Motor Hints

Timely Suggestions on the Care of the Car by the Automobile Club of Hartford.

Drains Help Check Fire

If you have never looked over the space under the carburetor of your car now would be a good time to consider it. There is a good possibility that it is a fire breeder.

You may find that the manufacturer has a small copper tube from the bottom of the carburetor to a place under the pan. This will be good news, because it means that he has provided a way to permit the air cleaner and the carburetor body to drain off any excess fuel that collects by reason of over-choking during the starting process.

Equally dangerous is any possibility of fuel collecting in a puddle under the carburetor. Some of the older cars were equipped with a small pan to hold the fuel until the car was run out of the garage. A number of fires resulted from such design.

Calls for Timing Test

When a car starts to run slow, and it is certain that the carburetor is properly adjusted or that the brakes do not drag, the timing should be suspected. Many car owners who get this far, however, fall down on the timing because they do not know how to check it.

Where a chain is used for the front-end drive, as is the case with most makes, valve or spark timing, or both, may go awry.

This happens when the chain stretches and jumps a sprocket.

There is usually provision for advancing the spark to compensate for the change in the relation of the timing gears. But when the valves go slow it is necessary to remove the radiator and cover plate of the timing gears in order to reset the camshaft.

Caution in Adjusting

In adjusting four-wheel brakes there is a natural temptation to tackle the adjustment nuts on the turn-buckle ends of the brake rods. These are the first things the average owner notices when he comes to survey the situation, but they should be the last to touch.

Most modern adjusting is done at the individual brakes. The details vary, but in general there will be found at each brake some means of adjusting the clearance between the shoes and the drums. This, therefore, compensates for wear. And equalization is taken care of at this time.

If the owner attempts to readjust at the rods he is apt to throw the whole system out of equalization. His efforts here affect the control system, and not directly the situation at each individual brake.

Results Hang By a Hair

While it is true that the car often runs in accordance with the way the driver feels the variation in performance, there are times when he comes to some of those little things that make a surprising difference. For instance, take the weight of a full tank of gasoline.

With an approximate weight of 6.6 pounds per gallon gasoline in a twenty-gallon tank adds 132 pounds to the load the engine is asked to pull. This additional weight often accounts for the increased steadiness of the car when taken on a strip of hills as fast as the needle does around town on a nearby empty tank.

The temperature of the lubricating oil has much to do with the performance of the motor. This, in turn, is largely dependent on outside temperature. Many motorists are conscious of the better running of the motor at night and on damp days, due to improved gas mixture.

Care Must Match Car

Knowing your own make and model of car is one of the most important rules of car care. If you cannot always take the car to the dealer, it is better to have it sufficiently familiar with the car that you can get general service might be harmful to it.

One of the popular cars, for instance, requires a special kind of grease for the distributor shaft. Because many cars require light engine oil for this particular part owners are apt to use a lubricant that does not check wear on the shaft. Where oil is used the shaft usually is slotted so the lubricant can work its way over the bearings areas evenly.

Some generators and clutch release collars require no lubricant. On others such attention is essential. There is quite a wide variation in the methods of lubricating universal joints, some requiring no lubricant and one being automatically lubricated from the gears.

Why Choking Slows Start

Even the most inexperienced driver knows that if the motor is over-choked during the cranking process it will not start. He does not have to be gifted with special mechanical knowledge to appreciate that this is due to the fact that the over-rich mixture to the cylinders will not burn.

But there is another reason why over-choking slows down the process. The raw gasoline drawn into the cylinders runs down the walls and washes off what little oil is there. This lowers compression—the condition so essential to starting.

Another bad feature of the over-choking process is that, while it is not affecting the immediate starting, may cause trouble later, in the effect on the valves. Gasoline washes off the stems, dries them and so causes sticking. Some engines will not start if just one valve "hangs up."

800 APPLY FOR FLOUR AT-CHARITY QUARTERS

About 1,100 Bags Remain in Car At Apal Place—Those in Need Must Apply.

Nearly 800 bags of flour have been issued to local applicants at the office of the Town Charity Department during the last week. Approximately 1100 bags remain in the car at Apal Place, and very few people in need of flour can obtain one of the 344 pounds bags by making application at the office of the charity department, Room 12 in the Municipal building.

Although there have been nearly 800 permits issued, many of the applicants have not reported at the car on the Apal Place siding for their flour. The charity department is issuing repeat orders to heads of large families.

'REPEAL DRY LAW' - ROCKEFELLER, JR.

declaring Rockefeller made "wild statements," said government officials show that "the source of liquor supply is not over 35 per cent what it was before" and that crime has decreased.

Dr. Butler on the other hand, hailed the Rockefeller support and said it would have very great influence in the public opinion of the country.

Mrs. Charles H. Sablin, chairman of the Women's organization for National Prohibition reform, praised for the change in the relation of the timing gears. But when the valves go slow it is necessary to remove the radiator and cover plate of the timing gears in order to reset the camshaft.

There appears to be no record of any contributions by him to the Anti-Saloon League after 1925. It was about that time that he broke with the organization as a result of irregularities exposed in the prosecution and conviction of William H. Anderson, state superintendent.

Anderson served a prison term in 1924 for third degree forgery and at that time Mr. Rockefeller demanded a full inquiry into the affairs of the League and in this connection he came to the support of Mr. Fredrick, who was in controversy with Anderson.

He challenged Anderson's charge that he was the victim of a "wet conspiracy," saying: "If Mr. Fredrick is guilty of participating in any 'wet conspiracy' I am guilty too, for he has represented me in this matter for two years, and I have fully approved of his every action and he has had and still retains my complete confidence."

NEW ORGANIZATION

New York, June 7.—(AP)—Anti-Prohibition organizations reported to represent some 350,000 members today organized the "United States Council" an organization dedicated to advocating repeal planks in both Republican and Democratic National platforms.

Representative attending the organization meeting favored inviting both John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Mrs. Rockefeller to join the council, in view of Rockefeller's letter expressing approval of repeal.

Florence Dugan, of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment was elected chairman of the council, Mrs. Charles H. Sablin, head of the women's organization for National Prohibition reform, was chosen vice chairman.

Organizations represented in the council are the two just mentioned; the Republican Citizens committee which is headed by Raymond Pitcairn, the voluntary committee of Lawyers and the Crusaders.

No Action Taken

Mention of the Rockefeller came up early in the meeting but there was no announcement as to what action might be taken officially by the council as a whole.

"Sometimes ago I asked Mr. Rockefeller if he would take an active part in the campaign against prohibition," said William H. Stayton, founder of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

"Mr. Rockefeller took the matter under consideration and I did not hear from him. Now that he has declared himself, if the council does not vote to invite him in, I will myself."

Mrs. Sablin responded with a statement she could not invite Mr. Rockefeller to join the women's organization, "but I certainly shall ask Mrs. Rockefeller."

It was announced members of the council would attend a mass meeting in Chicago June 13.

WALL STREET AFFECTED

New York, June 7.—(AP)—Wall Street read the prohibition reversal by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., today and injected a fizz or so into the "wet group" of the New York Stock Exchange.

Gains ranging from a few cents to about $2 resulted from what appeared to be professional effort—evidence behind such shares as National Distillers, Products, Corn Products Refining, Owens Illinois Glass, Crown Cork and Seal, and U. S. Industrial Alcohol. American Ice was idle; so was Coca Cola.

There was little volume to the movement and gains were not fully realized. National Distillers was fairly active, selling up $1 to $1.5, while

Wets Are Tagging Right Along

You'll know an anti-prohibitionist by his automobile, now. This picture shows Mrs. John S. Sheppard, New York state chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, as she attached a "repeal" plate to a car in New York the other day. Fifty unemployed men were given jobs selling the tags.

IS NOT INFORMED

Moorestown, N. J., June 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Nina G. Frantz, head of the New Jersey Women's Christian Temperance Union, said today she does not think John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is "thoroughly familiar" with the present status of prohibition when he urges repeal of the law.

"Mr. Rockefeller needs to be informed," Mrs. Frantz said. "He says there is more liquor abroad in the land than ever, and if that is so, why repeal prohibition? It is needed more than ever in that case."

FIGHT TO GO ON

Philadelph., June 7.—(AP)—Dr. Homer W. Topp, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, commenting on John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s statement urging repeal of the 18th Amendment, said every man in this country has a right to urge Constitutional repeal, "but we are not going to help them do it."

"We can't prevent a man from exercising his own judgment," Dr. Topp said. "The fight will go on."

RESUBMISSION PLANK

OF G. O. P. CALLED SOUND

Washington, June 7.—(AP)—Postmaster General Brown told newspapermen today he believed the proposal to place a prohibition plank in the Republican platform calling for resubmission of the question was "sound."

Out of conferences participated in by party leaders have come reports that there has been agreement on the plan to place a plank in the platform calling for resubmission of prohibition by Congress either to state legislatures or state conventions.

The postmaster general has been active in these deliberations. He told newspapermen he doubted whether President Hoover "has even seen the proposed plank."

Expressing belief that the "formula or resubmission was sound," the postmaster general said there would be many discussions about it in the future and that it was possible that the "verbiage or even the principle" would be changed.

He added he felt that resubmission of the question to the people was in keeping with the American tradition of allowing the electorate to express its will.

Brown said he believed the Republican convention would be over in three days.

WOULD CHANGE TAX ON ELECTRIC ENERGY

Washington, June 7.—(AP)—The first bill to amend the tax measure that became law yesterday was introduced today by Representative Johnson (R., Wash.).

He proposed to change it so as to transfer the electrical energy levy from the consumer to the producer. In a statement he said: "At various points in western Washington the electric light companies are carrying customers who are unable to pay. If a tax is to be paid on the bills rendered to these customers, the electric light companies would cease to deliver electric current."

"Thousands in the past two years have had to drop the use of electric light at their homes for the old-fashioned kerosene lamps."

A rehearsal of the pageant is called for Saturday morning, June 11 at 10 p. m. at the Recreation Center. All the children are requested to be present.

W. C. T. U. MEETING

Mrs. George H. Wilcox presided at the final meeting until full of the local branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Albert B. Mann of Linden street. Mrs. Wilcox appointed as nominating committee Mrs. Frank V. Williams, Mrs. John A. Hood and Mrs. Dwight Elliot.

Miss Betty Harvey, High school freshman also won the $5 county prize. Her essay was the one on "The Staggering Burden of Debts Incurred as a Result of the vast expansion of prosperous years."

