

BORAH DENOUNCES G. O. P. DRY PLANK

Senator, Also, in Answer To Question, Says He Will Not Support Hoover On Platform Recently Adopted.

Washington, June 21.—(AP)—There was a furor of political questioning today in the wake of Senator Borah's dramatic announcement that President Hoover will not have his support for re-election if he stands on the Republican convention's platform.

Before a Senate chamber tense in expectation of an extraordinary pronouncement from the Idahoan, this leading dry spokesman denounced yesterday the prohibition re-submission plank, rejecting the entire Republican platform as inadequate and unresponsive to the demands of the people and then asked if he would support the President on that platform, delivered his bombshell: "I will not."

The importance of the utterance lay in that Borah's driving campaign for Hoover in 1928 has been regarded as one of the greatest individual contributions to the President's election.

Yet in the belief of many, the Senator's utterance yesterday bore an unspoken invitation to the President to write his own platform, with a strong personal prohibition stand in the address accepting the nomination which Mr. Hoover is to deliver later in the summer.

No Third Party Borah said he had no intention of going into a third party movement and the idea developed that he would ignore the presidential campaign and limit himself to stumping for dry members of Congress.

The full fury of Borah's attack was turned on the submission plank. But he was no more kind to the remainder of the platform, attacking that long before the election this "singular document" will have been shoved aside in the fact of the realities of the campaign, the persistent questioning of voters.

Borah said it was evident the great majority of the Republican convention was "in a mood to ignore the 18th amendment; that they voted for the adopted plank out of sheer political expediency."

He singled out Postmaster General Brown and Secretary Mills, the two "who had most to do" with drafting the platform, as "openly and uncompromisingly pro-temper."

Both cabinet members denied this immediately. The White House had nothing to say on the whole Borah speech. Borah condemned the re-submission plank.

IS FINED $1,500 FOR LIQUOR SALE

But Ounce and Half Found On Premises—Gets Suspended Jail Sentence, Too.

Hartford, June 21.—(AP)—One and one-half ounces of liquor that Federal prohibition agents found in a speakeasy in Waterbury cost Dennis Reardon, operator of the place, a total of $1,500 in fines, a six months suspended jail sentence, and one year probation in United States District Court today.

This was one of the stiffest sentences given a National prohibition law violator in Federal court for some time. Judge Edwin S. Thomas imposed the maximum penalty in the case against Reardon, a 21-year-old man who had been charged with violation charges to which Reardon had pleaded guilty.

Assistant U. S. District Attorney John A. Danaher who prosecuted the case for the government today stated he was starting pedantic injunction proceedings against the speakeasy, located at 2 Sperry street, Waterbury, and generally known as one of the more notorious speakeasies in the city, according to Mr. Danaher.

Judge Thomas gave Reardon the maximum fine of $1,000 on the nuisance charge, the maximum of $500 on the possession charge, and six months suspended jail sentence and one year probation of the previous offense charge. Judge Thomas also cautioned Reardon against any further offenses.

Reardon took the $1,500 in bills of large denominations out of his pocket, paid his fine and was freed. Mrs. Danaher intimated in his charges that there were "others in the case against whom we have sufficient evidence to warrant prosecution" but who would have to bear the burden of a heavy fine. Mr. Danaher stated that Reardon was not the owner of the place raided.

Sort of Monroe Doctrine Enunciated By Former Japanese Envoy To America At Dinner For Grew.

Washington, June 21.—(AP)—Federal employees were warned by the City Service Commission today to obey its rules not to take an active part in political campaigns or face the possibility of losing their jobs.

The commission, aroused by political activities of groups of Federal employees, called to the attention of all of them long standing rules prohibiting participation in politics and told them each individual would be held responsible for the activities of any organization to which he or she belonged.

Explains the Rule "To make a public attack on a candidate for public office is to take an active part in a political campaign," the commission said in its statement. "Such action is a violation of civil service Rule 1 and may subject the offending employee to separation from the public service. If the attack is made by the joint action of several employees, the commission will consider the matter as a whole."

At the commission it was said that one organization of Federal employees had sent a circular letter to other associations of government workers and the American Federation of Labor urging the members "to work against reelection of Congressmen they believe to be unqualified for their office. This case now is under consideration by the commission.

AL SMITH WORRIES ROOSEVELT FORCES

Few Know What He Is Planning To Do At the Coming Convention.

Chicago, June 21.—(AP)—Two old war lords of the Democratic Party, and ancient enemies—Alfred E. Smith of New York, and William G. McAdoo of California—are about to meet on the 1932 convention scene to combat the threat of a new and common foe, Governor Roosevelt, of New York.

The Rooseveltians are putting every nerve into a last minute drive to nominate the New York governor on the first ballot. They are counting on 80 of New York's 94 votes and about 20 or 25 from Illinois to turn the trick.

The decision from New York is expected tomorrow when John F. Curry, Tammany leader, arrives, but tomorrow also comes in the master of the 1928 campaign, Alfred E. Smith, and of his strategy even the confident Roosevelt forces are wary.

Late today or early in the morning come McAdoo whose battle of more than 100 ballots with Smith in 1924 established him, too, as one to be reckoned with.

He is for Speaker Garner. Meanwhile speculation over abolition of the two thirds rule persists as the Roosevelt clan nears the majority mark in the number of pledged, instructed and claimed delegates.

Homar Cummings of Connecticut, advocate of Roosevelt, last night advocated elimination of the two thirds nomination rule.

James A. Farley, spokesman here for the governor, significantly said he would say nothing about his views on the proposition until later in the week—until he knew where he stood.

Taking Command Coincidentally, the Rooseveltians are taking command of the convention machinery, and Jousset Shouse, chairman of the executive committee and regarded as an ally of Smith, concedes they have the strength if they wish to exercise it. But he is going ahead to contest the Roosevelt choice of Senator Walsh of Montana, as permanent chairman.

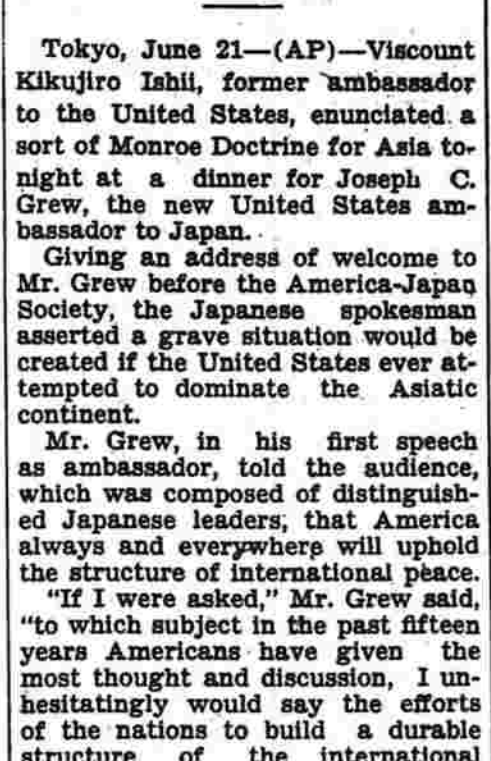

Convention followers fully expect this contest to afford Smith and his power of oratory the first break in the battle against Roosevelt.

The announcement in the Senate yesterday by Borah of Idaho that he would not support President Hoover for re-election stirred Democratic leaders here but little faith was placed in discussion that the powerful oratory of the Idahoan might be turned to Democratic use in 1932.

TREASURY BALANCE Washington, June 21.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for June 18 were $28,886,050.01; expenditures, $18,460,858.27; balance, $10,425,191.74. Customs duties for 18 days of June were $10,987,220.55.

CLAIMS KU KLUX KLAN AIDED GOV. ROOSEVELT

Member of Democratic National Committee Makes Charges—Exhibits Copies of Letters As Proof.

New York, June 21.—(AP)—The New York Times said today that John M. Callahan, member of the Democratic National committee from Wisconsin, has sent to all delegates to the Democratic National convention copies of letters intended to show that the movement for Franklin D. Roosevelt in the south received aid from the Ku Klux Klan.

