Ministers in Prussia To Be Removed By Force, If Necessary—Despite Orders, Several Killed in Riots.

Berlin, July 21.—(AP)—Prussia's new dictatorship moved smoothly into action today, but under the surface calm there was considerable resentment at the imposition of martial law by yesterday's presidential decree.

Frans Bracht, selected by Chancellor Papen, to govern Prussia during the period of the emergency, took over his new duties and gave the remaining Prussian ministers the choice of methods by which the Federal government will remove them from office.

As a result of the obstinacy of Karl Lewing, who refused to relinquish his post as Prussian minister of the interior until threatened with arrest, the entire Prussian Cabinet is to be removed and the Federal government will appoint office holders in their places.

PARTIES IN STATE PREPARE CAMPAIGN

Conventions But Two Months Away — Democrats Are Off To An Early Start.

(By Associated Press)

With state nominating conventions less than two months away, Connecticut Republicans and Democrats are whipping into shape preliminary organizations for the approaching campaign.

Dates for the Democratic convention already have been set for Sept. 7 and 8 at the Hotel Griswold in Groton. Republican leaders report growing sentiment for abandoning the custom of holding their state meeting before that of their opponents, such a course would require the session to be called for late August.

Democrats Take Lead

Meanwhile the Democrats took the lead in active campaigning with the New London county Democratic Association holding a banquet at Norwich last night. National Committeeman Archibald McNeil told the group that two of every three Republicans are going to vote the Democratic ticket this year and urged a strong co-operation.

Appointment of John F. Conway

as New London county chairman for the party's victory campaign fund was announced.

Publicity Director

William Green, a newspaperman for nearly 20 years has taken the position of publicity director for the Democratic State committee and will edit "The Connecticut Democrat," a mimeographed bulletin to be issued weekly.

George W. Hull, chairman of the Republican town committee in Burlington and an associate of Albert Witt at the Republican Party state committee, held the Danbury Rotary Club he expects to support Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president.

Sheriff Wesley Williams of Sullivan county was notified of the order by Governor Harry G. Leslie, who said he would accompany the troops.

REPORT EXPLORER SAFE IN ALASKA

Amateur Radio Operator Picks Up Message Sent By Frank North.

Seattle, Wash., July 21.—(AP)—An amateur radio operator picked up a message from an Alaskan station last night directed to the Associated Press, reporting the safety of Frank North, writer and explorer, although his severely buffeted vessel had been badly damaged in storms north of the Alaskan peninsula.

The message, sent by an amateur at Ugnahk, Alaska, was received here by Bruce Duncan.

It was said that North had left Ikaton, on Unimak island in the Aleutians, on June 19, and no word had been received from him until his vessel put into port at Ugnahk, after a great deal of stormy weather.

A preliminary survey indicated, the message said, that the vessel had been so badly damaged it could not be repaired in time to enter the Arctic pack this season.

Previous to leaving Unimak island, North and his party had spent some time exploring Sishaldin volcano, and were the first to reach it after its severe eruption several months ago, the message added.

Last month Fisher Be, an Ugnahk, Santa Clara University professor, ascended the volcano.

North has written extensively of the Arctic and done much exploration in the Far North.

USE PLANE TO FIGHT FIRES IN SOUTHTON

Spraying Blaze With Chemicals As Several Hundred Men Battle With Water Buckets On Mountainside.

Southington, July 21.—(AP)—An airplane, a water bucket brigade, the State Forest fighting machinery and several hundred men from the towns of Wolcott and Southington have been impressed into service to battle a raging forest fire on the Waterbury mountain between the two towns. The blaze is believed by officials to have been started by a cigaret thrown from a passenger plane which passes over the location while flying between Boston and New York.

Started Yesterday

Started yesterday and fanned by a stiff wind, the fire had burned a square estimated to be a mile square up until 5 o'clock this morning. The territory is practically inaccessible, and hundreds of men recruited from unemployed ranks, spent the entire night fighting the raging blaze.

Planes Use

An airplane was placed in service early this morning, spraying the burning area with chemicals. Two teams of horses are engaged in carrying barrels of water from nearby farms as far into the woods as possible and a bucket brigade has been carrying the water to the burning spot.

Little progress in checking the flames had been reported today. Several buildings on the property of the Southington Water Company are being endangered.

CUT ROAD IN FOREST

Waterbury, July 21.—(AP)—At 2 p. m. today the forest fire between New Britain and Southington reservoirs was still raging. Fifty men were put to work at noon to cut a road through the forest to aid in the carrying of water. Heavy trucks hauled two miles to the scene of the flames.

Three airplanes were directing the fire fighters, and spraying chemicals on the flames. Those in charge said they had little hope of controlling the fire until it had burned itself out, owing to natural boundaries.

HARMFUL WEATHER

New York, July 21.—(AP)—Clarence C. Barnhart, who died Nov. 10, 1931, left a net estate of $196,744, a transfer tax appraisal filed today disclosed.

One quarter of the residuary estate went to Yale University, and $50,000 and half of the residue went to a friend, Mrs. Mary C. Nicholson, of Providence, R. I.

NEW HAVEN MAN SERIOUSLY HURT WHILE KNOCKING AT DOOR OF WOMAN'S HOME.

New Haven, July 21.—(AP)—Louis Scarnano was seriously wounded at 2 a. m. by two bullets as he knocked at the apartment of Mrs. Antonette Della Rocca, 45, who was held with her three sons as a material witness.

Police sought Joseph Della Rocca, the woman's estranged husband who they alleged hid in the dark hallway and fired the two shots through a glass door. Della Rocca's barber shop was not open this morning and he could not be found in New Haven. His description was sent to authorities in four states.

Scarnano was hit in the chest, physicians ascertained, although they failed to perform an operation for the removal of the bullet because of profuse bleeding.

Police in search

After the shooting Scarnano ran screaming down two flights of stairs to the sidewalk where he collapsed at the feet of a policeman. He was taken to New Haven hospital where he said he had gone to the apartment to return Mrs. Della Rocca's automobile which he borrowed yesterday.

Officers found the car at the curb near the house and said it contained a number of other things, a dozen cigarettes, a pipe on the door of the hall where Scarnano was shot, they said, indicated the assailant had wanted his return for some time.

Police declined to disclose the results of questioning Mrs. Della Rocca and her sons, Frank, 20, Robert, 18 and Anthony, 17, although they furnished many of their answers.

Upper Mississippi Basin Center of High Temperatures; East Fairly Cool.

Touch-like temperatures subsided today throughout the upper Mississippi Basin as the Nation credited 38 more deaths to extreme summer heat.

Showers swept across the northern brow of the land from the Rockies to the Great Lakes and on into the north Atlantic states, but neither areas still, gauged in expectation of relief promised by Friday.

Minneapolis had yesterday's official record of 103 degrees but last night its citizens slept at 76 degrees.

Detroit and Milwaukee also cooled off considerably and showers and breezes brought much needed relief to Texas, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma, part of the worst of the current wave. The drop averaged 16 degrees, but St. Louis still suffered from 100 degree heat.

RUSSIA URGES HOOVER'S PLAN ON ARMS CUTS

Soviet Official Forces Roll Call But His Amendment Is Defeated by a Vote of 30 To 5.

Geneva, Switzerland, July 21.—(AP)—Maxim Litvinov, representing Soviet Russia at the world disarmament conference, demanded today that a declaration be adopted before the conference adjourns until fall be rewritten to include the specific recommendations for a one-third reduction in all armaments.

Thus he attempted to introduce the basic principle of President Hoover's recent arms proposals, substituting it for the "substantial reduction" recommended in the draft of the declaration.

Forces Roll Call

He forced a roll call on the amendment with sixteen members abstaining. It was defeated by 30 to 5. Hugh Gibson, head of the American delegation, voted against it; Germany and Italy were among the abstainers.

Italo Balbo, representing Italy, asserted that the resolution in its present form is entirely adequate to meet the needs and hopes of the world.

Real Disarmament

After six months' work it is not enough, he said, to adopt a declaration of good will couched in general terms. He reaffirmed the Italian government's stand for real disarmament on the basis of Mr. Hoover's principles.

The Soviet delegate, speaking for his own country, said also for most of the other smaller European nations, supported the resolution as it stands, but declared also that the small nations advocate total abolition of all armaments without the exceptions for which a way is left open in the declaration.

3RD DEGREE DEATH BEFORE GRAND JURY

Doctor Called By Police Before Stark Died Is the First To Testify.

Minneapolis, N. Y., July 21.—(AP)—An extraordinary Grand Jury began consideration today of the death of Hyman Stark, for which 18 county police have been arrested, some on second degree murder charges, some for assault, and all for conspiracy to obstruct justice.

The first witness was the court stenographer who transcribed the testimony at the John Doe hearing into the death of Stark, who was beaten to death after being arrested for assaulting the mother of a detective during the robbery of her home.

It was understood District Attorney Edwin Edwards intended to read this testimony to the Grand Jury instead of calling before it the witnesses who testified at the hearing which ended yesterday with the 18 police being held for Grand Jury room.

Before reading this testimony began, however, Thomas Fearn, a private physician called in by police to attend Stark before he died, was called into the Grand Jury room.

There were indications the Grand Jury very likely would conclude its consideration of the case by mid-afternoon.

District Attorney Edwards announced today that he had requested that state police take over the investigation of the Stark death. He

TRADE IN EMPIRE CONFERENCE URGED BY CANADA'S HEAD

Imperial Economic Parley Opens At Ottawa — All Dominions Asked To Prefer British Goods — Such Preference Would Have Considerable Effect On Trade of United States.

Ottawa, July 21.—(AP)—A definite offer proposing wider preferences for British goods in exchange for greater British preferences to Canadian imports was made today by Premier R. B. Bennett of Canada immediately after he was chosen chairman of the imperial economic conference.

Any such program of preferences would have considerable effect on the trade of the United States.

The premier declared that such a system of preference exchange should be enduring. Representatives of the Dominions, he said, must decide now what course they intend to take and follow it without deviation. His proposal was directed to the United Kingdom but the offer was extended to all other parts of the Empire whatever its application would be mutually advantageous.

Lower Trade Barriers

"There are two ways of obtaining increased preferences," he said, "either by lowering trade barriers among ourselves or by raising them against others. The choice is government largely by local considerations, but subject to that, it seems to us that we should follow the first rather than the second course."

"However great our resources we cannot isolate ourselves from the rest of the world."

The premier declared that "the strength of the Empire, which is the sum total of its cooperating parts, we are invincible."

He pointed out that it was necessary for each unit of the Empire to do its utmost in the spirit of self help.

"In that belief," he continued, "Canada in the last two years has done as best she might to increase her power for self service and for Empire service."

"Only the other day this government concluded a treaty with our friends and neighbors, the United States of America, by which the St. Lawrence waterway and the Great Lakes will be made into a great sea way, through which the commerce of the Empire will be carried to the heart of this continent, and through which the products of this country will go out to all parts of the Empire."

"This waterway will be free to all ships of the Commonwealth, and I believe will be the sure means by which the parts of the Empire will be brought still closer to one another."

One of the first acts of the conference was to approve a message of loyalty to the King. The message from the Irish Free State voted in favor of this action, and their vote was of particular interest because of the controversy between Dublin and London over President Eamon De Valera's attempt to abolish the oath of allegiance to the crown.

DECISION IS UPSET IN PADLOCK CASES

Service Must Be Made On Owners of Places Where Liquor Is Being Sold.

New York, July 21.—(AP)—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today reversed itself in a decision in a previous case and ruled that service of complaint in padlock proceedings on petty offenders such as bartenders and waiters, was not sufficient basis for such proceedings.

The decision was expected by federal officials to adversely affect more than 300 padlock complaints already served unless service is made upon the proprietors.

In the previous decision several months ago, the court of appeals upheld a ruling by Federal Judge Francis G. Gahey in which service of a padlock complaint upon a bartender or waiter of the proprietor was held sufficient basis for proceeding with a padlock suit.

Today's decision

In the decision today, the court set forth that in the earlier case the difficulties involved in such a degree were not presented as fully as here and Section 39 of the act was not called to our attention.

Section 39 provides that where personal property is involved the proprietor must be served if he is within the jurisdiction of the court.

Must Serve Owner

Today's opinion was given in two cases, in both of which it was charged that prohibition agents had made purchases and had seen the sale of beer and liquor in the premises mentioned. The Appellate court made no doubt as to the fact that the proprietor was served, but pointed out that while Section 39 of the prohibition law provides for service upon an occupant, Section 39 provides that where property rights are affected the proprietor, if within the jurisdiction, must be served.

MANY LOCAL PEOPLE AT COVENTRY AFFAIR

"Cut Rate Festival" Proves a Big Success - Historical Pageant a Feature.

Manchester people in large numbers helped swell the attendance at the "Cut Rate Festival" yesterday in North Coventry. The Coventry Fragment society, which corresponds to the Ladies Aid societies in other churches, acknowledged it to be the largest and most successful event ever undertaken by them.

From early in the afternoon until late in the evening every available space not required by the booths and pageant was filled. The historical pageant was presented in the space between the Congregational church and the chapel.

A delightful background was formed by cutting birch saplings and planting them as a setting for the picturesque scenes of the past. The costumes were colorful and appropriate to the period represented, and were made by the participants or borrowed for the various episodes.

