

VICTIM OF BLAST IN SHANGHAI DIES

Four Other High Ranking Japanese Officials in Hospital, One of Them in a Critical Condition.

Shanghai, April 30.—(AP)—One of the five high Japanese officials, severely injured by a bomb explosion in Hongkew Park yesterday, Y. Kawabata, president of the Shanghai Japanese residents association, died today.

Of the other four, Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister to China was in the most serious condition. Thirty-two pieces of the hand grenade alleged to have been thrown by Yin Kitan, a Korean revolutionary from Manchuria entered M. Shigemitsu's body.

Other Victims. The other victims, General Yoshinori Shirakawa, Major General Kenkichi Ueyeda and Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, were recovering.

General Shirakawa, commander in chief of the Japanese land forces here lost all his teeth and was suffering from severe bruises on the upper part of his body. Admiral Nomura lost an eye and was seriously wounded in the head.

After announcement of the death of M. Kawabata, there was a report that Minister Shigemitsu's right leg had been amputated and that his condition was growing increasingly serious. Japanese denied this.

Nationality a Secret. Another report was that the bomb thrower was a Japanese and not a Korean and Japanese military officials were keeping it a secret. They and the consular officials refused to discuss the matter.

It was also reported that the chiefs of the Japanese consular police, the civilian gendarmes who were partly responsible for policing Hongkew yesterday had resigned, thereby intimating they would hold themselves responsible for the incident.

The Japanese military authorities would allow no one to enter the Chapel sector which was at the scene of the explosion today as it was immediately after the fighting stopped there.

REPORTED KIDNAPED IS FOUND IN ATTIC

Thirteen Year Old Girl Has Whole Town Excited Over Her Escape.

Harrison, N. Y., April 30.—(AP)—With the aid of a cherry tree, a friendly attic at her home on Board street here, and a water closet, 13 year old Mildred Smiler gave the "run around" to her parents, police telegraph typewriter systems in Connecticut, town police and Westchester county, town police and truant officers for two days.

Mildred played "hookey" from school on Wednesday. Her distracted parents broadcast the alarm. Thursday night at 7 o'clock Mildred's father heard a noise in the attic. Investigation revealed Mildred.

A cherry tree at the Bemler home reaches its branches to the attic window. Mildred climbed the tree to her attic sanctuary at night and an ascended by its branches in the mornings.

She said she had been in the attic most of the time, but police said her sunburned face indicated beach visits.

KIND HEARTED RAILROADERS

Pawnee City, Neb., April 30.—(AP)—A mother robin was back on her eggs today because three railroad men interrupted their routine work long enough to give attention to a bird's nest.

A freight train picked up a box car in the Lewiston yards, 15 miles west of here, and brought it to Pawnee City, where H. B. Saulsbury, brakeman, noticed in the car a nest containing four eggs. He and A. B. Kennedy, railroad agent here, carried the nest into the station until a westbound freight train arrived.

The conductor, L. Nuckolls, took the nest back to Lewiston and had it placed in a tree near the railroad yards.

BAY STATE G.O.P. DISCUSSES PLANKS

Leaders Meet To Discover Sentiment of Voters Concerning 18th Amendment.

Boston, April 30.—(AP)—Massachusetts Republicans gathered in informal convention today at historic Faneuil Hall to discuss a party platform and to attempt to place the unofficial delegates on record on the question of resubmitting the 18th Amendment to a referendum.

Five hundred members of the party were expected to attend the all-day session, which is sponsored by the Republican Club of Massachusetts under the direction of its president, Major Judson Hannigan. Lovett Ballou, speaker of the Massachusetts House, was permanent chairman.

The political assembly was composed of members of several official Republican clubs, of the state committee, legislators, and delegates pledged to vote for the renomination of President Hoover at the National convention. Invitations have also been accepted by Rev. A. Z. Conrad and Professor Thomas Nixon Carver of Harvard, crusading drys.

But Party Sentiment on Expansion of party sentiment on public issues and will not in any way be binding on the party when its delegates assemble for the state convention in September.

A resolutions committee has drafted a platform containing 13 planks, which will be presented to the unofficial convention for ratification and open discussion will be held on each plank.

It was expected that interest would center chiefly about an attempt to put the unofficial delegates on record in favor of resubmission of the 18th Amendment to a referendum. Dr. Conrad and Professor Carver were expected to lead a movement against any such attempt.

It was hoped that today's meeting might produce an accurate cross section of party sentiment on outstanding issues and thus place the party leaders in a position to be armed with a knowledge of what to expect in the fall elections.

Light Waves Within Metal Responsible for Strength

Washington, April 30.—(AP)—magnetic properties are distributed with regularity through the ranks. The strength of iron, a group of scientists were told today, may be caused by a peculiar kind of light waves within the dark, dense metal.

Dr. Francis Bitter of the Westinghouse company, described his discovery of these light waves before the American Physical Society. He said they are forms of radiation by which atoms in metals exchange energy, and by which they are closely tied together.

Scientists long have known that atoms in iron are lined up in regular ranks and columns like soldiers. Now Dr. Bitter has found that the atom-soldiers apparently also "keep in step" as they move about, and that their different "uniforms" or

REDS ALL OVER WORLD PREPARE FOR 'MAY DAY'

Communists in Vancouver, B. C., Steal 1,000 Pounds of Dynamite — Expected To Commandeer Trains.

By Associated Press. "The Cops vs. Communists" drama was dusted off for a possible revival today as plans for May Day celebrations were given their final touches.

In many lands police were watching. Vancouver, B. C., registered the first score. Police said they were informed of a raiding band of Communists and unemployed had broken into a powder magazine at Ashcroft, 175 miles away, stolen 1,000 pounds of dynamite and started for Vancouver to celebrate May Day tomorrow.

For days hundreds of men, defying police, have been traveling by railroad toward Vancouver without paying fares.

May Commandeer Trains. Railroad police were stirred to activity on receiving word of a possible demonstration at Ham Loops, 800 miles east of Vancouver. They said they were warned demonstrators might commandeer trains on two main lines to reach the demonstration scene.

Russia, preparing for a rousing celebration, had a greeting from the revolutionary war council at Moscow, which urged that "The iron revolutionary discipline of the Red Army" be strengthened. It warned against neglecting the nation's defenses at a time when cannons are roaring in the Far East.

In France, where Sunday is election day, the minister of the interior issued the customary order to guard against May Day disorder but he said he expected no trouble. In Mexico City police were ordered to prevent demonstrations or disorders.

New York police, 18,000 strong, will be on duty continuous from this morning till Monday morning. Mass meetings and parades were expected.

VALERA VICTOR IN 2ND BATTLE OVER THE OATH

Carried By Vote of 77 To 71 In Face of Bitter Opposition By Former President Cosgrave and Colleagues.

Dublin, April 30.—(AP)—President De Valera's bill to abolish the oath of allegiance to King George was safely over what has been considered its most formidable hurdle today.

Waging a bitter battle in the Dail Eriann last night the President and his Fianna Fail and Labor colleagues carried it on a second reading by a vote of 77 to 71 in the face of bitter opposition from former President William T. Cosgrave's supporters.

There were rumors today that the labor party members were weakening and might endanger the further progress of the bill by withdrawing their essential support from the government, but Will Norton, labor leader, said after the vote last night they would support the bill through its subsequent stages.

May Break Treaty. The reports of a labor defection said some members of the party got the impression from Mr. De Valera's speeches that he intended to break the Anglo-Irish treaty as well as abolish the oath. W. Davin, a labor member questioned the President, it was said, demanding in effect that the bill be confined to the oath, without receiving a satisfactory answer.

De Valera's Comment. "I do not fear negotiation with England," De Valera told the Dail before the vote was taken, "but when we negotiate we will negotiate about a united Ireland and not before. No negotiation is needed about this bill. My word is as good as that of J. H. Thomas (British secretary for the Dominions)."

"As one of the things that do not say that abolishing the oath was a violation of the treaty. He is beginning to say it now, but we deny it is a violation."

The government's opposition, which allowed the measure to be adopted on a reading without a fight, massed all its strength against it yesterday. The debating was impassioned and the session was in continuous uproar.

Williamburg, Va., April 29.—(AP)—Their strike ended after two days, men students at the College of William and Mary returned to classes today with assurance a new hearing would be given four freshmen suspended by the college administration for "hazing."

A promise by President J. A. C. Chandler that the case against the students would be reheard, giving them an opportunity to be represented by professional counsel, met the principal demand of the striking students. They also were promised that no punishment would be meted out for the rebellion against administrative authority or for missing classes and that the president would confer with student representatives next week with a view to giving them some authority in the matter of college discipline.

Dr. Chandler said, however, the opportunity to have their cases reviewed in the presence of parents or legal representatives was one alternative given to suspended students and he refused to allow them to be represented by student counsel.

There was no disorder from the time the strike was declared at a rally on Thursday until it was officially ended at a meeting last night.

FRANCE TO BALLOT FOR ITS DEPUTIES

Over 3,000 Candidates For 615 Seats; Run Off Elections Week From Sunday.

Paris, April 30.—(AP)—Ten million Frenchmen will vote tomorrow in the first installment of the general elections.

The voting will be followed May 8 by a run-off election.

There are 3,017 candidates running for the 615 seats in the Chamber of Deputies. There are 85 candidates for a single seat, that of St. Girond, in the Department of Ariège.

The French election law requires a full majority of the votes cast in each district to win in the first election.

In the run-off election, held a week later, a bare plurality is sufficient.

In spite of the fact that tomorrow is May Day, when usually there are demonstrations of radical groups, Premier Tardieu said he anticipated no trouble.

Domestic Issues. The campaign has centered in great measure on domestic matters. The government has stood on its record of disarmament. The opposition Radical Socialist Party headed by Edouard Herriot, former premier and mayor of Lyons, has indulged in some criticism but has taken no flat stand against most of the Tardieu policies.

