Attack Young Man Walking With Fiancee and He Dies From Injuries — Men Insulted Girl.

Hartford, Aug. 5.—(AP)—John Randall, 23, an unemployed machinist of 14 Summer street, Watertown, Mass., died at St. Francis hospital early today from injuries received last night when he was attacked by gangsters near St. Anthony's church, Talcott street, while walking with his fiancee.

Prosecuting Attorney Louis B. Rosenfeld has issued warrants for arrest of Louis Di Salvo, Fred Cagrinelli and Albert Sapla on charges of manslaughter, and a city-wide search is under way.

Was To Marry
Randall was killed almost on his wedding eve for he had applied for a license for his marriage Monday to Miss Angelina Di Ciccio, 18, of 543 Front street.

With Harold Edwards, 22, his room mate at the Y. M. C. A. and Miss Lena Di Ciccio, the girl's sister, the pair were walking along Talcott street when men in a parked car insulted the girl. Randall resented it and a fist fight ensued, during which Randall was knocked unconscious and his skull fractured when he landed against the curb.

Although only five men were in the car, witnesses told police more than fifteen men engaged in the melee in the middle of the street.

New Haven, Aug. 5.—(AP)—A revolt against the renomination by the Republican convention next month of Connecticut's senior U. S. Senator, Hiram Bingham, was forecast today by leaders of organizations which are mustering their strength in support of the 18th Amendment.

Leading the Institute conference on the Versailles Treaty, Schmitt warned:

"There is no use blinking at the fact that those controlling the Reichswehr, according to evidence which cannot be dismissed as mere propaganda, appear to have entered into a working arrangement with the Soviet War Department, by which large quantities of war material are being manufactured in Russia under German supervision and stored there against the day when Germany can show her teeth."

PRICES ON RISE IN MARKET AGAIN

Another Big Rush of Buying Boosts Leaders From One To Six Points. New York, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Another deluge of buying orders swamped the stock market today sending many leaders 2 to 6 points higher in an extremely active trading market.

S. Steel opened a shade lower, snapped 32 two net higher. Gains of $2 to $4 quickly developed in U. S. Steel Pfd., Air Reduction and Santa Fe.

Reports that a powerful banking group was to be organized to strengthen commodity prices by extending aid to manufacturers for replenishment of depleted inventories, and a rumor that Chicago and New York interests were forming a huge wheat pool which would have at least $50,000,000 at its disposal, brought Wall street's imagination overnight, and speculative enthusiasm swept like wildfire through the financial district.

"Commodity Pool" It was learned that Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, had been conferring with New York bankers in regard to the so-called "commodity pool", although plans for launching the proposed new corporation were still incomplete. One aim of the group, it was said, would be to assure orderly distribution of what remains of the Farm Board's holdings of agricultural products, stocks which were accumulated some time ago during the government agency's attempt to maintain prices.

Wall street heard that the wheat pool would probably be managed by

JAMES OPPENHEIM, AUTHOR, IS DEAD

Started "Seven Arts" Magazine and Wrote Much Poetry During Life.

New York, Aug. 5.—(AP)—James Oppenheim, writer and founder in 1914 of "The Seven Arts" magazine, died at his home early yesterday, after a long illness. He was 50 years old.

A versatile writer, Oppenheim had a varied literary career. His first book, published in 1906, was a book of short stories, called "Dr. East." He was then a leader in the colony of writers and artists in Greenwich Village.

He next turned out a book of verse, a novel entitled "Wild Cats," and a poetic drama, "The Plombers." For a few years he interspersed novels with books of verse.

In 1914 his novel, "Idle Wives," became a best seller. He was widely quoted as saying the modern wife had not enough work in the home to keep her occupied. Some time after the novel came out, his wife, the former Lucy Seckel, obtained an interlocutory divorce decree, on the ground that he had used her as the model for the heroine of his story.

Oppenheim gave up writing novels after that. For two years he turned out poetry and magazine articles. Then, in 1916, he founded the magazine "The Seven Arts," with Waldo Frank and Paul Rosenfield.

Oppenheim said "The Seven Arts" was backed by a wealthy woman "who became bored with looking at a collection of Whistlers and sold magazine prepared for a year, but their policy with regard to the World War caused the woman backer to withdraw her support, and Oppenheim and the other editors disbanded.

In recent years Oppenheim turned his attention to psychoanalysis and the theories of such modern philosophers as Henri Bergson. His 112 work, a preface to analytic psychology called "American Types," was published in 1931.

Oppenheim was born in St. Paul, Minn., but lived most of his life in New York.

DESIGNERS BATTLE OVER WAISTLINES

Should It Be Just Below the Bust Or At the Hip Line Question.

Paris, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The battle between designers is waging between the thorax and the hips advanced a point today when three houses hold the waistline to two inches below the bust, opposing Patou, who lowered the waistline to the hip line.

Clothes and dresses showed the waist cut high, on a diagonal line. Skirts nine to ten inches from the floor gave a long-legged look, causing much heated discussion.

The coats featured economy, with removable collars and ties, making it possible to wear them with many costumes. Fox tails were used by only one house as neck pieces. Others showed heavy astrakhan, white galles, incrustation on the backs and sleeves.

The coats were generally slim-fitted or unbelted and made of heavy diagonal-ribbed wools, velvets and velveteens. Short fur wraps were seen everywhere, hip length, mutton capes, waist length astrakhan capes and broad tail jackets.

They frocks stressed the sleeve, adorning the elbows and shoulders. Scores of them had high, round necks making it necessary to button the mannequin in. Dress fabrics were angora, corduroy, diagonal wools and velveteens, and crinkled crepes in colors of brown ranging from light chestnut to chocolate, wine, red scarlet, bottle green, purple, smoke grey and black.

Novelties were leather thongs fastening the collars, buttons running from neck to hem, saucer-sized buttons fastening belts, curly silk fringe resembling astrakhan used as a collar trim.

Gloves were most important and made of velvet, jersey or wool, often combining two fabrics to match dresses.

TOLLAND

Mr. and Mrs. James Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Young and friends from Manchester, who have been camping at Bluff Point, Groton, have returned to their homes. Mr. Rhodes has built a house wagon which has many convenient accessories for housekeeping at a camp. It was much enjoyed on their trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Williams of Meriden were guests of relatives in town Monday.

David Brown of Vernon called on several of his acquaintances in town Wednesday.

Mrs. Charles F. Budd who has been spending her summer with friends on Cape Cod, has returned to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alice West of Snipec Lake.

Miss Minnie Helen Hicks and Miss Elizabeth Hicks of New York City and Tolland have opened their summer home here for the season. East Central Pomona Grange field day was held at Tolland Wednesday. A short business session at noon preceded a basket lunch, when coffee, lemonade and ice cream were served. The afternoon was supposed to be enjoyed with games, stunts, etc., on the Green with an address by Rev. Truman H. Woodward, pastor of the Congregational church of East Hartford. Owing to the rain, Rev. Woodward had his audience of about 80 patrons in the church. Mrs. Edwin Baker of Crystal Lake, a member of Vernon Grange, gave two recitations. Mr. Hutchinson of Andover Grange gave a recitation and Mrs. Alice West a musical number. Games were played in the social rooms. In spite of the rain a general good time was had.

The Tolland Federated church community annual picnic will be held at Lake George, Wales, Mass., on Wednesday, August 10, cars taking the children and those who have not a means of conveyance, leaving the church at 10 o'clock. D. S. T. The children are asked to gather at the church early. Lake George is a fine place for an outing. There is good boating and swimming and all facilities for an ideal picnic. All the people of the community and visiting friends are urged to take part in this outing. If you have an extra place in your car drive by the church and pick up a passenger. This will be greatly appreciated by the church and committee in charge.

Berlin von Geyl promised them he would do all he could to protect the lives and properties of the Jews in these districts.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Philadelphia.—The good old melodrama of "Fireman Save My Child" came bounding over the telephone wires into the ear of Fireman Connor, Truck Company No. 1, and he and the boys dashed off to do something about it. They found that Mrs. Mary Dove had left her baby playing in the kitchen. The door had blown shut, and she was afraid he might catch fire from the gas stove.

New York.—Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt who, by the grace of enough votes for her husband, may become First Lady of the Land, has eaten a two-cent luncheon—and liked it. She sat down yesterday at a bowl of soup (one cent) and topped it off with a piece of pie (one cent). It was at the new "penny" lunch on Broadway. Had she felt up to it, Mrs. Roosevelt could have had a five-cent dinner for ten cents.

Wilmington, Del.—Charley Curran has decided jail is better than a dance marathon. As long as he footed along in the Marathon—he was shuffling through for more than 80 hours—he could keep out of jail where his wife decided he should go for alimony inconsistencies. The Marathon promoters paid the alimony as long as he danced. But Charley got tired, the payments stopped and the jail has Charley now.

New York.—Isidore Renner is getting to be an expert window smash-er. It is disastrous to the windows but efficacious in other respects. Six years ago when robbers entered his jewelry store he saved $76,000's worth of jewels by poking his fist through the window, frightening them away. Yesterday robbers tried to repeat and the Renner fist went crashing through the window again; and the robbers took it, as they say, on the lam.

Hollywood.—That picture of Jackie the lion, will have to be made over. Jackie jumped right at the camera, right on through the opening in the cage where the camera had been, and right out into the wide open spaces. All was chaos until a brave posse caught him.

New York.—A man telephoned a newspaper office last night and wanted to know who won the box-fight—McLarnin or Brouillard. He was told the fight was not yet over. The gentleman then called the telephone operator and demanded his nickel back. The result of his indignation has not been ascertained.

New York.—The mackerel are on a rampage. They are so thick around the Quarantine pier that it is no trick to catch a hundred at a time. They eat matches, cigarette stubs—anything. The mackerel experts avow that the fish have been frightened to the pier by blue fish, which love mackerel.

PLAYGROUND NOTES

The Nudists continued to lead the Playground Intersectional Indoor Baseball League by taking the Silk City Sox into camp by the score of 10 to 7. It was a close game throughout with the Nudists staging a four run rally in the seventh to pull the game out safely. Smith hit a home run for the Nudists in the eighth with the bases empty. Armstrong led the teams in hitting collecting four out of five. Next Monday afternoon at the East Side Playground the Silk City will meet the East Side Hawks.

The Nashs continued their winning ways in the West Side Juvenile League by easily taking the Austins out camp by the one-sided score of 27 to 10. The Nashs turned a fairly close game into a rout by scoring 15 runs in the last two frames. J. Doggart and H. Coleman each got four hits for their team, while B. Martin led the Austins.

The West Side Bulldogs, cream of the best ballplayers under 12 years of age, will play the Manchester Green Boys on the West Side Field on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. The Green Boys won the first game of the series by the score of 14 to 12.

PITCHING AS YOU LIKE IT

The Pitching staff of Bill Terry's Giants, while perhaps not the best in the National League, is fortified with a variety of stuff. Erubell is a screw ball pitcher, Walker depends on the curve, Fitzsimmons prizes his knuckle ball, Mooney his fast ball and Mitchell is the one of the spital ball throwers left in the game.

FATHER COX HECKLED BY WORLD WAR VETS

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 5.—(AP)—The Rev. James R. Cox, militant Pittsburgh priest who was cheered by Bonus Expeditionary Forces when he recently advised them in Washington to "stick hill you get what you want," was heckled when he sought to address veterans in Camp McCloskey early today.

