

HOWELL CHENEY URGES PLAN OF JOB ALLOTTING

Local Member of State Employment Board Advocates Also Cuts In Costs and Prices As Trade Aid.

A report containing suggestions on the industrial depression in Connecticut was submitted to the Connecticut State Emergency Committee on Unemployment at a meeting in the Capitol Building, Hartford, yesterday, by Howell Cheney, industrial relations superintendent of Cheney Brothers and a member of the commission. The report eliminated from consideration "all unsound plans, such as the 'Buy Now' slogan and the undertaking of public improvements that are neither necessary nor productive, that are carried out uneconomically, or at excessive costs, or that will give employment only to those usually unemployed at this season."

The report maintained that "while relief measures are necessary and should be encouraged, they are the least effective of all measures in removing the causes of the depression or in advancing its elimination," and urged "in every way possible protect the state and the community from unsound proposals such as the 'Buy It Now' campaign and the 'dole' systems, which are at best only temporary palliatives and often lead to social and economic evils."

The unanimous approval of the entire committee was given to Mr. Cheney's report and Chairman James W. Hook praised the suggestions highly, although no vote was taken in connection with the report. Mr. Cheney was appointed as a sub-committee to make a careful study of the proposal of Raymond F. Gates, state agent of the Department of State Agencies and Institutions, to enact emergency legislation providing for the reimbursement to towns for employment of persons who would otherwise become state paupers.

Take Losses Now
In his report Mr. Cheney urged that all industrial and commercial institutions liquidate all present actual determined losses as soon as possible by:

1. Marking down all inventories to their new actual market value.
2. Closing all obsolete stocks as soon as possible, liquidating the losses.
3. Eliminating from costs unproductive or unnecessary expense of every character.
4. Quoting the lowest possible prices that will protect the capital investment.

He further proposed that industrial concerns promote future employment and protect employees by making whatever improvements in plant and equipment will materially reduce costs of production, studying the creation of new products to meet new markets, or substitutes

WILHELM OBSERVES 72ND BIRTHDAY

Only Few of His Relatives Present At Doorn Because of Illness.

Doorn, Holland, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Former Kaiser Wilhelm celebrated his 72nd birthday today, but gripped, which gets Commoner and Prince as well, cast a shadow over the anniversary as some of his closest relatives were unable to attend.

Only former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm with his second son, Louis Ferdinand, Prince Adalbert, and Prince August Wilhelm, with his son, Alexander, were able to attend the former emperor personally at his place of exile.

The other Hohenzollerns including the former Kaiser's only daughter, Princess Victoria, his only sister, Princess Margarete of Hesse, former Crown Princess Cecile and Princess Adalbert, all of whom regularly attended in other years, were prevented from coming to Doorn by the illness which is raging in many parts of Germany. Princess Oscar is still suffering from the after effects of an appendicitis operation.

In Good Health
Wilhelm himself celebrated the day in excellent health and was glad to see his relatives and to observe that the traditional "Hohenzollern weather" meaning bright sunshine had followed upon a night of heavy snow so that the ancient trees on the Doorn estate glistened in the sun's rays.

There were no representatives of Germany's Monarchist organizations present as in other years, a fact ascribed to the economic crisis in the fatherland. Instead there were baskets of telegrams, letters, poems and other messages, together with packages of embroidered handkerchiefs and nosegays of flowers.

SAINTLY HALO IS BOY MADE

Congregation Believed a Miracle Had Been Performed But the Preacher Solves Mystery.

Washington, North Carolina, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The ethereal glow which cast a halo around the face of the Rev. H. T. Stevens, Baptist evangelist, as he preached a dramatic sermon here was not a miracle.

As Mr. Stevens leaned forward in his pulpit, his face suddenly became illuminated with a soft light.

Main members of the congregation, startled by the light, arose in their seats.

Pausing in his remarks, Mr. Stevens turned to a small boy in the front pew.

"Son," he said, "if I were you, I wouldn't play with that flashlight any more."

MITCHELL, SCHALL IN BITTER DEBATE

Attorney General and Blind Senator In Dispute of a Federal Judgeship.

Washington, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Attorney General Mitchell and Senator Schall, Republican, Minn., engaged today in an open controversy over the appointment of a Federal judge in the midwestern states.

The attorney general breaking the customary silence of his department, issued a statement asserting it should be "understood once and for all" that he could not recommend to the President, Ernest A. Michel, Minnesota lawyer, endorsed for the post by Schall.

The blind senator immediately replied with a statement indicating he would not withdraw the endorsement and charging Mitchell with "less than good taste" in some of his assertions.

Mitchell himself a native of Minnesota, said he believed the people of that state did not want "men appointed to political debts."

The cabinet officers indicated that Schall's recommendation of Mitchell was "unsatisfactory" to President Hoover.

Schall's Statement
It was the inference by Mitchell to the payment of "political debts"

NOTES NO CHANGE IN WORLD TRADE

U. S. Commerce Department Makes Report — Central America Improves.

Washington, Jan. 27.—(AP)—World business conditions as reviewed today by the Commerce Department in a summary of messages from its agents abroad showed few changes in international trade. Encouraging developments, however, were noted in Central America and the West Indies.

"Business and industry are moderate in Japan," the statements said. "The uncertain outlook in China, especially in connection with the silver situation, is reacting unfavorably on exports and imports. The Netherlands East Indies are showing reduced purchasing power. December trade in the Philippines registered a slight recession from gains made during November. A reduction of 10 per cent has been effected in basic wage scales in Australia, affecting about 50 per cent of Australian workers.

"Dullness continues general in South American countries. In Brazil there has been a seasonal upturn in a few lines. Business in Uruguay showed a further downward trend. In Central America and the West Indies there are a few encouraging developments, including the favorable effect in Cuba of the reported success of negotiations for the stabilization of the world raw sugar industry.

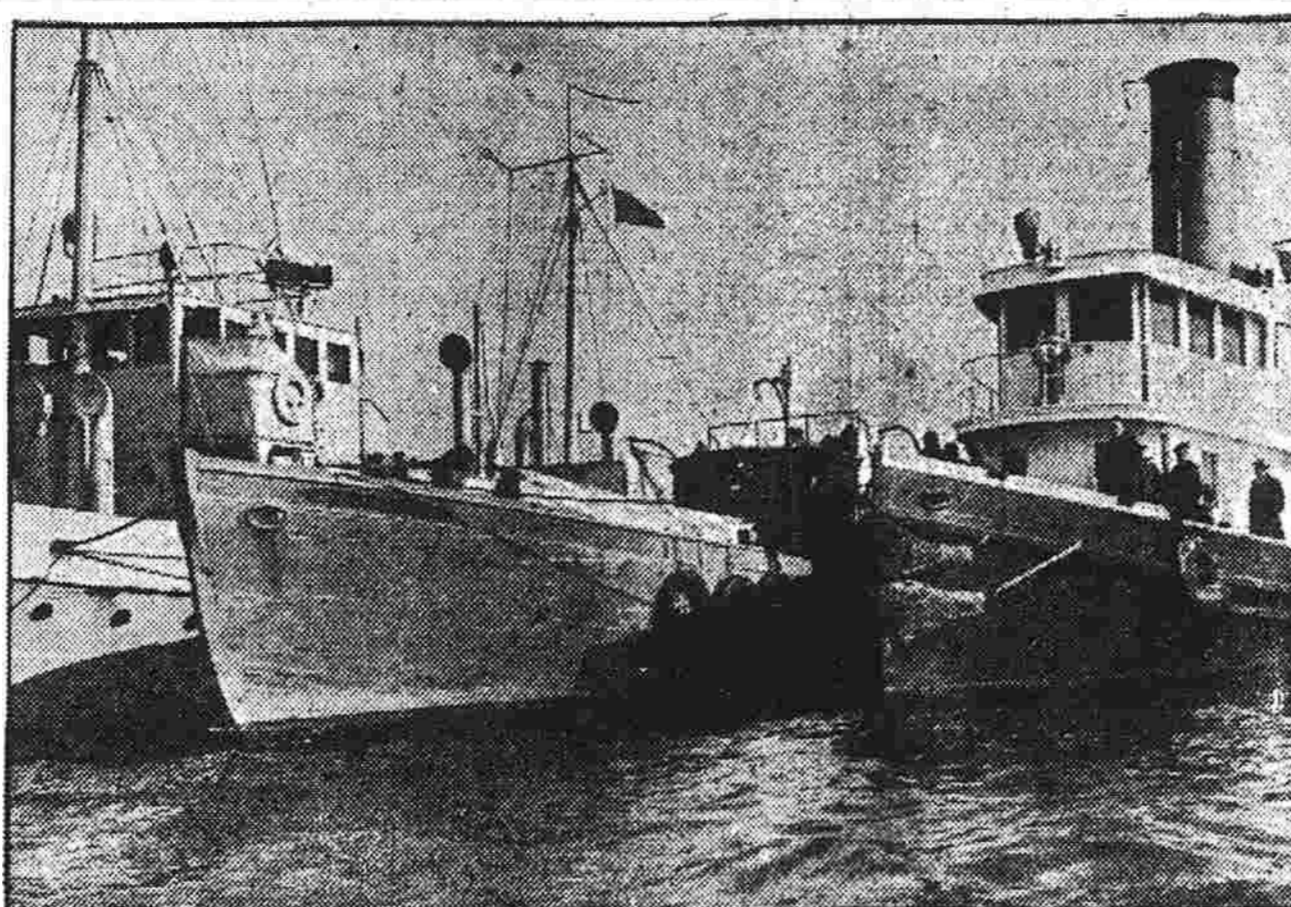

"Only seasonal improvement is noticeable in Canada."

Loved Her Hubby So Much
She Gave Him to Another
Los Angeles, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Love so great that she gave her husband in marriage to Phoebe Armstrong, a woman 14 years younger than herself, is professed by Mrs. Stella Marlene in contesting the will of her divorced husband, Dr. Charles L. Marlene.

"I even prepared Phoebe's wedding garments for her," she testified in Superior Court yesterday. "She always exerted a sort of hypnotic influence over me."

Captured Rum Schooner Taken to Port After Killing of Canadian Skipper.

Captured with a cargo of liquor reported to be worth more than $80,000, the Canadian rum-running schooner Josephine K. is shown above between two coast guard boats as she was brought into New York harbor. The captain, William P. Cluett, 41-year-old Nova Scotia skipper of the rum ship, was mortally wounded by a one-pound shell fired through the pilot house of his ship during an exciting chase off Ambrose Light. Fifteen hundred cases of Scotch whiskey were confiscated and two other vessels, a tug and a barge, were seized with a crew of 16. A board of inquiry was appointed to investigate the shelling of the rum schooner.

NEW FRENCH CABINET IS FORMED BY LAVAL

Premier Confident He Will Receive Vote of Confidence Although Politicians Are Doubtful.

Paris, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Premier Pierre Laval took his new French Cabinet to the Elysee Palace this afternoon and presented them to President Doumergue. After the presentation they were sworn in and left to begin work on the ministerial declaration on which they will seek a vote of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies probably Friday. M. Laval, 47, is the son of a country butcher, and one of the youngest men to reach the head of the French government.

The new ministry lists André Tardieu in the portfolio of agriculture, where he may handle the growing wheat problem. Aristide Briand is back in the foreign office. There are four Senators and 25 Deputies in the group of ministers and under-secretaries, six of the number being of M. Tardieu's group. Politicians generally today were doubtful of the Cabinet's chances of survival in the first test of strength in the Chamber, since the support of the Left Center seemed lukewarm, but Senator Laval himself is an able tactful statesman and has many friends. The new ministry replaces that of Theodore Steeg, which fell in the Chamber on a wheat price fixing issue, last Thursday.

The new premier announced one change in the list of his under-secretaries. Charles Pomaret, at first designated as under secretary of colonies, was shifted to the under-secretaryship in the ministry of education. The Senegalese deputy, Blaise Diagne will become under-secretary of colonies.

First Negro
It is the first time in the history of France that a negro has held a portfolio in the Cabinet. Before his election to the Chamber Diagne was a functionary in the Customs service and during the war Clemenceau put him in charge of recruiting colonial troops.

As it stands the Cabinet closely resembles that of Tardieu but Laval has a slight advantage in the Senate where an adverse vote defeated Tardieu.

There was a possibility that the Cabinet would postulate its appearance before the Chamber until Friday although its members were to meet this afternoon to draw up an outline of their policies. The meeting at which this document will be finished was scheduled, however, for Friday morning and this was taken as an indication that the Parliamentary debut would not come before Friday afternoon.

Washington, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The British government has made formal representations to the State Department regarding "unsatisfactory conditions" under which British subjects are being held at some centers and particularly at Seattle, Washington, for deportation.

The State Department, in a reply to the note presented December 18 by Ambassador Lindsay, stated the Labor Department expected the new building at Seattle to be ready for occupancy in August. The new building, which was added, was being equipped with a view to comfort for those detained.

INVESTIGATING CASES

MacDONALD PARTY TRIUMPHS AGAIN

Almost Unanimous Acceptance By Parliament of Round Table Report.

London, Jan. 27.—(AP)—J. Ramsay MacDonald's Labor government today rode on the crest of a wave which has carried it to three major triumphs in foreign and imperial policy.

Added to the prestige gained in the Naval conference and by the Snowdon victories at the Hague reparations conference, was an almost unanimous acceptance by Parliament of results of the Indian round table conference.

There was indication as the Indian debate in Commons ceased that the government facing the most critical test of its career tomorrow, in a vote on the trades dispute bill, would emerge victorious by many votes to insure its continuance in office for some time.

It remained for Stanley Baldwin, chief opposition leader, and Sir John Simon, one of the Liberal leaders, both of whom tomorrow will be out

EDGERTON SCORES IDLE INSURANCE

Head of Manufacturers Says Proposed Plan To Aid Jobless Is No Good.

Washington, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Proposals for government unemployment insurance today met uncompromising opposition of John Edgerton, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, who said it would "subsidize idleness."

Speaking before the National conference on permanent preventives of unemployment, meeting here under the auspices of church organizations, he said the economic safety of the country lay in thrift and conservation of surplus earnings by individuals as well as by industry.

Edgerton saw little hope for permanent relief from droughts, storms, "and other natural disruptions of normality resulting in losses of balance between production and distribution."

Set Aside Surpluses
Good business men, he added, put aside surpluses out of their business earnings to take them through these recurring periods, and "those business men who can and do make such provisions weather the storms."

"If this has demonstrated itself to be a sound and wise business practice for corporations and other combinations of capital, then it is just as sound and wise for individuals," he asserted.

"Public unemployment insurance would not only be in conflict with, but subversive of tested theories of government. With one hand the government would be wringing money from one class of citizens, and passing it on in dolos with the other hand to other groups of citizens.

"New and unparalleled opportunities for graft and political self-perpetuation would thus be created for politicians already too fat upon misappropriated power."

KINGSTON CO. CHIEFS HELD UNDER BONDS

Two Brothers and Their Lawyer Arrested On Bench Warrants Charging Perjury and Falsification.

Hartford, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Charging perjury, falsification of records and financial statement on conspiracy to defraud, on six counts in all, State's Attorney Alcorn secured the arrest of Frederic E. Kingston, head of the defunct brokerage firm of F. E. Kingston & Co.; his brother, Harold E. Kingston, and Colonel Lewis L. Field, of New Haven, their lawyer, on bench warrants issued by Judge F. P. McAvoy in Superior court here this morning.

F. E. Kingston was ordered held in bonds of $80,000 while bail for his brother and for Attorney Field was set at $10,000 each. Bonds of $5,000 each for John H. Reid, Frank H. Smith and Edmund J. Grandahl, previously arrested on perjury charges, and who are named in the other charges now made against the alleged ringleaders of the Kingston Company, were continued at the same amount. All six cases were continued until the next meeting of the Superior court.

