Grape Growers Want Permission To Sell Naturally Fermented Beverages — Call Industry Perfectly Legal.

Washington, April 25.—(AP)—Organized anti-prohibitionists in Congress today looked with considerable skepticism on the proposal by Donald D. Conn, director of the California Vineyardists Association, that the Eighteenth Amendment be modified to permit the sale of naturally fermented beverages.

Chairman Stone however, said the Farm Board did not mean a penny to fruit industry "until it had been assured by the Department of Justice, the Treasury and the Prohibition Bureau that the grape concentrate business of that company was perfectly legal."

A statement by the Department of Justice said it "was never consulted and it did not participate in any conference concerning the marketing of grape concentrates for making wine in the home."

U. S. Ambassador Honored By German University; Is Now Doctor of Science.

Tuebingen, Germany, April 25.—(AP)—The honorary degree of Doctor of Science was conferred with solemn ceremony today upon United States Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett by the ancient University of Tuebingen as an expression of Germany's thanks for the Hoover moratorium on reparations payments.

The degree was conferred by the dean of the economic and scientific faculty who paid warm tribute to the American proposals of last June for alleviating the Reich's financial burdens.

"In appreciation of the fact," he said, "that Ambassador Sackett recognized in good time the dangers which threatened the world's economy through Germany's economic crisis and energetically tried to ward off these dangers, proving himself Germany's warm hearted friend, I confer this degree."

Sackett's Response The ambassador, in a response delivered at a luncheon following the ceremony, recalled similar honors conferred on his predecessors, Ambassadors Alanson B. Houghton and Jacob Gould Schurman, by the Universities of Göttingen and Heidelberg, praised the contributions of German universities to the progress of modern civilization.

He referred to the peculiar difficulties of continuing the intellectual life when the chief concern of a people was for the merest necessities of existence. "But," he added, "I am sure a generous providence will fortify and encourage you in maintaining the development of this charming environment."

ALIENIST ATTACKS INSANITY DEFENSE

Expect Massie Case To Go To the Jury Not Later Than Tomorrow.

Honolulu, April 25.—(AP)—The insanity plea of Lieut. Thomas Massie faced a final attack today by another expert in the workings of the human mind.

To the testimony of two physicians that Massie was not insane when Joseph Kahahawai, who he was convinced criminally attacked Mrs. Massie, was slain, the prosecution was prepared to add the testimony of a third doctor, Joseph Catton, Sanford University psychiatrist.

Dr. Catton was to take the stand again to stress the jury of mixed races, the prosecution's contention that the Hawaiian was slain by a sane man who killed with revenge in his heart. The defense contends the United States naval officer became temporarily insane while trying to obtain a confession that would restore his wife's good name.

In Last Witness Dr. Catton is the last prosecution witness. The psychiatrist was brought here from the mainland last week and court was adjourned Saturday to permit him to complete his study of the case. Yesterday he submitted a long report to prosecutor John C. Kelley. Its contents were not revealed, but it was learned Dr. Catton agreed with Doctors Paul Ewers and Robert Paus, the physicians who testified Friday that Massie was sane.

With the defense resting upon (Continued on Page Two) TREASURY BALANCE Washington, April 25.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for April 22 were $3,943,467.47; expenditures $27,864,116.68; balance $393,659,102.54. Customs duties for 22 days of April were $15,610,689.17.

VETERAN HISSIED AS HE OPPOSES BONUS PAYMENT

Cry of "Throw Him Out" Heard As Baltimore Speaks For Group of Ex-Soldiers Against the Plan.

Washington, April 25.—(AP)—A war veteran, Fred C. Reynolds of Baltimore, was loudly hissed by fellow veterans today when he opposed the cash bonus payment before the House ways and means committee.

One cry of "Throw Him Out" was heard. Reynolds said he represented a group of veterans opposed to full payment.

"We feel this bill to be class legislation which endangered the financial stability of the government," he said, referring to the Patms bill to expand the currency by two billion dollars to pay the remainder outstanding on the bonus certificates.

"We want you to know that there are some veterans who consider this appeal unpatriotic." Representative Rainey of Illinois, the Democratic leader, who was presiding, warned that the demonstration of a large number of district residents had become more marked as groups of youths gathered around meeting places of the sect.

HITLERITES GAIN IN DIET ELECTIONS

Is Now Strongest Party In Four Out of Five German States—The Results.

Berlin, April 25.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler's National Socialists had become the strongest political party in four of the five German states today due to a sweep of yesterday's Diet elections, but it still lacked clear control of any of them.

Only in Bavaria did they run slightly behind. The election resulted in three deaths, many other casualties, hundreds of arrests and numerous minor disorders.

In Prussia which covers two-thirds of Germany and where the fight was most bitter because of the theory that "whoever controls Prussia controls the Reich" the Hitlerite forces won 162 seats in comparison with the nine they held heretofore.

The National Socialists with four minor opposition parties, command only 268 out of the 450 seats in the Prussian Diet. They could form a government only if the 87 members of the Centrist party, which is that of Chancellor Heinrich Brüning, were to support them.

The rule is that the present government hold over, in any event, until a new government is formed with the support of 51 per cent of the Diet.

The only other party in Prussia to make a gain was the Communist which now has 57 seats compared with its former 48. Social Democrats (Continued on Page Three)

CREDIT CORPORATION NOW SHORT OF FUNDS

Washington, April 25.—(AP)—The Railroad Credit Corporation cannot get enough money to meet the appeals of carriers for funds to pay fixed interest charges and is endeavoring to have the Reconstruction Corporation carry a considerable portion of the load. This became known today through a letter received by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Reconstruction Corporation from R. W. Barrett, vice-president and general counsel of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company. Barrett sent a copy of a letter he had received from E. G. Buckland, president of the Railroad Credit Corporation, formed to gather and disburse money derived from freight rate increases which went into effect January 4.

The Lehigh Valley has asked the Railroad Credit Corporation to loan it $1,500,000 to cover fixed interest obligations due May 1. It also has applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for a similar loan from the Reconstruction Corporation. "The Railroad Credit Corporation," Buckland wrote, "does not have funds available for making such a loan at this time or in sufficient time to meet the requirements of the carrier, having due regard to the requirements and needs of other carriers and to other loans already authorized by this corporation."

He suggested the road endeavor to have the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation make the loan and added: "From such data as are now available, it is clear that loans to be made to carriers for meeting fixed interest obligations will be in excess of the total receipts available or to become available to the Railroad Credit Corporation."

BOWERS LAUDS MONROE

Ashlawn, Va., April 25.—(AP)—Claude Bowers, biographer and keynote speaker at the Democratic National convention in 1928, today praised James Monroe, author of the Monroe Doctrine, as "the outstanding man of action among the three Munksters of Democracy—Jefferson, Monroe and Madison."

Addressing the conference of governors meeting at the Monroe home here for the dedication of the Monroe statue by Attilio Fiorilli the writer said of the third President of the United States:

"He was essentially a fighter. The others might use the rapier of finesse; he preferred the battle axe."

Bowers told the chief executives they stood on hallowed ground where Monroe met with his friends, Thomas Jefferson and James Madison, to discuss the problems of the young republic. He further declared that when Monroe's philosophy, "born of his passion for liberty and human rights," dies, the republic will cease to live.

Manchester police activities have stopped the activity of delivering hooch in milk bottles painted white but they just missed getting the goods on a variety of milkmen. Several of these new "milkmen" have started in business here recently. They delivered a little milk and considerable of the hill-made variety of strong waters. The white paint made the bottles of hooch look like the innocent lacteal.

CLOSE VOTES RECORDED ON COAL, COPPER DUTIES

committee members favored the tackling of the issue at once. Chairman Smoot (R., Utah) and Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, ranking Democrat, said the matter would be taken up with the Senate.

Notice was served several days ago by Senator Hull (D., Tenn.) that he intended to move elimination of the tariffs now carried in the bill and seek to blind the committee not to add any more.

Asked about it today, Hull said he would make such a motion if his "leaders do not."

Both Republicans and Democrats marshaled their full forces. Senator King (D., Utah), who is ill, was called at his home by Senator Harrison but was not expected to be able to attend the sessions until later in the week.

Taxes On Oil The Democratic membership of the committee was not unanimously in favor of eliminating tariffs. Two of the leading proponents of the tax on oil imports voted by the House are Democratic members—Senators Connally, of Texas, and Gore of Oklahoma.

The House bill also contained a tariff on coal and efforts have already been launched in Senate circles to add copper and timber to the list.

As the committee sat down to its big job, members had at their elbow a fat 1440 page volume of testimony given in the recent hearings.

Senator Reed (R., Pa.) said he hoped a manufacturers sales tax, rejected by the House, might be adopted by the Senate in lieu of some of the excise taxes on selected products.

Technical experts from the Treasury joined the committee as it began its work behind closed doors.

In a series of votes, the committee retained oil and coal duties in the bill and added copper to the list of import taxes. It rejected the attempt to insert duties on lumber and forest products in the measure.

The committee also rejected by 10 to 8 a provision to change the tariff with respect to imports from countries whose currency has depreciated.

Two Republicans—Keyes of New Hampshire and LaFollette of Wisconsin—voted against all tariff items.

CONTROLLED CREDIT PLAN IS ADVANCED BY MILLS

to set in motion forces that will make economic recovery possible." As one of these forces, Mills outlined controlled credit expansion, amply safeguarded by the Federal Reserve system.

Controlled Credit "Controlled credit expansion is only possible through the operation of that system," he said. "I emphasize this to bring out the contrast between controlled expansion of this kind and pure inflation, such as is involved in proposals now before Congress for printing fiat currency, or such as would result ultimately from a series of unbalanced budgets."

On the budget question Mills was emphatic: "No greater blow could be dealt to National confidence and to the National credit," he emphasized, "than the failure of the Federal government in times like these to follow a sound fiscal policy and to balance its budget."

Drastic Economies "This means, for the government, drastic economies," for the people, an additional burden of taxation. What is the alternative? Continued borrowing at constantly increasing interest rates, progressive depreciation in the value of all outstanding government securities, loss of confidence and in the end uncontrolled inflation and a sad day of reckoning."

Mills termed it a "most extraordinary and baffling paradox" that this country, richer in actual and real wealth "than anything ever dreamed of by any nation in the world," at the same time has been and is undergoing "the most severe depression ever experienced."

He outlined the causes and effects of the latest and most serious phase of the world-wide economic derangement, beginning last May with the insolvency of the great Austrian bank, Creditanstalt, which, he said, in turn undermined Germany, causing the collapse which has gripped confidence throughout the world, forced Great Britain off the gold standard, and swept down upon the United States and the American dollar.

Gold Resources Drop "That battle was won, but the cost was heavy," he continued. "When the battle was over * * * the gold resources of the United States were over $700,000,000 lower, hundreds of banks had failed, the banks were heavily in debt to the Federal Reserve system and currency was being hoarded on an immense scale."

But for these events, he said, recovery might have begun many months ago. Even then when "the economic forces working towards contraction and deflation had fairly well spent themselves" Mills said the forces of recovery were more than offset by the "paralyzing fear which gripped our people, the loss of confidence, and the terrible contraction of credit which forced business and prices to new low levels."

Banks Assisted There followed, as he sketched the process, the various means taken by the government to halt bank failures—86.4 per cent of those aided by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation were in towns of less than 25,000, he said—aid the railroads, insurance companies and other units "affected with the public interest."

On top of these came the anti-hoarding campaign and the steps for credit expansion. The anti-hoarding campaign's results and other evidence, said Mills, indicate clearly that there is a "definite, if gradual" return of confidence.

"I have tried to point out that credit and confidence are the magicians that must solve our paradox for us," said Mills. "I have pointed out that progress has been achieved. But it takes time to arrest and reverse these great movements, and while it seems almost cruel to urge patience after an already protracted period of waiting, yet I cannot help but feel that we should give the forces which have been set in motion an opportunity to exert themselves before yielding to doubt as to whether we are on the right path."

"I have seen nothing," he concluded, "even in the darkest hours of doubt, to impair my faith in the promise of American life."

SUPPOSED GRAND DUKE HELD AS A STOWAWAY

New York, April 25.—(AP)—A suave man with a dark mustache, Michael Romanoff, who was believed by passengers to be a Russian grand duke, arrived on the liner Ile de France today with the prospect of an indefinite stay on Ellis Island to determine his status.

After mingling with first class passengers on the ship for four days he was discovered by ship's officers to be without a ticket or a passport.