The letters purport to be correspondence between Roosevelt, his pre-convention campaign manager, James A. Farley, and organizers of the Roosevelt southern clubs. Callahan obtained the letters from these organizers, F. E. Summers and C. W. Jones, of Atlanta, who are now suing the governor for money they say they expended in his behalf.

Callahan, running unopposed as a supporter of Alfred E. Smith in the Wisconsin primaries, was defeated by Roosevelt delegates. In an "open letter" accompanying the copies, he said "with such damaging information in circulation it will be impossible to win the election in November unless another candidate is selected at the convention in Chicago."

Chlorine Gas Escapes From Tank Car On Siding; Dozens Drop.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., June 21.—(AP)—Eighty-five persons were sickened here today when chlorine gas escaping from a tank car on a siding just over the New York City line was blown by a northerly wind over this city and felled 85 men and women.

Nine persons were taken to Mount Vernon hospital where it was said two of them had been seriously affected in the lungs by the fumes.

The victims were workers in industrial plants and warehouses on the southern edge of the city. As the chlorine gas swept over the city men and women staggered out of factory buildings coughing and choking and clutching at their throats.

Gas Hangs Low Because of the heavy atmosphere the gas hung low over houses and its effect seemed to be more noticeable outside than in. Men and women dropped to the ground by dozens.

Hundreds of persons in homes in the neighborhood were reported to have been made ill, who did not report to police.

9 EARTH TREMORS FELT IN MEXICO

Residents in Several Cities Are Sleeping in Open Fields Fearing Disaster.

Mexico City, June 21.—(AP)—Nine light earth shocks were felt here late last night. Reports said the inhabitants of Ixtapalapa, nearby suburb, fled in terror after the shocks.

The Hill of the Star, adjacent to Ixtapalapa, has been said by some astronomers to be a potential volcano, and the residents have feared that some day it may burst into eruption.

A dispatch from Oaxaca City said a fairly sharp earthquake shock was felt there also, causing much alarm among the inhabitants because it was more intense than any of the recent quakes that have destroyed property in Colima.

Few Rejoice Oaxaca residents feared a repetition of the disastrous earthquake of January 14, 1931, the dispatch said. A dispatch from Colima today said further light quakes there yesterday closed down business and sent people scurrying to the parks and open fields, where almost everyone has slept since last week's shocks that badly damaged the city.

The state palace was so badly damaged in the quakes that the seat of government was transferred temporarily to Oaxaca's quarters today. Water, power and street car service still are suspended, and relief expeditions are on the way there.

Claims Early Americans Were Cud Chewing Men

Washington, June 21.—(AP)—Discovery of a strange race of American savemen who "chewed cud" was announced today by a Smithsonian Institution expedition just back from Texas.

The vanished Americans lived in caves of the mountains of southwest Texas and previously were unknown to science. They form another link in the chain of human history in North America, that scientists gradually are forging.

The "cud" these people chewed were leaves of variety of cactus, said Frank M. Setzler, leader of the expedition. They chewed the leaves until all the juice was extracted as modern Americans chew gum.

LIBRIZZI IS SENTENCED TO LIFE IMPRISONMENT

Bridgeport, June 21.—(AP)—Pleading guilty to murder in the second degree, Guy Edmund Librizzi, 34 year old, bald-headed, bespectacled fruit store clerk of Norwalk, was sentenced to life imprisonment at Wethersfield by Judge Frank P. McEvoy in Superior Court today for the murder of Mrs. Jennie Gordon Allen, 38, of Westport, whom he shot eight times with a .38 caliber revolver early in the morning of June 1.

On the plea of State's Attorney Comley that Librizzi had committed the crime in a jealous rage aroused because of Mrs. Allen's attention to another man, that he had been lured by the murdered woman and that no jury would find him guilty of premeditated murder, the first degree murder charge which would have made the death penalty mandatory was withdrawn.

Calmly standing before the court, Librizzi said, "I plead guilty to murder in the second degree, your honor."

Two minutes later the prisoner had been returned to the enclosure in the court room called the "pen," preparatory to be taken by Sheriff Thomas F. Reilly this afternoon to Wethersfield.

EUROPE MUST DISARM OR NO CUT IN DEBTS

America's Envoy Tells France That Otherwise No Appeal For Cancellation Can Be Considered.

Geneva, Switzerland, June 21.—(AP)—Hugh S. Gibson, America's representative at the disarmament conference, told Premier Herriot of France last night the United States will not listen to any appeal for cancellation of debts so long as Europe continues spending vast sums for arms.

The met at Morges, a little town half way between here and Lausanne, and talked until past midnight. It was said that Mr. Gibson had asked the premier to come down from Lausanne after he had talked over the telephone with President Hoover. The impression prevailed that the meeting was initiated by Washington.

Mr. Gibson tried to get M. Herriot and Joseph Paul-Boncour, who accompanied him, to accept the American disarmament plan for making effective arms limitation by accepting a method of qualitative disarmament. He failed to get a favorable response.

Then he called their attention to the meeting at Lausanne where the European delegates are trying to find their own answer to the debts and reparations puzzle before approaching the United States with an appeal for cancellation.

He made it clear that the American government cannot listen to any such appeal while Europe is spending enormous money every year to meet the service on the debts due the United States.

M. Herriot said the French people already have made considerable sacrifices in behalf of world peace and that the present government is not in a position to support the American disarmament project.

Mr. Gibson said he did not oppose the French suggestion for a small global cut in the arms budget but that he does not consider that this would be adequate as the result of the present disarmament conference.

FREDERICK QUILTS RACE Indianapolis, June 21.—(AP)—Paul V. McNutt of Bloomington was left unopposed for the Democratic nomination for governor at the state convention today when John E. Frederick, of Kokomo, announced his withdrawal from the contest shortly before the convention convened.

Frederick said he was withdrawing in the interest of party harmony. McNutt's name will be presented to the convention without opposition. He is dean of the Indiana University Law School at Bloomington.

RED STEEL PLANTS BEHIND PRODUCTION

Moscow, June 21.—(AP)—The president of the Supreme Economic Council, Gregory K. Ordjonikide, today threatened severe discipline for the heads of factories supplying material for automobile trucks unless they deliver their quotas not later than July 5.

This was the way he took to lift the production of the Stalin auto truck plant to a normal figure. Its falling off in production has been attributed to the lack of the necessary materials.

Publicly citing four steel plants for "extremely unsatisfactory accomplishment of work" because of their failure to fill the truck factory orders, the head of heavy industry issued peremptory orders to twenty factories and the rubber trust to get busy.

Personal Responsibilities He told them to disregard all other requisites besides the Stalin plant if necessary to fill its orders. The order invokes "personal responsibility" upon the director of each enterprise, and set specific dates, none later than July 6, as a time limit for them to ship the necessary materials.

M. Ordjonikide threatened severe discipline for the responsible persons if this was not done.

In a formal statement handed to newspapermen, the Speaker said he had voted against the Eighteenth Amendment and added: "I have never believed it sound or workable and it should be repealed."

Discussing the Democratic presidential nomination, he said California and Texas Democrats are sending delegations to the Chicago convention "instructed to vote for my nomination for the presidency."

TUESDAY, JUNE 21.

BORAH

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho cannot destroy the Republican party. It is, however, entirely possible for Senator Borah to destroy himself. His gesture in the Senate yesterday when he repudiated the Chicago platform and the party's candidate was magnificent in the magnificent Borah manner, but it did not and does not make sense. And when the smoke has settled and the reverberations of the blast it may be found that Borah has blown up nothing but his own reputation and his own influence and that the heap of rubbish consists entirely of the ruins of one gifted but purposeless iconoclast from the sheep pastures.

For some reason we never could understand there have been constant references to Mr. Borah, during the last three years or more, as the man who elected Herbert Hoover President of the United States. That is nonsensical. If Borah had kept silent, if he had supported Alfred E. Smith, if he had gone to the Malay Peninsula and stayed there from nomination till election, Herbert Hoover would have been elected in 1928 just the same and, in all probability, by the same electoral college majority. Borah did not elect Hoover four years ago. He cannot defeat him this year. It is very much to be doubted whether he can even keep the four electoral votes of the state of Idaho away from the Republican Presidential candidate.

