

SECOND SON IS BORN TO THE LINDBERGHs

News Revives Story of Death of First Child Killed By Kidnapers Over Five Months Ago.

Englewood, N. J., Aug. 16.—(AP) A son was born to Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh at 6:30 a. m., Eastern Standard Time today.

The child, the second son to be born to the Lindberghs, was born at the Morrow home here five months and sixteen days after the first baby was kidnaped from the Lindbergh home in Hopewell, N. J.

The Lindberghs first baby was twenty months old when he was kidnaped and would have been a little more than two years old now if he had lived. His body was found near the Lindbergh home, however, after a wide search and officials believed he had been killed by the kidnapers, perhaps accidentally, almost immediately after he was stolen from his nursery.

The fact that Mrs. Lindbergh was expecting a second child, became generally known only after the first son, Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was kidnaped. She was under constant medical care during the long search for the baby and his kidnapers had been in retirement since her return to the home of her mother here several weeks ago.

Her Mother Returns

Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, after the first baby had been found dead and Mrs. Lindbergh had given proof of such fortitude that it was decided it was perfectly safe to leave her, went for a brief visit abroad with others of her children and only recently returned to her home with Mrs. Lindbergh at this time.

Mrs. Lindbergh attended the world, from the very moment her first baby was kidnaped, by the strength with which she met the tragic situation into which fate threw her so soon after the death of her father, Senator Dwight W. Morrow, who died last year while she and Col. Lindbergh were making a flying tour of the Far East.

So far as could be learned Mrs. Lindbergh's duties even from the first, making herself of service to all the searchers for her baby who made the Lindbergh home their headquarters.

Col. Lindbergh, from the moment on his discovery that his first son was missing, has sought assuagement of his grief in constant activity of one sort or another.

Led the Searchers

Up to the time the baby's body was found he was always in the van of the searchers, himself directing various phases of the hunt for the kidnapers and attempting negotiations with them through the agency, among others, of Dr. John F. Condon, aged Bronx, educator, and John Hines Curtis, Norfolk, Va., boatbuilder.

Through Dr. Condon, who had negotiated for return of the baby through newspaper advertisements signed "Jafie," he paid a futile $50,000 ransom which Dr. Condon

HOLD POLICE CHIEF ON SWINDLE CHARGE

Russian and Polish Pal Said To Have Made $150,000 While in U. S.

New York, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A man who claimed he was chief of police of St. Petersburg, Russia, in 1912, but is now waiter, was in the police lineup today charged with swindling an east side restaurant proprietor out of $25,000.

Accused with him was a man who described himself as Arcady Spokowski, 49, a native of Poland and a former professor of chemistry.

The Russian, who said he was Count Boris Dobrynski, admitted the charge, police said, and said he and his companion divided the money. Police claimed the two have acquired about $150,000 in the last few years through swindles.

Both Well Dressed

In the lineup both men were well dressed and the Russian spoke excellent English. The complaint against them was made by Valentine P. Great, proprietor of the restaurant. He alleged he was swindled out of the money in a room in the fashionable Hotel Marguery, 47th street and Park avenue, March 7, 1930, after Spokowski, he charged, had demonstrated a purported method of making counterfeit currency from genuine bills. Police said Great passed over the $25,000 and Spokowski threw a powder on an electric stove. There was a dull explosion and a puff of smoke. Great became dizzy and the alleged swindlers left the hotel, police charged, supposedly to get a restaurant, but did not return.

HITLER IS SILENT ON FUTURE MOVES

Nazi Leader, However, Says Von Papen Government Leads To Chaos.

Munich, Germany, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The activity of the present German government under Chancellor Franz von Papen is "leading straight to chaos" Adolf Hitler, National Socialist chief, said here today.

The statement was Hitler's first personal utterance since his dramatic refusal last Saturday to enter the Cabinet in a secondary role.

My followers would never have compromised if I had accepted the compromise suggested by President von Hindenburg," he said.

He declined to indicate what his further course would be beyond asserting that the Nazis would oppose the government.

"As to the fate of the Von Papen Cabinet," he said "that is something about which the chancellor himself had better be asked. We know how we are going to continue the fight. We are willing to support any government as long as the National movement is helped and the Marxist (Communist) movement is weakened.

"When the government ceases to help the National cause we oppose it sharply. Even a dictatorship can be imposed only if it is rooted in the will of the masses of the people. The recent elections showed clearly in what direction Germany's will tends.

"I'll never sell my movement for a mess of pottage," Hitler snapped. "On matters of principle there can be no compromise. One cannot accept heroism from a people if the leaders make 'bearable' compromises.

"My lieutenants would always forgive me if I made a mistake but never if I showed weakness."

SMITH AND BAKER ON HOOVER BOARD

Fifty-five of Nation's Leaders To Work Out Plans To Aid Needy.

New York, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The nation's top leaders took a new grip on the rope for relief today with the announcement that 55 of the country's leaders had agreed to serve on a committee to give aid to the unemployed.

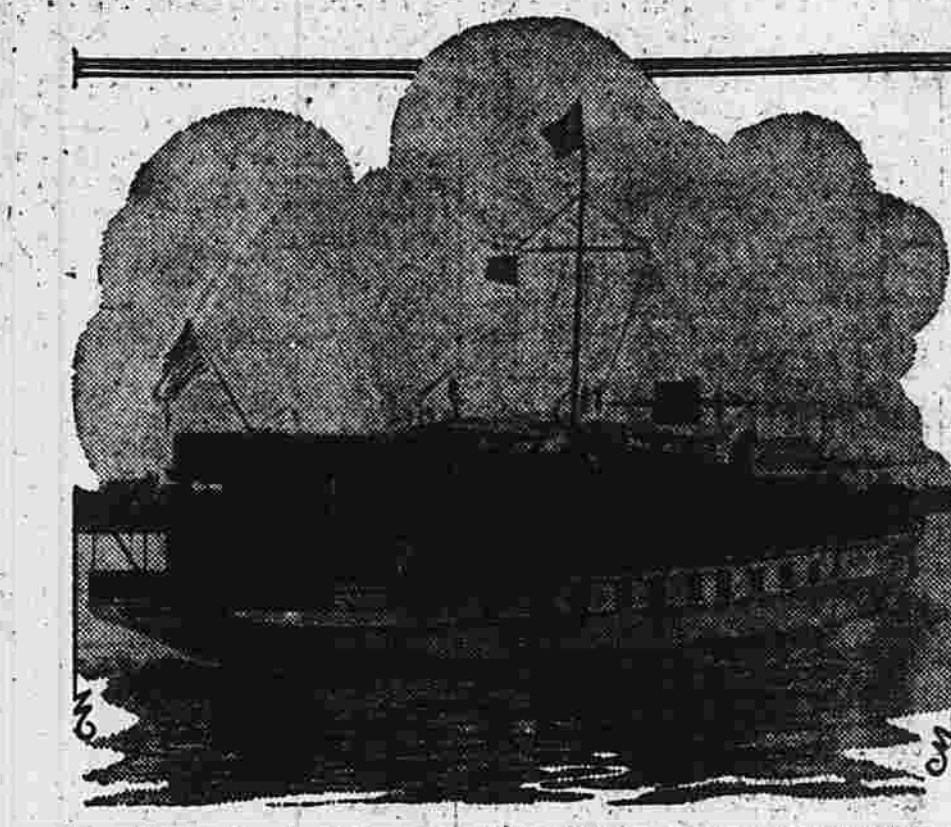

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, Secretary of Commerce Roy D. Chapin, Owen D. Young and Thomas W. Lamont are included in the group drafted to form the membership of the National Citizens' committee for the welfare and relief of the unemployed.

