

SUMMON MEMBERS FOR BUTLER COURT

Six Rear Admirals and One Major General To Hear Testimony — Case May Go Before the President.

Washington, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—The glitter of gold braid and the flash of polished swords will add color to the court martial of Major General Smedley D. Butler.

All members of the court which tries the outspoken Marine for remarks made about Premier Mussolini of Italy, must appear in the full dress of the Navy or Marine. Six rear admirals and one major general of the Marines will hear the testimony and decide whether Butler is guilty and impose sentence if he is convicted. Secretary Adams then will review the case and it might possibly go to President Hoover.

May Not Testify

Butler may or may not testify. If he does he will be subject to cross-examination. He may leave his defense to his lawyers, among whom will be his friend, Major Henry Leonard, a former Marine and now a Washington attorney.

Once before Leonard came to Butler's aid but amid a hail of bullets in the Boxer Rebellion in China instead of a legal way. He rescued Butler, who was wounded and helpless. In doing so Leonard received a bullet wound that forced amputation of an arm.

Major Leonard, small and wiry, also has some of the vivacity and forcefulness of his friend, but less of his outspokenness.

John W. Davis, New York lawyer and 1924 Democratic nominee for president, may head Butler's counsel.

MEXICAN CURRENCY TO BE STABILIZED

Bankers Argue To Postpone Payment of Gold Payments For Next Two Years.

Mexico City, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Rescue of the Mexican silver peso, which for months has sagged far below normal, was expected to be accomplished, at least in part, by the agreement the Mexican government has obtained from the international bankers committee for a two years postponement of payments in gold on the Mexican foreign debt.

Announcement in New York yesterday that the agreement had been signed, was followed today by a statement of the secretary of the treasury, Luis Monies de Oca, telling why Mexico had sought the concession.

Payment in gold of 25,500,000 dollars in the next two years, as specified by the De Oca-Lamont accord of last July, would mean such an exodus of gold from Mexico that efforts to stabilize the silver peso at its normal rate of exchange against gold would be seriously hampered, Montes de Oca explained.

The July agreement, reached at a conference of Thomas Lamont, other members of the committee, and Montes de Oca, in New York, opened the way for Mexico to start payment on her debt this year under terms corresponding to her financial ability. For several years the payment on the debt has been suspended, awaiting an agreement between the two parties concerned.

Gold Payments

The payments were to be made in gold, and 5,000,000 dollars in gold was deposited in the bank of Mexico to apply on the first payment.

Not long after this was done, the silver peso, 3 per cent below gold in value at the normal rate of exchange, fell as low as 18 and 20 per cent below gold. A serious situation was produced, inasmuch as most business in Mexico is done in silver and in almost all cases salaries are paid in silver.

Efforts of the government to improve the status of the silver exchange brought some improvement, but still in the last few days the silver peso has been fluctuating between 12 and 14 per cent less than the value of the gold peso.

The government has made various means to retain its gold here, as with each decrease in the amount of gold in circulation the value of the gold, as compared with that of silver, increases.

Payment of 25,500,000 dollars in gold in two years, as specified by the July debt accord, would take more than twice that number of gold pesos out of the country.

TREASURY BALANCE

Washington, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Treasury receipts for Jan. 29 were, 4,948,804.41; expenditures $6,177,071.28; balance $1,199,021,850.43.

WELL DRESSED WAS THIS MAN

Wears Pair of Overalls, Three Pairs of Trousers, Two Pairs of Boots and Three Shirts.

Hartford, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—There is still a possibility that Herman Smith, negro World War veteran, overlooked one of his pockets in search for $16 which he reported lost to police.

The ex-soldier received a government check of $19.60 yesterday and after making a few purchases a balance of $16 remained. When he homeward bound he discovered his money was gone. He made a cursory examination of clothes then hastened to police station to report the loss and incidentally a more thorough search of his clothes.

Smith explained to police that he had spent most of his life in Macon, Ga., as he peeled off a pair of overalls, three pairs of trousers, two pairs of rubber boots, three shirts and heavy muffer in a futile search for the $16.

Police inclined to the opinion that the money had dropped to the sidewalk after becoming lost somewhere between the first and second pairs of trousers.

CHAPLIN'S LATEST HAS ITS PREMIER

Silent Film That Took Three Years To Make, Scores Big Hit At Showing.

Los Angeles, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Adulation of the star-gazing multitude of Hollywood and Los Angeles rose to a near-riotous frenzy last night at one of the most spectacular premieres ever accorded a motion picture here.

The talkies yielded the spotlight to the first important non-dialogue movie Hollywood has produced in three years, and a little panmoming treat, provided to the satisfaction of a distinguished first night audience his art—pure pantomime—was beyond the need of microphonic assistance.

The occasion was the premier showing of "City Lights," the picture on which Charles Chaplin, alone of the Hollywood greats, has been working for nearly three years.

Thousands of men, women and children assembled before the theater and police had to battle to keep back the crowds.

Einstein's Present

Chaplin's car arrived moving inch by inch. The star escorted Miss Georgia Hale, his leading lady in a former picture, with Prof. and Frau Albert Einstein and Dr. and Mrs. Robert A. Millikan as his guests.

Those seeing the picture acclaim the Chaplin genius of old. Not a word of dialogue is spoken from the screen, but sound effects and a continuous synchronized musical score accompany the action.

Chaplin has used sound to enhance, rather than to diminish, his comedy, and music, composed by himself, to further emotional appeal.

The story of "City Lights," written and directed by Chaplin, is simple, its theme, the love of a pathetic vagabond for a beautiful blind flower girl, exquisitely played by Virginia Cherrill, a screen newcomer. Harry Myers, star of "A Connecticut Yankee," makes a splendid screen comeback in the other principal role, that of the millionaire who in his less sober moments aids the tramp in his wistful romance.

PROMINENT LAWYER DIES

New Milford, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—John F. Liddis, prominent Litchfield county lawyer for nearly half a century, Democratic state committee man, and until his recent retirement, judge of probate for the New Milford district, died at his home here today. He was 70 years old.

All on President's Board Were Agreed on Saloons

Chicago, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Frank J. Loesch said today that the Wickersham commission, of which he is a member, sought primarily in its recommendations on prohibition, to prevent the return of the saloon.

"Closing of the saloon was the one big accomplishment of the 18th Amendment," he said. "That is why those of us on the commission who recommended revision of prohibition opposed repeal of the amendment. Labor and industry appeared to be unanimously against the open saloon. Its return, in my opinion, would slow down our industrial pace."

INDIAN PRESS SEES FAILURE IN NEW PLANS

Gandhi and Followers Say They Are Ready To Go Back To Jails If Their Views Are Not Considered

Bombay, India, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Indian newspapers commenting today on political issues, express a fear that forthcoming conferences between Congress Party leaders and delegates returning from the round table conference may not be so successful as is hoped.

Mahatma Gandhi and his associates in the Congress Party, meeting at Allahabad, are saying now that they did not ask for their own release from prison but "for the liberation of India's 32,000,000 serfs." They assert they are all ready to go back to jail if that aim is not achieved.

"Unless Gandhi is prepared to call off his civil disobedience campaign," says the Calcutta Statesman, India's leading newspaper, "we must assume that he has no wish for peace and the whole future of India may be changed by his attitude."

Gandhi Doubtful

Gandhi and his associates have expressed themselves as doubtful that real peace can grow out of MacDonal's proposals and that little can be expected from the forthcoming conferences with round table delegates unless England is prepared to give India full control over her finances and all branches of Indian civil service. They insist also upon the unconditional release of the thousands of political prisoners.

Such a general amnesty, however, was conditional upon and to the present "peaceful rebellion," and there has been no indication that the viceroy, in the absence of any prospect for a successful outcome of the approaching conferences, is likely to grant the general amnesty which Gandhi seeks.

India, in the meantime, remains in an extremely anxious state. Business is getting worse, imports and exports have touched new low levels and unemployment is increasing.

MISSING BANKER BOOTLEGGED KING

Dry Sleuths Investigate Charges That Financier Headed Rum Ring.

Binghamton, N. Y., Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Special investigators for the prohibition division today looked into charges that Andrew J. Horvath, missing president of a closed bank, was the upstate bootleg king.

Amos W. W. Woodcock, prohibition director, instructed his agents to develop all possible leads about Horvath who disappeared a month ago shortly before the discovery of a shortage of $1,700,000 in the funds of the State Bank of Binghamton.

Police raids in connection with the search for Horvath led to discovery of liquor valued at more than $150,000. Part of it was found in a garage in the rear of the bank building and part of it in the home of the bank janitor.

Visited Binghamton

Woodcock visited Binghamton last week to investigate enforcement in this area which is under direction of Deputy Administrator L. R. Smith. He came after the president of the local W. C. T. U. charged that "the largest bootlegging establishment in upstate New York had operated un molested for years."

The state banking department has taken charge of the affairs of the bank. Charges that the police department of Binghamton made no effort to find the missing banker have been laid before the Grand Jury.

Here you see Norval Baptie and his skating partner, Gladys Lamb, of New York City, recognized as two of the cleverest fancy skaters in the world. New Jersey Representative Says Majority Advised Repeal of 18th Amendment; Its Now Up To Congress.

Washington, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Basing his demand upon the Wickersham prohibition report, Representative Lehbach, Republican, New Jersey, today asked Congressional action looking to the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

In a speech in the House he urged the chamber to take up his resolution submitting a repeal to the people through conventions. He said two facts stood out in the Wickersham report despite interpretations "as varied as are the views entertained on the subject of prohibition."

Sensational Expose of the Operations of Gang Working In Argentina For Years

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Paulino Scarfo, sentenced today to execution as a lieutenant of the notorious gangster, Severino di Giovanni, was reported to have told the Supreme War Council that he and Di Giovanni were the organizers of bombing attempts against the F. National bank of Boston branch here during the Sacco-Vanzetti agitation in 1927.

Di Giovanni, who was captured after a battle in which a policeman was killed yesterday, awaited death at the hands of a firing squad today. He and Scarfo were connected also to the police said, with the recent bombings of three railway stations here.

Scarfo, taken at his suburban headquarters, was captured in a battle in which three persons, one of them a policeman, were killed.

ICE CARNIVAL ON TOMORROW DESPITE SNOW

Pond Being Cleared As Fast As Possible and Will Be In Good Condition—Unusual Program.

Everything is in readiness for Manchester's biggest outdoor sporting event of the winter season—the fourth annual ice carnival—which will be conducted at the Center Springs Park tomorrow afternoon. Nothing else is needed except the appearance of Old Sol shining in a clear, blue sky.

The present snow storm which started last night and was in continuation at noon today, had not caused a postponement of the Ice Carnival. The committee in charge held a hurried consultation this morning and decided to delay any decision to put off the carnival until late this afternoon or even until sometime tonight.

Meantime a force of 65 town workmen were engaged in removing the snow from Center Springs Pond and according to Frank Walleit, pond supervisor, the ice will be in good condition for the exhibition event. Efforts will also be made to remove the snow from the sides of the pond to make room for the spectators. In case the carnival is postponed until two weeks later, Feb. 14, the information can be obtained by telephoning 4506 which is the skating house number at the pond.

This is the fourth year the carnival has been held. Each year the program has improved. Last year several thousand persons occupied the points of vantage about the lake to watch the steel blade experts put on their exhibitions. Tomorrow's program is much more extensive and colorful than the previous one.

The Features

The feature attraction will be the re-appearance here of Norval Baptie and his partner, Gladys Lamb, of New York City, recognized as two of the world's best fancy skaters. The Baptie-Lamb combination graced the carnival program here two years ago and those who were fortunate enough to be in attendance witnessed a sight they will long remember.

Supplementing the Baptie-Lamb act will be eleven other skaters of considerable fame, including four from Manchester, Miss Helen Cosker and her cousin, Jimmy Cosker, two of Hartford's outstanding performers on the steel blades, will be here as well as Albert Basiliere of Pitts-

BALDWIN IS FACING SPLIT IN PARTY

Two More of His Leaders Disagree On Indian Policy; Beaverbrook Latest.

London, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Stanley Baldwin, denied a victory over Ramsay MacDonald's Labor government at last Wednesday night's division in the Commons, now must turn and face rising disaffection in his own party ranks.

Bereft of his erstwhile henchmen, Winston Churchill, who last night at Manchester once more assailed his approval of the government's Indian policy, Baldwin heard today the threats of Lord Beaverbrook, energetic empire crusader and publisher.

"If the Conservative Party does not adopt the policy of Empire Free Trade," Lord Beaverbrook told a by-election audience at East Islington last night, "it is my purpose to break up the party." His speech was in behalf of Paul Springman, Empire Crusader candidate, who is opposing the regular Conservative candidate, Miss Thelma Casalet.

The meeting was productive of a series of rowdy incidents, a storm of booing and cheering greeted Lord Beaverbrook as he arose to address the audience. At one stage attendants intervened and unceremoniously carried three men out of the hall.

Bandits Gamble Before Hanging

Three of Them Toss a Coin To See Which One Will Be Executed First.

Canon City, Colo., Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Three bank robbers who shot it out with officers in a two-state flight last March have stoned in death for the murder of a Colorado deputy sheriff.

Gambling for the last few minutes of life, they were hanged at the state penitentiary here last night.

The flip of a coin decided John Walker, 45, an outlaw 20 years old, who led his band in the robbery of a Manter, Kansas, bank of $4,000 and the subsequent slaying of Carol A. Hickman, Eads Colorado deputy, should be the last to die.

Claude Ray, 25, was the first. Andrew Halliday, 22, followed Ray to the death chamber.

MINORITY SURE OF 3 PLACES ON SCHOOL BOARD

Bill Before Assembly Not Different In Effect From Selectmen's Draught; Hartford Stories Untrue.

