

CANNONADING ENDS; SHANGHAI IS QUIET

Both Sides Renew Efforts To Stop Hostilities — Two British Soldiers Killed During Bombing.

Shanghai, Thursday, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Shaken by the guns which had bombarded Chapel all night, Shanghai was quiet early this morning as the cannonading came to an end.
More artillery was being brought up to the lines of Chapel and Wood-stung but there was no concrete indication that the expected Japanese offensive was ready to begin.
On the contrary, both sides had renewed their efforts to bring an end to the fighting. The Japanese command indicated that they would give ample warning before launching the thunderbolt, and leading Chinese officials were trying to agree on a basis for peace.

Until late last night Wellington Koo, T. V. Soong and other outstanding Chinese leaders were in conference but they did nothing to say for publication. The American, British and French ministers, who took a hand in the negotiations last week said they would not go back to Nanking until Saturday or Sunday.

Eager For Peace
Mayor Wu Te-hsun said China was eager for an honorable, permanent peace, "but every indication points to the determination of the Japanese militarists to aggravate the situation by extending the invasion."

Mr. Soong, ridiculing reports that there were differences between the Chinese Kwantung Army and the 19th Route Army defending Chapel, said General Chiang would support the 19th if the Japanese launched a heavy attack.

Two British sailors, put ashore with a landing party from the cruiser Suffolk, died yesterday of wounds inflicted when shells from the Chapel front burst on the Whangpo docks where they were on patrol. Police said 45 shells had fallen in the Settlement during the day, killing five Chinese and wounding seventeen.

JAPAN'S ULTIMATUM
Tokyo, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Japan today authorized the issuance of an ultimatum to the Chinese army at Shanghai threatening to drive it away from the city by force unless it withdraws voluntarily.
At virtually the same time the government received official advice from Washington saying Secretary Stimson was preparing to protest formally against the landing of Japanese soldiers in the International Settlement at Shanghai.

The ultimatum to General Tsi Ting-kai, commander of the Chinese Route Army at Shanghai, was given to Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister to China and to Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura and General

FARMERS OF STATE GATHER AT CAPITAL

Federal Official Tells Them He Sees No Improvement This Year.

Hartford, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Approximately three hundred farmers from all parts of Connecticut attended a meeting at the State office building today to discuss the present and future status of agriculture in the state and to determine what steps should be taken with reference to it, not only to maintain income but to "maintain the real values of life in rural Connecticut."
Dr. Mordecai J. B. Ezekiel, assistant chief economist of the Federal Farm Bureau, was the principal speaker. He outlined the relation of American and especially Connecticut agriculture to world economic conditions, and stated that Connecticut farmers should plan with an eye to no improvement, possibly somewhat worse times in the next year or so and should be "pleasantly surprised" if there is improvement.
State Commissioner of Agriculture Buckingham presided.

STUDENT KILLED

Meriden, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Carmen Tedisco, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Tedisco of Mill street, Southington, and a third year student at the Meriden State Trade school, died at the Meriden hospital today from injuries suffered Monday while pursuing his studies at the trade school. The boy was at work on a grinding wheel when the latter became shattered and parts of the wheel entered the abdomen of the youth. He was rushed to the Meriden hospital where an emergency operation was performed but gradually failed until he passed away.

TUMULTY ASSAULTS LEAGUE OPPONENTS

Former Wilson Secretary Says Politicians Appeal To Men's Prejudices.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson and a leading exponent of United States' entry into the League of Nations, today assailed political expediency and declared "the popular mode of the past few years has been an appeal to the prejudices instead of an appeal to the handsome passions of men."

Speaking before the Democratic Women's Luncheon Club, Tumulty leveled his attack particularly against presidential candidates who "will not exchange opportunism and the applause of the crowd for freedom of action."
"Always with some candidates," Tumulty said, "in these days when great decisions have to be made affecting the peace and prosperity of the world, the main questions seem to be 'How easily can I win an election?' 'How can I shake hands with the bitterenders, the implacable foes of Woodrow Wilson, the League and world co-operation and at the same time stand in reverence before the shrine of Wilson?'"

Tumulty charged that in the "diagnoses of those who have recently come forward in behalf of their own candidacy, to express their views on domestic and foreign policies, there has been nothing but baiting fears—'Special A' and worse than all sundry—'to the devil of expediency."
"With the first shot from the gun of the arch-enemy of the League, on January 21st, former devotees of the League cried, 'Kamerad, Kamerad, and weakly surrendered, with the world on fire, with tinder lying about the room and ready to kindle a conflagration, a real lover of peace would have refrained from attacking the League when, by the merest chance it might have checked a world conflagration in the Orient."

PLAN NEW STATE FOR MANCHURIANS

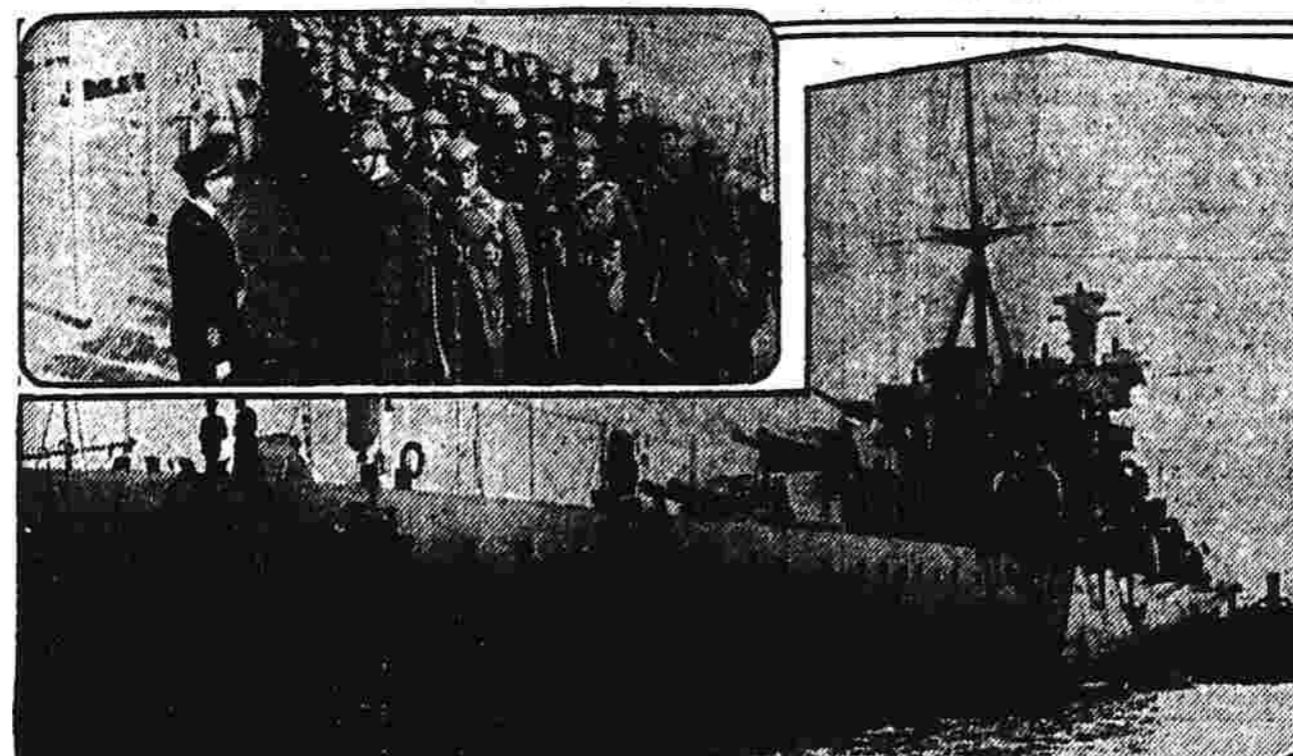

Chinese In Charge But Japanese As Advisers—Drawing Up a Constitution.

Mukden, Manchuria, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Chao Hsin-Po, mayor of Mukden and one of Japan's staunchest friends in Manchuria, was charged today with the task of drawing up a proclamation for a Manchurian-Mongolian state, which is expected to be announced tomorrow.
The group of Chinese leaders who will appear publicly as the state's founders includes General Ma Chan-Shan and other Chinese provincial governors and chieftains. They have been meeting here for several days, assisted by a large corps of Japanese advisors. These leaders selected Mayor Chao to draft the announcement.

In the conferences which have been going on for several days the builders of the new state gave much thought to the selection of a suitable name and it was said that the suggestion which met with general approval was "Ankuo" which means "Land of Peace." The flag, it was reported, will be the old five-barred Chinese Republican emblem of white, red, yellow, black and blue with Japan's rising sun super-imposed.
Self Governed
Reliable reports said five fundamental principles will be embodied in the constitution—that sovereignty shall rest with the people, that the state shall be autonomous or self-governed, that there shall be equality of the races, co-operation among all racial elements, and maintenance of the "open door" for the commerce of all nations.
There was much debate concerning the relative advantages of Republicanism and Monarchism and the conferees were said to have compromised on establishing a life-time dictator at the head of a government of this dictator has not been disclosed but Hsun U-Yi, the "Boy Emperor," is still the most often mentioned.

TREASURY BALANCE
Washington, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for Feb. 15 were: $80,981,753.50; expenditures $109,184,454.98; balance $53,875,705.92. Custom duties for 15 days of February were $12,309,285.28.

Italian Warship Rushes Troops to China

NEED MORE FACILITIES AT HOME OF VETERANS

State Commission Reports To Governor Cross—Medical Staff Inadequate To Do Efficient Work.

Hartford, Feb. 17.—(AP)—With a population of more than 500 residents, all subject to the disease and sickness prevalent among veterans as a result of their service and a "wholly inadequate" medical staff, the Veterans Home Commission is powerless to bring Fitch's Home for Soldiers at Noroton "to that state of efficiency which an institution of this nature requires," according to the biennial report of the commission submitted today to Governor Cross.
A report by Colonel William P. Welch, commandant of the home also accompanied the commission's report.
In calling Governor Cross' attention to the situation at the home, the report stated further: "This is the fact because the cost of maintaining an adequate medical, surgical and nursing staff at the Soldiers Home would be almost prohibitive, so much so that the commission feels that this would not be done if we can secure medical care and attendance by affiliating with some institution which, under the law, is required to maintain a staff for the purpose of furnishing the service which is critically necessary at the Home. We have no adequate quarters at Noroton for medical care and the situation is so unattractive that it is difficult to secure physicians of ability to accept an appointment."
Wives and Children
"The governor's attention is called to the increased number of wives and children of veterans who require assistance from the state through the commission."
"When a veteran becomes resident of the Home," says the report, "in many cases his family becomes a charge upon the funds appropriated to the Home for its work."
The report further states: "We will very shortly be called upon to face the problem of the widows of the World War veterans. Estimates based upon our experience with veterans of wars prior to the World War and estimates and opinions of the Colonel Welch in his report say that the outstanding occurrence for the biennium was the rapid increase in population of the Home, particularly on the part of the veterans of the World War. The number of these veterans increased from 71 on July 1, 1919 to 238 on July 1, 1931."

Results!
Knight Chambers, of 20 Knox street, lost a valuable wallet containing two dollars, an automobile driver's license and other papers Monday night while skating at Center Spring pond.
Tuesday he advertised in the Herald Classified columns. A few hours after the paper was on the street a girl from Edgerdon street returned the pocketbook and received the money as a reward. Mr. Chambers said, "It sure pays to advertise."

NO RETURNS YET FROM FREE STATE

Observers Predict Margin Will Be Small For Whoever Is the Winner.

Dublin, Irish Free State, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Intense excitement prevailed in the Irish Free State today as the people waited the result of the count of ballots cast in yesterday's elections, on which hangs the fate of the government of President Cosgrave.
Most observers expressed the belief that the margin for the winner, whether President Cosgrave or his rival, Eamonn De Valera, leader of the Fianna Fail, would be very small. Some of the returns might be delayed for days, they said.
The election passed quietly in spite of the advance "fury of violence" which resulted in two deaths Monday. Troops were not needed. Civil guards quelled such minor outbreaks as occurred.
Two boys, one 13 and one 16, were permitted to vote in Dublin when they appeared at a polling place and their names were found on the lists.
A two year old baby whose name was inadvertently placed on the list was carried to a booth and voted.

SON OF RICH MAN DIES FROM BLOW

Was Struck On Ear In Boxing Match In New Haven Saturday Night.

New Haven, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Gail Christian Ulrich, 20, grandson of Gail Borden, wealthy New York milk products manufacturer, died today of injuries which physicians believe he suffered in the city light-weight championship boxing match.
Medical Examiner Marvin M. Scarborough said death was due either to a fractured skull or to an ear infection.
Ulrich was struck on the ear last Thursday in the amateur championship fight he won against Jackie Austin. He became ill Saturday night, and was removed to a hospital when he lost consciousness the next day.
Coroner James J. Corrigan said he believed the death accidental though resulting from the match. He would be said, question Austin, matchmaker James Carton and Referee Charles Pilkington. He expressed the opinion death might have been caused by meningitis resulting from a fractured ear drum.
The fight was the second between Austin and Ulrich. During an early round when Austin held a decided advantage he struck Ulrich a hard blow on one ear, Ulrich was heard to say, "Don't do that Jackie." However, in spite of the injury Ulrich came back in subsequent rounds to win the fight and the city amateur championship.
Planned Vacation
His parents Mr. and Mrs. Leanne B. Ulrich of New Haven had planned to leave this week for Bermuda but cancelled this because of his condition. He was the nephew of John Ulrich, Yale instructor, whose German wife was admitted to this country by a special Act of Congress after immigration officials had refused to enter her.
The youth who recently was graduated from a military academy reached the final championship bout in a local tournament by virtue of three previous victories. In the first he defeated Tommy Judd, Austin was the victim in the second. In the third he met Leo Darcey. Then he suffered the fatal injuries in a rematch with Austin.

BRIDGEPORT HOME WRECKED BY BOMB

Man Refuses To Comply With Request of Blackmailers Who Sent Letter.

Bridgeport, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Failure of Samuel Paumi, Crane Company employee, to comply with the terms of a threatening letter demanding money which was sent to him several months ago, is blamed by police today for the unsuccessful attempt to blow up Paumi's five-family house at 370 Pembroke street about 8:30 o'clock last night.
A bomb explosion in the rear of Paumi's home shattered six windows, tore away part of a window sill and shook buildings in an area of two blocks threatening the lives of the family. The detonation was heard for blocks. One elderly woman, Mrs. Anna Lynch, a widow, who occupied an upper apartment in the house is confined to her home today suffering from the effects of the shock.
The authorities believe last night's bomb episode may have been but a warning to Paumi of what will happen to him if he continues to ignore the letter writer's demand. Paumi received the threatening letter nearly six months ago but it was not until several weeks ago it was called to the attention of the police. The letters is now in possession of the authorities.

REORGANIZE BUREAUS IS HOOVER'S APPEAL

Draft New Beer Bill; Would Raise Millions

Washington, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Executive committees of the House Democratic and Republican Anti-Prohibition Blocs will be asked tomorrow to approve a bill to legalize beer of 3.2 per cent alcohol by weight and establish a tax that proponents of the measure say would raise $500,000,000 a year.
Representative O'Connor (D., N. Y.) said he and Representative William E. Hull (R., Ill.) had agreed on the outline of the bill.
It will be presented to the executive committees and then to the entire blocs, as was the constitutional amendment which failed to receive favorable action in the House judiciary committee yesterday, O'Connor asserted.

