DETAILS OF TROUBLE New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Nate C. Browne telephoned from East Boston Airport, where he landed on his attempted flight to South America, that a cylinder in motor had burned out and that he was forced to land.

The telephone message was received by J. Nelson Kelly, manager of Floyd Bennett Field. Browne said he was at the Ames Aircraft hanger and that in landing he dumped half of his load of approximately 1,100 gallons of gasoline and had bucked the landing gear.

The flier added that he would get a new landing gear "in a hurry" and be off on his flight again. Although he did not specify, it was believed at the field that he intended to repair the damage en route to Old Orchard for another takeoff.

In a telephone conversation with associates here, Edward Muldowney, Browne's companion, said that they had been unable to attain safe altitude after leaving Old Orchard Beach.

"One cylinder began going bad," he said. "We headed out over Cape Cod and dumped part of our gas. Then the cylinder burned out and we were forced to land. We broke one wheel on the landing and Muldowney said that the landing gear had not been dropped off after leaving Old Orchard, as they had planned to do, because they never got altitude enough to make such action safe. They did drop the tail wheel, however.

FENTON ON STAND DENIES CHARGES

Ex-Town Clerk Says He Replaced Money After Conference With Selectmen.

Putnam, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Frank P. Fenton former town clerk and treasurer of Windham took the witness stand today to deny charges he had embezzled town funds.

When the State rested its case shortly after court was resumed following a week-end recess, defense counsel called Fenton as their first witness.

Answering allegations he had withdrawn money from a sinking fund established in 1905 to pay off $105,000 in bonds twenty years later, Fenton said $10,000 had been removed in 1909 "after conferring with the selectmen."

Money Replaced This money was replaced, however, he asserted by $15,000 in Liberty bonds and $10,000 in town bonds. Unable to produce the town records of some portions of the regulations concerning the sinking fund, he said he would hunt for them during the noon recess.

Fenton told of his 40 years residence in Windham and of his decision not to seek his offices again in 1931 after "the starting of this trouble." His only stipulated salary, he testified, was $350 a year as treasurer.

Warren M. Brown, Hartford accountant who checked Fenton's books when the charges were brought against him, was the last of 16 State witnesses. He reviewed his previous testimony this morning, alleging that Fenton had deposited town funds to his personal account. The State introduced 91 exhibits including copies of bonds and town records.

CANADIAN AVIATOR DESCRIBES THE WAR

Japs Execute Every Person Found In Buildings From Which Shots Are Fired.

Victoria, B. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Stories of executions of Chinese by Japanese soldiers in the fighting around Shanghai were vouchsafed today by Charles Doyle, who has been a flying instructor for the Chinese army, on his return from the Far East.

The account of Doyle, who lives at Vancouver, was one of several descriptions of the warfare given by passengers who arrived here yesterday on the Empress of Asia. The feeling was expressed that sentiment was running high against the Japanese among occupants of the International Settlement at Shanghai.

"Wherever there is any sniping," Doyle said, "the Japanese arrest everyone in the building from which the shots were fired, and execute them instantly."

150 at a Time "As many as 150 persons have been put to death at one time in this revolver. The Japanese just put revolvers behind their heads and shoot them."

George Le Boucq, Shanghai banker, who was also on the liner, said every one in the International Settlement had been amazed by the stubborn resistance put up by the Chinese.

"It's the first time the Chinese army's strategy has not consisted of running away," he said. "Still Hope for Peace He said that in the present section the hope was still held the League of Nations may intervene.

Leon Britton, an independent motion picture producer of New York, described the fighting at Shanghai and Woonung as a "great show."

After 96 Hours of Heavy Fighting Armies Are Just About Where They Started Last Saturday—Japs Admit That Foes Are Capable of Holding Out For a Long Time; Chinese Report Repulsing Every Attack and Fighting Japanese To a Standstill Along Entire Front.

Shanghai, Wednesday, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Japanese headquarters admitted early this morning that the terrific onslaught against Kiangwan had failed to dislodge the defenders and that it appeared the Chinese were capable of holding out for a long time.

Thus 96 hours of the heaviest fighting since the World War has left the two powerful opposing armies just about where they stood last Saturday when the Chinese rejected an ultimatum and the Japanese launched their offensive.

"Our men are tired and they want some rest," said a headquarters spokesman, supplementing the communique which reported only minor advances during yesterday's engagement.

Chinese Hold Firm There was a report that a Japanese force had put three Chinese regiments to flight, but nevertheless the Chinese held not only the town of Kiangwan but also Tazung, a village to the west, and several other strategic points to the south.

The early morning Chinese communique said the Kiangwan defenders had fought the Japanese to a standstill despite the enemy's superior equipment. Aerial bombardment of Tazung left only a few houses standing, the bulletin said, but the Chinese stuck to their trenches, blocking any advance.

"Because of the impending arrival of two additional Japanese divisions," said the communique, "the Chinese command is making all necessary preparations to resist any further offensive from the reinforced enemy."

REFUSE ALL ATTACKS

Shanghai's dogged Chinese defenders fought a succession of slashing Japanese attacks to a standstill today along the entire battlefield from Chapel to some distance beyond Kiangwan, meeting every terrible drive with death-dealing bullets and bayonets.

The fighting died down as darkness came on and after twelve daylight hours of severe fighting the battle lines of both forces were virtually unchanged.

The slaughter and blood-letting was terrific and both sides sustained probably the heaviest losses of the four days of pitched battle.

The only success the Japanese were able to gain out of the bloody encounter was the destruction of the noted Chinese airbase at Hungjiao with a heavy aerial bombardment. The airbase is five miles west of Shanghai. Twenty five heavy bombs were dropped upon it, destroying all the hangars and the planes inside them. The hangars were burned to the ground.

Japanese naval authorities said their airplanes also destroyed the Chinese air base at Soochow on the Shanghai-Nanking railway.

Attackers Hurdled Back Wave after wave, the force of the Japanese army was thrown against the Chinese line during the day only to be hurled back by the Chinese. The fighting was fiercest along the front northwest of Kiangwan where the Japanese spent every ounce of strength in an attempt to complete the circular movement they began yesterday, which was intended to surround the garrison which has successfully defended the blasted ruins of the village for four days.

A decision on the mastery of Kiangwan appeared to be far off, however, and the strength of the Japanese attack began to subside after noon with nothing gained or lost by the forenoon's efforts.

As the fighting tapered off, Japanese Red Cross workers sought to bring out the wounded. The same probably was happening behind the Chinese lines.

CHINESE WOMEN FIGHT WITH MEN AGAINST JAPS Shanghai, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Japanese army headquarters said today Chinese women have taken up arms alongside their husbands and brothers in the defense of the village of Kiangwan.

Soldiers returning from the front, headquarters officials said, declared they had seen women shooting from windows of buildings at the outskirts of the besieged village.

The soldiers, they said, had little to say for the Chinese woman's marksmanship, however.

scene of utter desolation. Every building had been burned to the ground.

The whole area was blasted terribly by airplane bombs and artillery shells. Numerous grave mounds had been blown open and large numbers of Chinese and Japanese dead lay here and there.

A bomb exploded at the entrance to the post office at Szechuen road and Soochow Creek in the International Settlement this afternoon, injuring a foreign policeman and blowing in fronts of buildings across the street. The blast was similar to that which wrecked the offices of the Japanese Mitsui Bussan Kaisha last week. It was a time bomb.

Chinese Artillery Chinese artillery continued their bombardment of the Japanese naval vessels in the "Wangpo" and one of their shells narrowly missed the flagship Izdume of Admiral Nomura, Japanese naval headquarters said the Chinese aim was improving and that the shells were falling closer every time.

Chinese anti-aircraft gunners in the vicinity of Chenju, northwest of the International Settlement, brought down two Japanese airplanes Monday. The Chinese claimed three Japanese aviators were killed in the second of two planes and that their planes were destroyed. It was also learned that three Japanese pursuit planes shot down a Chinese plane in the vicinity of Soochow, fifty miles west of Shanghai Monday.

VISITS NO MAN'S LAND By Morris J. Harris (Copyright 1932 By A. P.) Shanghai, Feb. 23.—(AP)—I visited the "no man's land" north of the village of Kiangwan today, where most of the heavy fighting has taken place during the last two or three days and found there not only the marks of a reign of terror but the actual existence of one.

In the middle of the war torn area I saw an old Chinese woman sitting in an open field, weeping and wringing her hands, ignorant of all but what was going on about her and entirely helpless to protect herself.

Some distance to the right a Japanese soldier appeared, while I was looking and shortly was followed by several more. The lone leading soldier raised his rifle, aimed at the woman and fired.

Kills the Woman He missed. The woman continued to weep, her face buried in her hands, and the rifleman leisurely aimed his gun again and fired. This time he fired with accuracy and killed the helpless woman. In the meantime his comrades pushed forward and began looting and terrorizing.

As I entered the area, Japanese stretcher-bearers were bringing out the Japanese casualties. A group passed every few minutes. Half of the forms on the stretchers apparently were dead. In the meantime other Japanese bands were laying waste any remaining property within the area.

Large numbers of Chinese dead could be seen before the burning ruins of what had been their home. It was a hellish sight. I saw the Chinese dead piled up beside a cart path. Examination revealed that the hands of all of them were tied behind their backs. Apparently they had been captured, lined up and tied and then mowed down together.

Old Couple Shot I saw an old couple who had been shot probably as they ran from the house to escape the flames.

Further on I passed another burning home site. In front of it lay scattered five dead Chinese, including one woman. The same appeared

D. A. R. ENTERTAINS IN FINE PROGRAM

Annual Washington's Birthday Party Held in Center Church House Yesterday.

Orford Parish Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held its regular guest afternoon program at the Center Church house yesterday, Washington's birthday.

The spacious banquet hall was used and the platform was tastefully decorated with palms and pots of red tulips.

Mrs. Grace Symington, attired in a colonial costume of turquoise and print, sang "Father of the Land We Love," which was written especially for the American people by George M. Cohan to commemorate the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

Margaret Woodruff, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Watson Woodruff, recited two poems, "George Washington" and "Washington's Birthday."

A delightful playlet entitled "When Grandma Was a Girl," was given by Joyce and Emma Lou Kehler, Barbara Lundberg, Nellie Burnham, Louise Dewey and Marjorie Inman.

Mrs. Symington followed with "The Second Minute" and was obliged to respond with an encore number, the ever popular "Carry Me Back to Ole Virginia."

Miss Helen Viertel, promising young violinist, played "The Serenade" most effectively, and in response to an enthusiastic recall, played a medley of patriotic airs.

Marjorie Inman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Inman of Manchester Green, delighted with her impersonation of "A Modern Washington" wearing a typical little boy's rig.

The building which houses the Revolutionary War Council was adorned with great folds of burning light, with vari-colored electric lights, formed a gigantic figure "14" providing a splash of color against the adjacent snow-capped roofs.

Theaters were thrown open to all soldiers and military personnel and a military motif provided the theme for most of their repertoires.

The newspaper Pravda in its leading article deplored the "systematic rejection" by capitalist countries of the Soviet disarmament proposals at Geneva and declared that the proof of the peaceful policy of the Soviets lies in the knowledge that the government of Czar Nicholas would have declared war on them the occupation of Japan of the chief centers of Manchuria.

"The Soviet government, however," the Pravda article said, "proposed a non-aggression pact to Japan and it is no fault of ours if it is unrealized thus far."

The paper devoted considerable space to supporting a theory held here that France is sponsoring anti-Soviet aggression.

"But no provocation," it continued, "can divert us from a firm policy of peace, although we must continue ever-watchful. The Red Army is the guarantee of safety for our country in its building of Socialism. By strengthening their armies, imperialist countries are trying to claim war. We strengthen peace by strengthening the Red Army."

More than 75 persons attended the Washington social given by Ward Cheney Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, in Tinker hall last evening.

Brookhart said control of the movie newsreels "if exerted for political purposes or to obtain immunity for the trust would be a powerful weapon in the hands of a man like Hays."

While he said he had "no definite proof that it has been used in this way," he said an article which he read from an independent exhibitor's organ was sufficient to "warrant a searching inquiry."

They added they had no knowledge of executions. Such matters, they explained, were entirely in the hands of the military.

U. S. HELPS JAPS (?) Washington, Feb. 23.—(AP)—General charges that American munition manufacturers and bankers had aided Japan against the Chinese were made today before the House foreign affairs committee by Paul M. Langerhans, congressman, who describes himself as legal advisor of the National government of China.

He said $181,000,000 in munitions recently had been sold to Japan with the aid of American bankers, and that he had been unable to obtain any similar aid for China.

Langerhans was asked by Representative Morton D. Hull (R., Ill.), to be specific. He replied that he could not obtain any accurate information from the State of Commerce Department on the munitions shipments, but reiterated that American interests "have been injured Japan throughout the Manchurian conquest."

TO DOUBLE FORCES Tokyo, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The Japanese government has decided tonight to double the strength of its army at Shanghai in the face of reports from there saying that the Chinese defenders of the city, during three days fighting, had successfully stopped the power of Japan's attack.

The proposal to send additional troops to Shanghai was placed before the Cabinet early today by Minister of War General Sadao Araki, following a conference of military leaders which was called at General Araki's home shortly after the messages were received from Shanghai officials last night.

The appeal for more troops was sent from Shanghai by Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister to China, and Vice Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, commander of the Japanese fleet.

The Japanese army force now at Shanghai is estimated at 25,000 men so that, with the new reinforcements, if they are sent as authorized, the army would be increased to 50,000 about 10,000 more men than the Chinese are reported to have on the Shanghai front.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The Stock Market began the new week hesitantly today, but managed to show considerable resistance to further selling pressure.

A break of more than 15 points in Auburn in the early trading was only moderately unsettling to the list as a whole.

The wide movement in Auburn was accompanied by varied rumors in brokerage quarters, but Wall street as a whole paid little attention to this normally volatile issue.

News over the prolonged weekend failed to bring any fresh stimulus to the share market. The estimate by "Steel" placing steel output at only 25 percent of capacity, against 27 percent a week previously, was another discouragement to those looking for signs of seasonal business recovery, but an increase of $2 a ton in bars shapes and plate by one Pittsburgh producer was a brighter spot in the steel outlook.

The money market was unchanged, but some observers were predicting a slight gain in the yield rates of bankers' acceptances.

Trends in the money market will presumably depend upon whether the Federal Reserve decides to pursue a more vigorous open market policy following enactment of the Glass-Steagall bill, and the demands for investment financing.

Among foreign developments the merger of the Danat Bank and Dresdner bank in Germany, creating a huge new institution controlled by the Reichsbank, evoked favorable comment. Strength of sterling, accompanied by rumors of cessation of French selling, was also viewed favorably.

TEACHES ESKIMOS IN ARCTIC WASTES

French Missionary Made Apostolic Vicar of Hudson Bay District.

Montreal, Que., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Mgr. Arsene Turquetil, for 30 years religious guide to 7,000 Eskimos in the far reaches of the Arctic, today was consecrated apostolic vicar of Hudson Bay. St. James Cathedral was thronged with notables of the Church and government for the ceremony.

The missionary is one of the most picturesque figures in the Roman Catholic Church in Canada. Mgr. Georges Gauthier, archbishop co-adjutor of Montreal was consecrating bishop at the ceremonies. He was assisted by Mgr. Ovide Charlebois, titular bishop of Berenice, and Mgr. Pierre Emile Grouard, archbishop of Quebec. The sermon was pronounced by Mgr. Georges Courchesne, bishop of Rimouski. Mgr. Turquetil was assisted by fellow members of the Oblate Order.

Big Diocese Bishop Turquetil's diocese consists of an area of a million and a half square miles of Arctic wastes. He has learned the Eskimo language so thoroughly that he has been able to translate into their script prayer books and catechisms. His gift for invention was demonstrated when he constructed a typewriter upon which to type the books for distribution among the natives.

He has taught the Eskimos better methods of catching fish. He was the first man to broadcast a talk in the Eskimo language. The radio sending and receiving instruments he built himself. Bishop Turquetil was born in Normandy, France, in 1876. In 1899 he was ordained an Oblate Father. In 1900 he came to Canada as one of a group of missionaries and since then has devoted his life to ministering to the Eskimos.

Candidates for the presidency have at least one thing in common. They make plenty of speeches and seldom say anything.

FR. MORIARTY CLAIMS SERMON WAS MISQUOTED

Waterbury, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The Rev. Eugene Moriarty, assistant pastor of St. Margaret's church, asserted in a sermon Sunday that a recent address he gave in Bridgeport before the Council of Catholic Men had been misquoted.

