nita Selim and Dexter Sprague were sweethearts or—lovers?"

It was a question between two now. Both ignored Tracey's red-faced rage.

Flora licked her dry lips. "No—no," she whispered. "No! It was because I was jealous of Tracey and Nita—"

"Yes, and I'd given her cause to be jealous, too!" Tracey forced himself into the conversation. "One night, at the Country Club, Flora saw me and Nita stroll on the porch and down onto the grounds, and she had a right to be sore at me when I got back, because I'd cut a dance with her—my own wife!... And it was only this very morning that I made a point of driving—out of my way, too—by this house to see Nita. Not that I meant any harm, but I was being a little silly about her—and she was about me, too! Not that I'd leave my wife and babies for any Broadway beauty under the sun—"

"No, Tracey! And you weren't going to tell me—"

"Was there real jealousy now, or just pretense on Flora's part?"

"You understand, don't you, Dundee?" Tracey demanded, man to man. "I was just having a little fun on the side—nothing serious, mind you! But of course I didn't tell Flora every little thing. No man does! There've been other girls—other women—"

"Tracey isn't worse than the other men!" Flora flamed up. "He's such a darling that all the girls pet him, and spoil him—"

Dundee could stand no more of Miles' complacent acceptance of his own rakishness. And certainly a girl like Nita Selim would have been able to hear precious little of it. "Conceited ass!" Tracey Miles was another matter—and so was Dexter Sprague!

"You can join me in the living room, if you like," Dundee said shortly, as he wheeled and strode toward the door. "Was that quick, passionate kiss between husband and wife being staged for his benefit?"

"Pretty near through, boy?" Strawn, who had been silent and bewildered for a long time, asked anxiously, as the two detectives passed into the hall.

"Not quite. I've got to know several things yet," Dundee answered absently.

But in the living room his mind was wholly upon the business in hand.

"I'll keep you all no longer than is absolutely necessary," he began, and again the close-knit group—in this case, only Dexter Sprague was an alien—grew taut with suspense.

"From the playing out of the 'death hand' at bridge," he went on, using the objectionable phrase again very deliberately. "I found that no two of you men arrived together.... Mr. Hammond, you were the first to arrive, I believe?"

"It seems that I was!" Clive Hammond answered curtly.

"And yet you did not enter the living room to greet your hostess?"

"I wanted a private word with Polly—"

"Hammond explained briefly. "How and when did you arrive?"

"I don't know the exact time. Never thought of looking at my watch," Hammond offered. "I came out in my own roadster. As for now I'm in the house, I leaped upon the porch, and opened a door of the solarium. I walked across the solarium, saw Polly just finishing with bridge for the afternoon, and beckoned to her. She joined me in the solarium, and we stayed there until Karen screamed.... That's all."

"Have you been engaged long, Mr. Hammond—you and Miss Beale?" Dundee asked, as if quite casually.

"Nearly a year—"

"Any of your business, Dundee!"

"And just when had you seen Miss Beale last, before late this afternoon?" Dundee asked.

"I refuse to answer!" Hammond flared. "That at least is none of your damned business!"

"I believe I can answer my own question, Mr. Hammond," Dundee said very softly.

GIVING UP TROLLEYS

Hartford, Dec. 3.—The abandonment of street railway operation of single track lines in Connecticut continues, seventy-four miles of trackage having been abandoned in the state during the year 1935 according to the annual report of the state public utilities commission to the governor.

At the end of the year there were about 474 miles of straight way track in operation, which is only 57 per cent of the 831 miles operated at the end of 1916, the commission reports.

AGAINST STATE PROJECT

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—An adverse report on a project to improve the Thames river in Connecticut was recommended to Congress today by Major General Lytle Brown, chief army engineers.

Brown wrote that the district engineer concluded there was no justification for further improvement because irrigation, flood control and power development was unnecessary.

Today's worst pun: Russia should be able to get credit among other nations because it has so much red money.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Sometimes certain blemishes stand in the way of handing yourself beauty in your finger tips.

I am thinking specifically of nails that are spotted white and nails that are ribbed and broken.