Mrs. A. A. Warren, formerly of Manchester, played the accompanying music most effectively. Crawford's Coventry orchestra, whose leader is John Crawford of this town, assisted and also added much to the enjoyment of the festival by their concerts during the afternoon and evening.

The "cut rate" supper was patronized by more than 200. It was necessary to reset the tables three times and many remained long after the scheduled serving hour for their turn to enjoy the dishes prepared by the Coventry cooks.

The booths for the sale of refreshments, flowers, aprons, handkerchiefs and fancy articles were also well patronized. The three-act comedy drama, "The Price of Justice," proved another big attraction.

Space will not permit an adequate report of the drama which pleased everybody. Every one of the cast is deserving of praise. Mrs. C. I. Loomis, president of the Fragment society, had a difficult part in a rather pathetic scene which she handled admirably.

Mrs. A. B. Fortson was especially good in one of the leading roles, Miss Cora Kingsbury made a pretty bride, Robert McVey was a first rate villain; the Kingsbury boys, John and Philip, were very good as the children of the play, and Donald Witty as a real boy. Ernest Gowdy filled in for a player who was unable to be present and did it in a clever manner.

Perhaps the actor who made the greatest hit was George Vinton who played the role of an old miser "Jaks Peters," owner of the village saw mill.

The parcel post auction wound up the full program. Many people who had formerly lived in Coventry took the opportunity to renew old acquaintances yesterday. The latter was Mrs. Foots who 40 years ago was the teacher of the village school at Pond Hill, and the Rev. Leon Austin, now pastor of the church, was one of her pupils.

CHURCH SCHOOL ENDS CLASSES TOMORROW

Closing Program in Evening At Second Congregational Church—The Program.

The vacation school which has been conducted for three weeks in July for the past six summers at the North Main street churches, will close tomorrow with an unusually interesting evening program at 7:30 at the Second Congregational church.

The primary, junior and intermediate departments will all have a part in the demonstration exercises. Biographical slides will be shown of the life of Christ, which has been studied as a part of the curriculum.

The handwork this summer, which has been conducted under the supervision of Miss Lottie Clarke, is very attractive. Miss Clarke has been taking a course in art work and occupational therapy for the past few years, and many of the articles are such as would teach patients in hospital and institutions as a part of their convalescing treatment.

The exhibit and sale of artwork work will be held in connection with the program. It is in this way that the school becomes largely self-supporting. Not only the parents and friends of the children are urged to attend tomorrow evening but the general public.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, July 21.—(AP)—The Stock Market faced forward today, but faltered at the hurdle of the upper reserve level of the July trading.

The list was extremely quiet, and seemed more inclined to work higher than otherwise. Trades generally, however, were inclined to mark time, pending indications as to what the list was again turned back at levels at which last week's rally was checked.

Most of the leading industrial stocks fluctuated in a narrow fractional range but some of the food shares and specialties worked higher.

Issues advancing about 1/4 to 3/4 points included Union Pacific, Norfolk and Western, Delaware and Hudson, Loos, Wiles, Bechnut, Loew's Grand Union McIntyre Porcupine, Brooklyn Union Gas, and Freeport Texas.

The list eased off for a time in the morning, but fractions, recessions in such issues as American Can, American Telephone and Air Reduction were recovered, National Biscuit, Texas Gulf Sulphur, and U. S. Steel Common and Preferred showing fractional gains.

Keopert turned around in some volume, coincident with publication of its earnings, but the stock was barely changed.

The second quarter and first half earnings statements, about which a wide range of forecasts, began to appear in some volume and on the whole, the exhibit to date seems somewhat better than anticipated, at least no worse.

Buying of some issues such as Loew's Bechnut and Loos, Wiles appeared to be prompted by analysts of the records, the bearishly inclined are harping on the fact that third quarter earnings are likely to make even a worse showing than the second quarter earnings are likely to make even a worse showing than the second quarter, but the more cheerfully inclined observers point out that there should be some autumn recovery before those reports must be digested.

McIntyre Porcupine, reflecting the traditional ability of gold mining to prosper in bad times, reported net of 70 cents a share in the second quarter, as increased from 51 cents in the like period of last year.

Canadian producers have been helped somewhat by the premium on gold in the Dominion, as result of the sag in the Canadian dollar below its gold parity. The report of Loew's for the 40 weeks ended June 3, showing net of $4.37 a share, only moderately reduced from $6.04 in the like period of last year, attracted attention in view of the drastic slump in motion picture earnings generally.

In the foods, both Loos Wiles and National Biscuit earned $1.21 a share in the first half, but the former was a reduction from $1.70 in the like period of last year, while National Biscuit's was reduced from $1.38. Bechnut reported $2.15 for the first half, not far from the $2.63 reported at this time last year.

Plate earned $2.23 a share in the first half, like to more than half the $4.23 of the like period of 1931. Gulf States Steel's June quarter deficit was $215,456, a reduction from the loss of $303,543 in same period of 1931.

Bones of Saint Make Shrine Of Old Beverley Minster

Beverley Minster at Beverley, England... one of that nation's most beautiful churches... is the burial place of St. John of Beverley and was once a mecca for the sick and blind.

By NEA Service.

One of the oldest and most beautiful of England's great churches is Beverley Minster, in the staid old market town of Beverley, between York and Hull in northeastern England.

The age of the present structure at Beverley is not definitely established, but it is generally believed that parts of the edifice date back to the 12th century.

It has been established that a monastery was founded at Beverley as early as 721, when old records later, and it is generally believed that parts of the edifice date back to the 12th century.

The small Percy chapel on the north is the mutilated tomb of the fourth Earl of Northumberland, who died in 1489, just three years before Columbus discovered America.

Since the building of the great industrial cities, Beverley Minster has shrunk in importance as English religious life, but the advent of tourists has again attracted attention to what was once a famous shrine.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, July 21.—Of the important commodities copper continues to give the least satisfactory performance, and financial interests are beginning to wobble when the drastic production restriction measures already in effect will bring some stability to the market. Copper interests are hopeful of some improvement with the appearance of a more active call for metal by consumers.

Corporation reports for the second quarter issued so far are on the whole no worse than expected, in Wall Street's opinion. The few companies managing to show earnings reasonably close to their dividend requirements, are cited by the optimists of the street as indicating that some branches of industry are holding their own in spite of the many adversities.

Daily average crude oil production in California from June was 470,632 barrels, compared with 502,443 barrels in May, according to the American Petroleum Institute. Stocks held by all Pacific coast marketing companies on June 30 were 169,432,006 barrels, a decrease of 2,316,003 barrels from the previous month.

MOVIES CAUSE RIOT

New York, July 21.—(AP)—Two Chinese were fined $25 each today for creating a disturbance in Chinatown, and the same magistrate then issued summons charging three policemen who arrested the Chinese with simple assault.

The Chinese were arrested for throwing tomatoes and orange skins at police who staged a fake raid for a series of films depicting police activities. There had been no announcement of the fake raid and it caused a near riot among several hundred residents of Chinatown who believed it to be a real raid.

NEW PLANT OPENS

Lynn, Mass., July 21.—(AP)—Joseph Haslin today announced the newly formed Minor Shoe Company of which he is manager, would employ 75 operatives when it started operation in this city next week.

PAYMASTER ARRESTED HOTEL $15,000 SHORT

New York, July 21.—(AP)—Charles Beck, 24, cashier and paymaster at the Hotel St. Moritz, in Central Park South, was held in $3,500 bail today by Magistrate Louis S. Brodsky in West Side Court for examination August 1 on a specific charge of the larceny of $600 from the hotel.

Beck, who failed to return to work since Friday, was arrested at the hotel last night when he appeared there with his suitcase. Taken to Night Court, he was held in $1,000 bail.

Magistrate Brodsky increased the bail today when he was informed by Assistant District Attorney Louis Wassar that the books of the hotel showed a shortage in excess of $15,000. When arrested, hotel officials said, the only comment he would make was:

"Well, if I'm short, I'm short." Assistant District Attorney Wassar said that Beck, who received a salary of $22 a week, handled receipts of more than $5,000 a day and a payroll of $50,000 a month.

BIG JEWEL THEFT

New York, July 21.—(AP)—Long Island police were working on a society jewel mystery today, searching for the lost or stolen octagonal $55,000 emerald brooch which Mrs. Payne Whitney wore to a charity fete at the Marshall Field store in Huntington last Saturday.

Mrs. Whitney, it was learned today, missed the jewel about midnight. Noel Scaffa, detective who has been successful in recovering many famous stolen gems, was called into the case. There were reports that he suspected not only jewel thieves but rather some jewel lover who wanted the brooch for its beauty instead of its intrinsic value.

Man Lost 26 Lbs. Looks 100% Better

Feels Stronger Than Ever

Just to prove to any doubtful man or woman that Kruschen Salt is the SAFE way to reduce—let us take the letter of Mr. F. J. Cincinatti, Ohio, recently received: "He writes: 'I've tried extreme dieting, setting up exercises with very little results—but the results from Kruschen are almost incredible. In 8 months I reduced from 265 to 179 pounds and feel stronger than ever—no more wheezing or gasping for breath—friends say I look 100% better.'"

Beck in mind, you fit him, that there is danger in too much fat—try the safe way to reduce—only diet teaspoonful of Kruschen Salt in a glass of hot water every morning—cut down on fatty meats and sweets—only bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—get it at J. H. O'Brien & Co., South Manchester, or any druggists in the world.—Adv.

THURSDAY, JULY 21.

DEMOCRATIC LEADERSHIP

The Democratic town committee could have made a far worse mistake than asking the Board of Selectmen to advance the Deputy Democratic Registrar to the main post upon the resignation of Registrar Brown. As it developed the Selectmen were relieved of any responsibility through the General Statutes' provision for such cases. But nevertheless it will rankle a whole lot of voters in the party that the committee actually opposed the succession of Edward F. Moriarty to the job with which he was thoroughly acquainted.

Opposition to Moriarty by the Democratic Committee

There is no doubt in the way of chastisement for his stand in the party's town caucus. He had others stood out for a Smith delegation to the State convention in the face of Dr. Edward G. Dolan's campaign through the state for Franklin D. Roosevelt. Whatever else may have prompted this group's opposition to Dr. Dolan's plans they were sincere. Sincerity of purpose in politics certainly isn't over-abundant and when a group of Democrats display it they shouldn't be punished.

The place to choose party candidates is in the party caucus or primary. The Democrats might well have taken a lesson from their Republican friends in town, who say "Fight it out in the primary and let the best man win." September brings the party primaries and the Democratic town committee could easily have avoided hard feeling by letting its opposition to Moriarty go by the board until then.

A VOICE BUT NO VOTE

James Joseph Tunney—Gene to you who read the sports pages—has given Archibald McNeil, Democratic national committeeman for Connecticut, cause to be joyous indeed. He has assured the Bridgeport gentleman that he will do everything he can to aid the Democratic campaign this fall. He intends to make a few speeches, he said. Before sitting down to write the speeches, however, he should sit down and write out an application to become a voter.

THE MARKET AND BUSINESS

Those who watch the stock market quotations for an indication of a business pick-up would do well to take another look at the market. Trade revival will be well on the way to a satisfactory recovery before it is reflected in prices on the exchange. This is natural. Stock market sales reflect the result of good business not the reason for it. Investments cannot be made until profits are secured.

In 1921 this country suffered a depression, far less important than the 1931 slump, of course, but nevertheless similar in many ways. And when the 1921 depression had broken the stock market failed to note it. It lagged three or four months behind genuine recovery. This will be so when the backbones of the present slump is broken. Generally discounting the falling off in trade in the summer months due to natural causes there is a very definite feeling in the air that business is on the pick-up. It can be noted here in Manchester, through the trend of conversation, if not through an actual increase in trade. "Things seem to be picking up, don't they?" is a far better question than "Where is it going to end?" An insurance company executive of Hartford, visiting in the West is quoted as saying "There's one thing about business I wish we could all realize. That is the importance of not talking about how bad it is. The men in France learned not to die until the bullet hit them. That can be applied now."

back to work. Aside from that there appears to be a narrowing gap between raw stock prices and the prices of the finished product. That is a better barometer than the stock market. Those who are looking for genuine indications of business revival had best forget the stock exchange quotations.

ORCHIDS AND KINGS

The pretender to the throne of Portugal is a country gentleman, living on an estate in Austria and devoting himself to the task of raising chickens. And the other day, when he was informed that former King Manuel II had died, and that he himself was therefore in line for the throne, he indicated that the chicken-raising business seemed to him better than a kingship.

Very likely this was at least partly because Portugal is a republic, and being in line for its throne is an empty honor. But probably his indifference is more largely due to the fact that being a king is a very poor line of work to be in, these days, and a throne can hardly compare with a flourishing chicken farm.

In the old days the world was made for kings, and a kingship was worth having. The king and his nobles mattered, and the rest of mankind did not. It was commonly supposed that kings were divinely appointed to their jobs, and to rebel was not only treasonous but sacrilegious.

Nowadays, though, things are different. Where kings survive, they are figureheads and nothing more. To be sure, things are made very pleasant for them, and they get a lot of attention; but the honor is an empty one, and they never quite know when some ultra-radical party may not get control of the government and throw them out entirely.

