ENDS HALF CENTURY AS A RAILROAD MAN

New York, May 3.—(AP)—They're paying honor today to Hubert J. Reynolds, who is launching into his second half century as a railroad man, feeling as if he had just started.

His friends will recount the first fifty years at a dinner tonight. He started as a telegraph operator and went up to assistant superintendent of the N. Y., N. H., and H. railroad in charge of lines between New York and New Haven. He is 64 years old. As a boy he hung around the railroad station in his native city of New Rochelle, N. Y., and became a telegraph operator on May 13, 1862, when 14 years of age.

He always wanted to be an engineer but never was. He traveled about 700,000 miles as a passenger conductor before advancing to train master, yard master, and through various superintendencies. He has never been in a wreck. Reynolds was once snowbound for four days in a signal tower—having to stay awake because no relief could reach him. It happened during the blizzard of 1868.

THE SCHOOL MIXUP

The Hartford Times, commenting on the Manchester consolidation situation, suggests that other communities considering school consolidation would do well to see to it that the act of consolidation provides adequate machinery for putting the verdict into effect as soon as the will of the people has been determined. There are not many such communities left because the district system lies so far in the past, in most cities and big towns, that it has been forgotten.

However, Manchester is not one of the few places toward which the Times' advice is directed. We are not contemplating consolidation. We are, by edict of the Connecticut Legislature, consolidated. We may not yet be acting as if we were, but we are. And somewhere, at the back of the fog, lies a responsibility for the functioning of the town of Manchester as a single school entity. In default of any definite placement of that responsibility pending the election of the new Board of Education next October, it is more and more indicated that the responsibility might be placed, under court interpretation, upon the shoulders of the Board of Selectmen.

After all, when the general statutes provide that consolidation enactments, when completed, shall become effective at the beginning of the next school year, and when our own special act declares that the districts "are consolidated," it becomes a rather risky proceeding, so far as legality is concerned, to permit school district organizations or organizations of school district organizations to go ahead and sign contracts and do business as usual when they involve commitments for a year to come.

It looks very much as though it were the duty as well as the right of the Selectmen to take over the schools for direct management pending the creation of the new Board of Education next fall.

"BASIC" BUSINESS

What is the basic business of this country, upon the revival of which all other business is waiting? Is it the steel business? Is it the automobile business? Is it the farm implement business? Is it the movie?

The steel business has been waiting for two years for orders from the automobile industry. The automobile industry has been waiting for orders for new cars from people who have cars and who can't buy replacement cars until the business develops which they, in turn are waiting for.

Now outside of the food business, which is agriculture and which is as active as ever but utterly unprofitable, and outside of the cloth-business—which after all are a single business—the one great basic business is the business of providing homes. There are never enough homes and never homes good enough. The demand for homes is the one without a saturation point.

Yet the steel business, which seeks a market, has never been able to get its mind off automobile steel and bridge steel and railroad steel long enough to link itself up with the home building business. One wonders what would have transpired by now if the steel makers, instead of sitting supinely down and waiting for repeat orders that will never come, had set its brains and its engineers to work evolving ways of selling steel to home builders.

The building trades unions destroyed home building under the old methods. For years nobody has been able to build a house for the sum of its real value when finished. Since the crash practically none have been built. Yet the same eagerness to own a good home exists that always existed. Men and women would now make the same sacrifices they have always made in order to build homes—and gladly, if the price were right.

Does anyone imagine that the steel industry couldn't work out a system of knock-down metal house frames that would be far cheaper than old time construction and more enduring, if it were to set itself about the task in earnest? And has it made even a first move in that direction? It has not. It sits and waits for orders from Ford and the rest of the motor builders—and the orders do not come. And are not liable to come in sufficient quantity to restore the steel business for a long, long time.

The nearest thing to a basic business in this country is the making of homes. If there were one-half the brains at the head of the steel trade that we are so often told there are, the steel industry would be making itself a market where the demand would never end; would have such a market made by this time.

ATOM SMASHING

Since two young English scientists claim to have smashed an atom—incidentally transmitting hydrogen atoms into atoms of helium and thereby smashing also, perhaps, the American monopoly of helium gas with all sorts of consequences imaginable—it is now up to the genius who first evolved the world-explosion theory to come forward and claim the booby prize.

For a number of years it has been possible to get a rather delightful thrill of terror from imagining what would happen if the atom were ever smashed. Such an event, we were assured by the delvers into the mysteries of nature, might result in something like the effect that follows breaking off the tail of a Rupert's-drop, the old globe going off with one huge bang and nothing being left but dust. Or it might be more like the prying out of the key log in a river jam, the sphere just slumping to pieces in accord with natural law because there was no longer anything to hold it together. Anyhow something spectacular and final was extremely likely to eventuate from the dissolution of the small but important atom.

Now the Englishmen declare emphatically that they have been able to take an atom apart and more or less discover what makes it tick. And still nothing has busted up—not even the depression. In fact, in view of the sturdiness of the latter stubborn fact, it is possible that more than a few persons—particularly those who still hold some of the stocks they bought in 1929—may be experiencing a considerable degree of disappointment that the noble experience of a round world suspended in space did not come to an abrupt and showy end at the instant of the atom's destruction.

The only real trouble with this London achievement seems to be that it apparently merely duplicates one announced the other day at a convention of scientists in this country. But that earlier one didn't have to be cabled from Europe and had only the merit of a domestic product. A sensation, like Iowa bacon, is always worth more in America after it has been taken to England, stamped with a British export stamp and reshipped to this country.

ATOM SMASHING

Perhaps town and city elections are poor reflectors of nation-wide or state-wide political sentiment, but at least they sometimes serve to show that the parties are continuing forces and indicate, to some extent, the virility of the forces. In Naugatuck, yesterday, the Republicans overturned a Democratic borough administration by a handsome plurality, just as though this were not in the least the "Democratic year" we have been hearing so much about. Farmington voted Republican just like in any other year and in Unionville the election resulted in a practical draw, the parties dividing the offices between them. In the other boroughs holding elections the tickets were on the non-partisan basis.

Obviously no tidal wave of Democratic sentiment has set in as yet. Or possibly if there has been any such movement of the political waters it has spent its force—the force of unrest under world-wide depression—between elections, and has flattened out.

"DEMOCRATIC YEAR"

There have been and are thousands of aviators. Naturally there are all kinds of men and women among them and an unusually large percentage of persons who hold human life pretty lightly. But so far as we can recall Captain Clarence W. N. Lancaster is the first of his calling, at least in this country, to be accused of deliberate murder.

Fliers have been mixed up in many strange affairs. More than a few of them are quite lawless and make their living by smuggling contraband liquor and contraband aliens. They live, on the whole, a wild and adventuresome life. Headless, reckless, devil-may-care—many of them killers in war and utterly regardless of consequences—as a class the men of the air have very seldom been actual criminals, if we differentiate between lawlessness and crime, and have kept themselves free of the suspicion of homicide.