President Sends Special Message To Congress; Wants Changes Made In Federal Departments In The Interests of Economy—Would Also Create Four New Posts.

Washington, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Asking support for a wholesale reorganization of the government, President Hoover today dispatched a special message to Congress recommending the creation of four new Federal offices.
He requested, simultaneously, the major alteration and changing in title of four other Federal departments. Under the eight new and altered divisions he would consolidate present overlapping activities in an effort to subtract "millions of dollars annually" from the tax burden.
Authority also was asked for the chief executive to transfer and consolidate executive and administrative groups merely through the issuance of executive orders, each to be before Congress for 60 days before becoming operative.
Drastic Economy
"In the present crisis," the President declared, "the absolute necessity for the most drastic economy makes the problem of governmental reorganization one of paramount importance."
Here are the four new posts he would have Congress create:
A public works administrator, to construct and sometimes operate all Federal projects except those of the Army and Navy.
An assistant secretary for public health to head all such Federal work.
An assistant secretary for Merchant Marine, drawing into the commerce department all Marine shipping regulation, including inland waterways.
An assistant secretary for conservation, to combine now scattered efforts.

DEMOCRATS SCORED BY ASSEMBLYMAN

Told They Are Helping Candidates For Office and Neglect the Public.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 17.—(AP)—The Democratic minority of the New York legislature was described by a Republican member today as "carrying out the mandates of ambitious candidates for president for ten years" instead of representing the people who elected them.
The charge was made on the assembly floor by Assemblyman Horace Stone, Onondaga county Republican. It came in debate preliminary to the vote in the lower house on the Republican resolution for a legislative investigation of the

DIRECT DOLE BILL BEATEN IN SENATE

Costigan-La Follette Measure Loses On Non-Partisan Vote By 48 To 35.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The Costigan-La Follette bill to provide direct Federal relief for the unemployed was rejected in the Senate last night by a vote of 48 to 35.
This measure, frequently referred to as the "dole bill," and the first offered in Congress, went down after numerous substitute proposals and amendments had been beaten; thus the net result was that the Senate went on record as being opposed at this time to any direct relief legislation.
Two Weeks Debate
The Costigan-La Follette proposal was originally for distribution of $375,000,000 to charitable agencies by a Federal Bureau. It was amended by Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska, to authorize $375,000,000 in road-building funds also.
Two weeks of debate closed with the Democratic minority of the Senate as badly-torn apart on the question as were the Republicans, among whom such conservatives as Senators Davis of Pennsylvania and Jones of Washington cast their votes for the bill.
How They Voted
The roll call on the bill follows:
For the Bill, 35:
Republicans, 15: Blaine, Borah, Brookhart, Cutting, Davis, Frazier, Johnson, Jones, LaFollette, Norbeck, Norris, Nye, Schall, Stetson, Thomas (Idaho).
Democrats, 19: Ashurst, Bratton, Bulkeley, Cawley, Carey, Couzens, Dale, Dickinson, Fess, Goldsborough, Hale, Hastings, Hatfield, Hebert, Keane, Keyes, McNary, Oddie, Patterson, Reed, Robinson, Smoot, Townsend, Vandenberg, Walcott, Watson, White.
Republicans, 21: Bailey, Bankhead, Black, Broussard, Byrnes, Connelly, Coolidge, George, Glass, Gore, Harrison, Hawes, Hull, Kendrick, King, Morrison, Pittman, Robinson (Arkansas), Stephens, Tydings, Walsh (Massachusetts).
Pairs:
For the bill—Bulow, Barkley and Harris, Democrats.
Against the bill—Moore, Waterman and Metcalf, Republicans.

NEW TAX PROGRAM STILL IN WORKS

Manufactures Sales Tax Remains a Stumbling Block For the Committee.

Washington, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The House ways and means committee marked time today on the new tax program, awaiting definite recommendations from its special subcommittees on a manufactures sales tax and tightening the government's tax administration.
"The committee adjourned subject to my call," Acting Chairman Crisp said, "after I stated that the full membership was at an impasse until the subcommittees make their reports."
The subcommittee on administrative provisions was in under Representative Doughton (D., N. C.) and the sales tax group under Representative Rainey (D., Ill.).
Sales Tax Plan
"The treasury is working on a manufactures sales tax plan at our request and Secretary Mills was invited to meet with the Rainey committee today," Crisp said.
Crisp said any sales tax approved "probably will exempt the necessities of life."
Asked whether the individual and corporation income tax brackets tentatively agreed on by the committee would lower present exemptions, the Georgian said:
"You might guess there might be some lowering of exemptions."
Crisp said the Treasury tax recommendations still were $230,000,000 short of balancing the budget.

ANDERSON FILES CARDZO PROTEST

Man Who Served Time Is Against Appointment of New York Jurist.

Washington, Feb. 17.—(AP)—A Senate judiciary subcommittee was appointed today to hear persons who have protested the appointment of Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo, of New York, to the Supreme Court bench. The hearings will begin Friday.
The subcommittee named by Chairman Norris (R., Neb.) comprises Senators Robinson (R., Ind.), Schall (R., Minn.) and Ashurst (D., Ariz.).
Chairman Norris said he had already asked the persons protesting to be present.

LUTHERANS ELECT MEYDEN

Meriden, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Officers elected at the annual meeting of the Hartford district of the New England conference of the Lutheran church being held today at the Augustana Lutheran church here are as follows:
President, Rev. A. T. Berquist of Branford, vice president, Rev. Nore G. Gustafson, of Stamford; secretary, Rev. C. H. Nelson of West Haven; treasurer, Rev. A. J. Oksblom, of Bridgeport.

TWO ORCHESTRAS FOR AUTO SHOW
Local Bands To Play For Big Exhibit — Banquet Opening Night.

Two local orchestras have been engaged to furnish music for the Golden Opportunity Automobile Show, to be held at the State Armory from March 2 to March 5, it was announced today by George L. Betts, chairman of the music committee. Al Behrend's orchestra will play on Wednesday and Friday evening and Bill Waddell's orchestra will play on Thursday and Saturday evening. Both are six-piece orchestras.

The orchestra will be located at the rear of the Armory on a specially constructed platform, presenting a concert from 7:30 to 10:30 o'clock each evening. Behrend's orchestra will also play at the banquet to be held on the opening night of the show, in the basement of the Armory.

This will be the all-membership meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and the Kiwanis and Lions Clubs have also been invited to attend. An attempt is being made to obtain the services of Robbins Stoeckel, state motor vehicle commissioner, as speaker.

It was said today that practically every available space in the Armory has been contracted for by automobile dealers and accessory men and other exhibitors. Ten automobile dealers will display models of their cars and twenty-eight other exhibits will be ranged about the hall.

The Automobile Show will be the first to be held in Manchester since 1929 and undoubtedly will be the finest ever held locally. No admission fee will be charged as the Show is being planned as an educational one, giving the townspeople a "golden opportunity" to inspect the latest models of every automobile sold in Manchester.

ATTORNEY O'DOWD TO PRACTICE HERE
Well Known Local Man Opens Office In Bowers Block With Judge Johnson

Charles M. O'Dowd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick F. Hannon, of 137 Main street, and one of Manchester's best known young men, announced today that he has opened an office for the practice of law in the Bowers Block over the South Manchester Post Office. He will practice in his own name and will also be associated with Judge Raymond A. Johnson. His office will be open Thursday evenings and other evenings by appointment.

Charles M. O'Dowd

Attorney O'Dowd attended the Ninth district grammar school and graduated from the High school here with the class of 1920. He attended Holy Cross College, Worcester, Mass., during 1920 and 1921 and graduated with the Bachelor of Arts degree from St. Anselm's College, Manchester, N. H., in 1924. He graduated from the Hartford College of Law in 1930 and was admitted to the Connecticut Bar a year ago.

For the past eight years Mr. O'Dowd has been connected with the Hartford Accident and Indemnity Company in the capacity of surety underwriter. He plans to continue in this connection for the present at least.

Mr. O'Dowd played baseball and basketball in High school and basketball in college. He was High school reporter for The Herald for two years. He is a member of the Manchester Country Club and the Hartford County Bar Association.

BERLIN BROADCASTS OVER MICRO WAVE STARING UP SOON

Berlin.—(AP)—Micro-waves have passed the stage of mere laboratory tests and regular broadcasts on these diminutive wavelengths will be started as soon as practicable.

The "Telipol," a short vertical antenna on the highest building in the heart of the city to enable an even extension of the waves to all directions. A broadcasting and television studio is being installed.

Perfecting the realm of television will be the main aim of the new station. Every television device including the latest type cathode ray tubes will be tested.

Furthermore, it is planned to rebroadcast the regular Berlin program to investigate the possibilities of supplying Berlin radio fans with two different programs in the future.

Although electric interferences from outside can be localized and eliminated to a great extent, it has not yet been fully ascertained whether the main aim of the new station permit a faultless transmission over the wide area covered by the city.

The station will transmit alternately on 7.5 meters and 9 meters.

George Arliss Plays Role In "The Man Who Played God" As "If It Were Written For Him"

George Arliss and Violet Hemmi. . . make "The Man Who Played God" really live.

BY DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Writer

Hollywood, Feb. 17.—"The Man Who Played God"—one immediately thinks of that as a George Arliss picture. The English actor is about the only man in Hollywood who would fit into a film with such a title.

Since he made his first appearance on the screen in "Disraeli," Arliss has been free from bad pictures. To be sure, some have been better than others. But none could be classed as actually poor. His latest, "The Man Who Played God," easily ranks with his best efforts.

This is the story of a great musician who suddenly lost his hearing. For months he argues that the world is at an end as far as he is concerned. Music, the thing he loved most, has been taken from him. He hears a state of insanity.

Suddenly he discovers that by using strong field glasses he can read the lips of persons at the park across from his home. He spends hours each day watching people, "hearing" what they say, answering their prayers for help—and finds happiness again.

Arliss, of course, is in the title role. For months he has been better if it had been written especially for him. And he plays it with a few. Another excellent performance is turned in by Violet Hemming, who plays an old-time sweetheart who always has been in love with him. He spends hours so close to the family that he never regarded her seriously.

Also there is young Bette Davis, a comparative newcomer to the screen, in the role of a young music lover who falls in love with Arliss while he still is the great master. She begs him to marry her and is determined to go through with it even after he loses his hearing—but he refuses. Considering her inexperience, Miss Davis does remarkably well, so well that Arliss has asked her for his next film.

If you like tropical pictures with plenty of jungle scenes and bar-rooms surrounding a beautiful girl who falls by the wayside, "Panama Flo" will prove interesting.

"Panama Flo," with Helen Twelvetrees in the starring role, is a well acted and well-directed picture which has a story to tell and tells it. The opening of the picture really is the ending.

Helen has been an entertainer in a Panama cabaret and is stranded along with the other girls when the owner can't pay their salaries. Her sweetheart, Robert Armstrong, is sent away on a dangerous mission, necessitating a postponement of their marriage. Weeks stretch into months and still he doesn't return.

Helen is desperate and helps another girl steal Bickford's bankroll while he is lying drunk in the cabaret. She is caught and Bickford says she can work it out if she is a housekeeper. Naturally Armstrong returns, finds Helen in Bickford's jungle home, plots to take her away and is shot by Bickford while trying to steal some valuable papers. Bickford then sends Helen back to New York and follows her some three years later, where we find him trying to persuade her to marry him.

TRAGEDY OF WAR WELCOMES CONFERENCE AT GENEVA

By Dr. Julian S. Wadsworth

An irony of circumstances has attended the opening of the conference for war disarmament. Events have been moving so rapidly that one can hardly read the pages of history being written at this world-center.

It has seemed in these last weeks as if the forces of evil had been let loose against it. For ten years the foundations have been laying for this conference and now it has seemed as if with the bitterest storms of hatred hurled upon the ideal work of the years might be lost, and the conference even be abandoned. Last week it was decided to discuss work on the construction of the Palace of Nations for "economic reasons." It was really with the fear that as the Lausanne Conference had been cancelled this one would be also. Fortunately other council prevailed and the work continues on this steadily butting with such world-wide and vital interest to humanity.

Devil In Charge
One hears at this time all manner of expressions. The most pessimistic tell us his satanic majesty has already taken the place of the Deity in the management of human affairs. These say that there can be no thought of disarmament now but that we must even increase the armies for "security." The reign of the militarists continues and nothing can prevent the greed of nationalistic governments from scrapping the League of Nations when the race again will be plunged into a welter of bloody butchery. These assure us that humanity must revert again to savagery.

However, there are those in Geneva together with millions throughout the world who will not bend the knee with these false prophets in an acknowledgment of the failure of Christian civilization. There is faith in the Living God and it is believed that evil will be overcome by mightier force of love. In this time of the world's extremity there is the greatest need for hope that these statesmen will not rest until they have found a way through the difficulties.

First Warning
It was the warning voice of the late Czar Nicholas II of Russia that called the first conference for world peace at The Hague, in 1897. Had that word been heeded, history would have read very differently. Had the Czar himself—own how soon would be his own tragic end and his entire family with the fall of his empire with a sacrifice of 10,000,000 of the world's choicest youth, to say nothing of the ruthless destruction of three hundred and fifty billions of dollars worth of the world's accumulated wealth, would he not have pleaded more earnestly even with an anguish of soul that his warning words might not have been lost? We will not believe that all these vast preparations for a conference for war disarmament will be swept away by the blindness of those who will not believe that peace must succeed in the purpose for which it was called.

The Argument
Aside from technical discussions which will be considered in commissions appointed with the finest expert minds, I am told there will be three general lines of argument at least: (a) Pledges of honor were given at the close of the war by the Allies who had conquered, to their vanquished foes, the Germans and their Allies. The enemy was stripped of his arms with a solemn pledge that all the nations would immediately enter upon a "general and continuous scheme of limitations." This pledge has been flagrantly violated. In every case the victorious Allies have not reduced but have greatly increased their own armaments. If this conference fails at this time to keep this sacred promise, in which the United States is equally bound morally by its subsequent treaty with Germany, what can be expected but that Germany will withdraw from the League and proceed with bitter competition to arm herself to the parity if not beyond the other nations? (b) Burdens. It would seem that in the presence of the economic and financial depression, there will be little reason for long argument upon this need for an immediate and drastic reduction of this needless burden of expense.

A man asked me the other day if I could think of money in terms very large. I said that I had not had very much experience never having had very much of it and always careful to save what I had. He then said that I could get an appropriate idea of the magnitude of the sum which the world has spent for war in these last twelve months, if I could think of that which would have been saved if at the birth of Christ a single gold piece of the value of $5 had been put in some safe place, one piece every minute through all the centuries to the present hour. How long will it be that sensible taxpayers will be willing to bear the weight of this senseless burden at the dictate of sovereign statesmen, when this conference has failed in its duty?

(c) Dangers. On all sides we will be hearing of the increase of danger in modern warfare, of the physical dangers due to the increased power of the enemy of destruction. I was impressed with the remark made by Viscount Cecil of Great Britain,

POLICE CHECK UP
BLAGDEN'S STORY

Send Man To Cleveland To Get All the Details of Alleged Kidnaping.

