

NO ACCORD REACHED ON RELIEF MEASURE

President Holds Two Hour Conference With House and Senate Leaders But Breach Still Exists.

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—A two-hour conference between President Hoover and Senate and House leaders on the $2,122,000,000 Wagner-Garner relief bill broke up today with a breach still existing between the legislative and executive branches.

Speaker Garner, co-author of the bill, at first told newspapermen with considerable emphasis as he left the White House that "we did not reach an agreement."

Garner said later, however, that the conference and the President were "virtually in agreement" upon all points in the huge measure except the section dealing with loans to individuals.

The President has remained adamant in opposition to this provision.

Garner said the next step would be to call back the House and Senate conferees into a meeting on the measure, and re-discuss it "in the light of the conference we held here today and last night."

Are Going Ahead
Representative Rainey, the House Democratic leader, was even more emphatic in his stand.

"We are going ahead with the bill as it is," he asserted, "and if he wants to veto it he can."

Asked what points were in disagreement, the white House official said with a shrug of his shoulders "we could not agree on anything."

Senator Wagner (D., N. Y.), also a co-author of the bill, took virtually the same stand as Rainey, telling newspapermen grouped about him in the lobby of the White House office that there had been little agreement between the Democratic side and the President.

Senator's Standpoint
Representative Snell, the House Republican leader, who had been optimistic as he entered the President's office two hours before, would say only "we did not reach an agreement."

The apparent breach between Capitol Hill and the White House on the relief measure existed after more than four hours of discussion between Mr. Hoover and Senate and House leaders.

Last night he called 16 men from the Capitol, along with four members of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, into a conference in the Cabinet room that lasted for nearly two hours and a half.

This morning, with Secretary Mills and Governor Meyer of the Federal Reserve Board, by his side, the President set from 9 until 11 with Senators Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, Norbeck (R., S. D.) and Wagner (D., N. Y.), and Speaker Garner, Representatives Rainey and Snell.

Senator Robinson appeared far from cheerful as he left the White House.

Called Disappointing
"The situation looks disappointing," he said.

REPUBLICAN WETS HOLD CONFERENCE

To Draft a Petition For Beer For Revenue Bill Before the Adjournment.

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—A meeting of the House Republican Wet Bloc attended by 50 members today agreed to petition Speaker Garner and Representative Snell, the Republican leader, for immediate action on beer for revenue legislation.

The meeting, called by Representatives LaGuardia, of New York, and Britten, of Illinois, caucused for nearly two hours behind closed doors. Then a subcommittee of five headed by Representative William E. Hull, of Illinois, was named to draft the petition.

Describes Petition
Written said the petition will go also to Chairman Summers, of the judiciary committee, Chairman Fou of the rules committee, and Chairman Collier of the ways and means committee.

"The petition to the Speaker," Britten said, "will say, for example, that the Speaker should appear before the rules committee and ask that modification of the Volstead Act be made the immediate order of business in the House and that Congress should not adjourn until a law for revenue bill is passed."

"The petition will stress the government's need of money."

"Our meeting also went on record for repeal of the 18th Amendment and will urge that if possible the question of repeal be voted on during the present session."

SMITH REYNOLDS, WORTH MILLIONS, TAKES OWN LIFE

Twenty Year Old Heir To Tobacco Fortune Shoots Himself — Was Recently Married To Stage Star.

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 6.—(AP)—Smith Reynolds, 20-year old heir to the R. J. Reynolds tobacco millions, ended a spectacular career here early today with a bullet wound through his head.

The youthful son of one of North Carolina's richest families died in a hospital at 5:25 a. m., four hours after being brought there from his home at Reynolds, the family estate near here.

Ab Walker, of Winston-Salem, told authorities Reynolds shot himself almost within sight of his bride, a few months ago, the former Libby Holman, Broadway "torch singer."

Walker, who was spending the night at Reynolds' home, said they were preparing to retire about 1 a. m. and that he was closing the windows on the first floor of the palatial home when Reynolds appeared on a balcony outside his bedroom above.

A moment later there came the sound of a muffled shot and Mrs. Reynolds screamed that her husband had been shot.

Autopsy Is Ordered
Dr. W. N. Dalton, coroner of Forsyth county, ordered an autopsy performed on the body early today.

He said he had not decided whether an inquest was necessary and that the autopsy was to determine the direction of the bullet.

Frank Vogler, Winston-Salem undertaker, said there was every indication of suicide.

Young Reynolds first came into newspaper prominence three years ago when he and Anne Cannon, heiress to the Cannon textile millions, were married at 2 a. m. in York, S. C. The young couple was accompanied to the South Carolina Gateway Green by her father and his chauffeur.

Wife Gets Millions
Marital troubles soon developed and shortly afterwards Reynolds settled $1,000,000 on his wife and infant daughter. A few months later, Reynolds flew his wife to Reno where she obtained a divorce.

Reynolds' interest in aviation prompted him to make several airplane jaunts, including one about French flaps, with Jean Amant, a French flier. He was returning from this trip when Miss Holman went to Hawaii to meet him and they were married there. Announcement of the marriage was not made, however.

ROCKEFELLER NEARS HIS 93RD BIRTHDAY

Famous Financier Arranges For Quiet Celebration At Home On Friday.

Tarrytown, N. Y., July 6.—(AP)—Confident that he will live to observe his 100th birthday, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., will celebrate his 93rd birthday on Friday at his Pocantico Hills estate here.

The day will be one of regular routine, with the exception of a family dinner and a birthday cake.

Mr. Rockefeller's birthday plans, announced today were:

Rise at 7 a. m.; breakfast at 8 a. m.; golf at 9:30 to 10 a. m.; lunch at 12:15 p. m. with possibly a stroll before.

The venerable financier then will rest until 5 p. m. when he will go for an automobile ride, probably within his estate. It is probable, too, that he will enjoy a program of organ music.

In past years, the Rockefeller birthday has been the signal for an entertainment, but this year it will be observed very quietly.

John D., Jr., and his wife and children, and the Rockefeller grandchildren and great-grandchildren will be at the family dinner.

Scores the Russian Girls For Dressing Too Smartly

Moscow, July 6.—(AP)—Beatrice Webb, 70-year-old British Socialist and economist, came back from an eight-week tour of the Soviet Union today convinced the women of Russia use too much lipstick. She wants the Communist party to issue a decree forbidding painted lips.

"The use of rouge, powder, and lipstick," she said, "is characteristic of a decadent capitalist civilization, a barbaric fashion practiced by primitive races."

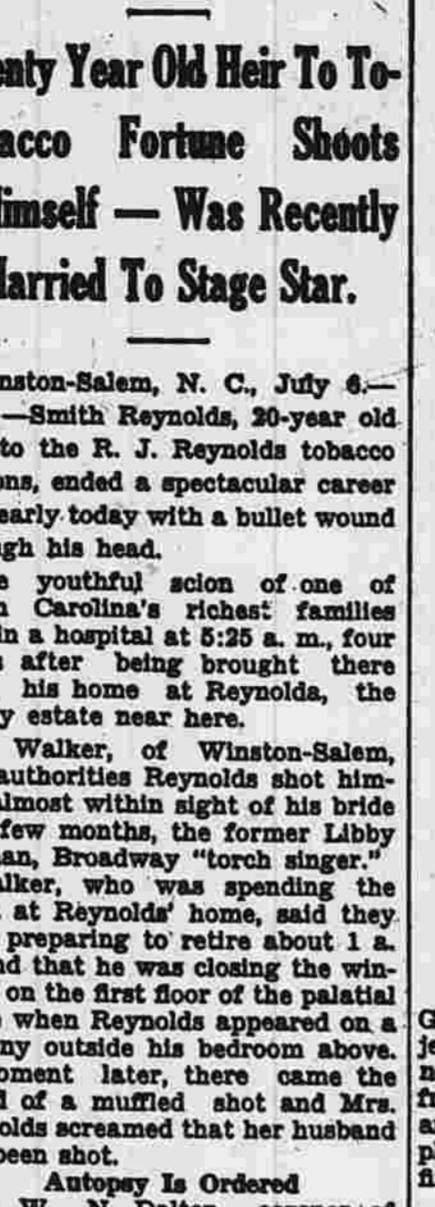

"Russian women have the most beautiful complexions in the world and although these women use cosmetics are far in the minority, none of them need it at all. The practice is grossly immoral."

"It is a shame that Soviet women, enjoying complete equality with men everywhere should make themselves worse than the men, she said. Some of the young women she saw in a Caucasian resort, she added, were dressed far too smartly for Communist girls."

Mrs. Webb is visiting Russia with her husband, Sidney, Webb.

OFF TO CIRCLE EARTH IN WEEK

They hoped to be back in a week, did James J. Mattern and Bennett Griffin, when these pictures were taken of them at the start of their proposed record-breaking, globe-girdling flight. Above you see their sharp-shinned, red-white-and-blue monoplane, "Century of Progress," as it rose from Floyd Bennett Field, New York, at the take-off. Below, Mattern (left) and Griffin—both former Army pilots—are shown in the cockpit of their plane just before they hopped for Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, on the first leg of their air voyage.

MRS. BARNEY, ACQUITTED BY LONDON JURY, FAINTS

Prominent Society Woman Was Accused of Murdering Her Lover—Jury Out Less Than Two Hours.

London, July 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Elvira Dolores Barney, accused of murdering her lover, Thomas William Scott Stephens, was acquitted by a jury today of both murder and manslaughter counts against her.

"She also was exonerated on another indictment, charging intent to do Stephen grievous bodily harm."

The jury was out a little less than two hours.

Stephens, son of a prominent financier, was fatally shot in Mrs. Barney's apartment on the night of May 31.

The defense was that the pistol was discharged accidentally as the two struggled for its possession. Mrs. Barney testified that she had threatened to commit suicide and that Stephens, seizing her pistol from its hiding place, had started to leave the apartment when she pursued him.

Great Crowd Present
Because of the prominence of both Stephens and Mrs. Barney, the trial had attracted great crowds since Monday, when it began. The spectators for the most part have been persons prominent in society and in the arts.

The defendant was discharged immediately after the verdict was given, but Justice Humphreys, who presided, advised her not to leave Old Bailey until the crowds had been cleared from the streets in the vicinity.

When she realized the jury had acquitted her, Mrs. Barney collapsed and was carried from the courtroom practically unconscious.

Lady Mullens, her mother, also collapsed, but was revived.

SEES NEW MARKET FOR NATION'S GRAIN

Two Million Chinese Have Learned To Eat Wheat Instead of Grain.

Chicago, July 6.—(AP)—The 15,000,000 bushels of American wheat sold to China by the Grain Stabilization Corporation has opened up new marketing possibilities for farmers here, George S. Miller, head of the corporation, said today.

The wheat was distributed, Miller said, by the Chinese national food relief commission to starving peasants in exchange for labor on the dikes and levees of the Yangtze river valley. It made possible the construction or repair of more than 2,000 miles of flood protection. This information was contained in a report by M. S. Briggs, corporation representative in Shanghai.

"The relief commission," Briggs said, "has been in operation for two years."

Living With Couple
Liner left Los Angeles recently to go to a sick son in Manila, P. I. The Clarkers had invited Liner to come to live with them. Police said Liner admitted Clarkers accused him Monday of being attentive to Mrs. Clarke.

"It seems we have a triangle here," Clarke was quoted by Liner as saying in the latter's reported confession. An argument followed which reached a climax when the couple attacked him, Liner told police.

When first taken into custody, Liner said he was watering the lawn when he heard shots fired. He said he saw a man run from the house and expressed belief robbers had committed the slayings.

Clarke, a former resident of West Orange, N. J., came to Los Angeles two years ago. Liner, a 39-year-old Louisville, Ky., has been a resident of Los Angeles for 20 years.

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—The political talk went on across the land today, stimulated by charges from administration Republicans in Washington that Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt had surrendered to Tammany Hall and that his reforestation program is "utterly visionary and chimerical."

But one of his most ardent supporters, William G. McArdoo in a New York speech summarized: "All this talk of deals and trades"

ADMITS HE KILLED HUSBAND AND WIFE

Claims It Was In Self Defense When Couple Tried To Kill Him.

Los Angeles, July 6.—(AP)—Irvin S. Liner, 46-year-old unemployed accountant, was held today on a charge of murdering Edwin H. Clarke, 55, retired New Jersey telephone company official, and his wife, Mrs. Kendall Clarke, 55.

Police said Liner confessed he killed the couple with a pistol when they attacked him with a hammer and butcher knife after Clarke had accused him of undue attentions to Mrs. Clarke. Liner denied forcing his attentions on Mrs. Clarke.

Liner was reported to have confessed last night after more than 20 hours of questioning by detectives, who had held him since the finding of the bodies of the couple in their home the night of July 4.

Liner left Los Angeles recently to go to a sick son in Manila, P. I. The Clarkers had invited Liner to come to live with them. Police said Liner admitted Clarke accused him Monday of being attentive to Mrs. Clarke.