DECLARES GUARD FAILED TO FIRE WARNING SHOT

First Mate On Rum Runner Says All Shots Took Effect—Vessel Was Beyond the 12 Mile Limit, He Says

New York, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Wesley Anderson, first mate of the Josephine K., Canadian vessel shelled by the Coast Guard off Ambrose Light Saturday night, told interviewers today that the guardsmen failed to fire any warning shots.

Anderson declared only three shells were directed at the Josephine K. and said every one of them took effect. One mortally wounded Captain William P. Cluett, master of the vessel.

The first mate was to be a witness at the Coast Guard inquiry into the shooting, convened this afternoon at the Guard station in Staten Island.

"The first intimation I had of the presence of the Coast Guard cutter was when her searchlight picked us up," Anderson said. "She was not more than 25 yards away. I was at the forward hold and as soon as the first shot was fired I ducked to the engine room."

Alone In Pilot House
"Captain Cluett was alone in the pilot house, so far as I know, and I can't say on what shot he stopped our boat, but I am sure it was either the first or the second."

"So far as I could judge our position was well outside the twelve-mile limit. I would place it about fifteen miles. I know of no blank shots fired at us."

The British consul general in New York has been asked to send a representative to the meetings of the board of inquiry. This action was taken at the request of the Canadian government. The representative, it is understood, will take no part in the proceedings but will report direct to the Canadian government.

Boston Critics Rave Over Paintings Shown as a Joke

Boston, Jan. 27.—(AP)—"Pavel Jerdanowitch" and the "Disambrotonist School of Painting" of which he was the "founder and supreme master" were exposed today as the whimsical revenge of a California minister upon critics who failed to appreciate the paintings of his wife.

Until Boston critics challenged the collection of the Rev. Paul Smith alias "Pavel Jerdanowitch" on display at the Vose Galleries, the paintings had been admired by art patrons here, as well as in New York and Chicago. Jerdanowitch was hailed as "a modern genius" and even was offered $1,500 for one painting, the Vose galleries officials said. Freely admitting the exhibition was a joke, the Vose galleries officials said the "Russian translations" accompanying the pictures did much to impress the unsuspecting public.

Now that they know it was a joke, even those who admired the pictures are chucking over them. There was for instance "Illumination" showing a drunken man staggering home. "Aspiration" showed a negro washer woman bending over a tub of suds with eyes on a bird in a tree.

YOUTH THIRD HELD IN DEATH OF GIRL

Joseph Drohan of Hartford Accused With Doctor and Father In Vincent Case.

(Special To The Herald)
Rockville, Jan. 27.—Joseph Drohan, 20, of 339 Jefferson street, Hartford, will face the police court here tomorrow morning along with Dr. Edward A. Brace of Ellington and Arthur G. Vincent of 71 Union street, as a sequel to the death of Miss Constance M. Vincent, 20, of 71 Union street, who died on the way to the St. Francis hospital in Hartford Saturday night following an alleged illegal operation.

Drohan, who worked in the department of the Hartford Steam Boiler and Inspection Company where Miss Vincent was employed, is said to have given the girl's father $100 which he in turn paid to Dr. Brace for performing the operation. Drohan was released under bonds of $1,500 for appearance in court tomorrow with Dr. Brace and the girl's father who is widely known in Rockville where he has been a druggist for many years, who are also under bail.

No Other Doctor, Says Hickey
Hartford County Detective Edward J. Hickey who is investigating the case, this morning said there was no truth to a report current in Rockville that some other physician was responsible and that Dr. B. Brace became involved by being called in on the case at the last minute.

Hickey said the no other doctor was arrested were concerned in the case.

Rockville is deeply shocked over the case. It was the chief topic of conversation here last night. When Miss Vincent staved home from work last week, the cause of her illness was given as a throat infection. The girl's mother was not told of her daughter's death until Sunday morning and the shock was Senator Bergin To Offer Bill Calling For Non-Partisan Commission To Investigate Construction of Fairfield State Institution At Newtown—Many Bills Introduced In General Assembly Today.

State Capitol, Hartford, Jan. 27.—(AP)—A Democratic conference today reached a decision that Senator Bergin should offer without unnecessary delay a bill calling upon the governor to appoint a non-partisan commission "to investigate" the construction of the Fairfield State hospital at Newtown.

The commission would be given power to subpoena witnesses, books, records and contracts, and the right to inquire into all expenditures made.

At the conference were Senator Bergin, House Leader Citron, Congressman-elect Loneragan, Senator Connor of Hartford and National Committeeman McNeil.

The proposed action, it was later stated by conferees, has the approval of Governor Cross.

One purpose of the desired investigation, it was understood, after the conference, was to look into the sale by Senator Senior, of Bethel, of material to the general contractor of the hospital and into payment of a fee to former Senator Matthew Kenealy for searching the title. The former has been a trustee and the latter is still on the board.

The Crusaders' measure on the 1928 Amendment will be in the form of a resolution. It goes to both Senate and House asking the General Assembly to memorialize Congress for a referendum on repeal of the amendment.

The resolutions were not ready today.

Reports Submitted
Governor Cross sent to the Senate the reports of the Judicial Council and in his letter he made this comment:

"Again I would like to direct attention to the important contribution to our judicial system that has been made in the study by both Senate and House asking the General Assembly to memorialize Congress for a referendum on repeal of the amendment."

"That it shall be unlawful for any public funds appropriated by the General Assembly or raised by tax levies in the several counties, cities, towns or other municipal or governmental subdivisions of the state to be used or expended in the employment of, or payment of salaries, to any married woman whose husband is receiving a salary or other income in excess of one hundred and seventy-five dollars per month, out of any said public funds or tax levies, or from any other source."

Not to Teachers
"This act, however, shall not apply to a married woman elected to a public office by a vote of the people or to teachers now employed in the educational system of the state or in any institution of higher learning."

Mr. Hobbs, of Orange, offered a resolution for the law which permits certain forms of gambling at Savin Rock.

The appointees of Governor Cross of T. A. D. Jones and John A. Condon, to be harbor commissioners at New Haven, and of James H. Naylor, to be a trustee at Mansfield school were favorably reported out of the committee to the Senate.

The governor's nominations of T. A. D. Jones and John A. Condon to be harbor commissioners at New Haven, and James H. Naylor to be a trustee of the Mansfield training school, were favorably reported to the Senate and they were confirmed.

Old Age Pension
Mr. Dannenberg (D) Bridgeport, offered the Federation of Labor old age pension commission of five members to be appointed by the governor and providing for payment as sum not exceeding $9 a week to residents of the state who are 65 years old or more.

A state income tax bill providing for a tax ranging from 2 to 3 percent on individual income was offered by Mr. Templeton, of Kent. This would impose a one per cent tax on incomes up to $10,000; two per cent on incomes from $10,000 to $50,000 and three per cent on incomes over $50,000.

Mr. Diana of New Haven, offered a resolution for Sunday Blue Laws. The season for "frank bills" opened when Mr. Mathias of Seymour offered one which provided that no employe should park his car on a public highway during working hours for more than a half hour.

"Old Henry" Fitzpatrick Passes Away In Hebron

(Special to The Herald)

Hebron, Jan. 27.—Henry Fitzpatrick, nearly 80 years old, who had lived alone in a small three-room house in a thickly wooded section of this town for 24 years, died of heart disease last Sunday afternoon. The elderly man was the possessor of many friends through his kindly nature and pleasing personality. One of his most noteworthy characteristics was to help others in times of stress. Neighbors took a wide interest in the health and welfare of "Old Henry" as he was familiarly known.

Mr. Fitzpatrick had been a resident of Hebron for nearly 35 years, first coming here to work on a 300-acre farm owned by the late Loomis of Manchester. Mr. Loomis sold his large farm and had bought a small three-acre plot and a three-room house. He willed this property to his niece, Miss Helen J. Comstock, who lives at 11 Main street near the corner of Woodbridge street. Miss Comstock had a wide interest in the health and welfare of "Old Henry" as he was familiarly known.

HILLIARDVILLE MISHAP TIES UP THE TROLLEYS

Truck Skids On To Tracks At Gammons' Corner — Towed Off Rails By Passing Truck.

Traffic was delayed for a time on the Rockville line yesterday afternoon due to a truck skidding as it made the turn at Gammons' corner going towards Hilliardville and went across the trolley rails. The driver was thrown off the truck, but was not injured.

The local police were notified and Officer Arthur Seymour went to investigate, but when he arrived the car had been removed. A Standard Oil gasoline truck came along and hooked on to the truck and pulled it out into the road. The truck was damaged and was able to proceed on its own power.

KINGSTON CO. CHIEFS HELD UNDER BONDS

Immediately after issuance of the warrants this morning.

The most startling disclosure contained in the long information filed by Mr. Alcorn in securing the bench warrants is that Donald A. Dunham, one of the partners in the firm who is not involved in the criminal proceeding, contributed some $60,000 to its capital while Fredric Kingston, head of the partnership, "at no time contributed any money securities or property to the partnership."

In securing this money from Mrs. Dunham, Kingston reported that she had put more than $1,000,000 into the business himself.

Employees Bring Suit

Immediately after their arrest, the Kingstons were served with papers in a suit brought by former employees, charging that the partners of the firm mulcted them of some $50,000 through an employees' investment trust known as the Kingston Associates, into which each employee paid a certain proportion of his salary. According to the allegations of the suit, which is brought by Attorney Bernard J. Ackerman on behalf of Gladys T. Barnes of Hartford and Alice E. Wayand of East Hartford, the partners, last November 26, induced the employees to execute waivers giving their interests in the trust over to the firm, without any payment. The suit also names as defendants the other two partners, Leonard O. Ritter and Mr. Dunham and Elbert Church of West Hartford, who was a trustee.

The trust was formed in October 28, with about 150 members, all employees of the firm, the partner of the firm being trustees.

All members made weekly payments and some $50,000 was invested. B. F. Slade as Federal receiver of the Kingston firm, is named a defendant in the suit.

ALCORN'S CHARGES

Mr. Alcorn told the court, in presenting his charges, that the addition of other counts might be necessary, but that he had given the charges so far made, in detail, in that a motion for a bill of particulars could be avoided, thus assuring early trial of the case. He asked that February 10 be set as the final date for filing motions, but this was denied by Judge McEvoy, when Attorney Charles Martin, counsel for the defendants expected Attorney Field, assured the court that he would file any motions as soon as possible. He is also counsel in the Parker-Smith re-trial which starts in New Haven Thursday, he pointed out, and is thus pressed for time at present.

A complete history of the Kingston firm, with detailed sketches of many of its manipulations, is contained in Mr. Alcorn's charges.

History of Concern

The F. E. Kingston Company was formed in New Haven, June 10, 1921 with 1,252 shares of common stock, of which Mr. Kingston owned 751 shares paying nothing for it, while the remainder was issued to others so that $50,100 in cash capital was paid in.

Thereafter, Mr. Kingston caused exorbitant commissions to be paid salesmen for sale of securities. Mr. Alcorn charged. As of May 31, 1925, the corporation showed a surplus of $10,718.09, having operated at a loss every year except the last.

In November 20, 1925, the partnership of F. E. Kingston and Company was formed, with Mr. Kingston, Mr. Dunham, Stewart W. Reid, now of the Hartford brokerage firm of Reid, King and Company, and Leonard O. Ritter as partners. The agreement was to run ten years. Capital was set at $2,500,000, of which the interest of F. E. Kingston was to be 51 per cent, though he at no time paid any money into the partnership, it is charged.

The other partners contributed as follows: Mr. Dunham $380,000; Mr. Reid $38,750; Mr. Ritter $4,032. Mr. Kingston ran the firm exclusively, dictating the amount of profit paid out, and "concealing from the other partners the actual results of operations," Mr. Alcorn charges.

At a later date, Mr. Kingston, representing that he himself had put $1,000,000 into the firm, obtained an additional $300,000 from Mr. Dunham. Harold Kingston became a partner later, putting $5,000 into the business.

PROPOSES NOVEL PLAN TO AID TOWN POOR

North End Gasoline Station To Give Percentage of Income To Social Service Work.

Bergen and Berman, operators of the filling station on the corner of Main and Hilliard streets, have offered to do their bit to aid the town's needy cases in a novel plan submitted by Miss Jessie M. Reynolds yesterday.

The North End filling station proprietors have agreed to turn over to the town welfare fund from now until March the sum of one cent on every gallon of gasoline sold; five cents on every quart of oil and 20 cents on every greasing job done at their service station. The total will be turned over to Miss Reynolds each week.

No increases in prices of the various commodities sold by Bergen and Berman will be made and the only guarantee asked by them is that they have the exclusive rights to the plan in the north end of the town.

DILWORTH-CORNELL POST

Dilworth-Cornell Post American Legion, a regular monthly meeting in the Legion room in the State Armory last night, heard reports of the under committee and the on-to-Boston committee.

The boys' baseball committee outlined plans for a new season in the Legion, as usual, backing a team of boys of from 14 to 17 years of age.

The banquet committee reported that plans have been made to hold the annual banquet in the Masonic Temple on March 2, to be sponsored by the Legion and Auxiliary.

The Legion calls to the attention of all men who are veterans of any branch of the service during the World War, and who have not as yet joined the American Legion, to the program being broadcast over station WDRG and WTIC this week.

The sentiment of members of the Legion at last night's meeting was in favor of the immediate payment of advanced compensation, provided that 100 per cent of the face value of the policies would be paid.

Eighty members of the post were in attendance at last night's meeting. The attendance prize was won by Harry Marsden of Eldridge street.

Legislation looked for will be a variety of usual, and quite a number of his funds about $2,000,000 to make a start on the layout.

The House received a bill proposing that the governor appoint a state highway commission of five members.

The bill for a new geodetic survey carried $324,000. A correctional bill provides that an inmate from the state prison who is sent to work on the proposed prison farm would have double credits for good behavior. In this connection, impression is held that land will be found for a new prison farm.

If a site is found the Legislature will be asked to provide for its purchase.

GIBSON NAMED TO HEAD SOUTH METHODIST MEN

The Men's Friendship club of the South Methodist church held its annual meeting last night and elected officers for the year. Archie Haugh who has been the leader for the past year will be succeeded by Arthur Gibson. The nominating committee appointed at the preceding meeting brought in a list of nominees, all of whom were unanimously elected. Russell Haley is the new vice president, Wilfrid Crossen, secretary and William Black was re-elected treasurer. President Gibson will appoint the various sub-committees for carrying on the work of the club during the year.

Mr. Gibson in taking the chair made a strong appeal to all present for their personal support as otherwise the position to which he had just been appointed would be one in name only. The success of the club, he impressed upon them, depended upon the efforts each individual member made for its success and prosperity, the object being to bring the Men's Friendship club in line with all other departments of the church which are showing a marked increase in activity and interest.

FLOOD OF BILLS

State Capitol, Hartford, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The biennial flood of bills to the General Assembly, with the time limit for new business in sight, began today. There was a great variety of bills, and quite a number of outstanding measures. Some that were ready were held back for tomorrow or Thursday.

An interesting bill was that which would bar elective officers of the state as well as state and town committee chairmen from holding town judgeships.

The proposed Merritt boulevard is likely to receive early attention due to the fact that impression is held that no bill will come in relating to an express highway across southern Connecticut to be built by private capital. This highway was thought by many to be a competitor of the Merritt highway plan. In the latter instance the bill already in provides for a $10,000,000 issue of with friends and other Nationalist leaders. Gandhi, his shoulders more stooped and somewhat thinner, after eight months in prison, sat on the rear seat, occasionally holding his clasped hands aloft in kind of benediction to the throngs, who look to him for a decision as to their attitude toward British offers of improved Indian constitutional status.

Not Ready To Speak To two newspapermen who accompanied him aboard a train from Chinchwad, where he was brought by automobile after the secret release from Yeroda on Jan. 17, Gandhi revealed he may not give his word for some weeks, probably not until after he has conferred with friends who attended the London round table conference who have not yet returned to India.

Others Not Released He expressed sorrow that about 25,000 political prisoners who had been held for civil disobedience campaign offenses were not released. Prison officials inferred that if these are not freed he will cause his own arrest again.