Perhaps the reason for the Lancaster case standing out so conspicuously is to be found in the fact that fliers, aside from their courage, contempt for hazards and essentially fatalistic outlook, are men and women of an unusually high grade of intelligence. And really intelligent people very rarely indeed commit murder.

At all events Captain Lancaster appears, whether guilty or innocent, to have distinguished himself as the pioneer among his numerous and romantic company of air navigators in bringing upon himself arrest and prosecution on a charge of intentional killing in time of peace.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—It seems too bad that the House Ways and Means Committee should have to bear the brunt of so much that happens in this session of Congress.

There are many who would say that nothing is too bad for the committee which produced the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill, but the committee this year is under Democratic control, which lessens the force of that argument.

Just a little while ago the Ways and Means boys were being ground down by the pressure of hundreds of lobbyists as they wrote a tax bill, snowed in and under by storms of letters and telegrams of protest. Then they were kicked all over the House floor when they brought in the bill, saw their measure wrecked and were made to work out a new one.

A grim struggle
 Now they must wrestle grimly with the bill to cash the soldiers' bonus. They must decide whether that proposal, advanced by Congressman Wright Patman of Texas who blithely urges the printing of $2,400,000,000 in currency to pay off "the boys," would benefit the country, as Patman says, or ruin it completely, as many others say.

That means more responsibility, worry, pressure and unpopularity. Of course the Senate Finance Committee has these tariff, tax and bonus bills, too, but Ways and Means gets the worst of it because all fiscal measures must originate in the House. The hard grind takes its toll.

Chairman Collier of Mississippi collapsed early in the session and is not yet back on the job. Majority Leader Rainey of Illinois, who was a large factor in the tax bill fight and supervises the opposition to the pro-bonus cashing witnesses before the committee, has grown thin and his face is more pathetically puckered each day.

A GOOD SHOW

The prospects of a good time to be had by all spectators at the Democratic State convention continue to improve. The holding of a rump convention in New Haven and its appointment of a full delegation of Roosevelt boosters to dispute the right of the Smithites to represent the Elm City is in itself helpful. The selection of former State Senator W. C. Fox of New London to preside over the convention is another step which promises to result in an added attraction.

Mr. Fox is a decidedly forthright person. He scorns diplomacy and while he may not be a fancy parliamentarian, his methods being more suggestive of the meataxe than of a jeweler's scales, he has unbounded confidence in himself and dearly loves a battle. Anyone who can visualize Senator Fox pouring oil on the troubled waters of the Democratic convention must be gifted with a lively and benign imagination. He is of the kind who are more liable to pour gasoline on a fire.

Tickets to the Convention, if sold for what they will be worth, ought to produce a substantial campaign fund for Mr. Roosevelt—or for Mr. Smith or whoever.

CRISP DIED WELL AND OTTEN

Acting Chairman Crisp of Georgia, who fathered the sales tax, became so distracted that for weeks he had not had his breakfast, and he had died for his country almost daily in one of the most sustained demonstrations of the sort yet seen.

Rayney and Crisp, holding positions of responsibility, are opposing the project. But the vets can usually make the average congressman, who fears political defeat worse than hell fire, see the "justice" of it.

ROUND SHOULDERS

Sometimes a very tall girl consciously stoops over trying to look shorter, but most stoop-shouldered people are hardly aware that they are round shouldered until someone says to them, "For goodness sake, straighten your shoulders!" They make an heroic effort to jerk the shoulders back and two minutes later are bent over again. Those who have held this posture for a long time will usually need someone to give them directions as to just how to go about correcting their defect.

A well-set pair of shoulders is an asset to anyone and those who are stoop-shouldered have longed many times in secret for straight, strong shoulders. Such shoulders are desirable in men, so much so that men's suits often are padded just for the purpose of simulating that broad-shouldered look, which is good set of shoulders because this improves the carriage of the body and because no woman can carry her clothes right without a good pair of shoulders from which to hang them. Moreover, a woman with pretty shoulders can wear evening gowns much better than women with scrawny, stooped shoulders.

Round shoulders produce many undesirable effects, among them being: cramping of the vital organs, including the lungs, heart, stomach and liver; prevention of adequate breathing; as well as the poor psychological effect of round shoulders, which give any person a discouraged, hopeless look. Round shoulders completely spoil a good appearance, as one with this bad posture habit will carry the head thrust forward, has a flat chest, while the whole body bulges out in a "pot-belly." Poor shoulder position may cause a roll of fat to form at the nape of the neck, and such shoulders make one older looking; after several years the back may become so humped that a spinal curvature becomes permanently developed.

CAUSES OF ROUND SHOULDERS
 There are three causes of round shoulders: 1. Wrong posture or carriage of the body. This may begin in carelessness or may be occupational, being due to the kind of work done. 2. Muscular weakness, especially of the muscles of the upper back. 3. Wrong diet during childhood and lack of sunlight. A psychological cause may exist with any of these, for example, one having an inferiority complex often has round shoulders.

Certain occupations seem to produce a round-shouldered worker in a large percentage of cases, while other activities actually prohibit this. For example, those who become deformed by work so slowly that they hardly notice it are those

There was a small fire in town this past week which called out considerable help. The bottom fell out of an air tight stove when Mrs. Charles Herney put in a chunk of wood. She ran out and tied up her two big dogs and ran to her next door neighbor, Mrs. Geo. Buck. Help was called and by the time assistance arrived some furniture was burning and quite a hole in the floor was made by flames. The stove was carried outside, and the flames soon extinguished.

SEEK TO DISPLAY CIVIL WAR RELICS

Permanent Memorial Day Committee Wants Cabinet For Exhibit.

Advocacy of a central display of Civil War battle flags and war relics was the principal subject under discussion at the weekly meeting of the Permanent Memorial Day Committee last night in the Municipal building.

It was the consensus of the committee that insofar as the ranks of the Civil War veterans were fast being depleted, that this town, as has been the custom in other Connecticut towns and cities, make a determined effort to collect all Civil War relics and flags reminiscent of Manchester's part in the War of the Rebellion.

Manchester sent to the Civil War during the period 1861-65 a total of 268 men, not including 46 men, non-residents, who attracted by the town's bounties, enlisted here. This number, nearly half of the voting population at the time, which totaled 658 men, should be regarded as an outstanding example of patriotism and self-sacrifice on the part of the founders of the town.

Forty eight of the total number lost their lives in the titanic struggle to free the slaves, seven only died in action, the remainder died from disease and wounds. Seventeen of Manchester's contribution to the war were made prisoners of war. Seven of Manchester's soldiers of the Civil War attained the rank of commissioned officers.

Want Keepers Lieutenant John Otis left Manchester as second in command of Company B, 10th Connecticut Volunteers. He returned a breveted Brigadier General. Lieutenant Frank W. Cheney, and Captain F. M. Barber, were both wounded in action at the battle of Antietam, the latter fatally. Throughout the town there are many keepers of the veterans, which if displayed in a central place such as the Municipal building, or as a second choice, the high school building in a cabinet made for this purpose, the relics would become a permanent trust in town for the public to view in the years to come.