One of the first aims of the committee of 55 will be to unite and reinforce local social service organizations, assisting them in reorganizing their programs to fit the needs of their individual communities in addition to obtaining adequate funds to carry on their work.

"The task ahead of us is the greatest we have ever faced," said Chairman Baker. "Every social welfare agency must co-operate. When we are through we must have saved the nation's welfare plan from destruction."

The committee will sponsor a conference in Washington on September 15, when community social service leaders will be invited to participate. President Hoover will open the conference at the White House.

Beware, Fish! Here Comes Presidential Angler

RUSSIA CRITICIZES U. S. FOR NON-RECOGNITION

Government Organ Says America Not Only Is Losing Trade But Its Action Increases Danger of a World War.

Moscow, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The United States policy of refusing to recognize Soviet Russia was criticized today in a lengthy article in Izvestia, the government organ.

Non-recognition, the article said, not only reacts to America's economic disadvantage but also increases the danger of a world war.

P. Lapinsky, writer of the attack, was vague and obscure about the contention that the possibility of world conflict was increased, but his article clearly reflected the official disappointment here that both the major political parties of the United States ignored the recognition question in their platforms.

"The fact that both dominating parties decided not to state the question of recognition openly and clearly, and the general confusion surrounding it, show not only an

STRIKING MINERS TO PICKET MINES

1,700 Farmers Sworn In As Officers To Prevent Trouble Among Men.

Taylorville, Ill., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The threatened "March on Taylorville" by striking downstate miners started today, according to reports reaching miners union headquarters.

From Macoupin and St. Clair counties caravans of diggers protesting the 85 wage contract, equipped with pickets, are moving in trucks, automobiles and on trains to picket mines now operating under the new lower scale.

Their immediate objective was said to be Springfield where they planned to attend a mass meeting of striking capital miners in Reservoir park proceeding to Taylorville.

Taylorville, resembling an armed camp, bustled with preparations for the threatened invasion. Two hundred additional townspeople and farmers were reported sworn in as deputy sheriffs today, bringing the force of Vigilantes to 1,700.

Ninety-six persons have been added to Statesville's payroll by the Paoli cotton mill, idle a month and prior to that operated on part time.

With orders enough to keep it busy on full-time for eight months the High Shoals cotton mills at Lincolnton has reopened after running spasmodically for the last year.

Mills in the vicinity of Anderson, S. C., announced last week additional orders would enable them to operate full time for several months.

LANCASTER TRIAL IS NEARING JURY

Defense Lawyer Makes Plea For Life of British Flier Accused With Murder.

Miami, Fla., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Defense Attorney James M. Carson, pleading for the life of Captain W. N. Lancaster, in the British flier's trial for murder, today criticized the state's case as the sum of "five disconnected and sketchy circumstances in no way sufficient to give you any reason for believing he killed Clarke."

He praised the "bravery" of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian aviator, in baring her tangled love affair.

PRINCE MURDERED IN PARIS HOTEL

Found With Throat Slashed By Razor—Woman Says She Acted In Self Defense.

Paris, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A man whose papers identified him as Prince Edgard de Bourbon was found dead in a hotel room today with his throat slashed by a razor.

At about the same time a Spanish woman who gave her name as Condesa Brau-Soler, appeared at police headquarters and said she had killed the prince after a quarrel during which she threatened her with a razor. She killed in self-defense, she said.

Police said the quarrel grew out of an alleged discovery by the woman that the prince had married an American girl whose identity was not immediately determined.

The identification papers found on the man's body said he was born in 1870 at Rankelstein, Austria, the son of Alice de Bourbon.

The Almanac de Gotha does not contain the name of Edgard de Bourbon.

A Perfect Type

The prince was the perfect type of the impoverished gentleman, tall, white-haired, with aristocratic, military bearing, despite his second hand clothes. He was descended from the Bourbon Parma line through his mother, who belonged to the younger branch of the royal house of Bourbon. It was said he had married an American woman who left him soon after the marriage.

Madame Brau-Soler is about 44. She lived in a modest hotel near the busy Central market in Paris and eked out a meager living by selling beauty preparations which she made herself.

In 1916 the Italian secret police in Greece were concerned about the presence in that country of a man who gave his name as Edgard de Bourbon and carried an American passport issued in that name. He said he was a colonel in the American army on leave of absence and that his wife was the former Clara Conger of Cleveland, O., daughter of the former American minister to China and ambassador to Mexico.

The man claimed relationship with the royal family of Austria-Hungary, but police were said at the time to believe he was an impostor whose real name was Carlo Lortol.

German Communists To Stage Big Strike

Berlin, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Leaders of Germany's 3,000,000 Communists laid plans today for a nationwide strike against the Von Papen government to force it into measures for the relief of unemployment.

We must place the masses of the people in the fight against the government and the National Socialist "hunger offensive" Ernest Thaelmann, Communist leader, declared in an appeal sent out to his followers. "It must be on the widest possible basis.

"Economic strikes, agitation by the unemployed, rent strikes and lastly a general strike in all cities—that's the line of fight."

In the meantime, the government was also goaded from the right by denunciations of its policies by the Hitlerites. Expelling Hitler's refusal to participate in a cabinet in a secondary position as suggested by President Von Hindenburg and the government leaders, the Nazis credited him with remaining true to the party and the people.

"The policies of the Von Papen government never can be the policies of the National Socialist party" the Nazi statement said. "A government in which we do not lead can never result in anything but failure to bring about a turn for the better in the affairs which concern Germany's future."

J. Howard Rapsey, of New Haven broker, committed suicide at his farm here today, a few hours before he was to surrender in New Haven for sentence for an alleged securities fraud.

The former broker shot himself with a shot gun in a shed in the rear of his home. Coroner Samuel A. Bergman said he would not hold an inquest.

A sentence of from 6 to 10 years in the State Prison on a count alleging the theft of securities valued at $38,800 was sustained by the Supreme Court of Errors last week. Rapsey's bondsmen had agreed to surrender him in Superior Court on New Haven today for execution of sentence. The Supreme Court found error in a court which the trial court had imposed an additional year.

Rapsey was arrested last winter on complaint of Mrs. Elizabeth M. Clark, her daughter, Elizabeth J., and Massena Clark, and pleaded not guilty in Superior Court to seven counts alleging theft and obtaining property by false pretenses. He was sentenced March 1 after a two weeks trial, and was free under bond pending appeal.

Gave Him $255,000

The Clark testified they turned over more than $225,000 to Rapsey during 1929 for reinvestment in the Stock Market. The entire sum, they charge, was lost. The sentence of an additional year on which the Supreme Court found error was imposed on a count charging theft of a deed to the Clark's home.

A month after obtaining his freedom on appeal bond, the broker's wife, Arthur T. Minor of Bethlehem, obtained a bail piece, fearing, he complained, that the defendant proposed to escape. Rapsey was committed to New Haven county jail for a few days until new bondsmen could be located.

Had Been Planned

Some indication that Rapsey had planned his suicide for several days came to light this morning when Arthur T. Minor, Bethlehem storekeeper, told of a farewell visit to Rapsey at 9 o'clock last night. Minor said Rapsey remarked during their talk that he had been in jail a short time awaiting trial and didn't think he would last long under confinement as he was too used to the open air. Mr. Minor was the

For First Time Sex of Mysterious Figure In Hearing Is Revealed—Her Identity Closely Guarded During Seabury Hearing—Sherwood Prominently Mentioned In Today's Proceedings.

Executive Chamber, Albany, N. Y., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Governor Roosevelt's investigation of Mayor Walker today probed close to the identity of the "unknown person" who figures in the inquiry, when the mayor revealed that the mysterious recipient of money was a woman.

When Governor Roosevelt observed the evidence showed a letter of credit for $10,000 was arranged for the same "unknown person" to whom Russell T. Sherwood, missing accountant, paid $7,500, Walker said.

