Statesmen of Three Score Nations Meet to Discuss Disarmament With Air Filled With War Rumors. 3,000 GIVE $12,508 FOR RELIEF FUND Campaign Closes With Total Short But Town Had Given $58,000 Previously.

Geneva, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The world disarmament conference, attended by the statesmen of the three score nations, opened this evening after having been delayed while the League of Nations Council met to consider the problem in the Far East.

Arthur Henderson, the former British Cabinet minister who is acting as chairman, began the session with an outline of its problems. "I refuse to contemplate even the possibility of failure," he said.

Mr. Henderson said this conference had three important objectives: (1) To reach a collective agreement on a practical program for substantial reduction and limitation of armaments.

Statesmen of Three Score Nations Meet to Discuss Disarmament With Air Filled With War Rumors.

Geneva, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The world disarmament conference, attended by the statesmen of the three score nations, opened this evening after having been delayed while the League of Nations Council met to consider the problem in the Far East.

Arthur Henderson, the former British Cabinet minister who is acting as chairman, began the session with an outline of his problems. "I refuse to contemplate even the possibility of failure," he said, "for if we fail no one can forestall the evil consequences that might ensue."

The assembled chairman, who has been in poor health for several weeks, spoke for more than an hour. He called upon the delegates to "seize this opportunity—while it is still ours—to lead the peoples of the world one more step toward the high table land of peace and cooperation."

Far East Treaties At the outset he referred to the ominous thunderings from the Far East. "I feel bound to refer to the tragic fact that at the moment when this conference begins its work we are confronted with a situation of such extreme gravity as that which now exists in the Far East," he said.

It is imperative that all the signatories of the League of Nations Covenant and of other international treaties should make it their business to insure the strict observance of those great obligations against acts of violence and war. The conference opened in a more encouraging atmosphere than had been expected because of the united stand of the great powers in protesting the continuance of the hostilities in China.

Important Objectives Mr. Henderson said this conference had three important objectives. To reach a preliminary agreement on a practical program for substantial reduction and limitation of armaments. To determine that no armaments may be maintained outside the scope of that agreement. To plan a series of conferences in the future at reasonably short intervals of time.

He reviewed the steps taken by the League of Nations toward disarmament, including the creation of a permanent committee, the draft treaty of mutual assistance in 1923, the Geneva protocol of 1924 which carried the principle of reconciliation further; the Locarno treaties of 1925, and the five years work of the preparatory commission for the conference.

TREASURY BALANCE Washington, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for Jan. 30 were $2,757,244.82; expenditures $4,289,058.60; balance $339,929,501.02. Customs duties for 30 days of January were $27,180,142.90.

3,000 GIVE $12,508 FOR RELIEF FUND Campaign Closes With Total Short But Town Had Given $58,000 Previously.

With approximately four-fifths of the returns filed and checked last night at the windup meeting of the Manchester Emergency Employment association's drive, the sum of $12,508.83 was given by Chairman William Heald at the meeting in Masonic Temple last night, as the amount secured in the campaign. Over 170 workers secured contributions from those in town who had not previously assisted in helping to carry the burden of the emergency finance for the unemployed.

The amount secured in the drive, while not yet complete, as many citizens were not contacted due to poor weather conditions, absence from their homes and other reasons, is but a little more than one-fourth of the amount sought at the beginning of the campaign ten days ago. The amount sought by the directors of the campaign was $40,000.

President Fred A. Verplanck complimented the workers for the fine manner in which they combed the town for the smaller contributions from those who had not previously come through employment agencies, stores, schools or other agencies. Before the drive started over 5,000 people had contributed through these channels, and the remaining 3,000 persons now employed, gave in this campaign better than $4.00 per person on the average.

When consideration is given the fact that over $19,000 has been contributed or pledged from 8,000 persons in addition to the $59,718.08 which has already been given by over 5,000 citizens and is being continued until May 1, the directors of the campaign feel confident that the people of Manchester have done exceptionally well, all things considered.

At the last annual town meeting the citizens of Manchester voted $4 Average President Fred A. Verplanck complimented the workers for the fine manner in which they combed the town for the smaller contributions from those who had not previously come through employment agencies, stores, schools or other agencies.

Grand Total of $181,000 At the last annual town meeting the citizens of Manchester voted $4 Average President Fred A. WOODCOCK TAKES STAND AT "DRY" LAW HEARING

Washington, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Opposition to proposals to legalize beer and the belief that prohibition enforcement is increasing in efficiency were expressed today before a Senate committee by Prohibition Director Woodcock.

In response to a question by Chairman Metcalf of the committee, Woodcock said he thought the fight against liquor law violations could be made more effective than it is now. He added that his bureau was operating with only half the personnel recommended by the Wickersham commission.

Woodcock said he had asked for 500 additional agents for the next fiscal year but that his request had been refused because of the condition of government finances. Metcalf had asked him if he thought prohibition could be enforced.

The Rhode Island Senator cited figures which he said showed that if every one who drinks a cocktail in this country were sent to jail, the average would be 300 sentences per year for every person in the country.

"If you arrested every one who violates a speed law," Woodcock replied, "I think your geometrical progression would be larger." The committee has before it a bill by Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, to legalize four per cent beer.

Woodcock expressed the belief that prohibition could be enforced. The Rhode Island Senator cited figures which he said showed that if every one who drinks a cocktail in this country were sent to jail, the average would be 300 sentences per year for every person in the country.

FIRST STEP TAKEN TO STOP TROUBLE

America, Great Britain, France and Italy Announce They Will Take Immediate Action If Warning Is Not Heeded—Japan's Envoy Answers That League Action Is Exactly What Japan Had Been Wanting; Meanwhile Severe Fighting Is Reported at Shanghai as Jap Warships Begin to Shell Chinese Districts.

Geneva, Switzerland, Feb. 2.—(AP)—America, Great Britain, France and Italy announced in brisk military style at an extraordinary meeting of the League of Nations Council today that the Sino-Japanese fighting must stop and they would take immediate steps to stop it.

J. H. Thomas, a British Cabinet member, spoke for his country and the United States, and the American delegates to the disarmament conference sat near the council table. That conference was delayed for an hour while the council met.

When he had finished his brief but emphatic declaration of policy, Dino Grandi for Italy, and the French representative announced that their government approved the stand of Washington and London. The German delegate made a similar cordial statement.

Mr. Thomas had cited the Kellogg Pact and the Nine-Power Treaty, and presumably it was upon the basis of these that the American government was cooperating with the other great powers.

Japan's Answer Suave, he declared that the action proposed by the great powers was exactly what Japan had been wanting and indeed had suggested. The Anglo-American proposal to Tokyo and Nanking which Mr. Thomas read was:

(1) That all acts of violence and preparations for hostilities shall be brought to an end. (2) That in the Shanghai area both sides shall withdraw their troops as further protection to the International Settlement, and a neutral zone shall be arranged.

Preparations were made at the State Department to rush any report from Ambassador Forbaker once to President Hoover. Early at his desk, the President studied developments as told in dispatches to the Navy.

There was a firm reaffirmation that the United States forces now in China and en route to China will be used solely for the protection of Americans and defense of fundamental responsibilities of the government. Their presence in China will have no relation to any other situation.

The Sino-Japanese policy of this government was detailed anew today in high quarters to be sounded from two points. These are the protection of American lives and property and the tendering of good offices directed toward peace.

As to activity at the League of Nations Council, President Hoover feels that any statement as to the American attitude made at the Council could only be unofficial since this country is not represented in any fashion there, even by an observer.

The President believes strongly that no statement of American activities in conjunction with other nations in the Sino-Japanese conflict could properly come from a Council meeting.

WOODCOCK TAKES STAND AT "DRY" LAW HEARING

WOODCOCK ON STAND Washington, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Prohibition Director Amos W. Woodcock appeared before a Senate committee today in opposition to a bill to legalize four per cent beer.

Woodcock said he had come to the hearing because some one had asked the attorney general to have him do so.

"I am the guilty party," said Senator Hatfield, (R., W. Va.), a prohibitionist.

The committee headed by Senator Metcalf, (R., Rhode Island), is hearing those opposed to the bill, having previously listened to anti-prohibitionists advocate passage of the four per cent beer measure by Senator Bingham (R., Conn.), which is under consideration.

Woodcock said "the technical efficiency of the Prohibition Bureau has been steadily increasing" since he became its director in July 1930.

Woodcock cited in support of his contention of increased efficiency the increased number of cases growing out of arrests by his men.

The percentage of convictions, he said, is higher than for other federal law violations.

Woodcock quoted figures for prohibition years and said they showed that "in a free market the ability to buy liquor did not decrease the desire to buy spirits."

As far as these figures indicate, he said, "making available beer in the past did not decrease consumption of hard spirits."

Bingham asked Woodcock whether there are not more unlawful saloons in existence now than there were lawful ones before prohibition.

Matter of Opinion. "It is a matter of opinion," Senator Woodcock replied. "The trouble with discussion of the prohibition question is that so much of it is opinion and so little fact. My own opinion—and it is only an opinion—is that in the vast areas of the country, that isn't so, or even approximately so."

Is it not so that temperance was steadily increasing before prohibition?" Bingham asked.

"The figures which I have introduced show the opposite," Woodcock replied. "They show the per capita consumption was increasing."

Senator Brookhart brought out in testimony that the director feels the prohibition force along the Canadian border should be increased.

In answer to questions from Representative William E. Hull, of Illinois, Woodcock said "beer isn't our major problem in enforcing this law. It's only a comparatively minor problem in New York and the east."

"Prohibition enforcement," Woodcock said, "will drive the traffic to cover just as it has driven the traffic in narcotics to cover."

Denies Charge When Senator Bulkley, (D., Ohio) inquired whether there are law violations in enforcement of the liquor statutes, Woodcock replied in the negative, adding:

"The Prohibition Bureau is the most lawful body of investigators in the country."

Dr. Joy Elmer Morgan of the National Education Association testified educational conditions had greatly improved since prohibition.

Only nine out of 112 college presidents to whom he had sent questionnaires, he said "had any doubt that conditions have improved."

EMPLOYEES' SUPPER AGAIN ON THURSDAY

South Methodist Ladies' Aid Society Serves Bargain Supper for Business People.

Mrs. W. H. Dowd, president of the South Methodist Ladies Aid society, announces another popular Thursday afternoon supper this week for the church and business people.

The committee plans to begin serving at 3:30 on Thursday for the accommodation of bank and store clerks who are busy during the evening.

The monthly business meeting of the Aid society will also take place Thursday afternoon at 2:30.

COUNTRY CLUB ANNUAL TO BE HELD FEB. 24

Same Officers as Last Year Are Named Again—Dinner to Precede Meeting.

The date for the annual meeting of the Manchester Country Club has been definitely settled. It is to be held at the club on Wednesday evening, February 24, according to an announcement made today by Secretary Read Richardson.

The nominating committee under the chairmanship of Harlowe Willis, will propose the same slate of officers as last year and suggest John I. Olson as the new member of the board of governors which, including the officers, totals seven in number.

Dr. D. C. Y. Moore is slated to be returned as president and John H. Hyde as vice-president.

A dinner will precede the meeting and dancing will follow.

POWERS WARN JAPAN TO CEASE FIGHTING

Earlier in the day the Chinese issued a flat statement declaring they would oppose any further Japanese attacks within Shanghai but they would be careful to refrain from touching the foreign settlement.

Will Strike Back. The statement said the Chinese civilian authorities were working in complete accord with the military forces and that if another Japanese attack were undertaken the Chinese would strike back hard.

The Japanese announced they intended to evacuate all Japanese women and children from the city.

JAPANESE ADVANCE Shanghai, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Two thousand bluejackets began a general advance on the Chapel Sector this afternoon following a heavy artillery barrage.

The Chinese used Stokes' mortars for artillery. The Japanese continued their light artillery bombardment as well as the machine gun fire.

The explosions of the guns shook the entire foreign settlement leading to the belief that the Japanese were using heavy ordnance which it was thought must be the guns on the warships in the lower river.

Use Heavy Guns The Japanese swung their heavy guns into action at 6:30 p. m. and the new action drowned out the din of the previous encounter.

WARSHIPS LEAVE MANILA Manila, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Warlike conditions in China stripped Manila Bay today of ships of the United States Navy's Asiatic fleet.

WARSHIPS LEAVE MANILA (Continued) Only a few submarines, their mother ship Beaver, and a few naval auxiliaries were left in the empty looking harbor.

Major Gen. John L. Hines, commander of the Army's Philippine Department, asserted the sudden troop movement was "in no way to be considered an act of hostility to either China or Japan."

The Red Cross here today named committees to handle the situation should American civilians be evacuated here from China.

The Forty-Fifth Infantry arrived today from Fort McKinley to replace the Thirty-First Infantry, which sailed aboard the transport Chaumont early this morning.