It was the development of the idea of democracy that brought about this sad change in affairs. The American and French revolutions made every throne on earth insecure, in the last analysis, and made it possible for a thriving chicken farm to look more attractive than a kingship.

Right now, perhaps, democracy has slumped just a trifle. Dictatorships are popular in Europe, and there is not a great deal to choose between the rule of a divinely-appointed monarch and that of a self-appointed dictator. But the leaves are still working, and it will always continue to work. Once an idea is loosed into the world it cannot be stopped. Dictatorships, sooner or later, will stand where monarchies stand today. Those who have a hankering to rule without the consent of the governed had best look around for good chicken farms. Sooner or later they will need them.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question: L. L. asks: "What would you recommend for a person when destructive thoughts have gotten such a hold that the broods continually? The family doctor says there is nothing organically wrong, but she is becoming a total wreck physically and mentally. Any one who should have a thorough examination made to find out the condition of her alimentary canal. It will no doubt be found that the abdominal organs are prolapsed low in the pelvis. Nothing will produce nervousness in a woman and lead to neurasthenia and insanity as quickly as congestion in the pelvic organs. The prolapse is one of the commonest causes of such a condition." (Danzon)

Question: Mr. Charles N. writes: "I would like for you to print a remedy for dandruff. I wash my hair, and in one week dandruff is all over my scalp. I have been using lye soap, as I have been told that it would cure it." Answer: Do not use any strong soap on your scalp, but wash your hair daily for one week and then every other day for several weeks. It is well then to continue shampooing the hair at least two or three times weekly. Use any plain soap but rinse your hair well afterwards, rubbing a little coconut or almond oil into the scalp after you have dried the hair with a towel as much as possible.

BOBAY'S 'INSUBGENCY'

The persistent attempts of dry organizations to elect Senator Bobay as a Prohibition party candidate for the presidency showed that the dry faction didn't know its Bobay. Despite the Ichabod's adherence to the dry cause and its fervent belief in the infallibility of the 18th amendment, he is strongly in favor of party government. No matter what he says about his party's policies between times he is a regular Republican on Election day. He can't be in two places at once. He can't be in Washington talking him what he should do. With his constituency it is different. Back home he is their servant and does their will. That's a fundamental in party government and Bobay is to be admired for his faithfulness to that belief.

Not once has Senator Bobay bolted his party in a presidential campaign. That remains to be done when he is trying to persuade his party to follow certain lines he has projected. He votes with the Democrats in the Senate but with the Republicans on Election day. This year is no different. He is lukewarm towards his Republican party candidate as far as working for his election goes, but he is scornful of suggestions of a third party. Election day will find him casting a straight Republican vote.

GOOD GREEN CORN RECIPES

Corn On Cob
 Place corn in cold water and bring water to boiling point and continue cooking for only ten minutes longer. The secret of keeping the corn tender is to cook it only this short time.

Baked Corn and Celery
 3 cups of cooked corn,
 1 cup of celery cut fine,
 3 tablespoons of butter,
 1 1/2 cupful of Melba toast crumbs,
 2-3 cupful of rich milk.
 Butter baking dish and arrange layers of corn, celery and crumbs and pour over each layer melted butter and milk and cover with crumbs, dot with butter. Bake 40 minutes.

Corn Fudding
 2 cupfuls of cooked corn, chopped fine (canned corn may be used),
 3 eggs,
 2 tablespoons of melted butter,
 2-3 cupfuls of hot milk,
 Beat the eggs, mix corn, milk and butter and add to the eggs. Put in buttered baking dish and bake until firm, like custard.

Corn and Eggplant
 Grind one eggplant and three turnips in a meat grinder. Mix with one can of corn or an equal amount of corn cut from the cob and place in a baking pan. Cover with two tablespoons of butter and bake 25 minutes.

Corn and String Beans on Casserole
 Cut tender string beans into small pieces and cook in a small amount of water for about 15 minutes. Cut an equal amount of corn from the cob, first scalding each row of kernels with a sharp knife. If any liquid remains from the beans, drain, and save for soup, add beans to corn with a little cream and bake for 20 minutes, allowing to brown on top. Corn may be used in this way with celery, asparagus, spinach or young carrots. When using fresh spinach, shred very fine and do not cook before mixing with the corn as with the string beans, but put all into casserole and bake at once.

Corn and Okra
 Slice and steam the okra until it does not offer resistance to a fork. Add the okra to equal parts of fresh corn, cream, and add crushed Melba toast to take up the moisture, and sprinkle with parsley. Place in a baking pan in a hot oven for about 15 minutes or until browned on top.

Corn Stuffed Squash
 Cook small summer squash in plain water for 20 minutes. Remove from water and make a hollow in each squash, and fill with corn, cut fresh from the cob. Bake in uncovered aluminum pan for 30 minutes then brown top under the broiler and add piece of butter to each when serving.

Dony 'Deal' at Chicago
 According to an authority here who knows what went on during telephone conversations between Garner and his presidential campaign manager at Chicago, Congressman Sam Rayburn, there was no deal by which Garner released his Texas and Oklahoma delegates in exchange for the nomination. Garner wasn't seeking second place on the ticket. He was a shrewd enough politician to know that his chances for first place were very slim.

The Appeal from Chicago was to the effect that he should add his name to the ticket, which would then be composed of the two Democrats holding America's highest elective offices next to the presidency, and that Franklin D. Roosevelt was especially anxious to have him as his running mate.

He Doesn't Take Orders
 One finds it impossible to credit suggestions that Garner, in releasing his delegates, was taking orders from William Randolph Hearst or W. G. McAdoo. Garner doesn't take orders from anyone.

The McAdoo Show
 McAdoo, as this story is related further by those who know what goes on in the most important places, who advise the party, do take the stage for a highly dramatic moment. He had used Garner's name in the California primary to head a state of delegates, and was by then in the city of San Francisco, where he had been appointed premier.

Just a Quaint Old Congressional Racket!

The Political Follies of 1932

"PICTURESQUE JACK"

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

Washington.—Speaker Jack Garner will be one of the saltiest, most picturesque characters who ever campaigned on a national ticket.

He ought to be effective, too, for his chief job as the Democratic candidate for vice-president will be to attack the Hoover administration.

That is one of the things Jack does best and the thing of which he is by all odds the fondest. The Democratic managers may have to work hard to give full vent to his actual opinions, which are sulphuric indeed.

The Big Mystery
 But in Washington, the politicians probably will keep right on wondering among themselves just why Garner, who would rather be the second most powerful position in the United States government, is willing to seek the vice-presidency, which carries almost no power at all and the possible sad effects of which are well demonstrated by the obscurity which has fallen upon old Charlie Curtis.

The speculation will continue, but Garner's closest friends are willing to believe that his acceptance of the nomination was motivated most of all by a desire to serve his party. He is a mighty good Democrat. He would rather be speaker than vice president. But he has told some of his intimates that after holding office for 38 years he is willing to give the party everything he can.

Garner No "Diner Out"
 Of late years an unofficial part of the vice president's job has been to "dine out" for the president, who doesn't leave the White House, if he lands in the White House, will have to find someone else for that arduous task. Since he became speaker Garner has worn full formal dress just twice—once for the official White House dinner for the speaker and once for the annual reception of the members of the semi-official Congressional Club.

That Daring Young Man
 Reinald Warrenburg, gifted with a most resonant bass voice, may be heard here and there at scores of meetings and banquets held by the local convivial organizations of New York. At a recent Tuesday luncheon of the Citrus Club and Bluebonnet, he gave the famous old ballad, "The Random Young Man on the Flying Trapeze." I can tell that he is a great performer at innumerable banquets and dinners, although the Dutch Trust Club has been heard of his great managements.

NEW TRAMWAY PLAN
 Pittsburgh, Pa.—A rapid transit system, constantly in motion, and equipped in an amazing chain of vehicles, is being planned for the city of Pittsburgh. The plan is to build a line from the city center to the suburbs, and to connect it with the existing street car lines.

ambitions seemed nearest realization. One even hears yarns that McAdoo wanted the vice presidential nomination this year himself. Other politicians, remembering the occasion of McAdoo's name with the old Klan fight, wouldn't have allowed McAdoo on the ticket and some would have prevented his grandstand play if possible.

But he was head of the California delegation and as California preceded Texas on the roll call he had the show to himself. There is no political intimacy between McAdoo and Garner and McAdoo had little if anything to do with the speaker's decisions.

Champion Dem Record
 An important factor behind Jack's acceptance was his belief that he was the man best qualified to appear before the country to champion the Democratic record in the House since the party took control of that body.

The Republicans this year will point to the performance of the Democratic leadership—especially with reference to the tax bill, the economy bill and what President Hoover has called Garner's "pork barrel" relief bill—as evidence of the unfitness of the Democrats to rule. No one is better prepared than the Democratic speaker to slash back at that line of attack.

Aw Gwan!
 Milton Berle, the comic, allows that certain pugilistic gents should sing it this way: "That's Why Shakywag 'Wags Born' and Sidney Shakywag, 'Shakywag' is credited with suggesting 'Franklin and Johnny' as the Democratic party song." Get it, Frank Roosevelt and John Garner!

Such are the waves of fame that Alvin Karpis and his associates are hard to hide away. He took a place in the more remote sections of the Vermont woods for a summer lodge. . . . But the art and writing side and lazzies tracked him down and started a little colony in the neighborhood. . . . He went down to the postoffice to find them all gathered. He had nothing to do but decide to move, since he seeks seclusion. . . .

Today is the 10th Anniversary of the World War. CHATEAU-THERRY FRONT

On July 21, 1918, after one of the longest sieges of the war, French and American troops finally succeeded in driving the Germans from the Chateau-Thierry and pushed across the Marne behind them to advance more than four miles.

You'd be surprised by the way at the type of climate you never seem to outgrow this chronic affliction. At the headquarters of the white top hat I have observed Robert Roosevelt, George Washington, and a host of other notable figures.

Motor Hints
 Handy Suggestions on the Care of the Car by the Automobile Club of Hartford

Keep Shaft in Balance
 At the higher speeds cars now travel it is important that the propeller shaft be in balance. This includes the universal joints which usually are the source of the trouble.

Even at speeds around thirty miles per hour cars have been known to develop serious vibration, frequently mistaken for engine trouble. One mistake is to remove the pin plugs found in universal and install grease nipples. These may be more convenient when the car is being greased, but they are certain to throw the joints out of balance.

In one case the loss of one bolt around the flange of a joint was sufficient to prove very disturbing. Worn joints themselves will produce this kind of vibration because as they revolve they permit the propeller shaft to get off center. There have been cases where the sleeve at the front end of the shaft has loosened and worked back over the shaft.

Terminals Are Corroded
 The distributor is one of those units of the car that is forever receiving attention which it doesn't always need and suffering neglect where a little attention would be very welcome. Owners are continually taking off the top to wipe out the inside of the head, but they many ever pull out the terminals of the spark plug wires to see if there is corrosion?

The contact between the end of a spark plug wire and its terminal socket in the distributor head is just as important as that at the top of the plug. Usually if one of these terminals is corroded several others are also. Thus the efficiency of the motor may be as dependent on these terminal connections as on the condition and adjustment of the breaker points.

Corrosion results not only from the jumping of high tension current but also from moisture.

Should You Lose Cap
 If you have been so unfortunate as to leave the cap of the gas tank behind when you visited a filling station on a trip don't add the more serious troubles that often follow the use of carelessly improvised means of preventing the gas from spilling out. One motorist stuffed some paper into the filler pipe, a piece of which later clogged the gas line and caused no end of difficulties.

Care Keeps Points Clean
 Just how long breaker points will stay clean depends on several conditions too generally overlooked by motorists who desire the most efficient ignition. One of the most serious conditions of the modern distributor is the condition of the contact plates. Should these plates be breaking down it will cause the points to flash much too rapidly.

Some owners have succeeded so well in carrying the tank as to prevent the fuel from being drawn to the carburetor. Every cap needs a vent.

A piece of rubber or a handkerchief stretched over the pipe, held in place with a rubber band or a string, will prevent the gas from entering the pipe, makes a useful temporary cap. A pinhole should be made in the rubber, however.

One of the cars manufactured several years ago had interchangeable gas tank caps to prevent the driver from being drawn to the crank handle opening.

As a result, the driver will be relieved of the strain of working both breaks and throttle in traffic to such a degree that it is almost impossible to find a driver who is not alert and physically in good condition.

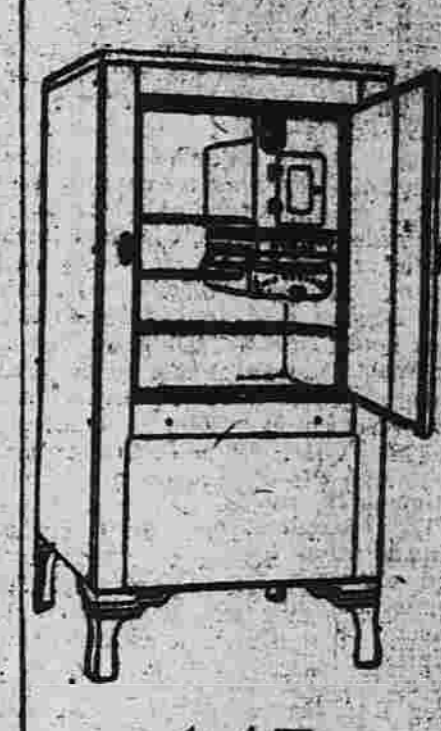

Another contribution to discomfort in driving is the opposite to riding the clutch. So many have been told about this that many drivers do exactly the reverse and find their feet jammed back and forth, when in heavy traffic.