John Barton Payne, National chairman of the Red Cross, recently said the original wheat relief allotment would be exhausted by the beginning of next winter.

At the governors' conference, in the office of Speaker Gerrard, Murphy said the financial and other resources of municipalities were nearing exhaustion and that relief must be found.

STUDENTS ADVISED

Boston, June 7.—(AP)—Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, predicted before the graduating class at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology today that out of the present economic conditions will emerge a new social, political and financial structure.

He attributed economic conditions "to problems which have been evolving for at least 100 years." Among these, he said, were the development of machinery and the effect of war. He cautioned against panic and loss of confidence in old institutions.

NO LIQUOR IN OHIO

Chicago, June 7.—(AP)—Mayor Cermak said today that Chicago police would take no part in enforcing the dry laws during the National political conventions next month.

"Chicago doesn't need mopping up more than any other city," he said. "There's no liquor here. The drive should start in Washington because most of the liquor will be brought here by Senators, Congressmen and others from that city, they put the law on the books and spend millions of dollars to enforce it, so why should 'city spend money for the same thing?'"

BIG CITIES ASK GOVERNMENT AID

Mayors Present Appeal To Congress—Urge Five Billion Dollar Bond Issue.

Washington, June 7.—(AP)—Federal assistance to big cities to provide work and help care for the unemployed was urged today by a committee of mayors at a conference with Speaker Garner and House party leaders.

The group, headed by Mayor Frank Murphy, of Detroit, presented a message memorial to the Speaker. Majority Leader Rainey and Minority Leader Snell, urging that Congress provide a $5,000,000,000 bond issue to furnish funds for employing the idle.

And various other recommendations were adopted at a conference of 31 mayors of leading cities in Detroit June 1.

Others included the immediate enactment of relief legislation, and authorizing the Reconstruction Corporation to invest its assets in municipal securities to release funds necessary to maintain the city governments.

The Fulmer bill to authorize the Fulmer bill to authorize Red Cross distribution for relief purposes of 40,000,000 bushels of wheat and 500,000 bales of cotton from Farm Board stores was approved unanimously by the House agriculture committee.

The legislation is similar to the bill passed last winter releasing 400,000 bushels of wheat, with the exception that appropriation of funds necessary to liquidate outstanding commercial loans against this wheat and cotton would be authorized.

John Barton Payne, National chairman of the Red Cross, recently said the original wheat relief allotment would be exhausted by the beginning of next winter.

At the governors' conference, in the office of Speaker Gerrard, Murphy said the financial and other resources of municipalities were nearing exhaustion and that relief must be found.

PLAN BIG FOURTH PROGRAM HERE

Band Concert and Fireworks Features of Holiday Celebration.

Plans are being made by the committee from the Dilworth-Cornell Post, American Legion to furnish Manchester residents with one of the best holiday night programs for July 4th which will include a band concert by the Salvation Army Band, and a display of fire works on the old golf grounds north of East Center street.

The sum of $72,000 was left from the fund collected last year, and the committee requests that all contributions for this year's celebration of a "safe and sane" holiday, be mailed or left with Aldo Pagni, treasurer of the fund at his office in the Manchester Trust Company building, 923 Main street.

It is estimated that the sum of approximately $400 will be needed to buy fireworks, the band, lighting, trucking, removal of the bandstand and other work incident to the celebration. Last year a gathering of townspeople gathered in the surrounding towns, estimated at 8,000, attended the display, and a like number is expected to be present this year.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, June 7.—(AP)—The Stock Market remained rather feeble today, although it offered somewhat better resistance than it did yesterday.

But the Bond Market continued to maintain a good tone, the dollar was again firm in the foreign exchange markets, and pressure was mostly lifted from the Wheat Market, so Wall Street did not find the day particularly depressing.

Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit was again a soft spot, off more than 3 points to a new low. Peoples Gas rose nearly 2, then reacted to show a similar loss. American Telephone lost a couple of points, as did Auburn.

News of John D. Rockefeller's abandonment of the prohibition cause was not greeted with the bullish demonstration that has attended various "wet" developments in past. When professional traders were more active, it became a fashion to couple market upturns with rumors of impending anti-prohibition developments.

Such selling as came into the market in selected issues again seemed to be of the character of that which preceded the recent recovery—the selling out of long holdings to raise cash. Special developments, however, affected isolated issues. Auburn reacted on rumors that it would shortly announce a price reduction.

BIG TURTLE DOESN'T MEAN BIG FEED

A turtle weighing about 18 pounds was put on exhibition in a box in one of the show windows along Main street this noon. It attracted a crowd and comment was started on the amount of meat it would furnish and how much soup could be secured.

Charles Rogers, letter carrier from the South Manchester post-office, was passing by. He stopped, took a look and remarked, "A couple of good bowls of soup and just enough meat for one." Then as he started to walk away he remarked, "and a person wouldn't have to be hungry at that."

Some of the try-outs were especially good while others were dampened with nervousness and failure to remember parts.

ALL PLAYGROUNDS APPARATUS INSPECTED

Hope To Prevent Further Accidents—Youngster Broke His Leg Yesterday.

No time was lost in getting action as a result of the accident at the north end playgrounds yesterday when a small boy, playing on a broken swing, fell and broke his leg. This morning there was an investigation under way and proper attention is to be given to the apparatus in use on the grounds before there are other injuries.

AMERICAN GOLFERS QUALIFY FOR OPEN

Armour, Sarazen, Smith Safely In But British Players Provide Sensations.

Sandwich, Eng., June 7.—(AP)—Six Americans, including Tommy Armour, defending champion, MacDonald Smith and Gene Sarazen were among 110 competitors who qualified today with scores of 187 or better for the British open golf championship. The other U. S. trio includes Walter Fursay, Robert Sweeney and Douglas Grant, the last two being amateurs.

It was learned after the accident, which occurred during the noon recess hour, that a swing, which was not any too good had been broken by some older boys who had been using it and they, instead of reporting that it had been broken fixed it up in a temporary way.

This morning Edward J. Murphy got in touch with Supt. F. A. Verplanck and in a conference held between Arvid Gustafson, who is to be the head instructor of all of the schools in town, Mr. Murphy and Principal Bentley of the Eighth District it was decided to make an inspection of all apparatus and this was soon underway. Just what the real conditions are at the playgrounds concerning the apparatus will be reported at the annual meeting of the School District to be held Monday night.

There have been several accidents at the playgrounds of late. The parents of a child cannot sue a school district for such injuries, unless it is known that the committee knows that the hazard exists and allows it to continue.

GEORGE F. McLEAN
 When George F. McLean in 1923 said that he did not need to put his ear to the track to be aware of the approach of "the one way train" it was, it is to be inferred, because he knew his days on earth were numbered. He was, at 75, no older than other statesmen who could not be induced to give up their careers.
 But he laid down his burden and gave himself a few delightful years
 of well earned rest, because he was incapable of self deception. All over this state there is poignant regret that those years could not have been extended greatly.

Senator McLean was 75 when he died yesterday. But he had never grown to be an old man in the accepted sense. His viewpoint was as fresh as it was forty years ago. He had never for an instant lost step with the times. In outlook, enthusiasm, in keenness of interest in life, in manner and in personal appearance—in everything but years and in inner physical stamina—he was ageless. So Connecticut is finding it difficult to reconcile itself
 to the termination of this life which,
 for so many years, it had somehow
 regarded as a fixed and stable thing.

This state has had few if any private citizens and no men whatever in political life for whom it has entertained more genuine admiration
 and affection than for George P.
 McLean. Lofty in principles, dignified and brilliant in public life, in his private character warm and friendly and gifted with complete understanding of his fellow men, he was a rare soul.

It is doubtful if we shall hear anything further from Dawes on the reasons for his resignation. If we do it will be because he is convinced that the good of the country demands a different kind of policy in the management of the Reconstruction Corporation—and because he is very sure indeed that his belief is justified.

BLOW TO THE DRYS
 The defection of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., from support of prohibition and the unforewarned announcement of the oil magnate that he is strongly in favor of repeal of the Eighteenth amendment constitute the most stunning single blow that the cause of Constitutional prohibition has ever suffered.

That the Rockefeller has been ruthless, even fanatical enemies of liquor all their lives has been one of the best known facts in connection with this subject. That they contributed a large fortune to the movement for the Eighteenth amendment has also been public knowledge. From the support of this conspicuous and powerful family
 the federal prohibition agitation drew a measure of its strength not to be calculated in dollars and cents
 alone.

That the active head of that family should now make formal declaration that the cause it so strenuously supported and to which it supplied such large sums of money had proved itself to be a mistaken one is a disaster from which the drys
 can never recover.

It is, however, a long way from being a disaster to the country. No other single individual anywhere
 could have produced quite the same effect by espousing the cause of prohibition repeal because no other single individual has been so powerful a supporter of prohibition. It is the beginning of the end.

And will the drys now declare that Mr. Rockefeller is being subsidized by the "liquor interests"?

HEALTH DIET ADVICE

 FAMILY. FREE CONSULTATIONS GIVEN BY APPOINTMENT"

IN NEW YORK
BOOTLEG RADIO
 New York, June 7.—"Bootleg" broadcasts, such as shortwaved
 their unfair fictions during the recent tragic episodes of the Lindbergh baby murder mystery, have brought chance these days of escaping
 "the spot."

Governmental methods of air detection now trace, almost infallibly,
 the source; save in some rare instances where amateurs reach an extremely limited audience.

A few years back, however, implausible pranks of would-be practical jokers kept the governmental agencies in a great lather. The was, for instance, the gent located somewhere in the vicinity of Flatbush or Long Island who delighted in sending out smoking car stories. On each appearance he would change the wave length—the white,
 his tales grew more and more of color and the authorities tore what remained of their fast-whitening
 hair.

When it appeared that his trail
 might have been picked up, he vanished from the ether and was never caught.

Getting Exclusive
 And here's a tip that should discourage a few of that army of
 would-be radio announcers recently flooding the big town: Pat Kelley, selector and supervisor of announcers over NBC, passes on word that out of 3000 aspirants only ten have been given as much as a chance.

The fellow who hopes to get so much as a spring at the ball must have a college education; a knowledge of music and composers; be able to speak one other language fluently; be a fair ad-libber, with a flair for the extemporaneous and possess "voice personality."

Why, you ask, do many announcers now on the air appear to lack several of these requirements?
 Well, maybe they were signed up in the good old days.

The Ubiquitous Banker
 And now Manhattan presents that unique and amusing scenario titled, "Banker on Broadway!" The banks are in Hollywood up to their last efficiency expert; they have taken over hotels, swank apartment, office buildings and penthouses.