Most of the criticism of the government's foreign policy has come from the Socialists who have championed disarmament and closer relations with Germany.

AMERICANS CONVICTED BY JURY IN HONOLULU

Noted Arctic Sleuth Passes Away Suddenly

Ottawa, April 30.—(AP)—A H. J. vessel called for him at an out-of-the-way harbor, and found that he had done his job. He had acted as detective, undertaker, coroner, magistrate, and jailer, and had ready for transport back to the white man's court, a native named Noo-Ku-Lah. The killer, saved from execution because of his ignorance of the laws, was imprisoned.

When Joy was a staff-sergeant, he undertook a 1,500 mile patrol in the sub-Arctic which was, in effect, the planting of the symbol of Canada's sovereignty over the entire Arctic Archipelago. On this patrol he was accompanied by a constable and an Eskimo. The latter, previously had accompanied Commander Peary in his dash for the Pole.

It was in 1916 that he made his first important contact with the frozen north. Reports leaked out that a white trapper had been slain by an Eskimo far beyond the borders of civilization. Up to that year there had been no police force in the Arctic.

There was a constable, went north on a whaling boat. A year later a

BAN EASTER EGGS IN SOVIET RUSSIA

Youngsters' Organization Compels Storekeepers To Take Them Off Shelves.

Moscow, April 30.—(AP)—There will be no colored eggs in Moscow on the Russian orthodox Easter tomorrow, for the young pioneers, an organization of children from ten to sixteen, have made the stores take them off their shelves.

There will be no kulich, a tall, sweet cake, and none of that sweetened cheese dessert which always was a traditional Easter confection. There will be no fancy dolls, for all these things have fallen under the ban of the crusaders.

The youngsters condemned the cooperative trade committee for permitting the display of such articles and in a formal protest modeled upon those frequently issued by their elders they declared that "In Soviet Russia religious organizations fight against religious traditions, but the toys we have seen offered for sale tend to stimulate religious sentiments."

Flying brigades of the young athletes demanded that dolls and candies and toy phonographs be thrown out and that instead of models of automobiles and tractors. The theory is that in Russia the toy is not the plaything of the individual child but most appeal to the collective mass. Of 150 varieties of toys the Young Pioneers found only nine designed on satisfactorily technical lines.

Mad Hatter Not So Mad, Says Famous Scientist

New York, April 30.—(AP)—It took the original Alice in Wonderland 70 years and a trip to America to find out that the Mad Hatter was maybe as sane as Albert Einstein.

Mrs. Alice Liddell Hargreaves, 80, for whom Lewis Carroll spun the story of "Alice in Wonderland" back in the 60's arrived yesterday to attend Columbia University's celebration of the Carroll centenary.

Today she could read in her newspaper how Dr. Robert A. Millikan, famous scientist, sprang to the defense of the Mad Hatter's mentality in a lecture last night. It was all about the new "concept of time" and how the Einstein theories have robbed "the harsh sequence of cause and effect" of power.

You remember how the Mad Hatter told Alice she shouldn't beat time when she learned music. "He won't stand beating," the Mad Hatter said. "Now if you only kept on good terms with him, he'd do almost anything you liked with the clock. For instance, suppose it were 9 o'clock in the morning, just time to begin lessons, you'd only have to whisper a hint to Time, and round goes the clock in a twinkling? Half past 1, time for dinner?"

Recommend Mercy For Four Defendants In Massie Case—City Astir With Excitement and Rumors

After Verdict Is Returned; National Guard Prepared For All Emergencies.

Honolulu, April 30.—(AP)—With a recommendation for leniency, a racially mixed jury has convicted four Americans of manslaughter for the slaying of an Hawaiian.

The jury reported a verdict late yesterday after more than 48 hours deliberation. Those found guilty are: Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N.; Mrs. Granville Fortescue, society matron, his mother-in-law, and Albert C. Jones and E. J. Lord, Navy enlisted men.

The verdict was read in a court room tense with silence. First to break it was a sob from Mrs. Thalia Massie, wife of the Naval officer, who allegedly was criminally attacked by Joseph Kahahawai, the slain native.

Conviction set all Honolulu astir with excitement and rumors. Governor Lawrence M. Judd denied the National Guard had been summoned but said preparations had been taken against possible emergencies.

Chief of Police Weeber, who manned the judiciary building with very available policemen while the verdict was being read, had taken no additional precautions other than to have all officers "on their toes."

Although the National Guard was not called out, it was learned from several of its officers they were keeping in touch with each other by telephone so as to be able to act should any emergency arise.

It was no secret the Navy element of the population was angry. "The racial factor continued to loom in the background of the many ramifications of the case. Some Hawaiians and Orientals were outspoken in favor of the verdict, which was returned by a jury of eight Caucasians, three Chinese and a native."

It was with varying reactions that the quartet received the findings of the jury. Lieut. Massie, who admitted killing Kahahawai after Kahahawai allegedly had admitted taking part in an attack on Mrs. Massie, stood with set, white lips as his fate was read by the court clerk.

In the jury's findings, the insanity defense set up in behalf of Lieut. Massie was disregarded. Clarence Darrow, defense lawyer, said "I am very much disappointed."

Mrs. Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie, heard the verdict without flinching. Neither Jones nor Lord showed any signs of feeling.

The four defendants were charged with second degree murder, which calls for a sentence of 30 years to life imprisonment. Judge Charles S. Davis had instructed the jury it could find the quartet guilty as charged, guilty of manslaughter or not guilty.

He added a possible finding of not guilty by reason of insanity for Massie.

Appeal Is Taken. Notice of appeal was given by George H. Seligson, defense attorney. In the course of procedure the case would go to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in California.

The jury's findings left a variety of possibilities in the way of sentence. The maximum penalty for manslaughter is ten years. The lightest sentence possible would be a suspended sentence for that length of time, which is within the power of Judge Davis.

In addition Governor Judd has the power to pardon any or all of them. Judge Davis fixed next Friday as the date for pronouncing sentence.

Public reaction to the verdict varied. Generally it was a surprise because rumors had been circulated the jury probably would convict Lieut. Massie only. Few expected the conviction of Mrs. Fortescue.

Commander R. W. Bates, head of the Navy shore patrol, said he expected no disturbance in the city and would not order additional sailors for patrol duty.

To Guard Ida. William E. Pittman, attorney for Horace Ida, one of the four remaining men accused of attacking Mrs. Massie, asked a police guard for the home of Ida.

Shortly after the jury disagreement in the attack case, Ida was seized and beaten in a vain effort to get him to confess. After Kahahawai's death, Ida and his co-defendants, Ben Ahakouli, Henry Chang and David Takai, who had been at liberty under bond, voluntarily went to jail for protection. More recently however they left the jail for their homes.

Last night they were placed back in jail as a safety precaution. The conviction gave a notable victory to John C. Kelley in his first

Juvenile Fashion Show At Hale's Wednesday

Youngsters to Model New Spring Styles at Baby Shop.

Just as the older folks primp and decorate themselves in the latest fashions for Easter so the youngsters are outfitted in the newest Spring and Summer modes during Baby Week. Tots of two and three years of age will be the stars of this National Baby Week as thoroughly and as elaborately as their big brothers and sisters and mothers and dads are for Easter Sunday.

Recognizing the fact that the younger members of the family look forward to the show with as much interest as do the elders The J. W. Hale Company is planning for National Baby Week a "Juvenile Fashion Show." This style exhibit will be held in Hale's famous Baby Shop Wednesday afternoon, May 4 at 3:30. Only the company's employees or parents or other adults will be admitted.

Baby Shop Beautiful. Hale's Baby Shop, always a pleasant place to shop for the youngsters' clothing needs, has been made even more beautiful. This occasion has given the Hale's store executives an opportunity to stress the beauty that can be produced through simple arrangements of the soft blues and pinks of the nursery room.

Special attention will be given to mothers attending the show bringing youngsters in carriages. These mothers are asked to bring their baby vehicles to the Oak street entrance of Hale's where arrangements have been made to "park" them in care of an attendant. Hale's real reason that mothers oftentimes decide not to attend events of this nature because they do not wish to be troubled placing their carriages in a safe place while they are shopping or watching a style show. These carriages will all be carefully watched next Wednesday afternoon and no mother should feel compelled to stay away because of the trouble of "parking" a baby carriage.

Six handsome little tots ranging from two to six years of age will model some of Hale's real baby wear for children. About 40 garments from sun suits to afternoon frocks and hats will be displayed with these six children modeling them. Those who will wear the clothes are as follows: Richmond Morrison (age 2 years), Mr. and Mrs. William Morrison, 20 Greenhill street.

Rose Mary Quish (age 3 years), Mr. and Mrs. William P. Quish, 225 Main street.

Helen Stiles (age 2 years), Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Stiles, Hollister street.

Fawn Appleby (age 5 years), Mr. and Mrs. Russell Appleby, 17 Army street.

Jean Johnston (age 5 years), Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Johnston, 15 Hawley street.

Stewart Carlson (age 4 years), Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Carlson, 27 Walker street.

To Give Balloons As a special attraction for the youngsters balloons will be present to all of them who attend the style show accompanied by their mothers. Mrs. Mildred Tedford, the popular manager, of the Hale's Baby Shop who is well liked by both mothers and youngsters who shop at Hale's has made special plans to show some of the newer modes and garments to those who attend the show and who shop at Hale's during National Baby Week. The Baby Shop is a delightful spot to browse about looking for the new and unique in children's garments and shoppers are always warmly greeted there by Mrs. Tedford.

Among the garments that will be modeled Wednesday afternoon are Sun Suits, Play Suits, Spring outfits, Play Dresses, Afternoon Frocks, Party and School Frocks, Coats and Hats. All of the Hale's family are looking forward to Wednesday afternoon's Kiddies party and it promises to be a delightful affair for the mothers who attend. As a last reminder the day is next Wednesday and the time of the style show is 3:30 in the afternoon.