"I know nothing about the letter of credit. I do know that Sherwood handled income matters for the 'unknown person' and an examination of her accounts would show she had several bank accounts in the city."

The identity of the "unknown person" has been scrupulously guarded by Samuel Seabury, investigator for the Hofstadter legislative committee.

First Reference

Walker's remark was the first reference to the sex of the mysterious figure that has repeatedly bobbed up in the investigation and the executive hearing here.

The morning session adjourned at noon. The hearing was to resume at one p. m. eastern standard time.

John J. Curtin, counsel to the mayor, fought to obtain the secret evidence compiled by the Tammy investigators, but his demand went unheeded as the governor moved quickly to the hearing on a letter of credit that Sherwood obtained.

Curtin particularly had desired to look over the Seabury accountants' work sheets to find out how the Hofstadter investigator reached his conclusion that Sherwood paid out large sums of money for the mayor. Roosevelt refused to ask for the work sheets.

Tangled Problem

Throughout the morning session Mr. Roosevelt sought to untangle the evidence involving Walker's relations with Sherwood, whom Seabury was never able to question. Walker testifying and Curtin arguing, contended that Sherwood, an employe of Walker's former law firm, as a "courtesy" made out checks for Walker's relatives. Each time, however, the mayor reimbursed him with cash, Mr. Walker said.

"Have you any record of the amounts in cash you gave Sherwood?" Roosevelt asked Walker.

"No," replied the mayor. "I haven't even kept my own check book."

The mayor likely will fight the rest of his battle for exoneration without his wife. Mrs. Walker, who attended the first day of the hearing, became ill on last Thursday night. She collapsed while attempting mass yesterday. Mr. Walker said she would return to New York today accompanied by the family physician, Dr. William Schoedel, chairman of the city sanitation commission.

Executive Chamber, Albany, N. Y., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The smallest crowd that greeted him so far awaited the arrival today of Mayor James J. Walker for the fourth session of the hearing on a money charge before Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Only a group of newspaper and cameramen waited outside the State House and the downstairs corridors, crowded last week when he passed in front, were practically empty.

Exactly at 10 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) Mayor Walker arrived in the executive chamber.

He said Mrs. Walker was better this morning, but that his physician Dr. William Schoedel, sanitation commission chairman, would take her back to New York today for post-operative treatment. Dr. Schoedel performed an abdominal operation on Mrs. Walker several weeks ago.

Governor Roosevelt entered the chamber at 10:07 (E. S. T.) and the hearing began.

Because of the short time available to complete the personnel of this committee, the Executive committee was not able to notify every member by letter. However, the committee hopes that all persons listed above will make a special effort to attend the meeting tonight.

The Executive committee will recommend the personnel of the sub-committees and will outline their various duties. If the plan is accepted by the general committee, definite arrangements will get underway immediately. The sub-committees will be as follows: Parade committee, Reception committee, banquet committee, and finance committee.

According to tentative plans, McCluskey will be met at Depot Square. The exact date for the reception has not been set, pending definite information as to when the local boy will return to Manchester. It is planned to form the parade at the north end and to proceed to the south end and then to Center Park, where the public reception will be held.

The parade line-up is expected to include several local bands, the military companies, High school students and other marching units. It is possible that next week's band concert will be held on the night of the reception, to be given following the ceremonies in the Park.

Later, a banquet will be held, possibly at the Hotel Temple. The Executive committee will recommend that dinner tickets be priced at one dollar in order that all who desire to do so may attend. It is expected that between 300 and 400 townpeople will take advantage of this opportunity to pay homage to a native son who in three years has risen to the position of the greatest steeplechaser in the United States.

A birthday party was held in honor of Miss Sue Winkler Saturday at her home, 62 Summer street. More than thirty friends were present. The home was very prettily decorated in pink and blue.

William James Kerr, 28, employed on the Hearst estate at Sands Point, New York was picked up by Sergeant John McMillan last night and charged with operating a motor vehicle without a license. An effort was made by Kerr to get in touch with relatives to convince the local police that he had a license, to no purpose. Kerr will appear in town court tomorrow, having been released last night on a $20 bond.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sullivan of Valley street, Arthur Sullivan and Mrs. Edward Lynch of Knox street are spending a two weeks' vacation at White Sands.

The vacation periods of the policemen are nearing an end. Michael Fitzgerald and Herman Munko are at present on vacation. Only two officers remain to take their outings. During the early part of the season Officer Winfield Martin substituted for the men on leave, but two supernumerary policemen are now being employed. Closing of the schools has enabled the police department to allow members to take their vacations without hiring the extra men.

Over one-third of the first of three cars of four ordered by the Charity department for the town's needy has been distributed to date. The records of the department show that 948 bags have been issued at three o'clock this afternoon.

fairs with the two men from the stand to aid Lancaster. The state charges the love triangle was the motive for the alleged slaying, while the defense calls the young wife's death a suicide, partly resulting from the snarled affairs of the trio.

Carson enumerated five circumstances on which he said the state based its case: 1—Lancaster's love for Mrs. Keith-Miller, whose affections Clarke gained in Lancaster's absence on an unsuccessful flying venture.

2—Testimony that Lancaster threatened Clarke on hearing of the new love affair. 3—The fact that Lancaster bought a pistol in St. Louis before he returned to Miami on learning of the love affair, and that Clarke was shot with that pistol.

4—Lancaster's admission that he forged a suicide note. 5—Lancaster's alleged worry, after the shooting, whether Clarke would be able to speak before he died.

Admit Those Points "We admit all these points but that of the threats," Carson said. "But the points we admit are in no way sufficiently connected, in this sketchy circumstantial case, to give you any reason for believing Captain Lancaster killed Helen Clarke."

"As far as the state's claim concerning the threats is concerned, counsel for the state yesterday told you to disregard them."

Carson expressed pity for Mrs. Keith-Miller. "This woman's bravery is an outstanding point in this trial," he said, "as she brings out into the glaring light of public opinion the story of a woman who had thought would be forever hidden."

"Every detail of her story, as she told it to bring out the truth, and Lancaster's innocence of this charge has been corroborated by undisputed testimony," he said.

Mrs. Keith-Miller, sitting in the crowded courtroom, showed no feeling as Carson elaborated upon her loves. "I am interested only in freeing Old Bill," she said during a court recess. "Nothing else matters to me."

Mrs. Ida Clyde Clarke, mother of the dead man, came into the courtroom during the recess on the arm of her other son, Dr. Beverly Clarke of New York City.

up to me with the check. I'd receive the cash and endorse the check, and I would be, in effect, a receipt."

The transactions were handled by Salling W. Baruch and Company, brokers who had charge of the Sherwood-Walker account.

"In effect," the governor said, "Baruch and Company would advance $25,000 to you in cash from their own funds and take the check, with a receipt that they could use to reimburse later. Is that right?"

"It could have happened that way," Walker replied. Samuel Seabury, counsel to the Hofstadter legislative committee, offered in evidence two checks, made out in June, 1927, for $25,000 each by the brokers and endorsed by "As soon as I signed the check," Walker said, "I went immediately back to Baruch and Company."

One of the $25,000 checks was dated June 16, 1927, but was not cashed until June 22. I did not receive the money until then," Walker said. "I never gave those two payments of $25,000 each to Russell T. Sherwood for deposit anywhere," Walker added emphatically.

"I was that going to ask you that question, in another form," the governor said. "It appears from the records that Sherwood deposited in his Hornblower and Weeks account $25,000 on June 17. Do you know anything about that?"

"I do not," Walker answered. "But this I do know—if Baruch and Company did not cash that $25,000 check until June 22, I did not have the $25,000 on June 17."