Arriving in Johnstown at 8 a. m., Eastern Standard Time, Father Cox and his aides routed out about 400 vets. He mounted a truck and urged them to fight their battles at the polls. He was cheered.

But when he suggested consolidation of the "Khaki Shirts", a semi-military political organization of the E. F. V., with his own "Blue Shirts", of the Jobless-Liberal Party, he was shouted down. Cox cried "We want Waters" drowned him out. Veterans shouted that their commander, W. W. Waters had told them to go home and to join no new organizations.

Wilmington, Del.—Charley Curran has decided jail is better than a dance marathon. As long as he footed along in the Marathon—he was shuffling through for more than 80 hours—he could keep out of jail where his wife decided he should go for alimony inconsistencies. The Marathon promoters paid the alimony as long as he danced. But Charley got tired, the payments stopped and the jail has Charley now.

WATCH SHOOTING STARS NEXT THURSDAY NIGHT

New York, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The best opportunity in several years to see brilliant shooting stars, comes Thursday night August 11 after midnight.

The annual shower of Perseid meteors is due that night, with possibilities that it may strike the night before or after. Expectations of a bigger show this year are not based on more meteors but on less interference by moonlight. The moonlight will set about midnight August 11. The meteors will come out of the northeast from the Constellation Perseus. By dawn this point will be almost overhead.

The public is asked to aid astronomers in studying the Perseids. Dr. Charles F. Olivier, director of the Flower Astronomical Observatory of the University of Pennsylvania, Upper Darby, Pa., requests that counts be mailed to him of the hourly or half-hourly numbers of meteors seen on any of the three nights.

DR. RINEHART BETTER

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Members of Dr. Stanley M. Rinehart's family, including his wife, the widely-known novelist Mary Roberts Rinehart, today had found some encouragement in a report that the physician's condition assigned somewhat improved. Dr. Rinehart, 74, brought to a hospital here last Friday after collapsing at a summer camp on Little Moose lake.

Mrs. Rinehart, who remained at her husband's bedside throughout yesterday, went to a hotel last night with her sons, Frederick and Alan, and their wives, after Dr. Rinehart's condition was reported improved.

MONSTER WHEAT POOL

New York, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The New York Times today says the formation of a $40,000,000 pool to operate wheat is reported to have been virtually accomplished.

The pool, the paper says, probably will be managed by Arthur W. Cullen of Chicago, a prominent operator in the grain markets of this country and Canada for years.

Conditions in wheat, the Times continues, are believed such that a substantial betterment in price can be brought about, especially after hedging operations are over, which usually is around Sept. 1.

This shared interest with belief in many quarters of Wall street that a widespread program for industrial revival is being formulated by governmental and financial interests, Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, has discussed with bankers the practicality of organizing a corporation to finance raw material purchases for industrial and manufacturing companies.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 5.

AS TO BINGHAM

That there would be some chattering and wriggling of fingers and puffing out of cheeks and similar indications of emotion among certain irascible elements in Connecticut over Senator Bingham's position on prohibition, as the time for his renomination approached, has always been quite well understood. That the announced "movement" to defeat that nomination will amount to anything more than a very small tempest in a teapot we have not the remotest expectation.

The handful of individuals whose names have been mentioned in connection with such a cabal are familiar figures who have been identified with intolerance and fanaticism in this state for a long time and who long ago wore out whatever slender political influence they might have had.

The significance of the so-called movement against Bingham may be measured with a fair degree of accuracy by noting the importance attributed by its promoters to the assistance of Professor Levitt's personally conducted Independent Republican Party. Any political operation of which Professor Levitt's following constitutes the backbone or even one rib must, with all due respect to the Redding malcontent's ceaseless bawling about, be regarded as something less than a moving of mountains.

Ninety-nine Republicans out of every hundred in this state, and a great many Democrats as well, have grown greatly in their admiration for the senior senator from Connecticut during the last year, because they have come to realize that in Hiram Bingham they have not only an able senator but that very rare thing a statesman who is entirely fearless and who scorns to sacrifice his convictions to the favor of special little groups of demagogues, blackmailing constituents.

Having a brilliant senator who absolutely refuses to be bulldozed or to truckle, Connecticut, it is very certain, is going to hang onto him. And all the Republican voters susceptible of being egged into opposition to such a man by the Levitts, the Conovers and the Wellises you can put in your eye.

HAND SIGNALS

The long growing and now commonly established practice of automobile drivers, of eliminating hand signals before making left turns, and of considering their edging over to the left sufficient notice of intention, has been hit an effective blow by the Connecticut Supreme Court. Bearing to the left, according to the Supreme Court's decision in the case of Andrews vs. White Line Bus Corporation, is itself the very act of which the driver is required to give warning and cannot therefore be regarded as the warning itself.

The case at issue was one where a motorcycle rider crashed into a motorbus which was making a left turn. The defense was that the driver had exercised all possible care, that it was impossible for him to give a hand signal owing to the construction of his vehicle and that he had so directed his bus that its course made his intention of turning quite obvious. The Superior Court acquiesced in the defense's interpretation of the law's requirements and found for the defendant. The Supreme Court reverses the Superior Court and sends the case back for retrial.

In the course of its opinion the high court says: "The statute (1639) prescribes in unequivocal terms what course shall be pursued by a vehicle in turning to the left: an intersection; it affords plain and positive directions as to what each person shall himself do and any aspect of others, which are the vital purposes of traffic regulations.

ness to hold approximate compliance a substitute for full conformity as to subject the statutory standards and requirements to exceptions based upon the judgment of the individual as to what is reasonable and practicable as was held inadmissible in Murphy vs. Way."

In other words, if an automobile driver fails to obey the exact letter of the law regarding hand signals because he feels quite sure that no such signal is at the moment necessary, he will be completely out of luck if an accident follows forthwith, because his failure to signal constitutes prima facie evidence of illegal driving.

JURIES AND JUDGES

The "directed" verdict has had a showing up. One of the offices of a public service corporation in this state was established in rented quarters. There was a fire in the building. A young woman telephone operator employed by the service company stuck to her post till the only avenue to safety was by way of a counter-binged fire escape. The grating of the escape did not yield gradually to her weight but dropped suddenly, precipitating her to the sidewalk. She was badly injured.

The young woman brought suit against the owners of the building. The presiding Superior Court judge directed the jury to bring in a verdict for the defense, which, in conformity to the universal practice in this state, it did. The plaintiff appealed. Now the Supreme Court of Errors declares that the judge erred in his direction and orders a retrial of the case.

There may have been similar cases before in Connecticut, but we can recall none recently. However, this one demonstrates pretty completely the mistakes of the system of directed verdicts.

For a long time we have been waiting for the occurrence of a certain event—the occasion when a jury, ordered by a presiding judge to bring in a certain verdict, shall positively refuse to do anything of the kind and insist on its rights to reach its own decision. Some of these days some dictatorial judge is going to encounter that kind of a jury. Then we shall see what we shall see and perhaps have a show-down on the question of what juries are for.

If they can be rightly regarded as mere megaphones for the expression of judges' opinions, then the much mooted "jury problem" is already solved and the jury system is dead and mummified.

The right of trial by jury is a Constitutional one in the United States. It is perfectly obvious that if the jury is reduced to the condition of a mere mouthpiece of a judge that constitutional right has been abrogated.

Sooner or later a lot of fuss is going to be made over this assumption by judges of the right to give commands to juries.

RISE TO AVOID

The unfortunate plight in which a Manchester man finds himself, that of an embassador of funds entrusted to him as treasurer of a social organization, is one of the liabilities of times like these. The individual of small means who because of known normal trustworthiness has been chosen treasurer of a society or organization of any kind, and who subsequently loses his job, would be well advised to use one of the earliest hours of his unemployment in resigning his treasurership and getting the responsibilities of the office off his hands.

Some finanspina theorists might maintain that it reflects small credit on the moral structure of a man or woman to flee from temptation, there being more glory in facing and overcoming it. But even the Lord's Prayer justifies the avoidance and the sum of human experience tells us that the safe way is the best.

It is the easiest thing in the world for a personally destitute society treasurer to succumb to the open opportunity to "borrow" from the funds in his care. The slope from "borrowing" to hopeless defalcation is gracious, and it is gressed. The practicable method of dodging the risk is to get out of the situation right straight off. It takes a whole lot of a person, broke, to handle any sort of an entrusted fund without some of it sticking to his fingers and it's really only the occasional man or woman who rates a whole lot of a person.

heif of his 21-year-old son who had been convicted of driving drunk and seeing the scene of an accident he had caused. "I have never known him to drink before," declared the father.

Undoubtedly true. But infinitely far from being evidence that this was the son's first experience with booze.

The father was Dr. Robert Watson, secretary of the Lord's Day League, militant dry leader and stern demander of law enforcement. He didn't, however, want the stern law enforced against his own son and he didn't know enough about the liquor situation under prohibition even to know that that son was a drunkard.

The country is full of such uninformed, naive but cock-sure zealots—who are perfectly satisfied that they know infinitely more than ordinary people about the world and what is good for it.

Dr. Watson is out of luck, so far, with his son, who was sent to the House of Correction for seven months. So are thousands of other fathers, and a great many of them are utterly convinced that they are much further out of luck than they would have been if there had been no Dr. Watsons and no federal prohibition.

IN NEW YORK

Brief Epitaph
 New York, Aug. 5.—Notes on nothing in particular and everything in general.

Edging Kantor, called upon recently to indite a future epitaph, turned out this one:

"Here in nature's arm I nestle, Safe at last from Georgie Jessel."

Alexander Woolcott still holds the world's record for becoming an amputee on short notice. He took a featured role in "Brief Moment" without previous stage experience.

But this shouldn't be used as ammunition for optimism. The chances of crawling into Broadway, always slim, are now about a thousand to one, what with a minimum of shows running and hundreds of well known performers playing the automat circuits.

Castling directors, even in better times, insisted on previous stage experience before giving a newcomer a break. Most of them would not consider an actor whose performance they had not previously witnessed.

The story of the understudy who made good seems to have no final, however. The most quoted concerns Margaret Perry, who might have gone on for many months without mention in programs had it not been for an illness which gave her a chance in "Strictly Dishonorable."

Come-back
 A new generation views trick bicycle riding as a gay novelty and an amusing addition to Americana.

Joe Jackson, for instance, is staging a comeback. Joe, if you happen to be of my particular vintage, is one of the oldest and best of them all. He came upon him the other night at George Olsen's Hollywood cafe. He had just recently finished a national tour with the Fanchon and Marco offices.

For a number of years Joe had felt himself slipping from the public picture. As obsolescence as a bicycle act, went the simile. Within the year, he has observed a change. Crowds laugh and applaud at the appearance of a good old cyclie. Maybe it's another phase of the depression.

Deceitful
 Speaking of which: nothing is quite so depressing as a huge outpouring of night spot, with an army of waiters standing about; tables right—and no patrons.

At the Hollywood tables other night there were but eight people in a place that can hold about 3,000. One couple happened to be dancing. And the prices of "hot-ups" were $1 per bottle, as usual.

Well, some day they'll learn.