Romanoff had a complete wardrobe and an acquaintance he struck up with Edward A. Cudahy, Chicago packer, led to his discovery as a stowaway. Romanoff told Cudahy he was a great friend of Captain J. Blumart, commander of the liner. Later Cudahy, while being entertained by the captain, mentioned this supposed friendship and the captain ordered a checkup.

Romanoff, who had $140 in cash, offered to pay his passage with a check, but as he had no papers the line could not sell him a ticket.

In a brief interview after the ship arrived, Romanoff declined to explain his predicament.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

From the Tufts College publicity department comes the news that Ruth Smith, M. H. S., '25, and Ruth Behrend, M. H. S., '29, senior and junior respectively at Tufts, are taking many honors in the student activities of the college.

Ruth Behrend was in charge of the All Round Club Formal last Saturday night in the new Tufts gymnasium, the main social event of the spring season. She has been an officer in the All Round for three years. In addition she has played on her class hockey team, class baseball team and the varsity tennis team.

PROGRAM OF CONTRASTS AT S. M. E. MUSICAL

Three Numbers of Russian School Contribute To Interest of Admirable Concert.

The program of the musical presented at the South Methodist church last night was made up of request numbers which friends of the choir had asked for, and consisted of compositions by masters of modern and early periods. The program in detail shows the diversity of themes and their composers.

Organ "Dawn," Jenkins Choral from the "Meister-singers," Wagner "Hear My Prayer," Kopylov "Jesu, Friends of Sinners," Greig "As the Waves of the Sea," Gretchaninoff "The Song of Mary," Kranz "Gloria in Excelsis," (St. Cecilia), Gounod Organ "Stella Matutina," Daller "In Joseph's Lovely Garden," Dickinson "The Day of Judgement," Arkhangelski Luthicum asserted. "And the dry members of the House approve an excise tax on malt and hops used in home brewing. They certainly do not think that the man who makes beer at home is going to see that it has less than one half of one per cent alcohol."

LaGuardia held differences between the vineyardists and the Federal government "are the inevitable and expected fermentation of hypocrisy."

"The noble experiment is a bust," he said. "I am only sorry that President Hoover hasn't the courage to say so now instead of waiting until after the conventions. After the voters decide in November we'll put an end to the problem real soon anyhow—and we won't stop with the modification Mr. Donald D. Conn asks for the vineyardists."

Hunan, province of China, is about the size of Idaho. It has about 400,000 bandits, and one of its cities, Iyang, has changed hands between gangs about 70 times in a recent 12-month period.

In the number "In Joseph's Lovely Garden," the solo part was taken by Miss Eleanor Willard, and her singing was up to its usual high standard.

The choir lived up to the high mark which it long ago set for itself and the many musical lovers and master musicians present experienced a treat. Congratulations were extended to the director, and the choir at the conclusion of the service. Mr. Sessions both in his organ numbers and also in his directing displayed his usual skill.

The religious exercises were conducted by Rev. Robert A. Colpitta, who was assisted by Rev. Joseph Cooper of Stafford Springs, who was formerly pastor at this church.

Save Time And Hard Work For A Few Cents A Week

No woman within reach of electric current can afford to wear herself out over a wash-board and tub and hand wringer—when an electric washer actually cleans better and costs only a few cents a week to operate. Perhaps the children or the home garden may deserve more of your time. There are so many things that you really want to do. An electric ironer will save hours. You can sit at the work while it quickly does the large, straight pieces as well as the small ones—no carrying of six-pound sad-irons. Or an electric iron will relieve much of the old drudgery. LINDBERGH TO MOVE

Hopewell, N. J., April 25.—(AP)—The Lindberghs will move back to Englewood this week, probably Wednesday, away from the Sourland Hills home which has been the scene of so much sorrow for them in recent weeks.

Headquarters of the New Jersey State police, in charge of the hunt for the kidnap Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., will be at Trenton. Only two or three state troopers will be left at the estate to guard it against trespassers.

There have been no developments in the child hunt for several days. The Norfolk, Va., intermediaries, the aged educator who communicated with the kidnapers as "Jafie" and other independent agencies which have been involved in the baby hunt have made no report of progress.

MONDAY, APRIL 25.

BELEATEDLY AWAKE

The determination of the Democratic House Economy Committee to give President Hoover power to reorganize the government departments, subject to Congressional approval, is one that should have been reached long ago. Only a particularly stupid partisanship caused this long delay in adopting a course which, both from the standpoint of political strategy and from that of honest desire to improve national conditions, was obviously the only proper one.

The workings of the executive departments are, primarily, the responsibility of the executive branch of the government. For Congress to undertake the direct management of the departments would be to assume a task which it could never accomplish, even though it should neglect every other duty in favor of that impossible one.

President Hoover's request for authority to reorganize the departments was a proper one. It should have been granted without hesitation months ago.

On the other hand it will seem to many that the clause written into the omnibus cost-cutting bill, by which the proposed changes set up by the President could be voided by Congressional action within 60 days, is a wise provision. The President seems to be rather more than resolute, even stubborn, in his opposition to reduction of federal salaries and in his devotion to his "stagger plan" of furloughs without pay and the five day week. His accredited idea of taking on 25,000 or 50,000 additional federal employes under this system while still effecting great total savings, is one against which the country is pretty sure to revolt. The people will see in it a practical certainty that just so many more drones will be saddled on the backs of the nation to support—"prevailing wage" for equal effort. Mr. Hoover would probably never risk having his whole reorganization plan nullified by putting this particular theory into practice, with this disapproval clause in effect.

Outside of that one factor, which will probably never enter seriously into the problem, there is no question but that reorganization should be left in executive hands. It could have been effected by this time if it had not been for the unintelligent opposition of the opposition majority in the House.

SHORT SELLING

The evidence being given before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee by traders in the New York Stock Exchange is illuminating but whether it provides substantial support for the suspicion that bear raiders are appreciably responsible for the state of the market is another matter.

None of the witnesses have contributed more valuable testimony than Percy A. Rockefeller, who declared himself a bull by policy and sympathies, stated that he had suffered enormous losses through the fall in stock values, but admitted that he had made profits of $500,000 in the last two years from short sales.

As the owner of long lines of stocks which he naturally hoped would go up but which persisted in going down, Mr. Rockefeller said he had tried to protect himself against part of his losses by engaging in short selling to some extent. In other words he quit battling his head against a stone wall and like most individuals in business sought to let some other fellow stand his losses.

Suppose the market for Manchester real estate were going down perceptibly every day. Suppose a man owned a house worth at one time $10,000. Suppose the selling value of that house had fallen to $6,000 and the owner was convinced that it would keep on going down till it became worth only $2,000. Suppose he knew of a man who wanted to buy the house for $5,000. Suppose he sold the house to the customer, with a view to buying it back again by and by for $2,000. That would be short selling. After he had sold it he would want to see the price keep on going down—but he wouldn't be forcing it down. And suppose he did buy his house back at $2,000, thereby saving himself $3,000 of his $5,000 loss. And then suppose somebody accused him of being a rogue—wouldn't he be indignant? How many of us wouldn't?

WEALTH INSANITY

Now that more light has been shed on the tangled affairs of Ivar Kreuger it is beginning to be a little easier to understand why the rich "match king" killed himself. Indeed, the suicide seems to be the one action in the whole tangled chain that looks logical. All the rest is bizarre, disordered, senseless.

Why should one of the world's richest and most powerful men forge millions of dollars worth of Italian government securities? Why should he contribute heavily to monarchist movements in Spain, to Fascist movements in Germany? Why should he get things into such a mix-up that police investigation is looked for in such widely-separated places as New York, Berlin, Paris, Amsterdam and Geneva?

Is there, perhaps, something about the pursuit of great wealth and great commercial power that betrays a man and compels him to deduce himself when the going gets difficult?

Climbing to the top in the world of finance is no job for the over-ambitious. To reach the position that Ivar Kreuger reached one must have a boundless confidence in one's self, coupled with a readiness to reach out for whatever it is that one happens to want without worrying too greatly over the ethical niceties.

Do that long enough, and eventually you reach the point at which your own will and your own desires are your only law. Then, if bad luck comes, the stage is all set for a titanic crash like that of Kreuger's.

Swedish investigators have asserted that forged Italian bonds with a face value of approximately $100,000,000 were traced to the match king's door. Imagine the utter impossibility of finally evading detection in a swindle of that size, and you have the measure of this man's delusion.

The determined pursuit of money, beyond the point at which one has enough to buy the freedom and leisure which money can provide, is an ignoble game. A debacle like that of Kreuger's is a sample of its final significance.

BUS SPEEDS

If Motor Vehicles Commissioner Stoekel will carry his campaign against over-speeded motorbuses to a definite conclusion he will find himself supported wholeheartedly by the people of this state.

The motorbuses provide possibly the very best of all examples of the theory that high speed, controlled with complete skill, produces relatively few accidents—a theory to which the commissioner for years has been rather definitely committed. But they constitute, nevertheless, a constant and deadly menace when permitted to run on any such schedules as those recently in effect.

With very few exceptions indeed the bus drivers are marvelously capable and adroit. They handle their great lumbering vehicles with surpassing skill. They seem to have no nerves. And, when all things are considered, they have extraordinarily few accidents. When they do have one it is ghastly.

But it is not all skill and not all luck that enable the buses to go on their thundering ways unscathed. It is the other fellow—the chap at the wheel of the smaller vehicle, who driven by fear into yielding everything to the bus and taking every precaution that the bus does not have to take, makes the highway safe for the express train speed of the latter. The bus toots its horn and the traffic takes to the ditch and permits it to tear by on its devastating career.

By all means, Mr. Commissioner, put the bee on these bus schedules—and let it be a big bee with a long sting. And please do not say anything about avoiding speed "unsafe under the conditions." They might have you, there.

PHILIPPINES

When the question of independence for the Philippines comes up, there is one point on which it is important that the people of the United States refrain from deluding themselves.

That is the level of culture reached by the people of the islands. Many Americans conceive of all Filipinos as semi-savage people who indulge in head-hunting, devil-worship and cannibalism in practically all parts of the archipelago except the larger cities. There could be no more mistaken notion than that. As a matter of fact, there has been a rich culture in the Philippines for more than 300 years. The Filipinos are far more literate and well-informed than the people of the Balkans, for example; their standard indeed runs higher than that in certain states of the American Union. Americans who look on all Filipinos as jungle people tragically unready for self-government are simply fooling themselves.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

THIRD PARTY THREAT BY DEYS MIGHT BE BOOMEANG

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

Washington—The one sure way to get the prohibition issue out of politics would be to get a Prohibition Party organized to contest the Democrats and Republicans.

That is a course which leaders of dry organizations have been threatening to take, more or less openly, in case both major parties lay moist planks in their 1932 platforms, and the wets are enthusiastic over that idea.

Leaders of the wets would like nothing better than to segregate under one political banner all voters who consistently vote dry, ahead of everything else. Such a move presumably would further weaken such hold as the Anti-Saloon League and affiliated organizations still have on Republicans and Democrats.

Nevertheless, if both Republican and Democratic parties "go wet," it would seem to leave the dries rather in a hole, with little to do except to confine themselves to an attempt to hold their lines in the congressional elections—unless they formed the threatened new party.

Might Lack Leaders

It is more or less amusing to speculate on what sort of a party the dries would have and how far it might get. Few important officeholders or other politicians would be lured in, although some of the "Hoovercrat" leaders in 1928 might report for duty.

The miserable fate of most of the Democratic leaders who bolted Smith for Hoover would be an adequate object lesson, if any were needed, for such officials now politically dry as might be asked to give up their political affiliations and firmly entrenched, machine-backed positions to follow the new party.

Who Would They Nominate?

Presumably the party's presidential candidate would not be Bishop Cannon, Dr. Clarence True Wilson or F. Scott McBride. On first thought, at least, the business of nominating a candidate who would accept and who would have any strong personal popular pull as against the ramified political machinery of the major parties seems to present little difficulty.

No presidential nominee of the old Prohibition Party ever drew more than 260,000 votes. A 1932 dry candidate probably would do much better, even in proportion to the total vote, but it is hard to believe that he could carry a single state.

The Prohibition Party used to have platform covering most of the day's important issues, often endorsing advanced progressive legislation aside from dry measures. But the dry cause was its chief stimulus. Platforms called for "righteous uprising and indignant and effective rebuke" for politicians who drank or served wine in the White House.