Father Moriarty said there was no basis for newspaper reports which represented him as condemning higher education.

He stressed the point that in his sermon in Bridgeport he was reviewing five Encyclicals issued by Popes covering a period of some hundreds of years which are applicable to the problems of the world today. He said that in his sermon he warned that Christian parents would do well to look to the spiritual welfare of their children by making certain that they were not attending certain secular institutions which in their various courses of philosophy, history and science seek to undermine their religious beliefs.

CENTRALIZED OFFICES TO SELL BANK BONDS

Washington, Feb. 23.—(AP)—John W. Pole, comptroller of currency, announced today that a centralized office to market bonds of suspended National banks had been established in New York to aid in getting the greatest return for the assets of the closed banks.

The plan, Pole said, contemplated bringing into New York the assets of closed banks which have a market there and selling them from a central office to secure the maximum amount for disbursement to creditors and to prevent the promiscuous dumping of securities in various parts of the country.

Pole said it is impossible to make an estimate of the amount of securities which would thus be sold in New York.

The New York office will be under the immediate control of the comptroller and will be aided by the Federal Reserve bank of New York. Pole said that securities not having a New York market would not be handled by the New York central office.

SENATE APPROVES HALE'S NAVY BILL

Authorizes Building Up To the Limits Fixed By the London Treaty.

Washington, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The Senate naval committee today approved the Hale bill to authorize building the Navy up to the limits fixed by the London Treaty.

The bill, sponsored by Chairman Hale, was approved unanimously. It calls for building the Navy up to the maximum allowed by the London Treaty, but does not carry any appropriations.

The cost of the program would depend upon how many years it was spread over. Hale estimated that, if it were completed in ten years, the cost would be $80,000,000 but, this includes ships now under construction, modernization of ships and replacements.

The chairman will ask for early consideration in the Senate. A similar measure faces final disposition in the House.

In a speech last night, Hale said there was a necessity for building the Navy up to the limits of the London Treaty because of the hostilities between China and Japan.

Important as the bill is, it is only about two hundred words long. In the event of an international agreement for further limitation, the President would be authorized to suspend the program.

HEADS TRUST CO.

Stamford, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Announcement was made here today of the election of Clarence E. Thompson as president of the Stamford Trust Company succeeding the late Walter Daskam who died January 22. Mr. Thompson has been connected with the bank since 1908. A new office, chairman of the board of directors has been created, and is filled by Dr. Samuel Pierson. Other promotions in the institution were also made from the ranks.

REC NOTES

Last night at the West Side Recreation Center, the local lodge of Red Men played the West Side Rec ten-man team, with 80 hands being played for the evening. The West Sides finished last night's sitting 6-1 in the lead, and the next match will be played Tuesday, March 1 at 8 p. m. at the East Side Recreation building. After the match last night, sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee were prepared for players and officials by Tom Wood, and Frank Busch. The West Sides card club has still some open dates for any lodge or organization playing pinocle or setback and arrangements can be made through Frank Busch.

The participants and their scores last night were as follows: West Side Rec: E. Bissell and Maloney 113, Brown and Ford 126, Russell and Wilkinson 125, C. Bissell and Angelo 118, H. Gustafson and Falkoski 102.

Red Men: Vendrillo and White 137, H. Gustafson and R. Gustafson 74, J. Johnson and Laird 131, Cohn and Schielde 79, Granger and Madden 117. Totals, Rec 584, Red Men 538. High score, Vendrillo and White.

Teams Four and Five will play tonight in the Rec volley ball league.

YOUTH FOUND GUILTY

Waterbury, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Wiley Elbert, negro youth, was this morning found guilty by Judge Frederick M. Peasley of the Superior Court on a charge of criminal assault on a 23-year-old housemaid at the home of Lewis J. Hart, 34 Murray street. The assault took place at 7 o'clock on the morning of Sunday, January 24.

The state said a sentence to the Cheshire Reformatory seemed the proper one.

Public Defender Gager objected to the state's proposal claiming that as the Superior Court had ruled the Juvenile Court did not hold the only sentence which could be imposed was one to the state prison and the defense thought it an ideal one to test what could be done to a boy or girl under 18. The court, however, granted the state's wish and Elbert will be brought in for sentence on March 17.

Daguerreotype Discloses Romance of Civil War

A story of romance and tragedy dating back to the Civil War has been revealed by a faded daguerreotype, it was disclosed today in an Associated Press dispatch from Paterson, N. J., and one of the principals involved is related to a Manchester woman, the late Mrs. Etta Willey Stowe Perkins who died two years ago last December.

From the clothing of a Union soldier killed at Chancellorsville in 1863 a Confederate infantryman took the daguerreotype—the likeness of the soldier standing beside a young woman. The Confederate subsequently gave the picture to Nathaniel Barnes of a New Jersey company of volunteers believing the soldier might have been a member of that unit.

Through the years the Barnes family has sought the identity of the woman. The only clues were the names—John Lawson, dead in battle, and Nellie Augusta Nettleton. Neither name was known in Paterson.

A year ago during a visit to Sioux City, Iowa, Mrs. J. A. Crockett of New Haven, Conn., heard from friends the story of the search. She remembered a Nellie Nettleton who had resided in Connecticut. Further inquiry revealed that Nellie Nettleton still lived, being Mrs. Thomas W. Stowe, of Milford, Conn. Mrs. Stowe, now 88 years old, has written a letter of thanks for return of the picture. She said she had waited ten years after the war for the return of her sweetheart before reconciling herself to the belief he was dead.

Later she married Thomas W. Stowe who was a member of the State Legislature in 1880. He died many years ago. Their son, Will, who is also dead, was the first husband of the late Mrs. Perkins who lived successively on Carter, Hamlin, Spruce and Vine streets here. Her son, Thomas W. Stowe, present sports editor of The Herald, was named after the late Mr. Stowe of Milford.

IS BOUND OVER

Hartford, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Arraigned before Judge Richard T. Steele in Police Court this morning on a charge of assault with intent to murder, Anthony Bricugallo, 42, of 14 John street, was bound over to the April term of the Superior Court under bonds of $5,000. The accused was arrested Monday afternoon after he had attempted to shoot Manuel Linares, 44, of 187 Main street, in the latter's restaurant at 310 Trumbull street.

REICHSTAG ADJOURNS AFTER STORMY SESSION

Berlin, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Members of the Reichstag convening today after a four months recess, nearly came to blows an hour after the session started and the meeting was interrupted for half an hour.

Joseph Goebbels, Adolf Hitler's right hand man, precipitated in an uproar when, in the first speech of the session, he referred to the Social Democrats as a "party of deserters."

So vigorously did the offended party resent the aspersion that the speaker suspended the session.

Herr Goebbels' speech was a violent tirade against President von Hindenburg, Chancellor Brüning and the Social Democratic Party.

"Van Hindenburg has left the voters in the lurch," he shouted. Turning to the chancellor, who sat smiling occasionally, he cried:

"Foreign countries won't make treaties with you because they know you don't represent Germany. You're a has-been. The man of tomorrow is coming."

President von Hindenburg, he asserted, is supported by "superannuated ex-soldiers from the Stone Age" and by the Social Democrats, "the party of deserters."

That was where bedlam broke loose.

HARTFORD BRIDGE TO BE SUSPENSION

Approval For Steel Tower Structure of 800 Ft. Span Expected Very Soon.

The official approval of the war department at Washington is expected momentarily on the proposed new bridge to span the Connecticut River at a point parallel with Silver Lane, it was announced today by Judge Raymond A. Johnson who is chairman of the bridge commission.

The architect's drawings which appear on this page represent the proposed design of the new structure which is to be a high level bridge eliminating the necessity of a draw. It will be of the suspension type. The plans call for the bridge to cross the river at a point approximately where the Park River enters the Connecticut on the west shore and extend in a straight line to the mouth of Silver Lane in East Hartford.

800 Foot Span The present plans call for a main span of 800 feet clearing the river from a height of 93 to 98 feet. This clearance has been approved by all navigation interests, which is likely to add to the likelihood of official approval from Washington officials.

Because of the foundation conditions through the meadows on the East side of the river, the cause-way will be constructed on columns. It is proposed to have an overhead roadway at Main Street in East Hartford leading direct to Silver Lane, thus eliminating what appeared to be a serious traffic condition and increasing the utility of the bridge. There will be ramps leading down to Main street in East Hartford to take care of north and south bound traffic. The bridge itself will have a roadway of forty feet, with sidewalks four feet wide on either side. The towers are to be of steel with masonry base.

Purely Traffic Bridge The bridge is to be constructed without delaying navigation and is planned to be entirely a traffic bridge. It will not be necessary to provide for the accommodation of any public utility. The commission will have completed all of its studies and be in a position to let a contract by January, 1933, providing the legislature makes the necessary appropriations. The last legislature appropriated sufficient money to pay for the necessary engineering service and the purchase of some property. Two pieces of property have already been purchased.

NO U. S. BOYCOTT

Concord, N. H., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Senator George H. Moses, Republican, New Hampshire, a member of the Senate committee on foreign relations today said in his opinion there would be no American economic boycott of Japan as a penalty for its campaign in China.

Such an action has been proposed by a group of American citizens headed by President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard and approved by others including President Ernest Martin Hopkins of Dartmouth.

"Nothing will come of that proposal," Moses said "for two reasons. The first reason why there will be no such action is the reluctance of Congress to take any such drastic action and of course Congressional action will be necessary to make it effective.

"The second reason is that there are too many American business men who take the somewhat sordid view 'let 'em fight and we'll sell them goods!'

"This may be a rather low point of view from the moral side but it is nevertheless the view of a great many of our business men today."

COMPANIES HERE GET HIGH RATING

Guardsmen Praised After Inspection By Federal Officer—Crowd Looks On.

Manchester's national guard units, Company G and the Howitzer Company, received high praise at the annual inspection held in the local State Armory last night. The gallery was filled with spectators who came to watch the local soldiers go through their program in such a highly efficient manner.

Capt. James H. McVeigh, Major F. M. Maddox, senior instructor of the Massachusetts National Guard, made the formal inspection. He gave both Manchester companies a very satisfactory rating, one that even exceeded the high mark set last year by the local units, complimenting them on their spirit, equipment and general military efficiency.

Attending officers included Colonel Joseph P. Nolan, acting commander of the 169th. Infantry of which the Manchester companies are a part, Colonel George Sturges, Capt. Russell B. Hathaway, judge advocate of the regiment, Major Irving Partridge, Jr., second battalion commander, Major Allan L. Dexter, plans and training officer and also commander of the battalion which embraces the Howitzer Company, and several other officers from other companies in the regiment.

The Howitzer Company was first to take the floor at 7:30 and Company G went on at 8:30. The program began at 5 o'clock with an inspection of the supply rooms and administrative matter such as records. Both company commanders, Captain James McVeigh of G and Capt. Russell B. Hathaway of the Howitzers, were praised for the condition and accuracy of these departments.

each company were also praised by Major Maddox for their splendid appearance and ability. Each company went through a requested program of drills and formations. They moved about the spacious armory floor with precision and snap, attesting to the hard work by the non-commissioned officers and whole-hearted cooperation of the men. Both companies were at maximum strength. Major Maddox also voiced praise at the large public turnout, stating that it showed the keen interest Manchester people have in national guard-work.

S. A. CONVENTION IS A RECORD BREAKER

Gathering Here Largest In History of Division; 650 At Evening Session.

The attendance at the annual convention of young people of the southern division of the Salvation Army, which was held here yesterday, exceeded the expectations of those in charge. Nearly 650 delegates attended the morning session held at the local citadel and more than 450 were present at the afternoon meeting at the High School Auditorium, which was also packed to capacity in the evening.

Brigadier A. E. Bates of Hartford wired Colonel Joseph A. Kinman, head of the New England section of the Salvation Army, that it was the biggest and best convention ever held in the southern division. The convention is sponsored as a religious educational project to better inform the young people of the opportunities and responsibilities of religious work. That this goal was successfully realized was the consensus of the more than fifty officers of the Army in attendance.

The morning session was held at the citadel but so large was the number of delegates that the hall was crowded to excess. The High School Auditorium proved to be better suited to the meetings as its seating capacity is about 800 persons.

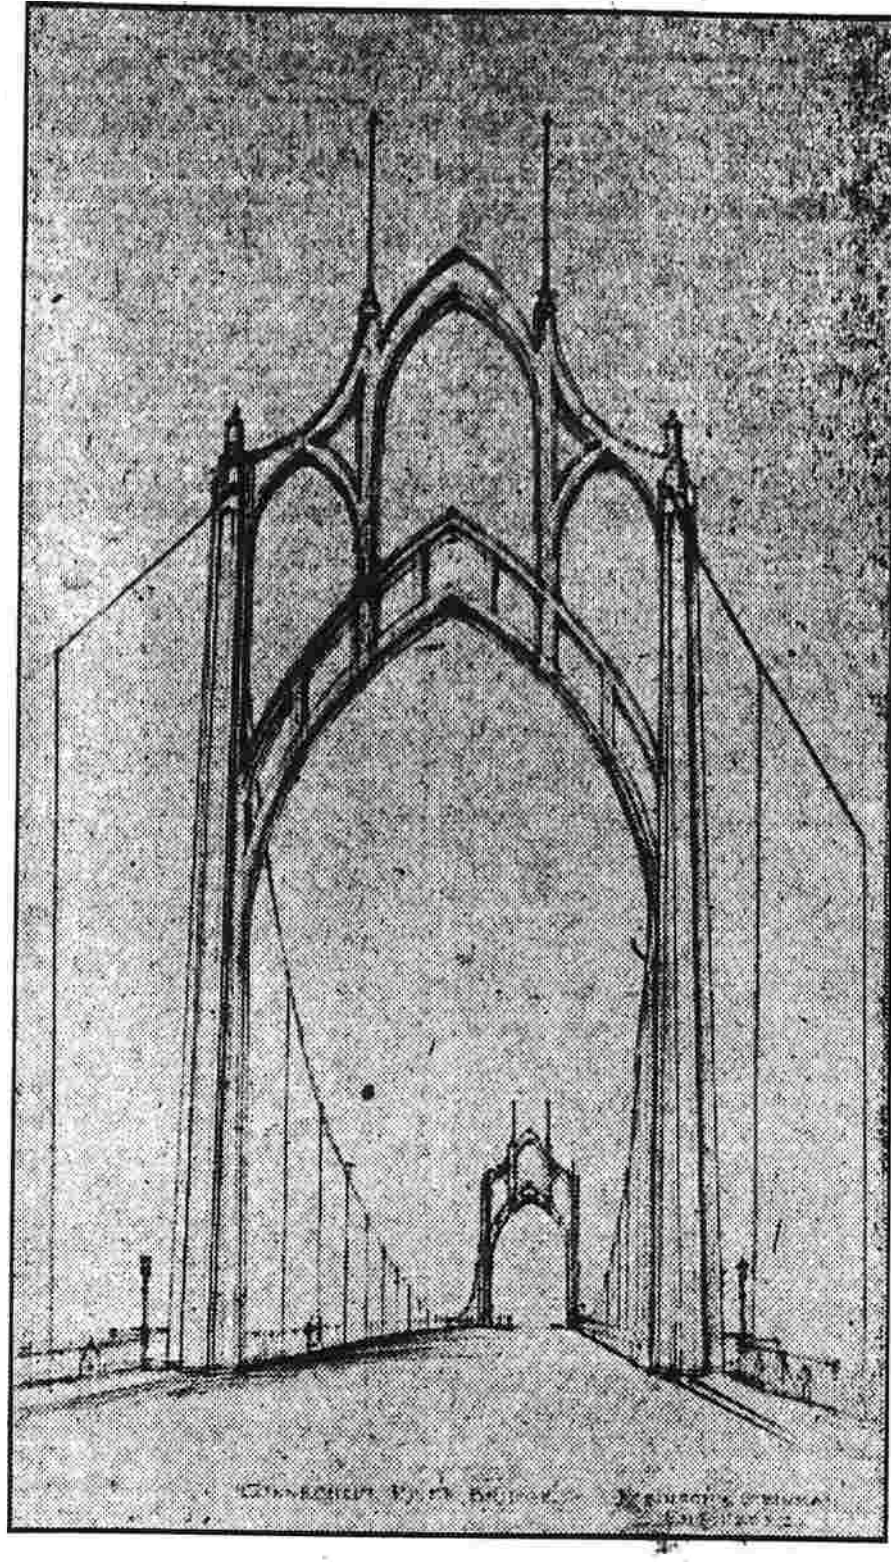

MUSIC OUTSTANDING The music was one of the outstanding features of the convention. Organizations that appeared on the program during the three sessions included the Divisional Young People's Band of 45 pieces, under the direction of William Hanna, the South Manchester Corps Band, under David Addy; the Songster's Brigade, under Fred Clough; the Training College Quintet, consisting of Captain Lyall Ryder, John Pickard, Theodore McKenzie, Herbert Smith, Howard Leggett, specializing in negro spirituals; and the Trombone Quartet, consisting of Captain Ryder, Cadet Pickett, Brigadier Bates and Lieutenant Colonel William H. Barrett. This quartet was one of the highlights of the convention, playing numbers on soprano and tenor trombones.