SNIPER KILLS POLICEMAN JUST TO HAVE SOME FUN

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—A sniper whose rifle and pistols killed a policeman, wounded another and kept at least a hundred more at bay for three hours finally surrendered early today and said simply that he had tried "to start some fireworks."

In his house on First street, Southwest, just five blocks from the Capitol, he ejected a son at pistol point, locked the doors and fought off death and capture despite riot guns, machine guns and tear gas bombs.

Long's wife, prosecuted by a special grand jury, could give a complete account of her husband's actions, she said. Police said she was always a "sniper."

PRESIDENT VETOES BILL REGULATING WAGE SCALE

Measure Would Make Scale Equal To That Prevailing Locally—Too Much Work For Department of Labor.

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—President Hoover today vetoed his veto power, sending back to the Senate without approval a measure expanding upon an existing law requiring that wages paid to laborers and mechanics on public building projects be equal to the prevailing wages in that section.

The Chief Executive returned the bill almost without comment, his veto message consisting only of 35 words. He did attach to it, however, a lengthy memorandum by Secretary Doak, of the Labor Department stating his objections to it.

Doak contended the measure would place upon the Department of Labor a burden that would require large additional expenditures, to settle needless disputes.

Observe and Complex
"The bill should not be approved," Doak asserted. "It is obscure and complex, and would be impracticable of administration. It would stretch a new bureaucracy across the country."

The bill would amend the present wage law to require that each contract for a government project contain a provision stating the prevailing rate of wages in the section concerned. It would expand the present law also to apply not only to public

GOVERNOR ANSWERS PHILLIPS' CHARGES

Cross Says He Consulted Leaders Before Casting Votes of the State.

Hartford, July 6.—(AP)—Governor Wilbur L. Cross replied today to assertions of Alfred N. Phillips, Jr., former Stamford mayor, that many Democrats resented his activities at the Democratic National convention by recounting his support of Alfred E. Smith.

"I seconded the nomination of Alfred E. Smith and was for him to the end" the Governor said. "Furthermore before casting Connecticut's 16 votes for John N. Garner, I consulted with David E. Fitzgerald of New Haven and Mayor William J. Rankin, of Hartford." Phillips, a Smith advocate issued a statement yesterday assailing the governor's stand during the convention.

Mr. Phillips issued a statement yesterday purporting to "serve notice on the governor" that many Democrats "bitterly resent" the governor's activity at Chicago. He charged the governor "played ball from the beginning with the enemies of Alfred E. Smith." He further charged that "without consulting the Smith members of the delegation, Governor Cross used the microphone on the floor of the convention to cast Connecticut's votes for Garner for vice president."

ANOTHER AUTO RUNS AWAY ON ORCHARD ST.

Sloping Roadway Cause of Slight Accident This Morning—No Damage Done.

Another automobile was added to the long list of motor vehicles that have come to grief simply through being parked on the gentle slopes of Orchard street or Trotter street, when a Dodge coupe owned by Thomas Flavel of 86 Hamlin street, rolled down Orchard street of its own volition to end its jaunt at the bottom of an embankment in Center Springs Woods at 11:30 o'clock this morning.

The car was only slightly damaged, having a broken bumper and a few scratches. Its runaway career was halted by a mound of sand and ashes before it crashed into a tree. It required two hours and the combined strength of a truck and an automobile to pull the coupe from its resting place.

The mishap was only one of many that have occurred on Orchard and Trotter streets, both of which join Valley street, which runs parallel to Center Spring Woods. The exact number of such mishaps is in doubt but residents claim that the toll taken by the slope of these two streets is about equally divided—today's probably putting Orchard street one ahead.

The Traveler said that "according to flat statements made today by some members of the Governor's Council and others close to Governor Ely James H. They drop out of the picture gradually and they're not missed until the boys get together and someone asks, "Whatever became of old Johnny and Jimmy? I haven't seen 'em around for quite a while." The boys agree, Johnny and Jimmy haven't been around for some time. Perhaps someone in the crowd remembers having seen Jimmy or Johnny at a fight in Peoria or St. Louis, a few years back. Thus, Jimmy DeForest, the old trainer. He created a masterpiece of stun at Toledo. He built one champion to destroy another. FLIERS REACT BERLIN AFTER FAST OCEAN HOP

Mattern and Griffin were first sighted after leaving Hebebe Grise at 4:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) yesterday, over Rosampeln, North Donegal, Northern Ireland, at 10:30 a. m. British Daylight time (4:30 a. m., E. S. T.). Their plane apparently was performing in great style, and had averaged more than 150 miles an hour all the way across. They held to this average to Hanover, but lost it on account of the storm.

They are shooting at the round-the-world record of 8 days, 15 hours and 51 minutes. Mattern said they would take off again for Moscow before night unless the weather made it inadvisable. Not Very Tired "Tired?" he said, "not a bit. We've got double controls and we stood regular watches. While I was working Griff slept, and when he took over, I curled up." "It was 10 hours and 50 minutes on the dot after we left Harbor Grace that we sighted land. We kept on and from there—I guess that was Ireland—we got to Berlin in 17 hours, 40 minutes flying time altogether.

"We'd have got here sooner, oh, hours sooner, but we missed the town and veered off to the north. Griff spotted the name on a little railroad station. I think that was Saldin, and we turned around and came south again." "For all we saw there might not have been any ocean at all. We were flying blind in fog and believe it or not, our altitude ran from 6 inches to 10,000 feet." "Well, we went south of Scotland and then we hit the North Sea. Just where we struck the continent of Europe, I don't know."

German pilots on the field were jubilant when the American plane came down. Several of them ran out to where it rolled to a stop and thrust foaming bottles of beer at the fliers. To their amazement the Americans waved it aside. "What we want," said Griffin, "is a good long drink of water, that's all. We haven't had anything but oranges since we left New York." But they both looked fine behind their wide grins as the welcome became a small ovation. Hermann Koehl, who took the airplane Bremen across to Greenley Island a couple of years ago, was on hand to greet his friend Mattern, whom he had met in Detroit. When the crash was over Griffin and Mattern were taken over to the Airport Hotel where somebody gave them toothbrushes, soap and towels.

FIRST SIGHTED

Belfast, Northern Ireland, July 6.—(AP)—An airplane presumed to be that in which James Mattern and Bernard Griffin, American fliers are attempting a round-the-world record flight, flew in from the Atlantic and passed over Rosampeln, North Donegal, at 10:30 a. m., British Daylight Time, today. Guests at the Rosampeln hotel on the North Donegal seaboard sighted the plane flying at a high altitude and travelling due east. There was little doubt in their minds that it was Mattern and Griffin's plane. The way it was heading, they said, it would cross Lough Foyle, Londonderry, North Antrim, the North Irish Channel and Scotland.

Mrs. Amelia Barbara Putnam traversed part of this route before she landed near Culmore at the end of her trans-Atlantic flight. A resident of Rosampeln who saw the plane come in from over the Atlantic said it was flying fairly low and that its colors, red, white and blue, were clearly distinguishable. It was not low enough to see whether the occupants were waving a greeting. It was flying fast and in no kind of trouble.

Radium is said to be more abundant in sediments of deep ocean bottom than it is in land rocks.

DOHERTY BRINGS TWO MORE SUITS

Actions Against Newspaper Now Call For 50 Millions Damages.

Kansas City, July 6.—(AP)—Two suits asking damages aggregating $42,000,000 were filed today against the Kansas City Star and its executives by Henry L. Doherty personally and by the Cities Service Gas Company. The suit of the Cities Service Company alleging conspiracy was filed in the Jackson County Circuit Court and seeks $30,000,000 actual and $10,000,000 punitive damages.

Doherty's libel suit, asking $4,000,000 actual and $6,000,000 punitive damages was filed at Topeka in the District Court of Shawnee County, Kansas. The actions today bring to $84,000,000 the total for which the Star has been sued by Doherty and the Cities Service Company for alleged libel and conspiracy. The first action for $12,000,000 was filed a year ago in the Jackson County Circuit Court. In a statement issued today Doherty indicated other actions will follow.

Causes of Action The petition filed in the Shawnee county District Court sets out causes of action, and seeks $4,000,000 actual and $1,000,000 punitive damages on each. Each cause is based on a separate article or cartoon published in the Star. The sixth cause of action was based on an editorial reprinted in the morning edition of the Star from the Emporia Gazette, William Allen White's paper. The petition alleges it was written by White's son, W. L. White.

The suit in the name of the Cities Service Gas Company charges the Star printed attacks on it as the result of a conspiracy between the newspaper and persons unknown to the plaintiff to injure and destroy the plaintiff's business. For many months the Star has conducted an editorial campaign for lower gas rates in Missouri and Kansas. The first libel suit, filed by Doherty, resulted from this campaign. It was based on a charge attributed to the Star that Mr. Doherty profited personally from fees charged subsidiary companies for managerial services.

HOME LOAN MEASURE AMENDED BY SENATE

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—The Senate today amended the home loan bank bill to permit the life of the banks to 25 years and their lending period to five. The vote for the amendment presented by Senator Walcott (R., Conn.) was 26 to 24. As passed by the House, the system would continue until dissolved by its board or by act of Congress. The Walcott amendment provides that the banks may lend during a five-year period and that the system be liquidated 16 years thereafter. "I believe it is in the interest of safety and sound banking to treat this as an emergency measure," said Walcott. The amendment, was opposed by Senator Watson of Indiana, Republican leader and sponsor of the bill in the Senate. He contended that if the system were temporary the banks would not be able to sell their bonds as well. The banks are designed to lend to building and loan associations and other institutions on residence mortgages with a view to helping the small home owner. It is in the last of the emergency measures urged by President Hoover.

until their return to New York several weeks later.

Miss Cannon Reynolds, shortly after her divorce, announced her engagement to R. Frank Smith, Jr., Charlotte hardware man. They were married at about the same time Miss Holman and Reynolds announced their secret marriage.

Miss Holman, six years older than Reynolds, is the daughter of a Cincinnati attorney. She was graduated from the University of Cincinnati where she studied law, and later rose to prominence on the New York stage.

Reynolds was the youngest son of R. J. Reynolds, founder of the tobacco fortune. An elder brother, R. J. Reynolds, Jr., engaged in numerous escapades which kept his name before the public. The late Smith, he has been highly interested in aviation and at one time owned Roosevelt Field, near New York.

About two years ago while in England, R. J. Reynolds, Jr., struck and killed a cyclist with his automobile. He was arrested, convicted of reckless driving and served a prison sentence under the name R. Joshua Reynolds. Members of the Reynolds household said R. J. Reynolds, Jr., is now somewhere in Europe.

Had Two Sisters

Reynolds has two sisters, Smith Reynolds is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Charles Babcock and Mrs. Henry Walker Bagley, both of New York. W. N. Reynolds, racing enthusiast, is an uncle.

Neither Smith nor his elder brother was ever actively connected with the management of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. The share of each in the fortune left by their father has been estimated at around twenty-five million dollars. Their annual income was in six figures.

His Education

Smith Reynolds attended several preparatory schools, including Woodberry Forest School of Orange, Va., but never entered college, principally because of his early obsession for aviation. Friends said he had been studying aviation seriously this summer and was planning to enter New York University in the fall for courses in aviation offered there.

Smith Reynolds and his wife came to Winston-Salem about a month ago. They spent several weeks in New York after returning to the mainland from Hawaii.

Mrs. R. J. Reynolds, Sr., mother of Smith Reynolds, married Edward Johnston, a professor in Davidson college, after the death of the elder Reynolds. She died several years ago. Johnson now lives in Baltimore.

POLES HOLD-UP MAN WHILE DRIVING CAR Tells Him He'll Drive Into Tree If Thing Persists In Stealing Money

Stanley Braszuskas, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Braszuskas, of 58 North street, was held to a showup given in honor of his prospective bride last Saturday night, and thereon hangs a story that involves the capture of a man with a criminal record.

Stanley, who is 24 years of age, is employed by the First National Stores and for a time worked in the store in the Keith building, later being transferred to Windsor. On Friday of last week he was sent to Washington, Conn., located in the northwestern section of the state, where he was to be married. Stanley worked there until late Saturday night, closing the store about 12:30 o'clock.

He drove to a gasoline station, filled up with gasoline and oil and started for home, having promised to arrive for the showup at 8 o'clock. In paying his bill at the station, Stanley flashed a roll of bills and soon after he was accosted by a man who asked him where he was going. When Stanley replied that he was bound for Manchester and was unfamiliar with the roads, the stranger volunteered to show him a short cut.

After proceeding about two miles, Stanley's companion jammed a revolver into the former's side and curtly requested him to stop the car and hand over his money. At that time young Braszuskas was traveling about forty miles an hour. Instead of stopping he stepped on the gas and the speedometer shot up to sixty miles an hour.