TOKYO REPORTS Tokyo, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Despatches received here this afternoon telling of the opening of the new battle at Shanghai, said Chinese had set fire to the Japanese district of Hongkew in the International Settlement and that a large section of it was burning.

The newsboys began crying their extra papers in the streets, around the foreign office, describing the battle while Foreign Minister Yoshizawa was conferring with the ambassadors of the United States and Great Britain who called to propose plans for a peaceful settlement of the Shanghai difficulties.

The news dispatches said the gunfire was shaking the whole city while airplanes roared overhead.

Airplanes from the Japanese aircraft carriers Hoshu and Notoro made a scouting tour of the Chapel District first, they said, scouting and dropping bombs later.

The Japanese were withdrawing into the northern part of the International Settlement because of the fire, they said, and the Japanese consular general was rounding up refugees near the Wangpo river, from where they could easily be evacuated.

Mexico City, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The newspaper Excelsior today editorially said if trouble were to come in the Far East, Mexico would find itself unilaterally allied with the United States.

"The United States is our neighbor and we might as well accept that as a fact," the editorial said. "Our interests lie with her's in this matter. We should continue to be friends."

The editorial said that while Japan undoubtedly needed room for expansion, its conduct at Shanghai was entirely unjustified.

DR. SHELTON'S FAMILY GOES TO WOODBRIDGE

Former Head of Chemistry Department at Cheney Plant Moves to Be Near New Haven.

Dr. Elbert M. Shelton, Mrs. Shelton and daughters, Lois and Janet, with Mrs. Shelton's mother, Mrs. Lois Klinefelter, who has been living with them, left Manchester today for Woodbridge, near New Haven, where they will make their home.

Their Chestnut street neighbors and friends in church and social circles regret to see them leave town.

Coming here less than ten years ago they identified themselves with the Center Congregational church. Dr. Shelton was elected a deacon of the church and also served as president of the Men's League, while Mrs. Shelton and Mrs. Klinefelter took an active part in the work of the various women's organizations of the church and town.

Dr. Shelton received his doctor's degree at Yale University and for some time has been engaged in research work at that institution. He succeeded Walter M. Scott as the head of Cheney Brothers' chemistry department.

Mrs. Klinefelter was the former president of the Manchester League of Women Voters, and was instrumental in organizing the Young People's Branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. She was leader of the Y. P. B. during the first year of its existence and worked tirelessly in fostering among the young people a reverence for law and order and temperance principles.

She plans to spend much of her time with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Dalton of West Hartford.

NATIONS SAVE CHINA
 News from Geneva this morning that the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy had joined in service of notice that the fighting between Japanese and Chinese in China must stop and that they would take immediate steps to stop it is a magnificent manifestation of international unity which will be applauded everywhere where the instincts of humanity and justice rule.

There can be no question of the issue when these four great nations set their faces toward the repression of outrage. The maddest militarist in Japan cannot now hope to continue in the crazy dream of conquest that has spurred on that country in the invasion of China.

It would seem unlikely that the entente arranged for the defense of China will have to fire a shot or drop a bomb. Japanese defiance of these four great powers would be insane. Nippon's navy would be destroyed, her cities subjected to the treatment that she has inflicted on Shanghai, her army annihilated. If there is an ounce of sanity in the empire of the Mikado it will recognize the inevitable and cease its aggressions. If not, then as an American admiral has already said, it will be just too bad.

A LOOK AHEAD
 It is now admitted in every responsible quarter that the volume of American industry in the peak years preceding the 1929 crash was artificially inflated and that there was no way of maintaining it.

This being the case there can be no reasonable expectancy of any full resumption of such industrial activity no matter how healthy the country's fiscal condition becomes nor how far we progress away from the panicky conditions of a few months ago. In other words recovery must be slow and the recovery must feel its way carefully even while its progress may be steady. There are many who believe that we are already on the up grade, but it is a long and slow incline and there is nothing about the height regained as yet to make us giddy.

All this means that it will probably be a long time before there is a full time job for everybody or anywhere near everybody. And in turn this, regrettably enough, would seem to mean that for a good while to come there will be a greater or smaller number of people who must be aided; for we are forever committed in this country to the idea that men, women and children shall not starve nor freeze.

Now this business of relief for the unemployed is becoming a pretty serious matter. Municipalities are not only finding great difficulty in balancing their budgets because of the heavy expenditures involved, they are unable to borrow money. It may be that presently there will be no way for them to continue extending assistance on the present scale or according to present standards. And it is just as problematical how long communities will be able to raise funds through private contributions.

Patently, then, it is among the possibilities that, even with the best intentions in the world, the bottom of the pocket will be reached. And yet the helpless must be cared for. How is it to be done?

It may have to be done through the adoption of some system far more economical than any so far followed. It may be that we shall have to abandon a purpose to which we have clung very tenaciously—that of preserving the family life on something approaching normal standards and what we have termed as maintaining the self-respect of the assisted. It may possibly come to the point, unless there is an industrial recovery more marked and more sudden than we have any right to expect, where the existence of the assisted persons will have to be pretty strictly standardized. It may possibly be that, instead of leaving to each family considerable latitude in determining the form of relief, custodians of public funds may have to administer relief more on the plane on which it is commonly extended to refugees. We may have to buy at wholesale supplies of the plainest kind and ration them out as the subsistence of an army in the field is rationed out. It may be that we will have to put an end to paying rent of homes in which families lived when times were good and either require landlords to halve such rents or provide some other form of housing that will not consume so much of the public funds.

If communities shall, indeed, be driven to the practice of some such economies in the care of their indigent members it will be deeply regrettable. But there is no blinking the gravity of the situation as it stands and as, unfortunately, it may become. It may be as well to let ourselves become accustomed to such reflections gradually, and not allow ourselves to be surprised by a crisis by and by if it should come.

TRADING
 This extract from a political news story in the New York Times is interesting:

Smith sentiment is known to be strong in all these states (Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New Jersey) and a Smith-Roosevelt break, with Governor Roosevelt the nominee, would seriously endanger the Democratic chances of carrying them and winning the election in the fall.

Little hope of being able to win over the New Jersey organization exists, however, because of the tendency to regard Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, the Democratic boss of New Jersey, as the leader of the anti-Roosevelt movement. Mr. Hague is said to regard Mr. Roosevelt as dangerous because of the fear that federal patronage might be used by the latter, if elected, to loosen the New Jersey leader's hold on his own organization.

It was believed possible that Roosevelt managers would assure state party organizations cool to their cause that, if Governor Roosevelt were nominated and elected, he would give recognition to those organizations in the matter of patronage.

Thus it is that superior souls are called by the voice of the people to places of high leadership. Thus it is that they approach, "unpledged and untrammelled," the high office of the Presidency. In an ordinary city or town election people would call this sort of thing cheap ward politics, dubious trading, and they would be extremely likely to send to the cleaners any pettifoggling candidate detected in it.

LIABILITY COMPENSATION
 Of interest to automobile owners everywhere will be the report of a committee which, under the auspices of the Columbia University Council for Research in the Social Sciences, has been studying the problem of liability insurance for two and a half years. It is the conviction of this group that the most just and effective solution of the problem lies in compulsory participation by automobile owners in an arrangement very like that under which workmen's compensation is administered.

The committee expresses the belief that no system based on liability for fault is adequate. It believes that a system analogous to the compensation laws would give quick relief to the accident victim and that its cost to the vehicle owner need not be unreasonable.

The motoring public will be receptive enough toward further discussion of this idea. There is a feeling that the present set-up of the liability insurance business is oppressive to the well intentioned citizen and lamentably ineffective with regard to the reckless and irresponsible car owner. Also that the rates are higher than they have any business to be. Also that it is about time that something was done to meet the bristling resistance of the liability companies to the payment of claims with very little consideration for the claimant no matter how just his cause.

This is a subject that may well command the attention of legislators and sociologists everywhere.

AS TO REPEAL
 When Senator Bingham recently offered to the Senate a resolution declaring that that body would welcome a referendum by the states on the subject of the Eighteenth amendment, which was defeated by a vote of 55 to 15, it was the expressed opinion of a good many persons of wet proclivities that the very softness of the blow aimed at the size of the majority against the resolution. Mr. Bingham's measure was described as a "silly gesture" by one powerful and very wet newspaper and it was declared that several senators who voted against it could be depended on to support a less unmeaning and more courageous wet proposal.

Senator Wagner's resolution providing for straight-out repeal and also that ratification shall be by state constitutional convention, offered almost immediately upon the heels of the defeat of the Bingham measure, affords ample opportunity for such senators, if there are any, to place themselves on record.

There is a good deal to be said for the idea of a referendum; so much that it is extremely difficult to understand the attitude of well meaning drys who, while declaring the Eighteenth amendment to be supported by the opinion of a majority of the people, still fight furiously against a test of that opinion as a mere matter of information. However there is more to be said for a straight-out proceeding such as Senator Wagner has inaugurated. There is no ground for a straddle in this resolution. Either a senator is against repeal or he is in favor of it. A vote on the resolution will inform the country exactly where the Senate, as at present constituted, stands.

Washington Letter

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—People get to asking why, since Congress authorized $100,000,000 for flood control nearly four years ago, floods still occur in the Mississippi valley.

The answer is that there have been no Mississippi river floods this year and probably won't be any, that recent floods have occurred on tributaries at points considerably removed from the Mississippi and that the big 10-year federal flood control program undertakes to control only the Mississippi itself. Also, as Calvin Coolidge once said, the government can't insure citizens against storms, floods and other natural catastrophes.

It appears now that there will be no Mississippi river flood this spring. The river hasn't even reached the bottom of its levees. You never can tell, though, until the middle of February. If the river is still low at that time it won't swell high enough subsequently to do any damage. It hasn't overflowed the banks for a year and is now 20 or 30 feet below the point it reaches when it gets really bad, according to the army engineers, who handle the flood control project.

The project undertakes to protect the alluvial valley from Mississippi flood waters, but the only thing the flood control act provided for tributary streams was that federal money might be spent on them in cases of emergency for rescue work, maintenance or repair. The army engineers have rushed in with sandbags and other aid during the recent overflow of the Tallachatchie river in Mississippi state.

The tributaries thus covered stretch from the Appalachian mountains to the Rockies, and none of them, according to information here, has a levee system adequate for protection of its entire valley in case of peak floods. In two months following Nov. 17 more than 21 inches of rain fell in the Tallachatchie-Yazoo basin and the waters found weak levees to break through at some spots, and no levees at all at others. Some communities on tributaries haven't levees because they aren't worth the expense and flood waters, coming before the crop season, sometimes do more good than harm except for the general inconvenience.

Mississippi river flood control works have been greatly strengthened since the disastrous 1927 floods, with their huge life and property loss. Even in 1929 the greatest volume of water that ever went down the stream—except in 1927—passed along without making a single crevasse. And two more years of levee building and re-enforcement have since passed. When the project is completed the army engineers are sure the control system will be able to take care of even such a water rush as that of 1927. The known weak spots in the levee, line already have been plugged and backstopped.

About $127,000,000 of the authorized expenditure has been appropriated, including $35,000,000 for this fiscal year. Most of the money goes for strengthening and enlarging levees, but there are also the nearly completed floodways above New Orleans and at New Madrid, and a large amount of re-vestment and navigation work in the project. It is conceded that all flood waters can't always be kept in the river channel, and certain places have been left where flood waters are expected to escape as a matter of course. Attempts have been made to make the government buy about 4,000,000 acres of the land theoretically subject to such overflow.

In four years about 300 miles of the 1000 miles of Mississippi river levees have been fixed. The levees run from 10 to 30 feet high. The number of men employed on the project has varied from 4500 to nearly 12,000. About 210,000,000 cubic yards of earth have been placed in the levees.

Firewood may be obtained in exchange for potato peelings or other food refuse which is of no further use, through an automatic machine recently installed in Berlin.

HEALTH-DIET ADVICE
 BY DR. FRANK MCCOY
The Best Way to Health

CONDITIONS IN REGARD TO HEALTH & DIET WILL BE DISCUSSED BY SUBJECT WHO CAN BE ADDRESSED IN CASE OF THIS PAPER BEING READ THROUGHOUT THE DIVISION FOR MEN

ASTHMA CURED BY DIET
 Since the discovery that asthma is an allergic disease, it is quite the fashion for those who are afflicted with it to spend much time trying to trace their attacks to such substances as feather pillows, horse hair, orris root in face powder, various pollens, and so on. It is true that many people are sensitive to such substances; however, I believe that these things should only be regarded as a contributing cause as I have never seen a case of asthma that could not be cured even though no effort was made to avoid the substance which was considered injurious.