The entire Shubert group went
 the way of all mortgages; Arthur Hammerstein left his theater, the Hammerstein; Earl Carroll had to surrender; then came H. B. Harris Hudson and the most recent to pass
 was Charles Dillingham's Globe Theater.

All of which is a gloomy picture,
 but the smiles arise from the aftermath, Brook Pemberton, for instance, had booked the Hudson for his new show, "Christopher Columbus"
 which is described as a hotly comedy of the goings on between Columbus and Isabella.

A banker's representative was sent in to watch rehearsals and the play was pronounced far too
 ribald for a conservative banking concern. Booking was crossed out and Pemberton, must move.

The large laugh will come if the next Carroll show, booked for another bank-held playhouse, is pinched for immorality.

Millions Go Begging
 At a time when a million dollars
 should look like at least a million dollars, refusal by Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne of Holly-wood's offer of that sum causes more than a passing gasp. The one cinema adventure of the Lunt-Fontanne team proved unpleasant to them. They had been quoted, as saying they wouldn't go back for a million dollars." And they didn't. There has been a neat income for years and they have been shrewd in their investments in the Lunt-Fontanne team.

However, Katherine Cornell has turned down offers almost as large
 and, just a couple of years ago,
 George Cohan wouldn't take a million. Now he goes out for something said to be considerably less.

Such is the psychology of Broadway billing that a street bootlegger
 now hangs a sign: "Jimmy Collins, shoe shine extraordinary."

SACRED CONSTITUTION
 Owen D. Young, that highly regarded industrialist and financier
 who thinks the collapse of good times was caused by the industrial worker receiving so much more than the farmer—which is something Mr.
 Young couldn't prove to save his life
 —now has another idea. It is that we may have to change our form of government so as to give the President much more power in times of emergency. In his argument for such a change he says some true and some bright things. He thinks that in our very natural abhorrence of absolutism we created, in our Constitution, so many checks that nobody can really do anything, particularly without a terrific waste of time. A great many people will agree with this idea. He says that the people are crying out for somebody to do something when "there is no such somebody." Some will admit that this is true.

Another thing he says that is worth thinking about is that in this country we have run so far into specialization that we have developed
 very few men with a viewpoint
 broad enough to take in all the facts
 needed in the formulation of any recovery program, since we have been encouraging a system under which the individual knows "more and more about less and less." The mind reverts—instinctively to Mr.
 Young's mechanic-farmer wage hallucination and wonders if he is not a striking example of his own specialization theory.

None the less Mr. Young undoubtedly expresses something that has been germinating in the noodles of a great many Americans for a couple of years—a tiny doubt as to whether our much-vaunted Constitution is, after all, the perfect governmental instrument; whether any constitution creating a class of office holders who must exist on the sufferance of groups of voters of conflicting interests and ideas can ever operate very well when serious matters are afoot; whether, in a word,
 government by bodies of representatives can ever function outside quite narrowly prescribed limits; and whether it is not possible for a situation to arise where a government
 so trammelled and hidebound would fail altogether to meet the demands upon it because it could not do otherwise than fail.

If there has been one real benefit from this country's disillusionment
 on the subject of prosperity booms
 it derives from the unseating of preconceptions and traditions universally accepted without analysis.
 More people than ever before are now trying to see all the way through from cause to effect and all the way back from effect to cause.
 They are becoming a bit hard-boiled through long cooking over the fires of adversity. So long as the goose was hanging high it was all right with them if somebody declared that the Constitution was inspired by heaven and contained all of wisdom and all of justice; but right now there are more than a very few who feel that they must be shown before continuing to accept the easy dogma that ours is a perfect government and could not possibly be changed except for the worse.

One thing Mr. Young has done that only a few persons, placed as he is, could do—he has clothed with respectability the hitherto heinous proceeding of criticising the Constitution.

COMPARISONS
 The United States was in the World War nineteen months. Her active participation in the fighting on any considerable scale was embraced within not much more than five months. We lost 360,000 men in killed and wounded.

Germany, France, Great Britain,
 Canada were in the war for four years and three months; Italy for three years and five months. They lost, in killed and wounded, respectively, six million, five and a half million, three million, a quarter of a million and a million and a half.
 Total killed and wounded of these other major participants, sixteen and a half millions.

The killed and wounded of the five countries named were, roughly,
 about forty-six times as many as those of the United States.

The United States spends on the relief of World War veterans and their dependents considerably more than the total expended by the five countries whose casualties were forty-six times as numerous as ours.
 The sums are $1,072,000,000 and $891,000,000 respectively.

Germany, for her six million
 casualties, pays just under $300,- 000,000 a year; France pays $286,- 000,000; Britain $174,000,000, with her war relief expenditures steadily becoming less. Canada, whose losses were almost two-thirds of ours, pays one-seventeenth as much.

Yet in none of these countries have mobs of war veterans marched upon the nation's capital demanding more.

The veteran organizations owe it to their own good credit to take extraordinary measures to suppress this bonus raid. They alone can do it without being open to the unfair

charge of indifference to the combatants now that there are no more combats.

PREVENTING BLOOD POISONING
 Blood poisoning is not a new disease; we find evidence of it when studying the bones and skulls of vanished races. It was known to the Indians who dipped the tips of their arrows in putrid meat to insure a death-dealing infection. Modern gangsters often shoot with bullets rubbed with garlic as this is thought to cause an infection which will kill even if the bullet does not. Probably the garlic is not as responsible for the infection which sets in as is handling and rubbing the bullet with dirty hands.

Blood poisoning is always a serious disease and, if it develops, a competent physician should be in charge. The percentage of fatalities is so high that no layman should ever try to treat the disease himself. However, in this disease as with many others prevention is easier than cure, and the saying: "It is better to be safe than sorry," applies with great force to blood poisoning.

DO NOT NEGLECT WOUNDS
 The best time to consider blood poisoning is before it occurs. You should never regard a wound too trifling to be the seat of blood poisoning. Many people have lost their lives from septicemia which set in from such slight wounds as scratches, burns, small blisters or insect bites. In any injury where the skin is pierced it is important to clean the wound with antiseptic. Do not be fooled just because a wound
 looks clean as all of the microscopic organisms which may produce blood poisoning are absolutely invisible to the naked eye. A wound may appear clean and yet be festering with dangerous organisms, although they usually are present in any kind of dirt or foreign material.

Whether the wound appears dirty or clean, take no chances. Wash
 the wound thoroughly with water which has been boiled and cooled to moderate temperature. All dirt, splinters, and other debris should be removed. Do not be dismayed at a little bleeding as this may help to wash out the wound. After washing well with the warm water, treat with some good antiseptic such as iodine, mercurochrome or hexyl-resorcinol. Before handling any wound wash the hands thoroughly with soap and hot water. If the cut is wide, it is sometimes wise to plan to bring the edges together with narrow tape but never cover the entire surface of a cut with adhesive tape as blood poisoning might occur because drainage
 would be prevented.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
 (Mixing Vegetables)
 Question: Mrs. Fred E. asks:
 "What vegetables may be eaten at the same meal, and what does the word 'protein' mean?"
 Answer: All non-starchy vegetables may be mixed together at the same meal. A protein is a certain complex combination of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen and nitrogen, with a larger amount of nitrogen than found in most other foods. Some foods containing a large amount of protein are meat, fish, eggs, nuts
 and cheese.

(Baby Cries So Much)
 Question: Mrs. Iola J. writes:
 "I have a baby boy who has been a cry-baby ever since he was born.
 He passes much gas, and is very constipated. I nurse him and I am sure he gets plenty. He is seven weeks old and weighs ten pounds.
 Will you please advise me about his crying?"
 Answer: Your baby may be getting plenty of milk, but it is possible it is not nourishing. Send for my article called "Diet for Nursing Mothers" and after following the instructions for a reasonable time,
 if the baby continues to cry and remains constipated, it would be a good plan to wean him and put him on the milk and orange juice schedule I advise. Instructions for which I will also send.

(Toothache) Question: Art asks: "What can be done to stop toothache in the absence of a dentist?"
 Answer: Paint the gums around the tooth with some oil of cloves or,
 if the tooth is hollow, pack in some cotton that has been soaked in the oil of cloves. Do not be satisfied with temporary relief but have the tooth cared for by a dentist as soon as possible.

 which cannot be easily washed out

Statements alone cannot solve the problems which arise in international affairs. The nations must become accustomed to look to the organized gives a just and impartial lead to governments and public opinion and should be regularly accepted just as judicial decisions are accepted

 as a matter of course.

In America... the owners of industry have sacked the richest continent in the world, sold gold brick after gold brick to the producers whom they needed to grow
 the wheat and the hogs, to drill the oil wells and run the adding machines and for the Ford and the stocks.
 —John Dos Passos, novelist.

Unless the people take the matter
 into their own hands and refuse to manufacture arms, transport them or serve in the armies, they are not likely to avert another disaster.

WET IS LEADING IN N. C. PRIMARIES Charlotte, N. C., June 7.—(AP)—Sweeping aside North Carolina's proverbial dryness and the political prestige acquired by Senator Cameron Morrison over a period of 30 years, Robert R. Reynolds, a wet, today held a commanding lead with but a few scattered precincts unreported in the state's Democratic U. S. Sen. primary.

Although he declined any statement pending official canvass of the vote, it was generally understood Morrison would enter a second primary in July with Reynolds, made necessary because neither received a majority.

Reynolds campaigned for repeal of the prohibition laws. Morrison, a former governor, is a life-long personal and political dry.

MISS LAMONT TO WED New York, June 7.—(AP)—A daughter of Thomas W. Lamont, noted financier who is a J. P. Morgan partner, is to marry a young Harvard university man, June 27. Mr. and Mrs. Lamont have sent out invitations for the wedding of Miss Eleanor Allen Lamont to Charles Crebore Cunningham of Milton, Mass. Mr. Cunningham is a member of the graduating class at Harvard.

DEATHS LAST NIGHT Philadelphia—Charles E. Ingersoll, 72, prominent in the southwest as a railroad builder. Cincinnati—The Rev. Grover P. Osborne, 85, editor of the Journal and Messenger, a Baptist magazine. Simsbury, Conn.—George P. McLean, 74, former United States Senator from Connecticut.

SIX PERSONS KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Collingswood, N. J., June 7.—(AP)—Six persons were killed and another seriously injured early today when an ambulance speeding to a hospital with an injured three-year-old girl collided with an automobile at a street intersection here.