Many of the foremost progressives of this day are dry, including Norris, Borah and other western senators. But it is to be doubted whether any joint program of prohibition and progressivism could ever be worked out to the satisfaction of both groups. A lot of progressives are wet and many dries are reactionary.

You Can't Laugh It Off

Organizing a third party also costs plenty of money and the bigger a party you try to organize, the more it costs. The dries have been having money trouble, as have most other groups trying to raise cash.

But if a dry third party really is established, it probably won't do to try laughing it off. Even though the effect would be almost certainly damaging to prohibition through final loss of the dry dictatorship over major parties, a dry ticket might draw off just enough votes to change the normal result in some contests between the two parties.

Some such similar fate might fall on either the Republican or Democratic nominee in case a dry party should be organized for the election this November.

MORE AVIATION MONEY

London.—A slight increase in the air subsidy of Great Britain is expected for the year ending March 31, 1933, according to "air estimates" recently presented to Parliament. The "estimates" set the amount for the year ending March 31 at about $2,865,000, as compared with $2,850,000 of the previous year.

Health and Diet Advice
By DR. FRANK MCCOY

HOW TO GAIN STRENGTH

Many people want to know if there are any medicines or tonics which will help them grow stronger. I do not know of any medicines which actually put strength into the body. Many of the tonics contain alcohol, and the one drinking them feels stronger, smarter and braver than he really is, just as though he took a drink of liquor. However, such a false sensation of vigor and joy afterwards is depression and the patient ends up feeling worse than he did before. If there is any medicine which can quickly restore lasting strength to the human frame, I have never seen it.

ENERGY FOODS

Many patients want a list of all the "energy foods." One realizes that some foods are commonly classed as "energy foods," but in this case the name is misleading and conveys a mistaken idea. Such foods really do not afford energy unless they are used in the body. You must first create an actual need for food before any strength can be gained from it. Stuffing on foods will generally hinder rather than help, and may increase a tendency to such troubles as indigestion, asthma and swollen tonsils.

Some patients have an idea they should go to bed to "save" their strength. This method of conserving strength is totally wrong except in the most severe crisis of disease. In ordinary cases of weakness may be benefited by a short rest in bed, but after several weeks there is a loss and not a gain of strength. Curiously enough, the only way to increase strength is to use what you have.

It is not hard for most people to realize that an arm which was not used for six weeks would waste away and become weak from lack of use. However, the same people will want to go to bed for six weeks, expecting to gain strength and will be greatly surprised when the effect on the body is exactly the same as on the arm which was tied up. You cannot gain strength lying in bed doing nothing.

EXERCISE ESSENTIAL

If you want to gain strength, this is what you must do: Each day you are to do some special exercises. Keep them up regularly, and do each one in a quick, snappy manner. This is the way to get the best results. Keep track of how many times you are able to do each exercise. Each day exert yourself just a trifle more. If you can do an exercise four times the first day, then next day increase it to five times and so on. In the beginning it is the best plan for you to try to accomplish only a few movements of each exercise. You may feel exhausted the first day, but if you will have faith, and will do the exercises for one solid month, you will notice considerable improvement in your strength. Never exercise until exhausted, but alternate fatigue induced by movements will pass away quickly and leave you feeling stronger than before.

When we speak of gaining strength, we mean strength to move our muscles. This method I have just given you sounds so very easy and simple that many people who want to increase their strength will not even try.

When you begin to exercise you will not feel much improvement in the muscles. You must first build up a certain amount of muscle before you will have a conscious sensation of strength. But the day will come when you will be thrilled and astounded to raise an arm or leg and feel a ripple of muscular strength in these parts of your own body. This sensation will give you a deep, satisfying feeling of power like nothing else you have ever known. One who has this reward will press forward toward winning more strength like a winning runner presses against the tape. All at once you will realize the energy and vigor of mind and body which Nature meant you to have.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Spinach and Raw Cabbage)
 Question: Mrs. Crystal J. writes: "I have been in the habit of eating raw spinach until recently when I was told that spinach contains oxalic acid and that it will cause acidosis. Having substituted the spinach for raw cabbage, will you kindly tell me which of the two vegetables is preferable? Can raw and if the spinach really does cause acidosis?"

Answer: There is a good deal of misunderstanding regarding the oxalic acid in spinach. Spinach is one of the most alkaline-forming foods but it does contain a small amount of oxalic acid, however, not enough to cause any injury unless one is suffering from kidney or bladder stones of the oxalate type. In most people oxalic acid is oxidized in the blood the same as other organic acids and leaves no residue except carbon dioxide and water. Raw cabbage causes flatulence in some cases but, if it does not in your case, I do not believe there is any preference of one vegetable over the other.

(Something New in Punishment)
 Question: Mrs. R. T. writes: "What do you think of giving a little nine-year-old boy Epsom salts as a punishment? My mother does this. Is this con'used, will it not cause some trouble? I told her it would, but she says that salts never harm anyone."

Answer: Your mother must have read about Mussolini's treatment of Italian labor agitators. It is said that he made some of the unruly ones take castor oil until they promised to be good. It should not be necessary to give salts even as inexative to a child, and certainly not as a punishment. Your mother should read some of the recent books on child training.

IN NEW YORK

 New York, April 25.—In a currently popular musical satire, The Astors, Goulds and Vanderbilts are shown dining at an Automot. Another scene reveals luxury shops in such panic that barbers are employed to drag in customers.

to end all depression parties. The plans include a hurdy-gurdy—or several hurdy-gurdies—instead of the usual society jazz band. Bryn Mawr, where economics are discussed and workers' parties held, might be hired, and guests would be catered from an Automot or a Childs.

One of the requirements, say advance reports, will be that each guest give up a favorite luxury for this occasion.

However, none will ever be able to nab the party laurels from Eliza Maxwell, who is swankdom's pet originator and cut-up. Miss Maxwell spends most of her time abroad among the wits, sophisticates, artists and salon crowd.

They had just about run out of novelty ideas and 20-piece bands were getting commonplace, when along came the good old depression to help them out. Rarify was just around the corner!

For several months the society columns have reported the smartness of hostesses who served corned beef and cabbage or frankfurters and sauerkraut. Just a few weeks ago, one of the finest Fifth Avenue residences was the scene of a country fair with hundreds of Blue Book ladies going shopping for vegetables and fruits. There have been many more gestures in the same direction.

Her various visits home are usually followed by some novelty that keeps society chatting until the next one comes along. Last year Miss Maxwell's invitations insisted among the wits, sophisticates, artists and salon crowd.

But when someone satirized the "party yearnings" of Mrs. Vanderbilt—oh my dears!

Mrs. Fliske's Fancies
 Memoir sleuths and biographical researchers, now engaged in tracking down material concerning the late Minnie Maddern Fliske, are turning up vastly interesting sidelights and anecdotes.

Her attitude toward the world's dumb animals is fairly well known. She refused to wear furs and would eat no meat. Several times, fur-coated young actresses have faced her wrath and several learned that if they wanted her favor they had best leave their fur wraps at home. One prominent society woman received a ten-minute tongue lashing.

One time, during rehearsal, everything seemed to have gone wrong, and Mrs. Fliske seemed to be willing from fatigue. A member of the company urged her to rest. Mrs. Fliske waved her aside with: "No, this is just one of those occasions when the best-lifted faces fall!"

BRITISH SWIFT BACK.
 On April 25, 1918, German troops occupied a part of Mont Kemmel, one of the key positions in the Lys sector, after a day of heavy fighting with the British and French troops. French troops were forced out of Hangard by fresh German shock troops.

Fighting of great intensity continued, with German gains being small, on the entire Lys front. Five new German divisions were in the battle, allied officials said.

British counter-attacks regained some of the ground lost early in the day, but pressure on the entire British front was very great.

Germany sent an ultimatum to Holland demanding the right to transport certain supplies not used in war through Dutch territory.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Chicago: Daylight saving time has cost human life. Mrs. Anna Larson climbed a stepladder to set her clock ahead. The ladder collapsed and she was killed. London: Two dollars will buy many things these days—including a dozen pequin eggs. These delicacies, come from South Africa, are quite the thing for fashion's table now—oh, really. Warsaw: Polish officials have put an O. K. on the American method of keeping the doctor away—an apple a day. Last fall they put out a prohibitive order against the American fruit. Now they realize what they're missing, so they've modified the order and, in due time, will be able to bite into a luscious Northern Spy with gusto. Chicago: Benjamin Goodman, fearful of robbers, decided to stay all night in his store. Just to be doubly sure, he gave his wife all the store's cash—$65—and she went home with it. Mr. Goodman's hunch proved bad, for no robbers appeared at the store; but footpads waylaid Mrs. Goodman and got the $65. Fate's funny. Evanston, Ill.: The terms "flat-foot," "cops," and "harness bulls" as applied to policemen are very distasteful to the delicate sensibilities of the citizenry. Alderman James, who believes public and policemen should be more friendly, suggests that the public speak of its officers with more respect. Dyer, Ind.: Anna Schaub took her boy friend, Walter Scott, for a ride yesterday and wrecked a bank. Anna was rounding a curve. The car, went through the bank's window. The roof of the bank was caved in, and the front and side walls tumbled down. Walter and Anna emerged from the wreckage unhurt but the town marshal took them to jail. Wildwood, N. J.: There are fish yarns aplenty—like this one, vouchered for by Captain Frank Fava of the Grace F., a mackerel smack. The captain is exhibiting one of his yesterday's catch, around the midriff of which is a rubber band. He solemnly avers the band was there when the mackerel was pulled in.

GILEAD

Mrs. Clara E. Hamner recently visited Mrs. Henry Bailey of Colchester, who is seriously ill at the Hartford hospital. Miss Olive White entered the Manchester Memorial hospital Friday morning and was operated on for appendicitis in the afternoon. Her condition is reported as serious. William Keefe of Andover called on old acquaintances here Friday. He is a native of this place and served in the World War, a seriously wounded and has spent much time in veterans' hospitals. The children of Mr. and Mrs. John Strickland were removed to the Manchester Memorial hospital Friday suffering from a form of typhoid fever. Mrs. Alex Spak who recently underwent an operation for gallstones at St. Joseph hospital, Willimantic, was removed Friday to the State Hospital at Norwich. The three-act play "The Little Cloadhopper" was presented Thursday evening by members of the Grange. Much credit is due the cast and their leader, Mrs. Ruby Gibson, for presenting the play in such an able manner. The stage setting also added much. The players were Miss Evelyn Hutchinson, Mrs. M. E. "Little Cloadhopper" Homer Hills, Miss Ruth Raymond, Leslie Kinney, Margaret Keefe, Mrs. Motz and Everett Hutchinson. They will present the play in Columbia next week. The Hill school, the White school and the Gull school presented a competitive Health program at the hall Friday evening. The winner will be announced at the close of the school year.

ROCKVILLE

Interfere At Fires

The Rockville Fire Department was called out to a fire on the rear of a store on High street Friday night, which is used by Stanley Kulo, who conducts a market, and which is owned by Anthony Janton. There was little damage, although plenty of smoke. The fire was confined to a barn and was extinguished with chemicals. Some months ago a warning was issued by the local police and fire officials on account of so many automobiles rushing to fires and interfering with the fire trucks. On Friday night many disregarded the warning and one man was given a severe reprimand by the local police chief. Motorists must stop their cars and pull to the side of the road as soon as the fire whistle is sounded or they will be brought into court, police say.

Overnight A. P. News

Westerly, R. I., April 25.—(AP)—Charles P. Cottrell, 74, who devoted many years to the development of the modern printing press, died last night following a heart attack. His inventive genius gave the printing world the multicolor rotary perfecting press which in one operation prints four colors on one side of the paper and two on the other. He also developed the magazine rotary press. Mr. Cottrell who was born in Westerly March 9, 1858, was the son of Calvert Byron Cottrell, another pioneer in the manufacture of presses. The latter is credited with revolutionizing the cylinder press business with the development of many basic principals found in the modern press. Charles P. Cottrell was president of B. Cottrell and Sons Company, manufacturers of presses. He was also vice president and chairman of the board of directors of the Washington Press Company. Four children survive.