A letter from the President of the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War asking for representation on the Permanent Memorial Day Committee signed by Miss Beatrice Dart, president of Mary C. Keeney Tent was read and discussed. On the motion of E. L. G. Hohenthal, a member of the Citizens' committee, an amendment to the by-laws of the committee was prepared and laid on the table for a vote at the next meeting. The amendment allows the Daughters of Union Veterans representation of seven members.

Mary C. Keeney Tent was represented on the temporary body for many years. In 1927 the Permanent group was organized to include only representatives of the Sons of Veterans, Spanish War Veterans, World War Veterans and Citizens.

To Pick Marshal Mrs. Maude Shearer, Past Department President of the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War was Secretary of the temporary body for several years. At the meeting of Anderson-Shea Post this evening the Committee from that post will select the Memorial Day marshal.

Committees reported progress and the speaker's committee reported that William Sinnamon of the Barnard school has been selected to read the Lincoln Gettysburg address at the exercises to be held in Center Park. William Brandt of the same school is named alternate.

At 3 o'clock Dr. J. N. Lackey of Hartford will lead the discussion on "Courage to Face Present-Day Difficulties." At 3:30 Miss Ion E. Dwyer of Roberts College, Constantinople, will lecture on "The Missionary Dollar at Work." The meeting will close at 4 p. m.

Before police located the raft a telephone report was received that the boys had succeeded in guiding their frail craft to a pier at Union Market.

STATE GETS LAND FOR ANDOVER ROAD

Purchases Two Parcels To Allow For Grade Crossing Elimination.

After several weeks of negotiation, the State Highway Department has purchased two parcels of land from the Town of Andover, it was learned today, which in the near future will result in the elimination of the Andover grade crossing on the main highway from Bolton to Willimantic.

Although the crossing will be eliminated as far as the main highway is concerned when the road is continued north of the railroad tracks, the crossing will not be eliminated entirely as it must be used to reach the Andover Lake road. It is understood, however, that the railroad is seeking permission of the Public Utilities Commission to fence off the crossing on the south side, which will force the use of the old road beneath the underpass to reach the main highway.

The body was taken to Worcester, Mass., where the funeral will be held tomorrow.

BOY SCOUT EXECUTIVE OFFICE HERE DROPPED

Decide To Disperse With Services of Local Man—Joseph G. Dean Affected.

Lack of sufficient funds necessary to continue the Scouting program of Manchester District, Boy Scouts of America, has made it imperative to disperse with the services of a field executive from Hartford Council, with which the district is affiliated, it was announced last night at a meeting of the local Scout officials at the Center Church house.

Joseph G. Dean of 41 Dalmont street is the field executive for this district.

A recent drive for funds to finance the Scouting program for the coming year netted only about one-half of the quota, making strict economy a necessity.

The district has paid to the Hartford Council $200 annually for services including the visits of a field executive. Under its present budget, the district will pay the Council only $250 per year.

The field executive's duties include weekly visits to local Scout troops to aid in their progress in Scouting activities.

Mr. Dean has already signed a contract as director of Camp Pioneer at Winsted this summer and will assume his duties there in June.

ers." As a reward for his efforts he was assigned to a responsible position inside the prison. Thompson also took part in all branches of prison athletics, was a trombone player in the band and a well educated man.

Fine Athlete During his prison confinement, Thompson took an active part in baseball, football, basketball and handball. He was captain of the baseball team and played about every position. He was best as a catcher or infielder. Years ago Thompson caught for the old Mac-cabees at the north end. Herb Andrews and Thompson formed one of the most formidable colored batteries in this part of the state. Thompson also played end on the old Carlisle football team.

William C. Cheney, a member of the prison board, joined in voicing praise for the conduct of Thompson since he has been in prison. He termed him a very well educated man who worked for the interests of the institution. Not only did Thompson take active part in athletics, but he also tried to improve his education. One of the latest subjects which he is studying is shorthand. He is also a talented musician.

To Come Here When Thompson becomes a free man at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, he will probably come directly to Manchester where he has many friends and a sister, Mrs. Cora E. Brainard, wife of William H. Brainard of 7 Hilliard street. Thompson, formerly lived on North School street. He attended South Manchester High school for a couple of years before entering the employ of the Orford Soap Company.

Despite present business conditions with jobs scarce, Thompson will not be without work. Several years ago William W. Robertson, general manager of the Bon Ami factory, informed William C. Cheney that he would find employment for Thompson if pardon were granted. Several requests for pardon have been made without success.

The Luther League of the Swedish Lutheran church will hold a May Basket Social, following its regular meeting in the church vestry at 8 o'clock Friday evening. The program will be in charge of Raymond Benson and his decorating committee, consisting of Ruth Benson, Helge Pearson, Esther Pearson, Esther Anderson, Alice Anderson, Evgid Erickson, Ada Anderson, Earl Johnson, Evelyn Johnson and Rudolph Swanson.

The program has not been completed as yet but will include suggestions by the Junior Boy's Club, under the direction of G. Albert Pearson. During the business session, plans will be discussed for the annual convention of the New England Conference Luther League, to be held here in June. Several invitations to visit other Leagues will also come before the meeting.

ACES PRACTICE The Ace A. C. will practice tomorrow night at 8:00 o'clock at the West Side field. The following players are requested to report: Klacha, Wogman, McConkey, Boggini, Dahlquist, Garity, Foley, Hadden, Cofs, Wiley, Jolly, McPhearson, Varrick, Angelo, Dowd, Flake and any others wishing a tryout.

Good looks aren't always luck

Sparkling eyes and a smooth complexion depend on good health. The beautiful woman guards against constipation. She knows this condition can cause headaches, sallow skin, dull eyes, pimples, premature aging.

Protect yourself from constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestinal tract. In addition, ALL-BRAN furnishes blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much softer than pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoonfuls daily—in serious cases, with every meal—will correct most types of constipation. If your trouble is not relieved in this way, see your doctor.

Serve as a cereal, with milk or cream, or use in cooking. At all grocers. In the red-and-green packages. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

the MAN HUNTERS

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SUSAN CAREY, pretty secretary, is in love with BOB DUNBAR, young millionaire she met at a party given by DENISE ACKROYD, society girl, Susan realizes Bob is not for her. Bob fights with BEN LAMPMAN, another admirer of Susan's. ERNEST HEATH, Susan's employer, happens along and escorts the girl back to the Ackroyd's house. MRS. HEATH, bitterly jealous, later threatens to sue Susan for alienation of affections. JACK WARING, Heath's assistant, is able to prevent this by producing an incriminating letter. Mrs. Heath goes to Reno. BEN FLANNERY, stenographer in the next office, confides to Susan she is heartbroken because "SKY" WEBB has married another. Susan's chum, ROSE HILTON, plans to give up her career for the man she loves. Bob comes to the office but Heath interrupts his conversation with Susan.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXX.

Ben came occasionally to see Susan. By tacit agreement the night of Denise's party was never mentioned. Susan's attitude toward Ben was by turns friendly and then remote. She was sorry for him. Usually he was too serious but there were times, as for instance the night they peeped over the fence at Susan's immaculate kitchen, when the girl almost liked him.