Misleading news articles in both Hartford daily newspapers lead to the conclusion that the bill presented to the Legislature by Representative Raymond A. Johnson of this town, providing for the consolidation of the schools of Manchester, does away with the stipulation for minority representation which the Board of Selectmen agreed should enter into the consolidation act. According to State Senator Robert J. Smith, Judge R. A. Johnson and Judge W. S. Hyde there is no truth in such statements and a reading of the bill supports these declarations. Representative Johnson was emphatic today in asserting that the present measure provides for minority representation.

The only truth in the articles in question is that the phraseology of the draught of legislation adopted by the selectmen was changed by Town Counsel William S. Hyde for reasons having nothing to do with minority representation, the selectmen's bill being found to constitute adverse legislation and to set up conditions not intended, such, for example, as providing inadvertently that a person could be regarded as belonging to a political party only if registered in it.

Can Vote for Only Two.

The proposed act provides that "No person shall vote for more than two (out of three) members of the Board of Education" for each term. This automatically provides that the dominating political organization, whichever party it may be, shall have no more than six out of nine members on the board. That is precisely the intent of the Board of Selectmen in drawing up their draught while the phraseology avoids other difficulties and complications.

The Bill.

The measure now before the Legislature follows:

AN ACT CONSOLIDATING THE SCHOOLS OF THE TOWN OF MANCHESTER.

"Sec. 1. All of the schools of the Town of Manchester are hereby consolidated.

"Sec. 2. There shall be a Board of Education consisting of nine members, each of whom shall be elected at the Annual Town Meeting. At the first meeting held for the election of such members, three shall be elected for a term of one year, three for a term of two years and three for a term of three years thereafter for a term of three years. No person shall vote for more than two members for each term.

"Sec. 3. Vacancies occurring on said Board until the next annual election of said Town, shall be filled by the Board of Selectmen.

"Sec. 4. The Board shall elect from its members a chairman. They shall also elect a clerk who need not be a member of the Board.

"Sec. 5. The property of the several districts of the Town shall be appraised and an equalization effected between the districts in the manner prescribed in Sections 962 and 963 of the General Statutes.

"Sec. 6. Five members of the Board of Education and four members of the Board of Selectmen appointed in each case by their respective Boards shall act as a Joint Board on School Expenses to present at the Annual Town Meeting a written or printed statement of the total cost of the school year next preceding, and an estimate of the cost of the schools for the current school year.

German Seaplane With 19 Passengers Reaches the Canary Islands Without Mishap—Next Stop Will Be the Cape Verde Island and Then Across Ocean To Brazil—Thence To New York.

LOG OF DO-X FLIGHT.

By Associated Press.

(All times given are Eastern Standard.)

3:08 a. m.—Took off from Tagus harbor at Lisbon, Portugal.

7:30 a. m.—Reported her position by radio to Las Palmas, Canary Islands, about 400 miles east by north from Madeira.

10:10 a. m.—Landed at Las Palmas, Canary Islands.

Las Palmas, Canary Islands, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—The German seaplane DO-X landed in the harbor here at 3:10 p. m. (10:10 a. m., E. S. T.)

The big ship settled down in the harbor with a great roar of motors which brought everybody within hearing distance to the waterfront. She had completed this first lap of her projected flight across the South Atlantic in almost exactly seven hours.

Fog between Lisbon and the Madeira Island caused a change in her original plans and Commander Friedrich Christiansen, instead of dropping a mail bag at Funchal, as he had intended, eliminated the Madeira detour and came straight here.

A radio message sent an hour before the arrival said that the trip was proceeding on schedule without untoward incident.

Lisbon, Portugal, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Its 12 motors drumming smoothly the giant German seaplane DO-X lifted itself from the waters of the Teguus here this morning and flew off toward Madeira and the Canary Islands on the first leg of a trans-Atlantic flight to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. The leg is an 860 mile stretch above the Atlantic ocean off the coast of northwestern Africa.

Nineteen persons, by far the largest number ever to attempt a trans-Atlantic flight in a heavier than air machine, were aboard the craft. The take off was at 8:08 a. m. (3:08 a. m., E. S. T.). It was expected the plane would make Las Palmas, Canary Islands, late this afternoon. Arrangements were made to drop a bag of mail as the ship curves eastward off its course to pass over Madeira.

From Las Palmas the plane tomorrow will fly to Porto Praia, in the Cape Verde islands. After a 36 hour halt, the DO-X will attempt the most difficult part of its journey, to Fernando Do Noronha, 1,230 miles distant. A short stop is to be made there and the craft will proceed to the mainland at Natal and down the coast to Rio de Janeiro. From Rio de Janeiro the plane will fly to New York.

The ship is commanded by Capt. Friedrich Christiansen. Clarence Schidhauer, an American, is second pilot and navigator for the trip. Before departure both said they had the utmost confidence in the outcome of the flight.

The great airplane made a beautiful getaway. After all her passengers had boarded her, Capt. Christiansen stepped on the gas.

There was a tremendous roar and the ship taxied out into the river harbor.

Rises Beautifully.

There it ran to and fro a few minutes in order to get the proper direction of the wind and then rose beautifully, the take-off being effected in 110 seconds. A Portuguese military plane escorted the DO-X as she made off. Both were soon lost to sight in the haze.

A large crowd gathered at the waterfront despite the early hour to witness the departure. The crew and officers of the ship were given a banquet last night by Captain Christiansen.

The ship carried 180,000 letters and postcards in addition to its store of supplies which included tinned meals. A small quantity of beverages and enough American chewing gum to last until the end of the voyage.

Canary As Mascot

"Sea Eagle," the mascot canary which started with the DO-X on her first trans-Atlantic attempt, last night died a weak age and Commander Christiansen substituted another, brought from a bird store yesterday.

At the last moment Lieutenant Redojo Oliveira of the Portuguese Air Force was eliminated as a passenger.

Death Ends Adventures Of Noted World War Ace

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Death in one of the few remaining unopened sections of the earth has closed the career of Captain Gunter Plueschow, German flying ace, to whom life allotted an adventurer's role with four continents for a stage.

Last Wednesday Captain Plueschow with a companion set out in their Condor amphibian plane, the "Condor De La Fleta" in continuation of their exploration of southern Patagonia and the Andes. As they flew over Lake Rica near Puerto Gallegas in Argentina the plane collapsed and they took to parachutes.

The chutes failed to open and the men fell 2,000 feet to the shores of the lake which is in one of the most vast sections of southern Argentina. Both were killed instantly. The bodies have not yet been brought out of the desolate region. Several days may pass before they can be conveyed to Feruto Gallegas, Argentina, the nearest city, about 200 miles distant.

G. O. P. CHIEFS MOVE TO STOP EXTRA SESSION

Plan Drastic Measures — If Supply Bills Fail To Pass By Feb. 15 They Will Continue Appropriations.

Washington, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Drastic measures are to be taken by Republican House leaders if necessary to avert a special session. Chairman Wood, of the appropriations committee, said today if all supply bills failed of passage by February 15, he would propose to continue existing appropriations during the next fiscal year. This course has only been resorted to in the past where the House and Senate were unable to place before the President all of the supply bills before time for adjournment. Longworth's Views Although Speaker Longworth has indicated he feels it is just as simple to reach an agreement on the annual supply bills, he has said such a course would not meet his objection if a filibuster in the Senate against a supply bill would result in an extra session. Wood said it would be much better if the supply bills were passed as approved by the House, but he would propose his resolution in event the Senate would not recede from its position on amendments opposed by the House and the administration.

Have Majority

With the Republicans having a majority of more than 100 in the House, Wood predicted the continuation resolution would have no difficulty in adoption.

No supply bill has been enacted. Several of the bills have more than 100 amendments, each of which is in disagreement. Should this condition continue until February 15, Wood said, he would press for action on a continuation resolution.

Charters of the Ninth School District of Manchester and of the Eighth School and Tenth District of Manchester, insofar as they relate to the conduct, maintenance or construction of schools or school buildings, or the laying of a tax to support the same, and any private act relating to the Town of Manchester inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed. Sec. 8. This act shall not take effect until it shall have been approved by the voters of the Town at an Annual or Special meeting duly warned and held for that purpose. At said meeting the vote shall be taken on the voting machines and the polls shall be open from eight o'clock in the morning until eight o'clock at night. Late this forenoon Judge Hyde told the Herald that there was no question whatever about the bill providing for minority representation on the six-and-three basis desired by the Selectmen. He said that in order to clarify the situation he intended to submit to the board an analysis of the bill showing the reason for whatever changes in form had been made.

OHIO BANK FAILS

New Philadelphia, Ohio, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—The Merchants State bank here failed to open this morning. The bank had resources of $785,525. It was capitalized at $150,000.

CONFIDENCE VOTES FOR NEW PREMIER

Laval's Friends Rally To His Support In Chamber of Deputies.

Paris, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Pierre Laval, son of a country butcher, and one of the youngest men ever to reach the head of the French government, was established in office today by two votes of confidence in the Chamber which surpassed the hope of even his fondest friends. His supporters saw in the two majorities, 34 on the first vote, and 31 on a ballot rejecting an opposition amendment to the original question of confidence, an indication that his government, the seventh in the life of the present Parliament, would hold on until a new president is elected in June to succeed M. Doumergue. Then the Cabinet will resign as a matter of course. The first vote last night came on a question of acceptance or rejection of the declaration of policy. It was carried by the government, 312 to 258. An amendment offered by the Radicals, which would have involved some tension on free education and M. Laval, believing the matter one of educational rather than political policy, asked its rejection. The Chamber responded with a vote favoring the government of 309 to 258.

CHIL'S PRESIDENT IS STILL IN POWER

Government Passes Two Crisis, One In Lower House, One In Cabinet.

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—The government of President Colonel Carlos Ibanez emerged victorious today from two crises. One in the Lower House of Congress and the other in the Cabinet. After weeks of battle in committee and on the floor of the Lower House, the government yesterday defeated opposition attempts to kill the Ibanez bill granting the president complete unrestricted powers for four months beginning with the Congress recess. The bill now goes to the Senate which votes Monday and is expected to approve it without much delay. Resignation Reports. While the bill was making its bumpy way through the chamber the finance minister, Carlos Castro Ruiz, who is premier, intended to resign because of controversy within the Cabinet as to the manner in which the government's plea for adoption of the bill should be presented to Congress. President Ibanez called a Cabinet meeting late in the day and difficulties were ironed out in Senor Castro's favor so that the crisis passed and Castro now will continue in the portfolio. Senor Castro Ruiz, fathered the bill to give the president special powers in order that he may be able to handle any emergencies while Congress is in recess.

unanimous," he said, "that the Eighteenth Amendment is not observed and not enforced. Cannot Be Enforced. "A majority of the commission unequivocally state their belief that the Eighteenth Amendment can never be adequately enforced. "If the labors of the commission are not to be wholly scrapped, these two propositions are the foundation upon which a new dispensation must be built. "Now that the tumult and shouting has measurably died down," he continued, "the people properly turn to Congress and ask what it intends to do about it. Inasmuch as there is no reasonable doubt that a great majority of the people share the conclusions reached by the Wickersham commission, it is the plain duty of Congress to act at once." Must Get Busy. Congress, he said, "must no longer temporize." "The party," he declared, "that refuses to face the facts and meet the issue now with firmness, courage and wisdom, will be overwhelmingly repudiated at the next National election." Lehbach said if his bill passed now the voters could debate it during the spring and summer, and choose their delegates in the fall. Early next spring, he continued, the will of the people would have been ascertained. "We could enter the campaign of 1932," he said, "on issues that would evoke the calm consideration and the sound judgment of the people, rather than on an issue that primarily inflames prejudices and passion."

FIFTH AVENUE BURGLAR IDENTIFIED BY BUTLER

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Alfred Hartman, 34, was identified in the police lineup today as the lone gunman who held up Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Brokaw last Tuesday evening while they were playing backgammon in their Fifth Avenue mansion. John Lockerie, the Brokaw's butler, said he was positive Hartman was the man who forced the butler to lead him into the library of the Brokaw home where he forced Mr. Brokaw to hand over a wallet containing $175. Hartman denied he was the holdup man. The prisoner was arrested yesterday in the act of taking a box of shoes from a parked automobile on Park avenue. Police said he was suspected of guilt in several similar cases. The butler made the identification in the absence of his employers who are in the south. Police said they would ask Mr. and Mrs. Brokaw to attempt identification on their return to the city.

FISHERMEN PROTEST COAST GUARD SEARCH

Washington, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Plans for co-operation between the Coast Guard and legitimate fishing boats to avoid unnecessary search of fishing fleets for liquor were discussed today between Representative La Guardia and Commandant Billard, of the Coast Guard. The meeting followed action by the Mid-Atlantic Fishing Association in bringing to the New York representative's attention the seizure by a Coast Guard crew of the fishing schooner "Good Luck" off New York Monday night.

La Guardia said charges against the guardsmen in this case were "serious, involving more than a violation of rules and regulations." After conferring with Billard, he said the Coast Guard had repaired damage done to the boat in searching it.

The discussion led to arrangements for future conferences between representatives of the fishing fleets and the Coast Guard, in which it is planned to arrive at a method of certain identification of the legitimate fishermen and thus avoid stopping and searching them by Coast Guard patrols looking for rum runners. No dates were set.

OPENING STOCKS

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—The Stock Market opened nervously irregularly today. Worthington Pump, one of yesterday's strong futures, rallied 1-2 and there were half point gains in American Telephone and Standard Oil of New Jersey. U. S. Steel and American Can were unchanged. Auburn Auto lost 2 points. International Telephone, Westinghouse, Bethlehem Steel, Allied Chemical and Du Pont sagged about 1-2. Most of the offerings in the first few minutes of trading were in specialties and the steadiness of the pivotal industrials and utilities gave the market a firmer tone by the end of the first half hour. U. S. Steel, after sagging 1/4, rallied half a point. American Telephone and American Can recovered fractional declines and Auburn Auto made up its loss.

