The Story of Twelve Dry Years
Prohibition At The Crossroads
Wets Revise Strategy As Victory Over Dry Law Seems Nearer

THE TURNING OF THE TIDE against prohibition in 1932 is illustrated in the above picture, showing delegates at the recent Republican national convention as they demanded a repeal plank. This move failed, but a resubmission plan was inserted in the G. O. P. platform.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of four stories on the history of prohibition, made especially timely by the recent action of the Republican and Democratic national conventions.

By BRUCE CANTON
NEA Service Writer
Whether or not the end of prohibition as a national policy is actually any nearer today than it was in 1920 is something that only time—and, possibly, the coming election—can tell.

Wet Program Shaped
No longer are the wets simply demanding a change. They are getting down to cases now and offering specific suggestions as to the way in which a change should be brought about.

Some Want Plebiscite
There are still others who feel that before any change in the law is brought up for definite consideration there should be some sort of plebiscite, which Congress and the legislatures could look to for guidance.

Procedure in Doubt
The most obvious way, perhaps, is to have the wets try to get prohibition out of the constitution in the same way that the drys got it in—by constitutional amendment.

Advocates of this measure point out that even if the amendment were repealed, the old, pre-1918 state prohibition laws would remain in force. It is also true that a change in the old license laws would remain.

would also set up some new law to control the liquor traffic. This is the plan suggested in the Republican platform.

This group, of course, has a dozen different factions. Some favor a very simple federal law that would provide for state option. Others have elaborate schemes for federal ownership or control of the liquor traffic through government stores, dispensaries and what-not.

Some wets, and some drys also, would have any repeal proposition submitted in precisely the same way. But there is room for a lot of argument here.

There are still others who feel that before any change in the law is brought up for definite consideration there should be some sort of plebiscite, which Congress and the legislatures could look to for guidance.

Four Provisions in Tax Bill Hit Car Drivers; Autos, Tires and Gas May Bring $273,000,000

Washington, D. C., June 22.—In addition to sharing in 30-odd other forms of taxes incorporated in the current tax bill to appropriate $1,119,000,000 to help balance the budget, the poor motorist is made the object of four tax blows which are designed to relieve him of from $273,000,000 to $273,000,000.

ALTO AND ACCESSORIES $55,000,000

GASOLINE TAX $150,000,000

TIRES AND TUBES $33,000,000

LUBRICATING OILS $35,000,000

TOTAL TAX $273,000,000

The above sketch shows the amount of revenue expected to be realized through taxation of automotive products in the current budget balancing tax bill.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, July 16.—The "American Banker" says bank suspensions in the United States this week numbered thirty-five, an increase of eight over the previous week. Their deposits were estimated at $22,000,000. Three previously suspended institutions reopened.

Standard Statistics Co., reports 68 unfavorable dividend changes this week compared with 80 a week ago. There were nine favorable revisions against seven in the previous period.

Kennecott Copper Corp., has extended to September 15 its offer to exchange one of its shares of capital stock for two shares of Nevada Consolidated.

The 1932 Hawaiian Sugar Crop, estimated at 1,011,714 tons, is the largest in the island's history, trade reports say. A year ago production was 993,787 tons.

The Rubber Manufacturers' Association, Inc., reports that 4,268,116 pneumatic casings were shipped in May, an increase of 6.6 per cent over April but 2.7 per cent under May, 1931.

There was considerable conjecture in Wall Street as to what nation or nations had released $16,476,200 in gold from foreign markets here yesterday. Many bankers thought the transaction had been made by the Reichsbank as a means of providing the German Treasury with exchange to pay the $15,000,000 banking credit installment.

Four heat deaths in Wisconsin, two in Kansas, four in Minnesota, two in Indiana, one in North Dakota, together with nine drownings of relief seekers in Minnesota, Indiana and Iowa completed the fatality list.

LAUSANNE ACCORD TO BE DISCUSSED

modern day miracle," he said, "has sent a thrill through the nations of the world. Shall we let it pass? Or will the United States rise to a great opportunity?"

The Institute will be addressed by lecturers from England, France, Germany, Italy and the Far East. Arnold Toynbee of the Royal Institute of International Affairs, London, will present a British view of the world economic order and Professor T. E. Gregory of the London School of Economics is scheduled to discuss the financial outlook in England.

Other lecturers

Other foreign lecturers will be M. Pierre Loyutey, editor of La Journee Industrielle, Paris; Professor Herbert von Beckerath of Bonn University, Germany; and Dr. Luigi Villari, Rome, president.