Divide Up Jobs So that each family will have at least some means of support, Mr. Cheney suggested that employers distribute jobs over as many families as possible, by making a permanent record of the effects of the present catastrophe and the relative success of the various measures of relief.

Recreation Business The possibilities of extending the recreational opportunities of Connecticut were also suggested by Mr. Cheney as worthy of study, so as to bring more summer tourists in to employ more people. This could be accomplished by the elimination of mosquitoes by protection of shore beaches, by the improvement of the state park system and by advertising.

TELEPHONE EMPLOYEES MEET IN HARTFORD

All Exchanges in Hartford District Represented At Today's Sessions.

Hartford, January 27.—The importance to any business, however large, of a helpful, cooperative spirit among its workers towards those charged with the responsibility of management, was emphasized in an address by Ernest L. Simonds, vice president of the Southern New England Telephone Company at a meeting here today of the Hartford District Conference of the Telephone Employees' Association.

Employees representing all exchange areas in the Hartford District gathered here this morning to discuss matters relating to their respective departments and at noon a joint luncheon meeting was held. Following luncheon, Vice President Simonds addressed the delegates, his subject being, "The Telephone Employees' Association," which was organized about 11 years ago and includes in its membership every worker in the telephone company.

"The association of telephone workers and the management of the company," said Mr. Simonds, "recognize a mutual obligation to give the public high grade telephone service in all its phases."

"There is, also," the speaker said, "a mutual responsibility on management and employees to improve the operating methods and practices so that there will be a steady betterment in service to the company's patrons."

STEAMER AGROUND

Astoria, Ore., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Tugboats and Coast Guard cutters were attempting today to free the coastwise steamer Admiral Nulton from the clutching sands of Grolitis Spit at the mouth of the Columbia river.

The freighter, owned by the Pacific Steamship Company, grounded last night as she was entering the river. By midnight she was pounding badly. The Coast Guard reported if she were not freed during high tide this morning she might drive into the sand so deeply it would be impossible to float her. The steamer has a crew of 35 but carries no passengers.

LONG PIPELINES SOON MAY CUT GASOLINE COSTS

Tulsa, Okla. (AP).—A new era is dawning in the transportation and distribution of gasoline, the petroleum industry's principal money product.

Shipment of gasoline through pipelines built especially for the purpose is about to be inaugurated. By the first of February the Great Lakes Pipeline company expects to be conveying gasoline from Oklahoma refineries to Kansas City through a new underground carrier.

Work on a second gasoline pipeline from Berger, Tex., to St. Louis is being rushed by the Phillips Petroleum company, a subsidiary of the Phillips Petroleum company.

These are the first pipelines built expressly to carry gasoline, although the fuel previously has been shipped through Pennsylvania pipelines originally built for crude oil.

Material lessening of distribution costs and delivery of greater gallonage are advantages claimed for the new form of transportation. The Great Lakes company estimates its lines, which is to be extended as far north as Minneapolis and as far east as Chicago, will carry the refined product at a cost of about one cent a gallon for the long haul, as compared with 2.38 cents by rail.

Bulk stations at 50-mile intervals along the lines will serve adjacent territory.

Dangers Minimized
Engineers say the operating problems or dangers in transporting gasoline by pipeline do not vary greatly from those involved in the transportation of crude oil.

The Great Lakes Pipeline company was organized by the Barnsdall corporation and the Continental Oil company, but other companies have completed negotiations for use of the line.

The Phillips line will run from the company's Berger, Tex., refinery northeast to Wichita, Kas., thence to Kansas City and across Missouri to St. Louis. At the latter point docking facilities will be available for shipping by barge up the Mississippi to the Twin Cities, southward to Memphis and New Orleans, and eastward via the Ohio waterway to Louisville, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh.

One reason to believe the framers of the Constitution were of Scotch descent is that they advocated free speech.

Make system alkaline to ... Stop Colds QUICK!

Get Rid of Colds Before They Weaken You, Make You Liable to More Serious Troubles.

Nowadays it's important to stop your cold quick before it weakens your resistance to more serious trouble.

Any of the older treatments will bring relief—after a time. But thousands say this new way is the quickest of any.

Begin when you feel a cold coming. Take a tablespoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water, morning, noon, and night, the first day. Do same the second day. Then only at night. Colds reduce the alkaline balance of your system. That makes you feel achy, feverish, weak. Phillips Milk of Magnesia relieves this, and restores the alkaline balance.

Doctors prescribe Phillips Milk of Magnesia; hospitals use it. Millions know how it relieves sour stomachs, gas, indigestion, constipation and other symptoms of too much acid. Get the genuine.

All over America

these steps are being taken in the war against Unemployment

Do not think of unemployment in terms of millions of people out of work in this broad land of America.

getting work started . . . now. That means people are going back to work.

Think of unemployment as a few people out of work within a stone's throw of you—your own neighbors. Maybe one, or maybe two out of every twenty in your vicinity. That, after all, is the unemployment problem.

Now What About You?

Now, for instance, is the time to make additions, improvements, repairs, to have odd jobs done around your home . . . to increase the worth of your property while materials are low priced . . . to increase the country's buying power . . . to give a neighbor a job.

Here Are Three Big Essentials That Will Have A Very Important Effect In The Return Of Good Business

If People Will Start BUYING NOW

It will mean that local markets, as well as everywhere, will need more merchandise to replenish their stocks.

Which In Turn Will Mean The Selling Forces of industry will be on the road again taking orders for their various companies which will mean that will begin to produce more and of course will need more help to handle additional orders.

All of which only goes on to illustrate the point that better business will only come about when everyone begins buying.

Business and life in general is one great cycle. To succeed no part can drag behind the others.

'Gary Of Russia' Rises Near Mountain Of Iron; American Engineers Prod 20,000 Soviet Workers

By VICTOR EUBANK

Magnetogorsk, U. S. S. R.—(AP)—Here, a thousand miles from any city of importance, the soviet union is building one of the biggest steel mills in the world.

Americans who have seen it describe the place as "the Gary of Russia." It is rising from barren steppes in much the same manner as the steel town at the southern end of Lake Michigan mushroomed amid sand dunes of northern Indiana.

A city is springing up here, too, but thus far the town consists principally of shacks and tents.

And as in World War days, when military minds of the United States looked to Gary as a life-saver in case of disaster overseas, so the soviet authorities are appealing to the patriotic sense of Russian workers to hasten the Magnetogorsk project to completion.

From the standpoint of invasion by a foreign army, the project would be classed as "impossible." It is more than 1,000 miles almost due east of Moscow near where Siberia and European Russia merge.

The Magnetogorsk works alone would constitute an important military vertebra for soviet defense, both from the east and west. But it is only one link in a chain of such enterprises which the communist regime has planned in the Ural region.

Other plants are being built or are planned at Niji-Tagil, Bakalsky, Sinarisky and Kuznetsk.

Like most of the big projects now under way in the union, Magnetogorsk is being bossed by American engineers, the Arthur G. McKee company of Cleveland having the contract.

Twenty McKee specialists are on the job, although the winter weather here runs the North Pole temperature a close second. But with 20,000 men working in three shifts of eight hours each, the Americans must ignore the chilly cold.

The huge metal plant is to be completed, according to "the five-year-plan," by 1933, but if work continues at the present pace engineers believe it will be in full operation before that time. Two of the big blast furnaces may be ready for work by the end of 1931.

While the soviets may envisage the uninterrupted production of war materials here in the future, the first orders to be filled will be for the transport service of the union.

By the end of 1931 it is desired that Magnetogorsk furnish 350,000 tons of rails, 450,000 tons of beams, 250,000 tons of assorted iron and steel and 100,000 tons of roller iron for the immediate use of the railways which even the optimistic communist will admit are in a bad way now.

"More metal" is the cry of the soviet planners in their five-year scheme to build "the world's greatest industrial nation." So the Magnetogorsk steel mills will be surrounded by factories which will hasten the conversion of its products.

Nearly a number of machine building plants, including those for industrial and agricultural machinery, are to be erected. Foundation work is already under way for chemical plants and some smaller factories of the light industry class.

The steel plant is at the foot of "magnet mountain," which is almost solid iron. No watch can be guaranteed to keep the right time in its vicinity and compasses are worthless. Preliminary estimates place the mountain's content at a billion tons of ore.

A little more than a year ago Magnetogorsk was a small village called Magnitnaya. By the time the various factories are completed it is expected to have a population of more than 80,000. State and collective farms are being organized to furnish food for the coming city.

Magnetogorsk is to get its fuel from the rich Kuznetsk basin, which is some hundred miles farther east in Siberia and which has a deposit of coke coal estimated at 400 billion tons. Double railway tracks are being laid between the steel works and the coal mines.

The railway situation, as in other parts of the union, is one of the present handicaps of the projects. A single track line now connects the works with Troitsk on the Trans-Siberian railway.

There is another single track line to Kartall, but this is of the military type and trains run over it at only five miles an hour. American engineers call it the "slowest railroad in the world," but a double track line also is under construction on this route.

GIGANTIC PRODUCTION IS STEEL CITY'S GOAL

Magnetogorsk, U. S. S. R.—(AP)—Here are some figures to show the size of the Russian job in building this new "steel city": Its inmate population, it is estimated, will be 80,000—and its estimated cost will approximate $400,000,000.

Annual capacities of the completed steel plant are to include 2,670,000 tons of steel, 2,500,000 tons of pig iron, 2,100,000 tons of rolled metal, with ultimate expansion to 4,000,000 tons of pig iron.

WAPPING

Mrs. Lizette Blair Burnham, aged 83, passed away at her home in West Hartford last Sunday. Mrs. Burnham was the widow of Ransom Burnham, and the daughter of Edgar and Sarah Foster Stoughton. Mrs. Burnham was born in South Windsor, February 12, 1848, and was well known here by the older people. She leaves one son, Edgar Blair, of Essex, and one daughter, Mrs. Charles S. Gordon, of West Hartford. Her funeral will be held from her late home on Tuesday afternoon at half past two o'clock. The burial will be in Fairview cemetery, Hartford.

The Oakland Neighborhood club met at the home of Mrs. Hattie F. Spencer last Thursday afternoon. A very pleasant time was enjoyed by all present.

The Christian Endeavor society held their regular C. E. meeting last Sunday evening at half past six o'clock with Miss Dorothy Nevers as their leader.

At the Federated Church service last Sunday evening Mrs. Mathews, a native teacher of India, was present and spoke very interestingly of her country and their work. Mrs. Mathews was dressed as they dress in India, a very beautiful wine color trimmed with white and gold.

Mrs. Eva C. Stoughton of East Hartford attended the Sunday morning service. She was the guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Collins.

Miss Ellen J. Foster had as her guest, one of her normal school friends, Miss Mildred Borg, of New Britain, over the week-end.

There were three lively games of basketball played at the Wapping Parish House last Saturday evening. Between the Senior Y. M. C. A. Boys of Wapping and the Hazardville Boys, the score was 41-15 in favor of the Wapping "Y." The Wapping Girls played the Manchester West Side Rec Girls. The score was 31 to 9 in favor of the local girls.

The Junior Y. M. C. A. Boys played the undefeated Bristol Boys and the score was 30 to 16 in favor of the Bristol boys.

Two automobiles came together on Sunday afternoon at Wapping Center, this time on the Buckland Road between the Ladd Memorial Library and H. P. Files' house. No one was hurt and little damage was done to the cars.

Mrs. William Felt and son, Robert, have both been confined to their home last week by illness.

TO UNEARTH PALACES

Chicago, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The vast palaces of the Persian Emperors Darius and Xerxes, buried beneath dirt and rubbish of Persepolis for almost 30 centuries, are to be uncovered.

This was announced last night by Prof. James H. Breasted, a generous gift to the University of Chicago Oriental Institute having made the expedition possible. The name of the donor, a woman, was withheld.

Prof. Breasted received word from his son, Charles Breasted, executive secretary of the institute, that final arrangements for the excavations had been made.

Prof. Breasted said the work would start by February 15 with Dr. Ernest Herzfeld of the University of Berlin in charge.

Once Valuable Airplane Is Now a Heap of Junk

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Jan. 27.—(AP)—In an automobile parking field in Jamaica, the $265,000 monoplane Uncle Sam which Charles A. Levine built for a flight around the world is destined to end its career.

For overdue rent on a hangar the Uncle Sam and other airplanes and equipment belonging to Levine, who is missing, have been sold at auction.

Paul Gillespie, head of the flying school at Roosevelt Field, bought the lot for $3,000—the Uncle Sam, two Traids, a new airplane motor still in its crate, and the fuselage framework of a wrecked Fokker.

Gillespie said today, he has sold everything but the crated motor. The instruments and the engine were removed from the Uncle Sam and sold separately. In a few days the big, shining monoplane, built of duraluminum, will be moved to its new home.

The Uncle Sam made its first public appearance at the Aviation Show in 1929. It attracted a good deal of attention with its long, round body and single wing about 70 feet across. The inside was almost entirely filled with gas tanks. It had a capacity of 1,400 gallons.

The workmanship on the big plane was exquisite as that ordinarily found on a watch. But there were some slight faults in construction. The "Uncle Sam" had been in the air less than six hours.

For the plane without its motor and instruments Gillespie said today he got less than $500.

The framework of the Fokker went to a junk man for about $1. Bert Acoste prepped the plane two years ago when it was new. Levine hurried out to the field, and asked just one question: "Was anybody hurt?"

NEW TEXTILE INVENTION

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The Reichenberger Zeitung today said that Hans Gritts, Czechoslovakian academic painter, had succeeded in perfecting a method for reproduction of colored designs by purely thermo means to fabrics at an extremely low cost. The paper expressed the opinion that the invention would entirely revolutionize the printed textile industry.

ROCKVILLE

Wins Judging Honors

John Skinner, 18, of the Ogdon Corner section, who has been active in 4-H Club work for six years, in both poultry and dairy work, is the second boy in the United States to win two trips to the National Poultry and Dairy Show.

The young man won high honors in poultry and dairy demonstration teams at Storrs college and was awarded the trip in 1928 to Memphis, Tenn., national dairy show.

Two years ago he became a charter member of the Money Cacklers Poultry club. He has taken part in fairs about the state, and has attended the junior short course at Storrs for several years. Last fall he entered the poultry judging contest at the Durham state fair and was placed second, enabling him to judge with ten other members at Storrs college in December. He received 725 points out of a possible 900. This won him a trip to the Madison Square Garden poultry and dairy show at New York City last week.

He also attended the Boston poultry show recently and was placed twelfth out of 54.

At the Madison Square Garden show he was placed fifth having 1830 out of a possible 2700. As individual high man he tied for third place with 640 points. In a class score he was placed first.

Phoenix Rivals Hollywood With Grand World Premiere of Movie

By DAN THOMAS NEA Service Writer

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 27.—The world premiere of a motion picture is the same the world over, whether the premiere be held in Hollywood, New York or any other city.

A few nights ago we attended the premiere of "Resurrection" at the Orpheum theater here just to see if it would differ materially from the grand openings to which moviegoing has become accustomed.

Of course, there were some differences, but especially the opening was just an opening—and if anything it was a bigger event in the least than a premiere usually is in the film capital, where a tremendous hurrah is made over such an occasion.

There were none of the huge arc lights throwing their powerful rays up and fro across the sky. And there were only three film notables present instead of the scores which act as hostesses. There will be a social time and refreshments.

The American Legion Auxiliary will hold an important meeting in G. A. R. hall on Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. Following the meeting there will be a social time and entertainment. Guests from Williamville will be present.

The Ladies Auxiliary, A. O. H. will hold an important meeting tonight in C. L. of C. rooms.

Tankerosan Tribe, I. O. O. F. will meet in Red Men's Hall tonight.

A son was born recently at the Rockville City hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Badstueber of Franklin street.

Miss Laura Wendhiser of Elm street is confined to her home with a severe cold.

Mrs. Alfred Miller of East Main street is ill at the Hartford hospital.

Miss Cora Blankenburg of Port Chester, N. Y., was the guest recently of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blankenburg of Liberty street.