The Bloemakers child suffered a fractured skull and died in a Camden hospital. The bodies of William Rodecker and Mrs. Smith were so badly burned that identification could not be established for several hours.

NOT TO AWARD TROPHY Hartford, June 7.—(AP)—The Trumbull trophy, valued at approximately $2,000 and awarded for the fastest pilot in Connecticut last year by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will not be awarded this year, it was learned today from Dr. M. A. O'Hara of Waterbury, state commander of the veterans.

LOVED THEIR HOME Houston, Tex.—Someone left the pigeon house door open and 150 of the birds belonging to City Tax Attorney Louis Dunn flew out. They made no effort to escape. A strong wind blew up, however, and drove the birds away despite their struggles.

A. & P. 5 CENT SALE SPURS PUBLIC BUYING

Believe Appealing Bargains Will Induce People To Start Making Purchases. In commenting on the 5c Sale which his company conducted last week, and which is being continued for this week, William J. Davidson, president of the New England Division of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, today expressed great satisfaction with the response which the families of New England have given to this unusual selling event.

Appealing Bargains "We have felt," said Mr. Davidson, "that New England has ample resources to provide for the needs of its people, even in these difficult times. It has been our feeling that the uncertainty which has retarded buying in all classes of commodities could be dispelled if merchants were able to present to the public, values which of themselves were sufficiently appealing to invite expenditures."

With this thought in mind, the A. & P. Tea Company buyers in all parts of the country have been working for nearly two months to assemble a supply of food and grocery items which could retail at 5c. Naturally, such count y-wide operations, involving as they do, supplies of merchandise for nearly three thousand stores, have attracted national attention, and the results of this selling program are being watched with interest by retailers of all classes everywhere.

Response Great "We are glad to say that the response of New England to the appeal of high-grade merchandise at low prices has been eager and enthusiastic. A & P stores everywhere have been thronged with buyers. Vast quantities of merchandise have passed over the counters, and in many cases stocks which were thought to be adequate for a week, were practically exhausted in two or three days.

Encouraged "We find in the response to this sale every reason for encouragement for those engaged in retail business in New England. We believe that it has demonstrated, beyond question that the homemakers of this section are on the look-out for values; that when they see offerings which present opportunities to spend money advantageously, they will produce the necessary funds and will buy, and buy liberally."

In conclusion, Mr. Davidson said, "Our Company feels that the 5c Sale has been a very definite contribution to the welfare of New England business, and our company looks forward to further accomplishments in the way of spectacular low prices as a means of stimulating business, not only for itself, but for other organizations in New England and elsewhere."

NEW SEAPORT OPENED

Albany, N. Y., June 7.—(AP)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt dedicates the world's newest seaport here today as Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley officially opens the "deeper Hudson" river, dredged so all but the very largest of steamships can come to the Port of Albany.

With the ceremonies there comes true a century-old dream of an "ocean port" 143 miles from the sea in this key location from which shippers can quickly and cheaply reach the Great Lakes and the vast interior of the country by rail and by canal.

The once treacherous Hudson river channel, only 12 feet deep in places, now is twenty-seven feet from here to New York. A fleetly scores of ships have come here. Mr. Roosevelt's address will go to the entire nation on the Columbia radio chain. Secretary Hurley represents the Federal government, which bore a share of the tremendous cost of creating a port here.

SCHOOL HEAD QUILTS Athens, June 7.—(AP)—Dr. Rhys Carpenter, director of the American School of Classical Studies at Athens, has given up his post here and sailed for the United States. He sailed yesterday.

During the five years Dr. Carpenter has been here the area excavated in ancient Corinth has been as great as the entire area dug during the preceding 30 years that the school was interested in that site.

The chief sites uncovered are a large early Christian basilica from the Fifth Century after Christ, probably the seat of the early bishops of Corinth; the workshops in which the famous Corinthian ware was produced which was exported to all of the ancient classical world; a Roman market-place; the sanctuary of Asklepios; and the fountain of Lerna mentioned by Pausanias.

MEXICAN BEAN BEETLE SHOWS UP IN STATE

New Haven, June 7.—(AP)—A warning to farmers against the Mexican bean beetle infestation which is spreading through Connecticut has been sounded by the Connecticut Agricultural Experimental station. Reports coming in indicate the pest is sweeping through fields and gardens with a rapidity that hardly can be checked.

No bean vines are exempt unless they are sprayed or dusted at once and again after a short interval. The beetle was in the state last year. The station sent out a fall bulletin warning farmers and advising spraying about the middle of June. The winter was so mild the beetles lived through and the pest has gone on a rampage earlier than anticipated.

The eggs have been hatching in the warm weather and the pest has begun to eat. Mr. Turner at the experiment station found eggs yesterday for use in research work. A Cheshire woman reported taking a coffee can of beetles off two short rows of vines.

The station suggests use of magnesium arsenate for a mixture, one ounce to two gallons of water. The application should be to the underside of the leaves to do the most good.

DESPONDENT, KILLS SELF Old Lyme, June 7.—(AP)—George Gaullier, 80 who had a chicken farm in Laysville section of Old Lyme, near Great Hill Woods, hanged himself yesterday. The body was found by his sister, Elizabeth Fladrick and her son William. Gaullier had been despondent.

EMERGENCY AID HERE NEARS END

Less Than $500 Now Available For Jobless - Make No Further Plans.

With less than $500 remaining of the $98,000 with which it was financed during the past eight months, the Manchester Emergency Employment Association, Inc., will discontinue its activities at the end of the current week.

No Further Plans In view of the fact that the annual meeting of the Association is scheduled for August when new officers will be elected, further plans for the relief of unemployment next fall and winter were not discussed at this meeting.

Miscellaneous Jobs Much of the activity of the Association during the past few weeks has been centered on miscellaneous jobs for townpeople who have contributed to the fund.

Requests for Labor The advent of spring brought many requests for labor but in many cases contributors failed to make the requests in writing.

To the Subscribers: During the months of the fall of 1931, many generous people of the Town of Manchester contributed to the aid of the unemployed of the town.

At a privilege, not a right, subscribers were given an opportunity to have work done. They were allowed to charge this work against their subscription.

It now appears that many subscribers will not be able to get an amount of work equal to their subscription. The committee regrets this fact.

Ritchie Of The Free State His Stand On Some Big Issues Of 1932

(C.) Bachrach

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two stories on Governor Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination and regarded as a likely compromise choice in the event of a convention deadlock.

ANAPOLIS, Md., May 31.—Historians may assert that the issue of states' rights was buried at Appomattox in 1865, but Governor Albert C. Ritchie, whose forefathers fought and died for the Confederacy, is carrying that issue straight into the 1932 presidential campaign.

Today, as in 1824 and 1828, he is seeking the Democratic nomination on a pledge to end this and restore a larger measure of self-government to the states. He also attacks the Hoover administration for alleged inefficiency in coping with the depression.

He is opposed to federal or state ownership of the public utilities, and he favors local and state relief. He is opposed to a "sole," he warns business and industry that this may prove unavoidable if they do not guard against it by adopting some form of unemployment insurance of their own.

Other observations at scenes actively identified with Washington's life were included in the two-day program.

The ceremonies will move into Massachusetts tomorrow when George Washington highway markers are showing the route used by the revolutionary leader on a trip during his term as president.

Major George Thesault, air attaché at the French Embassy in Washington, will represent France at a dinner, planned to reflect the background of the dinner at which Washington and Rochambeau sealed their friendship, to be held tonight in Hartford.

Are you handicapped at the office?

To put in a full day's work, you need a full man's strength. A man, half-sick from constipation, has less chance to succeed in today's keen competition.

This insidious condition often causes headaches, loss of energy, sleeplessness. It takes the edge from your working hours.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it becomes a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than using pills and drugs—so often harmful.

Men Who "Make" Presidents

Jefferson Supreme As Party Boss; How Hamilton And Burr Fought For Power

First "boss" in American politics, Thomas Jefferson, extreme left, held tremendous power for a quarter of a century. He founded the Democratic party, "elected" three presidents and enjoyed a reign never equaled in political history. Alexander Hamilton, the power behind George Washington and himself an astute party leader, opposed to Jefferson, is shown at right. He died following a duel with Aaron Burr, lower left, after engineering Burr's defeat for the governorship of New York state.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of six daily stories on the important part political bosses have played in the choice of the nation's presidents from the early days of the republic down to the present.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington, June 7.—The first important political boss in this republic, who gave us a system that still endures in 1932, was Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton.

Mighty men they were and their names still echo through convention halls from the throats of modern party leaders who claim to be political descendants.

Intrigue and double-dealing marked American politics almost from the beginning. But the leaders who organized and guided parties and made presidents in the first three or four decades of presidential elections were aristocrats who themselves were either holding the highest federal offices or seeking them.

Politics began to develop as a profession when the people began to vote in large numbers. Then arose the system of nominating presidential candidates at national conventions which at once became characterized by manipulation at the expense of popular control. In almost no time came accustomed to twiddling their thumbs while bosses sat in hotel rooms picking dark horses.

Aaron Burr—getting back to the initial period—was the first prominent political boss whose name has come down to us unsavory. He was the boss of New York state in the late seventeenth-century and that was why Jefferson chose him as his running mate for vice president in the 1800 campaign. Then Burr tried to steal the presidency from Jefferson by chicanery and was balked only by Hamilton, whom he later killed in a duel.

Jefferson's career as a power in party politics has never been equaled. He founded what is now the Democratic party and obliterated what was then the Federalist party of Hamilton. He began by gaining a political group as far back as 1791, lining up leaders by correspondence—among them the leaders of the Tammany Society in New York.

Elected to the vice presidency in 1796, he was chosen president in 1800 and absolutely dominated national politics for a quarter of a century.

He engineered the election of James Madison as his successor by a series of deals in the less important states which thwarted the Federalists and later dictated the selection of James Monroe for another eight years. Just before his death in 1826 he is said to have been instrumental in the 1824 election of John Quincy Adams.

He was a realist and recognized the political value of patronage. He also foresaw that the democratic principles of government would prove more popular than autocratic heritages from Europe.

George Washington's power over the new nation went unquestioned so long as he was president, but Hamilton was the dominating influence behind Washington.

Hamilton was content with his power as a cabinet officer and undisputed leader of the Federalist party. He pulled many wires in his time. He was a very practical political boss and his theory, as opposed to Jefferson's, was that the government should always be operated for the people by the aristocracy.