HURLEY NOT A CANDIDATE

Oklahoma City, April 25.—(AP)—Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley has announced he does not aspire to be the vice-presidential candidate of the Republican Party this year. Hurley, who returned to his home state to deliver the keynote address today at the state convention, endorsed Vice-President Charles Curtis and said he would return in the fall to campaign for a "Hoover-Curtis" ticket. "The state owes a debt of gratitude to Charles Curtis," said Hurley. "I owe him a debt of gratitude and I want the state to endorse him. Under no circumstances will I be a candidate against him."

STORM KILLS TWO

Denver, April 25.—(AP)—A man and a woman lost their lives when snow storms displaced spring weather in the Rockies over the weekend. Mrs. E. E. Snowden, school teacher near Trinidad, Colo., apparently died from exposure while wandering in a blizzard. Her body was found in a deserted cabin four miles from her rural school. Over exertion and heart disease caused the death of C. C. Johnson, Marion, Kas., who was walking from a snowbound bus west of Cheyenne, Wyo.

BARBERS ON STRIKE

New York, April 25.—(AP)—Twenty-five hundred barbers in upper Manhattan shops were ordered on strike today, protesting against wage cuts and working conditions. Leaders said the strike would be extended to the entire island by next month.

STAR EDITOR RETIRES

Marion, O., April 25.—(AP)—Reputed to have been the only editor ever to direct the operation of a newspaper for a President of the United States, George H. Van Fleet, after an editorial career of nearly four decades. For 37 years Van Fleet was connected with the Star, formerly the property of the late President Warren G. Harding and now one of a group of eight Ohio newspapers owned by British-Moore Newspapers, Inc. Van Fleet's retirement came just a week after his 68th birthday anniversary. As an executive of the Star, Van Fleet was Harding's closest business associate. He had complete supervision of the paper during the time Harding was in Washington, beginning with the latter's first term as United States Senator in 1914. Van Fleet became a member of the Star staff in 1895, eleven years after Harding acquired ownership. Starting as a reporter, he later was city editor, telegraph editor and managing editor.

DIES IN PULPIT

Des Moines, Ia., April 25.—(AP)—Dr. Charles S. Medbury, 67, dean of the Des Moines ministry and a national figure, collapsed in his pulpit yesterday and died a moment later of heart disease. The congregation was singing "Jesus is Tenderly Calling Thee Home."

HISTORIC CHURCH BURNS

The famous chancery statutory which was valued at about $150,000 was irretrievably damaged, as also was a priceless Grecian holy urn dating from 1300 B. C. A stained glass window taken from a French abbey during the revolution was destroyed. Miss Myrtle Collins has returned after spending a few days at the

THEATERS AT THE STATE

The audiences that witnessed the opening performance of Sinclair Lewis' "Arrowsmith" at the State theater last night, showed by their applause, that they agreed heartily with all the metropolitan critics, that here indeed is a picture that cannot be praised enough. It is a faithful transition to the screen of the famous novel that won the famous Pulitzer Prize for its author, Ronald Colman has the principal male role and Helen Hayes the leading female role. Others in the notable cast are Richard Bennett, Alec Francis, DeWitt Jennings, Myrna Loy and Florence Britton. Constance Bennett, the mistress of modernism will head the new program Wednesday and Thursday in "Lady With A Past." Ben Lyon and David Manners have the leading supporting roles. As an extra added attraction, on Wednesday and Thursday, the State management will present Charles Gerard, radio artist from Station WTIC, in person. Mr. Gerard has but one arm. It is hard to believe this fact after hearing him play the piano so skillfully over the air. Mr. Gerard carries a broadcasting equipment with him. During his engagement at the State, Mr. Gerard offers local radio amateurs an opportunity to broadcast from the stage. Anyone desiring to participate may do so by getting in touch with the State management. A special prize will be offered the amateur performers at each performance. Mr. Gerard will appear at matinee and evening performances, Wednesday and Thursday.

BIG RAW SILK SALE

Tokyo, April 25.—(AP)—Local newspapers today reported the largest sale of raw silk in Japan's history in the selling by the government of 108,000 bales to American interests represented by Paulino Geril, of E. Geril and Co., New York. The price was understood to be approximately 450 yen (about $150) a bale which would make the total amount of money involved about $16,200,000. The silk is what the government took off the market in 1930 in the hope of bolstering the price. The government's loss was estimated at 100,000,000 yen (about $33,000,000).

FLIERS RELEASED IN CLARKE MURDER

Mrs. Keith-Miller and Capt. Lancaster Freed But Police Still Work On Case.
Miami, Fla., April 25.—(AP)—Both Mrs. Jessie Keith-Miller, Australian flier, and her partner, Captain W. N. Lancaster, have been released from custody and authorities turned to other lines of investigation today in their attempt to solve the death of the woman's fiance, Haden Clarke.

State Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne conferred last night with Peace Justice Thomas S. Ferguson and the two decided to postpone further inquiry an inquest that originally was set for today.
Mrs. Keith-Miller and Lancaster were listed as witnesses for the inquest along with Miss Peggy Brown, a young Miami woman who appeared at the state's attorney's office Saturday as a volunteer witness.

Lancaster Re-arrested
The woman flier was released from jail here Saturday after she convinced authorities she could not aid them in classifying Clarke's death as a suicide or slaying. Lancaster also was released only to be re-arrested by Federal officers for questioning about a plan to smuggle narcotics into the United States from Mexico by airplane. The Federal authorities freed him yesterday saying they were certain he had no knowledge or part in the plot.

Clarke was found fatally wounded in his bedroom in Mrs. Keith-Miller's home here several days ago where he and Lancaster were guests. He was shot a few hours after he and Mrs. Keith-Miller told Lancaster of their plans to marry. Both fliers expressed the belief he shot himself.

Clark and Mrs. Keith-Miller fell in love as he helped her prepare a story of her life for publication, she said yesterday. Clarke's mother, Mrs. Ida Clyde Clarke, a professor of journalism, said she might aid Mrs. Keith-Miller in completing final chapters of the work since she was familiar with her son's plans for it.

Mrs. Keith-Miller and her partner have announced no plans but papers found in the woman's home indicated she had leased an apartment in New York for May 1.

The attendance prize, donated by Walter Gorman, was won by Dr. LeVern Holmes.

L. T. Wood Plant Has Its Try-out Today—Only Few Days Behind Contract Time.
The new $40,000 ice plant erected on Bissell street this winter for L. T. Wood received its preliminary try-out this morning, when the two large compressors were started up to check the pipe line connections. Operation of the plant will begin Wednesday and delivery of ice from the plant is expected to begin Friday.

MUST AID FARMERS

Richmond, Va., April 25.—(AP)—Governor D. W. Turner of Iowa, addressing governors of thirty states here today said it is generally conceded now even in industrial sections, that "there can be no return to general prosperity in America until something is done to revive the purchasing power of the farmer."

STORM KILLS SEVEN

Memphis, Tenn., April 25.—(AP)—State highway patrol officers here reported that at least seven persons were killed by a tornado that swept through at least three towns in Shelby county today.
It was impossible at first to establish communication with Rosemark, Millington, Kerville and other communities reported in the path of the storm.
The tornado itself was not felt in Memphis although the wind was high. A high wind and rainstorm, accompanied by hail, struck here last night but little damage was done.

PLAGUE OF LOCUSTS

Cape Town, Union of South Africa, April 25.—(AP)—A horde of locusts is moving in an irresistible tide at the rate of 100 miles a day through the districts of West Africa and the adjoining portions of the Union of South Africa.
Farmers in the area said it seemed as though the cloud of insects was 500 miles wide in some places and three times that long.

There was an attempt to attack them from motor trucks, but the trucks were quickly outdistanced. Airplanes could accomplish little and the authorities said all they could do was to wait until the locusts begin to breed and then to attack the swarms separately.
The Cape district was in the greatest immediate danger, but it appeared certain that the swarms, which already have laid waste to great sections in the north, would soon spread over hundreds of thousands of acres in the rest of the union.

HOLMES, LECTURER FOR KU KLUX KLAN

Unfrosted Minister Tells Court He Worked For Organization.
Fall River, Mass., April 25.—(AP)—Guy Willis Holmes, unfrosted minister, testified today that he had been an accredited lecturer for the Ku Klux Klan.
He explained that he had never worn the Klan regalia or paid dues. The testimony was given at the resumption of Holmes' damage suit against the Federal grand jury ministers who are charged with conspiring to bring charges of immorality against him. It was on these charges that Holmes was unfrosted in 1928 and he now sues each of the defendants for $50,000.

DEPRESSION STRIKES PAPERS OF NATION

But Despite Loss of Revenue They Maintain High Standard, Cooper Declares.
New York, April 25.—(AP)—The newspapers of America "have not shirked their duty to the public of publishing the news in adequate form," in spite of present conditions, Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, said today in his annual report to the board of directors of the association.
"To maintain the standards reached in recent years all publishers have had to sustain severe losses," Mr. Cooper said. "Although advertising revenues have fallen off tremendously, circulation has not decreased materially. Sustained circulations in such times show that newspapers have established themselves as a necessity."

MISS BETTY QUIMBY HEADS OLDER GIRLS

Elected President of County Conference With Two Other Candidates in the Field.
Miss Betty Quimby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Quimby, was elected president of the Older Girls' Conference of Hartford county at the convention held in Bristol Friday and Saturday, the election coming on Saturday.
There were close to 250 delegates at the conference. At the gathering Friday evening when the delegates were formally welcomed to Bristol, Miss Quimby, who has been secretary of the conference for the past year, made the response for the delegates.

GREECE ABANDONS STANDARD OF GOLD

Athens, Greece, April 25.—(AP)—The Cabinet voted today to abandon the gold standard.
It has been generally expected that Greece would go off the gold standard, for Premier Venizelos has been conferring for several days with outstanding financiers and industrialists.
They made no announcement, but it was generally known that the advisability of abandoning gold was the subject of the several meetings. On Friday Krikos Varvaros, councillor to the Bank of Greece, was appointed minister of finance to succeed G. Maris. This was regarded as significant inasmuch as the new minister advocated abandoning the gold standard.

BOYS NOW MONOPOLIZE HOSPITAL'S NURSERY

The population in the Manchester hospital nursery is today 100 per cent male. There are ten babies in the nursery this afternoon—all boys. Boys have had the nursery all to themselves since a week ago when the last girl baby left.
Saturday morning there was a perfect natural, numbering seven. Three sons were born to Manchester mothers over the week-end, swelling the total to 10.
No wonder the predominating color in the hospital nursery is blue.

THINK WOMAN CUT THROATS OF COUPLE

Mineola, N. Y., April 25.—(AP)—District Attorney Elvin Edwards, of Nassau county today said he had information which led him to believe that a woman had wielded a knife that slashed the throats of Miss Rose Welk and Edward S. Brinker, Jr., who were found in a field near Williston last Wednesday. Brinker was dead and Miss Welk dying.
At the same time, it was learned that the authorities are carefully investigating clues indicating that male accomplice of Brinker, supposed to be in love with one of the women mentioned in the case, had actually killed Miss Welk and Brinker. This man, said by the authorities to be a narcotic addict was questioned last week and released.
Edwards and Inspector Harold King of the Nassau county police withheld today the complete autopsy report, but said both deaths were caused by fractured skulls. Edwards said the slashes on the throats apparently were not even made with the idea of causing death.

Picking Campaign Staff Puzzles G. O. P. As Three Problems Push To Fore

Republican disagreements over selection of a high command for the coming campaign are approaching an acute stage. In the immediate foreground of the party reorganization problem are three primary difficulties—a shortage of campaign funds, the threat of an insurgent bolt and the prohibition issue. If the G. O. P. were advertising in the want ad column the desired qualifications for a national chairman would read something like this: Wanted—A man who is close enough to business to be able to fill up the campaign chest; who is not sufficiently close to business to arouse further antagonism in the liberal wing of the party; and whose views on prohibition will not handicap him in placating either wets or dries. That is a large order. To date no applicant has quite come up to specifications. The decision, of course, rests with President Hoover. He seems to remain thoroughly undecided as he listens almost daily to a wide variety of advice. He probably will wait until after the June convention to make up his mind, but it is a question whether the intervening weeks will simplify his problems.

Chance For Hurley
It became apparent some time ago that the present chairman, Senator Simeon D. Fess, was slated for retirement. Fess' militant stand for prohibition has stirred insistent protests from moist-to-wet party leaders. Conciliation, a quality needed in bounteous measure by any chairman, is not the long suit of this Ohio college professor. For a long time it appeared that another Oklahoman, Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, was certain to succeed to the chairmanship. But he is strongly suspected of leaning almost as much toward the dries, and besides he is not very anxious to give up his cabinet post. Patrick Hurley, of Oklahoma, the secretary of war, would take the job if it were offered to him, and several influential Republicans have asked the President to choose him. He has a chance.