There was a forward movement in the farm implements, led by International Harvester and Case, each of which rose a point. Nash Motors, Atchison, Norfolk and Western and Eastman Kodak were others showing moderate gains. Paramount filmed in response to the estimate of record earnings for 1930. The early selling brought losses of 1 to 1 1/2 in Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Penick and Ford, Foster Wheeler, General Refractories and Caterpillar Tractor. Ingersoll Rand was also heavy.

Foreign exchanges were steady. Sterling cables opened unchanged at $4.85 1/2.

SAYS DEMOCRATS WILL WIN IN '32

Senator Copeland Blames Present Economic Distress On Republican Party

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Blaming economic distress on the Republican administration, Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, today predicted a Democratic victory in 1932. He called upon his party, however, to present a "workable" program in order that it may deserve victory and make it lasting. Speaking before the National Democratic Club, Copeland said "all informed persons look upon the present administration at Washington as a failure." "Today's economic distress," he said, "is the fault of the Republican administration. I do not say and never have said that President Hoover is responsible for what happened originally. That would be silly. "But I do say it has been impossible to deal effectively with the situation because the Republican administration has denied, belittled and dodged the truth. There has been no frank admission of the facts. "Consequently, no effective plans have been presented to mitigate the situation. Not only has there been a failure to present such plans, but every device has been used to defeat the honest efforts of the minority to assist our suffering citizens."

HURLEY AS POSTMASTER

Washington, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—President Hoover today selected William E. Hurley, for the postmastership at Boston. The decision to appoint Hurley was reached at a conference today between Postmaster General Brown and President Hoover.

BIGGEST SNOWSTORM

Center Springs Pond Shares Strenuous Clearing Work With Roads and Sidewalks.

Manchester was buried today under a blanket of snow nearly a foot in depth, the heaviest fall of the winter. The weather man predicted that there would be clear, cold weather tonight and tomorrow. Before noon the sun came out and the big snow was apparently over. Traffic was heavily affected by the storm last night, automobiles generally proceeding at a crawl. The main highways about town were well cleared early this morning through all night work by state and town highway departments. The height of the storm was reached between 7:30 and 10:30 last night. By midnight there had been such a fall that taxi service was in big demand and this continued until after 1 o'clock this morning, calls coming from all parts of the town. Town and state plows were out early this morning and succeeded in getting many main roads open before the people started for their work. Pedestrians generally used the roadways.

A force of men has been working since early this morning clearing Center Springs Pond for the carnival due to start tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The snow had been all removed shortly before noon.

All the men engaged in Park and Highway work yesterday were put on the town streets this morning clearing sidewalks, gutters and cross walks. The town trucks were removing snow from street corners and around hydrants.

Sunday School Lesson

Jesus The Great Physician

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Feb. 1, Jesus, the Great Physician. Luke 4:38-44; 5:12-16.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist. Our lesson presents Jesus as a great physician in the healing of physical illness. Leaving the synagogue, he entered into the house of Simon whose mother-in-law was seriously ill with a fever. The record is that Jesus manifested his healing power by rebuking the fever, which left her so quickly that she was able immediately to arise and minister to her guests.

And he arose out of the synagogue, and entered into Simon's house. And Simon's wife's mother was taken with a great fever; and they besought him for her. And he stood over her, and rebuked the fever; and it left her; and immediately she arose and ministered unto them. Now when the sun was setting, all they that had any sick with divers diseases brought them unto him; and he laid his hands on every one of them, and healed them. And devils also came out of many, crying out, and saying, Thou art Christ the Son of God. And he rebuked them saying, Be silent, for they knew that he was Christ. And when it was day, he departed and went into a desert place; and the people sought him, and came unto him, and stayed him, that he should not depart from them. And he said unto them, I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also: for therefore am I sent. And he preached in the synagogues of Galilee. And it came to pass, when he was in a certain city, behold a man full of leprosy; who seeing Jesus fell on his face, and besought him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean. And he put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will: be thou clean. And immediately the leprosy departed from him. And he charged him to tell no man; but go, and shew himself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing, according as Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them. But so much the more went there a fame abroad of him; and great multitudes came together to hear, and to be healed by him of their infirmities. And he withdrew himself into the wilderness, and prayed.

How are we to interpret these lessons which are confined almost wholly to the curing of physical disease? To discuss the miracles is of little value, because if we could explain the records they would cease to be miraculous. The power that Jesus manifested might be likened to the cures that frequently occur through the power of mind over matter or through the spiritual or hypnotic influence of some strong individual. But the cure of leprosy cannot be regarded in that complacent way. The stories are of miraculous healing.

Miracles Only Minor Part On the other hand, there is little evidence in the ministry of Jesus of the healing of bodily diseases as a continuous or chief function of his ministry. Had this been the case the records of the New Testament would be confined almost exclusively to miracles of healing, for the extent of bodily illness in any community is always very great. As a matter of fact, the miracles of healing form a relatively small part of the New Testament, and they do not by any means overshadow the greater and deeper ministry of Jesus in specific ministry to the soul. He is above all the Savior from sin and the bearer of the griefs and sorrows of his fellow men.

This fact, it seems to me, is it very important to grasp. To regard Jesus chiefly as a great physician in a worldly sense, fulfilling the functions of the doctor of medicine, is to miss his supreme significance as the physician of the soul. But is there in Christianity a legitimate and effective ministry of healing in the physical sense? Should healing be a normal function of the church today?

Opinions Differ Upon this question there is, and there will long be, wide divergence of opinion. Among those who advocate healing as a function of the Christian church and ministry, there are varied conceptions as to how and to what extent that function should be performed. Many believe that all diseases are subject to healing by spiritual means. While to others faith healing means little more than an effort to discover and apply the spiritual laws dealing with the influences of mind and soul that affect bodily conditions. The extremes of opinion are represented by various groups who preach and practice the gospel of faith cure on the one hand, and men like the late Dr. George A. Gordon, on the other hand, who have criticized certain efforts to administer physical healing through the minister rather than the doctor as "the practice of medicine by the unit."

Without entering into the deeper and mystic aspects of the matter concerning which we may make many spiritual discoveries in the future, it would seem reasonable to suggest that in relation to all physical states and conditions we should exercise common sense and avail ourselves of all the means at our disposal for treating disease. To neglect proper means of physical cure and to expect God to work miracles of healing would seem to be quite as unreasonable as to refuse to eat food and expect God to maintain our physical lives. The whole field of healing is one regarding which there can be little value in a dogmatic attitude.

Healing Soul is Chief Aim The wonder-working power of Jesus does not seem amazing when one thinks of the wonder of the man himself. One thing many people will believe—namely, that any miracle of healing that Jesus performed was in harmony with some higher law of his being, and of spiritual power operating in a physical world.

When one considers that such discoveries as the radio have come into the world only after many centuries of its existence, is it unreasonable to believe that future centuries may reveal quite as great wonders in the spiritual organization of forces of life? Moreover, just as the laws and principles of the radio were present in the world centuries before they were discovered, so the spiritual prophecies may discover in a far distant day are operating in our present life if we had power to understand them.

One thing is sure, the supreme ministry of Jesus is the ministry of heart for the soul. If the power of the Gospel does not reach our lives and transform them, there can be little hope of effectual improvement through spiritual causes in our physical condition. The Gospel in its richness and fullness of its meaning is a gospel of spiritual health.

THE UNIVERSAL SORROW

BY GEORGE HENRY DOLE International Sunday School Lesson Text, February 1. Surely He hath born our griefs, and carried our sorrows.—Isa. 53:4.

Hard times are not permanent, they show the way to sounder and better conditions. They are part of a cycle. When reverses come, and rise as a great wall barring the way, it is because we have been going in the wrong direction, and the Lord has a better path for us and is directing our feet into it. Among the numerous causes assigned for the depressed business conditions are the disturbances in China, India and Russia. But whatever the causes or however numerous they may be, it is now evident that the world is a brotherhood, so bound together that when one nation is afflicted, all the world, in some degree, suffers; just as the whole body is diseased when a member of it is diseased.

This fact is leading, yes, forcing economists and thinkers to take a world-wide view of things, and to cultivate a broader love. Jesus' love embraced the whole world. Universal depression brings a blessing in leading to a larger view and to the consideration of the good of all. We can clearly see that for success even on the external plane of agriculture, industry, or transportation, it is not sufficient to consider only ourselves.

The so-called common people have, quite universally, risen to comfortable levels of living. Urgent is the desire of all to enjoy larger benefits. No, the whole world is not to stay down, for the great masses of people, as a unit, may yet rise to heretofore unrealized comforts and modes of life. Said Jesus, "If I be lifted up from the earth, I will draw all men unto me." This uplift will never cease. All nature and economic problems are in reality spiritual. The world will advance to an appreciation of better things. When it hesitates, it may do so to acquire a new start. The basic cause of depression, whether ethical or economic, spiritual, is the savage and insane pursuit of personal possessions and power; the remedy is always in learning to live for others. A food famine may parallel a famine for spiritual nourishment.

This is called a mechanized age. But when those in authority advise limiting the acreage to reduce overproduction, and some advise burning the wheat to benefit the farmer, bread-lines are lengthening in many cities; something is wrong with the present system. Depression emphasizes this, and calls for the setting of the machine in better order. The Lord knows our griefs and sorrows, and nothing is more sure than that, if we look to Him, He will lift the whole world to unprecedented levels. The world, like the individual, meets disaster when basic laws are violated, we need a new wisdom to avert calamity in the future. The Lord is conscious of world-distress; the remedy and solution are in His principles.

HEBRON

Miss Helen Gilbert, who was under treatment at the Bridgeport hospital several days for laryngitis, was able to leave the hospital on Saturday, and spent the weekend as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Sherwood of Southport. Miss Gilbert hopes to be able to resume her school duties at the Unquowa Private School, Bridgeport, this week. Paul Potcock and Horace Porter, motored to Newark, N. J., a few days ago, bringing back with them Mrs. Potcock's mother, who will spend some time as her daughter's guest at the Potcock place on Godfrey Hill. Mrs. Etta Rathbone and her daughter, Miss Mildred, accompanied by Mrs. Rathbone's son Robert, motored to Stafford one day this week and visited at the home of Mrs. Raymond Park. Mrs. Louis Blume was the recent guest of Mrs. Alice Thompson in Cambridge, afterwards going on to Canada, where she will visit friends. The colic dog owned by representative Claude W. Jones, which was caught in a steel trap and held there for twenty-four days, is said to be better, but it is very doubtful whether its injured foot can be saved. The dog is under treatment by Dr. Dow, a veterinarian, who is not known in what trap the dog was caught, but it was evidently released by the owner of the trap. The law requires that traps shall be visited every twenty-four hours. This case is a marked example of wanton and cruel negligence. Miss Hazel Broome of Hartford is at her father's home in Hopevale for a few days recovering from grip. Miss Jennie Loomis, a former resident of Hopevale, has been the guest for a few days of several of her relatives in that place. It is reported that Mrs. Mary Hartley of Hartford has bought from Mrs. Esther Stevenson, also of Hartford and formerly of Hopevale, a small place on the banks of large brook running through the Hopevale valley. The property consists of four acres of land and a dwelling house. The house is badly run down, but is being repaired and put into shape for occupancy, by Howard Rogers. Mrs. Frank Davis of Columbia spent several days visiting former neighbors in Hopevale this week. Rev. John W. Deeter's Bible class was omitted this week, as several of the members were ill, and others had conflicting engagements for the evening. It is expected that the class will meet as usual next Thursday evening. Owing to the storm on Thursday it was decided to omit the meeting of the Parish Aid of St. Peter's church, which had been scheduled to meet at the home of the president, Mrs. Anne C. Gilbert. TEN MEN ARE PICKED FOR TRIAL OF BROKERS

New Haven, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Ten men were today listed as jurors in the trial of the three officers of the defunct Parker-Smith Company after two days and a night session of the Criminal Superior Court. The court will convene an hour before the usual opening time today in an effort to complete the selection of the jury in time for the taking of testimony in the case to open at the regular session. The tenth juror was selected after 7 o'clock last night. Those now ready to take their places in the jury box are F. Cline Bradley of Branford, retired carpenter; H. D. Clark, Wallingford, retired agent; Louis A. Dietter, New Haven, salesman; Charles C. Treat, Wallingford, a gardener and caretaker; Arthur H. Davidson, of Milford; E. Jacob Bassenman, of New Haven; George H. Lockyer, of New Haven; Herbert E. Wells, Southbury, real estate dealer; Morthimer E. Pierpont, Waterbury, dairyman, and Harry Nettleton, Beacon Falls, farmer. John E. Parker, Clarence V. Smith and Paul M. Smith, defendants, are charged with conspiracy to defraud creditors of the company. They were convicted a year ago but the decisions reversed and new trials ordered by the Supreme Court of Errors.

Havana Cathedral Once Was Columbus' Tomb

The cathedral at Havana, which encloses one of the tombs of Christopher Columbus, is the most noteworthy of the many old churches in the Cuban city. The present building, originally the church of the Jesuits, was erected in 1856-1874, although the interior decorations date only from 1790-1820. In the wall of the chancel, a medallion and inscription long distinguished the tomb of Columbus, whose remains were removed to Havana from Santo Domingo, in 1796. When Spain lost Cuba in 1898, the remains were taken to the cathedral at Havana. Automobile traffic in New York is being speeded up by the construction of elevated highways above the street for fast travel. One such overhead line extends north and south along the Hudson river waterfront where cars can travel at a fast clip without interference from cross traffic.

and then played him up as advertising because he was a member of a famous and rich family; who then blazed a brief trail as tyro organizer of a chain of tabloids in which a lot of money was lost by misguided followers and who has been a sort of spoiled playboy around the edges of publication ever since, has a deal of explaining to do about that Mussolini story which has gotten Major General Smedley Butler into so much trouble.