A new plant for purification of helium is to be constructed by the U. S. Navy Department at its new airship base at Sunnyvale, Cal.

West Side Racketeers Burn Rival Clubhouse

Gang warfare is believed to have been responsible for the fire that gutted a clubhouse located in the woods south of Cooper Hill street at midnight last night. The membership of the gang involved is drawn from West Side youngsters, who seem bent on emulating the deeds of Capone gangsters.

An alarm from Box 24, at Cooper Hill and West streets, brought Hose Companies 1 and 4 of the South Manchester Fire Department to the scene shortly before midnight. The fire had gained considerable headway and from a distance took on the aspect of a huge conflagration, drawing several hundreds of people to the spot. As the shack stood in a clearing the flames did not spread quickly and were soon brought under control. The shack, constructed of odd pieces of wood and tin, is said to be the property of a gang known as "The Rinky-dinks." As no trace of a fire was found in the wood stove within the hut, the cause was laid to a rival gang of youngsters, who had even gone so far as to place a crudely written sign in the shack which stated that "This shack will burn on April 25." Evidently plans miscarried as the fire occurred four days later.

At 2 o'clock this morning, Companies 2 and 3 were called on a false alarm from Box 62 at Oak and Clinton streets. One hour later, Company No. 3 answered a still alarm for a brush fire in the woods at Parker and Nye streets. Hose company No. 1 extinguished a brush fire at Wetherell and Eldwell streets at 4:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

W. T. LITTLE LOSES HIS CHAMPION JERSEY COW

"Shamrock Sybil Beauty," Winner of Gold and Silver Medals, Dies at Spencer Street Farm. Wilbur T. Little of the Shamrock Farms, Spencer street, reports the loss by milk fever of a valuable cow, one of his high producing strains of Jerseys, "Shamrock Sybil Beauty." The animal had just recently completed a record of 11,880 pounds of milk and 645 pounds of butter-fat in 305 days, thereby winning both gold and silver medals awarded by the American Jersey Cattle Club. This remarkable record was made at 4 years and 10 months of age on twice-a-day milking and under ordinary farm care.

The milk averaged 5.7 percent for the ten month period and during one month "Beauty" was scored the highest cow in the United States in her age class with a yield of 81 pounds of butter fat. Her lowest month was 5 1/2 pounds of butter fat.

For eight months of the ten Beauty was on the Connecticut Agricultural College Honor list, and for four months was the highest Jersey cow on the honor list. Another month she was in second place, having been beaten by her full sister, another member of the Shamrock Farm herd.

Mr. Little's loss is partly offset by the fact that "Shamrock Sybil Beauty" is survived by three daughters, one of which is making a fine record as a two-year-old.

Isaac And His Wells

Text: Gen. 28:12-25.
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for May 1.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist

The golden text chosen from the Book of Proverbs is appropriate to this lesson. "A soft answer turneth away wrath; but a grievous word stirreth up anger."

Isaac was hardly as great a figure as his father, Abraham, but he had inherited at least a fairly large part of his father's integrity and common sense. He also inherited his father's wealth. Building upon that that his father left him, he became a man of very great possessions; so wealthy in the flocks and herds that constituted the wealth of the time that his Philistine neighbors greatly envied him.

The strife that ensued, the Philistines had shown this enmity by filling up the wells that Abraham's servants had dugged, and when Isaac digged these wells again the Philistines apparently continued to stop them.

Isaac seems to have had a peaceful disposition, very much like his father's, for when the wells were filled and strife arose he apparently went on to another place and digged new wells. So it happened that strife arose about successive wells until finally he moved farther away and digged a well which was left to him in peaceful possession. In token of this fact he called the well "Rehoboth," which means "room" or "broad places."

"For now," he said, Jehovah hath made room for us, and we shall be fruitful in the land."

Was it a coincidence that, following these events, when Isaac went up to Beersheba, in the extreme south of Palestine, and the home associated with his devotion to his father, the Lord appeared to him with words of promise and blessing? Do not the promises and blessings of God come to those who seek the way of peace and who endeavor to meet the world's strife in the spirit of patience and good will?

One does not mean by this that goodness always has its reward in outward success. The cross of Christ reminds us, rather, that the highest way of life is often for those who suffer and who sacrifice everything for conscience's sake. But it is none the less true that the way of supreme satisfaction is the way of right and peace and truth. And this is essentially as true in our time as it was in primitive times when causes and effects were more simply discernible.

The line of march will be north on Main street to the Center, thence south to the church where reservations have been made for Salvationists and their friends.

The evening service at the South Methodist church will commence at 8:00 p. m. This will be preceded by a march from the hall at 7:30. A very delightful program is being arranged for and the public is invited to attend.

PRESIDENT, GUEST OF OHIO COLONY

All Those At Banquet Were Residents Or Former Residents of Buckeye State.

Washington, April 30.—(AP)—President and Mrs. Hoover were guests of honor at a dinner given Tuesday night by Postmaster General and Mrs. Brown in their apartment at the Shoreham hotel. The guests were all residents or former residents of Ohio, which, incidentally, was the native state of the President's father, Jesse Hoover.

Coming back from her springtime spin to the President's camp in the Blue Ridge mountains Mrs. Hoover on Tuesday received the delegates to the League of American Penwomen's convention.

The same afternoon the delegates were guest of the Polish ambassador, Tytus Filipowicz, at a reception at the Embassy. The stately rooms were decorated with spring flowers and fruit blossoms. Bowls of roses adorned the tea and punch tables.

Mrs. Edward E. Gann, who leaves soon on another speech-making trip for the Republican party, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given Wednesday by the board of governors of the National Woman's Country Club.

Pink will be the predominating color worn at the Apple Blossom Ball at the Shoreham May 6. Blossoming apple trees will encircle the gold ball room. Miss Anne Wyant, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Adam Wyant of Pennsylvania, has been chosen queen, the choice of 200 bachelors who considered her the most popular debutante. Wearing a crystal embroidered white chiffon dress with a court train 12 yards long, she will be enthroned at one end of the ball room, surrounded by 12 ladies in waiting wearing white gowns and caps in pastel tints.

DOUBLE OPERATION

Told that his foot, injured in an automobile accident six years ago, must be amputated, and his appendix removed, Mr. Goudge asked that both operations be performed at once. His wish was granted yesterday.

His condition was reported good.

A WELL OF LIVING WATER

BY GEORGE HENRY DOLE
International Sunday School Lesson Text, May 1st.
"A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous words stir up anger."—Prov. 15:1.

Living water! Literally it means a spring that never runs dry. It stands for truth with a love in it that keeps one perpetually renewed, vigorous, beautiful in spirit, radiating gladness. It has been supposed that somewhere there could be found a spring of perpetual youth. A myth, a fairy tale? No, look in the right place and it will be found.

The spirit does not know what old age is. Space and time are not attributed of the mind. We can think of the most distant star as quickly as of our hand. The body, not the mind, wears the shackles of space and time. The mind can walk through the garden and view the flowers, travel the winding paths in majestic forests, visit the old home, go where it will and even childhood's pleasures can be re-enjoyed. Now here is the point. If the mind can return to the vigor and joyous state of youth, it can stay there. Ah, it need never leave that attractive, active happy state. The only reason why the mind grows old and sterile is because the well of living water, the spring of perpetual youth is lost among the thorns, thistles, the cares of the world, and in the darkness of a spiritual night. Or, perhaps like the wells that Jacob dug, the Philistines of false teachings have filled it. I know, and doubtless you know aged people who preserved the freshness, interest, and charm of the spirit of their youth. Everyone can do the same. He who lives rightly, who drinks of the living water, never grows old, in a sentence, old age is the acme of youth enriched with love and wisdom from the Lord, when one quenches his thirst from the well of living water, which is the Word of the Lord.

Here is the way to the living water. "A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous words stir up anger," not only in others, but also in ourselves. Watch the spirit. Do not let anything destroy the faith, energy, joy and charm of youth. Keep the spirit of youth, but make it continually more wise and loving. Did you ever perceive the full meaning of the fact that the angel at the Lord's sepulcher was a young man? He may have been a thousand years old, a thousand years advanced in the faith, vigor, ambition and charm of youth. Drink of the living water. It will become a well of water springing up, not unto the death of any desirable essential, but unto everlasting life.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Madrid—In the spring a Spanish airman's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of wild turkey. Major Ignacio Hidalgo de Caceres, noted army airman, opened the serial hunting season by bagging a 25-pound bird. The airman does not shoot the turkeys. They fly after them until the birds are weary and sit down on the plains of Castile. Then the aviators alight and catch them.

New York—Whisky as a snakebite cure makes G. Kinsley Noble go "Heh! Heh! Mr. Noble, reptile expert, says hard liquor and cauterization are out of date as venom remedies. He urges vacationists to carry anti-venom serum.

Zdunska Wola, Poland—There's a peasant here who was born several hundred years too late. Going to cattle market, he tried to sell his pig for 20 ducats (about $4). He found a customer, too, but just then the police stepped in.

Detroit—A little thing like a broken back can't keep Dr. E. J. O'Brien off the job. Lying in a plaster cast as the result of an automobile accident, he performed four operations in a day. He worked propped face down on a table raised above the operating table.

Pikeville, Tenn.—Thomas J. Swafford, sheriff and restaurant operator, is accused of plotting with a bootlegger to "plant" liquor in the cafe of a competitor.

Istanbul—Street dogs, multiplying rapidly, are baffling exterminators. They refuse to touch poisoned bread. But one dog killer focuses them. He goes about munching a piece of bread, showing the dog it is harmless. Then, by sleight of hand, he swaps it for a poisoned piece and throws it to them. They gobble it and die.

Washington—Allison and Van Ryn beat Rainville and Wright to clinch first round Davis Cup match with Canada.

Honolulu—Charles Eugene Banks, 80, author and editor and old friend of Clarence Darrow.

