Largest Attendance in History of Formal Social Events in Manchester; Grand Master Present.

Manchester's most brilliant formal social event, the annual Masonic ball, exceeded the most optimistic expectations last night when 736 attended the most successful of the 21 yearly affairs.

Peter Wind

bled on any floor in Manchester. The attendance figure placed at 766 does not take into consideration the large number of workers and attendants present to help make the affair run smoothly.

Socially and musically the ball reached heights in proportion to the large assemblage. The floor was at all times filled for dancing. It was a gay, social time for all who attended and the music seemed to suit the tastes of the most ardent dancer.

Decorations The Armory was handsomely decorated for the occasion. The basic construction of the great hall was completely covered with soft colored bunting. Ropes of smilax and covered lights were strung from the side walls to a common center.

Wm. J. Thornton

potted plants surrounded the orchestra.

Many Guests A large number of Masonic guests from lodges in this vicinity attended and the affair was especially graced from a Masonic point of view by the presence of the newly elected Grand Master of Connecticut, Sherwood A. Raymond and Mrs. Raymond.

Grand March The grand march started almost on schedule. Worshipful Master Peter Wind and Mrs. Wind starting the procession very shortly after nine o'clock.

WILL ROGERS TALKS ON WORLD AFFAIRS

Humorist Reaches New York On 'Round World Trip; Anxious to Hear the News

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Will Rogers, who wisecracked his way around the world, arrived today from Europe on the liner Europa "to get in on this dough everybody is going to dig out of their sock."

In Europe, he said, when you're introduced to somebody they say "Glad to meet you, cancel the debts." He saw the opening of the disarmament conference and it was "like the Folies, only harder to get in, all the diplomats were selling seats."

Rogers revealed that he had offered to bet Ray Long, publisher, that Hoover would be re-elected, but Mrs. Rogers admitted the money wasn't in sight at the crucial moment.

"How is my friend Jack Garner going? That's a soft job because the Speaker don't do nothing and don't get to say nothing."

Geneva, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, acting chief of the United States delegation to the world disarmament conference, and Chancellor Heinrich Brüning of Germany presented to the conference today the American and German proposals for limitation of armaments.

Mr. Gibson was warmly applauded by the delegates, as he ascended the rostrum. His proposal contained nine points. These included the prolongation of the Washington and London naval agreements, further reduction of naval armament, abolition of submarines and promotion of land disarmament by restricting tanks and mobile guns, discard of lethal gases and prevention of bacteriological warfare.

BINGHAM BILL IS OPPOSED BY NOTED WRITER

Whiting Williams Says He Has Observed Improvement of Working Man Since Prohibition.

Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The testimony of half a dozen more witnesses—representing two sides of the question—was added today to the bulging record of evidence and opinion before the Senate committee studying the Bingham four per cent beer bill.

Chairman Metcalf (R., R. I.) had hoped to conclude the four weeks to appear would make it necessary to hold another session Friday.

The bill was opposed today by Whiting Williams, Cleveland writer on industrial subjects; Ernest S. Bradford, economist and statistician of the College of the City of New York; E. B. Dunford, Washington attorney representing prohibitionist organizations here; and Alfred Calvert, Washington writer.

It was favored by Gustave Hafer of the Farmers Feed Co., New York, and Philip M. Rose, president of the Manufacturers and Dealers League, New York. Both said the legalization of beer would improve economic conditions.

Bradford contended that there would be "no net gain" in employment if manufacture of beer were allowed.

Williams said that in years spent in the guise of a laboring man, he had observed improvement in the condition of the workman as a result of prohibition.

Dunford said the beer bill if passed would lead to the return of the saloon.

He assailed the American Federation of Labor and asserted "respectable men" in the labor movement are against any change in the prohibition laws.

WRITERS PROTESTS. Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Legislators to permit a per cent beer was opposed before a Senate committee today by Whiting Williams, Cleveland, writer on industrial subjects.

He said that "for a number of years" he has lived as a working man here and abroad to study labor conditions.

BIG GUNS OF JAPANESE FAIL TO DISPERSE FOE

SOME SHELLS DROP IN FOREIGN AREAS

British Woman Slightly Injured; Jap Warships Blow Up Powder Magazine in Woosung Forts—U. S. Infantry Takes Up Patrol Duty in International Settlement; Neither Side Seemed to Have Advantage in Today's Engagement; League of Nations Council Discusses Far East Problems.

(By Associated Press) A well-aimed shot from a Japanese warship blew up a powder magazine in the Woosung forts today, but the Chinese still held on.

The familiar roar of artillery firing across Chapel shooed Shanghai all day long and far into the night, but neither side appeared to have gained any material advantage.

Some of the shells fell inside the International Settlement and one British woman was slightly wounded. Some shells dropped also in the French concession, causing considerable property damage and killing several Chinese.

The 31st United States Infantry took over a patrol sector inside the International Settlement but not close enough to the line of battle to be in danger.

In Tokyo a 23-year-old assassin killed Junnosuke Inouye, former finance minister and an outstanding figure in the Liberal political party. It was probable that Inouye would have been made premier after the general Japanese election to be held on January 20.

At Geneva the twelve neutral members of the League of Nations council considered the Far East problem at a secret meeting.

CHINESE HOLD FIRM Shanghai, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Machine gun bullets whined across the Kiangnan race track today and several bombs were dropping between here and Woosung as the Japanese attacked a large Chinese detachment throwing up defense works behind the Woosung forts.

A shell from a Japanese destroyer burst a powder magazine in the fort earlier in the afternoon, causing a terrific explosion and raising a cloud of dense black smoke which spread over the countryside. Nevertheless the Chinese held on.

Meanwhile, the artillery was in action again in the Chapel sector and at least one foreigner was wounded by shrapnel which dropped beyond the International Settlement boundary. She was the wife of Detective Inspector Harry Robertson, British member of the municipal police force. Her injuries were not serious and most of the shells were duds.

On the northern settlement boundary the 31st United States Infantry took over the patrol from a British detachment. There were close enough to hear the shooting, but their position was about a mile from the action by Chapel.

It was the second battalion which took over first, spread along a mile from the Sookow creek. Ahead of them was the company of Shanghai volunteers.

Chinese shells aimed at the Japanese infantry in Hongkew park, within the settlement, fell short and wounded several Chinese refugees, and also caused much property damage. Civilians immediately evacuated this area, which is partly within the Japanese lines.

A Japanese troop ship with reinforcements for Shanghai ran aground in the Yangtze River during the morning. Japanese soldiers were rushed into Chapel however to reinforce the bluejackets already there.

A group of 350 United States soldiers, men of the 31st Infantry, second battalion, relieved the Royal Scots Fusiliers in a muddy sector on the North boundary of the International Settlement during the day.

They saw action immediately. Bombs and anti-aircraft guns began booming as they took their posts. The Japanese had begun an air raid over Chapel.

U. S. OPPOSES PLAN Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Japan's proposal for demilitarization of the principal Chinese ports was held tightly today in diplomatic channels somewhere between Washington and the Tokyo foreign office.

Neither the Japanese Embassy nor the American government had officially received it, but the attitude of the latter was clearly opposed to such a step.

This government looks upon the establishment of neutral zones as suggested by Japan as bringing up again the partition of China which has been denounced in the past by Japan, the United States and Great Britain.

Word came from Shanghai from Admiral Taylor, the commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet, that there were 100,000 Chinese troops in the Shanghai-Nanking area under the command of General Tsi Ting Kai.

A Japanese army, Taylor reported, rapidly is being assembled at Shanghai, and approximately 2,500 troops already have been sent to the city.

FIND WOMAN'S BODY LYING ON BEACH

Believed to Be Person Reported Missing by Husband Several Days Ago.

Long Beach, N. Y., Feb. 9.—(AP)—The body of an expensively dressed woman apparently in her late thirties was found in the surf today not far from the place where Starr Faithful's body was discovered last year. Her pocketbook was a membership card to the Bronxville Woman's Club made out to Mrs. Adelaide Sleck, Bronxville.

First examination indicated the body had been in the water about two days. No signs of violence were discernible.

The woman was of medium height, had reddish blonde hair, and wore a platinum wedding ring.

The body was taken to an undertaking establishment in Rockville Centre where the body of Starr Faithful was taken. Miss Faithful's body was found here last June and for months officials continued their investigations in an effort to determine definitely whether death was due to suicide, accident or murder.

Reported Missing At Bronxville police headquarters it was said Mrs. Sleck was reported missing at 1:30 a. m. today by her husband, who said she was convalescing after a nervous breakdown and had disappeared from her home at 10:30 yesterday morning.

He described her to police as being 37 years old, five feet four inches tall, weighing about 137 pounds, with blue eyes and light hair. He told the police she wore a grey coat with a fur collar, black dress, hat, and shoes, and tan stockings.

Sleck asked the police to look for her in hospitals in and around New York.

A Mrs. Ellis, wife of the superintendent of the apartment house where the Slecks have been living, said today she saw Mrs. Sleck yesterday morning, and that Mrs. Sleck left for New York, saying she was going to do some shopping.

She said Mrs. Sleck returned home about a week ago, after having been away for treatment. Mrs. Ellis said she understood Mrs. Sleck had been in a hospital in Baltimore, and that the Slecks formerly lived in Baltimore.

MRS. JUDD TO DIE ON THE GALLOWS

Jury Finds Her Guilty of Murder Charge After Three Hours—Is Calm.

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Death on the gallows has been decreed for Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, 27 year old daughter of a retired minister.

An all-male jury last night found her guilty of the murder of Mrs. Agnes LeRoi, girl friend, and specified the death penalty.

The jury deliberated three hours and forty minutes. Six ballots were taken.

Mrs. Judd heard the verdict with-out show of emotion. She was immediately taken to her cell where she walked in front of her mirror and viewed herself several times.

Before the state may hang Mrs. Judd an appeal is mandatory under Arizona law. The defense counsel said the appeal would be made soon after sentence is pronounced.

Mrs. Judd is the second woman condemned to the gallows by a jury in Arizona. Mrs. Eva Dugan was hanged in 1930 for the murder of A. J. Mathis, of Tucson.

Mrs. Judd's middle-aged husband, Dr. William C. Judd, Los Angeles physician was at her side when the verdict was read. Tears welled in his eyes.

Her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Harvey Joy McKinnell of Darlington, Indiana, had retired for the night and were not awakened.

Her brother, Euron McKinnell also was absent from the court room.

Story of the Crime Mrs. Judd was arrested in Los Angeles last October 23, a few days after the bodies of Mrs. LeRoi and Miss Hedwig Samuelson were found in trunks at a Los Angeles railway station.

The two women had been killed in Phoenix, October 16. Mrs. Judd claimed the trunks at the railway station but fled when a baggage agent attempted to question her.

Mrs. Judd was tried only for the murder of Mrs. LeRoi.

The state alleged jealousy was the motive, claiming the young woman was jealous over the attentions paid Mrs. LeRoi by J. J. Halloran, wealthy Phoenix lumberman with whom Mrs. Judd was friendly.

Through testimony of Dr. Edward Huntington Williams of Los Angeles, Dr. Clifford Wright, endocrinologist and Dr. George W. Stephens, superintendent of the Arizona State Hospital for the Insane, Mrs. Judd's counsel endeavored to establish her as of un-sound mind.

Mrs. Judd's parents testified other members of their family had been insane.

Prosecution attorneys Dr. Bowers, Los Angeles, and Dr. Joseph Cattarino of San Francisco, declared Mrs. Judd sane—one of the lucky off-springs of an insanity tainted family tree—her emotions and reaction normal, her ability to perceive right, as against wrong, unimpaired.

COAST GUARDS SAVE DISABLED SCHOONER

New London, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Battered from wind and wave, with her crew straining at the pumps to keep down the water in her hold, the four-masted schooner Alvena from Jacksonville, Fla., was brought into the local harbor today by a tug which puffed a bit from the weight of her lumber laden tow but otherwise seemed to make light of the job.

Ten days out of Jacksonville with lumber for this port and Norwich, the Alvena was sighted in distress late yesterday afternoon by the Coast Guard destroyer Upechur under the command of Commander F. A. Zousier, former executive officer at the Academy here.

She was 300 miles south of Fire Island Lightship and making slight progress to the northward when sighted by the destroyer which was on patrol against smugglers. Two of the Alvena's sails were blown away and the others were reefed. Her decks were awash.

With the coming of darkness, the wind freshened to gale force, and there was uneasy moments for the officers and crew of the destroyer and those aboard the schooner as the schooner ungainly from the weight of her cargo, now plunged her bow down into the water.