GIRL FOILS BURGLAR

Evergreen Park, Ill., Jan. 27.—As a mail or money guard, nine-year-old Alice Hart has proved she can be a success.

Her father, Clyde V. Hart, had his doubts about it yesterday when Alice got out of school and went to the railroad station, where he is employed as agent. He smiled when she said she had come to help him guard the mail—a decision she reached because someone tried a theft last Sunday.

MACMILLAN PLANS A NEW EXPEDITION

Los Angeles, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Commander Donald E. MacMillan, veteran Arctic explorer, has revealed plans for an expedition this summer to explore ice-bound territory north of Labrador.

The commander placed an order yesterday for an airplane to be used for mapping the unexplored area north of Nain, Labrador, and in which, he said, he hoped to reach the great ice-cap of Baffin Land.

Charles Rocheville, Los Angeles plane designer who went with MacMillan into the Arctic in 1925, will go along again as chief pilot.

Party of Fifty

MacMillan said three ships would carry a party of 50 men to Nain, the base of the expedition. They are his own auxiliary schooner, a similar ship carrying Dr. Alexander Forbes of Boston, and a third vessel, under the direction of Sir Wilfred Grenfell of St. Anthony, Newfoundland. The first objective is a territory to the west of the coastline 250 miles north of Nain.

"With an aerial camera we can place this district accurately on the world map," MacMillan said.

MacMillan said he and Dr. Forbes would sail from Wiscasset, Maine, June 20 to be gone three months. Sir Wilfred Grenfell, now in London, expects to join them at St. Anthony, MacMillan said.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 28.

LOUD FIRE ALARMS

Danbury has been having a spasm of antagonism to public fire alarms. Some of its citizens protested that the system of sounding a shrieking whistle every time there was a fire belonged to a past age and wanted to know if the city couldn't modernize itself enough to muzzle the startling tooting. "Sure," said the fire chief. "But since the fire department depends largely on call men who may be anywhere when they are needed, you will have to double the number of permanent firemen and buy some more apparatus, altogether at a cost of maybe a hundred thousand dollars." The demand for the elimination of the fire signal died down.

Which causes the Meriden Journal to warn certain persons of its own city who are making the same kick against loud fire alarms that if they want that brand of silence they will have to pay plenty for it.

This argument is a good one in any city not yet arrived at the full-paid fire department stage of development. But it isn't the only one. There have been communities where the dickens and all of a night was put up against the elimination of bell or siren alarms even after there were no part time firemen at all to be called in by the rumpus.

Some years ago, long, long after the fire department of Brooklyn had been made fully permanent, a big fire alarm bell in the Williamsburg district was still hooked up with the indoor system and its strident tones notified the good people of that area of every fire, banging away the box number half a dozen times a day or more. Whether it is still working or not we don't know, but it was a wonderful sleep disturber ages after New Yorkers generally had forgotten the sound of a fire bell.

Williamsburg was proud of that bell when it was installed, away back in volunteer days. It made a bigger and more glorious noise than any bell in the sister city across the East River. They loved it—and by golly they kept it, and kept it going for a generation at least after it had become perfectly superfluous.

There's a bit of sentiment, besides a great deal of utility, in adherence to the loud speaker fire alarm.

NO HURRY NOW

As impatient as anybody else under the social, economic and moral disturbance created by federal prohibition, this newspaper is not among those who believe they see, in the enhanced interest stirred up by the Wickersham report, opportunity to successfully force the fight for repeal. We do not believe particularly in the efficacy of present-hour repeal of state enforcement laws, municipal resolutions asking legislatures to memorialize Congress for resubmission of the Eighteenth amendment or attacks in Congress on enforcement appropriations. We do believe that the strategy of the situation calls for a period of mastery inactivity on the part of the opponents of Constitutional prohibition; that the hour has arrived to play a waiting game.

There can be no question about prohibition owing its politically effective strength to a great body of sincere, well disposed and high minded citizens who have merely believed what they were told by the professional dross. Not yet can these people be expected to abandon the precious conviction to which they have hitherto clung that they have been promoting the welfare of the race by supporting federal prohibition. But the Wickersham report contains the germs of their eventual enlightenment. The full effects of that document will begin to be realized a year, two years, hence, after its subtler implications have had time to seep into the consciousness of the people.

Meantime, the official debauchery and the ascendancy of the criminal classes, the growth of sordid drunkenness will go on as in the past, but under the dawning light reflected from the findings of eleven intelligent persons who declare themselves opposed to repeal but who in large majority favor vital changes in the system of government control.

The controversy, as a matter of fact, is working toward the stage when the question is not going to be, Shall we continue as we are or have a change? but, In what manner shall we change from Constitutional Volstead prohibition?

The great puzzle is working itself out. It is highly improbable that there are more than a very few thoughtful persons in the country who actually believe, now, that ten years hence the country will be operating under the present system of liquor control. It is a good time to make haste slowly.

PAYING GUESTS

It strikes us that the numerous comments on the college youths who throw things at Rudy Vallee when he sang some of his lugubriousness on the stage of a Boston theatre are missing the point. Some of them have pointed out that there are radio entertainers who drive countless thousands of listeners into the mood of the Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang at his worst but who are safe because they are so far away from their auditors—and that when the aggrieved multitude does find them within egging distance it is more than human to expect it to refrain from action.

Has it occurred to these commentators that possibly it may not be so much a matter of physical remoteness that protects the waiters and the manufacturers of horrid noise under the guise of music as it is the fact that the radio listener isn't a paying subscriber to the entertainment and therefore experiences a sense of ethical constraint against seeking out the offenders and giving them the hook?

But when one has paid his good money at the box office of a theatre which he could never acquire as a non-paying guest at a free radio show. All the inhibited lust for vengeance derived from countless hours of suffering under the transmitter may find itself unleashed and untrammelled after one has bought a seventy-five cent ticket to a Boston theatre gallery.

That may perhaps be a fair sort of explanation for the attack of the students upon the crooning Mr. Vallee. We know a better one, but being a polite family newspaper we will not mention it.

AN INCOME TO EVERYBODY

There is only one way of stinging this plan up. It is a proposal to make the average individual better off by reducing the production of wealth in the country. If that doesn't fly in the face of every accepted economic law we are woefully mistaken.

Yet it must be admitted that, as a superficial corrective, the idea of dividing up the jobs has its attractive side. At least has the merit of simplicity. Also it is gaining more and more advocates. Perhaps we shall find manufacturing associations, before long, driven to acceptance of it for want of anything more scientific that they can understand.

However, if some industries continued to do business at a net ten per centum of profit while others tried to get a net hundred per cent or more, it would probably wind up inside of six or seven years in another "mysterious" collapse.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 27.—There really is no answer to things that happen in this man's town.

Take, for instance, the doddering old coddler who still insists on going about where the lights burn long and late. Time after time you'll come upon him, first in this place; then in that. Chucking on the sidewalks and gosh-all-fired when the pretty girls come on. He always has money to spend and looks as though he could use a wheel chair.

Instead, he always carries a nurse with him!

Go ahead—laugh that off. But the fact remains that he's under doctor's orders and the nurse goes along to make sure he doesn't fall dead. Or at least she tries to make him follow a few medical instructions.

For instance, the old gad-about would take a nip of illegal brew if he got half a chance, and she sees to it that he doesn't. If, however, he does manage to slip a few fast ones over her, she is there to see that he gets home all right.

A pretty lass, who catches the eye of many a young man, she sits boredly through the floor shows—but she gets well paid, for he has many, many rocks.

Young Roger Wolfe Kahn, whose daddy has more millions than are worth talking about, is one of the younger men who give the Broadwayfarers something to talk about. But it isn't the usual line you'll hear about rich men's sons, either.

They can't figure out why, with wealth and loads of musical talent, he should go on risking his neck. Of course, young Kahn does not believe that his airplane adventures are hazardous. Just a couple of years ago, he had become one of the big street's most successful jazz maestros. He reached the point where he had a big office of his own and while Pappa Otto frowned at first on the son's synopated notions, the big banker finally gave his blessing. Then young Kahn branched out and had a half dozen bands in the field wearing his name.

The next morning heard of him, he was opening one of the swankiest night resorts in the moth-and-flame belt. It had glass floors with tanks of water beneath them, and fish swimming about.

And just as he was about to become a night resort domo of some consequence, all sorts of mysterious things began to happen. The word went around that he had refused to play ball with the gang-guns and spying racketeers.

Therein lies a gang-and-racket plot that the fictioneers haven't got around to yet, the plot being a rich man's son versus racketeers of Broadway. At any rate on the opening night the lights switched off mysteriously, plunging the swanky dancers in darkness. Then the glass tanks began to spring mysterious leaks, dampening the pretty slips of the tonk folk. It went on this way—and young Kahn gave up the club, after paying a very neat set of bills.

Not long after, he was to be found in the aviation fields, getting his pilot's license. Now he's gone in for expensive seaplanes and has an elaborate plane base up country. Except for those occasions when he appears

A BIT OF MYSTERY

The speculative mind is intrigued by the circumstance that of a list of twelve names belonging to persons arrested in speakeasy raids in the towns of Hamden last Friday night and charged with illegal selling eleven are obviously of Italian origin.

Ingenious persons might gather from this fact that Italians had a practical monopoly of the speakeasy business in Hamden. We haven't the remotest idea that any such inference would be correct. If Hamden is in the least like every other Connecticut town of its size there are many more than a dozen speakeasies within its borders and many of them are operated by persons other than Italians.

It is natural, then, to wonder how it came about that in this series of raids substantially all the victims are of that national stock.

Not, we hazard the guess, because the policemen in the case bore the Italian speakeasies any grudge based on racial prejudices. And probably not because these people, any more than other bootleggers, were lacking in political influence. Such explanations would not hold water.

There is more than a little mystery about that Hamden list of names—and a number of reasonable guesses that might be made as to the series of events or conditions that led up to the sudden determination of Hamden to purge itself of bootleggers. But they are guesses which, if erroneous, would be clearly libelous in print.

Nevertheless it is a good bet that there is bigger news in the explanation of those raids than in the raids themselves, if it is ever dug up.

FOUR DAY WEEK

It is not surprising to find such a newspaper as the New York Herald Tribune frankly scoffing at the theory that depression's ill fruits can be prevented from maturing by the adoption of a system of unemployment insurance and pointing out that what the people of this country want is not to be maintained in idleness every once in a while when the job gives out but to have work all the time. It is a bit surprising, however, when the same newspaper presents as a solution of unemployment the four-day week with existing rates of wages per day or hour. This, the Herald Tribune admits, would proportionately reduce the individual income but it would give

THE REAL CAUSES OF RHEUMATISM

The rheumatic patients who have come to my office for treatment have invariably had their tonsils removed, teeth extracted, sinuses and antrums drained, and many have had their gall bladders or appendices removed as a result of the search by different physicians to catch the elusive germ believed to have caused their trouble. The few who have been temporarily helped have been so few as to make it plain that rheumatism cannot be cut out with a knife, neither can they poison it away nor drug nor dope it out of the system. The removal of the abscessed teeth, or the cure of genito-urinary infections have not been found sufficient to cure a real case of rheumatoid arthritis or arthritis deformans.

By working on the theory that a rheumatic toxemia is responsible, I have seen thousands of cases cured. Some had had their tonsils and all of their teeth removed without results, and others have been cured with local infections. Of course, in my practice, I do not fail to treat local conditions, and always attempt to remove local infections. Abscessed teeth should always be removed, and suitable treatment given the tonsils. But there are no more of these sources of infection apparent in rheumatism than with many other common disorders which the physician meets with in his daily practice.

In looking back over the many thousands of cases of rheumatic disorders which I have examined it seems strange to me how few physicians have ever got down to recognizing the primary source of the rheumatic tendency. Here is a real cause which is simple enough, but it may be new to many of my readers, including both doctors and laymen. One of the great causes of all rheumatic cases will be found in intestinal poisoning. This is the primary cause and must be considered first before the secondary, irritating cause, such as infection of the nose, tonsils or other regions, and also before such contributing causes as damp climates or exposure to bad weather.

In all rheumatic disorders the primary cause lies in the poisoning which comes from intestinal reabsorption of toxins. In the slower development of rheumatism, such as articular rheumatism, the body gradually becomes filled with those certain poisons peculiar to rheumatism. The irritating effect of these poisons upon the bones at their

Gay Cloth Flowers Hit Novel Notes In New Mid-Season Evening Gowns

Paris—(AP)—Paris is decking her shimmering mid-season evening gowns with flowers that come from anywhere but hothouses or fields. Satins, velvets, pearls and crepes are used to fashion the roses, daisies and gardenias trimming the newest "after-nine-o'clock" robes.

The flowers are used in almost every conceivable design, tucked into corsages in front; looping the back of low décolletés, twisted into narrow belts; or festooning the edges of peplums.

Worth outlines the pointed décolleté of a red crepe gown in the back with flat white velvet flowers having yellow centers; Callot masses pale pink and blue ragged silk daisies across the front neckline of a pale blue velvet gown while Patou tucks two big roses into the belt of one of his favorite models.

One of the smartest uses of flower trimmings is designed by Molyneux, who places one or two large white gardenias in the center of a scarf made of the same material as the gown. The scarf is tossed about the wearer's throat with the gardenias in front and the two ends hanging down the back.

Supple satins, heavy crepes and chiffons, all designed to drape and fall softly, no matter how voluminous the folds, are the favorite materials for Parisian evening gowns.

Off-shades of white—ivory, faint silver in grey and a very pale pink—white—continue to reign as the smartest shades, with black chiffon and lace running close in point of popularity.

The low décolletage, rather high waistline, and smooth hipline falling into voluminous folds in the skirt continue to mark the evening mode.

Lindsey fracs hereabouts over companionate marriage, two of Tin Pan Alley's song wags suggested a wedding tune, which would be titled, "Love, Honor and No Babes."

QUESTIONS IN REGARD TO HEALTH AND DIET WILL BE ANSWERED BY DR. McCOY WHO CAN BE ADDRESSED IN CARE OF THIS PAPER. ENCLOSE STAMP ADDRESSING ENVELOPE FOR REPLY.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Sugar and Diabetes)

Question: Joe W. asks: "Will you please tell me if sugar causes diabetes? Can it be cured by fasting and dieting?"

Answer: Diabetes is caused from an inability of the pancreas to secrete its normal amount of fluid, the active ingredient of which is insulin. This substance is necessary for the digestion of starches and sugars. In the diet may indirectly be a cause of diabetes, but the ingestion of too large quantities of carbohydrate foods is likewise the direct or indirect cause of many diseases. The cure for diabetes is through fasting and dieting. The diet should exclude both starches and sugars for a considerable period of time.

(Figs and Dates)

Question: N. J. C. asks: "With what combinations should one eat figs and dates?"

Answer: Figs may be used as a dessert with any protein combination or with sweet milk. Dates combine best with buttermilk or any of the lactic acid or acidophilus milks.

(Rainwater)

Question: M. G. H. asks: "Can one get cedar poisoning from drinking rainwater from a roof covered with cedar shingles? Do you consider rainwater safe for drinking if well strained and stored in a clean, cemented cistern?"

Answer: There have been cases of poisoning reported from the causes you have mentioned. The safest water to drink is that which has been distilled. This process removes all types of poisons and contamination, and is the only way to produce pure water.

Washington Letter
 BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

Washington, Jan. 22.—The proposal to abolish the electoral college system of electing presidents, recently advanced by Senator Norris of Nebraska with the promise that he would promote in the next Congress a constitutional amendment for direct presidential elections, also has a vigorous supporter in the House. He is Congressman Clarence F. Lea, a Californian Democrat, and he has introduced a constitutional amendment which would radically alter the present method.

Lea proposes abolition of the electoral college, but retention by the states of their electoral votes as presently allotted, which would be divided up among the candidates in proportion to the popular votes they received.

"A candidate with a popular majority of two million votes can, through the operation of the electoral college, be denied the presidential office in favor of an opponent with two million fewer votes," Lea points out.