Far Eastern problems will be set forth by Dr. Inaso Nitobe, member of the House of Peers and Imperial Academy of Japan, while the Chinese point of view will be presented by Dr. W. W. Yen, Chinese ambassador to the United States, and Dr. T. Z. Koo, vice president of the World's Student Christian Federation.

Political Subjects

"It will be noted," said Dr. Garfield, "that the lecturers hail from the six leading countries instrumental in bringing about the Lausanne accord. The announced subjects may appear to the casual reader as chiefly economic, but they are political as well as economic and bear directly upon the problems confronting the United States in dealing with the present depression.

"The Congress of the United States has declared that debts and reparations are two distinct and separate matters, but the people of the United States, in constantly increasing numbers, hold a different view. Bread and butter are separate and distinct things, but the man in the street perceives a relationship."

There also will be many round-table discussions on American relations with Latin America, western Europe and the Far East.

SEIZE SPEED BOAT

New London, July 16.—(AP)—The speed boat Madra was seized today as an alleged run runner near Jones Inlet, L. I., the Coast Guard here said today. The New York division reported the seizure and said that 500 sacks of liquor and three men were aboard the boat. The men were arrested.

Motor Hints

Timely Suggestions on the Care of the Car by the Automobile Club of Hartford.

Checks Vacuum Timer

Cars equipped with automatic spark advance of the vacuum type should be given a little different consideration when being checked over for efficiency. The first step is to raise the hood, run the engine and see if the advance arm moves as it should when the throttle is opened and closed.

With this type of control the advance depends upon the vacuum in the intake manifold and not upon engine speed. It is important, therefore, to keep the vacuum line and connections tight, as leakage will disturb the performance of the control.

One type of control retards the spark whenever the engine idles. This improves idling performance and is favored by some for free wheeling. A high vacuum at closed throttle acts on the diaphragm of the spark control, compressing its spring and thus retarding the spark. Additional advance is obtained by means of the centrifugal automatic mechanism in the usual way.

Oiling the Distributor

Because it needs but a small amount of lubricant most motorists think the distributor does not require much consideration. The truth is, this is one unit of the car which is especially fussy about its diet.

If a distributor shaft carries a spiral groove it usually can get along with less lubricant, since the groove tends to distribute the oil.

There is, moreover, considerable difference between different cars, so far as the distributor is concerned. On most of them a few drops of oil every 2,000 miles is sufficient. On others a grease cup is provided, and in some cases where greasing is called for a special hard grease is needed, rather than the usual cup grease.

Stops Wire Overloading

Occasionally a motorist adds so much equipment to his car that there isn't sufficient current to take care of the load. When this happens there is automatic protection for the wiring circuits, battery and switch, but it is well to know just how this takes place.

On some cars protection is by means of fuses which burn out and must be replaced. On others a circuit breaker, or a current limit relay, sets up a buzzing or clicking sound as a warning. This latter device automatically cuts off the flow of current intermittently. With either a circuit breaker or a fuse the system is also protected against the heavy current drain of a short or ground.

Know When Clutch Slips

To an experienced driver it is never a difficult job to tell the difference between a clutch that slips and a stalling motor, but many motorists who are not mechanically inclined fail to discover the distinction. This is largely due to the fact that after a clutch has started slipping the speed of the car slows down until the motor stalls through overwork.

When a clutch slips the motor will keep running at a fairly good speed while the car slows down. Then, should the clutch hold at all the car will be running so slowly as to stall the motor. If the driver tries to get going without shifting to low, many motors are needlessly carved into just because their owners tell mechanics that the power plant failed to pull, when it was just a case of the clutch failing to transmit the power.

Chronic slippage is generally due to failure to have the clutch adjusted when the first signs of slippage are detected.

Out Speed for Economy

Motorism has had its little laugh over the man who drove fast, when his car was running out of gas, but somehow there's no joke in the spectacle of millions of owners overlooking the opportunity to save gas, oil, brakes and tires by driving slower.

It is estimated that tire wear is twice as great at 35 miles an hour as at 40. Only a few years ago tires were wearing smooth because of two-wheel braking. Today it is the slippage through excess power and speed that causes the expense.

There are also off minor fractions. Case, Coca Cola, and Allied Chemical were up about 1-8 point, and American Telephone and American Tobacco "B" were slightly higher.