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 1.—(AP)—In a statement published today, state police said they intended to check "very carefully" Harry H. Blagden's story that he was kidnaped here last Thursday night.

They said a trooper had flown to Cleveland, where Blagden turned up late Monday night, to return here with the wealthy sportsman.

Blagden disappeared last Thursday night from E. Roland Harrison's cottage at the fashionable Lake Placid Club. Relatives then reported they had received a letter in his handwriting saying he had been kidnaped and that his abductors demanded $1,000 ransom.

A brother went to Tupper Lake to keep a rendezvous and pay the $1,000 but no kidnapers appeared. Nothing was heard from Blagden until he turned up at the home of a friend in Cleveland. He said he had been taken to Cleveland by his captors and that he had escaped there.

AMATEUR CARVES WOOD PLAQUE OF WASHINGTON

George D. Edwards of Oak Street Makes Flat Relief Medallion Remarkably Well.

A remarkable carved wood medallion with a flat relief of George Washington is being exhibited today by George D. Edwards of 133 Oak street, former machinist at the Pratt & Whitney plant in Hartford.

Officials who viewed the hand-carved piece of woodwork at the State Trade School and Recreation Centers today praised the man's work highly. The carving, done entirely with the aid of a pocket jack-knife is the first ever attempted by Mr. Edwards.

Only 23 hours and 10 minutes were required to finish the job, Mr. Edwards said today. Outside of having a hobby for jack-knife wood-carving and making boats for his children, the Oak street man said he never had any training in such work.

Mr. Edwards, now among the town's unemployed, plans to place the portrait on exhibition at Watkins Brothers tomorrow. It is made from a piece of white birch wood about 12 inches by eight inches and one inch thick.

ABOUT TOWN

The military whist given by Temple Chapter, O. E. S., of the Masonic banquet hall last night was most successful, more than fifty tables being in play. The military feature applied to progressive whist. Bridge was also played and there were attractive prizes in each section. Cakes and coffee were served by the committee in charge.

BOOTH DISCHARGED FROM SANATORIUM

Star Yale Athlete To Resume Studies But Must Keep Out of Sports.

New Haven, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Albert J. Booth, diminutive captain of the 1931 Yale football squad, returned today from a Wallingford sanatorium, the lung ailment which terminated his active football career greatly improved.

Physicians said he might attend classes. He will live with Coach Elmer Ripley of the Ell basketball squad although he will be forbidden to engage in any athletic activity. Even the social life to which he will be subjected if he returned to fraternity house residence, was regarded as unwise.

He was reported several weeks ago as recovered sufficiently to be removed from the windswept sanatorium porch, where he had lain since a few days after his illness prevented his leading the Ell eleven against Princeton, and assigned to a cottage.

Coach Ripley met him at the sanatorium with an automobile and brought him to this city. Although his physical condition forbids his taking active leadership of the quintet of which he was to be captain, it is expected he will be on the sidelines in the remaining games of the season.

To Resume Studies Booth and Ripley went direct to the offices of the Yale Athletic Association where news of his discharge had not been received. His arrival, a surprise to the officers and staff was a signal for an impromptu reception and cessation of all route work. A small group gathered as the news spread, but Booth remained only a short time.

He will return to classes at once he said, in spite of the loss of time he hopes to catch up with his classmates and graduate in June. Booth, a fast runner and ball carrier as well as a threat in kicking and passing, in spite of his 145 pounds was regarded as one of the most sensational players in the east through three seasons with the Ell eleven. He also starred at basketball and baseball.

His career reached its peak in the Harvard game last season when his field goal won the game, there being nothing. The following Monday when the squad gathered for practice for the game against Princeton, Booth remained out suffering from what was believed to be chest cold. He was forced to remain out of the Princeton game. A few days later physicians diagnosed his illness as "pleurisy with effusion" and ordered him treated at Gaylord Farms Sanatorium in Wallingford. It was expected he would remain under treatment until May.

OPEN FORUM

OUT HERE AGAIN

Editor, The Herald: I had given up writing as I said in my last article but when an ex-widow butts in that's different. If she only knew how much she hurt me when she said "I wasn't a poet. That's going a bit too far. After the beautiful poems I have written, I read one to my dog the other day because I had no one else to read it to. Believe me or not he actually stood up on his hind legs and cried. Don't blame me because I ain't a good poet, blame the dog."

Another thing you said you would like to discuss the "cold feet business with me but it was too low down." Don't you know your feet are always lowest down unless you stand on your head. Your description of me is erroneous. You said I was bow-legged. I could have you brought up before the judge for that. I admit I am sprung at the knees and slightly pigeon toed but I'm not bow-legged.

Perhaps you are. In the days of long ago when women wore clothes you couldn't tell, but nowadays when they wear scarcely any you can get a pretty good line on them. A notable thing you are wrong about when you said I parted my hair in the middle. My hair hasn't seen a comb since I moved out here. I haven't much left, anyhow. Again you said I had a swell head which is also wrong. I've had lots of big heads in my time but I always got over them.

Now are you really an ex or are you really still a widow and have that three thousand you spoke about. Would like to get into communication with you for I'm the guy that could help you spend it. Now I must stop soon for I am sleepy but I can't stop until I tell you this. I think it was Barnum who said "One born every minute" the chap you captured must have been one "of 'em". I bet by this time he wishes he had left you remain an X.

Again you said I would be running for Mayor of the town. There ain't no town where I live—nothing but frog ponds and mud holes. As I said before in a previous article, the mail man is the only one we see. If you want to elect a mayor where I live you had better put in a snappy tag article for that is about the only mayor you could find in his office out here in a mud hole.

I had a beautiful poem written but as you say I ain't a poet I put it in the stove. But I must close now. If you are still a widow and still have that money I won't say no more—you know what I mean. Still The Hermit.

McLellan Stores' Methods of Operation Bring Lower Prices — Cooperate in Community.

"Present conditions in the business world make it possible for McLellan Stores to bring even lower prices than usual to the people of Manchester," declared F. F. Taylor, advertising manager of McLellan Stores Company.

"It has always been our policy to co-operate in every way with the community activities of the cities in which our stores are located," Mr. Taylor continued. "We believe that one of the best ways a retailer can serve his community is by giving the merchandise people want at the lowest prices consistent with sound business practice. We believe that by eliminating waste and running an efficient store we are performing that service."

"We employ the young men and women of the community, deposit funds in the local banks, advertise in the local newspapers, use the skilled services of its craftsmen in erecting and maintaining the plant which houses the store, and incidentally, give indirect employment to other people in the community by the necessary use of light, heat, power, expressage, trucking and the like, which the conduct of a prosperous business entails."

McLellan Stores Company has made rapid growth in the past 16 years from a small group of stores in North Carolina to the present chain of 279 stores located throughout the country from Maine to New Mexico.

Testing the value of newspaper advertising, the new sales promotion department, recently set up in the New York Office, found that well-planned advertising more than paid for itself in increased business and sales volume. As a result, McLellan Stores Company is launching a nation wide advertising campaign.

The McLellan Stores Company has selected The Herald to carry its message of values to the people of Manchester and its environs, believing that through its pages, the store's message will reach the majority of alert and intelligent people of the community.

For every 1,000 persons in the United States there are about 186 cows.

OFFICIALS AWAIT VESSEL'S ARRIVAL

Mystery of Miss Cook's Death May Be Solved By a Cablegram.

Boston, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Investigators expected that the arrival of the steamer Chinese Prince late today would clear up, in part at least, the mystery surrounding the death of Elizabeth Barrett Cook.

St. George Arnold, 26 year old Massachusetts Institute of Technology graduate and fiancé of Miss Cook who died aboard the Chinese Prince last week hoped he might see with his own eyes the hoaxed cablegram which he believes sent his fiancée to her death. The original of the cablegram is in the possession of the British freighter's captain.

Miss Cook died aboard the Chinese Prince while enroute to this country from Naples to marry Arnold. Advice from Naples, transmitted to Arnold through Secretary of State Stimson, have indicated Captain Howard Uncles of the Chinese Prince received a cablegram signed "Helen James" which told of Arnold's "death" at Boston after an operation.

Miss Cook died while the ship was approaching Gibraltar. A post-mortem examination conducted by British officials showed traces of a narcotic, private advices said. A small bottle found in the girl's cabin contained rectified ether.

SEAT BRINGS $175,000

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The price of Stock Exchange seats took another jump today, a membership being arranged for sale at $175,000 or $190,000 above the previous sale. Since the end of last week values have risen $40,000 and from the low price of the year they have advanced more than $50,000.

SONS OF REVOLUTION TO MEET IN GREENWICH

The 42d annual banquet of the Connecticut Society Sons of the American Revolution will be held in the Pickwick Arms Hotel in Greenwich on Washington's birthday, Monday, February 22nd at 1:15 p. m. Among the speakers will be former Governor Charles S. Whitman of New York State. A very interesting program has been arranged in connection with the observance of the George Washington Bicentennial.

Prior to the general dinner the Board of Managers of the Connecticut Society will meet at the hotel at 12:15 p. m. Members and guests from out of town arriving by train will be met at the Greenwich Station and provided with transportation to the hotel by members of the local society in Greenwich.

WILL IMPROVE TRADE

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Solution of the problem besetting the railroad industry carries with it improvement in every line of business in the opinion of Harry J. Haas, president of the American Bangers Association.

Before the midwinter meeting of the association's trust division today Mr. Haas urged united support for the railroads.

"If we can increase the consumption of goods," he said, "the flow of production will follow," he said.

TAXPAYERS PLAN TO GET SPEAKER Meeting Week From Tonight To Be Addressed By Prominent Man of State.

The Taxpayers' League of Manchester will hold its regular meeting in High school hall Wednesday night, February 24, one week from tonight. At this time a speaker of state-wide prominence will be here to address the members. The meeting was originally scheduled for tonight but was changed so that more time to secure a speaker could be had.

An executive committee meeting was held last night at which time several matters of importance including the signing of incorporation papers were transacted. Secretary Frank Zimmerman mailed the papers to the secretary of state this morning.

Although President Spies was absent and therefore much of the business was put over until the next meeting, considerable time was given over to the study of school expenses and the possibility of decreasing them. Secretary Zimmerman suggested to the committee that the Recreation Center in the Ninth district is a "white elephant" and urged that a plan for making use of some of the floor space for schoolrooms be studied. There is ample room in the Recreation building for several classrooms without interfering with the worthwhile activities of the building, he maintains. This plan will be discussed more fully at a meeting of the schools committee of the league to be held at the home of Louis Grant a week from Friday night.

It is asserted by the committee that the total annual income from the membership at the Ninth District Recreation Centers is but $1,800. The salaries of Recreation officials alone are three times that amount, the committee states, and if the people do not patronize the buildings they should be used for other purposes.

GREEN PUPILS TO GIVE WASHINGTON PROGRAM Kindergarten, First and Second Grades In Entertainment Tomorrow Afternoon.

Pupils of the kindergarten, first and second grades of the Manchester Green school will give a special Washington's Birthday party at the school assembly hall at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. Parents and the public in general are cordially invited to attend.

Particular stress has been laid in preparing for the program in view of the fact that George Washington once stepped in the Woodbridge Tavern which is a little more than a stone's throw from the present school site. Teachers in charge of the program are Miss Elizabeth Barnes, Miss Ethel Baldwin and Miss Marjorie Lelidold.

The program will open with a selection by the kindergarten orchestra followed by a poem, "Washington's Birthday" given by Jane England. The kindergarten and first grade will give a minuet and participating will be Walter Carter, Barbara Fox, Norman Ash, Helen Wengrovius, Richard Law, Louis Gustafson, Donald Porterfield, Patricia Dowd, Betty Thrall, Jacqueline McMann, Ruthmary Waller, Marjorie Wirtalla, Richard Buckley, Richard Symington, Edward Glenney and James Gleason.

Next will come a poem, "My Country's Flag" with Burton Levey, Harry Viens, and Louis Clark taking part. Mary Smyth will sing a song entitled, "Washington's Birthday" and members of the second grade will enact a play entitled, "Mrs. Washington's Birthday."

The characters are as follows: George Washington by Roger Hoffman, Tobias Lear by Walter Adams, Little George by Phyllis Chappell, Nellie by Florence Howarth, children by Jane Hutchison, Marjorie McMann, Edward Hunt and Eleanor Woodhouse. A poem, "Our Flag" will be recited by Dona Sellers and the story of "Our Flag" will be told by Sherwood Aspinwall. The concluding number will be a poem "Washington" by John Hasbrouch.

SKATING SEEMS JINXED IN TOWN THIS SEASON

Each Time Weather Turns Cold To Make Good Ice Snow Or Rain Follows.

A jinx seems to pursue skating conditions in Manchester keeping them unsatisfactory most of the time. This winter has been the poorest for skating that Manchester has had in many years. Two nights of good ice were available following the ice carnival Sunday but today snow and warm weather threatened to spoil the ice for tonight unless the thermometer records a substantial drop later in the day.

The pond in Center Springs Park was crowded with skaters Monday and Tuesday nights attesting to the popularity of the recreation in Manchester. Manchester High has a hockey team standing by patiently waiting for satisfactory ice upon which to play a short schedule of games. The ice at Center Springs is sufficiently thick but snow, rain or warm weather will ruin the surface.

The early morning snow flurry had turned to a combination of rain and sleet at 11 o'clock this morning and the snow which fell previously soon melted into slush.

DEGREE OF POCAHONTAS HAS BIG PROGRAM

Past Chiefs' Night Observed Followed By Social and Entertainment Hour.

Sunset Council, Degree of Pocahontas, at its meeting Monday evening in Tinker hall, had a full program. It was Past Chiefs' night and the office of the presiding officer, Mrs. Mary Aceto, was filled by Past Chief Pocahontas, Mrs. Amy Coffelt of East Glastonbury. The roll-call was read and a large number of the members responded.

The social time which followed combined a birthday and valentine party. In honor of Miss Johanna Aceto, daughter of Mrs. Mary Aceto, dainty refreshments of sandwiches, heart-shaped cakes and coffee were served and valentines exchanged. The ladies also remembered Miss Aceto with many individual gifts.

Particular interest was shown in the arrangements for Past Pocahontas night and Mrs. Nora Keeney and her committee served refreshments. Marjorie Akrigg won the prize for pinning a small heart the nearest to the center of a large heart, which was one of the valentine games. In another game guessing the greatest number of celebrities whose pictures were pasted on cards, Mrs. Florence Catano had the most correct and won a prize.

Pioneer farmers in the middle west planted thousands of trees. It is estimated they planted 240,000 acres in Iowa, 40,000 in Illinois, 14,000 in Ohio, and 10,000 in Missouri.

ABOUT TOWN

The Ladies' Aid society of the South Methodist church will meet for sewing tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Hose Company No. 3 S. M. F. D., responded to a still alarm this morning at 7:50 and found an automobile owned by U. J. Lupien on Porter street on fire. It was extinguished without extensive damage being done.

Miss Florence Strickland, daughter of Mrs. Elsie Strickland of Strickland street, who returned before Christmas after spending a year in Honolulu, T. H., is leaving this evening for Buffalo, N. Y., where she has been engaged by the Singer Sewing Machine Company as a special sewing instructor.