Both may be caused by internal disturbances and are a sign that you need the advice of a physician. Spots on the nails may be due to digestive trouble, though you have no idea you are having it. They sometimes are due to injury to the nails, such as carelessness in manicuring them when you have used your file to push back the cuticle, rather than use an orange stick.

If care in manicuring does not clear up the white spots, go to your physician and have a thorough examination. They are not healthy. You should take every care to get rid of them.

Acidity Causes Ridges

If your nails are ribbed, that too, may be caused by an unhealthy condition. Acidity can be the cause. Since this is likely to become quite serious, it is foolish to notice that your nails are striated without having a general overhauling to see if they are not merely one of the signs nature gives you that all is not well.

Brittle nails that break are quite as unsightly as spotted or ribbed ones. But these, fortunately, can be treated by yourself.

An effective way of treating brittle nails is as follows: Morning and night massage around the nail with warm oil. Then, before retiring at night and before going out to work mornings, rub a fine quality of cold cream under the nail. This thoroughly softens them. In time it will correct the brittleness somewhat.

Use Oil Lotion

In addition to this, you should dip your nails into a hot oil lotion, made of lanoline and oil of sweet almonds. Many manicurists can suggest other oil lotions which help brittle nails.

There are many manufactured oils put up by scientists for just this purpose. The main thing is to keep the nails thoroughly oiled and the skin around them softened by cream.

All of these can be improved by bleaching. Nail bleaches can be had in quantity. Peroxide or plain lemon juice are good too. But when you use any bleach, be sure to soften the nails and fingers around them by using a good food cream. For bleaches are drying.

HEALTH

INFANT SHOULD RECEIVE FOOD EVERY THREE OR FOUR HOURS.

(This is the last of a series of articles by Dr. Morris Fishbein on nutrition of the child.)

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The baby is usually given its first feeding about 12 hours after birth and then every six hours during the next 24. About the third day the infant should nurse from both breasts every four hours.

Various physicians differ as to their beliefs regarding the technique of nursing, some suggesting that the infant nurse from each breast every three hours, others that the infant nurse from both breasts every four hours.

In case the infant is unable to empty the breast completely because of a deformity of the breast or because of weakness of the infant, it is usually desirable to empty the breast by hand massage or by the use of a device, and to feed the milk to the baby until the nursing of a sufficient amount becomes possible.

If the child cries because of hunger at the end of two and one-half or three hours, it may be hungry because it is not being fed enough or because its stomach is acting quickly. It may be desirable to try a three-hour schedule, but it is seldom, if ever, necessary to nurse an infant at a more frequent interval.

Among the reasons cited by Dr. W. McKim Marriott as advantages in favor of the four-hour interval are the following: "The infant is hungry at the end of the four hours; nurses vigorously and more completely empties the breasts. This helps to stimulate the production of

WHAT New York IS WEARING

Considerable interest is shown the frock of lightweight woolen for all-day wear.

Today's model gains distinction through its smart basque bodice effect, butted neck to waistline. It's a charming interpretation in green bindings.

The belt is green suede. The circular flaring gored skirt is the smartest ever, scalloped at the top to conceal hip breadth. It is stitched to a snugly fitted hip yoke.

It is easy to make and easy to wear. It requires 5 1/2 yards of 39-inch material with 3/4 yard of 39-inch contrasting for the medium size.

Style No. 2656 may be had in sizes 14, 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

You'll like it immensely in wool jersey in the new rust red shade with egg-shell cotton pique collar and cuffs, with matching buttons and black leather belt.

Another very smart idea is black canton crepe with white crepe with black buttons with white rims covered with the crepe.

Cape Marocain indelible blue with self-fabric collar and cuffs showing tiny edge in white binding. It is chic with strap buttons, and self-fabric belt.

There are numberless other suitable fabrics as tweed like crepe silks, rayon novelties, covert cloth, velvet and patterned crepe woolsens.

Choose now! It's an opportunity to have a dress with dash and chic and in a becoming shade, whose coat will prove very little.