"Go ahead and shoot," said Stanley, "but if I'm going to be killed, we'll both die together. I'll drive into the first tree or pole that we come to."

It did not take the stranger long to discover that Stanley was in earnest and dropping his gun he wrestled for possession of the steering wheel. In the tussle that followed, Stanley's clothes were torn, but he managed to keep the car on the road and headed for the Canaan barracks of the State Police.

A state policeman was patrolling the road and as the car sped past he gave chase. Aware of this, Stanley called for help and slowed down. The policeman pulled alongside and after hearing Braszuskas's story, told the latter to drive to the barracks, where the hold-up man

WANT CONSTABLES UNDER POLICE BOARD

Commissioners Say Elected Officers Have Been Taking Work From Supernumeraries.

Due to the fact that the supervision of all amusements in the town of Manchester does not come directly under the Manchester Police department, and that certain constables have been working at various dance halls in place of regular or supernumerary members of the police department, it was decided at a meeting of the Police Commissioners, Chairman of the Board of Selectmen and Chief of Police Samuel G. Gordon last night to request town counsel William C. Hyde to draw up an ordinance, placing the policing of all forms of amusements under the direction of the Manchester Police Department. Action on the question will be taken at the October town meeting.

During the past year constables have been hired for duty in connection with the policing of dance halls and other places of amusement, requiring police protection according to statute, which has deprived supernumerary members of the town force from obtaining employment. It is understood that the constables have worked for considerable less than regular or supernumerary members of the police department, eliminating them from such extra work to which they are entitled as qualified and uniformed members of the police department.

DANCER KILLS SELF

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 6.—(A.P.)—A man believed to have been a dancer, of New York and Cleveland, Ohio, went to his death over Niagara Falls today.

Police said two persons saw the man climb a rail near the brink of the Horse Shoe Falls, wade out into the river and disappear over the cataract. Both witnesses say they called to the man to stop but he ignored their calls.

Investigation showed a man registered yesterday at the Temperance House in Niagara Falls, N. Y., under the name of Zennoff. He could not be found today.

EXPECT ARGUMENT OVER REES TONIGHT Another Attempt To Be Made It Is Said To Curtail Recreation Activities

Opposition to the plan of moving the library into the school street Recreation Center at an approximate expense of $4,000 and to the setting aside of an appropriation for opening the Recreation Center, is expected tonight at the annual meeting of the 17th School district which will be held in the High school assembly hall.

Upon the outcome of tonight's action will depend to a great extent the limit of recreation activities, practically curtailed, the activities will likewise be decreased materially. There are some among the opposition that favor discontinuance of the Recreation Centers but at a special district meeting several months ago this element was outnumbered.

The library question is one that has long been before the district. Soon after the fire that destroyed the library on Wells street the upkeep of the library was taken over by the district and Chicago Brothers offered to pay $50,000 towards a new library. In selling the schools to the district this $50,000 was deducted from the cost of the buildings and since then the question of a good location for the library has been given consideration at each annual meeting of the district. The meeting tonight is the first in which the final location has been brought before the district for action.

MEN ARE LASHED BY COURT ORDER

silence as Sheriff John Stevens, a muscular man, applied the lash.

Neither of the convicted men appeared to suffer severely, and it was apparent that the sheriff did not make the blows unusually heavy.

However, Stevens twice broke a light buggy whip on William, and then finished the punishment of the brothers with a "blacksnake" lash. Later, he led the men to the county jail, and on instructions from the judge, ordered them never to return.

Later, the judge explained that while there is no Ohio statute for a whipping sentence, there is nothing to prevent a prisoner from accepting such punishment as an alternative to the usual penalty.

In a further statement, Judge Putnam upheld the lashing as "justified" by crime conditions, and said he was prepared to "stretch all laws until they crack."

is simply and only echoes of a sharp contest and the disappointments that always follow such a battle.

Shahop James Cannon, Jr., insisted at Indianapolis that he had not forecast a Republican victory in his July 4th speech at Ocean Grove, N. J. He said he had analyzed Democratic and Republican platforms recalling that the former is for repeal while the latter is "not binding upon any official or member" of the G. O. P.

Analysis President

"Until Mr. Hoover speaks, final judgment must be reserved," Cannon said "adding that the said 18th Amendment would 'not be' repealed.

The administration criticism came from Secretary Hyde of Agriculture and Senator Moses of New Hampshire.

Hyde said of the Roosevelt reforestation-employment program: "This grand project is worthy of the 'economic foresight' of the governor.

"He estimated that a million people could plant a billion trees each day while there are two hundred million trees in 'all the nurseries in America."

"But suppose there were three hundred million seedling trees available," he continued. "A million men could plant them in about three hours." Moses called Roosevelt's July 4 telegram to the Tammany celebration "an inauspicious beginning" for the governor's "new deal"—unless he is dealing from the bottom.

URGES CONTROL OF AUTO SPEED BY THE BUILDERS

Commissioner Stoessel Says States Should Strive For Regulation of Extreme Speed Through Cooperation.

That states should recognize the necessity for controlling motor vehicles in the matter of extreme speeds by means other than police arrest and subsequent conviction for speeding is the opinion of Robinson B. Stoessel, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles. Commissioner Stoessel suggests that regulation might properly take the form of a cooperative action for safety, with manufacturers, highway builders and others who have to do with the government of traffic participating in developing the plan.

A dangerous situation has been created because of the development of cars for high speeds without corresponding education of operators to drive at those speeds, the Commissioner says in a bulletin entitled, "A Discussion of Speed" which is being distributed today.

Built For Speed

"The old attitude that roads must be built for speed, that operators must be trained to drive at speed, or that a state must eventually train them to do so, is emphatically wrong," he adds. "It is proved so by the fact that car building has progressed along the lines of production for speed so much more rapidly than it has been possible to train operators and build the highways, until now it is an unequal proposition."

Commissioner Stoessel also points out that regulation must go beyond the realm of the operator.

"There is apparently no reason why a manufacturer should ever turn out a car capable of reaching extreme speeds until highways and operators are ready for performance; no reason why he should claim that because his car is a selected car it is able to drive that automobile at 100 miles an hour on Daytona Beach or at some similar place, that this constitutes a safe speed for others. It must be a fact that there isn't one man in 10,000 who can do it and that out of such a number there are probably several hundred who will be misled into thinking they can and then bring disaster and lasting sorrow on themselves or on others through their failure to understand their limitations in this important respect."

Maker At Fault

"States are now finally beginning an actual campaign against extreme speeds, not as relating to the maker in the sense that it shall be beyond his power to make a car with high speed capacity or that any operator shall be restricted from driving his car at reasonable speeds, but that exaggerations shall be obtained from in both of these characteristics. If it is fair to demand that the operator shall not exaggerate his speed, it certainly is fair also to require that the manufacturer shall not turn out a product with a statement of speed capacity which most operators cannot attain either because of their own incapacity or because of the lack of suitable highway environment in the territory where the cars are sold."

"It seems to the writer that the psychological effect of speed advertising has been deep. It has apparently been developed as a sales argument because it appeals to a sportsmanship which is inherent in everyone. Everyone likes to go fast. As children we began to coast down hill, roller skate, ride bicycles, and do everything we could to attain speed. The sensation of speed is pleasant, but overindulgence in this form of pleasure is a grave danger so when it becomes a part of duty to make decisions as to a practice which is capable of inflicting great injury and damage, then to curb natural inclinations to whatever extent may be required for reasonable performance becomes imperative."

"The qualification which constitutes reasonable performance by common consent, as the situation is today, seems to be that police enforcement authorities ought to scrutinize all instances of speed higher than 45 miles an hour, not necessarily enforcing disciplines for speeds faster than that, but looking at it as a standard from which departure may be made towards the degree of speed which is unreasonable."

Should Be Classified

"It seems to be the impression among officials that cars ought to be classified by weight and possibly maximum allowed speeds be assigned. That is the line of thought along which motor vehicle administrators and state officials are proceeding in connection with the movement to curb the use of the extremely high speeds which manufacturers have provided for their cars."

"It is agreed that the speed of a car in order to be reasonable must include in actual performance the capability of the man to operate with safety toward other people and the environment, meaning the highway on which the car is traveling. The capacity for speed is a latent factor the presence of which makes no difference unless it is wrongly used."

MSGR. RYAN ILL

Roma, July 6—(AP)—Monsignor James E. Ryan, rector of the Catholic University at Washington, D. C., was confined to his bed here today with a bronchial attack. ## PLAN PURPLE HEART CEREMONIES HERE

Hope To Have Public Awarding of Medals To Group of Local Veterans.

Plans were made at last night's meeting of Anderson-Shea Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, to send applications of all members of the post to the War Department in Washington who are entitled to the Purple Heart, the George Washington Medal, or the Congressional Medal of Honor.

It was voted by the post to inspect the files of the organization and to contact eligibles for a group application for the decoration. If the plan is approved by the War Department, the post will hold a public decoration ceremony, possibly in Center Park or the state armory. According to a preliminary check made last night there are approximately 30 members of the post who are entitled to the Purple Heart decoration by reason of gas or other wounds and individual citations for valor.

The committee in charge of the decoration ceremony is headed by chairman Neal A. Cheney, Post Commander Archie Kipatrik and Historian Lawrence Redman.

A report of the recent State Convention was given by Commander Joseph Moriarty and delegates to the Convention held in New Britain. It was the consensus of the post members that the encampment was the most successful ever held in the state. Due to the prominent part taken by Anderson-Shea post in the parade and County Council and Convention activities, the Manchester post has been promised due recognition by the new State Commander during the current year.

Plans were made to contact Gold Star Post, V.F.W., of Willimantic for a series of baseball games to be played home and home in the near future.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 6.

IN NORTH CAROLINA

It is rather a pity that the North Carolina senatorial election does not take place until November, because if it were to be held say within the next month it would cast a vividly illuminating light on the potency or impotency of the dry vote in a typical "dry" state.

The astonishing victory of Robert R. Reynolds, militant wet, over Senator Morrison, wheel-horse dry, in the Democratic primary, when Reynolds polled almost twice as many votes as the senator, and led him by a clean 100,000, is highly indicative of a complete turnover in North Carolina opinion on the subject of prohibition; it does not, however, inform us as to what the dries can do by way of reprisal—or what they cannot do.

Candidate Reynolds' Republican opponent is a professional dry named Jake Newell. While North Carolina is normally Democratic its normal majority for that party is not an overwhelming one, the Republican vote being usually from two-thirds to three-fourths that of the dominant party. The state gave Hoover more than 60,000 majority over Smith four years ago. If the dry Democrats plump to Newell they should succeed in defeating Reynolds—provided of course the latter can hold the solid Republican vote.

Advance knowledge of how the North Carolina senatorial vote is going would be of the greatest value to politicians all over the country. If by some magic we could now have next November's North Carolina election returns to guide our steps, what a wise lot we should be! We should know precisely how much value to give to the threats and promises of the dry organizations. Alas, by the time we have learned about North Carolina's election day we shant' give a hoot about it because we shall know the answer to all the election problems at the same time.

Just the same, there is nothing especially sanctified about the Republican party in North Carolina and there is not the slightest reason to anticipate that any preponderant part of its members are any drier than the Democrats; and it is our guess that Wet Reynolds will beat Dry Newell by about as thumping a majority in November as he beat Morrison in July.

THAT FOURTH BALLOT

Many persons, not necessarily of his own political faith, who have long admired Alfred E. Smith for, above all else, his unusual quality of candor have found no reason for a lessening of their regard in his attitude toward the Roosevelt nomination. Nine hundred and ninety-nine politicians in his place would have pretended. They would either have made a pretense of having been beaten in a fair contest and, of being ready and eager, like good sports, to help the victorious opponent to election; or, at the least, would have said, "I am a Democrat; of course I will support the ticket."

Smith didn't feel that way about it. He felt that the Roosevelt nomination was a bad one—for the party and perhaps for the country. He made no pretense of feeling any other way about it. He was angry and sore and it was honest, not lack of self control, that made him show it. His refusal to say one word in approval of the nomination is a kind of candor of which not many men in his place would be capable.

Perhaps it will be beyond even the self-controlled-Smith to keep silence during the whole of this campaign concerning the true impartiality of the Roosevelt-Garner-McAdoo deal by which the plans of the anti-Roosevelt forces in the convention were ruined at what many believe was the very moment of their fulfillment. A good deal has already leaked out. There will be a very insistent demand from many quarters to know whether Roosevelt obtained his nomination through about as flagrant a bit of treachery as any political convention ever witnessed; whether William Gibbs McAdoo was under a definite pledge to hold the line during that Fourth ballot while Mississippi, Indiana, Michigan and one or two other Middle West states pulled out of the Roosevelt column—and then, after having conferred with the Anti-Rooseveltians and being party to their plans, betrayed his allies by suddenly dumping the California vote into Roosevelt's lap; to know who the candidate was who was to have received that big batch of Roosevelt votes on the fourth ballot; whether or not it was Smith—or Newton D. Baker.

