General Janin Tells How Remains of Imperial Russian Family Came Into His Possession.

By JOSEPH E. SHARKEY

(Copyright 1930, By Associated Press)
Paris, Dec. 24.—(AP)—In a letter written in his own hand General Maurice Janin today gave the Associated Press a complete story of how the remains and relics of the Imperial Russian family came into his possession. How those entrusted with them were shadowed by Russian Revolutionists, and how eventually they were brought safely out of the country.

From his chateau at Serre Izard, near Mens, in the Department of Isere, the acting general who was commander-in-chief of the Czech and Allied forces in Siberia during the World War, revealed the romance and intrigue which are told more fully in his forthcoming book about the adventure.

"The Imperial Russian family," he wrote, "had disappeared at Ekaterinburg on the night of July 16 or 17, 1918. On July 25 an Bolshevik force grouped around the Czech troops that occupied that town.

Begin the Search

"Pierre Gillard, former tutor of the young Czarevitch, was there and with several others he began a search of the vicinity to determine the fate of the Romanoffs. An examining magistrate named Sergueif, who was replaced several months afterward by Nicholas Sokoloff, was designated to carry the investigation through.

"Little by little" it was established who had committed the assassinations and how they had done it. Not far from Ekaterinburg the search-bodies had been dismembered and burned with the aid of sulfuric acid and gasoline.

Find Remains

"In a mine pit they found bits of charred clothing, fragments of bone and a ring finger which was later partially identified as that of the Empress.

"During the Kolchak government, Sokoloff continued his investigation despite the hostile attitude of certain ministers. He was assisted by General Dietrich until the general became commander-in-chief. I too, often furnished assistance.

Carry Away Remains

"In the autumn of 1919, when collapse of the government at Urmak became imminent, Sokoloff and I moved toward the east taking with us everything that he had discovered. He told that he wanted to reach Europe, and he traveled in a train protected by Allied troops. The next time I saw him was in March, 1920, at Harbin where General Dietrich, after resigning as commander-in-chief, had established headquarters in the general retreat.

"There was much uneasiness in the region and Dietrich told me he wanted to get the Romanoff remains into the possession of the Grand Duke Nicholas as quickly as possible. He had asked British representatives to take charge of this material, but they were refused when

HAS XMAS TREE FOR WILD BIRDS

They Repay Los Angeles Woman by Singing Carols for Her on Front Porch.

Los Angeles, Dec. 24.—(AP) Miss Mae Newomer has a Christmas tree for birds at her home here and they, in turn, are singing carols for her.

She dipped a small tree in melted suet mixed with nuts, seeds, popcorn and other tasty tidbits. When the mixture hardened on the boughs she placed the tree on her front porch.

She said today she already had had calls from blue jays, sicklebill and hermit thrushes, white, golden crown and song sparrows, linnets, Oregon and Anthony towhees, flickers, turtle doves, wrens and gold finches.

NEW YORK RAISES BIG RELIEF FUND

Nearly Two Million Dollars To Be Distributed Among the Poor of Metropolis.

New York, Dec. 24.—(AP)—New York's needy will find on Christmas morn that St. Nick has written them a check for more than $1,700,000.

Incomplete figures from seven agencies which have conducted campaigns for relief funds revealed today that $1,704,038 already had been contributed. The Salvation Army has received $1,207,833 from two sources alone.

The principal relief funds are:

Army-Navy football game (Salvation Army) $607,412
Women's Emergency Aid Committee (Salvation Army) $800,471
Times "Hundred Neediest Cases" $286,504
American Christmas and Relief Fund $174,854
Evening Post Old Couples' Fund and Entertainment $50,985
World Coal Fund $11,646
Daily News Good Fellow Fund $ 8,433

More than that, official New York and numerous charity organizations are planning gifts of food, clothing, fuel and entertainment. Mayor Walker's relief committee alone will present 30,000 cartons of food. The poor, the crippled, the blind, the jobless, the discouraged—all will know it's Christmas Day.

Washington, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The dancing eyes of a dozen children, Christmas carols, candlelight and bells, will climax one of the grandest Christmas eve parties ever planned by the Hoovers, big or little.

There will be of course, a huge Christmas tree in the spacious East room of the White House, many presents, music and a big dinner.

In the plans for the President's party to his grandchildren and the children of his secretaries and aides the big event has been placed last.

To Sing Carols

Then, if all goes well, the President and Mrs. Hoover, flanked by Peggy Ann Hoover, Herbert 3d and the other children, bearing candles and bells, will parade upstairs and down through a darkened White House, singing Christmas carols.

The Hoovers will begin their celebration even before the party, with Mrs. Hoover attending a mission house party and the President lighting a huge community tree outside the White House grounds. Still another celebration is planned for Christmas night when the Cabinet members and their children are invited.

Christmas Day the Hoover children must be content with the attention of their grandparents. Their mother Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr., expects to leave Washington tonight for Asheville, N. C., where her husband is recovering from illness. The President's other son Allan is at the White House.

REDISCOUNT RATE LOWEST IN WORLD

New York Federal Reserve Bank Announces 2 Per Cent; Confidence In Future

New York, Dec. 24.—(AP)—A rediscount rate of 2 per cent—the lowest in the history of the Federal Reserve System and the lowest in the world—went into effect in the New York Federal Reserve Bank today.

The announcement that the rate at which member banks might borrow had been cut from 2½ per cent was construed by newspapers as a stimulus to business revival and a mark of confidence in the nation's condition.

Constructive Move

Bankers were quoted as saying that the Federal Reserve's action in inviting member banks to avail themselves freely of its credit was the most constructive move possible in view of the widespread disturbances in the banking field.

In addition Wall Street opinionated the reduction would renew faith abroad. If the closing of two banks here had created distrust in the financial center, it was said, the Federal Reserve directors would have taken a different step.

NATION WIDE CAMPAIGN TO AID JOBLESS IS ON

From Coast To Coast Work Is Being Pushed To Give Jobs To the Idle At Once; Billions Now Available.

New York, Dec. 24.—(AP)—A five-billion dollar construction symphony of chisels on stone, air hammers on steel and pick and shovel on hard winter earth is the nation's road to unemployment.

Roads that ordinarily would wait for spring are pushing forward in a pay envelope drive over the face of the country and steel and brick are mounting skyward in municipalities, according to year-end reports compiled from all areas.

Nation-Wide Drive

Oil pipe lines are stretching from the southwest, new rails are gliding under the Texas sun and public works are dotting the states. At the same time, demands for immediate relief are being met with national, state, municipal and private aid.

The country is a network of commissions and committees pushing forward every bit of power work and preventing suffering among those who cannot work. A network begins with the President's emergency committee headed by Colonel Arthur Woods, and branches through the states and into the smallest of communities with relief organization.

Federal Plans

The Federal government plans $724,000,000 worth of building in the next twelve months and for immediate expenditure Congress has just appropriated $116,000,000, not including the $45,000,000 voted for drought relief.

L. Seth Echmittan, chief statistician for the F. W. Dodge Corporation, estimated that in addition there is now under way in the country construction totalling more than $4,700,000,000. This includes work in all stages.

New England is pouring $330,674,000 into pay envelopes and materials, the New York Metropolitan area $376,401,000 and New York upstate $178,757,000.

The unemployed are registered in Massachusetts. Maine has started ten state employment bureaus. Connecticut and New Hampshire are advancing spring public work to January and Vermont has a state committee at work.

SNOW SCATTERED OVER THE NATION

Only In Spots Will Landscape Have a Covering of Christmas Ermine This Year.

New York, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Only in spots will the Christmas landscape of the United States be blanched by snow.

Scranton, Pa., had nine inches of it today and Portland, Me., had four—the heaviest falls in a general snowstorm along the upper Atlantic seaboard which promised a white Christmas in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New England.

Some parts of the Middle West and the Great Lakes region had snow but it was scattered. In Chicago the ground was white. In metropolitan New York a fairly heavy fall continued but it melted almost as soon as it touched ground.

Snow flurries visited Montana, eastern Wyoming and much of Colorado, still covered by last Sunday's snow. Denver had a six-inch covering of Christmas ermine. The temperature in Yellowstone Park was four degrees above zero, in Denver 27, and in Albuquerque, N. M., 1.

The temperature in New York this forenoon was 30 degrees, in Chicago 19, in Kansas City 37.

WETS IN CONGRESS MAKING PROTESTS

Want Redistricting So That Rural Sections Will Not Get All the Representation

Washington, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Wets in Congress are seeking Congressional redistricting of every state affected by the new apportionment in the belief that elections of additional members from at large would cheat them of reinforcements.

Representative Cochran, Democrat of Missouri, said today he would use the House as a forum to amplify a plea he is preparing to make shortly after Congress reassembles. The redistricting must be done by each state.

"I mean to put the country on notice," Cochran says "that the new representation will be unfair to the populous centers if the delegations are elected at large."

In each of 22 states which lose representation under the new census effective with the 73d Congress the entire delegation will have to be elected at large unless redistricting is completed in time. Likewise in 11 states gaining representation.

Claims of Wets

The wets hold that they expected gains in rapidly growing cities would be reduced by dry tendencies of rural sections which have not gained population.

Representative Spruille, militant dry leader of Kansas said he had no doubt that redistricting will be carried out by the states immediately after March 4.

"The drys were asleep" Spruille added "when they passed the red apportionment bill. They voted for it when they should have opposed it. An amendment could have been effected to provide enumeration on the basis of citizenship."

NOBODY ARRESTED

New Britain, Dec. 24.—(AP)—When the judge, prosecutor and other members of the police court personnel reported on the job this morning they walked in and walked out again. The police court pen was as devoid of inhabitants as an Antarctic station. No arrests had been made in the past 24 hours so the judge, prosecutor, clerk and the rest of them went along to do belated Christmas shopping.

BIG SNOWFALL ASSURES REAL CHRISTMAS AIR

Yuletide Spirit Enhanced By White Blanket—Churches Plan Annual Programs; Needy Well Cared For.

Another snowfall today when rain was predicted assures a white Christmas tomorrow. The eight-inch fall of yesterday was added to today when more snow came down starting soon after five o'clock this morning. The previous storm continued through 13 hours.

Christmas atmosphere prevails throughout the town. To add to the Yuletide spirit two church organizations will visit homes of shut-ins tomorrow morning singing Christmas carols. The Salvation Army band and the Swedish Lutheran church choir will bring happiness into the homes of many who are unable to leave their homes.

Hospital Program

The Swedish choir will go to the Memorial hospital for a carol program at 7 o'clock in the morning and in the afternoon the children's choir from the same church will also sing to help bring cheer and goodwill to persons unable to leave the hospital for Christmas.

There will be special Christmas exercises in many of the church Sunday schools this evening and tomorrow morning long before daybreak the Swedish Lutheran and Swedish Congregational churches will hold their annual Julettas service starting at 5:30 and lasting until after sunrise. The Zion Lutheran church will have a special morning worship at 8:30.

Catholic Masses

Both St. James' and St. Bridget's Roman Catholic churches will have special masses tomorrow morning as Christmas is a holy day of obligation in the Roman Catholic church. At St. James' masses will be held at 6 o'clock, 8:30 and 10:30. The 8:30 services will be low masses and the other high masses. His chief will be celebrated at St. Bridget's church at 6 o'clock and at 10 o'clock.

The Polish National Church at the north end will hold a special midnight mass starting at 10 o'clock this evening. The Salvation Army Band following its march tomorrow morning will return to the city for a special Christmas service. At St. Mary's holy communion will take place at 8 o'clock and at 10:45 the regular Christmas morning service. At the Concordia Lutheran the 10 o'clock service tomorrow morning will be in English and the 11 o'clock service in German. At all of the churches there will be special music for the occasion and Christmas carols will be sung.

Sports

The sports program for Christmas is featured by a double-header basketball game to be played tomorrow night at the East Side Recreation Center.

BETHLEHEM READY FOR CEREMONIES

Roads Thronged With Pilgrims and Tourists For Midnight Mass Tonight.

Bethlehem, Palestine, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The roads into this little city were crowded today with a throng in striking contrast with that which filed along the dusty highways 1930 years ago.

On that far day all the descendants of the Tribe of David, including Joseph and Mary, were trudging here to pay the tax exacted of all the world by the mighty Caesar Augustus.

Today's crowd came largely in automobiles and to pay, not a tax but a tribute to the child who was born here on the first Christmas day.

Colorful Ceremony

The most colorful of today's events was the arrival of Jerusalem of the patriarch Louis Barlassina who led a procession escorted by police outriders. He went immediately to the Church of the Nativity which stands on the traditional site of the humble shed where Christ was born to inspect the golden throne upon which he will tonight preparatory to conducting a solemn high midnight mass.