It may be a shock to some of you to learn that I do not pay a great deal of attention to anaphylactic substances in the treatment of asthma. The treatment which I have worked out is one which I have found good results in thousands of cases. Using these methods, I have found asthma to be a 100 percent curable disease; that is, fully 100 percent of all cases can be cured through properly regulated diet, treatments and exercise.

Asthmatic attacks sometimes come on at regular intervals although not necessarily. The main symptom of asthma is the extreme difficulty in breathing. This may be so great that the patient actually starves for oxygen. There is intense distress both in breathing in and out, but the latter causes the greater amount of agony. The chest becomes tight and the patient has a hard time in getting the diaphragm to move up and down to add in breathing.

Extreme sleepiness and mental excitement are two of the common symptoms giving notice of an impending attack. Flatulence, poor appetite, and constiveness are other usual symptoms. During the height of an attack the patient feels as though there were a weight on the chest. The bronchial tubes become greatly narrowed, which may be the result of a muscular contraction which makes them smaller, or due to the mucus membrane lining them becoming swollen, so that smaller tubes may be partly stopped up with an excessive secretion of mucus. In a severe attack the patient wakes at night and is in such dire need of air that he rushes to the window. The face may be anxious, bluish, and the forehead covered with beads of sweat. After the attack, the patient returns to normal comfort and breathing.

Why most attacks come at night has not been explained, but it is known that most asthmatics live to a good old age although at the time of attacks they may fear that they will die any minute for lack of air.

The suffering asthmatic is deluded and deceived many times by promises of cures through the injection of serums and so-called protective agents made from various proteins, the pollen of flowers, and animal hair and excretions. Out of thousands of asthmatics examined, I have yet to find a single case where any one has been permanently benefited by such treatment. Generally, the contrary is true, and the patient is made worse by the addition to his blood of some foreign substance not harmonious with the body's natural metabolism.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
 (Forgetful Moods)
 Question: Mrs. C. writes: "Several times after shopping, I have found that I have purchased articles for which I have no earthly use, and I fear that I may be losing my mind. At another time I found myself wandering around the street without remembering leaving home. A doctor told me that there is nothing to worry about but I am in mortal fear of doing something while in these forgetful moods."
 Answer: Consult another doctor if necessary to obtain an exact diagnosis. It may be that you are suffering from amnesia or some form of stomach and asked me to write for your advice. He is 65 years of age and now in a hospital for an examination, and being a doctor himself, he believes that he has had this trouble for a number of years.

Answer: An hour-glass stomach is not especially dangerous itself, but it is usually an indication of irritation in the stomach causing a contraction. This may be produced through inflammation or ulceration or the stomach may be contracted through nervous tension. The milk diet using a glassful of warm milk every hour and no other food seems to give the most relief for this condition as it causes a relaxation of the musculature of the stomach. The milk diet should also allow any ulceration or inflammation a chance to heal.

THE RANGE IS IMPORTANT but ACCURACY is Fundamental

GREAT organizations of men and machinery are coordinated in the firing of naval guns. Science is always seeking improved, more powerful explosives to hurl the giant shells farther and farther. But all this is wasted unless the gunner's aim is ACCURATE.

There is a direct parallel in reporting the news of the world. Colorful descriptions, dramatic writing and speedy transmission are useless unless the subject matter is ACCURATE.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 2.—In those fair days when every cloud had at least a golden lining, many were the tales to be heard of doormen at the swanky New York hotel, who garnered fabulous sums by merely opening taxi doors or bowing guests into a lobby.

There must have been something more than legend to such fascinating anecdotes.

For now that clouds are back on their old job, it seems that Jim Lanagan, one of the doormen at the Plaza Hotel, left something like $80,000 on Wall street.

While another appears these days in a sedan driven by a modestly liveried chauffeur.

Nor are doormen alone connected with stories concerning affluence achieved by those who have served Manhattan's plutocrats.

One of the big town's florist fortunes is enjoyed by Charles Thorley. Time was when Thorley had a modest flower booth in a hotel lobby. It appears that Samuel Newhouse, the western millionaire for whom a tunnel has been named, insisted on a boutonniere for his buttonhole. Thorley served him his favorite posies.

Newhouse is no govt. the story, whispered important tips—and so! Just a few months ago I met a young woman in town on a spending spree. She spoke of a winter home in Florida and another in Virginia.

Not so many years ago she had been a cigaret girl in a big New York hotel. Being attractive, holiday-minded business men would suggest theaters and night clubs. She was shrewd and frequently secured from them important information on the market. The boom came—and now she takes suites at the hotel where she once peddled smokes.

One of the art sensations of the year has been provided by Georgia O'Keeffe, whose flower paintings have given her international reputation. When her current big-town exhibition opened, it was discovered that she had turned to painting the dried skulls of animals found on the western plains. Which caused many an eyelid to lift.

But which isn't so unusual if you happen to know that Georgia O'Keeffe started life as a teacher in a little Texas town, having moved there from her birthplace in Sun Prairie, Wisconsin. She had always wanted to be an artist, and after studying with Chase in New York figured she had to make a living. When she had finished several sketches she sent them to a Manhattan friend for criticism. The friend became so enthusiastic that she at once arranged to have the pictures hung in a show.

Alfred Stieglitz, the great photographer, was called upon for an opinion.

And if you want your stories to have a happy ending—very well! Georgia O'Keeffe is Mrs. Stieglitz today.

Speaking of photographers reminds me that another famous camera artist, Steichen, maintains a studio looking down on Forty-second street. He believes newspaper cameramen get some of the most remarkable shots ever taken.

Steichen has many envelopes and desk drawers cluttered with clippings of new shots taken of disasters, famous personalities and action pictures. Particularly does he collect those subjects snapped when the persons were unaware of a photographer's presence and were caught with expressions that could never be duplicated.

EVERYWOMAN

If you know how to spend less than you get, then you have the Philosopher's Stone.

I'm sure you will never again wish to experience a wash day such as yesterday. Save your fingers from frost-bite by sending your clothes to the New Model Laundry where they will be washed as well as they are at home. Phone 8072.

When you wish to shred lettuce or cabbage use the kitchen shears. The job is done much better and more quickly this way than if you use a knife.

There's a "tailor made" method to cleaning to fit the fabrics you send to Dougan Dye Works. Phone 7155.

Don't forget to oil your vacuum cleaner and electric washer. Oiling keeps them in good condition and they wear longer.

Your car needs very special attention during the winter months. You will be thoroughly satisfied with results if you drive yours to the Depot Square Garage for repairs.

Secure for yourself a small inexpensive paint brush and use it for dusting in small corners or the windows. It gets in where a dust cloth or mop never could.

For the Prom and Masonic Ball you will need a pair of the eyelet mesh stockings from Hale's. They are in black and all light shades. $1.65.

Sprinkle fish with a little pancake flour instead of the usual corn meal and you will be delighted with the rich golden brown appearance after it is fried.

The sure way of getting satisfactory results in cooking, is to use the best ingredients obtainable. When the recipe calls for butter, use Brown's.

If you wish to give cookies a nice flavor, scatter bits of dried lemon peel in the cookie jar.

Honeydew melon balls make a delicious fruit cup for either first course or dessert.

It is sometimes difficult to persuade children to drink all the milk they require but if you use the Warranoke Farm product, with the fresh, rich, natural flavor, the children will need no coaxing.

The last two days have given you a good chance to test the quality of "blue coal." No doubt no other will satisfy you. If you have not already done so, order from W. G. Glenney 4149.

Four eggs to a quart, is the rule for proportion of egg to milk in making custards. Frozen custards should have an extra egg added for best results.

From Bryant and Chapman: "There was a time when milk was just milk. Very little or no attention was paid to its production or the manner in which it was handled and distributed. Then came pasteurization. This method, as it was done then, soon became known as a cure all for any and all milk. The Bryant and Chapman Co. soon became aware that there is more to a supply of good pasteurized milk than merely putting it through the pasteurization process. Pasteurization cannot make milk pure nor can it transform poor milk into good milk. The milk must be pure first then it must be kept clean and cold then it must be pasteurized as a further precaution and final safeguard against the possibility of contagious diseases. Every quart of milk sold by the Bryant and Chapman Co. is produced under conditions favorable to the production of good clean milk assured by the regular Farm Inspection Service, supervised and under approved laboratory control, which fact makes this milk very desirable and surpassed by none. Call 7697 for a quart a day. Try it for a week or a month and we know you will find it most satisfactory. You are cordially invited to stop in at our dairy in Hartford and see for yourself what we mean by scientifically pasteurized milk. Your visit will prove interesting and educational."

Well polished floors are indispensable if your home is to look attractive. At Olson's you can purchase all materials necessary, including liquid floor wax.

FLIERS MISSING San Francisco, Feb. 2.—(AP)—A search was ordered today for Lieutenant Edward D. Hoffman of Austin, Tex., and Lieutenant William A. Cooke, Jr., of Tacoma, Wash., who disappeared yesterday with an Army observation plane on a flight from Glendale to San Francisco.

Flying conditions were not good, and all commercial planes were grounded. Two hours after the plane left Glendale, a plane was reported passing over Visalia, Calif. It was not identified.

The two lieutenants were reserve officers on extended active duty. Cooke recently, in Hawaii, set world glider records for endurance and distance.

HEADS TRUSTEES Boston, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Bentley W. Warren, prominent attorney has been elected president of the board of trustees of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, it was announced today.

Warren, who succeeds Judge Frederick P. Cabot who died last month, is one of the original trustees of the orchestra.

MAKE HIGH PROMISES FOR "PIRATES" OPERA

Rehearsals for production of "The Pirates of Penzance" at the Manchester High school assembly hall, Feb. 12 continue to go forward as the musical organizations of the institution complete preparations. Gilbert and Sullivan, composers of the opera, came to America in 1879 to produce "Pinafore" exactly as it has been given in London. When presentation of "Pinafore" by numerous companies began to affect the "box office," the collaborators decided to write another opera and "The Pirates of Penzance" was the result.

The entire opera with the exception of a small part of act two was composed by Sullivan in his New York hotel room in less than a month. He wrote to his mother, "I think it will be a great success, for it is exquisitely funny and the music is strikingly tuneful and catching."

Judging from the response of the patrons, his judgment was correct. In connection with the presentation of the opera Feb. 12, the High School publicity bureau offers the following tidbits on members of the cast:

Do you remember Herbert McKinney the "Mikado"? As "Edward, Sergeant of Police," he will make you laugh until your sides ache.

Do you remember Gladys Wilson as "Yum Yum" in "The Mikado"? As "Mabel" in "The Pirates" she will do some coloratura singing of which even Lily Pons need not be ashamed.

Do you remember Julius Radding as "Fool Bah"? His interpretation of the part of the "Pirate King" will be even better.

EVERYMAN'S CLASS TO NAME ITS OFFICERS

Annual Meeting of Second Congregational Group to Be Held Tomorrow Evening.

Everyman's class, which meets each Sunday morning at 9:30 at the Second Congregational church, under the leadership of Joseph Wright, will hold its annual meeting for the election of officers tomorrow evening at the church. Chairman Frank V. Williams and his committee will put on a supper at 6:30, and judging by the advance sale of tickets there will be a good attendance of men from the North Main street churches and community.

The guest speaker will be Ian Dwyer, head of the commercial department of the Morse Business college. Mr. Dwyer has traveled extensively abroad and has taught in some of the important commercial schools of the country. He is an excellent speaker and the committee urges all members of the class and others interested to be on hand to hear him.

Suffrage leaders of Santiago, Chile, are campaigning to secure equal rights for women of all South American countries. There are suffrage organizations in all the principal countries of South America.

NEW HAVEN'S SAVINGS New Haven, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The wage agreement made between organized labor and the railroad presidents in Chicago yesterday may bring a possible saving of $4,269,324 to the New Haven road, it was estimated today although no official figures were available. President J. J. Peley is still in Chicago and there will be no information officially as to his road until his return.

Estimates made of savings include the reduction of compensation to about 23,000 persons on the system. An estimate of the present payroll is set at $42,693,425 for the year.

BOBLED RUNNERS BADLY INJURED

Three Germans Hurt When Their Sled Goes Off the Course at Lake Placid.

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 2.—(AP)—Careening down the icy bobled run on Mt. van Hoesenberg today, a German four-man sled with Captain Fritz Grau at the steering ropes jumped the slide at Shay Corner, critically injuring the captain and two other members of his team.

The sled was traveling about 60 miles an hour as it rounded the corner when it went out of control, broke the solid ice wall and catapulted the four men 100 feet down the rock-strewn, tree-studded slope of Mt. van Hoesenberg.

Gräu suffered a fractured left arm and possible internal injuries, Melifuth Hopman riding second, a fractured leg and severe head injuries and Albert Reahme, a possible skull fracture. Rudolph Krapki, fourth member of the team, appeared less seriously hurt. The first three were unconscious when received at the Lake Placid hospital.