Mary Bushnell Cheney Auxiliary, U. S. W. V., will meet this evening at 8 o'clock at the State Armory. The business will be followed by a Lincoln's birthday social. A service in observance of Maine day, February 15 will also take place and plans will be completed for assisting the comrades of Ward Cheney Camp who are giving a whist and setback on Washington's birthday at Tinker hall, for the relief fund.

Rev. James Stuart Nell, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal church, will deliver a special sermon Sunday morning at 10 o'clock on the subject: "George Washington—The Christian and Churchman."

Manchester Division, Ancient Order of Hibernians, will hold its annual St. Patrick's Day ball on Thursday, March 17, in the Masonic Temple. Further plans have not yet been made.

A meeting of the Manchester Skating Club and the committee that was in charge of the ice carnival held Sunday, will be held at the store of Potterton & Krah on Depot Square tomorrow evening at 9:15 o'clock.

The women's auxiliary to Anderson-Shea Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will have a food sale tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 at Watkins Brothers store. Mrs. Elizabeth Maher, chairman, announces that there will be home made bread, baked beans, salads, cakes, pies and other foods.

Eleven candidates were admitted to membership in Campbell Council, Knights of Columbus, at a meeting in Tinker hall last night. A class of candidates was also initiated into the first degree, the work being done by the local officers.

More than 40 attended the setback party given last night at the Highland Park Community club by the Ladies' Sewing Circle. The prize winners were as follows: First, Mrs. Annie Sinnamon and William Keish; second, Mrs. J. N. Nichols and Walter Senkbell and third Mrs. Julia Dose and Edward Sinnamon. Sandwiches and coffee were served.

FALSE ALARM TURNED IN FROM HIGH SCHOOL

Believed To Have Been Rung In From Third Floor — Glass of Door Found Unbroken.

All the east side fire apparatus of the South Manchester Fire Department was called out on a false fire alarm at noon today at the Manchester High school. Someone either turned in the alarm by accident or as a joke.

At near as could be learned, some students were "fooling with the alarm box" on the third floor in the rear of the assembly hall. When an investigation was made, the glass door was found on the floor unbroken. Just how this was removed without being broken is not known. There are six fire alarm boxes in the high school building, all calling the number 431. It was the second time in twenty years that the box call had sounded, the other being due to a defect in the sprinkler system.

Following a questioning of several students late this afternoon, Principal C. P. Quimby stated that the alarm was rung in accidentally and not intentionally. It was discovered that some of the students were fooling near the box and the alarm went off.

Through the Connecticut State Board of Education, the pastor, Rev. F. C. Allen has been able to secure a series of motion pictures, produced especially for the bi-centennial by the Eastman Teaching Films, Incorporated, at the request of the George Washington Bi-Centennial Commission, under the title "The Great American Lives Again—George Washington: His Life and Times."

This series of vivid, authentic motion pictures will occupy approximately one hour. There are four reels under the following titles: "Conquering the Wilderness," "Winning Independence," "Taming the Colonies," and "Building the Nation."

Mr. Allen will give a brief explanatory description and there will be special music. The meeting will be held in the church auditorium and will be open to all.

KILLS FAMILY, SELF

Stout, Iowa, Feb. 17 — (AP) — Nanno Andressen, 45, a stock buyer and farmer today shot and killed four members of his family and then committed suicide. Andressen who lived about a half mile from this village had driven into town about seven o'clock and had left a note saying five persons would be found dead at his place.

Besides Andressen the dead were Mrs. Andressen; a son Elmer, 14, a daughter Vera, 9, sister-in-law Maggie Hessentus. Authorities said they believed financial worries were responsible for his action.

GOOD NEWS FOR THOSE WHO LIKE COFFEE I like a good cup of coffee with every meal but I used to suffer when I drank it. I would have sick headaches; would belch, leaving a sour taste in my mouth, gas in my stomach, and terrible indigestion. I tried many things before my druggist persuaded me to take some Pepp's Diapepsin. I have a better appetite now. I can drink coffee even late at night, eat lobsters, pork or anything I want and sleep like a baby. Get a package of these candy-like tablets from your druggist. They stop heartburn, gas on stomach, belching, nausea, headaches or any other symptom of indigestion soon as the trouble starts. PEPP'S DIAPEPSIN

EVERY WOMAN

February
This time o' year the atmosphere
Bequeaths her variant tide;
Chill breezes blow, both rain and snow,
All o'er the countryside,
And then again, it does not rain,
And neither falls the snow;
The sun peeps out plays about
At least an hour or so.
But why not cheer this time o' year,
For soon e'en groundhogs know,
We'll have our showers and springtime flowers
Or puffy, fluffy snow.

POWER OUTPUT OFF 3.7 P. C. IN STATE

Industrial and Commercial Demand Lower—Home Load Increases 8 P. C.

Although most unfavorable industrial and commercial conditions prevailed throughout the year, Connecticut's production of electric power during 1931 declined only 3.7 per cent from the total output of 1930, according to statistics based upon the monthly reports of the United States Geological Survey.

Connecticut's electrical output for 1931 was 1,315,416,000 kilowatt hours as compared with a total of 1,367,234,000 kilowatt hours in 1930, a decrease of 51,818,000 kilowatt hours.

As compared with the all-time high record year of 1929, the state's power production for 1931 was 8.3 per cent less, but last year's generation of electricity was nevertheless considerably in excess of the total of 1928, which in itself was a record-breaking year with an output exceeding that of any previous year in the history of the state.

All of the decline in the power output of 1931 came as a result of slackening in the industrial and commercial demand. Household use of electricity in Connecticut not only held up in the face of the depression, but forged ahead during the year with a gain of approximately eight per cent over the production in the history of public utility operation in the state has domestic electric lighting and utilization of electric appliances reached such a high plane.

This increase in the use of current in the home is attributed by public utility officials to a combination of two facts, first, the fact that the utilities as early as the depression of 1921 began laying plans for making electricity more attractive in the home and for building a domestic load that would be self-sustaining in the face of any conditions; and, second, the fact that during this same period there have been many revisions in rate structures which have made it possible for the householder to utilize greater quantities of electricity at progressively lower costs per kilowatt hour.

On a monthly basis, the 1931 electrical production reveals a strange comparison with 1930 especially with respect to the latter's relationship to the preceding year. In 1930, the electrical production in every month with the sole exception of December was less than that of the corresponding month of 1929. In 1931, the power output of January, February and March was in excess of that of the same month of 1930. The situation was reversed in April and May and then June and July both brought increases over the corresponding months of the previous year. The output of August, 1931, exactly equalled that of August, 1930. From September until the end of the year, the production of electricity took a marked downward trend, the first four months of 1931 showing, respectively, declines of ten, twenty, twenty-five and twenty-six per cent from the power totals of the same months of 1930.

Of the total electric power produced in Connecticut in 1931, about eighty-two per cent or 1,061,424,000 kilowatt hours was generated in steam operated plants. The balance was generated at the hydro plants by means of water power.

TELLS DETAILS OF GREAT MAN-HUNT

Detective Hickey, Urging Po- lice Machinery, Speaks To Credit Men Here.

County Detective Edward J.
Hickey of Hartford has earned a splendid reputation as a master hunter of criminals. Last night he earned a similar reputation as a speaker before forty members and guests of the Manchester Retail Credit Association at a dinner meeting at the Hotel Sheridan, when he held the rapt attention of his audience for two hours with thrilling accounts of the methods used to apprehend fugitives from justice in swindle and forgery cases.

Before citing actual cases, Mr.
Hickey stressed the need of a state bureau of criminal identification and information, which he said was one of the things lacking in the enforcement of law in Connecticut. Such a bureau, he said, increases the cooperation of the police throughout the country, and pointed out the necessity of a bureau from the business man's point of view as well as that of the police, by telling of instances where forgers and swindlers of business men have been apprehended through fingerprints.

Fingerprinting
The speaker said that the fingerprinting method of identification is the most accurate method known.
He told of an informal but serious school that has been organized in Hartford, which holds weekly meetings for the purpose of studying and mastering the science of fingerprinting and also to discuss police problems. Chief Samuel G. Gordon and Lieutenant William Barron of the local police force attend the school, he said.

Many banks today use fingerprints to identify clients who can neither read nor write, many government employees are identified by this method, business houses are beginning to use it, and in the opinion of the speaker, insurance companies would soon adopt the system as universal.

Mr. Hickey pleaded for united effort and cooperation between business men and police and the courage and integrity of the local police force and its chief, Chief Gordon and Prosecuting Attorney Charles R.
Hathaway were guests at the meeting.

In driving home the necessity for a bureau of criminal identification and information in this state, Mr.
Hickey cited several instances where fingerprinting was the key to the solution of a case that began with all the aspects of mystery. He told of the important part played by the National Bureau of Identification at Washington, D. C., where more than two million fingerprints are on file and at the disposal of the police throughout the country at less than a day's notice.

A Long Trail
Mr. Hickey gave a detailed account of the methods used by his department in the apprehension of the persons involved in one of the leading embezzlement and swindling cases in the county, if not in the country—the names in which he asked be not published. The inside story of the crime and its consequences was an amazing revelation of an intricate and baffling chase, which led the officers into practically every section of the United States and repeatedly over the same ground before the leader was finally captured. The account was doubly interesting in that Mr. Hickey showed photostatic copies, of evidence, which he referred to from time to time.

In his narration, Mr. Hickey, brought out that the automobile is the greatest asset of the criminal,

but that if he sticks to the machine,
it becomes also his greatest liability.
He drew that the fantasy criminals comprise one gang and the police another, matching brain for brain and scheme for scheme, the first to defeat and the second to fulfill the aims of justice.

OPEN FORUM

SCHOOL TEACHERS

Editor, The Herald: Through this is a somewhat delayed response to the Herald's two editorials of last week, "Teachers' Contracts" and "Welcome, Converts", interest in the subject is none the less keen.

There seems to be nothing amiss in the suggestion that the school authorities sit in with the Board of Selectmen to consider what is necessary and what is possible concerning the school appropriation—particularly since the school system is under fire.

Still pursuing, we have a fluctuating purchase power of a dollar, so that we never are in possession of a stable worth.

Of course, if there is an overlapping expense anywhere in the system, it would only seem fair to eliminate it.

I would not suggest that educators generally are of such miserable calibre as to take that attitude, but too much hampering added to the heavy burden they already bear might not react to the advantage of our children.

Our educational needs are tremendously greater than they were in the days of the little red school house when the peak of a girl's duty was to marry and mother a family, and a man's glory lay in providing for that family and having his say in the town gates.

The public school system, to be sure, is not "a sacred cow", but it is a sacred institution to us founded in the ideal of equal opportunity, and pledged again in the purpose to make this government a vehicle "of the people, by the people, and for the people."

HOOVER PLANS TO RECAST BUREAUS

President Asks Congress to Support His Reorganization Program—Would Also Create Four New Federal Posts.

Washington, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The special message today to Congress of President Hoover follows in full text:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

Because of its direct relation to the cost of government, I desire again to bring to the attention of the Congress the necessity of more effective organization of the executive branch of the government, the importance of which I have referred to in previous messages. This subject has been considered many times by the executive and by the Congress, but without substantial results. Various projects are now before the Congress.

The need for reorganization is obvious. There has been with the years a gradual growth in the government by the accretion in its departments and by independent executive establishments, boards, and commissions, problems requiring solution that confront the President and the Congress. Today the government embraces from 150 to 200 separate units, dependent on the method of notation used. Government units when once set up have a tendency to grow independently of other units. This leads to overlapping and waste. Moreover, there is a marked tendency to find new occupations when the initial duties are completed. The overlap and the number of agencies can be reduced.

A few mergers, notably in law enforcement and the veterans' services, have been effected. Both of these reorganized agencies have been able to discharge the very greatly increased burdens imposed upon them without such an increase in administrative expense as would otherwise have been the case.

In the present crisis the absolute necessity for the most drastic economy makes the problem of governmental reorganization one of paramount importance. The amount of saving in public funds to be effected by a thoroughgoing reorganization, while difficult to estimate accurately, will be material, amounting to many millions of dollars annually. Not only will the government's business be conducted more efficiently and economically but the great body of citizens who have business relations with their government will be relieved of the burden of dealing with a multitude of unnecessary and sometimes widely separated public agencies.

Many Difficulties
We may frankly admit the practical difficulties of such reorganization. Not only do different fractions of the government fear such reorganization, but many associations and agencies throughout the country will be alarmed that the particular function to which they are devoted may in some fashion be curtailed. Proposals to the Congress of detailed plans for the reorganization of the many different bureaus and independent agencies have always proved in the past to be a signal for the mobilization of opposition from all quarters which has destroyed the possibility of constructive action.

There is little hope for success in this task unless it is placed in the hands of some one responsible for it, with authority and direction to act. Moreover, the consummation of a comprehensive reorganization at one moment is not in the best public interest. Such reorganization should be undertaken gradually and systematically, predicated on a sound and definite theory of government and effectuated as the result of study and experience gained in the actual processes of reorganization.

His Recommendations
I recommend, therefore, that the Congress provide for—and grouping of the various executive and administrative activities according to their major purposes under single-headed responsibility, the Congress designating the title of the officer to be placed in immediate charge of each group as are not now possible under existing organization.

BIG NEW YORK STRIKE

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Small groups gathered along Seventh avenue in the garment center this morning on the second day of the strike of some 20,000 members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

The snow which fell early today appeared to have upset plans for a demonstration by the strikers, who were to have started intensive picketing at seven o'clock this morning.

There were no banners and the persons, mostly women, who stood about in front of the dress shops, if they were picketing did not wear the customary placards proclaiming a strike.

VISITING NURSE DESCRIBES A DAY

Public Health Service At Hospital Covers Multitude of Duties Daily.

One of the most important branches of the work of Manchester's Memorial hospital is the public health service it is doing in the confines of the town and sometimes beyond. To better acquaint the general public with just what is being accomplished by the all-top-few visiting nurses connected with the local hospital, in addition to the work at the clinic buildings, we have requested one of the nurses to tell in her own words the nature of her duties on an average day. This work goes on daily, quietly, and without any publicity for many of the patients who are thus benefited are very sensitive over the fact that due to the trying times they are unable to pay for medical visits and nursing care as they once were able to do.

Following is this nurse's story:
Day in the Life of a Visiting Nurse

At 8 a. m. report at clinic building of Memorial hospital, record and report previous day's work. Problems and methods of health education discussed, bag inspected and equipped, worked for the day planned. First call is a maternity patient, baby one day old nurse had assisted doctor with the delivery the previous day so that family was prepared for visit which meant necessary things were on hand. Today she took temperature, gave bath and necessary care to both patients. Baby was washed at the bedside of mother so that nurse could demonstrate and explain the method of caring for baby. Mother was instructed and encouraged to breast feed baby, and factors pertaining to this were gone over with her. Before leaving a neighbor was advised regarding care to be given between nurse's visits.

Instructs Families
Next a very ill patient with a question of typhoid fever; wife of patient also in bed with a minor illness, this patient was seen first and given the necessary care; then all articles needed for the other patient were removed from bag; nurse donned gown and proceeded to other room. Conference with doctor who had arrived during this time regarding new orders for patient's care. Nursing care given. Family instructions regarding the necessary precautions to be taken to prevent further spread of infection (method demonstrated). Doctor's orders reviewed with family and home nurse instructed as to general care.