Lieutenant Colonel Barrett was the principal speaker at each session, which also included the reading of various papers on Salvation Army topics by delegates from this state and Massachusetts. At last night's session, tassels were awarded to the General's Guards, Ethel Bates of Hartford, Lillian Helm of Holyoke, Mass., and Ena Hooks of South Manchester. Final certificates were also awarded to the corps cadets. Luncheon was served to the delegates at the local citadel and dinner was served at the South Methodist church at 5:30 o'clock by the Ladies' Aid society.

SUFFERED FOR FORTY YEARS Then One Lucky Day She Used Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Here is great news for sufferers from constipation. Read Mrs. Kendig's voluntary letter:

"For about forty years I had been praying for a lasting remedy for constipation and its attending evils. To make it short, I ate nothing but ALL-BRAN and a little broth. Since that time (about ten years ago) I have not taken any medicine. Have been well and entirely free from constipation."

Mrs. I. H. Kendig, R. F. D. No. 2, Lancaster, Penna.

Constipation is caused by lack of two things in the diet: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines. Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. Laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN furnishes both. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears out the wastes.

Isn't it much pleasanter to enjoy ALL-BRAN than to risk taking pills and drugs—so often harmful?

Two table-spoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation. If you have intestinal trouble not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ASSOCIATION DISTRIBUTES ANOTHER LARGE PAYROLL

Third Largest Since Emergency Fund Was Started — Total Near $50,000.

The Manchester Emergency Employment Association, Inc., yesterday distributed a payroll of $4504.42 to 325 persons, marking the third largest payroll since the Association was created four months ago. Of this amount, $2147.48 was applied to the Broad Street Extension project, which is being financed by $10,000 of the $50,000 miscellaneous appropriation made at the annual town meeting in October.

A total of $7926.04 has been expended on this project, leaving only one more week of work on the road before the appropriation is depleted. Unless the Board of Selectmen vote to give an additional $5,000 for the project it must be financed by the Association or work will be suspended.

The total payroll to date amounts to $47,034.44. The largest payroll was distributed for the week ending December 19, amounting to $5,042.06. The second largest was distributed the week before, amounting to $5,014.75.

Sore Throat? Not if he gargles when he gets home, with Bayer Aspirin! Three tablets crushed in a little water, one good gargle, and the soreness is gone; the danger of infection reduced. If your throat ever tickles after you've been out in the cold or damp, gargle as soon as you can find some Bayer Aspirin. Take it for any cold; two tablets at the first sniffle. For headaches, neuralgia, neuritis; or rheumatism. Instant relief from all such pain. Perfectly harmless, if it's genuine aspirin; the tablet stamped Bayer will not depress the heart. All druggists.

80 Years of Hindenburg

BY MILTON BRONNER

© 1932 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

This is the second of six exclusive stories on President Paul von Hindenburg, Germany's greatest modern figure, who is now a candidate for a second term in the national election to be held in Germany on Sunday, March 13.—The Editor.

Berlin, Feb. 23.—A year for a moment in the six and a half years he has been president of the German republic have the people ever had cause to believe that Paul von Hindenburg, who rose from generations of monarchists, regretted his oath to the German republic or tried to abuse it.

With his right hand raised to God, he made the vow to defend the republic and its constitution. He has kept that vow, faithfully. It stands him in good stead now as he runs for re-election.

A stout Lutheran, he has conceived a great friendship and admiration for Dr. Heinrich Brüning, Germany's Catholic chancellor, and has backed him to the limit. Socialist leaders in Germany's government are some friends of this grizzled, 84-year-old veteran who once commanded an army that a monarchy ever sent to battle field.

Today, millions of republicans in Germany trust the old ex-monarchist implicitly.

All of which is pretty good for a junker of the junkers, whose ancestors were East Prussian nobles about the time that the Hohenzollerns were beginning their climb to Prussian kings.

More than 800 years ago, families of Germans were great landlords and fighting noblemen—were engaged in spreading German kultur, Prussian dominance and the Christian religion among the pagan tribes east of the Elbe river. Among these families were the Beneckendorffs, with whom the Hindenburgs intermarried.

They did not always win. Sometimes they were hammered to smithereens, as in the battle of Tannenberg about 500 years ago, a defeat they were to avenge in 1914 when their descendant, Paul Beneckendorff von Hindenburg, was to win in his battle of Tannenberg one of the greatest victories of modern times, with a dreadful slaughter of the Russians.

The Beneckendorff von Hindenburgs, like all the East Prussian noble families, took the sword when their king called them and between times lived on their great ancestral estates, watched the work on their farms, and raised their great families of strong sons and daughters, who largely intermarried and formed one great ruling caste.

When Prussia began to be a great going concern under the Hohenzollerns, the Hindenburgs naturally became soldiers in the Prussian army.

One of these was young Lieutenant von Hindenburg, who married in 1845 and to whom a son was born on Oct. 2, 1847, and who was christened Paul Ludwig Hans Anton. His father was stationed in the Polish city of Posen, which was situated in that part of Poland which had fallen to Prussia. The year 1848 saw a wave of revolution all over Europe. The Poles also rebelled. Paul's father took to the field to campaign against them. But the Poles took Posen and one night, just before his mother rocked him to sleep, one of the things the future general saw was the town illuminated in honor of the Polish rebels. That baby was destined years later to overrun Poland with his armies.

Then his father was sent to Cologne on the Rhine, where troops had been sent to overawe the working classes, who were just beginning to become Socialist. Fate held a queer future for this baby, whose father's job was to suppress Marxism—nearly eight decades later, as president of the Reich, he was to invite Socialists to form the cabinet and run the German government.

Soon Paul's father returned with his family to the province of Posen and lived on a country estate near Pinné. By that time Paul had brothers and sisters. At that tender age Paul learned military discipline and military customs. But not from his father. The family had employed as a nurse an old woman who had been a vivandiere with the Prussian armies. When the kids made too much noise she would frighten them into silence by shouting, "Silence in the ranks!"

And she followed this with such a stream of strong language that Paul's father had to dismiss her.

Like all Hindenburgs, Paul, shortly after a term in a civilian school, went to a cadet school to be trained for the army.

EVEN A PRESIDENT LIKES HIS BEER IN GERMANY, and above you see President von Hindenburg celebrating his first election in 1925 at one of those "bierabende"—which seems to be just a quaint old German custom. Center is young Hindenburg as a cadet at military school in 1865; right, as a lieutenant in the Third Foot Guards in Prussia's war against Austria.

Austria, and this time Paul saw active service. In the battle of Koeningraetz he and his company charged a battery and captured five guns, the young officer being wounded and glorifying in it. He was with the army which, by forced marches, swept into hostile territory. He was with the Red Eagle with swords, when it marched under Brandenburg Gate into Berlin. With his regiment he was posted to the city of Hanover which, as a result of the war, had fallen to the Prussian state.

The Hanoverians at that time were bitter against Prussians, and young officers had to behave very circumspectly. But Paul grew to love the town, so that in after years he made it his permanent residence, and still counts himself a Hanoverian by adoption.

But he was not to remain there long this first time, because in 1870 came the war with France, and the second lieutenant saw very active service. He took part in the sharply-contested battle of St. Privat in which 70 per cent of the officers of his regiment were killed. His immediate superior now became colonel of the regiment and Hindenburg was made his regimental adjutant.

Fortune came his way. He was in on the great battle of Sedan, where Emperor Napoleon III was captured. He took part in the siege of Paris.

He was especially fortunate when the Germans decided to proclaim King William I of Prussia as emperor of Germany. The ceremony was to take place in the famous Hall of Mirrors in Versailles. Kings, princes, archdukes, great generals and statesmen were to be present. Hindenburg was ordered to attend as a representative of his regiment.

He was thus in at the birth of the German empire. Many years later he was to be one of the leading figures in the death of that same empire.

He saw a Hohenzollern reach his apotheosis. He was to see the grandson of that Hohenzollern sneak away under the cover of the night to cross the frontiers into Holland and live an exile far from the ruins of his army and his empire.

But Hindenburg, despite the most crushing defeat ever suffered by an army in modern times, stayed with his beaten and hungry men.

NEXT: The early years of a Prussian army officer and his rise to the general staff. . . His dislike for the future Kaiser Wilhelm II. . . Voluntary retirement from the army at 64. . . The year 1914 and an old soldier is recalled to stop the Russians on the eastern front, which he does amid terrible slaughter.

ORLEY HEADS KNIGHTS
New Haven, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The Knights of Washington, an organization which has membership among members of Protestant, Episcopal parishes concluded its annual convention here last night with election of officers and a dinner.

Arthur Orley of Meriden was elected general, the highest in command in the state. Other elections were:

Lieut.-Generals, Harold Manley of Springfield, Mass., and Aaron Gill of Hamden; Grand Chaplain, Rev. Donald W. Green of Wallingford; Grand Chancellor, Rev. Arthur P. Lewis of Naugatuck; Grand Clerk, George Prosch, Hamden; Grand Paymaster, S. H. McDonald, Wallingford; Grand Sentinel, Joseph Tucker, North Brookfield, Mass.; Chief of Esquires, Harold Bassett, New Haven; Secretary of Esquires, Thomas Chrimes, Devon.

BRESLIN GUEST OF LEGION HERE

State Commander At Annual Banquet Last Night; Tribute To Washington.

About one hundred members and invited guests of Dilworth-Cornell Post No. 102, the American Legion, and its Auxiliary, attended the second annual joint banquet at the Masonic Temple last night and heard various speakers pay tribute to George Washington, the first president of the United States, whose 200th anniversary is being celebrated throughout the country this year.

James E. Breslin, state commander of the Legion, stressed the debt of gratitude that the country owes to George Washington and held him as an ideal for all Legionnaires. The speaker said that the United States remains the same peace loving country now that it was in the days of Washington, although war clouds hover on the horizon, he said, she will do everything possible to avert war, but in case of necessity the United States would be swift to act.

Other speakers included State President Mrs. Helen McFarland, Mrs. Rose Flansburg, district president of the auxiliary; C. M. Pfennig of Bristol, district commander of the Legion; Mrs. Ruth Pfennig, past department of the auxiliary; Mrs. Agnes Welles of Hartford, past district president; and Mrs. Mary Brosnan, president of the local auxiliary.

Thomas J. Rogers, chairman of the Board of Selectman, was toastmaster. He was introduced by John L. Jenney, commander of Dilworth-Cornell Post, and proved an able toastmaster in every respect.

Miss Adelaide Lamprecht, of Manchester High School, winner of first prize in a contest for essays on Washington, sponsored by the Legion, was the guest of honor at the banquet and read her prize winning essay to the gathering. She was given the prize, a book entitled "George Washington, the Republican Aristocrat," by Commander Breslin.

Urbano Osano catered, serving a dinner of roast beef and spaghetti. An orchestra furnished dinner music. The decorations were done in a color scheme of red, white and blue. Festoons in these colors were suspended from the ceiling and draped the lights. Carnations of similar colors were placed on each table and also red candles. A framed portrait of Washington occupied a prominent position on the stage, surrounded with palms and ferns and potted plants.

The committee in charge of the affair was as follows: Legion, Edward Hess, chairman; Robert Curran, Earl Miner, Walter Gorman, and Lawrence Moonan; Auxiliary, Mrs. Fred Woodhouse, chairman; Mrs. Edward Hess, Mrs. Edward Gulish, Mrs. Mark Holmes and Mrs. John Allison.

NOT TO BE FOOLED
Detroit—Three robbers walked into the grocery and meat market of John Ceplak. One of them flashed a gun and ordered Ceplak to put up his hands. The grocer took one look at the gun and then turned his back on the robber and walked away. He found a hammer within reach and charged the leader in the face of the gun, putting the robber back pointed the gun in his director he had noticed it wasn't loaded.

JAPANESE ANSWER LEAGUE'S MESSAGE

Say China Is Not Organized and Action By Military There Is Necessary.

Tokyo, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The Japanese government's reply to the note of the League of Nations Council of February 16 was telegraphed to Joseph Paul-Boncour, acting president of the Council at Geneva, today. It declared "it must be emphasized that the Japanese government does not and cannot consider that China is an 'organized people' within the meaning of the League of Nations covenant."

Declaring that China in the past, by common consent, has been treated as an organized state, the Japanese note said that "actions cannot last forever nor can they be tolerated when they become grave sources of practical danger."

"The time has inevitably come," the reply added, "when realities, rather than fictions, must be reckoned with. If Japan had no interests there it might be possible to continue indefinitely respecting the fiction that the region is occupied by an organized people. Japan, however, has enormous interests there and it is impossible longer to treat the chaos in China as if it were order."

Must Face Facts
"The Japanese government does not pretend it is easy to work out the implications and consequences of this situation. It is not easy, but it is necessary. We must face the facts, and the fundamental fact is that there is no unified control in China and no authority entitled to claim entire control."

In conclusion, the government repudiated what it called the "stigma" which the world is attempting to attach to Japan of favoring or desiring war. If the efforts of the twelve neutral powers on the Council, the note said, should succeed in bringing about a pacific attitude on the part of China nowhere will more sincere delight be felt than in Japan.

The note consists first, of a letter addressed to M. Paul-Boncour in which the Council's procedure is criticized, and secondly, in a statement attempting to refute the implications of the Council's appeal and taking "strong exception to the assumption of China's willingness to resort only to peaceful measures" while Japan is not.

The note said it was at least impossible to see why the appeal should be made to Japan alone. Texts of the two documents were cabled to the embassies in the various countries, including Washington.

CHINESE DELICACIES IN GREATEST FAVOR

Their Cookery Today Made Available In Every Home By LaChoy Products.

Of all old world foods, perhaps Chinese delicacies are the most favored by people of this country. While the most alluring of the many beautiful dishes formerly were available only at expensive Oriental restaurants, to-day, millions of American women can rival the magic cookery of famous Chinese chefs.

Essential ingredients of genuine Chinese dishes are now directly imported from China in quantities by LaChoy Food Products, Inc., and put up in convenient containers of a size to suit the needs of the average housewife.

Employing American men and women, LaChoy's spotlessly clean plant is equipped with the most modern mechanical equipment and operated under supervision of municipal state and federal authorities. The carefully evolved methods employed in packing and processing preserve the distinctly elusive and delicate tastiness of every LaChoy product and guarantee you the utmost in quality and purity.

The eagerness with which American women early sought the culinary secrets and art of the Chinese led to the publication of the first, second and now the third issue of the LaChoy booklet of instructions. Containing the forty recipes of dishes most favored by guests of famous restaurants, this booklet outlines with utmost fidelity the approved methods of the Chinese cuisines.

To-day, Chop Suey, Chow Mein and many other enticing Chinese foods are widely used for smart luncheons, impromptu suppers and spur-of-the-moment dinners. Because of the slight cone of these easily and quickly prepared dishes, the clever hostess and the thrifty housewife serve them frequently.

Combining a pleasing variety of healthful vegetables in an exceptionally palatable and agreeable form, leading dietitians, doctors and health authorities acclaim the wholesome goodness of Chop Suey and Chow Mein. These tempting dishes provide needed bulk, are readily digested and are real energy builders.

Most varieties of Chop Suey and Chow Mein are low in calories and rich in vitamins and other health elements. Being well balanced, these foods afford desired relief from the endless rounds of fried meats, plain vegetables and starchy foods. Both children and adults will want them again and again.

You can win praise by serving such artfully blended Chinese delicacies. LaChoy imported ingredients constitute the basis, and the secret as well of these juicy, famed and flavorful foods. Remember, only the genuine Chinese ingredients impart that rare and inimitable flavor which you desire. You may obtain LaChoy Chinese Food Products from any good grocer. You will, of course, refuse substitutes.