"This is the way boys and girls should be together," she thought afterward, remembering their foolish laughter. She had forgotten that evening to tell herself how much she liked a brother than a suitor.

After Ben had gone Aunt Jessie got up from her rocking chair, where she had been darning stockings, and followed Susan into her bedroom.

"That's a real nice young man," she said with unwonted approval. Susan was brushing her hair and did not reply. Aunt Jessie seated herself on the edge of the bed.

"I don't know what you're talking about," she said. "The young man give up a chance to get ahead just for her," she commented.

Susan tossed back her cloud of dark hair and stared her astonishment. "I don't know what you're talking about," she said.

"Yes, he did mention it once or twice but I thought it was all in the air. Anyhow what have I to do with it?"

Aunt Jessie sniffed. "Plenty, I should say. He doesn't want to go so far away from home."

Susan was annoyed and embarrassed. It seemed indecent to discuss this with Aunt Jessie.

"I must say I don't understand you at all," the girl said, looking anxiously at her aunt's face.

"Let's not talk about it," Susan said with weary patience. She was angry at Ben for having confided his hopes to Aunt Jessie. How like her, she thought!

"You're encouraging me to marry him," the aunt said, looking offended.

"You could do a lot worse than that," she stated. "He's a real steady, sensible boy and it would be a satisfaction to me to see you settled."

turned through the little pile of cards eagerly, almost feverishly. The name she sought was not among them. Slitting a huge white envelope she found, to her surprise, a greeting from Denise. The card was a mammoth silver affair with modernistic deer prancing across it. So like Denise! She went to the kitchen to find Aunt Jessie.

There's a big box of flowers for you," Aunt Jessie threw over her shoulder. "It arrived this afternoon. I almost dropped when the boy rang our bell."

Susan flew. Her fingers fumbled at the knots. She was too impatient to untie them and sliced them across with a kitchen knife. The green paper folded back, disclosing heaps of exotic blossoms. There were little tight yellow roses. There was freesia and tulips and violets and a spray of mimosa. Fabulous flowers to receive on a snowy Christmas eve. She found the card, her fingers trembling. It was a staid, engraved calling card and the name it bore was that of Mr. Ernest Caldwell Heath. Susan gasped.

"Let me see it," Aunt Jessie demanded. Wordless, Susan held out the card. She would not admit even to herself how keen her disappointment was. Flowers like this should come from the one man, the "heart's dearest" as the Germans had said, from anyone else they were meaningless.

"Well, I must say it was real nice of him," said Aunt Jessie, going back to her mashed potatoes, "though I'm not at all sure it's proper. He's a married man, isn't he?"

Susan shrugged. "His wife's getting a divorce."

"Well, I never! You didn't tell me that. You are a close-mouthed young one," Aunt Jessie said.

Susan carried the flowers into the living room and found vases for them. They made a brave array, filling the little home with light and color and scent.

Ben dropped in at eight, bringing a big box of candy. He looked lonely and Susan felt sorry for him. His relatives were all home in lower Manhattan and he was about them except that there was a stepmother. She felt sorry for anyone who was homeless tonight.

Aunt Jessie beckoned her out into the kitchen. "Ask him to dinner tomorrow," she whispered.

"The cousins would be sure to be curious about Ben. They would put their heads together later and talk about 'Sue's beau.' She would hate that. But it wouldn't, after all, be Ben's fault."

"All right," she said, "but maybe he won't be able to come. Maybe he has another invitation."

Aunt Jessie smiled wisely. "He'll come," she said.

When Ben arose, lean and dark in his shabby clothes, the girl felt a surge of pity for him. He wasn't bad looking, really. Some girls would think that dark face distinguished. Susan sighed inwardly.

"You're awfully sweet," he told her with unexpected humility as she relayed her aunt's invitation.

He took her hand. "Come for a walk," he begged. "Just half an hour."

Susan said, "Whatever for?" "Oh, I don't know. I want to talk to you."

"Can't we talk here?" She didn't want to go out into the cold bright Christmas eve with this boy. It was enough to be sorry for him. Couldn't he go away and leave her with her thoughts?

As if for the first time Ben's eye took in the expensive flowers. He frowned.

"Who sent you those?" Susan thought, "I like his nerve!" but she answered calmly enough.

"My boss, Mr. Heath."

Ben glared. Susan put her hand on his arm and gave him a little shake.

"Don't be silly. He's very nice." As if that touch had galvanized him into life the boy swept her into his arms. Rough, masculine arms they were, rudely possessive. Susan struggled. Furious anger welled up in her. "You—oh, I hate you. Let me go!" she yelled, her face upward. She was a tall girl but he towered above her. His eyes were dark with emotion that looked like rage. Susan was conscious only of a sense of outrage, not of fear.

"I'll—let—you—go—go—right," Ben panted. He pressed his lips to hers. It was all over in an instant. Then he was flinging himself out the door.

Susan put her hands to her hot cheeks. She tried to laugh but discovered she was trembling. She was desperately afraid she was going to cry.

Aunt Jessie called from the other room. "Ben gone already?" The girl steeled her voice to reply.

"Is he coming to dinner tomorrow?" Susan waited a fraction of a second. Then she answered, "No—yes—I don't know."

Woman's Place In The News

It was really a return to her native land when the charming Vicomtesse De Sibour arrived in the United States for a visit the other day. Society women in Lake Forest, Chicago, have taken up bicycling as an every-day sport. Many of them have invested in handsome "bikes" and ride everywhere on them.

"Quarter" Girl H. William Baum has lived to see her likeness become an item for collectors—that is, for rare coins. For, as Doris Boscher, she posed for the figure of liberty on U. S. quarters back in 1912. These have been found not to wear well and are being withdrawn from circulation.

Both marriages and divorces are decreasing, the Census Bureau says. That's easy. It's a cinch you can't have divorces without marriages. That man in Missouri who claims he is Jesse James shouldn't feel hurt at not getting much publicity. Jesse would be a lamb in wolves' clothing in these days.

It was kind of Mr. Whitney to tell us that blocking of short interests would kill the stock market. Most of us thought it was already dead. The Prince of Wales' personal physician says beer is good food. But we still aren't afraid that hot beer sandwiches will ever become really popular.

THE HUMAN BEING has a long intestinal tract which has many curves and sections. Near the lower end is one section called the sigmoid, which recently has been giving serious concern.

It seems that late in life portions of the wall of this sigmoid may pouch outwardly and may be the subject of serious chronic irritation leading to the growth of cancer.

Because of the position of the sigmoid in the abdomen it is difficult to examine and frequently the irritating condition goes on for many months before becoming sufficiently severe to cause the person to seek the attention of a physician.

The physician makes his diagnosis by careful examination of the bowel, including the giving of barium enemas, and thereafter using the X-ray, which presents an accurate picture of the condition. The chief dangers from pouches or diverticulum of the sigmoid arises from the setting up of irritation leading to cancer or from a sudden perforation of the diverticulum, such as occurs also in ulcer of the stomach.