In the very first election, when each presidential elector cast two votes so that the second highest man might be chosen vice president, Hamilton was found instructing certain electors to be sure and vote against John Adams, who was to be vice president, lest his vote equal Washington's.

In 1796, when it was still possible by manipulation of electors to swing an alleged vice presidential candidate into the presidency, he was trying to defeat Adams for the highest office by persuading electors to split their tickets for Pinckney.

Later, after Adams had been president awhile, he found that Hamilton had been secretly in control of his cabinet all the time.

This handsome, brilliant and youthful boss saved the presidency for Jefferson in 1800. He could not stomach Burr or the plot joined in by some Federalists who sought to abandon their own hopelessly defeated candidate and let an electoral vote go to Burr, who had the same number of votes as Jefferson.

Burr was both an adroit and unscrupulous politician—there were many such even in those days. He had displaced George Clinton as party boss in New York and is credited with invention of one of the first tricks used to evade the election laws.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Scranton, Pa.—Fate measures in minutes. The Jessup High school caught fire yesterday and burned more than an hour before firemen from six villages conquered it. Fourteen hundred children attend the school, but fate made the fire for the noon hour—and all the children were home for lunch.

Istanbul—Death and education were the incentives that sent Miss Dorothy Rutherford, American Y. W. C. A. teacher here, on a ten thousand mile race to America last week. Word that her father was dying at Washington, Pa., sent her on a five thousand mile dash for home. She made the journey in 12 days. Then came the return race in an effort to get back before the school year ended—and she made it.

Budapest—Stage money is no good for buying food, and that's all lots of actors are getting these days. Some have their pension, but it is only two dollars a month, and that doesn't buy much food, either. As a way out of their unfortunate position ten actors have applied for licenses to beg on the streets.

Washington—This country isn't so old. Two women whose father carried a musket in the Revolutionary War unveiled a monument to his memory yesterday. Each is an octogenarian and their father, Henry Pool, died eighty years ago.

Hollywood—Thousands of girls would give their right eye for a chance at the movies, but Phyllis Fraser, who never even gave the screen a thought, now finds her name on the "hot list." A film executive saw her at a party and decided she was just the type.

Hollywood—The price of grand dukes is down to $20 a day in the movies. Casting directors feel that no matter how grand a duke may be, a fake duke is apt to be a much better actor, which is—in Hollywood—much more important than being a grand duke.

tricks used to evade the election laws. The ballot was originally restricted to men of property and that was often circumvented when young propertyless men were organized into a group which would buy itself a house. Thereupon each member of the group would be recognized as a property owner. Votes were so few that this method was used to win ward after ward in New York City.

It is also recorded that Burr established the Bank of Manhattan simply as a joker in a water supply bill. After the Jeffersonians tossed him overboard in 1804, refusing to let him be vice president again, Burr ran for governor of New York and his ambition was again thwarted by Hamilton. His famous duel with Hamilton followed and his power diminished rapidly.

Dewitt Clinton, his political enemy, succeeded Burr as boss of New York. Although the presidency was at first occupied almost exclusively by Virginians, New York was a center of great political power from the beginning and it will be observed in subsequent articles that after the "Virginia dynasty" the bosses of New York and Pennsylvania usually have been vitally important factors in national conventions and campaigns down to the present time.

Clinton wanted to be president after Jefferson and although of Jefferson's party he made a coalition with the New York Federalists and leaders of his own party in other states to beat Madison in 1812. He lost, though he carried New York and remained boss there for many years.

Martin Van Buren was Clinton's and campaign manager, marking entrance on the national scene of one of the castles, most resourceful major political bosses this country has ever produced.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CHEERY DIXON, 19 and pretty, falls in love with DAN PHILLIPS, newspaper reporter whom her wealthy, aristocratic parents have forbidden her to see. When Cherry learns Dan's telephone messages have been kept from her she steals out of the house to meet him. Her father discovers this and threatens to send her to California. Cherry defies him and orders her to leave.

She goes to Dan, tells him what has happened and asks him to marry her. The ceremony is performed that night by a justice of peace. Friends of Dan's stage a party for them. Next day Cherry, who has only the dress she is wearing, goes shopping. She opens a charge account and the bill totals $93.70. When Dan comes she is ashamed to tell him of her extravagance.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

The telephone shrilled. Cherry dropped the brown felt she had been about to put on her head and reached for the receiver.

"Hello," she said eagerly, expecting to hear Dan's voice.

"Is this Mrs. Phillips?"

It was a stranger speaking. A man whose voice she did not recognize. Cherry froze, this was Mrs. Phillips and waited.

"This is the clerk downstairs," the man went on crisply. "There's some one to see you—Mrs. O'Fallon's name is."

"Who? Oh—oh, tell her to come right up! Tell her to come right away!"

A few moments later when there was a light rap Cherry ran to the door, pulled it open and threw both arms about the short, stout figure on the threshold.

"Sarah! Oh, I'm so glad to see you. I'm so glad to see you."

The neat was sufficed against Sarah O'Fallon's substantial shoulder. Sarah's generous arms had gathered the girl into them. She was a Sarah transformed by a long dark blue coat and neat blue turban, but her eyes were blue, her cheeks as pink as Cherry had always seen them.

"Cherry darling!"

Old Sarah's vision seemed suddenly blurred. They were glad tears that glistened on the round, pink cheeks. She patted the girl's forehead, mumbling endearments that were half audible.

"But Sarah—!" Cherry exclaimed, laughing. There was a suspicious sparkle on her lashes too. "You're crying! You mustn't do that. How can you cry when you're so happy?"

There's so much I want to tell you, Sarah, and so many things I want to ask! Here—come inside. Sit down! Sarah, you haven't told me how you found out where I was. And you are crying! How's Mother—?"

The questions came one after the other without a moment's pause for replies.

At last Sarah, mopping her eyes, managed to get out, "You shouldn't have done it, Cherry. You shouldn't have run away like you did."

Her severity was nearly transparent. Sarah's eyes were on her former charge, anxious and adoring, while she pretended to scold.

"Oh, please, Sarah, don't begin that!"

"Just the same you shouldn't have done it! I read the paper and you've been married and all. My little Cherry! I couldn't believe it!"

"To do it again," the girl said proudly. "Wait till you know Dan, then you'll understand—"

"The older woman was sitting in the big overstuffed chair. Cherry who had perched on the arm of the chair suddenly slipped to her knees directly in front of Sarah.

"Dan's—wonderful!" the girl said, raising starry eyes. "I'd do it again for him!"

"You mean you're really happy?"

"Happier than I've ever been in my life!"

Old Sarah slipped a hand over the girl's. "May the Lord take care of you and help you to keep that happiness," she murmured. "Maybe if you feel that way it's for the best—"

"Of course it is!" Cherry insisted. "And really, Sarah, there wasn't any other way!"

For Sarah's benefit she reviewed the scene of her last evening at home. With "oh's" and "ah's" and frequent nodding of her head Sarah listened to the story. Cherry described the marriage and the celebration with Dan's friends.

Then it was Sarah's turn to take up the narrative. "Such a night!" she began. "I hope I'll not live through another one! All that we knew was that you'd gone and your mother was crying her eyes out in her room and your father downstairs pacing back and forth like a wild man. Half the night I went on and not a wink of sleep did I get! And feeling guilty as I did for knowing where you'd been off to in the afternoon. I was afraid to speak and afraid not to. Oh, it was terrible! Then in the morning we saw the papers and knew how you'd been married. I guess your father took on even worse than he did the night before. He didn't leave the house until almost noon. We could hear their voices—his and your mother's—but it was your father that did most of the talking. Finally he left and your mother said she had a headache and was not to be disturbed. She stayed in her room all day, but she had me bring the newspapers and it was easy to tell from the way her eyes were swollen and the red around 'em that it wasn't her headache."

"Would she let me come to see her?" the girl asked hesitatingly. Sarah shook her head. "That's the worst part," she admitted. "It's your father that's so against it. That's why your mother sent me—"

"Mother sent you!"

"Of course. Late yesterday afternoon she rang and said I was to go out of the house somewhere and telephone the newspaper office and see if I could find out where you were. Well, I did it and some girl who was a nice polite voice said you were at the Bismark hotel. So when I told your mother she said I was to get your things packed and send them to you."

"Oh, Sarah—"

"Well, I thought before I did that it would be better to come down and talk to you and see how everything was. Your mother said yes, that's what I should do, but I mustn't let any of the others know about it. And none of 'em does know! So you tell me, Miss Cherry, what to pack. I think your mother liked the idea of my coming to see you so I could tell her how you was and if you want to send her a note I'll be glad to take it. But I wouldn't write letters because maybe your father wouldn't like that."

Cherry was on her feet. "Of course I'll write," she said. "Sarah, you're an old darling. You'll come to see me often, won't you?"

"Well, I'll try to. We'll have to be careful, though. It wouldn't do for your father to find out."

Half an hour later Sarah O'Fallon departed. Stowed away in her purse was the letter Cherry had written to her mother. The trunk with Cherry's clothing, Sarah promised, would be delivered in the afternoon.

"Don't fret," she told the girl as she hesitated with one hand on the doorknob. If you're sure you've got the right boy things'll come out right! Young folks have to go their own way, I guess. You can let me know if you move and I'll come when I can."

Cherry went down the hall with her. She squeezed Sarah's hand tightly as the door of the elevator car slid open.

"Goodby, Darling."

"Goodby."

Back in her room the girl glanced at her wrist watch. Almost noon. One thought and one only was in Cherry's mind. With sudden energy Cherry hurried to the clothes closet and dragged out the big box containing Stanley's. A minute more and she was pulling on her hat and coat.

She left the hotel and walked to the department store with the box under her arm. Miss Lacey was in the French room, waiting on another customer. Cherry lingered until she had finished. Then she explained that she had changed her mind about the purchase.

Miss Lacey's trim dark brows lifted slightly. If Cherry had not been so preoccupied she would certainly have become uncomfortable under that gaze.

"You mean they're unsatisfactory?" the saleswoman asked.

"No, I've decided I don't want them. It's all right, isn't it? They haven't been touched—"

Miss Lacey opened the box and shook out the dresses. Regretfully she admitted that they would be all right. Was there anything else she could show Mrs. Phillips? Something she'd like to exchange?

Cherry said no, there was nothing else. And now that the things had been returned there wouldn't be any bill would there?

Miss Lacey wrote something on a slip of paper. "Just present this at the credit desk," she told Cherry. "They'll give you a receipt."