The Upechur brought the Alvena into the race of Long Island Sound shortly before noon where she relinquished the tow to the Aquidneck. The captain told officers of the Coast Guard that he had experienced considerable bad weather especially Thursday night and Friday morning.

JAPANESE BOMBARDMENT FAILS TO DISPERSE FOE

from Japanese transports now lying off Wosung.

The appointment of Grew as ambassador to Japan was sent to the Senate while Secretary Stimson was in the midst of a conference with Ambassador de Martino of Italy. De Martino said they had simply exchanged information.

At the department it was said it might require considerable time to complete the formalities necessary for Grew to take over his new duties. In the meantime, Forbes will retain the post.

GREW APPOINTED

Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Joseph C. Grew, a man whose 30 years of diplomatic service has taken him almost around the world, was named today to succeed W. Cameron Forbes as ambassador to Tokyo.

The new ambassador will travel from his present post in Turkey to Japan to take over negotiations with that country at a time when they require more careful handling than at any time in recent history. He is 52 years old.

He will take to the task a diplomatic experience gained in Egypt, Mexico, Russia, Germany, Austria, Denmark, Switzerland, Turkey and as chief of the state department's division of western European affairs. He also attended the pre-armistice negotiations at Versailles.

Time Mr. Forbes' departure has not been named, although he wishes to retire as soon as possible. His wishes were made known before the present difficulties between China and Japan broke out.

UNFAVORABLE REACTION

Foreign office circles expressed surprise today over accounts of unfavorable reaction in the United States to Japan's proposal to remove the Chinese military from important commercial centers in China, such as the anti-Japanese movement and the boycott against Japanese goods would necessitate Japan's sending troops into the country from time to time, he said.

JUDGE WILKERSON OPPOSED BY LABOR

Union Spokesman Claims He Was Unfair to Workers in Several Decisions.

Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—A protest against confirmation of James H. Wilkerson, of Chicago, as circuit judge on the grounds of "blind partisanship and antagonism to labor unions" was filed with a Senate judiciary subcommittee today by organized labor.

Wilkerson's nomination was opposed by Donald R. Richberg, counsel for the Railway Labor Executives' Association.

Richberg filed four arguments against confirmation. They contended that: As a practicing lawyer he was "very active in prosecuting injunction suits against labor organizations and played a prominent part in Illinois in limiting and destroying, through judge-made law, the rights of labor to organize."

That as a United States district judge he exhibited "in case after case a bias and prejudice against labor organizations inconsistent with judicial fairness."

"Blind Partisanship That in his blind partisanship and antagonism to labor unions Judge Wilkerson has not followed the law as laid down by the Supreme Court."

That Wilkerson "is an avowed partisan of those legal doctrines which give employers an overwhelming advantage over employees in industrial controversies."

"To elevate a judge holding such views to higher authority is to aid in nullifying the 13th Amendment," Richberg said.

To support his charge that Wilkerson had not followed law laid down by the Supreme Court but "has attempted to write new law," Richberg cited the "Daugherty injunction case" of 1923.

He contended Wilkerson had then attempted to enjoin the legitimate activities of labor unions in carrying on a lawful strike and he violated the express prohibitions of the Clayton Act.

He set aside the Constitutional guarantees of liberty of contract and free speech," Richberg said.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The Stock Market settled down around the low levels of the bear cycle today.

The market remained listless, but buyers were even more apathetic than sellers, and save for a brief surge in the morning, the slow decline persisted. The price average of 90 representative issues was only a shade above the low of Jan. 5, by an early afternoon.

Losses were largely fractional, but Santa Fe and Lambert sagged 2 and Dupont, Consolidated Gas, Nash and Case, 1, going into new ground. The decline became pronounced after another wide break in Auburn, which fell about 8 points, going below par. There has been nothing more definite than some unfavorable gossip over earnings to account for Auburn's sharp decline of recent sessions. Other issues losing about a point included U. S. Steel, Standard of N. J., American Telephone, American Can, Sears Roebuck, Allied Chemical, and Public Service of N. J. Some large blocks of General Motors were offered, but the stock sagged only fractionally.

The stubborn downdrift of prices in recent sessions has become rather wearing on Wall Street nerves. But despite prevalent bearishness in speculative quarters, the Stock Exchange restrictions on short selling and the light volume of selling have made traders wary of the short side of the market. Ordinarily, with the market hesitating around new low ground, bears might be expected to make vigorous efforts to break the list through its previous resistance.

OBITUARY FUNERALS

Hundreds Pay Last Respects To Police Officer As He Goes to Final Rest.

Hundreds turned out here today to pay final tribute to a man who during his 16 years' service in the Manchester Police Department won innumerable friends. REDS WRECK SHOP

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Sixteen men, described by police as Communists, raided the dress shop of Abe Furer on the tenth floor of an 18 story down-town loft building and all but wrecked the place. They were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct.

After shutting off the power in the shop, the band attacked Furer and his thirty employees, who were cowed in a corner when the police arrived.

The attack, police said, was part of a Communist campaign to make American Federation of Labor workers join the Communist group. When the raiders entered the shop they ordered the employees, mostly women, to go to the Communist headquarters in West 28th street.

The employees made no sign of moving, whereupon the Communists attempted to use forceful methods. Other tenants of the building heard the commotion and called police.

Bradford said "most economists feel that the net gain from prohibition—badly as it is enforced—is very great."

On Dry Side "Most economists are on the dry side," he added. At this there was applause from the prohibitionist spectators who included Bishop James Cannon, Jr., and Dr. F. Scott McBride.

Senator Bingham asked Bradford whether he "meant to say that the man who wants a glass of beer will take a plate of ice cream instead."

Bradford replied "previous testimony by Williams had indicated the workman was 'very largely drinking milk instead.'"

BUILDING INSPECTOR TRACES FIRE'S ORIGIN

Edward C. Elliott, Jr., Traces Route of Flames in Rubinov Block—Must Be Rebuilt.

Building Inspector Edward C. Elliott, Jr., has completed a thorough inspection of the Rubinov block, scene of the disastrous fire of last Thursday morning...

The inspection brought out that the fire was almost entirely confined to the north section of the building. The only stores damaged by fire were Rubinov's and the Popular Market. In his opinion, the fire started in the cellar of the market and shot across into the cellar of the Rubinov store...

The tool used in drilling the hole found in the door on the Eldridge street side of the Forest Block, scene of the first fire Thursday morning, was discovered in a garage can at the rear of the building. It has been turned over to Police Lieutenant William Barron.

MT. VERNON POSTMARK ON LETTERS POSSIBLE

Postmaster Crocker Says Stamp Collectors May Now Get Famous Address on Stamps.

Postmaster Frank B. Crocker announced today that Manchester stamp collectors may obtain the postmark of Mount Vernon, Va., on February 22 which is Washington's birthday by forwarding a self-addressed and stamped letter under cover to "Postmaster, Mt. Vernon, Va., before Feb. 22 and indorsed 'For Feb. 22 Cancellation.'"

In authorizing this cancellation, the department at Washington is cooperating with the George Washington Bicentennial Commission which has provided a special cachet depicting Wakefield, the birthplace of Washington, which will also be included on each letter forwarded from Mt. Vernon. The Mt. Vernon post office will not handle orders for the cachet stamps, and any letters not properly addressed and stamped will not be acceptable. Stamp collectors are warned against attempting to obtain the cancellation of Wakefield as this town no longer has a post office and the one listed is in another county and has no bearing on the actual birthplace of the country's first president.

MASONS BUY SHRINE

Tappan, N. Y., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Title to the historic Dewint House, George Washington's headquarters during and after the Revolution, passed yesterday to Charles H. Johnson, grand master of Masons of the state of New York. The purchase price was $30,000. The Masons of the state are to recondition the house as a permanent shrine in honor of General Washington as man and Mason.

The house was built in 1700 and was used as headquarters by Washington during the Revolution and afterward when General Clinton signed papers there to evacuate New York with his fleet. Washington pulled the window blinds in this house after signing the death warrant of Major John Andre, British spy, to avoid witnessing the execution in a field near by.

SEEK TO CORRECT JAILS SYSTEM

Committee Named by Legislature For County Houses Of Correction.

The committee appointed by the last Legislature to make a survey of the jails in the State is now drafting its report and expects before long to make it public. The appointment of the committee was the result of the fact that nowhere was there to be found any satisfactory or complete information as to the conditions in the county jails, and of a feeling on the part of a good many that the State was not dealing as it should with those convicted of crimes not serious enough to merit prison or reformatory sentences. The committee has now caused to be made a very careful and thorough study of each jail, and this it proposes to lay before the people of the State at an early day. It will also make recommendations for a very decided change in the entire system of confinement and treatment of those convicted of the less serious crimes. In doing this, the committee is not moved by any sentimental regard for those who receive merited punishment for law-breaking. It has proceeded upon this basis: Present-day standards of humanity require that such criminals as are sent to jail shall receive at least decent treatment, and the interests of the State, economic as well as moral, require that as far as possible the inmates of jails shall leave them better, or at least no worse, equipped to hold their places in society.

GIBSON OUTLINES U. S. PEACE PLANS

his hand and expressed appreciation of Breuninger's speech. Referring to the proposal presented by M. Tardieu for France last week, he said: "Let's do away with the efforts, by this or that interpretation of the rules, to secure for ourselves the possibility of military expansion of power and to take it away from others. That isn't the right way. That's the way to make the conference fall and to prevent the happy condition of an armed peace resting on unequal rights."

Warm Applause He was given warm applause by the delegates, as was Ambassador Gibson. Mr. Gibson's announcement that the United States would consent to budgetary or financial reduction as a complement to direct limitation of armaments drew special applause from the delegates. "This question long has been a stumbling block to preparatory disarmament work. A decrease in arms is an essential," Mr. Gibson said, "not alone for the recovery of the world, but also to the preservation of the whole fabric of peace."

The United States, he said, advocates making the draft convention drawn up by the preparatory committee the basis of the discussions of the conference. In this he agreed in the stand taken by Sir John Simon spokesman for Great Britain who addressed the conference yesterday. Gibson added, however, that the United States is willing to consider any supplementary proposal calculated to achieve arms reduction.

Nine points which the United States believes may be profitably considered in planning world disarmament were laid before the conference by Gibson. The points included the proposal to prolong the Washington and London naval agreements, the further reduction of naval armament, the abolition of submarines and the promotion of land disarmament, preventing lethal gases, limiting defensive forces to those necessary to maintain internal order plus some contingent for defense, and by budgetary limitation of expenditures for war supplies when their direct limitation has been secured.

In Other Fields After presenting the nine concrete points, Mr. Gibson said: "We are prepared to discuss and extend to other fields the principles taken by attachment or execution in civil actions. Antiquated Because so many of the defects in jails are due to antiquated plants, any very decided change must necessarily mean expenditure for construction work, but the committee thinks that the near future will be a particularly fortunate time to make any necessary changes of that nature. In any event, reconstruction must be undertaken before long in the larger counties because most of the buildings in jails in those counties are so old as to be inadequate to the increasing needs of the communities. In Hartford County the County Assembly last winter caused a committee to be appointed to ascertain the approximate cost of a site and new jail building suitable for the needs of the county, to report at a county meeting to be held not later than 1933.

Confident The committee appointed to make a survey of the jails feels confident that a plan can be worked out by which a considerable sum of money in actual fact can be saved to the taxpayers of the State in the way of new construction to care for those committed to the jails and in the cost of the maintenance of inmates. This plan the committee will explain in detail in its report.

TEACHERS' CONTRACTS
 That period of the year approaching when, according to the custom and theory of public school authorities in this part of the world, it becomes necessary for school boards to arrange for contracts with teachers for the following annual term. Members of such boards are, as a rule, quite convinced that if they haven't their teaching staffs signed up by the end of March or thereabouts they are liable not to have any teachers at all—or at least not a satisfactory number of the right kind.

Since school boards are almost always made up of very earnest and conscientious citizens it is only fair to give them credit for being right about the necessity, or by cautious reckoning the desirability, of making next year's contracts thus early.

The practice, however, produces complications when such undertakings are entered into in advance of the making of fiscal provisions to meet them. The greatest difficulty is encountered in limiting school budgets when school boards go ahead with their contract making and then, when it comes to budget time, the municipal taxing authorities are told that the city or town is already committed to such and such a salary list, so that, for the current year, there is nothing to be done but to raise the money somehow.

Now it is becoming very well understood throughout the country that municipal budgets have got to be reduced. The bankers, whether by agreement among themselves or merely by tacit understanding, are making that quite clear when they call into question the credit of community after community and charge bad-risk interest for loans. The tax burden suffered by hard-up citizens alone would prove the necessity.