Then a child of two years with bronchitis; mother had given necessary nursing care but she was glad to have nurse stop in to reassure and advise her. Lunch was next on the program after which we returned to office to report on work of the morning and to get new calls and plan program for the afternoon. This started with a delicate and sickly baby living out in the country in poor hygienic conditions. Mother young and inexperienced, also very depressed and discouraged because of baby's condition and their very inadequate finances. The necessary nursing care was given baby, the mother instructed and an effort was made to help her plan the daily routine so that she could care for the baby with less physical and mental strain. Later we were able to have a Girl Scout volunteer and take the child out after school hours so that the mother could get the rest she so badly needed.

Family Troubles
Our next family consisted of a sick father, eight small children with the ninth coming shortly. The nurse talked first with the mother regarding the necessary plans for her confinement, also the hygienic routine to be followed to insure the maximum health for herself and the new baby, including rest. This the mother explained was impossible, John aged 3 was fretty and nervous, he slept poorly and had violent temper spells if things did not suit him. Questioned as to his diet, the mother explained that he would only eat the things he especially liked and that she had to spend much time coaxing him to do anything she wished. An inspection of Johnny showed him to be a thin, pale, nervous and unhappy looking youngster, decidedly unfriendly and stubborn. Another source of worry was an older boy in High school who was staying out at night going with a gang. He was obstinate and defiant at home and neither of his parents seemed able to influence him.

The father in this family was home on account of an injury sustained at work, but due to his own carelessness, so that he was not receiving compensation. When asked about this he explained that he had been so upset by conditions in the home that his mind had not been on his work at the time. It was a simple procedure to dress his injury but an infinitely harder thing to see that the mother in this family has no essential a thing as rest. Much work and the co-operation of other agencies in the community will be needed for this which will then be recorded—simply as a "Health visit."

Sick Boys
Then we go along to another young boy with a bad heart due to rheumatic fever. Rest is imperative here if he is ever to join the ranks of healthy childhood again, but because of his own nervousness and the apprehension and over-anxiety of his parents as well as their lack of control over the child he has not been making progress. A frank talk with the boy himself explaining just why we wished him to stay in bed, going over again with the parents all the factors which must be considered if they expected him to recover, re-assuring and encouraging them, we left feeling that possibly this visit had not been in vain.

We still had one more young child to look in on, who while not very ill had frequent attacks of bronchitis and needs careful watching and building up to prevent more serious complications.

Then there is Mr. Smith with acute tuberculosis, coughing incessantly and mingling freely with his family of young children. A great deal of health education is necessary here, which will call for patience, perseverance, tact and firmness in order to safeguard the health of these children as well as to prevent grave, economic loss to the community.

Living Alone
Finally we come to one of our grown-up children, an old lady living alone, feeble and far from well, though not an hospital case. She looks forward to the nurse coming once or twice a week to make her comfortable and to advise, pet or scold her as the case may be.

And so ends a typical day in the hospital without walls. Sometimes there is more sickness than at other times, but always there are health problems to be solved, young children and babies to be visited, mothers to be advised and helped with their many problems of child care in order that there shall be less and less preventable sickness, and that more children may reach school age in perfect physical and mental health and so become more efficient adults.

BOOM FOR GARNER

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—(AP)—The Garner boom came smashing out as a national drive today but the sturdy Texas stuck to his job as speaker of the House and refused to take any part in the movement that seeks to put him in the White House.

Formally, the two Senators from Texas, Sheppard and Connally offered Garner as a Democratic presidential candidate, not as a "favorite son" of the Lone Star State, but as a statesman supremely qualified in National affairs.

They promised him the solid vote of the Texas delegation to the Chicago convention and forecast his candidacy would gain wide support as Democrats all over the nation learned more of his service and character. Garner said he had known nothing of the statement beforehand and emphasized he had no authorized spokesman and any statements on his behalf were purely voluntary.

Three young ladies put their heads together...

THEY WERE TALKING ABOUT SMOKING... whether girls should or should not smoke; but it came out that all three of them had been smoking for a long time. They were asking each other what made a good cigarette. And after discussing one thing and another, they agreed that a cigarette should be milder. They thought also that it should taste just right—that is, not over-sweet, but on the other hand, not bitter—just sweet enough. And everybody, they said, wants anything that is placed in the mouth just as pure as can be. Then they began to think what cigarette, if any, filled this bill; and agreed that CHESTERFIELD was milder—tasted better—and was pure. The girls were satisfied, because "They Satisfy."

PATERNALISM. The rather surprisingly large majority in the Senate against the LaFollette-Costigan federal unemployment relief bill—up to a few days ago it seemed that the vote might be quite close—can hardly be regarded as proof that federal relief has been completely disposed of for this session of Congress.

Party lines cut no figure in the vote any more than they did in the debate of the last two weeks and the decisions of many senators were made quite independently of any party commitment; sometimes they hinged on rather fine spun reasoning. For some other measure intended to tap the federal treasury as a source of support for jobless people there might very easily be considered more Senate backing.

The Costigan-LaFollette bill was based on the idea of a direct federal dole administered by a bureau at Washington. Some senators voted against it after having declared themselves in favor of a measure appropriating federal funds to be loaned to the states for relief work. Several substitute measures received numbers of such votes but were defeated by the backers of the LaFollette-Costigan plan. One of them is sure to come up again in the form of a new bill, when it is to be expected that the crowd who strove to put through the federal bureau bill will be found among the supporters of the loan plan. Federal unemployment relief is far from a dead cock in the pit. It will probably be crowing and fighting again presently.

While millions of citizens, many of them hard up themselves, look with dismay and apprehension on all schemes for federal doles as inevitably tending to destroy the fundamental principles of our national structure, there is no denying that the demand for such aid is in perfectly natural sequence to the general trend of paternalistic activities in which the federal government has been becoming more and more deeply involved in recent times, particularly since the beginning of the war.

When a government for 120,000,000 people undertakes, as Senator Eingham has pointed out, to superintend the making of their children's rompers and interests itself in seeing that each little nose is supplied with a handkerchief, and when it sends agreeable and capable ladies throughout the land showing farmers' wives the best way to dress salads and decorate bridge tables, it is not to be wondered at that people, when they become broke and hungry, expect to be fed by the same bountiful guardian.

This depression isn't going to last forever. When it is over we shall probably have learned a bitter and costly lesson—that you cannot have a self respecting, self reliant and self helpful nation under a paternal government. And we will probably proceed to extirpate paternalism, root and branch. The choice is going to be between that and what they are headed for in Russia.

THE BANK BILL. If the depression is ever to be relieved by purely fiscal legislation it is surely getting its opportunity now. The House plunged on the Steagall-Glass banking bill almost unanimously, showing the degree of its faith. There is little doubt that the Senate will follow suit. It is practically certain that the end has been reached in the long series of bank failures. Fiscal confidence is bound to be very largely restored. Hoarded money inevitably will come out of hiding.

Whether this will establish a business and industrial norm at which the country can go along without further loss and wretchedness remains to be seen. There isn't the remotest likelihood, even a possibility, of a return to the situation of 1928. It would be a calamity if there were. If we can get the wheels of business going moderately, steadily, we shall be very fortunate. Possibly there will be some disappointment, even where hopes are thus cautious. If so then surely we shall have to turn to other than banking and credit measures. We shall have to begin thinking along entirely new lines.

Of the handful of members of the House who voted against the banking bill we are most interested in the reasons given by Mr. LaGuardia. He fears an inflation of retail prices at the expense of people whose wages have been deflated. We don't believe that retail prices will go up very much or very suddenly. Mr. LaGuardia is another of those who confuses credit money with basic money as a determining influence on prices.

At all events the sooner the bill is passed and the sooner it begins to work in conjunction with Reconstruction Finance Corporation activities the sooner we shall know the limit of the powers of credit legislation to restore business. Somehow there is a way in which it can be restored. Perhaps this is the way. If not we shall have to try some other.

"MODERN" EDUCATION. Dr. A. Linscheid, head of East Central Teachers College, Oklahoma, and president of the Oklahoma Education Society, proposes to relieve Oklahoma school children of the evil influence passed down to them by Commodore Stephen Decatur. He proposes that that all-wrong sailor's famous phrase about striking by one's country, right or wrong, be banished from the school books and in its place be established the sentiment, "My country, to right the wrong."

That will be lovely. And then let us have the Oklahoma children's histories changed here and there in other spots to correspond. We can let Ethan Allen's famous demand at Ticonderoga stand as is—it has already been expurgated by an earlier generation of Linscheids. But let us amend Lawrence's "Don't give up the ship!" making it read, "Don't force the ship on them unless they want it—it wouldn't be polite!" Let us quickly and forever rid the books of the perfectly dreadful language used by George Washington to General Charles Lee when the latter disobeyed orders at Monmouth and have him exclaim, "Oh, Charlie, I'm so disappointed in you!" Let us have Lincoln say that he wished he knew what brand of tea General Grant drank so that he could recommend it to some of his other generals. Let us get rid of the "Hell-and-Maria" tradition concerning General Dawes and make it "Tell Maria!"

And let us very quickly eliminate from the school books the assertion that the American congress in the spring of 1917 declared that Germany was engaged in making war on the United States, changing it to a declaration that "Germany is displeased."

Also it might not be such a bad notion to change the description of Dr. Linscheid from "American educator" to pacifist quack.

CONVINCING. As effective an argument for the fuller organization of crime prevention and criminal detection as we have ever heard was that presented by County Detective Edward J. Hickey in his talk before the Retail Credit Association here last night. His absorbingly interesting story of the six-months man hunt for the state's most noted swindler, involving an enormous amount of travel up and down the United States and depending for its success on the enlistment of numberless agencies of law and order in co-operation, should convince the most skeptical that criminals would have a slender chance of escape if all the potential elements of police power were but adequately co-ordinated.

Mr. Hickey was frankly speaking in advocacy of the erection of a central identification bureau and crime intelligence exchange in Connecticut. It is a pity that instead of speaking to a single group in a hotel dining room he could not carry his message to the entire population of this state. Extremely useful as he is on his own job there may be some question whether as an apostle of co-ordinated police work devoting himself to the arousing of public support for scientific police methods, his service might not be of still greater value.

ONE CURE FOR CRIME. There is a patrolman on the New York City police force from whom all gangsters and gunmen will keep away if they are lucky enough to know him when they see him. His name is Harry Bossam. He was sitting in a police car when a young man drove in sight pursued by two citizens whom he had just held up and robbed of $200. Perceiving that the fleeing man had a gun in his hand he called on him to halt, chased him a short block and then fired three shots. One hit the bandit in the arm, one in the midriff, the next in the chest. The stickup man is dead and the cop is alive, a reversal of the situation that has existed in far too many such cases. Nothing in the world can be quite so discouraging to crimes of violence as policemen's ability to shoot and the nerve to begin shooting first.

STUFFY. Hunter College girls who constituted the staff of the college weekly resigned in a body when the president of the institution, Dr. John Kiernan, notified them that they must discontinue the publication of cigarette advertisements. Such advertisements had been the financial life of the Hunter Bulletin.

There would seem to be some question whether the students would come to any harm through the appearance of cigarette ads in their newspaper, but very little as to whether they and the college must suffer through such stuffy narrowness as that of Dr. Kiernan.

DAILY WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer

Washington — Downtown the boys were all asking each other whether they had been measured for uniforms. But it was Consent Day up in the House of Representatives and if it hadn't been for Congressman Tom Blanton of Texas you'd never have known that anyone was worrying about the Chinese situation. . . . The Consent Calendar comes before the House every two weeks and the bills on it are minor measures, favorably reported by committees, which no one cares about very much except the sponsor and some of his constituents.

Such bills are declared passed by unanimous consent if no single member objects. . . . On the floor only a fourth of the seats are filled. From the galleries the proceedings are, most of the time, so much babbling. The buzz of conversation between congressmen often drowns out the member who has the floor. The clerk yammers monotonously the titles of bills and hardly anyone can understand a word of it. Only by closest attention to the calendar and its many bills can you tell which bill is up.

About a score members are following the calendar. The rest read newspapers, talk or pay a vague sort of attention. . . . Someone occasionally shouts for order. Speaker Jack Garner, in a brown suit and an old-fashioned choke collar, gets it, sometimes merely by rapping with his gavel's handle. "Is there objection?" he chants. "And 'There is not!' Which means a bill has passed.

What kind of bill? Nine out of 10 on this calendar had to do with bridges—to permit railroads, counties, persons, states and towns to build spans over navigable streams. . . . And one to declare the Mud river in Kentucky a non-navigable stream. Another to authorize sale of part of a cemetery reserve on an Indian reservation. . . . Dealing with improvements on national parks or minor Indian affairs. . . . Mr. LaGuardia of New York, squat little man with his glasses pushed back on his head almost to the collar, makes most of the noise in a high, squeaky voice. Mr. Blanton of Texas rivals him in accents reminiscent of country stores, full of feasting.

They study all bills to see that no one puts anything over. . . . The first bill sponsored by Hill of Alabama would extend veterans' hospital and home facilities to Confederate veterans. It is admitted that practically no Confederate vets could or would avail themselves of the right, it was just a "very gracious gesture."

Underhill of Massachusetts wants to study the bill closely, so it is held up. . . . Blanton demands unanimous consent for a five-minute speech and gets it along with a warning from LaGuardia that "we will have to tighten up on these requests." He protests sending battleships and soldiers to China, expressing the fear that we will get involved in "to save a few Chinese merchants."

Health and Diet Advice by DR. FRANK M'LOY THE MOST IMPORTANT MUSCLES People are beginning to realize that, in order to develop a strong healthy body, exercise and waste some activity are needed. In spite of this knowledge the problem of obtaining enough exercise is with many people more difficult than finding the right kind of a house in which to live. . . . Most people are actually starving for the right kind of exercise. Practically everyone requires a prescription of the right kind of exercise to be taken in daily doses. . . . Just as sure as you are reading this article your body heeds and craves exercise. Every one needs a certain amount of it every day. . . . Even those who are working at physical labor often fail to obtain the type of exercise which will do them the most good. . . . Everyone is aware that exercise builds stronger muscles but most of us do not realize that exercise has another and far more important effect, and that is its wholesome effect upon the vital organs. . . . I cannot point out too strongly that your health depends upon your internal organs. . . . To have health you must have strong vital organs, such as the heart, liver, kidneys, intestines, lungs, and stomach. . . . The one who is looking for health must search out means of invigorating his vital functions. . . . If you stop and consider you will realize that you cannot strengthen these organs by any direct conscious method, that is, you have no mental control over them. . . . You cannot concentrate and control your liver by any conscious you may send it. . . . You cannot tell it to go to. . . . But, unless you are paralyzed, you can move your voluntary muscles if you tell them to do so. . . . The more you move from the stronger they become. . . . It is just as easy to move your voluntary muscles by an act of the will as it is impossible to use the will to control the vital organs.

LEAGUE APPEALS TO JAPAN'S HONOR

League Body Asks That Hostilities Be Stopped In China—World Opposed.

Geneva, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The League of Nations Council published today an appeal "to the supreme sense of honor of Japan" asking her to cease hostilities in China.