With the carboned receipt showed that merchandise worth $93.70 had been returned and credited to her account Cherry left the store. She discovered that the sun was shining and the faint breeze held the fragrance of spring. Surely the sky had never seemed bluer. A group of girls passed before a florist window and gazed in admiration at huge baskets of blue and white hycants. She could almost breathe their sweetness.

Spring! Of course it was spring, the season when all the world took on freshness and new life. This was a sunny day in mid-April and Cherry was a bride with the finest dearest young husband in the world. She had just corrected a mistake that for a short time had threatened their happiness. Everything was all right now. She would not even have to tell Dan about the charge account since the bill had been removed.

At a drug store counter she lunched on a sandwich and malted milk and then hurried back to the hotel. It had been agreed between them that Dan was not to telephone her at noon because Cherry excepted to spend the day hunting for an apartment.

She did not go out, however, because she was anxious to be on hand when the trunk was delivered. Cherry would take no chance with that trunk. It was about 4 o'clock. By the time Dan arrived she had unpacked everything and was waiting, fresh and radiant in a deep green frock with touches of daffodil yellow that he said made her exactly like the flower.

"Only lovelier," he told her, "lovelier because—well, you're you!"

She laughed at him from beneath demure lashes. She said that they were ridiculous and how she loved him for it!

They had dinner again at Schroeder's, exchanging news of the day and over the appetizing hot food. Their plates were taken away to be replaced by dessert. Abruptly, Dan looked up.

It was one of those moments that seem utterly casual when, looking backward, events reshaping entire lives may be seen to have their beginning.

Dan said, "Guess I forgot to tell you. Max Pearson's coming back tomorrow."

Cheap Furniture
Mrs. Thomas Ha grave, of Frederick, Md., whose furniture was sold at a sheriff's sale, to satisfy a rent judgment, bought her whole household furniture back for $132. Her automobile she got back for five cents and her living room carpet for two. Although a huge crowd collected to watch the sale, no one bid against her.

That high school boy who said that diplomatic relations were wayward cousins wasn't so far wrong, at that.

discovered that the sun was shining and the faint breeze held the fragrance of spring. Surely the sky had never seemed bluer. A group of girls passed before a florist window and gazed in admiration at huge baskets of blue and white hycants. She could almost breathe their sweetness.

Spring! Of course it was spring, the season when all the world took on freshness and new life. This was a sunny day in mid-April and Cherry was a bride with the finest dearest young husband in the world. She had just corrected a mistake that for a short time had threatened their happiness. Everything was all right now. She would not even have to tell Dan about the charge account since the bill had been removed.

At a drug store counter she lunched on a sandwich and malted milk and then hurried back to the hotel. It had been agreed between them that Dan was not to telephone her at noon because Cherry excepted to spend the day hunting for an apartment.

She did not go out, however, because she was anxious to be on hand when the trunk was delivered. Cherry would take no chance with that trunk. It was about 4 o'clock. By the time Dan arrived she had unpacked everything and was waiting, fresh and radiant in a deep green frock with touches of daffodil yellow that he said made her exactly like the flower.

"Only lovelier," he told her, "lovelier because—well, you're you!"

She laughed at him from beneath demure lashes. She said that they were ridiculous and how she loved him for it!

They had dinner again at Schroeder's, exchanging news of the day and over the appetizing hot food. Their plates were taken away to be replaced by dessert. Abruptly, Dan looked up.

It was one of those moments that seem utterly casual when, looking backward, events reshaping entire lives may be seen to have their beginning.

Dan said, "Guess I forgot to tell you. Max Pearson's coming back tomorrow."

son, and its brain weighs just about as much as does the brain of the grownup.

By this age the tissue of the brain has developed sufficiently in amount, but not quality. During the next few years habits will be formed and ability to think and work intellectually will be developed.

Will the body and the brain are growing so rapidly, they do not adapt themselves easily to shock, food deficiencies, or similar extraordinary strains.

The heart, as pointed out by Dr. William Palmer Lucas, grows four times heavier in the first five and one-half years of life because its muscles thicken in order to accommodate circulation during excess motion and activity that the child will undertake during the next few years.

Obviously the heart should be protected during its period of rapid growth from attack by various diseases such as influenza, scarlet fever, measles and diphtheria, which place in themselves a severe stress on the body's resistance.

The one way definitely known to protect the heart against strain is to rest sufficiently.

"Therefore, a child with a fever or with the beginning of any of the diseases that have been mentioned should immediately be put to bed and kept in bed until free from increased temperature.

Between 1 and 6 years of age the weight of the child is nearly doubled. A child weighing 20 pounds at 1 year of age should weigh almost 40 at 6 years of age. The height increases about 12 inches from the age of 1 to the age of 6, or about three inches a year.

The child of 6 will seem to have a head large in proportion to its body because at the age of 6 the skull is almost as large around as that of a grown person.

But even so, are we not super-imposing a law? Are we not trying to make them go our way, speak as we speak, and giving them standards so much inferior to their own "instinctive" ones as to crush a lovely something we can never understand ourselves? We try to teach them our ideas of appreciation when they see a beauty unknown to us. Sir Beach Thomas tells of one case where a certain small child had had "gravity" explained to him, and insisted upon calling it "kind gravity" much to the amusement of every one around. And of another little fellow who ate his own and his sister's chocolate, and peevishly bewailed his own sin; cried honest tears because "poor Pamela wouldn't have any." Pity for another looming larger than his own (and always selfish) worry over his own behavior.

A natural child in a natural setting, honored, not patronized, free of soul and speech, is the loveliest thing on earth. Why should we laugh?

He isn't born to artificiality and it is to our own man-made environment we try to fit him before he is ready for it. We talk about "conditioning" them before they are six, and it seems to be the right thing to do as we see it now. We are turned from mere ruthless parents to intelligent workers and much has been accomplished. But shall we have to stop here. We cannot go slandering into the mystic land of instinct, because we have to exercise our eyesight and ear keenness of our own strange forgotten baby days.

They say that memory is largely a matter of "instinct" as well as other mental faculties. Is it the case then that some children are "brighter" than others because of less interference with that instinct?

I believe we have yet very much to learn about understanding children.

THIS AND THAT IN FEMININE LORE

Rockville — Garden City
Our neighboring city of Rockville is rapidly becoming garden-minded, and no wonder, with a garden club which in less than a year has enrolled more than 100 members, and a president who not only has broadened her mind about gardens, floral and vegetable, over the radio, but has addressed service clubs, such as the Lions and others on the value of gardens as an investment in pleasure and a source of food. James W. Galaviti of Tolland is the head of the Rockville Community Garden Club. He was formerly vice president of the Manchester Garden Club and continues to take an active interest in its affairs. He has an extensive garden and naturally beautiful grounds with a lake and a pool, on the road to Crystal Lake.

Public Garden Spots
The late Mr. Gregory, when park superintendent in Rockville planned crocus bulbs of different colors, which in the early spring beautified the greens in the center of the city. Now there is an iris garden along Middle Park street. The irises are in blossom, yellow, orchid, purple and blue, planted by a former superintendent of public works, Martin Pierson. The present superintendent in Rockville is also greatly interested in iris. I am inclined to think after visiting Rockville and the spring show of its Community Garden club, they should adopt that flower for the city.

Ideal Rock Garden Sites
Rockville as everybody who visits there knows, is very hilly. It furnishes innumerable situations for rockgardens and many have taken advantage of the steep slopes for this purpose. There are some gardens in blossom, yellow, orchid, purple and blue, planted by a former superintendent of public works, Martin Pierson. The present superintendent in Rockville is also greatly interested in iris. I am inclined to think after visiting Rockville and the spring show of its Community Garden club, they should adopt that flower for the city.

Private Gardens
Rockville has many beautiful private gardens. Our local Garden Club made a tour of the formal gardens on Union street of Miss J. Alice and William Maxwell, and Colonel Frank Maxwell's gardens at Maxwell Court on North Park street. Other excellent gardens suggested to us were those of Fred Belding at Talcott and Davis avenue, David Sykes, Mrs. Thomas Sykes on Ellington avenue, the Charles Phelps place, F. E. Stanger at Elm street, Mrs. N. Kenney, West street; Edward Backhaus, Quarry street.

The Rockville Flower Show
The exhibit was arranged in the spacious store at 3 and 5 Market street in the heart of the business center. What impressed us most was the hundreds of entries by children and others. Iris of course predominated as it was at its height last week. There were dozens of dozens of named varieties, and iris in conjunction with other flowers in the arrangement classes. A most interesting rock garden was arranged along one side of the store, built up from a counter to the ceiling with steps and a tiny pool. The store was crowded with spectators who came to see the floral exhibits for which evergreens formed the perfect background.

Manchester Garden Club's Flower Show
This show you remember opens at the banquet hall of the Masonic Temple, Tuesday at 3 p. m., continuing to 10 and open Friday from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. You can enter an exhibit without charge if you will do so this afternoon or tomorrow evening between 5 and 7. Call Mrs. W. W. Ellis at 210 Elm street for particulars. Whether you exhibit or not, plan to attend the show and bring your children and friends. There are several school gar'ns in town and the children will enjoy seeing the flowers and how they are arranged.

list, too. It is a behind-the-scenes study of Germany's war-time politics, and contains some amazing revelations about the causes of the World War.

Last of all permit me to include "Ten Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," by William Albert Robinson. There's nothing in the least important about the record of a young man's trip around the world in a sailboat, but if you like true adventure stuff you won't find it offered any more attractively than it is here.

And there's the list. The "five best books" of the month? Oh, probably not. But they're the ones I enjoyed the most, anyway.

EMPIRE AIR HOOKUP
Ottawa—A huge radio hookup, taking in all of the British Empire's possessions, would do much toward cementing the different dominions together, according to a suggestion of Senator A. D. McCrete to the parliamentary committee investigating Canada's radio problems. He suggests a 30-minute program each day from England, containing news of the homeland, entertainment and other features, would weld the empire into a strong unit.

Don't suffer another minute from blind, itching, protruding or bleeding piles without testing the newest and fastest acting treatment out. Dr. Nixon's Chinarrid, fortified with rare imported Chinese Herb, with amazing power to reduce swollen tissues, brings ease and comfort in a few minutes, enabling you to work and enjoy life while it continues its soothing, healing action. Don't delay. Act in time to avoid a dangerous and costly operation. Try Dr. Nixon's Chinarrid under our guarantee to satisfy completely and be worth 100 times the small cost or your money back. J. H. Quinn & Co., South Manchester—Advt.