Manchester is no exception. This town is going to have its problems aplenty during the next fiscal year. It is inescapable that school costs should be one of them.

For which reason it is herewith suggested that before the school authorities begin arranging for their teaching staffs for the following year they sit in with the Board of Selectmen, for one meeting or as many as may be necessary, with a view to arriving at a mutual understanding of the town's capacity to spend money on the schools and of the irreducible minimum of such expenditures.

It is obviously poor co-ordination for a school board to proceed with its estimating of expenditures without knowing what the fiscal prospects of the community are; it is just as poor co-ordination for the selectmen to proceed with their tentative fiscal arrangements without knowing what the school authorities are doing or expect to do.

In such matters there is, of course, an invariable tendency for each body to approach its task from its own special point of view. The view of both sides can be broadened by a serious exchange of facts, opinions and plans around a conference table.

TRUTHFUL FORGERY
 Bearing the imprint of the "World Peace Movement," 108 Park Row, New York City, there comes to this desk a copy of a pamphlet entitled "The Memorial of Premier Tanaka, or a Japanese Secret Design for the Conquest of China as Well as the United States and the Rest of the World."
 This pamphlet has already been condemned, on what appears to be very excellent authority, as a forgery, and that appears to be the generally accepted verdict concerning it. At the same time quite recent events, transpiring some time subsequently to the first appearance of the "Memorial," would seem to indicate that the author of the document, whoever he may have been, possessed an extraordinarily keen insight into the objectives and mental processes of a highly important class among Japanese politicians as well as a thorough familiarity with Asiatic economies.

The booklet is, of course, anti-Japanese propaganda and is probably the product of the pen of some English—or American-educated Chinese patriot. It purports to be addressed to the Japanese Emperor by Baron Gichi Tanaka, premier for several years until July, 1926, during the year 1927, and consists of an outline of policy for the extension of Japanese power and opportunity over a period of several hundred years. It treats the conquest of Manchuria and Outer and Inner Mongolia as obviously essential to the enrichment and development of the Japanese race, deals coolly and informally with the complicated railroad problem, Japanese control of which it regards as vital, and goes on through elaborate consideration of banking systems and military infiltration to a survey of the economic resources awaiting exploitation throughout China under a completed Japanese sovereignty.

One of the striking points is its recommendation of the very plan for playing off disaffected native chiefs against the Manchurian Chinese that has been followed during the last three months.

It contemplates war with the United States as an inevitable measure to be resorted to at the proper time in order to clear the field for continental Asiatic exploitation.

Probably the authorities who have pronounced the Tanaka Memorial a forgery are entirely correct. It is too frank an exploitation of policy to have been put in writing by a Japanese premier. But it fits in so perfectly with every fact and indication of the present moment that, like the "asides" in O'Neill's "Strange Interlude" it seems to reflect Japanese purposes better than any spoken word or bona fide state document of that nation would ever be likely to.

HOSPITALS
 An imposing total of seventy in-door patients were under treatment at Manchester Memorial Hospital yesterday—the largest number in the history of the institution. This fact is not to be taken as an indication of any extraordinary increase in the amount of sickness beyond what is reasonably to be expected, but rather as an evidence of the constantly growing extent to which people seek hospitalization when they become ill.

In no other relation has there been, in these years since the war, a greater measure of progress than in the care of the sick and the prevention of illness. And as the people become better informed in such matters the more they come to appreciate the benefits of hospital care. The old prejudice that not so long ago caused many persons to shrink from the idea of resorting to a hospital when ill is very rapidly disappearing, has well nearly disappeared. In fact it is becoming a serious question whether the hospital plant of the country, tremendously enhanced as it is in comparison with even a short time ago, may not soon be altogether inadequate to the demands upon it.

It is one of the unhappiest features of the depressed period that money for the support of hospitals is more difficult to raise and that endowment funds are in many cases less productive than formerly, while the need of their services is, if anything, increased.

Good times or bad times, the hospitals are always on the job. And that of Manchester Memorial seems to be, just now, a particularly strenuous one.

AL'S DEFINITION
 Alfred E. Smith becomes a little confusing. First with great formality he announces that he would accept the Democratic nomination for the Presidency if offered to him though he will make no pre-convention campaign. Now he waxes almost noisy in his declaration that his announcement has been misinterpreted. "I am not a candidate," he shouts. "All I said was that I would accept the nomination if the convention should choose me. Now a candidate is a man who seeks the support of delegates and makes a campaign before the convention."
 Which would indicate that Al is not only what he always has been, a politician, but is setting up as something he never has been suspected of being, a lexicographer. He is his own dictionary maker.

The "Happy Warrior's" definition of a candidate departs somewhat widely from that of Webster's International Dictionary, which is: "One who offers himself, or is offered by others, as a suitable person or an aspirant or contestant for an office, privilege or honor."
 If Al has not offered himself as a suitable person for the nomination of the Democratic party for the Presidency, then the moon is made of green cheese and snow storms are due on the Fourth of July.

While it is a very minor matter indeed, one too insignificant to be given consideration, that Al's acquaintance with the niceties of the English language is less intimate than with its force, it is a little surprising that with one word, at least, he is not completely familiar—"candidate."

COME ON, COLONEL!
 If Colonel John H. (Machine Gun) Parker, commander of the 102d Infantry, A. E. F., does indeed give up his California residence and come to live in Connecticut, as he is said to be contemplating, both Colonel Parker and Connecticut will be the gainers.
 Here the thrice gallant colonel would be able to spend the late afternoon and evening of his life among veterans who revere him as it is seldom given to man to be revered; comrades who followed him at Chavignon, at Chemin de Dames, at Seicheprey, at Bois de Jury and at Chateau Thierry; who glory in his three wounds and in the military honors with which he was loaded by grateful governments; who take supreme pride in the unique three oak leaves of his D. S. C.; who recall as of yesterday his splendid comradeship and care for his soldiers—who love him as a leader and as a man. That is something.

And then, too, why on earth should anybody live in California who can live in Connecticut? We submit that question to any Connecticut jury without argument.

If the Colonel will come to the Hundred and Second and the Legion will see to it that he shall have anything he wants. If he wants to be governor he can have that—and nobody will give a hoot whether he is Republican or Democrat.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 9.—Broadway seems to have an inexhaustible supply of fantastic and unusual twists for human lives as well as events.

For instance: The manner in which the role of a butler was played in a current stage comedy drew fine notices from the critics. Several of the fitness of certain performers for modest bits, pointing out that seemingly insignificant parts can assume great importance.

A check of the program showed the particular actor to be one Russell Rhoads, a former actor in the history of the institution. This fact is not to be taken as an indication of any extraordinary increase in the amount of sickness beyond what is reasonably to be expected, but rather as an evidence of the constantly growing extent to which people seek hospitalization when they become ill.

Now you'd expect a gent in this profession to be one of the old trouter brigade. Fact is that so many years ago, Billy Minsky was threatening to be a politician.

Several of the more eminent first-nighters pay regular visits to his newer 42d street spot.

Incidentally, the term "queen of burlesque" promises to break back into the language. It was a connotation supposed to have disappeared with such grand old-timers as Rose Syddell.

And while dirges are sung for the "diving burlesque show," an attractive young lady named Ann Corio goes about a wheel of 26 theaters on the Columbia circuit wearing her crown jauntily and well.

Miss Corio is admittedly the biggest boxoffice draw in the world of burlesque and recently attracted considerable attention when her $325 a week salary figured in the stage papers of amuseur-undom. A Hartford, Conn., girl, she finished high school before taking to the stage and appearing in a chorus, graduating into an ingenue and then to quondam.

 "The Best Way to Health"
 QUESTIONS IN REGARD TO HEALTH DIET WILL BE ANSWERED BY MAIL OR BY VISIT TO HIS OFFICE. ENCLOSE STAMP AND ADDRESS FOR REPLY.

POLYPI
 A polyppi refers to a kind of soft tumor springing from the mucous membrane. Polyppi refers to two or more of these growths which may be present at the same time. I have received many letters asking about Polyppi; most of the questions are concerning these growths in the nose, but polyppi may also be found in the bladder, rectum, or any part of the body where there is a mucous membrane.
 When a number of polyppi occur in the back of the nose, they frequently cause it to be stopped up, making breathing difficult, interfering with the tones of the voice, destroying or impairing the sense of smell and causing symptoms similar to those due to rhinitis.
 A polyppi seems to be caused by some type of irritation or an inflammation which keeps the mucous membrane continually irritated, such as catarrh, colds, asthma, hay fever, etc. When the condition is chronic, with ulcers and polyps, the inflammation may spread to the sinuses, causing a chronic sinusitis.
 The beginning of the treatment for nasal polyppi, or, in fact, polyppi in any part of the body, should consist of a fasting and dieting regimen outlined in my article called "Mucous Clean Diet"; this regimen tends to clear up the irritating discharge from the mucous membranes and in many cases small polyppi will be absorbed, especially when such fasting and dieting is combined with ultraviolet light treatment directly to the polyppi. I will be pleased to send the Mucous Cleansing Diet without cost to anyone who is interested if he will write to me, asking for the article and enclosing a large, self-addressed stamped envelope.
 In some cases the larger growths may have to be removed by surgical means. This operation is comparatively simple and not particularly dangerous. The most usual treatment for polyppi is surgery; however, it is quite a common experience for the annoying growths to reappear after the operation. Where the polyppi continue to recur, you may be sure that it is because of chronic inflammation and in all of these cases it is the wisest plan to precede the surgical measures with the dieting and fasting regimen for overcoming mucous inflammation. This diet not only tends to reduce the inflammatory process but also has a clearing effect upon the thick, yellow discharge commonly found with polyppi.
 Where polyppi of the bladder exist, they may be removed by surgical means. If all right to have these growths cauterized or removed, but, if you wish to permanently overcome the tendency to polyppi, you will first have to clear up the cystitis. Not only should one follow the fasting and dieting instructions outlined in my Mucous Cleansing Diet, but it is also advisable to use sitz baths for fifteen to twenty minutes every other day in order to increase the circulation through the pelvic region. Do not return if one is careful to follow these directions.

NINE MEN RESCUED FROM SINKING CRAFT
 Charleston, S. C., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Survivors of the British schooner Ruth F., which sank in a gale off the Newfoundland coast January 30, left here today for their home port of Lunenburg, Nova Scotia.
 Nine men and a dog were rescued from the foundering craft by the freighter Fluor Spar, of the South Atlantic line as it crossed their path two days after mountainous waves wrecked the two mast auxiliary schooner.
 They were brought here Saturday and shipped for New York today on the Clyde steamship Cherokee. From New York, the party will go on home.
 Heavy seas piled high on the Ruth F., built for the fishing trade and carrying no cargo, on January 28 and the pilot house was smashed.
 For two days the crew manned the hand pumps to keep the vessel from sinking, but waves after wave poured into the ship through the opening.
 Then, when the men were at the point of exhaustion, the Fluor Spar came along and took the crew aboard.
 Nothing was saved except the seven weeks old dog whose owner risked his own life to save it.
 Captain Lennie Cook, 34, was master of the Ruth F., owned by Adams and Knicker of Lunenburg.

CONVICTION REVERSED
 New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals today unanimously reversed the conviction of Cecil Patrick Savage, an Englishman, graduate of English public schools, and an alumnus of Oxford, of the offense of operating a radio station without Federal license.
 Savage, who was tried as Cecil Molyneux before Federal Judge Robert A. Inch, had been sentenced by the court to two years imprisonment in Atlanta penitentiary, but gave $15,000 bail pending the outcome of the appeal.
 In court, he admitted that he had installed the radio apparatus on the T'm Alone, run runner which was sunk by a Coast Guard boat in the Gulf of Mexico. The defendant stated that he had installed the apparatus in Canada, where there was no law prohibiting him from doing so.

FORGOT CREDENTIALS
 Norwalk, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The local police were requested this morning by the Stratford police to stop the operator of a car whose registration number was given and to inform the driver he had forgotten his license and registration cards.
 The driver was stopped here and informed. He immediately returned to his home in Stratford for the credentials.