Because now for the first time Senator Borah's pretensions to leadership within the Republican party will come under a scrutiny to which they have never heretofore been subjected and which they cannot stand. It will be brought out that never in all his career has he taken the lead in a single constructive measure of any importance, that no man in Congress has so diligently avoided responsibility for positive action of any sort, that his resonant voice, his leonine bearing and his athletic but lazy mind have been enlisted always on the side of showy criticism and opposition and never on that of serious service.

Mr. Borah, in short, has occupied for many years a position in the favor of the Republican party and of the people of the country very far beyond his deserts. He has been the spoiled child of the Senate and like many another spoiled child has arrived at the point where, if he cannot be the very head and front of the game, he will grab his toys and go home in a very nasty huff that his departure will break up the party.

This "bolt" of Borah's would be less childish, less pettish and of much more significance if it were predicated on anything in the world but a desire to attract attention and a fit of the sulks endangered by too much political cake and ice cream. If, in short, Borah had or could be induced to formulate a program.

He has none. He has none whatever even with relation to prohibition. He berates the Republican platform for straddling on the question of retention or repeal of the Eighteenth amendment. Yet he straddles it himself. It is not to be gathered from his dynamite speech whether he would have accepted the platform if it had demanded repeal; it is not to be gathered whether he would have rejected it.

In short, despite the fluency and the rhetoric, the tossing mane and the organ-like voice, Mr. Borah's reputation of the Republican platform and the Republican candidate is as barren of sound reasoning as the babbling of any neighborhood oracle who bolts his party because he isn't appointed fence viewer. We may be quite sure Borah will lead no third party. He is too fond of his ease. Besides he would have to tell the people what he proposed to do. And that is not the kind of stock he keeps on his shelves. He leans in criticism and opposition—wares for which there are always customers. But just now he is going to find himself seriously overstocked in face of falling demand. That way lies political bankruptcy.

"GAMBLING"

A very nice ethical question enters into the problem of gambling suppression—whether a person hasn't just as much right to risk his money on the turn of a card, fall of a die or the jump of a roulette ball as on the rise or fall of stocks or the hazard of selling articles of merchandise for enough more than cost to meet overhead and return a profit.

The moralist who is convinced that it is all right to buy a house or a hog "on spec" but is utterly shocked at the thought of a poker game hasn't very much to support his convictions. It is, after all, a pretty arbitrary line that divides gambling in its usually accepted sense from speculation or even from ordinary business. Of all fine spun moral differentiations the condemnation of gambling and the endorsement of speculation is one of the finest. To a good many it seems silly.

When, therefore, the institution of gambling is attacked on high moral grounds and there is a great deal of clucking and sighing over the wickedness of those who engage in it, it is not surprising if the public at large finds it difficult to become excited or to repress a grin. It is, then, unfortunate that society has no more firmly founded principle under which to attack a certain type of cheat and petty thief than to dignify him as a gambler and his activities as gambling. It would do itself a service if it were to set up a line of demarcation between what we might call without undue strain "legitimate" gambling and the wretched thievery engaged in by the human buzzards who set up their tin horn establishments at Savin Rock and wherever else, on the Connecticut shore, they are tolerated. Their lures are not games of chance—they are perfectly sure things. Their victims are not gamblers—they are nitwits, boobies and—very largely—merely children.

There isn't the slightest question about this so-called gambling being a demoralizing influence and a public nuisance. The efforts of the authorities to break up the nests deserve the fullest public support. That they do not always receive it is due, not to any sympathy on the part of decent people with the tin-horns but to the fact that the law makes no distinction between wheel-of-fortune swindlers for children and reasonably honest gambling between men and women who bet their own money on cards or dice.

If we must have general laws against gambling and gambling places, at least let us give the police some other statute under which to operate against the tin-horn pick-pockets. DELEGATES AND VOTERS. An interesting table has been prepared by the Literary Digest presenting a comparison between the results of the last Digest poll and the votes of delegates in the recent Republican national convention on the prohibition plank. Assuming that the Digest poll reflected with reasonable accuracy the sentiment of the populations of the various states on this subject, which is now pretty well accepted save in the most prejudiced quarters, the new table brings out in rather startling terms the weight of the administration influence in favor of the re-submission plank that was adopted and against the more direct declaration embodied in the Bingham plank.

In New England, for instance, the percentage of the Digest poll vote in favor of repeal was 80.57. Yet the delegates voted only 61.3 per cent for the stiffer Bingham plank. New Hampshire, where the Digest vote was 68.7 per cent for repeal, plumped its entire 11 convention votes against the Bingham measure. Yet New England was one of the most independent groups.

The Middle Atlantic States and the East North Central States came a little closer to reflecting the sentiment of the poll, but in the West North Central area, where 65 per cent of the poll voters had registered for repeal, only 19 1-4 delegate votes went to the Bingham plank while no fewer than 122 2-4 went to the compromise re-submission proposal. In the South Atlantic States, where the poll vote was 59 per cent for repeal, just nine delegates supported the "repeal" plank at Chicago whereas 183 accepted the formula of the resolutions committee. And so on.

That the convention did not decide this very important question according to the views of the people whom the delegates represented is only to be denied by rejecting the validity of the Digest poll figures—which figures, it should be recalled, have been fairly well substantiated in several Congressional elections since they were compiled.

GANG TARGET SCORE

Two carloads of gangsters fired twenty shots, at a distance of a few feet, at "Vannie" Higgins, Brooklyn racketeer, and hit him three times. It happened to be enough and "Vannie" has now joined the ranks of the immortals of the Eighteenth amendment—a group whose membership is now destined to reach its limit at no distant day.

But that may have been because "Vannie" made the mistake of running. Judging from the marksmanship record of gangdom as a whole the safest thing to do, when a bunch of its gorillas begin to shoot at you, is to stand forth in the open, remain stock still and let them blaze away. Eventually they will run out of ammunition. When they go after more you can proceed home or to a police station or some other refuge.

"Vannie," however, lacked presence of mind. He ran, and as might have been anticipated he ran into the path of some of the slugs.

IN NEW YORK

Among the Neighbors. New York, June 21.—In and about those myriad resorts of the "Flirty Fifties"—where you ring-the-bell-and-ask-for-Tony—considerable personal credit is being taken for the sensational switch of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to the ranks of the prohibition repealers.

Whatever the merits of their boasts, certain it is that they brought the New York speakeasy situation almost to Mr. Rockefeller's front door. For several years he could number among his fairly-close neighbors a collection of the better-thirst party. They were just up the street from the door; around the corner and beyond the back yard.

And when John D. Jr. purchased the property for the Rockefeller (Radio City) Center, considerable sections of New York chuckled over the fact that—for the moment at least—a Rockefeller was in possession of one of the city's thickest speakeasy areas.

To be sure, the buildings were soon torn down—by 49th and 50th had fairly swarmed with whisper-tongues. While from the official town residence of Rockefeller, Jr., at 10 West 54th Street, a good pair of binoculars might have revealed riders at work and play and bibulous boys and girls going their various gay ways.

Fifty-second to Fifty-eighth and Park Avenue to Sixth Avenue has long been a veritable checker-board of popular drinkeries. On various occasions rumors spread that Mr. Rockefeller had led a movement to do something about it. And didn't get very far!

All of which may or may not have been true. But not many blocks from the former Rockefeller mansion, a bit of back-slapping might have been observed accompanied by such comments as: "Well, I guess we done it, all right."

Such is the discipline of Mr. Rockefeller's town life, however, that the events in his own neighborhood may have reached him only through the newspapers or reports of intimates. For, during those periods when he dwells in 54th Street, he is up at 7:30 and at breakfast within an hour. He is being driven to the Standard Oil building by 9 o'clock and is usually at his desk within a half hour.