Next, it seems to me, is "Banana Gold" by Carleton Beals. This record of a roving trip through Central America presents a colorful picture of life in tropical lands and contains an intelligent discussion of American imperialism there. It is, as they used to say, both entertaining and instructive.

Then there's "State Fair," by Phil Strong; an unassuming and ingratiating novel of Iowa farm life, which breaks all records by treating that subject with a robust optimism.

The third volume of Prince Von Bulow's "Memoirs" belongs in the

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

—Oil Your Scalp to Withstand Sun—
Don't make the mistake of oiling your face, neck, arms and letting your poor old scalp go dry.

Scalps have a hard time in summer trying to retain enough of their natural oil to keep the hair healthy. The sun burns out the oil. You must put more in, if you want a glowing scalp.

It actually doesn't make much difference what kind of oil you use on your scalp, just so it is pure oil—coconut oil, olive oil, castor oil. In fact, some good, old-fashioned home-women insist there is nothing on earth makes baby's hair grow quite so luxuriantly as castor oil does.

However, most of us would prefer doing with less hair. I

Four State Golfers Qualify For the National Open

Klein, Hurst, Whitney Philly's Great Trio

Lead Team's Assault On Three Brooklyn Hurlers To Score 15 To 7 Victory; Wilson Whacks Two Homers.

(By Associated Press)
Should the Phillies get even passable pitching during the next two weeks, they are likely to make trouble for their guests from the western end of the National League. The club still is without a competent pitching staff, employing anywhere from two to five pitchers in any given encounter, but it has probably the most effective "wrecking crew" in the National League.
Only the Athletics of the same city, with Jimmy Fox and Al Simmons doing the damage can boast a more destructive pair than Chuck Klein and Don Hurst.
In their last fifteen games of which they have won eight, the Phils have batted an average of 11 hits and scored better than seven runs to the contest.
Against Brooklyn yesterday, the only game played in either major league, the Klein-Hurst-Whitney combination worked overtime, contributing ten of the team's 11 hits and three Dodger hurlers and otherwise playing a large part in the 15 to 7 victory.
Whitney pushed across four runs with a double and two singles, Hurst hit four singles in as many official trips and scored four times and Klein hit his 14th homer of the year and a brace of singles.
Haak Wilson led the futile Brooklyn rally in the late innings with his ninth and tenth home runs. Lefty O'Doul and Glenn Wright also hit for the circuit. Four of the four other clubs spent the day either in travel or in harmless exhibition. The Athletics enroute west, stopped off at Cincinnati to give the fans of that city a look at Lefty Grove and George Barnshaw and to trim the Reds 5 to 1.

Larrups Lacoste

Even in tennis, the best laid plans of "comebacking" heroes fall apart. And in the case of Tennis Lacoste, former heroic figure in French Davis Cup play, the blast of dynamite that wrecked his hopes was a youthful Britisher, Harold G. N. Lee, shown above. Appearing in the French hard court singles play, young Lee, England's third ranking player, took three of four sets from the French veteran.

ALAN GOULD

This may have been what inspired "Mr. Hollowell" of Harvard to do such excellent things on the cinder path this year. At any rate, our Finnish correspondent writes:
"Mr. Hollowell the mile master of the American universities who has run the stretch in 4:12, came last summer on a tourist trip to Finland. He also attended the Finnish championship matches in Helsinki.
"When Mr. Hollowell was asked what he thought of the matches, he answered unhesitatingly that the 5000 metres run would leave him an unforgettable memory. In this event not less than 18 tough Finnish runners took part, and all of them ran hard. But far harder than any of the others three men ran; Lehtinen, Virtanen and Iso-Hollo. Lehtinen's time for the run was 14:36, Iso-Hollo's 14:59 and Virtanen's 14:40. After the run all three were in perfect condition and ready for another match if necessary. Their splendid physical condition in particular astounded Mr. Hollowell."
Lehtinen, Iso-Hollo and Virtanen are also the men of whom Finland expects much in the 5000 and 10,000 metres events at Los Angeles. They are Nurmila's successors, and they are even better than him this year. They are still young.

LUCKY STRIKES NOSE OUT OLD GOLDS 8 TO 7

Led by pitcher McCurry, who allowed but two hits and struck out thirteen, the Lucky Strikes came out of a slump last night and defeated the Old Golds by the score of 8-7. The game was very close and went to eight innings before it was finally won by the Lucky Strikes. Both teams fielded well.
Arton Judd, playing for the Lucky Strikes, smashed out a homer in the third inning with no one on base. The ball was hit in deep center, where it rolled into a clump of bushes. The centerfielder had a hard time finding it and when he did find it Judd was already home. Leone also starred for the winners.
For the losing team Lashnake and Cumbers played the best game.

WINS IN A WALK

Wins in a Walk

A Matter of Strategy
Syracuse's defeat of Cornell at Cambridge recalls the sad circumstance (for Cornellians) by which the Big Red boobyloop contributed to its own downfall last year.
Beforehand Cornell figured Syracuse was the crew to beat, all the way. Consequently the Ithacans' coxswain, Jimmy Burke, concentrated on watching the Orange. For three miles they stayed close together, then Cornell drew away. Burke then looked around to see Washington and still farther in front, the Navy.
"They'll come back," the Cornell coxswain mumbled, figured. Washington did not Navy didn't. The middies had the stur to withstand Cornell's fast closing spurt. In another quarter-mile Cornell probably would have pulled ahead but no arrangements were made for any such extra gram of grace to the runners-up.

Bridgeport, June 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Thomas Hucknell of the Woodway Country Club, defending champion, was paired against Miss Doris Bryant, Brookline star, in the opening of matches play today in the 15th annual Connecticut Women's Golf Association tournament at the Brooklawn Country Club.
Mrs. Hucknell proved herself a strong threat to retain her title when she shot an 87 in yesterday's qualifying round to tie for low medal score, with Mrs. Edward Stevens of the Round Hill Country Club. Miss Bryant shot an 89. Mrs. Stevens was paired against Miss Alice Warner.

"RICKY" ANDERSON SHOOTS A PAR 70

Assistant Pro At Country Club Recently Played 72 Holes of Golf One Day.

Einer "Ricky" Anderson, young assistant pro at the Manchester Country Club, shot a par 70 yesterday, the lowest score he has ever registered. He made birdies on the first, eighth and twelfth. Anderson's par trip around the course equals the low score mark of Billy Martin, club pro, who has performed the trick twice.

Monday is Ricky's day off and, like the motorman who spends his idle time riding trolley cars, Einer spends his on the golf course. A week ago yesterday he set something of a record when he made four trips around the course in one day. Anyone who knows anything about golf, knows full well what a strenuous day's work is included in 72 holes of golf.
Ricky did even more. He carried his own bag each time and that's a job in itself. For his day's total he had 318, two less than even eighties. His scores were 77, 81, 77, 83. Yesterday Ricky was playing with Captain C. R. Sargent. Here is Anderson's card:

1,000 POULTRYMEN TO ATTEND SESSION June Institute To Be Held 20th and 21st at Kayrock Inn in East Hampton.

Hartford, June 7. - Programs for the June institute, convention and egg show of the Connecticut Poultry Association and allied interests are now available for Connecticut poultrymen. This meeting will be held on the 20th and 21st of this month at Kayrock Inn of the shore of Lake Connecticut in East Hampton.

The egg-show is open to every one and application blanks together with instructions and score cards are offered in two classes, one of which is white-shelled eggs and the other brown-shelled eggs. In addition to a sweepstakes cup the prizes range from five dollars to one dollar for five placings.

The program will start at 9:30 o'clock with a special meeting of the State Poultry Association. At 10 o'clock Connecticut Game Breeders will start an all-day mass meeting. Directly following luncheon, which may be secured at the Inn, Dr. C. E. Hudson of the New Jersey Experiment Station will talk on "Infectious Bronchitis, Its Cause and Control." At 2:30 o'clock Leon F. Whitney, Executive Secretary of the American Eugenics Society, will discuss in layman's language, "The Principles of Breeding."

"All work and no play makes for poultrymen a dull day," so Prof. Roy E. Jones, Extension Poultry Specialist of the Connecticut Agricultural College, is scheduled to direct a burlesque and to conduct a talk at 3:30 o'clock. The banquet will be held at 6:30 o'clock with President C. A. Ricker as toastmaster. Surrogate Judge L. D. Howell of Mineola, L. I. N. Y., will be the chief speaker at the most vital phase of "The Spirit of the Fancy." Time will be allowed at the banquet for 15 one-minute speeches by 15 prominent persons, after which Dr. E. A. Ferraguss, acting as master of ceremonies, will conclude the day's program at which dancing, music and entertainment will be provided for every one.

On the second day of the meeting, June 21st, poultrymen will hear "Farm Practices That Influence Egg Quality," Sidney A. Edwards, Director of Markets of the State Department of Agriculture, will conclude the egg quality program with a talk on "Maintaining Egg Quality Through the Marketing Process." Special rates for rooms and meals are available at the Inn and nearby cottages and reservations may be made through Paul P. Ives, 40 Whalley Avenue, New Haven. The program for this meeting is so thoroughly in keeping with the effort that Connecticut poultrymen are making to produce eggs of the highest quality and the speakers so eminently qualified to discuss the subjects allotted to them that Commissioner of Agriculture S. McLean Buckingham has expressed the hope that as many poultrymen as possible will take advantage of the opportunities for worth while information and recreation which this meeting offers.

BY DEXTER TEED Nea Service Writer In a plane so small the wings could be folded up and the plane put in a garage, Bert Hinkler flew alone for 12,000 miles. In an air flier, he was tossed around in air currents like a feather in a storm, but that was fun. It didn't prevent him from reaching his destination.

Some laughed, though, early in 1928 when he wheeled out his little craft, unfolded its little wings and warmed up the little 30-horsepower motor. Those who laughed didn't know of Bert Hinkler's plan. They were a minority in the crowd that gathered outside of London to see him off on an attempt to fly solo to Australia.

That sparrow of a plane carried an eagle of the air. He flew on schedule, on 1000 mile hops that took him over Europe and away over the burning sands of the Libyan desert. Then something happened. He made a forced landing and looked around to see a dust cloud coming at him. A party of war-like Arabs cattered to expect - perhaps death. So, not knowing what to do, he smiled as pleasantly as he could. Curious, the Arabs gathered around, Bert made signs. Evidently they concluded he was like them, a true adventurer.