The fields about the church, across which the Wise Men came to find fulfillment of their vision under a guiding star, were crowded with devout pilgrims and sightseers and many American tourists, all intent upon witnessing the celebration ushering in Christmas Day.

The weather was overcast with occasional showers, but through the clouds a quarter moon peeped as though in promise of a fair Christmas.

DANAHER PROTESTS NAMING OF HINCKES

Says Democratic Committee Backed Him For United States Judge For Conn.

Meriden, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Attorney C. Danaher, whose correspondence with Senators Bingham and Norris relative to the appointment of Carroll C. Hincks of Waterbury as a United States judge for Connecticut, has just been aired in the public press started today.

"My quarrel is not with Mr. Hincks, whom I consider a fine man, but the system of appointment," Attorney Danaher stated today.

"As father of far other outstanding candidate for the position I am necessarily forced to confine my remarks. If it was anyone other than my son who had been considered for the judgeship I would feel free to talk and tell much that I must now leave unsaid.

Held No Hearing

"A committee of the Connecticut Bar Association, which had no power to act, recommended Mr. Hincks without holding a hearing and received, so far as I know, absolutely no information regarding the qualifications of either candidate. This committee, mind you, was predominantly Democratic. Attorney Danaher was not Hincks' choice but some one else's and Senator Bingham well knows who that 'someone else' is.

"I cannot see why a Republican senator during a Republican Administration should accept as final the recommendation of such a committee without a searching investigation.

Urges Comparison

"Comparison of the list of sponsors of both men would show much."

As stated in his telegram to Senator Norris, Chairman of the Senate's judiciary committee which will report on the President's recommendation of Mr. Hincks, Attorney Danaher intimated that the man named has strong backing of Public Utility's counsel.

It is understood that John A. Danaher's sponsors for the judgeship include Attorney General-elect Warren B. Burrows, whose retirement from the Federal judgeship made vacant the office now contested by Hartlow, Attorney George E. Case of New York, Attorney Charles W. Fay of New York, President Hutchins of Chicago University, U. S. Attorney John Buckley, Judge Larkin and Judge McGrath of Waterbury, Attorney William F. Healy of Derby, State Treasurer-elect Roy C. Wilcox of Meriden and Senator Frederick C. Wolcott.

Mr. Danaher stated that he would not go to Washington to attend any hearings but felt that his correspondence with Senators Bingham, Wolcott and Norris was sufficient to explain to them his opinions and that if the facts were to be brought before the committee, Washington had sufficient information on which to proceed.

THROWS OUT MAN

Police found tracks of another machine alongside the abandoned car. They expressed the opinion that the gunman was joined by his accomplice where the machine was abandoned and transferred to another car.

The bandit and his accomplice, police believe, had determined the time of the payroll's arrival at the plant and preceded Ordzako and Kern into the factory. As Ordzako alighted from the machine, the gunner crept behind the state man, who is believed to have seen, stepped into the open and started firing. Ordzako, mortally wounded, dropped to the ground.

Throws Out Man

After dropping of Ordzako, the gunman stepped on the running board of the automobile and opened fire on Kern, who had remained in the machine with the payroll. The bandit then threw the wounded man out of the machine and escaped.

Before the shooting police believe that the gunman partly closed the yard gates to prevent the escape of either of his victims. The bandit backed the car into the gates twice before battering them down.

Kern, although losing blood rapidly, staggered into the factory and spread the alarm. He collapsed in the building after he had hurtled to a foreman: "Hurry, hurry, they've grabbed the payroll."

Ordzako was killed when he reached home. He died enroute to the New Haven hospital.

Police found a bullet embedded in the cushion of the abandoned machine and two empty shells.

Describe Guman

Kern upon regaining consciousness at the hospital, told police that the gunman was about 24 years old and about six feet tall. He had a dark complexion and wore a blue overcoat and slouch hat. Kern said he had never seen the man before.

Ordzako who leaves a widow and four children had been employed at the factory for 25 years. Kern has been chief clerk at the factory for the past 15 years.

Ordzako is a first cousin of John Frato of Spruce street, this town, and was a recent visitor with his relatives here.

CHRISTMAS CHEER FOR ALL ASSURED

Needy Families Well Taken Care of This Year By Emergency Organization.

Christmas cheer in the form of food, clothing, footwear and toys, will soon be on its way to the 144 needy families in Manchester. A force of helpers under the direction of Town Treasurer George Waddell and Miss Jessie Reynolds are busy today assembling, checking and tying an entire roomful of bundles destined to bring happiness to nearly 150 homes in town which would otherwise be cheerless and gloomy.

Warm Clothing
While willing workers are busy at their work of assembling the gifts of clothing, food and toys, Old Man Winter again spreads a blanket of white, as double assurance of an old-fashioned Christmas season. But in many homes children will play out of doors Christmas morning, their feet encased in new shoes and rubbers; arctic and their bodies protected against the chilling winds of a real New England winter, in prospect at least.

The fathers and mothers have not been forgotten. A thorough check of the needs of the many families has been made by the seemingly tireless welfare workers, and on Christmas morning joy will reign in place of sadness and forlorn hope resulting from the heaviest industrial depression in many years.

Fund Over $2,700
The Christmas Community Fund today totaled $2,747, and when returns are made on the St. Mary's Young Men's Club charity dance and the Beethoven Glee Club charity concert, the combined proceeds of which are estimated at over $600, the fund will be in excess of the quota of $3,000 and will provide additional means with which to carry on the work of the committee throughout the winter months. A hundred dollars of the total was the amount of the collection lifted at the Vesper Service at the South Methodist church Sunday afternoon.

Due to the great need this year the committee has decided to function as a permanent body and will be active all winter. Contributions to the fund may be made to Albert Knotha, of the Lions Club, who is treasurer of the committee. A great part of the fund will, of course, be used to spread Christmas cheer tomorrow but the amount that remains and future contributions will be used to provide needed cheer the winter long.

The Committee
The Christmas Community Fund committee consists of: George H. Waddell, chairman; Albert F. Knotha, treasurer; E. J. McCabe, secretary, and the following representatives of town organizations: Cham-Cham of Commerce, William B. Halsted, Ray J. Stuart, Neil and James P. McCaw; Kiwanis Club, Fayette B. Clarke, Charles Huber and L. N. Heebner; Lions Club, George H. Williams, Dr. M. E. Moriarty and Albert Knotha; Social Service Committee, Mrs. D. M. Caldwell, Mrs. R. J. Smith and Mrs. G. A. F. Lundberg.

All Co-operate
The true facts were made known and every organization capable of entering into the work was asked to co-operate in the plan of bringing cheer to the ever-increasing number of families, many of whom had found themselves, for the first time in actual want.

A fine spirit of brotherly love and interest was immediately manifested, and food, clothing and miscellaneous contributions were brought to the Municipal storehouse following the Thanksgiving contributions to 92 families. A food and vegetable storehouse was opened in the office of the Connecticut Company through the generosity of that company which has been receiving steady contributions from individuals, stores and from various other sources.

All Will Be Happy
Manchester is indeed fortunate in having those public-spirited people and groups who, in the time of emergency, respond wholeheartedly to a demand of this kind. The natural reward expected in this respect will be in knowing that if parents and kiddies alike have been made happy, when all the world is happy about them, that, indeed will be sufficient.

A REAL GLAZZY STARE

White Plains, N. Y., Dec. 24.—(AP)—The scene was City Court. Marion Wilkenwitz, chauffeur, was on trial for driving an automobile while intoxicated.

Patrolman R. V. Cunningham on the stand, deposed: "He had a glazy stare in his eye."

"It was this glazy stare that made you think he was drunk?" asked defense counsel.

"Yes," replied counsel, "as a matter of fact Wilkenwitz has a glass eye."

It developed it was this eye the patrolman had in mind when he arrested Wilkenwitz for passing a traffic light. Decision was reserved.

Claims of publishers notwithstanding, the most popular book for Christmas is dad's check book.

ARMORED AUTO CATCHES FIRE FROM SHORT CIRCUIT

Little Damage Done, However, Although Driver Burns Hand Putting It Out.

The armored car of the Brinks Express Company, which makes collections daily at the local Atlantic and Pacific Company stores, was held up on Main street shortly after 9:30 o'clock this morning—the hold-up being caused when an electric wire under the cowl short circuited and caught fire. An alarm was rung in from Box 441 at Main and Park streets but in the meantime the driver of the truck tore out the wires from beneath the dash, extinguishing the flame.

The alarm brought out Companies 2, 3 and 4 but nothing remained to be done when they arrived. One of the trucks of No. 3 skidded when turning the corner of Spruce and Birch streets, breaking off the rear right wheel as the rear end crashed into the curb. No one on the truck was injured. The driver of the armored car, who refused to be named, hurried to the scene with a fire extinguisher and a fire hose, and was seen by the burning wires. Collections were held up for some length of time as aid was summoned from Hartford.

CHRISTMAS WREATHS STOLEN FROM GRAVES

One Man Reports Two Out of Five He Placed In Cemetery Have Been Taken.

William Hewitt of Florence street who has the care of several different graves in the East Cemetery, has found that two of five evergreen wreaths that he had placed on graves over which he has the care have been stolen. The five were left on the graves one day this week and it was but a short time after that he had occasion to visit the cemetery and found that two of the wreaths had been stolen.

NO RECEIVERSHIPS FOR KINGSTON UNITS

Hartford, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Acting on advice from the attorney general, Bank Commissioner Lester E. Shippee announced today that he will not take receivership action against the Connecticut Trading Corporation and the Connecticut Utility Corporation, units of F. E. Kingston & Company, brokerage firm closed by Mr. Shippee recently. Mr. Shippee said he has been advised by the attorney general that these two corporations are outside his jurisdiction since as holding companies their operations do not come within the fraud act. The officers and directors of the Connecticut Trading Corporation, John H. Reid, Frank H. Smith and Edmund J. Grandahl, will face trial for alleged perjury in connection with the selling of certificates of the corporation with the secretary of state. The trio are alleged to have sworn falsely that they paid in the necessary $55,000 in cash which they were to begin business.

DANCE HALL IS RAIDED WHILE HELPING NEEDY

Terryville, Conn., Dec. 24.—(AP)—The Connecticut Blue Laws were invoked to convict Joseph Faith of Terryville of operating a dance on Sunday in the Justice Court here this morning. Justice of the Peace William Tuttle fined Faith $25 and costs and remitted $10. An appeal to the Superior Court was entered.

The charge was preferred against Mr. Faith by two state policemen who raided his dance hall on Sunday night while a benefit for the town's needy was being staged under the auspices of the local American Legion Post.

A charge of breach of peace was nolleed when the justice refused to accept the evidence against Mr. Faith as justifying conviction on this charge.

Prosecutor Janway Hill, Grand Juror of the town of Plymouth, in which Terryville is located, testified that the 1935 statute book repeats the old "blue law" forbidding open sports on Sunday and classed dancing as an "open sport." Two state policemen from the Beacon Falls barracks testified to the fact of the dance being held.

they asked authority from their government."

It was then, General Janin wrote, that General Dieckrich asked him to take charge of the relics and he accepted out of his own friendship for the czar.

"Dieckrich," the letter continued, "brought me three valises containing documents and various other objects in the night. It was dark and he said it had seemed to him and to those who accompanied him that they had been discovered and followed. The next day he brought me a fourth valise, said to speak more exactly a strong box containing human remains."

message was received, is expected to reach the Jameson about noon and make an attempt to pull her into deep water. The passenger steamer Dorchester also was reported in the vicinity of the stranded vessel and could be called upon in an emergency.

Keeping in Touch.
Commander R. L. Jack of the Fort Lauderdale Coast Guard base said he expected to keep in radio communication with the patrol boat Perry and would be advised of the progress in attempting to free the Jameson.

Messages intercepted here said the Jameson was hard aground but would need no assistance until the patrol boat arrived.

The Jameson was forced to use its emergency radio equipment, however.

Alert Masan, lighthouse keeper at Gilbert's Bar, said the vessel was stranded about a mile or two south of St. Lucie inlet, but appeared to be in no danger.

The Jameson, built at Newcastle, England, in 1924, has a gross tonnage of 3,585 and is owned by the Keye Steam Navigation Company. Her home port is London.

FOOD SEIZED IN RAID IS SENT TO THE POOR

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Federal prohibition officers in Arkansas were playing Santa Claus today with the unwilling aid of liquor distillers hereabouts.

The charitable role was assumed by virtue of an order signed by Federal Judge John E. Martineau of the eastern Arkansas district, which directed the officers to deliver to relief agencies "any food for human consumption" seized in liquor raids.

Hiram Sutterfield, deputy prohibition administrator, last night sent 600 pounds of sugar, a bushel of potatoes, a sack of wheat bran and four cans of condensed milk to the Little Rock Chapter of the Red Cross.