Expert bob runners are of the opinion that the foreign sleds, with their round steel runners, must be discarded if there are not to be more serious accidents. The American sleds have flat runners and have little trouble sticking to the course.

AUTO PLANT SOLD

Bridgeport, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Lack of opposing bidders allowed the bondholders of the Locomobile Company of America represented by Fred D. Corey of Buffalo, N. Y., to take over the plant, grounds and all other property for $200,000, when foreclosure of a million dollar mortgage of the First National Bank and Trust Company, trustees caused an absolute sale this morning at 10 o'clock.

There was no competitive bidding, the opening bid of $200,000 being the figure at which the properties were sold. Attempts to sell the grounds in two separate parcels were unresponsive.

With the exception of a small northwestern corner of the "Liberty" building the entire grounds were taken over by the representative committee of the bondholders thereby protecting their interests. Fred D. Corey of Buffalo, W. H. Strong of New York, W. F. Parks and H. Harbman of New York were the members of the commission.

VICTIM IDENTIFIED

Waterbury, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The woman fatally injured by a hit and run driver in Naugatuck Sunday night has been identified as Mrs. Anna Rugattia, 54, of Strataville.

Detective Joseph Bendler and Alderman John Bendler, owners of a house in which she formerly lived, recognized the body where it lay in St. Mary's hospital unclaimed for 24 hours. Her husband and children had not missed her, believing she was visiting relatives in Waterbury. They said the $1200 found in her clothing had been drawn from a bank to pay off a mortgage on her home.

No clue to the driver of the automobile which struck her has been found.

NO SHADOW TODAY

New Haven, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Mr. Groundhog emerged from his hole today to find it snowing.

Moreover weather bureau officials forecast that he would be offered no opportunity to become sighted at his shadow, to return to his hole for prolonged winter weather. The over-cast skies will remain.

As if to carry out his prophecy of Spring the bureau reported a higher temperature today than yesterday and said starting tonight the temperature would rise rapidly. The snow was expected to turn to rain during the afternoon.

A minimum temperature of 20 was reported today as compared with 17 yesterday.

FARMERS ASK RELIEF

Washington, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Thirty men who styled themselves "just farmers from the forks of the crick come in to tell Congress the condition we're in" went to the Capitol today to press their demands for farm relief legislation.

The delegation was made up of members of the Farmers Union from western agricultural states. A spokesman said they intended to stay in Washington until legislation for their relief is enacted. He said they were particularly interested in a bill by Senator Thomas (D., Okla.), which would "abolish the Federal Farm Board and secure to the farmer a price for agricultural products at least equal to the cost of production."

LESS TROLLEY TRAFFIC

Hartford, Feb. 2.—(AP)—A falling off in passenger trolley traffic in the city of Hartford during 1931 was shown yesterday in the payment to City Treasurer George H. Gabb of $37,443.33 by the Connecticut Company. This amount is two percent of the gross fares and is paid under the Tucker Grant through which the city collect excise tax for use of its streets by the trolleys.

The payment was the lowest since 1919 and $263,000 less than for 1930.

OLD BUILDING BURNS

Cheshire, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The 100 year old building known as the John White place in the southern part of the town burned early today with damage estimated at $12,000. The home was unoccupied. Miss Precilla Crane of New York the owner is in Europe and a family of relatives who believed living there recently left for the south about two weeks ago. Mrs. Crane was expected back about March 1.

JAPAN'S SKY ROCKET RISE

BY ROBERT TALLEY

© 1932 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of six timely stories on Japan of today, and the island empire's amazingly rapid rise from a primitive state to first-class world power in the short span of 70-odd years.

BY ROBERT TALLEY
NEA Service Writer

Across the map of the Orient falls the menacing shadow of a race of little brown men—the Japanese.

There are about 60,000,000 of them in Japan proper. On the average, they are only five feet three inches tall. They have almond-shaped eyes, coarse black hair and very little, if any, beard. About 230,000 are Christians—the rest are mostly Buddhists or Shinto ancestor-worshippers.

There is an island empire, corresponding to Asia just as England corresponds to Europe. They are progressive, well educated and inspired with a pride of race that becomes a semi-fanatical form of patriotism. The teachings of centuries have made them so.

They have the third largest navy in the world, being exceeded only by England and America. They are one of the largest and best equipped armies in the world. Their industrial system is a marvel, their great merchant fleets sail every sea, their railroads carry a large part of Asia's commerce, their mills and factories are as modern—and as extensive—as any in the world.

They have everything that any nation could want, except one thing: Foreign trade.

They must have foreign trade to live. Without it they will starve. No matter what the cost, this island empire of commerce and industry must have sources of raw material for the factories and foreign markets as an outlet for the goods it makes.

True, the choice part of this island empire is crowded, but there is still lots of room in the undeveloped hinterlands.

It draws from feeds on and sells to the vast, weak land that is China. The Chinese, fearful of being gobbled up by this modern and aggressive little neighbor, declared an economic boycott against Japan's goods. That act cut at the very lifeblood of Japan. The warfare that followed was inevitable.

With Gandhi-like passiveness, China's unaccounted millions dealt Japan a body blow. If you want to cast aside all considerations of justice, etc., and get right down to the cold economics of things, you must admit that there was nothing else for Japan to do but fight—or starve.

At the same time, they are cocky and ruthless. Their history has made them so. In a little over 75 years—within the lifetime of many men who are living today—the Japanese have progressed from a nation of semi-barbarians to a world power.

There is nothing comparable to it in all history.

Since 1853, when Commodore Perry and his American gunboats entered Uraga harbor and demanded that the empire trade with the world—ceasing forever its policy of isolation—Japan has progressed farther than America progressed between the days of Christopher Columbus and Theodore Roosevelt. Only the notion of a skyrocket can be likened to that of this ancient race which, after sleeping centuries as a hermit empire, finally rose with screaming suddenness to find its place in the sun.

The story goes back a long, long way.

Centuries before Christ, the forebears of these islanders crossed from the Asiatic mainland. They conquered the savage island tribes, but—like the Danes and others who invaded ancient England—were absorbed by them. Thus, a new race was born.

Through long dead centuries they lived practically unmolested by the rest of the world. They had their own civilization.

In the 17th century, the galleons of Europe began to seek trade in the remote Pacific. In the wake of trade, came Christian missionaries. Emperor Iyeyasu encouraged foreign trade, but viewed the missionary enterprise as a political danger that would pave the way for foreign aggression.

Upon the emperor's death in 1616, his son issued an edict against Christianity. All foreign priests and all other foreigners were expelled, punishable by death by burning, for any Japanese to become a Christian or to deal with Christian missionaries.

Many missionaries refused to leave Japan. Many Japanese refused to give up their newly acquired Christian faith. Ancient Japanese history speaks mysteriously of 200,000 persons being "punished." Catholic church records list 1400 to 1500 martyrs; there are definite records that 11 foreign priests were burned to death and 300 others beheaded.

Intermittent trading, principally with the Dutch and Portuguese, continued, but in 1636 came an imperial decree that no Japanese vessel should leave Japan's shores and no Japanese subject should go abroad under pain of death.

Two years later, even the Portuguese were barred on the claim that they brought missionaries. Four Portuguese envoys, bearing costly presents for the emperor, were sent to explain. The envoys, with 37 of their companions, were beheaded by the Japanese. The emperor spared 13 survivors and sent them back with this message:

"Think no more of us, just as if we were no longer in the world."

In the flush of America's expansion that followed victory in the War of 1812, American whaling ships began to penetrate the far Pacific. When they attempted to enter Japanese ports for water and supplies, they were driven away by gunfire. Shipwrecked sailors, cast ashore on Japan, were put to death.

The government at Washington decided something had to be done. It sent Commodore Perry—apparently with no more definite instructions than to use his own judgment in effecting a settlement.

With four ships and 560 men, Perry entered Uraga harbor on July 8, 1853. He bore a letter from President Fillmore, asking for a commercial treaty. It was addressed to the emperor and encased in a gold box worth $1000.

With four foreign warships in the harbor, the natives—who had not seen more than two foreign ships together since the Mongol invasions—were terror stricken. Japanese histories describe the wild scene; the town was in an uproar, men ran for safety with their aged mothers on their backs, the emperor caused prayers to be offered at several shrines for "the destruction of the barbarians."

Determined to remain isolated, the Japanese prepared to fight. But they soon realized the futility of such a course.

Commodore Perry was received. There were long negotiations. He did not get what he wanted then—but he got it later.

In the following February, Perry returned with 19 ships and 2000 men. After six weeks of dickering with the Japanese, he finally got his treaty of peace and friendship between Japan and America. In a short time, commercial treaties followed.

It was not possible to refuse other powers the same concessions. Therefore, Russia, Holland, France and England soon got similar treaties.

After 250 years of strict isolation, Japan—under the guns of the American navy—had at last thrown open its doors to the world.

Coincidentally began the swift rise of a primitive nation that—within a single lifetime—was destined to become a world power.

TOMORROW: The bows and arrows, the curved swords and the suits of armor that formed the genesis of Japan's powerful army of today. . . . The shipwrecked English sailor who showed them how to build their first large ships. . . . The story of the third largest navy in the world.

COVENTRY

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Carver of Rockville spent Sunday with their mother, Mrs. S. Noble Loomis.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weigold and 2 children of Storrs attended church in Coventry. Mrs. Weigold was formerly Miss Vida Whitman of this town.

Mrs. Arthur B. Porter has recovered from an attack of grip and is able to be around the house. Mrs. Leon Austin is still confined to her home with a severe cold.

The Board of Trustees of the Second Congregational Church met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Arthur B. Porter.

The Ladies Fragment Society will meet Tuesday at the home of Mrs. John E. Kingsbury to finish up the clothing started at the last meeting.

East Central Pomona will meet Wednesday at Yeomans Hall, Columbia.

Coventry Grange No. 75 P. of H. will hold its regular meeting in their hall with their new Lecturer, Sister Camilla Highter in the chair. The program is centered on education. Miss Grace Davoll will talk on "What a Community expects of a teacher." Miss Frances Fascesca will discuss—"What a teacher expects of a community and Miss Catherine

Shea will tell about "How much help can we expect children who are attending school to give at home." The meeting will then be open for general discussion. Friday evening choir rehearsal will be held at the home of Mrs. John E. Kingsbury at 7:30 p. m. The 4-H Coventry Sunshine Cookers will meet at the home of their leader Mrs. Clarence Fiske Friday afternoon directly after school.

Mrs. Eva Koehler spent the weekend with her parents, Miss Cora Kingsbury spent Friday, Saturday and Sunday at her home.

Mrs. Ernest Gowdy was called to Somerville Sunday, due to the illness of her aunt.

Several ladies in town attended the Farm Bureau meeting on Fenemal Gardens" held in Yeomans Hall last Wednesday. The next lesson will be held with the Mansfield Ladies. Prof. Wilkinson is giving the instructions.

LESS THAN A WEEK!

San Francisco—A trip that would have taken our grandfathers about eight months to complete was recently made by Norman L. Waggoner, San Francisco produce man. He made the trip from London to this city in six days, using the Bremen Southampton to New York, and a 31-hour plane hop from Gotham to the Golden Gate.

COLUMBIA

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Squier and Marshall Squier attended the automobile Show in Hartford Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hurlburt and daughter Fannie Belle, have gone to their former home in Charleston, W. Va., to attend the graduation of their daughter Marion.

Mrs. Ruth Jacobs has gone to Windham to care for a patient.

A. E. Wilkinson, representing the U. S. Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with Tolland County Farm Bureau, gave the first lesson in a series on perennial gardens at Yeomans Hall Wednesday afternoon. A large audience representing Columbia, Andover, Coventry and Mansfield were present. The second in the series will be held on Monday Feb. 15th, probably at Mansfield Center.

Mrs. Lucy Clarke, who is spending the winter in New Haven at the home of her son, celebrated her 94th birthday Tuesday. She is enjoying good health at present, having recently recovered from an attack of bronchitis which confined her to her bed for three weeks.

Frederick Hunt played in an orchestra in Andover Tuesday evening at the Community Night Entertainment.

Great excitement was caused in the Chestnut Hill section of Columbia early Friday afternoon, when a two seater Corsair bi-plane made a forced landing on a field belonging to Henry Hutchins, within a few feet of the Jonathan Trumbull Highway. The plane was the 'Anacostia' owned by the U. S. Navy and piloted by Lieut. Commander Gordon Rowe of Washington, D. C., who was on route from Boston to Hartford.