It is well to note that it is enough to allow the foot to rest lightly on the pedal to cause the clutch to slip. But heavy, constant pressure on the pedal will cause the clutch to slip and the engine will lose power.

HOW'S SHE HITTING?

By JAMES F. DONAHUE, NEA Service Writer

Although it's hard to believe, the way you sit while driving your car has a lot to do with the gasoline mileage you get out of it.

The driver's sitting position is as important for his comfort as it is for the economical performance of the car.

In the case of motoring, its "sitting" rather than "stance" of golf that is the by-word.

Some drivers have the habit of shifting constantly from throttle to brake pedal and back. This is especially true in traffic.

This practice leaves no room for ease and comfort at the wheel for the driver mentally is always on the alert and physically is adding a strain on himself.

The reason for his doing this, most likely, lies in the fact that too much gas is flowing through the carburetor while the engine is supposed to idle with the foot thrown in closed position. The result is that the one keeps moving forward faster than the traffic allows, and so the brake has to be applied constantly to check it.

IN NO HURRY TO BUY WATER PLANT HERE

Taxpayers' League Decides To Bide Time Before Putting Question Up To Town.

Sherwood G. Bowers, president of the Taxpayers' League, reported to the members of the association last night that high water rates in Manchester were justified by the South Manchester Water Company due to purchase and construction of the Buckingham reservoir in 1923 by which the available water supply for South Manchester was increased two-thirds, enabling the company to supply a potential population of 75,000 people.

Hea Rumors

The meeting was called to order by the president who after the regular order of business had been conducted, relinquished the chair to Acting Chairman Joseph Trotter. Mr. Bowers said that rumors had been heard that the South Manchester Water Company was for sale by Cheney Brothers and that a committee composed of Frank V. Williams, Joseph Trotter and himself had interviewed Frank Cheney, Jr. in relation to the matter.

The committee was given every consideration by Cheney Brothers, and although the company was somewhat surprised that the taxpayers of South Manchester were interested in the purchase of an utility company at this time, they however told the committee that the company was for sale. They also told the committee, according to Mr. Bowers, that several holding companies had made inquiry regarding the possible purchase of the plant.

Values Withheld

A survey of the holdings of the South Manchester Water Company was made some time ago, Mr. Bowers said, by three engineers and the property was found to be in fair shape. They set values on the plant which Cheney Brothers asked not to be disclosed at this, the initial stage of negotiations.

President Bowers of the Taxpayers said that it "was not fair to take over the South Manchester Water Company" and not the Manchester Water Company, and after a conference with William Foulds, Jr., it was revealed that the Manchester Water Company would sell, but "strictly speaking" the north end utility company was "not for sale."

The speaker said that both utility companies had been approached by large public utility holding companies for purchase.

Sewer District, Too

The meeting, attended by about 100 persons, was dampened somewhat when it was announced that Cheney Brothers would not sell the South Manchester Water Company unless the South Manchester Sanitary and Sewer District was included in the purchase. Asked what he thought the value of the properties was, Bowers said that the town tax was approximately $17,000 on the property, and that at the 1931 rate of 17 mills the property was valued at about $1,000,000.

In the event the town takes over the Cheney Brothers utilities companies, water rates would not be lowered for a period of years, Selectman Bowers said, because of the interest on the bond issue floated by the town, which would be charged against the utility company, thereby prohibiting the immediate reduction of water rates.

Sewer District Question

The Globe Hollow property is a separate unit, reserved by Cheney Brothers as a mill supply and not included in the deal. Speaking on the question of taking over the Sewer Company, Mr. Bowers said that it would be a hardship just now to assess abutting property owners for sewer costs through the formation of an Utilities District within the sewer district. The Olcott street filter plant owned by the South Manchester Sanitary District, recently constructed, was valued at approximately $100,000, he said.

Mr. Bowers said he was interested in one paragraph of the engineer's reports which disclosed that water rates would be increased seven per cent if the utility companies were taken over by utility holding companies.

Not In a Hurry

The consensus of the meeting was that nothing should be done hurriedly about the matter and that a thorough investigation should be made of all phases leading up to the disclosure of the purchase price of the companies.

The president reported that the executive committee of the League would be selected August 17.

FUTURE TO DECIDE

Concord, N. H., July 21.—(AP)—The future will determine the value of the accomplishments of the last session of Congress in the opinion of U. S. Senator George H. Moses, who returned home today. In volume of legislation Congress accomplished much, he said "but its type was largely experimental and the future will have to disclose its value."

CHILD'S HEALTH BEST BUILT UP DURING SUMMER

Bureau Director Gives Parents Suggestions Concerning Proper Diet and Sunshine.

Suggestions for the proper care of children's health, especially pertaining to hot weather diet and the value to health of summer sunshine, were made by Dr. A. Elisabeth Ingraham, director of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, last night in the department's weekly broadcast, which furnishes the summer activities of the department's activities to the "Smithson Family."

Dr. Ingraham enacting the role of an aunt of the Smithsons explained to them on their motor trip through the Connecticut hillsides the reasons why her grandchildren looked and acted so healthy. She voiced no wonder at their wholesome appearance, since their mother follows such rules to health as orange juice at a regular time each day, green vegetables every day, cooked cereals for breakfast and supper and rigid adherence to a plan of having at least one hot meal a day, preferably at noontime.

Dr. Ingraham also explained that the once prevalent practice of keeping children "out of the hot sun" is not longer in vogue for those families who would improve their youngsters' health and resistance to disease. Sun suits with just enough straps and cloth to cover the law are highly recommended, so that the children may receive full benefit of the sun. These also allow the children maximum freedom of the arms and legs, permitting full development of the muscles and bones.

Taking the children regularly to the community health center where a physician will examine them to see if they are healthy and gaining, is also recommended. The physician recommends playing in the sun in winter as well as in summer, going to bed early, and eating the right foods, including a full quart of milk a day for each child and vegetables of all kinds.

4-H CLUB EXHIBIT AT THE GRANBY FAIR

Hartford County Members To Be Entertained At Grange Fair September 16-17.

The Hartford County 4-H Club Exhibit will be held in connection with the Granby Grange Fair at Granby, September 16 and 17. This will be the second time that the Granby Grange Fair has entertained the 4-H Club members of the county.

Last year a splendid exhibit was put on which featured dairy and poultry exhibits in the agricultural classes and canning and clothing in the homemaking classes. This year the classes in which premiums will be offered have been enlarged and one of the main features will be a baby beef show which will be the first one to be held in the county since the state fair ceased to operate. At present we expect that thirteen animals will be shown at the Granby Exhibit and will go from there directly to the Eastern States Exposition where they will be auctioned off. These animals will be shown by Hartford county boys who have been feeding them for approximately a year aiming to have them in prime condition to sell at the Eastern States Exposition. Another feature which will be emphasized this year is the demonstration team contest.

The exhibit will be put on under the direction of 4-H Club members with an older boy or girl assuming charge of each department. It is expected that this will be the largest exhibit Hartford County 4-H Club members have ever staged, according to John S. Hale, County Club Agent.

FOOD WORRIES VETS

Washington, July 21.—(AP)—Who should have the food was beginning today to bother the Capital's bonus marchers.

Walter W. Walters, elected commander in chief of the chartered Bonus Expeditionary Forces, had charge of the commissary. But he issued orders that no supplies should be issued to groups led by John Pace of Detroit or Roy W. Robertson of California. Pace and Robertson had not found anything they could do about it.

All three leaders turned down another invitation by Felham D. Glassford, superintendent of Police to leave town while Pace and two of his aides awaited trial on charges that their attempted march on the White House yesterday constituted "parading without a permit" and "disorderly conduct."

OPEN FORUM

RELIEF PLAN

Editor of The Herald:

As a possible means of helping to solve the problem of keeping our townpeople from a too distressful condition this coming winter the following plan is submitted:

To begin with, the state law decrees that towns, cities, etc., shall provide for their people unable to provide for themselves. It does not state how well, or in what fashion they shall be cared for. The decree immediately sounds as if town government revenue should be the source of supply. We all know that that source of supply will most probably not meet the need. 90 per cent of the supply comes from the property owners. They should be allowed to pay their taxes in installments, of course. Even so, their tax moneys will be unable to meet the demand; and furthermore, it is an unfair burden to put upon them.

At all times it appears that a certain small percentage of people are unable to care for themselves and must therefore have recourse to the town. It was this small percentage of people which the state lawmakers had in mind when they made their decree. They did not have in mind such a thing as the wholesale unemployment burden which has been dumped on towns and cities.

Without prejudice or ill will in any direction, and only with a sense for justice, I offer the following:

1. Under the direction of the present Welfare Department personnel, maintain an adequate staff of workers taken from the ranks of the needy to handle the work of investigation, supply and employment bureau; also act as a clearing house for activities or contributions from groups throughout the town.

2. Remove from the aid and employment lists any foreigners who are not citizens. The state, not town, is obliged to care for them.

3. Accept from the farmers their surplus produce in lieu of taxes. Apply also their contribution of dairy products at prevailing market prices to their next year's taxes. These products and produce can then be distributed to the needy in place of cash or script. Let the town officers call for bids from farmers in order to buy their produce at wholesale prices, and begin NOW to conserve the green vegetables for future use.

4. Make use of the public school kitchens for the purpose of canning and preserving foods for the winter. Also solicit churches, etc., for use of their kitchens for preserving purposes. Take the workers from the ranks of the needy.

5. Induce and aid the independent storekeepers who are property owners and local men to pool their resources, thus enabling them to retail at prices as low as the chain systems. Incidentally, let them contribute some of their goods toward the commissary in lieu of taxes.

6. Accept from all individuals goods in lieu of tax money, giving preference to those who are investigated and found most needy. Timberlands for fuel should be one good barter. Of course, the acceptance of goods in lieu of money cannot be carried beyond the point where actual cash is needed to pay the town's debts.

7. If the existing local laundries are unable to meet the needs of the townpeople who are well enough off to have their laundry done, organize corps of laundresses or laundrymen to do laundry work coming through the welfare employment exchange. The town probably could not afford laundry equipment for a central unit. If it could, possibly that might work out more satisfactorily. Carry a maid and houseman service.

8. All those applying for aid should rotate in hours of work on all jobs available through the welfare employment bureau. In paying workers, either give goods or script, reimbursing the stores for the amount of script honored. The town should also indicate, distinctly, by proportional assignments, designating which stores shall accommodate which districts—in order to spread the trade.

9. Girls and women's clubs should organize in collecting clothes and helping to make things over for those in need.

10. Have a sliding scale of rents which can be paid to landlords of unemployed people.

11. On the matter of appropriation for schools, I would not attempt in this letter to question what steps we might take to get heavier support from state funds for the schools.

12. If with these efforts made, the town is unable to afford adequate relief, it should either lay a special relief tax or make an appeal for charity fund of cash, not pledges, or make request for help from the federal relief fund.