The food was seized in a raid on a distillery near here yesterday.

Judge Martineau said the suggestion for distributing confiscated foodstuff to relief agencies came from Amos W. Woodcock, Federal prohibition director.

CLOTHES TWELVE GUESTS FOR A CHRISTMAS FEAST

Pittsburgh, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Twelve men will sit at Christmas feast with the Rev. James R. Cox in the Parish House of old St. Patrick's church here tomorrow.

The board will be heaped high with turkey, cranberry sauce and all the other good things of a Christmas dinner. The guests will be clad in new garments, and there will be nothing to indicate they are other than prosperous men, accustomed to a feast such as that before them.

They are not Father Cox's parishioners. They are destitute men, unemployed, and some homeless. But for the bounty of their host, they might be facing the prospect of a little soup and a crust of bread on Christmas day.

Father Cox's guests were selected by lot from a group of more than 1,200 men who were fed at the church yesterday. They received new, warm clothing today as gifts from the priest.

NO HERALD TOMORROW

No edition of The Herald will be issued tomorrow, Christmas Day. We extend heartiest greetings to all our readers.

ABOUT TOWN

The members of Troop 1, Girl Scouts, will meet Friday evening at 7:30 at the home of their captain at 54 Chestnut street for a Christmas party. Each member is supposed to bring a ten-cent gift.

The condition of Maurice T. Quish of 88 Benton street is still serious. There has been no material change since he was brought home from Hartford hospital a few days ago.

The Grezel-Johnson Co. of 1 Purnell Place offered a Philco Baby Grand Radio to the person who turned in the best slogan pertaining to their business. This contest has been open for the past six weeks and the award goes to Fred S. Anthony of 42 Delmont street for the slogan "Right Products, Right Service, Right Away." The set will be installed today in time for Christmas.

Austin Beecher is home from the University of Maine where he is a student.

In an effort to get the streets sanded after the storm last night, there was hardly a full supply of sand with the result that several of the side streets leading on to Main street did not get the coating that was needed. This resulted in many falls, but there were none of serious consequence reported.

Little & McKinney, flour and feed dealers, loaned one of their trucks and a driver to distribute baskets of good things to some of the town's needy families.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Hale of 372 Main street are spending Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Post of Westport, Conn.

Clarence H. Anderson, local insurance agent, will spend the Christmas holidays with his parents in Plainville.

Miss Helen Berggren, will known local contralto, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Berggren of Linden street. Miss Berggren is now employed in Chicago, Ill.

A. F. Greenough, of Los Angeles, Calif., who is a member of the Manchester Neckwear Company, and will be that firm's Pacific coast representative, is spending the Christmas holiday with Mr. and Mrs. J. Clarke Baker of 87 Comstock Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Allen, of New York City, are spending the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. J. Clarke Baker of 87 Comstock Road.

BASEBALL PLAYER IS PARDONED

Columbus, O., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Clifford W. (Tacks) Lattimer, former big league baseball player, received a Christmas pardon from Ohio penitentiary today from Governor Cooper. Lattimer was serving a life sentence for second degree murder.

Lattimer had been cited a hero in a break of 13 members of the notorious Company K, "the prison bad boys," November 8, 1928, when he seized a gun and went to the aid of the guards. Officials said he saved the life of Miss Amanda Thomas, daughter of the warden, by shielding her with the gun.

Lattimer, a former member of the New York Giants, Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds baseball teams, was admitted to the penitentiary January 7, 1925, for slaying Charles E. Mackrodt, a fellow officer on a railroad police force.

Prizefighters may not believe in Christmas, but many of them make it a practice to hang on after a couple of socks.

44 AT THE HOSPITAL FOR CHRISTMAS DAY

Open House To Be Observed and Everything Possible Will Be Done To Make Patients Happy.

An unusually large number of persons will have to remain in the Manchester Memorial hospital over Christmas either through illness or recent injuries suffered through accidents but everything possible will be done to make them as happy and content as possible. Hospital authorities announced today that "open house" will be kept tomorrow which means that friends and relatives of the patients will be permitted to call any time during the day and early hours of the evening.

The hospital has been prettily decorated with numerous small Christmas trees all lighted up with various colored electric light bulbs. Christmas wreaths also hang in all of the windows, these being donated. The Board of Trustees has received word from Santa Claus that he will park his reindeers on Haynes street long enough to deliver a present to each of the patients as well as all of the employees.

There will be a special menu tomorrow for Christmas dinner and in many other smaller ways, everything will be done to add to the cheer of those not fortunate enough to be home with their families. Barring later admissions or unexpected discharges, there will be 44 patients in the hospital Christmas Day. This is much greater than usual as patients always try to go home for Christmas if possible.

Among those who were discharged today are Miss Marion Buck of South Main street, Miss Nora Shea of Hartford Road, William Reid of 21 Cedar street, Mrs. Jerry Bouthout of Adams street, Mrs. Horace Riskey of Highland Park and Howard Thornton of 412 East Center street.

Included in the list of those admitted were three women who have either broken legs or arms as a result of falling because of the slippery snow. They are Mrs. James Beattie of Riverside Drive, Manchester, who slipped walking on the main highway near the Manchester Green school and broke two bones in her left leg above the ankle; Mrs. Robert Rogers of 12 Cross street, who fell crossing from Park to Chestnut streets at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and broke her right arm between the elbow and the shoulder; and Mrs. Michael DeSimone of 139 Birch street who also fell on the slippery sidewalk this morning on Birch street while on her way to work at Cheney Brothers.

A fighter was born last night to Mr. and Mrs. Frank DeCiantis of 45 North street.

THINK DEAD PILOT WAS RUNNING RUM

Chicago, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Coroner John Foster of Michigan City continued his investigation today into the death of Bert J. Roesch, air pilot, who was burned to death yesterday when his airplane crashed into a snowstorm near New Carlisle, Ind.

The body was identified by the father, Joseph Roesch, of Chicago, but he knew nothing as to their son's occupation beyond the fact that he was a pilot. Reports that Roesch was running rum from Canada to Chicago remained unsubstantiated beyond the fact that three liquor bottles, were found in the wreckage.

Coroner Foster said these hardly could have been in transport from Canada to Chicago as Roesch was traveling east when he crashed.

Roesch was known to fellow pilots as "Kennedy." Identification was made through trinkets on the charred body.

REJUVENATION

A young man took his girl friend for an automobile ride and the car broke down. While waiting for help, the young man began to make love and said: "My kisses will put new life into you."

"Then for goodness sake," she replied, "kiss the car and let's get home."—Tit-Bits.

NEW HOLD-UP GAME

Los Angeles, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The latest labor saving method employed by holdup men here is to have their victims walk into the trap. The racket is being worked in this manner: "A For Rent" sign is torn from a vacant furnished house. Several second-hand furniture dealers are invited to come at once and bid on the furnishings. They are ushered in, robbed and stowed away in a closet.

Four dealers obliged the languid thieves yesterday.

DEDICATE AETNA LIFE HOME NEW YEAR DAY

Structure Is Magnificent Monument To Colonial History — Designed By James Gamble Rogers.

Hartford, Dec. 24.—With the dedication of the eight million dollar home office of the Aetna Life and its Affiliated Companies here New Year's Day, New England will have a new monument to her glorious Colonial history and traditions.

The edifice is of Colonial New England architecture and is the largest building in the world to employ that archaic style. James Gamble Rogers, its architect who is famous as the designer of the Medical Center in New York City and of the Harkness Memorial Quadrangle at Yale, took his inspiration from the old Connecticut State Capitol, one of the few large examples of the architecture prevalent in New England in colonial days.

"Heretofore architects have thought it impractical to apply the Colonial treatment to buildings of gigantic proportions," Mr. Rogers declared. "It took over a year to work out the building on blue prints. It required adapting the requirements of a modern office building to the architectural details of the early Colonial style."

The building front is 650 feet long and six stories high. In the center it is surrounded by a colonnade of two stories which in turn is surrounded by a golden cordon. Classical columned porticos adorn each end.

Many of the offices have been decorated in the Colonial fashion, the executive floor immediately beneath the cupola is a perfect reproduction of a colonial home, even to a reception hall furnished with New England antiques.

The board room is the dining table Thomas Jefferson used at Monticello. It is surrounded by Chippendale chairs. Next to it is a small dining-room with paneled walls and ceiling of oak paneled wood.

The dead woman at various times was an organizer and chairman of the National Council on Limitations of Armaments, executive secretary of the League of Free Nations Society and a leading figure in the League of Women Voters.

The General Grant sequoia is 264 feet high and stands at an elevation of about 8,000 feet. Its diameter at the base is more than 40 feet and it measures 106 feet in circumference.

The ceremonies will be under the auspices of the National Christmas Tree Association.

Tokyo, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The arrival here of Y. Hui-Shan, former Chinese war lord, was reported today in a Dairen dispatch to Rengo News Agency.

Monument to Colonial New England

The glories of Colonial New England architecture are embodied in the new home office building of the Aetna Life and its affiliated companies at Hartford, Conn. (above) which will be dedicated January 1. James Gamble Rogers, its distinguished architect who is also responsible for the Harkness Memorial Quadrangle at Yale, declares it is the largest Colonial building in the world.

Lower left is shown the Thomas Jefferson table once in the dining room at Monticello. It has been used by the Aetna directors for more than a quarter of a century. In the new building it is a directors' room that resembles a Colonial drawing room. The table and the Chippendale chairs grouped around it are almost priceless antiques.

LIKENS UNIVERSE TO A SOAP BUBBLE

British Scientist Says It Is Swelling and Will Keep On Swelling For Centuries.

London, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The universe in which we live was likened to a fragile soap bubble by Sir James Jeans, famous British scientist, in a radio lecture broadcast last night.

"It is easy to blow a soap bubble," he said, "but far less easy to keep it in existence more than a minute or two—after that it is apt suddenly to burst and disappear. I hope I shall not startle you too much if I say that it has been discovered quite recently that the universe is something like that. As soon as the universe came into existence it started swelling and must go on expanding."

Christmas in Hawaii Unusual Celebration

Miss Marjorie Keith Who Has Recently Returned From Honolulu Describes the Ceremony—Interesting Sidelights On the Customs On Mid-Pacific Islands.

In the land of the ukulele, the lei and the beautiful Aloha-oe, the farewell song of the Pacific, the Christmas observance is much the same as in our United States. Instead of the snow and cold weather the city of Honolulu is ablaze with blue, green and gold of tropical flowers in place of the snowflakes of our more northerly climes. A white Christmas in Honolulu is only a memory. But for all the wide variance in the climate, the many nationalities composing the population of Honolulu are as eager for Christmas to come as in any other country.

Miss Marjorie Keith

No Christmas Weather
The calendar alone gives indication that the Yule-tide is again approaching, unless by a marvelous stretch of the imagination one can envision the Kanaka, or native islander, surf-boat in the role of a temperate-zone toboggan.
Miss Marjorie Keith, who has recently returned from Honolulu after two years spent as a social worker in Queen's Hospital, Honolulu, is very enthusiastic over life and living in the "Paradise of the Pacific" and gives Herald readers some interesting sidelights on the customs and observances in those mid-Pacific Isles.

IOLANI PAGEANT MAGNIFICENT SIGHT
"ONE OF THE most interesting sights at Christmas time in Honolulu is the Iolani Palace Pageant," said Miss Keith seen at her home, 19 Lewis street yesterday. "Honolulu is composed of many Nationalities, Chinese, Japanese, Portuguese, Filipinos and other races including a large number of Americans and other white people. The streets of Honolulu are full of children, as the Japanese and Chinese of Hawaii have large families. One of the junior High Schools of Honolulu has 1,700 students, and there are several others nearly as large."
"The first impression one has on entering Honolulu is the dress of the children, the Chinese and Japanese children playing on the lawns in the native costume of their own countries—kimonos."

Happy Youngsters
The nappy youngsters of the Hawaiian island group are in many respects the same as our own. They love sports, especially the Chinese and Japanese. They play baseball, football and tennis and one of the features of the athletic world this past season was the barefoot Hawaiian football team. How they ever manage to kick a football with bare feet is a mystery.
"The Iolani Palace Christmas Pageant is a beautiful sight," said Miss Keith. "The Christmas story is told each year in the old Queen Liliuokalani Palace, in the center of the city at night. I saw it in 1928 and it was a beautiful sight, indeed. The performers portrayed the pageant of the Nativity against the background of palace arches. The tropical moon and stars made the setting one long to be remembered. The Royal Hawaiian Band played the Christmas music for the pageant."