"That is only your supposition, isn't it?" the Governor asked. "Well they wouldn't be apt to leave a check of that size lying around from June 17 to June 22, would they?" Walker replied. "The whole thing is a supposition, anyway."

"It appears that from time to time sums were given your sister or when Sherwood. Did you know how he transmitted the money?"

"Apparently by check," the governor observed that the checks for the mayor's sister (Mrs. Nan Walker) were drawn on Sherwood's account in the Central Hanover Bank. Walker said he gave Sherwood cash to cover the check.

Seabury in reply to a question from the governor said there was no evidence that Sherwood had deposited cash equivalent to the checks.

"I beg your pardon," shouted John J. Curtin. "I beg your pardon! There is and I have seen it."

retired capitalist several years ago when he motored past her residence in the nearby hamlet of Lanoka Harbor and noticed her working in the garden.

She had often recounted, and she came out to talk with him. Ever after that, Mrs. Brinley would recall, he would drop by regularly and they would sit on her porch and talk "like two old cronies gossiping about old times."

She liked to think they had a lot in common because of their ages.

The elderly woman has credited Rockefeller with giving her money—"greenbacks"—to help her along and with bringing her presents after he had been away from his Lakewood estate.

Until her illness ten days ago, she was the sexton in the Lanoka Harbor church, did her own housework, chopped her wood and tilled her garden.

 TUESDAY, AUGUST 16.

countries, may be guided entirely by technical reasoning; that they may unite in very skillfully shoring up a superstructure without paying the slightest attention to the foundation.
 One can hardly fail to be impressed, in looking over the long list of the conferees, the absence of any representation of economic study groups and of representatives of that major part of the population that lies outside the great financial and industrial centers. Every member of the Boston reserve district business and industrial committee, for example, hails from Boston; every member of the New York City district committee is a New York City man—and so on.
 In other words, the great group upon whose deliberations the President places such high hopes is very largely made up of men who have been the financial and business leaders of the country for a good many years—who were, it is difficult to forget, its leaders in the days when American finance and business piled up a monumental structure of error for which we are now paying the price.
 Granted that exactly because they led us wrong then they may now be perfectly competent to lead us right now, being leaders by nature, it is to be suspected that the country would have been glad to see, among the conferees, the names of a few individuals less famous for technical ability as fiscal and industrial generals than for their capacity for original thinking and freedom from the bonds of tradition.
 However, there is one fine thing about the conference being made up entirely of this class of men. It will demonstrate beyond question whether they possess, as a whole, the ability to lead the country in economic paths. If they succeed they will have settled for a long time the question as to whether theirs is a safe leadership. If they fail it will be because success, within the limited zone of Big Business thinking, was impossible. Then the country would know that it must look elsewhere for relief. It is Big Business' biggest chance, and its biggest test.

contributors to relief funds, the most exhaustive inquiry must be made and the most substantial proof provided before any person can become enrolled as a proper subject of relief.
 The lengths to which some people will go in getting onto relief lists is demonstrated by a case that has just been disclosed in Stratford. A man had been on the town aid list for a long time, receiving $6 a week. He had been cut down to a $4 basis, and protested. A special investigator put on the case inquired of a neighbor where the wife of the man in question might be found. "Oh," was the answer, "she's in Prague, visiting her folks."
 It turned out that the recipient of town aid had an endowment insurance policy for a thousand dollars. It recently matured and when he got the money he devoted a major part of it to providing his wife with a European trip—continuing to draw down his own support from the town of Stratford.
HONORS EARNED
 Even a sturdily Republican newspaper in a town like this can get a certain amount of prideful thrill out of the mention of one of its esteemed fellow citizens as a possible candidate for the United States Senate, though the candidacy would be a Democratic one and in opposition to our own candidate, Senator Bingham. Wherefore The Herald hastens to felicitate its gifted neighbor, Dr. Edward G. Dolan, on the fact that he has been spoken of by the politically astute Middle-town Press as one whom many Democrats believe to be better entitled to the honor of a senatorial nomination than Professor Harry Morgan Ayres of Columbia University, who sleeps nights in Westport and who is a little bit more a Connecticut man than Mahatma Gandhi.
 Frankly we should like to see our fellow townsman thus honored if it were not for the exceeding emptiness of the honor—if any Democrat in this selection were not foredoomed. Dr. Dolan has labored long and sacrificially in the Democratic party of this state. If the party has honors to bestow he is assuredly deserving of the best. But there are some practical-minded souls who might see a more worthwhile reward in a nomination for comptroller or secretary of state, with a remotely possible chance of election, than one to a job that is foreclosed in behalf of an unbeatable opponent.

 There is a judge of a town court in Connecticut—not in Hartford County—who has let it become known to constables and state police that there is no use in bringing into his court any automobile on a charge of speeding unless it can be proved that the motorist was exceeding sixty miles an hour.
 In the town where that judge presides there have been innumerable fatal accidents resulting from speed excessive under the conditions. Two great trunk line roads pass through the town and both of them carry a tremendous amount of traffic. Patrolling officers are helpless to protect that traffic from the insane recklessness of drivers who hit it up to fifty-nine and maintain such a rate for miles at a time, until an accident happens that will provide prima facie evidence of recklessness—and then it is too late. One officer recently clocked such a driver for many miles over one of the most densely congested roads in the country while the car under surveillance hurtled along at a consistent 55 miles an hour, never dropping below for curves or hill tops, passing strings of traffic and being, every instant of the time, a deadly menace to the lives and property of others. Yet there was no use whatever in interfering and making an arrest. The prisoner would have been discharged and the officer inferentially found guilty of officiousness.
 It may be that this is the most flagrant instance of judicial leaning to the side of the speed addicts, but it is beyond question that the absence of a definite speed limit, from the statutes of this state is responsible for an immense amount of laxity in the treatment of speeding cases by the courts and, in consequence, for non-interference on the part of road patrols when the officers would gladly provide the public with protection.
 There can never be anything like adequate control of highways speed until the courts and the police are given some real tools to work with. They are practically empty handed now and will remain so as long as our discredited experiment in allowing each driver to be the judge of what constituted safe speed remains on the statute books.

GARNER WELPS
 Little red Jack Garner has come to the East to tell Democrats, particularly Smith Democrats, what a broad minded, fine little fellow he is, when you come to know him, and how much he loves, reveres and admires Al Smith and how he loathes, hates, execrates, abominates, contemns and abhors religious bigotry.
 With tears of emotion flowing down his rubicund cheeks he told them yesterday how shocked and pained he was when the state of Texas in 1928 turned with loud yells upon the Democratic candidate and riddled him, and how he himself in that campaign made two (2—count 'em—2) speeches in support of the Brown Derby.
 To be sure he didn't tell them very much about the flop of his personally conducted Texas delegation to Smith's bitterest enemy, W. G. McAdoo, in the late lamented Chicago convention; did nothing to disabuse the pro-Smith mind of the conviction that the flop was indeed to McAdoo and McAdooism and only very incidentally to Roosevelt. In fact even in the extremity of his emotion little red Jack did not lose his presence of mind sufficiently to let that subject intrude by so much as the length of a pinpoint.
 Upon one point on which he touched at the luncheon at Democratic headquarters Mr. Garner was unqualifiedly right. That was when he said: "I hear that I am considered a handicap to the ticket in the East."
 On the whole, it looks like extremely bad generalship for Garner to come East and hand out the Texas brand of political blarney to the hard-boiled Democrats of New York, New England and New Jersey, who already know quite all there is to know about the religious liberalism and devotion to Al Smith that lie behind the Garner tears.
 "Best let sleeping dogs lie"—particularly when they are sleeping with one eye open and between two minds as to whether to bite something or not.