PUBLISHERS MEET AT A. P. CONFERENCE

Sec. Mills and London Editor Speak To Members At New York Convention.

New York, April 25.—(AP)—Hundreds of newspaper publishers from all parts of the country began today a series of meetings which will last most of the week. The Associated Press held its 33rd annual meeting today and the American Newspaper Publishers Association will hold its 46th annual convention from tomorrow until Friday. Directors of the North American Alliance also met. The Associated Press which has 1,305 members, had morning and afternoon business sessions. At a luncheon the members heard addresses by two guests, Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the Treasury, and John Walter, co-chief proprietor of the London Times. Mr. Mills' address was broadcast. The presiding officer at the luncheon and business sessions was Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press and president of the Washington Star. One of the matters before the Associated Press was the election of five directors to succeed those who have terms expiring, Adolph S. Ochs, the New York Times; B. H. Anthony, New Bedford, Mass.; Standard, Robert McLean, Philadelphia Bulletin, and Frederick E. Murphy, Minneapolis, Minn., Tribune. Mr. Anthony's health is poor and he was not a candidate for re-election. Ten men had nominated from the vacancies. They are George B. Longan, Kansas City Star; M. C. Lean, Mr. Murphy, Mr. Noyes, Mr. Ochs, William J. Pape, Waterbury Republican; Paul Patterson, Baltimore Sun; Howard C. Rice, Brattleboro, Vt., Reformer; Charles A. Stauffer, Phoenix, Ariz., Republican, and O. S. Warden, Great Falls, Mont., Tribune.

ARCHBISHOP NOT ILL

London, April 25.—(AP)—The private secretary of the Most Reverend Cosmo Gordon Lang, archbishop of Canterbury, today denied reports from Cannes, France, that the archbishop was ill there of Scatica. "The report is entirely without foundation," the secretary said. "He is quite well." (Reports from Cannes yesterday quoted members of the archbishop's household as saying he had been ill for more than a month but was somewhat improved.)

HOPE FOR SETTLEMENT

Tokyo, April 25.—(AP)—Official quarters here today appeared more hopeful about the efforts of Sir Miles W. Lampson, British minister, to bring about a settlement between Japan and China at Shanghai. It was stated on good authority, however, that the Japanese government has no intention of changing its attitude toward the League committee of nineteen and that consequently no new instructions have been sent to Geneva.

Stilas Strawn of Illinois, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, is talked about among those who emphasize the need for a chairman who could collect contributions from business. There is talk, too, of Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News and head of the President's anti-boarding committee. Every now and then somebody suggests it would be wise to make special appeal to the followers of Calvin Coolidge by giving the chairmanship to Coolidge's 1924 manager, William M. Butler of Massachusetts.

It is taken for granted that either Coolidge or Charles G. Dawes could have the place if he wanted it, but neither does.

Appeal To Insurgents
The chairmanship itself is not the sole consideration. On down the line Mr. Hoover and his group of advisers will seek a set-up of party officials likely to command the maximum of support from the rank and file.

Robert H. Lucas of Kentucky, a sort of second in command with the title of executive secretary, bitterly antagonized western insurgents by his activity in the anti-Norris campaign in Nebraska. The general assumption is that he will resign after the convention.

Steps have been taken already to appeal to the insurgent bloc. Something of the kind clearly was in mind when Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, McNary-Hauganite, Lovden supporter in '28 and now senatorial colleague of Smith W. Brookhart, was chosen keynote of the Chicago convention.

Wet-Dry Problem

Perhaps the biggest problem of all is to organize a general staff which can keep the normal party support in line on prohibition. In New York, for instance, the organized dries are taking steps already to put on the ballot an independent slate of Presidential electors.

There is food for thought in this, particularly when it is recalled that four years ago, with the active support of the organized dries, Mr. Hoover carried New York just by an eyelash.

FOUR MONTHS' SENTENCE FOR ACCEPTING BRIBE

New York, April 25.—(AP)—Judge Morris Koenig in General Sessions Court today imposed sentences of four months each in the penitentiary on Rollin C. Bastress, 59, former chief inspector of the Manhattan Building Bureau, and John I. Cahalan, 59, a building construction superintendent. The two were convicted March 31 of accepting a $1,500 gratuity from a contractor in return for Bastress' approval of plans for a penthouse in July 1927.

BATTLE ANNIVERSARY

Melbourne, Australia, April 25.—Thousands of war veterans, who served with the "Anzacs" paraded today in all parts of Australia, commemorating that day seventeen years ago when the Anzacs stormed Gallipoli. The King sent a message of remembrance and in towns and villages flowers were heaped before the war memorials.

TO REPAY LOANS

Dublin, Irish Free State, April 25.—(AP)—The Fianna Fail government is taking steps to repay investors in the £500,000 Republican bond issue of 1921, held principally in the United States. Records relating to the loan were deposited with American courts but they have been returned to the Free State authorities who now are investigating to ascertain whether it will be necessary to enact legislation to make repayment. It may be the government will have to borrow to meet principal and interest on the loan which at the present rate of exchange probably will approximate £1,000,000.

REPORT PRINCE DROWNED

Cairo, Egypt, April 25.—(AP)—There was a report today that Prince Seif ul Islam, second son of Imam Yahya, the Imam of Yemen, had drowned while bathing in the sea at Hodeida. The news created a sensation throughout the Yemen, that extensive region of southwestern Arabia, which the Imam rules.

Motor Hints

Timely Suggestions on the Care of the Car by the Automobile Club of Hartford.

Watch Change in Clutch

When an automatic control of the clutch is added to a car not primarily designed for this improvement the owner should make certain compensations in the way of driving. He should not, for instance, free wheel on the open road, as this will place too great a strain on the clutch springs and the throwout collar.

Confine the free wheeling to traffic and city work where the clutch would be used extensively anyway. As in conventional driving it would be wiser not to stand in traffic for any length of time with the clutch disengaged as this tends to weaken the clutch springs.

One of the leading companies is changing over all of its cars still in stock, but it is more than a matter of adding the clutch control. All clutches are being fitted with stronger springs and a sturdier throwout collar.

To Check Door Noises

Most of the squeaks that develop in the car can be traced to the doors. They are extremely easy to get rid of, but most motorists seem to prefer to put up with the nuisance.

Sometimes it isn't a case of carelessness, but of lack of familiarity with the construction of doors. The simplest plan is to put a few drops of vasoline on the rubber bumpers or other points where friction is in evidence. Where this does not suffice try renewing the bumpers. In a high grade car these cost nine cents each. They can be replaced in a twinkling.

The plate into which the catch of the door lock fits is a common source of noise. Usually there are hard rubber pieces in this to prevent noise, without removing the plate it is not easy to lubricate behind these pieces. Penetrating oil applied on the outside sometimes works in and does the trick.

Shield Gives Mileage Gain

In several cases of low gasoline mileage it has been found that too much cold air reaches the carburetor intake. There have been some changes in design on production cars which should be helpful to owners who want to improve their present jobs.

One of the simplest changes was adopted in late 1930 by one of the leading manufacturers. It consisted of placing a small baffle plate or shield in front of the carburetor intake so that the onrushing cold air could not so easily reach the motor. This simple change increased mileage especially at higher speed, and shortened the warming up period.

On one of the latest motors hot air is fed to the intake until a certain temperature is reached, thus greatly facilitating warming up and cutting fuel consumption. It could be fitted with a hand control to shut off the hot air not needed.

Beware of High Mileage
The theory that all is not gold that glitters should be recalled by those motorists who boast of the high oil mileage of their motors. All high oil that registers "full" in the crankcase.

One owner, for instance, finds that he is getting unusually high mileage. The indicator shows no desire to drop. He does notice, however, that he is losing a gallon of water every few days from the cooling system, though he cannot detect any leaks. Must of what "glitters" as oil in the crankcase of that car is nothing more than less than water that has leaked through a bad cylinder head gasket.

Another owner finds that he does not have to add oil between thousand-mile oil changes. He gives his aging engine credit for great virtue when, as a matter of fact, the crankcase probably is half filled with raw gasoline.

Cleaner for Piston Rings
So much consideration has been given piston rings it remains a mystery why it has taken all these years to develop the idea that rings need cleaning and flushing. This idea is standard equipment on a 1932 car for the first time in motor-dom's history.

Rings become sticky because of gum from gasoline. They also are fouled through carbon, resulting from the burning of excess oil. When rings get this way they are unable to adjust themselves properly. Expansion and contraction are too slow with the result that the motor loses compression and wastes oil.

By injecting gum dissolving fluids into the cylinders now and again it is possible to flush and clean the rings so that they will operate more efficiently. Done moderately, and regularly every 1000 miles, it is possible to keep the rings clean without diluting the crankcase with the flushing fluid.

Home Service No Economy
One of the greatest disadvantages in doing major repair work yourself lies in the possibility of overlooking the need for other jobs along the way.

To correct chipped flywheel gears on one of the low priced cars, for instance, calls for purchasing a new flywheel with steel gear band at a cost of only $4.50. If the owner does the work of replacement himself and is able to remove the transmission and pull out the clutch he figures he has saved himself $3.00 labor charge. The truth is, he may overlook an opportunity to save double this amount.

When the service man has the clutch disassembled he checks over the plates and looks to see if anything needs replacing. He can save the owner the expense of virtually doing the job all over again if something is about to go wrong with the clutch.

Chart Shows Operations Of Youth's Great Enemy

A unique exhibit now on display in the window of Watkins Brothers on Main Street, shows that tuberculosis takes its greatest toll during the early adult life, and that heart disease, cancer and kidney diseases are the three leading causes of death, but in the older age groups. This electrically illuminated chart shows that tuberculosis is still the greatest destroyer of life between the ages of 20 and 25, the most productive years of life. Little cutout figures suggest preventing the spread of tuberculosis to the child in the home through the instruction of the public health nurse, also the building of health by nourishing food. The prevention of strain is indicated by proper rest, while careful and frequent examination by a physician is further recommended to prevent the development of the disease. The chart has been loaned to the Public Health Nursing Dept. of Manchester Memorial hospital by the State Tuberculosis Commission at Hartford, and will be shown for a week.

14 WORD STATEMENT WINS AUTO AS PRIZE

Washington, April 25.—(AP)—A 14-word statement on prohibition, saying "It is obvious that if National enforcement is difficult state control would be impossible," has won an automobile for Alfred Kinney, Jr., of Washington. The prize was offered as a part of the Prohibition Fair conducted here last week to show the change before and since the Eighteenth Amendment. The contest called for a statement of 20 words or less on "prefer prohibition to any other method of liquor control because..." "Other prizes, all to capital residents, were given for: "No tried or tested middle ground between prohibition and the saloon has succeeded." "Only with prohibition as the goal, even though never attained, can the furthest advance against the liquor traffic be won." "Every day in every way it gives the child of the laboring man a better chance."

CUMMINGS URGES THAT MCNEIL BE KEPT IN JOB

Stamford, April 25.—Declaring that "it would be an unwise and ungracious act to deny him the reelection which he has earned," Homer S. Cummings, former Democratic National chairman, today issued a public statement urging the reelection of Archibald McNeil of Bridgeport, as Democratic National committeeman from Connecticut. He says: "I think it would be difficult for anyone to suggest any adequate reason why he should be displaced. He has been energetic and extraordinarily active. He is co-operating effectively with the officers and members of the Democratic State Central committee. Manifestly, it would be an unwise and ungracious act to deny to him the reelection which he has earned and to which he is entitled."

Wall Street Briefs

New York, April 25.—Wall street sees the troubles of the cane sugar industry as well epitomized by the drab financial record of the Cuba Cane Products Co. Receivers for the company were appointed last week after about two years of vain effort to keep afloat in the face of ruinously low prices for raw sugar and the apparent inability of the industry to find a remedy for its ills. The predecessor company, Cuba Cane Sugar Co., also ended its corporate existence in receivership in 1929.

An analysis of March quarter earnings statements issued so far shows that a fair number of leading industrialists managed to earn a substantial part if not all of their dividends for the period. In this group may be listed American Telephone & Telegraph, General Foods, National Biscuit, Lambert Co. and Loose Wiles Biscuit. A few companies reported profits exceeding dividend requirements, notably International Business Machines and the Wrigley Co.