His lunch time is 12 to 1. Two to five are his heaviest working hours in his office. When he departs, all personal memoranda and reports requiring quiet concentration go home with him. His office hours at home are unlimited. In winter he takes many such commutes to the Rockefeller country estate. Seal Harbor, Me., is another retreat.

The 54th Street home is a five story affair, requiring some 25 servants to operate. Slightly less pretentious mansions, in 64th or 58th Street and thereabouts, require about 25 waiters and bartenders to wait on the customers.

An Actor's Memorial. A note from Leo Carillo, the actor, saying he will soon build a theater in Los Angeles on the spot where his mother and father were born... An interesting memorial, if you asked me!

BEHIND THE SCENES OF THE G.O.P. CONVENTION with RODNEY DUTCHER

Supine Progressives Make No Effort To Battle Rule of Rogers

Chicago—The old spirit of progressive revolt which has waxed and waned in presidential years since the early elections, was never more conspicuously lacking than at the Republican national convention. There were no progressives in sight and there were no progressive efforts, except that the National League of Voters and a couple of small Chicago groups urged the platform committee to make some constructive suggestions about unemployment.

The Republican progressives of the Senate—Borah, Norris, LaFollette and the rest—were absent preferring to remain in Congress where they are powerful influences. Borah would not have come even if Congress had recessed. For the first time in many conventions the LaFollette progressive platform was not read defiantly to a Republican convention.

The LaFollette forces had been defeated in the Wisconsin primaries, failing to obtain a majority of delegates. That was why dynamic young Bob LaFollette could not go before the convention, as he did in 1928, to speak for the millions of progressives who now stand for unemployment relief, heavy taxation of wealth, government operation of Muscle Shoals, reduced tariffs and various other measures.

Bob was elected a delegate, but he didn't even come, preferring to fight more effectively in the Senate. The nine Wisconsin progressive delegates, returning to Chicago during the Hoover demoralization, were thereupon branded by the conservative majority in the delegation as "communists" and "traitors." A movement was started to unseat them.

Farm revolt, often associated with the progressive movement was completely obliterated at Kansas City in 1928 there was a real farm state candidate, Frank O. Lowmyer, and hundreds of farmers paraded about the convention hall demanding the defeat of Hoover. This year leaders of the farm organization came before the platform committee, politely urged a program which should be ignored—and that was all.

No "Third Party" Threat. There was no threat of a third party such as that of the elder LaFollette in 1924. There was no progressive candidate of any description, such as Hiram Johnson in 1920. There was no hint of the Roosevelt progressivism or any other brand of progressivism. Simply a complete acquiescence to conservatism as preached and exemplified by Herbert Hoover.

Many persons find it very hard to understand—that the Republican party, which has a large independent progressive element in its rank and file as well as among its members, should display such a complete lack of the slightest rift on social and economic principles at its national party convention in a period of unprecedented depression such as ordinarily breeds discontent and dissatisfaction with the powers that be.

Leaders Looking? Various explanations are given, most of them one that in these times of stress our people have gone fearful and conservative, as they did in England when the British elected Ramsay MacDonald and his conservative government. It is certainly true that the progressives, although some of their leaders continue to do consistently good progressive work in Congress, have been supine or resigned in the face of the prospective renomination of Hoover.

HEALTH-DIET ADVICE

BY DR. FRANK MCCOY

Questions in regard to Health and Diet will be Answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this Paper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed Envelope for Reply.

LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA. I have rarely seen a patient with locomotor ataxia who had not been for years doomed with suppressive remedies, and it seems necessary to eliminate the medicinal poison before the body is completely able to throw off the toxins responsible for the development of this disease. This is because the disease has existed for such a long time. Anyone who is interested in this disease should carefully study yesterday's article as well as today's because today I am going to combine myself to the treatment which I have found most valuable for this disease. I usually start the treatment with a prolonged fast, using nothing but orange juice or grapefruit juice and water for several weeks. The expense is quite heavy, but is very important in directing these physical movements, almost as important in fact as the perseverance of the patient. Physicians who employ the Frenkel treatment will be found in most of the large cities. The improvement is slow and it often takes two or three years to get the maximum results. Some physicians who use this treatment will not accept a patient for less than a year's course of instructions. The patient with limited means can, however, often take a short course and then continue with the instructions at home with occasional examination and guidance by the physician in charge.

FEVER AS REMEDY. Some form of fever should be induced as the fever seems to burn up the toxins of this disease and kill the infective agent. There are several methods for bringing on an artificial fever: very hot baths may be used at intervals of one or two days apart; continuous hot showers for several hours at a time, especially over the back but also over the abdomen may be used. The fever may also be artificially induced by the use of some newer methods of electrical treatments. After several weeks of the citrus fruit juice fast or where the patient is weak, after repeating a living on the proper diet, a milk diet should be employed and continued for several weeks or even months. It is also advisable to employ massage and exercise of the entire body. The use of sinusoidal electrical treatments is helpful in many cases, applying one pole to the affected muscles and the other pole at various points over the spinal column. During the entire process of dieting it is advisable to drink large quantities of distilled water.

After the disease has been arrested, remarkable results for overcoming the paralyzed condition may be achieved by re-educating the nervous system by teaching the patient physical control of his voluntary movements. THE FRENKEL TREATMENT. This system is known as the Frenkel Movement Cure and every doctor who treats locomotor ataxia should be familiar with it. The patient is first taught by persistent and repeated efforts to use his lower limbs by performing simple movements which finally become more complicated until the patient is able to walk without perceptible difficulty other than keeping the toes in plain view of his eyes. A considerable amount of apparatus may be plain used, such as hanging rings, parallel bars, etc. Various designs may be painted on the floor or on special oilcloth or linoleum. By tracing these designs with his toes the patient learns to control his leg movements. The skill of the teacher is very important in directing these physical movements, almost as important in fact as the perseverance of the patient. Physicians who employ the Frenkel treatment will be found in most of the large cities. The improvement is slow and it often takes two or three years to get the maximum results. Some physicians who use this treatment will not accept a patient for less than a year's course of instructions. The patient with limited means can, however, often take a short course and then continue with the instructions at home with occasional examination and guidance by the physician in charge.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. (Snoring) Question: Mr. Frank R. writes: "I am 35 years of age and have never snored before, but I have been snoring regularly with me the last year or so. I shall appreciate it very much if you will advise me in regard to your treatment of snoring and dieting." Answer: Snoring is usually caused by inability to breathe freely through the nose while you are sleeping. This is because of an inflamed condition of the membrane inside of the nose which is engorged with catarrhal mucus. As soon as you get rid of your catarrh through living on the proper diet, your family will be delighted to notice that you are no longer snoring. (Remedies Valueless in Psoriasis) Question: M. L. writes: "I have had a skin eruption called psoriasis for about ten years. Sometimes spots appear on my face but they are mostly on my arms and legs. A physician told me that there was no cure for it and no use trying different remedies. Do you think this is true?" Answer: I have never observed that remedies were of much value for psoriasis, which seems to be a disease of constitutional origin. However, I believe that every case of psoriasis can be cured through dieting. Remedies applied to the skin seem to give only temporary relief although they may succeed in clearing the skin by driving the toxins responsible for the trouble internally. Send me your full name and address on a stamped envelope and I will be pleased to send you some dieting instructions on the subject of psoriasis.

POLICE TELETYPE IN 650 STATIONS

Extensions Place This State In Touch With Law of Four Other States.

Extensions of police teletype networks recently in nearby states have placed Connecticut police in instant touch with more than 650 city, town and state police stations in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Through Connecticut's state and municipal police network was the first most comprehensive system on the Atlantic seaboard. The system was slow to follow with similar systems. Intercommunicating links between Connecticut and other states, however, were not established until recently when the Massachusetts and New York systems were extended to link each other through Albany, New York.

By means of the Hartford-Springfield-Holden-Boston circuit, Connecticut police may reach about 75 stations in the Massachusetts systems. From a switchboard in the state police headquarters at the State House, Boston, five circuits lead to various sections of Massachusetts and are available for relaying Connecticut messages.