Health and Diet Advice

By Dr. Frank McCoy

KEEPING COOL ON WARM DAYS
 Keeping cool during the warm summer months is quite a problem to most people, but often the most ridiculous means are employed in an effort to cool off. On any hot day you will see a long line of perspiring people at any soda fountain waiting their turn to be served with soft drinks. These soft drinks are usually composed of carbonated water flavored with syrup. The temperature of the body is not lowered in the slightest degree by these concoctions; in fact, after the first cool feeling in the mouth, the heat distress is always increased to a considerable extent because of the large amount of sugar contained in the drinks. These drinks, high in heating units, make the circulation all the more sluggish and only add to one's discomfort.

The only hope for relief from the uneasiness of a hot summer's day is to keep the body free of any heavy food material not actually needed for the repair of tissues, and to increase the elimination of toxins through the skin and lungs. Keeping cool can best be accomplished by reducing all of the foods containing starch, sugar and fat to the minimum of necessity, drinking plenty of pure water, and wearing as little clothing as possible.

A single remedy as valuable for keeping cool as plain water, neither hot nor too cold and not spoiled by syrup flavors. Cooling and refreshing drinks can be made by adding small amounts of pure fruit juices to plain water, but these fruit juices should not be sweetened.

Make your meals as much as possible of the fresh fruits in season or use the leafy green vegetables both cooked and in the form of salads. On a hot day no lunch is needed except, perhaps, a pound of some fresh fruit such as grapes, cherries, or apricots; or one may use a large salad of the succulent vegetables, such as cucumbers, lettuce, and tomatoes. On a warm day it is better not to use oily dressings on the salad.

Keep the pores of the skin open by frequent bathing. It is a good plan to get up early and take a long walk in the cool of the morning, finishing off with a cold shower bath, and this will usually make one comfortable the rest of the day. If the day is exceptionally warm and it is possible to take a cold shower in the middle of the day, this is a good plan.

During the warm weather it is good practice to take nude sun baths, short ones each day if possible, and to use the heat lamp and sun baths assist in increasing the radiation from the body of the poisonous toxins which make so much trouble when they are retained.

It is from the cooled and raw non-starchy vegetables that we get most of the material for building the structural tissues of our bodies, such as the bone, tendons, ligaments, etc. You will find that you can use an unlimited amount of the non-starchy vegetables on a hot day without causing yourself any digestive trouble. You can fill up on these foods which have only a small caloric value. It is also a good plan to use some lean meat or cottage cheese or other good protein food in the proper combination with the non-starchy vegetables in order to supply the building material for your muscular system. These two types of foods are all that are necessary for one to eat during the warm weather, and you will find that you will keep cooler and have more pep by using this diet.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
 (Lemon Milk)
 Question: Mrs. J. C. writes: "Would sweet milk mixed with lemon juice as you advise be all right for lunch in summer for one with hyperacidity? How much lemon juice should I use for one pint of milk?"

Answer: The lemon juice with sweet milk would be a good lunch for one with acidity. I would suggest that you send for my article giving a list of the acid

STATEMENTS BEFORE CONVENTIONS DON'T COUNT, DUTCHER LEARNS.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington.—What politicians say before or at the nominating conventions just don't count. What they say afterward you are expected to take seriously. It is very important for you to perceive this nice distinction because otherwise you might acquire the disrespectful idea that instead of being able to believe all the politicians some of the time and none of the politicians all of the time you really shouldn't believe anything of the politicians any of the time.

There is excellent authority, both Republican and Democratic, for that double standard of political veracity.

Mr. Farley Explains
 Mr. Jim Farley, the large, amiable gent who got Governor Roosevelt a presidential nomination and consequently became the Democratic national chairman, explained it clearly while butting Brax Frank Hague of New Jersey at the recent session of Jersey Democrats, summoned to hoop for the national ticket.

Boss Hague, who has such a hard-bitten reputation that many of the historical delegates at the Chicago convention actually believed he had his gunner scattered through the hall, was the heart of the anti-Roosevelt fight.

Boss Hague at Chicago issued a blast which described Roosevelt as the "weak man," declared that he would have "no chance of winning in November," insisted that he couldn't carry "a single state east of the Mississippi." He was one of those who refused to list the governor's nomination be made unannounced.

How Times Change!
 But things are different now. Boss Hague, accustomed to carrying the state only in off years, now sees a good chance to carry it in a presidential year.

UNCLE SAM'S NEW TAXES

WHERE THEY HIT YOU —AND HOW!

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 10th of 20 self-explaining articles explaining the new federal taxes.

By ROBERT TALLEY
 NEA Service Writer

Charity entertainments, educational programs and benefit affairs for which admission is charged are exempt under the federal revenue law being applied in 1932—but there is a very fine line of demarcation as to where such exemption applies and where it does not.

Because of the tremendous mass of complicated detail, which covers dozens of printed pages in the International Revenue's book of regulations, any person or organization planning such an event would do well to consult the nearest internal revenue collector in advance.

In the main, the admissions tax (10 per cent when the amount is more than 40 cents) does not apply to proceeds which inure exclusively to the benefit of religious, educational, or charitable institutions, benevolent societies, musical societies, benefit affairs for firemen, policemen, war veterans, etc.—provided no part of the net earnings goes to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual.

But the law has its oddities. Benefit boxing matches and wrestling matches are taxable, even though every penny goes to some worthy cause. Likewise, college athletic games are taxable if the proceeds inure either wholly or partly to the benefit of the college. West Point and Annapolis included. But high school athletic contests are exempt.

A church, for example, can give a tax-free performance of religious or educational nature. But a church athletic or social club does not qualify as exempt, even though its meetings or entertainments are held in the church basement.

Suppose a football game is played between a college team and a team recruited for charity. The college team turns over the proceeds to the college treasury, while the opposing team turns its share over to a charitable organization. All admissions to the game are taxable, since the proceeds inure in part to the benefit of a college.

As a general rule, agricultural fairs, etc., are exempt. Thus, a stock show exhibiting blooded horses may be tax free—but a horse show using these same horses for fancy riding and driving is classed as a social or entertainment event and is therefore taxable.

A BOOK A DAY

VENOM SPOILS HIS REVIEW OF HOOVER RECORD

Robert Allen Writes a Book on the President That is Little Too Virulent

When you get too angry you can feel your own end as a matter of fact. The truth is provided by Robert Allen in his book, "Why Hoover Faces Defeat."

Here is perhaps the most virulent book of the year. Mr. Allen believes that President Hoover is going to be defeated in the coming campaign. He believes that he ought to be defeated. He has written this book to tell why.

So far, so good. A book written on that basis might be a thoughtful or instructive piece of political criticism. But Mr. Allen gets too angry—and his book will probably do the president more good than harm.

That is to say, the ordinary reader is apt to arise from a perusal of this book with the feeling that no man can possibly be all that Mr. Allen says President Hoover is; and he is apt to meditate the president is unjustly maligned and a man who deserves a vote of confidence.

Some of the criticisms in this book seem to me to be just; but there are so many which are palpably overdrawn that they take the edge off of the just ones. If Mr. Allen could have restrained himself a bit he might have produced an effective campaign document; as it is, he has produced a masterpiece of invective—but little more.

The book is published by Brewster, Warren and Putnam, and sells for $2.

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famed Authority

SMALL FINGER INFECTION MAY RESULT IN SERIOUS ILLNESS.

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
 Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Around the finger nails there are areas infected because the skin is frequently damaged by insect manure and by the tearing off of fingernails.

The point at which the fingernail comes in contact with the skin is a sensitive point, easily harmed. The nail rests upon the nail bed and is in contact with it so that tearing or pressure of the nail away from the bed leaves points at which infection may enter. Sometimes infection is caused by splinters driven underneath the nail, but more frequently merely by tearing the nail away from its bed.

Once an infection has begun it may spread beneath the nail, producing severe pain, swelling and inflammation. There is a constant throbbing due to the pressure of the blood in the nail, and the pus frequently pus pours out beneath the nail.

Infections of the fingernails are not, as a rule, serious, but they may endanger life due to spreading of the infection into the blood and into the blood stream. One of the chief purposes of early treatment, therefore, is to prevent spread of the infection.

Unless a collection of pus or infected matter is visible beneath the nail the physician will not cut into the tissue. Under such circumstances he is more likely to treat the condition by the application of heat.

For the purpose he will use wet packs of hot water or hot saturated boric acid solution, or he may commence soaking the finger in hot water for considerable periods of time.

Just as soon as pus forms it is necessary to open the area, and thus to permit the pus to escape. The physician will usually cut the finger in such form as to save the nail bed.

It is harmful to remove the entire nail-plate while the pus formation is limited. Therefore, the physician will usually bore through the nail at the point where the pus appears, or by means of a small sharp-pointed scissors cut away merely that portion of the nail over the infection.

After the pus is removed the hot fomentations, hot baths and medic solutions are continued until the infection clears up completely. Then the finger nail will grow again and the recovery will be complete.

McCLUSKEY IN READINESS FOR STEEPLECHASE FINAL

Races Tomorrow Afternoon; Is in Tip-Top Shape and Confident of Victory; Iso-Hollo Looms As Big Threat To Local Boy's Chances.

Joseph P. McCluskey, who in the short span of three years rose from an unknown schoolboy athlete to the outstanding steeplechaser in the United States, will make his bid for international fame and glory tomorrow afternoon, when the final of the 3,000 meter steeplechase will be one of the features of the seventh day of the tenth Olympiad.

Manchester awaits the outcome of the event with tense interest, with a certainty that the speed, stamina and determination of "Little Joe" will carry him across the finish line a winner against the foreign invaders, including the famed Iso-Hollo of Finland, who smashed the Olympic record in the trials last Monday and also sent McCluskey down to his first defeat in two years of steeplechasing.

Press reports that McCluskey concedes the brilliant Finn first place in the steeplechase as discounted locally as a measure by the Fordham flash to inspire Iso-Hollo with over-confidence. All who know Joe are certain that he will enter the race to win, that he will give his utmost during every minute of the struggle.

Although it has not been learned definitely, it is expected that the steeplechase will be run at 4 o'clock, Pacific Coast Time, or 8 o'clock, E. D. S. T. The Herald will furnish results of the race shortly after it is completed and the information may be obtained by calling The Herald office, tel 5121.

In an interview at Olympic village yesterday, McCluskey said, "I will run a much different race in the finals. Monday I started slow because I wasn't sure just how much strength I had lost during my illness. In the finals I will go out and set the pace. The time will probably be about 9.7, which would be seven seconds faster than the new record set by Iso-Hollo in the trial heat."

"My hope is to try and wear down Iso-Hollo. I will give my utmost and naturally I hope to win."

But if I do not it will be because someone else is a better runner. My legs still feel a bit weak about the knees but I expect to be pretty keenly in top-notch shape by Saturday. The rest from Monday to Saturday should aid me greatly.

"I figure that in order to beat Iso-Hollo I must set a very fast pace and finish with a sprint the last 300 yards instead of the usual 100 or so. It should be a great race and I'll do my best. But Iso-Hollo has wonderful reserve strength and is a mighty hard man to beat."

The United States has not won a steeplechase since 1904, when Light-body negotiated the distance in 7:39.6. The 1900 Olympic race was also won by the U. S., Orton making the time of 9:21.2. The course at Los Angeles was made over a 2,500 meter course, 600 meters shorter than the present distance.

The 3,000 meter distance was set at Amsterdam in 1928, when the event was won by Louidola of Finland, who established an Olympic record of 9:21.2. The course at Los Angeles consists of forty hurdles as obstacles, each three feet in height. One water jump twelve feet across with a hedge in front to complicate matters must be negotiated six times.