It was Vanderbilt who set going the hit-and-run yarn about the Duce. He told it, no doubt, with a view to enhancing his own importance in the eyes of his friends, because it pictured him as riding in the car with the Italian premier. But it was very evidently a whopper or else young Vanderbilt would have no reason whatever for now falling to stick to it. If it were true and if its relator were a normal person he would welcome the chance to help out General Butler by reasserting its truth and so putting the Marine hero in the light of merely repeating a tale coming through a responsible source. When he absolutely refuses to do so or to make any comment whatever on the yarn there will be only one conclusion possible to most persons, which is that Vanderbilt made the derogatory story out of whole cloth for purposes of personal aggrandizement.

If Mr. Vanderbilt can put any other face on the affair than this it behooves him to do it now. Every minute of delay will be universally regarded as so much time spent in thinking up an alibi.

BRITISH POLITICS
 While American newspapers possessing the luxury of expert foreign editors take various views of the success of the MacDonald government in the test vote on the trades dispute bill, it is noteworthy that the views usually reflect with peculiar fidelity the social and political policies of the newspapers in which they are printed.

Almost all agree that the action of the House of Commons on the trades dispute measure, while a victory of sorts for the Labor government, will result in nothing but a postponement of a general election sure to supervene in the near future. But the result expected from that election depend almost entirely on the desires of the respective journals.

The New York Herald Tribune, for example, can't see the remotest possibility of anything but overwhelming defeat for the Labor Party in the elections. The more broadly liberal newspapers can't see anything but a sweeping victory for MacDonald.

As a matter of fact there are mighty few persons in the United States, relatively speaking, who are in any position to make even an intelligent guess at the probable outcome of a British election held within the next year or so. For our part we'd as soon try to forecast the weather for next Washington's birthday. Just the same we'd rather like to see a good, old fashioned Conservative government come into power—just to see how long it would last.

STAGE CENSORSHIP
 There is quite a fever of agitation in New York state just at present for restrictive laws on the theatre. A number of measures have been proposed and are receiving the backing of reformers, all of them involving the principle of censorship.

We have our own idea of a very good kind of law to protect the innocent and the decent from dirty plays. It is a law providing about five years in a state prison for any person who by force of arms and with malice aforethought goes out on the sidewalk, grabs a representative of the innocent and decent element and drags him or her into a theatre, and compels him or her to witness a degrading, disgusting or merely immoral play.

We are strong for protecting those who do not like smut from having smut forced upon them. However, if people have dirty minds and like a dirty play it is probably quite as useful to let them go and see it as to keep them from seeing it by censorship. They'll bootleg the smut somehow or other.

Censorship of the theatre would undoubtedly do some good by reducing the number of obscene and outrageous stage presentations. But it would be practically certain to do infinitely more harm by suppressing plays that ought by no means to be suppressed. There's no holding a censor or a group of censors, once they get their teeth set in the factor of power.

Anyhow, there is never much danger of spoiling a rotten egg.

NOT SO VALUABLE
 We wish that, for the time being, newspapers and others would quit talking about the "economic loss" resulting from common colds, automobile deaths, holidays and other items which theoretically render people idle when they would otherwise be productive. Such mathematical demonstrations are interesting and possibly valuable in periods when the well being of the world is being reckoned by its productiveness. But when multitudes are standing all day idle in the marketplace because no man will hire them, and the cheapest conceivable thing is time, we submit that such statistics become anachronistic.

But when multitudes are standing all day idle in the marketplace because no man will hire them, and the cheapest conceivable thing is time, we submit that such statistics become anachronistic.

GLOATING?
 Al Smith is generally accredited with great kindness of heart. We are beginning to suspect that it may not quite all be genuine. His expressions of sorrow for President Hoover and his bespeaking of sympathy for the chief executive in the hour of his great trials may have been in the best of taste or may not have been, according as you look at it. We may be doing the former governor and presidential aspirant an injustice but his attitude looks just a little like disguised gloating. That indicates nothing very special in the way of position on the part of the gloater. Almost anybody can gloat over not being President of the United States in these times.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Calvin Coolidge got the country all puzzled and worried over the significance of his statement in 1927 that he did not "choose to run," but his successor in the White House has been making Cal look like a child of 10.

Presidents have a way of being misunderstood or not understood at all. There was Mr. Wilson, who was elected a second time with the slogan "He kept us out of war" and declared war the month after his inauguration. And Mr. Harding, concerning whose stand on the League of Nations no one could ever get a clear idea. No one can be quite sure yet whether Coolidge really meant that he didn't want another term. And now here's Mr. Hoover with prohibition.

No president in history, it seems safe to say, was ever so completely and unanimously misunderstood as was Mr. Hoover when he commented to Congress on the Wickersham report.

Everybody Was Wrong
 Every correspondent in Washington and the entire press of the country, along with at least every one else who was heard from, reached the immediate conclusion that Mr. Hoover had gone bone dry and committed himself to preservation of the 18th amendment. Those who had felt that sooner or later the president would take some position on the important prohibition issue, including some of his closest "journalistic" friends, exclaimed "At last!"

Well, there is some question whether we were all justified in being so sure about it, but we were in for a splendid demonstration of how many folks can all be wrong about the same thing at the same time.

On the very next day, one of the White House secretaries called the newspaper boys in and informed them that the president had been misunderstood. Mr. Hoover, the secretary declares, really had an "open mind." He had only meant that he was opposed to the form of revision of the 18th amendment suggested by the Wickersham commission.

Fess Explains
 Senator Simeon Fess of Ohio, chairman of the Republican National Committee, announced in Philadelphia the same night that Hoover "is only opposed to the form of revision recommended in the Wickersham report." Fess, of course, is such a thoroughgoing dry that no one could imagine him saying anything like that without direct orders from the White House.

Of course what had seemed to prove the original interpretation beyond any shadow of doubt was the

DISORDERS OF METABOLISM
 The word "metabolism" simply means tissue change, and is the sum of all the physical and chemical processes by which the living organized cells produce and maintain. The disease of metabolism can be divided into three classes. In the first one, there is a perversion of the carbohydrate metabolism which is called diabetes. In the second, there is perversion of fat metabolism, called obesity. And in the third, there is the perversion of protein metabolism, producing gout and rheumatism. All of the diseases of this group are intimately related to one another, both chemically and clinically. Each is characterized by an inability on the part of the organism to convert sugar, fat, or albumin in a normal way.

There is such an intimate connection between the metabolic perversion in these groups that we often see combinations of diabetes and obesity, of diabetes and rheumatism, or of rheumatism and obesity, or even all three together.

In diabetes, the first important thing to do is to increase the general nutrition of the patient; secondly, to substitute protein as much as possible for the carbohydrates, and then to build up the patient's strength so that metabolism will become perfect.

In obesity, the essential thing to do is to cut down on the quantity of food. In this way the body will be encouraged to use up its fat reserve, and a reduction of weight is bound to be produced. Starches, sugars and fats should be reduced to the minimum, and the patient must be urged to use a plentiful amount of all the greens, both cooked and raw, and a limited amount of proteins, such as meat, fish, eggs, fowl, etc. Exercise should be increased, as this will assist metabolism and will harden the muscular tissues. It will destroy many of the fat cells.

Where perversion of metabolism results in rheumatism, the first important thing to do is to rid the system of all the extra toxic material which has accumulated, such as the uric acid poisons, etc. This can best be accomplished through taking a strict fruit fast. The fast should be continued for a matter of weeks rather than days if one expects to entirely free himself of the accumulated uric acid and inorganic elements that have been precipitated in certain parts of the body. After all soreness has left the tissues and joints, the diet must then be resumed very carefully, and only good combinations of foods used. One with a tendency to rheumatic diseases must not be afraid of using limited quantities of fresh foods, but must restrict himself carefully in the use of carbohydrates.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
 (Flatulences)
 Question: H. F. asks: "What is the cause of a person talking wet spells, as if the heart were fluttering, after eating a hearty meal?"
 Answer: The wet spells are no doubt due to pressure against the heart from an overloaded stomach. Excessive stomach gas always forms after a large meal, and this adds to the discomfort and interferes with the normal heart functions.

(Toasted Bread)
 Question: V. E. M. asks: "In cases of acidosis and constipation, is Melba toast superior to whole-wheat bread thoroughly toasted? Would you advise combining the morning glass of water and glass of orange juice in one drink? And why, or why not?"
 Answer: Real wholewheat bread if thoroughly toasted so as to become dehydrated is not as palatable as the Melba toast made of white bread. All toasted foods are constipating. If the wholewheat bread is not thoroughly toasted it is constipating and provides more rough bulk for the intestines. If you wish to eat breakfast a half hour after taking the orange juice it is better not to add the water, for you will then have too much liquid in your stomach and this may not empty out sufficiently before breakfast.

(Reducing Hips)
 Question: L. B. writes: "I am trying to reduce my weight. Will rolling on the floor help me to do so? What other exercises are good for large hips?"
 Answer: Rolling on the floor may help some, but the best exercise for reducing the hips is to take long walks each day, averaging about five miles daily.

report, confirmed in responsible quarters by responsible newspapermen. The president had influenced the commission to make dry recommendations instead of the wet recommendations it had planned.

The story was generally believed, but Wickersham's formal denial that the report "after it was signed." That seems equivalent to no denial at all.

But the main point is that Mr. Hoover and his friends want it understood that he still has an "open mind."

Democrats Sure to Be Wet
 And so we must simply start speculating all over again. It still seems that the Democratic party is bound to have a wet candidate and a wet platform in 1932 and the belief that Hoover would have a hard time getting himself re-nominated by his own party is not as strong as it was.

One question now raised is whether someone can think up some kind of a revision of the 18th amendment which will attract Hoover's support or whether Hoover won't think up something himself. Otherwise, one assumes that the president's "open minded" status will remain unchanged.

Fess is quoted as expressing assurance that Hoover wouldn't oppose a form of revision which didn't place the responsibility of decision on Congress. Well, the Constitution says that two-thirds of the states can make Congress call a convention for the purpose of proposing

 Answer: The wet spells are no doubt due to pressure against the heart from an overloaded stomach. Excessive stomach gas always forms after a large meal, and this adds to the discomfort and interferes with the normal heart functions.

(Toasted Bread)
 Question: V. E. M. asks: "In cases of acidosis and constipation, is Melba toast superior to whole-wheat bread thoroughly toasted? Would you advise combining the morning glass of water and glass of orange juice in one drink? And why, or why not?"
 Answer: Real wholewheat bread if thoroughly toasted so as to become dehydrated is not as palatable as the Melba toast made of white bread. All toasted foods are constipating. If the wholewheat bread is not thoroughly toasted it is constipating and provides more rough bulk for the intestines. If you wish to eat breakfast a half hour after taking the orange juice it is better not to add the water, for you will then have too much liquid in your stomach and this may not empty out sufficiently before breakfast.

(Reducing Hips)
 Question: L. B. writes: "I am trying to reduce my weight. Will rolling on the floor help me to do so? What other exercises are good for large hips?"
 Answer: Rolling on the floor may help some, but the best exercise for reducing the hips is to take long walks each day, averaging about five miles daily.

amendments. Such amendments would have to be ratified by three-fourths of the states. If Fess is correct, it would seem as if Hoover might sooner or later favor revision through initiative of the states, but let's not go misinterpreting anyone.

DISCOVERY
 (From The Column)
 I sang a little song. You said
 'Twas much too sad,
 And begged me for a gayer one
 'To make you glad.
 So, laughingly, to suit your mood,
 I touched the strings
 And tore from them all vestige of Unhappy things.

Now you are gone I sometimes sing
 Both melodies,
 I weep or smile with each again.
 None knows—none sees.
 And you?... I heard you humming
 I passed you by
 It was the wistful song... the one
 Which made you... sigh!
 —Grace Starbuck.

DANCE FOR AWKWARD FEET
 (From Troubadour)
 Here where the hills are rocking in the rain
 Your awkward feet may find their proper tune
 Setting their measure to the shrill refrain
 Of ragged hilltops beating on the moon.
 You were not made for dancing
 Within walls
 Where rose lights cast shadows on your faces
 But in the shadow of the storm
 there falls
 Upon your graceful limbs a sort of grace.

Out here you are beyond the bounds
 of man.
 We shall enjoy this wet and windy
 hour
 Watching those Bacchanals Olympian
 Flung steel bracelets for a thunder shower.
 I think that we shall find the tempting good Raining like sudden laughter in this wood.
 —Lee Andrew Weber.

THE THIRTEENTH STATION
 The body of Jesus is laid in the arms of His Mother.
 (From The Line Book)
 My son. Not long ago, I held you, so,
 A little boy, then, sleepy-tired from play.
 And in the sunset of the closing day
 I saw a deeper red; tried not to know
 Too well its meaning. Cool, against my cheek,
 Your hair, rain-ringed, hid all my tears—
 My tears—but not my foolish mother-fears
 That made me hold you closer still and seek
 Some newer prayer; some stranger, stronger power
 For comfort. Even though I closed
 my eyes
 Against the awful splendor of the skies,
 I only saw the clearer this dread
 hour.

What need have you for tears?
 Your work is done.
 I weep for him who was my only son.
 —Boy Blue.

AND EVER SINCE
 (From Set to My Hand)
 My little soul fell loath to leave,
 It was so timid of the night,
 And while it trembled on the brink
 My breath arose and stayed its flight.
 And ever since, my little soul,
 Instead of jubilant and gay,
 Can only sigh, and what it thinks,
 No one has heard it say.
 —Ruth Irving Connor.