Detroit—William Kelly, 70, once chief designing engineer for the Maxwell Motor Company.

Worthington, Minn.—Charles P. Smallwood, 86, president of the Minnesota Association of Commercial Secretaries.

OPEN MEETINGS

When in the course of human events Manchester's school consolida- tion act shall have come into actual operation and the new Board of Education shall have been elected and started to function, this town should be through, for all time, with hole-and-corner secrecy in the management of its school affairs. The first act of that board, after it has effected its organization, should be the adoption of a standing rule prohibiting so-called "executive sessions" from which representatives of the public and the press might be excluded.

"Open covenants, openly arrived at" are as essential to the proper conduct of the public's business by the public's servants as to the righteous conduct of international diplomacy. If there is one open door which should never be closed it is the door to the room where a city or town board is deliberating on some subject of municipal concern having to do with the expenditure of money—and what municipal concern is there that has nothing to do with the spending of money?

While it is probably quite true that never in the past, has a secret or "executive" session of any Manchester board employed its secret or "executive" character as a shield behind which a dishonest or reprehensible decision was arrived at, it is quite as true that in towns and cities where dishonest and reprehensible things are done by municipal bodies it is almost invariably behind closed doors; while rarer than a white blackbird is the dubious job or deal put over with newspaper reporters and casual spectators looking on.

For that reason and in frank recognition of the evils of star-chamber proceedings, many municipalities now provide, in their charters, against so-called executive or closed meetings of administrative bodies. In our hedge-podge charter there is no such provision. It ought not to be necessary. We Manchester folks are a decent lot and we do not intend to do crooked things behind lock and key in the management of our public affairs. And because we all, including our public officials from top to bottom, propose to do nothing of which we are ashamed or which will not stand the full light of day, there is no reason for hiding ourselves away from public view and hearing when we have public business to transact.

It is important that the new Board of Education shall start its existence under the very firm conviction that there is absolutely nothing private about its business—that it has been elected to represent the twenty-three thousand people of Manchester and that every one of them has a full right to know what its representatives are doing, not part of the time but all the time and not in a vaguely general way but in detail.

WALCOTT'S POSITION

The steering committee of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency which has, for the time being, taken over the conduct of that body's inquiry into the operations of the stock market, appears to have adopted a plan of further investigation which, it is to be presumed, will lead the inquiry into a direction just about the opposite of that originally followed. It started out to be a bear hunt. It now looks as if it were to turn into a bull-baiting.

It is hardly to be wondered at that, in the reorganized inquiry, little is likely to be heard of Senator Walcott, who was the leading figure in the committee's quest while the bears were under inspection. Senator Walcott is a particularly loyal adherent of President Hoover. He was helping to develop what is undoubtedly a favorite theory of the President, that a great deal of the shrinking in securities values was due to bear raids in the stock market. Now that the investigation has been turned into quite contrary channels and the Western suspicion of all Wall street operations is influencing the committee's course, it is logical enough that the Connecticut senator should take a back seat. As a spokesman for the White House, or something very like it, he could hardly be expected to take a very active part in helping to prove a flat contradiction of the Hoover theory.

For the purposes of the fullest and most intelligent investigation of this whole subject it is rather regrettable that Mr. Walcott does not enjoy complete freedom of action—that through his tacit commitment to the White House view the committee is to some extent deprived of his very able assistance in getting at the bottom of stock market influence on the country's economic state; for there are very few members of either branch of Congress possessing the Connecticut man's clarity of vision in these matters.

NO ACTION AT ALL?

There is beginning to arise in some minds a doubt whether either the tax bill or the economy bill will ever be enacted at this session of Congress. The former, now in the hands of the Senate Finance Committee, is falling into a state of kaleidoscopic change so involved that nobody can tell whether the Senate will ever be able to come to a vote on it; the debate may continue until the senators, in June, suddenly abandon the session and rush home to attend to their personal politics. As for the economy bill, there is daily less prospect of anything like an effectual measure coming out of the House. And Congress has not many weeks left in which to finish its work.

That it will stay in Washington and finish it during a Presidential campaign is not to be expected for a moment. We are so accustomed to threats of "disaster" that the average citizen is not likely to become greatly excited over the possibility of Congress walking out on the situation, leaving an enormous deficit unprovided for and permitting the federal government to tumble, like any business concern similarly managed, into actual bankruptcy. And actually there would be very little more damage done by such a proceeding than by the passage of taxation and economy legislation falling very far short of balancing the budget. The country might as well be hung for an old sheep as a lamb.

In either situation the only way that the machinery could be kept in operation would be wholesale bond issues by the Treasury Department, and what the banks would do to a flood of new securities of that character may be imagined. The whole national debt would undoubtedly go to a serious discount and present holders of government bonds would be holding the bag. The effect on all other securities and on the banking situation would be catastrophic. Congress is not made up of madmen nor yet of traitors. It is unthinkable that it will not yet get down to real realization of its enormous responsibilities, not to its district or state constituents, but to the nation, and adopt the taxation and economy legislation which alone can prevent the most serious financial crisis this country has ever experienced since, as a group of separate little republics, it floundered through the Revolutionary war.

LAST OF HEFLIN

For five hours last Tuesday the United States Senate listened to the oratory of a non-member who was staging an impassioned swansong. Plain Mister Heflin of Alabama, formerly United States Senator, was striving ever so hard to convince his former colleagues that they ought to throw out Senator John H. Bankhead and restore him to his seat in the usurper's stead. First the Senate gave Heflin two hours. But what are two hours to a Heflin? He asked for half an hour more. So they let him go on and on and at the end of the fifth hour Tom, for the first time in his life, was talked out. He told all about the way they ran the election that Bankhead won down in Alabama. But he didn't tell all about the previous elections that Heflin won.

However, the Senate listened—or pretended to. And then on Thursday it voted, 64 to 18, to keep Tom away from down in Alabama where it couldn't ever hear him any more, and to let Bankhead remain. The Senate didn't care if the Bankhead heeled did burn up Heflin ballots by the hatbox—it didn't propose to revive the terrors of those Heflin speeches again.

Thus ends the Senatorial episode of James Thomas Heflin, who was the official clown that body for many years. What he cost the country in wasted Senate time, in countless pages of the Record filled with blather and in the credit of its senior legislative body has never been estimated—but it was plenty. The place for him now is on the payroll of the Anti-Saloon League.

ONE WAY TO SAVE

One measure of economy that might well be adopted would be to put a definite end to these perpetual excursions of American "observers" and conferees to peace and debt and disarmament conferences in Europe when there is never the remotest chance of their accomplishing anything. We have been fussing around the edges of European diplomacy ever since the treaty of Versailles and the expense of the visitations has been, in the aggregate, very large. And we have done absolutely no good and never will do any good so long as we remain in our present national state of mind. Worse than that, we have each time added a little to the damage to our prestige and to our European friendships.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

CURTIS AND BARKLEY LOOMING AS 1932 'RUNNING MATES' BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer

Washington—At Chicago in June there will be many red-hot nominating speeches and various noisy parades around the convention hall, allegedly for the presidential candidates of various governors, senators and perhaps other public officials.

But the ballyhoo will in reality be designed to promote the vice presidential aspirations of those genets and nobody will be fooled about that.

After the presidential candidates are nominated the vice presidential possibilities will have their innings without any camouflage, but with the benefit of whatever impression they may have been able to make while shadow-boxing for first place.

Charlie's Good Bet Inasmuch as the presidential nomination of the Republican party is certainly sewed up by Mr. Hoover and the Democratic nomination is, according to most of the present odds, likely to go to Governor Roosevelt on the first or second ballot, the master of running mates for those two may offer the delegates their only good chance for a real vote fight such as is traditionally associated with political conventions at their best.

Even that, however, assumes that the movement to scrap Vice President Charles Curtis goes somewhere among the Republicans. The chances now seem to be that Charlie will be nominated without a struggle. Not because there is any violent enthusiasm about that nomination. There is, in fact, a widespread feeling among the more practical Republicans that a younger, more vigorous person with greater ability as a self-helper would be useful to the 1932 ticket.

Pat Hurley's Prospect

Other possibilities are Secretary of War Pat Hurley. Lately Postmaster General Walter Brown, once often mentioned, has seemed to fade from that picture and Governor Theodore Roosevelt would hardly be a logical choice, which hangs on Hoover's return.

Anyway, the present belief is that Hoover won't throw Curtis overboard, partly because it would seem ruthless, partly because Curtis is more popular enough in Kansas to make loss of that state more likely if he were discarded.

Also, whether important or not, it is reported that Mrs. Dolly Gann, Curtis' official hostess, who goes around making speeches which say the depression is over, is proving popular with Republican audiences.

Barkley's Chances The Democratic party seems overladen with vice presidential possibilities, including some who will receive tribute votes of their own will in states on the first ballot for first place and other "favorite sons" who have bowed themselves out, with or without declarations of Roosevelt.

Except in the case of an unlikely compromise deal, the Roosevelt forces will nominate one of their own men for vice president in case they control everything. That fact makes the outlook bright for Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, who threw his influence to Roosevelt and has been selected as the party keynoter.

Speaker John N. Garner is not an impossibility and doubtless could gain the Roosevelt support if he declared for the governor, but it is not likely that he would want the vice presidency.

In case the leaders decide on a man from a populous northern state with large electoral vote, Governor George White of Ohio would be a logical choice. Such far west senators as Wheeler of Montana, Costigan of Colorado and Dill of Washington probably would be considered "too progressive."

The Naval Department has decided to keep the battle fleet in the Pacific indefinitely, again proving that there is nothing in a name.