The water varies from two and one-half feet at the deepest point to an inch or less at the far end. The average steeplechaser puts one foot on the hurdle and then jumps across to a point near the shallow end of the wooden box pit, which has a course of 200 meters to prevent the runners from slipping.

The leading athletes in the steeplechase include Iso-Hollo, Toivonen and Marttilainen of Finland, McCluskey, Pritchard and Dawson of the United States, Lippi and Bartolini of Italy and Evensen and Bailey of Great Britain.

BABE IS AFTER ONE MORE TITLE BEFORE QUITTING

World's Greatest Track and Field Star Says She Is Going To Win the High Jump Sunday.

Los Angeles, Aug. 5. (AP)—Mildred "Babe" Didrikson, 19, intends to carry back to Dallas, Texas, three Olympic championships and say many applications for world records.

The girl who has amazed the current Olympic games with her versatility, wasn't boasting when she so expressed herself today. She was only speaking her mind with a sincerity which can not be questioned.

"Yes," she drawled, "I'm going to win the high jump Sunday and set a world's record. I don't know who my chief opponents are and anyway, it wouldn't make any difference. I hope they are good."

She had just been for Evelyn Hall out there in front in the 800 meter hurdles yesterday, after a slow start I probably wouldn't have broken that record. I wasn't afraid of her beating me. I just dug in my spines and ran."

Her time of 11.7 seconds gave the Texas girl her second world record and Olympic victory.

Kept Out of Events

She had as simple a solution to the question of how she threw the javelin 148 feet 4 inches earlier in the games to shatter the world's best accepted mark. The only reason she can see for not taking five titles, with all the Olympic and world record trimmings, back to Dallas, is that she wasn't permitted to compete in the discus throw and 100 meter dash.

"I am the world's greatest woman track and field star and knows it and sees no reason for beating about the bush."

Likes All Sports

"I like all sports, not especially for the honor of winning, but because I enjoy running, jumping and throwing things. My future? Well, I plan to keep on setting records."

"I expect our basketball team, the Golden Cyclones, to win the National championship. I'll be the high scorer of the tournament. My mind is set on winning a National golf championship—not this year, but maybe in two or three years. I can outdrive most women golfers now and I've played only ten rounds."

"I wish I could have been in the 100 meters, because I have run 11.2 and I've thrown the discus 146 feet."

She could have mentioned a lot more—about her five firsts, a tie for another and a fourth in the final trials and National championships—but she didn't. She hates folks who get "big headed" over their triumphs.

"It's plain silly. When folks get that way they are going over the hill and soon will be finished with athletics," she editorialized.

"Diversion? It's sewing. Yeah, but I design my own clothes. Then they're made the way I want 'em."

BASEBALL TONIGHT

FIREMEN BATTLE

Hose Company No. 3 will play Hose Company No. 2 on the Charter Oak street grounds at 8 o'clock tonight. Manager "Fox" Happiness of the Spruce street firemen says that Manager "Dusty" May of the Center Firefighters should equip his outfielders with mustangs to garner in all the hits that his hired man will pick off. Greeman will toss them over for No. 3 and Haberman will be behind the plate. The "dark horse" battery of No. 2 has not yet been released by Manager May.

WEST SIDES VS. CLERKS

The West Sides will play the Rockville Clerks tonight at the West Side diamond at 6:15 o'clock. Genovese or Weber, both well known in this town will pitch for the Rockville team. "Jack" Herwit, speed ball artist who is called "great gun" in the West Side League will probably be seen on the mound for the locals with "Gyp" Gustafson, who has recently been named coach of the team, replacing his brother "Hoke," who is on the receiving end.

Coach Gustafson requests that all players be on hand Friday night, and is also calling a special practice for Sunday morning at 8:30 at the Founders lot and wants all members present.

V. F. W. VS. MANCHESTER GREENS

After a long layoff, the V. F. W. baseball team will open bats tonight with the Manchester Greens on the Jarvis Grove diamond at 6:15 sharp. Manager Hubbard of the Greens will start Borelli in the box for the Greens and Jarvis will catch. Raymond Smith will pitch for the Vets with either Peterson or Jones behind the plate. Manager Kirkpatrick of the Vets wants all members of the team to report at the grounds not later than 5:45 for infield practice.

California Crew In Olympics All Homebreds, Except "Cox"

Berkeley, Calif., Aug. 5.—That challenge issued several months ago from this university town might well have been broadened to include "California's Sons for California's Crew for California's Olympics."

Only one of the entire boatload that went undaunted through the college and Olympic season came from outside California. And he was—of all things—the coxswain; the only man who rode free.

Little Norris Graham, 121-pound steerer, came down to Berkeley from Pendleton, Ore., four years ago. He handled the ropes for the varsity in 1921 and 1922.

The eight varsity rowing crews and two alternates named for the Olympics came from California cities—Burton Stratham and Charles Chandler from Oakland; Ed Sallisbury from Walnut Grove; Jimmy Blair from Placerville; Duncan Gregg from Strathmore; Steve Duplap from Yountville; Harold Fowler from Lodi and Winslow Hall from Piedmont. Alternates Hays McLellan and Herman Holman came from San Mateo and Stockton, respectively.

NEW HORSESHOE CLUB

Center-Spring Woods is the scene of great excitement these days and the reason is the formation of the newly organized Valley street Horseshoe Club. This new club is now working with fourteen two-man teams in a round robin league who play every night for high honor.

The boys are taking advantage of the fine courts which have been given them by the town of Manchester and are greatly interested in the horseshoe game. They have engaged John McDowell as manager and Jim Thompson as referee. Jim says the boys are not getting many rings and he measures most of the points with a yard stick but they are improving daily.

CHOCOLATE BELTS SHEA; KEEPS TITLE

Successfully Defends Junior Lightweight Crown; Decision Unanimous.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Kid Chocolate, Cuban, today had caught up with victory and with his first championship belt.

Chocolate came into possession of the junior lightweight title some time since, but no belt was his until General John V. Clinin fastened one about him in the Chicago Stadium last night after he had beaten Eddie Shea, Chicago Italian all over the ring to win a ten round unanimous decision in defense of the title.

His last bout resulted in a widely disputed decision defeat by Jackie Kid Berg in New York.

AMERICAN IS LEADING IN THE PENTATHLON

Los Angeles, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Lieut. Richard Mayo, field artillery, of Fort Hill, Okla., entered a 300-yard free style swimming race, the fourth phase of the modern pentathlon, today with a goodly lead over his nearest of 24 competitors for the highly prized military championship of the Olympic games.

Graded on the cross country scoring basis, Lieut. Mayo, the first American to be in the lead in the event at this late stage since it was inaugurated at Stockholm in 1912, had a score of 7 1/2 points against 17 for Carlo Simonetti, of Italy, who was in second place.

The American gained his commanding position through a remarkable performance yesterday. In the shooting phase of the Pentathlon, Lieut. Mayo made a score of 197 out of a possible 200 to establish a new Olympic Pentathlon record. The best previous score was 187 out of 200 made in 1928 by Hans von Garmann of Germany.

Coupled with first place in the shooting, Lieut. Mayo had second place in the first day's steeplechase and a tie for fourth place in Wednesday's fencing tournament.

Count Osmundsson, of Sweden, who had been in the lead with a total of 20, while two other Swedes, Bo Lindman, winner of Tuesday's steeplechase, and Sven Thofelt, the winner of the fencing phase this year, were in fourth and fifth positions with totals of 23 1/2 and 24 1/2 points respectively.

PIRATES' BIG SLUMP TURNS LEAGUE RACE INTO A DOG FIGHT

Four Teams Battle For Lead As Pittsburgh Continues To Lose; Gomez Wins 18th Game.

The first serious slump the Pittsburgh Pirates have experienced since the middle of May has turned the National League pennant race into a dog fight today with four clubs close enough to be deemed dangerous.

Beaten in both ends of a doubleheader by the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday, the Pirates lead over the Chicago Cubs today with three and a half games. The Phillies, Boston Braves and Dodgers followed at distances ranging from 5 1/2 to 7 games.

O'Doul Hits 3 Homers

Three home runs by Frank (Lefty) O'Doul beat the Pirates and stretched their losing streak to six games. The first with two on, decided the first game in Brooklyn's favor, 7-4. His second in the eighth inning of the second game, tied the score and his third won the game in the tenth, 6-5.

The Cubs, playing their first game under their new manager, Charley Grimm, trounced the Phillies 12-1, scoring eight runs in the second inning.

The Braves punched three of their five hits off St. Johnson in the third inning to score three runs and beat Cincinnati 3-2. Mel Ott's triple climaxed a three run eighth inning rally and gave the New York Giants a 4-1 decision over the St. Louis Cards.

Gomez Wins 18th

In the American League Bill Dickey celebrated his return to the Yankees lineup after a 30 day suspension by walloping a home run and three singles and driving in five runs as the leaders crushed Chicago, 15-8. Vernon Gomez won his 18th victory.

Big George Barnshaw made it 16 for the season as he held the St. Louis Browns to eight hits and led the Philadelphia Athletics to a 6-2 victory. Cleveland's Indians picked up half a game on the two leaguers by outpointing the Boston Red Sox in both ends of a doubleheader, 5-2 and 8-7 in 13 innings.

Two triples, two doubles and a single gave Washington five runs in the tenth frame and a 14-11 decision over Detroit.

BROUILLARD EARNS SURPRISE VICTORY

New York, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Ring rust and a game, hard hitting foe, have ruined Jimmy McLarnin's return to the ring after an enforced vacation of more than a year.

The Vancouver Irishman, his injured right hand apparently intact, again dropped a decision to Lou Brouillard of Danielson in ten exciting rounds in the Yankee Stadium last night.

McLarnin's long layoff plainly had done him no good and he was troubled from the start by Brouillard's southpaw style. Brouillard won six of the first eight rounds and then invited McLarnin to come in and fight. But try as he might, McLarnin could not upset the youngster, much less knock him out.

Brouillard's willingness to trade punches caught the fancy of the crowd of 15,000 and he was given an ovation as he left the ring. He outweighed McLarnin by two pounds at 164 1/2 pounds.

CRESCENTS HIT WELL TO TROUNCE ECHOES

The Crescents defeated the Echoes in the West Side League last night by the score of 5 to 3. "Johnny" Falkowski twirled for the Crescents and did a nice job allowing only 5 scattered hits and fanning 10. Kietcha pitched well but was given poor support in the pinches. He also fanned 10 men. In the first inning the Crescents scored two runs on McConey's walk, Falkowski's double, a single by Pitt, and a walk by Neubauer and a single by Ford. In the third two errors in the field accounted for two more. After this inning Kietcha held them scoreless until the sixth. In this frame three singles by McConey, Falkowski, and Pitt, a sacrifice by Boyce, and a walk by Wright accounted for them with two more. In the last half of the sixth the Echoes scored. Rautenberg was given a life, Sullivan singled, Kerr, Kietcha and Cotton reached first on errors. Ragunius doubled to score three runs. In the first of the seventh, Rautenberg, stole the lead and came home on a passed ball. Gustafson, McConey and Falkowski were given lifes in succession. Gustafson scored on another passed ball.

Of Course "Babe" Didrikson Had To Come Back and Smash Another Record To Put America In the Picture—Steeplechase Tomorrow.