There are a great many people in the country, most of them Democrats but some of them Republicans and independents, who will feel that they are entitled to know about these things before election, and who will feel that they will know, quite certainly, if Al Smith tells them about them for they believe him to be honest. They may bring a lot of pressure to bear.

Perhaps, too, before the campaign is over, it will come to seem fitting to the once Happy Warrior to tell the country just what motives impelled him to so bitterly oppose the nomination of his former friend—who he knows about Roosevelt, or thinks he knows, that the rest of the country doesn't know.

Possibly Smith will keep his tongue between his teeth. Perhaps, as he comes to think more at length about the right of the people to know what they are doing in the selection of a President, he may contribute amusingly to the sum of their political information.

RELIEF BILL, VETO

We confess to being altogether at sea as to the reason for the extraordinary efforts of President Hoover to bring about at the eleventh hour certain changes in the conference relief bill, the precise nature of which, at this writing, has not been made clear, though it may be before this issue goes to press. Particularly is it difficult to understand the President's expressed intention of vetoing the bill as it stood this morning. Such a veto might involve the most serious consequences, particularly if Congress should prove to be as determined to maintain its position as Mr. Hoover appears to be to maintain his.

It is reported that the President's chief objections to the bill in its present form are "the features providing for loans to individuals, the allotment of relief funds on the basis of population and the provision for non-liquidating public works."

It is doubtless quite true that the first and the last of these features are bad. On the other hand the population basis for direct relief appropriation is susceptible of support by sound argument and Congress certainly has as good a right to its opinion as has the President.

While the provision for loans to individuals was inserted in the bill by administration leaders and it was then understood had the approval of Mr. Hoover. As to the third, while it is now stigmatized as pork barrel legislation, it is not so long ago that the President was advocating exactly this sort of expenditure as an employment measure. He is right now, no doubt, and was wrong then; but vetoes are not usually given because Congress adopts an abandoned policy of a President.

All this, however, is somewhat of the mark. The salient thought is that a veto at this crucial time of any relief measure not patently ruinous would be an extremely hazardous thing. Anything might happen. The millions of unemployed in America are orderly, hopeful, self controlled. But they are terribly anxious. Let them suddenly be confronted by a seeming revulsion that the head of this nation is less interested in their perils than he is in having his own way—and there is more than a little risk that they might blow up.

It is within the possibilities that Congress on its own part might turn sulky and refuse to give Mr. Hoover a new relief bill of any sort. It might even do this though the President should call an immediate special session. In which case the Republican party might as well save itself the trouble of making a campaign, because the election would be utterly lost before a ballot was cast.

It is possible that out of today's conference of Congress leaders with the President may come some solution of the problem that will redound to the President's credit. This is an outcome devoutly to be hoped for. But this talk of veto has been risky—and a veto would be a disaster. Infinitely better a bad bill than no bill at all.

BORAH AND EXPANSION

If Senator Borah is found heading a third party by autumn it is a pretty safe prediction that it will not be the Prohibition party, despite the foolish hopes of the dries that he will permit himself to be drafted as their party's Presidential nominee. Mr. Borah has other and more important fish to fry. He came out yesterday suddenly and emphatically as the champion of serious and immediate currency expansion. Moreover he demands that action in that direction be taken before Congress adjourns. This is a subject which completely dwarfs the interests of the Prohibitionists. It is ten times bigger a subject, in its vital effect on the country's well being, than prohibition ever was, let alone a prohibition that is functioning now on reflex muscular action alone, being already moribund.

It is not in the matter of alcohol control that the possibility of an important third party lies, but in the fact that neither of the major parties has adopted a direct policy to bring about a termination of the steady fall in prices and values. If such a party should spring suddenly into existence there is no telling what devastating effect it might have on the fortunes of Republican and Democratic parties alike.

IN NEW YORK

Playboys Vanish

New York, July 7.—Many of Broadway's gay playboys may now be discovered playing tag with sheriffs and landladies.

Even the wealthiest of them seem to have vanished like a promoter's assets. Heading the list of the richest, most romantic and generous, of course, Billy Leeds' "Phil Plant" ran a close second. It is no secret that even such fortunes as they commanded have undergone terrific shrinkage.

So many a week has gone by since any of the playboy tribe has been seen frolicking about the night spots. Just to show you how the old high spirits have been affected: one of the minor playboys actually slugged a columnist the other night in the suburbs. Anyone might have told him that the only way to get a columnist in to land an apartment on the ego and then take three jabs at his vanity.

Forgotten Masterpiece

A paragraph in Danny Thomas' Hollywood chatter department drew conversation the other night to the colorful, eccentric but greatly gifted Von Stroheim. Von is back acting now, and the report was that he had been in tight financial shape. "Four of us agreed that some day 'Greed' would be taken from the shelves and given its due place as a film masterpiece. I recall when we all sat for some 12 hours watching the unreeling of that picture's pre-view. And spellbound for the entire period.

Von's personal courage had long been a subject of off-stage conversation among the newspaper folk who gathered on his lot. There was, for instance, the occasion of the knife throwing.

No Demerol! A scene demanded that a performer stand with his back to the camera, facing a wall. An expert knife tosser, some yards away, drove steel blade through the air and, of course, missed the actor by a narrow margin. Trick photography could have been employed so that the actual hurling of the knife would have been unnecessary. The actor assumed that the director would see to this. But Von demanded realism. His knife thrower was a circus man accustomed to typical, heavy bladed dagger knives. A real Mexican dagger was substituted. The thrower went over in a corner and warmed up with it for a time; then reported that he was ready.

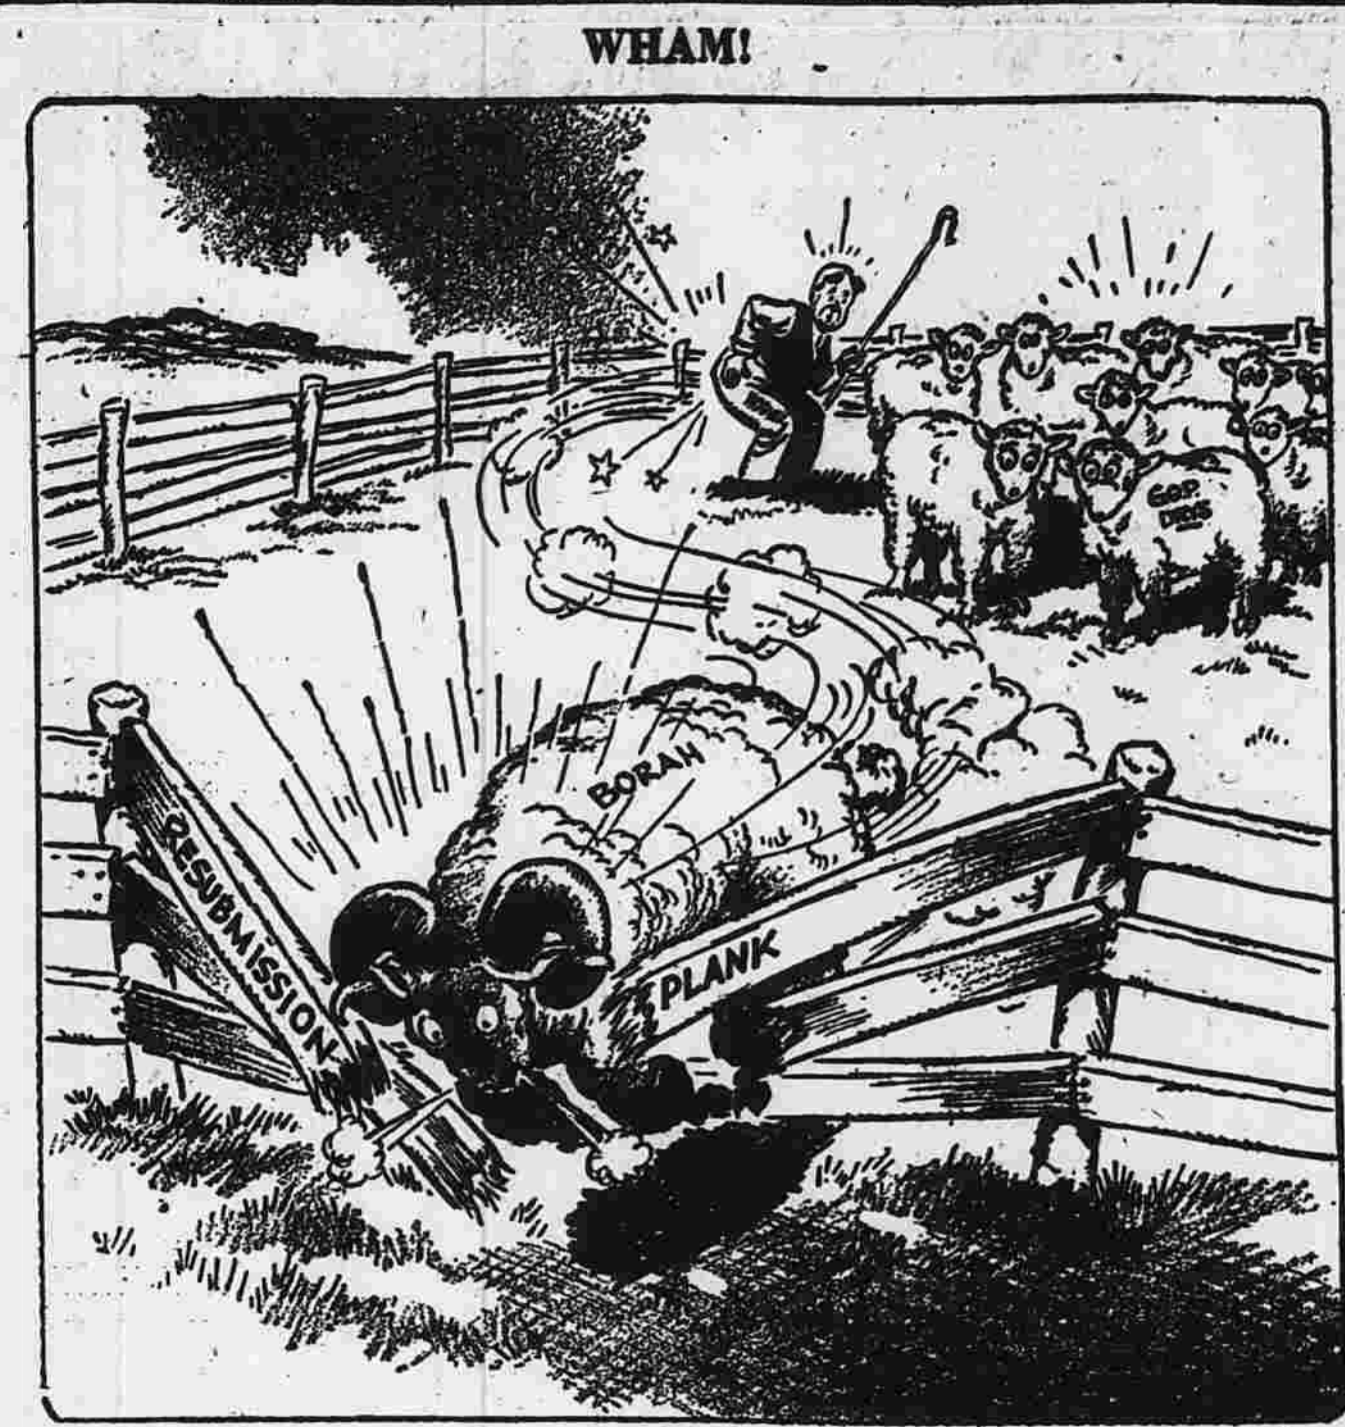

But the actor, discovering what was to happen, refused to go on. Von stamped and jumped and cursed, but to no avail. The playboy wouldn't take the chance. Without further ceremony, Von dropped his megaphone and walked to the wall—doubling for the performer.

There was a tense moment. The knife left the thrower's hand in a neat arc, but just a bit too high. A studio lamp was dangling on the set. The blade scraped it and went off course. A second later it was quivering in the wood, not a hair's breadth from Von Stroheim's ear.

"See, you yellow!" shouted Von. "What did I tell you—not the slightest danger!"

On Fighters

The Schmeling-Sharkey decision still echoes in table debates, with voices rising and tempers high. A group of sport writers, gathered in a mid-Broadway apartment, recalled one of the famous tales told of Wilson Mizner, one of the more fabulous figures of old. Mizner—way back when—was sitting over his beer and sipping when two friends came up, engaging in the most heated argument. "Here," shouted one, "we'll leave it to Mizner—he's a smart guy! Now who was the greater general: Lee or Grant?" "What difference does it make?" drawled Mizner. "Grant got the decision!"