Sentiment in the steel industry has become a bit more cheerful, according to reports reaching Wall street, and some of the larger producers are said to be preparing for a moderately larger volume of business.

HOPE FOR RAIN

Hartford, April 25.—(AP)—The forest fires situation, including a total of forty two wood fires Saturday and yesterday, was described this morning by State Forest Fire Warden Austin F. Hawes as considerably improved. Humidity this morning was higher and increasing cloudiness brought promise of rain over Connecticut and surrounding states. Up to 10 a. m. no reports of new fires had been received at the warden's office and yesterday's blazes were all under control last night.

DRANK POISONED WINE
Havre, France, April 25.—(AP)—Health authorities here today ordered all ships on which they suspected there might be poisoned wine, such as is believed to have been responsible for the illness of about 300 sailors during the last three months, to abandon the use of the beverage. An investigation into the poisoning was begun last Saturday by Havre police. They advanced the theory it was caused by poison used to treat the vineyards. Large quantities of the wine already had been landed from coast-wise ships. As far as was known no trans-Atlantic liners had any of the poisoned wine aboard. Argentina is making a variety of paper from straw pulp.

the MAN HUNTERS

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SUSAN CAREY, an orphan, lives with her AUNT JESSIE on Chicago's west side and works in the office of ERNEST HEATH, architect. BEN LAMPMAN, a moody young admirer, takes her to a studio party where she meets ARNOLD and SONIA. LANSKY and DENISE ARNOLD, a society girl. Later, lunching with BOB DUNBAR, young millionaire whom she met at business school, she sees DENISE again. JACK WARRING, Heath's assistant, tries to flirt and is rebuffed. Lonely when her aunt is away, Susan goes on a party with Warring and he kisses her. Ben asks her to marry him and she temporizes. Her employer's wife snubs her. Susan bears Bob Dunbar to be married and is heart-broken. Denise Ackroyd asks her to come to a week-end party at her country home. ROSE MILTON, Susan's friend, lends her a party frock. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIII

It Susan had known her aunt's plans she would have been furiously angry. As it was she met Ben gayly the following afternoon. He came through the coach looking rather more sulky than usual but almost pathetically brushed and tidy.

"Hello," she said. "We're bound for the same place."

"I guess so," Ben threw a sabbat black bag into the rack overhead and sat down. Moodily his gaze took her in, from the top of her new brown felt to the tip of her blunt oxfords.

"You look nice," was all he could find to say, and that rather grudgingly.

Susan thanked him, reflecting sardonically that he was scarcely the perfect pattern of an ardent admirer. Poor Ben! On a piano keyboard his fingers spoke the only language that he knew. Otherwise he was inarticulate.

"I don't know why I said I'd come to this racket," Ben grumbled. "Sonja forced me into it—said it would be good for my work."

"Maybe it will," Susan told him, determined to look on the bright side of things this glorious fall day. With the morning her misgivings had dissolved, leaving her confident and happy.

Ben stared at her. "You know why we're asked, don't you?" he demanded. "That kid thinks we're a bunch of freaks. When she comes down to Sonja's she believes she's slumming and gets a terrible kick out of it. She's the only one I remember of her of the Left Bank."

"Don't think that sounds so bad," Susan said. "What she means is you're all artists and artists have always been taken up by rich people. That's not new."

Ben started at her. "Where do you come in, then? You don't classify."

"The instant he had said the words he regretted them. Susan winced as if she had been struck and truly the blow had gone home. The question was one she had asked herself many times but this morning she had determined to put it aside and be as happy as possible. She felt a surge of hatred for Ben who, observing the darkening of her eyes and trembling of her lip, cursed himself for the clumsy fool he was.

Susan turned and stared out the window. They were slipping past little houses now, their backyards running down to the railroad's right of way. It was all very suburban and sunny but it looked black to the girl.

Ben's hand touched hers. She drew away as though stung. Hum-bly he said, "I'm sorry, I didn't mean that. They may ask us because we're freaks but of course anyone would be glad to have you, you're so beautiful."

"This from Ben! She looked at him dazedly. The words had been wrung from him by main force but they still hovered in the air. Susan could forgive him anything for that.

"Never mind. It's all right," she assured him. "The trouble with you is you have an inferiority complex and go about expecting people to dislike you. You have a chip on your shoulder and someone's bound to knock it off."

She felt mature and capable, giving Ben advice. By tacit consent the disagreeable subject was avoided thereafter. They talked about the orchestra Ben was working with just then. Susan told him about her job. The minutes flew. Ben kept glancing back over his shoulder now and then, muttering, "Wonder where Sonja and Arnold went. They said they'd be in this train."

Then the conductor called the name of their station.

Susan reminded herself that there was nothing really to be excited about, but as she followed Ben down the steps her heart was pounding painfully. They trailed along the platform, feeling strange and conspicuous. A uniformed man came up to them, touching his cap. "For Miss Ackroyd?"

Ben nodded. Silently they climbed into the great gray car.

"Just a minute, sir. There are two others expected. I will look for them," the man said. He shut the door, leaving the boy and girl alone in the jewel box interior of that fabulous motor car. Ben stretched his legs and whistled softly. Susan sat up very straight and looked dignified. Nearly all the cars that had met their train had roared away around the curve when the chauffeur returned with the bedraggled Strinskys trailing in his wake.

If politeness had not forbade Susan would have gaped at Sonja's appearance. She wore a turban-necked sweater of brilliant orange. Beneath this flared out a pleated skirt of green and black checked wool, briefer than the mode of the moment demanded. A beret perched inconspicuously on her head.

Arnold's appearance was even more extraordinary. He wore a black velvet smoking jacket over a knitted red waistcoat. His gray flannel trousers were both baggy and spotted. Susan shuddered. Like most girls of her age and type she was passionately desired to conform. The Strinskys were not only unconventional; they were weird.

The Ackroyds' chauffeur must have been used to all this because his manners remained wooden, his manner perfect. Sonja gave Susan a limp hand and began to chatter animatedly to Ben.

The car wound along the same road Susan had traveled the day she went to Mr. Heath's. The lake stretched before them and, overarching it on the edge of a ravine was a house. A stone house, forbidding, magnificent.

The Strinskys tumbled out with their incredible luggage and Ben and Susan followed. They went up broad steps to a grilled iron door which a man servant swung open for them.

A thin, elderly woman was descending the staircase. She introduced herself as Mrs. Flurry, the chaperon. She said Denise had been unavoidably detained at the club but would be in directly and would Miss Carey and Mrs. Strinsky like to go to their rooms?

Ben and Arnold lingered below. Susan was shown into a high-ceilinged room, crowded with delicate French furniture. The great, low bed had a gilded head-piece and the coverlet was of faded peach brocade. It was all subtly elegant. Through an open door she glimpsed a bathroom done in apricot tile. The glass shelves were crowded with heavy towels and scented soaps. After the maid had left her Susan went to the window and stared out. The lake rushed and tumbled below.

What now, she wondered? She had a grave sense of forbidding and unreality. Faithful to Rose's instructions, she shook out the white lace gown and disposed it carefully on its hanger. Then, having brushed her hair and washed her hands at the gargantuan basin, she shyly went down.

The group was animated now.

Denise, vivid in a bright green frock, greeted her gayly. "Hello, there! Find everything you want?"

Susan said she had.

"It's early for cocktails," Denise announced, "but we're having them anyway." She turned on a radio concealed in an 18th century desk and held out her arms to Ben. Susan had a faint, not altogether agreeable sensation of surprise as she watched them together. Ben danced amazingly well. The music gave him release. Self-consciousness flowed away from him and there was grace in his tall, rangy form. Over her shoulder Denise threw the remark to Susan.

"The others will be along in a moment. They've been playing golf and stopped to change."

Susan glanced down at her blue serge. Well, she had nothing to change to so this would have to be all right. She danced with Arnold, hating it. Arnold must have had an ancient pipe tucked away somewhere on his person. It was not pleasant.

As the music stopped abruptly an announcer's voice began rattling to chatter about the merits of a certain tooth paste. Susan was conscious of a new pair of eyes staring at her. She tried to disengage herself, but Arnold kept his hand on her arm.

"Wait a bit," he said smugly. "This fellow will be finished in a minute and we can go on."

There was no help for her. Through the shadows she saw the tall figure of Bob Dunbar advancing. It was not the way in which she should have chosen to meet him after so long a time. Arnold, freakish to the point of laughter, held her possessively.

Susan heard Bob's voice, chill and remote, and in that instant she realized what had happened. Denise had staged this very scene. She had wanted him to find Susan in exactly this way.

Well, there certainly are little surprises around every corner when it comes to fashions this spring. The more novel and original accessories are the better, provided they are chic, comfortable, wearable. Certainly none of the new gadgets to brighten the fashion world are any smarter and few as easy to look at and wear as the new ensembles made of solid felt. You may never have thought of stepping out to luncheon or tea in felt shoes. But solid felt proves itself as trim and flattering as any fabric on the market. And you know what a year it is for fabric hats, purses, shoes and so on.

The other ensemble shown is of gray yellow soled felt. The yellow jacket clips straight down the front and it has a little notched collar. The hat has a saucy turned-up brim, and a clip on its side. The matching bag has a silver clasp and the shoes are trimmed in white kid.

enings, original stitchings, the cutest shapes and are tailored to perfection by outstanding manufacturers. Rather nautical in its appearance is the bright blue soled felt ensemble which has its snugly fitted vest bordered with stitching and cut to fit down over the skirt in points in front. It fastens in semi-surplice manner. The half-shell beret has an anchor over the right eye, where you anchor it. The arm bag is trim and the new wider-bottom shape. The T-strap sandal has tiny-pointed white kid edging, to match up with the stitching on the vest.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

MAKE-UP HINTS FOR THE OUTDOOR GIRL

There is something incongruous about a feminine golfer who, when she appears on the links, is made up like a night club entertainer. Tasteful outdoor make-up for active sports requires a restrained hand. So do all day-time make-ups. You can be lavish with the paint pot and mascara when you are dead sure you will be seen only by candle light. But when the sun beats down on you and submits you to its searching truthful rays, let the rouge you use be of the right shade and used sparingly, the lipstick match and be applied perfectly and the eye make-up be done so well you can't see it yourself.

Two things every woman should have if she wants to look her best. First is a long mirror that shows her entire figure perfectly. Second, a searching light over her dressing table. A famous French beautician once said, "To be truly beautiful, women should make up with a searchlight thrown onto their faces, then appear only by candle light."

Perhaps unfortunately most of us do more appearing by glaring daylight or strong electricity than soft candles. It may be hard on us all. But we can do much to soften reality if we use make-up skillfully.

For street wear, never use black mascara. There are new soft brown tones. Never use the new lavender, green and blue powders. They bring magic only by evening wear. Never use the new silver or golden eyelid shadow. That, too, is created to give allure when you are dancing, dining or chatting when evening falls for golf or tennis or horseback riding, have your make-up so perfect that it merely gives you a healthy glow.

There is art in applying a tiny bit of rouge between the brows, on the chin, gently over the whole upper part of the cheeks and gradually it out towards the nose until it disappears, leaving only a rosy tint. Put on right, this is a healthy make-up, fine for outdoor girls. But be moderate. And be sure you put it on where the light falls strong enough to tell you the truth.

HEALTH

STUDY OF ALBUMIN OFTEN PREVENTS SERIOUS DISEASE

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Whenever a physician finds albumin in the urinary excretion, he considers it a finding demanding the most careful investigation.

There are, of course, cases in which small amounts of albumin may appear without the presence of any serious disease. It has occurred in normal people after violent exercise or exposure to cold.

It may occur when an individual stands for a long time in one position, but the vast majority of cases are due to some disease of the kidney which, unless promptly cared for, may lead to death.

The Student Health Service of the University of Minnesota has made records of examination of 20,000 men who have entered the school in recent years. Five per cent of these men, or approximately 1,000 of them, showed albumin in the first specimen examined and 806 of them were examined for the second time. It was found that 66 per cent of these men had shown albumin on only one examination.

Thirteen per cent showed the albumin occasionally; about 12 per cent had albumin regularly in the excretions, and about 7 per cent had kidney disease.

From these figures it is clear that diseases of the kidney with albumin in the urine is a rare condition among young men. In an endeavor to trace the source of the complaint, the heads of the Health Service, Dr. H. S. Diehl and C. A. McKinlay, noted marked relationship between albumin, frequent attacks of colds and a family history of kidney disease. They also noted a relationship between exposure to cold, albumin and the record of previous attacks of rheumatism or scarlet fever.