HEALTH-DIET ADVICE
 By Dr. Frank McCay
 "The Best Way to Health"

UNUSUAL FOODS
 In his efforts to survive in the face of obstacles, and avenge the pangs of hunger, omnivorous man has made use of practically every edible substance of the plant and animal kingdoms. Though countless kinds of things have been eaten, we find that there is a curious resemblance in the diversified menus as to quantities of food and the chemical elements consumed. Instinct and experiment have guided the Bushman, the Japanese, the Turk and the Russian, alike, to seek foods rich in protein, carbohydrate, fat and mineral elements though they knew neither the names nor the existence of these things. The diet of every race has contained all four of these essential food materials.

So accustomed do we become to the special foods in our own vicinity that we are but little acquainted, seem to us strange or even repulsive, even as the beef, mutton, pork, potatoes and wheat bread diet which to us is so familiar, may seem odd to others. In some parts of the world the diet used follows are esteemed as delicacies: armadillo, beaver, bear, buffalo, cat, camel, cuckoo, cuttlefish, dog, donkey, elephant, elk, frog, hedgehog, horse, hippopotamus, kangaroo, lion, llama, moose, monkey, mule, muskrat, musk, opossum, ostrich, parrot, peacock, pelican, porcupine, rattlesnake, shark, snail, snake, squirrel, swan, toad, tortoise, whale, walrus and zebra.

It is possible for us to imagine using these foods in emergency or as a means of survival, but the possibility of cultivating a taste for some of them, but it is hard to understand how some of the insect family can be considered especially delectable by primitive races. Some of the insects actually used as food are: ants, ant larvae, grasshoppers, locusts, caterpillars, grubs, silkworm chrysalis and immature bees.

Many strange vegetable substances, too, have been tested by curious humans. Several races have found that powdered sawdust from non-turpentine bearing trees, could be mixed with flour and used for making bread, as have been various dried root vegetables. Millet, although used by about one-third of the humans of the earth, is food is hardly known in England or America, though it makes a most delicious breakfast cereal. Buckwheat, if peeled and cracked, makes a pleasing addition to vegetables and may be substituted for potatoes or rice.

The common root vegetables and tubers are but few, but there are many others, just as wholesome, but not as well known, such as: the Jerusalem artichoke; the dasheen; the taro; the stachys, a tuber of the mint family; the cassava, from which tapioca is extracted; arrowhead tubers; nasturtium roots; water chestnuts; lotus roots and seed; many lily bulbs; salify roots; skirret roots; dahlia bulbs; celeriac. There are also many wholesome green vegetables, but little known, some wild and some cultivated in lim'd sections. A few of these are: sea kale, collards, chickory, dandelion, sorrel, orchard, turnip, beet and radish tops, dock, leaven, nastur, chard, plantain, slinging nastur, watercress, lambs quarter, pigweed, poke sprouts, chickweed, Irish moss, cactus buds, yucca stems and pods, agar-agar, cabbage-palm, nasturtium, purulane, roselle buds, borage, bean sprout, bamboo shoots, gourds, udo and Indian lettuce.

Because of our improved methods of transportation and storage, new vegetables and fruits are being introduced to our markets each year. Many tropics, and semi-tropical fruits, nuts and vegetables are now available in northern markets, and the meats and the fishes of the colder climates are shipped, and perfectly preserved in a frozen condition until they reach their destination, whether it be Florida, Southern California or any Spain.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
 (Frog's Legs)
 Question: Mr. F. writes: "I have heard that eating frog's legs will make one limber. Is there any truth in this?"
 Answer: Frog's legs are a remarkably good source of protein which is easily digested and nourishing, but I do not believe their use would be one limber, any more than eating pigeons would make one a good aviator.

(Cataracts)
 Question: Mrs. N. writes: "Is there any treatment which will remove cataracts from the eyes?"
 Answer: It is sometimes possible to stop the formation of a cataract through adopting hygienic ways of living, but this is not usually possible after the cataract has really developed. There is a fair percentage of good results from the operations for cataract by skilled surgeons. It is often necessary to remove the entire lens of the eye, but wearing glasses with heavy lenses is substitute for the natural lens, so that a patient can see just about as well as before the cataract developed.

(Simple Anemia)
 Question: Mrs. John T. writes: "In a recent article you stated that there are two kinds of anemia, primary and secondary. Under which heading would you place simple anemia?"
 Answer: The term simple anemia is often used for what could be more properly called secondary anemia, which simply means that the anemia is secondary to and caused by some other disorder.
 Question: Mrs. B. asks: "Will you please tell me if butter or oleomargarine are constipating?"
 Answer: No.

 A HEROIC POEM IN PRAISE OF WINE (To Duff Croper) (From The London Mercury)
 But what are these that from the outer murk Of dense mephitic vapors creeping surge To breathe foul airs from that corrupted wall Which oozes slime along the floors of Hell? These are the stricken pained brood of sin In whose vile veins, poor, poisonous Decoctions of embittered hatreds crawl— These are the Water-Drinkers, cursed all!
 For such as these in vain the Rhine has rolled Imperial centuries by hills of gold; For such as these the flashing Rhone shall rage In vain its lightning through the Hermitage Or level-browed divine Touraine re- create The tribute of her vintages at eve. For such as these Burgundian hosts in vain Swell the rich slopes or load the empurpled plains. Bootless for such as these are mighty tasks Of hallowed God the Father in a flask And leading all Creation down distilled To one small ardent sphere immen- sely filled.
 When from the waste of such long labor done I, too, must leave the grape-orchard and like the vineyard worker take my way Down the long shadows of declining day Bend forth the somber plain my cloud- ed night And leave the mountain to the ad- vancing night. Come to the term of all that was mine own With nothingness before me, and alone! Then to what hope of answer shall I turn? Comrade-Commander whom I dared not scorn, What would you then to trembling friends and lay? "A moment, and I drink it with you new; But in my Father's Kingdom," So, my friend, Let not your cup desert me in the end When the hour of mine adven- ture's near Just and benignant, let my youth appear Bearing a Chalice, open, golden, wide, With benediction graven on its side. So touch my dying lip: no bridge that leaps: So pledge my waking from the gift of sleep, And, sacramental, raise me the Di- vine!

A BOOK A DAY
 BY BRUCE CAYTON
 CALLS FOR END OF REPARATIONS AND WAR DEBTS
 Lloyd George Runs World Crash in Offing; Demands Cancellation
 When the World War came to a close, David Lloyd George was breathing forth fire and smoke at a prodigious rate. The Kaiser was to be hanged, the Germans were to pay through the nose, and the victors were soon to see the world made uncomfortable and prosperous for them.
 In that frame of mind he went to help shape the Versailles treaty, crying that Germany must pay for war damages to the very limit of her ability; it is his credit that he never doubted himself about what that limit might be as grossly as ment of his colleagues did; but he helped, nevertheless, to produce the atmosphere in which the sky-high reparations totals were fixed.
 Ever since then he has been cooling off, and now, in a little book entitled "The Truth About Reparations and War Debts," he announces flatly that the world depression will not have a chance to end until reparations are canceled.
 Nor is that all. If reparations are to be canceled, he says, the war debts must be canceled too; and the nations of the world must lower their tariff barriers and give a free play to international commerce.
 He makes his case for the existing economic order.
 His book is published by Double- day, Doran & Co., and sells for $1.50.

AGGIE COLLEGE COW BREAKS A RECORD

Holstein At Storrs Makes New State Production Record—Is Big Cow.

One of the outstanding production records made recently by an Eastern cow was that of Avondale Pietje Lyons, a pure bred Holstein owned by the Connecticut Agricultural College at Storrs.

Avondale Pietje Lyons is an exceptionally large cow weighing at one time 1,950 pounds. While she is very large yet at the same time carries lots of refinement.

Prof. Johnson states that the total feed consumed by Avondale Pietje Lyons was 3,986 pounds alfalfa hay, 1,483 pounds mixed hay, 335 pounds clover hay, 372 green fodder, 1,622 silage, 3,993 best pulp, 2,933 pounds of 20 per cent protein grain, 3,538 pounds of 14 per cent protein grain and she was on pasture 112 days.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, April 30.—(AP)—Brokers feel that the unfavorable news of the week has brought some compensations. No longer will the financial community have to worry over what might happen to the dividends on U. S. Steel Common and Pennsylvania Railroad and it can hope that with even a slight upturn in business, second quarter earnings statements will show measurable improvement over those for the first three months of the year.

It is reported in shipping circles that a proposal for the appointment of a permanent chairman of the trans-Atlantic conference with headquarters in New York and with plenary powers for the settlement of disputes arising among the several trans-Atlantic passenger lines is to be submitted for the approval of the principals of the conference at their meeting in Paris on May 10.

Bank failures throughout the country in the week just ended as reported to the "American Banker" totaled 13. In the same time four previously closed institutions were reopened. In the week before 12 banks closed. April has recorded 55 suspensions so far against 53 in March.

Unfavorable dividend changes increased sharply in number last week, while favorable changes dropped to the smallest number reported in the last ten weeks, according to the Standard Statistics Company. Omissions and decreases numbered 68 against 52 in the previous week. There were three favorable changes compared with four the week before.

A further recession in the dollar volume of business in this district during March compared with March of last year will be reported in the May 1 review of the New York Federal Reserve bank. Sales by wholesale firms were down 22 per cent, sales by chain store organizations were off 4 1/2 per cent and sales by reporting department stores averaged 19 per cent under March of last year.

A group of Class "A" and Common stockholders of the Union Tobacco Co., has sent a letter to other Class "A" stockholders asking their support in opposing the plan of the management to distribute part of the assets of the company to the preferred stockholders.

YOUNGEST PRESIDENT

Annapolis, Md., April 30.—(AP)—St. John's College, one of the oldest educational institutions in the country, today officially gained one of the youngest presidents in the nation. Savants and educators from colleges all over the country gathered here for the inauguration of Dr. Douglas Huntley Gordon as president of St. John's, although he has been serving as chief for the past year.