JAPS' EXPEDITION NOT AN INVASION

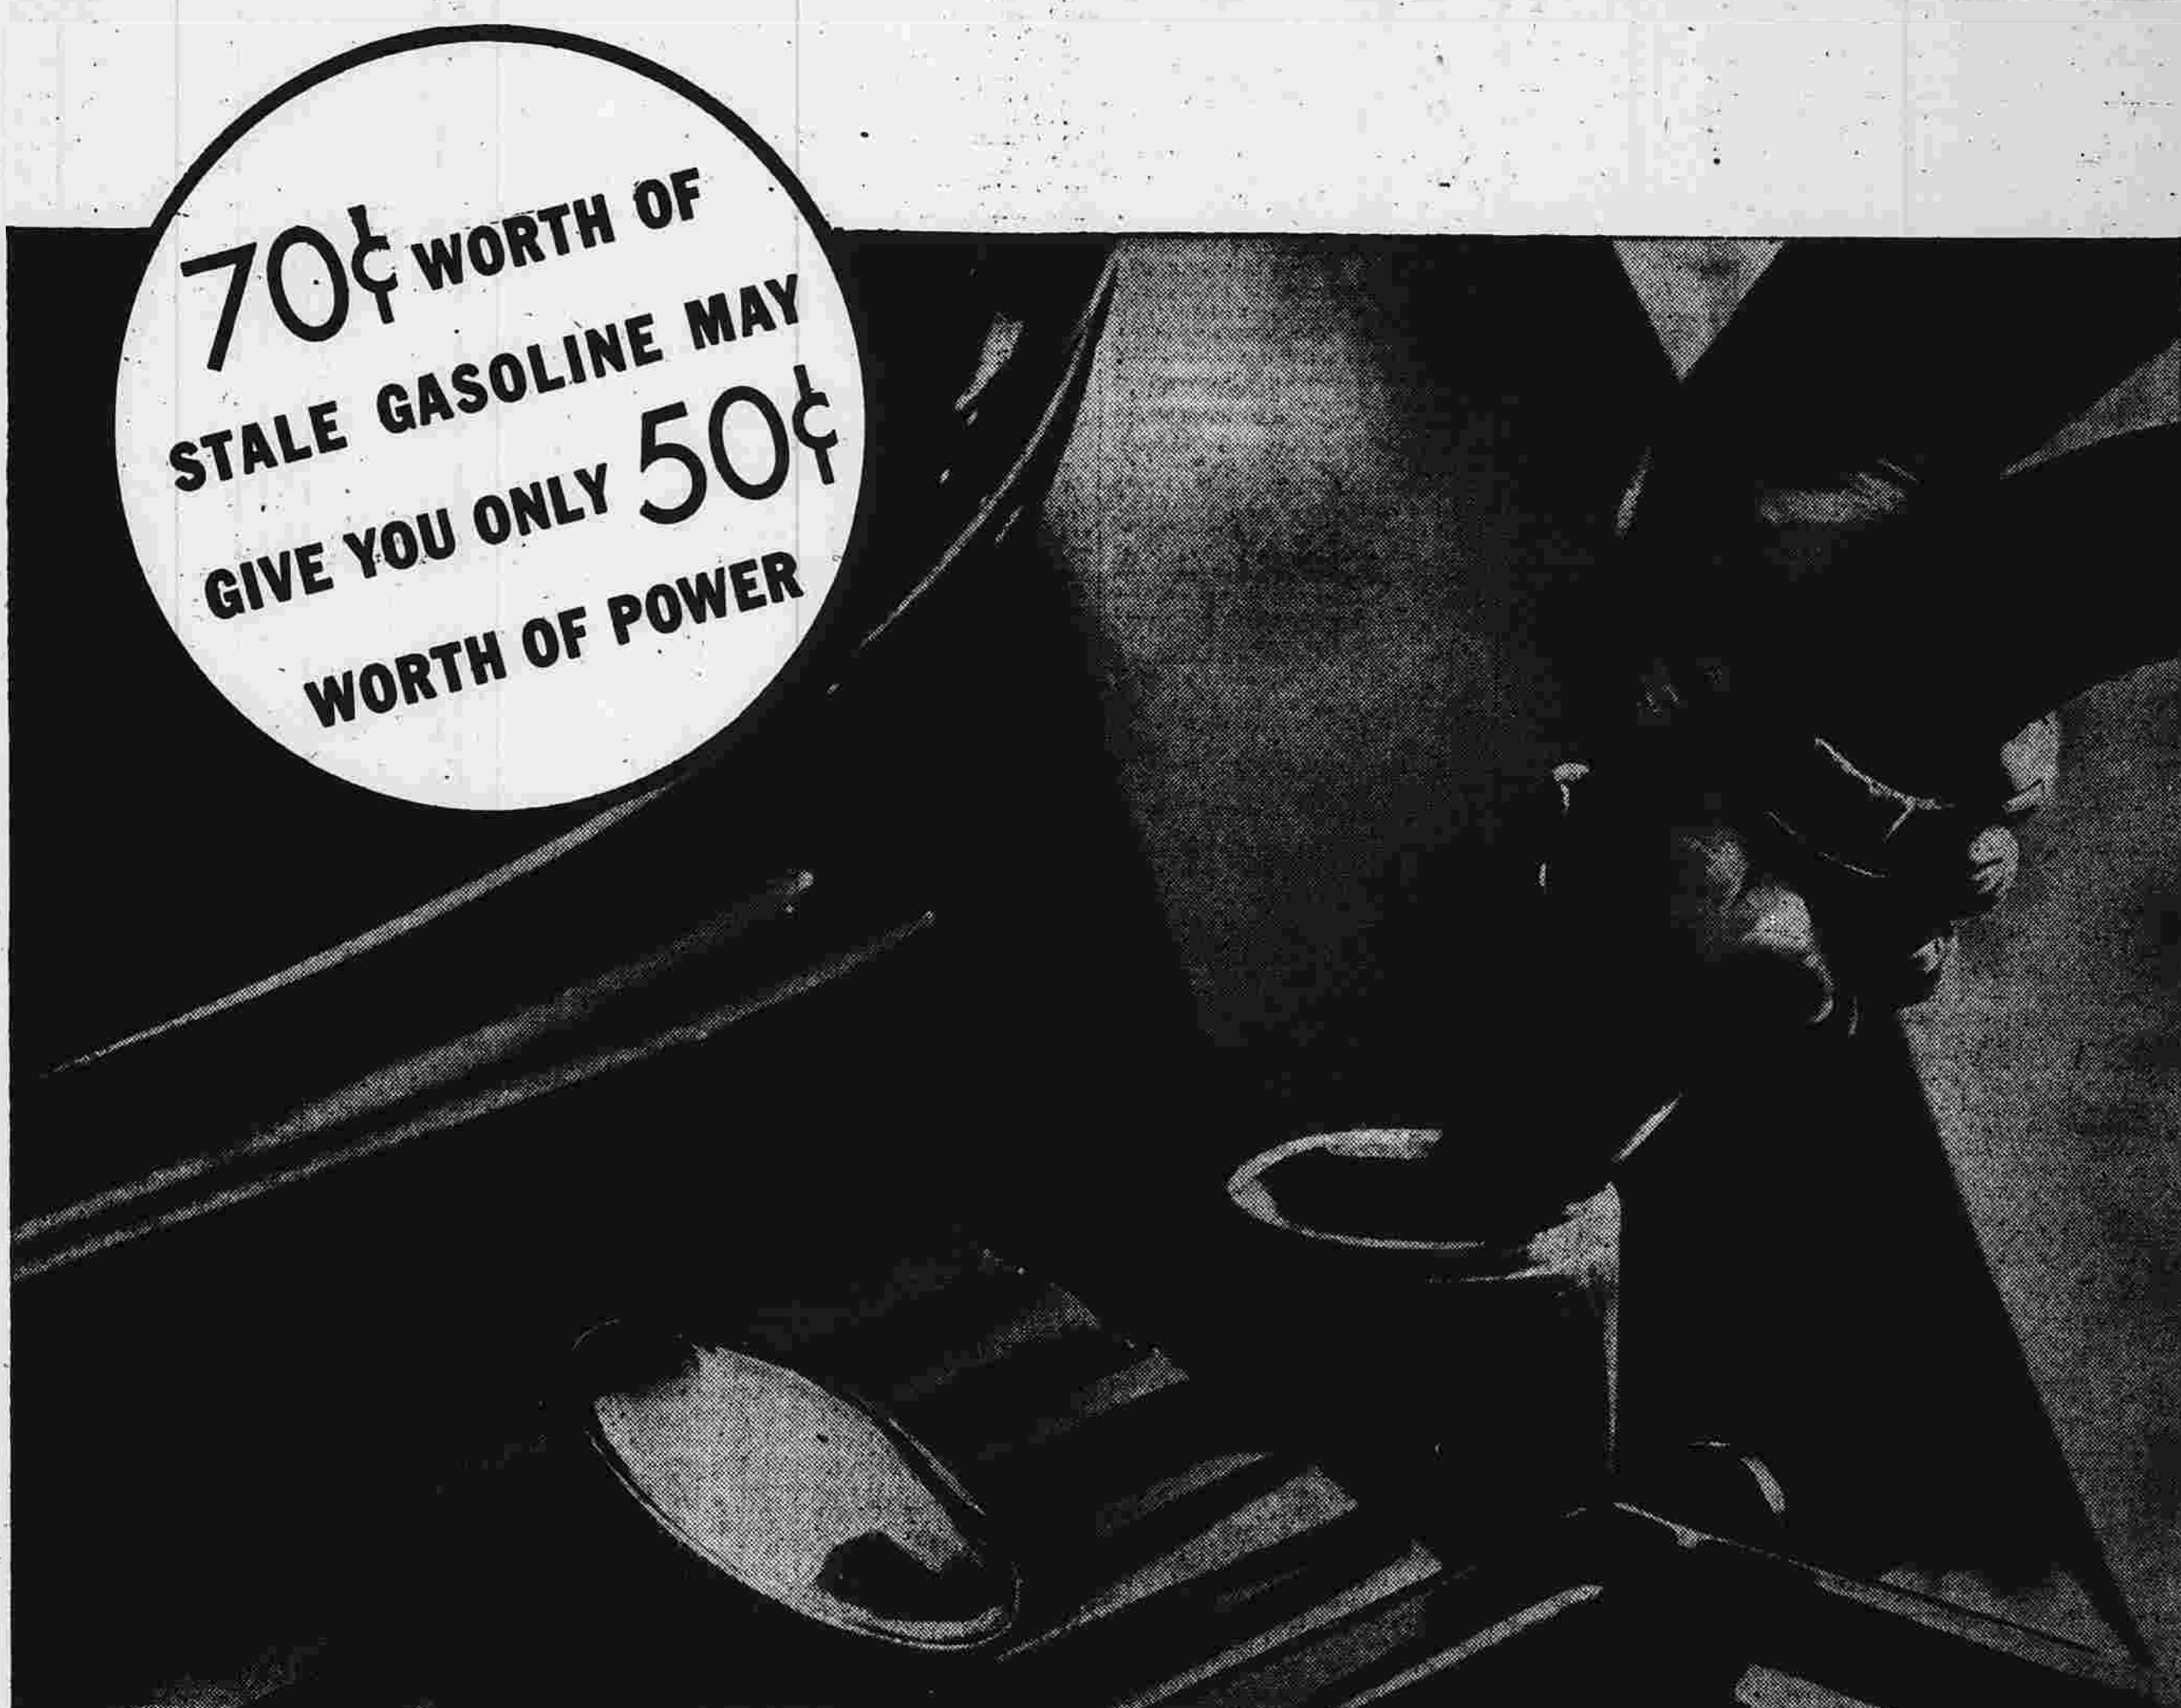

But There Are Wild Reports and Talk of "Crisis" in Northern China.

Tokyo, July 21.—(AP)—Japanese military authorities today denied that there was any intention of conquest of the Province of Jehol which lies on the Manchurian border and is a part of the new State of Manchoukuo.

A small expeditionary force has been sent into Jehol to rescue Gonshira Ishimoto, a former Japanese Army officer who was captured by Jehol troops some days ago. The authorities said the force had not been increased and that no trouble was expected inasmuch as the Jehol authorities had promised to liberate their captive in a day or two.

Report from Mukden to the Tokyo war office confirmed dispatches that Japanese aviators had been in action over Chaoyang in Eastern Jehol. The report said Jehol troops fired on a Japanese scouting party last Monday and the planes returned the fire.

Meanwhile there was alarm and confusion throughout northern China. There was a report that Chiang Kai-Shek was on the way back to Nanking from Hangchow because of the "Jehol crisis." Another report said the Nanking government had ordered Chang Hsiang-Liang to mobilize "Against the Japanese threat." Chang was said to have sent two brigades to the Jehol border, and it was said that other north China generals hostile to Chang were plotting to take advantage of the present confusion to attempt his overthrow.

as gas gets staler - gas gets weaker

Do you know what happens when gas gets stale? It loses power! As staleness increases, the more volatile parts of gas evaporate. A chemical change takes place when gas is stored. And power decreases! Stale gas is feeble gas. Gives you a slower start. Sluggish pick-up. It is more apt to foul valves and carburetor—because stale gas becomes stickier as it grows older. Stale gas knocks more, too—particularly on hills.

The whole petroleum industry has long known these facts. And for the past several years, Gulf has been developing a system that assures you of getting FRESH gasoline! How? . . . First, by giving you the best gasoline that can be made—by so refining this gas that the elements that cause rapid deterioration of gasoline are eliminated. Hence, Gulf gas stays FRESH longer. Second, by taking this FRESH-MADE, PEAK-POWERED gas and rushing it to you in a hurry.

From the moment it is made, Gulf gas never gets a chance to get stale. The whole Gulf organization has been geared up to high speed. Huge Gulf refineries have been placed in many sections of the country—so that a stream of FRESH-MADE gas can be kept flowing into every one of the 45,000 Gulf filling stations. A vast fleet of fast trucks speeds FRESH gas to Gulf stations every day in the year! . . . Get FRESH gas—packed with power. Get Gulf. Use it exclusively. Your motor will be cleaner. Quieter. Faster.

get THAT GOOD GULF GASOLINE—it's fresh

GIPSY MOTHS STRIP TREES OF FOLIAGE

Large White Oak Near Danielson Skeletonized By Pest - Feeds On All Green Leaves.

Danielson, July 21.-The rapacious gipsy moth, against which the state of Connecticut, and the United States government have for years waged combat, has succeeded for the first time in defoliating trees in this state.

A large white oak on the state road between Danielson and Brooklyn has been skeletonized by the insect and other trees in the neighborhood wholly or partly defoliated. A few near South Killingly and Plainfield have been injured. No further danger exists this year, for the pest has stopped feeding and entered the pupal state.

Mission Built on Rocks Houses Saint's Painting

Unique in its history, and the largest mission church in New Mexico, is the old Acoma Church, 80 miles west of Albuquerque, situated in the "City of the Sky," an Indian pueblo built upon the summit of a gigantic tableland of rock.

The church was established in 1299 by Friar Juan Ramirez, a Franciscan priest. It is more than 150 feet in length, and is a masterpiece of adobe, the front walls topped by two square towers. Above are the convento and the look-out, a vantage point from which one may view anyone approaching the narrow ascent from the plains 400 feet below.