CRUISES TO NOWHERE OPPOSED IN CONGRESS
 Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The cloakrooms and halls about the capitol today buzzed with political talk about Alfred E. Smith's announcement on his political plans but it did not affect work on the floors.
 In the hall before the Senate warmed up to discussion of direct relief, Senator Wheeler (D., Montana) charged that power interests were striving to prevent Governor Roosevelt of New York from being the Democratic nominee. He made no reference to Smith, however.
 The House was still considering the interior department appropriation bill. In the meantime its agriculture committee rejected the Senate bill which would distribute 40,000,000 bushels of Farm Board wheat to the needy.
 An inquiry into the silver situation was added to the list of investigations ordered or under way. The House coinage committee will make the study.
 Bills proposing Philippine independence were before the Senate territories committee and the House Merchant Marine committee heard Commissioner Smith of the shipping board oppose voyages "to nowhere" for foreign flag ships.
 Smith said the ships served liquor on these cruises which usually end where they began after a jaunt along the coast. A bill under consideration would stop them.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER
 By RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

Washington—Union labor, as if it had lost faith in the stories the economists, bankers and other business sages used to tell, appears to be increasingly bent on informing its members just what is actually happening to them.
 It is using its own statisticians and publicists to obtain and distribute the facts and the background of employment, business and financial conditions, on the theory that the rank and file workers are both anxious for and in need of such information.
 The railroad unions for years have published here a four-page weekly newspaper, Labor, edited by former Congressman Ed Keating of Colorado, which covers national affairs from the labor viewpoint as well as actual labor news.
 That is one reason why you are likely to find a group of railroad men at some remote junction better informed on public questions than any other group of workers.

Through the Depression, the American Federation of Labor has issued a small "Monthly Survey of Business" which has attracted increasing attention and has been more and more widely read. It describes current conditions in simple, intelligible language—the kind in which you know what all the words mean—and occasionally tosses in simple, significant charts and graphs. The January issue contained probably the most lucid, comprehensive yet brief accounts of the frozen credit condition, the bond situation and the resultant business restriction that this winter has seen. Also, similar explanations of the federal budget problem and the reparations tangle.

The point is made, which so many people still don't seem to get, that the banks hold about one dollar in ten of deposits and lend the rest at interest. Manufacturers, merchants and farmers depend on borrowing from that money for short periods for costs of doing business and the banks also invest in long term loans on real estate and in bonds and stocks of reliable corporations. The one dollar in ten is normally ample to meet reserves, but if depositors suddenly rush for their funds the whole credit mechanism is upset; banks must sell bonds to get cash—thus depressing bond prices still further, press business men for repayment of loans and avoid new loans in order to keep ready money (liquid assets) on hand. When farm and other commodity prices dropped debtors were less able to repay the banks, security behind credits decreased and bank investments in railroad bonds, real estate and other securities declined in value.
 German financial crisis scared everyone, stimulating hoarding and withdrawals. Bond prices shot down, the A. F. of L. chart shows, at the same time and at about the same rate of speed with which the hoarding increased.

Careful estimates, the federation says, shows an average of two dependents for each unemployed worker. It conservatively estimates the unemployed at 8,000,000.
 Another excellent example of labor union tendency to inform members is given in a careful survey by the International Brotherhood of Electrical-Workers which undertakes to show the trend of industry away from the old theory of "a fair profit." It quotes, in its monthly journal, bankers, industrialists and economists to show that speculation and the "habit of colossal and easy profits" was a major cause of the recent disaster. It lists various devices—all well known—by which more than a fair return is taken, analyzes them and concludes that business must turn back to the era of fair return on goods and services furnished for productive services or continue "in its spiral journey toward speculative altitudes—which means, in the end, ruin."
 There is no radicalism in these labor surveys. They are scientific, usually, and well thought out.

BINGHAM IS OPPOSED TO INDEPENDENCE PLAN
 Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Opposition to any measure which would grant independence to the Philippine Islands in the near future was expressed today by Chairman Bingham (R., Conn.), of the Senate territories committee.
 He made this statement as the committee opened hearings on bills proposing American withdrawal from the islands. Bingham added he would not oppose independence after 25 years if the Filipinos had stated their desire for freedom in a plebiscite.
 The chairman emphasized he is against the United States getting out of the Far East while the present complicated international situation continues.
 Withdrawal, he said, would weaken the American position in Asia and no change should be contemplated until the situation has improved.
 Bingham opposed the King, Hawes-Cutting, and Vandenberg bills all proposing independence. They vary principally in the period of time to elapse before complete autonomy be granted.
 Secretary Hurley of the War Department, will be invited to outline the administration's attitude toward independence next Thursday.
 Secretary Stimson of the State Department may testify Saturday.
 Ten minute discussions were allowed today on the four points of view in the committee.

In the preamble of the treaty the Ukrainian Republic declared its desire to "take the first step toward a lasting world's peace, honorable to all parties, which shall not only put an end to the horrors of war, but also lead to the restoration of friendly relations of the people in political, legal, economic and intellectual realms."

28 DIE IN RIOTS

Srinagar, India, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Twenty-eight persons were reported killed today and thirty wounded in a renewal of the Moslem uprising at Uri, Kotli and Handwara against the government of Sir Hari Singh, Hindu ruler, who was once known in a Blackmail case in England as "Mr. A."

Three thousand angry Moslems carrying flags marched into Uri and stoned and wounded police. The military opened fire, killing three and wounding five.

The most serious trouble was reported from Kotli where twenty-one persons were said to have been killed. It was not made plain whether the casualties resulted from a communal riot or whether the military had fired into a mob.

A huge throng of Moslems armed with hatchets, swords and knives launched an attack on Handwara. They looted shops and terrorized the populace and upon refusing to disperse were fired upon by police. Four were killed and many wounded.

STATE REPUBLICANS TO GATHER MONDAY

Annual McKinley Dinner to Be Held at Hotel Taft on February 15.

Prominent Republicans from all sections of Connecticut will gather at New Haven next Monday evening for the twenty-eighth annual dinner of the McKinley Association of Connecticut which will be held in the ballroom of the Hotel Taft at 7:00 p. m. The annual winter gathering of the G. O. P. forces, which is the party's outstanding social event of the year, is always watched with keen interest throughout the state.

Interest in the 1932 meeting of the McKinley Association has been heightened due to the fact that it will be the first statewide affair to be staged by either of the major parties this year in the face of the oncoming presidential election. According to Senator John F. Lynch of West Haven, who is in charge of the distribution of tickets, this increased interest gives indication that the capacity of the Hotel Taft ballroom will be well taxed before the week is over.

Among the more prominent Republican chieftains who have notified Senator Lynch that they will attend Monday's dinner are the following: J. Henry Roraback, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee; U. S. Senator Hiram Bingham, who will be one of the speakers; Congressman John Q. Tilson; Congressman Edward W. Goss; ex-Governor John H. Trumbull; Lieutenant Governor Samuel C. Spencer; Judge Raymond A. Johnson, Deputy Attorney-General; Raymond F. Gates, State Agent of State Agencies and Institutions; Frederick Scott, Statute Revision Commissioner; Judge John McGrath, Waterbury; Judge Robert L. Mungler, New Haven Common Pleas Court; Albert J. Bailey, Norwich; Sheriff Charles A. Gates, Willimantic; Senator Charles E. Wheeler, Stratford; and many of the Senators and Representatives who were members of the last General Assembly. U. S. Senator Frederic C. Walcott has notified Senator Lynch that he will be present if the Glass bill meetings in Washington will permit.

There will be large delegations which will include leading members of the party from Bridgeport, Hartford, Waterbury and most of the towns in New Haven County. State Treasurer Roy C. Wilcox of Meriden, who is this year president of the McKinley Association, will preside over the dinner as toastmaster. There will be two principal speakers, Senator Bingham and Mrs. Florence Kahn, member of Congress from California, one of the most popular and most forceful speakers of her sex at Washington. The officers of the McKinley Association this year, all of whom will be present at the dinner, are as follows: Fuller F. Barnes, Bristol, vice-president; Senator Lynch, West Haven, treasurer; Clarence G. Willard, New Haven, secretary. The executive committee is as follows: Hartford County—Raymond A. Johnson, Manchester, and Mrs. Russell Lee Jones, Hartford; New Haven County—J. Edwin Bratman, Branford, and Mrs. Edith Valet Cook, New Haven; Fairfield County—Albert E. The town pinocchle championship for ten-man teams is claimed by the West Side Rec and any team disputing the claim can arrange a match by getting in touch with Frank Busch.

The next title that the West Side boys are going after is the ten-man setback championship and at this time they are challenging different organizations for home matches. Also a pinocchle tournament is being planned to determine the best player in town and also the best pair of players. Anyone interested may get further information by inquiring at the East Side Rec or through Frank Busch.

STATE STATISTICIAN DIES IN HARTFORD

Hartford, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Miss Ethel Usher, of South Main street, West Hartford, since October 1923, statistician in the State Motor Vehicle Department, died of pneumonia shortly before noon today at the Hartford hospital following several months' illness. Funeral arrangements will be announced later. Miss Usher's service in the motor vehicle department brought her national attention and her compilation of motor vehicle statistics, the various studies made by her department into accidents and their causes, attracted the interest of motor vehicle officials of America and Europe. She had much to do with the development of the records of the motor vehicle department and many of her original ideas resulted in the creation of systems which later became models for many states and countries as they installed record bureaus. Miss Usher was sought for service on numerous committees with national conferences dealing with safety work. She had addressed large gatherings in New York, Chicago, Boston and other cities.

SAYS HE DIDN'T FAIL TO RING FIRE ALARM

Man Who First Smelled Smoke Claims He Pulled Box Right; Mrs. Montgomery Aged 78.

John Zaldera of the Johnson block who was the first man to discover the Rubinow block fire last Thursday morning claims that he did ring in the alarm properly. It was stated at the time that while Mr. Zaldera had opened the fire alarm box at Main and Park streets he had not pulled the hook down sufficiently to ring the alarm. Another man was said to have come along and pulled the hook down so that the alarm sounded. Mr. Zaldera says, however, that he waited at the box until the whistle blew. Others in the vicinity contradicted Mr. Zaldera's story on the morning of the fire saying that Clifford Joyce had actually rung the alarm.

In connection with the Rubinow block fire Mrs. Lina Montgomery says The Herald is wrong that she is not 88 years of age, but rather 78. Mrs. Montgomery was the woman taken from the burning building by ladder.

Two policemen went to the undertaking establishment to view the body last night, but the undertaker refused to let them see it.

CHILD MURDERED
IN VACANT HOUSE

Slayer Used Axe on Body;
Girl Had Been Reported
Missing Last Week.

Philadelphia, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Attacked and backed to death, the body of seven-year-old Dorothy Lutz, who had been missing since last Wednesday, was found today in a second floor room of a vacant house a few doors from her own home.

The body was found by two policemen who were among several hundred police and firemen engaged in an intensive search of the North Philadelphia neighborhood where the child lived with her widowed mother.

The child's head had been almost severed, presumably by an axe, police said. The body lay on the floor of the bare bedroom.

Police said the house had been taken over by the city last week for a family in the payment of a tax. A negro family moved out of the place last Thursday, they said. Efforts are being made to learn where the family went.

Mother Collapses
Dorothy's mother, Mrs. Florence Lutz, collapsed when she learned the child had been slain.

An inspection of the girl's torn clothing before the body was removed for an autopsy.
A 58-year-old man who was arrested Saturday on a complaint that he was disorderly in the vicinity of a home for children was immediately subjected to questioning about Dorothy's death.

MR. FLAVELL ANSWERS

Editor, The Herald:

It was with a sense of satisfaction I learned that The Herald views with apprehension the conditions under which the unemployed, and might I add the employed may find themselves existing. Would that more of our citizens viewed the seriousness of the situation. As you suggest I do believe that The Herald and also other presses of the country would be profitably employed, advocating not ruthlessly, but righteously, a system whereby each individual should meet his obligations according to his ability, and not as in many cases by the amount of economic dictatorship which the victim was controlled, as was the case in many of our large industries. I believe that had the newspapers of the country preached less rugged individualism and more brotherhood through increased graded taxation of incomes, of over five thousand dollars, and substantial increases of inheritance taxes, that the burden of this depression would have been more equitably distributed. I believe also that had the press exposed the gambling by big business in stocks, and bonds, resulting in over capitalised industry, which was unable to meet its obligations in interest, and dividends, over the years, that the present depression would have been less severe.

I believe that a system of unemployment insurance would help relieve, though not cure any more than would taxation the evils of unemployment. This in spite of all the slurring references to it as a dole, and the moral of the unemployed. Recently one of the Boston newspapers carried a picture of Boston society ladies about to make a door to door collection for the unemployed. I wonder if the picture shows these beautiful ladies begging on the generosity of Boston citizens would install within the breasts of that city's unemployed an urge to swell their chests and assert their rugged individualism. Do not misunderstand me I do not belittle the efforts of these ladies in their collecting, but that form of relief is one of the gadgets in our economic machine which should be discarded to the dump and buried.

You assert: "That three fourths of the people cannot produce enough usable wealth to supply all the people cash with all the usable wealth he has been accustomed in times of prosperity to have." There again I'm afraid we have to part company. I venture to say that even with our ten million unemployed the productive capacities of those employed given access to the natural and productive wealth would be equal to all obligations.