To-day, the best Chop Suey and Chow Mein are made at home. By adhering strictly to the printed instructions on LaChoy labels any individual can employ the magic cookery of famous chefs and rival the flavor and texture of the expensive dishes most favored by guests of exclusive restaurants. Let us acquaint you with a few of the various LaChoy products.

LaChoy Soy Sauce
LaChoy Chinese Soy Sauce is brewed and aged by slow and painstaking processes according to the age-old Chinese recipe. It is imported from China, filtered and put up in sterilized and hermetically sealed bottles. This savory sauce is the essential seasoning and blending ingredient of nearly every type of genuine Chinese foods. Being wholesome and pure, as well as highly palatable and nutritious, it is indeed a culinary need in every household. LaChoy Soy Sauce will add a piquant flavor to all soups, gravies, hashes, and stews, and is a delightful condiment for use on steaks, chops, roasts and sea food. All salads are made more tasty by the addition of a few drops of this sauce to whatever dressing is used.

LaChoy Mixed Vegetables
LaChoy Vegetables consist of the essential ingredients of the most elaborate of the tempting variety of genuine Chop Suey or Chow Mein. This new LaChoy product includes Sprouts, Water Chestnuts, Bamboo Shoots, Mushrooms and Sweet Peppers, proportioned correctly, sliced and ready to use.

You can be your own Chinese chef. With LaChoy Vegetables, an inexperienced person can make Extra Fine or Sub Kum Chop Suey or Chow Mein at very little cost and in less time than would be required to heat a can of a prepared product in boiling water. For delicious, kitchen-fresh Chop Suey or Chow Mein at home, simply add celery, onions (if desired) and raw or left-over beef, pork, veal, fowl or shrimp, lobster, crabmeat or tuna fish according to the recipe on the label of LaChoy Vegetables and serve as directed.

LaChoy Sprouts
LaChoy Sprouts are grown in this country from a highly nutritious bean propagated by intensive methods in the Orient and directly imported from China. LaChoy Sprouts are the basic ingredient of the most popular varieties of Chop Suey, Chow Mein and other Chinese delicacies. Sprouts are among the most highly favored of the products distributed under the protected name "LaChoy."

Delicate in flavor and extremely attractive in texture, they contribute a tasty element to any fruit, vegetable or meat salad. When used as a garnish, or in soups, or as onions and mushrooms are employed in trying meats, they are unexcelled.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Long Branch, N. J.: The next time you are held up at the point of a pistol (it is William O'Brien speaking to you), the safest way out is to buy the gun.

A boy poked a gun against O'Brien's body and said: "Gimme a nickel, or I'll shoot."

"I'll give you two-bits for the gun," said O'Brien.

The deal was acceptable, and the lad ran away with the quarter.

O'Brien found the revolver fully loaded.

Toronto: The debutantes are going to give a splinters' dance and all the boys have to do is be there. The young ladies will call for their young men, supply what flowers are needed and will inaugurate any courting they may have a mind to.

New York: Elisabeth Marbury, 75-year-old Democratic National committee woman who sometimes is affectionately spoken of as "The Old Lady of Manhattan," believes she probably would be President of the United States. Her reason for believing this is naive. "I'm so crazy," she said, "about fishing."

Nueva Gerona, Isle of Pines: There is a 23 hour and 50 minute boycott here each day between the Japanese and Chinese residents in sympathy with their respective countries. A ten-minute truce prevails, however, so that all may gather around the radio and hear the war dispatches from Shanghai.

New York: Mrs. Sarah Blackman is a parade.

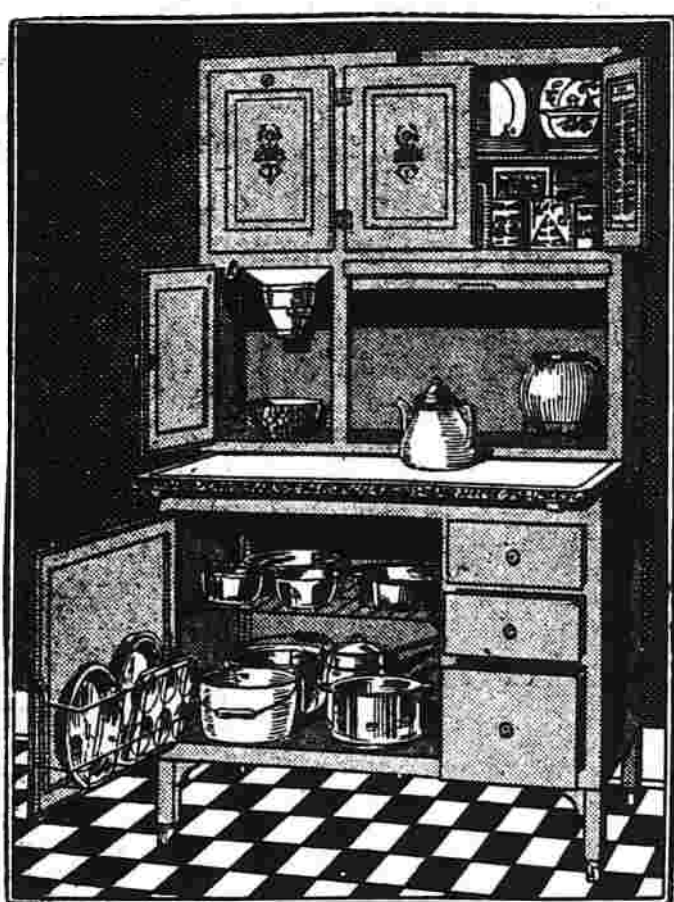

She was arrested for doing a solo march along the Coney Island boardwalk carrying a sign reading "Consumers Demand Five-Cent Bread."

Bakers complained, and now Mrs. Blackman is held in $1,100 bail for holding a parade without a license.

DEFENSELESS MAIDEN

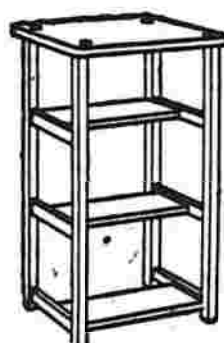

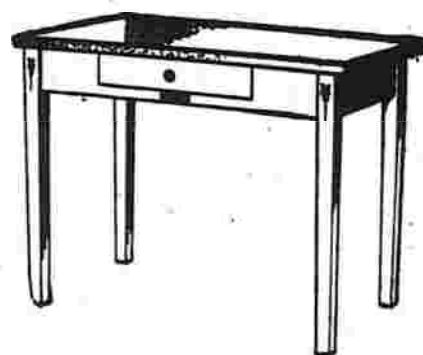

MOTHER: Jane, what do you mean by allowing that man to kiss you last night?

JANE: Well, he was too strong for me to resist and you told me never to speak to strangers. —Patricia.

BOND BREAD CONTEST PRIZES TOTAL $35,000

Winners Will Number 10,000
Announcement States—Contest Rules Simple.

"Prizes totalling $35,000—10,000 will win prizes"—that is the startling announcement of the "quiz" contest started today by the bakers of Sunshine vitamin-D Bond bread. Cash of $10,000 is the prosperity offer to the person who best answers 7 or 8 questions about this comparatively new food source of vitamin-D. Second prize is $2500; third prize, $1000; fourth $500; fifth, $250; sixth, $100. The next ten winners will get $50 each. Then ten more, $25 each. Fifty people are to win $10 each and five hundred people $5 each. Besides these cash prizes there will be 2,600 prizes consisting of a loaf of Sunshine vitamin-D Bond Bread daily for a period of either 30 days or 15 days.

This contest fairly prickles with new features. In a contest period of eleven weeks—February 22-May 9—there is a midway station, April 3rd. Entries received prior to this date are eligible for mid-contest prizes. Promptness prizes of either 30 days or 15 days' supply of bread. In all Bond Bread territory, 5,830 such prizes are offered, making a grand total of 10,000 prizes in the contest.

Entries which win mid-contest prizes will be judged also for the final contest prizes to be awarded June 1. Those who enter prior to April 3 and do not win mid-contest prizes may, if they wish, make a fresh start by filing a second entry. This contest is unique in that the questions to be answered, the information upon which to base the answers and the entry blank on which to write the answers are all contained in a "Contest Book" available at grocery stores. This contest book contains only 16 pages; can be read easily in 15 minutes. Contrary to the usual requirements, it is not necessary to buy anything to qualify, or even to send in a wrapper.

The object of the contest is unique too—that is, to spread public information and appreciation of the scarcity of the health essential, vitamin-D, and where to find it.

School children have just as good a chance to win prizes as adults, for the basis of awards is not literary style or skill, but originality of thoughts expressed. In addition, special consideration is given to children by providing a space on the entry blank in which to state entrance age, if under 21.

There have been a few contests with a larger capital prize, but never any with so many prizes.

FORSAKEN AUTOMOBILE BURNS; DRAWS A CROWD

Center street, opposite Newman street, called out Companies No. 1 and No. 2 last night for what proved to be a blaze in an old Chevrolet automobile that was standing in a vacant lot on Rosemary place. The car was without markers of any kind and evidently had not been in use for some time. That it could not take fire from its own engine was evident and as most of the fire was in the interior of the car when the firemen arrived it indicates that it might have been set. There were buildings exposed, but the whistle alarm brought out the usual crowd of automobiles. The car's value was about zero and the blaze was extinguished by the use of chemicals.

SCREEN STAR KILLED

Hollywood, Calif., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Struck down by an automobile as he was crossing the street yesterday, George McFarlane, 52, screen character actor and former director, died last night from his injuries. The driver of the car, Harold Davis, was not held.

PAN-ARABIAN PARLEY

Jerusalem, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The chief Holy City of the Moslems—Macco—has been chosen for a Pan-Arabian Congress at which an attempt will be made to form an Arab League of Nations.

Two of McFarlane's most widely known New York stage productions were "Honest Lahr" and "Rainbow Rose." His wife is appearing in New York now in an Al Jolson show. McFarlane recently appeared in the film production, "Taxi," and "Union Depot."

The purpose of the gathering was stated to be to "combat imperialism and to free Arabian states from mandatory control." Plans are proceeding for convening of the Congress in the near future. The discussions were an outgrowth of a recent Islamic conference here.

ROCKVILLE

Police Court Cases
State and local police took into custody on Sunday Gus Curionis, 55 and Charles Rover, 64, of Talcottville, charged with assault and battery. Both cases were heard by Judge John E. Fisk in the Rockville Police Court on Monday morning at 9 o'clock. He continued both cases until March 5, after hearing their testimony for about an hour. There has been ill feeling between the two men for some time. Rover once owned the home which was sold to the son of Curionis. It is claimed by the latter that Rover, although having no claim on the place, still continues to go about the property making trouble as if he was still in charge. The police were called in following a complaint made by people in the vicinity.

Washington Observance
A general observance of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington was held in this city on Monday. At 10 a. m. the celebration started with the ringing of the church and mill bells and fire whistle. All public places were closed for the day and the stores observed a half holiday.

There was a program of sports at the Sykes Gymnasium following the ringing of the bells. In the afternoon there were two showings of the pageant, "What Makes a Man," written and directed by Miss Lella Church of this city. All the people who desired to attend could not be accommodated. The program was opened by appropriate remarks by Mayor A. E. Waite.

In the evening there was a splendid program at the Sykes Auditorium at which Rev. George T. Sinnott, pastor of St. Bernard's Church presided. The program included music by the Community Orchestra and the Community Choir. A short address was given by Rev. George T. Sinnott.

The speaker of the evening was W. S. Alexander, Past Department Commander of the American Legion, who gave a splendid address in commemoration of the day.

A silent picture "George Washington, His Life and Times" followed.

Wed 25 Years
On Saturday night Mr. and Mrs. John Williams of Talcott avenue were surprised at their home by a number of relatives and friends, it being the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. They entered into the spirit of the occasion and a very enjoyable evening was spent. A salad supper was served.

The couple received numerous cards, telephone messages, flowers and other gifts expressing the best wishes of many of their friends for many more years of happy wedded life.

Mrs. Williams was formerly Miss Kate Underwood. She was married to John Williams in England, where they were born, on February 16, 1907. They came to this continent locating in Canada in 1912, and came to Rockville two years later. Mr. Williams was employed as boss painter at the Hockanum Mills for twelve years, later going into business for himself.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams are members of Union Church and the former is affiliated with several fraternal organizations. They have four children, Mrs. Peggy Underwood, Edward, Robert and David Williams, all of this city.

Ellington Grange Meeting
A regular meeting of Ellington Grange will be held on Wednesday evening at which time the birthday of George Washington will be celebrated. Following the meeting there will be a most appropriate program. Every member is asked to attend.

Appointed Committee
The East Side Circle, a most active organization in Ellington has appointed the following welfare committee for the ensuing year: Mrs. A. D. Cordtsen, Mrs. Rachael Pease, Mrs. Florence Cordtsen and Miss Grace Sykes.

Vernon Grange Meeting
At a meeting of Vernon Grange held on Friday evening a patriotic program was presented, with Mrs. Kate Smith, the lecturer in charge. A program was presented by the children of the County Home and including recitations, songs, sketches and other features. A Valentine social followed prizes were awarded for the prettiest and most comical. Miss Helen Hunter was in charge.

School Night
"School Night" will be observed at Union Church on next Sunday evening, and it will be in the nature of a Washington celebration. There will be sketches and plays by the pupils and special music on the banjo, guitar and other instruments. The proceeds are to be given to the Church School funds. Parents and friends are invited to attend. Rev. George S. Brookes will give a short address.

JAPANESE DENY NEWSPAPER STORY

Officer Says Soldiers Did Not Put Defenseless Chinese Civilians To Death.

Shanghai, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Charges by the Shanghai Evening Post-Mercury that Japanese soldiers were putting defenseless Chinese civilians to the sword brought from a high Japanese officer today the assertion that they are "much exaggerated and in some portions untrue."

The Japanese have been forced to take measures to curb the activities of plainclothes snipers, said Major M. Hirata speaking for General Uyeda, the commander-in-chief, and in some cases they have found that women and children are helping the snipers.

"We have read a translation of the newspaper article," the major said, "and we greatly regret the incorrect impression it has conveyed. Since taking command of the Shanghai situation General Uyeda has instructed his men on several occasions to avoid irresponsible, inhuman acts."

"The Japanese troops came to Shanghai thoroughly imbued with high moral purposes—in a fight for permanent peace. They are incapable of such acts as those described in this newspaper article."

Unfortunate Incidents
"Of course it has been impossible to avoid some unfortunate incidents. In some cases the women themselves were caught shooting at us. This morning in a ditch we found the bodies of two of our men who had been ambushed in the night and so horribly mutilated that they were not recognizable. Yesterday four of our Red Cross men were wounded when snipers fired from a house nearby."

"Like your Chicago gangsters, Chinese snipers are paid so much a head and in order to wipe them out we have had to burn down the buildings which harbor them. One reason for heavy casualties among civilians is that many suspected snipers run at the appearance of Japanese soldiers. With this in mind it is not difficult to understand why some civilians in plainclothes have been shot in the back."

WATER GUN BANDIT TERRORIZES CITY

Indianapolis, Feb. 23.—(AP)—A seventeen-year-old high school girl armed with a water gun kept police radio squads dashing about the north side last night answering calls from persons she had held up.

Miss Vera Wood, the water gun bandit, ended her crime career at the City prison with a broken arm. A taxicab driver, one of her victims, sensed the gun she poked in his face was not dangerous. The driver, who had given up a small sum, decided to recover it. He pursued her, struck her, breaking her arm, and got his money back.

Miss Wood was arrested at the City hospital where she went to receive treatment for her arm. She was accused of holding up a bus, two persons in an apartment, several taxicab drivers and a motorist. She is held on charges of robbery and auto banditry.

Miss Wood said this morning she was unable to recall details of her escapade.

"I don't remember what happened," she said. "I went out with the boy friend and he had some liquor. I don't know what happened to him. I guess he gave me the air when I got boisterous."

DISTANT WORLDS INHABITED ALSO

Chicago Professor Says Their Civilization May Be Far Superior To Ours.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Inhabitants on the distant worlds as far superior to mankind as men are to single life cells are envisioned by Dr. William D. Macmillan, professor of mathematical astronomy at the University of Chicago.

He outlined his theory in amplifying a brief article of his, published January 16, in which he voiced for the first time the skepticism of many American scientists toward the "explosion" of the universe idea advanced by the Cambridge astronomer, Edington, in 1928.

They hold the universe is gradually wearing down to a state where all matter, from star galaxies to electrons will become a vast, inert mass, formless, lifeless and cold.