Senators who have not returned from the 18th Amendment, he contended, was that each state would be free to vote itself out from under the 18th Amendment if it saw fit, a proposition he characterized as "legalized secession."

"I say today" he went on "that a quorum can not be put upon this question by adopting resolutions in a political convention."

He was challenged repeatedly by administration Senators on his interpretation of the Chicago plank. Finally Senator Lewis, (Dem., Ill.), President Hoover's ally in the last election, swinging dry states to him, the affirmation that the candidate stood against nullification of the 18th Amendment.

"I ask my able friend will he now support Mr. Hoover as the advocate of the 18th Amendment, or does he support him as the nullifier of the Constitution?"

"I understand" queried Borah "the Senator asked whether I would support the President on this plank?"

"I will not."

Sec. Mills' Reply

The replies of the two Cabinet members to Borah agreed in repudiating the views attributed to them. Mills said that while not an advocate of the 18th Amendment, "On the contrary" the secretary said "I have become more and more convinced that the true remedy is to be found in modifying the 18th Amendment so as to prevent a re-iteration of the conditions which existed prior to the 18th Amendment and at the same time stamp out any undeniable evils that exist today."

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

CHERRY DIXON, pretty 19-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, falls in love with DAN PHILLIPS, newspaper reporter. She shares with her father about Dan, leaves home and, taking advantage of Leap Year, asks Dan to marry her.

They are married and for the first time Cherry finds out what it means to lack money. Her struggles with housework are discouraging. DIXIE SHANNON, movie critic of the News, is friendly with Cherry. She meets handsome MAX PEARSON, who also works on the News.

Cherry receives a letter from her mother enclosing a check for $500. She returns the check because pride will not let her keep it. A young woman living in the same apartment building attempts suicide and is taken to a hospital. Cherry sends the girl some flowers and while down town meets Pearson who invites her to luncheon.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIV

Max Pearson studied the menu. "Like scallops?" he asked. "All the sea food is very good here."

How handsome he looked today. Cherry, meeting Pearson's eyes, glanced down again quickly at the card before her.

"I'll have the shrimp party," she said, "and watercress salad. Coffee later."

They were in a restaurant new to Cherry. It was an attractive place, obviously more expensive than the establishments she and Dan had patronized. Cherry looked about and noticed there were more men than women diners. All of them were fashionably, prosperously dressed. The restaurant had a subdued, quiet air that was a relief from the street.

Pearson seemed thoroughly at home. He was waiting for the order girl to come. He took the order with an air of acquaintance of long standing.

"Now then," Max said when the question of food had been settled, "tell me what you've been doing?"

"Just the usual things. Trying to remember to salt the potatoes and how to open a can without cutting myself. I'm still one of the world's worst cooks!"

"You are—" Pearson began and then checked himself. He did not finish the sentence, but said, "Where's that waiter? I want him to bring some coffee."

He began talking of the office and Cherry was interested. The sense of wariness—the feeling that she must be on her guard with Pearson—left her. There was no use telling herself that she should not have herself there. Cherry knew very well that she was enjoying this luncheon. It was pleasant to sit across the table from such an attractive, entertaining young man and it was certainly a treat to eat food that she had not herself prepared. Yes, she was enjoying the luncheon.

She told Max about the kitten and he seemed amused at her description. Somehow Dan's name entered the conversation. Cherry had a sudden inspiration. She leaned forward.

"There's something I'd like to ask you," she said. "I've wanted to tell someone about it for a long time. I believe you're the person."

"Fire away!"

Pearson was holding a lighted match to the tip of his cigarette. His eyes, intent on the flame, did not waver.

"It's about Dan," the girl went on earnestly. "I want to know if you think he can write. I don't mean just things for newspapers. I mean do you think he might be able to write short stories or a novel? Dan says there isn't any future for him in reporting. He wants to write for magazines—maybe books. Do you think he can do it? I don't mean right away but some time. Do you think he can do it if he works hard?"

The cigaret was glowing now. Pearson exhaled a cloud of smoke before he answered.

"That's a difficult question," he told her. "Hard to say. Practically every newspaper man in the country—woman too—says that he or she can turn out the great American novel. All they need is a little time. A chance to get away from the grind and write. They keep talking about it for years but somehow few of them ever get anything done. Oh, I'm not saying anything about Dan, understand? I'm talking about the great majority. You say writing is hard work. I know because I've sold a few things myself."

He mentioned a couple of essays that had appeared in a magazine of high literary standing. "They'd take more," he went on, "but I just can't seem to get to work. Lazy, I guess."

Comely Daughter of Governor White Would Be His "First Lady"

MARY LOUISE WHITE

By HELEN WELSHIMER

Mary Louise White, daughter of Governor George White of Ohio, is 26 years old. Official first lady of Ohio.

Was graduated from Smith College in 1928. Took over household and social duties for her father at her mother's death in 1929.

Slim, blue-eyed, has long brown hair, uncut, loosely waved. "Likes to entertain," is sociable but has no social ambitions. As fond of older people as of younger. Democratic, self-assured, sincere. Unassuming. Thinks life is fun. Likes expensive clothes. Usually wears semi-sports apparel.

When they were alone again. "I've just had an idea. Didn't Dan say the other evening that you like to drive a car?"

Cherry smiled. "I love it!" "Then here's my idea. That bus telling herself that she should not have herself there. Cherry knew very well that she was enjoying this luncheon. It was pleasant to sit across the table from such an attractive, entertaining young man and it was certainly a treat to eat food that she had not herself prepared. Yes, she was enjoying the luncheon."

"Oh, but I couldn't—" "Couldn't what? You could certainly drive it, and there isn't a reason in the world why you shouldn't. Dan's one of my best friends, as you know. I'm sure he'd like to have you get out more."

"It's awfully kind of you," Cherry said, "but I really can't."

"Obviously he was hurt. 'It isn't that, I mean—well, I don't think I should.' 'Oh, so you're the sort of girl who thinks appearances are more important than anything else? Well, what's wrong about you driving my car?'"

"What indeed?" Somehow Cherry couldn't answer the argument. Pearson had just given her a delicious lunch. She could not offend him.

"I'll do it," she agreed. "It's—certainly very kind of you."

He told her the name of the garage and where it was located. "One of the boys will drive the car out for you," he assured her. "They're darned obliging. That's the reason I keep it there. How about using it this afternoon?"

"She told him she could not. She had left the apartment in a hurry and there were a dozen things to be done. Suddenly she thought of the kitten.

"Poor little Pinky," she exclaimed. "He'll be starved. Oh, I'll have to go right away!"

"Time for me to be getting back, too," he agreed.

They walked down the street a block together. Cherry thanked him for the luncheon and said goodbye. She was smiling as she boarded the street car.

"I was wrong about Max Pearson," she told herself. "He only wants to be friendly and helpful. Oh, it's going to be wonderful to have a car to drive again!"

ed. I won't let anyone interrupt. You can begin tonight."

Phillips protested with a groan. "Hey, wait a minute—wait a minute! I don't want to sit down before a typewriter tonight. I'm tired! Even if I did I couldn't write anything worth while. Honestly, Cherry, I can't do it tonight! I tell you I'm all in."

"But, Dan, if you're ever going to write there has to be a beginning."

"Say—I didn't know you were such a slave driver! What kind of a frameup is this, anyhow?"

Cherry was disappointed. "It's only that I wanted to help," she told him.

"Then you'll have to do your helping some other time!"

He went out a little later saying he had "promised to call one of the boys." It was 10 o'clock before he returned. The next evening Dixie dropped in and they played three-handed bridge. The night following Dan had an evening assignment.

It began to look to Cherry as though her husband's literary career was a long way distant. Then there came a Sunday—the second in June—when the drizzling rain that had begun in the morning settled to a continuous downpour. Dan was home for the day. He had changed his working hours and now spent Sundays with Cherry. Clad in an old bathrobe he sat at the typewriter and began to bang the keys.

For almost three hours he worked steadily. Then, with a loud exclamation, he slumped back in his chair.

"What's the use?" Dan demanded. "I can't write anything. This stuff is terrible! It's—oh, it's a mess!"