But an such arrangement of society would be unsatisfactory believing as St. Paul said, "That if a man do not work neither shall he eat." It would seem that with productive capacities to produce the goods which are essential, thereby giving each individual an opportunity to contribute a little more to society than he takes from it, and it is obvious that under the conditions which obtain here, the effort must be made in that direction. Railways increase carrying capacities some fourteen per cent with two hundred and thirty-five less workers. Modern brick making machines producing thirty to forty thousand bricks per hour, resulting in ten men doing more than did formerly five hundred men. And as the Herald reported some time ago that a teletype setter at one end of a wire may copy for a thousand miles, it is plain that the effort must be made in that direction. Resources have alone been responsible for the possession of resources. It is obvious that the scale on which human needs can be supplied from the storehouse depend, not only on whether there is an abundance of the storehouse itself, but also upon whether man has the key of knowledge to give him access to it, if we do not possess that key we might as well live in a bare world. Up until two hundred years ago we did not possess that key, consequently mankind for the supply of his needs depended mostly on the energy of his own muscle in carrying on his struggle with nature and having but slight knowledge of the resources of the world. He lived like a pauper in a scantily furnished attic room of the house of life. He starved when his own local crops failed, he produced slowly, laboriously, he froze to death with coal seams and all wealth beneath his feet. For long unsounded years his life was the life of isolated peasant communities, procuring by the hardest drudgery a scant living from the soil and the local natural resources to which he had knowledge. But being possessed with a power of reason, man was a curious, ingenious, and inventive creature. He devised tools to aid him in his work at first limited by the power of his hands, and then by the power of his mind. Evolving gradually from the wooden plough to the giant tractors and reapers of our western prairies, from the hollowed tree canoe to our gigantic European, and Leviathans of the Atlantic, from our caravans of mules and covered wagons to our powerful locomotives, automobiles, and aeroplanes. This change which has taken place is not a change of things only, but a change of things only.

It is a deep and fundamental change in the basic characteristic of man's struggle for existence, it is in fact the end of man's struggle to escape poverty in so far as production is concerned. Listen to the words of Ralph E. Flanders, Vice President of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, "The engineer knows, all engineers know, that if some omniscient dictator were installed as a ruler of the United States, they could provide for him raw material, machinery, and trained labor, sufficient to flood, bury, and smother the population in such an avalanche of food, clothing, shelter, luxuries and material refinements as no utopian dreamer in his busiest slumbers has ever conceived." In fact of production known by everyone and in the light of statements by responsible people such as Mr. Flanders, it would seem impossible to have such a world as we know, great masses of the people poor to the point of utter resourcelessness, drudgery, deprivation, and a never ending sense of insecurity. Well might we ponder on the words of George Bernard Shaw, "If there are other worlds surely this earth must be their lunatic asylum." But when we view the wondrous miracles of man's ability to conquer nature and harness to work in producing goods and services, having conquered production and the natural laws upon which production depended, we must have faith in his ability to believe that he will yet conquer the laws of distribution.

This distributive system of bare subsistence for the general working life of the community enforceable through the ownership of the means of production must go, inevitable as it may have been in the world of age. It has now served and outlived its usefulness. Just as Christian ethics decreed it unjust that the plantation owner should own the slave body and soul, so will it be decreed unjust to own the machinery of production, for it is not this life itself upon the masses. The great masses of the people must learn that machinery was made to serve the needs of humanity, and not merely for the accumulation of large fortunes, nor yet to bestow upon a few individuals the right of dictation as to whether they may labor or not. There must be an intelligent order of conscious direction of our powers and resources for human ends. A commonwealth of nations devoted to power and not to profits. This we have to part company. I venture to say that even with our ten million unemployed the productive capacities of those employed given access to the natural and productive wealth would be equal to all obligations.

But an such arrangement of society would be unsatisfactory believing as St. Paul said, "That if a man do not work neither shall he eat." It would seem that with productive capacities to produce the goods which are essential, thereby giving each individual an opportunity to contribute a little more to society than he takes from it, and it is obvious that under the conditions which obtain here, the effort must be made in that direction. But being possessed with a power of reason, man was a curious, ingenious, and inventive creature. Evolving gradually from the wooden plough to the giant tractors and reapers of our western others have without labor, enjoyed a large proportion of the fruits. This is wrong and should not continue. To secure to each laborer the whole product of his labor, as nearly as possible is a worthy object of any government. It seems strange that any man should dare to ask a just God's assistance in wringing bread from the sweat of other men's faces. "When it comes to a question between a man and a dollar, I am on the side of the man every time."

It is not necessary that we enter into any discussion on division of the monetary value of the country. I fail to see where there is any value considering the restrictions placed on the production of wealth, our wealth lies not in what we have produced but in the potential capacity of our resources and production based on intelligent use. As you have remarked our economic machine is a queer contraption which admittedly cannot be thrown away and replaced over night. The result would be chaos, on the other hand it is just as dangerous to adapt the "Laissez Faire" attitude. Change is a law of nature and when neglected the effect is not to avert the change, but to make them hasty ill-considered and often catastrophic. In closing Mr. Editorial Writer I wish to say that it is not my purpose in writing this letter to attempt teaching anyone. My academic qualifications are only 8th grade and that was a struggle to attain. I feel that I have still much to learn from my elders, that is why I write. THOMAS FLAVELL.

WOULD PROMOTE SAILOR

Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The work of a chief gunner on the U. S. S. Widgeon in helping to invent a device to escape from submarines inspired a bill to raise his rank to lieutenant.

Representative Hogg (R., Ind.), urged the House naval committee today to approve his bill to promote Clarence L. Tibbals, a Philadelphia man. Tibbals is now serving at Honolulu.

He has been decorated for his work as one of the co-inventors of the safety lung device. The Navy opposed the bill on the ground it would be impossible to promote all officers and men performing meritorious services.

Queer Twists
In Day's News

London: For a woman to win Post Robert Burns' stamp of approval as a "good wife" she had to have the following qualities in 10 parts: Good nature, 4; good sense 2; wit, 1; personal charms, 1; and the rest in fortune, education, family blood, etc. This was revealed by "W. D. Fisher in a letter from Burns."

Elise Bluff, Ark.: These dollars—$2,900 worth—came from the government. Their owner heard about the anti-hoarding campaign and placed them in circulation through a local bank. They had an odor of earth.

New York: According to George Palmer Putnam, Amelia Earhart's husband, being married to the famous flier is something like this: Sometimes it's an "exhilarating experience" and sometimes it's "just a nuisance." But that's all accepted in the give and take spirit.

Marshfield, Ore.: Five months ago the auxiliary schooner the South Coast disappeared with a crew of 19. A note enclosed in a bottle told the story: "X x Going down after explosion when boiler blew up. Rough seas, 9:10 p. m. Good bye."

Trenton, N. J.: Federal Judge Clark is getting fussy. He's "sick" of having only laborers brought before him on dry law charges. He wants to see some important defendants and he wants action about it, too.

WAS NOT ROBBED

Bridgeport, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Percy Broadhead, 33, of New York City who complained Saturday night he had been robbed of $23,572.53 admitted today, police said, that he had only $14 on his person that night. That money was gone when he told his story. Police said he had been drinking and was uncertain whether he had been robbed or whether he had lost it. Two negroes, held suspects were released. Broadhead told police in his first story he had inherited the money.

AUTO SHOW TO GIVE
"GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY"

That's the Name Given Annual Exhibit at State Armory Here March 2 to 5.

The Automobile Show, which will be sponsored at the State Armory, March 2 to 5, by the Automotive Division of the Chamber of Commerce and the local National Guard units, will be known as the "Golden Opportunity" Show, in that it will provide the townspeople with a golden opportunity to view the latest models of every make of automobile sold in Manchester, free of charge. In keeping with this idea, the predominant color of the decorations will be gold, according to tentative plans of the floor and decorating committees. Present plans call for decorations along lavish lines that will make the show one of outstanding beauty. Definite arrangements will be made at a meeting of the Automotive Division in the Chamber office tomorrow morning.

Experts say unless world powers step in and halt Japan's invasion of Manchuria, China will turn Red. But if world powers did step in, Japan would probably be blue.

736 DANCERS AT MASONIC BALL, TOPS RECORDS

great many others arrived after the grand march had been concluded.

Refreshments
Refreshments were served at 10:30 two tables being required to accommodate the large number present. Chicken salad, rolls, coffee, cakes and frozen puddings were served the guests by a large corps of waiters from Manchester Lodge. Walter Waddell was the caterer. Punch was served during the evening by girls of the Rainbow organization.

Tribute to Sergeant
Shortly after the grand march had been concluded last night Past Master William J. Thornton, and chairman of the ball committee, addressed the dancers saying that Manchester had lost a true and loyal servant. He asked that all stand with bowed heads for one minute in silent tribute to Sergeant John Crockett, a member of Manchester lodge.

Parking
Despite the heavy fall of snow which still remained on the ground automobile traffic to and away from the ball was very easy. A large parking space was reserved for the Army and had been cleared and lighted so that machines could be well taken care of. The entrance to the Army was through a canopy leading from the street level to the first door of the building.

SWISS TEAM LEADS BOB-SLED CONTEST

World's Record Broken
Twice on Mt. Van Hoevenberg Run at Lake Placid.

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 9.—(AP)—J. Hubert Stevens of Lake Placid, driver of the first American team in the two-man bob sled races of the Winter Olympics, set a new record for the Mt. Van Hoevenberg bob sled run today when he covered the course in 2:04:27.

Stevens bettered the mark made earlier in the day by Reto Capadrutt, driver of the Swissland second team, who broke Stevens' previous record of 2:09, made last year.

Capadrutt, however, had the best total time for the two runs of 4:12:09, making his second in 2:07:21, while Stevens' time for the two runs was 4:17:57, his first run being made in 2:13:10.

Capadrutt's first run, which held the record momentarily, was made in 2:05:38.

The largest crowd the third winter Olympics thus far has attracted lined the course and roared its approval as Stevens swept around the hairpin, and zig-zag turns of the mile and one-half course at break-neck speed.

The record was made on a course deemed "slow" when the trial runs were made.

Capadrutt, youngest driver ever to make an Olympic run, also was wildly acclaimed as he manipulated his white Swiss rope sled around the treacherous curves with little brake in the terrific speed on the straight-away.

Clear Weather
There was no sign of the stormy weather that caused postponement of the scheduled first day's racing yesterday. The top of Mt. Van Hoevenberg was bathed in sunshine, and the weather was cold and clear as the representatives of eight nations made their runs.

The timing was done by an electrical device, breaking through the start and finish lines, serving to make contacts and register the time of each sled at the moment it completed its descent.

German team No. 1—Hans Killian, driver, first heat, 2:15:27; second heat, 2:15:08. Total time for two heats, 4:30:35.

French team—Louis, Bissan, driver, first heat, 2:20:10; second heat, 2:19:57. Total time, 4:39:47.

United States—J. Hubert Stevens, driver, first heat, 2:13:27; second heat, 2:04:27. Total time, 4:17:57.

Italian team—Count Rossi Monteleone, driver, first run, 2:15:45; second run, 2:09:10. Total time, 4:24:55.

Second Italian team—Agostino Lanfranchi, driver, first heat, 2:20:08; second heat, 2:13:47. Total time, 4:33:55.

Rumanian team—Lieut. Papanas, driver, first heat, 2:15:51; second heat, 2:07:52. Total time, 4:23:33.

First Belgian team—Max Houben, driver, first heat, 2:17:68; second heat, 2:14:90. Total time, 4:32:58.

Austrian team—Fugo Weinstein, driver, first run, 2:23:33; second run, 2:21:52. Total time, 4:45:25.

Second Belgian team—Charles Hanzee, driver, first heat, 2:17:01; second heat, 2:16:74. Total time, 4:33:75.

Second German team—Werner Huth, driver, first heat, 2:11:53; second heat, 2:11:58. Total time, 4:23:11.

Swiss team—Reto Capadrutt, driver, first heat, 2:05:38; second heat, 2:07:21. Total time, 4:12:59.

SEVERELY BURNED
Ansonia, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Torrence Burke, 32, of 79th street, Derby, an electrician employed by the American Brass Company here, is in the Griffin hospital in a critical condition with severe burns suffered when he came in contact with a high tension wire while working in the power room of the company's wire mill this morning. The man's clothing was burned from his body and he was severely burned about the body.

Good looks aren't always luck

Sparkling eyes and a smooth complexion depend on good health. The beautiful woman guards against constipation. She knows this condition can cause headaches, sallow skin, dull eyes, pimples, premature aging.