Obviously it is important to find out if the condition is present and to adopt suitable measures to prevent its progress, before it has reached such a serious stage.

Among the measures which will prevent diverticulitis and which will inhibit its progress are the adoption of a diet that is soft and which does not contain the usual roughage present in whole wheat bread, brown bread, bran, cereal, coarse cereals, the skin of fruits and similar substances. Such patients are asked to take regularly small amounts of mineral oil, which lubricates the bowel and softens the food mass.

Under the direction of a physician, drugs may be given which have a quieting effect on intestinal action. Also, strapping

INTESTINAL TROUBLES OPEN START WITH SIGMOID GROWTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

MARVELOUS MANHATTAN

By WILLIAM GAINES

New York.—The march of progress, which becomes a hop, skip and jump in some parts of New York, leads a few curious old scenes and devices survive.

One of these is a time ball atop the Seaman's Church Institute on South Street, hard by the docks.

The ball still falls from its shaft every day at noon. In bygone days such contraptions were serviceable. Perched high where they could be seen for some distance, the falling of the ball had the same importance as the noon-day whistle has now.

You can buy party balloons for a dollar a hundred down on Warren Street.

Richard Bonelli, the baritone, was born in Port Byron, a suburb of Syracuse, and attended Syracuse University. His name sounds Italian, but it's just because he got away from the good old family name of Bonni for professional reasons.

An old superstition: property men turn a rocking chair upside down when clearing a stage.

If a current trend holds up, by the time you get to New York on your next trip the chances are you'll be looking for all the hip-hip-booray night places by street number only, without any name to guide you.

The stay-up-late crowd now speaks knowingly of No. 30 and so East Such and Such street, instead of the Mansion, the Napoleon and so on.

Maybe the proprietors are taking a tip from the very swell apartments, which found that the high-tails fell for the gag of numbers only. Sounds exclusive.

I Knew 'Em When— Ten years ago, or thereabouts: Ruth Etting was moaning ballads in an obituary Chicago entertainment place.

Bert Lahr was in burlesque. Frances Williams and Vanessa, the dancer, were a sister act. Ben Bernie had assembled his first orchestra and was trying to make good in a cabaret.

Vincent Youmans was drawing $25 a week as a piano player in a music publishing house. Earl Benham quit the acting game to become a tailor.

Lawrence Tibbett completed his first season with the Met without attracting any special notice. The Woolworth building was the tallest on the island.

German police dogs were becoming the rage among the Central Park pup paraders.

Miscellaneous Items Nothing but French is spoken in some of the small shops near the French hospital, on West Thirtieth Street.

Although a pilot goes aboard incoming ships at Sandy Hook, the captain is the responsible master until they dock.

Mill markers on all the country roads leading into the city give the distance to Columbus circle, the "Hub of New York."

Not all of Park Avenue is such a proud thoroughfare, even though its development has been one of the seven wonders of real estate. Beyond 110th Street, Park bows its head and moves self-consciously through a very squallid stretch.

A THOUGHT

How to yourselves in righteousness, reap in mercy; break up your fallow ground; for it is time to seek the Lord, till he come and rain righteousness upon you.— Hosea, 10:12.

There is no happiness in life, there is no misery, like that growing out of the dispositions which consecrate or desecrate a home.— Chapin.

PRETTY GARNISH Fried chicken or broiled fowl of any kind looks pretty when the platter is garnished with halves of canned apricots, filled with chopped pimento and nuts. Baked slices of oranges are nice for a change, too.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton, BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

TEACH CHILD TO HELP HIMSELF Mothers without any experience with children often are puzzled about certain things. It is too much to expect a little child to do things for himself? How old should he be before he puts on his own clothes, washes his own hands, or can go to the toilet himself?

It is surprising how much a child of two, or even less, can do if he is encouraged. It is considered very good training to allow him to do as much as possible himself.

This does not mean that his mother can turn him over to his own auspices; it is merely recommended that he be encouraged because it teaches several things. Doing means learning and the younger the better.

The first time he tries he may be an hour trying to get into his little shirt and pants, another hour trying to wiggle his toes into twisted stockings.

Patience Is Necessary The first time he washes his hands, standing on a stool at the washstand is going to be a sloppy, incomplete process, too. Anything he does at first and perhaps for a long time after will be more trying to your patience than to do it deftly and quickly yourself.

Watch the water in the bathroom. Don't allow him to put a plug in the wash basin unless you are present. And don't let him turn on the hot water himself if you have an instantaneous heater or one that sends the water boiling out of the faucet. Not until he is over five years old.

When he blows his nose don't allow him to blow too hard. If his nose is completely stopped it is dangerous. Use a few drops of oil or whatever the doctor may recommend to loosen the mucus.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

Bellamy Partridge Offers Theory To Explain British Failure In Revolution

For a century and a half, historians have been wondering about the strange behavior of Sir William Howe during the Revolution War.

Howe commanded the British forces from before Bunker Hill until shortly after Burgoyne's defeat at Saratoga. He met Washington in the field repeatedly and nearly always defeated him; and in many cases he could have crushed Washington's army completely, and ended the war, if he had shown only a little more initiative and determination.

But he never did it. Washington got his army away from Long Island and White Plains, took it across New Jersey against long odds, and kept it in existence until, at last, the pendulum began to swing the other way.

Bellamy Partridge examines Sir William's curious conduct in a new book, "Sir Billy Howe," and finds a simple and seemingly logical explanation.

Howe, he says, was a Whig fighting in a Tory war. He never wanted to see the colonies crushed; conciliation was always his goal, and he hoped constantly that sooner or later the colonists would realize the overwhelming power of Britain and would sue for peace. Because he sympathized with the colonists so much, he did not want the British cabinet to be able to dictate a settlement, and he tried to keep each victory from being really decisive.

In plain English, he pulled his punches. "Sir Billy Howe" makes interesting reading, and offers an important new theory about the Revolution. It is published by Longmans, Green and Company, and is priced at $3.50.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

ARE ESSENTIAL FOOT POWDERS Every bathroom shelf should have some foot powder on it. You'd be surprised how soothing it is to carefully dust this powder over freshly washed feet. Most of us simply "we our whole bodies the once over with the talcum puff and call it a day. But a little careful powdering helps keep feet feeling fresh.

There are deodorant foot powders to help those that perspire too freely. There are foot powders that are medicinal in their objective. There are others that are simply nice to use. Foot oil is another thing you should have handy. Regular body oil is the kind that most people use on their feet. Keep some of it in a bottle near the tub. Gently massage the feet, each toe by itself, with this oil, after bathing. If you are going barefooted in the sun, you will need this extra oil on your feet to ease them. If your feet perspire too freely, try some of the new light-weight unlined shoes that have perforations in their design. They let the air in and keep the feet comfortable. I have mentioned changing your shoes often, but no one can mention it as often as you should change them. And, don't put your shoes away in a dark closet without airing them. They need sunshine inside as much as you need it outside. If your feet perspire freely, walk barefooted as much as possible about your room, your yard, porch or even your house, if your family will allow it. This is a sign that your feet need exercise, too. Scrunch your toes up this way and that, in your spare time. Give them a summer of sunshine and see if you don't feel better.