The second seat of the plane was occupied by Radio Engineer R. S. Milne of Philadelphia. On account of the fog and poor visibility the pilot found it necessary to land, and in so doing, the landing gear hit the stone wall bounding the field, causing the plane to turn completely over and come to rest upside down. Residents in the vicinity, who witnessed the crash rushed to the scene, and were greatly relieved to find the two men crawling out from beneath the overturned plane. The pilot escaped injury, but Mr. Milne cut about the face. The landing gear and propeller were badly injured. A truck from the Chance Vought Corporation of East Hartford, makers of the plane, soon arrived, and the plane was turned right side up, and loaded on the truck and taken to Hartford for repairs, early in the morning. It was in this same section that a mail plane made a forced landing some years ago on account of the fog. A ridge of hills to the west of the town on which the fog settles, appears to be a menace to air travel in bad weather.

On the Honor Roll for the third working period of the Windham High School are the following pupils from Columbia: 90 per cent or over: Leonard German of the Junior Class; 80 per cent or over, Seniors: Joseph Kaplan, Jack Rubenstein, Douglas Young; Juniors: Richard Arnold; Sophomores: Milton Tomchin, Jasper Woodward, John Zurzyk, Wilhelmina German; Freshmen: David Hunt, Vestcott Rice, Margaret Badge, Frieda Tashlik, Mary Taylor. The Young Married Women's Club met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Laura Robinson on Post Hill.

Considerable interest in checkers is shown among some of the men of Columbia and vicinity, and Thursday evening several of them gathered at the home of Raymond Squier for a few hours of the game. Among the players and spectators were Mr. Elmer Fultz and Clayton Williams of Lebanon, Mr. Bernard and Fred Abell, Wm. Macht, Jr., H. W. Porter and Mason Nuhrer.

Miss Marion Comstock of Hartford attended the whist at the Town

Hall Friday evening and spent the night with her sister, Miss Ruth Comstock.

Miss Myrtle Collins has returned after spending several days in East Hartford.

The second in a series of whists given by the Center School for their Radio fund was given Friday evening in the Town Hall, with 7 tables in play. The first prizes were won by Mrs. Daisy Tatro and Wm. Webster, and the consolation prizes by Mrs. Ida Newberry and Mrs. Evelyn Williams, the latter playing as a man. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served after the play.

Mrs. Emily Cobb of Andover spent the weekend at the home of Mrs. Curtis A. Holmes.

Miss Marie Field returned home Sunday afternoon after a few days spent in the Hartford hospital following a tonsil operation.

The teachers of the town attended a teachers' meeting in Willimantic Saturday morning, at which the teachers of Eastern Connecticut were present.

Miss Doris Leger, teacher of the Hop Village school, spent the weekend at her home in Somersville.

Clayton E. Hunt, Star Route mail carrier between here and Willimantic, attended the banquet of the Service Relations Council of the Millimantic Post Office, at Windham, Saturday evening. The banquet was a testimonial to John Smith, who is retiring after 40 years of service as letter carrier from the Willimantic Post Office, being one of the four original carriers to be sent out from that office.

Perfect in attendance for the month of January at the Chestnut Hill School were Francis Hutchins, Myron Berkewitz, and Celia Berkewitz.

The Ladies Aid Society of Columbia has been invited to meet with the Hebrew Society Wednesday afternoon, in celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the latter society. The meeting will be held in the church rooms from 3 to 5.

A short one act pre-Lenten play "Naked Evil" will be given at the Columbia Church Sunday evening, February 7. Gamaliel the Rabban studies Barabbas the Robber, leading up to the time of his release and the sacrifice of Christ. The characters include: Clayton E. Hunt, Philip Islem, Rev. A. W. Mellinger, William Wolf and Raymond Lyman.

The monthly meeting of the Trinity County Christian Union was held at the Columbia church Sunday evening. Gaylord Douglas spoke on "The disarmament conference—the world's opportunity." Sandwiches and coffee were served by the Christian Endeavor Society assisted by the local Ladies Aid Society.

Perfect in attendance for the Center School for January were Mary Szegeia, Sophie Szegeia, Sylvia Tashlik, Blanche Tashlik, Ruth Tashlik, Irene Siegel, Irving Siegel, Jack Siegel, Carol Lyman, Jade Lyman, Margaret Lescoe, Lucy Derosta, Shirley Trythall.

VESSELS IN DISTRESS

Boston, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The Coast Guard cutters Mojave and Frederick Lee, answering calls for assistance from two fishing vessels, combed the waters of Georges Banks and Massachusetts coast through the night without finding a trace of either ship.

The Boston fishing trawler Patrick J. O'Hara radioed for help yesterday. The Mojave was sent to her aid but on reaching her position was unable to locate her. It was believed that rough conditions along the coast might have caused the trawler, which reported a broken rudder, to drift from her given position.

The O'Hara, commanded by Captain James Dinn, carried a crew of 23 men. The O'Hara gave a position about 250 miles from Boston.

A second fishing vessel was reported disabled about 12 miles off Thatchers Island, off Gloucester. The cutter Frederick Lee, dispatched to the assistance of the boat, which was not identified, was unable to find the craft at her reported position.

A Cold

Colds are common because people are careless. Prompt use of Bayer Aspirin will always check a cold. Or relieve your cold at any stage. And genuine Bayer Aspirin can't hurt you. Take two tablets of Bayer Aspirin at the first indication of a cold, and that's usually the end of it. If every symptom hasn't disappeared in a few hours, repeat. Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart. Take enough to give complete relief. And if your throat is sore, dissolve some tablets in water and gargle away all soreness. In every package of genuine Bayer Aspirin are proven directions for colds, headaches, sore throat, neuralgia, neuritis. Millions who used to suffer have found winter comfort in Bayer Aspirin.

THREE KINDS OF LOVE by KAY CLEAVER STRAHAN

CHAPTER XLVIII
Rosalie occasionally inserted an explanatory phrase; Ann interrupted once or twice, Cecily asked several questions; but, on the whole, the three women sat right at the head of the bed and talked on and on and on. And even after he had imprinted a kiss on Ann's brow, and another on the top of Cecily's head, she had not stirred. Finally Ann said, "Well, it had the effect of having been dropped from a height to a hard place, thought it landed in fair order."

Cecily asked, "Do you feel as foolish as I feel?"
"Pushed out of the nest," said Ann.
They smiled together then, but not happily; fearfully, rather, and shamefully.
"Nothing, I'm stunned. I'm flat. What do you think?"

"I'm afraid to stir off of this sofa. I wouldn't pinch myself for a dollar."
He had the receipt. You made him show it to you. Ciss, you were dreadful."
"Let me see it, before I even had it in my hand. She looked at the receipt and announced, as good news, and added, "Barry left at half-past 12."

"I don't know how to say much of anything," Cecily dared to get out of the sofa, though she did not pinch herself. "I'm going to be sort of mysterious—a leaf from Rosalie's book. Barry will loathe it. Oh, fun! But I'll tell him to come on Saturday."

Rosalie had said that was pleasant than an expensive hotel. That it combined the qualities of the best hotels and the best private homes and was neither. That it was beautifully furnished, with a guaranteed temperature of 72 throughout the winter, and a charming, quaint dining room with two tables for two, and larger tables, if one desired them, and each table had a sweet little pink-shaded light on it.

Cecily had interrupted somewhere about there, and had remarked that it took quantities of money to buy livings in places of that sort. Unheeding, Grand had gone on and on. Perhaps Ann had not attended as well as she should have attended. Five years and years, Grand had said. Rosalie and he had gladly, more than gladly, indeed, made a home for their girls. There had been so much of that—so much of the home that he and Rosalie had gladly made for girls who had loved their home so deeply that they were reticent about leaving it.

MUSCULAR-RHEUMATIC PAINS
DRAW them out with a "Counter-Irritant." Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness—generally respond to good old Musterole. Doctors call it a "counter-irritant" because its warming action penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. It gets action and is not just a salve. But do not stop with one application. Apply this soothing, cooling, healing ointment generously to the affected area once every hour for five hours. Used by millions for over 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

THREE KINDS OF LOVE

by KAY CLEAVER STRAHAN

CHAPTER XLVIII

Rosalie occasionally inserted an explanatory phrase; Ann interrupted once or twice, Cecily asked several questions; but, on the whole, the three women sat watching and listening with grand kept right at it, standing on the hearth rug and talking on and on and on. And even after he had imprinted a kiss on Ann's brow, and another on the top of Cecily's head, and another on the cheek of Rosalie, he had quivered his voice into the words, "God bless you, my darlings, God bless you," and had gone from the room with Rosalie, who was trying to weep, Ann and Cecily continued sitting still and saying nothing. Finally Ann said, "Well, it had the effect of having been dropped from a height to a hard place, thought it landed in fair order."

Cecily asked, "Do you feel as foolish as I feel?"

"Pushed out of the nest," said Ann.

They smiled together then, but not happily, fearfully, rather, and shamefully.

"No, but really," Cecily said, "what do you think of it?"

"Nothing," Ann said. "I'm flat. What do you think?"

"I'm afraid to stir off of this sofa. I wouldn't pinch myself for a dollar."

"He had the receipt. You made him show it to you. Ciss, you were dreadful!"

"Yes, and you said, 'Let me see it,' before I even had it in my hand. She looked at her watch and announced, as good news, and added, 'Barry left at half-past 12.'

"I couldn't sleep," Ann said.

"Cissy, let's see if we can't find a few words and put them together and talk."

"It would be fun," Cecily suggested, "to telephone to the boys. They've had time to get home."

"So late?" said Ann.

"Fun!" said Cecily.

"But what would we say?" Ann mused. "I mean—what could we say over the telephone? Where could we begin?"

"I'm not going to say much of anything," Cecily dared to get off the sofa, though she did not pinch herself. "I'm going to be sort of mysterious—a leaf from Rosalie's book. Barry will loathe it. Oh, fun! But I'll tell him to come on Saturday."

"Yes," said Ann, and stood. "I think I'll just tell Phil."

Ann looked timidly across the room to the exact spot on the hearth rug where Grand had stood, at least, she thought, he had stood with his hand on his chest, his round white beard moving gently with his words, his head nodding his periods. He had said, unmistakably, while Cissy there on the horsehair sofa pouted and looked annoyed, the littlest desire of his life and of Rosalie's life had ever been to see their darlings married to good, worthy men who loved them and whom they loved in return. So much was true and easy to believe. But—going on from there?

Rosalie had said that it was pleasanter than an expensive hotel. That it combined the qualities of the best hotels and the best private homes and was neither. That it was beautifully furnished, with a guaranteed temperature of 72 throughout the winter, and a charming, quaint dining room with wee tables for two, and larger tables, if one desired them, and each table had a sweet little pink-shaded light on it.

Cecily had interrupted somewhere about there, and had remarked that it took quantities of money to buy livings in places of that sort.

Unhappily, Grand had gone on and on. Perhaps Ann had not attended as well as she should have attended. She was tired out and sleepy. For years and years, Grand had said, Rosalie and he had gladly, more than made, indeed, made a home for their girls. There had been so much of that—so much of the home that he and Rosalie had gladly made for girls who had loved their home so deeply that they were reticent about leaving it. "Times," he had said, "and Ann and Cecily were being stern about timid feet and reticence, and was comparing them with self-reliance, and had seemed to contrast—contrast with love, and ladies who knew their own minds, and, suddenly, had roundly denounced from out of whole cloth, coquettes and flirts.

Presently Ann had noticed that Cecily looked odd, and pink, and pucker faced, though Grand had said only, in so far as Ann had heard, that he and Rosalie were past middle age. He went on to say, as Ann listened more intently, that they feared, eye, almost, he dreaded another winter in this great, cold, draughty place, with the hardships and insufficiency of fuel. He feared for Rosalie's health, Rosalie feared for his health—a recurrence of last winter's serious, all but fatal illness. Fear, however, would not force them to evade their duty. Never had their duty been evaded. They were not, now, evading it. As Mr. Carmichael had pointed out—one must be able to discern where one's real duty lay.

Eagles pushed their eaglets from the nest, but few beneath them with outstretched wings to catch them should they fall. The home was here. He and Rosalie would be near their darlings, in fact, and as it sprang beneath them should their wings grow weak—ready to give advice, to help catch them should they fall. He and Rosalie had waited now, patiently and long. They had made money for the livings in May at a time when the vacancy had occurred, and at a time when their darlings' futures had seemed planned and secure. They had waited. They had not complained.

Cecily, so recently scolded concerning reticence had, here, spoken right out. "You have paid the money for the livings? Paid it in May? Did they give you a receipt? May I see it?"

Grand had taken the paper from his old bill folder and had shown it, and Ann had read it word for word with her own eyes.

Mr. Carmichael, his friend, his dear friend, his good friend, had advanced the necessary amount. "Six thousand dollars!" Cecily had gasped. "But why should he—why would he lend such a lot of money?"