OPENING STOCKS

New York, July 16.—(AP)—The Stock Market encountered some woe and profit taking, after a firm opening today.

Price movements during the first half hour were narrow, and trading was quiet. Auburn backed up about a point, and U. S. Steel, American Car and Union Pacific slid off minor fractions. Case, Coca Cola, and Allied Chemical were up about 1-8 point, and American Telephone and American Tobacco "B" were slightly higher.

financial and economic questions, the President's letter was called to the attention of the Senate by the Democratic leader, Robinson, of Arkansas.

"It seems to me that the policy of the Administration has meant a revision of these debts," Robinson said. "We will be asked to say again whether we will transfer the burden to the American taxpayer or leave it where it belongs."

Others in his party agreed.

Many members of Congress were hopeful the State Department would insist, as it indicated it would, that governmental debts and tariffs be excluded from discussions at the economic conference.

BAND IN CONCERT AT THE HOSPITAL

Salvationists To Give Program Tomorrow Afternoon—Music Always Appreciated.

The Salvation Army which is noted for its endeavors to help the needy will do another good turn tomorrow afternoon when its crack band gives an hour's concert at the Memorial hospital for the benefit of the sick patients.

Less than a month ago the band played on the hospital lawn, and their efforts proved so pleasing that they have been requested to give an "encore" performance. Most of the number will be marches as these seem to have an especial appeal to the patients.

Bandmaster David Addy will be in charge. For several years now the Salvation Army band has been making a practice of going to the hospital to give concerts. The band also goes to the homes of sick people whenever the occasion warrants.

WRETCHED MICE.

To the Editor:

In response to your request for letters of opinion to the paper the following is submitted.

TO THE SHOWMAN.

I am a mouse.
My brothers are mice.
Before we speak once.
We have to think twice.
The mellow cheese tid-bits
Of free speech you offer,
Are a treat to us who say
We're all of a quiver.
We swell with delight
When we lustily sing
"My country, 'tis of thee"
Da da da da da da
"Long may our land be bright,
With Freedom's holy light,
Protect us by Thy might,
Great God our King."
If you'll gas the cats
So that we have the mats,
We'll squeal and we'll scamper,
We'll run and expand.
Then we'll all squeal together
A harmony grand.
But observe, Mr. Showman,
That greed's golden club
Is wielded above us
Let us dare spurn our grub.
Grub! Grub! Grub!
We're hungry, but holy light,
Ahi Mr. Showman,
We're just wretched mice.
Before we speak once
We have got to think twice.

BELIEVE THIRD DEGREE CAUSED SUSPECT'S DEATH

Patrolman John Symanski, a friend of the detective whose mother was beaten, spotted a car with four youthful occupants. He pulled his gun, forced them to drive to police headquarters and enter with their hands above their heads. All four, police said, admitted entering the woman's home, but denied beating her.

At the hospital Mrs. Hyzansky identified Stark, detectives declare, as the man who knocked her down. She pointed out Isayetep, 19, as the one who waved a gun over her head. The other two gave their names as Phil Cacale, 17, and Alexander Drangel, 23.

The first indication that anything had gone amiss at police headquarters came when a physician was summoned. He was followed quickly by a police surgeon and the coroner.

The building was cleared of all except police or county officials and it was not until after midnight that Inspector McCall admitted the prisoner had died stark. He said, "He was a former inmate of Elmira state penitentiary and was a narcotic addict."

Mrs. Hyzansky's condition is critical.

WED TO INDIANS THEY RUE BARGAIN

Two American women, mother and her daughter, who married members of the diminutive San Blas Indian tribe which inhabits the north coast of Panama and surrounding islands, are waiting here for transportation to New York, their matrimonial careers ended.

The women were Gladys Brown, who married William White Hagman in Akron, Ohio, in 1920 and her mother, Cora, who married Charles Williams in New York. Mrs. Williams is 65.

The two couples sailed for Panama on January 23 of this year and lived in the San Blas territory until recently. The women left finally, assuming their husbands showed a preference for the native girls.

SON REPLEANS

Akron, O., July 16.—(AP)—An appeal to the Red Cross to return two American women, who married San Blas Indians, was planned by Hagman, a rubber worker here who said his women are his mother and half sister.

Hagman said the women, Mrs. Cora D. Brown 65, and her daughter, Gladys, 25, had written to Red Cross headquarters at Cristobal, Canal Zone, saying "when we were married our husbands said they belonged to a civilized tribe, but we have been deceived."