"Minorities Sometimes Win"

Three times we have elected minority presidents over men with larger votes—in 1824, 1876 and 1888. A system which thus permits the flouting of the will of the people as expressed by a majority is a dangerous system and a defect of government of major importance.

The California congressman says the business of voting for presidential electors rather than actual candidates is needless, inconvenient and cumbersome. He agrees with Norris that the system makes difficult the development of new parties. He says the college is unsuited to a three-party system because it takes a majority of that body to elect a president.

Lea would give the election, under his amendment, to the man who had a plurality of the electoral vote. The winner might be a minority choice, he admits, but he declares that seven of the last 14 presidents have had a minority of the total vote cast.

If the Lea amendment had been in effect, its sponsor said, Andrew Jackson would have been elected president in 1824 instead of John Quincy Adams, Samuel J. Tilden in 1876 over Rutherford B. Hayes and Grover Cleveland in 1888 over Benjamin Harrison. Tilden had a popular vote plurality of about 250,000 and Cleveland of about 100,000.

The electoral college is apportioned to give each state as many electors as it has U. S. senators and representatives. Lea observes that this gives states with smaller populations a big break because nine states with more than half the population of the country have 18 senators, whereas the other 39 states with less than half the population have 78 senators. But he does not propose to change the method of apportionment.

He stresses, however, the fact that the electoral college vote now, with the entire state electoral vote cast as a unit for the candidate who wins a popular plurality in the state, completely ignores a vast minority vote. In no other instance in the civilized world, he says, are minority votes thus discarded before final computation of election returns.

Would End Deadlocks

For instance, Lea says, New York with the largest population has 45 electoral votes. Nevada, with the smallest, has three. New York has more than 12,000,000 population and Nevada less than 100,000. Suppose one candidate carried New York by 5000 votes and the other carried Nevada by 5000 votes. The second man would have exactly the same popular vote in those two states as the first man—the fellow who carried New York—but he would have only three electoral votes out of it to his opponent's 45.

The amendment would also end possibility of election deadlocks such as occurred in 1800, 1824 and 1876 amid widespread bitterness. Lea adds: "There would never be any question as to who had been elected."

Four Of Present Justices Passed On Same Law Before

Washington—(AP)—Whispering a lawyer attempting oratorical heights has learned. McReynolds also participated in the 1920 decision.

Louis Dembits Brandeis is a Kentuckian, born in Louisville and educated abroad and at Harvard. He was named an associate justice in 1916 by Woodrow Wilson and confirmed after a sharp fight.

Some senators viewed his liberal attitude with distrust. He did not change them and goes along with Holmes many times on questions involving broad matters of public policy. Brandeis is an authority on law affecting the Interstate Commerce Commission and railroad.

George Sutherland sits to the right of McReynolds. He was born in Buckinghamshire, England, educated at the University of Michigan, went to Utah and was a United States senator. He was appointed by Harding in 1922.

Pierce Butler, at Brandeis' left, did no emigrating. He was born in Minnesota and in 1922 when Harding appointed him to the bench he was practicing law in St. Paul. He sides more frequently with Sutherland. McReynolds and Van Devanter than with Holmes and Brandeis.

Harlan F. Stone, at the extreme right, is a New Yorker. A member of President Hoover's "medicine ball cabinet," he was expected by many to become chief justice when Taft resigned.

Some Senate progressives thought him too conservative when he was named by Coolidge in 1925, but paradoxically his views coincide many times with those of Holmes and Brandeis.

Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia is the youngest member of the bench. He made his reputation as a prosecutor in the oil lease cases. He was named just after the Senate had rejected Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina in 1930, and pleased men as far apart in political tenets as Norris of Nebraska and Reed of Pennsylvania.

These are the jurists who will pass upon the Clark decision.

M. H. S. ASSEMBLY

HALL WILL REMAIN

Verplanck Denies Rumored Plan To Cut Up Space Into Classrooms.

A report to the effect that the assembly room on the third floor of Manchester High school building will be cut up into school rooms this summer to care for the increased enrollment of the school, which has now close to 1,000, was denied today by Superintendent Fred A. Verplanck.

Superintendent Verplanck said no such plan had been considered. He amplified his statement by adding, "Neither I nor the school committee has even discussed the matter officially." He said that of course he could not tell what alterations may be made in later years.

Mr. Verplanck, asked whether any major changes would be necessary in either the main high school building or the Franklin school which houses the freshmen students, said that none were contemplated at present. The high school enrollment jumped from about 930 almost to the 1,000 mark yesterday with the entrance of 63 new freshmen students who reached the High school through mid-year graduation from eighth grade schools.

A DIVORCE DRAMA ENTITLED— "Reel Romance Away From Home" Or "Those Hollywood Triangles"

BY DAN THOMAS NEA Service Writer

Hollywood, Jan. 27.—Something will have to be done about these prolonged movie location trips, especially those to tropical countries, or the divorce rate in Hollywood will go soaring sky high.

The last two such expeditions have each furnished the celluloid colony with one new divorce and one new love affair. First came the separation of Duncan Renaldo and his wife with the pretty Edwina Booth being named as the other woman.

And now Mrs. Sidney Lund, wife of a film technician and herself a former vaudeville star, has left her husband and charged Dorothy Janis, diminutive film actress, with stealing his love while the pair were making a picture in the South Seas.

Filed $50,000 Suit The Renaldo-Booth affair was brought to light several months ago after the couple returned from Africa, where they spent nine months making "Trader Horn."

According to Mrs. Renaldo's charge, her husband and the blond actress had a love affair while in Africa and Miss Booth then persuaded Renaldo to get a divorce upon their return to Hollywood.

The party returned late in November and just eight days later, according to Mrs. Lund, she found a love letter from Miss Janis in her husband's pocket. She then investigated, she said, learned of the

In denying the charges made against her, Miss Janis declared: "That I was in company with a newly married man for a number of months was unavoidable as we both were members of the company that was sent to the Far East to make a film. But while we were friends—I was friendly with every member of the company—it is absurd for Mrs. Lund to accuse me of stealing her husband away from her."

HIGHWAYS OF STATE TO COST 17 MILLION

Macdonald In Annual Report Gives Estimate of Fiscal Year Expense.

Connecticut's highway program for the state's fiscal year of 1930-31 will cost $16,660,934, according to Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald in his annual report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930 which was today submitted to Governor Wilbur L. Cross.

The report is a voluminous compilation of extraordinary wide scope. It shows in minute detail under seventy-one different headings, schedules and exhibits the operation and the financing of the highway department. The accounting is certified by Griffenhagen & Associates and the state auditors.

Commissioner Macdonald's report for the year ending June 30, 1930 shows that the net receipts of the highway department were $13,849,881 and the net expenditures, $13,807,211.

To have the income and expenditures so closely correspond, it was necessary to have the receipts and maintenance of draw bridges, ferries and arboriculture—$3,612,000; for the construction of trunk line highways—$2,600,000; for state aid construction—$2,000,000; and for trunk line construction other than federal aid—$2,500,000. Other items include bridge construction, federal aid highway and bridge building, elimination of dangerous conditions, boundary surveys, new equipment, insurance, maintenance, betterments and state aid payments to towns that have anticipated state aid funds.

SUSPECT KILLS SELF BETWEEN TWO OFFICERS

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 27.—(AP.)—Emmanuel Kolb, 38, alleged speakeasy proprietor, shot and killed himself today as he sat between two policemen in the police car that was taking him to headquarters for questioning in connection with the fatal shooting last night of Mrs. Irma V. McDermott, his alleged 35-year-old sweetheart.

The policemen had arrested him when he arrived home this morning at 3 o'clock. He was searched, police said, but only a bottle of liquor was found.

On the way to the station Kolb complained of being crowded and as the officers shifted their positions Kolb threw out a revolver and shot himself in the head, dying instantly.

The revolver was the same, police said, which fired the shot that killed Mrs. McDermott at the home of her friend, Mrs. Fannie Tolhurst. Kolb was accused by Mrs. Tolhurst, who was in the house at the time of the shooting.

According to police, jealousy of other men's attentions started the quarrel between Kolb and Mrs. McDermott.

A $1,000,000 Temple In The Desert

Massive Mormon Memorial Constructed on Bank of Ancient Arizona Canal.

The massive $1,000,000 Mormon Temple at Mesa, Ariz., resting on the banks of an irrigation canal run through the desert thousands of years ago by an unknown race, is one of the most magnificent buildings in America.

The Mormon Temple at Mesa, Ariz. Treasures of the temple include a massive baptismal font of bronze and tile borne upon the backs of 12 life-sized oxen, gorgeous rooms exquisitely decorated in gold and marble, sacred rooms with their great altars where are performed the marriages of those high in the church.

Many larger, and more costly, structures have been built. But few of them provide as striking a spectacle. The green floor of the central valley of Arizona where the temple stands was once burning white sands, hurling a defy to the hardy pioneers who sought to conquer the desert.

It was a little more than a half century ago that a few Mormons set out from Salt Lake City to explore the then comparatively unknown southwest. They found in the Salt River Valley, about 20 miles from Phoenix, traces of a vast irrigation system near the ancient city of Los Muertos. There were 238 miles of canals and laterals, built presumably by a lost race 2,000 to 5,000 years before.

With this as a nucleus, the Mormons heaved a homeland from waste lands and built a prosperous organization. In 1922, after years of promotion, the temple was started. It was five years in the building. The temple is a terra cotta-faced structure 184 by 128 feet and rising in the center of a 40-acre park.

The lower floor is devoted to lecture rooms, corridors, offices and the baptistry, is partly below ground. The upper part signifies the living, the lower part, the dead. The foundations are 12 feet thick and the walls of concrete and steel are four feet thick—strong enough, it is believed, to defy the ravages of time and disaster.

MERCURY BOILER NOW PRACTICABLE

Quicksilver Vapor Shown More Economical Than Steam For Generating.

At the South Meadow generating plant of the Hartford Electric Company, Hartford, there is in operation a mercury vapor power plant of full commercial size which, during the past year, has set the lowest figure for the use of coal the world has ever seen.

This plant is producing as high as 143 kilowatt hours of electrical energy for each 100 pounds of coal burned. The finest steam power generating plant in operation today produces only 112 kilowatt hours of energy from that much coal.

These are the days when it behooves a man with an iron constitution to prove his mettle.

These figures mean that, while the average power plant is getting out of a pound of coal as much useful work as could be done by a strong horse in a little over three quarters of an hour, the mercury boiler installation is getting from the same amount of coal as much work as could be done by the same horse working for nearly two hours.

There is, therefore, no longer any doubt about the practical value of mercury vapor boilers. When, in 1914, William LeRoy Emmet, General Electric Co. research engineer, first proposed that mercury vapor instead of steam could be used to drive a turbine wheel, scientists and engineers scoffed at him. They said that, while the physical characteristics of mercury, such as its boiling point and specific heat, made the idea theoretically possible, insurmountable obstacles lay in the path of anyone who tried to work the thing out in a practical way.

FOR GINGER'S SAKE

By ETHEL HUESTON
© 1930 THE BOBBY MERRILL CO.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Because life was so slow in the little town of Red Thrush, Iowa, GINGER ELLA TOLLIVER conceived the idea of a Junior Country Club to save the younger set from utter boredom. It was to be exclusive—no parents allowed, no babies. Accordingly, she arranged for the purchase of the Mill Rush farm, a 10-acre tract with an old house on it, and proceeded, with the assistance of her friends, to overhaul and furnish it.

Ginger was the daughter of a minister and the stepdaughter of a very wealthy woman, the former PHIL VAN DOORN, who was a tolerant person and crazy about Ginger.

One day, while the rehabilitation of the club house was going on, an artist called at the kitchen of the Tolliver home and offered to do a portrait in exchange for a meal. After he had shaved off his beard, Ginger found to her surprise that he was good looking. He had studied in Paris and his name was BARD HOLLOWAY.

Ginger, who was never at a loss for ideas, thought it would be a good one if Bard remained for a while in Red Thrush, instead of wandering about the country like a hobo. He could pick up some money painting portraits for families who would be flattered to have the Tollivers sponsored him. And he could do the mural decorations in the new club house, for Ginger was bound it would be a success.

So Ginger gets her stepmother, Phil, to invite him to stay with the Tollivers, but the artist demurs. He is a stranger, he says; it would be taking advantage. But Phil makes him accept.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XII

"Oh, no," said Phil warmly. You must take them in. We'll have a big tea some afternoon and show them—since Ginger feels that Red Thrush should have its portrait done. Be very careful with these, Hamill. Put them in the library and see that they do not get scratched in anyway."

At Ginger's smirk of triumph she smiled kindly.

"I hope all your hoboes turn out as well, you naughty thing," she whispered.

"I'm terribly happy," interrupted Bard with a pleased laugh. "I don't know why—but I seem to have—sort of—got some place, you know what I mean. As if I had found some one who belonged to me."

Ginger nodded her bright head. "I know just what you mean," she said. "I feel as if some one had just come home after a long and dangerous journey."

Phil cleared her throat deprecatingly. "You might just run the car over there in the corner out of the way," she said dryly. "Ginger has her own roadster, and can probably be persuaded to chauffeur you about while you are here."

"I hope so," he said. "I'm nearly out of gas."

When they followed Hamill to the house, with the last load, Phil, with Ginger at her heels, conducted him to the room designed for his use.

"I suggested this room," she explained. "I know the furniture in the best room is simply priceless and all that, but this view is better and a good artist should prefer view to value."

"This is just great," said Bard. "You are awfully good to me. You know, Mrs. Tolliver, I think I must have been very lonely. I didn't realize it, but I am sure I was because now I don't feel that way at all. I'll try not to stay too long—and I'll be on my very best behavior every minute. I won't wipe paint on the guest towels, nor smudge crayon on the table linens—that sort of thing."

Phil smiled at him. "You're a nice boy," she said. "If you will just help me keep Ginger from being too bored for a while I shall be really grateful to you."

"Bored?" he gasped. "Here? With you? Oh, she couldn't be."

"As soon as you are ready," Ginger interrupted briskly, "you hurry right down. I want to take you out to Mill Rush to show you what I want done. We're in a great hurry to get it in shape."

When they had left him and were alone together Phil's voice, though kind, was gently firm. "You must take Patty with you, Ginger," she said.

"Oh, Phil. Then some one will have to sit in the rumble seat—and it's bound to be—"

"Be a nice Ginger and don't argue with your stepmother," said Phil. "Remember that he has lived abroad and is used to the Paris brand of conventions for Nice Women."

"He must be conventional! Latin Quarter and the Bohemia of Greenwich Village."

"If he has found the Latin Quarter any more Bohemian than a Methodist parsonage, he is an abandoned creature and would best be on his way. Just to please me, Ginger. For a day or two—long enough to confirm his good impression of us—and ours of him."

Ginger pretended to pout, but she could not hide the satisfaction in her voice when she put in a telephone call for Patty.

The rehabilitation of Mill Rush proceeded at a rate that was no less than miraculous, considering that all hired labor was paid by the hour. It was the superabundance of extra free hands that worked the miracle—hands that were not amenable to union rules and regulations.

If a workman left his job, or let his tools out of his hands for so much as 10 minutes, his place was filled with a dozen scabs almost before he was abandoned pail and brush at the usual union hour of five, inevitably upon his return the next morning he found the pail emptied of paint and the work—for which he was to have been paid by the hour—gone.

In the presence of 10 solid acres of ardent volunteers, the only way for an honest man to make a living wage was to work from daylight until dark and to eat with his instruments of labor under his feet. There was no waiting for the sun to shine at Mill Rush. Every time a paid laborer laid off, a dozen free substitutes leaped into the breach with a cry of joy.

The result was that when Ginger—who found that three congenial spirits could ride very comfortably indeed in the front seat of the Dido—introduced Bard Holloway to Mill Rush she had good reason to be proud of her proprietorship.

The grounds were entirely cleared of dead brushwood, weeds and wind-blown picnic debris. The wood lane leading from the highway was a pleasant winding drive quite free of treacherous ruts and fire-bruising stones. Early spring wild flowers and hardy grasses were springing up and every bough was curling into leaf.