Cherry crossed the room. "Can I read it?" she asked.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton BY NEA SERVICE INC.

DOCTOR IS THE CHILD'S FRIEND

There should be someone behind every mother to help her to keep her children healthy and well-preferably a doctor.

The mother of a baby under a year old will need advice frequently, and the baby itself should be gone over, weighed and inspected, about every four weeks. Food is a question not to be guessed at. A very fat healthy-looking baby may have rickets (or bone starvation) from lack of certain things in his diet.

All food changes should be made intelligently and without guessing. Milk formulas need changing frequently to time and this cannot be done by blanket rule. No two babies are precisely alike.

After a child is a year old it is well to have a doctor see him regularly every three months. These inspections may be continued after the second year if the doctor advises, at the regular three-month intervals. But as he gets older, even when he is in apparent good health, it is always advisable to take him twice a year to be thoroughly gone over.

Teach him that the doctor is his friend. Then there will be no loss of time. A doctor cannot make his tests if his small patient is squirming or screaming.

All For Health's Sake

He will weigh him, and consider his general appearance, color, lips, eyes, posture, his very expression. All these things contain a story for the doctor, although they may be hidden from his parents.

His lungs and heart will be tested, and his abdomen gone over carefully. The child will be undressed and should not become excited or miserable with false modesty.

Ears, eyes, teeth, throat will not escape the keen eyes of this man.

Half our troubles in older years come from conditions that, taken care of in childhood, would have given us a straight bill of health later on.

The very way we stood, for instance, chins in, stomach out, and a deep hollow in our backs, often cramped organs that lay down and died on us later, and made imperative a visit to an operating room. Discovered in childhood it would have meant perhaps only such simple remedies as strengthening exercises, more sun, a change of food, and perhaps, who knows, more happiness in life.

It is well to save all reports of the little illnesses your boy or girl may have had in between inspections, also the story of his appetite, his crying, or his rages. And of course any strain or accident.

Some people disparage the "doctor habit" as they call it. How foolish! Isn't it something to be told your child is perfectly well and needs nothing? Isn't it something to be told how to exercise him and to discover an imperfection or disease in time to build him up? I believe it is.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

FACIAL MASKS ARE REJUVENATING

Every once in a while there is an occasion when you want to be particularly enchanting. It doesn't matter how beguiling your frock may be, how good the orchestra is, or anything else, if you can't face the party with a skin that sparkles, eyes that dance as gaily as your feet are going to, and lips that are a laughing red line.

So often such engagements follow routine tasks that have taken your strength. You just know that they have written themselves all across your face and that your muscles are sagging in the way that your spirits are. When such a time comes you will be surprised at the rejuvenating power of certain facial masks that have been appearing on the market.

Of course you must go around until you find the one best suited to your individual needs. But there is one, just making its debut, that has a habit of rubbing out wrinkles as though they never were there, and making you completely forget to go to the rouge pot.

This special mask is a lovely, cooling paste that is quite simple to apply. Before using it, wash your face thoroughly. Remember always that this is the first step in any beauty treatment. Cleanliness is just as closely related to charm as it is to any other virtue. Now take a hot cloth and let it rest on your face for a few seconds. It opens the pores and makes them ready to receive the charms secrets that are coming.

You may use either a small brush or your middle or index finger to apply the cream. Fingers are more flexible than brushes as a rule. After your face has been thoroughly covered, with the cream lie down and Relax. Forget the world. Don't even let the haunting strains of the orchestra that is going to play come stealing in. Sleep if you can.

In fifteen minutes you may remove the facial coating or mask.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BERRIES GIVE SUMMER MENU ITS JUST DESSERTS

By SISTER MARY

Berries of some variety can usually be found in the market from early spring on through the summer months. Even strawberries and red raspberries whose season used to be so short appear almost until frost now that the ever-bearing varieties are so generally cultivated.

With the northern growers shipping south and the southern growers shipping north, and the western growers shipping east, there's never a lack of small fruits.

The busy housewife who has little time to spend making fuss and fust will find these small fruits a veritable boon for summer menus. Fresh, uncooked berries served with or without sugar and cream always are popular and healthy, and require a minimum of time in preparation.

When there are small children in the family it is well to keep in mind that very seedy berries such as blackberries and raspberries should be rubbed through a strainer to remove the seeds. The seeds are indigestible and may do a child much harm. However, a small amount of sifted pulp may be given to children as young as three years of age.

Berries lend themselves to many types of made desserts, too. There are numerous berry desserts that may appeal to you when you Want a hearty last course to finish up a light meal. Those which are not too rich are suitable, when served with cream, for children over six years of age.

A Light Dessert

Berry whips made of egg whites and sifted pulp are excellent for children and invalids. Such a dessert is light and nourishing and when served very cold is refreshing.

Steamed puddings and baked puddings of cake-like texture are good served warm and are splendid when the rest of the meal is wanted cold.

Berry pies are greeted with pleasure in most homes and seem to be especially popular with the men-folks. A foundation bread-custard pudding may have berries added and the whole baked as usual. Or the fruit can be stewed with sugar and poured over thin slices of bread and butter. This is molded and chilled and served with sugar and cream. These desserts are deliciously simple and are suitable for children.

Blueberries, which have few seeds and less acidity than most other varieties, are particularly good in puddings and pies.

Blueberry molasses puffs are a typical New England dish, economical and good. They are a good dessert for luncheon or a light dinner.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

HE PRAYED TO AL SMITH, SHIP SURVIVED GALE

Tale of Portuguese Skipper One of Many Good Yarns in "I Cover the Waterfront."

The little Portuguese skipper of the fishing boat was terrified by the storm that had come up, so he ran into the ship's chapel to pray to the holy images there. But someone had taken the images out to clean them, the last time the ship was in port, and the poor skipper had nothing left to pray to.

In desperation, he dashed into a stateroom and knelt and prayed frantically to the first picture he saw; and it just happened that this was a big campaign photograph of Al Smith which some politically-minded seaman had tacked to a bulkhead.

Still, it worked. At any rate, the ship rode out the storm.

This is just a sample of the sort of yarn that makes "I Cover the Waterfront," by Max Miller (Dutton, $2.50), one of the most entertaining books of the year.

Mr. Miller is waterfront reporter for the San Diego Sun, and in this book he has written down the things he saw and thought during a tour of duty there. Since he had good eyes with which to see, and a good mind with which to think, his book is well worth reading.

He tells you, among other things, of Lindbergh before he got famous, of the baby seal that came up on a moonlit beach to sleep with him (Miller, not Lindy), one night; of the way he unwittingly helped a run-ner escape the coast guards; of the way sea elephants are caught on a Mexican island—and of a lot of other things that space won't permit me to summarize here.

It's fine stuff, really—tolerant, witty and thoughtful. I believe and hope that we're going to hear more of this writer. He's got something.

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famed Authority

SLAP ON BACK USUALLY RELIEVES CHOKING CHILD

Most Crude Methods of Removing Objects Dangerous.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHER Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Regardless of how careful mothers are, young children always are apt to get things in the throat and choke on them. When this happens, the average mother is overcome so completely by fear that she becomes frantic, yells for help, frightens the child needlessly and is almost helpless to do anything about it.

When a child chokes, there is no time to call a doctor. Here is one case where a mother must act for herself, and promptly.

The most satisfactory method is to hold the child in the air by his feet, head downward, and vigorously slap his back. This method usually will produce the desired results and is the easiest to apply.

In cases where breathing is not blocked entirely and there is no immediate danger, the child should be taken at once to a physician for an examination when the object cannot be removed by the above method.

An important point to remember is that in many instances, there is no evidence of choking, for some hours after the object has been swallowed. Parents must not let this mislead them.

Another thing to remember is that to try to remove any object lodged in your child's throat by crude methods is dangerous and should be resorted to only in extreme cases. Frequently this method will lodge the object more firmly in place and needlessly will endanger the child's life.

Objects in the throat usually may be removed by physicians equipped with bronchoscopes and esophagoscopes, which are slender instruments resembling gun barrels.