"Friendship, kindness, solicitude, for his friends' health. Generosity. The Golden Rule. Any number of reasons. Grand added, however, with a sort of light pride, that he had insisted upon Mr. Carmichael's taking the mansion and the grounds how entire estate, in fact—as a pledge for the amount he had advanced.

Rosalie had said, "Merely a pledge. Not a mortgage nor—anything disagreeable of that sort. I pledge, you know, dears, you understand?"

The dears either knew and understood or pretended that they did so.

Ann had thought, "All the time—I wonder for how long they have hated it just as Cissy and I have hated it. That is funny. Or—is it funny? Odd that Cissy doesn't laugh. I must not laugh. It would be rude to laugh. I'll wait to laugh."

Ann had said, "Yes, Grand," and, "Surely, and," of course, to his plan concerning Mary-Frances.

She would, he presumed, make her home with Philip and Ann. He did insist, however, he must insist that, as often as once a week, at least, Mary-Frances should come to him and to Rosalie and present to them, as Ann and Cecily had always presented, her girlish problems (if any existed), her youthful hopes, her maiden aspirations.

Ann looked at Ann, and he looked at Ann, and she looked at Ann. He and Rosalie had ever been to see their darlings married to good, worthy men who loved them and whom they loved in return. So much was true and easy to believe. But—going on from there?

Rosalie had said that it was pleasanter than an expensive hotel. That it combined the qualities of the best hotels and the best private homes and was neither. That it was beautifully furnished, with a guaranteed temperature of 72 throughout the winter, and a charming, quaint dining room with wee tables for two, and larger tables, if one desired them, and each table had a sweet little pink-shaded light on it.

Cecily had interrupted somewhere about there, and had remarked that it took quantities of money to buy livings in places of that sort.

Unhappily, Grand had gone on and on. Perhaps Ann had not attended as well as she should have attended. She was tired out and sleepy. For years and years, Grand had said, Rosalie and he had gladly, more than made, indeed, made a home for their girls. There had been so much of that—so much of the home that he and Rosalie had gladly made for girls who had loved their home so deeply that they were reticent about leaving it. "Times," he had said, "and Ann and Cecily were being stern about timid feet and reticence, and was comparing them with self-reliance, and had seemed to contrast—contrast with love, and ladies who knew their own minds, and, suddenly, had roundly denounced from out of whole cloth, coquettes and flirts.

"Tommy, stop that jerking."

"What jerking?"

"Every minute or so you go this way. Thomas' mother hitched up a shoulder with a sort of one-sided shrug. "You'll grow crooked if you keep on, besides it looks bad."

Tommy hitched.

"There you go again."

"Did I? I didn't mean to."

"I know—you do it unconsciously, but get your mind on it and stop. Doesn't your teacher ever say anything about it?"

"She used to but I guess I stopped."

"Don't start again. I can't see why you would be nervous. You're not sick."

That night Uncle Port came in. And he hitched his shoulder.

"Port, I never noticed you doing that. Do you do it much?"

"Hitching up your shoulder. Tommy's been doing it and I hope he isn't going to inherit a bad habit."

"I don't hitch my shoulder. What are you talking about?"

"There you go again."

"Did I? Well, I've got on a pair of suspenders. I got so after I was sick I couldn't wear a belt. So maybe I do it because—oh well, I don't know. I suppose they rub or something and I give a hoist up to loosen them."

"Tommy got worse. Both mother and teacher were after him now. He was hitching that little pin of a shoulder every second or two."

Then Blinking Began

Everybody became worried. He was marched off to the doctor and

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

If you are in a dancing mood these winter evenings, you know the care you should take to be perfectly groomed and dainty.

Nothing can kill the enjoyment of a good dance more quickly than a partner with a bad breath.

Be sure yours isn't in the same condition?

The worst offender, when it comes to causes for bad breath, is a bad digestion. You simply can't feel like a million and be as dainty as a flower when your digestive tract isn't tracking!

You should make every effort to establish good health habits. If you choose your diet properly, get enough outdoor exercise and plenty of sleep, you shouldn't have to load yourself up with medicine. But, if things just don't seem to suit your digestion and if your bodily functions aren't working properly, it is an excellent idea to consult a physician to get a diet to go to work on.

One woman I know who had trouble with bad breath started the following regime last October: Upon arising she took two cups of hot water. Then, putting four oranges in the pocket of her sports coat, she borrowed the police dog next door and started for a three-mile trek around the bay near her home. On the way she ran a little bit with the dog pulling the leash ahead of her. She ate her oranges in leisurely manner. Returning, she had her breakfast of fruit juice, coffee, toast and two soft boiled eggs or some bacon and eggs, and then ate nothing more until dinner, with the exception of a cup of broth, a glass of tomato juice or sauer-kraut juice or some other liquid about one-thirty.

Today she has excellent color there in her life and zest in her eyes, and her entire system is cleaned and in perfect condition. You may not be able to get quite such a regime worked out. But if you are earnest, you can see to it that your breath is sweet.

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famed Authority.

JAUNDICE RESULTS WHEN BILE IS NOT PROPERLY ELIMINATED

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Jaundice merely refers to the yellow color of the skin and the other tissues of the body due to abnormal content in the blood of material derived from bile. Bile is the material which is found in the gallbladder, but which is developed in the liver. The liver is the largest organ in the body. In the liver the broken-down material from red blood cells is converted and sent to the gallbladder through the bile channels. When the bile is not properly eliminated the person develops a sallow complexion with slight yellowness of the whites of the eyes, the undersurface of the tongue, and occasionally of the palms of the hands and the soles of the feet. In some cases the entire body may be yellow.

Jaundice, therefore, results from an excessive formation of bile material, from damage to the liver so that the liver cells do not pour out the bile, but let it get back into the blood, and finally from obstruction to the excretion of bile through the bile tract.

In case of obstruction due to stones in the gallbladder or to other conditions which block the bile passages, the method of treatment is obviously an attempt to unblock the passages by surgical or by other means. In certain infectious diseases the amount of bile formed may be so excessive as to throw undue burden on the liver and bile passages.

The toxic type of case in which there has been damage to the liver, demands the most careful study as to the cause of the damage and as to the elimination of such cases if the condition is to be cured. The cause may be an infection, it may be the result of poisoning with various metals, or with the by-products of bile formation.

In any instance the toxic substances must be eliminated. For instance, in jaundice due to intoxication by arsenic, it is customary first to stop the administration of the arsenic, and second to give a preparation which counteracts the arsenic. In case of infection, treatment must be directed toward building the body's resistance to the infection. When the infection is overcome the jaundice disappears.

Mexico City.—Don't fly over Mexico unless you have a permit. This country has issued a decree that no American aviators shall fly over Mexico without permission. Commanders at border points have been given orders to "forcibly ground planes that disobey the order."

LEFT HOLDING SACK

Denver, Col.—Police caught Lee Fernandez after the theft of $150 worth of silverware from the shop of Mrs. Louise N. Tasher. They found a bag containing the silver in his room. Lee explained that he was standing outside the shop when a burglar ran out and stuck the bag in his hands. Police didn't believe his story.

MUSCULAR-RHEUMATIC PAINS

DRAW them out with a "counter-irritant." Muscular lumbago, soreness, rheumatism, etc., correspond to good old Musterole. Doctors call it a "counter-irritant" because its warming action penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. It gets action and is not just a salve. But do not stop with one application. Apply this soothing, cooling, healing ointment generously to the affected area once every hour for five hours. Used by millions for over 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Sausage Recipes

Strange how unwilling some people are to give recipes. We can understand it of course if it is something they sell or specialize on, or if the knowledge of such formulas makes their services of particular value to their employer. In conversation with one of the market men the other day about sausage and the great difference in commercial brands as well as that prepared every day or two for the local trade, he told me of a butcher whom he once employed and who mixed up excellent sausage meat, but who carefully guarded his recipe, and in fact never would allow the proprietor or other clerks to see him do it. I told him of clipping a prize-winning recipe which won for the sender an extended trip, and he said if I could find it he would be glad to experiment with a batch. Search in cookbooks and card indexes fails to produce it. It was several years ago that this contest was held by some organization, or meat packer and some one else may have saved it.

An excellent housekeeper suggests the following pace setter if you find it hard to get through your housework and have time for leisure. Decide just how long it will take to do up the house then set an alarm clock that will check up on your efficiency. Right through the whole day keep estimating how long it should take you. You'll probably find, she says, that you have stopped to read this and that or to phone somebody or to look at something else. The trick to getting leisure is to concentrate on getting your work done, then be free to enjoy yourself. A few days of alarm clocking will set the pace.

STOMACH UPSET

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets help arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions people rarely suffer from indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested food? Try Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without grinding, cramps or pain. All druggists. 15c, 50c and 60c.

Evening Herald Pattern

By Anabelle Worthington

If young daughter is aching to try her skill at dressmaking, let her launch into sewing with this new caplet pajama.

It's such a darling little affair, she'll enjoy so much making it. And it's so simple to put it together.

A rayon novelty is very attractive to fashion it and very inexpensive. Tiny lace tabs finish the youthful neckline. The cape may be picot-edged or rolled in tiny hem, just as you please about it.

It's luxuriously lovely in sheer velvet, plain or printed crepe silk and crepe satin.

Style No. 2621 may be had in sizes 11, 13, 15 and 17 years. Size 15 requires 3 1/2 yards 36-inch.

Germany Chief Threat In The Bob-Sledding

Lack of Good Weather and Ice Has Handicapped Selections of United States Team; Zahn Is Injured.

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 2.—(AP)—The United States must fight off a most serious campaign challenge headed by Germany's crack sledgers, if the sole Olympic title were able to win in 1928 on the bob sleigh run at St. Moritz is to be retained.

The serious injury Sunday to Captain Werner Zahn, for the past 15 years a famous international bob competitor in a practice run on the Olympic slide, unfortunately has incapacitated one of the finest of sportsmen and one of the most dangerous competitors in the run.

The German squad still has Hans Kilian who captained a four-man team that defeated Zahn's team last year.

Rene Fonjalas on one team and the youthful Capadrutti, on another will lead two capable Swiss teams and men such as Count Rossa, and Agostino and Gaetano Lanfranchi of Italy will force the winning four to the limit.

Everywhere through the list of invaders we find names of international renown in the bob sleighing.

Poor weather conditions and lack of ice on the slide made choice of the U. S. entries a nightmare. Our only line was past performance, bringing forth Harry Homberger's world record holding four and Billy Fiske's champions in the 1928 Olympics, as the logical choices for the two entries allowed us. However, if any American team in practice between now and Feb. 5 can definitely prove itself superior to either of these two combinations there will be a place for that team in the Olympics as one of the United States representatives.

DEMPSEY BEATS TWO IN STOCKTON

Stockton, Calif., Feb. 2.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey started his second barnstorming tour which many believe will lead him to a comeback campaign by easily defeating two opponents here last night.

He stopped "Bad News" Johnson, 195, of Ekersfield, Calif., in the third round after flooring him five times and gave Wally Hunt, 200, Los Angeles a terrific beating.

Five Years Ago Today—Fifteen thousand persons cheered Alan E. Helfrich, New York, when the middle distance star, in his fifth straight victory in the Millrose 600 of the 20th annual Millrose A. A. games. Helfrich's time was 1:13 4-5.

Why don't that crowd of unemployed Father Cox has lined up trying to get jobs as "ball players" judging from the holdouts, there won't be enough players in the big leagues this year to make up a good nine.

With the weather and all being what it is, those Olympic winter games athletes at Lake Placid ought to do their stunts this year in bathing suits.

A promoter used to be a fellow who went around hunting for a couple of game fighters to put on a bout. Now it's the boxers who go around hunting for a game guy to promote a bout.

A wrestler is a guy who usually limps on his right foot after his left leg has been twisted out of joint by his opponent.

If the crooning business is falling off, as some critics have suggested, Rudy Vallee might jip the ranks of the crooning umpires.

Shaver Topped Coast Scorers

Southern California's varsity co-quarterbacks, Gus Shaver and Orv Mohler, contributed 190 points, more than half of the Trojan total in the 1931 grid season. Shaver was good for 18 touchdowns and four touchdown conversions, 100 points, while Mohler contributed 15 touchdowns, 90 points.

To Sing Here

Soldier Caruso

Soldier Caruso, widely known exercise man and one of the greatest outdoor singers in this country, will appear and sing at the game when the Renaissance plays here tonight. Caruso who received honors by Scotti at the test given recently in the Philharmonic Auditorium in Los Angeles, Calif., was formerly with the Redpath Lyceum Bureau. Due to disabilities incurred in service, which necessitates crutches, appearances on the concert stage have been denied him. Hence for the last eight years he has made hundreds of appearances at the largest sports events in this country in the interest of funds for various relief drives.

Pictured above is the Renaissance basketball team, world's colored champions, who have made a most enviable record in the United States during the past six years. Tonight they come to Manchester to play the Rec Five.