Protect yourself from constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Tests show that ALL-BRAN provides the "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. In addition, ALL-BRAN furnishes blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much safer than pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoons daily—in serious cases, with every meal—will correct most types of constipation. If your trouble is not relieved in this way, see your doctor.

GARDEN CLUB TO ENTER HARTFORD FLOWER SHOW

National Florists' Exhibit to Be Held in City in April; Plan Show Here.

The February meeting of the Manchester Garden Club was held in the Robbins room of the Center church house last evening. Among the matters of business transacted was the decision to participate in the national florists' show in Hartford in April, and to hold a spring flower show in town.

Mrs. Otis G. Bartlett read an interesting paper on Washington's garden at Mount Vernon. The boxwood and ivy which Washington had planted continues to grow there. Where sections have decayed new shoots have been reset. Not only that, but the sale of offshoots of box and ivy from the garden at Mount Vernon are a considerable source of revenue. In April of last year $800 was realized from the sale of slips and roots from the original ivy and boxwood.

Mrs. Bartlett stated that the old-fashioned knew and loved are featured in the present-day planting.

Mrs. C. E. Wilson read interesting excerpts in regard to the late Ernest Henry Wilson, famous English botanist, author and gardener who was for years connected with Arnold Arboretum at Boston. Mr. Wilson brought back from the Orient the beautiful regal lily prized so much by American gardeners, and other floral wonders too numerous to mention.

Mrs. Clifford Cheney gave a report for Miss Mary Chapman on requirements for the spring flower show of the National Association of Florists, and the classes open to garden clubs.

Plants brought for exhibition included a beautiful pink azalea, eight years old, from Miss Chapman's collection, and an interesting African violet loaned by Mrs. Albert Hemingway.

The dime-a-dance

By JOAN CLAUNTON

BEGIN HERE TODAY Beautiful ELLEN ROSSITER, a salesgirl in Barclay's Department Store, lives with her mother, MOLLY ROSSITER, her elder sister, MYRA, and her young brother, MIKE. The two girls support the family. Molly foolishly spends money saved to pay the rent. Ellen tries to get a job as a dance hall hostess at Dreamland and learns that she must have an evening dress. She has none. STEVEN BARCLAY, her employer, sees her crying and offers to give her a dress. Ellen proudly refuses but agrees to borrow a lovely white frock.

Ellen dines with Barclay and he drives her to Dreamland where he leaves her. TONY, another of the hostesses, befriends and advises Ellen. Ellen hates the cheapness of the dance hall, hates taking a 10-cent ticket to dance with all comers. She slaps a man who kisses her. JACOB SALOMON, the manager, is about to discharge her when a handsome young man asks to be introduced to her. He says his name is LARRY SMITH. He goes to buy tickets and while she waits for him, Ellen forgets Barclay's kindness, forgets everything except Larry Smith.

CHAPTER VI

Larry had bought a string of tickets, each marked "good for one dance." There were dozens. He dropped the ribbon of bright green over Ellen's bare arm so that it curled almost to the floor.

"That's for all evening," he told her. "No one else is to dance with you."

"I believe you've made a mistake," Ellen said, trying to temper the budding joyousness in her voice. "I think they sold you a railroad ticket to California."

"It does look like that," Tony, gliding past, summed up the incident with approving interest eyes. The 7-year-old plainly considered the older girl to be her protegee.

"I knew you'd be lucky, Ellen," she called over her shoulder and was gone.

"Now what did she mean?" Larry demanded.

"She meant I was lucky to find such a good-customer," Ellen advised him demurely.

"No, it's the customer who's lucky."

They laughed and Larry swept Ellen into his arms and they were caught into the emotion-laden atmosphere of the room. Boys and girls were dancing closely in the semi-darkness, cheek to cheek, heart to heart. Light frocks blurred against the darker clothes of the men; white, bare arms and broad shoulders. There was no sound except the muted whine of the orchestra and the swish of dancing feet, and from outside, through the open windows the subdued uproar of a never resting Broadway.

Boys and girls, in the artificial darkness, were looking feverishly at a little moment of tardy romance, lest it pass them by; snatching at a moment of forgetfulness of daily tasks while the saxophones moaned.

Ellen and Larry bumped into a couple who had stopped to get a moment's embrace. Ellen felt agasp that she would weep. She did not know quite why. But she knew that if Larry Smith attempted to embrace her in that furtive darkness something shining and young and beautiful would be born. She had the same time she knew that if he drew her close, close to him she could not resist.

"I don't seem to care much for this," he ventured at length, uncomfortably. And then abruptly, with no preliminaries, he asked "What are you doing here?"

Ellen experienced a lightness and buoyance of spirit as though something she feared had been passed. All at once she was able to laugh at herself. What a mad fool she had become. All of her values seemed changed. So much depended tonight upon so little. She saw that Larry was watching her face as he waited for her to answer. She gestured toward a sign on the wall.

They had to dance through the crowd and to the outskirts so that he could read. His own gray eyes lighted when he read that hostesses when dancing were limited in conversation to "yes" and "no."

"Do you like me a lot?" he inquired promptly.

Ellen feared that he would discern the swift hammering of her heart. She felt the color creeping into her face.

"Go on, tell me," he urged. "Yes or no?"

So he thought he would tease her?

"Yes," Ellen responded, but very dubiously indeed.

He looked disconcerted and then he added sheepishly, "Well that one seems to have been on me. So you think I'm taking an unfair advantage?"

"Yes!" The second "yes" was emphatic and pointed. Their laughter rang out again.

"Well, what do you say," he suggested, "if we leave the mute dancing to those as likes it mute? I want to talk."

They were at a table and barely seated before he asked the second time, "What are you doing here?"

"Harming my dance," she said.

"Do you really mean that?" He was plainly startled. She had on the tip of her tongue a tart retort and she observed that he was studying her dress. She had forgotten Steven Barclay until then—forgot her own dress at Dreamland, forgetting everything except that she was 20 years old and that life had become for her a thrilling and rose-hued miracle.

"Certainly I mean it," she replied. "There was no reason why she should explain to a young stranger how it happened that she was able to wear a Paris gown. It was impossible for her to do so. She had a passionate desire that he should know nothing of her responsibilities, of the care and fretting trouble which had shadowed her youth. She wanted only to laugh and forget everything else. To him she must stand for gaiety, for carelessness and irresponsible fun."

He was not Steven Barclay. How did she know how quickly she might, by any hasty or misjudged attempt to precipitate him into her life, turn that eager look into the expression of boredom that she had seen before.

She did not amplify her bare statement.

He was checked.

"Did you believe me," he asked after a pause, "when I told the manager my name was Smith?"

"If you say it's Smith," Ellen observed irrelevantly, "then it must be Smith."

Her tone was clear, her eyes lucid and innocent. It was the young man's turn to flush.

"I'm afraid you won't understand," he began uncomfortably before that lucid gaze, "but anyhow I must explain my name isn't Smith. When I said it was I hadn't decided."

"Whether or not you'd trust me with the secret," Ellen supplied smoothly.

She was not offended. Larry drew a breath of relief.

"You're being darn nice about it," he said. "Well, anyhow my name is Larry. Larry Harrogate, age 27, occupation artist of sorts, prospects nothing."

"I'm to take that as a warning?" "If you want to take it that way," they both laughed ecstatically.

"But seriously," he presently resumed in voice which he tried hard to make brisk and sensible, "did you mean what you said—out on the floor? Do you really like me?"

"Seriously," she answered dutifully, though she bubbled with excitement and laughter. "I do."

"Then that's that," he observed in satisfaction. "We're through with all the preliminaries. Now we can settle down and really get to know each other."

They were interrupted by a waiter bringing their order. Ellen confessed to a ravenous appetite and not even Ellen's warning that the food might be bad prevented him from selecting almost everything on the bill of fare. When the waiter withdrew he began to rally her.

"What's wrong with you?" he inquired solicitously. "Are you a canary bird? I never saw a girl before who wouldn't eat on the slightest provocation."

"I didn't want to order anything," Ellen confessed in growing embarrassment, "because I get a percentage on what you pay."

"You foolish youngster! I wouldn't think you were a profiteer even if you'd ordered a diamond necklace. I couldn't have paid for it but then—you'll have to eat half of mine."

But when the food arrived, sandwiches and cakes and a bowl of steaming chow mein, decorated with slivers of chicken, neither wanted to eat. They wanted to dance again and again, to dance forever or until they dropped from exhaustion. Life danced about the floor. Again and again they discovered with pleased and excited exclamations how well their steps fitted. Amazing, thrilling to change quickly from the languorous grace of the tango to the rowdy breathless complications of the outmoded Charleston—amazing to dance with someone who moved almost as you moved.

The whole day had been the most exciting of Ellen's life. She almost hoped it would end. But the ending, when it came, was sweetest of all.

"You make a big difference to me," Larry summarized it with simple fervor. "Just finding you, Ellen, has made my summer for me."

"I'm glad you found me," "Well, go please and don't things, won't we—go and I? We'll have fun, won't we? What do you say, Ellen?"

"Oh, grand," she murmured. "Even in the midst of her pleasure she wondered why he did not say anything more definite. She felt a little twinge of dismay at the thought he knew where to find her, if he never returned she must remain silent. How did she know how many girls he had laughed with just as he had laughed with her?"

MOTHER VERSUS MARRIAGE

"I Do Not Believe Children Owe A Debt to Their Parents"

By

Elsie Janis

BY ELSIE JANIS (Copyright, 1932, NEA Service, Inc.)

Having had the joy of a mother for 40 years and only a few weeks of marriage, it is perhaps presumptuous on my part to try to write on the subject.

But after all, admitting that there are millions of people who know more about marriage than I do, the fact remains that no one was ever more consistently and successfully mothered than I was and still am for that matter, because without any suggestion of Spiritualism I must say that mother, though officially out of life's great argument, is more with me than ever!

There is and will continue to be despite all protests on my part, an erroneous impression that my maternal ancestor spent time protecting me from the wiles of men! That is (as we say in the classics) the bunk!

From the time I was 22, she began to concentrate on my making what is somewhat humorously termed an advantageous marriage.

I am not saying that our ideas of what would be or would not be good for me were always in complete coordination, but I will say, and I'll insist, that anything I ever wanted in life I had, due to my mother's ability to borrow money or sell stocks—tickets for a cruise, a yacht, jewels and so forth. In fact she was the genie who produced with miraculous speed everything my heart desired. Of course I worked for the money, but she had complete control of all I made. I never signed a check until she "passed on," never collected my salary and never interfered in any way with her manner of handling my affairs!

One does not question a genie, and so it never occurred to me to ask where or how she got the $90,000 for a house that I had set my heart on shortly after her death (ridiculous word) I made my first appearance at the bank in Beverly Hills, California, and met a safety deposit box socially. I had never even seen one and was not particularly interested at the time!

I knew I had been making lots of money for many years. I had heard my friends and enemies say how rich I was and I actually believed it. Imagine my surprise to find that I had a delectable gazard of mortgages, notes enough for a song, and quite a lot of jewels that I thought I would have to pawn and long, and in checking over my "wealth" I was able to trace just what extravagant demand of mine had made it necessary for mother to negotiate a loan, or cash in on an endowment policy.

She had, nothing in her own name and she would have bought beautiful things, when her own so-called estate was settled, and the government owed me money.

Now I ask you would any mother as devoted as she was refuse me the money I wanted? She would have secured him for me if she had to resort to chloroform! And yet people ask me if I regret not having married while she was with me. No! and again no! Furthermore, I would never have left her. She knew it and so, bless her heart, she left me while there was still time for me to start a new life!

I know mothers who are stopping the marriage of their children, male and female, from a purely ulterior motive, feeling that they will lose in the transaction, and I think it is outrageous!

I do not believe that children owe a debt to their parents. If said parents happen to be regular people that the children love just as they might love anyone else, O. K.! Stay with them, spoil them, and honor them, but just because two people fall in love, marry, have a marvelous experience and in due time bring into this cock-eyed but grand old world a new squalling and unsuspecting being, I think they owe the child everything they can give it, if not an apology.

I said apropos of my marriage to a very young man, that I hoped to have a husband and a child in one, and thus cut down on the schedule! Several sentimentalists misquoted me as saying that I hoped to have a child.

That is the well known Apple Sauce. I have always been a pretty good mimic, but I could never hope to be the mother that mother was, and so why risk a flop at this late stage? Incidentally my husband (that looks odd to me) at the time of going to press, is bearing up well and more attractive than he was a month ago before I said, "I do!"

If it develops that I cannot hold him on account of the difference in our ages, I will take it big and bow out, but I will say to some of the Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famed Authority.