They are lighted and when the physician locates the object, he seizes it with forceps in the tubes and removes it without even a great amount of pain to the patient.

Your family physician usually will refer you to the proper man to perform this slight but very necessary operation.

In no case should a child be allowed to go longer than absolutely necessary with an object stuck in its throat, even in cases where it does not interfere with breathing. In less than 2 per cent of the cases will the object be removed harmlessly by natural means.

It goes without saying that young children should not be given objects to play with which may be swallowed and cause choking. Coins, chunky pieces of food, fruit without the pits removed, hard candy, peanuts, popcorn and small parts of toys may cause choking.

The Shamrocks defeated the Pirates in a well-played Y.M.C.A. League baseball game at the north end playgrounds last night by a score of 4 to 0. "Woody" Wallett, a catcher by trade, pitched for the winners and allowed only four scattered singles.

Sammy Thornton pitched effectively for the Pirates but was hit twice in the pinches for runs that turned the tide Shamrockward. The Shamrocks and Cardinals are now tied for first place with three victories and one defeat apiece. Tomorrow night the Cardinals and Bon Ami meet and on Friday the Shamrocks play the Eagles.

The Shamrocks scored their four runs in the first three innings last night. In the first Tom Stowe, making his debut with the Shamrocks, was hit on the elbow, went to third on St. John's single and scored when Sherman fumbled Wallett's drive to second. In the next inning Con Nicholson singled, stole second, and scored on Herb Wright's clean double to center.

The Shamrocks finished their scoring in the third. Stowe opened with a single and went to third on St. John's double from where both runners trotted home when Wallett singled. The Pirates threatened in the fifth when they filled the bases with one out. The peppy Thornton, Sherman opened with a single, his second of the game, Rogers fanned but Wogman singled and Nicholson was safe on an error by Wallett. Cargo hit to McLaughlin who made a pretty play for the Pirates to get Sherman and then Thornton hit Stowe who tagged Cargo for the final out.

DEVENS VS. BROACA FOR HARVARD, YALE

Pitchers' Duel Expected in Opening Game of Annual Baseball Series.

New Haven, Conn., June 21.—(AP)—Albie Booth and Barry Wood, whose personal rivalry has become a tradition in the last three years of Yale and Harvard contests, were in opposing lineups today for one of their last series of games.

Each went in at shortstop as Yale and Harvard prepared to clash in the first game of their annual baseball series. Booth, recovering from a lung ailment which forced him to spend several weeks in a sanatorium last winter, was expected to use a substitute base runner, but take his place in batting and fielding.

The two athletes last faced each other in November as captains of opposing elevens, when Booth's field goal brought the Elis victory. Both teams were to use pitchers with noteworthy records. Johnny Broaca, sophomore, winner of seven out of eight league games who has piled up a high strikeout record was in the box for Yale. Harvard called on Charlie Devens, who has one of the lowest records of hits in the east.

The two teams will clash in Cambridge tomorrow and, if a third game is necessary, on the same field Saturday.

Lermond Threatens McCluskey's Honors

Joe McCluskey's chances of which he was clocked at 9:18. McCluskey's best time was in the Penn Relays when he finished in 9:23.6. Second to Lermond at Cambridge was F. B. Highley, Naval Academy; third, Walter Pritchard, Hamilton College; fourth, Paul Kanaly, Belmont; fifth, David Demokoupled, University of New Hampshire. McCluskey is now on route by train for California where he will defend his two mile intercollegiate title and then concentrate on the steeplechase. Lermond and McCluskey cannot meet before the finals of the steeplechase tryouts. In this event, the first three to finish will represent the United States. The mere fact that McCluskey's record has been badly beaten does not necessarily indicate that Lermond is a better steeplechaser than the Fordham track captain. The Manchester star has been steadily improving and when he competes in the tryouts, the opposition may be sufficient to push him along to a new record. But for the time being, at least, Lermond's feat is coming

PRINCIPALS IN TONIGHT'S FISTIC SCRAP

SCHMELING RATED FAVORITE TO KEEP HIS WORLD'S TITLE

Sharkey Mystery Man Of Modern Ringdom

Boston Gob Has Almost Always Failed At Crucial Points In His Fistic Career, Records Show.

Jack Sharkey, long a challenger for the world's heavyweight championship, has never quite fulfilled the promise of becoming a titleholder. Always he has fallen down at the crucial moment when his ring career seemed destined to be crowned with success. He either fought a slow, uninspired battle, found himself defeated or fouled his opponent. He is the mystery man of modern boxing. Even when he was a sailor in the United States Navy, those who viewed him in the ring saw prospects of a bright future and championship for Sharkey. Sharkey came out of the Navy with an honorable discharge in 1924 and started on a ring career that has brought him more money than any other fighter ever took out of the ring, excepting Jack Dempsey. In thirteen of his bouts—and he has had a total of forty-five—he has drawn $3,510,000 in at the gate. His biggest haul was in his bout against Dempsey, which drew $1,083,000. The smallest purse which he shared among his thirteen big bouts was $42,000 when he fought George Huffman.

Four Knockouts in First Year Sharkey started on his professional career impressively enough with four knockouts, three decisions and two draws in his first year, but also in that campaign was a knockout scored over him by Romero Rojas. The next year he won seven fights, but the record was marred by a defeat by Charley Welner. This brought him into the campaign of 1925, when he reached a position of prominence, mainly through a ten-round decision over George Godfrey and by winning from Harry Wills on a foul. He fought nine times that year and didn't lose a bout. Through those first three years Sharkey waged an active campaign taking part in twenty-nine bouts, but since then he has been far less active, fighting only fifteen times in the last five years, an average of three battles every twelve months. By knocking out Mike McTigue in twelve rounds and Jim Maloney in five, he fought his way to the verge of a championship bout with Gene Tunney in 1927, but flattered at the finish, claiming a foul against Jack Dempsey and being knocked out in the seventh round while making his protest.

The next year he regained some prestige by knocking out Leo Gates and Jack Delaney, but he fought a listless draw with Tom Heeney and lost to Johnny Risko in fifteen rounds. Heeney, instead of Sharkey, got the final shot at Gene Tunney's title. Fights Way Back Through 1929 he fought his way back again, beating K. O. Christner and Young Stribling, though not impressively, and finally knocking out Tommy Loughran in three rounds. When he knocked out Phil Scott in three heats in 1930 he again was in line for a title bout and he got it. He was matched with Max Schmeling, with the understanding that the winner would be accepted as Tunney's successor. Through three rounds Sharkey was winning and then in the fourth he once more undid all his previous work. He fouled Schmeling into the championship. Last year he staged one more comeback, getting only a draw with Mickey Walker, but decisively beating Primo Carnera, and now for the fourth and probably the last time he is in a position to gain the championship in his bout with Schmeling at the Madison Square Garden Hotel tonight.

Sharkey's has been a career of up and downs, against a background of bores. He always has said he was good and when he lost he always has had a ready excuse. Yet critics who have seen him in his good fights always are looking for at least, Lermond's feat is coming interest runs high as rivals prepare to renew ring feud tonight; may be Sharkey's last crack at title; German much improved. By HERBERT W. BARKER A. P. Sports Writer New York, June 21.—(AP)—For glory, honor and comparatively little cash, Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey clash in a 15-round heavyweight bout in Long Island City tonight for the world's championship. William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden which is promoting the match in the new outdoor arena on Long Island, predicts gross receipts of $400,000. Plain Mr. Fight Fan was not particularly interested in the gross receipts beyond deciding how much he would contribute to them. He viewed the match as a duel of two closely matched gladiators and the betting fraternity supported him in that opinion. Odds on German Schmeling a favorite although some betting commissions were quoting 11 to 10 and take your pick. Odds against a knockout by either man were 3 to 1. Both Schmeling and Sharkey came down from their training camps in upper New York state in excellent condition. Sharkey has been the more impressive during the training grind but the experts pointed out Schmeling never has looked any too good in a gym. He needs real competition to look his best. The Teuton has come far since last June night two years ago when Sharkey battered him around for three rounds and then fouled him into the championship in the fourth. He stunned some of the experts with his masterly performance against Young Stribling last year in his first title defense, cutting down the rugged Georgian in the 15th and final round. Jack Is Desperate But if Schmeling is spurred on not so much by a desire to retain his title as to achieve vindication for

RED SOX GOING BACKWARD FAST

Have Won Only 11 Games Out of 58 and May Set New Losing Record.