HELEN, THE MELANCHOLY QUEEN
 (From The N. Y. Herald-Tribune)
 Azure, it is I, from the caves of death returning
 To hear sonorous rhythms on the ledges!
 To watch quick galleys outlined in the morning
 Lift from the gloom on oars with golden edges!
 My desolate hands now call the em-perors
 Whose salt-gray beards amuse my sober fingers...
 I wept... And each his gloomy triumph roars,
 And at the stern of his boat the furrow lingers.

I hear the resonant conchs and trumpet calls
 Measuring the flash of the oars,
 their level falls;
 The pure chant of the weaving rowers charms
 The tumult; and, heroic at the prow,
 The gods, with old smiles and with spray-splashed brows,
 Reach out to me their generous sculptured arms.

PAYMENT
 (From Poetry)
 The earth asks reprisal. For all you take
 Of wind and water, hills against the sky,
 You must pay with a subtle, poignant ache
 Before too many years have drifted by.

And even the way of birds that slant their flight
 Across the blue infinitude of space
 Will stick like an arrow in your heart some night.
 Pain is the price of loveliness and
 grace.

IN NEW YORK
 New York, Jan. 31.—Something like the medieval strongholds of old, with modern improvements, are the newer strong boxes of Manhattan, where tens of thousands store their baubles and banks store their gold.

So perfect in defense are these subterranean fortresses of wealth, that no fear of robbers is held. The most scientific Raffles could not so much as crack a corner of their adamant surface.

Today, these armored treasures are built against the possibility of some far-future marauder, who would go to his death sacking the city; or against some revolutionist of far-away times who would meet a similar fate. In one place, a veritable Niagara would pour down upon anyone who dared intrude upon the property of others.

The government's stronghold of gold has remained for years an eerie crypt, far beneath the city's surface where the mere dropping of a couple of pins might bring guards down upon the intruder.

And now comes the Irving Trust, in lower Wall street, where every device of melodramatic character can be found. A mere visit is as eerie as a mystery melodrama.

To begin with, the echoing voice of a guide informs you that you are 30 feet below the city's water level in three sides of a four-walled building. This means that, were anyone to tamper with the wall surface, part of a river and an ocean would come gushing in.

The only approach, then, must come from a front entrance. This wall is made of a process known as "steel-crete," which is a combination of concrete and metal, and so constructed that it is also an automatic signal system. Its metal parts set off a series of alarms—sounded by bells and shrieking whistles. Such a disturbance would be raised that the soundest sleeping cop would be roused.

In addition there is a copperized plating and so arranged that no criminal's torch could affect its surface. The doors are more than 30 inches in thickness and weigh tons. They are opened by a series of time locks, plus an intricate number of bolts. Getting in a door of this sort is infinitely more difficult than trying to find a keyhole after a given number of speakeasy visits. Alarms are everywhere.

Furthermore, the new radio technique—so say nothing of the talking pictures—has been applied with uncanny effect. A system of highly sensitive microphones has been installed and these pick up a mere footfall until it sounds like a battle scene.

This is but one of the newer metropolitan methods of defending a city's wealth against marauders. No army is required; for the mechanism is such that an alarm would spread to scores in a fraction of a second.

And deviating suddenly from the last word in modernity to an echo of grandfather's time—there still exists in the upper reaches of New York a number of speakeasy vistas. Heaven alone knows who may use bootjacks in this generation, but seemingly there must be enough old-timers left to make the business worth while.

Queer Twists In Day's News

New York.—When the squaws squawk the braves behave, and so, concludes Clarence Schultz, it looks as if the last citadel of masculinity has fallen. Mr. Schultz is manager of a band of 21 Sioux who have returned from Germany, where they served in a circus. He has learned a secret. When the heap big Indians misbehave just tell their wives.

Palm Beach.—Snow white linen Tuxedos are the thing for men at night social functions. Howard Major, of New York, got the style. Everything is like the Tuxedo ensemble except in color and material and lack of a waist-coat. Instead there is a wide silk belt.

Ballynah, Irish Free State.—An Irish David Harny, this is about. He bought a horse at a fair. He couldn't find the owner to pay him. So he turned the animal loose, reckoning on a trek home. The dope was straight. The dealer followed the horse in an automobile 17 miles. Then the seller was so impressed that he refused to go through with the deal.

Rome.—A new school of Oriental and Slav languages has been named in honor of Queen Elena, herself a Slav, the daughter of the late King Peter of Montenegro and mother of Bulgaria's new queen, Sofia, Bulgaria. The most pleasing gift of King Boris on his 37th birthday has been from his bride. It is a sweater she knitted on a sick bed. She has influenza.

Sidi-Bel-Abbes, Algeria.—German's new committee do the exact of the effectiveness of the French Foreign Legion.
 London.—Sir Harry Lauder's latest song is "Pin Your Faith On the Motherland." The words were written by J. Howie Milligan when an officer of the British steamship Gramplan, which carried American troops to France and assisted in the rescue of some torpedoes American soldiers.

Munich, Germany.—Thomas Mann, author, who once won a Nobel prize, writes in longhand. He is busy daily at home from 9 a. m. to mid-afternoon. When he travels he puts unfinished manuscripts in a safe deposit vault.
 Wells-on-Sea, England.—The worm is turning, about 10,000 of him weekly. The warm moist earth here provide a lot of bait for fishing. Boxes are shipped daily to other parts of England.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

SCHUBERT'S BIRTH
 On Jan. 31, 1797, Franz Schubert, a famous Austrian composer, was born at Vienna the son of a poor schoolmaster.

At 13 Franz became a singer in the court choir and later leading violinist in the school band. At 14 he began writing songs and at 18 his supreme gift of lyric melody was revealed in "The Erlking," one of the world's most dramatic songs, written by him in a single day.

His brief life, spent chiefly in the drudgery of teaching, was harassed by financial embarrassment and embittered by the slow recognition accorded his works. Schubert's fame rests upon his songs, some 600 in number.

"Of the modern song," writes a critic, "Schubert is not only the originator, but, to this very day, the unsurpassed master.... Had Schubert written nothing but these songs he would still be among the immortals."

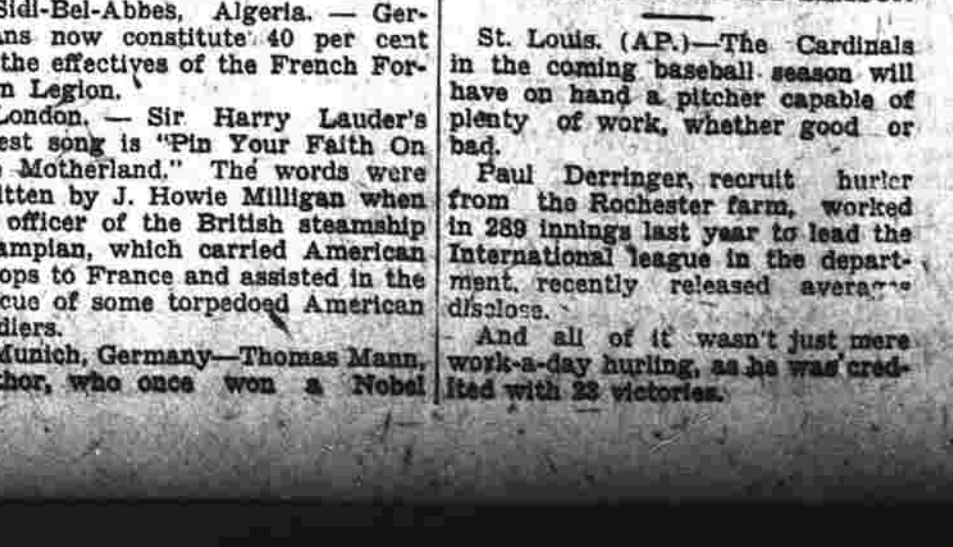

CARDINAL RECRUIT WORKS
 289 INNINGS LAST SEASON

St. Louis, (AP)—The Cardinals in the coming baseball season will have on hand a pitcher capable of plenty of work, whether good or bad.

Paul Derringer, recruit hurler from the Rochester farm, worked in 289 innings last year to lead the International League in the department, recently released average.

And all of it wasn't just mere work-a-day hurling, as he was credited with 22 victories.

Girl Who 'Flunked' Film Chance Leaps Back Into Clara Bow's Role

New York.—(AP)—Twice has 20-year-old Sylvia Sidney stormed the citadels of Hollywood, and her second attempt has brought stardom.

With her black eyes, tearful voice and voluptuous figure she has replaced the original "It" girl, Clara Bow, to co-star with Gary Cooper in his new picture.

A graduate of the Theater Guild school of acting, Miss Sidney won her first Broadway honors at the age of 16, when she was praised for her performance in "Crime."

The deep, intense voice and stage performance of this young girl, daughter of a New York dentist, established her then as one of the theater's most sought-after ingenues.

Her playing in "Gods of the Lightning" was lauded by critics as one of the finest of the season, and it brought her first movie contract.

Off she went to Hollywood, but not for long, and she came back to the stage. She played the lead in "Cross Roads," and then was cast for the starring role in "Bad Girl," the play based on Vina Delmar's novel.

The movie magnates were so impressed by her performance they decided that perhaps they had made a mistake the first time. So they signed Miss Sidney again, and she arrived in the studio just in time to take the throne vacated by Miss Bow.

Although she has been on the stage only four years, she has played almost continuously during that time. Even her "vacations" are usually spent in Denver, where she has been guest star with a stock company.

She and her mother look almost exactly alike, and they are always together. She speaks French well, and is a diligent student of French literature. She often gives teas for her friends, but seldom grants "dates."

Four years after she had lost her first contract in motion pictures, Sylvia Sidney, 20, got another chance and it landed her in a role just taken away from Clara Bow.

Scientists Shy On Term 'Discovery' Because Findings Come So Gradually

Pasadena, Cal.—(AP)—"Discovery" is one word about which the world's greatest scientists are quite timid.

Dr. Robert A. Millikan, whose cosmic ray discussions are world-famous, explains why this is so.

"Since the days of Greek mythology," he says, "very few 'discoveries' have sprung full-grown out of the brain of any one man."

The unfolding of the cosmic ray is regarded by many scientists as one of the major keys to a new understanding of existence.

The scientific world is seeking to ascertain their source. Dr. Millikan having declared this to be far beyond the Milky Way.

Although scientists everywhere are on the verge of revelations, their abhorrence of the term "discovery" is pronounced.

Their fear that the public may give undue credit to those who make these stirring announcements goes back to the method by which the "discoveries" are made.

As an illustration, Dr. Millikan points out that the cosmic ray is a beautiful illustration of the slow step-by-step process by which most advances in science are made, each experimenter building on the past, but pushing on, if he is fortunate, a little beyond where his predecessors had gone, until presently the world finds itself in the full glory of a new conception of nature without having been conscious of any particular instance which brought the dawn.

In 1903 these rays were brought to light by McLennan, Rutherford and collaborators. Gockel, a Swiss, developed further facts about them in 1910, and Millikan and Bowen in 1922.

Noted Britons Bare Freak Talents As Churchill Fries First 'Hot Dog'

London.—(AP)—Frying "hot dogs" has been added to Winston Churchill's accomplishments.

Previously he had scored as brick layer, newspaperman and hat expert—in addition to his claims to fame as soldier and statesman.

His boast that he had fried a sausage drew much ridicule from fellow members of parliament and called attention again to David Lloyd George's penchant for giving free movie shows of the American wild west type.

From this revelation of talents came these other facts:

Fred Montagu, under-secretary for air in the British cabinet, is a clever conjurer, and has refused offers to go on the stage and pull rabbits out of hats.

Robert W. Smith, conservative member from Aberdeen, likes to design clothes and once draped a stunning evening gown for a niece whose dress had been delayed in arriving from London.

William Graham, president of the British Board of Trade, has been known to stand in the aisles and quote reams of statistics from memory, but his hobby in that connection is football records.

J. S. Clarke, socialist from Maryhill, used to be an animal trainer in a circus and still likes to visit snakes and lions in their dens.

Arthur Shephard, socialist from Darlington, likes to pat around with tramps and is reputed to know most of England's regular hoboes by their monickers.

HE GETS PAID FOR LOAFING

That's One of Many Things Ralf Harold, Stage Recruit, Can't Understand About Talkies.

BY DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Writer

Hollywood, Jan. 31.—What's it all about?

That's what Ralf Harold, screen actor, would like to know. Ralf has been in this cinema world for about a year and a half and he still is going around in a bewildered state of mind trying to figure out the why's and wherefores of what goes on out here.

It's not that this actor has any "beef"—not as long as his huge salary check continues to come in every week. But he would gladly sign over several of those checks to anyone who could tell him why this business is run the way it is. And he's not alone in that feeling, either. There are a number of persons in the film village who would do the same thing. In fact nobody out here knows quite why anything is done—not even those who issue the orders.

Ralf Harold

Gets Paid For Loafing

An example of one of the things Harold can't understand is why he spends so much time doing nothing and gets paid for it. He often has weeks between pictures during which time he does absolutely nothing. Yet executives at the Radio Pictures studio, where he is under an entirely new type of character to the silver screen—that of a gentlemanly villain. You saw him as such in "Dixiana," that is, if you saw that film, and will see him as another high class crook in "Hook, Line and Sinker," the new Wheeler-Woolsey comedy.

On Stage 12 Years

Harold's entrance into Hollywood's film racket was made under rather unfavorable circumstances. Winding up his 12-year stage career with one of the leading roles in "The Front Page" here he received 12 distinct offers to make pictures. But due to the Equity strike then on he was unable to accept any of them and spent a number of weeks waiting the producers and Equity to come to some agreement so that he as well as many others could get back to work again. And the day after Equity accepted its defeat he started work in "Officer O'Brien" at Pathe.

Ralf is a thoroughly finished actor—and should be in view of the fact that he appeared in 490 different plays before the movie gold lured him away from the footlights. Oh, he made a couple of pictures back in the old silent days but his celluloid career really didn't start until after the talkies took possession of Hollywood.