The porches had been enlarged and re-enclosed and were decked out like stage-settings in a variety of porch furniture garnered from a hundred homes, freshly stained a rugged, rustic brown, and upholstered with cretonne in orange and red.

The broken windows had been replaced, the shutters repaired and painted a deep ivory; the tennis court was ready for the net; swings were suspended from the hardest trees; chains were hung for the hammocks.

Three small garden plots had been spaded up and sown with seeds for early vegetables, each tract carefully lined and marked. Chickens were strutting cheerfully in their fenced enclosure, and on the bit of pastureland on the hillside a Jersey cow grazed in serene contentment that her declining days had fallen in pleasant places, and Mrs. Carter, the old mare, bore her dignified companionship.

Ginger unlocked the door with something of a flourish.

"Welcome," she cried heartily, "to Jole de Vivre a la Middle West."

The interior of the house was ready for occupancy except that some of the contributions of bedroom furniture had not yet been collected from the donors.

As Ginger said, "What you pay for, you get first," and having paid for the chairs and tables in the dining room—although she was not yet sure but it should be called the ballroom—it was fully furnished. There was an immense fireplace at each end, since two large rooms had been thrown together, and the tables were ranged along the walls with a carefully studied carelessness of effect, tables for two, for four, a few for six, and against the wall on the left, for the use of convivial club crowds, an imitation refectory table with benches, which could seat 20 without crowding.

Bard studied the large room with its handsomely paneled walls with great interest.

"I don't know," he said thoughtfully, "it is very nice as it is. Those pale walls with the black frames will make a stunning background for pretty living girls in brilliant gowns. Seems almost a shame to clutter up that soft tone with flamboyant modern stuff. Why not try it first with just one figure in each panel? And no queer birds and girls and that sort of tripe."

"Why not alternate types? In one panel have a demure little Puritan going to church, then a French danseuse strutting her stuff? Maybe a pirate swinging his cutlass and after him a pilgrim father? It will not take long to sketch one figure like that in each panel, and then later on if we want to we can put one object in each panel as a background—a church for the Puritan, a little mound, top with a couple of nuts or a ripe olive and serve on lettuce. It makes a delicious fresh salad."

Early spring wild flowers and hardy grasses were springing up and every bough was curling into leaf.

The porches had been enlarged and re-enclosed and were decked out like stage-settings in a variety of porch furniture garnered from a hundred homes, freshly stained a rugged, rustic brown, and upholstered with cretonne in orange and red.

The broken windows had been replaced, the shutters repaired and painted a deep ivory; the tennis court was ready for the net; swings were suspended from the hardest trees; chains were hung for the hammocks.

Three small garden plots had been spaded up and sown with seeds for early vegetables, each tract carefully lined and marked. Chickens were strutting cheerfully in their fenced enclosure, and on the bit of pastureland on the hillside a Jersey cow grazed in serene contentment that her declining days had fallen in pleasant places, and Mrs. Carter, the old mare, bore her dignified companionship.

Ginger unlocked the door with something of a flourish.

"Welcome," she cried heartily, "to Jole de Vivre a la Middle West."

The interior of the house was ready for occupancy except that some of the contributions of bedroom furniture had not yet been collected from the donors.

As Ginger said, "What you pay for, you get first," and having paid for the chairs and tables in the dining room—although she was not yet sure but it should be called the ballroom—it was fully furnished. There was an immense fireplace at each end, since two large rooms had been thrown together, and the tables were ranged along the walls with a carefully studied carelessness of effect, tables for two, for four, a few for six, and against the wall on the left, for the use of convivial club crowds, an imitation refectory table with benches, which could seat 20 without crowding.

Bard studied the large room with its handsomely paneled walls with great interest.

"I don't know," he said thoughtfully, "it is very nice as it is. Those pale walls with the black frames will make a stunning background for pretty living girls in brilliant gowns. Seems almost a shame to clutter up that soft tone with flamboyant modern stuff. Why not try it first with just one figure in each panel? And no queer birds and girls and that sort of tripe."

"Why not alternate types? In one panel have a demure little Puritan going to church, then a French danseuse strutting her stuff? Maybe a pirate swinging his cutlass and after him a pilgrim father? It will not take long to sketch one figure like that in each panel, and then later on if we want to we can put one object in each panel as a background—a church for the Puritan, a little mound, top with a couple of nuts or a ripe olive and serve on lettuce. It makes a delicious fresh salad."

Hartford Girl's Lucky Day

THREE candles! And each one represents a year of joyous living. Barbara Mae Grae, of 254 Main St., Hartford, Conn., is a typical Fig Syrup baby. Here is what her mother says:

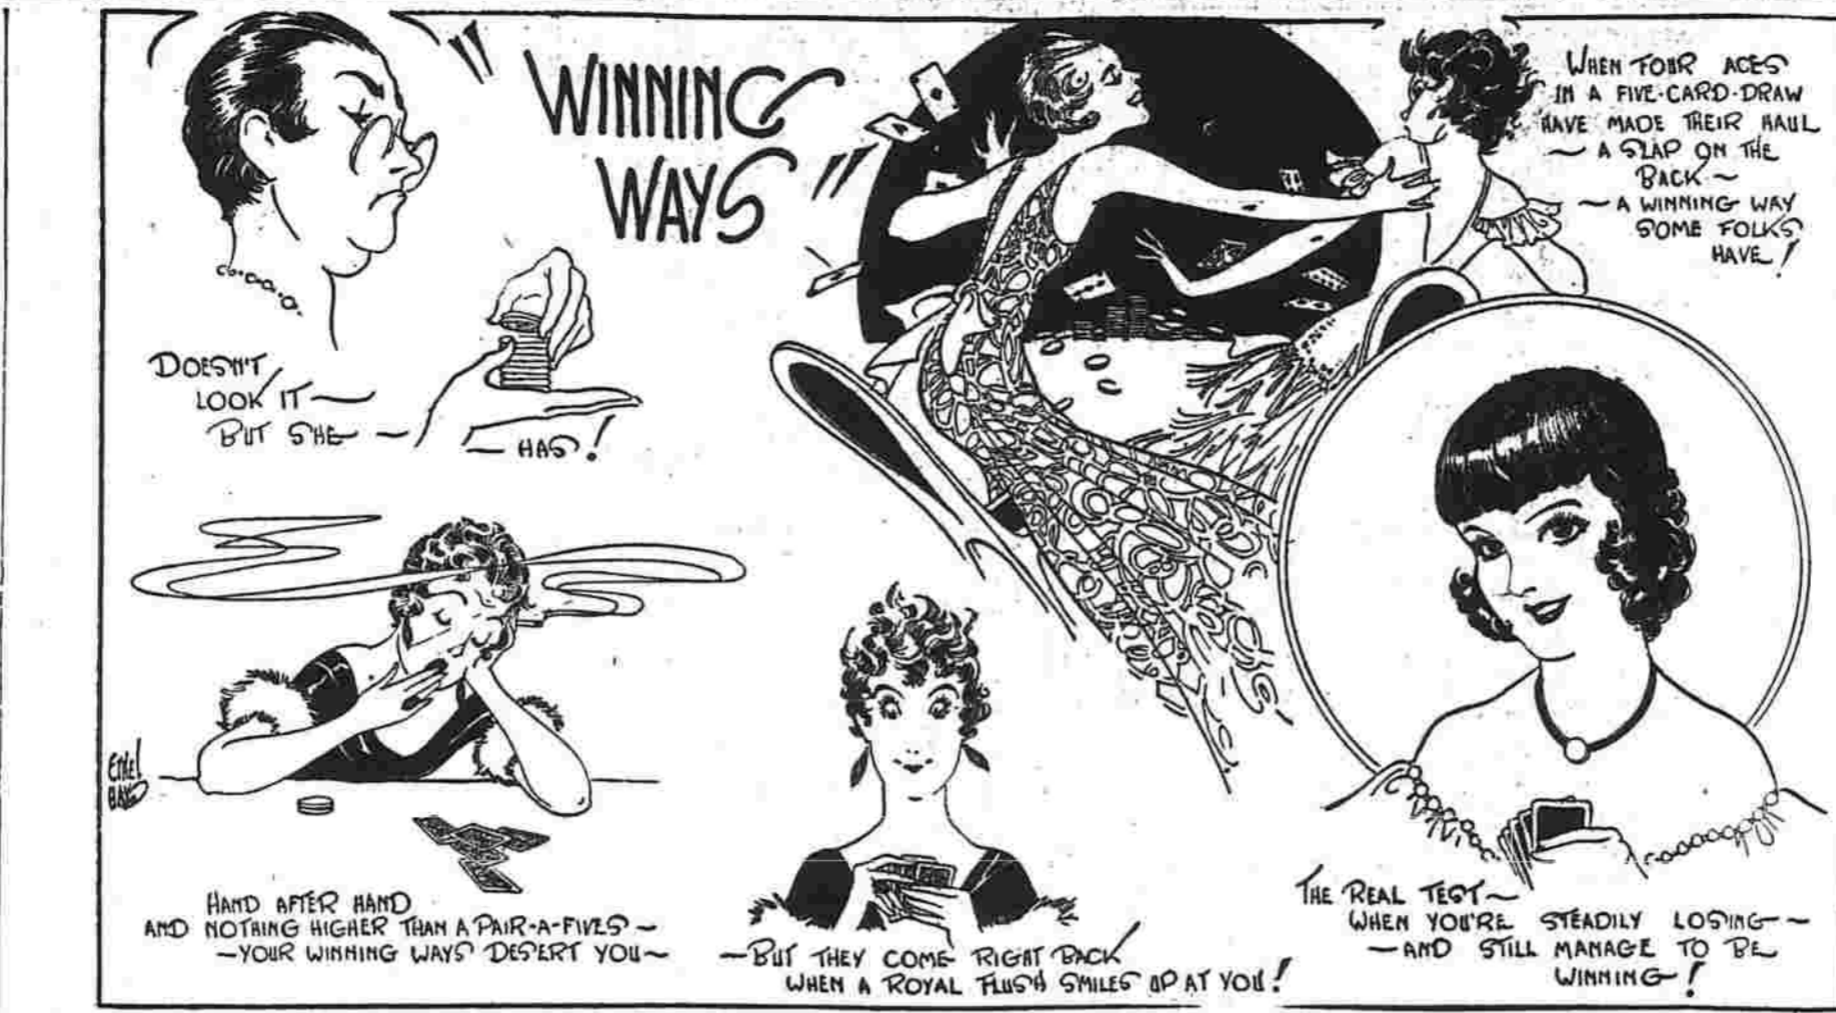

"Our doctor recommended California Fig Syrup for Barbara Mae. She was having trouble after measles. It relieved her immediately, sweetened her breath, made her bright and happy again."

"I have also used Fig Syrup for all her colds and upset. It has kept her strong and vigorous."

For fifty years wise mothers have been secure in the knowledge that a child's headachy, bilious, feverish or fretful spells can be quickly and safely overcome by California Fig Syrup. Physicians recommend its soothing aid to keep the bowels clear in colds or children's ailments; or whenever bad breath, coated tongue, or listless weariness of complexion.

California Fig Syrup helps tone and strengthen weak bowels—assists in building-up and energizing weak children. The genuine always bears the name California. All drugstores.

FATHERS AND FIANCES WILL FIND MISS 1931 AN ENIGMA, PREDICTS ALEC WAUGH, ENGLISH AUTHOR

There has always been a "modern girl," Socrates married one, and in his old age instead of doing before his fire, sat around street corners asking questions, till his fellow Athenians in desperation handed him a glass of hemlock. Shakespeare married one and after a year or two of it, slipped out one morning made for London and wrote "The Taming of the Shrew."

Here "modern girl" is a term of abuse; when we employ the term we do not refer to the average girl between the ages of 18 and 26 that we meet at our friends' houses.

We refer to the type of girl that exasperates her contemporaries by exaggerating and caricaturing the characteristics of her period. Usually "the modern girl" is someone who tries to get a thing both ways. That certainly is what she is today.

She's a Real Paradox

On my side of the Atlantic and I suspect on this, she is demanding the freedom of the twentieth century and while retaining the chivalry of the nineteenth, she expects to be allowed to do what she likes, where she likes, with whom she likes. She expects also to be punished, made allowances for, protected. She expects to be treated as a reliant, capable and responsible person when it is a question of latches, bank accounts and the choice of friends. But when friends prove false and she is mounted up and bank accounts get withdrawn, she expects a shoulder to weep upon, a hand to pat her shoulder and a strong, kind voice to murmur, "There, there, now, you can't be expected to understand these things. We'll see you through."

It is not much fun being the father of "the modern girl." She will treat his house as a hotel, dining at his table only when there is no where else to go, bringing to his drawing room young men he does not know, and when life grows complicated for her, she will turn round on him with the reproach, "I never stood a chance. You and mother never made a real home for me."

Possessive, But Seeks Freedom

It is not much fun being in love with "the modern girl." She will explain to her fiance that she must be free, that he must not be jealous, that he must not be proprietary, and when the young man accepts her commands, allows her to break dates, smiles friendly when he sees her dancing at a night club with another man, she hands him back his ring and says: "I'm sorry it's no good, you're very sweet, but we'd be miserable together. You could never keep me in order."

It is not much fun being married to "the modern girl." Her husband must work industriously and incessantly so that she be fittingly adorned; but when he returns home to receive the rewards of industry it will be to find a note perched against the mantelpiece: "Don't bother to wait. Have gone out." He must himself make no comment on her behavior, but should see him dancing with his secretary, he will find on his return a bed made up for him upon the sofa.

It is in the name of such a one that old men in the club and young men sitting beside desolate telephones invoke high heaven with the groan "these modern girls."

Luckily "the modern girl" is, as she has always been, the exception.

Evening Herald Pattern

By Anabelle Worthington

Feminine daintiness expresses this new model of printed crepe silk. And what a fascinating affair it is to make and wear.

A peplum frill encircles the hips—but is cleverly placed so as not to interfere with its slenderness. A frill also finishes the fitted cape collar that chooses the becoming V-shape at the front and bow trim.

Plain flat crepe, sheer crepe woolsens, lace and many rayon novelties are all lovely materials for this model.

Style No. 3006 may be had in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

The pattern provides for long cuffed sleeves as seen in small illustration.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
© 1931 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

In Jersey City, N. J., the first real children's moving picture theater has become a fact.

The idea has lived in fancy for a number of years but all good things move slowly and the picture house for juveniles has been one of them.

However, it is reality now and for establishment of the new theater we may congratulate Mr. Harold Sheridan, who has been working for the children's theater idea for nine years.

In turn, Mr. Sheridan gives credit for the final denouement to a certain unit of President Hoover's Child Welfare program as outlined at the Child Welfare Conference in Washington last November—that unit particularly interested in the motion picture industry as it touches the children.

Other groups of people in the various states have been at work, along the same line for months, principally in gaining the interest and support of parents, for upon the cooperation of parents depends the success of any children's theater.

This new edifice in Jersey City has 1435 seats, and is of Spanish design. Three performances will be given daily, none after 6 o'clock. Performances will be arranged to correspond with free hours between classes and other free time outside of school.

Pictures will be chosen by a special board from lists recommended by public groups of people interested in the family picture.

In Experimental Stage

The new theater, we are told, is an experiment. We are also told that "its practical success will encourage the film industry to follow the example in other cities and towns where similar needs for selected children's programs exist."

In these few words lies the key to the whole matter. Will parents stand behind the movement enough to make it pay, at least for itself? It is just as expensive work to build and run a children's theater as it is any other. We, the people, cannot expect moving picture corporations to stand a loss in the process of giving our children an opportunity for betterment. In their endeavor to fill a crying need they have gone more than half way in demonstrating their willingness, at least in this case—to take a chance.

I hope this new cinema house will be patronized by school children to such an extent that the question of

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

It may be perfectly true that a single cream or a couple of creams are all you absolutely need.