Los Angeles, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Finland's last ditch fight to save at least one bright jewel out of the wreckage of its foot racing crown today shared the Olympic spotlight with the third episode of the rivalry between Bill Carr and Ben Eastman, American 400 meter men.

No slackening of the track and field record-breaking carnival was in sight.

For five days the "build up" for today's two track classics had sounded just like the old family phonograph—one record after another. Thousands who have been watching the astounding Olympic spectacles from the outset now watch the announcer's old refrain: "Creating a new Olympic world record."

Anyone who has had fortitude to keep track of it all, can emerge with the statistical game that 48 record performances have been announced in 17 track and field events for men and women.

The response yesterday could have been heard in four different languages.

Italy's First First

Luigi Beccali won the classic Olympic 1800 meters in the Olympic record time of 3:31.2 for Italy's first Olympic foot racing victory of all time.

Matti Järvinen led the first successful Finnish runner with an Olympic record javelin throw of 232 feet 7 inches.

Finland's Second Again

Finally America's Babe Didrikson smashed her second world record victory in the 80 meter hurdles in 11.7 seconds.

Finland's first championships however, in an event which was here simply for going through the motions of a record-breaking war: he was enough to offset her on the field. The Finnish runner, who had been here for the first time in the Olympics, was a change to the Finland's Olympic record.

This Olympic feat was a stunning series of blows to the foot racing world. Babe Didrikson was so sensational after the war.

Steeplechase West

Yet to be run, 48 miles, are the three thousand meter steeplechase and marathon, but in these events too the opposition for the United States is stronger than ever, encouraged no doubt by the growing popularity that the clock of Finland's supremacy has been removed.

Meanwhile the Americans had their own private war to wage, between Eastman and Carr, each with a weather eye out meanwhile for the slim Englishman, Lieut. Geoffrey Lionel Hampling.

Run in lanes from a "staggered" start, the Olympic 400 meter race man's striding style. Carr had whipped Eastman twice in world record time this season. Yesterday Carr and Eastman each won two tri-hits in common centers.

The revised total for the United States for sixteen men's events in five days, was 255 points. Finland moved into second place with 237 to Great Britain's 221 and Japan advanced to fourth with 20, followed by Canada and Ireland, 18 each.

In the women's steeplechase, Babe Didrikson's record was broken by 15 points in the time leap to 11.7 as compared with Germany's total of 15.1 in second place.

PERSONALITIES, ISSUES IN COMING CAMPAIGN

continuing revival of public confidence would result in greater or less degree, to the benefit of the administration in Washington.

Bonus Incident

The bonus incident likewise remains an unknown quantity. Various individual Democrats have condemned the President's use of troops, but neither the Democratic nominee nor his organization has joined in Governor Roosevelt's close friends expect him to continue his silence.

With the east more and more the center of activity, the Republican campaign managers held a war council in New York and delegated Senator Felix Hebert of Rhode Island to have charge of headquarters there. Mr. Roosevelt conferred with John J. Rankin, to whom the Democratic Party owes a great deal of money, about campaign financing; Mr. Rankin, leaving Albany, was willing to say just five words: "I'm out of politics."

And even the Roosevelt-Rankin meeting ended with an echo of the personal when Vincent Astor, also present, issued a statement saying it was "stupid" to call Mr. Roosevelt "an irresponsible radical."

that the woman had been shot and killed in her home, either by a robber or by a person of deranged mind.

Officers believed her body was dragged from the house and hidden in dense brush or carried away.

Miss Merrill was about sixty years old, lived alone and was considered wealthy.

Clinging to old traditions, she refused to purchase an automobile until about two years ago, coming to town every week in her horse-drawn buggy. She still wore the garments of fashionable women of her own age.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, Aug. 5.—(AP)—With bullish enthusiasm still fired by growing expectations of autumn business recovery, and by efforts to boost commodity prices, further sharp advances were achieved in the Stock Market today, although on the whole, prices did not get much above yesterday's highs.

While profit taking checked the rise at times, and a sprinkle of selling came into the bond market, stock traders were encouraged by the tendency of trading to slacken on "downturns. It was notable, however, that selling was met on successive advances.

The farm implements were in the lead, with Case making an extreme gain of 7 points, and International Harvester getting up 2 1/2. Miscellaneous issues getting up 2 to 3 points at the best included American Telephone, American Can, U. S. Steel Common and Preferred, Sears Roebuck, American Express, Water Works, Public Service of N. J., Dupont, Drug, Eastman, Standard of N. J., and others. Advances of a point or so appeared throughout the list, although the copper failed to participate. There were occasional recessions of a point or so from the best.

With rumors of a big pool in wheat taking more tangible form, speculative attention was turning increasingly to the commodity markets, where there were again numerous substantial advances. A definite figure of $50,000,000 has been widely named for the wheat pool, and Arthur W. Cutten was widely believed to be heading the group.

Some quarters in Wall street were inclined to see important distribution going on in the share market for the account of interests which had managed to accumulate stock at substantially lower levels, but new buying was still reported in good volume from many cities and abroad. The fact that brokers loans again showed little change was regarded as further evidence of substantial investment buying. Nevertheless, queries among investment trusts can and should do to simplify the work that is to follow.

Before starting to remove spark plugs many a mechanic will squirt a few drops of oil around the gaskets. This helps loosen the plugs and speeds up the work. Before having the fan removed it is well to inject penetrating oil over the nuts and bolts, allowing this to stand during the night.

It is surprising how many chassis inspection jobs are moved down to car owners go to the service station with mud and dirt over the springs and underlinings. A clean chassis, like a clean motor, is far easier to inspect. Where a motor is covered with oil and grease an oil leak is much more difficult to check.

Oil Affects All Brakes

The impression seems to be general among many motorists that there is no harm in having grease or

Motor Hints

Battery "Up" When Clean

Failure to keep the battery clean not only prevents it from charging properly but actually causes a slow discharge. Dirt and corrosion from the terminals form a slow, high resistance, short circuit between the positive and negative posts.

There are now several attachments to battery posts which will eliminate the need for manual cleaning of the connections. They operate on the principle that oil will reduce oxidation. There is nothing essentially new about the principle, but the battery offers a convenient work in a neater, easier way.

Battery discharge, often blamed on the fact that the car has stood for some time, frequently is entirely a matter of this external shorting. Such shorting may also be incorrectly blamed on the generator.

Better Rule for Starting

Using the choke for almost every start has become such a fixed habit with most drivers that there is plenty of inclination to overlook the fact that there are new developments that make choking less necessary. This is particularly true of straight-eight.

When the intake manifold is large and long, as is the case with many of the newer engines, there is more surface to become chilled when the motor is stopped. This means more condensation of gas vapor, which liquid fuel gradually draining back into the carburetor. In the newer carburetors this condensed fuel is used to provide an extra rich mixture for starting purposes, thus rendering it unnecessary to choke for starts where the engine is not too cool.

Crank a minute before using the choke.

Prepare for the Service

The reason why some owners spend less time in the service station is because they spend more time preparing for service jobs. There are numerous things owners can and should do to simplify the work that is to follow.

Before starting to remove spark plugs many a mechanic will squirt a few drops of oil around the gaskets. This helps loosen the plugs and speeds up the work. Before having the fan removed it is well to inject penetrating oil over the nuts and bolts, allowing this to stand during the night.

It is surprising how many chassis inspection jobs are moved down to car owners go to the service station with mud and dirt over the springs and underlinings. A clean chassis, like a clean motor, is far easier to inspect. Where a motor is covered with oil and grease an oil leak is much more difficult to check.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Aug. 5.—If the security markets hold, in their present more active path, considerable new corporation financing is likely to be undertaken in the coming weeks, investment bankers say. The much improved action of the Bond Market and the substantial recovery in preferred stocks of good rating is interpreted by Wall Street as an indication of a reviving investment interest.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Co. has applied to list 117,539 additional common shares on the New York Stock Exchange, representing part of the securities offered by the company in exchange for outstanding stock of the San Joaquin Light and Power Co.

To combat the "government's encroachment in the field of private business," the National Association of Manufacturers has sponsored an organization composed of shipbuilders, railroad men, founders and manufacturers in many lines of industry. It will be known as the manufacturers national committee on government competition with private industry.

Sears is survived by his widow, three sons and three daughters.

Young American Finds Prehistoric Skeleton

London, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Theodore McCown, young graduate of the University of California in the class of 1930, held the attention of the world's anthropologists today with his description at the Congress of Prehistoric Sciences of his skeleton discoveries on Mt. Carmel in Palestine.

He was the leader this spring of a joint expedition undertaken by the American School for Prehistoric Research and the British School of Archaeology. Their discoveries consisted of eight fossil skeletons of the Pleistocene period which Sir Arthur Keith described today as "one of the most important finds in this field yet made."

FOOD & MARKET PAGE

for LOVE or MONEY by H.W. CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TODAY.
MONA MORAN, receptionist in a Wall Street law office, is surprised when her childhood sweetheart, STEVE SACARELLI, returns to New York after three years mysterious absence. Mona contributes largely to the support of her mother, invalid father, sister, KITTY, and ne'er-do-well brother, BUD.
Steve has been in South America where, largely by chance, he has become associated with BARRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent, who owns a diamond mine. Together they have made the mine, believed worthless, pay handsomely. Steve owns a huge diamond called "The Empress of Peru."

LOTIE CARR, fashion model, joins Mona, Barry and Steve on several dinners and dancing engagements. Mona's brother, BUD, is under obligations to BUCK HARKINS, night club proprietor and gangster, who plots to steal the huge diamond. Steve tells Mona and Lotie that the diamond is hidden in his apartment. The four young people are there when Bud, following Harkins' orders, telephones that his mother is ill. He comes to take Mona home. The girls depart. Steve suspects trickery and he and Barry hide. Presently someone enters the apartment. It is Bud. He is forced to confess he has come to steal the diamond. Steve, knowing the gangsters may kill the boy for his failure, decides to send him to South America. They drive to Boston to put Bud on a boat.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.
CHAPTER XV. "But I don't know what you mean, Steve," she said. "Why did you say I won't see Bud for a long while? What's happened? Where are you?" She sat at her desk in the downtown law office. Steve's voice came to her over the telephone.
"I'm talking over long distance," he reassured her. "Bud is with me and he's okay. I'll explain it all when I see you. Let me meet you tonight, will you?"
"Where are you?" Mona asked. Then, "Yes, I'll meet you at five." She put down the telephone in bewilderment. Steve in Boston and Bud with him! What could it mean. She had left Steve last night about to go to his club with Barry. Bud had taken Lotie home and had not returned. Bud and Steve could hardly be called close friends. "Wise guy," was Bud's withering comment when Steve's name was mentioned.
At five o'clock Mona found Steve on the curb in his roadster. She listened carefully while he explained. Without sparing her Steve sketched the previous night's happenings, Bud's affiliation with the gang which was after the Empress, his return to Steve's apartment, his reception and finally the drive to Boston were all described.
"Bud is out of their way by this time," Steve said, eying his wrist watch. "Four hours at sea."
"But won't they suspect?" Steve shook his head. "I don't think so. You see, even if they think we helped him get away, which I doubt, they won't think of the Canadian boat. We're shipping our machinery via the Miranda. They might think we'd smuggled Bud aboard."
"The machinery didn't go on the Lady Bradford?"
"English boats— or Canadian either—can't pick up American freight."
For a moment Mona was silent. "Then this means that beside rescuing Bud from the gang, you've risked your life."
"I have none of them," Steve interrupted. "You have only one brother."
"And you paid Bud's fare to South America. We owe you all that!"
"You owe me nothing. The boy is going down there on a job. He's going to make good at it. Just being free from this crowd will be a godsend." Steve put his hand over Mona's tiny gloved one and looked at her. "You mustn't blame Bud too much. There are a dozen ways say 'down south.' Just say he's out of town or in the country."