CHRISTMAS SPECTACLE HELD EACH YEAR
THE Christmas spectacle held each year in front of the Iolani Palace with crowds of people, representing many nationalities, mostly Oriental, attired in their native costumes would indeed be an unusual and picturesque sight for New Englanders to witness. The towering palms on the spacious palace ground waving gently in the Northeast trades; the kimonoed Japanese standing beside the native Hawaiian, dressed in the characteristic "ahoioka," the loose-fitting cotton garment with sleeves reaching from neck to feet; the sleek-haired Chinese in black pajamas; the "haole" white person watching the age-old pageant of the Nativity and all singing in unison, "O Little Town of Bethlehem." Peace On Earth, Good Will To Men" is universal.
Christmas Carols
Throughout the entire pageant, which is made more beautiful because it is portrayed from the upper verandas of the famous palace, the assemblage joins in singing the Christmas carols of the old composers. Christmas carries the universal spirit to all nations—the setting alone is different.
Miss Keith's work as a social worker in Queen's Hospital, Honolulu, lulu, brought her in contact with many of the families receiving treatment in that institution. She admits the native kanakas are a happy, pleasant and courteous people, living in harmony and contentment in one of the noted "melting pots" of the world—Honolulu. They have glorious days in Hawaii; glorious nights under the South Pacific moon and Southern Cross and by and through their personality and musical natures and historical background they have called to these island shores people from all parts of the globe.

CHRISTMAS IN HAWAII
"You ask—Christmas in Hawaii? Have you even seen the snow, Over hills and fields and valleys Wherever you might go? With the ice and slush and cold fogs Overwhelming all the land; Wrapping in its brutal mantle Everything on every hand? Well, there's none in fair Hawaii, Where the grass and flowers grow— Where there's naught but clear, warm sunshine, And the weather's not a foe. Where we live a life of comfort And there's not a thing to fear; Where our Christmas day is sunny Warm and fraught with happy cheer."

pressed in a unique and distinctive manner by these Pacific Island people, for on the departure of the big line, the Royal Hawaiian Band assemblies at the dock and plays that unforgettable refrain, expressive of sorrow of these people at the hour of parting. The world now sings the Hawaiian farewell song: Aloha-Oe Proudly sweeps the rain-cloud o'er the cliff Borne swiftly by the western gale, While the songs of lovers parting Sully echoes amid the flowering vale. Farewell to thee, farewell to thee! The winds will carry back my sad refrain; One fond embrace before we say good-bye Until we meet again.

AMERICANS IN DANGER
Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—The state government at Paris today was reported to have requisitioned a Pan-American airways plane to "rescue Americans at the Ford concession." No details were available here.
Dispatches received at Rio de Janeiro last night said a band of Cayapo Indians had invaded the village of Cardoso in northern Para killing 21 persons and carrying three children into the jungles.
The state government sent 30 soldiers from Para but because of transportation difficulties it was not believed that they could reach Cardoso in less than eight days.

NEW BONDS ORDERED FOR BANK OFFICIALS

Hartford, Dec. 24.—(AP)—New bonds of $5,000 each were ordered today by Judge Edwin C. Dickenson in the Superior Court in the cases of the officials of the Connecticut Trading Company, a subsidiary of F. E. Kingston and Company of this city. The three officers, John E. Reid of West Hartford, president; Frank H. Smith of West Haven, vice president and treasurer, and Edmund J. Grandahl, of Hartford, secretary, are charged with perjury by the State's attorney, in certifying that the full amount of $55,000 cash capital of the trading company was paid in.
Mr. Reid and Mr. Grandahl were served with bench warrants last Friday for appearance today, and Mr. Smith came in today in answer to a bench warrant. The three were represented by Attorney Charles Martin of New Haven, and upon his request a tentative date for hearing these cases was set for January 27 by Judge Dickenson. The bonds of $5,000 each, furnished today, were by Arthur C. Peterson of West Hartford for Mr. Reid, by Joseph Cudemo of Hartford for Mr. Smith, and by Edward J. Dahill of Hartford for Mr. Grandahl.

BOLTON

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Bolton have had steam heat and running water installed in their home. Elwood Walker of Manchester Green did the work. Mr. Walker also installed the steam heat in J. W. and Clement Sumner's house some time ago.
Miss Edith Maxwell of South Manchester visited her niece Mrs. David Toomey this week.
The Ladies society gave the Sunday school children a Christmas party Thursday afternoon. The table was decorated with Christmas candies, Christmas favors and a huge Christmas pie in the center with a gift for every child inside of it from the Sunday school. The menu consisted of scalloped oysters, scalloped potatoes, salad, rolls, jellies, milk, in cream. After the banquet every child pulled their ribbon which was at their place with place cards and received their gifts. There were twenty-four children present. At the close Winifred Lee presented Mrs. Frederick Taylor with a basket of fruit from the Sunday school. Mrs. Thomas Bentley in behalf of the Ladies society presented Rev. Frederick Taylor with a five dollar gold piece. The committees that were appointed were as follows: hostesses, Miss Lavenia Fries; decorating committee, Mrs. Thomas Bentley, Mrs. Arthur Merrill, Mrs. Miss Annie Alvord, Mrs. Elsie Jones; ice cream, Mrs. Edna Sumner; decorating hall, Miss Annie Alvord. Special mention is due Miss Annie Alvord for getting the hall ready.
The Grange held their meeting last evening and the program was in charge of the past Lecturers and was as follows: A skit by Mrs. Hazel Hutchinson and Thomas Daily, Jr. Three tableaux "Patrons of Husbandry," "Gleaners," under the direction of Miss Lydia Young. Games were supervised by Mrs. Elsie Jones. Waffles and coffee were served. Mrs. Hazel Hutchinson, Mrs. Viva Massay, and Mrs. Elsie Jones were waffles.

Next week Friday night is the Christmas program for Grange and their children. Each Granger is asked to bring a gift to be exchanged. The exchange committee will attend to the gifts for the children.
The Friendly Girls and other members of the choir were entertained at the parsonage this week. Carols were practised for the Christmas morning service. Cocoa, sandwiches, cake and cookies were served.
Miss Elizabeth Rose of Mt. Holyoke College is spending her Christmas vacation at the home of her brother, George Rose, in West Hartford. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Griswold, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Lawton of Hartford visited at their places Sunday.

STATE HIGHWAYS SPEEDILY FREED OF SLUSHY SNOW

Macdonald Says Fall Handled Easily — Precautions Taken Against Ice Conditions.
Despite the weight of yesterday's snow, the fall was of the type which handles most easily, and little difficulty was encountered by the forces of the state highway department in clearing the roads. Commissioner John A. Macdonald stated today. The fact that all snow fighting equipment had been placed in first class condition and in readiness for instant use early in the fall was also a contributory factor, he stated, in the rapidity with which the highway network was cleared.
Immediately following the completion of the snow removal work, precautions were taken against the probable development of ice conditions on the roads. Crews with loaders trucks were dispatched to scatter sand on the curves and grades and upon the approaches to railway grade crossings. This work was continued throughout the evening until the roads were safe for normally cautious motor vehicle operation even though a spell of freezing should follow the rapid thaw. Sanding operations will be continued until the snow has disappeared.
The snow fighting crews manned the department's two hundred trucks, equipped with plows and brushes, at six o'clock yesterday morning and by six o'clock in the evening had been over all of the state's two thousand miles of highway two times, pushing the snow clear of the pavements and shoulders.
The storm developed no drifting in any part of the state, so that speedy removal of the fall was readily accomplished. Reports coming into the Hartford headquarters from the superintendents of the various department divisions showed that the snow had varied in depth from four to seven inches with the greatest depth found on the roads in Litchfield County.

THEATERS

PARSONS' HARTFORD
"Scarlet Sister Mary"
Ethel Barrymore, foremost English-speaking actress, will appear under the management of Lee Shubert in "Scarlet Sister Mary," the play made by Daniel Reed from the novel by Julia Peterkin, in Parsons Theater in Hartford for three days only beginning on Monday night, January 12, with a matinee on Wednesday. This occasion also marks the first appearance here of her daughter, Ethel Barrymore Colt, representative of the ninth generation of the Barrymore-Drew family on the stage.
"Scarlet Sister Mary" is the story of the extraordinary race of Gullah Negroes who live on the coastland of South Carolina and upper Georgia. They are unlike any other colored people in this country. The novel won the Pulitzer prize in 1929. This is the first time Miss Barrymore has appeared in the role of a Negro. She considers it one of the finest characters she has ever acted. The play has aroused much discussion wherever it has been seen. A company of fifty players, including a group of Negro singers support the star. Mail orders will now be received.

STRANGLED TO DEATH
Chicago, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Strangled to death, the body of Miss Mary Jenkins, 20, was found in an apartment last night, a silk scarf around the neck.
Jack Antrim, who shared the apartment with the woman, was arrested for questioning. He attributed the death to thieves, declaring a radio had been stolen.
Further mystery was added by a physician who said the girl had suffered from an internal gopher and that it was possible that the growth caused strangulation.

ROCKVILLE

Tuomi Sent to Jail
Emil Tuomi of 38 Brooklyn street was before Judge John E. Fisk in the Rockville police court on Tuesday morning charged with assault with a battery. He was sentenced to jail for ninety days and fined $39.23, including costs. He was taken to jail. Tuomi was arrested on Sunday night by police officer Richard Shea when he struck his housekeeper, Miss Annie Sobak.
Tuomi has been in police court on two previous occasions during the past year and served time in jail.

Boys' Band Holds Party
The Rockville Boys' Band held a merry Christmas party following the regular band rehearsal on Monday night in the athletic rooms on East Main street. The refreshments of ice cream and fancy cakes were donated through the kindness of David A. Sykes, who has taken much interest in the work of the band.
Walter Schmeiske acted as master of ceremonies during the evening and in behalf of the boys presented Henry N. Schonrock, director of the band with a box of his favorite cigars and Carl Prutting, secretary, with a bottle of whisky. Mr. Prutting has taken an interest in the band since it was organized in 1926 and Mr. Schonrock has been director for the past three years. The gifts came as a complete surprise to both men and the remembrances were greatly appreciated.

$450 Realized for Needy
About $450 was realized from the sale of tickets at the Community dance which was held in the Town hall on Saturday night, according to a report made by the committee to assist the needy of the town. The committee appreciates the cooperation of the people and Thomas Luton of this city who donated the entire proceeds is being turned over to the Rockville Welfare Organization to help the needy of the town. The committee appreciates the cooperation of the people and Thomas Luton of this city who donated the entire proceeds is being turned over to the Rockville Welfare Organization to help the needy of the town.

National Bank Open
The Rockville National Bank will be open for business on Monday, Dec. 24, at 8 o'clock for the accommodation of the bank's numerous patrons and the local mill employees.
According to reports from the local post office the rush is on in earnest and Monday was the biggest day in the history of the office, and it is expected all records will be broken by Christmas. There will be no delivery by the city or rural carriers on Thursday. The lobby will be open from 7 to 10 a. m. and from 5:30 to 6:30 p. m.

Damon Temple Meeting
Damon Temple, Pythian Sisters, held a meeting in Foresters' hall on Monday night and prizes for the evening were awarded Fred Nutland and Mrs. Edna Waber. Following the meeting there was a Christmas party and a humorous play, "The Hicktown School" was presented by the Dramatic club of the order. Mrs. Minnie Dowling was the teacher and as Miss Blodgett met an interesting class. Gifts were distributed to each member and there was a Christmas tree and refreshments.

Funeral of Frank Cann
The funeral of Frank Cann was held from the home of his daughter, Mrs. F. J. Turner, of Turner of Union street Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. There were many beautiful floral tributes. The bearers were Elmore Sheffield of Glastonbury, August Fiss, Arthur Stiel and Edward West. Burial was in Grove Hill cemetery under the care of Rev. H. B. Olmstead, pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church, officiating.
Mrs. Rose Forrest, widow of the late Richard Forrest, died at the Rockville City hospital early Tuesday morning following several months illness. She was born in Ireland and has resided in this city for the past fifty years. She was a member of St. Bernard's church and was loved by all who knew her. Mrs. Forrest leaves a sister, Miss Bridget Egan, who resided with her on Union street.
It is expected the funeral will be held from St. Bernard's church on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.
Christmas Tree Exercises
A large number of people were present at the annual Christmas tree exercises held at Union church last evening when Santa Claus presented every Union church child up to the intermediate department with a gift. The kindergarten and primary departments presented a delightful program of song and recitations and the Junior Department presented a play entitled "Christmas Top Shop" which was very enjoyable.

FACES 140 YEAR TERM
Los Angeles, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Gilbert H. Beesmyer, 46, former Hollywood financier and clubman, today faced a long prison term—a possible maximum of 140 years—for the theft of $8,000,000 from the Guaranty Building and Loan Association of Los Angeles.
Beesmyer, a 60 per cent stockholder in the Guaranty firm, was given a not guilty plea to plead guilty yesterday to ten counts of grand theft. Judge Walton J. Wood set Friday morning for pronouncement of the penalty.