But, when you come home dog-tired before a dinner date, wishing you had broken it, and see on your dressing table a few little de luxe bottles with magic beauty within them, don't they just pick you up in incredible manner?

One of the chief attributes of extras in the way of beautifiers is their psychological pick-up. But, don't you recognize the fact that you need such pick-ups? Then of course you will recognize that it is not luxury but sane necessity to have a few on hand.

Outstanding among the new creams that grace an asset to any dressing table is a strawberry cream of the exact shade that strawberries are when you crush them and put cream on them. The very color gives your spirits a lift. And that is nothing to what a good creaming with this preparation will do for your skin!

Take a nice, soothing, warm bath and while you are taking it, smear this pretty strawberry cream over your face, neck and ears. And leave it on after you finish drying yourself and lie down for a catnap of perhaps six minutes. Then remove it and look at yourself! For this strawberry cream has not only cleansing properties, it is a tonic and a muscle-toning preparation.

Similar to this new strawberry cream, there are many new creams on the market, some for one purpose and some for another. Just to purchase a new cream because somebody talks about it isn't common sense. Read the literature, see just what it is for and make sure it answers your needs.

One skin will need a new luxurious softening cream, a thick silky cream that is like pasteurized cream. It adheres to the skin and nourishes it as it softens. Another skin may need a new bleaching cream that is just out that nourishes and yet bleaches, the foundation of it being cucumbers.

Perhaps, all in all, there are two dozen brand new facial creams to greet you this spring. My advice to you is to look them all over and be just as sure they fit your face's needs as you are that any new dresses you buy will fit your figure.

TIME SAVER

If you make a little X, with colored thread, in the center front of your little girl's panties and slips, it will save her time in trying them both ways to see which is front and which back.

far south the best results follow fall planting so the poppies bloom in the winter and very early spring.

Sweet peas should be sown just as early in the spring as the ground is ready to work. Young plants, just as they are coming out of the ground, will stand slight freezing but they are injured if they are up two or three inches. They should grow in cool weather.

Consequently they are handled most easily in the regions of cool nights near the Great Lakes, on the southeast of New England and close along the Pacific Ocean from Santa Cruz Bay northward, although with extra care they can be grown in many other places.

Plants that can be started indoors or in a hot bed six weeks before freezing weather is past, in a cold frame three weeks before or in the open ground when severe freezing is over but while light frosts may still be expected, are pansies, snapdragons, pinks, cosmos, cornflower, sweet alyssum, candytuft, clarkia and Drummond phlox.

Some of the plants that will not stand frost but can be started to advantage six weeks before the time of the last frost are scarlet sage, verbena, marigolds, love-lies-bleeding, Joseph's coat, four-o'clock, cockscomb, feather cockscomb, balsam and ageratum.

"ITCH-MITES" SOMETIMES CAUSE SEVERE IRRITATION OF THE SKIN

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

A little mite, called Acarus scabiei, burrows into the human skin in order to lay eggs and as a result sets up an irritation with severe itching.

The places usually selected, for the burrowing are the skin between the fingers, under the arms and on the lower abdomen. Usually the condition does not spread beyond these areas, but the people who are not particularly careful about bathing and dressing it may involve almost the entire body.

Cases are known in which this itch-mite has gotten into the wardrobes or costumes of "supers" of theatrical or operatic companies and gradually infested the entire company so that the subsequent itching interfered with the performance. In children, the palms of the hands and the soles of the feet are frequently attacked.

Fortunately there is a certain method of controlling this condition when it is properly diagnosed. This method involves the proper use of sulphur which may be employed in various forms. Usually it is necessary first of all to prescribe a thorough cleansing of the patient with hot water and soap bath. He then rubs his body completely with the ointment which any physician may prescribe and leaves the ointment on overnight.

On the next day he takes another hot cleansing bath, receives a completely new outfit of clothing, particularly underclothing, and the treatment is finished.

Equally important with the treatment of the disease is the handling of the clothing of the patient. It is necessary in practically every case to disinfect the clothing thoroughly so as to destroy every itch-mite that may be present on it.

The condition has been described as Cuban itch, French itch, and assigned to various other nationalities, but no nation seems to have a complete monopoly upon it.

SELECTING ANNUAL FLOWER SEEDS

By FURMAN LLOYD MOLFORD

It is time to select seeds of annual flowers that will supplement the permanent plants in the garden.

There are annuals that will provide abundant bloom in that part of the summer when few perennials and hardly any shrubs are flowering. Some of these should be sown very early outdoors and others should be started in the house or in hot beds, cold frames, or greenhouses.

The plants that should be sown outdoors as soon as possible are poppies and sweet peas. Poppies give the best results when sown in the late fall, just before winter. They will stand freezing, but it is desirable to sow them so they will be ready to germinate as spring approaches, not in the fall. In the

Von Elm Finds Pro Golf Is Profitable

Former Amateur Earns Most In Six Coast Tourneys; Johnny Golden Is Close Second With Dudley Third.

Los Angeles, Jan. 27.—(AP)—George Von Elm, who recently decided to make golf his vocation, celebrated his first winter in the ranks of money tourney players by winning the largest share of $51,200 pot in six California and Baja, California championships.

Playing through the same circuit last season, the Los Angeles "business man golfer" as he pleases to call himself, collected only a bunch of amateur prizes. This year his earnings were $7,447.

One brilliant round of golf enabled him to collect the greater share of this, for he won $6,750 by finishing in a tie for first with Johnny Golden, Noroton, Conn., professional, in the Agua Caliente $25,000 open.

Golden finished a close second with an even $7,000. The leading winners:

George Von Elm, Los Angeles, $7,447.

Johnny Golden, Noroton, Conn., $7,000.

Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., $4,512.

Al Espinosa, Chicago, $2,869.

Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, Mex., $2,525.

Horton Smith, New York, $2,427.

Mortie Dutra, Long Beach, Calif., $1,929.

Tony Manero, New York, $1,900.

Ralph Guildahl, Dallas, $1,690.

Eddie Loos, Chicago, $1,544.

Olin Dutra, Santa Monica, Calif., $1,262.

Clarence Clark, Tulsa, $1,212.

Gene Sarazen, New York, $982.

The crowning achievement of West Point's remarkable program of development and expansion in athletics in the five-year regime of Major Philip B. Fleming as graduate manager is the new "Skating Arena," built at cost of $120,000 and giving the Cadets one of the largest hockey rinks in the country.

Modern in every respect, with facilities to accommodate 2,500 spectators in coonskin coats, a fine refrigeration plant and a skating area measuring 232 feet by 90 feet, the rink is a magnificent addition to the extensive sports laying at the military academy.

Hockey has had a very limited and brief chance for development among the Cadets up to the present time, but it may soon be installed as a major sport, as is the case now at Harvard, Yale and Princeton.

The Harvard skaters, led by the versatile Harry Woods, gave an artistic performance in helping to dedicate the new structure early in January. The Crimson lads, with Wood handling the puck as deftly as he handles a football, probably have the best college team in the east, if not in the entire country, so that it was no disgrace for the scrappy soldier sextet to take a 10-goal trimming.

Harvard has been playing hockey for 31 years and there have been few seasons when the Crimson was not well up around the top in performance. Nevertheless Cambridge has had facilities to match those they helped dedicate at West Point.

The Harvard skaters for years have been forced to take their ice where they found it, although for the past three years they have had the advantage of using the Boston Garden for practice as well as home games.

When the Crimson skaters depended on natural ice, they frequently were handicapped by weather fluctuations. They tell of one year when the team, unable to get on the ice for two weeks, finally resorted to rubber-tired roller skates and worked out on top of the Harvard Stadium until they wore out the skates. Practice also was held in the gymnasium with a tennis ball used for a puck. The opening of the old Boston Arena rink, in 1910, gave Harvard the chance to develop hockey under fine conditions which was voted a major sport in 1913.

The United States Golf association's ban on the so-called "sand wedge," a patented, concave-surfaced implement designed to simplify shots out of the bunkers, may not be heeded by the duffers who have been equipping themselves with this club.

Somewhat popularized by Horton Smith and used last year by many of the stars, including Bobby Jones, thousands of these trick tools were sold to the boys in the blasting brigade. Probably most of them will remain in circulation, even though the club is barred from U. S. G. A. competition.

The point involved in the sand wedge's illegality is that the ball hits two points of the club-head in the operation of being shoved out. This comes under the general heading of mechanical contrivance.

AN OLD TIMER'S SCRAPBOOK

The Story of "Two-and-a-Half" Caesar Attell and How He Got His Name.

Everybody has heard about the Attell brothers—Abe, who held the featherweight championship for a dozen years, and Montie, who won the bantam crown. There was another brother, Caesar. His highest ring honor was winning the Chinese championship for Al Wing.

Caesar was well known in California rings. Also, he was known as a shrewd little business man. He prospered in San Francisco today. And even though fat and bald, he likes to go down to the gyms and give present day fighters a good workout.

He's called "Two-and-a-Half Caesar" around the Bay. Never gives

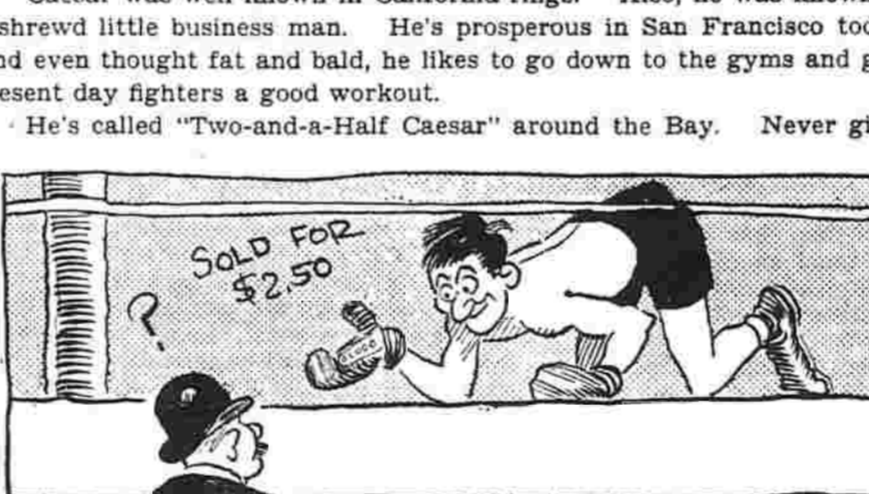

THREE MEN DEADLOCK FOR BILLIARD TITLE

Chicago, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Three challengers and the defending champion Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., were again deadlocked for the lead today in the struggle for the world's three cushion billiard championship.

Allen Hall, the "baby" of the long tourney turned the race into a free-for-all battle last night by handing the leader, Otto Reisel of Philadelphia, his first defeat 52 to 42. As a result Layton, Reisel, Hall and Arthur Thurnblad of Chicago ties for first place with four victories and one defeat each.

Today and tonight the leaders tangle with each other. Frank Scoville, Buffalo, plays Charles Jordan, Los Angeles. Reisel meets Thurnblad and Layton tackles Hall.

FARRELL TO TEACH DIANA FISHWICK

British Star Cables Johnny Asking Him For Assistance To Better Her Game.

St. Augustine, Fla., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Johnny Farrell, former National Open golf champion, is going to teach Miss Diana Fishwick, English women's champion, something about how golf is played in Florida. Farrell received a cablegram from Miss Fishwick who will lead a delegation of British women stars in February, in which she planned to stop here and hoped Johnny would help her with her game.

Miss Fishwick will leave England January 28 and expects to arrive in New York, Feb. 3. She is coming over to Florida about Feb. 8 for some instructions before tournaments open at Palm Beach, Ormond and St. Augustine.

"Of course," Johnny said, "I know nothing of Miss Fishwick's game, never having seen her play, but she must be good to win the championship she did last year."

WEST POINT DENIES SEEKING KEN GOFF

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Major Philip B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics at the Military Academy, made it clear today that West Point had not lifted a finger, officially or unofficially, to secure the enrollment of Kenneth Goff, backfield star of Rhode Island State's football team.

"My first knowledge of the story came as the result of a telephone call from a Providence newspaper man," said Major Fleming. "He asked me about Mr. W. C. Wrightson, who is a member of the Army Athletic Association, a very enthusiastic supporter but having no official connection with our organization here. Members of the Army A. A. number thousands and are scattered all over the world.

"I do not know what Mr. Wrightson may have done or suggested but I have looked into the case and I do know that no one at West Point has lifted a finger to recruit Goff or any other prospective athletic star. It would be preposterous, on the face of it, for anyone in an official capacity even to attempt it.

"So far as I know, the first inquiry concerning Goff came from the boy himself and was directed to a cadet friend here. The cadet, in turn, spoke to Major Sasse, the football coach, and was told that nothing could be done for Goff or anyone."

"The facts are that the athletic office no longer even handles the routine replies to inquiries from boys, scattered all over the country, who are ambitious to enter West Point. All such correspondence is handled through the adjutant's office."

TEN UNBEATEN TEAMS AMONG EAST COLLEGES

New York, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Available records reveal only ten unbeaten college basketball teams in the east and two New York schools, St. John's of Brooklyn and Manhattan College, lead all the rest.

St. John's and Manhattan each has won 11 games in a row this season, three more than their closest rivals, Brown, Buffalo and Rhode Island.

Rider College of Trenton, N. J., and the Army have won seven games; Bethany of West Virginia, six and Lowell Textile and Mass. Aggies, five.

The wedding ring has, from ancient times, been placed on the fourth finger of the left hand out of the belief that from this finger a nerve runs directly to the heart.

A single square inch of scalp, it has been estimated, contains about seven hundred and forty-four hairs.

Rubinstein, Alderman Also With New Haven

Such a fine basketball card supplemented with liberal time for dancing needs little in the way of praise. It speaks for itself. The Atlas were playing basketball when most of the members of the current Rec team were swinging in cradles. That doesn't mean that the members of the Atlas team this year are old enough to be grand-dads to the Rec players, but that the Atlas Club was organized many, many years ago. For many seasons, the Atlas were recognized as the best professional team in Connecticut.

Manager Eddie Rahm has another strong outfit this season led by Captain Zeke Chadys, former high school sensation and a veteran with the Atlas for several campaigns. Three other Atlas veterans on the squad are Pookie Alderman, Mush Dietz, and C. Miller. Another topnotch performer with the Atlas this season is Herby Rubinstein, former Syracuse star, who will be remembered for his work with New Britain last year.

Rubinstein Clever
Rubinstein is one of the cleverest floor men in the state. Manager Rahm assures that on officials can be accounted upon to give the Rec plenty of trouble this evening. The balance of the team is posed of Reink, D. Miller, Guy, Black, Gandelman, Leivavitz and Friedler, all former Commercial High School players of note.

The Atlas has defeated the St. Michaels of New Haven and Branford Tanks among other teams. Branford fell by a wide margin and this is of especial interest because over a three season stretch the Rec has been unable to make any sustained headway against Branford. Only a couple of Saturdays ago the Rec went down to Branford for its annual tugging.

The Rec does not necessarily mean that the Atlas will take the measure of Manchester this evening but it does seem to indicate that the Atlas are more than capable of giving the Rec a real interesting battle with a squad of eleven men eligible for service, the Atlas are even better fortified in reserve strength than the Recreation team which has eight players two of whom are on the injured list at present.

Hank McMan, one of the star forwards, sprained an ankle playing with his West Side Club down in Meriden last week and will not start tonight's fracas. He may see service part of the game. Billy Johnson, regular guard, has a foot injury which will probably prevent him from getting into the game at all this evening. Manager Clune stated this morning. Holland, Faulkner, Nye, Waterman and Farr will be Manchester's starting lineup.

Manager Clune said that he has a special announcement which will be made between the halves of tonight's game. It pertains to an extraordinary attraction which will appear here on next Tuesday evening. Manager Clune says it will be the outstanding event of the 1930-31 basketball season in Manchester.

It was learned late this morning that the attraction referred to is the appearance here of the Favorite Knights' champions of Greater Cleveland for the past ten years and winners of 470 out of 512 games over a stretch of fifteen consecutive years. All members are former college stars and the highlight is "Shorty" Gill, the Primo Camera of American basketball, who stands only seven feet, four inches in height. He wears size 20 shoes.