But Dr. Macmillan, in contrast to the theory of the British scientist, conceives a universe infinite in time and space and pervaded by a fine structure of unknown composition which diffuses energy amidst all forms of matter.

Older civilizations, perhaps, are civilizations as far above us as we are above the single cell, since they are so much older than ours. If this is true it is true not only now. It has always been true.

"Magnificent forms of life have grown up over magnificent stretches of time only to perish in some cataclysm. Magnificent forms of life will always grow up if this theory be true that the universe is continually being rebuilt at some unknown sub-electronic level.

The British scientist reasoned that since galaxies were moving away, the universe was expanding and since the speed of some of the galaxies was as high as 12,500 miles a second, the expansion was the effect of an explosion.

Reversing the explosive theory, Dr. Macmillan said the Jeans hypothesis would make our particular galaxy the ultimate and original center of things. Drawing a line back from the outer flying universes he reasoned the probable time of the "explosion" as about two billion years ago.

Such a picture, he suggested, was hardly plausible. For one thing, he said, there were rocks on the earth, a veritable infant among the stars and planets, which, held by geologists, to be at least one billion 500 million years old and of the same order of age as the supposed cataclysm.

RED MEN'S SETBACK PARTY TOMORROW

The Red Men will hold their setback sitting tomorrow night at the Red Men's clubroom. Another large crowd is expected. There are two more sittings left and after that there will be a big supper for all those who have been playing cards. Friday will be Red Men's meeting at Finner Hall and next Monday Rockville Red Men will bring 10 players to play the local Red Men's setback team. Tuesday, March 1 the West Side will play the Red Men a return game at East Side Rec.

THEATERS AT THE STATE

"Emma"
Marie Dressler in "Emma" has already played to thousands in Manchester, and it is a most convincing testimonial as to the merit of the picture. One is accustomed to seeing Marie Dressler deliver fine performances, but "Emma" certainly tops anything this beloved star has ever given the screen. Today marks the last showing of this unusual attraction.

Wednesday and Thursday brings Lawrence Tibbett in the romantic comedy drama "The Cuban Love Song." He has an excellent supporting cast headed by Lupe Velez, Ernest Torrence and Jimmy Durante. Tibbett plays in a much lighter vein than in any of his previous screen appearances, but when he sings, he is the same wonderful artist. The story concerns the activities of three rolicking marines in Cuba. What the serenitas do to them is one long laugh. The fair maids left at home are quickly forgotten once the fair Cuban maidens are held in their arms.

As an added attraction for Wednesday and Thursday the State management takes great pride in presenting a most timely picture, entitled, "Washington, The Man and The Capital." This subject was made through the co-operation of the Washington Chamber of Commerce and is a part of the nation wide Bi-Centennial Celebration which starts February 22 and ends November 14. The picture has been endorsed by the United States Bi-Centennial Commission and should be seen by every man woman and child. In order that the schoolchildren may have an opportunity of seeing this picture, the State management has arranged to run a special school children's matinee Wednesday afternoon at 4:15 p. m. This special matinee will follow the regular daily matinee which starts at 2:15 each day.

Wednesday night will be observed as "Gold Night." Ten five dollar gold pieces will be presented to the holders of lucky numbers.

RUMFORD'S SUCCESS TOLD BY CUSTOMERS

Unique Reference Book Contains No Statement By Manufacturer About Product.

The attitude of customers is primarily responsible for the success of a business, but it isn't very often that customers go on record as to their attitude and it certainly is way out of the ordinary when customers take time out to write the story of a success built around a certain product. However, that's exactly what they have done in the case of Rumford Baking Powder and its makers, The Rumford Company of Providence, Rhode Island.

The remarkable sales manual being used by this company just recently came to the attention of this publication. Unlike other types of sales manuals, this book contains nothing that was written by the manufacturer. Even when it imparts information about the company's sales policies and policies operating with dealers and distributors, it leaves the statements to the customers themselves; lets them tell their own story for the world to read. Every comment on every subject discussed, is covered by an actual, bona fide letter written by a jobber or dealer as the case may be.

Unusual Range of Subjects

The subjects covered fall into four groups, dealing with (1) the increase in Rumford sales, (2) Rumford sales as compared with the sales of competitive baking powders, (3) Rumford sales policies, and (4) the quality of Rumford Baking Powder. Letters in this last group coming mostly from retailers who have been selling the product for a long period of years, are especially interesting and well worth the consideration of anyone in the grocery business. For these veteran retailers who have had such close contact with the actual consumers can speak from their own experience in business. It is significant that they report universal satisfaction with Rumford Baking Powder and point out the fact that in their territories Rumford has steadily made and held new users at the same time that it was holding its old users.

Importance of Sales Policies

The fact that the manufacturer's sales policies are exemplified by actual experience of jobbers and wholesalers is also an impressive feature of this book.

Jugo-Slavias is planning to spend $400,000,000 on a highway, irrigation and drainage projects.

COLUMBIA PRODUCTS FROM IDEAL PLANT

Packing House Completely Socialized — Employees Discharged By Vote Only.

The story of Columbia Products is indeed a most fascinating one. It reminds you of fiction and if you were to read this in a story it would be passed over as "fine in theory but mighty poor in reality." However, such is not the case as you will soon see.

This is a tale of a "Business Without A Boss." Fourteen years ago the Hapgood Brothers inherited a canning factory and turned it over to the employees to run. It now stands as the world's only socialized industry, where wages are determined by personal need and where the most lowly worker may freely and frankly criticize his superior.

Vote on Discharge

The Columbia Products people feel that the most important thing they have accomplished is the abolishment of unemployment, for an employee can be discharged only by vote of his or her associates. No discharge can be made from the pay check without explicit action of the council, they are paid when sick and receive old age pensions which vary according to individual needs and are not influenced by former positions held in the company.

Needless to say, all the workers take a very personal interest in every phase of the work of the company. If at one of the meetings, one of the stenographers thinks the new rule for soup is lacking, she gives her opinions to the chef, and strangely enough to us, her opinion is listened to with respect. The girl who pastes labels has her opinions of how to get new customers and tells the salesman. And this organization is doing and has done business for the past fourteen years!

Proud of Soups

The company prides itself on its soups. For instance, their chicken soup uses no other meats than chicken. The packers are allowed to use a certain percentage of beef if they wish and still call the soup "chicken." Not only is this not done by the Columbia Conserve Co., but they use fresh, live poultry in place of cold storage products.

While cereals has its place in soups, extensive use of it weakens the amount of rich broth. Formerly Columbia soups used the same percentage of cereals as other packers but today have reduced the amount so that the broth is considerably richer.

PATRIOTIC SOCIETIES MERGED IN MERIDEN

Meriden, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The forty-second annual meeting of the Connecticut Society, Sons of the American Revolution was held in Greenwich yesterday, at which the outstanding event was the formal reception of the members of the Connecticut Society, Sons of the Revolution into the S. A. R. by merger of the two societies. Both the societies were formed forty-three years ago, the S. A. R. now having about 1,500 members and the S. R. about 80.

President F. E. Sands of the S. A. R. welcomed the S. R. members into the society and the response was by President Whittlesey of the S. R. Other speakers were Former Governor Charles S. Whitman of New York, State Librarian George S. Godard, secretary of the Connecticut Bicentennial committee; President M. R. Husted of the Greenwich branch of the S. A. R. and Rev. Stanley High of Tokonke, the toastmaster being Attorney Charles W. Pettengill of Greenwich.

Nine new members were elected and at the banquet resolution on the death last week of President General Benjamin H. Johnson were adopted.

It was decided to call the annual meeting on Flag Day, June 14, at New Haven and at once adjourn to July 15 at the Nathan Hale school and park in East Haddam when all the members of the former sons of the revolution are to be invited to be present to formally complete the merger of the two societies.

NORTH END BARBERS ADOPT NEW PRICES

New Schedule, Which Went Into Effect Yesterday, Has Been Under Consideration Some Time.

The leading barbers doing business on North Main street and Depot Square have reached an agreement as to the prices to be charged for hair cuts and shaves, which has been under consideration for several weeks. They have decided upon a price of 40 cents for haircuts and 20 cents for shaves. The new schedule went into effect yesterday.

DIES ON HIKE

Lynfield, Mass., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Ralph Coombs, aged 10, who "passed up" a trip through Maine with his parents over the holiday to go hiking with his Boy Scout troop, dropped dead on the march yesterday. The boy had walked but two miles when he collapsed. His parents were in South Berwick, Me., when informed of his death.

Housewives Urged to Accept Invitation to Attend Famous Cooking School Sessions

One of America's Most Famous Cooking Authorities and Lecturers to Show How "Kitchen-testing" of Flour Simplifies Home Baking Amazingly

Tricks That Cut Work in Half to Be Special Feature of Talk

If you want to know how to make home baking easier than you'd ever believe possible—then we urge you to accept the cordial invitation above to attend a demonstration of the unique properties and advantages of Gold Medal "Kitchen-tested" Flour—when one of America's foremost cooking experts is to lecture on the subject "How the Gold Medal "Kitchen-tested" Process of Flour Milling Simplifies Home Baking." And to demonstrate by actual baking just what

"Kitchen-tested" means and does for housewives.

What "Kitchen-tested" Means
Gold Medal "Kitchen-tested" Flour means flour that has been tested in a home oven, just like yours, for uniformity of results, before it goes to you. Every batch tested for home baking of cakes, pies, pastries, breads, by a number of experts directed by the noted cooking authority, Betty Crocker.

"Kitchen-tested" recipes are likewise "Kitchen-tested" scientifically, the same way. Thus, the flour acts the same way, the recipes the same way, every time you bake. No guesswork, no uncertainty. Results are unvarying. Baking simplified amazingly.

For the Great Kitchen Thrill, try this way today. Get Gold Medal "Kitchen-tested" Flour at any grocery store. 15 New "Kitchen-tested" recipes are inside every sack.

The dime-a-dance girl

By JOHN CLAYTON

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Beautiful ELLEN ROSSITER, a salesgirl in Barclay's Department Store, works nights as a dance hall hostess at Dreamland. She lives with her extravagant mother, MOLLY ROSSITER, her older sister, MYRA, and her young brother, MIKE.

STEVEN BARCLAY, 37 and Ellen's employer, loves the girl but she is in love with LARRY HARROWGATE, an artist she has met at Dreamland. She loses her heart to him in spite of the fact that he is engaged to ELIZABETH BONES, a debutante.

Ellen is unwilling to wound Barclay but when scandalous gossip is circulated at the store, she determines to see him no more. However, Molly Rossiter, anxious for Ellen to marry a rich husband, invites him to dinner. Molly borrows money to make the apartment attractive and this infuriates Ellen. She and Molly prepare the dinner while Myra and BERT ARMSTRAD, Myra's fiancé, entertain the guest. Barclay gives Mike a bicycle, and the boy is delighted but Ellen is seriously displeased. The dinner party gets off on a bad start.

CHAPTER XVIII

The dinner, off to such a bad start, was soon a jolly, friendly affair. The food was excellent and not, as Ellen had feared in the beginning, too elaborate. She had omitted the pate and had firmy veal. Molly's suggestion that the lobster be served in the shell. They began the meal with lobster cocktail, cool and delicious and served with one of Ellen's favourite sauces. Then there was the roast duck, cunningly and accurately seasoned. The vegetables, green corn with peppers and peas and broccoli, were served with cream sauces.

Ellen had managed everything so that the dinner seemed a great deal simpler than it was.

Bert, firmly prevented from discussing baseball, was encouraged to talk of his really amazing knowledge of literature. Myra and Ellen, invariable controversialists were soon gaily wrangling with him over the rights of the various authors of his favorites. Where would Sinclair Lewis be in 100 years? A historian of his age or completely forgotten? How about Hemingway?

They argued while Molly, a proud smile in her eyes, looked at Barclay as if to demand whether her daughters were not the cleverest in the world. Steven, silent at first and not quite understanding how the game was played, entered one or two suggestions that were taken to his and flung back at him altered almost beyond recognition.

He learned quickly; warmed to their youthful vigor. Soon he was defending his position as valiantly as they defended their own. Myra's and Ellen's attention when he mentioned his acquaintance with several of the authors under discussion. They demanded more and then more.

Before he knew it, he was talking of places he had been and people he had met. He sketched Monte Carlo for them and told of little French towns where life moved just as it had 300 years before. He recreated the color of glittering bazaars and epics of adventures, princesses, statesmen and scoundrels he had known.

Ellen forgot her resentment of the man under the spell of the pictures he drew. It would be fun to travel, to see the gray spires of Paris and to wander in the cool depths of the Black Forest.

The little group ignored the passage of time as they proceeded further and further into the fascinating exploration of one another's minds. Finally there came an interruption.

"It was the colored maid again," she announced mournfully. "I want my $5. I got to go home."

The all laughed and straggled from the table. Ellen became aware that the room was stiflingly hot. Troubles which had been put away returned to harass her. What was to happen to them? The insurance money so painfully scraped together had been spent for an evening's pleasure. The coat of Normandy was all very well but where was the rent to come from?

When they wandered from the debris in the dining room to the stuffy living room, she moved to the window and stared down at the noisy street. Children were playing and screaming there while mothers and fathers sat tearfully on the stoops, fanning themselves with newspapers they would later toss into the gutters. Ellen could not distinguish Mike from the distance but she could hear his beautiful voice. She felt an inward pang. What was to become of him, a child who had no playground but the street?

"When, it's simply scorching!" breathed Molly's voice in her ear. "I was hoping to have a storm. But you look cool enough."

Ellen turned from the window. "I'm not cool," she said listlessly. "I don't believe it will ever rain again. There's not even heat lightning."

"Why don't we all go driving?" suggested Steven, laying aside his cigar.

"You and Ellen go," Molly said with naive haste. "I love it. I've promised to drop in on a neighbor for a few minutes. Mrs. Clancy downstairs."

Bert, stretched at full length on the couch, had lapsed into somnolence but when Steven spoke he roused.

"Myra and I'll go along," he announced, yawning. "I've never ridden in a limousine and I don't want to miss the chance."

Somewhat to his own surprise Bert did not accompany Ellen and Steven on the drive. He did not understand entirely how it happened that instead he took Myra to a neighborhood movie theater. Ellen could have told him. As usual, Molly had managed.

The girl's cheeks were burning as the heavy car swished up Pine street and turned toward the Heights. Steven had fallen silent and she wondered in a fever of nervousness what he was thinking of all this. Certainly he must have seen that the ride had been deliberately arranged by Molly.

Gray buildings seemed to come alive with the still, old light. Not lay along the street in pools. Not the dusty trees stood motionless as painted trees.

They drove on to Brooklyn Heights. The limousine was parked and the chauffeur wandered away. Reflected in the starry spangled harbor, the Manhattan windows became unreal as a dream. A beautiful, fanciful panorama massed like the towering cities in the clouds so that at any moment one might expect the whole to float away.

The odors though were close and real. The good sharp smell of water and grass; the friendly smile of Steven's cigar; the intangible, mysterious smell of the night itself. There were the whirring sounds of steamboats and the gentle lapping of water. There were the low voices of lovers whispering on hidden benches.

Gradually there stole over Ellen a sense of luxury and well being. She had been foolishly, almost hysterically reluctant to go out alone with Steven, apprehensive lest he should say to her what she so ardently desired should go unspoken.

Now those vague, troubled fears and apprehensions were lost as were her fears of the ultimate destination of her family. It was enough to sink back among soft cushions and to drink in the magic beauty of the evening.

"It's not true, is it?" she asked Steven dreamily as she stared out across the water. "Nothing could be so lovely and still be true."

"Oh, I don't know," her laugh in the darkness was uncertain. She had been entirely at ease. Now she wondered if it were thinking of her childish and immature. She was never quite sure of herself when she was with him.

It was hard to forget that he was Steven Barclay, owner of Barclay's Department Store, a hard to forget that he was a great deal older than she—a great deal older. How presumptuous she herself had been to imagine that he was sentimentally interested in her. He was Steven Barclay!

But if she could have read Barclay's thoughts she would have known that she was wrong. It was only that age had taught him to hide his feelings. He had always taken what he wanted from the world. Indeed what he wanted had come so easily that he had grown a little contemptuous of the world and the ease of conquering it. Now as his mood of self-contentment increased he felt a pang of real fear that the desire which had obsessed him when he first caught sight of the young girl at his side would, in the end, fail of fulfillment.

They were silent again. Ellen was entirely unprepared when Steven leaned forward and took her hands.