CONNECTICUT JUSTICE CAN MOVE SWIFTLY

Willimantic, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Connecticut justice can move swiftly as was illustrated in Windham county Superior Court today where Judge Newell Jennings sat.

Mrs. Angeline Giallucca, 24, was sent to State Prison for one to two years for arson. Her brother Nicholas Lorella, 18, was committed to Cheshire Reformatory for having a part in the same crime.

Last Wednesday both were arrested charged with setting fire to the Giallucca's home here. The fire did a thousand dollars' damage. Officers picked up a milk bottle in which was a little kerosene oil. Under questioning the woman confessed to setting the fire in hoping of getting insurance money. Both pleaded guilty in Folioe Court.

Joseph Giallucca, the husband could not understand why his wife set the fire as they only had $200 insurance on the house. The insurance was $4,500. This was the second fire in a year. The Gialluccas and Lorella were in Westery at the time the fire was discovered last Tuesday night.

Experts at Johns Hopkins says the microbes of the common cold is so small the most powerful microscope cannot see it. Stucks! They're just trying to magnify the whole thing.

Church Set Afire

New York (Dec. 3.)—(AP)—Monsignor William H. Cahin, long-time chaplain at Sing Sing prison and rector now of St. Andrews Catholic church on Duane street, said today he was convinced that a fire which damaged the historic church yesterday was of incendiary origin.

He said there were two fires in the 122-year-old church, one of which started in the ceiling loft and another in the second floor stairwell which supports the steeple. The rector blamed a pyromaniac.

"It is always good policy," as the Papa Salmon told his children, "to look before you leap."

YOUR CHILDREN

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"One of my children is so selfish I don't know what to do with him," said a worried mother recently. "How can I make him more considerate and generous?"

I asked for a little information about his early history. I expected one of two replies, either that he had had a long sick spell when he was very small, or that he was her baby. As it happened I was right. He had been very ill for six months when he was 4 years old.

Now he is 9 and the habit of exacting and demanding formed at that time is still unbroken. Of course it is set more firmly than ever, now, and his sister is having a hard time of it. His schoolmates dislike him and won't play with him. His parents have taken to punishing him and trying to shame it out of him, but according to his mother's story I doesn't do a bit of good. He takes every suggestion and punishment as an affront and nurses a decided grudge every time he meets with opposition.

Of course! That goes with selfishness; a resentment against interference and an attempt to justify certain acts by claiming martyrdom. The best cure for selfishness in a child is prevention but here was one caught by an unkind fate when he was at the precise age in which seeds of generosity should have been sown.

I thought it out and then asked if he had any other friends whom he admired, for he is at the age of hero worship.

"Oh, yes, several," she answered thoughtfully. "You'll laugh, but he hangs around the fire station near school and his particular hero is a big German called Ehrhritt. He's helping 'Big Ehrhritt' now with the Christmas toys for the poor children. And then there's a young army officer who lives—"

"You might try him through Ehrhritt," I suggested. "You've lost influence. You will have to work through someone who has, I think. Do you know this fireman? Could you talk to him?"

"Oh, yes, I guess I could, but—"

"Stop in some day before school's out, and ask him if he'll help you out. A little conspiracy between the two of you ought to do some good. Let him pretend to be completely disgusted when James shows signs of selfishness, and praise him in his man's way when James gives up something he wants or wants to do.

Navy Faces Two Tough Assignments In A Row

Midshipmen Meet Pennsylvania and Army On Successive Saturdays and Chances of Victory Are None Too Bright.

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Navy football team which has beaten only two important opponents this season, faces one of the hardest assignments of the year in playing Pennsylvania and the Army on successive Saturdays, but the midshipmen are not discouraged at the odds against them. At various times Navy has been handicapped by injuries but now it has a full team of regulars in condition. Two big problems still are ahead of Coach Bill Ingram, keeping the men in shape through Saturday's battle with Pennsylvania and developing his reserves. Penn rates fully as strong as Navy if the Quakers can get all their men in condition although their record for the season is no better. Army stands far ahead in the rankings but that never has kept Navy from putting up a great fight. The Penn-Navy game is one of four on next Saturday's schedule. The others are a meeting between N. Y. U. and Colgate arranged for the benefit of the unemployed, The Washington & Jeff-Carnegie Tech clash at Pittsburgh also a charity game, postponed from last week, and the meeting of Maryland and Western Maryland at Baltimore.