The women also complained they were "compelled to sleep on boards in a leaky hut. The food is terrible and unless taken away from here we shall surely die."

Hagman said he had received one letter from his mother since she went to a lonely island off the Atlantic coast of Panama. He replied two months ago but received no answer.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of four articles by Dr. Parkman on Maternal Mortality. The second will appear in tomorrow's Herald. The maternal mortality rate is the death rate among women due either directly or indirectly to the bearing of children. A recent report by a distinguished committee, under the chairmanship of Dame Janet Campbell, and including representatives of France, Denmark, Holland and Germany, as well as of the Health Division of the League of Nations, has just pointed out that the variations in these rates in different countries are not to be considered of great significance, since it is doubtful whether the statistics published are prepared in such a way as to enable accurate comparisons to be made between the figures given for different countries.

ESTONIA SENDS ONE MAN TO OLYMPICS

Los Angeles, July 16.—(AP)—From the classic country of Greece to as far north as little Estonia came four teams from Europe to play with man power which will swell the population of the Olympic hamlet here to beyond the 300 mark.

Pallo Alto, Calif., July 16.—(AP)—The American Olympic track and field tryouts today reached their final stages with another international controversy gathering headway.

After a record-breaking day in which virtually all of the headline stars of the east and midwest, the Olympic track and field comedy proceeded by deciding to extend the qualifying limit in all field events from five to eight.

The decision was made public as a unanimous vote and was preceded by a stormy session last night and immediately stirred up an east-west controversy in the official stadium that dwarfed the recent debate over the timing of easterners at the Intercollegiate A.A.A.A. championships.

Joe England of Baltimore chairman of the committee made the explanation: "It was the general feeling of the performances in nearly all of the field events that we were justified in extending the qualifying limit to the present of eight of any special section, but of the American Olympic team which we want to make the strongest possible."

Meantime the east figured to consolidate its advances, paced by the world record fast runner, Harold Grier, who set a new record in the 1500 meters in 22:38.5 on August 5.

The eastern gridiron delegation, which already is represented by 14 members of the wrestling team and two marathon runners, will get the jump on its western opponents, opening up with a practice session this morning.

Pallo Alto, Calif., July 16.—(AP)—The complete list of qualifiers for today's American Olympic track and field tryouts, increased from 78 to 95 by the official decision to extend the limit in the field events to eight.

FAVORED TO PLACE IN PALO ALTO RACE

Manchester Boy Believed To Be Certain of Placing At Least First, Second Or Third Which Means Team Qualification; Lormond, Manning Most Dangerous Rivals; Time Expected To Be Around 9:14.

Special to The Herald. Palo Alto, Calif., July 16.—Although he will undoubtedly face the stiffest opposition of his colorful career, Joe McCluskey, Fordham's outstanding track athlete who hails from South Manchester, Conn., is regarded as almost certain to become a member of the United States Olympic team, barring possible injury, when he competes in the final of the 3,000 steeplechase event late this afternoon.

HERB'S JOE'S ADDRESS IN CASE YOU NEED IT

In case McCluskey should make the United States team by placing first, second or third, today some of his Manchester friends may wish to telegraph him congratulations. His address is Joseph P. McCluskey, Branch Hall, Stanford University, Palo Alto, California.

For a long time McCluskey was regarded as the best steeplechase prospect in America. Then along came Lieut. George Lormond, former West Point star, who recently negotiated the treacherous course in 9:08 and a fraction at Boston, Harold Manning of Wichita, Kan., has also been timed below McCluskey's fastest record but the Fordham lad had yet to be forced to the limit.

McCluskey Talks. The winner's time will probably be around 9:14. Most of the race will be on turf which is slower for time. It is understood that eleven athletes will compete. The steeplechase is fully aware of the severe test which faces him in order to place first. Interviewed last night the smiling Fordham said: "I hope to win and will give my utmost but with such dangerous opponents the outcome is always in doubt. A bad spill can ruin anyone's chances and the treacherous horses and water jumps (there are 32 of the former and 2 of the latter) present a real mental hazard. I may sweat it but if I do the field will probably keep close at my heels with the hope of beating me in the final lap. The steeplechase event used to be the poorest of Olympic contests but such is not the case this year as some of the best distance runners in the country are entered."

"My right knee has been troubling me a little since the Penn Relay where it was hurt. I am sure it is pretty nearly okay now. I feel in about the best physical condition of my life and if I don't win it will be because someone else is better," he concluded.