VITAMINS AND VACCINES HELP PREVENT COLDS, BUT GOING TO BED IS THE BEST TREATMENT.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of five articles on prevention and treatment of the common cold.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBELN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Investigations concerning vitamin A indicate that it bears some part in the development of resistance to infection. When animals are completely deprived of vitamin A, their mucous membranes in the respiratory tract break down and afford easy access to infective germs. Hence it would seem to be desirable to add a sufficient amount of vitamin A to diets which are deficient in this principle.

On the other hand, recent experiments carried out over periods of several months have indicated that feeding of excess amounts of vitamin A did not prevent colds among groups of children who were compared with others not receiving excess amounts of vitamin A.

Certainly there is reason to believe that feeding of sufficient amounts of vitamin A is beneficial to health and that its long continued use may aid in building resistance to colds or other infections of the respiratory tract.

The injection of vaccines for the prevention of colds is a debatable subject. The use of these vaccines, or as they are commonly called "shots," sometimes aids in building resistance because the vaccine may be given over a long period of time, whereas the cold is usually brief. The purpose of vaccines is to build resistance to a specific disease in exactly the same way that an infectious disease builds resistance. Thus people who have had measles or scarlet fever are not likely to develop these diseases again. In some instances people who suffer frequently with colds seem to have developed resistance by the use of vaccines, but the method must still be considered experimental.

The common cold tends to be a self-limited disease. The average human being gets well in a week almost regardless of what he may do. The physician called to treat a cold arranges for the enforcement of several procedures which are bound to be beneficial. The physician has a large variety of remedies which do much to make the patient comfortable. It is important to warn against too violent blowing of the nose. This is likely to force infectious material into the ears and into the eustachian tubes which pass from the back of the nose to the ear. Infection of the ear is a dangerous complication. There are many ways to bring about comfort and the lessening of secretion and preparations which may be used in relieving the sense of stuffiness.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

by Alicia Hart BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

A really smart woman never—the idea that it is merely being nonchalant and makes you seem young.

Sitting with your knees lolled and your feet turned over actually betrays a great strain on your part to look comfortable—and at home. Crossing your knees exaggeratedly now is what might be called "old-fashioned." Certainly it is just a little too difficult a pose for this spring.

The woman who sits easily and gracefully, so that you don't particularly notice her feet and legs, has the right idea this spring.

She is poised lightly on her chair, won't have to make a terrific effort to get up, and gives the impression of being perfectly at home, no matter how exclusive or grand the place is.

She is the woman who never slouches or settles down, as if life is just too much for her. She gives the impression that she is alert, interested, ready to hop for a dance tea here or a midnight show there. She is an asset, rather than a liability to a social function.

Most of all she carries her hands and arms easily, too. She doesn't have to smoke all the time for fear she will have nothing to do with her hands. She has learned just to let them fall idly and easily into her lap or along the chair's arm. She knows that poise is a requisite this-spring to charm.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

I never saw mistletoe growing until very recently. I should not have known it to be the romantic parasite even then had not my husband pointed it out. Two years in the war had given him an advantage over me in more things than machine guns.

That was in southern Virginia. Then all through the Carolinas and Georgia whenever a tall bare tree appeared ahead with a roundish festoon of green clinging to its upper branches, mostly oak trees. I think, I had palpitation of the heart. Mistletoe! To think of the stumpy little bunches we got at Christmas for a quarter, and here was a million dollars worth growing in every woods and swamp!

But I suppose it is hard to get—the lovely gray green plant that clothes such a safe place on high branches to grow.

Then the holly trees, growing just like that, beside the road! I had holly trees at Mt. Vernon, but never growing wild, and that was another thrill. Enormous affairs, some of them.

Toward the south we came to our first Spanish moss. It, too, is a parasite, a greenish silken mass that festoons itself over big trees, often so thick as to obliterate the real foliage from view. It can be very lovely, but in a swamp it has an uncanny sepulchral effect that makes one creep.

Matters of Geography All this will sound odd to Southerners—these are every-day things to them. Won't they think us of the north easily thrilled, if everyone is like myself? Well, perhaps we can make an even exchange, and show them a good old blizzard with snow several feet deep. Person y' I'll exchange a snowstorm for an orange farm anytime, except at Christmas. Then I want my snow. Yesterday I was permitted to pick oranges. Another thrill!

But I must get back a bit. I had never seen cotton growing. It isn't "growing" now, of course, but the fields of the southern states we traveled through are full of the old stalks with bolls here and there waving small banners of white where the pickers had worked last fall. I was amazed at the toughness of the plant and the hardness of the boll. A strange thing, cotton! No wonder the seeds are hard to get out. Ell Wigglesworth was a man—those seeds are there to stay.

All this sounds like a good advertisement for a bus line or a railroad, but it is merely a natural enthusiasm for new scenes and experiences. I am merely happy and want to share my thoughts. The thought reminds me, however, that the school buses here in Florida are driven so carefully and slowly as to attract attention. They merely creep. And although I have seen such care in some other states, not all of them safeguard their children so thoroughly.

The other day I was in the oldest school house in America in St. Augustine, a funny little building almost under the walls of old Fort Marion, the Spanish stronghold of fifteen or ninety something Indians, then all around—and pirates too. A soldier walked post and warned of danger. Then I suppose the children were hustled into the fort when danger was near.

Today our children have other menaces and traffic is the worst. School buses should be safeguarded in every possible way and traffic rules around schools made very strict, for more children are killed on our city streets every year than were ever massacred by Indians and pirates together in all the centuries.

STRIKE CLOSES MILLS Manchester, Eng., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Ten of the 22 Burnley cotton mills involved in labor difficulties over the more-loose-per-weaver question were completely stopped today. Since a decision to strike four firms have agreed to revert to former conditions and they were running.

Many operators gathered near the mills where the strike was effective and they were on duty outside others but no disturbance was reported.

Baltimore and Boston Teams Booked By Guards

Hartford K. of L. Five Here Tomorrow Night

Local Sport Chatter

Manager Neill Announces Booking of Two Out of State Basketball Clubs to Play at State Armory Soon; Practice Set For Tonight.

Manager Jimmy Neill of the National Guards who play the Hartford Knights of Lithuania at the state armory tomorrow night, announced today that he has booked the Baltimore Orioles to play here Friday night, Feb. 26. The Maryland team claims the championship of the south and later in the season expect to play a series with the Renaissance for the world's championship. Next week Wednesday Manager Neill has booked the Babson Institute quintet of Boston to furnish the opposition for the National Guards at the armory, but for the present attention is focused on the game with the K. of L. tomorrow night. The Guards barely noosed out the Knights 26 to 25 here a few weeks ago and so tomorrow's battle seems certain to be equally close and exciting. The Guards will practice at the armory at 6 o'clock tonight and all members are expected to report to Coach Clarke at that hour. The Guards will play again Saturday night when they meet South Willington in the preliminary of the charity battle between Manchester and New Britain Oldtimers at the armory. The Guards were slated to play the Inghrams in Bristol Saturday night but Manager Neill turned the game over to the Rec Five which will go to Bristol in the Guards' absence. The Hartford K. of L. and Hazardville girls meet in the preliminary game tomorrow night. Owing to the Masonic Ball last night the Rec Five decided not to play tonight and will have only the Inghram contest on its week's slate. The high school plays in East Hartford Friday night and the trade school journeys to Middletown tomorrow afternoon.

Local Sport Chatter

Harry Schofield who will play with Manchester in the Oldtimers charity game Saturday night, is 53 years old and employed as a electrician in Hartford. He is said to still possess much of his former speed. Casey's Hicks and the George H. Williams quintet, leader in the West Side League, play tonight at the East Side Rec at 8 o'clock. Bert McConkey set a new bowling record for the West Side Rec alleys last night when he rolled a score of 158 to eclipse Alfred Brown's former record of 151. The Guards held a practice session in the Rec gym Sunday afternoon because the armory court was not available the day before the Masonic Ball. Charlie Rogers, one of the first real basketball stars in Manchester, has been added to the roster of the Manchester Oldtimers for their charity game with New Britain. He is a mailman now.

Beaten by Leo Lermont at Newark in K. of C. Event; Crowley Is Third.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Leo Lermont, of the New York A. C., outran two college stars, Joe McCluskey of Fordham and Frank Crowley of Manhattan, in the invitation one-mile run on the New Jersey K. of C. track program here last night. Lermont won in 4:20.4-5, fairly good time for the unbanked track, with McCluskey second and Crowley third.

JAFFEE AND SHEA WIN ALL ICE RACES

Jewish Lad From New York Wins 5,000 and 10,000 Meter Speed Skating Events While Shea Annexes 500 and 1,500.

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Irving Jaffee, slim young broker's clerk on a vacation from Wall Street, stood on a homey pine board throne in the middle of the Olympic ice oval yesterday to receive the fourth and greatest of all the honors the United States ever has won in the brief history of winter Olympic games. A snow storm whirled about his head, a band blared the "Star Spangled Banner", a freezing crowd yelled wildly from stands in tribute to the Jewish boy from the sidewalks of New York who won his second individual speed skating triumph in the 10,000 meters final today and gave the United States a clean sweep of all four speed skating Olympic championships, the first time in history that this or any other nation has ever won them all.

Shea Leads Cheering

As they placed on his head the laurel wreath, symbol of an international champion, a tall black-haired kid who had just helped Jaffee up after he fell exhausted beyond the finish line of the last of the men's speed races on the 1932 Olympic program, led the cheering of the conqueror's teammates from the sidelines.

That was Jack Saea, curly-headed Dartmouth sophomore, who started the amazing string of American triumphs with victory in the 500 meters championship last Thursday, opening day of the games, and followed with a 1500 meter triumph while Jaffee was winning his initial victory of an international field in the 5000 meters final.

TO AID GERMANS

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 9.—(AP)—A nice gesture of sportsmanship of the kind that has nothing to do with blaring bands and "hands across the sea" fellowship for the benefit of photographers, has come out of the Winter Olympics but not through the admission of any of those who had a part in it. A few days ago the second of two German bob sleds to crash on Mt. Van Hovenberg sent four German riders to the local hospital, two of them desperately injured and certain to be there for months to come. It is one of the rules of the Olympics that injured athletes must personally take care of their own hospital bills, if accidents befall them.

A group of American sportsmen, officials of the Olympic games, learned that the Germans who paid their own expenses to come here and compete in the Olympics would have trouble meeting the bills of costly treatments. Quickly a meeting was called. Today there is $5,000 available for their treatment, if that sum should be needed.

KEN STRONG WITH TIGERS NEXT SEASON

When he can spare a little time from his first love, football, E. Kenneth Strong plays a bit of baseball. This year he hopes to win a regular berth in the outfield of the Detroit Tigers. The former all-America fullback at New York University spends the autumn playing with Stapleton of the National Pro Football league baseball holds his interest in Spring and Summer. He batted .345 in 118 games with Toronto of the International League last season, making 150 hits, including 28 doubles, 15 triples and nine home runs, he stole 12 bases and drove in 83 runs. Born at West Haven, Conn., April 21, 1907, Strong started his professional baseball career with New Haven in 1926. He is six feet tall, weighs 210 pounds and bats and throws right-handed.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

A Few Violent Objections

Gillis Grafstrom, who either by accident or deliberate design happens to be a figure skating champion from Sweden, reported he had dropped a camera on his knee, injuring it so severely that he could not really do justice to himself in the Olympic events at Lake Placid. Wherewith the unhappy Austrians, hoping to see Grafstrom out-figured by their own champion, Karl Schaefer, gave vent to raucous outburst. It was their epoch-making charge that Gillis (what a name!) actually feared to skate against Karl, who has been improving himself rapidly during the last year with the idea of making Gillis look like a brick shanty on roller skates. Further, they declared it was not a camera that Gillis dropped on his fragile knee but a toothpick. The only reaction this international crisis brought about in the department of literary research was the burning desire that some day when Gillis and Karl are out skating, a big mean old minnow sneak up through the ice and bite them viciously on the ankles.

Quinn Gets a Raise

Jack Quinn, who succeeds Driver Chick Meacham as football coach at de-emphasized New York University, says spring training this year will not be compulsory but that he hopes the boys will come out, practice a bit or "just rough around." And, oh yes, boys, be sure to bring along a bean bag.

Quinn Gets a Raise

The news comes from Flatbush that Jack Quinn not only is being retained as a Brooklyn pitcher this year but is being given a raise as well. It appears to be a matter for the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Youth to straighten out.