Then they were friendly. He turned up the motor and indicated he wanted to take off. Understanding, those bloodthirsty men went to work for him. They helped him shove away and level the sand to make a runway. Soon he was off, with wild cheers behind. And he breathed a deep sigh of relief. Over India where the heat makes treacherous air currents, the little plane was tossed about like a shuttlecock. It fell and was blown about. Bert piloted nonchalantly. Out of that he came into the rainy season of the East Indies. No main could stop him. He bobbed along on the air, over the sea, and arrived at Port Darwin, Australia, in 15 1-2 days. Like Capt. Ross Smith, he was a native of Australia and the reception he was given was as hearty.

Just to prove that he is pre-eminent in piloting a flier plane he came to America last year, hopped to Kingston, Jamaica, in a little ship, then flew on to South America and crossed the Atlantic to Africa. Further flights likely. He is first and always an aviator. That's his life, and he wouldn't do anything else. A silent man, he hasn't said much about his future plans, but when he was in New York recently it leaked out that he completed making an attempt to break the long distance flight record. With him was Capt. R. N. McIntosh, an aerial croun, and what they may do before the summer is over will probably be surprising.

Wall Street Briefs New York, June 7. - Consolidated Oil preferred has pushed forward steadily during the past few weeks and is now at its high level for the year. The advance has led to gossip in Wall street that the company may be considering its retirement, a matter which, was believed to have been under discussion, when the negotiations looking to the formation Consolidated Oil out of Sinclair Consolidated and Prairie Oil & Gas and Prairie Pipe Line were in progress. The stock is callable at 110 and according to latest reports there are slightly more than 100,000 shares outstanding.

Wall Street hears that recent conversations between the Brooklyn-Manhattan-Transit Corp. and bankers have paved the way for the retirement at maturity on Aug. 1 next of $18,500,000 three year 4 1/2 per cent secured notes of the company. Rumors that the company was having difficulty in arranging for this maturity accompanied recent heavy selling in the company's securities.

Experiment Station is testing 53 new varieties for their adaptability here, and is growing 8,000 seedling crosses in a preliminary breeding study. The most promising new varieties are Bellmar, Fortia, and Aberdeen. Bellmar was developed in Maryland by the Bureau of Plant Industry. It is a seedling of Howard 17, but is more uniform in shape, larger, and more productive. The berries are exceptionally dark red and glossy and will hold up in shipping.

The Station's 8,000 seedling crosses are mostly out of Howard 17 and Chesapeake, with the hope of combining the growth of the first with the fruit characters of the other. The crosses are the progeny of selected inbred plants and some have produced remarkable results. The Connecticut Vegetable Growers Association is co-operating with the station in holding the Field Day.

GAS BUGGIES - A Man of Action

By FRANK BECK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURES) The rocket made a great big rip right through the tent. "It bet this trip is going to lead to trouble," said we Duncy. "Shall we try?" "We all can climb right down from here and get away from what I fear. Or maybe we had better stay and hope for lots of fun." "The latter plan suits me the best," said Scouty. "First of all, we'll rest right up here on the canvas. It's as comfy as can be. I'm going to stretch and rest my head. Just try it. It is like a bed. And then we'll climb down to the ground and see what we can do." "Well, son, I wish you'd been going to work a bit, but now you're going to work a bit. So will the others, too!" In uniform they all were dressed. The man then said, "Why, look! A rocket's broken through. I'm sorry, 'cause the tent was new." And then he looked the tent until the rocket fell right down. "Foot Duncy! He was right near me and all the others heard him cry in the next breath."

SENSE AND NONSENSE

Speaking Of Father

In the business of everyday living there's so many for whom we care that I fear we are often forgetting one deserving an extra large share.

Oh, yes, when we're wanting a favor—
We are certain to know he's about; But most other times I could wager, We neglect him beyond any doubt.

Now father's are oftimes lonely, Though they'd never admit being sad!
So, when sharing your love and affection Give a good share of both to your Dad."

A little fellow of our acquaintance wants to know why vitamins were put in spinach and cod-liver oil instead of in cake and candy.

A Leap Year Proposal: We have just learned that the pealing of New Year's bells had barely ceased when a certain very prominent young man received the following original leap year proposal. While other young ladies were "asleep at the switch" this young lady was wide awake and astir, and we opine that some young fellow is going to fall victim before the end of 1932. As this well known young man was the young lady's first choice, he will have to watch his step. In order to encourage the, as yet, unknown young lady in her efforts, the editor is willing to donate a year's subscription to the Herald as a wedding present should she succeed in her quest. Here's how she went about it: My dear and most respected sir, I send you this your love to stir; I've come to you before the rest, And hope you'll grant me my request. Your hand and heart I ask today, So let me know without delay. But if your hand does not incline In wedlock clasp to join in mine, The please, the Leap Year law obey And send me fifty dollars, pray, And send besides a handsome dress. Now you may think this letter funny, But I must have a man or money; Please let me love you till I die, And send me back a nice reply, If you should think that I'm a dandy. Just send me back a box of candy; If my name you happen to guess, Just shoot it through to my address; But if for me there is no hope, Express me back six yards of rope. With lots of love and lots of kisses, From one who wants to be Your Mrs.

What's The Idea Of Teaching A Boy To Play Golf Before He's Learned How To Make A Living?

A lady ran away from her husband and went to live in a hotel. After several days she went back to him. She said she couldn't stand looking at the sign on the door to the room at the hotel every time she went out it troubled her conscience. The sign was: "Think; have you left anything?"

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Calgary, Alberta.—Two children pulled a childish but dangerous prank in turning in a false alarm to the city fire department. When firemen arrived on the scene a woman identified the children as being responsible. Chief James Stewart was peeved. He took the two children home and had the satisfaction of watching their grandmother give them an old-fashioned spanking.

HEALTH AND WORK

Chicago.—Work is healthful for those between the ages of 17 and 45, but after that age the physical toll shortens the span of life. That is the report of Dr. Albert Bachem, professor of biophysics in the University of Illinois School of Medicine here. By regulating jobs so that the younger men could work and the older men retire on insurance pensions, it would do a lot toward remedying unemployment, the scientist believes.

NOTRE DAME STAR MAY BE SPEAKER

Hope To Have Adam Walsh Address College Captains' Gathering Here.

An outstanding college athlete is expected to be the principal speaker when Manchester's six college captains are honored in a testimonial dinner here Tuesday evening, June 14. Adam Walsh, captain of the famous 1926 Notre Dame football squad when the "Four Horsemen" were making football history, is expected to be the speaker. Walsh, now line coach at Yale, will let the committee know definitely tomorrow or Thursday.

Principal Clarence P. Quimby of the Manchester High school, will be toastmaster. Quimby is Manchester's most able master of ceremonies and aside from that fact is personally acquainted with the captains to be honored. The other principal speakers will be Superintendent Fred A. Yoplack, the inspiration to all Manchester men who have "gone to school" under his guidance. The honored captains will also be called upon for a few words.

Tickets were distributed to committee members last evening at a general meeting of those in charge. Tickets have also been placed on sale at the Chamber of Commerce office, at The Herald, 13 Bissell street, and at Metter's Smoke Shop. The price is very reasonable being but one dollar each. This covers the dinner to be served by the Coffee Shop. The dinner alone will be worth the price of the ticket. All other committees are working on a budget amounting practically to nothing.

The dinner will be open to men and women and it is expected that a large number of women will avail themselves of the opportunity to attend. There will be no particular table parties other than those arranged in the Recreation Center gymnasium the night of the affair. The honored guests will be at a head table, of course.

The program committee plans a period of dining to follow the dinner and speaking program. An orchestra has been secured to furnish music during the dinner and for the dancing. The Recreation Center gymnasium makes an ideal place for this type of affair and in addition to this it is significant that most of those to be honored got their high school athletic training in that gymnasium.

SPEAKING PROGRAM BY GIRL STUDENTS

A public speaking program, consisting of three plays, will be given by the girls of Miss Elizabeth A. Krapowicz's room, in the Recreation building Thursday afternoon at 2:30. First play: "Plans for a Summer Vacation," Julia Aceto, Loretta Champagne. Second play: "The Traveler's Return," Marion Montie, Marjorie Mitchell, Tessa Sapientza, Bernice Marsh, Avis Palmer, Jane Tedford. Third play: "Foreign Lands," Priscilla Pillsbury, Marion Erickson, Fae Scherer, Elnora Duke, Eileen Venard, Lillian Klinghamer. Chairman, Gladys Miller.

VACATION SCHOOL TO BE CONDUCTED

North End Churches Decide To Carry On—Have Nearly Enough Funds For Work.

A vacation school such as has been conducted jointly by the North Methodist and Second Congregational churches during recent years will again be held this summer, opening Tuesday, July 5 and continuing for three weeks as in the past.

There will be three departments, the primary in charge of Miss Gertrude Carrier, the junior, in charge of Miss Frances Conroy, the intermediate, in charge of Miss Harriet L. Clarke, and in addition several teachers for the various forms of handicrafts, games, music and story-telling periods.

Rev. F. C. Allen, pastor of the Second Congregational church, will have general oversight of the work, assisted by Rev. Theron French, assistant pastor of the North Methodist church, who will also have charge of a vacation school at Vernon.

The school has in the past performed a splendid community service, at a very slight expense compared with the benefit offered to the children during their school vacation. It is in no sense a fad, but devotes itself to high character development combined with handcraft work which interests and happily occupies the children during part of the long period they are away from day school.

HOSE CO. NO. 3 HOLDS BANQUET TONIGHT

Venison Dinner To Be Served At 6:30 Previous To Business Meeting

Hose and Ladder Company No. 3, S. M. F. D. holds its annual banquet this evening at its home on Spruce and Florence streets. A venison dinner will be served at 6:30 and this will be followed by the annual election of officers.

The committee in charge of the dinner consists of Peter Happenny, John Reggets and James Schaub. The dinner consists of venison, potatoes, gravies, game, music and story-telling periods.

The committee in charge of the vacation school this year consists of Rev. M. S. Stocking, Mark Holmes, Miss Mae Hanna and Mrs. Arthur Seymour, representing the North Methodist church, and Rev. F. C. Allen, Mrs. Carl Allen, Mrs. Louise Dart and J. C. Owers, representing the Second Congregational church.

Fortunately for the school the committee found it possessed a moderate fund unexpended from last year's contributions combined with receipts from the sale of articles made by the children, at the close of the sessions. An additional amount was obtained for the school work by the musical recently given at the Second Congregational church and although the total amount now available is not considered sufficient to meet the requirements for this year's service, the committee will endeavor to avoid any public requests for contributions.