BY ALAN GOULD ASSOCIATED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

But for the well known activities of a certain Mr. Jones of golfing fame, MacDonald Smith of Carnoustie, Scotland, and Great Neck, Long Island, might have been the open champion of Great Britain and the United States, this year. Mac Smith was among those most persistently in pursuit of Bob Jones throughout the 1930 campaign on opposite sides of the Atlantic. Mac tied with Leo Diegel for runner-up honors in the British Open, two strokes behind Jones. He was runner-up in the American Open at Interlachen, again falling by the thin margin of two shots to overhaul the great Georgian in a sensational finish.

It has been like that ever since Mac tied with his brother, Aleck, and Jack McDermott for the American Open in 1910, losing in a playoff. He has come close to winning the big crowns a number of times. He has the British Open sewed up one year, but went to pieces on the last round. With Jones no longer in the competitive picture, for the time being at least, Mac Smith has hopes of finally crashing through by concentrating his fire on the principal targets. He says he will play in only two of the big money winter tournaments in the west, the $10,000 Los Angeles Open, which he has captured twice, and the $25,000 Agua Caliente Open, in which he finished fourth last winter. Denmore Shute and Gene Sarazen lifted the first prize in these events last January.

Back from the west, Mac Smith's next major move in the 1931 golf battle will be in the direction of his old home, Carnoustie, where the British Open is to be played late in the spring. Carnoustie will have the welcome sign out for its native son. If familiar surroundings are as helpful as they proved to Jock Hutchison at St. Andrews in 1921, Mac Smith should win and break the jinx that for twenty years has kept one of the greatest of all shotmakers from scaling the championship heights.

When Army takes the gridiron against Navy on December 13 in New York, Cadet Carl W. Carlmark of Moline, Ill., left end, will be the sole survivor of the gridiron forces that figured in the last battle between the two academies in 1927. Carlmark entered West Point as a classmate of Christian Keener Cagle in 1926, before Army put in force its rule barring plebes from the varsity squad. Cagle became a first string halfback in his first year, but Carlmark was relegated to the plebe team and subsequently was tackled for a heavy loss by history, losing a year's standing because of deficiency in this subject.

The rangy Moline boy played a few varsity games in 1927 as substitute center, but did not get into action against Navy. Under the tutoring of Major Ralph Irvine Sasse, then end coach, Carlmark developed into a star end in 1928, and is now completing his third year as a varsity wingman.

CHOICE GRID PLAYS STOLEN

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Where, the Washington State college football team wanted to know today, are the papers?

A suitcase containing diagrams of the plays which Washington State intended to use in its game against Alabama, at the Pasadena tournament of roses January 1, was stolen from William Tomkin, the team's quarterback hotel Saturday night. The athletes were only a little concerned over the theft of a gold watch and $35 from Melvin Hein, their center, or with Morris Werssen's loss of $35.

But those football plays—the diagrams were originals and there are no copies. The suitcase with its precious freight was fished during a party the players held to celebrate their victory over Villanova at Philadelphia Saturday.

Today the police picked up Jacob Kirby, Brooklyn youth, who admitted he didn't have the diagrams. The suitcase, he averred, was stolen by another intruder whose name he didn't know. Kirby's sentence was suspended.

This Game of GOLF

By O.B. KEELER

Exceptionally fine arguments on both sides appear in connection with the question of changing the plan for the Professional Golfers' association championship from match play to medal play.

Willie Ogg, one of the vice-presidents of the association, came out with an article in "The Professional Golfer of America" advocating a change to medal competition.

Charles C. Worthington and Orville W. Chapin immediately and enthusiastically supported the Oggian idea, while Walter Hagen, Johnny Farrell and Willie Macfarlane were as vigorous against a change to medal play, and Charles Lacey, favoring qualification in four sections, held out for the present form, match play.