Quinn Gets a Raise

Quinn was pitching for Connellsville, in the Pennsylvania League the year Travis Jackson was born—1903. This actually will be his 30th consecutive season in baseball. He was playing ball when Rogers Hornsby was seven years old. He had pitched a full season before Travis Jackson, Woody English, Tony Lazzeri, Fred Lindstrom, Eddie Morgan, Buddy Myer, Carl Reynolds, Johnny Rothrock and a number of other well established major leaguers had been born. When Quinn jumped the league, Mickey Cochran was three weeks old. Babe Ruth was going on nine years old.

Quinn Gets a Raise

Low Fonseca was a three-year-old kid being warned not to go out into the San Francisco streets where he surely would be run down by some devil-may-care monster careening along madly in the family bus.

Quinn Gets a Raise

Quinn was a minor leaguer when Max Carey, his present manager, was a 13-year-old school kid in Terre Haute. And Jack was dismissed by the Yankees as being through a year after Carey made his big league bow with the Pirates. Nine years after Quinn was shunted back to the minors, he came back to the same team that had sent him away, and after that he pitched for the Yankees three years during which time he won 40 games and lost 31.

Relic of Federals

Jack is possibly the only big leaguer remaining of that brave band of rebels that jumped to the Federal League nearly 20 years ago. Edd Roush was another, and Edd recently announced his permanent retirement from the game. At Quinn's age? Don't ask! This correspondent tried to find out within 10 years the birthday of the kid from Connellsville. That was two years ago in the Athletics' spring camp at Fort Myers. Jack insists on July 5, 1885. But that would make him only 47. That would make him only nine years older than Babe Ruth, and only about five years older than Max Carey, his venerable manager.

Relic of Federals

This writer wishes to protest violently. Youngsters like Rogers Hornsby ought to be given a fair trial before being declared unfit for further cavortings on the greensward.

Relic of Federals

Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey each have posted $25,000 forfeit binding them to fight in June. The threat is becoming a terrible reality.

DALLAS GIRLS DOMINATE

Agnes Iori... All-America five consecutive years... captain of the championship Golden Cyclones. Thelma Russell... two-time All-America... backbone of the Dallas Shoe Shops... bidding for championship.

Texas Girls Hold Basketball Title

Dallas, Texas, Feb. 9.—The damsels of Dallas are basketball queens of the world. Four times in four years a team of slim, pretty Dallas girls have marched off with the championship in national A. A. U. basketball tournaments. Twice in that time, a pair of Dallas teams met in the finals. At nine years after Quinn was shunted back to the minors, he came back to the same team that had sent him away, and after that he pitched for the Yankees three years during which time he won 40 games and lost 31.

The Chicago White Sox must report at Mineral Wells, Tex., before spring training is begun for a 10-day course in water-drinking. That must be puzzling to a few of the other big leaguers—how can a ball player ever learn to drink water in 10 days?

Relic of Federals

The present basketball season still threatens to come to a most unsatisfactory conclusion with the fans being deprived of a town title series between the National Guards and Recreation Center. The teams have been unable to reach an agreement. Announcement today that the Baltimore Orioles will play here the last week in February makes the titular series even more unlikely as this is the week the series was tentatively scheduled to start. The Guards still demand that the first two games be played on an exchange of $50 guarantee basis with the third sixty-fourty if such be necessary. They offer to toss up for the location of the first game. The Recreation Center, continues to hold out for the customary sixty-fourty division of net receipts throughout the series. About the only thing that is happening is the moving of the season towards its inevitable conclusion. The major league clubs will be leaving for the south to engage in spring baseball practice. Judging from the lack of talk along the street, interest in a town basketball series is beginning to dwindle already and unless the teams patch up their difficulties soon, both will be soon forgotten.

SPORT SLANTS

It is somewhat refreshing, for the time being, to know that the No. 1 men of tennis on either side of the Atlantic, Henri Cochet and Ellisworth Vines, each rejected quite flattering offers to turn professional this year, preferring to remain rival bulwarks of amateurism.

The specific factor in each case is the desire of their compatriots, as well as themselves, to compete in the forthcoming Davis Cup campaign, in which 31 nations will take part. Cochet, after many a brisk battle on the courts, has reached the age where he might well be pardoned for yielding to an impulse to capitalize his fame substantially.

Temping bait was dangled before him in Paris by M. Curley and M. Tilden, anxious to promote a profitable world tour. They told Henri that the time was ripe for him to make the break, that he was nearing the end of his Davis Cup career and that another year might remove the lure of a Tilden-Cochet duet among the cash-couters.

The little Frenchman remained steadfast, however, and to a question as to when he might consider turning pro, replied: "Quand aurai etc battu dans le coupe Davis."

Which is had news, in any language, for the U. S. A. and our hopes of regaining the big silver bowl and platter. Vines, too, found it difficult to resist the overtures of Tilden before deciding to remain an amateur, albeit a business man amateur for this spring and summer, prior to continuing his studies at the University of Southern California.

Vines, at the present stage of his career, would have been ill-advised to turn pro for the sake of a little immediate capitalization of his rise to the national championship. It would have echoed a sour note in a sport that still acknowledges the amateur as king. The Californian, in other words, has yet to make his mark as an international star. He has never swung a racquet in Davis Cup play. As a pro now his reputation would be short-lived and he would find himself shortly just another young man remembered as an ex-champion.

By continuing his career as an amateur player and by fortifying himself with adequate education, Vines likely will be in a position in a few years to make his choice and, perhaps, dictate his terms to a professional promoter. Meanwhile the opinion is quite strong around Europe, where tennis is discussed over the tea or aperitif, that England has much better prospects of reaching the Challenger Round again than the United States. Vines is regarded abroad as too inexperienced to survive the difficult tests of a first trip to Europe. Lott, Shields and Wood do not impress the continental critics as forming any combination strong enough to beat the English pair, Austin and Perry.

YALE PLAYS PRINCETON TEAM THIS EVENING

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Yale and Princeton open the week's firing in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League at Princeton tonight in a game the Tigers are heavy favorites to win. Tied with Columbia for second place in the league standing, Princeton looks much more powerful than a Yale five which has been able to win only one league game in five.

Eleven All-America stars—seven Cyclones and four Shoe Shoppers—each with official recognition, are members of the two squads. One Cyclone, the internationally famous Mildred (Babe) Didrickson, is probably the greatest female athlete in the "under fire" list. Kathleen Pease, three times All-America guard; Lucy Stratton, All-America guard; Gipsy Williams, All-America at guard and forward, and Leona Thaxton, All-America forward.

In the opposite trenches, the Shoe Shoppers are making war with four All-America players enlisted from the third place Oilers of 1931. They are Lura McElreath Calhoun and Carrie McElroy, forwards with the combination that won three national titles; Thelma Russell, blond captain and guard; and Anna Bernatkin, little center. Working with this group is a newcomer of unusual promise, pretty Zona Miller, a guard.

HOCKEY

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Ousted temporarily from first place in the Canadian section of the National Hockey League last Saturday night, the Montreal Canadiens in Montreal will have a chance to tie Toronto for the lead again tonight. The Canadiens, world champions, tackle their Montreal rivals, the Maroons hoping for victory which would give them a tie for first place.

The governor personally appeared before the law makers to read his 5,000-word message in Spanish, and the soundness of the government's credit. Governor Beverley presented a budget for the year 1932-33 of $11,000,000, a reduction of $285,000, from the fiscal budget of 1931-32.

A stricter banking law providing double liability for stockholders also was suggested.

COOLIDGE IS SUE

Springfield, Mass., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Former President Calvin Coolidge and the New York Life Insurance Company of which he is a director, have been named co-defendants in a $100,000 suit.

The suit was instituted by Lewis E. Tebbetts, a St. Louis insurance man who alleges his reputation as an honest insurance agent has been injured and greatly damaged as a result of a radio talk given by Mr. Coolidge October 6, 1931 and remarks afterward published in pamphlet form by the New York Life Insurance Company.

Papers in the suit were served on Mr. Coolidge at his Northampton home yesterday. C. Charles Weinberg of Springfield has been retained by St. Louis attorneys acting for Tebbetts. Weinberg says his client is a proponent of "term insurance" or insurance for protection only. Tebbetts alleges Mr. Coolidge in his radio talk, indirectly referred to him and his insurance methods and that these remarks were afterward printed in pamphlet form by the insurance company of which the former president is a director.

LENZ DESCRIBES A BRIDGE HAND

Tells How a Lowly Three Spot Helped Him In Winning Game.

BY TOM O'NEIL

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—In the words of Sidney S. Lenz it requires rather precise play in bridge to know when a three spot is sufficiently high to pick up an adversary's device, especially in trumps. Pianolas have their appeal to the novice, but the thrill of the master often comes in accurate defense which sets a contract.

Here is a hand from a national tournament in which the lowly three spot in Mr. Lenz's hand was a great factor in defeating the declaration:

Bridge hand table with columns for East (Dealer), South, West, North, and East (Dealer) with card counts.

East—(Dealer) S—Ace Q 10 2. H—9 4 3. D—Ace Q 8 2. C—K 9.

West S—8 7 5. H—Ace 8. D—J 10 7 3. C—Ace 8 6 5.

Mr. Lenz—(South) S—K J 3. H—Q J 10 6 5. D—K 4. C—J 10 7.

East bid one spade; South two hearts and west two spades which became the contract. West's raise in spades is against the tenets of systems which would prefer a no trump except for the short suit in hearts with only one stopper.

The play: 1. S. W. N. E. 2.—QH AHX 2H 2H 3.—J5X 5H 4H 4H 4.—JH TSX 7H 9H 5.—KSX 8S 6S QS 6.—10H 5C 9S AceSX 7.—7C AceCX 2C 9C 8.—KDX JD 5D 2D 9.—3SX 6C 6D 2S 10.—6EX 8D 9D 8D (X)—Took trick.

Next led is immediately beneath. The last three tricks were conceded to West and east, south having to lead a diamond or club to their high cards of those suits. But by that time Lenz and partner had taken six tricks, enough to defeat the contract by one trick. The accomplishment was due to the fact Lenz established his long heart suit, forcing the declarer to trump till he had only the two spot of trumps left and the three spot took that away from him. Then the six of hearts in Mr. Lenz's hand was good.

THE TINYMITE STORY BY HAL COCHRAN PICTURES BY JOE KING

By FRANK BECK

As Scouty gaily raced along he shouted, "Ge, I must be strong. Just think! I'm pulling three of you, besides our little cart. And yet I'm breathing very slow as on and on and on. If I were weak I'm sure that I'd have thumping of the heart."

"Well, I have slept a half an hour," said Scouty, "and I've built new power. Hop right into the cart and we'll travel right along. You lads are lucky as can be. You should be entertaining me." "All right, we will," said Windy. "We will sing a little song."

But ere their voices filled the air there came a very sudden scare. A wheel upon the cart began to wobble round. The next thing that the Tinies knew, right out into the air it flew. Of course the cart tipped over and the bunch flopped on the ground.

"They found a very good spot."

SENSE AND NONSENSE

An old woman was suffering in committee. . . . For all any of us tense pain from what she believed to be a burst appendix. Her daughter sent for a doctor, who examined the old lady and told her not to worry—that the pain would be gone in a few hours.

Daughter (after doctor had gone a short time)—How do you feel now, mother?

Old Lady—Oh, I feel so much better since our new pastor was here. His talk did me so much good.

Daughter (astonished)—Why, mother, that wasn't the new minister—that was the doctor.

Old Lady—Well, for land's sake. You know I was just thinking that pastors nowadays get a little bit too familiar with a person.

Mr. Junewed—What! Another new dress? Where am I to find the money to pay for it?

Mrs. Junewed—Huh, I did not marry you to give financial advice.

Wouldn't it be grand if they could invent an anti-freeze solution a man could pour into himself in the fall and save buying and wearing an overcoat. . . . We all have so much hard luck ourselves that we are often actually pleased to hear of the troubles of others.

Even on icy days, says a fashion designer, "the modern girl is more comfortable than the old-fashioned six petticoated girl." She isn't if she slips.

"My wife's forever on the go," Complained Adolphus Slick "So's mine," said Buck, "But she's always coming back."

Bride—You must not expect me to give up my girlhood ways all at once.

Bridegroom—Certainly not, my dear. Go on taking an allowance from your father as if nothing had happened.

Hubby—You didn't have a rag on your back when I married you.

Wife—Anyway, I've plenty of them now.

You can spot a good husband by the worn edges on his pockets and the habit of looking at his watch. Spring has never come in January. Better not take 'em off yet. . . . It has been found that music helps a man propose—must be these catchy tunes. . . . It doesn't require a net to catch a flying rumor. . . . It used to be that a girl's beau had to pass muster before her mother, father, aunts, uncles, and what not. But nowadays the girl is her own finance