Gordon is but 30 years old. He was selected as president of the college when he was 29, and immediately took over his duties. Governor Albert C. Ritchie and Dr. Ernest M. Hopkins, president of Dartmouth college, were called for the principal addresses, at the ceremonies to which were invited Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, superintendent of the Naval Academy; Dr. Joseph S. Ames, president of Johns Hopkins University, and 112 delegates from educational institutions all over the country.

There was dancing until midnight with music by Jimmie Pfeiffer's orchestra. Captain Stephen Tobin prompted for the old fashioned numbers. Refreshments were served. HIGHWAY HINTS AND HAZARDS

Light Up for Safety. Not unlike the man with the gun who, too late, says, "I didn't know it was loaded," is the operator of a motor vehicle who says, "I didn't know it was out" when vigilant police call his attention to a defective tail light. Unlike the gunman, who menaces others by his own thoughtlessness, however, the careless motorist endangers his own safety as well. A spot of red looming up in the darkness betokening a lurking danger will often mean the difference between safety and an accident. Give a thought now and then to the car's lighting equipment for safety and thus obey the law. Thank you.—The Connecticut Department of Motor Vehicles.

Springfield, Ill., April 30.—(AP)—Evidence offsetting the popular belief that Mary Todd Lincoln, widow of the martyred president, suffered poverty after her husband's death has been found. An inventory of her estate, discovered by Probate Judge Benjamin S. DeBoise while reviewing estate in his court, apparently revealed that Mrs. Lincoln was a comparatively rich woman. The inventory showed that Mrs. Lincoln left $77,855. Her estate consisted of United States registered bonds of $72,000 par value, $555 in currency and personal property worth $5,000. In addition the files disclosed she apparently owed nothing, as no claims were filed against the estate. Mrs. Lincoln died July 16, 1882. Her estate was filed September 28 of the same year and was closed November 6, 1884. A final report filed two years after the estate was brought into court, showed accrued interest on the bonds amounting to $6,480 bringing the total value up to $84,035.

Accept Wage Cuts. Lawrence, Mass., April 30.—(AP)—Two thousand employees of the Washinton mill of the American Woolen Company have voted to ask the company for work at reduced wages and to petition the city government to reduce the mill's taxes. Not a dissenting vote was cast at the meeting of the workers last night and no one was admitted to the Army, where the voting took place, except persons holding mill passes.

The meeting was called after an announcement that the mill was to be closed as soon as present orders were completed and future work transferred to the Wood and Ayer mills of the same company. Mayor William P. White, who opened the meeting, said that at a conference of mill officials he had expressed himself in favor of abandoning all taxes if they would provide work for citizens of Lawrence. He pointed out that conditions were bad everywhere in the textile field and that "half a loaf was better than none."

the MAN HUNTERS

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SUSAN CAREY, 19 and pretty, works in the office of ERNEST HEATH, architect. JACK WARRING, assistant to Heath, tries to woo her but is discouraged. Susan lives with her aunt who is unusually strict. RAY FLANNERY, employed in the next office, makes friends with Susan and confides her ambition in life—to marry a rich man—whom she loves him or not. SUSAN is secretly in love with BOB DUNBAR, millionaire's son she met at business school. She hears rumors that he is to marry DENISE ACKROYD, debutante. Susan receives an offer of marriage from BEN LAMPMAN, serious-minded young musician. At a week-end party given by Denise Ackroyd, she runs away from Bob and, meeting Ernest Heath, asks him to take her home. He escorts her back to the Ackroyds thereby arousing his wife's jealousy. A few days later Heath informs Susan his wife intends to sue her for alienation of her affections.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVIII
Waring entered whistling. It was the morning after Susan's birthday. His ruddy face under the thatch of smooth, combed, sandy hair was aglow with the consciousness of a good deed done.

"I feel like a blooming Boy Scout," he chuckled to himself, throwing his heavy ulster over a chair and beginning to sort his papers.

Susan came in, looking as though she had spent a bad night.

"Good morning," she looked at him in surprise, astonished that anyone should feel cheerful enough to call this morning good.

"Don't be so woebegone," he advised, seating himself on her desk and watching as she removed the small hat and hung away her coat in the closet reserved for that purpose. Suddenly he remembered.

"Surely you've heard the storm is over?" he asked incredulously.

"I don't know what you mean."

He took her hands and gave her a little whirl. "I fixed everything," he announced. "Me, the Boy Scout!"

"You what? Her face came alive.

"Just what I said," the man insisted. "The danger's over and there's nothing for you to worry about."

"I don't believe it," Susan told him but her eyes danced just the same. "How do you know?"

"Waring put up one hand and struck an attitude of mock modesty. "It's not a story for little girls' ears," he told her. "All you need to know is that you're safe. The situation suit is off."

"Then they've made it up?" Susan asked.

"I wouldn't exactly say that. The fact of the matter is Mrs. Heath has decided to get a divorce instead. A very polite, restrained, dignified Renaissance."

"You mean she's not going to drag me into it?"

"No, not at all. Why should she?"

"Oh, thank God!"

"Well, you might also thank me a little," Waring said irreverently. "It was the little fixer, after all."

"I do! I think it was marvelous."

She meant it. She thought she must have misunderstood this man. He seemed so kind now. He grinned, reading her thoughts.

"Do you think I can keep my job or will it be too awkward?" Susan asked.

"Awkward for whom? No one knows anything about it but the three of us. We like you here. Why should you walk around town answering questions because a jealous woman has a brain storm?"

Put that way, it seemed the most simple and reasonable thing in the world. Susan drew a deep breath and held up her head again. Everything was all right. She was grateful for her escape from danger and she put that gratitude into her work. The three men in the office, so different in background and tastes, felt the magic of her presence. The gray day was bright because a young girl smiled at them.

"You're a funny one," Ray said again and again. "You seem perfectly happy just to work and not have any fun."

Susan did not try to explain the glorious sense of freedom and release which had come to her that morning when Waring had brought her the good news. It was enough just to be safe and secure. She no longer seemed impatient for good times.

Ray rushed in one day at noon and said excitedly, "Have lunch with me, won't you?"

Susan began to explain that she had planned to meet Rose.

"Please break it. Honest, this is important," Ray urged. Her dandelion locks were ruffled and there was a streak of mascara under one eye. Could Ray have been crying?

Susan dismissed the notion but something in the other girl's air of suppressed excitement made her decide to go with her.

"Meet you in the lobby in 10 minutes," Ray threw over her shoulder.

There was no real privacy to be had in any of the restaurants where they usually lunched, but Susan spotted a small table back near the kitchen in their pet "Sandwich Shoppe." Harried waitresses brushed their shoulders with dangerously laden trays and once or twice both girls escaped a deluge of hot coffee but they managed somehow among the clatter and steam and gabble of tongues to achieve a small oasis of calm.

Ray began, "Honest, Susan, it gets my goat. I'm all in a lather about it."

Susan looked her surprise.

"Do you mean to say you haven't heard? Sky was married last night at Crown Point. Sent me a wire, cool as you please. 'Congratulations' he says."

"I didn't know you cared anything about him," said Susan.

Ray winked those preposterous lashes once or twice and her eyes were hard and bright as marbles.

"Sky was—well we were practically just like that," she said, holding up two fingers. "What burns me up is the way he did it. Not that I would have married him myself. Honestly, the kid hasn't good sense but we were out together Tuesday night dancing and he came up to the house afterward and he was just as sweet as could be."

Susan was mystified. If Ray thought Schuyler Webb hadn't good sense, why did she mind his having married someone else? Ray gabbed on.

"Course, I've heard him talk about this girl all winter but he always pretended he couldn't see her. She has scads of money. That's the answer."

"I thought Sky was rich," Susan murmured, feeling she ought to say something.

"Sky? He practically lost his shirt in the market last year. His drawing account was all used up. I knew that last week."

"Well, then," said Susan, remembering Ray's oft-repeated remarks about the folly of becoming a poor man's wife. "Well, then, you wouldn't have wanted him anyway. You know what you've always said about wanting a milk coat and a duplex apartment and a rooster."

Ray tossed her head and Susan could see a tear glittering on her lashes.

"A person talks," Ray said thickly and unsteadily. "A person says a lot of things that turn out to be it's all about."

Susan hated to look at her. She did not need to look to know that Ray was crying openly.

"I'm terribly, terribly sorry," she said.

"I didn't know you cared at all." She was shocked beyond words at this exposure. To see Ray, so hard and bright and assured, thus shaken was a shattering experience. If this was love, thought Susan to herself, half-humorously, half-pityingly, it's something to steer clear of.

Ray dried her eyes and began to talk quickly and irrelevantly about nothing at all. She resumed her makeup and before they went out on the street she renewed her own bright, slangy self. But Susan could not forget the glimpse of suffering she had seen. It made her fonder of Ray. This little doll-faced person was real. What a queer world, she mused! Ray had built herself a wall of philosophy and a stupid, vapid, ordinary young man had broken it down.

Of one thing Susan was certain. Ray would not be hurt in the same way again.

The incident awoke for a while the old pain Susan had felt about Bob. She had not heard from him since that eventful night at the Ackroyds. Where was he and what was he doing? She tried not to think of him but in her heart knew that daily she dreaded the news of his marriage. Would she ever rid herself of this foolishness? It was like a fever, an ague. You thought you were over it completely and then some one—some phrase, some word of music, perhaps, would start it all over again.

She shook her head impatiently. This was getting her nowhere. She would be like Ray, cool and determined and ruthless. She would put Bob out of her heart forever.

Susan bent over her work, trying to efface herself in its calm impersonality.

A voice said at her elbow, "May I see Mr. Heath. Oh, I beg your pardon. How do you do?"

She felt shaken. Her heart plunged frightfully. She heard herself say calmly, "Mr. Dunbar. How do you do?"

UNCLE SAM'S AIDS TO FLOWER GARDENERS

VARYING SOIL CONDITIONS, PERSONAL TASTES MAKE "SPECIALTY GARDENS"

This is the eleventh of a series of articles on flower gardening written especially for NEA Service and The Herald.