FEW MODERN OLYMPIC HEROES

Baron Pierre de Coubertin, mustached little man shown above, fathered the Olympic games revival and afforded hundreds of athletes the chance to win international fame. Four of the champions were Bartholomew, Canada's high hurdles winner in 1920; H. M. Abrahams, top center, Great Britain's sprint champion in 1924; Jim Thorpe, right, all-around champion for the United States in 1912; and Paavo Nurmi, lower center, Finland's sensational distance champion of 1920, '24 and '28.

PERENNIAL MATT

From New York comes the news that the Olympic urge has stirred the blood of Matt McGrath, hero of four Olympics and a deputy inspector now. That suggests at once that one of the Olympic events should be a bricktossing contest. McGrath surely would win.

A couple of years back, McGrath gave pursuit to an Italian who had just killed a man. The fugitive had leaped onto a barge. McGrath jumped to another barge which happened to be loaded with bricks. The famous Olympic weight and hammer tosser started moving the brick pile, one by one, in the direction of the culprit. As the missiles rained down about the Italian's ears, he surrendered, tossing his revolver into the water. McGrath's name was placed upon the roll of honor for that adventure.

Once cold November night, Matt lived 30 feet off a bridge to save a tipsy sailor ben. on suicide. For that he received the Congressional Medal.

McGrath relates as his greatest thrill watching the Stars and Stripes being raised at London to show at John Flannagan and he had won their weight events in the 1908 Olympic games.

A hero then, he went back to Tipperary to see his folks (his mother and father are still living), Matt was the oldest of a family of 11.

"I was received heartily," says he, "at great estates where they would have chased me a few years before. I threw the hammer on their fine lawns. And when I got back I was the guest of President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay."

McGrath is 53 now, but his chances for coming back are not any worse than some others half his age who are training to return to the Olympic wars. One of these is Willie Ritola, who competed for Finland in the 1924 and 1928 Olympics. He wants to run in the 26-mile marathon, an event the Norumi already has adopted for his own.

After being on the shelf for five years, Loren Murchison declared the other day that Olympic sprint candidates would have to reckon with him. And some of those candidates had not even donned a spiked shoe in the days when Murch was flashing to brilliant victories.

Ben Hedges, former Princeton star, and a high jumper again, after two years out of training.

Frank Hussey, who made the 1924 Olympic team while still in high school, is another hopeful. He ran as a member of the 400-meter relay team that won at Paris, setting a world record. In 1925, before entering college, he won a 100-yard championship at San Francisco, making 9 4-5. But, after that performance, he seemed to fade, and missed qualifying for the sprint squad selected for the 1928 Olympics.

They say of Hussey that he was burned out by too much competition in high school. Yet he is said to be more physically fit now than he was in his high school days. Could it have been lack of incentive?

Modern Olympics Revived 1,500 Yrs. Ago By Frenchman

Started In Athens Back In 1896 After Long Layoff Due To Professionalism Creeping Into Sport; Thorpe's 1912 Troubles.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of three articles on "The Romance of the Olympic Games."

The modern revival of the ancient Grecian Olympic games, dead for more than 1500 years, was effected by a Frenchman. He is Baron Pierre de Coubertin, who gave to France the distinction of fathering the new series as were the original contests by Iphitos, pre-Christian ruler of the Greek territory of Elis.

In 1892 Baron de Coubertin made his first public suggestion for the re-establishment of the Olympic games.

The suggestion, as all good ones do, took root slowly, but in 1894 the first international sports congress drew many enthusiastic delegates, who pledged support to the idea of staging Olympic games which should include all the forms of sport customary in the world. They were to be held every four years, turn and turn about, in various countries.

By acclamation, Baron de Coubertin was named president of the first Olympic committee, a post he held for more than 30 uninterrupted years.

And so began in 1896 the revival of the ancient Olympics. The contests of 1894 naturally assigned them to Greece, and as Olympia was in ruins, the renewal took place at Athens. There were contests in 100, 400, 800 and 1500-meter runs and the 110-meter hurdles; running broad jump (long jump, they called it), running high jump, running 50, 100, 200, 400, 800, 1500, and 5000 meters; pole vault, shotput, discus, marathon and weight lifting. The American team of 13 athletes was victorious in nine events as follows: Curtis, 100-meter hurdles; Clark, 200-meter hurdles; Connelly, triple jump; Hoyt, pole vault; Garrett, shotput and discus.

Germany was to have staged the 1916 games at Berlin but the world conflict cancelled them. Belgium renewed them at Antwerp in 1920, although war-torn Belgium obviously was in no condition to stage them properly.

The eighth Olympiad at Paris in 1924 began with winter sports at Chamounix, first of the Olympic winter games competition. There were 14 events in the winter sports, while the program that opened at Paris included track and field, swimming for men and women, boxing, cycling, two styles of wrestling, shooting, tennis, gymnastics, fencing, rowing, weight lifting, the modern pentathlon and polo. The United States won eight championships, Norway won three and France and Sweden two each. In the all-important track and field section, America's supremacy was hotly disrupted by Finland.

The ninth Olympiad at Amsterdam, Holland, was carried through in the finest spirit of sportsmanship shown since the games were revived at Athens. There was a more even distribution of premier honors. The games were almost entirely free of unpleasant incidents. Forty-six nations were represented in the track and field section and 20 scored points.

To an American, the one disappointing feature was the failure of our track team. Only Ray Barburt, former Syracuse star, won a flat race for Uncle Sam. Five new world records were established, two each by Americans and Finns and one by a South African.

JOHNSON PREDICTS

New York, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Walter Johnson thinks the 1932 American League race might will be between the Philadelphia Athletics, N. Y. Yankees and last but by no means least, the Washington Senators.

"I'm not predicting any pennant for Washington," says Johnson "not as long as Connie Mack can toss in six out of every eight games but I do think both the Senators and the Yankees can make things interesting. And with a few breaks, I believe either has the stuff to win."

The American League adopted its schedule yesterday and the National will follow suit today.

$329,454 PHONE CO. PROFITS REPORTED

Annual Meeting of S. N. E. T. Co. Held in New Haven Today.

New Haven, Feb. 2.—The Southern New England Telephone Company showed a margin of $329,454 after payment of expenses, taxes, interest charges and dividends, according to the report for the year ending December 31, 1931, presented by President Harry C. Knight at the annual meeting of stockholders here today. This compares with a margin of $511,331 in 1930 and $775,176 in 1929.

Encouraging

Unusual business conditions were further reflected by a comparatively small increase in the number of telephones in use. The number of local calls increased slightly, but toll calls declined two per cent. The report emphasizes that during 1931 the Company provided well distributed margins of facilities to take on new business when the upswing comes, and states that while favorable results are not expected for the first quarter of 1932, a careful estimate for the year as a whole indicates relatively encouraging results.

The following directors were re-elected: James T. Moran, chairman; James English, Victor Morris Tyler, Harry C. Knight, Dennis A. Blakeslee, John J. McKone, Walter S. Gifford, Victor Roth, Charles P. Cooper, James Lester Goodwin, Harry B. Curtis and Allerton F. Brooks.

The balance sheet of the Company on December 31, 1931, showed assets totaling $80,564,026, of which the major items are land and buildings worth $10,217,845 and other telephone plant and equipment valued at $65,473,202. General equipment is valued at $1,407,100. Other permanent investments amount to $365,066, working assets to $2,934,065, and deferred debit items $166,847.

Outstanding Stock

The Company has $40,000,000 capital stock outstanding and a funded debt of $11,000,000. Fixed capital reserves for accrued depreciation and amortization of intangible capital amount to $13,874,228. The corporate surplus unappropriated at the close of 1931 is $4,535,503.

The income statement for the year shows operating revenues of $17,613,179.46, telephone operating expenses of $5,758,570, and maintenance $2,895,417.29, and depreciation $3,070,235.13, leaving net telephone operating revenues of $5,794,995.34. Deductions for non-collectible operating revenues and taxes assignable to operations leave an operating income of $4,513,559.01. To this figure is added $89,113.01 net non-operating income, making the gross income $4,602,672.02. Deductions for rent, interest, and other purposes leave a net income of $3,520,453.70. After deduction of $3,200,000 for dividend appropriations from income, there is a balance for corporate surplus of $329,454.70.

While the increase in telephones and revenues was considerably less than expected, an increase in taxes and charges for interest and depreciation resulted from the added plant which was constructed to meet current requirements and to accord with economic planning for the future. These adverse factors were largely offset by economies in operation, none of which involved impairment of service to customers.

Gains

The net gain of 1,121 telephones resulted from 77,208 installations and 76,087 removals. A net gain of one telephone was accomplished only after approximately 77 installations. With an ever widening zone of telephone usage, added plant was required for a large proportion of the installations, while the abnormal number of removals increased current expense not alone in the cost of labor but in charges incident to the temporary and possibly permanent abandonment of certain wiring and other material.

"To some degree," President Knight said, "this station turn-over or mortality is, of course, a normal incident of the telephone business; in 1931 it was an unusual burden. The converse or encouraging aspect is a reasonable expectation of the restored patronage of the large majority of these same customers as business activity resumes. The fact that the total installations during 1931 were nearly equal to those of the previous year is also encouraging and constitutes a high tribute to the efforts of our personnel under the Everybody Selling Plan which was actively pursued throughout the year."

Local Calls

Notwithstanding the virtual cessation of the growth of the number of telephones, 490,000,000 local calls were made in 1931, representing a slight increase over the previous year, and toll calls numbered 25,000,000, a decrease of only 2 per cent.

Provided Work

Reviewing results of the year, Mr. Knight stated that observations in the larger offices, coupled with direct inquiries in the smaller exchanges, indicate progress in 1931 in speed and accuracy of service and in handling the numerous calls of a special or emergency nature where technical qualifications must be supplemented by personal interest, initiative, and judgment.

The simplified method by which subscribers can place all toll calls by dialing "Operator," previously effective in Bridgeport and New Haven, was applied in Torrington and Westbury and the introduction of dial service in those exchanges. This dial service, received favorably by subscribers, will be extended gradually to other dial offices.

Dials Increased

The dial tandem system, first applied to toll service in 1929, was considerably increased in scope during 1931, and operators in 42 of the offices are now routing toll calls over the tandem circuit network. The tandem method enables an operator in one exchange to dial directly to the telephone of a subscriber in a distant office. If the distant exchange is of the manual type, a second operator is required to complete the connection. The tandem system provides the most rapid and satisfactory method for handling nearby out-of-town calls that has yet been devised.

Under the construction program for 1931, gross expenditures of $9,125,000 were made for plant additions while plant expenditures amounted to $4,097,000. The total plant investment at the end of the year was $75,691,000.

Expenditures for cable were less than for any of the six years past, although about 637,000,000 conductor feet of wire in cable were placed and spliced during the year. Toll calls were completed from Canaan to Lakeville, Moodus to Leesville, Middletown to East Hampton, Waterbury to Watertown and from New Milford for a distance of five miles toward Washington. Work was started on toll cables from Waterbury to Thomaston, Torrington through Winsted and Norfolk to Canaan, and New Milford to Kent; all of which will be completed this year. The Torrington-Canaan cable will materially improve the toll circuit facilities and transmission in the entire northwestern section of the state and permit the removal of several open wire lines.

Health Program

Extension of the Company's health program, emphasizing the importance of preventive measures against illness, was attended with increased interest and participation. Progress in safety work was evidenced by decreases of 16.7 per cent in accidents and 20.3 per cent in time lost from that cause as compared with 1930. Automobile operation averaged only one accident for each 28,800 miles of travel, the best record in nine years.

In conclusion, Mr. Knight said: "We are accustomed to recognizing our managerial obligation as threefold: to preserve the security of financial investment in our business; to render adequate service to the public at reasonable rates; and to maintain appropriate working conditions and wages for employees.

"In times like the present we believe that it is in no sense inconsistent with that obligation to reconSIDER economic considerations as far as practicable with procedures which will make for stabilization and aid in preventing the spread of unemployment, even though the immediate financial results of such a policy are less favorable than would otherwise be possible."

Provided Work

"It is true that we have proceeded with work that was not imperatively needed at the moment. It is equally true that in so doing we have built no plant which will not be required for the future; that we have provided well distributed margins of facilities to take on new business when the upswing comes; that we have improved our entire plant in respect of maintenance, transmission and overall efficiency; that we have retained the values which come from the high morale of an appreciative personnel; and that directly and indirectly we have provided work for a large number who would otherwise be among the unemployed."

"We do not propose to carry this policy to the point where it will impair the financial integrity of the business. Up to that limit we do propose to lend our best efforts to the current needs in the belief that by so doing we are acting in the ultimate interest of the particular trust which we are obligated to conserve."