Method of Trisecting Arc Discovered by Boston Man

Newton, Mass., Dec. 24.—(AP)—A method for trisecting an arc or of dividing a circle, or a part of a circle, into any desired unit was revealed today by Prof. Harold A. Zager, head of the Mathematics Department at Boston College. George A. Hurd, a Boston manufacturer, was credited with originating the new method which was completed in collaboration with Professor Zager.
Trisecting the arc is a problem that has puzzled generations after generations of students of geometry and mathematics. Bisecting an arc—cutting a curved line into two equal parts—was easily accomplished. Cutting the same curved line into three equal parts proved the stumbling block. However various methods were evolved.
These methods, Prof. Zager said have used the circle as the basis from which to work. The method worked out by himself and Hurd, he said, "is the only one using the square and angle only." Zager and Hurd are reticent about exact proof and detail because they plan to have the method copyrighted. They assert that it has broad application in navigation, range finding at sea, and in astronomy.

Philadelphia, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Four robbers entered the North Philadelphia branch of the Plaza Trust Company at Broad and York streets today, held up the few employees in the place and escaped with about $7,000.
The robbers forced four persons into the bank vault and closed a grilled door. They were about to close the vault door when Charles Marshak, the branch manager pleaded, "give us a break, we'll smother in here."
"Well give you a break if you let us get away," one of the robbers said, and they fled without closing the door, making their escape in an automobile.
A beauty queen was recently chosen in a contest among Eskimo girls in the Arctic Circle. As far as other contestants were concerned, the whole affair was on the ice.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 24.

South and those of the North as there is between the Norris-La Follette group of Republicans and the Bingham-Walcott variety of Republicans.

Both parties are illy assorted and in both instances the cleavage is along geographical lines. The artificial alignment to which we have so long been accustomed cannot go on forever. Perhaps the first split is in sight. It might be just as well to have it come now as later.

INSIDIOUS REDISM

All that Connecticut can do to defeat the Sheppard-Towner maternity bill in Congress the Connecticut delegation in that body can undoubtedly be depended on to do. This bill is like federal prohibition in that it is predicated on the theory that in the national capital alone exists intelligence enough and morality enough to direct the habits and practices of a hundred and twenty million people. Like most such measures, too, it is actually and secretly in the interest of the enormously growing class of bureaucrats whose inward ambition is to locate themselves in snug official berths where they may enjoy the double privilege of getting a good living with little real effort and at the same time acquiring the power to bully somebody.

The purpose of the bill, ostensibly to promote maternal and child hygiene, is in effect to gather into the hands of Washington bureaucrats one more rein in the scheme of control over the lives of the American people which has found its most conspicuous illustration in Volsteadism. The bait is a federal appropriation to be allocated to the states wherever matched by an equal state appropriation—the whole to be spent exactly as commanded by the central power at Washington.

It is moreover a stepping stone to that dearest objective of the centralizationists, a national Department of Education with power to control the public schools of the entire Union. When we get that, all we will need to make the picture complete is a Stalin.

And it is one of the strangest of things that the very persons in this country who are most shiveringly frightened at the word "Bolshevism" are those who are to be found most frequently and most enthusiastically in the advance guard of these efforts to regiment the people of the nation.

Connecticut may be depended on to keep her face turned firmly against these worst possible aspects of Communism.

of his ambition and that he would certainly not be deterred by the unusual or sensational character of any step in that direction that might suggest itself so long as it was not dishonest. Certainly undue modesty or self consciousness would exercise no such deterrent effect.

However, it is not probable that Mr. Danaher's protest will set the walls of the nation's capitol to trembling.

HIS OWN EXPERT

Joe Wheat, Tulsa, Okla., contractor, advertises for bricklayers who are over fifty and declares that old men are the best workers, can lay more bricks and lay them better than young men.

We don't know anything about Joe's rating in Bradstreet's but we're hazard the guess that he has made more money in the building business than some of those employers who, following the advice of efficiency experts, have been refusing to hire men over forty or forty-five.

DRESSING FOR WINTER

The big problem in dressing for the winter months is to adapt your clothes so that while indoors you will never be over-heated or uncomfortable, and when out of doors you will be warmly clad. Offices and homes are usually kept as warm as a balmy summer day, while the outside weather may be near the freezing point, so that unless one dresses properly, one will be over-heated indoors and inadequately heated out of doors.

One of the best ways to dress for the winter months is to accustom yourself to wearing either ordinary underwear of a moderate weight of knit underwear. In this way you will not be too warm when out of doors where you have to face the biting cold, you should plan to wear good warm heavy outer garments, a pair of warm gloves to protect the fingers from getting numb and cold, and a scarf or muffler to protect the neck and throat.

Many women insist on wearing thin silk hose even in the coldest weather, but if they do insist on doing this they should at least be sure that they have a pair of warm over-the-shoes which cling snugly around the ankles to keep the feet warm. While it is wise to keep the skin warm at all times, it is not healthy to be over-heated, as this reduced the tone of the skin and causes a slight sweat all over the body so that when we go out into the cold chilliness may occur.

If the skin has been over-clothed for years it soon loses its power of reacting against the cold. A good reaction means, for example, if you take a cold bath and rub the skin well it turns rosy and warm. If the skin has been over-clothed for months, it no longer reacts and a person is apt to catch cold every time he sits in a draft. You should form the habit of rubbing the skin vigorously every day to bring a good flow of blood to the surface. Take a warm shower bath and gradually make the water cool until you get a good reaction. After the bath, scrub the skin well with a coarse towel. In this way the skin can be given a better circulation of blood to keep it warm when one ventures out into the cold.

Those suffering from cold feet during the winter will find it advisable to change to slightly heavier woolen hose. However, cold hands and feet are due to poor circulation.

And one should attempt to overcome the interior of a disturbed planetary system by taking vigorous physical culture exercises. We should learn not to over-dress for the cold. Think of the children in Switzerland who are hardened into they are able to play in the snow perfectly nude except for a loin cloth. The cold season should brace us up. Cold is good for us. The dip of the winter season should give us added strength for success and fun. Don't lose all of the finest effects of the bracing weather because you keep yourself bundled up like a cocoon. The days of the long red flannel underwear which itched and scratched should be gone forever. Dress yourself in the modern fashion and enjoy better health.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

Merry Christmas!

Sometimes we have felt that custom might well have adopted a more neatly fitting adjective for the expression of Christmas happiness. "Merry" is a word carrying several implications that do not strike a true chord with the exaltation and outpouring of fellowship which are so bound up in the Christmas idea. "Merry" suggests frolic and noise, boisterous laughter, jokes, horseplay. So, sometimes, we have allowed ourselves to fidget a bit over its being linked so intimately, with a day that, in almost every Christian heart, bears a significance of peculiar tenderness and subtlety.

But of the numerous definitions of "merry" there is one in which, after all, there may lie plenty of justification for the association of the words. It is, "Overflowing with good humor and good spirits." Surely there is nothing to complain about when a word of such meaning as that is coupled with Christmas. If this old world overflowed with nothing worse than good humor and good spirits it would be a good enough place to live in. There couldn't be any meanness, any real wickedness, any wars, any hatefulness, if good humor and good spirits filled all the days of all its people.

And if "merry Christmas" is ever a good term—which according to this view it would seem to be—then this year it is an especially good one. In periods of plenty and ease good humor and good spirits may be merely attributes. In times of stress and worry they become high virtues.

Then in 1930—a year which some day we shall all recall with reminiscent smiles and wonder why we took it so seriously—let us all make our Christmas just as merry as we possibly can; make it a day given over to an overflow of good humor and good spirits; a day in which we shut out, for at least twenty-four hours, every foreboding care, every carking worry, every thought but thoughts of kindness, of happy fellowship, of peace on earth and good will to men.

Merry Christmas!

SLOT MACHINES

The Hartford Council of Churches is considering an "investigation" of the slot gambling machine nuisance. It should find the job easy. That is, the investigating should be easy. But after that, what?

The Hartford Council of Churches will probably find, after it finds out what slot machines are and perhaps approximately how many of them are in operation in Hartford, that it is up against more or less difficulty arising from the fact that in order to eradicate the slot machine it is necessary to draw an arbitrary line straight across the whole business of gambling. And we take the liberty of doubting whether the Council of Churches has the nerve to draw such a line or could decide where to draw it if it had.

The slot machine is a miserable thing. It is a mechanical thief of the worst sort, a conscienceless cheat. It gives nobody a decent run for his money and it will gobble up the stolen nickels of little boys or girls as quickly as the small change of the "sport."

But it isn't against the law to cheat or crib in gambling—it's against the law to gamble. And the Council of Churches is going to discover that it isn't the easiest thing in the world to proceed against slot machines without proceeding, too, against bridge clubs and other forms of gambling participated in, no doubt, by many of its own members and supporters.

The slot machine is a vicious thing in itself; it is the platform on which is being built up one of the worst of rackets. If the Hartford church people can lick it it will be doing a splendid job. We wish it luck. But we don't believe it will have much.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 24.—With no intent to lure cow persons from their native ranges into the great closed spaces of New York, the boys out west might be interested to learn that their fellows seem to do quite well in the big city.

A gent with a 10-gallon hat and chaps is still a colorful curio to a large percentage of the population. The cowboy has not been overdone in New York, as most other types and characters have. Only in the old western movies did the small boys and the large boys get their fill of the range riders. Once a year a rodeo comes to town and for a week the city folk thrill to the excitement of bull wrestling, roping and bronco busting.

In the winter season one may expect to find a herd of cowboys being trampled underfoot by the wild silk-hat mavericks. They are forced into this particular corral in various ways. Some of them come east to ride in the rodeos, but win no prize money and find themselves sick. Others troop with Wild West shows and stay around town looking for circus and carnival tie-ups. These eventually become professional showmen and seldom return to their native sagebrush.

And you'd be surprised where they drift once they get lost on the big city prairie.

For example: just a few weeks ago the Theater Guild was casting for a new play which has Oklahoma as its locale, "Green Grow the Lilies." They needed about a dozen cowboys to sing cowboy songs and play cowboy roles. A number of plains songs had been composed by an ex-border rider, Dace, who has become a western troubadour of the eastern world.

The rodeo had just closed and there were the usual number of picturesque figures wondering how they could get car fare home. They were immediately signed and at the moment are playing in Boston with the Guild performers.

Or again, in from Jemez Springs, N. M., drifted a dude ranch delegation from the Rancho Rio. They were bent on giving New York night life a little western atmosphere. No one had thought of this, for one reason or another. So in one of the brownstones just off Fifth Avenue appeared "The Dude Ranch."

Mike Kirk, of Gallup, who is rated as one of the best Indian dealers in the west, came riding in with a carload of rare Indian blankets and potteries and ornaments by way of decorations and, overnight, the big town had a new novelty.

And again, the call for cowboys went out. Now it may seem funny to have a cowboy-calling contest in Manhattan, but whenever there is one the 10-gallon hat boys come flocking up out of nowhere. So the Dude Ranch presented Manhattan's first cowboy doorman and hat check gent and head waiter. At least a dozen can be found outside and inside the foyer almost any night of the week. The proprietors, who have made their money in the west, have taken their cowhide vests out of the 'mottos' and pass out 'sombros' as souvenirs.

And do the Broadway girls love it?

So it goes. And if you asked me, you can look for quite a vogue of western entertainment in the theater and on the screen during the next few months. I know of half a dozen pictures now in the making, all with western themes. And at least two dramas are heading for Broadway, carrying western scenery with them.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Gland Functioning)

Question: Mrs. F. P. asks: "What is the function of the pituitary gland, and in what way does it affect an individual? What are the symptoms of a disturbed pituitary gland? Can a normal or abnormal one be determined by the X-ray?"

Answer: The pituitary gland is divided into two distinct lobes, each of which seems to have different functions. The exact difference of the interior of a disturbed pituitary gland has not been definitely determined. An under-functioning of the pituitary gland may produce a very obese individual resembling a fat boy. An excess of the secretion may produce enlargement of the hands, feet, lower jaw, and an increase in height producing gigantism. It is generally admitted that the front lobe exerts most of the influence upon the bodily growth, and the posterior lobe upon the metabolism. The normalcy or abnormality of the gland could not be determined by the X-ray.

(Face Twitches)

Question: Miss A. B. asks: "Would nervousness cause a twitching of the face? At times I cannot control the muscles of my face. I am 20 years old."

Answer: You need a diagnosis to determine the cause of your nervousness. You can then no doubt be helped if the right treatments are used, with proper diet and the cultivation of good hygienic habits.