HAY FEVER

I have a letter from a young man who inquires, "Is it true that all children born to a couple both having hay fever will tend to have the same disease? The answer is 'Yes; if both parents suffer from hay fever all their children are likely to inherit a tendency to it or some of the other allergic diseases.' However, if the parents will make an effort to overcome the hay fever by hygienic methods the tendency will not be as great in the children as otherwise."

Some common names for hay fever are hay asthma, summer catarrh and rose fever. The symptoms of this disease resemble those of a bad cold. There is usually a watery discharge from reddened eyes, together with a frequent discharge from the nose, making many handkerchiefs necessary, a change in the voice, dry cough, fullness over the front of the head and much sudden sneezing. A severe case keeps the patient quite miserable. When the right treatment is not used, the symptoms may return persistently year after year. Often the one affected can tell ahead almost to the day, when he will have his next attack. The seasons most dreaded are Summer and Fall.

For centuries the cause of this mysterious recurrence of hay fever was not understood. But around 1819 doctors began to suspect that there was some substance thrown off by hay which was connected with the attacks, and by 1878 the fact that the pollen from hay had the power to induce hay fever in some cases had been proven. Later on the pollen from golden rod, rag weed, roses, etc., as well as such substances as fur, feathers, ink, oral root, face powder and many others were found to be capable of producing an attack of hay fever in a susceptible patient. Finally, the explanation was made that the reason these substances cause hay fever in one person and not in another is because some individuals are allergic; that is, they have an abnormal reaction to the certain substance which produces the hay fever symptoms in their own case. A person who is a victim of this type of allergy has only to breathe the offending substance and he then suffers a typical attack while an ordinary person with a normal reaction suffers not at all.

The first treatment devised consisted in having the patient avoid as far as possible the contact with the irritating substance. Often he was actually advised to move away to seek some spot where the particular kind of pollen to which he is sensitive is not present in the air at certain seasons. This method often fails because the patient is not able to altogether avoid the irritant, as, for example, the case of one who reacts to fur or face powder.

Another method fairly popular at the present time consists in building up the patient's tolerance by desensitization.

(Puddings Not Well Balanced) Question: Mrs. Wanda S. asks: "Are puddings, such as are made from corn starch, tapioca, or rice, well-balanced lunch foods?" Answer: Puddings, to taste right, are made with sugar and sugar and cream are never a good combination. It is far better when starches are used to use them in some other way without the addition of sugar.

(No Medicinal Preparations for TB) Question: Mr. Charles C. asks: "Would a combination of good whiskey and salt be healing to the lungs when tuberculosis is present?" Answer: No, in fact there is no kind of medicinal preparation which has any definite healing effect upon the lungs. Tuberculosis requires a very careful hygienic and dietetic regimen. I will be pleased to send you my instructions for overcoming tuberculosis if you will write to me in care of this newspaper and enclose a large, self-addressed stamped envelope.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Seventy-seven Dulkhobors in British Columbia were sentenced to three years in the penitentiary each for running around in their birthday suits. Gosh, isn't Hollywood glad it isn't in Canada? Gandhi has given up his spinning wheel and will use a sewing machine hereafter. But he's still one step behind the modern American woman, who has given up the sewing machine for contract bridge. Now that Congress has decided to cut out polo ponies for the army fliers as an economy move, we might suggest that spurs be omitted from boots. The saving from their use in wear and tear on desks would be tremendous. Automobile manufacturers say they never know how a new car will strike the man in the street. Plenty hard, we would say. Many of our movie stars were so worried over prospective salary cuts that their hair turned platinum overnight. A Chicago musician observes that nothing pleases a girl so much as a big brass band. Unless it's a platinum-inset-with-diamonds one, of course. Gigli says the people want a lighter and more popular form of opera. That might go for opera stars, too. Four Russian towns have been named after Stalin. Evidently, a dictator is without necessity in his own mind.

TREMENDOUS WET SWING MAKES PROHIBITION'S FUTURE HAZARDOUS GUESS

Chicago, July 6.—The wet trend in politics has accelerated so rapidly that speculations on the future of prohibition becomes a mere hazardous guess. That seems the safest way to figure the significance of the adoption by the Democratic convention of an amazingly wet plank by an amazingly huge majority.

No prohibition is drawn as a political issue between the two parties with breath-taking clarity. No plank could have been more emphatically, more unequivocally, wet than the Democratic demand for repeal of the 18th amendment as soon as possible and for beer and light wines at once. Passed nine to two by this convention, it is a plank on which no candidate can hedge and a plank which stands in stark contrast to the Republican attempt to please both wets and dries.

The size of that majority was a direct result of what seemed to have been about the only intelligent stroke of the Roosevelt forces at the convention up to that time. By deftly snatching the convention that his delegates were entirely free to vote as they pleased on the prohibition plank the New York governor spoiled an almost perfect record of boneheaded maneuvers perpetrated in the few days previous by himself and his assortment of captains on the scene.

Roosevelt had been generally expected to insist on some sort of a liberal straddle. There had been plenty of argument as to how dry or wet he was. Repeal seemed the chief controversial political issue between Roosevelt and Al Smith and the eastern leaders who sought to defeat him. He demanded a mild amendment, he unquestionably would have been beaten on the floor and would have run the risk of disrupting his organization here. He would have strengthened, in some quarters at least, the argument that he is weak and a pussyfoot.

It is quite true that the convention voted its desire without any ringing declaration from Albany. The startling fact—startling certainly to those who have watched the Roosevelt mull the ball so often recently—is that the governor had a marvelous chance to make one more boner and yet did nothing of the sort.

Scores of politicians must have felt like better men and women as they drank their highballs in hotel rooms later in the early hours of the morning. The delegates doubtless outtripped the candidates for Congress, but the fact that a convention has come to vote as it thinks and drinks, seems a tremendous step when you consider the soft-pedaling law enforcement planks which have heretofore been the rule.

The wet tide now sweeps toward the congressional and presidential elections. It may not produce a November inundation, but in 1932 discourages prophecy.

To date the astonishing sequence of events, following the defection of many nationally known figures from the dry cause, has gone like this: The Republicans set to write a rather vague plank which was still much wetter than anyone had anticipated a few months previously, found themselves confronted with a repeal revolt in the demands that they declare for renunciation of the 18th amendment for a popular choice between retention and repeal.

The die-hard "dries" among the Democrats actually pleaded that the convention adopt exactly the same retention-or-repeal proposal for which the wets had fought so vigorously and vainly earlier in the month at the G. O. F. meeting, Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina and Oklahoma (and many others) last fall. The party has

Berlin (AP)—Karl Erren, an automotive engineer, has revised the hydrogen fuel idea with a specially designed motor. Hydrogen can be obtained from water by a rather simple electrical decomposition. Engineers have played with this fact for years without ever getting a hydrogen plant to produce cheaply enough to compete with gasoline.

Erren proposes some accessories to bridge this difference in cost. First, he says, the electric power plants of great cities have to let their expensive machinery lie idle much of the time because of the "peak load" situation. A city wants a big supply of electricity at certain hours of the day and comparatively little at other times. The power plant has to be big enough to supply these "peak" hours.

The idle time Erren would use for decomposing water into hydrogen to be sold as motor fuel, he points out, is now a valuable by-product of such decomposition. Whether there would still be a market for oxygen in larger quantities remains to be seen.

Says Gas Consumption Lowered Erren asserts that nitrogen can be collected from the exhaust of a hydrogen motor. He claims that mixing a small amount of hydrogen with gasoline lowers considerably the gasoline consumption of a standard motor. Finally he says equally good savings are effected by mixing hydrogen with crude oil and diesel motor fuels.

Erren was a flyer at the western front in the World War. San Diego, Calif., July 6.—(AP)—Lawrence T. K. Griswold, archaeologist and Mayan explorer, with a party of scientists and a motion picture company, leaves today for Yucatan, where a 400-mile trek through the jungles will be started in search of the lost Maya city in Guatemala.

Griswold said he had tentatively located the city, which will be the primary object of the search, by flying over the territory in an airplane. The expedition also will explore the swampy basin of the Usumacinta river, which flows into the Gulf of Mexico.

Members of the party include: A. Frederic Gronberg, David M. Anderson, John A. Corbin, Dr. William von R. Carr, Robert Penrose Chapman, and Glenn R. Kerschner.

The North American team will compete in the Argentine championship Nov. 5 and 12 before battling Argentina in the international team matches.

HEMSLEY INJURED Chicago, July 6.—(AP)—Bollie Hemsley, young Cub catcher suffered a powder burn to his left eye as a result of the premature explosion of a firecracker at Pittsburgh Monday. The eye was badly inflamed today and he was not expected to be back in action for at least a week. Hemsley is batting .400 for the Cubs.

THIRTY-FIVE years ago Mr. Hale moved his store to the present site—the corner of Oak and Main Streets. Though we began celebrating our anniversary from that date, we are in reality many years older. During the thirty-five years on Main Street, we have seen many business depressions and reverses, but Hale's has steadily grown until today it is the leading department store in South Manchester. The success of this institution can be credited to the policy of its founder—selling ONLY QUALITY, DEPENDABLE MERCHANDISE. On May 27th of this year, The J. W. Hale Company was purchased by Messrs. Charles E. and Herbert B. House of C. E. House & Son, Incorporated. And it is the earnest desire of the new management to carry out the policies of the founder.

For our 35th Anniversary Celebration we are offering still lower prices on Hale's high quality merchandise. With the help of our New York buying office, we have secured outstanding values in apparel and home needs. If you need summer merchandise, buy during this ten day sale, July 7th to July 16th. Read the associated Anniversary Sale advertisement of House's on the back page of this issue.

WEALTHY MAN'S SON KILLED IN CRASH

Son of Head of A. T. & T. Injured In Same Accident; Were On Vacation Trip.

Brookings, S. D., July 6.—(AP)—A vacation trip to Alaska of two sons of American Telephone and Telegraph Company magnates ended here last night in an auto accident in which one was killed and the other injured.

Edwin Carter, 22, son of E. F. Carter, vice-president of the company, died of a broken neck when his automobile crashed through a fence on Highway 14, near Aurora, after failing to make a turn in the road.

Walter Sherman Gifford, 14-year-old son of J. W. S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, suffered a crushed left arm in the crash.

Dr. Pemberton of the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., was elected to arrive today to care for the youth at the request of Mr. Gifford, who was on his way from New York.

Brookings hospital authorities said that while the injury to young Gifford's arm was painful, it was not serious. He was resting easily this morning.

The body of Carter was removed to an undertaking establishment. The two youths were enroute from New York to Alaska on a pleasure trip. Carter had just graduated from college.

Gifford just learning to drive was at the wheel when the accident occurred. He apparently failed to notice the turn in the road and the car plunged into a ditch, jumped a fence and plowed about 75 feet down a field before stopping. It did not overturn.

Carter was thrown from the automobile and his head struck the fence. He was dead when Frank Ryan, Sioux Falls salesman who was driving behind the youths, reached their side.

Headquarters of emotions in the human body are located at the base of the left brain. Dr. Leonard E. Alfors, of St. Louis, recently reported to the American Psychiatric Association.

Hale's And House's Stores Celebrate Anniversaries In Big Sales

House's 79 Years Old Hale's 35th Birthday

One Family Now in Control of Both Great Enterprises Here.

Seventy-nine years ago this month Edwin M. House, a Glastonbury farmer's boy started a custom tailoring business on Charter Oak street that gave to Manchester its leading men's clothing store and an outstanding enterprise in the town's business world. 69 years ago Justus W. Hale started a general merchandising business in partnership with George F. Day that was destined to give the town its leading department store. These two great businesses this week celebrate the anniversary of their respective foundations. But they differ in one respect. The House family has continued in the mercantile establishment that bears that name while the Hale name remains in the big department store at the Main and Oak streets corner. Accordingly the anniversary for House's numbers the 79th while Hale's celebrates the beginning of the J. W. Hale Company which occurred 35 years ago.

Coupled Many Years
It is of unusual interest this year that these two great stores should celebrate their real birthdays together. The names House and Hale have been coupled for the past 35 years—ever since Justus W. Hale formed the corporation that still carries on his business and together with Charles E. House, the department store merchants, decided to erect a business block as a home for their two stores. On the 35th anniversary of the first House and Hale block which, fittingly enough, is also the Hale Company anniversary, these two leading enterprises are under the control of the House family. Just a few weeks ago Charles E. House and his son, Herbert E. House, took over the control of the J. W. Hale Company thus completing the unity that has been growing these past 35 years.

Few residents of Manchester can remember far enough back in history to recall when the names Hale and House were not mentioned in the business conversation of the town. Both were business men who commanded attention and could be depended upon to "lead the way."

Local Leaders
As these local leaders showed the way for business progress in Manchester so do the stores which have grown out of those first business houses now lead in business enterprise here. House's is Manchester's leading men's outfitters and Hale's is the largest department store the town affords. Both have gained reputations as houses of worthwhile values outside the town's confines. Few of the leading clothing stores in the larger cities can offer a higher quality merchandise at more reasonable prices than does House's. Department stores throughout the state find genuine competition from Hale's and this store numbers several customers from among the residents of the nearby city of Hartford.