The communication which was given to Naozake Sato, Japanese delegate to the Council, for transmission to the government at Tokyo said:

"The committee of twelve earnestly trusts Japan will admit her obligations and justify the confidence reposed in her by the powers of the world."

The Council members said they could not recognize the validity of a Japanese occupation of China because of Article X of the League of Nations Covenant which guarantees the territorial integrity of League members.

"The Shanghai incident," the communication said, "has made a deep impression upon the public opinion of the world. It has exposed the lives and property of many citizens to danger, augmented the world's present economic depression and it threatens to menace the good progress of the disarmament conference now in session."

It quoted the council's note of Jan. 29 to the effect that "cooperation and mutual respect only can secure the maintenance of international relations and that economic or military forces cannot bring about any permanent solution of the problem."

Discord Aggravated
"So long as the present situation continues" the note said, "the discord between the two countries will be aggravated and the creation of a situation unfavorable to the status of the world at large."

Calling attention to Article X of the League Covenant it said "we draw attention to these stipulations. Encroachment upon the integrity of members states will not be considered valid. The committee of twelve earnestly desires that Japan make a conciliatory and wise attitude in view of the fact that she is one of the members of the League and a permanent member of the League Council."

The Far-Eastern situation, the note said, should be studied fully by a commission made up with the consent of the two parties to the dispute. At the same time, the Council said it was "well aware of Japan's grievances." It expressed deep regret, however, that Japan should "think herself unable to accept the method of peaceful settlement which the League Covenant defines."

"We point out, it said, "that according to the Kellogg Pact all international disputes should be settled amicably."

WAPPING

Little Elsie Vonola, the thirteen months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julio Vonola of Station No. 35, South Windsor, who was scalded by hot water, was removed to the Hartford hospital on Thursday afternoon for treatment. Hospital authorities said the condition of the baby was not serious. A pan of hot water set on a chair tilted over the baby as she was playing.

Miss Gladys Giles has been ill at her home for several days with the grip.

Miss Julia Stead from Mt. Vernon, New York, is spending a few days at the home of her brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stead of Wapping.

The Board of Finance of the town of South Windsor will hold a public meeting at the town hall next Thursday evening, February 18 at half past seven o'clock to hear all persons who wish to be heard in regard to any appropriation for the ensuing year, which they are desirous that the board shall recommend.

Rev. David Carter gave a lecture about "Italy" which was illustrated by lantern slides, last Sunday evening at the Federated church.

Francis Billings, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Billings, has been confined to his home several days by illness.

James Deveran of East Windsor Hill, who was taken to the Manchester Memorial hospital is much better and returned to his home here last Monday afternoon.

The next meeting of the South Windsor Wednesday Afternoon Club will be held this afternoon, February 17 at the home of Mrs. Leslie Newberry. Mrs. Harry S. Martin and Mrs. Lewis Maly will have charge of the program.

The United Workers will serve a public supper Friday evening, February 19, in the basement of the First Congregational church. Mrs. Charles Lindsey, Mrs. Robert Fiske and Mrs. Marshall Bidwell will take charge of the supper and it is to be a Valentine party.

A genuine birthday surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar D. Strong last Monday evening when twenty-two of their relatives, friends and neighbors called to celebrate Mrs. Strong's birthday, which fell on Sunday, February 14. There were four tables at cards, prizes were given and refreshments served. Mrs. Strong received many useful presents.

The three act comedy play, "Go Slow Mary" which was presented by the Wapping Grange Dramatic club, was so well received in town, that they have been requested to repeat it here, under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers association and they have consented to do so Thursday evening, February 25.

ROCKVILLE

PAY HONOR TO OLDEST WOMAN ON SATURDAY

Mrs. Mary Brigham Reaches 98th Milestone—Is Very Active For Her Age.

Mrs. Mary Brigham, known as Rockville's oldest active woman, will be 98 years of age on Saturday, and members of the family will hold a reunion in her home at 49 Brooklyn street. She was born in Lebanon and came to Rockville more than 80 years ago.

Mrs. Brigham is the widow of the late George Brigham, civil war veteran and postmaster at the Rockville Post Office for twenty years. This young old lady is looking forward to the reunion on Saturday with great pleasure. She is most active and enjoys making aghast for veterans at hospitals. This has been her hobby for several years, and is at the present time working on another. On last Thursday evening Mrs. Brigham attended the annual roll call and reception at Union church and was presented with a beautiful bouquet of carnations. Tonight she will be the guest of honor at a social time to be held by Burpee Woman's Relief Corps in G. A. R. Hall.

Mrs. Brigham is interested in the news of the day and her memory is unimpaired. She is a member of Union church, a charter member of Burpee Woman's Relief Corps, W. C. T. U. and the missionary societies connected with Union Church. She is sure to receive the hearty congratulations of her host of friends on Saturday.

Masons To Attend Services
Fayette Lodge, No. 69, A. F. & A. M., together with Hope Chapter, O. E. S., will unite in a religious observance of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington at St. John's Episcopal church on next Sunday morning at 10:45.

It is a well-known fact that George Washington was a staunch Mason and there are many lodges bearing his name throughout the country. Rev. H. B. Olmstead, pastor of the church will use a special order of service and will preach on the subject, "Our Nation's Adventure For God."

Masons in Rockville not affiliated with the local lodge are cordially invited to attend.

Heads Local Committee
Edward L. Newman, Past Department Commander of the American Legion, has been named chairman of the local committee in charge of the local campaign to restore prosperity. Governor Cross has accepted the honorary chairmanship of this state in the Legion campaign.

Holiday Post Office Hours
Postmaster George E. Dickinson announced on Tuesday that Post Office hours on Washington's Birthday at the local office will be as follows: mail and general delivery windows open from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. There will be no delivery by the city or Rural Carriers.

Joint Firemen's Meeting
There will be a joint meeting of the Rockville Fire Department on Friday evening in the Fitch house in the center of the city at 7:30. Every member of the Department is invited to attend. The final report of the annual fair will be made at this time.

Official Visitor
At a meeting of General Kitchen Lodge, American Order of St. George to be held in Forester's hall this evening, the members will enjoy a visit from the Grand President George H. Couch of Capitol Lodge, No. 131 of Hartford and his staff. A social hour will follow the meeting. The grand officer will address the gathering.

Going To Broad Brook
The Liedertafel Singing Society of this city, rated as one of the best in Connecticut under the direction of Max C. Kabrick will go to Broad Brook on Saturday evening, where they will give a concert. An excellent program has been arranged by the director and the Club will be heard in ensemble and solo numbers.

Joins Visitors' Club
Mrs. Clara Keeney of Mountain street, is vacationing in the Hawaiian Isles and word was received this week that she has joined the visitors club. This is an informal organization made up of travelers in Hawaii from every corner of the globe. Club headquarters are in the famous Waikiki Beach District.

Mrs. Amelia A. Keller
Mrs. Amelia Augusta Keller, died on Monday afternoon at the home of her daughter at 66 Harbinson avenue, Hartford. She was born in Germany but came to Rockville with her parents when still a young girl, residing here for many years. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. William Oppelt of Hartford and Mrs. Frank Spikes of Rocky Hill; three brothers, Paul and Louis Ertel of this city and Bruno Ertel of California; two sisters, Mrs. Sydney Little and Miss Elizabeth Ertel of this city and two grandchildren.

The funeral will be held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Oppelt on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. John Kavash, pastor of Christ Evangelical Lutheran church of Hartford, officiating. Burial will be in Zion Hill cemetery, that place.

Funeral of Bertha Sternal
The funeral of Miss Bertha Sternal, 22, of 13 River street was held from St. Joseph's Polish Catholic church on Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Rev. Sigismund Woronicki officiated at the requiem high mass and was assisted by Rev. Maximilian Solovack of Middletown who acted as deacon, and Rev. Stanislaus Wojelozek of Suffield acted as sub-deacon. Interment took place in the family plot in St. Bernard's cemetery.

The bearers were Edward Ertel, Louis Skibiak, Casimir Swider, Joseph Zastawny, Frank Sierakowski and John Bielski.

Notes
Harry W. Plamm of Windsor avenue is spending a few days in New York City.

Mrs. John Hewitt has been ill at her home the past week.

George Rider has returned to his home on Windemere avenue from the U. S. Veteran's hospital at Newington.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Blinn of Spring street are the proud parents of a son, Phillip Jr., born at the Rockville City hospital Friday night.

her parents when still a young girl, residing here for many years. COSTUMES TELL STORY OF NOTED STAR'S ROLES

Big Moose, N. Y., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Ghosts of the roles Minnie Maddern Fiske lived on the stage sleep today in attic trunks of her big Moose Lake lodge. Cloth, spangles and bodice, they tell the story of her long career in the American theater.

Mrs. Fiske, who died Monday of heart disease, called her home in the Adirondacks "Veery Lodge," naming it after melodious species of bird found there. She loved birds, and the woods on the island are dotted with bird houses.

Packed in the trunks are the costumes of "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," "Becky Sharp," "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh," "Hedda Gabler," "Salvation Nell," "Cyprienne" (of "Divorçons"), and even of little Fritz in "Fritz, Our German Cousin." She played Fritz in the company of J. K. Emmett. That was as long ago as 1870, and her career has been constant throughout the intervening years.

Deep among the costumes is that of Dollie, the child of "Chicago Before the Fire," with its memories of the old Theatre Comique, New York, where she played the role in 1875, and of the Little Duke of York which she played in "Richard III" with the late James Bennett at Niblo's Garden in 1871.

Recollections of John McCollough are revived by the costume Mrs. Fiske-Minnie Maddern then wore as Prince Arthur in "King John." Most of the costumes were worn by Mrs. Fiske in many parts of America, for she was an inveterate trouper and "the road" knew her fully as well as Broadway.

EDITOR FINED

Dublin, Irish Free State, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The Irish Press and Frank Gallagher, its editor, were found guilty by a military tribunal today on four charges of seditious libel and fined £100 each.

The hearing of the case was concluded February 9 and judgment was reserved.

ANDOVER

Mrs. Ralph Bass were callers in Willimantic Friday afternoon. Elmer Finley of Molton and New York took Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bishop, Miss Myrtice and Miss Annie Mathewson on a trip to Scotland Saturday and spent the day with Mrs. Bishop's sister, Mrs. Horace Maine and family.

There will be an entertainment this evening given by the school children in honor of the two hundredth anniversary of George Washington's birthday. There will be singing, recitation and three plays. The entertainment will begin at 8 o'clock.

The Ladies' Benevolent Society will meet at the conference house Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Clarice Yeomans returned home late Sunday evening from a five weeks visit with her daughter, Miss Alice Yeomans, at Delray Beach, Florida, where Miss Yeomans is spending the winter for her health. Mrs. Yeomans reports her daughter is gaining very well and growing stout and strong.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene W. Platt and two children spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Frink.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of Hartford visited their cottage at Andover Lake Sunday.

Twenty-five members of the local Sunday school were in attendance Sunday morning. After the usual exercises and lesson period several anecdotes from Lincoln's life were related by the superintendent, Herbert A. Thompson, Sr. Following these the prize of a nice book was awarded Miss Martha Bartlett, of Miss Amy Randal's class. This prize was won by an excellent drawing which Miss Bartlett submitted, along with the drawings of her classmates, to the publishers of the Sunday school quarterly to which the class subscribes and from which it studies weekly. Drawings illustrating the lesson are made each week, and at the end of each period are submitted to the publishing company. This company receives drawings from classes who use their quarterlies from many, many different Sunday schools, and the local Sunday school was very pleased to have one of its regular members named a prize winner. Miss Bartlett did not know of her award until it was announced and presented during the morning's exercises.

Premier at Desk
London, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Wearing an eye shade and a bandage over his left eye, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald arrived at No. 10 Downing street today to preside over an important Cabinet session.

The premier, who recently underwent an operation for glaucoma (diminution of vision) in his left eye, also had a slightly swollen face as a result of a tooth extraction.

He planned to go later today to his country place, Chequers, for a rest before a three weeks' holiday prescribed by his physicians.

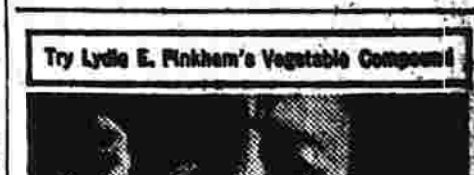

More money has been spent on ornaments by the United States during the past fiscal year than by any other country in the world.

NEW SWEDISH PASTOR COMING AFTER JUNE

Rev. Knut E. Ericson Wants To Confirm Class in Chicago Before Taking Local Pulpit

Word was received yesterday from Rev. Knut E. Ericson of Chicago, Ill., that he will not assume his duties as pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church here until after June 1. Rev. Ericson accepted the call to the local pastorate last week on the final day of the three months allowed to answer the call. He succeeds Rev. P. J. O. Cornell, who will complete twenty-one years in the church next month.

Rev. Ericson said in his letter that he desires to confirm his confirmation class and also to settle other affairs for his successor in Chicago, before he comes here.

STATE'S FINANCES

Hartford, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The receipts of the state of Connecticut for the first seven months of the present fiscal year fell off $3,197,818.83 and the balance in the general fund decreased $5,018,502.11 in comparison with last year, according to the monthly financial statement filed with the governor today by State Commissioner of Finance and Control Edward F. Hall.

The receipts for the first seven months ended January 31, 1932, amounted to $14,217,451.12 as compared with $17,269.65 last year. The balance in the general fund on February 1, 1932, was $4,964,980.01 as compared with $9,983,482.12 on the same date last year.

Preparing for Drive for Veterans' Bonus. Washington, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Preparing for their drive before the House ways and means committee for full cash payment of the soldier bonus, advocates of the legislation will shortly file with the House petition they carry more than two million names.

The ways and means committee will open hearings on the bill introduced by Representative Patman (D., Texas), after it completes drafting a tax bill. Patman's bill would provide an issue of $2,200,000,000 in United States notes to pay off the remainder of the bonus certificates, about $1,400,000,000 already having been advanced in loans.

"We believe the bill will pass both Houses by an overwhelming majority and over the President's veto, if it is vetoed," the Texas said. Patman said five out of every seven veterans already had borrowed the fifty per cent limit on the certificates.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2 at the auditorium of the Gas company, 333 Pearl street, Miss Olea M. Sands of the Extension service, Department of Agriculture, assisted by Mrs. Mixer will prepare club luncheons and suggest a series of menus for club purposes.