(Verruca)

Question: T. S. writes: "I have what the doctor calls verruca on my hand. Would a lack of salt in my diet cause this, and how can I remove it?"

Answer: A verruca is a wart and there are many different types. It is possible that a fasting and dieting regimen followed by a local caustic treatment on the verruca would overcome it. A lack of salt in the diet would not cause this, but general acidosis might be responsible.

Washington Letter

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

Washington—Unless political independence wanes, as it shows no sign of doing there are likely to be further such fuses as that made over the appointment of Frank R. McNinch, North Carolina, to the Federal Power Commission. The reader is invited to come along with your correspondent and get all tangled up in the intricate questions raised by this case and others of the sort.

Mr. McNinch was one of the 1928 Hoovercrats. He was so far out of line with the Democratic party in that campaign that he led the fight in North Carolina against the election of the regular nominee, Al Smith. He was a good political friend of Senator Furnifold McLendell Simmons, who was retired to public life by the voters this year because of his 1928 blot. Also, it appears, Mr. McNinch voted for the Republican candidate for Congress in his district and failed to support the party's senatorial nominee after Simmons' primary defeat.

Well, you can't bang a man for the political independence, refusal to subservient to the party yoke, willingness to consider the candidate and what he stands for rather than his party label—that's all supposed to be a praiseworthy trait in a voter.

But President Hoover had to name a Democrat to the bi-partisan Federal Power Commission and he chose Mr. McNinch. Presumably there were thousands of other men equally or more suited than Mr. McNinch, so that his appointment had a political avowal. And the point raised in the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, especially by Democrats, was that since Mr. McNinch had been voting the Republican ticket it was shabby business to unload him on the country as a Democrat.

Now you see the position in which Mr. McNinch had placed himself insofar as concerned winning an appointment to a bi-partisan executive commission. He claimed to be a Democrat and the Democrats said he wasn't; failure to confirm him would mean punishment for his political independence.

But one point raised is, how good a Democrat—or Republican—does a man have to be to be properly appointed to a post reserved for one of his party? Obviously, Mr. Hoover likes the McNinch type of Democrat better than he likes the insurgent type of Republicans found in the Senate, who so often oppose him and make him miserable.

Who is to decide?

But should Mr. Hoover have the privilege of deciding the point when Democrats repudiate a Democrat? Certainly he has the prerogative of personal choice; he doesn't have to lick out his bitterest foe in the enemy camp. But should anyone object if he picks out his best friends, who were even willing to desert their party and campaign for him? With such appointments is a commission still bi-partisan in character? Coolidge was accused of packing commissions with Republicans and Democrats favorable to his conservative economic point of view, but of course there were no Coolidgecrats to mention.

Obviously, Hoover would be wild if Democrats and progressives in the Senate combined and refused to confirm any appointments except of insurgent Republicans. But that might happen, even though it won't. There are good men who are political mavericks. Senator Hawes of Missouri says that if Hoover can name "independent Democrats" as Democrats to the power commission he could also name three regular Republicans and still comply with the law.

In the case Mr. McNinch himself said he was a Democrat, although of the independent type. But of course if a nominee himself is permitted to decide whether he is a Democrat or Republican, he might insist that he was one or the other and spend his life voting for the other party's candidates.

On the other hand, isn't it perfectly human for a president to want to reward the more helpful bolters? All of which seems to present the material for an argument during what might otherwise be a quiet evening at home.

THE BOOK SURVEY

By BRUCE CATTON
 NEA Service Writer

All that the world is apt ever to know about the Andree Arctic expedition is contained in "Andree's Story," just issued by the Viking Press. His book, edited by the Swedish Society for Anthropology and Geography, presents in detail everything that was learned after the discovery of the explorer's bodies and diaries on White Island. The record probably is as complete as it ever will be.

And what a fascinating, tragic book it makes! Andree's diary is translated—or as much of it as could be deciphered—after its 33-year immersion in snow. The photographs he took, buried in the ice for three decades, are printed. Every remark that any of the three men wrote down is presented. And, in addition, eminent scientists have analyzed the progress of the expedition and have done their best to fill in the gaps.

From the diaries and log-books, it appears that Andree's balloon stayed in the air for approximately three days after leaving Spitzbergen, traveling some 250 miles in a northerly direction. Then fog and rain weighed it down and the aerial part of the journey ended. Andree got the supplies out of the basket, loaded them on the three sledges which were carried, and led his men along the ice in an effort to reach Franz Joseph land, where there was a large cache of food.

But fate was against them. For weeks they plodded toward the southeast—and all the while the wind was carrying the ice in an opposite direction, so that after a month's desperate work they were actually farther from Franz Joseph land than when they started. So they turned about and tried to make some islands in the vicinity of Spitzbergen; and again the ice-drift was too much for them. They struggled painfully, averaging a mile or so a day, and finally resolved to camp on the ice for the winter.

Then, just as they had built an ice hut, their ice foe creaked on the desolate shores of White Island; and on Oct. 5, they went ashore. And then came silence. The few remaining entries in the diaries are fragmentary; and on Oct. 17 they cease forever. On White Island the men died, but we can never know when or how.

The editors of the book believe they troze to death. The explorers had plenty of food, but they did not take the proper kind of clothing. In the Arctic summer, during the hike over the ice, this did not matter; but when winter hit White Island it became a fatal lack.

FOUR PARTIES

Soundly Republican newspapers have, within the last two or three days, so lost patience over the Lucas-Norris episode as to flail their own party for not long ago driving the Western Insurgents out from under the party banner. They cite the course of the Democrats in disowning Senator Simmons and Senator Heflin, after they bolted the Democratic Presidential nominee, as showing superior generalship.

That is all very well, but these critics lose sight of the fact that when the Democrats spewed out Simmons and Heflin they did not imperil a control of Congress, for they didn't have any such control to lose; whereas the Republican party could never, at any time in recent years, have thrown out the group of Insurgent Republicans without sacrificing control of Congressional organization.

This may not be the highest toned reason in the world for the difference in the Democratic and the Republican treatment of party rebels, but it would probably have been a good enough reason to keep Simmons and Heflin in the Democratic party if the situations had been reversed.

Just the same, the time is probably approaching when it is going to be impossible for not only Eastern Republican Republicans and Western Insurgent Republicans, but for Northern and Southern Democrats to follow straight Republican and Democratic flags. There are four parties in Congress, not merely two nor only three. There is almost as strongly drawn a line of demarcation between the Democrats of the

MR. DANAHER

It would be rather difficult to understand the position taken by Attorney Cornelius J. Danaher of Meriden in publicly opposing the appointment of Carroll C. Hincks of Waterbury for the vacant federal judgeship for Connecticut if Mr. Danaher's personality were not taken into account. He is not only an able lawyer and an effective politician but all his life has been distinguished by a peculiarly billigerent eagerness in any fight in which were involved interests close to his heart. Mr. Danaher's son, Assistant U. S. District Attorney John A. Danaher, has been an aspirant to the judgeship for which Mr. Hincks has been recommended. It is characteristic of the elder Danaher that he would go to extraordinary lengths to help his son in the gratification

NOT POISON FOG

Brussels, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Official assurances were given today that there had been no recurrence of the "poison fog" of two weeks ago today. It was explained that the death of a worker at Tilleur yesterday was due to accidental inhalation of gas while he was doing repair work.

While the fog persists, however, residents of the low areas continue to border on panic which has been abetted by countless rumors of new deaths, none verified.

If we want material results we must fulfill material conditions.

TREATY OF GHENT

On Dec. 24, 1814, the treaty of peace between the United States and England, ending the War of 1812, was signed at Ghent, Belgium. The American commissioners at the signing were Gallatin, Bayard and John Quincy Adams.

England appeared eager to make peace not only because she was exhausted after her struggles with Napoleon on the continent, but also because she wished to reopen American trade. But in spite of the desire of both sides for peace, negotiations dragged on for a year and a half.

The treaty provided for: (1) the restoration of all territory seized during the war, except certain islands near Passamaquoddy Bay, the disposition of which was referred to a commission; (2) a commission to settle boundary lines between the United States and Canada; (3) cooperation between this country and Great Britain in suppressing the slave trade.

CHRISTMAS IN SPAIN

Madrid, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Some of the most prominent figures in Spain are celebrating La Noche Buena—the Good Night, which is the Spanish name for Christmas eve—in jail.

The government has arranged much liberty behind prison walls for the Republican chiefs and suspects arrested during the recent revolutionary upheaval and is taking every measure to keep their celebration up to standard, under the circumstances.

They include Niceto Alcalá Zamora, who was named "President of the Spanish Republic" in the revolution of a day; the brother of the Duke of Maura, who is a member of the Berenguer ministry, writers, scientists, educators, engineers and lawyers who were caught in the government net.

Freezing weather prevailed in the capital today.

Herald Newsboys Tell Of Their Experiences

Youngsters Write Stories For the Newspaper Telling About the Thrills They Get Peddling Papers.

Christmas time is with us again and in conformity to the Herald's practice for the past four years, the newsboys—those happy youngsters who day in, day out in all kinds of weather leave your paper wedged between your front door-knob and the door-jam or in the hall, will be given their papers free of cost to them by the Herald. They deserve this recognition for the efficient service that they have given the Herald throughout the year.

Many of our best citizens remember the day that they, too, called at Manchester doors with the Herald. They have passed on into the hurry and bustle of business and professional life, but they will never forget those happy days when they laid the foundation of a life of service as a newsboy. Some of the greatest men of America followed a paper route as a boy.

THEIR OWN STORIES.
Newsboys, strange to say are not imbued with reptorial ability as a rule, although they have many interesting experiences on their routes during the heat of summer, and when the snow is deep and the north wind whips around the street corners. Several of these boys, literary-minded, have written short stories concerning their experiences while about their work on the paper route. This section of the Herald has been given to them as their very own for the day each year.

MY PAPER ROUTE
By Charles Guinpero
At first my paper route was not successful. I think it was because I was not big enough to carry a stack of papers. I decided that I would take charge of the route myself. I bought new customers and my work began to increase. I told my father I needed a bicycle and I got it for my birthday. A few days later, while riding down the street, a car stopped suddenly in front of me and I bumped into it. The man in a kindly manner said, "Sorry, Buddy,—did I damage anything?"

"Yes, sir, you tore three of my papers," I said. He took them and gave me a quarter. I started off again, grateful that my accident was not serious.

MY EXPERIENCES AS A HERALD NEWSBOY
By John McCooe
When I was twelve years of age I bought a paper route. It consisted of twenty-nine customers, most of whom lived near my house. From time to time, I picked up new customers and now I have thirty-nine regulars on my route. My customers are very kind and good to me. Last winter one lady gave me a cup of coffee and a couple of doughnuts every cold night. Most of my customers are very generous at Christmas time. Some, of course, cannot afford to give anything to their newsboys, and we do not look for tips when times are hard.

DELIVERING THE HERALD
By Paul Aceto
Whiz-z-z—my bicycle traveled along the road and stopped at a house of brownish color. On arriving I got off my wheel and delivered a Manchester Evening Herald to the house. I had just wrapped the paper and placed it in the knob of the door when the lady of the house came out and spoke to me, warning me of her dog.

everyone he sees. But he doesn't bite. I thanked her for her warning and jumped down the four steps of the piazza with one bound. I was just about to jump on my bicycle when the "quality barking dog" came around the end of the house into sight. He didn't look especially pleasing to me if he did to his mistress.

All at once he approached and jumped at me—missed—jumped again—and struck something—my wheel. He seemed to know that he couldn't jump high enough to bite my hand and he tried biting my legs. He grabbed my heel and held on as I tried desperately to escape. The dog tore my stockings, scratched my heel and then he looked up at me and barked. Of all the strange dogs I have met, that one takes the cake.

The First Christmas

AND it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed.

2 And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.

3 And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

4 And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, because he was of the house and lineage of David.

5 To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.

6 And so it was, that while they were there, the days were accomplished, that she should be delivered.

7 And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

8 And there were shepherds in the country keeping watch over their flock by night.

9 And lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them, and they were sore afraid.

10 And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

11 For unto you is born this day, the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

12 And this shall be a sign unto you: Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

13 And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God, and saying,

14 Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

15 And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

16 And they came with haste, and found Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

17 And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.

18 And when they that heard it said, They mock us, they deride us: for we have heard that the Lord should come, and they were sore afraid.

DORAN AUTHORIZES MAKING OF BRANDY

Comes Under Same Rule As Whiskey—Will Be Issued Only Under a Permit.

Washington, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The California grape interests, the beneficiary of a large government loan, were in line for further Federal aid today in the form of a series of regulations designed to place high proof fruit spirits for brandy, on the industrial market.

Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol, said these regulations had "been going through the mill" for several weeks. If finally approved they must bear his signature as well as those of Secretary Mellon, Attorney General Mitchell and Prohibition Director Woodcock.

Under the plan, Dr. Doran said, it might be possible to run off some of the grape surplus as high proof brandy and to use still more for the fortification of wine. It would, however, be for non-beverage purposes, and would be issued to the holder of alcohol permits as a substitute.

Murder At Bridge

by ANNE AUSTIN author of 'THE BLACK PIGEON', 'THE AVENGING PARROT' and 'MURDER BACKSTAIRS'

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JUANITA SELIM is murdered at bridge. Possible suspects include LYDIA CARR, the maid; JOHN C. DRAKE, Judge MARSHALL, Nita's landlord, to whom she paid no rent, and owner of the gun and silencer with which she was shot; POLLY BEALE and CLIVE HAMMOND, FLORA MILES, in Nita's closet at the time of the murder reading a note which she thinks is from her husband, TRACEY; JANET RAYMOND, RALPH HAMMOND, who was engaged to Nita but found out that DEXTER B. SPRAGUE, who did write the note, was her lover, and probably Nita's partner in blackmail.

Lydia has been practically cleared, and furnished an alibi for Sprague. Ralph Hammond is no longer under great suspicion. SPECIAL INVESTIGATOR DUNDEE wants now to find out who paid Nita $10,000 since her arrival in Hamilton. Lydia has arranged for Nita's cremation, as instructed, and on permission to take from the house the dress which Nita chose for her shroud and which Dundee suspects is a wedding dress. Dundee intends to photograph the body in the dress. Lydia says she doesn't know where Nita kept her jewelry, but that it was in some secret place in the house.

ELMER RAWLINS, Nita's odd-job man, volunteers the information that he made the footprints under the window that led the police to think the shot was fired from outside, and says that papers were burned in the furnace the night before the murder. Dundee asks PENNY CRAIN if there is a secret hiding place in the house which Nita used to hide her father's, and learns there may be a "simple and ingenious arrangement."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXX

It was exactly 12 o'clock when Lydia Carr, accompanied by Detective Collins of the homicide squad carrying a small suitcase, arrived at the district attorney's office.

"I kept my eye on her every minute of the time, to see that there wasn't a trick," she said. Collins informed Dundee and Sanderson importantly, callous to the fact that the maid could hear him. "But I let her bring along everything she said she needed to lay the body out in."

"Right," agreed the district attorney, as Dundee opened the suitcase upon Sanderson's desk.

The royal blue velvet dress lay, neatly folded, on top. Dundee shook out its folds. It looked remarkably fresh and new in spite of the years it had hung in Nita Selim's various clothes closets, preserved for only God knew what tender memories. Perhaps the beautiful little dancer had intended all those years that it should be her shroud.

"Oh, it's lovely!" Penny Crain, who was looking on, cried out involuntarily. "It looks like a French model."

"It's a copy of a French model. You can see the label on the back of the neck," Lydia answered, her one good eye softening for Penny.

"So it is!" Dundee agreed, and took out his penknife to snip the threads which fastened the white satin, gold-trimmed bodice.

"Penny Model. Copied by Simonson's—New York City," he read aloud, and slipped the little square of satin into the envelope containing the murdered woman's will, for temporary safekeeping.

"In my like the dress, for I'm going to ask you to do the mannikin stunt in it as soon as Carraway arrives with his camera."

Penny turned very pale, but she said nothing in protest, and Dundee continued to unpack the suitcase. His masculine hands looked clumsy as he handled the costume slip and miniature "dancing set"—brassiere and "step-ins"—all matching, of finest flesh-colored chiffon and fine lace. His fingers, fished from contact with the switch of long, silky black curls.

"She bought all them after we came to Hamilton," Lydia offered in her harsh, flat voice, pointing to the undergarments. "Them black-moore pumps and them French stockings are brand new, too. . . . Hundred-gauge silk them stockings are, and never on her feet."

"Ready for me?" Carraway had appeared in the door-way, carrying his biggest camera and tripod.

"Yes, Carraway. . . . Just the dress, Penny. . . . I want fulllength front, back and side views of Miss Crain wearing this dress. Carraway. . . . Flashlight, of course. Better take the pictures in Miss Crain's office," Dundee directed. "You stay here, Lydia. I want to talk with you while that job is being done."

"Yes, sir," Lydia answered, and accepted without thanks the chair he offered.

"I suppose you have read the Hamilton Morning News today, Lydia?" Dundee began, when the door had closed upon Penny and Carraway.

"I have!"

"May I have that paper, chief? . . . Thanks! Now Lydia, I want you to read again the paragraphs that are headed 'New York, May 25,' and tell us if the facts are correct."

Lydia accepted the paper and her single eye scanned the following lines obediently:

New York, May 25.

Mrs. Juanita Leigh Selim, who was murdered Saturday afternoon in Hamilton, was known along Broadway as Nita Leigh, chorus girl and specialty dancer. Her last known address in New York was No. 25, West 54th street, where she had a three-room apartment. According to the superintendent, E. J. Black, Miss Leigh, as he knew her, lived there alone except for her maid, Lydia Carr, and entertained few visitors.

Irving Wells, publicity director for Paramount Pictures, when interviewed by a reporter in his rooms at the Cadillac Hotel late today, said that Nita Leigh had been used for "bits" and as a dancing "double" for stars in a number of recent pictures, including "Night Life" and "Ezy Howdy," both of which have dancing sequences. Musical comedy programs for the last year carry her name only once, in the list of "Ladies of the Ensemble" of the revue "What of It?"

Miss Eloise Pendleton, head mistress of Forsythe-on-the-Hudson, mentioned in the dispatch from Hamilton, confirms the report that Mrs. Selim, as she was known there, twice directed the annual Easter musical comedy presented by that fashionable school for young ladies, but could add nothing of interest to the facts given above, beyond asserting that Mrs. Selim had proved to be an unusually competent and popular director of their amateur theatricals.

"Yes, that's correct, as far as it goes," Lydia commented, resentment in her harsh voice as she returned the paper to Dundee.

"Have you anything to add?" Dundee caught her up quickly.

"No, sir," Lydia shook her head, her lips in a grim line. Then resentment burst through: "They don't have to talk like she was a back number on Broadway, just because she was tired of the stage and going in for movies!"

District Attorney Sanderson took her in hand then, polling her with questions about Nita's New York "gentlemen friends," but he made no more headway than Dundee.

"We know that Nita Selim was afraid of someone," Sanderson began again, angrily. "Who was it? Someone she'd known in New York, or somebody in Hamilton?"

"I don't know!" Lydia told him flatly.

"But you do know she was living in fear of her life, don't you?" Dundee interposed.

"—Well, yes, I suppose she was," Lydia admitted reluctantly. "But I thought she was just afraid to live out there in that lonesome house away off at the end of nowhere."

"Was she afraid of Dexter Sprague?" Sanderson shot at her.

"Would she have asked him to stay if she'd been afraid of him?" Lydia demanded scornfully. "And would she have asked him to rig up a bed from her bedroom to mine, if it was his she was afraid of?"

"A bell!" Dundee echoed.

"Yes, sir. It has a contraption under the rug, right beside her bed, so's she could step on it and it would ring in my room, which was under Nita's room."

"Sprague bought the wire and stuff, bored a hole through her bedroom floor, and fixed it all himself."

"Did anyone know Nita had taken this precaution to protect herself?" Dundee asked.

"Miss Lois did, because one day not long ago she stepped on it accidentally, when she was in Nita's room. The bell buzzed in my room and I came up to answer it, and Nita explained it to Miss Lois."

"So that was why no attempt had been made to murder Nita while she slept! Dundee told himself triumphantly. For of course it was more than probable that Lois Dunlap had innocently spread the news of Nita's nervousness and her ingenious method to summon help instantly.

"Come in! . . . All finished, Carraway!" she cried. "I'd like to see Nita's prints as soon as possible, and now I'd like for you to go over to the morgue with Lydia, and wait there until she has the body dressed in these clothes, and the hair done according to the instructions Mrs. Selim left. . . . I'll leave the posing to you, but I want a full-length picture as well as a head portrait."

As Lydia's work-roughened, muckily hands were returning the funeral clothes to the suitcase, another question occurred to Dundee:

"Lydia, did you know, before I questioned you at the Miles home yesterday, that Sprague had returned for that bag he had left in the bedroom upstairs?"

Her scarlet cheeks flushed livid, but the maid answered with defiant honesty: "Yes, I did! He spoke to me through my basement window just before you come running down to talk to me. He'd sneaked back, but he could tell from seeing your car outside that you was there, and he asked me to go up and get the bag and set it outside the kitchen door for him. I said I wouldn't do it; it was too risky."

"Then you were pretending to be asleep when I entered your room?"

"Yes, I was! But I had been asleep before Mr. Sprague called me. While you was hammering at me about Nita burning my face I heard Mr. Sprague open the kitchen door. He had a key Nita had given him. He didn't hardly make any noise at all, but I heard it, because I was listening for it. . . . You'd left the door to the basement stairs open, and my door, too, so I heard him."

"Did you hear him come down?"

"Yes, I did! There's a board on the backstairs that squeaks, and I heard it plain, while you was still at me, hammer and tongs," Lydia answered. "He was in the house not more'n two minutes, all told, and when I figured he was safely out, I went upstairs with you to show you the presents I'd give Nita after she burnt me, to prove I'd forgive her."

"Why didn't you tell me, Lydia? Why did you protect Sprague? I know you don't like him," Dundee puzzled.

"I wasn't thinking about him," Lydia told him flatly. "I was thinking about Nita. I didn't want any scandal on her."

"Are you prepared to swear Sprague had time to do nothing but go up to the bedroom and get his bag?"

"I am!"

When Lydia and Carraway had left together, Dundee rose and addressed the district attorney:

"I'm going out to the Selim house now, to look for that secret hiding place where Roger Crain kept his securities, and which Judge Marshall evidently displayed to Nita, as one of the charms of the house when he rented it."

"Why not simply telephone Judge Marshall and ask him where and what it is?" Sanderson asked reasonably.

"Do you think he'd tell?" Dundee retorted. "The old boy's no fool. Even if he didn't kill Nita himself, he'd hide the gun there, my question would throw him into a panic of fear lest one of his best friends had done just that. . . . No, I'll find it myself, if it's all right with you!"

A THOUGHT

Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.—St. John 15:14.

Friendship is the marriage of the soul.—Voltaire.

FELT HATS

The better grade felt hats are manufactured from the shorter hairs of the furs of the rabbit, hare, muskrat, South American rat, beaver and nutria. When lining is used, it may be of silk or cotton.

HARDENING GLASSES

If you put your new crystal glasses or other crystal dishes on the stove in a pan of cold water, let them come to a boil, boil ten minutes and then cool right in the same water, you will find them more hardened and less likely to break than glasses not treated this way before using.

HOME-MADE CULTURE !

Noted Lecturer Finds Women's Clubs Enrich Life of Entire Nation.

BY JULIA BLANSHARD

New York, Dec. 22.—The much under-sung small town club woman is largely responsible for America's cultural coming-of-age, in the opinion of Dr. Richard Burton, of Columbia University, nationally known lecturer.

"Two million women, meeting over the United States, meeting in crease in reading in America, the genuine interest that is being developed in good books, in real literature, don't forget these women."

This winter Dr. Burton, who has probably addressed more clubs, large and small, in more parts of the United States than any other single lecturer in America, is writing a course of lectures for small town clubs based on the Book League of America's books, both modern and classic. More than any person, he understands and appreciates the honest and earnest attempt of literary clubs to get "learning."

Culture Plus Recreation

"Women may have considered it 'smart' in the first place, to be well read and to have made a conscientious effort for that reason. But they have discovered how much fun it is to know literature, what an escape a really good book can be from the hum-drum of life, how much richness reading gives to one's life."

"Some of the clubwomen, isolated from the stimulation of urban life, have developed a reading habit that is possibly the most precious private resource humans can have. They have been better mothers because of their interest in literature, have known better how to guide their children, establish their cultural tastes and build up homes that will interest them. They have enriched the lives of their busy husbands who often have had no time to read but profited vicariously by their wives' literary tastes."

"When anyone mentions the increased cultural interest America is showing, the tremendous increase in the numbers of books published, don't forget the part clubwomen have played in this movement."

COMMERCIAL TEA

The tea of commerce is the tender leaf or bud of a bush grown in India, China, Japan and the islands of the Far East. Tea either is cured in the hot sun, when it is known as green tea; or is thoroughly dried in special briars, and is known as black tea.

OLIVE OIL

Housewives generally will concede that a really delicious salad must be made with good olive oil. The label will refer to "pure virgin olive oil." But if the oil is made of other products—such as cottonseed or coconut oil—the label will say so.