Modern Aspect
Both of these great stores have instituted modern methods that give them every advantage of the changes in the markets. Their buyers are trained to purchase stock for the people of Manchester. They know the public taste and the customer's requirements as well as they do their own. They are abreast of the times with regard to styles and modes and can give their patrons the latest news of the style centers equally as well as any of the larger city stores. All these advantages gained through the foresight of the managers of both stores. Had they not the ability to see what was in store in the merchandising field, Manchester could not boast of such reliable houses. To these business leaders goes the credit for such outstanding stores as House's and Hale's.

Since the founding of the J. W. Hale Company, the story of these two firms is similar in many respects. Thirty-five years ago when Hale's new company was organized these two stores began to occupy the same business block. As the town grew and business likewise grew the two businesses expanded apace. When a disastrous fire wiped out the House and Hale block in April 1909, both firms faced the same problem of rebuilding. Both occupied temporary quarters together and both went into their new building at Main and Oak streets together.

Grow Together
During the more prosperous year that came after the war period both stores expanded again. Both took on new lines, added more employees and otherwise increased their business and their bid for greater patronage here and outside the town. It gradually became an established fact that as shoppers visited House's they also visited Hale's and vice versa.

The disastrous fire of April 1909. Following the fire House's and Hale's erected a temporary structure to the rear of their property on the present site of the Circle theater. This was occupied for about a year or until the present structure was completed. Although not containing as many floors as the former block the new building was the very last word in modern building construction at that time. It still is modern in every way and amply houses the two great stores.

Romance
There's romance in always striving to improve. Meeting the new problems the future brings. There's romance in just being able to do things so that the customer is satisfied and gives a pleasant smile to assure his complete satisfaction—the kind of romance that follows doing a job well.

Civic Responsibility
There's romance in civic responsibility—in always meeting the demands of the townfolk that their stores live up to the high standards the nearby city sets.

Early History
The early history of the Hale store is nothing more or less than the history of Justus W. Hale. The 1870's saw this genial storekeeper first dealing with the public as a partner of George F. Day in their store on Charter Oak street. The partnership of Hale and Day was as famous 40 years ago as in the House and Hale partnership today. The Charter Oak store gave way to the new Hale and Day store in the Park building. Department store was little heard of in those old days. The Hale and Day business was in dry goods. Yard after yard of textiles lined the walls awaiting the purchaser to convert them into wearables. Ready made dresses were yet to be sold.

F. H. Anderson
Thirty-five years ago when the J. W. Hale Company was organized the store immediately assumed the leadership in the quality of enterprise that Hale and Day had displayed. Justus W. Hale had under his tutelage a young man who was to further this enterprise and to expand Hale's until it held a commanding influence among the department stores of Connecticut. That young man was Frank H. Anderson who this past week celebrated his 27th year with Hale's. Starting in his labors with J. W. Hale as an errand boy Frank Anderson took over the duty after another until he learned merchandising from beginning to end. No task was too difficult and no job too big. He aimed to learn the business and learn it he did.

House's History
House's was actually established in 1853. The late Edwin M. House was a custom tailor. His first tailor shop was on Charter Oak street, but where the building has gone is not known and there are no photographs of it known to be in existence. From 1860 until 1880 during which period Charles E. House, the present secretary-treasurer of the firm and the oldest merchant in town, apprenticed himself to his father, the House business was located in a small store on Charter Oak street a picture of which is among C. E. House's proudest possessions.

Grow Together
In 1880 Edwin M. House and his son Charles took store at Main and Oak streets. In 1885 with the passing of the founder of the line Charles E. House became the actual head of the firm. The building was added to in 1890 and it became a real up-to-date men's store.

Grow Together
It was in 1897 that Justus W. Hale and Charles E. House decided to erect a modern three-story brick business block at Main and Oak streets. Shaded in the plans was provision for a fine lodge or meeting hall. King David Lodge of Odd Fellows took the lodge room for its quarters and remained there until the disastrous fire of April 1909. Following the fire House's and Hale's erected a temporary structure to the rear of their property on the present site of the Circle theater. This was occupied for about a year or until the present structure was completed. Although not containing as many floors as the former block the new building was the very last word in modern building construction at that time. It still is modern in every way and amply houses the two great stores.

Ballplayer Shot
Chicago, July 6.—(AP)—William Jurgas, shortstop for the Chicago Cubs, was shot in a north side hotel today. With two bullet wounds in the side, he was taken to Illinois Masonic hospital. A physician said his condition was "pretty good," and that he probably would live. The shooting occurred in the Carlos hotel. A young woman was found wounded in the same room with the young ball player. Police said they were told she shot him and then wounded herself. The affair occurred shortly before noon. The girl, unidentified and not seriously hurt, was taken to the hospital also. Jurgas came to the Cubs last year and was farmed out to Reading, Pa. He has been playing regularly in his second season.

OFFICIALS TO GATHER
Hartford, July 6.—(AP)—Secretary George I. Allen of the State Executives' Association has sent notices to members of the annual meeting of the association to be held at Rocky Park on Friday, July 15. The business meeting with election of officers will be held at noon.

THEATERS AT THE STATE
"Society Girl"
James Dunn and Peggy Shannon in "Society Girl," and Nancy Carroll in "Wayward" are the featured attractions at the State today and Thursday.

Society Girl, a thoroughly entertaining picture, bids fair to push the reputations of its principals a good many steps up the ladder of film fame. James Dunn as a hopeful young middleweight, Spencer Tracy as his alert manager and Peggy Shannon as a thrill-seeking society girl, all give impressive performances. The story, a delightful romance, has the heroine shying from wedding bells. With an unobscured public opinion quite in keeping with the attitude of the smart set which she represents, Miss Shannon brazenly leads Dunn on in a heart affair that is manifestly but a passing whim with her. Dunn, a youngster from the masses as where more old-fashioned standards are still in vogue, considers being in love and wanting to marry somewhat the same thing. Around this central point of difference, the dramatic conflict of the picture mounts through a vivid series of adventures that will keep any audience in a high state of humor. Nancy Carroll has a marvelous cast in her support in "Wayward." Pauline Frederick, Richard Arlen and John Lital have the leading supporting roles. "Wayward" is an adaptation of the popular novel, "Wild Beauty," and is the story of a poor, but beautiful girl, who marries the son of a wealthy family. The family is very opposed to the match, and the ensuing complications make up a picture that Moscow, July 6.—(AP)—An unofficial move to reopen the question of formal recognition by the United States of the Soviet government was under way here today and there was reason to believe it was being met with favor by Soviet officials.

The move was made by Col. Frederick Pope, New York industrialist acting in private capacity. Pope presented to Soviet officials a suggestion that the United States send an unofficial commissioner to Russia as a preliminary to negotiations for the establishment of normal relations between the two countries.

Pope is expected to return to the United States this month. The prospect was that he would renew his conversations there.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CHERRY DIXON, pretty 19-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, falls in love with DAN PHILLIPS, newspaper reporter. She quarrels with her father, but Dan and she, taking advantage of Leap Year, asks Dan to marry her. They are married and move into a cheap apartment. Cherry's struggles with housework are discouraging. DR. SHANNON, movie critic of the News, is friendly with Cherry. She meets handsome MAX PEARSON, also of the news.

After several weeks Cherry's mother becomes seriously ill. The girl is called home and there is a reconciliation with her parents but pride will not allow her to accept financial aid from them. When Mrs. Dixon is stronger she and her husband leave. For several months at the seashore.

Cherry and Dan are invited to a swimming party at a nearby resort. Dan is delayed and Cherry starts with Pearson. A storm overtakes them and while they are waiting for it to pass he tells her he loves her. They finally reach home but after that Cherry avoids Pearson.

BRENDA VAIL, magazine writer, comes to Wellington. Dan meets her and she asks him to collaborate with her on a play. Dan spends most of his evenings at Miss Vail's apartment. He and Cherry plan an evening together but a telephone call comes for Dan from Miss Vail.

NO GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVI

Dan put down the telephone. "I'm sorry," he said. "Guess we'll have to see the Casseys some other night. That was Brenda calling. She's just had a new idea for the ending of the first act. Wants me to come over and rewrite what we did last night."

"Couldn't it wait until tomorrow?"

"Why, Cherry, I can't very well ask Brenda to wait. It's a big opportunity for me, you know. It's not every author who'd be willing to collaborate with a person entirely unknown. If she wants to work on the play tonight I think it up to me to be there."

"I suppose you're right," Cherry said slowly. "You'll have to go."

Dan disappeared into the dressing room. A few minutes later he was back, pulling the ends of his tie through to make a neat knot. "Listen, Cherry," he said, "why don't you come along with me?"

"You mean go with you to Miss Vail's?"

"Sure. Maybe we'll be through early and we can pick up somebody at the office for a game of bridge. Or we might go to a movie."

Cherry shook her head. "No, I guess I'll stay at home."

"But why don't you come? You said you'd be in the house all day. It would be good for you to get out."

Cherry was not to be persuaded. "You go," she said. "If Mrs. Moreau's upstairs I'll go up and talk to her. I'd like to have her see if I've cut that dress out the way I should."

Ten minutes later Dan was gone. Cherry hesitated before she finally took the folds of yellow cloth over her arm and went upstairs to wrap on the door of the Moreaus' apartment. Why should she feel jealous of Brenda Vail, this woman who was almost a stranger? What did it matter to Cherry if Dan spent so many evenings with Miss Vail? They were writing a play—the play that was to make Dan known to the world as a talented young author.

"I should be grateful," Cherry told herself. "She's doing what I can't for Dan—helping him make a name and a place for himself. It means everything for me, too. Money. The sort of life we've dreamed of. Happiness! Dan could never be happy with things as they are now. He's too ambitious. Oh, I should be glad Miss Vail came to Wellington and glad she's staying!"

Somehow, although she told herself all this several times, she could not quite believe it. Not a single thing had happened to plant in Cherry's mind the seed of jealousy and yet the restless, troublesome thing was there.

Dan did not come home early that evening or the next. He told Cherry enthusiastically that at last the play was progressing. Two acts were almost completed. The third, which was to be the last act, was going to be difficult to handle. There was so much about the mechanics of writing for the stage of which he was ignorant. Brenda seemed to know enough. If the play really "clicked" the credit would be Brenda's.

"She's great!" he assured Cherry with glowing eyes. "Brenda knows life. She's as different from the sort of people you meet around here as day is from night."

It was on such occasions that the green-eyed goddess asserted itself. Cherry would remain silent to keep the bitter thoughts from her lips. Dan did not seem to notice how much of the time Cherry was silent.

There were evenings Dan did not spend working with Brenda. Occasionally Miss Vail had other engagements. Once some friends came for her and drove her to a town 50 miles away. She spent two days there, returning to tell Dan that she had been horribly bored. She managed, without saying so, to convey the impression that the time had been dull because she had missed understanding companionship.

There were other evenings when Dan had assignments or was busy at the office. He telephoned to Cherry on a night when he had been working late. It was almost 9 o'clock.

"Listen, honey," he said. "Max and I are going to stop for you in 15 minutes. Can you be ready? It's a grand night and we're going to drive out to the harbor, place a coat on the Stover, better have a coat—it's cool out. Yes, we'll be there in 15 minutes. Twenty at the latest."

The 20 minutes were not yet up when the roadster halted before the apartment house. Cherry came down the steps wearing a knitted sweater suit. It was brown and pulled close over her head was a scarlet beret. She looked unusually childish, unusually attractive.

Cherry called "Hello!" gaily and stepped into the roadster. She had not seen Max Pearson since the night of their drive through the storm.

His greeting was friendly, casual. Dan wanted to know if Cherry was sure she would be warm enough and she said that she was. A moment more and they were off down the street.

The week had brought the first foretaste of autumn weather. There was a sharp nip in the air and once as they neared the limits of the city with the odor of burning grass came to them. It must have been the first fall bonfire. Overhead the sky was almost black and the stars gleamed with chill, bright frigidly.

Cherry felt Dan's arm around her and snuggled close. She was glad that she had worn the woolly sweater suit. The cold wind struck against her cheeks and sent her blood chattering. It was good to be riding through the night. It was good to have Dan at her side. Suddenly in the darkness Cherry's worries and problems slipped away.

Her fingers found Dan's hand, slipped into it. He was saying something she could not hear because of the wind. Cherry laughed and turned her head.

"I said we hadn't driven out on this road since June. Remember? Max brought us that night, too."

Cherry nodded. The memory of that spring night was still sweet. All the happiness she had known with Dan suddenly came crowding back. Oh, how could she have thought for one moment that anything could affect her love for Dan or his for her? Of course it was nonsense. She had been making herself unhappy over nothing. Nothing was wrong and nothing would ever take Dan away from her!