IN NEW YORK Aftermath
 New York, Aug. 16—The financial follies of Flo Ziegfeld will be produced any day now.
 Claims against the Ziegfeld estate fall like tinsel at the finale of a glitzy revue. Twice a million dollars Ziegfeld could hear the Wolf Song outside his door with Wall Street furnishing the sound effects.
 His Hastings-on-Hudson estate was mortgaged; the old Ziegfeld offices are closed; the phone number will be for such items as creditors can turn into cash.
 Perhaps one of the glorifiers' most valuable heirlooms will be a single word—"Follies." While some doubt had been expressed concerning the rights to this inheritance, Billie Burke, the widow, may find it an outstanding asset. And it may be that rather than see this name pass into the hands of those she considers unworthy, "Follies" will die with Ziegfeld, its creator.
End of an Era?
 Many there are in the Broadway zone who insist that the great era of the "Follies" production reached its end with the death of Ziegfeld. That particular type of show girl, it is argued, is on its last shapely legs and a new epoch is at hand. The very smart "Face the Music" and "Of Thee I Sing" and the sophisticated "Band Wagon" and similar productions are pointed out as establishing the new vogue.
 Revival of his classic "Show Boat" was the one money show in Ziegfeld's recent list. Customers were suing for non-payment of bills on the defunct "Hot Cha" when the great glorifier was stricken.

ADHESIONS AFTER PROLAPSUS
 In yesterday's article I explained the necessity for developing and maintaining strong abdominal muscles if the normal position of the abdominal and pelvic organs is to be retained, and how a weakness of the abdominal walls results in a misplacement of important intestinal organs and impairment of their functions.
 In other words, the prolapsed conditions may easily be avoided if we learn that vigorous exercise of the abdominal muscles is the penalty we must pay if we desire to continue to walk upright and look into the light of day and not on all fours with our faces to the ground. Prolapsus is a serious hazard since crowded organs cannot perform their normal functions.
 Probably not one person out of fifty has properly developed abdominal muscles. For this reason the disorders brought on by prolapsed abdominal organs are very common. With women, the pressure and weight of prolapsed abdominal organs is undoubtedly the basis of many so-called female troubles. Through the use of the X-ray in diagnosing many thousands of patients, I am satisfied that fully ninety percent of all women who present themselves for diagnosis are suffering from a sagging of some or all of the abdominal organs. The percentage is much lower in men, which is probably due to the fact that men usually undertake heavier exercises and have stronger abdominal muscles.
 The most serious results from a sagging of these organs are the kinks which may occur in the colon or small intestines and the adhesions which may consequently form. These adhesions constitute the greatest danger which results when one permits a prolapsed condition to exist for a period of time, for the movement of one organ pressing or rubbing upon another soon creates an irritation which encourages a growth of connective tissues between the irritated and inflamed surfaces. The organs finally grow together at the point of greatest irritation, which, if allowed to continue, will be difficult to sever unless either surgery or a long-continued course of adhesion-stretching treatments is used. This type of irritation causes most of the abdominal adhesions found in the human body. Any chronic inflammation of an organ will likewise produce adhesions to its neighboring tissues.
 There is a common belief that serious adhesions only grow in the vicinity of healed surgical incisions, but this is not true. The highly developed surgical technique of today aims at avoiding adhesions may occur after an operation in spite of the best efforts of the surgeon, but this is usually due to after-surgical complications.

 The most difficult types of constipation to correct are those which result from obstruction and adhesions of the intestines, and the fact that chronic constipation is very common is an indication that this type of prolapsus is frequent.
 If careful examinations with the X-ray have disclosed that you have adhesions binding your intestines or abdominal organs together, it has also shown that these organs were prolapsed one upon another.
 In tomorrow's article I am going to explain something about the methods of diagnosing adhesions and prolapsus.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
 (Artificial Teeth)
 Question: S. writes: "I am asking advice for a friend—an old gentleman in the seventies who has never been sick a day in his life and is as full of ambition as any young man. But for some reason the dentist cannot replace his teeth, all of which he has lost. Now he suffers at times with pains in his stomach after eating, and the action of his bowels is not as it should be."
 Answer: I am sure your friend will be able to secure artificial teeth which will fit if he will only find a dentist who is skilled enough. Modern dentistry has progressed very rapidly in the last ten years and dentists, using the newer methods are able to do wonderful things that they could not accomplish before. Until your friend finds a dentist who can fit him properly, he should live on an exclusive milk diet, supplemented with minced non-starchy vegetables. Three quarts of milk daily will give him enough nourishment if the vegetables are used.
 (Colitis)
 Question: Mrs. Olga H. writes: "My son, 21 years old, is suffering from colitis. The doctor says it will take a long time to cure him, and that he must not eat meat. He is not living at home, but in a boarding house, and I cannot regulate his diet. How best can I help him?"
 Answer: Tell your son to move from the boarding house, as it is the last place in the world where he can get a special diet such as he requires to eat in the cure of colitis. The doctor was right when he said it would take a long time to bring about a cure, but wrong when he said that meat produces colitis. "Colitis" is simply intense inflammation of the colon, which comes from dietetic errors of all kinds. I advise your son to eat in a restaurant or cafeteria where he can select the proper foods and thus follow the menus which appear in this paper every Friday.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington
 By RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

Washington—The reorganization of the $5,000,000,000 a year federal government, proposed and debated for decades, has begun.
 An immediate saving of about $68,000 a year, achieved by the firing of 40 people, is in prospect. That's about $13 out of every million the government spends.
 Consolidation within the Department of Commerce of the Bureau of Navigation and the Steamship Inspection Service into a new Bureau of Navigation and Steamship Inspection appears to add $900,000 a year to the treasury deficit.
 But absorption of the radio division of the Commerce Department by the Federal Radio Commission much more than makes up for that loss and it seems to be in order for all right-thinking citizens to cheer and build bonfires. At last it appears that it is possible to consolidate a couple of government agencies in the interests of economy without costing the taxpayers more money than ever.
The Bold Economy Bill
 Of course the B. of N. and the S. O. S. are only a couple of small bureaus employing a combined force of some 600 men and women, less than 100 of whom are in Washington. But Congress stepped out boldly in the economy bill and decreed that the two should be merged.
 It also ordered consolidation of the two radio agencies and even went so far as to recommend a Personnel Classification Board, with all of its 58 workers, into the Civil Service Commission. It stopped there, of course, but that was something.
 It seems that the B. of N. was primarily a maritime law enforcement agency whereas the S. I. S. was primarily a maritime inspection service and so far it hasn't been figured out how one employee could do another's job along with his own.
The Real Triumph
 But the Radio Commission-Radio Division merger, involving 400 persons, was reorganization's triumph. The F. R. C., having completed the absorption in Washington, proudly announced that it had fired 15 people at a total saving of $24,000 a year.
 Those dismissed included an official who was making $4900, and a staff lawyer who was drawing $3800. The rest were clerks and the F. R. C. says that most of them were married women whose husbands were also working for Uncle Sam.
 Now the absorption is being achieved in the field service of the commission and the division and out there 25 more employees will be canned at a saving of $45,000—a grand total of $77,000.
 Deduct that $9000 added expense caused by the B. of N. S. I. S. merger and you get a net saving of $68,000, which is almost what it costs us every 15 minutes of the year to pay off expenses of past wars and preparations for possible future wars.