A few days ago McCluskey ran 3,000 meters in the amazingly fast time of 8:24, without the hurdles. This may be a tip-off to a possible new record today. The steeplechase race will be held this afternoon, probably about 8 o'clock. Pacific Coast time which means 6 o'clock Eastern Standard Time. It has been announced that there will be no radio broadcast. The events are being held in the Stanford University stadium, The Olympic Games, at Palo Alto, California, which is 411 miles from here, the first fourteen days of August.

Thrilling Spectacles. The greatest mass of track men ever seen in America is eagerly awaiting the final gun of the steeplechase. All contestants are in superb condition, and the agreeable California weather should aid the stars in breaking new ground. The winners will give his utmost in order to place among the first three so as to be a member of the American Olympic team. Californians have gone track mad, and by the time the meet ends, there may be many surprises. Some favorites seem sure to lose out because of the keen competition. New stars may spring up. When everything is considered, the spectators will get exactly the greatest track meet ever seen in the world.

Although no man should be fully conceded a chance of earning the coveted gold medal for first place, the most odds, there may be many surprises. Some favorites seem sure to lose out because of the keen competition. New stars may spring up. When everything is considered, the spectators will get exactly the greatest track meet ever seen in the world.

McLEVY RAPS BOTH THE MAJOR PARTIES

Says Republicans and Democrats Seek Same End; Urges Socialist Support.

"There is no real reason why there should be two parties, both doing the same job for the same people in the same way," declared Jasper McLevy of Bridgeport.

A quiet, forceful speaker, he slowly and distinctly reviewed the history of the dominant political parties and their accomplishments during the past century and a half.

"There is something fundamentally wrong with the prevailing social and economic system," declared the speaker.

"The Democrats are no different than the Republicans; they are the same and the one thing," the speaker asserted, "coming from the Wall Street Journal."

"If the Democratic and Republican parties were business concerns they would combine and operate for the benefit of the people of the United States."

"Both parties spend a week in Chicago," he said. "They paraded and deliberated for a week and came out of the Conventions with plans for the consideration of their constituents."

"You can expect nothing but promises and promises are nothing new," he continued. "The speaker then reviewed the political set-up of the United States dating from before the Civil War."

"The Republican Party takes great pride in saying that they are the Party of Abraham Lincoln," he said. "Can you imagine the Great Emancipator taking the position in relation to the common people of the United States that is being taken by the Republican Party today?"

"In his extensive review of the conditions leading up to the present economic state, the speaker declared that the United States was no longer the land of 'rugged individualism.'"

Down through the centuries he outlined the increase of the machine age, the quickening and development of the machines and the consequent throttling of the people through private ownership and pressures brought to bear against the workers through efficiency systems inaugurated to get the last iota of speed and labor from the human body.

He told how the people of Germany turned "thunder" into "lightning" and caused him to go to England to live. Here it was, the speaker said, that Marx analyzed the need of the people soon to come and where he intimated the future troubles to be caused through the unrestricted increase of private ownership of industrial plants. Progress. "The march of progress could not be held back," he said. "Machines became more efficient. The development spread to the United States by where greater advances were made by the ingenious American mechanics."

"At that time we had markets for our surplus products," continued the speaker. "It was not necessary for the people to consider the old bank about the laws of supply and demand. Then came the World War. Business increased and salaries were increased."

"When the war ended after a period of high wages, Europe was depleted of raw materials and finished products and again came a period of industrial and commercial success and a consequent period of temporary prosperity to the American people. This was caused by the looting of huge sums of money to the foreign countries by the large financial institutions, which they returned to us to purchase raw materials, food and finished products."

"Then when Europe became rehabilitated once again the crash came. When the foreign market disappeared, where did the speaker go? Home consumption. In this period of machine production a surplus is soon created. If you don't consume, stagnation comes. Has the Republican Party or the Democratic Party shown you how to avert the present condition? What have they to offer? Absolutely nothing."

"They say to tax the unemployed, the small home owner, and the struggling head of a family to balance the budget for a return to National prosperity."

Concluding his speech, the Bridgeport Socialist spoke of the attempts made by the Socialist Party for submission of an employment insurance bill in the General Assembly, an old age pension bill and other remedial measures which failed of passage.

"The speaker gave some interesting figures about the number of bank crashes since the depression has been in effect. In England, where unemployment has been highest, there were more than in this country; there has not been a bank failure in the past eight years."