Pearson was talking now. He had to raise his voice so as to be heard above the wind. Cherry did not even listen or hear Dan's reply. She was glad the conversation was about something at the office about which they would not expect her to express an opinion.

"They were riding along a well-lighted highway. Presently, far ahead, an electric sign loomed up."

"That's the place," Pearson told them. "Go and I were out last week. Elegant fried chicken they serve. That is if you're in the mood for fried chicken—which I certainly am!"

"Chill for mine," Dan announced. "Gave 'em a good bowl of hot chili for ages."

"Why do they call it a barbecue?" Cherry wanted to know. "It looks just like any other place to eat."

"They had reached the lighted building. A dozen cars were parked by the road side. There were more in an enclosed space at the other side of the structure. Pearson brought the roadster to a halt and the three stepped to the ground."

"There's a theory," Max explained, "that those places actually barbecue their meat—cook it whole, you know, over a bed of coals. As a matter of fact I think their kitchens are just about like any other restaurant's. You get good food and not much service—which suits most folks when they're driving."

They entered the long low building. Three men in white caps and aprons were serving customers who sat on high, swivel stools or lounged against the counter. There were two girls with escorts at one end of the room. The other customers were men.

One of the men behind the counter was making sandwiches. Another was filling cups of coffee for a tray that was evidently to be carried to customers waiting outside in a car.

Cherry and Dan and Max found places at the counter. They ordered their orders and were served almost immediately. The hot coffee was strong and delicious, the chicken

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton BY NEA SERVICE INC.

DON'T FORGET THE CHILD, UNCLE SAM!

If Congress votes the five billion dollars for relief of employment, it is a matter of conjecture about what shall be done with the money.

The different states will probably be apportioned their pro rata share to use in building or construction work as they see fit.

In the meantime, the states are endeavoring to put through emergency programs of their own in various ways.

What kind of building will be undertaken by these government bodies? Everyone is wondering. Will men be put to work on new buildings? Will roads be started that otherwise would have to wait for years? Will water fronts be cleaned up and beautified? Will bridges and dams be constructed that cannot be financed by the rivers and harbors appropriation?

Probably all of these things will come in for their share of puffing hard times behind us, and giving men work. Perhaps I am counting chickens too soon, for Congress is still thinking over that little sum of money. Have you ever stopped to think what five billion dollars means, or two, or one?

However—in case I am going to put my word in here and now for the children.

Many of the new enterprises would be carried on in cities. And children live in cities, millions of them. And they die in cities. A great many of them because they have no place to play but the street.

Many because they have no place to cool off but in the river.

Drownings Are Numerous

So far to date this year there have been hundreds of drownings among children. And the summer is not even well started.

Pick up any paper of any city at random and read where one or six children have been drowned the day before in a lake or river the only place they could cool off after a hot restless night in their tenement or back-street rooms.

We inoculate against diphtheria and smallpox, we fuss about adenoids and tonsils and pay doctors to sit schools to look over general health conditions. We pay boards of health to keep down epidemics. But we do not think of automobile accidents or drownings except in terms of drivers and parents.

We need—not one or two city pools, in every city, where the children cannot reach them, but many neighborhood pools. A vacant lot, some piping and concrete does not cost so very much.

Whoever handles these embryo appropriations will, I hope, not forget our children.

delicately tender. Though the portions were huge Cherry finished every crumb.

"Putting a drop of time on it, I suppose," Pearson asked easily.

"Every minute I can spare. You know I had no idea there was so much work to it. It's not just writing, it's being on the feet. It's rough and planning how it's to go."

"How about the collaboration?" Pearson wanted to know. "Do you both write and put your work together or how do you manage it?"

"Oh, we just talk together and work it out. I sit at the typewriter and do the actual writing but Brenda has most of the ideas."

"I see. What do you think of the play, Cherry?"

The girl laughed. "I don't know a thing about it. Dan's keeping the whole thing a surprise until it's finished."

"Seems to me you might be rather a valuable critic," Pearson said.

Cherry had been avoiding his eyes but now she looked at him. There was nothing in his manner to suggest that impetuous night of the storm. Cherry was not quite comfortable in Max's presence and she glanced away quickly.

"Say, there's something I wish you'd do," Dan was saying. "It's darned lonesome for Cherry with me spending so much time working. Drop in to see her now and then, and we'll just talk together and Cherry doesn't see enough people or get out as often as she should."

Pearson's hesitation was almost imperceptible. He said, "Why—yes, of course. I'll be glad to come to see her. Any time that I'm welcome."

"Welcome!" Dan grinned. "Say, I guess you know you're welcome any time at our place. Isn't he, Cherry?"

The girl said "Certainly." Her eyes did not meet Pearson's again. (To Be Continued)

Pioneer Horsewoman

Mrs. E. H. Harriman, widow of the late railroad magnate, has the distinction of being one of the first women; if not the actual pioneer, to venture into light harness sport. She holds the woman's record for pacing over a mile course. She is able to give an accurate appraisal of a horse's worth by a superficial examination, veteran horsemen say.

Aviation is playing its part in the feminine as well as the masculine element of the family of Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics of the Navy. Miss Beverly Moffett, daughter of the aviation head, has taken up flying and is proving as proficient as her two brothers, who also fly.

Miss Josephine Robbs, president of a Colorado coal company in which her father was formerly an industrial factor, has been unusually successful in promoting friendship between capital and labor in her mines.

The majority of the clubs in the association were built through her earlier efforts.

Sisters Are Painters

Elena and Bertha de Hellebrandt, who have earned a reputation for their painting, have made portraits of the late Nicholas Longworth, Peabody Longworth, Senator Borah, Countess Schenck and Hortby, the Regent of Hungary. Their work includes figure subjects, still life and landscapes as well as portraits. The two sisters, who came from Budapest, work side by side, using the same subjects generally.

Popularize Brazil Library

Miss Adelpa C. S. Rodrigues, who was the first trained woman librarian in Brazil, has made the George Alexander Library of Macassar College, at Sao Paulo, where she is in charge, so popular that its daily attendance surpasses that of the national and state public libraries. Miss Rodrigues studied at the Columbia School of Library Service in New York City, and did practical laboratory work in the Brooklyn Public Library, whose methods she has adopted to her own college work.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

LEARN THE ART OF USING PERFUME

No matter how tangled the air may be with honeysuckle and rain-wet lilacs and rose petals, if you don't have a drop or two of some fragrance that is peculiarly your own, you aren't living up to all the features of the beauty program.

There are three important steps in choosing a perfume. Choose one that is pleasing. Make sure that it will linger with you. And learn how to apply it.

There are some women who remind others of the hand-maidens of Pharaoh who grew up along the Nile. They call for exotic fragrances. There are others that have the gingham-grown ingenu charm that the summer is revived. Old-fashioned fragrances that belong to somebody's garden where the flowers grew in nice even rows should cling to such girls.

Some women need sophisticated perfumes. Others don't. However, in summer as a rule a light fragrance is better. It is cooler, cleaner, and more restful.

When you have decided on the type of perfume that you should use, test it out. One famous perfume manufacturer places a drop at a time, of various fragrances, on the wrist of a customer. After a while, all will have disappeared but one. The one that lingers, he explains, is best suited to the personality and skin of the user, and should be her choice.

Do not put perfume on your clothing. It reacts differently on silk, wools and furs. You may not care for its effect at all when you have touched it to a frock.

Place a drop back of each ear. When you dance partner bends to kiss you, some ridiculous thing to you he will note the subtle appeal the perfume possesses. Put a portion of a drop in the hollow of your neck. And see that your lips have the rest of that drop.

Never make the perfume stand out. Make it slowly grow on the people around you. Don't startle them with it. Perfume, to be enchanting, must be subtle. A lilac fragrance, just a whiff as though a cool breeze blew over a row of bushes that were trembling in the rain, exercises ever so much more appeal than the sudden mad rush of wild poppies which leaps at you and suffocates. There are proportions to everything—even the use of perfume.

COLOR BLINDNESS IS FOUND HIGHER IN YOUNGER STUDENTS

AMES, Iowa.—(AP)—Martin F. Fritz of the Iowa State college department of psychology has examined 2,163 students here for color blindness and found color defective vision in 8.8 per cent of the freshmen, 4.9 per cent of graduate men, .6 per cent of freshman women and none among graduate women.

He declares it is difficult to explain the lower percentage of color blindness among graduate students, but says "this may have something to do with the fact that 92 of the 94 color-blind freshmen are distributed 80 in the upper half and 12 in the lower half of the freshman aptitude test."

Fritz adds, however, that "a few of the color-blind students have a high rating on the aptitude test."

More than half of the students reported they were wholly unaware of their visual difficulty and did not suspect any abnormality.

THE PERILS OF HARES

Delay in Taking Treatment Greatest Danger After Bite by Dog

BY DR. MORRIS FREEDMAN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

In the summer come the "dog days," so-called because for many years it was believed that the danger from mad dogs was greater in summer than at any other time.

Of course, there is no good evidence to support this point of view, but bites of mad dogs can take place at any time. They are likely to be more frequent from April to September than from October to March, because dogs run loose more often and more generally in the spring and summer time than they do in the winter.

In a recent consideration of this subject, the commissioner of health of Oklahoma found that the state laboratory examined 374 heads of animals that transmitted rabies or hydrophobia during the first half of 1932, and 189 of the animals concerned were found to be infected with the disease.

When a mad dog bites another dog or another animal or a human being, the disease is transmitted by the saliva which contains the poisonous virus.

The time when the disease attacks is from 14 days on, the average period in man necessary for the development of the disease being 48 days. Rabies is primarily a disease of dogs; however, it can also affect any other animal. Contrary to common belief, it is rare in cats.

Health officers now recognize that it is the stray and homeless dog that is more frequently responsible for transmitting this disease.

The dog that is kept as a good home is usually watched carefully, kept from contact with savage dogs, and not so likely to be involved as the one that runs free. However, any dog may suddenly bite a human being under provocation or without provocation.

Because of the terrible possibilities of rabies there is only one course to follow after a dog bite: the animal should be penned up or kept secured for at least 10 days, during which time it will either die or develop symptoms of hydrophobia. If it has the disease, should the animal show symptoms, the Pasteur treatment should be begun immediately.

In case a person has been bitten on the face, neck or head, it is advisable to try to be involved in the treatment at once without even waiting to see whether or not the animal develops symptoms because of the special danger associated with bites in these regions.

Far too often "home remedies" called to kill a dog suspected of hydrophobia the dog is shot in the head or the head crushed with a club. This should not be done because it is difficult for a laboratory to make a satisfactory examination when the brain has been injured. The diagnosis is made by finding the Negri bodies in stained specimens taken from the brain.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

HOW 3 NOVELS CAN LAST YOU ALL THE YEAR

The mystery story is, of all novels the one best adapted for summer reading. You see, a week after you've read the average mystery you have completely forgotten everything in it, so you can read it over again and have just as much fun as you did the first time. That way, three or four books will last you all summer.

One of the current mysteries you might like is "Murder on Monday," by Charles Barry (Dutton, $2). This has to do with an English betting agent who made a freak will, by which his estate would go to one relative if he died on Tuesday, and to another if he found dead in a quarry after he disappeared in a snowstorm, and the questions are—when did he die, and who did it? It's pretty well handled, easy to read and hard to figure out.

Then "The Fiddlers' Puddle," by W. E. M. Ferguson (Liveright, $2), which tells about a maimed war veteran and a series of murders in his house. It's highly ingenious, and if it isn't very readable it will at least keep you awake.

Carolyn Wells fans may be glad to know that Lippincott has put out "The Omnibus Fleming Stone" for $2.50. This contains, in one volume, four novels: "Clucky Van," "Spooky Hollow," "The Mystery of the Sycamore" and "The Curved Blades." Fleming Stone is not my favorite detective, but a lot of people seem to like him—and here he is, in all his glory.

The more Congress battles over the Economy bill, the more it is apparent that Congress can't save anything but the farmer.

Trial Finals Next For Manchester Boy

Fordham Flash Clocked At 9:29.8 In Yesterday's Race; Nordell of N. Y. U. Places Second; Much Stronger Opposition Expected In Palo Alto Where Final Selections For United States Olympic Team Will Take Place July 15-16.

Berkeley, Cal., July 6.—With another obstacle removed from his path to the Olympics as a result of his steeplechase victory in the semi-final tryouts here yesterday, Joe McCluskey, Fordham's great runner, boarded a train today enroute for Palo Alto where the final selections for the United States Olympic team will be made.

McCluskey experienced little difficulty in defeating the field late yesterday afternoon in the 3,000 meter steeplechase, his favorite event, but lack of strong opposition prevented him from setting any new record or even coming close. His time of 9:29.8 is well above the existing record either abroad or in America. Nordell Places Second

It was obvious, however, that McCluskey purposely refrained from exerting himself when it wasn't necessary. Frank Nordell of N. Y. U., a miler who turned to the steeplechase at the last opportunity, placed second to McCluskey and Brendan Moynihan of Boston College was third.