UNCLE SAM'S NEW TAXES
 WHERE THEY HIT YOU —AND HOW!
 ONE LETTER A DAY WILL COST $3.66 MORE UNDER NEW BILL
 EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 18th of 20 daily articles explaining the new federal taxes.
 By ROBERT TALLEY
 NEA Service Writer

(Copyright 1932, By NEA Service)
 Uncle Sam needs $160,000,000 more from his postoffice department this year as its contribution toward the $1,118,500,000 in additional revenue required to balance the federal budget.
 Consequently, it now costs you 3 cents to mail a letter, instead of the old rate of 2 cents. This, and various increases in airmail and second-class rates, is scheduled to provide the extra money.
 But let's see what the new letter postage rate will cost the average family when it comes to writing Cousin John, Uncle Bob and Aunt Minnie and mailing the monthly check to the gas company, the electric company, and other places. If the average family mails seven letters a week, or one a day, this means $3.66 more in the course of a year—or $3.66 in the case of a leap year like 1932.
 If you want to be economical, post cards (including picture post cards) can still be sent for a penny.
 Airmail postage is increased from 5 cents to 8 cents for the first ounce and from 10 cents to 13 cents for each additional ounce.
 The new letter postage also applies to business reply envelopes, which carry an additional service charge of 1 cent.
 The increase in second-class mail rates applies only to "advertising" portion of any publication entered as second-class matter. The increase on the advertising content ranges from 1-2 cent per pound in the first and second zones to 3 cents in the eighth zone. The rate per pound on reading matter (non-advertising content) is unchanged.
 The postal increases are to remain in force until July 1, 1934. The law says that only 85 per cent of the gross receipts during the period of the "increased rate shall be counted for determining the class of a postoffice or the compensation of a postmaster."
NEXT: Stock transfers, bond issues and estate taxes.

WATKINS

MARVELOUS MANHATTAN
 BY WILLIAM GARDNER
 New York—Soup to nuts—nuts to fish.
 Alexander Gladstone Law, a commercial artist, was gnawing his way through a traditional dinner course when he had a great inspiration that led to a very nutty craft—if you'll pardon me.
 He, his wife and young son were dining out last Thanksgiving. He reached for an almond, and observed that a little chip of the shell resembled a fish fin. To amuse his youngster, he fashioned more fins from a bit of paper. He noticed the shell to form a mouth, and borrowed a pin from his wife, which he stuck into the almond so that the head of it suggested an eye.
 The result was something rather like one of those small tropical fish, so popular these days.
 Law was as pleased as his son. It occurred to him that with considerably more care, he could produce life-like fish from almonds.
 His experiments, and today is turning out ichthyoid models from pecans, peanuts, chestnuts, pistachios, Lichees and Brazil nuts, as well as almonds. People pay a good price for them.
Deep-See Squirrel Food
 The models are supported in half-gallon aquaria, against an artificial marine background.
 Philip Roman, who creates stage flowers and effects, reproduces diminutive undersea plants and things for Law. Roman makes the plants of cloth and paper. His copies cost surprisingly well by winding paper on a forked wire stem and dipping it in gritty breakfast food.
 Law assembles fish and scene, and employs glue and varnish as preservatives. No water goes into the aquaria, of course, but the effect at first glance is most realistic; on second glance, highly amusing.
 Fashioning and painting one of his deep sea fish takes four hours of Law's time. Every bit of the intricate work is done by hand.
 One of his most interesting exhibits is his "Brazil Devil, genus Heliovaldarselusa." This, as you might have guessed, is a Brazil nut, which happens to match the shape and style of the Lantern Boat, Sen. Davis, found off of the Cocos Islands.
 The nut is hollowed out and filled with plaster. The amazing mouth opening is painted red. Teeth are of limestone particles. The fin is a bent pin with a bit of luminous paint on the head. Fins are of pasteboard, and the eyes of amber pin heads with a dot of black paint.
 He creates little turtles of chestnuts, modeling the heads and backs of chewing gum. His "Penguin" has a penguin head of chewing gum, he chews his own—a toothpick bill. For this Roman provided a background of glass and a plaster of Paris snow storm.
Moore's Repose Bed
 In one of the Forty-fifth Street theaters, long without a show, an old gray cat slept on a new chair every day for months.
 The other morning the manager found the chair empty. He looked for the cat, but he had disappeared. Which is one of the most mysterious things that has happened in the history of the theater.

QUOTATIONS
 You know, I think people are better off now than they were 50 years ago, because they think more. I feel sure that their morality is 1000 per cent better than we are led to believe it is, too.

 All we ask for is toleration in our endeavor to bring Germany out of her trouble. My colleagues and I intend to go before the Reichstag with our program of constructive effort and dare the members to unseat us.
 —Franz von Papen, chancellor of Germany.
 It is the duty, not only of the great interests, but of every man and woman to push together and in due time we will reap our reward.

 I am, and will remain, a Lincoln Republican. I call upon all Republicans who share my views to repudiate the leadership which has destroyed our party and all but destroyed the republic.
 —Ex-Senator Henry C. Hansbrough of North Dakota.
 No longer do the American people regard the Philippines with a broad, statesmanlike and economic point of view. Therefore, I say it is better to cut loose as soon as possible and face whatever is before us.
 —Manuel L. Quezon, president, Philippine Senate.

A Thought
 Had thou perceived the breadth of the earth? declare it then knowest of it.—Job 38:18.
 No man was ever so much deceived by another as by himself.—Lord Greville.
OLD OMAR, CHANGETH
 Cairo.—The Emperor of Abyssinia has advanced a proposal to do away with a custom that has stood for centuries. Although a Christian country, all that was necessary to wed in the past was to approach a girl and recite, "In the name of Menelik, I claim thee as my wife." There was no need for the number of wives to be had under the old rule. The proposal of the emperor, however, is that the number of wives is to be limited to one.

TO JOIN REVOLT
 Montevideo, Uruguay, Aug. 16.—(AP)—From dispatches received here, on the Brazilian border, said today the Brazilian state of Rio Grande do Sul soon will join the fight against the Federal government of President Getulio Vargas.
 Brazilian bands have transported large numbers of Uruguayan bands as a result of the new developments, the dispatches said, and many Brazilian families also have crossed into Uruguay.
 Battles in heated water are being fought by the Uruguayan and Brazilian forces of the air, disclosed in the water.

BIG BUSINESS TEST
 The national conference of great bankers and business leaders called for the 26th of this month "for the purpose of organizing a concerted program of action along the whole economic front" should, judging from the character of the men who will attend it, function smoothly and arrive at definite conclusions in a reasonable length of time. The personnel certainly has been chosen painstakingly and with a consistent view to including only persons of marked capacity for leadership and for getting things done. They are all men accustomed to the making of momentous decisions and the handling of the largest kind of problems—and doing so without waste of words and without permitting personally held fads or theories to interfere with agreements.
CHECKING UP
 The determination of the Manchester authorities to exercise hereafter a more intensive surveillance over applicants for unemployment relief is warranted by every consideration of reasonableness and justice. The experience of the whole country during these last two or three years has shown the impossibility of accepting the unimportant statements of such applicants and the futility of half-way measures in verifying the genuineness of their needs. Literally thousands of cases of imposture have been reported. It is therefore beyond question that, in order to avoid deprivation to the deserving and the waste of money to the undeserving, a more intensive surveillance of the latter category is

And from Monte Carlo comes a note from Senor Don Aspiasu, the big rumba man from Cuba, advising me to tip off the American natives to look out for a new dance craze, "the Son."
 "The rhythm is a cross between the fox-trot and the tango," advises Senor Aspiasu, who introduced "The Peasant Vendor." It is the most extraordinary music yet evolved by Latin-American rumbas. It will revolutionize dancing as it has been toniced since the fox trot rescued us from those terrible hops.

Prospect for Ghosts
 Those myriad alleged heirs to the fabulous Wendell fortune have shown so little interest in the Fifth Avenue mansion of the Wendells that its windows go unpeeped and its blinds shades unwashed and its shutters undusted. While Hilda's goes more involved and actionous claims bob up in Scotland and way points, the old Wendell mansion itself seems daily to grow more down-at-heel.
 Since the will first gained approval, the light-shedding beams have put the mansion dark and gloomy.