Dial Twisters

By W. J. DALTON
It is a far cry from ten years ago when a few stations projected their feeble signals upon the air to today when about six hundred stations are clamoring to be heard.
WGY and WOR are to celebrate their tenth birthday this month. And ten years in radio have meant ten active, rabid, changing years. A ten year old locomotive still is a modern piece of machinery and at ten year old building still is a new structure but a ten year old radio is a relic and very few of these relics are in use today.
The crystal set predominated. Once in awhile someone would be lucky enough to get a VTI tube which was used by the U. S. Navy and Signal Corps. A set built around this tube was quite a ten years ago. Then came the UV201 and the UV202 which required considerable current to light the filament. Three or four of these tubes would drain a battery in a couple of days. They were an improvement over the crystal, though, and anyway the battery-men had to live.
The front panels of the first two and three tube sets always will be a fond memory to those with a weakness for dial-twisting.
There was a knob, dial or adjustment for nearly every piece of apparatus in the set. We had a knob for the antenna tuning condenser, another for the tuning coil and another for the condenser to tune the tuning coil. Then knobs for the rheostats and the variable grid leak and the variometer and variable bias grid. And we cannot forget the twenty or thirty switches for the tapped coils.
Every set sounded like a peanut roaster with its assortment of whistles and squeals. But this was radio and we enjoyed it because there was always the possibility of hearing KDKA or WGY broadcasting phonograph records.
Today we hear the phonograph records dressed up by being called electrical transcriptions. Instead of one or two tube bloomers we have eight or ten tube super-heterodynes with their life-like tone. Instead of listening to a scratchy phonograph record we may hear music from a symphony orchestra or an organ or even an opera if we are so inclined.
Ten years ago few people had the power to imagine what might take place in the next decade and if they gave vent to their imaginations they were ridiculed.
Our radios of today are capable of nearly perfect reproduction of the program being broadcast and at any time of the day or night we can hear some station broadcasting. How many people are satisfied with this? Very few.
That is human nature.

WAPPING

Little Miss Betty Joyce Burnham, celebrated her sixth birthday on Valentine day, Sunday afternoon, Feb. 14, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wellman Burnham, by giving a little party for her friends. The little folks enjoyed a fine afternoon playing games. Betty's mother served dainty refreshments in Valentine style.

ELECTRIFIED HOMES WOULD YOU BE WILLING-
to return to the tallow candle or even the kerosene lamp for lighting, a coal or wood range for cooking, a Franklin stove as the sole source of heat, the horse-car or a horse and buggy as your sole means of transportation?
Then why continue old-fashioned methods of performing household tasks which are inefficient and laborious, when electricity will perform them for you? If your house is properly wired for electric service, there is no excuse for operating it in the most difficult and time-consuming way possible when this greatest of all servants is at your command.
AN ELECTRIFIED HOME
is one where lighting is attractive as well as utilitarian; where electrical appliances have displaced the broom, the wash-tub, the sad-iron and other relics of a past age; where electricity is performing the many tasks it can perform and doing it more efficiently, more economically. It is the home where the lady of the house is a home-maker-not a housekeeper.

The dime-a-dance girl

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Beautiful ELLEN ROSSITER, misbegotten in Barclay's Department Store, lives with her extravagant mother, MOLLY ROSSITER, her sister, MYRA, and her young brother, MIKE. The two girls support the family. Molly foolishly spends money saved to pay the rent. Ellen decides to work at night at Dreamland as a dance hall hostess until the sum is made up. The hostesses must wear evening dresses and Ellen does not own one.

STEVEN BARCLAY, Myra, and Ellen's employer, sees the girl crying and discovers the situation. He lends Ellen a lovely frock when she refuses to accept it as a gift. Ellen forgets her wealthy admirer's kindness when at Dreamland she meets handsome LARRY HARROWGATE, a debutante. She is hurt that he has failed to tell her this. Though she believes him to be a philanthropist she continues to see him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIII

Ellen had not expected to enjoy that afternoon with Larry Harrowgate. She would have said that her mother's hysterics, her own dissatisfaction with the state of affairs between them, had spoiled the afternoon. But when at 4:30, only 20 minutes late, he appeared leaping up the stairs she saw that she had been wrong.

"I'm a mountain goat," he shouted when he caught sight of her in the doorway. "I'm good for 10 flights yet."

Ellen laughed. "You're panting just the same," she jeered. "Did you by any chance see Mrs. Clancy as you were coming up?" She generally opens her door to investigate all callers.

"That the party with the red face and the mob cap I flew past on the second floor?" he inquired as she reached the landing and paused panting. "Sure. She was so interested I thought she meant to join me on the last lap."

"You're lucky she didn't," Ellen advised him with a little giggle. "You'd have had to carry her, I'm sure."

"That was a break." They stood for a moment laughing at the door of the living room where afternoon sunlight shone mercifully on the hedge-podge furniture and leveled its rays as well on the shabby, worn carpet and faded wall paper. Ellen had thoroughly swept the apartment and folded up the Sunday papers but she had changed nothing. She felt an obscure determination that Larry Harrowgate should see them as they were.

"You're a smart little girl, aren't you, Ellen?"

"Girls have to be smart about clothes," Ellen confessed hiding her exultation with the compliment.

"With or without the jacket, that dress is just your ticket," Larry summarized it.

The car slid over Brooklyn bridge. Ellen, glancing up, surprised an odd expression on Larry's face. He spoke but the roar of Sunday traffic drowned his voice. Helplessly the girl shook her head.

Lower Manhattan was quieter. Empty office buildings frowned down into empty canyons that on week-days were filled with scurrying stenographers and clerks and brokers and customers' men. Nothing open, not a restaurant, not a drug store, not a news stand. A few pedestrians idled along lower Broadway, a few cars idled along the deserted street, but everywhere was the peace of Sunday. Ellen waited for Larry to speak. He had wanted to say something; he had said something on the bridge. His persistent silence disturbed the girl, made her nervous and absurdly anxious.

"Well?" she said at length.

"Well," he repeated after her. "You said something to me on the bridge but I couldn't hear," she told him a little stultily.

"So I did," he agreed exasperatingly.

"What was it?"

"Something I hadn't any right to say to you."

"Oh, for heaven's sake!" she cried in irritation. "You have a right to say anything you want. To say to me."

"Do you really mean that?"

"Certainly, I meant it!"

The car slowed; his speech slowed. "I was only thinking," he said lightly. "That I like your dress today a good deal better than the one you wore the first night I met you."

Ellen was conscious of not wanting to forget a word of it. This she knew she would want to remember often what he had said. It would have been a little better if he had not laughed so. Still there it was—he had said they wanted to be alone.

They giggled when Mrs. Clancy opened the door and peeped out at them. Ellen did not speak. That would have been too embarrassing for the kindly neighbor who was pretending she was invisible. Then they reached the street where a collection of grubby urchins, their Sunday clothes already hopelessly soiled, scrambled over a shining blue roadster.

"What a marvelous car," Ellen breathed.

"What you can see of it isn't so bad. At the moment it looks something like a human ant hill," he remarked, adding carelessly, "Doesn't belong to me. I wish it did. But I've the use of it till seven."

Larry dug into his pockets for change and came out with a handful of nickels and dimes. For all the world like a pitcher preparing to hurl a fast one, he swung his arm, whispering to Ellen to watch. Coins sprang from his hand and clattered to the street in all directions, some of them rolling half a block away.

At once the roadster was abandoned by the shouting, shrieking youngsters who pounced after the elusive coins. Several flats fights had begun by the time Ellen and Larry, laughing helplessly, stepped into the empty car and drove off.

"You'll never be rich if you throw away money like that," the girl said after a while.

"Ho! Ho! So you're another one of those people who's going to tell me things for my own good," he commented with a sideways and delighted glance at her.

"Certainly not!" she assured him with indignation.

Nevertheless her color rose and even as she entered her swift door she was wondering who those others were. Certainly this charming irresponsible young man needed to be told things for his own good.

As she referred to Elizabeth Bowes, his fiancée? Briefly Ellen experienced a twist of pure pain. Then she determined sensibly that no such speculations should spoil the afternoon. For a few hours at least Larry belonged exclusively to her. She must get what fun she could from those hours.

"You did tell me that you were poor," she ventured.

"That's right. A poor man with a rich man's habits. Don't you feel sorry for me?"

"Can't say that I do exactly."

He laughed and called her hard-hearted. Soon they were wrangling gaily, pleased with each other and with themselves, pleased to be together, riding in a smooth, luxurious car on such a glorious day.

"That's a nice frock," Larry said as they swept out of Fine street and toward Manhattan.

"I wore it last night," Ellen responded innocently. "This is the same one with the jacket added."

"You're a smart little girl, aren't you, Ellen?"

"Girls have to be smart about clothes," Ellen confessed hiding her exultation with the compliment.

"With or without the jacket, that dress is just your ticket," Larry summarized it.

"Certainly, I meant it!"

The car slowed; his speech slowed. "I was only thinking," he said lightly. "That I like your dress today a good deal better than the one you wore the first night I met you."

"That dress again!"

"Most people thought the other one was lovely," Ellen put in faintly. How she wished she had not forced this issue!

"That's not quite what I was getting at."

Just then he turned a sharp corner and Ellen, caught off guard, was literally flung into his arms. She gasped, extricated herself and moved back to her own corner with an uncertain laugh. She hoped the man would laugh too; hoped his attention would have been diverted from the dress. It had not been.

"You know what I was getting at, don't you?" he inquired idly.

"How should I?"

"Very well then, I'll tell you," he began briefly and in a manner most matter of fact. "It's none of my business and I'm rushing in where angels fear to tread and all that but it seems funny to me that—well—"

he continued stubbornly after a break, "—that was an expensive dress, wasn't it?"

"This is an expensive car, isn't it?"

"Oh, I see! Meaning that at just this point a young man watches his step?"

"Meaning precisely that!"

Ellen was annoyed, as much with herself as with him. She wanted to be furiously angry. Larry had no right to question her when she could not question him. Her affairs were as much her own as were his. But she could not be really angry; she dared not risk severing the slender thread that bound them together. Still her pride meant something. She would not explain.

"I'm sorry, I've no right to be so curious," he apologized unexpectedly and almost as if he were reading her secret thoughts. "I don't know what got into me. Let's drop the subject and talk about the weather or what we're going to do this afternoon."

The apology also failed to satisfy. Ellen was conscious of a certain disappointment, baffling and displeasing. She would not admit that deep in her heart she had hoped Larry would insist he had the right to know everything about her.

There was a rather flat interval. Then Larry began driving at such terrific speed that the girl could think of nothing except keeping her hair up and her feet down. The plan suited her to a degree. She pleaded with the speed maniac in vain.

"How's for some dancing?" he shouted, grinning.

"Too hot for dancing," she shouted in answer. "Have you ever been to the city jail?"

"No wonder! He was in the city jail serving time on a drunken driving charge."

There he is today, apple and all, a charming little figure looking so wise and self-controlled. Artists marvel at the natural, easy pose of this two-year-old, as well as that of his sister and brother. For the celebrated "Baby Stuart" is a detail of a large group of the three children. The answer is that Sir Anthony Van Dyck, in addition to being a great artist, was the swiftest painter of his rank in history.

He was, too, an aristocrat, a courtier, and he understood royalty—even babies. The King, the Queen, the nobles were his guests. He hated the vulgar and the commonplace. He loved elegance, a characteristic reflected in his work especially in the patrician quality he gives to his subjects, the fine texture of the flesh, the detailed perfection of the costumes, the richness of the materials. And he knew how to embellish everything he touched. Perhaps this was why King Charles I knighted him.

He painted thirty-one portraits of the king before that monarch was beheaded and England "went puritan" under Oliver Cromwell for eleven years. Van Dyck, who was born in England, died in 1641 at the age of 42, so he never knew the fate of his royal patron and children.

Exile and Death Was Tragic Fate of 'Baby Stuart'

'Baby Stuart'... apple and all... a charming little figure looking so wise and self-controlled.

BY ALICE ROHE

One sunny afternoon three hundred years ago three small children were playing with a spaniel in the palace at Westminster. The romping child of today would never have guessed that their long heavy silk petticoats that two of them were boys. The littlest one wore a lace cap, like his five-year-old brother. His three-year-old sister was a miniature court lady. The baby's chubby hand, outstretched from the puffed sleeve of his rich, blue silk gown, was just about to catch the spaniel's ear when their play was interrupted.

"Sir Anthony Van Dyck—to paint your Royal Highnesses," announced the gentleman in waiting.

But even royal infants—for these ornately dressed youngsters were the children of Charles the First of England—can forget their manners. And the littlest one did. At two years the stubbornness which was later to cost him his crown, as James the Second of England, cropped out.

"No!" he cried, hanging on to the spaniel. "No!"

Apple Turned the Trick. It was only when Sir Anthony himself lured him with a big apple that this cunning but self-willed infant consented to pose for the portrait which was to become one of the most famous children's pictures in the world.

There he is today, apple and all, a charming little figure looking so wise and self-controlled. Artists marvel at the natural, easy pose of this two-year-old, as well as that of his sister and brother. For the celebrated "Baby Stuart" is a detail of a large group of the three children. The answer is that Sir Anthony Van Dyck, in addition to being a great artist, was the swiftest painter of his rank in history.

And he knew how to embellish everything he touched. Perhaps this was why King Charles I knighted him.

He painted thirty-one portraits of the king before that monarch was beheaded and England "went puritan" under Oliver Cromwell for eleven years. Van Dyck, who was born in England, died in 1641 at the age of 42, so he never knew the fate of his royal patron and children.

Renounced Crown—But Became King. "Baby Stuart" now known as James, Duke of York, was 16 years old at the time of his father's execution. One of his acts which has a modern flavor was to renounce the throne to marry a commoner, Anne Hyde, daughter of Lord Chancellor Clarendon. She was the mother of eight of his children, and his second wife, Mary of Modena, bore him seven. In spite of his renunciation of royal privileges he became King of England at the death of his brother, Charles II, the eldest of the three children whose play was interrupted by Sir Anthony Van Dyck. It is said to relate that the adorable Baby Stuart made a most unadorable king. When he was forced to flee from England the little girl who posed so graciously for Sir Anthony that sunny afternoon enters history through her son. This son was William of Orange, and he married King James Second's daughter Mary.

The two reigned as William and Mary while "Baby Stuart" lives and died in exile. He was 68 years old when death ended his willful self-indulgent life, and no wonder. His great-grandmother was Mary, Queen of Scots, who, like his father, died on the scaffold. Van Dyck's famous painting hangs in the Royal Picture Gallery in Turin, Italy.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

If you are relying entirely on some fragrant something out of a modernistic crystal bottle to settle all your complexion troubles for you, you are pretty naive for a modern.

Certainly unguents and lotions do their full bit. But there is no single cure-all that will miraculously make your skin soft as silk and more beautiful.

Lovely skin often begins with a fine, healthy digestion. Plenty of sleep, on a good set of springs and an excellent mattress, does its full quota too. A well-rounded diet, with lots of fresh vegetables and fruits makes a big contribution. And all the more water you drink—the more chance your skin has to be a real asset.

There is one good thing about the skin game today. You don't have to have peaches and cream skin to be beautiful. Many artists hold briefs for the olive complexion, others prefer the rich suntan tones, some like the pallor of a camellia-like skin.

It is stylish to be, quite as individual in your skin tone as in your clothes. Make the most of what you have. If your skin is healthy and looks it, if you keep it scrubbed meticulously and it shows it, if you have a real zest that comes from a healthy body with fine circulation and your skin reflects this life, then why should you worry?

If you are about 28, you should begin face patting to keep its contour clean cut and handsome. If you are over 30, you should use anti-wrinkle cream. If you are over 40, you should do both quite as religiously as you eat and sleep. And in addition, you should give your skin plenty of oil because it is the dry skin that lets its owner down by looking old.

And isn't this model interesting with its slimming Vionnet blouse? The skirt too has the shaped circular gores that lend smart height to the figure. The skirt is attached to a camisole bodice with shoulder straps.