"Look at me, Ellen," he bade her in a strange, breathless voice. As she obeyed she knew what was coming. She checked a wild impulse to leap from the car, to run away and hide in the night, an impulse of pure panic. Instead she sat quietly, her cold slim hands in his.

"I suppose you've guessed what I mean to say," Barclay began, plunging desperately because his carefully rehearsed phrases had failed.

"Why should I have guessed?" she asked in a trembling voice.

"I intended to wait," he went on. "Perhaps it would have been better to wait but I cannot—I cannot. Let me give you the lovely things of life, my dear. Let me prove to you that some of them may be true!"

It occurred to him, even as he was speaking, that she might misunderstand him. So he said bluntly, "I want you to marry me."

Ellen tried to speak but he stopped her.

"Don't answer. I don't want your answer until you hear many things you should hear. You must first see the drawbacks and they are many. For one thing I'm years older than you. I've done all the things you have never done and probably long to do, and I've found many of them tiresome and boring. For another—there's that unfortunate divorce of mine—"

"Don't go on please," she begged.

"You mean there is no use going on? You mean that there is someone else?"

Ellen tried to make his tone light, but anguish gripped him and he turned away. He had not known until then how she could make him suffer, a young girl of whose very existence he has been unaware two weeks before.

"No, I don't mean that exactly," Ellen said jerkily. "I'm not engaged to anyone if that's what you're asking."

At the moment she was too confused to know clearly what she was saying. How easily everything would be if only she could say the one word! Her mother and Mike and Myra—what things she could do for them as Mrs. Steven Barclay.

Had she the right to fall them all to pursue a will-o'-the-wisp?

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Some evening when you want to be more enchanting than usual, try the new silver and gold nail polish. Especially if you have platinum blonde hair, the platinum polish on your nails seems highly appropriate. Also if you are using the metallic finish you up with a shine.

The way you use this best is to give the tips of your nails this added gleam. First they are manicured as you usually have them, perhaps leaving them just a little longer than you had them this winter. Then you use the platinum polish to touch up the tips of the nails, the part that is white at the top of the finger.

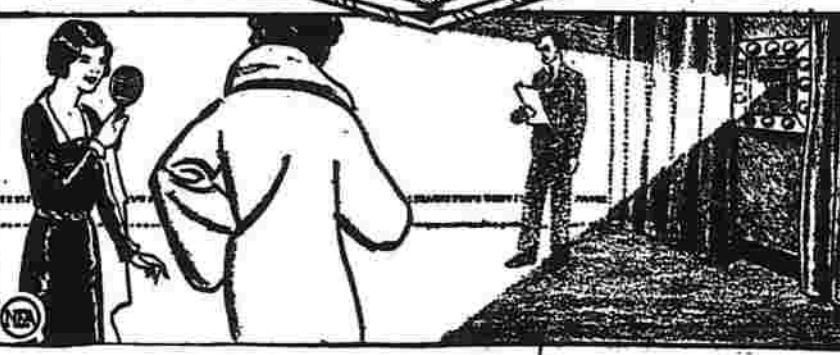

You can have the polish renewed without having another manicure, or you can take it off without too much damage to your hands. It is just a little something extra. But it should be reserved for evening. There is something disfiguring in wearing such an obvious "extra" during the daytime. Just a little bit like wearing an evening dress to the office.

If you are feeling the depression and don't feel equal to having your usual weekly manicure, save your pennies and get at least one a month. In the interim, manicure yourself. It may be swiftest and a few little tricks that you may know, but just in case you don't:

1. Every time you wash your hands, push back the cuticle on every single finger. This makes perfect half-moons in time on most hands.
2. For as little as ten cents you now can buy a finger nail pencil which keeps the tips white underneath. Dip the point in water and run it around under each in turn.

STAGES TELEVISION STYLE SHOWS

Edits Fashion News and Picks Clothes That Are Broadcast to Listeners-In and Lookers-In.

Mrs. Virginia Chandler Hall interprets the latest modes to television audiences.

By JULIA BLANSHARD

New York, Feb. 23.—Along with the new spring fashions comes something brand new in the fashion world—a television fashion show!

Virginia Chandler Hall, internationally known fashionist, has the honor of being the world's first television fashion editor.

Always a pioneer in new fashion fields, Mrs. Chandler Hall is the first woman to put on a fashion show in a broadcasting studio and have it seen and heard by customers invited to an improvised television receiving theater in a department store some distance away.

Standing by the model in the broadcasting studio, Mrs. Chandler Hall explains, into a mike, all the high points in the new styles just as she would do were the fashion models treading a runway at a fashion luncheon or dinner.

Of course it is not perfect. Television is still in such an experimental stage, and it still is subject to the vagaries of the ether. But the very fact that it is possible to see and hear about new styles, even within a small radius of the broadcasting station, opens up entirely new fields for fashionists to conquer and for customers to enjoy.

"The future of television in presenting fashions seems to me so great that we cannot conceive of the time and trouble it will save any more than, in the early days of automobiles, any one could know how the automobile would revolutionize living," Mrs. Chandler Hall told me.

A benefit to Merchants

"When television is perfected, a woman in her home can see a hat advertisement that appeals to her in the morning paper, call up the millinery department of the store and ask to have a particular hat shown to her. I believe that before long television will become a real commercial fashion medium and a merchandising medium."

Putting on a television fashion show has its own technique, according to Mrs. Chandler Hall. You must be sure of your color contrasts, black and white being especially good. You must know, for

MARVELOUS MANHATTAN

By WILLIAM GAINES

New York—I can't help wondering what the people down in Uvalde, Texas, think about all these big town newspapers with their stories and pictures acknowledging John N. Garner's enlarged renown.

I wonder if "Moon," the black boy who came to the rescue of Mrs. Uvalde's light touring car the day I was down there in 1928, is still tinkering with that old wreck. And if he can read—or if somebody reads to him—the spreading feature stories about his boss in the New York papers.

What are they thinking, those honey and basalt rock men sipping their coffee in the little Manhattan cafe, about their fellow townsman who got all this touting for the presidency of the United States?

Those of the 5,000 population who used to pass down the main street, or see him sitting on the curb watching the masons at work on his new shop buildings, would salute him casually but respectfully, just as they would any other leading citizen of Uvalde.

He was just the minority leader of the house of representatives then, trying to get his affairs in shape for another invasion of Washington and more scuffling with Andrew Mellon over taxation.

They had grown accustomed to hearing him talk about "Uncle Andy" Mellon. The majority of the town were satisfied with the way Garner looked after their local needs when he went to Washington, so they kept sending him back, term after term.

Perhaps it never occurred to many of them that Garner was getting his name in the papers in such far-away places as New York occasionally, even then.

Home Town Folk

Garner's son, Tully, was one of them, too. And they all knew Mrs. Garner, his secretary-in-Washington and home-maker in Uvalde, right well.

It was a familiar sight to see John Garner putting a round among his pecan trees and experimenting with new fangled plants, trying to get them to grow in Uvalde county. They took the Garner home, for granted. It did not awe them.

I spent my day with the Garners, getting story material. Since I have learned from correspondents, the Uvalde folk began to perk up and look upon their representative in a new light when he was elevated to the speakership.

They knew he was in line for the post, of course, but their enthusiasm really began to be fired when they found what a stir Garner was causing over the nation.

Then, with dramatic suddenness, the Garner presidential boom burst upon the land. Fancy writers in New York and other cities began to employ such comparatives as "like Lincoln."

So I wonder just what the Uvalde people think about it now.

Why, Willie

Willie Howard tells one about his engagement in "The Passing Show of 1912." He had to have a wig, but didn't think to warrant buying one. So he rented one from week to week, thinking each would be the last.

After the first year of the run, the wig maker, his pockets bulging with Willie's coin, told him: "I guess you deserve to keep it now."

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Telling Young Folk About Death

One time a little bird died in my hand.

That afternoon the children did not go to school. They cried so I hadn't the heart to send them—I myself was completely useless, for Dick was one of the family and I was powerless to keep him alive was too terrible.

When the heart takes hold of anything it just can't let go, no matter how small the object of affection may be.

But I buried him myself—there were no dramatics at his funeral. That much I had sense enough to see. The mistake I made was in going to pieces myself and letting the children see me cry.

Later our white Persian cat was killed. We found him dead on the walk one night. The children never saw him at all. He was quietly put out of the way and the children were told he was dead.

One time we had a sick dog. It was a case of septic poisoning and he could not get well. So we had a veterinary take him and quietly put him out of misery. No dramatics this time either. We still talk of Punch and Buddy quite cheerfully. There are only happy memories of each of them.

But this is the point. What is the best course to take with children in this matter of death? The death of a pet and the death of a person are not widely dissociated in a child's mind.

What Service Suggests

Shall we do as the scientists advise today and teach children that death is a natural phenomenon the same as life, and to look upon it in a matter of fact way and accept it as inevitable and natural?

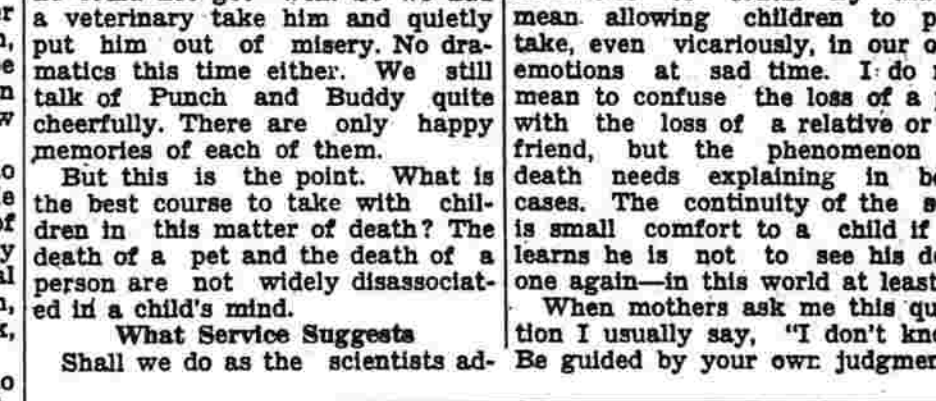

When all is said and done, when we want to analyze children's reactions to anything the best way is to look into our own hearts and minds first to discover just how we feel about certain things ourselves. And is our reaction to death the same as it is to life?

Certainly not, except in the great minority of cases. Intelligence, is seldom strong enough to combat a natural instinct or an instinct born into us after generations of fear.

Children do not brood. They adjust themselves quickly to new conditions. Their emotions are not as fixed as those of older people. Fortunately, and the multiple interests of life take the place of sad memories.

But this much we can do, and I think it kindest—to avoid the dramatics of death. By that I mean allowing children to participate even in the most of our emotions at sad times. I do not mean to confuse the loss of a pet with the loss of a relative or a friend, but the phenomenon of death needs explaining in both cases. The continuity of the soul is small comfort to a child if he learns he is not to see his dear one again—in this world at least.

When mothers ask me this question I usually say, "I don't know." Be guided by your own judgment."

WATCH YOUR BARBER SHOP—BE SURE IT IS SANITARY

Inadequate Regulation in Many States Constitutes Menace to Health of Every Person in Community

By DR. MORRIS FISHER

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

A barber shop, conducted with some conception of what constitute sanitary regulations, is a safe place for any one and a most satisfactory concomitant to modern existence.

Conducted without proper safeguards of the customers' health, a barber shop may be a menace to the whole community. For this reason various states have adopted rules regulating the conduct of barber shops and beauty parlors, but many communities are completely without such regulation.

In Ohio, the Public Health Council has issued regulations which might very well be followed, by every other community. In the first place, the regulations point out that no one shall act as a barber who has communicable infection of the skin.

The barber must wash his hands with soap and water before serving each customer. Shaving mugs, brushes and combs are to be immersed in boiling water before being used on each customer.

Each customer is to have a new clean towel and the head rest is to be covered with a clean towel or paper, changed after each customer. Towels known as steamers must be

Cowles Is Hero As M. H. S. Wins Swimming Title

McCluskey Breaks World Record In Two-Mile Steeplechase Event

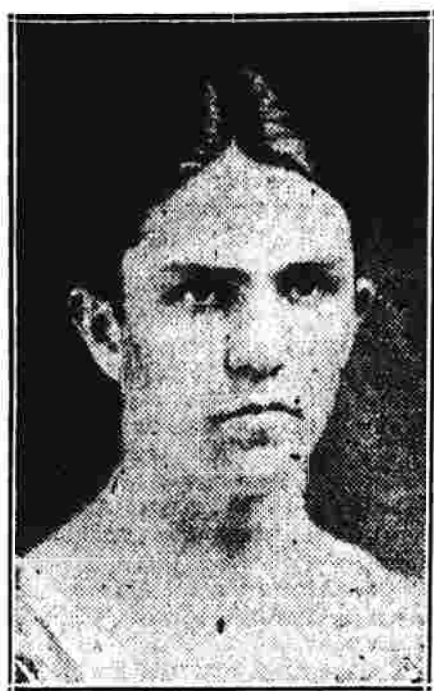

Manchester Boy Races Nearly Nine Seconds Under Former Mark Held By Purje of Finland In National Indoor A. A. U. Meet At Garden; Venzke Disappoints But McCluskey Pleases Big Crowd.

Cracking wide open the world's indoor record, Joe McCluskey, of Fordham, star Manchester athlete, raced off to the two-mile steeplechase title in the national championship track and meet at Madison Square Garden in New York last night.

McCluskey raced twenty-two times around the Garden track, hurdling over forty barriers on his way, and came to the tape in 9 minutes 45.4 seconds, after reaching the mile mark in 4:54.2-5. He took the lead at the start and was never headed.

Johnny Ryan, of Manhattan College, clung close behind for a mile, but McCluskey's record pace was too much and Ryan was 50 yards in the ruck at the finish. Third place went to Harry Werbin, of the Millrose A. A.

Former Record 9:55 2-5. The former record is 9:55 2-5, made by Eino Purje of Finland, in 1929 when he won the national championship in New York. The comparative value of McCluskey's performance is better appreciated when set up alongside the Olympic record of 9:21 4-8 for 3,000 meters, 240 yards short of two miles, and it presents the new indoor record-holder as a strong aspirant for Olympic honors.

VENZKE DISAPPOINTS

New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Gene Venzke, the Fittstown, Pa., swimmer, made only one miscalculation when he set out this winter to shatter all records for the mile run but it has turned out to be a grievous one.

He failed to take into account the feelings of his opposition. He's run them all to cover and as a result he now finds himself doing practically a solo when he steps out on the boards.

Only two runners went to the mark with him last night in the National Indoor A. A. U. championship at Madison Square Garden. Neither was capable of extending Gene so one of the largest crowds ever to witness an indoor meet here had to be content with watching him do a mere 4:15 mile.

Venzke left with the task of shaking off only Bill McKinnis of Pennsylvania and Arthur Anderson of Greenwich, Conn., was able to set his own pace and made no effort to repeat his record.

But if the crowd was disappointed at the failure of the latest "mile of the century" to materialize, its feelings should have been rationally appeased by record smashing in the other events. Three world records were broken another equalled twice and two meet marks were sent into the discard.

Early in the evening black-haired Joe McCluskey of Fordham University raced over the obstacles of the two-mile steeplechase test to perform a three-fold achievement. The Ram runner covered the course in 9:46.8 and shattered the world's, American and championship mark of 9:58.4 that the great Eino Purje of Finland had set three years ago.

So brilliantly did the Fordham youngster run that he lapped every one in the field except Jackie Ryan of Manhattan, the second place winner, and he led Ryan by three-quarters of a circle yard and without straggle of overwhelming superiority.

McCluskey beamed with delight when his record performance was announced. Mike Pecora of the Brooklyn Central, M. C. A. distanced a crack field in the mile walk and set a world record of 6 minutes 27 1-5 seconds, a 20-year-old mark of 6:28 set by George Goulding of Canada in 1911.

The third world standard to tumble was credited to New York University's brilliant relay team which covered the mile and seven-eighths in 7 minutes, 29 3-5 seconds. Emmett Toppino, Loyola speedster, twice equalled the world record of 1:5 seconds to beat a great field in the 50 yard dash.

Meet records were credited to George Spitz of New York University who high-jumped a casual 6 feet 7 inches and to Herman Brix of the Los Angeles A. C. who tossed the 16-pound shot 51 feet 4 1/2 inches.

The New York A. C. bid the team scoring with 27 1/2 points followed by N. Y. U. with 14; Los Angeles A. C. 12, and Illinois A. C. 10 1/2.

When a Levinsky outpoints a Dempsey, even in four rounds with ten-ounce gloves, it is a sad blow indeed to the fistful Old Guard.