 Muncie, Ind.—Seems he boasted of stealing 97 automobiles in two months, Everett Shaw, 30, was called the "one-man crime wave." After he was arrested, however, on a charge of stealing a car of a woman, he denied his other crimes, and for lack of evidence, was charged with petit larceny. He was sentenced to one to ten years in the state reformatory.

PUNISH MONARCHISTS

Seville, Spain, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Far-reaching orders for the condemnation of the property of monarchists and nobles were issued by the local government today due to last week's abortive monarchist rebellion.

The government took possession of a chateau belonging to the Marquis of Esquevel and announced it would proceed to take over all the possessions of other noblemen and "bourgeois" found to have aided the rebellion financially.

SAY NEW ENGLAND IS FOR ROOSEVELT

Chairmen From Five States Issue Statements On Results of the Fall Election.

New York, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Democratic state chairmen from five New England states, in statements issued today at Democratic National headquarters, told of their expectation of success for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket in November.

Joseph A. Maynard, of Boston, state chairman for Massachusetts, said in his opinion there is no question but that Governor Joseph P. Ely will be re-elected by the largest plurality ever given to a Democratic candidate for governor and that "this year will be a great help in carrying Massachusetts for Roosevelt and Garner."

"Speaker Garner's straightforward and positive declaration that he is not only a Democrat but a New Englander," Maynard said, "is a great help in carrying Massachusetts for Roosevelt and Garner."

Robert Gould, of Concord, state chairman for New Hampshire, said that if the election were to be held tomorrow, "Governor Roosevelt would be my choice, carry New Hampshire by a majority of between 10,000 and 15,000 votes and Senator George Moses, Republican, would most likely be defeated by ex-Governor Fred Brown, Democrat, by about the same margin."

John H. Dooley, of Portland, state chairman for Maine, said the Democratic Party in Maine is well organized and that the people of Maine are ripe and ready for a change in national administration.

J. Howard McGrath, of Central Falls, state chairman for Rhode Island, said organization leaders expect that the November election will repeat the performance of 1928 "when the state went for Governor Alfred E. Smith by a majority of 2,500, which was the first time since the Civil War that Rhode Island has gone Democratic in a two-party contest."

Francis H. Duffy, of Rutland, National committeeman for Vermont, said he felt that with the same "loyal support he had in the pre-convention campaign he (Governor Roosevelt) should sweep the country."

EXPECT TO LIFT DOG QUARANTINE AUGUST 27

Extent of Contact of One Victim of Disease Could Not Be Determined — Now At An End.

The dog quarantine which became effective under state supervision May 27, due to the several rabies infected dogs found in town, will probably be lifted August 27 if no further developments occur.

Due to a serious case, the contact limits of which could not be accurately determined, the local Board of Health placed the quarantine on dogs, limiting their freedom to yards and street under leash. The magnitude of the case assumed such proportions that the State Commissioner of Domestic Animals assumed charge of the quarantine following the order for strict quarantine by Dr. D. C. Y. Moore, chairman of the Board of Health.

Since the early days of the quarantine, no rabies infected dogs have been found, and it is expected that the ban will be lifted at the expiration of the 90 day period, August 27.

Dublin, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Irish Free State's new "White Army" has begun last week under the direction of followers of former President William T. Cosgrave, will not be armed and is not likely to engage the Irish Republican army in battle, its leaders said today.

"We stand only between the people and the menace of secret organizations," said Dr. O'Higgins, president of the new organization. "Our division is not a military organization likely to precipitate war, and our immediate object is peace. There is no intention to issue arms and there will be no drilling as long as drilling remains illegal in this country."

He added, however, "unless some organization attempts to stand between the people and intimidation, the growth of Communist principles in the near future will result in nothing but chaos and anarchy."

STAGG CELEBRATES HIS 70TH BIRTHDAY

Chicago, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Alonso Stagg, dean of America's football coaches, was celebrating his 70th birthday today, hale, hearty and happy.

The grand old man of the mid-way, now working at a movie lot at Los Angeles as technical adviser to a gridiron thriller, will return to the University of Chicago next week to develop his forty-first Maroon team, which, advance reports indicate, may be the thriller of the 1935 Western season.

Stagg's daily tennis game is as fast and seriously played as it was 30 years ago. He looks no older than 50. He is a marvel of physical fitness, capable today of undertaking exercises that would make an ordinary individual wince.

POREDA IS RANKED AS BEST BET FOR HEAVYWEIGHT BELT

Young Jersey Warrior Serves Notice He's In Running For Title By Whipping Schaff, Risko.

By EDWARD J. NEIL

New York, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A year ago the ranking youngsters in the heavyweight fight picture ranked something like this—Ernie Schaaf, Steve Hamas, Stanley Poreda.

Today the order has been reversed and the new rating must label them—Stanley Poreda, Ernie Schaaf, Steve Hamas.

In the course of the year, Poreda, now the likeliest looking of all the youngsters, a 200-pound, 23-year-old New Jersey warrior, has come to the front as the one newcomer to be reckoned as a title possibility when Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling finally have settled their feud and passed to the sidelines.

Poreda, that time has whipped Schaaf in ten rounds, beating him fairly decisively in New Jersey only a few weeks ago, and has taken, as well, the measure of the most dangerous of all the heavyweight trial horses, rubbery Johnny Risko, of Cleveland.

The young Pole's accomplishment becomes more impressive in the light of the recent successes of his two victims.

Risko, after losing to Poreda, punched Mickey Walker around for his hands and floored him once. Schaaf came right back to wallop Paulino Uzcudun into gory defeat in 15 rounds in Madison Square Garden's new bowl on Long Island.

The wise ones have had Poreda since he came out of the Jersey wilds, coached and trained by the old negro terror, Joe Jeannette, to whip every young heavyweight New York rings could throw against him.

Poreda is a nicely balanced combination of boxer and puncher. He has a "right left" left and fast foot. To the smartest youngsters in and out of the ring, of all the younger crop, and has in addition a pleasing personality.

At times he has been hampered by his own strength and failure to get the chance he thought he had earned against the topnotchers. He has but one black mark against him in the ring—a stunning knockout by Salvatore Ruggirello, wild punching Italian who caught him under the chin with a right hand that the nearby tore Stanley's jaw loose.