It has so much snap about it, fashioned of rough silk crepe in light navy blue topped by light blue blouse. And incidentally these two shades promise to be very popular for spring.

It's a model that will be charming carried out as a complete frock, particularly in one of the new gay printed crepe silks of conservative small pattern.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton, by NEA SERVICE, INC.

All over the United States trees are being planted to commemorate the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington and in almost all cases school children are actively interested in the work.

In Bennington, Vermont, five miles of English elms are being set out this year in honor of the memory of the Father of Our Country.

The Southland, perfect at this time of year for tree planting, is very busy. Six hundred high school pupils in Jacksonville, Fla., have set out one thousand forest trees along a country highway.

Other school children in other cities are not only co-operating in the purchase of young saplings, but are actually engaged in planting them by the thousands.

Many of the states are turning the memorial plates or tags free of charge and are helping in other ways with the work in this "February until Thanksgiving" festival.

WED IN VAULT

Millford, Pa.—It was very convenient for Ralph Decker and Mrs. Dolly Williams when they appeared at the courthouse to obtain a marriage license. As the license was signed by the clerk, the Rev. H. Calvin Aroh appeared to file a paper. The minister was pressed in to service and the couple adjourned to the courthouse vault where Rev. Aroh tied the knot.

God has commanded time to console the unhappy.—Joubert.

Good News for the Over-fat. Medical science has discovered a great cause of excess fat. Not lazy habits, not over-eating, though such things contribute. A certain gland grows weak, then too much of your energy goes to fat. Since that discovery, doctors the world over supply the lacking factor. And excess fat, in late years, has been disappearing fast.

Cornell's Victory Puts Four Teams In Running For Basketball Crown

Ithacans Turn Back Dartmouth 28 To 27; Columbia Can Tie Indians By Beating Yale Tonight.

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Cornell's upset victory over Dartmouth has completely changed the complexion of the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League championship race and left four teams still in the running for the title. The Ithacans' quintet, real dark horse of the circuit, handed Dartmouth its first defeat of the league season last night at Ithaca 28-27 and at the same time chalked up its third straight victory in the league.

From the viewpoint of the standings the result was to leave Dartmouth holding first place by only half a game over the defending Columbia Lions and Cornell tied with Princeton for third place with three victories and two defeats.

Columbia, which has won three of its four league starts, will have an excellent chance to move into a tie for the lead tonight in a game with Yale's cellar five in New York. At the same time Princeton will have a chance to regain undisputed possession of third place by beating Penna at Princeton. Columbia and Princeton will enter the games heavy favorites. As the race stands now only Penna with four defeats and Yale with five, are out of the running.

Lou Bender of Columbia may face Louis Bender of Yale on the court in their game here tonight. Although the Yale player is a reserve while the Columbia captain is an all-league star, there will be the possibility of their playing on opposing teams.

They are both forwards but Columbia Lou is taller, Bender and in a senior. The Yale Lou is a junior and hails from New Haven, having prepared at Milford. Columbia Lou is a New Yorker and all league forward and high scorer for two years.

Two successful foul shots by Kopszynski, guard, gave Cornell its third straight league triumph last night. The game was closely contested throughout, the lead changing hands several times. Cornell led 21-14 at half time. It was Cornell's accuracy from the foul line that gave the red the game. Cornell counted ten times from the foul line while Dartmouth made only one of its points that way. Dartmouth went into the lead with less than a minute to play when Wild Bill McCall broke loose to score from under the basket. Immediately after, however, Smart fouled Kopszynski and the Cornell guard made both tries good.

Jake Edwards, Dartmouth forward, led the scorers with five field goals.

STAGG APPROVES FOOTBALL RULES

Believes Objections Will Be Forgotten When Changes Are Understood.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Amos Alonzo Stagg Sr., dean of the country's football coaches and senior member of the rules committee, believes the changes in the playing code will take nothing from the game from spectators' viewpoint and will mean much to players and coaches.

Mr. Stagg, who will coach his 41st University of Chicago squad next fall, agrees with other members of the committee, that the alterations are the most constructive since 1906 and today predicted that the benefits will soon become evident.

Objections against some of the changes, particularly those barring flying, blocking and tackling, will he believes, be forgotten when they are fully understood.

ACCUSES FEDERAL MEN

Washington, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Charges that Federal narcotic agents had protected the gangster, Jack Diamond, from questioning by the New York City police were laid before the House rules committee by Representative Black (D., N. Y.), in asking for a Congressional investigation of narcotic law enforcement.

Black said that when a warrant was issued for the gangster, who has since been killed, Diamond "surrendered to the Federal Narcotic people, became Federal property and received Federal protection from questioning."

He charged that certain unnamed Customs officials had been found by narcotic agents tapping telephone wires to be in contact with wholesale dealers in smuggled narcotics, and said when some agents attempted to enforce the law they were ousted by the narcotic bureau.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

What! No Police Gazette? Something will have to be done. The other day the Police Gazette, the leading illustrated sporting journal in the world, suspended publication. The rumor was bruited about that a tidal wave of debts had engulfed the old pink sheet with such a checked life story. Perhaps the old journal's creditors can be induced to declare a moratorium. The Police Gazette must not perish. If it does, the barber shops might as well close up.

Four score and seven years ago our forefathers brought forth the Police Gazette, dedicated to the proposition that all men are created lovers of manly and upstanding literature and art—with a little racy coloring to intrigue the fancy, gentlemen. It was born in violence in 1845; it lived by violence; storm after storm shook the old Gazette, but until now it always came up fresher than ever and ready for more.

Kill the Reporters! In the beginning the Gazette was a crusader. It's very first edition, with its opening installment of the life of Bob the Wheelwright, in jail charged with the murder of his fifth wife, stirred a saloon riot in which a man was killed, and a few others suffered such uncomfortable losses as fingers and ears.

George Wilkes, brilliant editor of that early Police Gazette, stirred the city with sensation after sensation. Wilkes' wars on the underworld and its political affiliations reached the point where half a hundred mobsters of the period attacked the editor where the Gazette was printed, killed a reporter and sent Editor Wilkes and others to the hospital. Playing their roles in the onset, led by Boss Harrington, well known gangster of the period, were folk with such quaint names as Nobby Chester, Donkey, Dora Cole, Lizzie the Poor Beauty, Country McCloskey, Deaf Martin.

The plant was demolished, and the battle, in which several mobsters were killed, raged in the streets for hours.

C. D. K. Club's Reputation For Fast Show Draws 581—Technical K. O.'s Feature Program.

The Rockville C. D. K. Club's reputation for putting on a card of fast amateur boxing bouts packed Town Hall last night. The management reported 581 paid admissions. Technical knockouts featured last night's 10-bout card. Kid Sherwood of East Hartford, being disqualified and refused a prize when he quit the battle cold in his bout with Sonny Barker, also an East Hartford boy.

The main go found Al Gero, a 156 pounder from Hartford matched against Bud Dunn, 155, of Somersville. Gero won on a technical knockout in the second round when Referee Charlie Pilkington stopped the bout. Dunn, by far the better fighter, had a bad gash over his left eye opened up just after the second round began and he could scarcely see to go on. Dunn is a smooth, clever boxer and he packs a good right. Gero, a bull-headed slugger, proved unpopular with the crowd but Dunn's bad cut, requiring three stitches, gave Gero the decision via the technical k. o. route.

The semi-final bout was almost a farce. George Gordon, 180 pounds and six feet two in his stocky feet was matched against Al Bruno, 181 of Windsor Locks. Bruno got a technical knockout in the second when Gordon was so exhausted he couldn't continue. Gordon is only 17 years old and has much to learn about ring tactics. Bruno has been seen for several years in amateur rounds around Hartford and is staging a comeback. The fat fairly rolled out over his trunks. Bruno was the better boxer and would easily have won the bout had it gone through the scheduled three rounds.

The other bouts were as follows: Eddie Ellis 123, Rockville, decision over Freddy Roy, 124, Rockville; Al Giovanni, 129, Pomfret, decision over Eddie Dougherty, 127, Hartford; Al Columbo, 140, Windsor Locks, knocked out Ed Dolan, 142, Hartford, in second; Dominic Masaro, 124, Windsor Locks, decision over Rocco Casale, 124, Hartford; Sonny Parker, 135, Hartford, decision over Kid Sherwood, 139, East Hartford, when latter quit in third.

The other bouts were as follows: Al Falcone, 151, East Hartford, knocked out Charles Taylor, 148, Hartford, in the first; Jack Depace, 142, New Britain, knocked out Arthur Bellude, 143, Pomfret, in the first; Al Satryb, 134, Rockville, knocked out Leo Darcy, 134, Hartford, in second.

A specialty shadow boxing bout put on by "One Punch" Mannion gave the big crowd a chance to do a lot of razzing. Boxing Commissioner Tom Donahue was a guest of the club at last night's affair. An other batch of amateurs will fight it out in the Town Hall, Rockville, two weeks from last night.

VENZKE IN MILE

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Two record smashing performers Gene Venzke and Leo Sexton, bid fair to give the home club a major share of the honors in the annual New York Athletic Club indoor track and field meet tonight.

Venzke tops a real field in the Baxter mile. Sexton is another outstanding favorite in the 16 pound shot event.

Heading the list of "outsiders" who hope to win from the New York A. C. contenders is George Spitz who apparently has not found his high jumping "ceiling" and doesn't know where it is.

Eddie Genug, the University of Washington's great half-mile runner, will be Olympic Games.

A reorganization plan for the American Solvent & Chemical Corporation, adopted by the committee headed by Joseph P. The steel man walked with arms stretched out until the bunch heard Scouty shout, "We'd better climb up in a tree where we'll be safe and sound. I much prefer that, if you please, to having him give me a squeeze. I'm really scared down here because he's walking all around."

"You're right," yelled Windy. "Follow me. I've found a great big spreading tree. There's room out on the branches for us all. Come, let's be quick. The man who owns the steel man may just think this is a sort of play, but if you ask me, frankly, I would say it's not so slick."

So, up the tree the whole bunch went. Beneath their weight the branches bent. "Don't topple off," cried Coppy. "It's a long way to the ground. Hang on with both your hands, real tight and everything will be all right. I think that we are lucky since a safe place has been found."

Dated at Manchester, Conn., this 15th day of February, 1932. EDWARD H. KEENEY, HENRY P. JORDAN, LOUISE HAGENOW, Committee.

The steel man walked with arms stretched out until the bunch heard Scouty shout, "We'd better climb up in a tree where we'll be safe and sound. I much prefer that, if you please, to having him give me a squeeze. I'm really scared down here because he's walking all around."

"You're right," yelled Windy. "Follow me. I've found a great big spreading tree. There's room out on the branches for us all. Come, let's be quick. The man who owns the steel man may just think this is a sort of play, but if you ask me, frankly, I would say it's not so slick."

So, up the tree the whole bunch went. Beneath their weight the branches bent. "Don't topple off," cried Coppy. "It's a long way to the ground. Hang on with both your hands, real tight and everything will be all right. I think that we are lucky since a safe place has been found."

GAS BUGGIES—Guten Morgen

AMY HAS BECOME FED UP ON HER SCHOOLCHUM'S EUROPEAN MANNERISM, BUT CAN NOT RESIST HER DEPARTURE AS LONG AS SHE PERSISTS IN MAKING HER FEEL SO WELCOME.

I HAVE A HEADACHE THIS MORNING, HEM, I'LL HAVE TO STAY IN BED. I'LL ASK ANN TO GET YOU SOME BREAKFAST.

BUT I'M NOT DRESSED! AND I HAVEN'T COOKED ANYTHING YET. YEARS, AMY!

DON'T BOTHER TO DRESS, HEM! IN A HURRY, JUST MAKE COFFEE AND TOAST.

OH, DARN!! I FORGOT TO WATCH THIS COFFEE, AND IT BOILED OVER!

I KNOW MY HAIR LOOKS TERRIBLE, BUT I DIDN'T HAVE TIME TO— OH OH!! I SPILLED YOUR COFFEE AND I'M AFRAID I BURNED THE TOAST— IT'S BEEN SO LONG SINCE I'VE COOKED ANYTHING, I HOPE YOU LIKE STRONG COFFEE!

SENSE AND NONSENSE

A Prophecy
Of Nineteen Thirty-Two, A. D.
Great prophecies are made;
There's bound to be prosperity,
Depression's sure to fade.

The rival clans in party rage
Will spout about the dote;
Then booze and tariff grab the stage
To plague our weary soul.

Of bunk and blar there'll be a smear
For voters rate as hicks;
Which means—alas!—the coming year
Will feature politics.

Yet still we hope good times are due
To come in Nineteen Thirty-two.

Men wish they didn't have any Harder times than boys think they have. . . In the old days when families gave big dinners the best tablecloth wasn't burned full of holes. . . People often hug a delusion, but never one that they have married. . . Another good way to prevent suffering in time of depression is to quit showing off when times are good. . . The average person is like a bureau drawer, too full of his own stuff. . . A girl doesn't have to be a good skater to cut a pretty figure. . . Just when we think we can't get any more meet, somebody moves the ends. . .
One of the mysteries of the day, is why a farmer can't make as much money out of a good hog as a city man out of a blind pig. . . The said our ancestors sprang from ferocious beasts of the jungle. Well—you can't blame 'em for that. . . Ten years hence, when you say, "A dollar went farther in those days," you'll mean these days. Buy now.

Courting is so expensive these days that a lot of young fellows haven't enough left to get married on. . . We would like to know what any person ever saved by daylight saving. . . If 1931 taught you that you are better in your chosen line of endeavor than you are a picker of "winners" in the stock market, you'll do better in 1932. . . Some men are born liars, but the rest of us acquire the art from our friends.
. . . Then there's the Scotchman who took out fire insurance on his cigars.
. . . Proof of the political pudding lies in the plain distinction. . . The word "probably" is the weather man's shock absorber.

Mr. Jacobs—Who is your wife's favorite author?
Mr. Lamont—The guy who writes the ads for the bargain sales in the papers.

S. P. C. A. Agent—Your horse looks terrible. Why don't you fatten him up.
Mike—Fatten him up? Why, the poor beast can hardly carry the that's on him now.

A child returned from a Sunday School was asked what text the teacher talked about. She replied:
"The Lord is sneaking around Humboldt Park." The teacher was called cover the phone for a full explanation. It proved to be: "The Lord seeketh an humble heart."

"Kneading bread will remove cigaret stains from the fingers," says a well-known household magazine.
From now on home made bread goes off our menu.

Doctor—But, Madam, a woman of your age cannot expect to grow younger.
Patient—I'm not asking that, doctor. All I want you to do is to keep me growing older a little bit slower.

Mother—Daughter, dear, your escort brought you home very late last night.
Daughter—Yes, it was late, mother. Did the noise disturb you?
Mother—No, the silence.

The ready-to-serve system becomes the order of the day—and all a girl wants to know is whether a man likes his loving rare—medium or well done.

Horace—Funny thing about those fifteen-cent black socks.
Harold—Wassamatter?
Horace—Every time I walk, they run.

THAT STOPPED 'EM
A small boy, leading a donkey, passed an army camp. A couple of soldiers wanted to have some fun with the lad.
"Why are you holding on to your brother so tightly, sonny?" asked one of them.
"So that he won't join the army," the youngster replied.—