The interior of the church is spacious, but dimly lighted from the tiny windows in the front wall. Like many old churches in New Mexico, the chapel is barren of images and ornaments.

San Quentin Prison, July 21.- (AP) - "Kid" McCoy, past master of boxing, packed his belongings here today preparing to return to the world whose favors were cut off by the performance of a prison road camp last night, unguarded.

The former champion to the mid-weight championship of the world arrived from a prison road camp last night, unguarded. Already virtually free, he was to leave the prison at 9 a. m. P. S. T. for a short trip to the office of State Patrol Agent Ed Whyte in San Francisco.

QUEER TWISTS IN DAY'S NEWS

Belleville, Ill.- Eighteen years ago Joseph Douglas, negro, was sent to the penitentiary to serve 12 to 14 years for manslaughter - and he is still there. Attorney Ray T. Hendricks, declaring authorities apparently forgot about Douglas, has petitioned for release of the "forgotten man."

Ossining, N. Y.- A big crowd came to see a ball game here Sunday but more than a big crowd left, and that is what's worrying Sing Sing prison officials. Anthony De Bernardis, serving 15 years, mingled with the crowd which saw the prison nine perform and oozed right out an exit.

Pine Bluff, Ark.- The thief who robbed C. E. Lee's henroost is welcome to come again - if he'll repeat the performance. Lee found two 50-cent bullets missing. On the floor lay a $10 bill the robber had dropped.

Cleveland - Charles Sylva should live pretty well in his native Czechoslovakia. After being deported as an alien, he was awarded $18 a week for life by the state compensation board because he was injured while working in this state.

Chicago - Lawyers can be speed demons with impunity if they are enroute to or from court. Accused of cracking the speed laws, Attorney S. L. August dug up a mellow statute saying lawyers are immune from arrest while going to and from court. He won the argument.

Bloomington, Pa.- To be eligible for employment relief here, automobile owners must deposit their car keys and license cards with the Poor Board, says a new ruling. Persons with telephones will not get poor board orders.

Hollywood On Parade For Premier Laughs Through Tears Over Pay Cuts

Hollywood - Filmland make-believe occasionally takes a gallant turn, inventing the colony with glamor that is more than tinsel.

The other morning came news that M-G-M, last of the studios to feel the financial pinch, had ordered sweeping salary cuts up and down the line of talent.

It was not pleasant news to an industry that has found these recent times uncomformably close-fisted.

Hollywood, its mass mind as susceptible to stages of gloom as the individual temperaments of its artists, reacted.

That night, there was one of Sid Grauman's "China" theater "wild premieres," - and Hollywood boulevard, as though touched with the wand of prosperity, looked like the old home town on circus day - but to the old home town never looked like that.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

Mona made her way down the three flights of dreary stairs. The Morans lived as high above the street as the house afforded so that Kitty would get better air. As Mona dodged empty milk bottles and stepped over garbage cans into the gasoline laden street her heart was beating tumultuously.

Steve Saccarelli beck! Back from where—and for what?

She remembered Steve so well though in the three years of his absence the neighborhood, rife with gossip, had discarded him. The girl smiled a little forlornly. The sight of him would soon revive much of the old gossip. Gossip about Steve and about Mona, too.

Mona had been Minnie then. Steve was the grandson of Tony, the coal and ice man around on Third avenue. Olive-skinned, subtle of expression and intent, lean, imbued with charm and graciousness.

Minnie had been spindle-shanked—or so Bud had called her—freckled, carrot-topped. In an excusable flash of thought Mona wondered what Steve would think of her now.

Three years ago Steve and Mona had been inseparable. Perhaps it was puppy love, perhaps it was the opposition of their elders, or it may have been just for the fun of hearing Mrs. Casey discourse on "that Moran girl" and seeing Mrs. Callahan turn up her nose when Tony's Steve passed by.

Perhaps it was something deeper. With the pounding of her heart, Mona felt a sudden exasperation. She had aspirations above—well, above Tony's boy!

Her father had rather liked Steve when, in his father's chain set, she by the steps, the boy stopped beside him, bringing him an orange or a banana, cheerfully flished from the Greek's stand.

But Mona's mother, less simple than Dad, knew what the neighbors would say. They hadn't set breath on the edge of their seats watching Rudolph Valentino make love for nothing! Steve's eyes and grace were too reminiscent of compromising scenes in the movies to be trusted.

It amused Mona to recall that once she had been thrilled by Steve. Steve, Casanova of the boy of the 60's, later a helper in his grandfather's business, and then a taxi driver!

Taxi driving was a respected occupation in their neighborhood. It paid good money and a man was his own boss. However, the neighbors suspected Steve. Too many of the taxi chauffeurs were gangsters. And suddenly, swooping down on Minnie as she returned from the shop one evening, Steve had drawn his cab near the curb, talked a moment and then disappeared. There were accounts of a jewel robbery in the newspapers next day, but she recalled. No one ever had seen him again.

Nobody even heard of him except Tony who relayed the word to Steve's mother, unable either to read or write. Tony, the ice and coal man, coming up from his cellar like a protesting gnome, insisted that the boy was "okay." Away, yes, but okay, Steve sent much money home to them through a lawyer.

For the sophisticates that settled it, Steve was in prison, "taking the rap" for someone higher up the scale was sending money to Tony until Steve could get out and take care of the family.

Then, like other highly colored stories, it ran itself out. Mona never spoke of Steve. Nor had she believed him a gangster. Steve's last bargaining chat with her just before his cab careened around the corner and out of sight. Mona now understood to have been a farewell. Steve had planned then to go away.

The three years that followed had changed Mona but her feeling toward Steve had not changed. She believed in him, was fond of him.

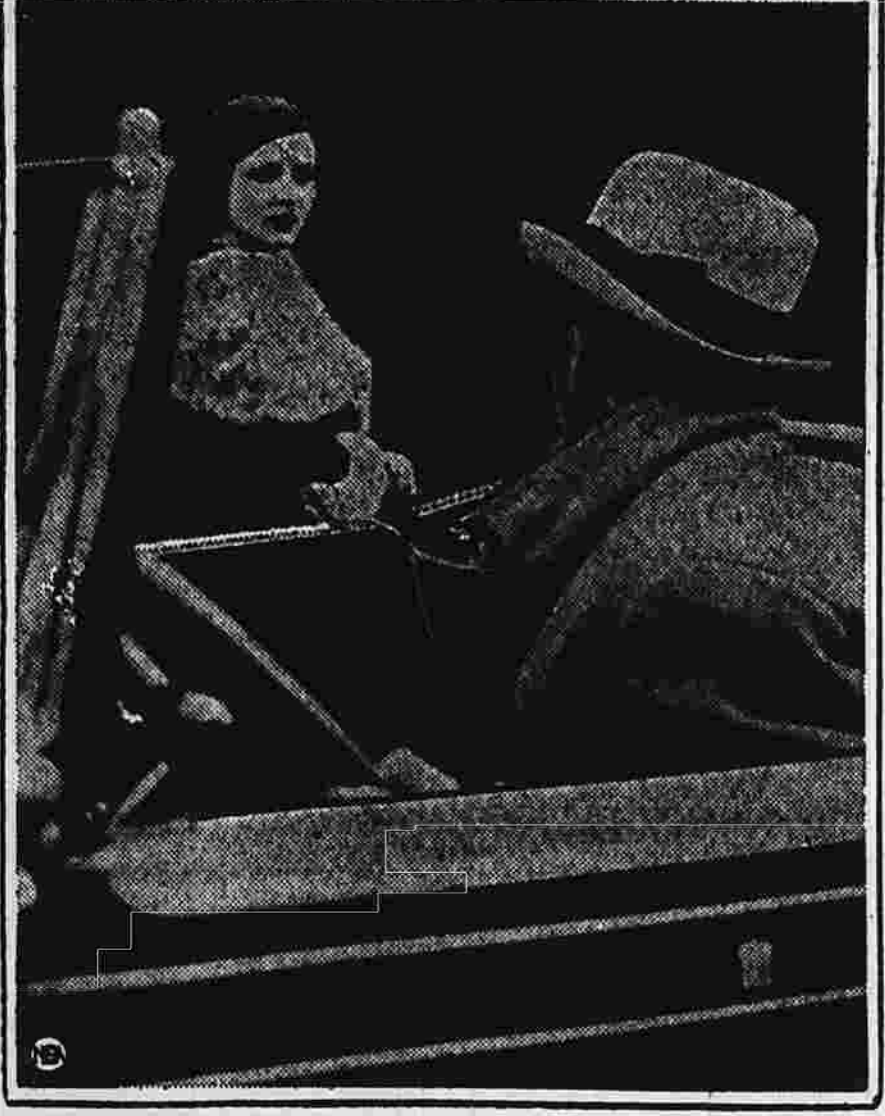

Now Steve was back. What would that mean to her? What would it mean to him, perhaps, if he came back expecting to find Mona as she had been three years before? Little drives on hot nights in his battered old car. Trips to Coney. Dancing on an excursion boat as it nosed coastwise toward Atlantic Highlands. Movies. Dancing at Roseland.

Roseland, Coney Island! Mona hadn't thought of them for months. She won't today be forgotten 67th street, too, if that had been possible.

Now she hurried toward the elevated railroad, wondering when she would see Steve, unaware that fate had decided on the moment.

"Minnie!" a voice called behind her. "Minnie, it's you, isn't it? What luck!"

It was Steve. He drew the low-slung car along the curb skillfully and, hat in hand, swung out on the street, his fine teeth gleaming in his olive face, his dark eyes dancing with delight.

Steve drew the low-slung car along the curb skillfully

Changed, too. A Steve who had taken on somehow the manner of that world to which Mona, at her work in the Wall Street law office, daily aspired.

Steve was driving a lean-fankled, expensive car—not a taxicab. A soft brown hat was pulled over his eyes. Just the right hat. He wore a topcoat turned up about his neck and he wore gloves.

"Hi! Gee, it's great to find you!"

The blood rushed to her face, then receded as the young man's admiring eyes traveled from the brim of her smart little hat to her shoes. Steve could see the change in her, too, Mona knew. A change as important, as subtle as the change that had come over him.

Steve hadn't been in prison! Men do not learn to speak, to dress, to look like Park avenue in Sing Sing!

"I've thought about you a hundred times, Min. The first thing I did after I got back was look for Bud to ask about you." Steve grinned again. "I found him in the second poolroom."

"You might have telephoned."

"Well, I did. But your mother answered and I pretended I had the wrong number. I knew she didn't like me and I didn't want to run the chance of losing you."

"As if Mother could have kept your car a secret!"

"Then," Steve went on, his hand still closed about Mona's, "I hung around the subway and the elevated, hoping to waylay you on the way back from work. Sure she rides home in the boss' car. Pat the nurse, told me just to tease me. It's good to see you, Mona! Aren't you the early bird, though?"

"You are up early yourself, Steve."

He leaned down toward her ear, regarded it admiringly, then whispered with mock secrecy.

"I'm not up this early. I'm up this late. Haven't been to bed yet."

With the gesture of a detective flashing his badge, Steve pulled back his topcoat. He was wearing evening attire which to Mona's practiced eye spelled perfection.

Well, high life—or whatever the clothes implied—was certainly becoming to Steve. Whatever had brought it about sat easily on his conscience, too. Never had she seen him so sure of himself, so worldly wise. If Steve had consorted with crooks they must certainly be gentlemen.

"I'll take you down to your office," Steve suggested after the first excitement of their meeting disappeared.

Mona climbed into the seat and Steve jumped in beside her. He started the car with a low, almost imperceptible purr.

"Where have you been, Steve?" she asked without parody as they threaded the elevated posts on Third avenue. "You weren't—you weren't—"

"In jail!" He turned and regarded her profile seriously. "No! And nothing like it, Min! You know, well, maybe I was mixed up in something but I fooled 'em."

"Fooled who? The cops?"

"Harder than that, Min. I fooled the gang."

He paused as if about to take her into his confidence, then abruptly decided otherwise.

Steve laid a hand over her small gloved one and tightened his grasp as he continued.

"You mustn't worry about me. You've heard a lot of lies about me since I've been gone. Maybe some of 'em were true! Everything I've got today is straight money. I've gone straight—did it before I really went crooked! Lot's of guys who are in on rackets would like to pull out but they can't. Maybe I couldn't—but I did. They were sore at me for a while but it all blew over."

"They can't—?"

"Can't what? Get me? Min, they can get anyone, as far as that goes. They bullets don't care who they bump off. But the chances are they won't go after me. They aren't afraid I'll spill anything to the cops. It was all spilled long ago—and plenty! I washed the papers. And I didn't have very much on them anyhow. They saw to that."

"You talk like a movie."

"Then let's talk about something else." There was a pause and Mona noticed that the growing of the train policeman at the intersection

Delicious in yellow chiffon voile is today's cute dress.

The yellow sash is lined with a soft cocoa shade brown voile. It is quite effective trimmed at the waistline. The decorative clips at the neck are yellow stone.

The puffed sleeves—not too full—as is the way with many of the newest ones, are charming on this dress.

It's as simple as A, B, C, to fashion it.