This should indicate the importance of making an examination of the excretion at least once each year, and of special study of every case in which albumin is found. The finding of the albumin does not indicate necessarily the presence of kidney disease, but it does certainly indicate the need for investigation.

Such investigation may lead to the determination of factors of importance in relationship to health and to life and may mean a great deal in giving extra years of healthful life to the person concerned.

OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON ON YOUR CHILDREN'S HEALTH

Scientists work tirelessly in the laboratories of the world to find new safeguards for children's health. The world of medicine learns more yearly about the destructive forces that imperil infantile life. Legislators, spurred on by child welfare organizations, enact laws and appropriate funds for Juniors' protection.

But what can parents do to aid the child in finding the right road to health? What steps can be taken at home to insure their well-being? . . . Those are some of the vital questions that OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON has answered in her famous column, "YOUR CHILDREN."

In observance of Child Health Day, May 1, Mrs. Barton has prepared six articles on all-important subjects as follows: Mothers as "Health Directors" of the Home, Foods for Children, How Children Should Eat, Preventing Illness, Sun and Clothing, Happiness and Health.

Monte Weaver Beats Athletics 2nd Time

Senators' Hurler Has Won Three Straight Games Already; Giants Rout Brook-lyn 7-2.

Walter Johnson can discover no sound reason for embarrassment over his prediction early this spring that Monte Weaver would win plenty of ball games for the Washington Senators.

Starting with a four hit shutout over the Boston Red Sox, Weaver beat the Athletics 7 to 4 last week although he failed to finish that game.

Yesterday Johnson sent him against the A's again. This time the young right-hander went the route, held the A's to seven scattered hits while Washington clouted George Earnshaw and Joe Bowman for 14 hits and won 8 to 2.

Detroit's amazing Tigers, however, managed to keep a half game ahead of the Senators for the American League lead by scoring eight runs in the last two innings to conquer the Chicago White Sox 10 to 9.

George Piggas pitched the New York Yanks to an easy 9 to 2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Earl Averill, Cleveland outfielder came out of a batting slump to drive in seven runs with two homers and a double as the Indians walloped the St. Louis Browns 14 to 3.

In the National League the pace-setting Boston Braves won their sixth straight game, noosing out the Philadelphia Phillies 2 to 1 in a pitch-holding.

The Chicago Cubs close behind the Braves in the standings unleashed a 16 hit barrage which buried the Pittsburgh Pirates, 12 to 8.

Behind Carl Hubbell's five hit pitching the N. Y. Giants easily trounced Brooklyn 10 to 2.

The world champion St. Louis Cards turned back Cincinnati 8 to 3. Chick Hefey making his first start in the Cincinnati outfield collected three singles against his former teammates.

TINKER'S OPINION

Orlando, Fla., April 25.—(AP)—If old Joe Tinker figures rightly, John J. McGraw will pilot his New York Giants in the next world series against the New York Yankees.

For Tinker of the Tinker to Evers to Chance combination of the old Chicago Cubs, picks the Giants to win the National League pennant, and the Yankees to come home first in the American.

The St. Louis Cardinals, according to Tinker's sage sheet of the 1932 National League race, will finish second followed by the Cubs, the Brooklyn Dodgers, the Pittsburgh Pirates, the Boston Braves, the Cincinnati Reds and the Philadelphia Phillies in the order named.

Here's what Tinker has to say about the race.

"The Giants were in the thick of the fight last season. There is no reason to look for a letup this year, and the McGrawmen will be back after a pennant after being out of the series for such a long time.

"John McGraw is a fighter and he has a hustling ball club. He has a great infield in Bill Terry, Critz, Jackson and Vergez. In the outfield he has Ott, Lindstrom and his new man, Koenekne, who seems to be a nice ball player.

"The New Yorks won't suffer from pitching—they have Fitzsimmons, the burly right hander, as well as the two best left handers in the business, Bill Walker and Carl Hubbell. Shanty Hogan will do most of the catching and will hold down that position very capably. In utility strength, the Giants will have enough to keep their club going."

Tinker thinks the Cardinals have a great ball club, but "they are hinging all their hopes on a young pitching staff with the exception of Lindsey and Hallahan." However, he figures the Cardinals have a good infield and catching staff, and "will give the Giants a lot of trouble."

LEVINSKY'S PROFIT HAS BEEN VERY TIDY

Chicago, April 25.—(AP)—Many a business corporation would like to show a financial report like King Levinsky's Sept. 11, 1930.

Since that time, when he fought Leo Lomski, the Kingfish has attracted 150,771 cash customers through the gates in Chicago, for a net "take" of $71,171.97. Gross receipts for 13 fights were $428,129.33 and he stands to make a handsome addition next Friday night when he meets Mickey Walker here.

BAT'S CASE COMES BEFORE BOARD TODAY

Chicago, April 25.—(AP)—Whether Bat Battalino, former featherweight champion, will be permitted by the National Boxing Association to meet Billy Petrolle at the Chicago Stadium next month was up for decision at Cincinnati today.

Battalino was suspended by the Cincinnati commission following what was considered an unsatisfactory performance against Freddy Miller here last February.

This Game of GOLF

BY O.B. KEELER

One reason for the prodigious hold this game of golf has on the addicts is the astonishing collection of funny stories it produces, especially of what is called the human interest variety.

Not long ago Eddie Conlin wrote and asked me for the funniest golf story he knew. I was present when this one developed, so I gave it to Mr. Conlin at first hand.

It was at Okmont, in the National amateur championship of 1925—the one where Watts Gunn became hypnotized and shot round after round of the most devastating golf ever seen in the amateur classic.

Running Wild
Watts' playing in his first major tournament was matched in the first round with Vincent Bradford, a Pennsylvanian; and was trying again together too hard to steer his ship at the beginning. He was 3 down through the eleventh hole of the morning round. Then something happened. Watts went into a sort of trance in which it appeared utterly impossible for him to do anything wrong.

He established a world's record by winning the next four FIFTEEN holes in succession; Bradford did not get even one half from the eleventh green to the twenty-sixth, where the slaughter ended, 12-10.

Watts went out with Jess Sweetser in the next round; and he was 7 up on Sweetser at lunch-time. In the afternoon, Watts fired eight consecutive pars and then a birdie at the famous Sivanoy player, winning 10-9.

This was the worst drubbing Sweetser, one of the greatest mind-players American amateur golf has produced, ever got.

Next day, in the third round, Watts began to regain consciousness, and Dicky Jones gave him a hard fight. Watts was 2 up going to the eighteenth in the morning round and Dicky won that with a birdie 8, reducing the lead to one hole as they went to the clubhouse.

Delusions
This evidently was preying on Mr. Gunn's mind as Jess Sweetser, a club-mate of Jones, who was accustomed to start Dicky 3 up in friendly matches at home, met Watts on the stairway to the locker room.

"Hello, Watts," said Jones, cordially. "How are you coming?"

"Gee," said Watts, "I've got a tough one today; I'm only 1 up!"

And he had been 7 up on Sweetser the day before, at the same stage!

Jess got as big a laugh out of this bit of perfect naïveté as anybody else—which was quite a laugh.

It was after the Sweetser match that Watts, who had been standing around in a daze for two hours, suddenly spoke up:

"Say—I ought to telegraph Dad that I won."

"Don't bother," advised Bobby Jones. "He knew it long before you did!"

YALE'S HOPES RISE IN COLLEGE LOOP

Eli Confident of Beating Penn Saturday Despite 8-0 Trouncing.

New York, April 25.—(AP)—Teams in the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League face their fourth week of competition with the champion Pennsylvania nine holding the lead but with Yale still an even choice to win the championship if not slightly favored over the Red and Blue.

Pennsylvania leads the standing with two victories and no defeats as a result of John Paul Powhida's 8 to 0 victory over Yale at Franklin Field last Saturday, but Dr. Walter Linfoot Carris, the Penn's veteran coach faces a severe test this week. First, Columbia comes to Franklin Field tomorrow. Next Penn must return Yale's visit next Saturday and it is hardly likely that the Eli sharpshooter, Johnny Broaca, will have a second bad afternoon so soon. Broaca strained his pitching arm in the first inning at Philadelphia and had to quit the game after yielding just enough runs to give the Quakers the game.

Broaca expects to be in condition for the next Penn fray. This will be the "money" game of the week, if not of the season and the victor will be a strong pennant favorite. Powhida will be saved for it and Powhida at his best against Broaca at his best would mean a thrilling duel of pitchers.

Points in Yale's favor in the title race include (one) Broaca's pitching skill and a schedule arrangement making it possible for him to pitch six of the remaining seven games; (two) the fact that a hard hitting Columbia team, twice defeated by the Elis, necessarily must be "playing for Yale" when meeting other contenders; and (three) the further fact that the Blue, by winning two of its next three games can be fairly sure of nothing worse than a tie for the championship.

Yale Gym Director Retires In June

New Haven, April 25.—(AP)—Dr. William G. Anderson, who has seen the lists of organized sports at Yale grow from four to sixteen during the last 40 years will retire as director of the gymnasium next June.

His retirement and that of his brother Henry S. Anderson, gymnasium instructor and his associate on the gymnasium staff for nearly 30 years, has been announced by Yale in connection with plans for the operation of the new $4,000,000 Payne Whitney gym.

Harold F. Woodcock, business manager of the athletic association was named business manager of the gym and Robert J. E. Kiputh, swimming coach was appointed assistant professor of physical training. Dr. Anderson came to Yale in 1892 when football, baseball, track and crew comprised the list of sports.

HOOKS AND SLIDES
BY WILLIAM BRADCHER

This is an open letter to Dan Howley, ex-manager of the Grand Rapids, Toronto, St. Louis American League and other ball clubs, and now the pilot of what is beginning to look more and more like a baseball club in Cincinnati. It is somewhat in the nature of an apology, addressed to a game guy who never gives up. Here it is:

Dear Dan: When I saw you down at Tampa in the spring, the Reds didn't exactly appear to be the team the Cardinals would have to beat to win a pennant this year. To be candid, your club seemed to me to be the one assurance that any one of the seven other clubs wouldn't finish at the tail end of the National League procession.

You Didn't Fool
When you said you would trade anybody for anything, even an old pocket knife, I'm afraid I didn't take you seriously enough. I didn't see what the Reds had to trade. I wrote that your club not only had no players to trade but that it had no cash with which to buy.

Well, Dan, I was wronger than the snake-eyes on dice. For it seems you not only had players to trade but had scratch with which to do business, too. In a month you changed the Reds from a drab and hopeless tail-end team to a colorful contender.

They'll Like the Babe
When you traded Stripp, Cuccinello and Sukerforth for Herman, Lombardi and Gilbert, a lot of the boys expressed the opinion that you had given Brooklyn the very power they were looking for. Now you're a pennant winner, but that remains to be seen. Herman will bat in plenty of runs, and say, he's not as bad an outfielder as he's painted, at that. Anyway, with Herman you have somebody those Cincinnati fans will pay to see.

Now you have taken Hefey away from the Cardinals. Some of the St. Louis baseball writers commented that the St. Louis fans were not sorry to lose Chick because Hefey was a chronic conscientious objector to salary offers and they had no faith in him in a pinch. In four world series, it was pointed out, Hefey played in 24 games and hit only .205.

Be that as it may, Dan, when the Cards let Hefey go to Cincinnati, I think they gave you the very man who will beat them out of a pennant this year.

The Cardinals won the pennant last year, you might say, by beating Cincinnati. Out of 22 games between the two teams, the Reds won only two. I'm not trying to rub it in, mind you, because it is probably generally realized what you were up against last year. Now with Hefey on your side, with that batting average of nearly .350, the Cardinals need not expect more than an even break on games with the Reds. It will mean a lot when the totals are added.

He'll Beat St. Louis
Hefey will hit for you—and he will hit for you plenty in game; between the Reds and Cardinals. Chick is like that. He will give you the best work of which he is capable, and when he's bearing down, he's tough. Hefey beat your club in plenty of games last year, as you know very well.

Well, that's about all there is to say at this time, I guess, except that I want to apologize for quitting on you in the spring. I should have known you better, after what you did for the Browns, and for every other team you ever managed. You win, Dan. You fooled me. Pick up the marbles.

The prices, including tax are $28; $17.25; $11.50; $5.75 and $3.45.