BY DR. WM. A. TAYLOR
Chief Bureau of Plant Industry,
U. S. Department of Agriculture

Specialty gardens are those that are out of balance when compared with the average. They usually are the result of some special preference or consequence of special conditions.

The first of the rock gardens probably grew out of a desire to transform and beautify rocky sites not suitable for more conventional gardens.

Rock gardens are now almost in the fad stage, and in some instances have been developed with less of an eye to beauty than to current vogue. Nevertheless, they are teaching valuable lessons in plant management and soil modifications and when some of the less ornamental rock piles have been cleared away to permit the pursuit of still another fad, the gardens of America will surely have benefited by the introduction of many new plants and varieties.

Other specialty gardens result from marked preference for and admiration of a certain flower, family of flowers, or color of flowers.

Rose, iris, peony, dahlias, chrysanthemums, lily, tulip, and delphinium gardens are familiar. Sometimes these are developed to the exclusion of other plants. Some of the most successful gardens, however, develop a considerable collection of a favorite variety and arrange the rest of the garden to supplement and intensify the beauty of the favorites.

The Personal Touch
Some gardeners plan specifically for a long and continuous season of bloom, and make a point of having no day in the season without fresh bloom. Still others favor the "blue garden," including only flowers of harmonious shades of blue, or perhaps the "bright or white" garden with brilliant reds and yellows set off with borders of white blossoms.

Almost any of the specialty gardens, including only flowers of harmonious shades of blue, or perhaps the "bright or white" garden with brilliant reds and yellows set off with borders of white blossoms.

There are other specialties that are enforced by conditions which the gardener is unable to modify. His soil may be poor, and until he can improve it he must depend on the relatively few varieties which thrive in poor soil, some doing even better than they would in rich loam.

Some of these are: love-lies-bleeding, princes-feather, Joseph's coat, Cape-marigold, godetia, dwarf nasturtium, portulaca, grass-pink, sweet alyssum, garden balsam and calliopsis, as well as a considerable number of perennials and rock garden plants.

Flowers for Shade
Particularly in the cities many gardeners labor under the handicap of north exposures and restricted sunlight for the garden. Even here gardening is by no means impossible. By catering to the soil requirements of plants that will bloom in partial or heavy shade the gardener may develop attractive displays and enjoy perhaps greater satisfaction than some gardeners whose plots are brilliantly lighted.

Of the perennials there are the tuberous begonias, coral-bells or heucheras, several of the Dutch bulbs, some of the varieties of Japanese iris, mallows, violets, dog-tooth violets, the hardy orchids, and others. Some of the annuals that thrive in partial shade are: basket-flower, sweet-sultan, clarkia, platycodon, godetia, Drummond's phlox, passey sweet alyssum, lupine, and forget-me-not.

NEXT: Hardiness.

There are 1,300 radio broadcasting plants in the world valued at nearly $29,000,000, and the annual cost of broadcasting is about $72,000,000. These figures are from a world survey made by the U. S. Department of Commerce.

PROPER VENTILATION REMOVES COTTON DUST HAZARDS

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBAIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Industrial physicians have learned that extraordinary amounts of dust constantly inhaled by workers may produce symptoms dangerous to health and to life.

Dusts may injure the human being in two ways:

First, merely by their mechanical presence, clogging up the tissues and interfering with their activities.

Second, through special sensitivities, so that the individual responds with asthmatic symptoms or other signs of sensitivity.

A special committee of the British government has recently reported the results of an investigation made in the cotton industry, particularly to determine the extent to which the lungs are injured.

The dust liberated during the process of stripping and carding includes fragments of cotton hairs and of leaf and seed coat, various germs and fungi associated with the cotton and some mineral matter.

The greatest amount of dust is found in Egyptian cotton. Much of the dust is due to lack of adequate cleaning of the cotton in blowing frames, but most dust is due to failure to keep the machines clean and to remove dust which has settled on them.

Examination of workers in the cotton industry showed merely an ordinary bronchitis due to irritation by the dust. There were, however, some cases of sensitivity to cotton. The use of proper ventilation, suction apparatus, and cleaning procedures will reduce greatly the amount of discomfort and ill health.

The sickness rises from diseases of the nose and throat and lungs is much higher among workers in the carding room than among other operatives in the cotton industry. Of course, regular examinations of operatives ought to be made so that symptoms could be controlled in their earliest stages.

One exceedingly interesting fact determined in the investigation was the presence of a substance called histamine in the dust. Histamine is the protein which produces exceptionally severe reactions in the human body even when present in small amounts. No system of ventilation known was able to free the operatives entirely from exposure to histamine.

This observation is an example of the highly technical studies necessary in modern industry to protect the health of employees.

YOUR CHILDREN

HAPPINESS IS ESSENTIAL TO CHILD HEALTH

By Olive Roberts Barton
In previous articles I have mentioned the major factors of good health for children—food, sanitation, exercise, sleep, sun and prevention of diseases.

Now I have come to the one I have purposely saved for the last, but which I consider to be the most tremendous factor of all in the effort to establish health. This is happiness!

No child can be really well who is unhappy. Moreover, it is one of the things that does not succumb to calories, sunshine, or sleep. It baffles the doctor and does not improve with dosage. Because unhappiness affects the mind and the nerves, and upon nerves depends every thing in the physical body; digestion, elimination, even the very beats of the heart and the breath in the lungs. Every organ, gland and duct in the body functions well or ill according to the nerve fibers that govern it. Sick nerves mean sick everything. Isn't it worth while then to emphasize the happiness of children?

By happiness I mean content, a state of well being, adjustment, and no fears or complexes to torture them. This is going to be more necessary than ever in the years to come because life is becoming more and more involved with each decade. This question of nerves is going to be a serious matter.

No child can be happy in a home where parents constantly quarrel, or where they scold and punish on the slightest provocation. And he cannot be happy with brothers or sisters who tease or torment him.

Neither can he live in fear and be well. This problem of fear is a big one and it extends to influences outside the home as well as in. A child may be afraid in a hundred ways—afraid of being laughed at, afraid of not getting his lessons, afraid someone will tell about something he has done impulsively or accidentally or thoughtlessly, or merely because he was curious. It may eat into him for months, ruin his appetite, spoil his sleep and make him irritable or stupid. Try to get him to talk it all out with you quietly and with understanding. The afraid mind is the restless, restless mind.

There is a difference between license and liberty, of course, but too many children are superintended too much and have no outlet for natural and praiseworthy impulses. Suppression causes unhappiness and often comes out in the form of poor conduct. These children are usually "nervous" in some form or other, not apparent to the eye, but affecting their entire make-up.

There should be a sane welding of discipline and freedom in the home that does not cause resentment or any emotional twist in the children. The happy, sunny home where there is sympathy, patience, understanding and real love is the perfect background for the healthy child. Excitement, over-indulgence, coddling, spoiling—these are not conducive to real contentment and only open the way to trouble.

from being dressed as Indians, cow-boys, cowgirls, and so forth.

With spring giving everybody's imagination a lift, it is logical for youngsters to crave the enjoyment of imagining they are something different, and dressing the part.

Costume play suits are relatively inexpensive. Every pattern company carries patterns that Mother could make up in no time. Materials are so cheap this year that when such suits are made at home, they cost next to nothing. And the thrill of pride they give boys and girls, not to mention the way they actually save their school clothes wear and tear, is well worth the effort in obtaining them.

HARTFORD TRADE TOPS LOCALS 11-5

Manchester Guilty of Eight Errors in Baseball Game In Hartford.

The Manchester Trade baseball team traveled to Hartford yesterday and met defeat at the hand of the Hartford Trade team by a score of 11 to 5.

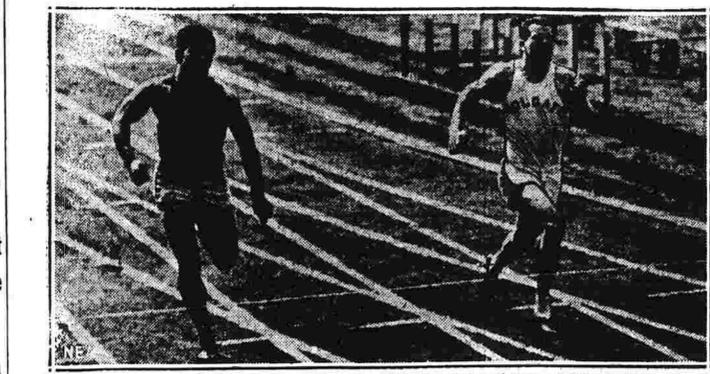

The local boy turned in a poor exhibition of fielding and afforded their pitcher very little support. Their opponent took advantage of most of these miscues. "Red" Kovis, starting on the mound for Manchester, pitched fairly good ball for the first two innings but blew up in the next two frames and couldn't locate the plate. He was benched in favor of Rossi who could not stop the victory march of the opponents.

Manchester will play the American School for the Deaf at Hartford Wednesday, May 4.

Weaver Bests Earnshaw In Pitchers' Battle, 2-1

(By Associated Press)
If Monte Weaver of the Washington Senators maintains anything like his present pace, the experts will have practically no difficulty deciding on the American League's outstanding rookie pitcher for 1932.

Victory over Boston and maintaining their grip by a few assorted percentage points.

Cleveland made it six straight over their western rivals by beating the White Sox 7 to 5. St. Louis and Detroit were rained out.

The Boston Braves, out to prove their early pace was no flash in the pan, trimmed the Giants 8 to 3 behind Huggs steady curving. It was butts second impressive win over McGraw's pupils. He gave up only six hits.

The win planted Boston only a half game behind the leading Chicago Cubs who were held up by rain. Ernie Rube gave up 13 hits but had only one bad inning as the Cincinnati Reds made it a pair from Pittsburgh 6 to 4.