By Associated Press

In all that has been said and written of records broken and records threatened in the current major league baseball race one of the most interesting of the lot has been overlooked almost completely. The Boston Red Sox stand a fine chance of cracking the all-time American League mark for games lost in a season. With the team well past the one-third post the Sox have won just 11 contests against 47 defeats for a percentage of .180. Back in 1899 a Cleveland club of the old National League won only 20 games while losing 134 over the full season. The Sox might not equal that mark but they should have little difficulty bettering the next lowest record of 36 won and 117 lost set by Philadelphia of the American League in 1916. By way of proving they could lose as gracefully for their new manager, Mark Kohns, as they had for John Collins, the Bostoners dropped their opener to Detroit yesterday 6 to 4. McManus became a full-fledged member of the managers association when he was chased for arguing a decision.

The ranks kept in tact their seven and one-half game lead over the field by beating St. Louis 3 to 1. Lefty Gomez held the Indians to three hits. Jimmy Fox's 27th homer provided the second place Athletics with an 18 to 11 victory over Chicago. Roger Cramer hit six singles, tying the major league record in that respect. Alvin Crowder bested Wes Ferrell in a tight duel as Washington shaded Cleveland 3 to 2. Fuddy Myer's homer in the fifth with Judge on base was the deciding blow.

The National League race tightened around the top as the Boston Braves topped an 11 inning struggle from Cincinnati 3 to 2 while Chicago was dropping a 7 to 5 verdict to the Phillies. The Cubs were only a game and a half in front today. Art Shires, the Braves hustling first baseman was spiked going into second and was carried from the field. Some sterling pitching by Van Kungo, plus a home run by Al Lopez in the fourth frame and a "money" single by Joe Stripp in the seventh enabled Brooklyn to nose out Pittsburgh 2 to 1 The Cards and Giants were not scheduled.

His somewhat inglorious victory in 1930, there is desperation behind Sharkey's challenge. The Boston Fan simply can't afford to lose. He is getting only ten per cent of the receipts, hardly enough to pay for his training expenses, but he wants the title. This may be his last chance. Although the Bowl will seat 71,872 persons not more than 65,000 or 60,000 are expected tonight. The title bout, scheduled for 10 p. m. is to be preceded by one 4-round preliminary and four 5-rounders. Facts in Nutsell Principals—Max Schmeling of Germany, champion and Jack Sharkey of Boston, challenger. Place—Madison Square Arena, Long Island City. Time—10 p. m. (E. D. T.) Distance—15 rounds. Probable weights—Schmeling 190 pounds; Sharkey 202. Referee and judges—To be announced at ringside. Semi-final—Charley Retzlaff vs. Hans Birke 5 rounds. Preliminaries—Jimmy Braddock vs. Vincent Ferillo, Charley Galanger vs. Jack McCarthy, Jerry Pavelec vs. Lou Barba, all 5-rounds; Tommy Walsh vs. Maxie Pink, 4-rounds. Broadcast by N. B. C. National hookup including WJZ and WEAF.

The youthful assistant to Billy Martin is playing the best golf of his career getting extra long drives, hitting consistently accurate irons and putting with a steady touch. Playing with him last night were Harry Benson and Charlie O'Dowd. Anderson was over par on only one hole and made two birdies, one on the third and the other on the sixteenth. OPEN FORUM

SCHOOL'S RESPONSIBILITY

Editor, The Herald: "All of the schools of the town of Manchester are consolidated."

The last section of the act also declares that the "act shall not take effect until it shall have been approved by the voters of the town at a special meeting duly warned and held for that purpose."

Consolidation automatically did away with every school district committee in town save one, the Ninth District Committee, which now will have nothing more to do with schools, but still has its Library and Recreation activities to care for.

Consolidation also abolished all district lines in Manchester except the Eighth and Ninth which districts have special charters giving them power to engage in projects other than schools.

It may therefore be construed that any school business since April 19 has not been done by the Board of Education, is out of order and may be illegal.

It has also been ruled that the various districts shall hold their annual meetings as usual, and operate until consolidation goes into full effect.

Consolidation was pushed over by its proponents last April on about ten days' notice. The act was not had not been explained to the people before it was voted on.

NEW ICE PLANT WORKS STEADILY, STOCK GROWS

Over 400 Tons Piled Up At Wood's Storage Vault—Enough For Week of Hot Weather.

A man must be warm-blooded to work in the new L. T. Wood ice storage room with the temperature hovering at zero or a little above.

For the past few weeks the new plant has been steadily at work, and employees have been tiering up an accumulation of ice each day, above the amount needed for immediate delivery.

L. T. Wood reported this morning that the storage plant has not stopped since it was started a month ago, except for a short interruption, due to power-line trouble.

Notice is hereby given to the legal voters of the SECOND SCHOOL DISTRICT, Town of Manchester, that the Annual Meeting of said district will be held in the Manchester Green School, Monday evening, June 27, 1932, at eight o'clock (D. S. T.) for the following purposes:

DISTRICT 3 RE-ELECTS ALL OF ITS OFFICERS

Annual Meeting Is Brief—Thank Emergency Association For Playground Work.

The annual meeting of the Third District School District was held at the Highland Park school on Porter street last night and the entire slate of officers was re-elected for another term, in a session that lasted about a half hour.

Reports of officers were read and approved, including the treasurer's report, showing a balance on hand of $150. The officers elected were as follows: Committeemen, George H. Wilcox, Dr. Howard Boyd, Arthur N. Fetter, F. W. Pitkin and Mable S. Carpenter; treasurer, William C. Pitkin; tax collector, Albert Todd; auditor, Lucius M. Foster.

COW QUITS EVERYTHING, EVEN HER FIRST CALF

Vaults Pasture Fence and Takes To Woods—Searchers Can't Locate Her Anywhere.

Somewhere in the woods between Manchester Green and Vernon is wandering a cow which farm folks up that way say belongs in a zoo if she is ever found.

The cow, which belongs to Arthur R. Woodbridge, Manchester Green farmer, was out at pasture Sunday evening with its first calf. She was seen to make a sudden dash for the pasture fence, jump it and disappear into the woods.

Meaning the calf has been bawling for its abandoned mother. The oldest inhabitant is being sought to learn whether there is any previous instance on record where a cow deliberately ran off and abandoned her calf—and a first calf at that—for the free, untrammelled life of the wildwood.

POLICE COURT

Two cases of persons operating automobiles which had improper or defective brakes were before Judge Raymond A. Johnson in Manchester police court this morning and convictions were made in each instance. Charles D. Sperry, 21, of 25 Whitmore street, Hartford, pleaded guilty to driving a car with improper brakes. Patrolman David Galigan made the arrest.

Crain G. Heusser, 49, of 734 Parker street, admitted he was aware his brakes were not satisfactory but said he had to do as he found so took a chance. He was caught when Patrolman John L. Cavagnaro noticed the car's headlights were not working properly. When ordered to stop the defective brakes were noticed. A fine of $15 and costs was imposed.

DISTRICT 1-8 PUPILS GIVEN CERTIFICATES

About 450 Win Awards For Studies In Connection With Washington Bi-Centennial.

The State Education Committee on the George Washington Bicentennial Celebration issued a bulletin to school officials of Connecticut Dec. 28, 1921, suggesting various activities for school children that would suitably commemorate Washington's career and would be profitable in themselves.

All the teachers in Districts 1-8 and their pupils entered into the spirit of observance with enthusiasm and about 450 pupils received the State certificates. The State Commission suggested that for work in grades 1-4 the school authorities should print a certificate and a suitable one was prepared by the superintendent in consultation with the teachers.

These certificates are to be presented to the pupils.