NEW AIRWAY MAPS TO COVER NATION AS NAVIGATION AID

Washington, (AP)—The first of a series of 92 maps of the nation especially designed for air navigation has been completed by the federal government.

Covering an area of 50,337 square miles, the map represents, on a scale of an inch to eight miles, a slice of territory in upper Illinois and Indiana and parts of Ohio and Michigan that measures 329 miles from east to west and 153 miles from north to south.

The complete series, planned by the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce and carried on by the coast and geodetic survey, will map the entire area within the boundaries of the United States.

They will indicate topographic features and aids to air navigation, including locations of airports and landing fields, routes of the regular airways, location of beacon lights, radio range beacon courses, and radio communication stations.

Floors Rest On 'Bed' Of Springs To Keep Noises From CBS Studios

Chicago, (AP)—Rooms mounted on springs serve to keep CBS broadcasts here "clean" of the noises and vibrations of the outside world.

In the new studios there are also dangle ropes and things, jarring a bit against the artistic decorative effect of the walls and ceilings, but they represent the clash of utility with beauty—and utility triumphs in a studio.

The walls, floors and doors of each studio rest on springs which rest upon the real wall or floor, with a space between. The doors are three-layer in structure, each layer on springs to guard against vibrations.

Air from the ventilating system passes through a "silencer" before enters the studios, so there will be no hissing through the "mike." Three layers of plate glass, of varied thickness, separate the control rooms from the studios.

The ropes—there are eight of them, all substantial—lead from cleats, through ceiling pulleys and into two traveling microphones. They look out of place against the artistic background. "But, after all," says H. Leslie Atlas, district manager in charge of the Chicago area, "a radio studio is a workshop. Perfect acoustics and perfect mechanical equipment come first."

The ropes, Atlas says, were chosen as the means of microphone placement after every possible method was tried.

railroads, federal and state highways electric power lines and magnetic variations.

On the back of the maps will be printed photographs or sketches of airports and landing fields to assist in identification. The first of the series covers Chicago and vicinity.

Plant Scientist and Wife Locate "Daddy" of Plants

Mrs. Fenton is shown here preparing a meal in their camp in the Canadian Rockies, while Dr. Fenton, left, is shown examining a sample of fossil-bearing rock.

Buffalo, N. Y.—High up in the Selkirk Mountains of British Columbia, in the Nakima Caves, Dr. and Mrs. Carroll Lane Fenton, paleontologists of this city, found what is thought to be the oldest fossil plants known to science.

These plants, forerunners of all present-day fruits, grains and vegetables, are algae, and are believed to be about a billion and a quarter years old. They grew in a shallow sea that once covered the entire western part of the North American continent, according to the Fentons. They were found on the walls of the caves.

Dr. and Mrs. Carroll headed an expedition into the mountainous wilds of British Columbia to explore the caves, which were reached after an arduous climb over the mountains.

The caves are formed by a series of caverns up in the Selkirks, in a very unusual way. Mammoth Cave and other great caves of the Mississippi Valley were formed by underground rivers that slowly dissolved away the gypsum and limestone that underlie the region, leaving the caverns.

But the caves in the Canadian Rockies were formed millions of years earlier, by earthquakes that accompanied the uplift of the Selkirk Mountains. These earthquakes were of far greater intensity than any that have jarred the earth's surface since man wrote history, Dr. Fenton explains.

Millions of years after the earth convulsions that formed them, the caverns were enlarged by action of rivers that rushed down from the great glaciers. Boulders that were brought down by these glacial torrents were found 400 feet underground in the caves.

Dr. and Mrs. Fenton are both paleontologists. Mrs. Fenton accompanies her husband on all his field collecting trips, and has been marooned for days with him in a tiny tent far above the snow line.

The billion and a quarter-year-old seaweed that the Fentons found this year in Nakima Cave is similar to fossil plants that they found a year ago in Glacier National Park, Montana.

There they discovered it on a

Hypnotism Fails As Memory Aid For Some People

Madison, Wis.—(AP)—Popular belief that hypnotism helps a person to remember what has been forgotten fails to stand test.

It all depends upon who is hypnotized. Some persons recall more when in a trance than when awake, others remember less, and the average memory is about equal.

The tests show hypnotism is unlikely to prove an open sesame to recalling a lost past. They were made at the University of Wisconsin under direction of Miss Betty Huse, a research student, and are now published for the first time.

Eight Wisconsin students, trained to be hypnotized easily, furnished the comparisons. Certain nonsense subjects were taught to them while awake and later recalled while awake.

Similarly nonsense subjects were taught and recalled while hypnotized. Miss Huse found that in the trance state the average recall was better than when awake.

While hypnotized, the students had some memory of what they had learned while awake. But when awake their memories seemed not to be helped by what had happened during hypnosis.

RADIO OPERATOR HERO ELECTROCUTED AT WORK

Oklahoma City, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Clifford T. Paulson, 24, radio operator credited with saving many lives when the steamer San Juan sank in a collision off the Pacific coast, August 3, 1929, was electrocuted while working at the radio transmitting set of the Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., here during the night.

Paulson, for some months employed by the air lines as radio operator at the Municipal Airport station here, sent the S. O. S. from the San Juan after it had collided with the Standard Oil tanker Todd, 18 miles off Pigeon Point.

Seventy lives were lost in the collision but many were saved because Paulson stayed with his instrument until the San Juan went down.

His body was found this morning by R. C. Huxford, relief operator, lying on the floor near the radio set. His hands had been badly burned by 2,000 volts of electricity.

NEW ARTIST APPEARS

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Frau Jack von Reppert Bismarck, who at 22 has Berlin art circles stirred to enthusiasm, is to be introduced to America February 10 with an exhibition of paintings at the Balzac galleries.

Frau Bismarck began painting bible illustrations when she was seven years old. At 13 she entered the Berlin Academy as its youngest pupil and by the time she was 15 was engaging the serious attention of German critics.

The first showing of her work was made in Berlin last fall at about the time American magazines began to publish her paintings.

Her introduction here will be with 35 canvasses devoted mostly to figures of children and young girls. There also will be a few self-portraits and landscapes and some still life.

REDS MUST SPEED UP

Moscow, Jan. 31.—(AP)—G. D. Ordjonikidze, president of the Supreme Economic Council, today told a conference of Soviet industrial engineers that 1931 is the most important year thus far in the five-year plan for industrialization of the Soviet Union.

During this year, he said, there must be produced 83,500,000 tons of coal, 25,500,000 tons of oil, 8,000,000 tons of pig iron and agricultural machinery worth about $410,000,000 must be purchased. To complete such a tremendous program he told the 728 delegates, every worker must exert his greatest efforts whether he be Bolshevik or not.

MORE EARTHQUAKES

Tirana, Albania, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Further earthquakes shaking the Koritza area today destroyed five houses in the village of Kolauac.

A final survey in Koritza revealed 70 buildings razed to the ground, with 3,000 buildings made uninhabitable in the quakes of last Wednesday.

Because of the town's high altitude and the advance winter season the population is suffering bitterly with the cold. Barracks are being erected as rapidly as possible and food, fuel and medical aid are being brought refugees.

TO TRY BISHOP

Washington, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is due to face 12 fellow clergymen here next Tuesday to answer charges filed against him by four traveling elders of the church.

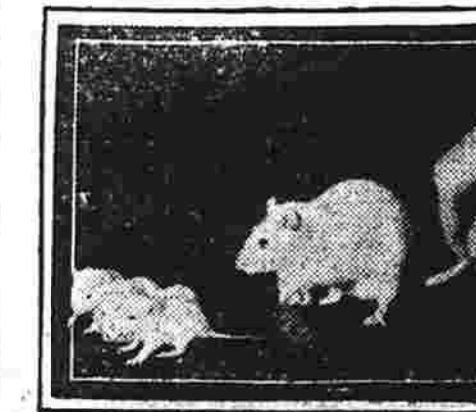

The hearings before which the Bishop will appear are in the nature of an investigation. "If two thirds of the twelve clergymen find that the charges have weight, Cannon will be suspended and brought to trial before general conference of the church in 1934."

Accusations against the temperance leader were filed September 20 by Dr. F. J. Prettyman, of Baltimore; Dr. I. P. Martin, of Abingdon, Va.; and Doctors C. J. Harrell and J. T. Martin, both of Richmond. Their nature has never been disclosed.

She Afraid? Aw, Rats!

One of the advantages about a college education is that it frees a girl of her fear of rats—and if you don't believe it, look at this photo of Miss Edith Eddy, popular co-ed at the College of Puget Sound, Tacoma, Wash. Miss Eddy is shown with a rat family that is helping her through college; that is, she has a job raising them, and gets paid for it, too. You'll notice, if you look closely, that she keeps a

Art Teacher Tells Of Her Life Work

Miss Madeline Speiss Says Children Nowadays Are Very Enthusiastic Over the Subject — Various Courses Offered In Schools and All Classes Are Well Attended.

TRAINING in the arts and handicraft is a comparatively recent addition to the modern scheme of education. Not so many years ago the arts and allied branches were but modestly studied in the average country and small city school. True, the teachers of twenty or thirty years ago taught drawing—very crudely in comparison to present day art—with but scant credits given towards the year's work. Still, there are many today who are following an artistic career with a certain degree of pride in their art beginnings in a country or village schoolroom.

Civilization has succeeded in shutting out the beauties of forests, fields and streams from the intimate gaze of the city-bred scholar, walled in by chasms of stone, brick and steel. Natural scenic splendors are being pushed farther back into the country until the horizon of the youth of today is one grand row of construction blocks by day and dazzling lights by night. In the midst of noise, and harsh unreality the modern child has found reality in the art studies of the modern school.

Part of Regular Course

The schools are supplying this deficiency today in the form of all the arts—drawing, painting and sculpture—through which the student can express natural desires and originality that cannot be supplied by any other course of studies in the school curriculum. The art courses are part of the regular courses established in Connecticut schools.

Creative art is a beautiful thing, through art a child can give a limited expression to an heritage, perhaps ages old.

In the schoolrooms of Connecticut, pupils are privileged to model with their own hands or paint the forests, flowers and life of home or foreign lands, much of which they may never see in reality. The child is taken abroad on a Magic Carpet, as it were, to alien lands where life and the strange glimpses of unusual scenes are spread before them in models of their own making. Art is an important adjunct to the present educational system and is being enlarged and extended throughout the school system of America.

NATURAL ABILITIES DEVELOPED BY STUDY

ALTHOUGH creative art is considered an heritage, many children of the present-day schools have so diligently developed their natural abilities through the grades that they emerge at the completion of the scholastic period well advanced in art subjects. Many a child has made the elementary art studies the basis of his life's work.

There is no one better qualified in Manchester to speak on the subject of art in the schools than Madeline M. Speiss of 28 West Center Street, art teacher in the William H. Hall High School, West Hartford. Miss Speiss is the daughter of another nature lover, Mathias Speiss, author of Manchester's History and an authority on the life, habits and history of the early American.

Loves the Outdoors

Miss Speiss reflects this love of the out-of-doors so definitely expressed in the life of her father. As a girl in the Ninth District Schools she enjoyed the rare privilege of home instruction in primitive arts that her father knows so well. Her studies were augmented by stories, pictures and historical realisms that have shaped her life to a certain extent along artistic lines.

Graduating from the Manchester High School in the class of 1921, Miss Speiss entered the Cooper Institute, New York, and later attended summer courses at Columbia University, Yale and the Hartford Art School with a definite objective in view—to become an art instructor.

Shortly after her studies were completed, she toured the western part of the United States to view this country's natural beauty spots. On her return she accepted a position as art teacher in the Windsor school. After a season traveling from school to school in all kinds of weather she became teacher of art in the William H. Hall High School in West Hartford, which position she has held for the past four years.

SOAP SCULPTURE IS VERY POPULAR

"I have been teaching art in the William H. Hall High School in West Hartford for the past four years," said Miss Speiss, interviewed at her home, 28 West Center

LEFT-HANDED artists are seldom found in the schools today according to Miss Madeline M. Speiss, art instructor in the William H. Hall High School of West Hartford.

"In the past four years I do not remember a single left-handed art student," said Miss Speiss. "I am teaching 300 students this year—all of them right handed. There may be left-handed artists but they are the exception to the rule."

street. "There are nearly 300 students in the school from the seventh grade to High School seniors who take art as part of their regular studies. The pupils are very responsive to art whether it is expressed in posters, designing, pottery, water colors or oils and it is not unusual to see them steal away from other studies to commune with their choice of school work.

"Our pupils have won 15 prizes for Humana Society posters and at the present time many students are competing in a Nationally known pencil contest requiring originality and designing ability of high order.

Soap Sculpture

"One of the latest innovations along art lines," continued Miss Speiss, "and one branch that is being welcomed more and more, is soap-sculpture. Originality and talent is being expressed simply and beautifully today in cakes of soap. The pupils love this work and make many wonderful objects from models and pictures with nothing but a cake of soap as raw material and a pen knife with which to work.

A large collection of poster work and several statuettes made from cakes of soap were exhibited, showing a marked originality in designing and a careful observance of detail that is not apparent in other student endeavors. An Indian head, feathered and beaded with tribal regalia showed little of the original humbleness and inartistic propensities of the cake of washing soap. A Grecian head, placid of feature, with but a single stray wisp of hair to distinguish the almost masculine face as belonging to a maid, who in life might have inspired this very art, lay in its bed of cotton, a thing of beauty, the creation of a child.

Apparently, art is not difficult. Art is all about us and if a child can tell a story, paint a moonrise and express themselves in a number of ways that will enlighten, and satisfy certain longings that otherwise would not be expressed in youth, he has accomplished its real objective.

PUPILS LOOK FORWARD TO ART EXHIBITION

"WE HAVE a fine Art Club in the West Hartford High School," said Miss Speiss.