Perhaps, as many believe, it definitely points to the last exit for the once devastating puncher. The so-called Old Guard or "die-hards" dislike to think so, at any rate. Let's not sound off with taps too early. Give the old man a chance and at least six-ounce gloves. Then it will be time to pass better judgment.

Of course the idea of the dynamite in Jack Dempsey's wallop has been so thoroughly accepted for so long a time that it is hard now to dissociate the former champion from the 37-year-old good fellow who has been touring the tank towns.

Illusions Die Hard. Many of my fellow experts will recall with what fanatical persistence they clung to belief in the old Dempsey even when it should have been quite palpable he was on the skids, prior to the fight in which he lost the title to Gene Tunney in 1928. The old dynamite was still there or so they believed. Jack was a 3 to 1 favorite over Gene on the night he took such a bad beating at Philadelphia.

Eppa Rixey, starting his 21st year as a major leaguer, led a dozen batterymen and First Baseman Mickey Heath of the Cincinnati Reds into Tampa. Manager Dan Howley was expected momentarily. Meanwhile, Both reported for the Dodgers' opening workout yesterday.

ARM IS LAME. Hughie Critz's arm, lame all last season, may be in condition again but no one, not even Hughie himself, knows definitely.

"I'm just hoping for the best," said Critz. "It's Freddy Lindstrom, slated to take over second base should Critz's arm fail to stand up."

ANKLES AND ARMS. Clearwater, Fla., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Max Carey, new manager of the Brooklyn Robins, assumed active control today for the first time. Reaching Clearwater with a handful of batterymen, he met Captain Glenn Wright, Al Cohen and four pitchers.

YALE IS BEATEN BY TIGERS 26-25

New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Princeton's second victory of the season over Yale has given the Tigers sole possession of second place in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League standings but the chances are they will have to share it with Dartmouth Wednesday night.

The Tigers checked Yale 26-25 in a close hard fought battle at New Haven last night for their fifth league victory in seven games. Deaconmouth now tied with Cornell for third place with four wins and two losses should repeat fifth place Pennsylvania at Hanover tomorrow night and thus move up to a tie with Princeton.

Princeton led all the way against Yale but just did manage to stave off a closing Eli rush. During the last few minutes of play, Yale scored eight points while holding the Tigers to one. Captain Lloyd Rosenbaum's successful foul shot for Princeton preventing a tie.

Earl Nikkel, Yale forward increased his lead in the race for individual scoring honors with two field goals and two fouls. High scoring honors for the night however went to Bob O'Connell, Yale center who sank five field goals.

CRISLER IS SLATED TO COACH PRINCETON

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 23.—(AP)—O'Connell, Princeton's head coach, yet picked a successor to Al Wittmer as head football coach but unofficially there seems to be little reason to doubt that H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, athletic director at the University of Minnesota, will be at the helm when the Tigers' fall season rolls around.

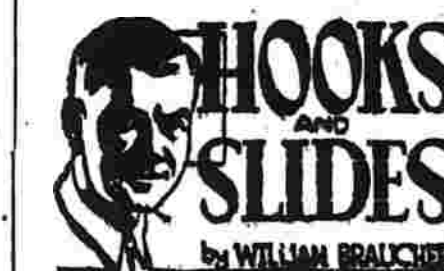

Crisler himself, at Minneapolis, said he probably would take the job, offered, he said, by President John Grier Hibben of Princeton over the telephone. Asked to comment on news dispatches quoting Crisler as saying he had decided to accept the job, Dr. Hibben said:

"I don't know anything about it but I am very happy to hear if it is so."

WHERE'S JOHN D? Colorado Springs, Colo.—A man in overalls walked into the Colorado Springs National bank and wrote out a check for $10,000. When he attempted to cash it, the clerk stared at him. The check was signed "Jon D. Rockefeller." To Inspector I. B. Bruce's questions, the man answered that he was a nephew of "John D." although the name was spelled differently. He was held for investigation.

NOT BAD AT ALL. Sonora, Calif.—Broke and out of work for a long time, Clayton Meister and Walter Lincoln decided they would follow the golden trail to fame and fortune. They recently appeared here, after three weeks of panning gravel on Turnback Creek, with a sizable amount of dust and reports of a modest find.

Overcomes Relay Lead To Win For Manchester

HOOKS AND SLIDES by WILLIAM BRALICHER

Some Superlatives The loudest fighter in the world is Jack Sharkey.

The strongest fighter in the world is Max Schmeling.

The silliest fight ever staged was between Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott two years ago at Miami, Fla.

The greatest pitching showman in the world ever has been shown by Grover Cleveland "Keep your shirt-on" Alexander when he stopped the Yankees in the world series of 1926.

The greatest pitcher of them all was Walter Johnson.

This will be Babe Ruth's 13th year with the Yankees. It probably will be unlucky—for some pitchers.

Takes Himself for Ride The ridigest guy in the world is Sir Malcolm Campbell, who drove his Bluebird 245 miles an hour last year and isn't even satisfied with that.

The smartest man in the fight racket today is Leonard Sacks, who has conducted the Dempsey comeback tours, Nos 1A to 99B.

The runniest guy in the world is Paavo Nurmi, who is training to do 26 miles in two hours when they hold the Olympics at Los Angeles—and he won't even be chasing a street car.

The most baffled look ever seen upon a man's face by this observer was expressed by Old Will Dempsey after he had taken a pasting around at the crude hands of King Levinsky.

Hack Wilson always can claim one distinction anyway. He is one of the few ball players the Cardinal management ever kicked upstairs.

An Earlier Plea The most tragic ring spectacle, I think, was the second Tunney-Dempsey fight in Chicago, with the Old Mauler imploring Golloping Gene to stand still so he could wing him.

Tunney also appeared in what was the worst fight I ever have seen, and that was the annihilation of poor old Tommas Heeney. The most rugged chin in the fight racket is that of Eddie Lethbrink.

Some of the flashiest gold chowers that the world ever saw were those of Jack Johnson—and it is any wonder Jeffries lost with that Reno sun flashing into his eyes from those phony biters?

They are talking on a Bill Terry. When asked by a young reporter if he was adamant in his demand for more money, Bill replied, "Of course not, but I'm not going to give in."

Carried Extra Weight The finest soldier of any man in athletics today was not Gene Tunney, but was Major Frank Cavanaugh, Fordham coach, who came out of the World War toting in various parts of his person about half of the shrapnel the Germans manufactured between 1914 and 1918.

The most nonchalant hero in baseball is Pepper Martin, who called time for several minutes during the last world series while he policed up the outfield in Philadelphia where the fans had thrown a lot of papers.

The man who gets the most out of what he has is Lefty Gomez, who loses about half his weight while pitching a nine-inning game and has to lie abed and drink milk to get it back.

The wildest pitcher in baseball used to be Lefty Grove, who since has become the deadliest.

The greatest ball player who ever lived is Babe Ruth—and you can have Cap Anson and those other fellows if you want them.

When the Newark club ball banqueted Colonel Ruppert the other night, a waitress spilled soup on his back. Wonder if the scorekeeper put it down as too hot to handle.

Jim Jeffries has been refereeing ring bouts lately. Well, that's how Jack Dempsey got his start.

Frank Gabler, pitching his first season in organized baseball for Bartlesville, Okla., in 1931, struck out 201 batters.

WHERE DO GRIDMEN GO? It's true that some football players are dumb, don't study and drop out of school after the football season without getting their sheepskins. But take that Alabama team of 1930, undefeated in the south and victorious over Washington State in the Rose Bowl clinic.

Of 13 men who comprised Wallace Wade's first team, only three failed to graduate, and one of the trio, a sophomore on that team, is still in school. He is John (Hurry) Cain, captain-elect for next fall. John (Spinner) Campbell, coaching football at Duke, will finish work on his degree this summer. Jimmy Moore, end, died before he was able to complete his work.

Of the others—Eberdt, Miller, Howard, Stinton, Clement, E. Moore, Suther and McRigt, all of whom graduated—only one has forsaken football. Big Charles (Foots) Clement, 1930 captain of the Crimson Tide, is engaged in business. Eberdt plays professional football and the remainder are teaching school and coaching football.

It would be hard to find two high schools better matched in all branches of athletic activity than Manchester and Bristol. This was proved again yesterday when Manchester captured the C. C. I. L. swimming title for the fifth consecutive year by nosing out Bristol 40 to 39.

The league meet was held at Trinity pool at Hartford and the only disappointing feature was that none of the other four schools in the circuit competed. Middletown sent a team but it arrived too late to compete. The other three, Meriden, West Hartford and East Hartford failed to participate for one reason or another.

Four Schools Absent The absence of these four schools does not in the least detract from the showing of Manchester and Bristol for these two schools were recognized as the cream of the crop. It was the lack of proper spirit on the part of the absentees which provoked league officials.

The Manchester team, coached by Wilfred J. Clarke, captained by Eddie Lithwinski, and managed by Francis Dellafera, has won four of its seven meets so far this season and has three more to swim, namely, Bristol at Bristol, Suffield Prep and the state high school championship meet at New Haven.

Faced Prep Schools It is a compliment to the Manchester swimmers to report the fact that during the majority of their schedules they are forced to meet preparatory schools or college junior varsity squads in order to face opposition in their class. Few high school teams are in a class with Manchester in this section of the state. Meets have been scheduled with Canterbury, Roxbury, Suffield and C. A. C. Jayves.

Bristol Defeated 40-39 In C. C. I. L. Championship; Aquatic Meet In Trinity Pool; Other Schools Fail To Compete; Credit Due Local Mermen.

Much of the credit for yesterday's league victory must go to Dana Cowles, junior student, who specializes in the short dash events such as the 50 yard event. Not only did Cowles win the 50 yard splash but he also swam anchor man in the relay and overcame a healthy Bristol lead thus turning a one-point victory to Manchester.

Good Work Dana . . . The first three Manchester men to swim in the four-man relay, final event on the program, each lost a couple of feet, so as Dana and Gerard, the two senior men, plunged into the tank, Bristol had a two-point lead and a six-foot advantage. At the moment, Bristol's chances looked bright.

But not for long. Once Cowles got up full steam, he steadily cut into Gerard's lead and finally spurred into the lead by half a foot in a most thrilling and exciting finish which left both boys exhausted for the moment.

Others Who Starred Captain Lithwinski, despite a bad cold, took part in three events for Manchester, winning the 100 yard backstroke, taking third in diving and participating in the relay. Leonard Hicking was a second in the 100 yard freestyle losing by only about a foot. Treat too, first in the breast-stroke in a close finish. Cowles won by a length in the 50 yard and Joslin came from behind to tie Rogers of Bristol in the 220 yard freestyle.

Bob Carney was the only member of the Manchester team unable to compete. He is ill with scarlet fever at his home. The sick was deprived him of a certain fourth in the 220 which would have earned him his letter, but Bob was happy when his mates telephoned him the news of their victory soon after it was attained.

Following are the results of the various events: 100 yard backstroke: Lithwinski, M., Wagonki, B., Joslin, M., Petersch, B., time: 2:53 1-5.

100 yard freestyle: Gatsenky, B., Hicking, M., Dauphinau, B., Gould, Manchester, time: 1:3 4-5.

100 yard breaststroke: Treat, M., Brown, E., Unterspan, E., Stechholz, B., time: 1:30 1-5.

50 yard freestyle: Cowles, M., Gerard, B., Moszer, M., Dalger, B., time: 26 1-5.

220 yard freestyle: Joslin, M., Roger, E., tied for 1st. Danahy, B., Brown, M., time: 2:53 3-5.

200 yard relay: M., Moszer, Hicking, Lithwinski, Cowles, time: 1:53 3-5.

Diving: Gerard, B., Berggren, M., Lithwinski, M., Stechholz, M., winning number of points 43.5.

RANGERS-BEVINS New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The N. Y. Rangers will seek their first victory in six games against the Boston Bruins at Boston tonight.

The Rangers in a bid to win several weeks have lost four and had one of their last five games.

Other games tonight will pit the Detroit against the Montreal Canadiens at Montreal and the Chicago against the New York

HIGH COURT O. K.'S BILLBOARD LAWS

Utah Claimed the Right To Stop Tobacco Advertising By Boards In State.

Washington, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Utah's law prohibiting tobacco advertisements on billboards was sustained today by the Supreme Court. The statute made it a misdemeanor to display advertisements of cigarettes, cigars and tobacco on billboards and the Pa. or Corporation was convicted of violating the law by displaying cigarette advertisements in Salt Lake City.

The legislation permitted the advertising of tobacco by newspapers and other methods and the decision of the Utah courts claimed discrimination against one form of advertising in favor of other was plain.

It also said that since the billboard advertisements were shipped into Utah from the corporation's place of business and the corporation of the Utah courts claimed discrimination against one form of advertising in favor of other was plain.

Justice Brandeis, who delivered the opinion, said the state court was right in declaring there was a difference in billboard and similar types of advertising and that in newspapers.

He said the billboard advertising, street signs and placards were wholly intransigent.

"Advertisements of this sort are constantly before the eyes of observers on the streets and in street cars to be seen without the exercise of choice or volition on their part," he said.

"Other forms of advertising are ordinarily seen as a matter of choice on the part of the observer. The young people as well as the adults have those of the billboard thrust upon them by all the arts and devices that skill can produce.

In the case of newspapers and magazines, there must be some seeking by one who is to see and read the advertisement. The radio can be turned off, but not so the billboard or street car placards.

"These distinctions clearly place the kind of advertisement in a position to be classified so that regulations or prohibitions may be imposed upon all within the class. This is impossible with respect to newspapers and magazines."

SCHOOL BURNS

Bridgport, Feb. 23.—(AP)—A building housing the manual training shop and gymnasium of Unquowa school was extensively damaged early today by a fire which started in a rooming house. The fire was probably of incendiary origin. Damage was estimated at between $5,000 and $6,000.

The school reopened today after being closed since Friday. The fire originated in the cellar of the frame structure.

When a husband and wife have a joint checking account, it's easy to guess who is running the joint.

WAPPING

Mrs. John H. Graham of Wapping was taken to the Manchester Memorial hospital last Sunday afternoon for observation and treatment. Michael Kuster is seriously ill at his home in Wapping with pneumonia.

Waiter G. Smith who was taken quite ill at his home last week is better but still recuperating at his home on Foster street.

Mrs. Dorothy Donahue spent the week-end and Washington's birthday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Harry P. Files.

A daughter was born last week to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sharp of East Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cobb and two children, Arthur and Betty of Columbia were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Snow last Sunday.

Miss Florence Gillette of Wapping was taken from the Manchester Memorial hospital last Saturday to a convalescent home in Hartford where it is hoped she will recuperate from an illness of several weeks with pneumonia.

Mrs. Nellie McLaughlin left Saturday morning for the National Educational Convention at Washington. She expects to be gone about a week.

Rev. Dr. John Squires, 85 years old, passed away at the Brookton hospital last Sunday. His funeral was held this afternoon at half past two o'clock at the Methodist church of So. Manchester.

Wapping Grange will hold its fourth regular meeting this evening. It is earnestly requested that all come dressed in old fashioned clothes.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Snow had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. John Lowe of Manchester, Green, on Washington's birthday.

BOLTON

Those in town interested in perennial gardens will meet at the home of Mr. Frank Collins in North Bolton Friday afternoon. Mr. Wilkinson of the U. S. Department of Agriculture in conjunction with the extension work of the Connecticut Agricultural College, will speak.

A miscellaneous shower was given to Mrs. Jesse Hills Friday evening by the Grange members at her home. There were games and refreshments.

The Ladies Society met at the home of Mrs. F. Bentley recently and tied two quilts. A surprise feature was given by Mrs. Bentley in the form of a St. Valentine and George Washington. Frederick Taylor poured and Mrs. Charles Sumner served the St. Valentine c.c.k.e. The next regular meeting of the Ladies Society will be omitted until the week after, March 3, when Mrs. Lewis D. Eaton will be the hostess.

Misses Ellis and Jeanette Sumner of Hartford spent the week-end at their home.

The Girl Scouts attended a rally in Manchester Friday evening. Myron Elm transported the Troop.

Elmer Finley has returned to his home in New York after spending several weeks at his home here.

Charles Loomis of Pawtucket, R. I., spent the week-end at his home here.

Farmers in town are harvesting ice from seven to nine inches thick. The Board of Relief met at the basement of the Congregational church today. This is the last meeting before the Board was Bernice Sendrowski of South Manchester. Twenty-one soldiers in the town are exempt from property tax. This exemption amounts to $1,480. The total assessment is $474,149.