QUOTATIONS

I am pleading for a policy broad enough to include every part of our economic structure. A policy that seeks to help all simultaneously, that shows an understanding of the fact that there are millions of our people who cannot be helped by merely helping employers and farmers, the small business man, the professional Franklin D. Roosevelt, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

A law may be said to be enforced when a majority of the people obey it and a majority of the prosecutions under it result in convictions. Undoubtedly, prohibition is meeting that standard.

Senator Morris Sheppard, author of the 18th amendment.

I have no plans to leave New York or do a single thing politically. Nothing that has been said or done justifies my doing anything.

—Ex-Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York.

Had the example of Washington been followed, the constitution which he guided into being would never have had a prohibition amendment.

—Rev. Dr. Henry Darington of New York.

COLLEGE FIGHTERS NOT TOUGH ENOUGH

So Managers of Pro Scrapers Insist; Amateur Show Starts Tomorrow.

Defends Two Mile Metropolitan Title May 13 and Takes Part in Dual Meet With C. C. N. Y. May 26; Olympic Trials July 15-16 At Long Beach, Cal.

New York, May 3.—(AP)—Fight managers, connoisseurs of ring flesh shake their heads when they talk of college fighters and their chances of gaining fame as professionals, despite the recent success of Steve Hamas, Penn State alumnus.

"They lack something," they insist. "Not heart, maybe, but just general toughness. Education softens them for the fighting game." But just the same most of the managers will be down front when the study delegation from the college ranks swings into action at the opening of the national amateur championships in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. The tourney provides the added incentive this year of a trip to the Olympic tryouts in San Francisco for the top four in each of the eight divisions.

Most of these managers will have their eyes on them just the same. The stand out of the lot, on past performances is the big Irish tackle from Yale, John Kilcullen, son of a wealthy New York contractor. Kilcullen with a perfect fighting name, scales around 190, is a boxer, reveals rugged going, punches clean and hard with both hands. He has never been beaten.

Through the rest of the list from the flyweights up, are sprinkled college warriors, some prominent, some unknown.

Only two more eastern appearances will be made by Joe McCluskey, holder of the American steeplechase record, before he goes west to compete in the 1932 Olympics in California. Neither is particularly important and has no bearing on qualifying for the Olympics, the tryouts for which will be held at Long Beach, Cal., July 15 and 16.

The Fordham track captain will defend his two mile title in the Metropolitan intercollegiate championships to be held in New York May 13 and his final race will be in the dual meet between Fordham and C. C. N. Y. on May 26. Joe may return home here Memorial Day but probably will not return to Manchester until the first week in June.

Travels West June 18

Manchester's most famous athlete will return to New York on June 15 and three days later will sail for California where he will compete in an I. C. 4A meet at San Francisco July 1 and 2. The Olympic tryouts follow July 15 and 16. If successful in these, McCluskey will represent the United States in the 3,000 meter steeplechase, trials August 1 and, if successful, the finals on August 6 at Los Angeles.

McCluskey's repeated victories and new records have made him recognized as the leading steeplechase contender in the United States. He has never been defeated in a steeplechase race and Friday set a new American record of 9:28.8 at the Penn Relay Carnival. America has never won the steeplechase in the Olympics. The record of 9:21.8 was made by Loukila of Finland in the 1928 Olympics held at Amsterdam.

M. I. T. AND HARVARD IN RACE ON CHARLES

Cambridge, Mass., May 3.—(AP)—Technology's chances against Harvard variety crew in today's regatta have been greatly enhanced by the two extra practice sessions made possible by Saturday's postponement.

Rough water on the Charles river forced the postponement until today, when the regatta will be held at 5:15 p. m. E. D. T. Whily the delay forces Tech to row twice within the next five days, it should aid her chances against Harvard's veteran but untested eight for Bill Haines has had an opportunity to give Phil Cook, his new stroke, two additional days of training.

Charlie W. Iteide, Harvard coach, has warned his varsity eight that it must turn in a good performance today to give up its racing to the lighter junior-varsity crew, which has beaten the varsity in several early season time trials. Whitehead has Olympic aspirations for his oarsmen and thus far this spring he has been disappointed in their showing.

Six of last year's undefeated varsity oarsmen continue in the Harvard boat but the crew is far from being the polished rowing machine that broke Yale's winning streak last June. The bow four, which includes the new men Captain Tom Strong and Ed Yeomans, has fallen, thus far, to blend with a powerful stern quartet.

TERRY HAS BATTED SAFELY EVERY GAME

New York, May 3.—(AP)—The New York Giants may be down in the basement of the National League but "Memphis Bill" Terry hardly can be blamed.

The big first baseman has hit safely at least one in every one of the 14 games the Giants have played.

Ralph Guldahl, young Texan now golf pro at St. Louis Country club, won his first four starts in early season matches and tournaments.

Indians Appear Best American Club in West

Peckinpaugh's Tribe Only One Game Behind Rushing Senators Who Play Yankees 10-3.

(By Associated Press)

With the year's first inter-sectional warfare only two days away the Cleveland Indians again shape up as the west's best bet to break into the eastern clubs' monopoly on American League laurels.

Roger Peckinpaugh's tribe was running a strong second today only one game behind the Washington Senators after winning nine straight against western opposition. Detroit in fourth place also will invade the seaboard in excellent position but eastern managers are prone to regard the Indians as the greater menace.

Two big findings that netted all their runs gave the tribe a 6 to 5 win over the St. Louis Browns yesterday. Johnny Burnett drove in three runs with a brace of singles. The leading Senators handed "Lefty" Gomez his first reverse of the year in slugging out a 10 to 3 decision over the Yankees. Joe Cronin led the way with a home run, a double and a triple.

Jimmy Fox's home run in the 11th inning broke up a mound duel and gave the Athletics a 3 to 2 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. Sad Sam Jones collapsed after allowing only four hits in eight innings, the Detroit Tigers scored five runs in the ninth and beat out Chicago 5 to 3.

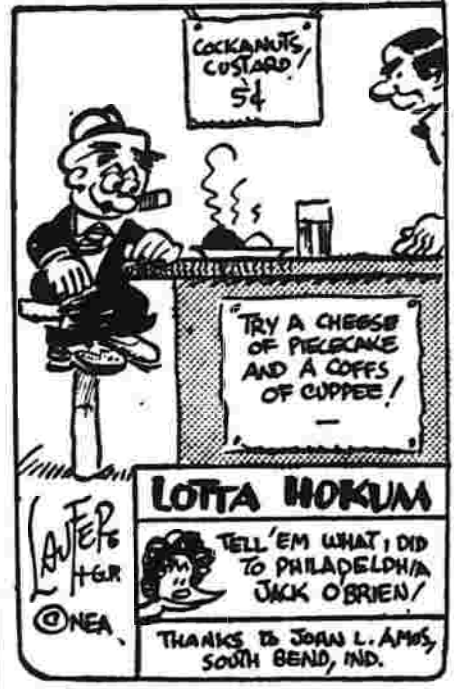

National League fans were treated to superb pitching by Sylvester Johnson of St. Louis and Steven Swetonic of Pittsburgh. Swetonic allowed only three hits in blanketing the aspiring Chicago Cubs 2 to 0 while Johnson let the Reds down with four to win 2 to 1.