Among other things, Worthington says: "A player in a match may make a record, but it counts for nothing. It is soon forgotten. This is not as it should be. The golfers of this country should know what the professionals do, and how their scores compare, in a tournament of this prominence... whether the game is improving under the improved conditions of our courses, or whether it has reached the practical limit.

There is food for thought in that comment. Says the Haig: "The golf calendar is filled, almost to the breaking point, with 72-hole medal play championships of both major and minor importance. "By using match play our championship is placed in the advantageous position of being different, and I do not think the stimulating of public interest in the championship would be increased, were we to change to medal play.

"I also feel that by employing our present system of match play we determine the rightful champion; after all, that is our ultimate aim. "The system of qualifying also the determination of golfing strength in the allotment of positions for various sections, came in for plenty of panning, but nobody seemed to be quite sure how to correct the alleged abuses.

Johnny Farrell favored qualification at the scene of the championship, similar to the system employed for the national amateur, with the added provision that the champion of the previous year be qualified automatically and not have to play through the test.

He cited the unfortunate controversy of Harrison Johnson, last September at Merion, when the 1929 amateur champion, despite one of the most brilliant and courageous rallies ever seen, was unable by a great second round to take up the slack of a bad first round, and so was not privileged to fight for his crown in the match play that followed.

Johnny stated plainly his belief that the defending championship invariably should have a chance to do some defending. A lot of us felt that way about it, at Merion.

Majors Two Hours Late For Meeting With Cubs

By WILLIAM BRALUCHER

SHOPPING FOR IVORY

As football wanes, the ivory market picks up. We hadn't noticed, probably because of the intensity of the football business, that the best stock listed on the ivory exchange during the last few weeks was the Phillies, common.

The Phils sold Lester Sweetland to the Cubs for cash. They traded Lefty O'Doul and Fresno Thompson to the Robins for Pitchers Elliott and Dudley and Rookie Outfielder Lee, accepting a little more cash in this deal, too. Then they traded Shortstop Tommy Thevenow and Pitcher Claude Willoughby to the Pirates for Shortstop Dick Bartell.

The Phils are a fall-end club, of course, and clubs of that nature are supposed to shop around and try to better themselves. But the Phils didn't help their stock any by selling a pitcher like Sweetland to the Cubs. The other two deals may prove beneficial.

Bartell on His Way
The fact that Barney Dreyfuss traded Bartell to a tail-end club helps to confirm that rumor about an argument between the Pirates boss and the shortstop over the subject of transportation to the Pacific coast, where Bartell lives. It seems to be one of Mr. Dreyfuss' habits to trade men to the cellar when they argue with him about money.

Last year, after a salary difference, Barney sent Burleigh Grimes to the Braves, and it appeared for a time that Grimes had been merged. The Braves, however, sent him to the Cardinals, and Burleigh cashed in.

Glenn Wright was punished by being sent to Brooklyn, but a year later he turned around and made the team that almost won the National League flag. Kiki Cuyler was traded to the Cubs, then a fourth place team. The outlook wasn't bright for either Grimes, Wright or Bartell, but the baseball fates smiled on all three after Barney sent 'em down the river.

Different Handling
There are different ways of handling ball players. Dreyfuss rules his ivory charges rather rigidly and is not a man to be argued with. Cleveland provides a contrast. When Earl Averill cranked his flivver at the close of the 1930 campaign and bundled up his wife and kids for the trip back to Snohomish, Wash., General Manager Billy Evans handed him a check which included a bonus for gallantry in action.

"What a man!" said Averill when he turned out on the check. "That's not my money you're getting," replied Evans. "That's from the big boss (Alva Bradley, president of the club)."

To which Averill's quick response was: "What a couple of men!"

CONRAN TEAMS LEAD

Conran's girls came through with a 228 pin lead over the New Britain girls at Conran's alleys last night. The girls hit three good totals of 439, 443, 440, a total of 1322.

Miss Nelson carried all honors with 105 for high single and a three string total of 294.