"Busy plying her needle through a sock which Bud would never wear. Mrs. Moran sighed. She was not to be diverted from her original line of thinking.
"I'd like to see you married to some good man, Min," she announced. "Though how we'd get along without you, God knows!"
"That's what you said about Alice," remarked Mona. "She's no better off. She's not as well off as she was when she was single."
"Jim Halliday's a good man," Ma replied contentedly. Never would she allow anyone to criticize Alice's husband. He's good, but the luck isn't with him," she repeated.
"I don't want to marry yet, Mother. Not for years."
"And then it will be too late," Mrs. Moran mused over her darling. They were soon joined by Kitty, who trailed out to the kitchen, to forage for a sandwich and cup of milk.
"Where's Bud?" Kitty asked presently. "I've got a trade last night. Not exactly a trade last night."
Mona and her mother exchanged glances. Mrs. Moran decided that there was no time like the present for a rehearsal. "Working in Connecticut," she said. "Bud won't be home even on Sundays for a while. Ma's look of triumph in Mona's direction was lost on Kitty who was busy applying herself to her food.
"Hi! Kitty remarked. Everybody says Bud's a perfect terror. Mrs. Callahan says it's a mystery how he keeps out of jail. She says that you would do well to look into this Fordham business. She says—"
"And I say Mrs. Callahan would do well to look to her own business!" retorted Mrs. Moran, headily. "Bud's a good boy! He's sending home half his salary every week now."
"Go to bed, Kitty," said Mona quietly.
"Can I have Bud's room if he isn't going to be here?" Kitty paused to inquire.
"That will be fine, Kit," said her mother warmly. "I'll make new curtains for you. Good night now, child."
Humming, Mona set the tiny kitchen to rights. Presently, saying good night to her mother, she followed Kitty after a glance at the sleeping Donahue baby.
Things were not so bad even with this worry about Bud. She would have a room to herself away from the disdainful Kitty. Barry and Steve could do so much for Bud.

Somehow this made Barry Townsend seem a little nearer.
It was not Steve Mona was thinking of as she prepared glowingly for the night. What would her mother say if sometimes—later, of course—she were to marry someone like Barry?
Dreaming sweet dreams, at last she fell asleep.

GLASSFORD FINDS HIS POLICE POST EXCITING ENOUGH

Washington—Pelham D. Glassford—"Happy" Glassford to his friends and thousands of bonus marchers—quit the army because it wasn't exciting enough.
But he now admits his job as Washington's chief of police more than satisfies his craving for action. After the tear gas clouds had blown over and the fire of the bonus shacks smoldered, bringing to a close one of the most exciting days in the history of Washington, General Glassford stretched himself to his full six feet, three inches and said wearily:
"Boys, I'm worn to a frazzle."
That was the only comment he made as to the part he played in the rioting among the bonus marchers. But those who know him didn't need to hear more.
"Happy" had found excitement—more than he ever expected.

GLASSFORD CALM

Looking back over those terrific hours of that Thursday afternoon and night of rioting, there can be no doubt that the tall, lean, smiling police chief was one of the most dominating figures of the whole scene.
He was calm in the midst of scenes of the wildest disorder. Often he could be spotted in the very center of the disturbance, puffing on his long black pipe, seeming to maintain peace by his own quiet manner.
He lost his temper but once during those long and trying hours. That was when a veteran man by the name of Walters, who had his face flushed for a moment as he yelled at one of his officers to "get that man." But when the man had been arrested and his badge restored, the smile—it's a broad grin really—returned to his face and he was himself again.

Invariably when he found himself among a group of veterans, they would start cheering him.
His Friend
The writer had opportunity to see "Happy" Glassford in action at first hand. It was along toward midnight just before the zero hour when the troops had orders to clear that motley village of bonus marchers out on Anacostia Flats.
Cavalrymen, infantrymen and tanks were drawn up ready for the advance. From out of the darkness down in the flats, Glassford's tall figure emerged. He was making his way toward a group of veterans and their wives on the outskirts of the camp.
As he approached them, he held out his hand, joined by a half-dozen men and women clasped. He took off his hat and listened patiently to their story. He must have spent 15 minutes with that group, chatting and sympathizing with them.
And as he turned to leave one of the women tearfully exclaimed: "God bless you, General. You have been our best friend."

TRAVELING ON A LOG

Connelly undertook his novel feat to win food and lodging. He is unemployed, married, and has seven children.

YOUNGSTER HOOPS THREE-TWO POUNDER

SPEAKING SKILL STILL NECESSITY IN CAMPAIGNING

Washington—Has the day passed when skill and knowledge of the tricks of oratory are no longer necessary to him who would go campaigning for high office?
In this day of radio when millions judge a man's fitness by hearing him rather than by seeing him, is it important that he be an adept public speaker? Is platform presence still required?
The answer is yes, say those who make a study of these things. Whether a candidate takes the stump or uses the radio to make his appeal, the old rules seem to hold still.
All of which brings to mind President Hoover. There has been much speculation as to how much of a handicap the absence of "tricks" in his platform and radio delivery is to making himself understood by the voting millions.
The President hasn't much of what is sometimes called oratorical finesse. When he is before an audience or a microphone he has the written text before him. He follows it line by line.
Lacks Showmanship
He hasn't the platform poise or gift of showmanship that other Presidents of recent times possessed. Taft, Wilson, Harding and Coolidge—each had his own way of "putting himself across." Either nature or training did it.

Taft, for example, could read a speech and frequently look his hearers in the eye. His huge frame, hairily radiated good nature and gentility.
Wilson was a magnetic personality on the platform. His colorful expression, sometimes sweeping to poetic heights, was a gift. At times he seemed to hold his audience spellbound.
Harding was able to memorize whole passages of his written speech and deliver them looking his listeners straight in the eye.
Coolidge Different
Coolidge was and is different. But he had a way all his own in capturing his audience. He selects his words meticulously, delivering them in a level, unburied, unexcited tone, giving the audience the impression that here is a man of cool thought.
Those who know President Hoover intimately say that privately he is a vastly different personality from what he is on the platform or on the radio. In his home, with his friends he talks easily. There is no evidence of self-consciousness. He is even a bit whimsical and often draws on incidents in his wide experience to illuminate conversation.
Perhaps his known dislike for "humanizing" publicity is responsible for the lack of oratorical finesse.

Two wrestlers fell out of the ring in Boston and were knocked unconscious simultaneously. But the really remarkable thing was that the observing referee noticed it and stopped the match.
Miss Leslie, once a trouper with a midget act, president over her home alone, makes most of her child's clothing and prepares meals for her husband, who is nearly six feet tall.

CHILD, 2, WEIGHS HALF AS MUCH AS MIDGET MOTHER

Mississippi—(AP)—What a stranger knocks at the home of Mrs. Thomas Leslie and she comes to the door, she is always prepared for a dialogue like this:
"Is your mother home?"
"Yes, the mother here."
Mrs. Leslie is only a little over three feet, six inches tall. Her daughter, who is 23 months old, weighs half as much as she does and is as tall as an average child of her age.

TO LIBERATE RECORD NUMBER OF PHEASANTS

Range Raised and Inspected Birds Numbering 24,000 To Be Released This Year.

Distribution of approximately 24,000 ringneck pheasants, the largest number ever liberated in Connecticut game covers, and, according to available records, one of the largest numbers ever liberated by any state game department in one season, is being made throughout the state this year, according to announcement at Hartford today by Superintendent Arthur L. Clark, of the State Board of Fisheries and Game.

County game wardens distributed 6,900 adult pheasants just before the breeding season last Spring. Starting last week wardens commenced distribution of 18,000 ten to twelve weeks old birds for which the State Board of Fisheries and Game placed contracts with Connecticut game breeders early this year. Distribution will be completed by September 1. Superintendent Clark stated today, and contracts provide that at least 80 percent of the birds in each shipment must be cock birds. Hen pheasants are not legal game under Connecticut game laws, but the State Board annually augments the supply of hens to increase breeding in the wild.

Pheasants liberated this year will be selected under supervision of game wardens, according to Superintendent Clark. "Most of the game farms supplying birds for re-stocking have been inspected by County Warden Edward G. Wright, of Rockville, who specializes in this work. In addition to that, each warden will also carefully inspect each bird offered so that only the most healthy and vigorous birds will be liberated," he stated.

"At a meeting held last week, with each county warden present, plans of the board to provide a better type of pheasant were fully explained. Live pheasants, illustrating several types, were shown. The purpose of the board is to set up standards for a better sporting bird and game breeders who hope to sell pheasants to the state in the future are urged to select their breeding stock this year according to those standards.

"So far as possible, the wardens this year will aid game breeders in picking out the sporting type of game birds to be used for breeding stock. It is not expected, however, that results from this effort to improve the sporting qualities of pheasants in Connecticut will begin to show up in actual cover shooting for several years. The type of bird being selected will be of medium size, strong of wing, very alert, and instinctively wild, depending on its ability to hide in order to escape its natural enemies, and therefore it is expected that the new type will 'lay' better instead of running before the dog," Superintendent Clark stated.

USED CAR PURCHASES SHOW BUSINESS BETTER

Henry Schaller Says More People Have Attended His Sale Than In Past Three Years.

Henry Schaller says that in the past two days the largest number of people visited his place of business at Center street since the boom years of 1928-1929, and judging from the number of cars sold and the unusual interest shown by the large number of prospective purchasers all indications point to an immediate improvement in general business conditions here at Manchester.

Mr. Schaller is conducting one of the largest used car sales that Manchester has ever seen. Prices have been drastically reduced, cars thoroughly reconditioned and guaranteed, and he invites the people of Manchester to come and inspect the fine assortment of cars on display. A few of the outstanding features of the sale are free number plates, free driving lessons, 30 day guarantee, 5 day trial and the old car accepted as all or part down payment and extra liberal terms. The sale ends Sunday night at 8 p. m.

FALL OF TRAIN—UNHURT
Cordale, Ga., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Two-year-old James Edward Pitts got off a train all by himself here yesterday—via a window as the train traveled 30 miles an hour—and escaped virtually unhurt. The child crawled from a coach and tumbled to the ground as his mother left him in the care of a small sister. The train had traveled two miles before the mother learned of the fall.

It was backed up to where James Edward left it.

He was found with only minor injuries.

LEHMAN CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR OF N. Y.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 5.—(AP)—With the full strength of Governor Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee, behind them, supporters of Lieutenant Governor Herbert H. Lehman for the governorship, were hoping today for a declaration of support from Alfred E. Smith, Governor Roosevelt last night approved the Lehman candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination in Albany, N. Y.

Mr. Roosevelt spoke of Lehman's familiarity with state affairs, his splendid business training and wide experience with public finance, and added:

"Because of these reasons, because of my deep personal affection for him, and my belief in his integrity and ability, and because I have much regard for good government in my native State of New York, I believe that Lieutenant Governor Lehman will be nominated by the Democratic Party."