ABOUT SWEATBANDS

The best sweatbands for hats are cut from goatskin. The purpose of the band is not to absorb perspiration but to keep it from reaching or discoloring the body of the hat and its trimmings. In the cheaper grades of hats, oilcloth sometimes is substituted for a leather sweatband.

NEW YEAR'S DANCES

Left, Turn!

This Romantic Step Originated In Vienna

By Arthur Murray

The Left Turn Waltz . . . as danced by Arthur Murray and an assistant.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Another popular waltz among the "New Year's Dances" is described by Arthur Murray, famous authority on ball room dancing, in the following article—the fifth in a series of 12 which he has written for The Herald and NEA Service.

By ARTHUR MURRAY
Written for NEA Service

From Vienna comes the Left Turn Waltz which is the reverse of the right turn Heideberg waltz.

This should be practiced together, provided the right turn step has been mastered. The woman takes the same steps, starting with the opposite foot.

1. Step forward with the left foot, turning one quarter to the left, facing west wall.
2. Step forward with the right foot, placing it to the right side, keeping feet apart.
3. Close the left foot up to the right, with the weight on the left. This completes a quarter turn to the left.
4. Put the right foot back, turning one quarter to the left, facing the south wall.
5. Place the left foot alongside of the right, weight on the left foot, with feet apart.
6. Close the right up to the left foot, weight on the right.

Notice that you turn your body one quarter to the left on the first and fourth beats.

Six steps make only a half of the Vienna waltz turn. To complete the turn, repeat the entire movement of six counts.

A complete turn takes 12 counts. You make a quarter turn on each three steps.

A complete turn takes 12 counts. You make a quarter turn on each three steps.

To make certain of your directions while turning, face a different wall on each quarter turn. 1, West; 2, South; 3, East; 4, North. A good record for this is "Under Hawaiian Skies."

TOMORROW: The Cuban.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

The old saying that anything is as good as mud takes on a different meaning when that mud makes a facial pack.

Mud and clay masks have a virtue that endears them to women. They are particularly good at clearing out the impurities in the faces they mask.

Your skin probably needs an occasional mask, whether you have thought of it or not. Why not give it a treat?

Mud and clay masks come in different colors and some are advertised for this quality, others for that. You can only decide what does the most good by trying. But the next time you feel all dragged out and want to look particularly charming at a party or a business engagement, set your face up—and yourself, too—by masking for 20 minutes or so!

A mud or clay pack will bring circulation to the face and neck—and don't forget when you put a mask on your face that the neck is quite as important—because it stimulates the skin.

The mud or clay mask usually comes all mixed and all you have to do is to spread it on. Cleanse the face and neck first and apply a rich cream all over, giving especial attention to the eyes and the nose and mouth. Then apply the mud or clay pack, smoothing it on carefully, leaving out the lips and taking extreme pains not to get it into the eyes, though many of them, the majority in fact, are harmless if a bit solid slip in. But since any foreign matter disturbs eyes, be careful.

Smooth the mask all down your neck and around the sides. Then lie down, if possible, for the length of time that the directions tell you to leave it on. If a specified time is stated, leaving it on longer only makes it dry and hard to get off.

While the mask is drying, and doing its bit to absorb the impurities in the pores by contracting the skin and making it empty out its extraneous matter, relax to the uttermost.

When the time is up, remove by dabbing with cotton dipped in cold water or in your favorite lotion. The minute it is all off, slap on your choice of astringents. You can use a commercial astringent or you can make your own by using lemon juice or benzoin in cool water, or plain witch hazel. Be careful in the use of ice. If you are given to having little broken blood vessels around your nose or in your cheeks, never use ice.

Take a good look at yourself when you have used your astringent. Hasn't the mask been worth while?

YOUR CHILDREN

Interest! The theme to remember in breaking up bad habits.

Breaks up bad habits by keeping the child so busy with interesting things that he forgets the old habit.

THIS AND THAT IN FEMININE LORE

Wishing you all a Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year!

The calendar of one of our local churches last Sunday contained this "Christmas Greeting from the Parsonage," and it impressed us so strongly that we print it here so that it may have an even wider influence:

"Again the candles of our Christmas faith flame! Again a Cradle becomes a Shrine! Again the Christ Child is set in the midst!

Has earth ever before known so fine a manifestation of the gentle kindly Spirit of the Christ Child as is everywhere manifest today? On every hand men and women are saying that in His Name in this period of depression no child must suffer cold or hunger or friendlessness.

In the name of the Holy Child we of the parsonage greet you, earnestly wishing for each the largest measure of that peace and good-will suggested by the Song of the Angels.

At Yuletide diets are forgotten and the last-minute gift of some goodie a housewife has made with her own hands is doubly appreciated by the recipient, especially if it is done up in an attractive way. A piece of the Christmas loaf or cake was kept for a year as it was supposed never to become sour or moldy and to be a cure for various ailments and to ward off divers ills. These virtues were believed to be efficacious until the next Yuletide specialty was made.

The legendary luck of a mince pie still clings to it. To refuse a piece of mince pie at a Christmas dinner means ill luck for the year!

Apples eaten at midnight on Christmas Eve insure health and happiness during this snowstorm year. The apples in mince pie also are symbolic of health.

Mince pie itself has a background rich with superstition. The first mince pies were served at Saxon feasts in pre-Norman days and smacked of paganism.

One of our Garden club members wishes me to remind our readers to extend their Christmas spirit to the birds during this snowstorm year. To fasten suet to the trees or sprinkle crumbs on a tray convenient to the kitchen window. They will soon get the habit of coming after the food and the pleasure the thoughtful one will derive from watching them will more than repay the effort.

MARY TAYLOR.

"So stir the fire, close the shutters fast,
Drop the curtains, wheel the chairs
around,
And while the bubbling, loud-hissing
urn
Throws up a steamy column, and the cups
That cheer but not inebriate wait on
Let us spend a cheery evening
within."

The Christmas poster we found on the doorknob yesterday from one of the local banks advertising the Christmas club for the coming year brought a thought of the comfort a bank deposit has been to countless people who for the first time have found themselves obliged to draw upon it for daily maintenance. Not only the banks but the insurance companies have been a great source of help in this time of need, and some of them have made temporary loans of millions to their policy holders. Many a careless spender will be transformed into a thrifty person by this time of depression.

"I heard a bird sing
In the dark of December;
'Twas a magical thing
And sweet to remember."

How careless people are about notifying their friends of their removal to other streets or cities. When we have sent all the cards, along come one or two from entirely new addresses and we wonder whether our friends will receive the greeting for Christmas or whether it will go to the dead-letter office.

According to tradition, the Christmas pudding held a magic spell for all who tasted it. While it was regarded as unlucky to eat it before Christmas day, each pudding that was sampled after Christmas would bring good fortune for a month. It behooved one, then, to taste at least twelve puddings—those made by friends, if possible. A wish made while eating the first spoonful was believed "sure to come true" during the following year. The omission of this pudding from the Christmas feast was considered an ill omen.

The Christmas cakes of long ago were known as "Yule Dough" or "Dows" and often were made simply of white flour, perhaps of slightly finer quality than usual, with the addition of sugar and currants. These materials were decided luxuries and used only for special occasions. The cakes were made in the shape of little images of the Madonna and Holy Baby or were round with a crude representation of the Nativity stamped on them. This explains the Puritan aversion to Christmas cakes.

A piece of the Christmas loaf or cake was kept for a year as it was supposed never to become sour or moldy and to be a cure for various ailments and to ward off divers ills. These virtues were believed to be efficacious until the next Yuletide specialty was made.

The legendary luck of a mince pie still clings to it. To refuse a piece of mince pie at a Christmas dinner means ill luck for the year!

Apples eaten at midnight on Christmas Eve insure health and happiness during this snowstorm year. The apples in mince pie also are symbolic of health.

Mince pie itself has a background rich with superstition. The first mince pies were served at Saxon feasts in pre-Norman days and smacked of paganism.

One of our Garden club members wishes me to remind our readers to extend their Christmas spirit to the birds during this snowstorm year. To fasten suet to the trees or sprinkle crumbs on a tray convenient to the kitchen window. They will soon get the habit of coming after the food and the pleasure the thoughtful one will derive from watching them will more than repay the effort.

MARY TAYLOR.

"So stir the fire, close the shutters fast,
Drop the curtains, wheel the chairs
around,
And while the bubbling, loud-hissing
urn
Throws up a steamy column, and the
cups
That cheer but not inebriate wait on
Let us spend a cheery evening
within."

The Christmas poster we found on the doorknob yesterday from one of the local banks advertising the Christmas club for the coming year brought a thought of the comfort a bank deposit has been to countless people who for the first time have found themselves obliged to draw upon it for daily maintenance. Not only the banks but the insurance companies have been a great source of help in this time of need, and some of them have made temporary loans of millions to their policy holders. Many a careless spender will be transformed into a thrifty person by this time of depression.

"I heard a bird sing
In the dark of December;
'Twas a magical thing
And sweet to remember."

How careless people are about notifying their friends of their removal to other streets or cities. When we have sent all the cards, along come one or two from entirely new addresses and we wonder whether our friends will receive the greeting for Christmas or whether it will go to the dead-letter office.

According to tradition, the Christmas pudding held a magic spell for

Daily Health Service Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famed Authority

DYE USED IN FUR AND CLOTHING SOMETIMES IRRITATES THE SKIN (This is one of a series of articles by Dr. Fishbein on skin diseases induced by external causes, particularly industrial chemicals.)

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

In recent years special attention has been given to irritation of the skin resulting from products that have been dyed with a synthetic dye called paraphenylenediamine.

This substance is employed almost universally for dyeing hair and furs. In these industries it is commonly called arsal. If a person is especially sensitive to this dye, his skin will develop an eruption when a 10 per cent solution of the dye is put on it.

In determining whether or not the irritation of the skin is the result of the dye, the physician pays particular attention to the location of the eruption.

The irritation, when it is due to hair dye, usually begins with itching, redness and puffiness of the upper eyelids, the sides of the forehead and the back of the neck. When the irritation is due to the dye in the fur collar or cuffs, it is likely to appear first under the chin, on the front of the neck, in a triangular area over the chest and on the wrists.

Hair dressers and furriers who use the dye on other people and on furs and who are themselves sensitive to it, develop an eruption on the back of the hands, from the wrists, the forearms, eyelids, nose and other parts of the face.

The irritation of the skin from these dyes is usually due to an oxidation product known as quinone. When this substance is moistened with water and applied to the skin, it has a strong irritating effect. It has been found that a solution of sodium hyposulphite will neutralize the action of the quinone and relieve the itching that results from such irritation.

Since almost all furs sold at moderate prices have been dyed with various chemical substances, it is safe to suspect almost any of them in the presence of eruptions of the skin that have been mentioned.

NO HERALD TOMORROW No edition of The Herald will be issued tomorrow, Christmas Day. We extend heartiest greetings to all our readers.

STORM KEEPS CROWD FROM CHARITY DANCE Good Sum Realized From W. B. A. Guards Club Affair Last Night, However.

W. B. A. Guards who gave a charity whist-dance last evening at City View dance hall were disappointed that the difficult traveling prevented many who otherwise would have attended, from venturing out as far as the Keeney street hall. However, they deeply appreciate all assistance received from the owner of the building, the musicians and donors of money for advertising, and all who assisted in any way. The sum realized will provide an additional number of worthy people with food and clothing at the discretion of the town committee.

Those who were present had a jolly good time playing cards and dancing. The short recital of piano numbers by Otto Neubauer during the time refreshments were served was greatly appreciated.

First prizes in whist were won by Mrs. George W. House and H. Smith of Hartford; second by Mrs. John Hayden and Frank Smith of Buckland, and consolation by Mrs. Myron Peckham and E. Copeland.

The diagram shows how a youngster took eight pieces of wood and had formed two squares, and moved them around until they formed three squares, all of the same size.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)
The native chief of Tessawa looked on the Tinymites with awe. Said he, "My sure are little folks! And yet you travel far. From day to day, I have no doubt, each one of you gets all tired out. And yet you keep on going. My, oh my, how brave you are."

FIRST 1931 ANGLING LICENSE IS ISSUED

Ernest A. Doellner First To Apply — Pins Have Many Colors For Next Year.

Number one on the list of applicants for hunting and fishing licenses for 1931 is Ernest A. Doellner of 65 Cooper street, who yesterday applied for the first angling license for 1931. Town Clerk Sam Turkington handed out one of the official goldenrod-colored pins for the 1931 ice-fishing season which is over a week off.

The pins have changed colors again this year. If sportsmen are at all partial to colors, they will get plenty of it next season. Here's the 1931 ice-fishing season which is over a week off.