"During the summer the club plans trips out into the country and to the shore points to sketch and paint. We have many pleasant trips which are highly instructive. The membership of the Art Club is increasing each year."

The West Hartford High School is planning for a wonderful exhibition next week, showing the different art subjects studied. The pupils are so enthusiastic over the coming exhibition that they are spending their savings freely in an effort to produce the most unique and accurately defined art objects possible. One youngster spent his total savings, $10 on a model of an Indian, war headdress and considered the money well spent.

Every year more and more students take up art in view of the fact that credits are less than in other school subjects. The course comprises designing, crayon work, poster designing, pottery, sculpture, water color, and oil painting. Many of the art students continue their studies after graduation in commercial art schools in New York and other cities.

ARTS CLUB BALL FOR SMART SET

Washington Society To Frolic Monday Evening At Most Novel Affair.

Washington, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The Smart Set of Washington will frolic Monday night with artists, musicians, literary folks and officials when the Arts Club gives its big, spectacular annual ball at the Willard.

The Ball Boheme has come to be looked upon as the capital's most brilliant of many brilliant balls, and it is almost the only large event of the kind where masking is forbidden and fancy dress is obligatory. A dazzling scene awaits the opening of "The Court of King Looney," on the moon, with the wildest play of fancy taking place in both the decorations of the room which will be gaily terrestrial and celestial, while King Looney and his silver queen and her ladies-in-waiting will descend from their heights in spectacular manner to the ball room floor.

It was Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose of Kansas City, Washington and Gloucester, Massachusetts, who conceived the idea of celebrating the seventy-first birthday anniversary of Vice President Charles Curtis. He and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Carr, the Ambassador of Turkey, Mr. Ahmet Muhtar, and other celebrities attended and saw one of the most elaborate birthday cakes ever made in the capital. The name of the vice president, the date of his birth, the capital where he presides, an open book denoting knowledge and a lot of other things were used in the decoration.

Thursday Mrs. Hoover was the guest of Mrs. Hughes, wife of the chief justice, at a luncheon, and today the Chief Justice and Mrs. Hughes give their annual supreme court dinner.

Mrs. Hoover was accompanied by quite a little group of White House guests when she attended Mrs. Townsend's morning musicale Wednesday, taking with her Mrs. Stark McMillen, Mrs. Franch Strother and Miss Sue Dyer of California, who arrived a few days ago for a little visit with Mrs. Hoover.

While various reasons have been given for the members of the House who failed to attend the reception given by the President and Mrs. Hoover in their honor Thursday night, the most important were previously accepted invitations to various dinner parties.

Representative Clarence P. Kahn of California, for one, was the guest at dinner of the Ambassador of Japan and Mme. Debuchi. The Ambassador of Turkey, Ahmet Muhtar, and Senator and Mrs. Hiram Bingham were also present.

Next week the President and Mrs. Hoover will give the annual dinner in honor of the Speaker and Mrs. Ladd, and the Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley.

TRAIN FARES REDUCED

St. Louis, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The cost of train riding goes down nearly one half in many parts of the southwest at midnight tonight.

A fare of two cents a mile will be in effect on the Frisco Lines, which operate in nine southwestern states and on several other railroads between points where they compete with the Frisco. The reduced fare applies only to chair cars and coaches. The present rate is 3.6 cents a mile.

Officials of the Frisco Lines called the reduction "the railroad's contribution toward bringing business improvement."

Great competition has been making bus operators on the Frisco's earnings of late and this reduction was asked for by the company.

By Their Mannerisms You Shall Know Them

BY DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Writer

Hollywood, Jan. 31.—Although they are unconscious of it, most of the actors and actresses in this racket have certain mannerisms which have crept into their work to such an extent that the players often become stamped by these gestures.

When a newcomer makes his appearance on the screen you often hear it said that he is another Gilbert, Barrymore, Barthelme, Chevalier or any one of a dozen others. And as a rule it's not so much that the newcomer resembles the already famous person as it is that he has certain little mannerisms that are similar. The best example of this was seen in the recent appearance of Marlene Dietrich, noted German actress, in "Morocco". All Hollywood hailed the arrival of a new Greta Garbo. Yet it wasn't so much that Miss Dietrich resembled Greta that she attracted attention. She had certain mannerisms that were similar to those of the great Garbo while in reality she is a definite personality within herself.

How many of these little gestures have you noticed among your favorite stars? Here are a few which we have noted:

Marie Dressler always pushes her hat back on her head.

Marion Davies has a habit of sitting on the arm of a chair or a table and swinging her feet in a boyish manner.

Wallace Beery never fails to rub his nose when he is thinking.

Lewis Stone purses his lips together and raises his eyebrows simultaneously.

John Gilbert's pet mannerism is rising on the balls of his feet with a rocking motion while he talks.

Norma Shearer's left hand will almost invariably find its way to her hip when she isn't using it.

Joan Crawford sticks her chin way up in the air, often for no apparent reason.

William Haines has a habit of touching his handkerchief to his lips.

Robert Montgomery continually presses his fingers together with the tips upward.

Ramon Novarro throws his arms about whenever he becomes excited.

All of these gestures are movements which do not come under the heading of direction. They are the things players do without being told to. And very often they go unnoticed by the director as well as the players themselves.

The only apparent difference between the 11 men on the Wickersham committee and the 11 men on a football team is that one group knows how to handle the highballs.

LINEN POPULAR AT PALM BEACH

Final Week In January Usually Warm In Florida; Novel Fete.

Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 31.—(AP)—the final week in January finds the Palm Beach weather man dealing out days that have the temperature of May. Florists are providing lilies to make the picture complete.

As the season advances cotton and linen fabrics are becoming increasingly popular. Afternoon gowns of linen lace are enjoying a vogue while many interesting versions of eyelet, embroidery are noted. The Hon. Joan Pearson, daughter of Viscountess Cowdray of London, wears a linen jacket suit in blue and white scarf collar. Her white felt hat has a wide upturned brim.

A novel affair of the week was the "living" backgammon party with which Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hall, of Chicago and Detroit, entertained at their villa. The affair began with a pajama breakfast. The backgammon board was represented by a canvas 50 feet square and correctly painted. The guest were "men." Lewis M. Ansley, backgammon lecturer, explained the moves. Mrs. Walter Giblin and Harry L. Thomas, Chicago, picked the opposing teams and threw the dice. The game with its human pawns, clad in colorful pajamas, proceeded merrily through the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton left on Tuesday for a month's sojourn at their plantation in South Carolina. On Monday afternoon they entertained 100 prominent members of the cottage colony with a golf tournament at their private short course.

Society is extending a cordial welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dillman of Detroit who have opened their sumptuous ocean front villa, Play Rienta.

On Saturday afternoon of this week, Mr. and Mrs. Dillman are entertaining with a musicale, having the New York string quartet as artists. Guests include Mr. and Mrs. Henry Seligman, New York; Mr. and Mrs. George McKinlock, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Charlton Yarnall, Devon, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Bull, Springfield, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. George A. J. Byrne, Beverly Farms, Mass.

One of the largest affairs of the week was the recital given on Thursday by the New York string quartet at Edgewood, the Palm Beach home of the Sydney Homers (Madame Louise Homer), Miss Katherine Homer joined the group for a special number written by Sydney Homer.

"NOW WE ARE THREE!"

KATHERINE AND BILL—what fun it is to know them! They seem to get so much out of living. You met them just a little over a year ago—the week before they were married. Ten days later it gave you a pleasant glow of anticipation to receive the trim card telling you when they'd be "at home."

And today you got another card, headed "Now we are three!" Bill's signature comes first, then Katherine's, and then—the guided chubby scrawl of the newcomer, Jeremy.

You happen to know that although he is in line for an important promotion, Bill's present salary isn't large. Most other young couples would consider themselves "up against it" if they had to manage on so little. Yet Katherine and Bill maintain a standard of living that is the admiration of all their friends.

You know how they do it, for Katherine has told you. They budget all expenditures. And when they decide a purchase is to be made, whether it is a new shade for the reading lamp, or a suit for Bill, or shoes for Katherine, they study the advertisements until they find just what they want for the price they can pay. Careful, budgeted buying of consistently advertised merchandise enables them to get the most out of their dollars.

It's a wise baby that picks parents like these.

Take advantage of the advertisements in this paper. They are your guide to profitable buying.

Manchester, Bristol Again Win With Ease

Locals Drub Windham 38 To 20 and Bristol Trounces West Hartford 66-12; Rivals Meet Next Friday In Bristol State Armory.

"On to Bristol!" That was the cry which echoed through the large bus carrying a victorious group of Manchester High school basketball artists through a blinding snowstorm from Willimantic last night when Manchester had chalked up an impressive 38 to 20 triumph over Windham High.

Manchester won two out of three skirmishes at the "Thread City state armory, taking the freshman and varsity contests but losing the junior varsity struggle. The Silk City freshmen won 28 to 21 but the local second team was defeated 22 to 12. A large crowd sat patiently through the long and tiresome three hour program of basketball.

A neatly executed field goal by Squatrito who took a pass and shot while racing under the basket at top speed, gave Manchester the first score of the game and Windham was always in the rear. The Callaghan contingent fought hard but they were bound, Manchester simply had much the better team. Windham pulled up within four points once in the second half but that was the nearest it came to threatening Manchester's lead which grew to 24-12 at halftime.

Manchester now looks forward to its second battle with Bristol to be played in the State Armory in that city next Friday night. The first game was won by Manchester 32 to 28 here but since that time Bristol had been swamping one opponent after another and is confident that it will square accounts. Since its defeat here Bristol has been winning handily over schools which have given Manchester more or less trouble.

Last night Bristol showed no mercy whatsoever in trouncing West Hartford in Bristol, 66 to 12. Hall and Palau led the attack. All indications point to the Bristol state armory being packed almost to the two points of suffocation when the rivals get together next Friday night. Chick Hayes of Hartford and Danny Ahern of Middletown, the same two officials who handled the game here several weeks ago, will again call the fouls.

"Captain Gob" Turkington and Domenico Squatrito were the leading point-getters for Manchester last night although the rest of the team more than did its part. The red and white was passing prettily, cutting fast and shooting with keen eyes that resulted in scores from unusually high percentage of the shots taken. The game was rough but Manchester players took no particular liking to the officiating of Referee Johnny Manion, of East Hartford.

Lombardo was Windham's best bet and Captain Kaminski also went well despite the fact that he was held scoreless by Messrs. Squatrito and McHale. Luciani fought hard for Windham but his style of play much more resembled football. If he was on the floor once, he was on it at least a dozen times and his clumsiness resulted in more than one spill for Manchester players as they were bumped about.

Manchester rolled up a 36 to 16 lead by the time the first three periods ended and then Coach W. J. Clarke began pressing his regulars for the Bristol tussle. Substitution after substitution was made until not a regular was left on the floor. At that Windham only outscored Manchester four to two in the last quarter.

Freshman Tilt a Wow The best game of the evening was the bitter struggle between the freshmen teams of the two schools. Manchester passed nicely and their superior team-play was instrumental in attaining victory. Manchester led 24 to 13 at the end of the third quarter but Windham staged a strong rally that for a time threatened to overcome the locals in the last eight minutes of play. Turck, Johnston, Monroe and Rowan, were outstanding.

The junior varsity game was also close, Manchester being only four points behind at the termination of the third quarter. Coach Callaghan injected sufficient first team reserve material into the fray to pull his lead through. Ballon led the attack with six field goals. He also played in the varsity game. The victory for the Manchester freshmen was the fourth win in six starts for Coach Hugh Greer's clan.

LEAPS 231 FEET, NEW SKI RECORD

Big Pine Recreation Camp, Calif., Jan. 31—(AP)—Swooping down a 700-foot runway, Alf Engen, National champion, Salt Lake City, and Lars Haugen, Lake Tahoe, Calif., dedicated a new ski jump, the longest and highest in the world, with world record jumps of 231 feet.

The old record, 226 feet, was made by Henry Hall of Detroit, at Quebec in 1925. Seven jumpers took part in the first round of the professional jumping tournament, which will be completed Sunday.

GREETINGS TO ALL!

TORRINGTON PAPER LAUDS REC. PLAYER

Sports Editor of Register Praises Briggs; Tells of His Work In Past Season.

The acquisition of Paul Briggs, former Torrington High school star, by the Recreation Center basketball team here to play center, causes Walter G. Gisselbrecht, sports editor of The Torrington Register, to go into five paragraph detail in yesterday's issue, telling about Briggs coming to Manchester.

No one is better acquainted with Briggs' true ability than Gisselbrecht who has seen him play many games with the sensational Torrington team of several seasons ago. And so it is of interest to pick up Gisselbrecht's story at the third paragraph and read what he has to say about Briggs. Here it is:

"Briggs performed with the famous 'Wonder Five,' which represented the high school here during the 1924-25 and 1925-26 seasons, being a lower of strength in both offensive and defensive play. His lanky build enabled him to get the jump on nearly all opposing centers and his uncanny eye for the basket helped swell the Torrington score in practically every game in which he played.

"With the other members of the 'Wonder Five'—Billy Szeszkowski, Dick Dillon, Billy Visconti and Jello James—Briggs went to the national tournament at Chicago during both the 1924-25 and 1925-26 seasons, his work there classing him as one of the best centers in the tournament.

"Since graduating from the high school, Briggs has played with various amateur and semi-professional aggregations in the state. Last year, he held down the pivot post for the Hartford Telephone five, and has performed with various other quintets in that section of the state since that time. His many friends in Torrington hope that he will make good with the Manchester team."

M. H. S. FACULTY BEATS WINDHAM

Manchester Bowlers Win Third Match By 25 Pins; Callaghan Averages Over 114.

Just by way of setting the proper example for their students to follow on the basketball floor, Manchester High school's faculty won the third and deciding match of a bowling series with Windham High. Willimantic at the Charter Oak alleys here Thursday night.