Lehman's official duties as former Governor Smith's successor. They also hope that John F. Curry will throw Tammany Hall's strength behind Lehman.

LANCASTER'S DIARY

IS READ IN COURT

As a result the police acting on complaint from Brown say I was drunk. As a matter of fact I had not had a drink. It's a dog's life. Damage done.

Thursday, January 7, 1932—Miami, Fla.—Fined $50 with a suspended sentence on a complaint filed by Leonard Brown. American justice is all wet.

The evidence given was insufficient to convict me but like all matters in American courts, they are subject to the inefficiency of the court, of officials and the police.

Lack of Cash
Thursday, January 14, 1932—Miami—It's a sort of helpless feeling, this utter lack of cash. No sign of work either. Chubbie still the best little sport over matters, but she is blue, too. Still no news from Gentry. Chubbie raises hell about our agreement with the landlady as tomorrow is the 15th. J. F. and I come to the conclusion that a desperate situation exists for desperate measures. I prepare my application for citizenship in the U. S. A.

New York, February 3, 1932, A. and N. Club, New York, midnight: Am in a cold sweat. Return to Aberdeen hotel to find two telegrams from Chubbie saying that I must call her—important. What is it? Have just fixed everything up in New York and can leave in the morning for Miami—but this urgent request to telephone Chubbie has knocked me flat. God, if anything has happened to her I shall suffer as I have never suffered in my whole life. It cannot be bad, otherwise she would not be out until one. Will complete this day's entry after my call.

I. a. m., just talked to Chubbie. Gee, it was wonderful to hear her voice. I love her more than my very life. I think she needs me if I did not think this I would give my life to make her happy.

Sunday, February 7, 1932, Miami—Captain Tanciel and Mrs. Russell met me. A bit dazed at their conversation they speak of leaving for Mexico right away. Chubbie comes in later and we dine with Tanciel and his gang. Chubbie sweet, but fear I expected too much.

"Heavy Meeting"
Monday, February 8, Miami—Heavy meeting with "Latin-American Airways" in office at 2 Mr. Houston, an attorney. Chubbie and I sign an agreement in which we throw in our lot with the Mexican venture. Running cash belonging to Chinamen in Mexico is what they tell me we have to do. Doubtful of Tanciel, a terrible story teller (all lies), Chubbie better.

Tuesday, February 9, Miami—Meet Haden Clarke a writer. First impression of him very good. He is going to "ghost" a book for Chubbie.

Thursday, February 11, Miami—Chubbie and Haden get cockeyed, but not unpleasantly so.

Friday, February 12, Miami—Chubbie running house and doing most of work. God bless her. Haden Clarke is now living at the house, hope for some results from Chubbie's book.

Sunday, February 14, Miami—My birthday, 34 years old. Chubbie, Haden Clarke, Tanciel and I spent the day over on Miami Beach. We went to fish, but Chubbie and Haden

Friday, March 4, Miami—I cause a hitch in the departure proposed for Miami being on my mind, I might have spent an amusing evening. There comes along and disappears on the floor of our room to save expense.

Friday, March 25, El Paso—No news from Chubbie. She has disappointed me far more than this damned expedition.

Monday, March 28, El Paso—Letter from Haden Clarke and Chubbie. Very disappointed. Looks as though Chubbie just dashed off a note as a sort of duty. Haden a little more enlightening. Hope he is keeping his promise to me, feel sure he is. But Chubbie—hell.

Thursday, March 31—Nogales, Ariz.—No news from Chubbie. The little devil. I should not think of her so much. She does not deserve it. Hell.

Saturday, March 19, El Paso—A

She comes from Russell who says she is stranded in Phoenix. Also a wire from Chubbie which disturbs me very much. I go out and borrow on the gun lent me by Haden. This I give Chubbie. Were it not for the Miami news being on my mind, I might have spent an amusing evening. There comes along and disappears on the floor of our room to save expense.

Friday, March 25, El Paso—No news from Chubbie. She has disappointed me far more than this damned expedition.

Monday, March 28, El Paso—Letter from Haden Clarke and Chubbie. Very disappointed. Looks as though Chubbie just dashed off a note as a sort of duty. Haden a little more enlightening. Hope he is keeping his promise to me, feel sure he is. But Chubbie—hell.

Thursday, March 31—Nogales, Ariz.—No news from Chubbie. The little devil. I should not think of her so much. She does not deserve it. Hell.

Saturday, March 19, El Paso—A

Russell shows me two of the letters. One says "Chubbie" and the other says "Chubbie" and the other says "Chubbie". They were all ginned up. I really think now that Clarke has gained Chubbie's affections and she lost them.

The other letter said "Was round at Chubbie's tonight. She and Clarke got all ginned up together." Mental agony. Hell.

Sunday, April 3, Los Angeles—Wired Chubbie every cent I could raise. It leaves me flat broke, but God may provide. Why no wire from Chubbie. Four a. m., have been trying to phone Chubbie. No reply. Why? Ill with nervous worry.

Saturday, April 9, Tucson—Wired Chubbie. The reply worries me. If only she would send something nice, such as "Don't worry, I still love you." Thank goodness for one thing—I have made a firm resolution to end all this mental strain—have it out. Then work for our common good. I adore her and want to see her happy. If only she did not drink while I was away I would feel O. K. Gent says she has two personalities. Chubbie drunk and means have to be found. I want to get on with me. In the evening I have done my best—but failed. Want to talk things over with you, my sweet. It's five years now since we met.

Friday, April 15—St. Louis—Back east at last. Arrive Geph house, receive letters and behave like a school boy. In the evening drink pint of real Scotch but it does not affect me. Phone Chubbie type.

Imagine it! FANCY LONG ISLAND NATIVE DUCKLINGS

Nothing more tempting and delicious can be served than a Roast Duckling. Tender, sweet and juicy, and the price exceedingly low.

McKENNELLY'S AT SANDY BEACH SUNDAY NIGHT

To Take Part in Battle of Music With Jackie Keeney's Band—Dances Tonight and Tomorrow.

W. J. Cook of Riverside, Crystal ballroom is bringing McKennelly's Victor Recording orchestra to Sandy Beach ballroom, Crystal Lake, Sunday evening for a special engagement to take on a grand battle of music between this well-known dance orchestra and the well-known and popular Jackie Keeney and his orchestra in a four hour dance program from 8 to 12 o'clock, daylight saving time. This double feature attraction at Sandy Beach, Sunday evening should score a decided hit with dance fans and it is expected the season's record crowd will completely fill this popular dance place at Crystal Lake.

Tonight's "Old Saw Mill Gang" of nine pieces will present a program of modern and old-fashioned numbers which should prove very popular with a large number of dancers at and near Sandy Beach. This will be the second of a series of Friday night dances featuring the "Old Saw Mill Gang."

Saturday evening, August 6 Percy Nelson's original Night Hawks with dancers, singers and red-hot jazz musicians will provide the dance program and their widespread popularity, established by reason of the high-class brand of dance music this colored band of eleven musicians furnish, insures a large crowd at Sandy Beach tomorrow evening to enjoy this eleven suit of red hot entertainment.

"Please tell me how to prevent cysts forming on my eyelids. I have been having them cut out, but in there shows nothing wrong with the vision. I have been told that a poultice made with milk and the bark of slippery elm, to be applied for an hour at a time, would be helpful. Please advise me."
Answer: The tendency toward the formation of cysts seem to be caused by a condition of adhesion. This can be overcome by the use of a fasting and diet regimen, as outlined in my Cleansing Diet Course, which I will be glad to send you on receipt of a large self-addressed envelope, with a 10-cent stamp. Local applications of wet compresses to the eyes for about twenty minutes each morning and evening would be helpful. The efficacy of the remedy you name is probably due to its demulcent mucilaginous property. This could also be obtained from various substances added to the wet compresses, such as flaxseed, Irish moss, glycerin, gum arabic or starch paste.

(Poison Ivy)
Question: Mrs. F. F. writes: "How can we avoid poisoning from poison ivy? I have heard that, if you will chew it, you will never get it, but I am afraid to try this on the children."
Answer: I would not suggest that you give the plant to the children to chew. Teach them to recognize the plant so that they can stay away from it. When they have been exposed, wash the skin well with soap and water. Keeping them in good health will tend to make them less susceptible to it.

A Thought

Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.—Matthew 13:9.
Keep your eyes and ears open if you want to get on in this world.—Terrell.

PATENTS ON GILLETTE BLADES RULED VALID

Manufacturers and Sellers of Those Made To Fit Gillette Razors Liable To Suit.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 5.—Every manufacturer and seller of unlicensed blades made to fit Gillette's safety razors is liable to suit for damages following a sweeping Federal Court decision sustaining the validity of the Gillette patents. In suit for infringement of patents and damages, brought in United States District Court, District of Connecticut, against Hawley Hardware Company of Bridgeport, Conn., wholesaler of blades manufactured by the Clark Blade and Razor Company of Newark, N. J., Judge Edwin S. Thomas found the nominal defendant, the seller, and the actual defendant, the manufacturer, guilty and liable for costs and damages. With the validity of the Gillette patents sustained, distribution of unlicensed blades in the United States seems probable.

DIES FROM SCALDS

Middletown, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Morace A. James, 76, Plainville dry-goods merchant for 43 years, died here last night from scalds received when the stopper came out of a hot water bottle.

The accident occurred about a month ago. He was treated in New Britain General Hospital where his condition was regarded as critical and was brought to Middletown a few days ago after improvement in his condition was noted.

FIND ALL-BRAN HAS TWICE THE USABLE IRON IN LIVER

Also Furnishes "Bulk" and Vitamin B to Overcome Common Constipation

Liver is known as a good source of iron for the blood. Now, new tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

But more important still, laboratory experiments show ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.

This means Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a fine way to overcome constipation—with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so frequently result.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it absorbs moisture, forming a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, milder, more palatable.

How much better than rinking pills and drugs—so often habit-forming. Just eat two tablespoons of ALL-BRAN daily for most types of constipation. It is not habit-forming. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

HOW'S SHE HITTING?

By JAMES F. DONAHUE. NEA-Service Writer.

On the return from a long trip the car needs a general cleaning and overhauling.

The road is none too kind to any automobile, especially after several days of constant touring without a minute's attention. The body squeaks, the chassis frame is loose, the engine is noisy and the car itself is full of dust and grime.

It is therefore good practice not only to have the body cleaned, but to check over all running parts, to tighten up all body and chassis bolts and see that all joints are well greased.

Dust gets into the cracks and openings of the automobile and accumulates to a startling degree on any sort of journey. The dry dirt roads we meet on almost any long trip throw up great quantities of their dust that creeps into the crankcase into the carburetor.

This dust must be cleaned out. The oil in the crankcase should be changed, and before new oil is put in a quart of thin fresh oil should be used to flush it out.

New heavy oil or grease should be put into the transmission and rear housing, especially if the car has been run a few thousand miles without a change.

To be sure of a thorough cleaning, the engine also should be washed with gasoline or kerosene, or under steam pressure.

Sometimes mud, thrown back from bumping through wet roads, clogs up the air vents of the radiator, reducing its cooling efficiency.

The radiator, therefore, should be washed thoroughly after a long drive. In doing so it is advisable to cover the front of the engine, especially the electrical system, with an oilcloth or rubber coat to prevent water appearing over it and rendering it ineffective.

If the car has gone over long mountain roads, the brakes need careful adjustment, and perhaps re-lining.