McCluskey's next and last obstacle before the Olympics will be the final steeplechase tryouts to be held in Palo Alto on July 15 or 16 at which time the winners of other sectional semi-final steeplechase events will compete for berths on the U. S. team. The first three to finish will represent Uncle Sam in the Olympics on August 6.

Leonard Is Coming

While McCluskey had matters pretty much his own way here yesterday as he did in the defense of his two mile intercollegiate title three days previously, the general feeling here is that he will have to give his best in the finals and that the time will be much faster due to much stronger opposition.

Among the others who will face the Fordham athlete are Lt. George Leonard, former West Point star, who recently set a new American steeplechase record and then broke it again a few days later in the semi-final Olympic trials at Boston. Leonard is considered McCluskey's most dangerous rival in this country.

Then there is Henry Brockmeyer of Indiana, another formidable rival who has been traveling at a very fast clip in the two mile. While he may select the 5,000 meter flat race, it is understood here that he will make his try in the steeplechase instead. The vanguard of athletes from all over the United States began to trickle into Palo Alto today but the bulk of the semi-final event winners is not expected for a week or two.

OTHER WINNERS

Berkeley, Calif., July 6.—(AP)—The Olympic 400 meter hurdle record was bettered here yesterday as 13 athletes qualified to compete in final trials for the 1932 United States Olympic team.

Victor Burke of Georgetown University, national champion in that event, skinned the barriers in 53.2 seconds to clip two tenths of a second off the game's mark of 53.4 seconds. "Red" record of Harvard finished second. Jimmy Healey of New York University took the second heat of the hurdles in 54.2.

Dean Dean, Pennsylvania, won the 5,000 meters in a close battle with John Kearns, Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Dean won by five yards in 15 minutes and 13.1 seconds.

George Barker, N.Y.U., finished the 10,000 meters in 52:11.2 with John Ryan, Manhattan, a split second behind. Both qualified.

Joseph P. McCluskey, Fordham won the three thousand meter meter

Here are the American Olympic winners of 24 years ago, showing Mel Sheppard, in circle, who is writing for The Herald a series of articles on Olympic deeds of the past and our 1932 chances.

Murphy and Halpin. In the next row, sitting, are Hamilton, Carpenter, Porter, Daniels, Sheridan, Sheppard and Cook. Irons, Dole and Gilbert are in the bottom row. event of which the English had been especially proud. I praised that British record, almost equally with the Olympic title, chiefly because it was evidence of the good feeling of the English who had made it possible.

I recall the incident at Antwerp in 1920 when Ewell Rudd, great British middle-distance runner, happened to bump Lieutenant Don Scott of the American team on a turn. Rudd turned for the fraction of a second that it took him to say "Beg pardon, Scott," and thereby very likely cost himself the 800-meter title.

I can recall also the threatened fare-up that followed the Dorado-Johnny Hayes incident in the marathon at London in 1908. I can recall other incidents, none of great importance, which were emphasized out of proportion by critics of the Olympics.

In my mind, these incidents have proved that highly-trained athletes brought together after months of work and striving for a prize that momentarily is the only thing in their lives, are only human. A complacent athlete, an athlete who lacks toughness when the big test comes, is not a well-trained athlete.

I recall also a remark made to some of us by President Theodore Roosevelt when he received the American team at his Oyster Bay home on our return. "You have been under a tremendous strain for a few weeks. You have represented us well. You were greeted as heroes the other day as you landed. That is, bully. Go on your regular basis for 10 day more. You have earned it. Then forget you are athletic heroes and settle down into your less exciting life that counts in its day-by-day accomplishments."

Some of us perhaps found it a little hard to follow that advice at the time. But now, 24 years later, I can tell the members of the new American team that it was excellent advice.

ARGUE OVER TIME

San Francisco, July 6.—(AP)—Accusations of "slow timing," and charges of "a plot to show up western clockers" flew today in the wake of the intercollegiate track and field championships held at Berkeley last Friday and Saturday.

Some newspaper sportswriters commented on the "inefficiency" of the timing. The most bitter blast came from R. L. "Dink" Templeton, track coach of Stanford University and a staff writer for the Call-Bulletin.

"I do not think it was a wise move on the part of the east to enter into a conspiracy to attempt to show up the west timers," Templeton wrote.

Templeton based his protest on the time 9.9 seconds credited to Frank Wykoff, of the University of Southern California, in winning the finals of the 100 yard dash. Wykoff is an applicant for a new world's record of 9.4 and is joint holder of the recognized mark of 9.5.

"Wykoff ran as good a race as he ever ran in his life and was given 9.9," Templeton said.

"There was hardly a man entered in the high hurdles who couldn't run 15 seconds or better yet Gene Record of Harvard, who won the championship for the third straight time, getting a beautiful start and running in perfect form, was given a bare 15 flat."

OLYMPICS GIVE GREAT THRILLS TO CONTESTANTS

Inspire Athletes On To Greatest Achievements, Mel Sheppard Writes In Series Opener.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of 13 articles by Mel Sheppard, former middle-distance star and hero of the 1908 and other Olympics. Sheppard, now a noted coach, discusses the great athletic deeds of yesterday and the United States chances in the 1932 games at Los Angeles.

By MELVIN W. SHEPPARD Former American Middle Distance Star and Olympic Winner

Several days later came the final of the 800 meters in which I had been installed as the outstanding favorite. I had won both the American and Canadian half-mile titles in the two preceding years with performances which made it appear likely I could not only win the Olympic 800 meters but also better the British 800-yard record if given the opportunity.

Without suggestion on my part or that of the American team managers, the Englishmen who were taking a leading part in the direction of the games made plans for me to try for their half-mile record as well as for the Olympic title. At the 800-yard mark, about five yards beyond the 800 meters finish, they erected a tape and stationed three English timers. I won the 800 meters for a new Olympic record of 1:52.4, displacing the old mark of 1:56, and then ran through to the half-mile post in 1:54, creating a new British amateur record in an

CANADIAN OPEN A U. S. AFFAIR

Ottawa, July 6.—(AP)—Players from the United States have captured the Canadian Open golf championship without a break since the war and Canada's chances of breaking through in the 1932 classic starting here tomorrow appear slim indeed.

Except for Gene Sarazen, British and American Open champion, virtually everyone of the United States team is entered. Among them are Walter Hagen, defending titleholder; Leo Diegel, MacDonald Smith, Al Watrous and Tommy Armour, all former champions; Bill Burke, Horton Smith, Johnny Farrell and George Von Elm.

St. John followed with a single, Dixon with a triple and before the limping ended five Gem players had stomped home plate with runs. The Holy Name came back fighting to score two runs thus making the final score 6 to 3. Dowd and Stratton, two of the five Manchester players on the Gems, did not play full games, dividing their leftfield and second base assignments with Al Huban and Duffy Lewis.

West Side League Wide Open Battle

All Four Teams In Frenzied Fight; Atlas and Pilots Play 4-4 Deadlock Last Night; Hewitt, Hedlund Pitch Well.

There will be a meeting of the West Side Club tonight at 7 o'clock at the West Side Recreation Center and all members are asked to attend. Action will be taken on the resignation of Johnny Fellewald as manager.

George Stavitsky, who tied Bert McConkey's strikeout record in the West Side League by winning five consecutive games, came out of the slump last night in the Atlas-Pilots game. After fanning the dirt two times to equal McConkey's recent feat, he flied to deep center and then cracked a single over second. George had not been playing this season which explains his slump at the outset.

Paul Ballisoper won his second round match in the President's Cup golf play at the Country Club yesterday beating Sam Alvord 5 and 3. No other matches were played.

College Crews To Row For Olympics Tomorrow

Worcester, Mass., July 4 (AP)—The crews that have gathered at Lake Umbagog to view the trials of Olympic eight-oared crew contenders are backing Harvard and California, respective rulers of the Thames and the Poughkeepsie, as the most dangerous competitors. The old timers base their faith in the Eastern Crimson-bladed oarsmen and the far western Californian Golden Bears on the fact that both showed their best form late in the season and the belief that both were still improving.

SPORT SLANTS

Wimbledon has never proved much so far as American Davis Cup chances are concerned, at least in recent years. Edith Rogers, who was runner-up in the women's singles, was defeated by a Frenchman in the final, but she was a different Cochet who turned back the U. S. challenge later in Paris.

Again this year Cochet was an early round victim, this time at the hands of an Englishman, Ian Collins, but anyone who thinks the British has had his admirers upset by the defeat of their Wightman Cup team in women's tennis.

Of course when Duncy found that he had caved the horse in, he said, "Geel! I really didn't mean to spoil the fun that was in store. I thought that I could take a ride upon the funny-looking hide. I promise I'll behave and not pull mean tricks any more."

GAS BUGGIES-When an Inch Looks Like a Mile

SENSE AND NONSENSE

SMILES
When everything is breaking bad
You'll find it worth your while
If you just hump your shoulders
And take it with a smile.
No matter if the road is rough,
If each step seems a mile,
Just lift your face up to the sun
And take it with a smile.
Good times are sure to come again
So buck up, don't give in,
And in the end you'll find a laugh
Where just a smile has been.

SPORTS: Man always seems decent when he's generous and almost always seems rude when he's in hot pursuit of a profit. . . . The best kind of pride is that which compels a man to do his best work, even though no one is looking. . . . If we do less than our best for two months, we'll find ourselves doing work we are ashamed of at the end of three months. . . . A depression is a period when people are obliged to do without things their forefathers never had. . . . If the rush increases we'll soon hear of commutation tickets being sold on the railroad between New York and Reno. . . .
Times haven't changed much. . . . at first man fell for the apple. . . . now he's falling for the peaches. . . .
Fools rush in where fools have been before. . . . When your enemy is too big to whip you should forgive him.
"All the world's a stage," with each actor crowding for a space in the spotlight. . . . Our idea of a horrible example is that one in arithmetic on which we flunked.

They were stopping at a big hotel, floor all the doors looked alike. She stopped at what she thought was pered:

The Wife—I'm back honey. Let me in.
No answer.
The Wife—Honey, Oh, Honey, I say I'm back!
Still no answer.
The Wife—Oh, say Honey, let me
in! You hear me, honey?
Strange Man's Voice (bellowing)
—Madam, this is not a beehive. This is a bath room.

Says Able—Cohen, I've been to the bank to borrow some money, and they say all I need is that you should sign to this note your name.
Then I can have all the money I need. Ain't they fine?
Says Cohen (reproachfully) —
Able, you and I have been friends for many years, and yet you go to a bank when you need money. Able, you just go again to the bank and say that they should sign the note, and then Cohen will lend you the money.

Teacher—Harold, in the sentence,
"I saw the girl climb the fence," how many I's would you use?
Harold—Both of them, teacher.

Gertrude—When I said good-bye

On July 6, 1918, Italian and French troops in Albania started the Balkan campaign, beginning a drive between the coast and the Tomorica valley.
Italian troops were jubilant and ready for further action along this front when they learned that fellow soldiers had finally completely expelled Austrians from the western bank of the Piave river.
Austrians and Americans, doubling up on a front northeast of Villers-Bretonneux, advanced along a range of almost a mile. Americans also successfully repulsed a raid at Xivray.

man ambassador to Russia, was assassinated by two Social Revolutionists.

CHAMBER COLFERS MAY ARRANGE OWN DATES

Not Necessary To Play On Day Specified If Impossible To Be Present Then.

Although the Chamber of Commerce golf tournament will not open officially until Wednesday afternoon, July 13, the committee has ruled that in cases where members desire to enter the tournament who cannot play on this particular day, matches can be arranged and the qualifying round may be played anytime between Sunday, July 10, and Sunday, July 17.

All members planning to enter the tournament should get in touch with the Chamber office or with the chairman of the golf tournament committee, Harry Benson, as soon as possible, so that the matches may be made up in advance and posted. It is expected that the tournament will continue for five weeks after the qualifying round.

The tournament is open to all members of the Chamber. Those who are also members of the Country Club will use their regular handicaps, others will be given a handicap by the Handicap Committee of the Country Club. The Board of Governors of the Club are cooperating with the Chamber in this tournament, setting a special greens fee of fifty cents a round to all who participate who are not members of the club.

This Has Happened Many Times All Over The Country! Withdraws Savings, Then Is Held Up. New Haven, July 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Rebecca Jaffe, operator of a poultry store and wife of Rabbi Abraham S. Jaffe, withdrew her money from a bank she feared might close, only to lose it to holdup men. While her husband and another man were in the next room, she reported, two men, both carrying revolvers, entered her store last night. One ordered her to turn over $300 from the cash register, while the other took $800 in a dress hanging on the wall. Mrs. Jaffe recently withdrew $500 from a local bank.