If you want a dress definitely for more hardy wear, a red and white linen print is lovely worn with a red leather belt.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

POISE SPELLS SELF-CONFIDENCE

Poise is necessary to self confidence. There are a few simple fundamentals that will make even the most graceless graceful, if they are followed faithfully.

First of all when you are standing, stand. Don't rest your weight on one foot, and let your body sag. The resulting line is old, weary, unattractive. There is nothing unbecomingly about it. Sometimes women who feel that they are too tall, because the other members of the group in which they are standing are not tall, will throw their weight on their feet. They think that the half inch or inch that is removed from their weight is worth it. This gesture is a foolish, superficial one. It doesn't help. Everyone knows at once what is being done. A body that would be graceful, when standing erect, becomes careless and graceless. The waistline is thickened and the stomach is thrown out of place.

A tall, graceful carriage is much more desirable than one that slumps. If you are tall they up to it. Carry your head proudly, shoulders thrown back.

In sitting, many people do ridiculous things with their feet. They turn them and use the sides as a resting basis. They twist them mercilessly. This is hard on the nerves of our own physical make-up as well as on those of everyone who has to look at you.

Plant your feet squarely on the floor when you sit down, more weight on the bottom of the foot than on the heel, of course. Now, if you want to get a graceful line, advance it strictly informal, is permitted and has come to be accepted.

When your hands are crossed in your lap, or are resting on the arms of a chair, keep the palms turned up. The line is lovelier, and the effect more pleasing. Then, too, blood that would thicken on the veins if the hands rested on the palms is kept in its place.

There are lots of women who have had hair brushed, escape from mediocrity in appearance. But they learned what to do with their hair and it saved them.

There are few women who are beautiful enough to wear their hair in a severe, straight, away-from-the-ears manner.

Sit down and look at yourself in the mirror. Take the pins away from your hair. Drape it around your face. Sometimes the effect will make you look as smart as a silhouetted figure on a theater program. At other times you will have a touch of glamor. Keep on until you find the effect that is you.

If your hair is too short to permit of being styled until it is so long that you dislike the way you are wearing it, let it grow until it is long enough for you to mold it into a more interesting coiffure.

Curls have been returning lately. Clusters of ringlets at the nape of the neck are in keeping with the puffed sleeves and flowered organdies that have made women so glamorous again. But if your curls give the appearance of having been imitated instead of having grown tight to your scalp, don't wear them. You must look natural, above everything.

There are a few simple rules to remember in planning a new coiffure.

If your face is as round as an apple, curl your hair and fluff it a little on your cheeks and let your forehead show. Accoutre your roundness.

If your nose is big, don't pull your hair back over your ears. Bring your hair down on your forehead and watch your nose recede. Wlps, curls or a side-bang all help. Choose the one that looks best.

If your face is long and thin, a longer bob will be beneficial in softening its angles.

If one side of your face is prettier than the other, part your hair on the side that is less perfect.

Necks also tell you what to do about hair. Whether they are short and plump, or long and slender will help you decide.

But sit down and look in the mirror. Frame your face becomingly as you can. It will receive more than a second glance.

Woman's Place In The News

Royal Wedding for Her

Once monarchist Germany would have been all a-flutter at news of the approaching marriage of Count Joseph Alvensleben-Schonborn, a nephew of the former Kaiser, and master of great estates near Posen. But it was not the fact that he was to wed that caused the biggest headlines in the newspapers the other day. It apparently was more important to republican Germany that the bride was to be Miss Gisella Kassonyi, popular Berlin actress, and the fact that she was to marry drew prime attention.

Mrs. Maude T. Curley had the honor of unveiling a tablet of Governor Morris, a patriot of the Revolutionary War, in St. Anne's Church, in the Bronx, New York, recently. Mrs. Curley is a descendant of the statesman.

Mary Bell Dunn and Leah Marian Kibbey have gone up in the air about their work. They sketch and paint pictures of airplanes from other airplanes.

Anatomist Honored

Dr. Florence R. Sablin of New York, has been awarded the National Achievement Award Medal, which was presented at White Sulphur Springs, Va., by Chi Omega, the sorority that sponsors the award. Dr. Sablin is anatomist at the Rockefeller Foundation.

The distinction of being the first woman aerial chauffeur goes to Miss Marie C. Graham, of Arizona.

Woman Airway Official

Mrs. L. H. Saunders, of the Eastern Air Transport, has the distinction of being the only woman in charge of reservation control of an airway line. Anybody who wants to ride on the line has to make his reservation through her teletype board, which is located at Richmond, Va.

MATERNITY MORTALITY

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth of four articles by Dr. Fishbein on maternal mortality.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The occurrence of complications due to special construction of the body which makes the process of childbirth exceedingly difficult must be anticipated by a physician through proper study of the patient well in advance.

In instances where difficulty is a certainty, it is frequently desirable for the patient to go to the hospital a week or more in advance of the anticipated event.

Morover, the physician of today is concerned in handling childbirth not only with the actual disease of the patient, but with the question of medical care, but also with economic and social factors, which undoubtedly have an important bearing on childbirth.

The circumstances under which the woman lives, the state of her health and nutrition, her daily life and occupation may all exercise some effect on her health and on that of the child. An unsanitary dwelling with overcrowding, inadequate lighting and ventilation may be serious in their effects on both mother and baby.

If the home conditions are unsatisfactory for the woman who expects to have a child, every effort must be made to obtain better accommodations, particularly at the time when the child is to be born.

Finally, there comes the question of work. How long shall the woman continue to work previous to her childbirth? It has been shown that a prolongation of the process and a reduction in the weight of the newborn infant may be the direct consequence of work continued until the moment of childbirth.

Sometimes it is better that a woman continue the regular work that she has been doing as long as possible in order to keep her muscular system in good condition.

In any event, the employment of the woman should always be under observation, because of the danger of certain poison in industry, and particularly because of the dangers of undue fatigue or excessive strain.

In many countries laws have been passed protecting prospective mothers. In our own country there is little such legislation, but every thing possible is being done to educate women to seek the attention of a physician as soon as possible and to realize that early and continued attention may mean the difference between life and death.

"Sex Snobbery" Begins Early

"Where did you hear that word, Bobby? I never heard you say that before."

"What word?"

"Jane." You said you were not going to have any 'Janes' on your place."

"Huh! Jane means girl. Didn't you know that?"

"Yes, I have heard girls called several things but only by people I wouldn't want to copy. It's a smart word, I think."

"Dick Smith calls them Jane. He isn't a smart aleck."

"No, I wouldn't call him that. What I would call him is a longer word. You would not understand. I'll pronounce it, however, missologist. It means in grown-up language to hate girls and women. He never has a good word to say about a girl and he treats his lovely sisters terribly."

"Now, I tell him he does, but he just says girls aren't any good. I guess when there's three of them and only one of him he gets kind of tired of girls around."

"That isn't the reason, Bobby. I think it is because he is the only boy and he has been spoiled. He has gotten into his head that he is very much more important than they are."

"Maybe. But say, Mom, none of the boys wants girls around all the time."

"Sure they don't. I understand that. Add the girls don't want you boys around all the time."

"Not to be bothered?"

"They seem to, Mom. They're always asking us places we don't want to go and inviting us to play—and we don't want to be bothered."

"Just wait a few years and it will be different," she smiled. "But there is one thing I want you to keep in mind, dear, and that is that girls are quite as important as boys and I won't have you calling them by slang names or thinking they are a nuisance."

Bobby pondered this. "I didn't think about it before, Mom. I guess all us kids think we're Mike and all the girls are just kind of—"

"Extra?"

"Yes, that's it."

"So many boys grow up into men and never change their minds about that. They are making a big mistake. The finest men I have known are men who never felt themselves to be so far and away superior to women. Real men and real boys are courteous and respectful to their sisters and other people's sisters."

The conversation was getting too deep, so she said, "Now run along, dear. No more 'Janis' or 'skirts' or anything like that. I'll be in the kitchen. Wasn't this mother wise? Bob went through a 'girl shy' stage, but Bobby had not reached that yet. This was merely a case of his friends and himself feeling superior, especially his friend Dick."

Sex snobbery starts very early. It is to be wondered if the revenge some young women seem to delight in later on, is not a result of being considered nuisances by the boys they knew when they were small.

babies consumed six or eight ounces and stopped fretting after the first good drink. It would be hard to say why she became so thirsty all at once. But she did. She developed into a great water drinker and began to gain steadily in weight.

Older babies on varied diets—cereals, vegetables, fruit juices, custards and perhaps eggs, that contain thirst-producing substances, sugar and salt—cannot help but be thirsty. After they have had a meal give them a little drink of water. The big drinks should be between meals. Do not allow them to get into the habit of drinking just before they take a meal either. But I do not think that it matters if the stomach is not flooded by large drafts that dilute digestive juices.

The great part of water should be taken between meals, however.

In summer we need to take more fluid because we lose more through the pores by perspiration. Tissues take up the water all over the body very quickly. In fact, water constitutes by far the greater part of our body's weight, being not only contained in our blood and other fluids but in the muscles, organs, and even in the bones themselves.

So please do not forget on these hot days to give the baby plenty of water. Iced water should never be given. If you are not quite sure of your water supply, boil it for all the children.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

AN INTERESTING DISCUSSION OF U. S. LITERATURE.

New Book Shows How Changes in Cultured Life Affected By Our Authors.

The way in which the shifting patterns of America's cultural ground have brought about changes in the nation's literature makes a fascinating study; and an excellent discussion of it is contained in "American Literature and Culture," by Grant C. Knight.

Mr. Knight begins by examining the literature of the colonial period—a literature almost unknown to the ordinary reader of today, but significant, nevertheless, for its reflection of the prevailing intellectual temper of its time. Then he takes up what he calls "the literature of romanticism"—a literature which, he says, began with the revolution and petered out late in the 19th century. There follows a discussion of the "realism" under which heading he groups practically all American writers since 1900.

Rightly enough, it is the romantic school to which he gives the most space; and some of his comments on the individual writers of the first half of the 19th century seemed to me to be extremely good, especially his pages on Emerson, Poe, Whitman and Melville.

The section dealing with modern writers is perhaps the least satisfactory—as very likely, is only natural. His treatment of Dreiser, intellectualism, and Cabell (to mention only three) sound like excerpts from a dissertation in a class in freshman English.

In the main, his book is a good one; not too profound, perhaps, but thoughtful, neatly-written and interesting.

Published by Ray Long and Richard R. Smith, it sells for $3.

HONEST POLITICIAN

Houston, Tex.—There were no lanterns used at a political rally here, but the crowd attending found an honest man. Only they didn't believe it. Kenneth McCale, assistant to the District Attorney, was listening to a speech by a rival candidate, when, looking down, he saw a roll of bills on the ground. Picking up the money he strode to the platform and told the audience that he would give the money to any person who could describe it. No one replied, and the crowd jeered him afterward for what they had thought a campaign stunt. But later, after the meeting, a man claimed the money.

MISSING ANY SOAP

Salt Lake City, Utah — For a while, George A. Green, Jr., thought he had stumbled on a "five and ten-cent" store burglar's hang-out. Entering an abandoned miner's cabin in Big Cottonwood canyon, he found in the attic 64 bars of soap, 38 cloths pins, a woman's silk stocking, three harmonicas, three handkerchiefs, seven knives and forks and several bolts. It turned out, however, that the "burglar's" pack was which must have stolen the loot from nearby campers and transported it.

Danny Dickson, star slugger for Chattanooga in the Southern association, is a former Rice Institute player.

Seven of the eight clubs in the Texas league put into effect at least one salary reduction during the first half of the split 1932 season.

Donald Anderson, president of the Missouri Amateur Golfers' association, is the new head of the St. Louis Professional Soccer league.

A chapter of the Left-Hander Golfers association is being formed in Fort Worth, Tex., which boasts more than 100 southpaw linksmen.

Twenty letter men will return for the 1932 football squad at Southeastern Oklahoma Teachers college.

The Cleveland Indians had a batting average of .370 for three days which included a double-header with the Athletics and an 18-inning game.

Wesley Foster, former Ohio State All-America football player and baseball and basketball star, has gone in for golf and has his score down to 85.

Coaches numbering 117 entered a summer school session at Indiana university this year.

Theodore R. Dreyes of St. Louis won his ninth straight municipal tennis title by capturing the 1932 tournament.

George Jennings of Chicago, four times singles and five times doubles champion in national public parks tennis tournaments, will be unable to defend his titles this year because of a chronic knee injury.

Purdue university lost through graduation 15 football letter men, most of whom had played the last three seasons.

Vic Sorrell, Detroit pitching ace, has faced Wesley Ferrell, Cleveland, three times this year and been defeated each time.

Jimmy Denmore, Erie, Pa., pitcher, tried an "iron man" stunt of pitching both games in a double-header with South Bend, but lost the second game.

FIND MAN'S BODY

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 21.—(AP)—The body of a man was taken from the Niagara river at Lewiston today and removed to an undertaking establishment here to await identification.

Some persons who viewed the remains thought they might be those of Nikolai Semenov, Cleveland, noted Russian dancer, who was reported to have fallen to death over the Horseshoe falls several weeks ago. Coroner W. L. Draper, does not believe the body that of Semenov.