BEATEN BY BURGLAR

New London, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Patrick T. Kennedy, 77, was assaulted and severely beaten last night by a burglar whom he discovered in his home at 14 Ashcroft road. The prowler wrenched Kennedy's cane from him and beat him about the face and head and succeeded in escaping before the arrival of the police. However, he was captured early this morning and identified as Richard McGill, 21, of 61 West Colt street. He was presented in the Police Court this morning and the case was continued until tomorrow. He is charged with assault and breaking and entering and was committed to the county jail in default of bonds. Kennedy is confined to his home under the care of his physician. McGill said he was unable to recall the events of last night.

MRS. COOK SILENT ON HER ARRIVAL

Sends Note To Reporters That She Will Not Talk of Daughter's Death.

New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Mabel E. Cook of Boston, whose daughter, Miss Elizabeth Barrett Cook, died mysteriously on the Lakshur yesterday, was expressed today by Representative McCintic, (D. Okla.).

McCintic, who was chairman of the House naval subcommittee investigating the airworthiness of the giant vessel, said "I certainly won't make a fight in that airship."

The Oklahoma man and four other Representatives were on the ground at Lakehurst waiting for the Akron to be prepared to take them aloft when the mishap occurred.

"The Akron certainly was subjected to unusual strains," McCintic said.

"I remember that the nose of the Shenandoah was pulled off in a similar accident a short while before she crashed. Whether the same thing has happened to the Akron, I don't know, but I certainly do not intend to take a ride in her."

McCintic said however, that when the Akron's sister ship—the Mason—is completed, "I will recommend that the committee take a ride aboard her."

The Oklahoma man expressed the opinion that his subcommittee now "cannot write a report saying whether the Akron is or is not airworthy."

A note was sent in by reporters asking that one of their number be granted an interview, and after a consultation inside Mr. Arnold's office, the door, called for an Associated Press man, and handed him this note:

"On Board S. S. Conte Blancamano New York Harbor.

"Mrs. Cook has requested me to inform the press that neither she nor Louise will make any statement or comment on answer any questions concerning the death of her daughter Elizabeth.

"She requests that the press show her consideration in this hour of sorrow by ceasing to annoy her."

"St. George Tucker Arnold."

When the liner docked Mrs. Cook's brother, Albert E. Carroll, retired Boston business man, came aboard and entered the stateroom declaring: "Not a word" to the 30 or more reporters outside.

After five minutes he emerged, waving his hands in an agitated manner, and said:

"My sister is a sick woman. She was weak and she couldn't speak to me except to kiss me. If you persist in questioning her you will make her collapse."

Makes Appeal
"I beg you to have sympathy enough for her in this tragedy to depart and leave this case alone. She is so nervous all that I haven't asked her any questions about the case and there is nothing I can tell you."

SENATOR DEMANDS INJUNCTION CURB

Norris Says It Makes Slaves of American Workmen; Raps Wilkerson's Acts.

Washington, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Demanding a curb on the use of injunctions in labor disputes, Chairman Norris of the Senate Judiciary committee told the Senate today they had resulted in "economic slavery" for American workmen.

The gray haired Nebraskan opened Senate debate on his bill to curtail the injunctive powers of Federal judges. He said the right of labor to organize had been interfered with by means of the "harsh, cruel and misused injunctive process."

"Such conditions," he said, "bring about involuntary servitude—a condition of economic slavery which cannot permanently exist in a free country; and such economic slavery is as cruel, as merciless and as effective as slavery based upon the color of the human skin."

"The man who, by force of economic conditions, is compelled to toil against his wish and under conditions depriving him of his freedom, is a slave even though his skin may be white."

"The tyranny of some of these injunctions has taken away the freedom and the liberty of many of our citizens as completely and as tyrannically as ever occurred in days when slavery was recognized by the Constitution."

Norris specifically singled for condemnation certain injunctions issued by Judge James H. Wilkerson of Chicago, whom President Hoover has named to the Circuit Court.

"Can anyone claim for a moment that is not a decree of human slavery?" he asked after describing the terms of Wilkerson's injunction against the Chicago Federation of Musicians. He said it was "conscienceless."

Must Be Careful
Since Wilkerson's name must be approved by his committee, it was considered significant that Norris added this decision made it necessary not only to pass legislation but to be careful in passing upon any action which the President may make.

Norris bill would outlaw the "Yellow Dog" contracts, which the Senator said "take away from the laboring man the right to have anything to say about any of the conditions connected with his employment."

He characterized injunctions as "judge made law."

He said they "do away with all the fundamental principles of government and put in the hands of one man the right to make the law, the right to enforce the law, the right to fix a penalty, the right to try those who, it is alleged, have offended the law thus made, and the right to inflict whatever punishment they believe should be administered."

WARD'S DEMONSTRATES PRESSURE COOKING

All this week Montgomery Ward's Retail Store has been surprising Manchester women with a demonstration of Pressure Cooking. Complete meals are cooked in 10 minutes over a single burner, and that turned low. Canning is accomplished in one-third the time usual with ordinary methods. In both operations a finer flavor and taste is obtained since food is more perfectly cooked. This is an improved method and retains the precious body-building juices, vitamins and mineral salts, lost in ordinary cooking.

Demonstration daily at 3 p. m., and everyone has an opportunity to sample the food. Manchester women are finding this cooking demonstration very interesting and timely as cooking is a constant three-times-a-day problem.

THE TINYMITE

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN PICTURES BY JOE KING

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

All of the Tinies shouted, "Oh! We're glad to know you, Old Man Blow. But, say, where did you come from and what are you doing here? We saw you coming through the air and, frankly, you gave us some scare. But now you seem so nice that we have lost our touch of fear."

SENSE AND NONSENSE

The proprietor was showing a Scotch friend through his store. When they came to the knife counter he presented him with a jack-knife.

Grocer—But remember, you must give me a penny so it will not cut our friendship.

The Scotchman put his hand in his pocket but could find only a nickel. This the proprietor could not change.

Scotchman—Well, I guess you'll have to give me four more knives.

Grocer—H'm! So you want a job? Do you ever tell lies? Applicant—No, sir; but I kin learn.

Storekeeper—Shall I draw the chicken for you, madam? Young Bride—No, thank you. Your description is quite sufficient.

Lawyer (Cross-examining witness)—You seem to have plenty of intelligence for a man in your position.

Witness—If I wasn't on oath I'd return the compliment.

Faith is the quality that enables you to eat blackberry jam on a picnic without looking to see whether the sees move. . . . Everybody knows advertising pays. The main trouble is that so many people try to get by without paying for it. . . . Man has a natural aversion to being reformed by a fellow he knows isn't any better than he is. . . . If you admire self-made men, what do you think of the man who, left without a father and mother at nine months of age, got his start by crawling to a baby show and winning the first prize of $1,000? . . . Boss—Do you think lobbying should be permitted? Steno—Well, I think it's all right if you're really staying at the hotel.

Husband (at dinner)—Do you mean that there is only one course tonight? Joe—I got even with my wife last night.

Sam—How was that? Joe—She hung her shorts on the end of the bed, so I went through her pockets.

Hiram—So your boy is at college. How is he making it? Jake—He isn't. I'm making it and he's spending it.

ABOUT TOWN

The children of the Fifth School District will not have an additional acre of land to be used as a playground as a result of the decision of the voters of the district. The land, which adjoins the property of the school facing on Keeney street was offered by the owner, Andrew Waleck for $100, but it was the opinion of the voters of the district that it was not the proper time to spend additional money, although the value placed on the land was considered as exceptionally low.

Manchester people are not being attracted in as large numbers to the antique exhibition now being held at Watkins Brothers as are those out of town. Yesterday there were many from out of town who visited the exhibit which has been arranged on the south middle section of the main floor. Many of the people also took advantage of the opportunity to see the exhibit, but the holiday was responsible for many of the out of town visitors.

The members and friends of St. Margaret's Circle, Daughters of Isabella, are holding a bridge and whist to be held in the Knights of Columbus clubrooms at 8 o'clock tonight.

The Taxpayers' League will hold its regular monthly meeting at the High School Auditorium tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. The schools investigating committee, headed by Frank Zimmerman, will make its recommendations of a $100,000 reduction in the educational budget of the town, and this subject will be thoroughly discussed. The matter of incorporating the League will also come before the meeting.

Captain and Mrs. Clarence H. Wickham of The Pines, Manchester, who were not expected to return home until the middle of next month, arrived in New York this morning and are expected to reach Manchester this evening. Captain and Mrs. Wickham, who were on a trip which was to have taken them to China and Japan before returning to the United States, learned on reaching Port Said, where they were able to secure English printed papers, of the threatening conditions in China and changed their route bringing them back to the United States by way of New York instead of Calcutta, not having any desire to get into China under the present existing circumstances.

At the meeting of Campbell Council K. of C., to be held next Monday evening in Tinker Hall instead of the council's own rooms, a class will be admitted to the first degree. This will be the second class to be admitted this month and is in preparation for second degree work early in March and the third degree later that month.

The Army and Navy club auxiliary will hold its regular meeting Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Jack McCullom, 887 Center street.

The Manchester Rabbit Club, which now has a dozen members, is planning a fur display to be held March 20 at the Y. M. C. A. building. The club has become associated with the Connecticut Rabbit Breeders Association, and on Sunday the members attended a large gathering of fanciers in Meriden. In addition to fur production club members have found a regular market for the meat and on December 29, when there was a special New Year's demand for rabbit meat in the New York market the local club was able to gather from among its members nearly a ton of dressed rabbits and which were shipped to New York by truck. The annual meeting of the local club will be held Wednesday evening at 61 West Middletownpike.

The North End Community Setback League will convene in the upper room of the newly dedicated Y. M. C. A. building tonight. They have been playing most of the games in the present tournament in the fire house at Main and Hilliard streets.

Leo Cleary, proprietor of the Cleary Lunch on Main street, who has been confined to his home on Newman street with pneumonia for the past two weeks is showing marked improvement. He was able to sit up for a time yesterday.

Anthony Kaminski is nursing a sore hand as a result of having the first finger of his right hand caught in a door. It was so badly crushed that amputation of the tip of the finger as far back as the nail was necessary.

Manchester Assembly Order of Rainbow, held its regular business meeting in the Masonic Temple last evening, and followed it by a party in honor of Miss Doris Rogers, whose marriage to Albert James of Cheshire will take place in the near future. Games were played and Miss Rogers was escorted to the John Mather room which was prettily decorated with streamers in rainbow colors. They extended from the center of the room and were wound around various objects. At the end of each streamer the bride-to-be found veils and joke gifts. Finally she came to the real gift of the Rainbow Girls, an electric coffee percolator.

The Young Married People's club will have another "hot luck" supper at the Second Congregational church tomorrow evening at 8:30. A George Washington program will follow, during which Mrs. Lillian Bowers will read excerpts from Percy MacKaye's play entitled "Washington at Mount Vernon."

Girl Scouts of Troop 7 gave a successful card party last night at the Buckland school, fifteen tables being filled with players. The winners at whist were Mrs. Arthur Seymour, Edward Kenbell and Mrs. John Gleason. In setback Miss Mary Gleason, John Smith and Charles Kaselauka. Carl Wiganowski prompted for the old-fashioned game, with Karl Borst at the piano. The refreshment committee served ice cream with chocolate sauce and home made cup cakes.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kilgour of Farmington spent the holiday yesterday with relatives in town.

Notices have been placed in the Manchester Public Library on School street to the effect that no books will be given out after February 26. During the first two weeks in March the library will be open each afternoon from 1 to 4 p. m., excepting Saturday, for the return of all books. The library patrons are urged to co-operate with the above request of the directors, which is made necessary by the re-cataloguing of books prior to removal to the new Whitton Memorial library.

The Ladies Sewing circle of the Highland Park Community club will give the second setback in the series tonight at the clubhouse, with Mrs. William Ketch and Mrs. J. N. Nichols as hostesses. Six prizes will be given, three to the men and women making the highest scores, and refreshments will be served after the games.

Mrs. Gertrude Buchanan of 175 Woodland street will give the second of a series of home card parties tomorrow afternoon for the benefit of the Y. F. W. auxiliary and hopes for a good attendance of the members and their friends. Playing will begin at 2:15. There will be three prizes and refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Williams who have been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. John Williams of Hudson street, made a flying auto trip to Boston yesterday, taking their daughter, Miss Mabel Williams, back to her studies at Wellesley college after a few days in town. They left here after 9 a. m., had luncheon together in Boston and returned in time for Mrs. Williams to attend the D.A.R. program at Center Church house at 8 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Today Mrs. Williams and her mother, Mrs. H. L. Vickers, motored down to Lakeside, N. J., where they will spend two weeks.

The fourth quarterly conference will take place tomorrow evening at the South Methodist church, beginning with supper at 6:30. Reports will be submitted from heads of all the church organizations.

Fred Werner, well known organist and teacher of the piano, entertained 18 of his younger pupils with a Washington party at his home on West street Sunday afternoon. The decorations and favors were of a patriotic nature. The boys and girls played games and later Mr. Werner's mother served a buffet lunch, in keeping with the occasion.

Manchester Grange will have a combined Lincoln and Washington program at its meeting in Odd Fellows hall tomorrow evening. Principal C. P. Quimby of Manchester High school will speak on Lincoln, and it is hoped for a full attendance of the members. There will also be special music. The officers are requested to be present at 7 o'clock for rehearsal.

Mrs. J. J. Dwyer of "The Gables," Main street, has returned after spending a few days with her son Robert in Washington, D. C.

Miss Evelyn Clarke has returned to her secretarial duties at the Boston Y. W. C. A. after a short visit at her home on Porter street.

Women of the Mooses will hold their regular business meeting tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the Home Club on Esplanade Place. A large attendance is desired as there will be an initiation of candidates, followed by a social hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warder of 118 Main street have been entertaining guests from Cleveland, Ohio, the past few days.

ARREST OF DRIVERS DELAYS GLEE CLUB

Beethovens Make Trip To Brockton For Concert But Meet With Mishaps.

The Beethoven Glee Club journeyed to Brockton, Mass., yesterday afternoon to present a concert at the Swedish Lutheran church there and was detained more than an hour in Rhode Island when the drivers of the two buses chartered by the club from the Blue Goose Stages, Inc., were arrested by State Police for speeding. Both cases were heard at the state police barracks and each driver was fined $10 and costs, totaling $37.50.

Five Hour Trip The club left here at 2:15 o'clock and arrived in Brockton at 7:30 o'clock, only having time for a hasty supper before the concert. The program consisted of sacred and secular music and was splendidly rendered. Miss Helen and Miss Elsie Berggren and G. Albert Pearson were the soloists. L. Burdett Hawley and Miss Eva M. Johnson were accompanists. The Misses Berggren also contributed incidental solos as did Rudolph Swanson.

Following the program, refreshments were served in the basement. On behalf of the club members, Ernest Kjelson presented Kenneth L. Woodbury, secretary of the Beethoven Club, with an etching of Beethoven. Mr. Woodbury left the employ of Cheney Brothers last Friday and has returned to his home in Massachusetts.

Bus Trouble The bus drivers were arrested in North Scituate and charged with driving between 60 and 65 miles an hour, the state law being 35 miles an hour. On the homeward trip, one of the buses was affected with a trouble exactly opposite to speeding and upon reaching Nigger Hill refused to function at all. The club left Brockton at 10:30 o'clock and arrived in Manchester between 8:30 and 4 o'clock this morning.

The program presented at the concert was as follows: Part 1. 1. Devotion! Sanctus, Schubert; Hark! Holy Voice, Wilson; Laudamus, Protheros—Beethoven Glee Club. 2. The Living God, O'Hara—G. Albert Pearson. 3. Nun of Nidaros, Buck—Beethoven Glee Club. 4. How Long Will Thou Forget Me, Speaks—Helen Berggren. 5. Anvil Chorus, "Il Trovatore," Verdi; Mother O' Mine, Burligh; Sleigh, Kountz-Baldwin—Beethoven Glee Club. Part 2. 6. Duet—"Quis est Homo," "Sta-bet Mater," Rossmi—Helen and Elsie Berggren. 7. Musical Trust, Cloney; Shenandoah, River Chanty; Italian Street Song, "Naughty Marietta," Herbert—Beethoven Glee Club. 8. Quiet, O'Hara; When I Think Upon the Maidens, Head—G. Albert Pearson. 9. Countess Host, Greig; Good Night, German Folk Song; Lost Chord, Sullivan—Beethoven Glee Club.