The Men's team had a 181 pin lead over their rivals. The second game finished with a total of 631, and a team total of 1728. Charlie Kebab carried high single honors three times of 144, while Conran had the high string of 368. Conran's teams will journey to New Britain on Sunday for a return match.

BY FIELDING H. YOST

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Football's 51st competitive year showed nothing new in offensive tactics. If anything, it helped standardize plays of preceding years.

Baseball's attack at present is standardized. Nothing new has been developed in a decade or more. Football's 51st competitive year showed nothing new in offensive tactics. If anything, it helped standardize plays of preceding years.

The three will cover 98 percent of all the plays made by the 600 college and 10,000 high school teams in America this year.

The punt formation is universal. No matter what its primary formation for offense may be, every team uses the punt formation at times, for kicking, passing or running.

Following the Vanderbilt game of 1922, Michigan adopted it as its primary offensive formation. In the nine years since, it has won or tied five Big Ten championships.

Harvard uses it on occasion in its passing game, as it frequently is used by teams employing a "set" pass.

The system is the hardest to defend against if the personnel of the two teams is equal. It has all the threats an offense can show.

Grid Year Shows No New Offenses

If Howard Jones at Southern California is using the plays he did a year ago, Southern California and the Notre Dame have the same single wing back formation, after the Rockne backs have completed the shifts.

This is what is known among coaches as the "Z" formation with the backs on one side. The Notre Dame shift in which the backs change their locations rapidly, makes a set defense rather difficult.

Southern California has an adroit shift in which men back of the line step into the line at varied points. The double wing back is the most concentrated attack of the three. It not only has the wings close to the line, but the other two backs are close also. On many teams the backs form virtually a double line. This makes a compact unit for power plays.

Harvard, with light backs, varies by placing ends a yard or two from the tackles and starting the wings a yard behind the opening.

With the football attack attaining standardization, greater premium is placed each year on a personnel capable of making the real point of the play under way.

In baseball, frequently it is the unexpected bunt which breaks up ball games. In football the unexpected adds to touchdowns.

Alabama Back Hard to Tackle
John (Monk) Campbell, Alabama's spinning quarterback, is said by Dixie sports writers to be the lowest running back ever seen in the Southern Conference. Campbell never straightens up when carrying the ball, not even when he has broken into the open.

Local Sport Chatter

The Army and Navy Club will entertain Johnny Huxford's East All-Stars in a horseshoe pitching match at the club this evening.

The Eagles will practice football at 6:45 tonight and will hold an important meeting at 7:30.

The Rec Five will travel to Springfield to play the Visitation Five in a basketball game.

Manager Clune said last night he was dickered with the Hartford Knights of Lithuania to play here next week Tuesday, which will be December 9.

On Tuesday, Dec. 16, the Rec Five has booked a topnotch attraction in the New York Globe Trotters featuring Johnny Huxford, considered the world's greatest one-armed basketball star.

Did you know that "Wardy" Waterman's real name is Swanson and not Waterman?

Manchester High's second game of the season will be with East Hartford. The McGrath boys come here Friday night and the Clarke charges pay a return visit the following Friday.

If the Cubs and Majors do get together again this season, it seems pretty near a foregone conclusion that new officials will be in charge. The Meskell-Parker-Merriman trio are understood to have strongly resented the attitude of the Majors last Sunday and don't care about returning to Manchester.

COAST GUARD SAVED 6,004 DURING YEAR
Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Coast Guard made an all-time record in life saving last year. The number of persons it rescued was 6,004.
The usefulness of the Coast Guard "to those who go down to the sea in ships is steadily and rapidly increasing," Commandant Billard told the appropriations committee in hearings on the Treasury supply bill reported to the House today. The bill recommended an appropriation of $2,897,582 for the service in the next fiscal year, an increase over the current appropriation of $195,000 but a $413,000 drop below budget estimates.
Part of the reduction below budget estimates the committee reported was based on the belief that ration costs will be less.
The bill allotted $1,640,000 for completion of authorized buildings for the Coast Guard Academy, $160,000 for two new seagoing cutters, $440,000 for additional offshore patrol boats. To complete the last of 10 vessels authorized four years ago, $800,000 was set aside, while $200,000 was given to complete a rescue vessel for Lake Michigan begun last year.