Windham won the first match by 11 pins and Manchester took the second by 89. Last night Manchester rolled five strings apiece. Chester Robinson was high in the first match with an 111 average, Charles Wigren in the second with 97 and Thomas A. Callaghan, Windham coach of all sports, in the third with 114.2. Thomas F. Kelley had a 108 average last night but Callaghan's scores of 101, 117, 114, 118 and 122 were particularly praiseworthy.

MANCHESTER'S BAPTIE

FRANK "WOODY" WALLETT

Local Sport Chatter

Paul Briggs, the Rec Five's new center, scored seven field goals for Willington last night but his team lost a free scoring tilt 43 to 38. His opponent scored but two field goals.

The Cleveland Favorite Knits who play the Rec here Tuesday recently defeated the fast Bridgeport Laurels by nine points. New Haven and Bridgeport newspapers recognize the Laurels as one of the best pro teams in western Connecticut.

Tonight the Favorite Knits are displaying their wares up in Plymouth, Mass., having played at Northampton Wednesday, Pittsfield Thursday and Gloucester Tomorrow evening they appear in Bayonne, N. J. It is not known whether or not they are playing Monday evening.

Paddy Moruke, Stamford basketball booking agent, is the authority for the statement that the "Cleveland Favorite Knits" team, of the Terrible Swedes and the latter team has successfully competed with the best in the state. The Favorite Knits have a strong team, every man being a star in his position.

Manchester may be pretty well deserted next Friday night when the local high school quintet moves down to Bristol. Excitement runs high both here and in Bristol and those who do not go early will probably stand instead of sit for the evening.

Harold Madden, former Manchester High and Recreation Center basketball star of considerable ability, now starting with the Connecticut Aggie freshman team, was an interested spectator at the Manchester-Windham game last night. Madden is taking a course in forestry and says he likes it immensely.

Madden tells of an interesting incident which marked the first game he played with the C. A. C. yearlings. His team won the game and "Hap" started for the dressing room when one of his teammates shouted, "Hey, ain't you going to give 'em a cheer?" The question took the popular Manchester boy by surprise and for a moment he was sort of speechless. Then he found himself and added his lung power to the effort. In professional ball, one forgets all about such things.

MAJORS WIN 36 TO 20 OVER HARTFORD ATLAS

The Majors basketball team defeated the Hartford Atlas at Hartford gym here Thursday night 36 to 20. The game was rough and close, especially during the first half. The football champs pulled out in front with Reid adding the attack. Nocenza was best for the Atlas.

A Basketball Crowd Fifteen Thousand people gathered in Madison Square Garden the other night to see six college teams play basketball.

Some Old Faces Bob Le Gendre, whose jump of 25 feet 6 inches in the Olympic games of 1924 at Paris, was one of the great thrills of the sports decade that closed with 1930, died at 34 years of age the other day after a short struggle with pneumonia.

But just a few days before Le Gendre's sudden death, another familiar sports figure of another day bobbed back into the picture. You may or may not remember him—Hal Osborn—and now he is Professor Harold M. Osborn, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va.

Professor Osborn, who is 32 years old now, set world records for the high jump at about the time when Le Gendre was doing great things. The other night over in Brooklyn, just to show that he is still a spry young fellow, Osborn high-jumped 6 feet 6 inches, within a quarter of an inch of the world indoor record he set himself six years ago.

Since Osborn set his record, none of the young men in white pants has even come close to the mark. Now Osborn threatens to equal or better his old mark. During his performance in Brooklyn, he made one try at 6 feet 6 inches but slipped on the takeoff. He will try again.

Osborn's athletic deeds at his age seem to belie the suggestion of "athlete's heart" that Le Gendre's early death arouses. Every time a discussion of this ailment comes up, an excellent denial that athletics take a man's life young might be found in the activities of such men as Dan O'Leary, who at 92 is still giving exhibitions of swift heel-and-toe stepping, and Matt McGrath, who has been throwing weights for 50 long it's a wonder he hasn't hit somebody.

LARGER HOCKEY GOALS FAIL TO ADD SCORING Toronto, Ont., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Those critics of hockey who have called for a larger goal to speed up the game and increase the scoring were looking down their noses today after a test of the larger puck recoter here a few nights ago.

Two games were played in the Mercantile League using a cage seven feet six inches wide and only five goals were scored, each game ending 2 to 1, the standard cage is six feet wide.

President Frank Brady has ordered the experiment continued in the belief that perhaps last night's play was the exception that proves the rule. He said he believed the players were more keyed up, using the big net for the first time, and that further play might show it possessed of the benefits its supporters claim.

TOWN GOES BOLSHIEVIK Sofia, Bulgaria, Jan. 31.—(AP)—In the village of Troros in the District of Loukovite in northwestern Bulgaria, the entire population went suddenly Bolshievik, reports received here today said, doused their houses with red paint, hoisted a red flag on a church steeple and posted a sign on the church which read, "Lenin's Club."

Before the police got things under control the people had renamed most of the stores in honor of Lenin and other Soviet leaders. The gendarmes subdued the Bolshevik rebellion quickly after they reached the village and arrested a number of the ringleaders.

A Woman Designed This Church

Spirit of Oklahoma, Modernism and Religion Are Reflected in Structure Conceived by Tulsa Artist Who Had Never Before Studied Architecture.

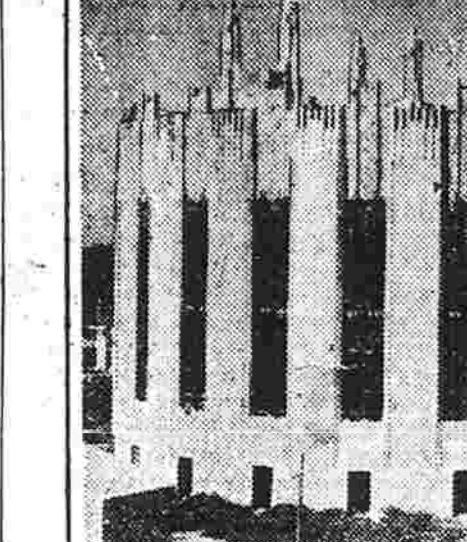

By NEA Service The Boston Avenue Methodist Episcopal church of Tulsa, Okla., designed by a woman, is architecturally expressive of the spirit of Oklahoma and is said to have borrowed no structural ideas from other lands.

The designer of this modern church, which has won national appreciation since its completion in 1929, is Adah M. Robinson, Tulsa artist.

When the building committee became dissatisfied with first plans, it called in Mrs. Robinson, who became tremendously interested in the project and conceived the idea of building a church that would express the meaning of religion, the spirit of Oklahoma and this modern age.

Miss Robinson had never studied architecture and, being a Quaker, had never considered the needs of a Methodist Episcopal congregation. However, she spent months doing research in Methodistism and, with quick artistic perception, sketched what she thought suitable.

DISPLAY RED FLAG

Toledo, P. I., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Although the Philippine constabulary stopped a display of the red flag at Santa Rosa, 60 miles north of Manila, last night, the Communist leaders today during a labor demonstration in which about 3,000 persons participated.

Peace prevailed, but more strike-breakers were brought in to replace longshoremen who had walked out demanding pay increases. Despite the presence of a large constabulary force the situation was regarded as tense.

The employing companies still were unwilling to negotiate with the strikers. One hundred constabulary troops were ordered from Manila to augment the force here.

ABOUT TOWN
Mrs. Henry T. Coleman of 171 Hillard street who was removed to St. Francis hospital Monday for observation is at present in care of Dr. Root, the bone specialist. Diagnosis reveals trouble with her spine. Mrs. Coleman was a yeoman during the World War and stationed at the state pier at New London. She was sent for treatment to St. Francis hospital by the Veterans' Bureau of Hartford through the efforts of David Heatley of this town, commander of the Disabled War Veterans, who is doing a notable work in getting hospitalization and disability claims through for local ex-service men and women.

Custer of Foster street, who was struck by an automobile Wednesday morning on his way to the Lincoln school, is resting comfortably at the Memorial hospital, and it is believed the injury to his head is not so serious as at first supposed. His left leg which was fractured in two places, is in a cast and it will be some time before he will be able to get around.

Another Saturday has come and gone and the unusual, as far as police court records are concerned, has happened. There was no session of the Manchester Town Court. This has been the case in three of the five Saturdays in the month of January.

The snow added comfort to passengers riding on the cross town and Manchester Green buses this morning. The snow served as a cushion taking up what was lost by the missing springs on the bus. It did slow down traffic somewhat as the traveling on grades was reduced, which prevented a general shake up when stops were made.

Exercise in the morning air was given to those who came from the north end on the Manchester Green bus this morning after 8:30. The trolley connections were poor and a person could reach his or her destination in the business section of South Manchester much faster by walking than by waiting for the trolley car to come in. Owing to the delay in the trolley cars coming from Hartford, Frank Nichols, veterinarian trolley man and weather prophet could not be seen to learn just how much longer and to what depth the present snow will fall.

Eighteen tables were filled with players at the whist-dance held last evening at the City View dance hall on Keeney street. Sandwiches, home made cake and coffee were served. Dancing followed to music furnished by Irving Wickham and Charles Burke. Another whist was announced for next Friday evening.

TO KEEP INHALATOR AT SPRUCE ST. HOUSE

New Resuscitating Device of Fire Department Believed Highly Effective.

The South Manchester Fire Department has used an inhalator to its equipment for use of asphyxiation, drowning, etc. cases. It will be kept at the Spruce street firehouse. Another inhalator, owned by Udney Brothers, is kept at the Pine street hose house, so that the department is well equipped. The one just bought by the fire district has a double tank attachment whereas the other operates from a single unit.

The inhalator is regarded as much safer than the pneumators which were formerly used in cases of near drownings or asphyxiations. The latter has been charged with causing lung troubles as an after effect but the inhalator is claimed to be perfectly harmless and can be operated by almost anyone without much study. J. G. Steffen of the Mine Safety Appliance Company of Pittsburgh, gave a public demonstration at the Spruce street fire house a few nights ago at which close to 200 persons were present, including many of the doctors in Manchester as well as firemen and two fire chiefs from out-of-town, George Milne of Rockville and Frank Meunier of East Hartford.

The two tanks connected to the inhalator can be used separately. They contain a mixture of 93 per cent oxygen and seven per cent carbon dioxide and work automatically when once applied to a patient after artificial resuscitation methods have been used. Steffen told his listeners that inhalators have brought life to still born babies and have saved other persons believed to be dead.

LOCAL HEN LAYS EGG INSIDE EGG

Not Content With Ordinary Variety Milton Fish's Leghorn Tries Tricks.

Oddities are never confined to any particular field and this one happens to concern poultry raising. It's the story of an egg laid within an egg and is vouched for by Milton E. Fish of 388 Lake street, Manchester Green who conducts a poultry farm of over nine hundred birds and has been in the business nigh onto thirty years. His authority is backed by the fact that he has known of four such occurrences over a period of a year or so, the last two in the space of the past week.

The fourth egg within an egg was laid yesterday and weighs four ounces. The other shell has not yet been broken but the inner shell can be felt through it. Last week Mr. Fish found one, the largest he had ever seen, weighing four and a half ounces. The outside shell was hard with the usual albumen inside and also another egg, an ordinary one containing albumen and yoke. The other two were laid some time ago but were of the same description as the one weighing the most. Mr. Fish says the eggs were laid by a white leghorn but he doesn't know which bird to give the credit to.

In his thirty years of poultry raising Mr. Fish has seen more than one oddity but never find such an abundance of eggs within eggs. In fact the nearest thing he remembers to such a peculiarity was found about three years ago and was an egg with three yolks inside, the shells of which were soft but such a specimen is found only in the proverbial once in a lifetime.

The police believe the break was made by the same individuals who stole between $500 and $600 worth of silverware and jewelry from the residence of Robert V. The trip both ways was made in Ubert's Ford coupe, the return trip being made in about a week.

SIGNALS PLAYED TRICK ON TROLLEYS

Car Backing Through Oakland Street Switch Cause of Yesterday's Crash.

Investigation of the Talcottville trolley crash of yesterday morning in which Motorman Alexander Tedford was painfully injured and a large number of passengers shaken up and bruised, which occupied officials and employees of the company for several hours yesterday, resulted in placing the blame for the head-on collision on the automatic signal system used by the company. The system did not break down but showed that under special conditions it could play tricks.

Set Signal at Clear The inquiry developed the fact that an earlier car than those involved, headed for Manchester from Rockville, had arrived at the Bissell switch on Oakland street here in time to find the block signal clear. The motorman was proceeding through the switch when the signal changed, having been thrown against him by a car running in the opposite direction, entering the block at Depot Square. The west-bound motorman stopped his car and backed through, crossing over to the turnout and waiting for the opposite car. By entering the switch a second time he cleared the signal at Dobsonville, which his backing through had closed, after the east bound car had entered the block. It was the Dobsonville switch which controlled the operation of Tedford's car.

No statement was made by Connecticut Company officials as to whether steps would be taken to make the automatic signal system accident proof.

GOOD Practice

He was a noted surgeon.
His hands worked marvels with twisted bones.
Some of his patients were penniless; they paid him in gratitude.
But many were rich; they paid him large sums for his skill.
He had no time to think of ways to invest his money.
So he created a LIVING TRUST* to which he adds other sums as they come in.
Now each specialist works in his own field; the surgeon takes care of his patients; the trustee takes care of the investment.

*A LIVING TRUST becomes effective immediately. You benefit by it yourself during your own lifetime. You can add to it from year to year if you wish. And you can provide for the later disposition of the property in trust, just as you would do in a trust fund under a will. If you have capital that you want to protect, and desire a fixed income for life with no worry about investments, ask us about a LIVING TRUST.