"During the talk he took special pains to take a fling at the Yellow Mill Bridge case in Bridgeport under the Republican regime and the Stratford Avenue bridge repair job which was instituted under the Democrats."

Mrs. Jacquemina Month of 10 Heri street was pleasantly surprised at her home last night by 27 of the members of the Regina D'Italia society of which he is president. The party was held in honor of Mrs. Month's birthday and was well remembered by many pretty and useful gifts.

R. O. CONSTRUCTION IS 30 P. C. COMPLETE

Good Idea of Size and Beauty of Building Can Now Be Gained—Description.

Within the past two weeks, work on the new post office building has steadily advanced to a point where the observer can get a partial view of the finished line of the exterior. The five-sided structure, peculiarly fitted to the location adjoining a central square and two main intersecting streets, is irregular in construction lines, but will, when complete, be a distinct addition to the immediate vicinity.

According to the plans reviewed today by The Herald, with the assistance of Paul H. Hildreth, civil engineer and government inspector in charge of the construction supervision, the building is today approximately 30 per cent complete.

The general specifications of the building shows the new structure to be one of "brick and steel" throughout. Plans call for concrete floor base, with wood or tile finish according to location. The outside trim is of Indiana limestone and the steps and pillars at the main entrance, are New Hampshire granite.

When completed the main entrance of the building will be very beautiful with four pillars, two on each side of the door, and two pilasters adorning the main entrance on each side of the entrance. The name, "United States Post Office" is indicated in letters above the entrance. Four steps each lead to the front door, which, although not extremely wide, will be sufficient and in keeping with the rest of the plans for the building.

The roof of the building will be of slate and composition, the section of the main floor lobby being elevated and the part over the mezzanine floor and workroom of composition materials. The roof will be supported by an eight-sided cupola on the top of which will be a metal weather vane. A flag pole will be set directly over the main entrance.

On the left side of the lobby, two large skylights, one at the top of the lobby and one at the top of the mezzanine floor, will be installed. An electric elevator for freight exclusively is to be located in the northeast corner of the building, connecting with the loading platform, which opens up on the large yard in the rear of the building.

Plenty of Light Overhead of the main floor workroom, two large skylights will allow plenty of light for the sorting of mail and for the office workers and service windows. At night 88 lights of the latest type, and of varying wattage will furnish the necessary illumination. The main lobby will be lighted by six special 300 watt lamps of suitable design.

On the mezzanine floor in the rear of the main floor workroom, will be located the carrier's rest room, a room designed for the use of carriers of duty. This room, large and airy and looking down directly upon the workroom, will be a novel and quite unexpected innovation for the convenience of the office workers. Toilets and lavatories adjoin this room.

An office will be available on the first floor left for the Postoffice Inspector assigned to this district. A separate entrance leads to the room and a special observation station will be placed so that the inspector can view the main workroom and the interior of the post office without the knowledge of anyone within the building.

The heating plant will be a steam down-draft boiler, coal burning, and it will be located in the basement rear. A large storage bin for coal will be accessible through a driveway leading from East Center street alongside the Masonic Temple steps.

The basement will be used for postal bulk storage, record room, paper storage, post office supplies. Forty-eight lights are distributed through the basement. A large loading platform on the level of the basement adjoining the elevator will serve for the quick handling of mail matter to and from trains, and the distribution of parcel post.

In the rear of the building a large concrete space for parking will be provided when the building is completed. All space around the building will be grassed down.

Upon entering the building through a tiled vestibule the observer will see three service windows, two stamp windows and one general delivery window. The lobby extending to the left and right of the entrance is large and commodious, and will be of marble with a tile floor. Letter drops will be at the right of the main entrance near the stamp windows. The money order and registered mail windows will be at the extreme end of the right side of the lobby. Large windows, approximately 11 feet high surround the lobby, giving ample light. Four large desks for patrons are to be located in the lobby, two on each side facing the front of the building beneath the windows. To the left of the entrance, at the entrance end of the lobby, is located the Postmaster's Office, Assistant Postmaster's Office, the Superintendent of Mail Office adjoining the workroom. A large space, designed and to be fitted with the latest type of equipment for the handling of the mail.

Two large vaults will be built in on the left or west side of the building, and one in the right or east side for the registered mail and postal money orders. An electric elevator for freight exclusively is to be located in the northeast corner of the building, connecting with the loading platform, which opens up on the large yard in the rear of the building.