REVOLT IS CRUSHED

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The government today announced a revolutionary movement in the area of Tulcan near the Colombian border had "crushed," that Tulcan had been recaptured by loyal troops.

Yesterday the government announced a clique of rebels at the army garrison in Tulcan had revolted and won over the citizens of that town. They took the loyal officers captive.

A detachment of troops was sent over and an airplane yesterday reconnoitered the rebel position, returning to report that Tulcan appeared quiet.

Declaring the whole thing unimportant at that time the government thought the man behind the revolt was Modesto Larrea Jijon, defeated Liberal candidate for president, who, with an associate was reportedly arrested.

$50,000 for emergency relief under the miscellaneous item of appropriation and $30,000 additional was voted for charities. These two sums, both of which are being utilized at the present time for relief together with the $71,226.81, the sum total of all voluntary contributions to date, makes a grand total of $151,000, a very creditable outlay for a town the size of Manchester.

Over 900 Listed

President Verplanck reported that over 900 persons had reported at the employment office for work and that the committee had done good work during the fall and early winter supplying the most needy with jobs which had been conceived and programmed by the Works Creation committee of the association. The work of the committee has been divided into three sections, Mr. Verplanck said, filling the list of unemployment; finding the work, and raising the money.

Commends Spirit

The spirit of workers last night was very commendable and as an example of the untiring devotion to the cause set before them to accomplish, one worker, a girl, made 20-calls on local people, without securing one cent in return. Undaunted, she was at the meeting last night, willing to co-operate further to the limit of her ability.

A note of humor was injected into the meeting when a Division leader asked the committee what should be done about contacting several Manchester residents now wintering in Florida.

"The worker would like to know if the committee will finance a trip to Florida to secure the possible donations."

The reply of the Finance Committee was: "If the worker can get inside of an envelope, the finance committee will pay the postage."

PAIR DAVIS CUP TEAMS AT PARIS

United States Draws Canada in First Round of North American Zone.

Paris, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The United States drew Canada as its first round opponent in the North American zone of Davis Cup play today as the draw for the international tennis play was made at Elyse Palace in the presence of Dwight Davis, donor of the cup.

The winner of the United States-Canada match will play Mexico in the second round.

Australia will play Cuba in a second round match and the winner will meet the second round match with Mexico in the North American zone finals.

The draw for the European zone resulted as follows:

First round: Hungary vs. Finland; Germany vs. India; Austria vs. Czechoslovakia; Monaco vs. Norway; Belgium vs. Switzerland; Italy vs. Egypt.

Second Round (Top of list): England vs. Rumania; Poland, Holland; Ireland vs. winner Hungary-Finland match.

Second Round (bottom of list): Spain vs. winner Italy-Egypt match; Denmark vs. Yugoslavia; Japan vs. Greece.

The South American zone was drawn last October and sends Brazil against Chile in a first round match, the winner to play Paraguay for the right to meet the winner in the North American zone. Play will be completed there this winter.

Play in the North American and European zones starts in May, with the interzone final and the challenge round at Autel in July.

FENTON'S TRIAL SET

Willimantic, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Frank P. Fenton, former town clerk and town treasurer of Windham, will be placed on trial on the charge of embezzlement as a public officer, at Putnam Tuesday, February 16. The assignment of the case for that date and place was made in Superior Court today.

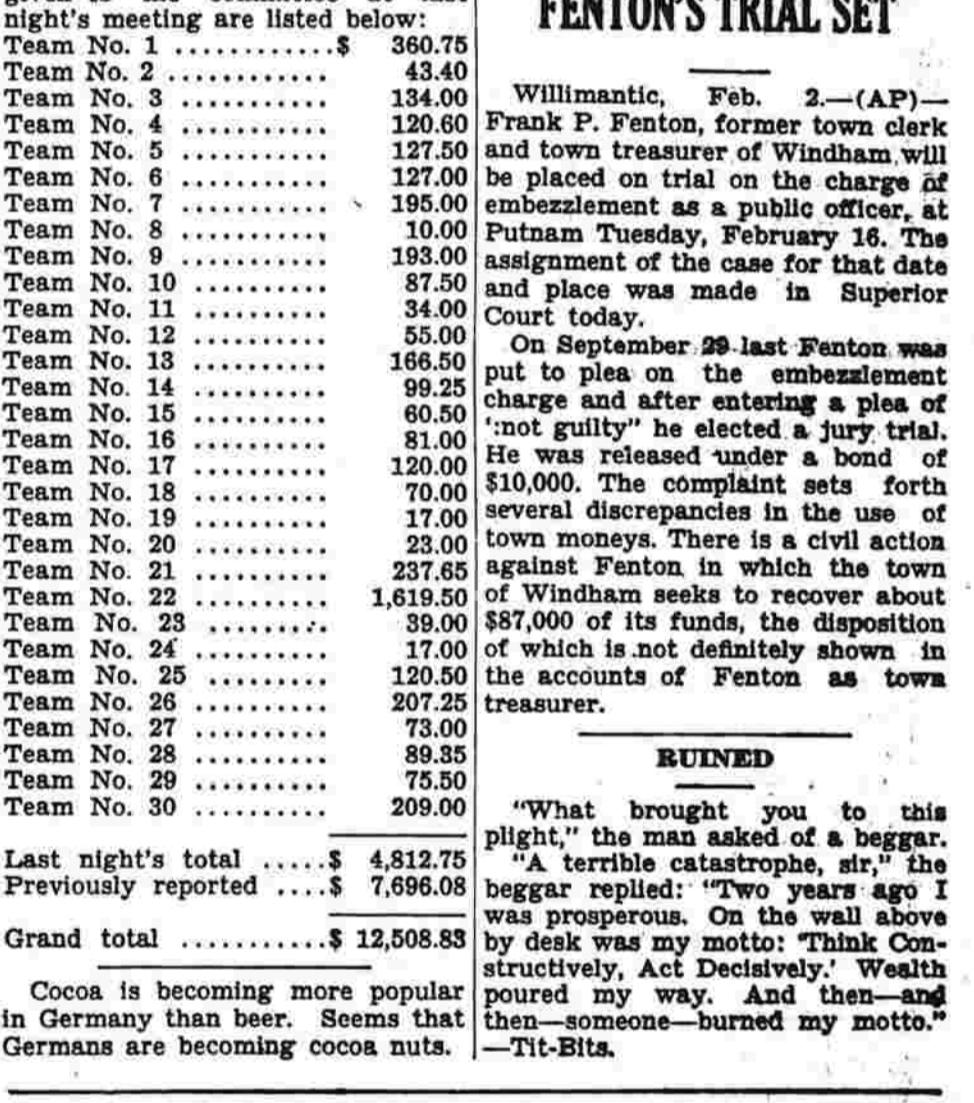

On September 29 last Fenton was put to plea on the embezzlement charge and after entering a plea of "not guilty" he elected a jury trial. He was released under a bond of $10,000. The complaint sets forth several discrepancies in the use of town moneys. There is a civil action against Fenton in which the town of Windham seeks to recover about $87,000 of its funds; the disposition of which is not definitely shown in the accounts of Fenton as town treasurer.

RUINED

"What brought you to this plight," the man asked of a beggar. "A terrible catastrophe, sir," the beggar replied: "Two years ago I was prosperous. On the wall above by desk was my motto: 'Think Constructively, Act Decisively.' Wealth poured in my way and then—and then—someone—burned my motto." —Tit-Bits.

THE TINNIES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN PICTURES BY JOE KING

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

As Scouty reached his natural size, we've Copsy said, "I realize how small we've been, and now I'm very anxious to be big. Oh, Mister Giant, make me as large as Scouty is. Then, gee, I know I'll be so happy that I'll dance a little jig."

The giant laughed and said, "Well, son, I must admit that it is fun to make you Tinnies feel real good, but you must wait your turn. Young Duncy shouted, 'Next!' and so right now I'm going to make him grow. The knock of being patient is one thing you ought to learn."

Then the fat Duncy ran up to the glass. The next thing that he knew, he'd grown to almost twice his size. "My, feel queer," said he. "I know that I was once real small, but now I know I'm not at all. Instead, it makes me happy that I'm big as big can be."

Then, next came Copsy. He grew fast. When Windy stepped up, as

SENSE AND NONSENSE

Although Thomas A. Edison was a hard worker he lived for years on a diet of nothing but milk. Yet some people today who have never done a lick of work can't get along without having meat three times a day.

What Counts
Here's health to the girl who can dance like a dream,
And the girl who can pound the piano;
A health to the girl who writes verse by the beam,
Or top with high C in soprano;
To the girl who can talk and the girl who does not;
To the saint and to the sweet little sinner;
But here's to the cleverest girl on the lot,
The girl who can cook a good dinner.

The man who before marriage would offer his girl "a penny for her thoughts" is now willing to give his wife $5,000 if she will only shut up. ... They say there is always room at the top. Therefore if the elevator stops running, take the stairway. ... A broken leg is a bad break when you're already broke. ... What you think of the boss is just about what the boss thinks of you. ... Where did our preachers learn to tie the matrimonial knot so that our wives get all the rope?

Kirkwood—I hear that when Jim Harrison was in the hospital he had to have two nurses night and day.
Hemingway—Yes, his wife wouldn't trust him alone with just one.

EVER PRESENT REMINDER: "Papa left a four hundred dollars to buy a memorial stone for him after he died," said Darling Dumb Dora. "How do you like my new diamond?"

Captain (to belated passenger who has suddenly appeared on the deck of the abandoned ship)—Jump, man! Jump, quick! Don't you see she is going down?
Passenger (calmly)—Is my wife saved?
Captain—Yes.
Passenger—Well, goodbye. I can't spend the rest of my life explaining why I let her take this steamer.

Thirty years ago a boy would get sore when he was asked to walk a mile to buy a pound of sugar; now he gets just as sore when he is asked to answer the telephone or the doorbell.

Mrs. O'Brien—Was your old man in comfortable circumstances when he died?
Mrs. Finnegan—No, 'e was under a train.

A girl may be an expert at picking out a fric that won't fade, wear out or run—but she is not always so lucky in picking out that kind of a husband. ... The age of discretion is the age at which you discover that the righteous aren't all on the same side. ... Among older machines devised by man because of his aversion to work is the political machine. ... It's easy to win fame in America. You just call Americans boobs and ridicule their standards. ... The first women who painted their lips in public were usually entertained in the back of saloons. ... The most futile man in the world is the one who thinks he can slight his job without paying the penalty.

Glady's (gushing as she cuddled closer)—Oh, George, I wonder how anyone could say that absence makes the heart grow fonder.
George (giving her a tighter squeeze)—I guess that must mean the absence of a third party, don't you think so?

Visiting Lady (to farmer)—Your son has very fine manners. He opened the gate for me.
Farmer Jones—Oh, that's nothing, lady. He does that for the cows every evening.

Hostess—What do you think of the violinist?
Novelist—His answer reminds me of Paderewski.
Hostess—But Paderewski is no violinist.
Novelist—Neither is this gentleman.

Her Father—You wish to wed my daughter—my answer depends entirely on your financial condition.
Her Suitor—What a coincidence—my financial position depends on your answer.

TO AUCTION 'FOURACRES' FURNITURE TOMORROW

Old Cheney Boarding House Soon to Be Removed—Has Been a Landmark in Town.

Tomorrow the contents of the large boarding house located at 140 Cooper street and owned by Cheney Brothers are to be sold at auction as the first step towards tearing down the present so-called "Fouracres", a landmark in the town of Manchester.

The building, a three-story structure, when first built was known for years as Carney's Boarding house. It was similar in structure to another large building that stood at the corner of Pine and Cooper Hill streets, which was torn down when the dressing mill was built.

During the World War "Fouracres" was enlarged, two wings being erected to the south side of the building and another on the north side, both extending to the west and the general interior was changed.

"TOOK THE RAP," NOW HE CAN'T GIVE IT UP

Jail Term Didn't Exactly End Punishment for Fellow Who Sold Beer for Other Man. There was a beer garden just beyond the Manchester line in Glastonbury last summer. The state police learned of it and unannounced they descended upon it. They took away the beer and then arrested the "rapper". He "took the rap," went to jail and served the time necessary for his part in the deal and then came back. There was no further use for that fellow in this county as a second offender is not looked upon with any too much favor by one Hugh M. Alcorn who happens to be the county prosecutor. Jobs were not easy to get when the "rapper" was released from jail and since then he has had no work. He was not paying his board and yesterday he spent his last cent to buy himself a little something to eat. It was cold last night. The guy who "took the rap" had no place to sleep so along about 1 o'clock this morning he went to the police station and asked for a night's lodging. It was no night to turn any person into the cold so he was given a place to sleep, but he was also given to understand that he could not sleep there any night he chose. He's still "taking the rap."