NEW SEARCH STARTS
Ketchikan, Alaska, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Two United States Navy fliers and the Coast Guard Cutter Cygan were under orders to leave here today for Gravina Island 15 miles northwest of Ketchikan to investigate reports that a plane crashed there about a month ago. The move was destined to be the final search from this base for Pilot Robin Renahan and two companions lost since October 25.
If this search proves unsuccessful the Navy men will move to Port Simpson near Prince Rupert, B. C., when they will continue to hunt.
The report of a plane crashing on Gravina Island was brought here by a rancher who heard for the first time yesterday the fliers were being sought.
A committee that has been studying conservation of lumber in the United States has estimated that some wood-working industries waste from 30 to 40 per cent of their raw material.

W. C. T. U. MEMBERS HEAR CONVENTION REPORT

Tell of Special Features At Houston, Texas, Gathering November 14 to 19.

The regular monthly meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held on Tuesday afternoon in the ladies' parlor of the Center church, with an unusually large attendance.
Mrs. John Hood led the devotional exercises, and Mrs. Clarence Quimby played a beautiful piano selection. The special feature of the afternoon was reports from the National W. C. T. U. convention held in Houston, Texas, Nov. 14-19. These were given by Mrs. Louise St. Clair Burr, delegate-at-large from Connecticut, and Mrs. Quimby, state president of Maine W. C. T. U., who is one of the National Officers.
Dr. Deming reported a delightful trip, and an inspiring and enthusiastic convention.
This year the organization has received 54,591 new members, and for the past three years has averaged 1,000 new members per week.
The work of the Young People's Branch has gone forward with new impetus, as was shown by the presentation of 350,000 signatures of young people given for total abstinence and support of the 18th Amendment.
The convention received a message of greeting from President Hoover, expressing approval of W. C. T. U. ideals, and the convention in return pledged to him co-operation in his plans for world peace, child welfare and economic relief.
"Observance, Enforcement, Not Repeal" is the new slogan carried home by the delegates.
A significant feature of the gathering was the separate statement of its position by each of the major political parties.
The Democratic women sent to their National committee the following announcement:
"We affirm our belief in the benefits and blessings of prohibition, and declare that we will not give our support to any candidate who advocates the repeal, modification, or nullification of the 18th Amendment."
The Republican women sent to Senator Fess this statement:
"The Republican women, representing 43 states, in attendance at the convention of the National W. C. T. U. heartily commend you in your efforts to maintain the dry stand taken by the last National Republican convention, and your opposition to a repeal plank in the party platform urged by the wet Republicans who poured money and sent workers into campaigns to defeat dry Republican Senators, Congressmen, Governors, as well as dry State Legislators.
"As to future action we will refuse to support any party or candidate committed to the modification or repeal of the 18th Amendment and enforcement legislation."
The National W. C. T. U. plan to hold at least 20 great regional conventions throughout the United States next year, as well as a meeting of the National Executive Committee at Niagara Falls in June, following the convention of the World's W. C. T. U. to be held in Toronto, Canada, on June 3-10, 1931.

AUSTRALIA TO RAISE DUTY ON TOBACCO
Canberra, Australia, Dec. 3.—(AP)—American exporters may be adversely affected by increased import duties which Australia is imposing on tobacco, some kinds of wire and grape nuts. However, the announcement today said that the duty of two cents which was imposed on kerosene in the last tariff scheduled is to be lifted since kerosene is largely used by primary producers.
An official statement today said that the import duty on leaf tobacco intended for the manufacture of smoking tobacco and cigarettes will be increased by forty cents a pound making the total duty $2.04 a pound. The excise duty of 48 cents a pound on tobacco manufactured in Australia, imposed November 5, will be abolished.
Intermediate and general duties on wire other than 15 gauge or finer will be increased but the British preferential rate will remain the same. A duty of six cents a gallon will be imposed on concentrated grape must if it is to be used for any other purpose than wine making.