Dazzy Vance's tight pitching and Glenn Wright's timely hitting gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 3 to 1 victory over the Giants. Wright tripled with two in the eighth to break the deadlock.

The Phillies went on another hitting rampage behind Ed Holley's seven-hit pitching to subdue the league leading Boston Braves 7 to 2.

OLD YALE GYM BEING WRECKED

Home of New Ideas and Records To Be Replaced By $4,000,000 Structure.

New Haven, Conn., May 3.—(AP)—The old Yale gymnasium, training center of Eli athletes during the last four decades, entered the class of "has-beens" today as wreckers began tearing it down.

It will be replaced in the fall by the new $4,000,000 Payne Whitney Gymnasium. To nearly the very end the old gym enjoyed the reputation as the home of new ideas and new records, several of which were posted during the recent National Senior A. U. swimming championships.

There Ogdan Reid, now of the New York Herald-Tribune, is said to have made the first advance ever attempted in the United States. There also, General Sherrill developed the crouch start, for sprinters.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

There is probably not a little hypocrisy in a situation which makes it possible for an athlete to live off the fruits of his genius on the tournament field and go under the name of amateur.

But even that sad state of affairs is not undermining the structure of our civilization, as the seats would have us believe. For every tennis player who pokes the ball to the entertainment of the paying spectator, there are 50,000 wielders of the racket whose backhands are charitably obscured from the public gaze.

Hoi Polloi Play, Too

That is part of the picture of tennis today in the United States, as clearly etched by O. D. Ellis, writing in the recent expiring issue of Tennis, the official publication of the U. S. L. T. A. Ellis goes on:

"One of the popular delusions is that tennis is the sport of the country's landed gentry, as you can count on your fingers. A player outside the first ten, who endeavors to live off tennis is beset by such hardships that few can survive, and the life falls to attract even the most avid loafer."

That's Tiresome, Too

"When a player reaches the first ten, he probably can support himself for a year or so in the manner to which he is accustomed without indulging in any labor off the court. But, unless he is utterly devoid of imagination, he will eventually find tennis balls around soon becomes as irksome as sitting on a stool in a counting house, and he gives it up in disgust."

"The handful of players who rank at the top are the sandwich-men of the club, the association and the game itself. They keep the game in the newspapers. . . . By attracting the gate, they extract dollars from the public pocket and cause them to be posted in the treasuries of the club, whence they are ultimately siphoned off to the gutter by the club player. An invaluable service."

"The fact that in return they receive transportation, food and occasional entertainment is certainly nothing to become alarmed about. It doesn't in any way affect the other 2,000,000 Americans who play the game, and despite cries from the watchdogs of tennis players' souls, a few young men degenerate to the gutter because they do practically nothing but play tennis for a year or so."

BRUSHING UP SPORTS . . . By Laufer

SPORT SLANTS

There is not much doubt that Sam Byrd's phenomenal stick-work with the Yankees this spring is directly traceable to his ability to hit a golf ball farther and more accurately than any other ball player and as well as most professional golfers.

Byrd, as he admits himself, has developed the same free, easy swing that the pros use. Except for the altered arc of the swing, there is not a great deal of difference. Some ball players "golf" their hits and many golfers "bat" the ball, but Byrd maintains the same smooth rhythm in his execution of each swing.

Baseball veterans still look somewhat askance at golf as a sideline activity, but it is noteworthy that many of baseball's star hitters also have readily acquired golfing skill. Babe Ruth's ability is well known. Washington's Sam Rice is a sweet golfer as well as a stylist at the plate.

Duty

Jimmy Dykes tells many a story on the umpires and a new one he has this season concerns an arbitrator named Clark, from Philadelphia, who went down to call them last season in the Middle Atlantic league.

He was working a game at Cumberland, Md., and the home team

Legion Baseball Loop Begins Action Tonight

The opening game of the American Legion junior baseball league will be played at the Charter Oak street grounds tonight. The grounds, which have been put in shape by the Recreation Center, will be the scene of all junior league games.

The opening game will see the Lucky Strikes against the Chesterfields. Play starts at 5:45 p. m. The probable lineups of the two teams: Lucky Strikes: Everett Bantley, c; Walter Forde, c; Frederick McCurry, p; William A. Leone, p; Joe Muldoon, Jr., p; William Cotter, Jr., p; William Keish, p.

Champion Kicking Spreeds

The spring upheaval among championship clubs is not confined altogether to the majors, where the Cardinals and the Athletics have been quite inconsiderably kicked around.

St. Paul, 1931 pennant winner, has been foundering around the American association cellar but the Saints have a good excuse. They sold their ball team last year to the major leagues, showing no favoritism by disposing of assorted ivory to the Phillies, Yankees, Braves, White Sox, Reds and Athletics.

The two leading Cardinal champions, Houston in the Texas league and Rochester in the International, have not yet set their circuits on fire but they are in contending positions, at least. Birmingham, the Southern league winner last season, has done fairly well at the outset.

On the other hand, San Francisco, champion of the Pacific Coast league, has been upholding its prestige by setting the pace again for the circuit.

Another Clown Deserts

Now the word from the coast's cauliflower alley is that another boisterous playboy, Max Baer, has taken the turn to the right, quit clowning, stopped his extravagant ways and started to put his money in the savings bank.

Before long the professional sports will be so cluttered up with serious-minded young business men that the business will cease to attract the customers. The sudden rush of the athletes to behave and be thrifty is a trifle belated.

Here's Real Versatility

Babe Didrikson, great girl athlete, is shown above training at Dallas, Tex., for the Olympic trials. She plans to enter everything so the cameraman recorded her form at sprinting, hurdling and with the javelin. Babe's bettered her own A. A. U. marks in practice.

CHICAGO PREPARES FOR CONVENTIONS

Trying To Attract Thousands Besides Delegates To Big Political Parleys.

Chicago, May 3.—(AP)—In its usual superlative way, Chicago will try to attract to the National political conventions next June the largest crowd ever to attend such gatherings.

This ambitious city overrode all opposition and landed both conventions. It plans to provide both parties the largest convention hall they have ever had, the most modern equipment, the biggest pipe organ, probably the largest flag in the world. And now it is hoping to draw the general public in unprecedented numbers.

Mr. Average Citizen, who hasn't any official business here but who likes to be around when big things are happening, is the man that's being angled for now. The bait is the glamour of two nominating conventions, a preview of the World's Fair and reduced railroad rates.

Public participation is the unknown "X" in the whole equation. The city wanted advertising, particularly with the World's Fair only a year distant, but the merchants and civic bodies that put up $350,000 for the two conventions naturally hoped also to bring trade to the city. Just how many persons besides those officially connected with the conventions can be drawn to the city is the question.