St. John Leads Attack With Pair of Doubles

AMATEUR FIGHTS TOMORROW NIGHT

Fine Program Set For Rockville Town Hall; List of Boxers.

Amateur boxing fans in and around Rockville will be privileged to witness one of the finest amateur boxing shows ever seen in Connecticut tomorrow night.

This will be the tenth in a series of bouts sponsored by the C. D. K. Club and its matchmaker, George Groesch. The club to date holds the indoor attendance record, and is noted for the fine shows it presents.

The club's matchmaker has arranged ten bouts in which he has picked the ace fighters at their respective weights. No finer list of simon-pures have ever been brought together on one card, and such a card should fill the Town Hall in Rockville when this array of gladiators are called to battle tomorrow night at 8:30, daylight saving time.

Boys picked for action and fight tonight are: Jerry Varry, New Britain; Jimmie Angelo, Worcester; Steve Carr, Rockville; Solly Miano, Hartford; Jackie Horner, Broad Brook; Larry Holt, New Britain; George Parker, Worcester; and Tommy Lynn, Worcester and Johnny Wilson of East Hartford. Steve Carr of Rockville meets Harry Frick of Rockville in the star bout while Tommy Tucker of Rockville will meet Larry Holt of New Britain in a return bout. Holt floored Tucker on the last card here. Tucker claims it was not a K. O. but says he failed to hear the referee's count. When these two boys clash again it means a battle of punching rarely to be seen. Solly Miano, Hartford's East Side Terran, classes in a return with Johnny Frassetto of New Britain. This bout will hold the fans on edge for it will be action all the way through.

HARVARD, COLUMBIA CREWS IN ACTION

New York, April 25.—(AP)—Two more of the east's nine college crews, Harvard and Columbia, will make their 1932 bows this Saturday leaving only Penna, Cornell and Syracuse untried in competition.

Harvard will face Bill Haines' Massachusetts Tech fleet on the Charles at Cambridge. Columbia will meet Navy on the Severn at Annapolis.

Harvard with only two of last year's regulars missing will be a distinct favorite over M. I. T. which bowed to Yale by nearly three lengths at Derby, Conn., last Saturday. Columbia probably will be favored over the light Navy eight which opened its season ten days ago with a victory over Princeton.

LUPIEN SMACKS TWO MORE BINGLES

Captain Al Lupien, former Manchester High school star, continued his sensational batting for Harvard Saturday by rapping out a double and single to account for three runs as Harvard beat Syracuse. Most of his hits have been for extra bases with home runs, triples and doubles exceeding the singles.

Earl Averill, Indians—Drove in seven runs against Browns with two homers and double.
Gerald Walker, Tigers—Clouted White Sox pitching for four singles.
Monte Weaver, Senators—Stopped Athletics 8 to 2 with seven scattered hits.

Carl Hubbell, Giants—Held Dodgers to 5 hit and won 7 to 2.
Riggs Stephenson, Cubs—Clouted Pirate hurling for three doubles.
Blint Rhem, Cards—Fitted Cards to 8 to 3 victory over Reds, scattering nine hits.

WALKER-LEVINSKY FIGHT ON FRIDAY

Meet in Chicago Stadium; La Barba-Pena and Paul-Wallace.

New York, April 25.—(AP)—Still convinced he can make trouble for any of the heavyweights despite his light poundage, Mickey Walker will face the wild Chicago swinger, King Levinsky in the feature bout of the national boxing schedule this week.

The bout will be 10 rounds or less and will be fought at the Chicago stadium Friday night. Walker probably will have to concede at least 15 pounds to Levinsky.

At Detroit, the semi-final round of the N. B. A.'s featherweight elimination tournament will be fought Friday night with Fidel La Barba, Los Angeles meeting Johnny Pena of New York in one ten rounder and Tommy Paul of Buffalo facing Frankie Wallace of Cleveland in the other. The survivors will be matched in the championship round.

Gorilla Jones, Akron, Ohio negro who holds N. B. A. recognition as N. B. A. middleweight champion will defend his title against the Trenton, N. J. youngster, Young Terry, at Trenton tomorrow night.

CUYLER IS OUT WITH FOOT INJURY

Chicago, April 25.—(AP)—Chicago's Cubs must do their battling for the leadership of the National League for the next month without the potent bat and dependable fielding of Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler.

The fleet centerfielder yesterday suffered a fracture of the small toe of his left foot. Johnny Moore will be in center until Cuyler recovers.

Berg and Fisher Divide Mound Duty For Winners; Meisner Socks Homer; Five Local Players Take Part.

Savitt's Gems of Hartford, playing with five Manchester men in their lineup, opened the 1932 semi-pro baseball season here yesterday by defeating the Holy Name of Hartford 9 to 5 at the West Side field. A six run rally in the second put the Gems on easy street.

The Gems used two pitchers, Walter Berg for six innings and Rudy Fisher for the remainder of the route. Holy Name used three hurlers, Bowen, Skeehan and Strong. The Manchester players who took part in the well-played contest are Jack Stratton, Tommy Bipples, "Lefty" St. John, "Woody" Walleit and Ernie Dowd.

St. John, Walleit and Shortell each made two hits. The former whacked two long doubles over the bank in right field. He hit the first ball pitched to him in the first inning over the embankment for what ground rules reduce to two bases. Bert Meisner of the Holy Name smacked a homer with one aboard.

The game proved a pleasing exhibition and the fans were well satisfied. With no local teams planning to organize, it now appears that the Gem may play here every Sunday if they receive the proper support. Five Manchester players in their lineup is sufficient to arrest local attention not to mention the fact that the Gems have one of the best semi-pro clubs seen in this section in several years.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

A Dream of Heaven.
This life would be much brighter if, at the close of day, We have a huge eraser To wipe our sins away. If every evil action Would vanish with the sun, We'd find in twilight shadows A paradise begun.

Opportunity knocks—this time evidently on the nose.
A Scotchman who had a terrific nose bleed hurried to the nearest hospital. When one of the doctors in the free clinic examined him he said:
Doctor—We can stop that in a few minutes—don't be alarmed.
Scotchman—But before you stop it, isn't there anyone in the hospital that needs a blood transfusion?
I read in the paper you pay $25 in such cases.

The drunk halted in front of an enormous stuffed tarpon in a glass case. He stared at it a minute or two in silence. Then he said: "The fellow who caught—hic—that fish is a—hic—liar!"

Conrad—Do you think a married woman should work for a livin'?

Caroline—Oh, of course, I don't see why she should go hungry just because she's got a husband.

Dr. Cutter—So you had to operate on this patient in a hurry?

Dr. Slicer—Yes, we didn't have time to even look up his financial rating.

Pullman Conductor—What are you doing with those towels in your suitcase?

Patron (with presence of mind)—Oh, they are some I used last time I was on the train and I had them washed and brought them back.

After all you never saw a woman killing around up town, leaning against a wall, and bragging about the work she used to do.

Some Come-Back.
"Why didn't you call me when he kissed you?" mother hissed.
"Why, mother, I didn't know you wanted to be kissed."

The Democrats have chosen "Hee! Haw! We're Coming Back!" as their 1932 slogan. The Republicans we believe, select something equally dignified and impressive. Like, "Oh, Yeah?" for instance.

Bill (as he caught up with Gus on the way back to camp)—Gus, are all the rest of the boys out of the woods yet?

Gus—Yes, all six of them.

Bill—And they're all safe?

Gus—Yep, they're all safe.

Bill (his chest swelling)—Then I've shot a deer.

Mrs. Kieker—And does your husband often throw his arms around you when he comes home late at night?

Mrs. Jeep—Yes, sometimes before I can strike a single blow.

The superintendent had severely criticized the trainmaster for laxity in reporting accidents. Only a few days later the superintendent received the following wire: "Man fell off of platform in front of speeding engine." To which the superintendent wired: "Advise details." The trainmaster replied: "No one hurt; engine was backing up."

A really sick man is one who doesn't even know whether his nurse is a blonde or brunette—a dying man is one who doesn't care.

Voice Over Phone—Clarice says she isn't in. Is there any message? Other end of the Line—Yes. Tell her that Jack didn't call.

PLAN OWN MOVIES
Moscow.—Soviet Union is planning to commence mass production of movies in Russia "along Hollywood lines," according to recent information. It is planned to construct a plant near this city and organize a studio in which films using Russian actors would be turned out. Two raw film plants are now producing thousands of feet of film daily.

NEW ATTACK PLANES
Washington.—The U. S. Army Air Corps is now testing a new type of attack plane, said to be the latest word in speed and fighting ability. It is a low-wing monoplane fitted with guns to attack troops on the ground. The power plant, rating at 600 horsepower, is liquid cooled. The new plane uses a three-bladed propeller.

HER GENTLE MATE
Boston.—Some women may prefer cave men, but Mrs. Mildred F. Richardson thinks her hubby is too brutal. In a divorce suit she charged that he pulled her out of bed, hurled a telephone at her and poured hot coffee down her neck. The suit was not contested by her husband, Roland, in Essex County Probate Court, Salem.

At 11 o'clock last night, White's woods, off Henry street, caught fire for the second time in the last few days, but the blaze was stopped before gaining headway.

POLICE COURT

James Giglio, well known local barber, was found guilty of non-support in Manchester Police Court this morning and ordered to pay $3 a week towards the support of his wife and six children. Judge Raymond A. Johnson ordered that a bond of $100 be furnished to guarantee payment. Giglio stated in his own behalf that he is earning only $10 a week and paying half of that for a room. Probation Officer Edward C. Elliott's testimony was to the effect that Giglio thought more of his own welfare than of the support of his wife and children. Mrs. Giglio testified that her husband had given her very little money since January.

Court records revealed that Giglio had been arrested once before for non-support and twice for breach of the peace. Judge Johnson imposed a thirty days suspended jail sentence this morning, along with the order to pay five dollars a week. Gustave Anderson, 26, dishwash-

KIMBERLY CHENEY INJURED IN CRASH

Manchester Law Student One of Three Badly Hurt In Rear-End Collision. Kimberly Cheney, 22-year old son of Howell Cheney, is in a serious condition in the Hartford hospital, suffering from injuries received in an automobile accident on Farmington avenue, in the town of Farmington, at 9:45 Saturday evening. He was reported today as being somewhat improved in condition, though it had not been determined whether there was a fracture of the skull. He was badly cut about the head and face. The other man, both truck drivers, were also very badly injured in the accident, while Paul W. Cooley, 24, of West Hartford, with whom Mr. Cheney was riding, and Miss Anita Hinkley of Providence, also a passenger with Mr. Cooley, suffered less serious injuries. Cooley suffered lacerations of the head and face while Miss Hinkley escaped with trifling damage. Had Been to Race Mr. Cheney, who is a student at Yale law school, Mr. Cooley and Miss Hinkley, the latter a house guest at the Cheney home, drove to Derby Saturday to attend the Yale-M. I. T. boat race and were on their way home when the accident occurred. According to the police version of the affair two trucks, one towing the other, and driven by Peter Stefanoni and Angelo DiPietro, both of Hartford, had halted on Farmington avenue within a quarter of a mile of the Coweys Inn, on a long, straight stretch of road, and were pulled up to the right side of the way. Why Mr. Cooley failed to see the truck had not been fully explained but Cooley is reported to have asserted that there was no tail light showing on the rear truck. At all events his car drove with great force into the rear truck, smashing the front end of the passenger vehicle and the impact forcing the truck into collision with the one ahead. It was stated after the accident by Chief of Police M. W. Fuller of Farmington that Cooley would be arrested for reckless driving. Cheney, the two truck drivers and Miss Hinkley were taken to St. Francis hospital. There DiPietro was found to be in a critical condition with a probable fracture of the skull and Stefanoni to have serious head injuries of a somewhat less critical nature. Miss Hinkley did not remain at the hospital. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Cheney was removed to the Hartford hospital.

TWO MANCHESTER GIRLS, NOT ONE, IN MARATHON

Manchester has two young women, instead of one, it appears, in the marathon dance contest in Hartford. Besides Miss Laura Getzwich, there is Miss Mary Steiner. The field has been reduced to about 25 couples. A total of 80 started when the contest began several days ago and after 60 hours the field had been reduced to 26 couples. Swollen feet are bothering the dancers even more than lack of sleep. Eleven minutes rest per hour is all that is permitted. Many dancers sleep in each other's arms while moving slowly about the floor, each taking turns in supporting the other.