The body is that of a man about 40 years old, five-foot and seven inches tall and weighing about 145 pounds. The face is badly decomposed and positive identification will be difficult, the coroner said. The only clothing on the body was a pair of high laced black shoes and a bow tie.

SPORT SLANTS

Los Angeles.—These Olympic games have drawn many a lone corner of the athletic compass.

There's Sylvio Cator, the dusky broad-jumper from Haiti, who holds the present world's record of 36 feet and a fraction of an inch. He's here to defend it. Having had experience as a newspaper correspondent, Sylvio knows the value of publicity and astonished some of the experts by writing them a polite note, thanking for items about him in the public prints.

From Poland there's a rangy runner named Janusz Kosciński. He's subsidized by his government, much as the Finns were a few years ago, as a patriotic measure. What's more he thinks he can out-pace the best of the world's runners at the 5,000 and 10,000-meter distances.

The big hope of Czechoslovakia for a headline performance is the shot-putter, Frantisek Douida, who has heaved the 16-pound ball out close to 53 feet. He may be the biggest threat to our Messrs. Bris, Sexton, Rothert or Rhea.

Uruguay's lone entry is a sculler, Guillermo Douglas, who has come a long way to row against such scullers as Bobby Pearce, the world's champion, and Bill Miller, our three-time national sculling titleholder.

These are the athletes who come imbued with the real Olympic spirit, steering clear of all conflicts except the friendly ones of competition.

Together—We Stand... The "east" and far west have turned out enough star talent, along with the great American midlands, to make up our Olympic Olympic track and field team this year.

With every section so well represented, therefore, it would seem about time to quit haggling over the inconsequential details and get down to the real business of athletic rivalry with the rest of the world.

There has been enough "popping off" to put for the rest of the year in advance of the big jamboree in Los Angeles. When the boys get through arguing about the timing of starting at Berkeley, they went into a heated debate over the final trials.

For the time being, at least, sectionalism belongs on the shelf. There will be plenty of time to take up our domestic athletic troubles again when the international Olympic party is over.

Open Up The Golden Gate. It looks as though it will take nothing less than a full battle squadron, cleared for action, to stop the magnificent surge of California's state-ordered crew this year.

The ability to repeat, under the severest kind of competitive pressure, is the real test of class. The Golden Bears, under Ky Ehrlich's coaching, have set a new high mark in rowing performance by moving along undefeated this year just as they did in 1928.

We may be optimistic, but it doesn't seem as though any invading naval party is likely to overhaul the Californians this year.

HOLD TWO SUSPECTS. Hartford, July 21.—(AP)—A man and woman were arrested in Orange last night by State police on charges of possessing and transporting lottery tickets. They are Louise Lacocole of Bridgeport and Gertrude McGuire, alias Marie Robbins, also of Bridgeport. They were halted while driving an automobile that contained a number of the lottery tickets. Lacocole is held under bonds of $3,000 and his companion under bonds of $50 for trial in the Orange-Town Court Monday night.

Two rooming cottage with large porch and a very desirable view from lot to sell at $260.00, part cash.

Short front lots range in price from $150 to $500 with as small a down payment as $15.00 and five years to pay balance.

FARLEY DELIVERS HIS FIRST SPEECH

Asks Jersey Democrats To Forget Differences Before the Nomination.

Spring Lake, N. J., July 21.—(AP)—James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National committee made his first speech of the 1932 presidential campaign today, pleaded for party harmony and attacked the Republican platform as an instrument of meaningless platitudes and jughandled paragraphs.

Addressing the New Jersey Democratic state committee, the new chairman mentioned the fight of Alfred E. Smith against the candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt and added that the one hope of the opposition was that "our sturdy disappointment would nurse their disappointment and sink in their tents during the campaign."

"You know and I know," he said, "the vanity, the futility of any such expectation. One by one without exception the chief of the forces that fought Franklin D. Roosevelt's nomination have come forward and saluted the victor and pledged themselves to his support."

The chairman then said he was revealing a secret of the pre-convention campaign by announcing that the Roosevelt forces were prepared to support the party nomination in the event they lost.

Heat of Conflict. "I know that in the heat of conflict a lot of harsh things were said," he continued. "What of it? Democrats as I know them do not fight with twelve-ounce pillows for gloves."

Reports that Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City was in eclipse because of his unsuccessful fight for Smith at the convention were characterized as rubbish by Farley, who went on: "The governor knows no one in the Democratic Party. He would be a strange character indeed if he saw nothing in his nomination or election—for I am as certain that he will be our next President as I was that he would be the candidate of the party—but an opportunity to punish those who sought the nomination for another man."

He denied that any political trades were made at the convention, said that he had been promised cabinet place, ambassadorship or anything else.

Other excerpts of Mr. Farley's address:

"No small part of the revision against the Hoover administration is due to the feeling of the people that they have been tricked, bamboozled and led astray by declarations purposely framed so that every school of thought could interpret them according to their own desires. To this day the country does not know whether President Hoover stands on prohibition, on the tariff, or on any other controversial question."

"It (the Republican) was a platform made to fit their candidates, unwelcome to the majority of their convention as that candidate actually was. They had to nominate him or confess that the Republican administration had been a failure. They did it grudgingly and apathetically and they clothed their candidate in the verbiage of a platform of meaningless platitudes and jughandled paragraphs. I defy anybody to state the meaning of that platform."

Not To Blame. "Perhaps it is unfair to say that the Hoover administration produced the economic catastrophe, but it certainly is no more unfair than was the reiteration in every campaign up to the present one that the nation prospered under Republican rule."

APPEAL TO HOOVER FOR FLEXIBLE WEEK

President Asked To Consider New England Plan To Create Jobs.

Boston, July 21.—(AP)—President Hoover has been asked to consider calling a National conference which would effect an organization to aid in solving the unemployment problem through the medium of the flexible work day.

The conference, which was attended by leaders in many walks of life, was called by the New Hampshire unemployment relief committee and the Massachusetts commission on the establishment of unemployment. During the session it discussed "the New Hampshire plan," which was based on the principle of flexibility.

The conference called the New England joint conference on unemployment, found that "unemployment continues with increasing problems despite all efforts to curb the lessening of business activity and a co-operative national action to achieve job security by job sharing seems imperative."

Appeal to Hoover. In a resolution, the conference requested the President to consider calling the National conference to create an organization which will help make operation throughout the states a shorter and more flexible work day and week, by which employment may be offered to some millions of people x x x without increasing operative costs on business. x x x This plan to be put into effect without necessarily increasing plant investments and without increasing inventories, by, for illustration, small contributions to be deducted from payrolls of wage earners still employed at least two-thirds of their normal hours and by the necessary ransoming contributions from salaried executives and owners of the business."

MISS KALEP WEDS. Newark, N. J., July 21.—(AP)—Miss Elvy Kalep, who is planning a non-stop flight to Greece with Roger C. Williams, was married to William Miller, July 5. It became known today.

The license to marry Miller, a New York broker showed Miss Kalep was previously married to Rudolph Hoepfinger but that marriage was annulled in Germany a year ago.

EXTEND OPEN SEASON. Washington, July 21.—(AP)—The open season for hunting wild ducks and geese has been extended from one to two months for the coming fall by President Hoover at the recommendation of Secretary Hyde.

The lengthened season, it was said at the Department of Agriculture, is made possible by improvement in the situation in which became serious for waterfowl following drought on their breeding grounds in 1931.

The new open season for ducks, geese, brant and oot opens October 15 to December 15 for Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

SEARCH FOR WOMAN. Hartford, July 21.—(AP)—A state-wide hunt by State police was underway today for Mildred Murray, 21, of Mystic, who is wanted for violation of her parole from the State Farm for women at Niantic.

GOV. CROSS PORTRAIT. Hartford, July 21.—(AP)—The portrait of Governor Cross, which was painted by Charles H. Hopkins, noted Boston artist, was delivered today at the executive office. The painting is not quite dry and was sent to the State Library to be exposed to the sun for a few days.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

THINGS TO BE THANKFUL FOR

- small profits at least mean small taxes
- that our wives believe we work hard
- people who think we are clever
- our own opinion of ourselves
- the other fellow's mistakes
- five o'clock Monday night
- men still dress "sensibly"
- what rights we have left
- longer skirts
- next summer
- false teeth
- sleep.

Judge—This lady says that you tried to speak to her at the station. Bailiff—It was a mistake. I was looking for my friend's sister, whom I had never seen before, but who's been described to me as a very handsome blonde with classic features, fine complexion, perfect figure, beautifully dressed, and—care to prosecute the gentleman. Anyone might have made the same mistake.

The valiant knight had rescued her. The perils of a horrid death had not frustrated him. And now he held her firmly in his arms, while the color of her golden locks faded into perfect harmony of the sun peering through the wooded forest. She (terrified)—You're not going to hold me for ransom?

The Knight (glaring at his charming captive)—I should say not. I hold no girls for ransom. Let Ransom get his own women.

ORAL BROADSIDES: One marriage in every six results in divorce, the other five fighting it out to the bitter end. . . . Lots of firms have cable addresses on their letterheads that never get any Before marriage man years for women—after marriage, the "y" is silent. . . . The depression is like a postage stamp: It has to be licked if it is going to be sent away. . . . Statistics reveal that wives get 65 per cent of the divorces and 100 per cent of the alimony. . . . A period may only be a dot, but it is the best thing to use in the end. . . . Among the first and most complete victims of hard times are soft jobs.

Then there is the case of the show that was so bad that after ten minutes a man came out and asked the lady at the box-office if she could not change his seat to one behind the pillar.

Waggish Diner (with menu)—Chicken croquettes, eh? I say, waiter, what part of the chicken is the croquette?

Waiter—That part that's left over from the day before, sir.

The Wife—I can't understand what you bid no trump on when I have four aces and three kings. The Hubby—Well, if you want to know, I hid it on one jack with two queens and three cocktails.

A little girl said to her playmate: "When I was born I was so spruced I couldn't talk for a whole year and a half."

Neighbor (to Mrs. Smith)—I suppose you find your daughter very much improved by the two years she spent in college.

Mrs. Smith—Oh, yes. Mary is a carnivorous reader now, and she frequently impoverishes music. But she ain't a bit stuck up. She's unanimous to everybody and she never keeps a caller waiting for her to dress. She just runs in, soon de plume, and you know that makes one feel so comfortable.

Lawyer—It would be better if you could prove an alibi. Did anybody see you at the time of the crime?

Client—Fortunately, no.

A lot of good women are old maids because they never get beyond the window shopping stage in looking for a husband.

WEAK-WILLED

The strong man, gleaming knife in hand, gazed at the smooth, white body in the water. "I cannot do it!" he groaned. "It's not a man's work!" Tears streamed down his cheeks. The woman, with a look of utter scorn, seized the knife—and finished peeling the onion!—Pathfinder.

THE STARS WERE RIGHT

Fortune Teller: The stars tonight tell me you have had trouble with your mother-in-law.

Mr. Meekham: The stars I saw last night told me the same thing. —Pathfinder.

IN SYMPATHY

Bobbie (in church): Mama, what will become of all those flowers on the altar?

Mother: They will be given to those who are sick at the close of the services. —Pathfinder.

PREPAREDNESS

Mistress: What is in that huge bottle on the kitchen mantelpiece, Mary?

Maid: Oh, just some stuff for mending china, madam. —Hummel, Hamburg.

COUNTY FARM BUREAU PICNIC AT CONGAMOND

Will Be Held Thursday, August 4, At Babb's Grove—To Attract Nearly 1,000.

The annual picnic of the Hartford County Farm Bureau for all farm folks in Hartford County will be held Thursday, August 4, at Babb's Grove, Lake Congamond, from 10:00 a. m., until 3:00 p. m. This annual event, which attracts nearly one thousand farm folks from Hartford county each year is planned primarily for recreation and good fellowship among our rural people according to John S. Hale, County Club Agent for the Hartford County Farm Bureau.

The committee in charge of the event is Miles M. Smith of Hazardville past-President of the Farm Bureau and Chairman of the committee; Mrs. A. W. Sweton, Jr., of Canton and Harold Rogers of Southington.

The day's activities will be carried on for the men, women and children in attendance. The program will start at ten o'clock with a swimming meet with classes for adults and children which will last until noon. This event will be in charge of Dr. Albert E. Carey of Hartford, who has handled the meet for the past four years in a very efficient manner. Prizes will be offered for the races and diving events which comprise the swimming meet.

At noon a basket lunch will be held in the grove at which the Jolly Cloverettes, a 4-H Club in Canton Center under the leadership of Mrs. A. W. Sweton, Jr., will act as hostesses.

Following lunch a pageant will be staged by the farm women who are active in the homemaking groups of the Farm Bureau under the direction of Olea M. Sande, Home Demonstration Agent. This pageant will portray the evolution of the farm woman from the time of the Indian to the present. This is to be put on primarily as an event in commemoration of the George Washington bi-centennial.

Following the pageant a ball game will be staged between the married and single men in the county. This event will be in charge of Marshall Seymour of Sutfield and Willard Eddy of Windsor, both of whom were former athletes at the Connecticut Agricultural College. A program of games, followed by a short service of worship and a picture of health and happiness and the unstinted enthusiasm with which they flung themselves into the program of sports was an inspiration to behold. The boys roamed at will through the cottage and over the grounds, calling cheery