Good Prelim
Tonight's preliminary also should be mighty interesting. The East Side Crescents have been sailing serenely over all opposition to date and hope to annex the measure of the Collecting Company which is also undefeated and has Barney Kwash, former Manchester High star, in its lineup at center. This game will start at 7:45 at the very latest.

The East Sides are considerably disturbed over the statement made by West Side Club representatives in last night's Herald to the effect that the West Side is not worrying particularly over its coming series with the East Sides which it expects to win. Manager Ken Smith of the East Sides would like to know just who the West Sides are and how they get that way, inasmuch as the Phantom Tattler series last year was between teams with practically the same personnel and came out disastrously for the West Side players. The East Sides want to play for fun, money or marbles, so they say.

The Collecting Company will use Durkin, Karwin, Kwash, Fitzpatrick, Horman, O'Brien and Griffin tonight while the East Sides will counter with Opizki, Campbell, Gorman, Reid, Sturgeon, Healy and Johnson.

Elm City Club Has Been Represented In Connecticut Basketball Longer Than Any Other Nutmeg Organization; Dowd Injured.

The New Haven Atlas, Connecticut's veteran professional basketball organization from a standpoint of years of representation, will be the feature attraction at the School Street Rec tonight when the Elm City warriors come here hopeful of ending the Recreation Center quintet's streak of victories which include no defeat on the home court. The game will start at 8:45 with Clyde Waters of Bristol as referee.

The East Side Crescents and Collecting Company of Hartford, both undefeated, will clash in the preliminary.

Such a fine basketball card supplemented with liberal time for dancing needs little in the way of praise. It speaks for itself. The Atlas were playing basketball when most of the members of the current Rec team were swinging in cradles. That doesn't mean that the members of the Atlas team this year are old enough to be grand-dads to the Rec players, but that the Atlas Club was organized many, many years ago. For many seasons, the Atlas were recognized as the best professional team in Connecticut.

Manager Eddie Rahm has another strong outfit this season led by Captain Zeke Chadys, former high school sensation and a veteran with the Atlas for several campaigns. Three other Atlas veterans on the squad are Pookie Alderman, Mush Dietz, and C. Miller. Another topnotch performer with the Atlas this season is Herby Rubinstein, former Syracuse star, who will be remembered for his work with New Britain last year.

Rubinstein Clever
Rubinstein is one of the cleverest floor men in the state. Manager Rahm assures that on officials can be accounted upon to give the Rec plenty of trouble this evening. The balance of the team is posed of Reink, D. Miller, Guy, Black, Gandelman, Leivavitz and Friedler, all former Commercial High School players of note.

The Atlas has defeated the St. Michaels of New Haven and Branford Tanks among other teams. Branford fell by a wide margin and this is of especial interest because over a three season stretch the Rec has been unable to make any sustained headway against Branford. Only a couple of Saturdays ago the Rec went down to Branford for its annual tugging.

The Rec does not necessarily mean that the Atlas will take the measure of Manchester this evening but it does seem to indicate that the Atlas are more than capable of giving the Rec a real interesting battle with a squad of eleven men eligible for service, the Atlas are even better fortified in reserve strength than the Recreation team which has eight players two of whom are on the injured list at present.

FORESEE TROUBLE FOR COAST GUARD

Defense Claims Josephine K. Was Not Within Twelve Mile Limit.

New York, Jan. 27.—(AP)—A dispute as to the position of the Canadian run-ner Josephine K. when she was shelled by the Coast Guard Saturday night and her master fatally wounded added to the international complications today.

At the arraignment of the crew before U. S. Commissioner Cotter yesterday, Assistant U. S. Attorney Wats demanded high bail on the ground that the vessel was sighted within the 12 mile limit, in breach of the treaty between Great Britain and the U. S. He was corroborated in this by Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the Treasury.

The Other Side
In contradiction, Louis Halle, the crew's attorney said:

"The acts complained of were not within the treaty limit. These men are guilty of no crime and there is no master on this vessel—he has already put up the highest bail."

Commissioner Cotter held 21 prisoners crews of the Josephine K. the scow Brooklyn and the tug Dauntless—all of which were captured in ball ranging from $7,500 to $500. Hearing was set for Feb. 10. The charge was conspiracy to smuggle liquor in violation of the prohibition and customs laws.

Captain W. P. Chett, master of the Josephine K. was wounded fatally by a one-pound shot fired from cutter No. 145 after a five mile chase in New York bay. The vessel was spotted about four miles southeast of Ambrose Lightship 9 1-2 miles off the New Jersey coast, the Coast Guard reported and ignored warnings to heave to for search.

IRENE CASTLE ILL.

New York, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Irene Castle McLaughlin, the former dancer and now the wife of a Chicago sportsman and coffee manufacturer, was recovering here today from an operation for varicose veins, performed last week-end at a private sanitarium on East 61st street.

Mrs. McLaughlin came here from her home in Chicago to secure privacy. Hospital authorities indicated that she was resting quietly and might leave soon.

MEALS NOT MONEY

Los Angeles, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Meal tickets, not money, for menchers.

This plan was adopted today by the citizens committee for relief of unemployment, which estimated beggars were obtaining $150,000 a week in Los Angeles.

Books containing six tickets good for substantial meals at any number of restaurants are being printed for sale to the citizens who otherwise would hand out dimes or quarters.

FINDS BIG DIAMOND

Cherokee, Cal., Jan. 27.—(AP)—A rough diamond, estimated by miners to be worth $1,500, was found in the tailings of the old Cherokee hydraulic gold mine here yesterday by a school girl, Cora Jackson.

In the last fifty years, 475 diamonds have been picked out of the hydraulic tailings, but no systematic attempt ever has been made to mine the stones.

Cora's diamond weighs 2 3/4 carats.

Beet Sugar Output Of U. S. May Be Greatly Increased

Washington.—(AP)—The world of economics shortly will behold in the Chadbourn sugar pact the newest and probably the most spectacular of a series of stupendous efforts to regulate the world supply of a great commodity.

German sugar interests, the last to agree to the plan espoused for six months by Thomas L. Chadbourn of the Cuban-American commission, have accepted diminished expert quotas along with the Cubans, Peruvians, Japanese, Belgians, Hungarians, Poles, Czechoslovakians and others.

The Cubans have a surplus of 1,500,000 tons; the Germans, 812,000 tons, the Japanese 500,000 tons and the other parties to the pact varying degrees of surplus.

All have agreed to stipulated reductions in annual exports in the hope that less pressure on the markets will stimulate prices.

Unlike all schemes that have gone before, notably for the control of coffee and rubber, the Chadbourn plan seeks to bottle up possible competition from the deficit-producing countries in the event of price increases.

Concessions are to be held with representatives of the industry from the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Spain, Russia and other nations for an agreement whereby they will stay out of the export field.

Better world prices would make possible vast expansion of the sugar beet industry in this country.

The Chadbourn plan, economists say, has a better chance of success than any of the efforts that have gone before—provided it does not stimulate production or put new exporters into the business.

It is the second international attempt to organize the world sugar industry. The first, led by Cuba, failed when Java refused to sacrifice the tremendous trade she had developed in the Orient and member of the European countries remained hesitant.

For years Cuba has been trying to control her own output, alternating between presidential decree of the amount of sugar to be produced in any one season and embargoes when consumer markets were flooded.

Always Cuba ran into the same difficulty experienced by the British when they tried to control their export of rubber—expanded production in competing countries.

When the British government, under the Stevenson plan, imposed a graduated export tax on rubber, British interests represented the bulk of rubber production on the Malay peninsula.

For a time it worked. Then Dutch, Chinese and native producers in the East Indies began underselling the British.

Eventually the British discovered they really had created a free market for their competitors while their own interests suffered. When they came back into the market prices dropped like a plummet.

Brazil, under the "coffee valorization" plan, has had similar experience. When the government instituted an export tax and set up machinery for the physical control of exports, Brazil had practically the entire world business in coffee.

By clearing all exports through Sao Paulo and allowing only a stipulated amount to reach the port of Santos, the Brazilians were able to feed the market just the quantity it would absorb and prices were greatly advanced.

Immediately coffee plantations sprang up all over the back hill country and stocks piled up until Brazil still has between 16,000,000 and 22,000,000 bags of coffee she can't sell.

Other countries suitable to coffee culture started producing to such an extent that Brazil now controls only about two-thirds of the world industry.

Coffee prices have tumbled and Brazil is in a maze of credit difficulties. A loan recently was obtained in this country. In coffee, it faces the possible break-up of a typical commodity control system and no one seems to know what is going to happen.

The Australians tried a little different system when the country got so full of butter it had very little value. The government paid an export bounty and put Australian exports in position to undersell those of other countries.

Soon Australian butter was

ICE FISHING SEASON CLOSES ON SATURDAY

Some Good Catches Through the Ice Have Been Reported By Local Anglers.

The final week-end opportunity for ice-fishing in Connecticut will be Saturday of the current week inasmuch as that day marks the end of the ice-fishing season which closes each year on the last day of January. There will be no more fishing until the trout season opens on April 15 followed by the pond and lake season on May first.

The meantime Manchester's little army of followers of Isaak Walton, must be content to reminisce on past experiences and get their lines and rods all rigged up for the most sporty fishing of all—trout fishing.

During the present ice-fishing season a number of good catches have been made, both in pickerel and in perch. William A. Knoffa, William McConigal and Fred McCormick were some of the most ardent pursuers of this sport who were rewarded with big catches.

William A. Knoffa succeeded in pulling up pickerel weighing over four pounds. Knoffa and McConigal made their catches at Columbia Lake.

There have been several less important attempts to control other commodities, such as the Greek plan to stabilize the current industry and the Yucatan attempt to control sisal.

The American colonial tobacco industry ran the gamut of commodity control measures. Ten years after Virginia started planting tobacco in 1620 there was a surplus. Tobacco became legal tender and the very life of the colony depended on it.

Economists say that in the 100 years following, during which tobacco production and surplus difficulties spread to other colonies, the early Americans tried every plan now in use the world over and some that are still contemplated to protect tobacco values.

Closer to the moment, the North American continent has been the efforts of the United States and Canadian governments to control wheat surplus.

The Canadians dammed up their great food of wheat in 1929 in anticipation of better prices which never came. While they held some 200,000,000 bushels off the market to ease the pressure, Argentina shipped wheat until she had exported more grain than the official estimates figured the total crop yield to reach.

The next year the United States started a wheat-holding program and Russia, which had exported 6,000,000 bushels the year before, dumped wheat into the market with close to 80,000,000 bushels and foreign importations countries boosted tariff rates so high their nationals were forced to consume native grains.

Both countries a hopeful of untangling the situation—the United States by the reduction of acreage and a return to domestic consumption basis—but at present their holding programs has resulted in the Canadian wheat pool facing bankruptcy and the American government coming to the rescue of its plan with some $118,000,000 in emergency stabilization funds.

SMUGGLING PLOT FAILS

New York, Jan. 27.—(AP).—Three ships stewards and an Arabian, the first catch of the recently formed Alien Criminal Bureau of the Police Department, were held today on charges of participating in a smuggling plot.

The stewards, employed on the liner Pennsylvania which arrived yesterday from Panama, confessed, police said, to the conspiracy but insisted it was their first attempt of the kind.

The Arab, Ali Hassen Welch, 30, was taken aboard the ship at Panama, secreted in a closet and fed by the stewards on the trip north, police said. The stewards, all aliens, are Harold Pazzella, 32, a Canadian; Enrique Gliva, 28, a Colombian, and Richard Jones, 40, a Welshman.

NEGRO IS CHOSEN FOR CABINET POST

Blaise Diagne First of His Race To Hold Such a Position In France.

Paris, Jan. 27.—(AP)—An outstanding gift for oratory and an ability to speak the French language like a member of the French Academy made Blaise Diagne, named under secretary of state for the colonies today and the first negro to hold a Cabinet portfolio in France, one of the prominent members of the Chamber of Deputies.

Diagne was elected from Senegal in 1914 and has been a member of the Lower House of Parliament since that time. His oratorical ability soon won him the esteem of his colleagues and the war premier, Clemenceau, recognized his ability by making him commissioner in charge of the mobilization of colonial troops.

Remembered in U. S.
He will be remembered in the United States as the deputy who arose in the Chamber in 1922 and took up the defense of his fellow Senegalese, the late Battling Siki, champion light heavyweight of the world who defeated George Carpentier in Paris in September of that year.

Siki had been ruled from the ring by the French Boxing Federation. M. Diagne thought discrimination had been shown against Siki because of his color and took the matter before Parliament. He won and Siki was reinstated.

M. Diagne was born in Goree, Senegal, in 1872. Before entering Parliament he was a Customs controller.

The deputy from Senegal has long been a defender of the rights of negroes and has campaigned in Parliament against alleged cases of discrimination against them.

His son's a crack football player.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The natives stood up in the boat and Scouty said, "Say, please take note how easy they can paddle us. It seems so work at all. They must be very strong, the way the boat slides right along. I guess the reason they're so good is 'cause they do not stall." "You're right," replied the Travel Man. "You'll always find, son, that you can do anything much better if you always do it right. Too many people loaf through life and run right into heaps of strife. Hard work will very seldom get a person in a pigst." Then Scouty broke right in. Said he, "We all are happy as can be, so let's join in a merry song. It's lots of fun to sing. I'll start it off. You all come in. Be sure and wait till I begin. And then he started on a song. "Twas quite a pretty thing. We Scouty really sang it swell. The others waited for a spell and CONVICT LOCAL MAN OF JACK-LIGHTING Albert E. Wilson Fined $186 In Tolland For Illegal Night Hunting of Deer.

(Special to The Herald) Tolland, Jan. 27.—Albert E. Wilson, 30, of 5 Franklin street, South Manchester, a repairman for the Southern New England Telephone Company at Rockville, was fined a total of $186.50 by Justice of the Peace Harry J. Morganson here last night when he was convicted on three charges involving jack-lighting from an automobile for deer.

The Manchester man took an appeal to the Tolland County Superior court under bonds of $300 furnished by Court White of Tolland. He was represented by Attorney William A. King of Willimantic and Attorney John B. Thomas of Rockville. Wilson was charged with three violations, first, hunting on Sunday, second, hunting without a license and third, hunting with an automobile with the aid of a searchlight. Incidentally, the hunting of deer is prohibited at any time in the year throughout the entire state of Connecticut which adds to the seriousness of his triple violation charge. Foxes are the only animal which can be legally hunted now.

Wardens Cruising Game Wardens E. G. Wright of Tolland, Henry Myers of Rockville and John Wood of Somers made the arrest while cruising through the wooded territory north of Rockville in which many deer have been seen during the fall and winter.

Wilson was arrested between 1:30 and 2 o'clock on the morning of Sunday, January 11. Another man was riding in the car with him at the time but he escaped by running into the woods. When he fled, the man was carrying a loaded gun and a searchlight. The pursuit was so hot that the man dropped these articles in making his getaway. The game wardens picked up the gun and light and these were used as evidence.

Game Warden Wright said that he was reasonably certain who the man with Wilson was and named a Rockville man, Arthur Wohlbe, but charges against him were nolleed at last night's court session. Wilson's excuse was that he and his companion were on their way to the home of a friend to play cards.

Warden Wright told The Herald today that there have been about sixty similar cases throughout the state this winter and as a result game wardens in every part of the state have been notified to be on the lookout. He said that more than a dozen horses and cows have been killed through this illegal hunting method and in some instances houses have even been pierced with bullets. Many deer have also been killed and in some instances those persons arrested have had deer in their automobile.

Jack-lighting is a method of attracting deer into the rays of a reflected light which not only fascinates but dazes the animals, rendering them easy victims. It has long been taboo as not only illegal but grossly unsportsmanlike. Recently poachers have revived its use in the headlights of automobiles.

Wright said they had had no up about Wilson but simply came across he and his companion while out on patrol duty.