Chuck Klein, brilliant Phillies outfielder gave the day's best solo performance in helping submerge the Brooklyn Dodgers 13 to 6. His home run with the bases full, a double and two singles drove in six runs.

The win failed to regain the Senators their place at the top of the standings however as the Yankees were clubbing out an eight to seven.

In spite of his victory, Kelley remained in a complicated position with relation to the figure connecting the two cases—Mrs. Massie. As a defense witness in the lynching case, Mrs. Massie figured in a clash with the prosecutor when he sought testimony from her that she had had differences with her husband a few months before the attack last September. Angry attorneys up a paper which allegedly contained her written admission of a rift. Kelley arose and said: "Thank you Mrs. Massie. At last you have shown yourself in your true colors."

Some naval officers contended Kelley's remarks prevented him from prosecuting the forthcoming retrial of the attack case. He announced it would be retired but declined to say whether he would head the prosecution.

The conviction of the lynching case defendants also was prefaced by an angry outburst of Mrs. Massie at Kelley.

Just after the jury had been called into court by Judge Davis who wanted to inquire about its progress, Kelley, Lieut. and Mrs. Massie and Lord met as they were leaving the judiciary building. Lord, naturally good natured, took Kelley's hand and said: "No hard feelings."

Massie, who had been given a verbal hearing by Kelley in the closing arguments, likewise shook the prosecutor's hand.

Wife Interrupts "If I ever had anything against you, Mr. Kelley," Massie began, and Kelley interjected: "I haven't anything against you personally nor against your wife."

Her eyes blazing, Mrs. Massie turned on Kelley. "No you haven't anything against me!" she cried.

Massie soothed her but she was sobbing when he led her away to an automobile.

Outwardly the city was quiet last night but many citizens interpreted this as ominous. The streets were almost deserted and only small crowds attended the motion picture theaters. Among the small groups on the streets the verdict was the invariable topic of discussion.

COMMENTS ON VERDICT

San Francisco, April 30.—(AP)—Varied comment from high ranking officers of the United States Navy, here with the fleet, followed news of the verdict in the Massie-Forstecue case.

Vice-Admiral William H. Standley, commander of the cruisers of the fleet's scouting force, said the verdict was not a surprise for him. "I am sure Lieutenant Massie will have the sympathy of the Navy," he added.

Cruiser Admiral C. S. Kempff, cruiser division commander, said: "It's only the first round."

Rear Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, head of the Twelfth Naval District Board of Inspection and Survey, received the news with the remark:

spent each week for a good fire insurance policy may save you many hundreds of dollars. Are you risking the loss of all your household goods when you can insure them for $1500 at less than one cent a day. Think it over.

ness spokesman, had announced that China accepted it.

Secretary of State, Henry L. Stimson sat in the spectators' gallery during the American delegation during the Assembly meeting.

Japs Dissatisfied M. Nagaoka, Japanese spokesman, expressed Japan's dissatisfaction with the compromised proposition of Sir Miles W. Lampson, British minister to China, which was included in the resolution, but he abstained from voting because of Japan's opposition to the invocation of Article XV of the League Covenant.

He announced that Japan would heartily co-operate to bring the peace parleys at Shanghai to a successful conclusion. The Assembly adjourned until further developments in the Sino-Japanese situation require its attention.

The first report from the League's Manchurian commission, which is now in Manchuria, is expected to be submitted to the Council in a few days.

Massie soothed her but she was sobbing when he led her away to an automobile.

Outwardly the city was quiet last night but many citizens interpreted this as ominous. The streets were almost deserted and only small crowds attended the motion picture theaters. Among the small groups on the streets the verdict was the invariable topic of discussion.

COMMENTS ON VERDICT

San Francisco, April 30.—(AP)—Varied comment from high ranking officers of the United States Navy, here with the fleet, followed news of the verdict in the Massie-Forstecue case.

Vice-Admiral William H. Standley, commander of the cruisers of the fleet's scouting force, said the verdict was not a surprise for him. "I am sure Lieutenant Massie will have the sympathy of the Navy," he added.

Cruiser Admiral C. S. Kempff, cruiser division commander, said: "It's only the first round."

Rear Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, head of the Twelfth Naval District Board of Inspection and Survey, received the news with the remark:

Japs Dissatisfied M. Nagaoka, Japanese spokesman, expressed Japan's dissatisfaction with the compromised proposition of Sir Miles W. Lampson, British minister to China, which was included in the resolution, but he abstained from voting because of Japan's opposition to the invocation of Article XV of the League Covenant.

He announced that Japan would heartily co-operate to bring the peace parleys at Shanghai to a successful conclusion. The Assembly adjourned until further developments in the Sino-Japanese situation require its attention.

The first report from the League's Manchurian commission, which is now in Manchuria, is expected to be submitted to the Council in a few days.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

LIFE'S FIDDLIN'

Et yo' fiddle don't perform no mo', the way she used to do, An' de discords come a-rollin'— till ye're sick, plumb through— No use to blame de fiddle dat was once yo' joy an' pride. But look fo' imperfections in yo' own blamed side.

Old Uncle Lorenzo from out near Yanceyville muses knowingly: "Et yo' throw yo'self at a gal's feet, don't be 'sprised if she makes a door mat of yo'."

Mother—Now, Clarissa, you must take a bath before you get ready for the party. Clarissa—But, Mother, I thought you said it was informal?

Teacher—Tommy, what is one-fifth of three-sevenths? Tommy—I don't know exactly, but it isn't enough to worry about.

HASH! Some people spoil the effect of a good deed by being so self-righteous about it. . . . The reason so many of our dreams don't come true is because we keep on dreaming. . . . Work hard—and keep your eyes open. . . . The proof of greatness is to be able to take it on the nose and come up smiling. . . . "Tell me thy company, and I will tell thee what thou art." . . . Isn't it cheering when something turns out just the way you planned it? . . . The first six months of married life they kissed for affection each night when he came home from work. After that she kissed for investigation. . . . The longer the act the shorter the encore. . . . Marriage brings a lot of change into a man's life. And it takes a lot out, too. . . . Refusing to lend some people money is almost as bad as lending it to him. . . . Some people think they can push themselves forward by patting themselves on the back.

THE PUZZLE OF LIFE

Some have come To the conclusion That the sum Of all illusion Does not total The confusion That surrounds us.

Those who remember their struggle to pronounce French names during the World War can be thankful that Chinese names are spelled something like they sound.

Irate Guest (phones down)—Say, night clerk! Clerk (snippy)—What's on your mind, how? Guest—Mind, hell! They're all over the bed.

You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, as Abraham Lincoln said, but the rest of the time they will make fools of themselves.

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST

A sultan at odds with his harem Thought of a way he could scare 'em: He caught him a mouse Which he freed in the house Thus starting the first harum-scarum.

Rastus and Mose were to be hanged from a bridge for committing first. Rastus was dropped first. The rope slipped from his neck. He fell to the water and swam safely to the shore. Mose who had been looking down said: "Mah, Gosh, please tie de rope tightah on me cause Ah kain't swim." ANGLER HUSBAND—What do you think of these beauties? ANGLER'S WIFE (laughing)—You needn't try to deceive me, Mrs. Smith saw you at the fish dealer's. ANGLER HUSBAND—I know she did. I caught so many I simply had to sell some. We couldn't possibly have used them all.

Lizzie Hardtopple from Brushville says: "It ain't half as bad for a man to lead a double life as it is for a woman to lead a single one."

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

More than 47,000 women are employed in United States banks. The age of stalagmites can be told by their "rings," like those of a tree, according to Carl B. Livingston, scientist and lecturer. Of the students in the government flying schools in Russia, 20 per cent are women. The Chinese used silver in making ornaments more than 4,000 years ago. All the mines of the world, during the 435 years from 1493 to 1928, produced $21,120,298,527 worth of gold and $18,521,220,049 worth of silver. West Winfield, Pa., has constructed a modern recreation room and dance hall in an old mine 300 feet under ground. Ultra-violet rays have cured 200 animals of rickets in the Highland Park Zoo, Pittsburgh, Pa. There are more than 250,000 known as the "Storehouse of the World." All officials of Mt. Ida, Ark., are women. Mexico, because of its fertile soil and almost inexhaustible mineral and other natural resources, is colonies of bees in Ohio.

WATER ISN'T FREE IN ONE CENTER ST. HOME

Somewhere on Center street lives a woman who appears to have forgotten all about the World War and the anxious days when we were all wondering whether the boys "over there" would be able to "stop 'em" or not.
In Thursday's Herald was a brief item stating that a hiking World War veteran, returning to Providence from a fruitless tramp to Hartford in search of work, had been taken from Manchester to the Newtonington hospital by Miss Jessie Reynolds, welfare worker, for treatment for an infected foot.
Limping into town on a foot swollen to the knee, it now appears, the veteran stopped at a Center street house and asked for a drink of water. Perhaps there isn't another home in Manchester where a drink of water would be refused to an exhausted wayfarer. But the veteran had been taken from the door.
"It's getting good," said the veteran, on his way to Newtonington later, "when they'd let a man choke for want of a swallow of water."

There will be four institute sessions during the three-day convention, Mr. Ramsdell announced, with meetings on Monday at 11 a. m. and 3 p. m., Tuesday at 9 a. m., and Wednesday at 9 a. m., all but one of them in the Center church parish house.

He knew MEN
THE late John M. Van Heusen made his fortune by making thousands of men more comfortable with his invention, the Van Heusen semi-soft collar.
And how did he pass this money on to his family in a way to make them comfortable for life, protect them against misfortune?
He used the most dependable modern method—trust funds incorporated under his will.
Eventually his estate will go to certain colleges, schools, charities. Through all the years the management of these funds will be in the hands of a Trust Institution like our own.
Thousands of men and women have adopted this dependable, modern method of trust service for the settlement of their estates, and the financial protection of their families. We shall be glad to tell you more about its many advantages.