Another mountain climbing after-effect is the softening of the hose couplings in the water cooling system, from overheating of the engine. These should be checked over and, if they are cracked or show considerable wear, should be replaced with new couplings.

SIGN UP, SOMEBODY. Maurice O'Brien, star pitcher of the Harvard school for boys in New York, bunched three no-hit, no-run games for his team this season.

FEW SERIES VETS

REMAIN IN RANKS OF PIRATES, YANKS

If Teams Meet Again Only 10 of 35 Athletes Who Played in 1927 Will Be On Hand.

By CLAIRE BUCKY. NEA-Service Sports Writer.

Chicago, Aug. 5—Five years don't begin to measure the career of an average big leaguer. Yet if October finds the Yankees and Pirates in another world series, the years will reveal that only 10 of the 35 athletes who played in the 1927 series are on hand for the 1932 classic.

Miller Huggins used only 15 Yankees to beat the Pirates four straight in 1927. Nine of these have moved on, leaving Ruth, Combe, Gehrig, Lazzeri, Pennington and Pipgras. And fery little Huggins is dead.

Donie Bush employed 20 Pirates in the battle attempt to halt the Yankee rush. Bush has departed Pittsburgh. So have the others, save the Waners, Traynor and Kremer.

A glance into August of 1927 reveals the Yankee easily maintained a 13-game lead over their nearest rivals. But the corresponding period wasn't easy for the Pirates. They were engaged in a bitter fight with the Cubs, Cardinals and Giants, with only two and a half games separating first and fourth place teams.

Is there a comparison between the Yankees of 1927 and the group Joe McCarthy is chauffeuring this season? How would you rank Bush's 1927 bunch with the outfit George Huggins has this year?

Huggins had Gehrig, Lazzeri, Koenig and old Joe Dugan on his infield and Ruth, Combe and Bob Meusel in the outfield. His pitching was done by Wilcox Moore, who won 19 and lost 7; Hoyt, 22 and 7; Spooner, 13 and 6; Penneck, 12 and 8; Ruether, 13 and 6, and Pipgras, 10 and 3.

Yankees pitching this year is strong and, with Dickey behind the mound, is the catching Gomez, Allen, Ruffing, Pipgras and MacFayden form probably the best staff in the league.

But Gehrig batted .379 in 1927. Hit more than 40 home runs and won the valuable player award. Ruth hit .356, set a new home run record of 60 and scored 158 runs. Combe made the league's best total of 168 singles, 23 triples and 281 hits, all for a .356 batting average. Are they doing as well this year?

The current Pirate team is one of the poorest fielding teams in the league, but also one of the fastest on the base lines. This speed is a reason why Pittsburgh has been able to win more than 20 games by the slim margin of one run.

The two Waners topped the league in several branches of hitting in 1927. Paul won the batting championship and the valuable player award. He also made the most hits and batted in the most runs. It was Lloyd's first year in the big leagues, but this didn't stop him from making the most singles and tying Hornsby for the most runs.

Both "Big and Little Poison" are the same pests to rival pitchers that they were five years ago. Or do you disagree?

Pie Traynor, older and more brittle than he was in 1927, continues to hold his place among the game's best third basemen. And although Kremer's arm has lost some of its strength, his wise old head is still capable of winning many games.

The Pirates have pitching too, a staff having few equals in the league. Sweeton, Swift, Maine and French are stars. Harris and Chapman are valuable.

None of this takes into consideration the play of Joe Sewell, Lynn Lary, Frank Crosetti and Ben Chapman of the Yankees. And it doesn't tell about Gus Suhr, Tony Plat, Floyd Vaughan, Earl Grace, Adam Conroy and Dave Barber of the Pirates.

Suppose we wait until October to see how it comes out.

YALE'S GREAT ELEVEN. According to Tad Jones, former Yale football coach, the Bulldog eleven of 1909, 1926 and 1927 should be rated among the great eleven of all time in the country.

Pitchers Do Make Putouts; Just Take a Look at These

Nearly every baseball fan can tell you who pitched the best baseball in the 1927 major league races. But how many of them can name the best fielding pitchers of last season in the rival leagues? Can you? Here they are:

George Blasholder of the Browns, Earl Whitehill of the Tigers and Wesley Farrell of the Indians in the American League. Phil Collins of the Phillies, Burleigh Grimes, then of the Cardinals, Heinie Meine of the Pirates and Fred Fitzsimmons of the Giants in the National. There you are, although fielding percentages won't bear out this.

Blasholder led the pitchers of both leagues in putouts with 26, which means that he was catching pop flies, snagging line drives, covering first base on ball hit to the first baseman and watching the other bases for a chance to figure in a play.

Collins with 17 putouts topped the National in that respect, had 31 assists but made five errors, which brought his percentage down to .922.

One of the most satisfactory answers I have found to the demand of boxing fandom for a system of scoring the rounds that will inform them how matters are progressing, among the officials' minds is in a ruddy-faced, strong-armed Los Angeles referee, Lieut. Jack Kennedy, U. S. N.

Kennedy is a familiar figure to Southern California fight fans but he is a novelty otherwise, especially to an easterner who has been peering for a number of years at the professional fights and wondering just how many of our better judges and referees reach their conclusions.

Whether the gallery boys like it or not, they know how Kennedy stands. He may indicate how he scored at the end of each round by pointing to either corner, or, as he did after eight rounds of slashing punching in the Steve Hannas-Lee Ramage fight in Los Angeles, he may demand attention and, with gestures and to the accompaniment of the crowd's audible count, toll his score for each fighter.

Count Spurred Steve. It was "four-three-and-one" in Hannas' favor, as Kennedy took the crowd into his confidence. The immediate effect was to inspire the Penn State slugger to put on a brick finish and settle all question of the outcome.

It is obvious that it takes a peculiar type of referee, of unquestioned integrity and forcefulness, to act as Kennedy does. This naval officer was born to command and inspire confidence.

Any hesitation immediately may be seized as a sign of weakness or grounds for suspension. Then, too, where two judges, as well as a referee, enter into the decision, some complications are presented, in giving the onlookers the "round-by-round" score.

Still, the opportunity for a workable scoring system, open and above board, exists for some such group as the National Boxing association to consider and act upon.

Hannas' Legs Wobbly. Steve Hannas is a handsome young heavyweight with a terrific punch, but his legs apparently will keep him from advancing very far in the professional game.

Football and other sports seem to have taken some of the spring from Steve's underpinning. He has to wear an athletic bandage around one knee. He so worried himself trying to put the crusher on Ramage in the early rounds that a sore himself down to a point of exhaustion.

Both fighters had to hold their other up at several stages of one of the most exciting heavyweight brawls we have watched in some time.

Ramage, just a school boy, is game, shifty and has a useful left but his fighting equipment otherwise is not calculated to carry him into the front ranks. A few more beatings such as he took from Hannas will do him no good.

FOUR OUT OF FIVE—Five men succeeded in driving automobiles at speeds greater than 300 miles an hour but only Sir Malcolm Campbell, the Englishman, is alive to tell about it today. The others, all of whom have been killed, were Major H. C. D. Bugeur of England and Ray Keech, Lee Bible and Frank Lockhart, American pilots.

Do You Remember? One Year Ago Today—Plucky Play, winner of the $25,000 Stars and Stripes handicap at Arlington, traveled a mile and an eighth in 1:49 2-5, equaling the track record, in winning the $25,000 added Hawthorne handicap from Sun Beau, weighed down with 131 pounds, Sun Beau finished gamely, but wobbly, a length and a half behind Plucky. Play, lightly weighted at 106 pounds.

Five Years Ago Today—Al Ulbricksen accepted the position of head rowing coach at University of Washington, succeeding Rusty Callow, who resigned to take a long-term contract at Pennsylvania. Ulbricksen was Callow's Washington assistant.

Ten Years Ago Today—The Pittsburgh Pirates, defeating the Phillies 19, 8 and 7 to 3, marked up 10 straight victories and moved into third place in the National League standings.

EVIDENCE SPILLS OUT. Evanston, Ill., Aug. 5.—(AP)—The six alleged moonshiners who came to Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter's court say they are not going to be convicted—not by a jug full. The jug, as the police tell it, was full until Mrs. John H. Scoville, discharged by the magistrate on a minor traffic violation charge, made a dash to get out of the court room.

As she did so, she collided with Detective Elsie Alvell, who was carrying the jug full of alleged evidence. It fell to the floor and broke. The judge then called time to air out the court.

And now the accused six say the state has lost its case. The court will pass on the question later.

DEWEYS ON VACATION. Warsaw, Poland, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Charles S. Dewey, former financial advisor to the Polish government, arrived here today on a vacation trip with Mrs. Dewey.

President Wroblewski of the Bank of Poland, a representative of the American Embassy and an officer of the Polish Chamber of Commerce met him at the train with representatives of the foreign office and the treasury department.

No, Not One. Can you name one city where baseball is played that has not been visited recently by Lew Fonseca in his search for new players for the White Sox?

What is the matter with the Brooklyn pitchers, is any? Where did George Earnshaw learn how to throw that home-run ball? What happened to the Braves?

Yes, I Believe So. Is this Tony Piet of the Pirates, who already loomed as the 1926-27 MVP of the 1927 world series, the same Tony Piet the Indians tried out at New Orleans and laughed at a couple of years back? Besides the enforced absence of Catcher Bill Dickey, what was the matter with the Yankee pitchers recently? Would the practice of throwing a bat at a pitcher help to put a stop to the aforesaid slabster's habit of flinging the bean ball?

HOOKS SLIDES

Wouldn't the Olympic games be improved by the installation of patent-musical machines?

Isn't the Cubs still in the race for the National League pennant? Wasn't it a shame they wouldn't let Old Man Nural set a new Olympic marathon record?

Are you still talking Benny Leonard's comeback seriously? What sort of punch do you think should be used out to race track lice who dope their steeds with heroin to win a few dollars, fool the public and injure the horses?

At what notch in the second division will the St. Paul Cardinals find themselves the last of September? Who started that rumor about Dan Howley not being named again next year as pilot of the Cincinnati Reds?

Not Very Long, Boys. How long will it be before some palooka belts Carnera on the whiskers and ends the myth of his boxing prowess?

Can you name any manager in the major leagues, who is doing more with the team he has at hand than Marty McManus of the Red Sox?

Has any team in the majors suffered a worse handicap than the Cincinnati Reds when they lost Chick Hafey through illness?

Why does a winning ball club have only a few grandstand managers when a losing team manages to acquire hundreds of them?

Yes, I Believe So. Is this Tony Piet of the Pirates, who already loomed as the 1926-27 MVP of the 1927 world series, the same Tony Piet the Indians tried out at New Orleans and laughed at a couple of years back? Besides the enforced absence of Catcher Bill Dickey, what was the matter with the Yankee pitchers recently?

Would the practice of throwing a bat at a pitcher help to put a stop to the aforesaid slabster's habit of flinging the bean ball?

Don't Be Funny. What has become of that fighting champion of the world, Jack Sharkey?

If New York prize fight announcements in the future must be qualified experts, will it also be necessary for them to pick them wrong before the bouts?

What could be sillier than a New York prize fight commission suspension? How do I know that Jimmy Focx will shatter Babe Ruth's home-run record this year?

No, Not One. Can you name one city where baseball is played that has not been visited recently by Lew Fonseca in his search for new players for the White Sox?