The railroads, arguing that the delegates would come anyway, based their reduced rates on the assumption that thousands of outsiders, the tourists in the far west, where the crowd lovers would like to come too. It is the first time such rates have been offered to National conventions.

Round trip rates of a fare and a half will be available all over the United States except in the far west, where the usual summer tourist rates are even lower. They are all "open" rates which require no credentials and are good in all cars.

Within two weeks every railroad station in the country will be provided with large posters—50,000 in all—advertising both the conventions and the opportunity to see the advance construction of the World's Fair. In addition, each delegate and alternate is being invited to the World's Fair preview with a pass good for both this summer and next summer.

Every policeman on the beat will carry one of those warrants, Justice Sonstebj said, and will be able to make a legal arrest any time he sees a hoodlum whom he suspects of carrying a pistol.

Judge Thomas A. Green ordered Sam Hunt, a Capone lieutenant, released last week because policeman who arrested him and found a pistol on his person didn't have a warrant.

Newton, Mass., May 3.—(AP)—Frank Joyce of Boston, who was found unconscious, a stab wound in his abdomen, near the Newton Upper Falls railroad station, today was in serious condition at the Newton hospital.

Joyce was found lying in the lonely spot late last night and after regaining consciousness at the hospital police and doctors that he was taken into a dark colored roadster in Boston, attacked by three men and thrown from the car. His abdomen bore a knife wound, which doctors said was probably made by a pointed.

An emergency operation was performed and it was believed he would recover.

Joyce said he knew of no reason for the attack and relatives told police they were unable to assign a motive.

Berkeley, Calif., May 3.—(AP)—The engagement of Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, associate professor of physics at the University of California and Miss Mary Blummer, daughter of George Blummer, New Haven, Conn., has been announced.

Dr. Lawrence, a graduate of the University of North Dakota, has been assisting for the last two years in an attempt to break down the atom. He left April 21 for Washington, D. C., to attend a meeting of the American Physical Society and plans to be married before his return here this summer.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Gloucester, N. J.: It isn't raining rain, my dear, it's raining—you'd never guess—fish! John Battersby was fishing. He caught one fish. Along came a fish hawk and seemed to feel very sorry for Mr. Battersby. The hawk dived, came up with a squawker, circled above Mr. Battersby and then dropped the squawker at the Battersby feet. As fish stories go, this rates A-plus.

Adams, Mass.: "Eggs!" They may say in a certain lawyer's home here within a year or so, "eggs for breakfast, eggs for dinner, eggs for supper." The thing of it is that two Adams lawyers, who did some law work for a client, agreed in lieu of $250 (which the client did not have) to accept 1,000 dozen eggs over a ten year period. One lawyer doesn't like eggs, so the other one will have to do the best he can about it. Eggs, without doubt, are very nourishing.

Sacramento: When Gov. Rolph got back from the governors' conference at Richmond, Va., and unpacked his bags, he found a Gleason bible. Under various circumstances there was only one thing to do, so he's going to send it back to the hotel where it belongs.

Cleveland, O.: Marion Moyer wasn't supporting his former wife and she had him arrested. He explained the reason was that he didn't have any money. Mrs. Moyer, feeling sorry, said: "We'd better get married again." They didn't have any money, so the court performed the ceremony gratis. Which was very nice of the court.

Cleveland, O.: Abe Cohen, speaking over a radio station, told the folks how to be a successful bootlegger. This annoyed the prohibition agents, so they arrested him. Mr. Cohen is now about decided to tear up another speech on how not to get arrested by prohibition agents.

ALL CARRY WARRANTS

Chicago, May 3.—(AP)—A Chicago judge has ruled the police can't arrest a hoodlum for toting a gun without a warrant, but Chief Justice John J. Sonstebj has found a way to get around that.

He announced yesterday he was calling on the Chicago Crime Commission to provide him with names of all known hoodlums. Then he intends to pass the list around the Detective Bureau and ask all detectives to whom they are familiar to sign warrants against them for carrying concealed weapons.

Every policeman on the beat will carry one of those warrants, Justice Sonstebj said, and will be able to make a legal arrest any time he sees a hoodlum whom he suspects of carrying a pistol.

Judge Thomas A. Green ordered Sam Hunt, a Capone lieutenant, released last week because policeman who arrested him and found a pistol on his person didn't have a warrant.

IGNORANCE REIGNS NEAR HOOVER CAMP

Queer Settlement Discovered—Speak Ancient English; Cleanliness Unknown

Skyland, Va., May 3.—(AP)—The folks of Corbin Hollow—a community of perennial starvation and penniless squatters within a dozen miles of President Hoover's flag-day camp—are about to come into something more than their own.

A plan to move the community rooted in this one spot since the Revolutionary War, to a new section of the mountains adjoining a church mission has been virtually agreed on between Federal and state officials.

Mixed up in the strange story are officials of the National Park Service, a Washington physician and a woman social worker, Miss Miriam Sizer.

Inspected by Wilbur Secretary Wilbur rode into the Hollow over the week-end accompanied by Horace M. Albright, director of the National Park Service, Dr. R. Lyman Sexton of Washington and Miss Sizer.

They found six families living in the Hollow, all named Corbin or Nicholson. All the adults are cousins. The children of sisters and brothers have intermarried. They speak a queer, Chaucerian English, almost un-understandable. They say "holden" for "to help" and "withouten" for "without."

Never Use Soap Dr. Sexton reported that the use of soap was almost unknown to them and that many suffered from malnutrition and tuberculosis.

He told of taking a 20 months old baby from the hollow that weighed only 12 pounds into a Luray, Va. hospital. With nourishment it has become almost normal.

 Be yourself, dear May, do not try to ape your predecessors; Mind your manners as you ought, Take June for example, bless her! April shifts from harsh to gentle, Do not be so temperamental.

Diner—Yes, but it wasn't cooked soon enough.

The burglar's wife was on the witness stand and the prosecuting attorney was conducting a rigorous examination.

Prosecuting Attorney—Madam, you are the wife of this man?

Burglar's wife—Yes.

Prosecuting Attorney—You knew he was a burglar when you married him?

Burglar's wife—Yes.

Prosecuting Attorney—How did you come to marry such a man?

Burglar's wife—Well, I was getting old and had to choose between a lawyer and a burglar.

The cross examination stopped right there.

The brave man who succeeds is called a hero. The brave man who fails is called a fool. If you want to lose a friend set his faults to music and frequently sing them under his window. And did you hear about the fellow who always played trump because some one had told him that when in doubt play trump? There's always room at the top of the racketeering business, if you can get low-down enough.

A man is reliably reported to have had the following experience some years ago: He saw a message and an address on an egg he got for breakfast. The message read:

"This egg was packed by a girl thousands of miles from the United States. She is supposed to be the prettiest girl in this neighborhood, and is prepared to marry the man who eats this egg."

 The man called her: "I'll marry you."
 The girl's reply read: "I am flattered by your proposal, but I am now married and have three children."