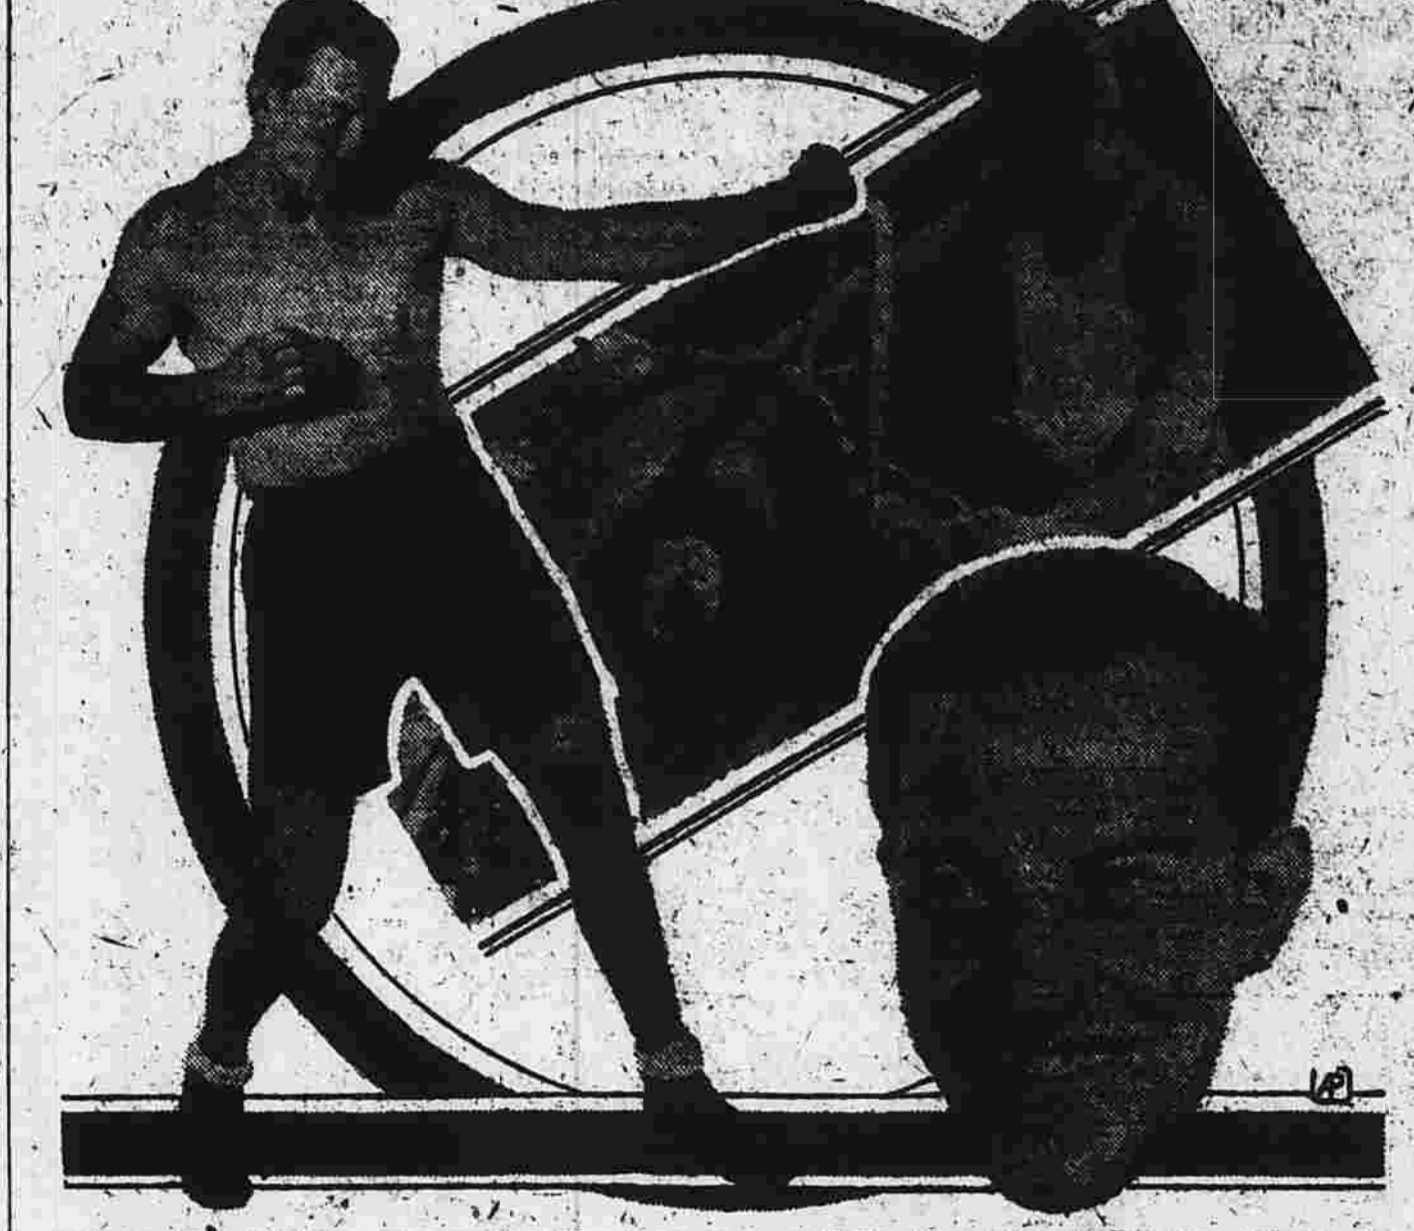

His first introduction to New York critics gave them an adequate forecast of what might be expected later.

An unknown, he was taken to the Schenck's training camp at Endicott, N. Y., to act as a sparring partner for the German in his preparations for the first match with Jack Sharkey.

Max was not nearly as smart a boxer then as he is now, but he could hit just as hard and was Poreda sparred with him the writers covering the camp chuckled at the youngster's timidity. He stepped easily around the title contender, stabbed his face with lefts, crossed him occasionally with rights and once running into a solid Schmeling punch.

Each day they worked thereafter the critics watched with increasing surprise, while Schmeling and his handlers became slightly irritated. Finally the word was passed around that Max would stop fooling with the young man the next day and would put him in his place.

Outstanding Heavyweight Prospect

CARR TO MEET CONROY, SANDY BEACH TONIGHT

In Feature Bout of All Star Amateur Card At Crystal Lake; Other Matches.

Tonight at Sandy Beach Arena, Crystal Lake, Rockville, the weekly amateur boxing show there will get under way with Steve Carr, the State Middleweight Champion, meeting Jim Conroy of Hartford in the feature bout. Carr, defending his title like a real champion, has met and defeated all opposition, while Conroy, who has been meeting with success by wins over leading boys and who holds a decision over the popular Frankie Butch Nickols, is at the head of the contender.

Conroy, like Carr, is a boxer and one who knows the ropes of real ringmanship and when they clash tonight a battle of real interest will take place in the squared area.

In another bout that will provide plenty of the old sock, Matchmaker Groch brings together Young Grifo of East Hartford and Jimmy Angelo of Worcester, Mass. Grifo, who now leads in the featherweight ranks by his win over Mike Murphy of East Hampton last week, will be second with an 81-12-35. Jack Cheney, Jr., had the low gross score hitting his usual 77.

Yesterday the saddles completed the second round in their tournament. Tomorrow morning they will start the quarter-finals. There was one upset when Francis Reardon beat Danny Civiello one up. The winner of the championship in the flyweight class was Art Keady, who beat a 76-6-58. Art Keady's opponent was a 76-6-58. Jack Cheney, Jr., had the low gross score hitting his usual 77.

This past week-end the women's match play tournament was concluded with Mrs. Earl G. Beskin winning the championship in the final match with Mrs. Oswald Johnson. The score was 4 and 2.

Several Manchester people saw Gene Saraceni in the exhibition at Rockledge, West Hartford, yesterday afternoon. Among those from the local Country club who saw the exhibition were Harry Hanson, Horace B. Cheney, Charlie Willett, Ricky Anderson, assistant pro here, Ronnie Ferguson and four caddies Harold Shapiro, the team leader from Worcester, will bring down a delegation of his first class battlers.

Dodgers Only Half Game Away From Second Place

PHILS TOOK HURST FOR GOOD MEASURE

Rookie Is Now Fighting For National League Batting Leadership.

New York, Aug. 16.—The story of Don Hurst, who is fighting for the National League batting leadership at this date, goes back four years.

The Cardinals wanted Catcher Jimmy Wilson of the then Phillies. Phils' Virgil Davis and Homer Peel were the best with which Branch Rickey tried to lure Wilson from St. Louis.

Stottson, a smart trader who is always looking for a little better than an even break, suggested that the Cardinals throw in a rookie from one of the farm teams for good measure.

The rookie, who was known in his time as Frank O'Donnell Hurst, Syracuse first baseman.

Now every time Branch Rickey looks over the National League batting averages he heaves a great big sigh.

Cardinal scouts first spotted Hurst as a pitcher in Paris, Ky., in the Blue Grass League. They couldn't go wrong, they figured, on a pitcher who could hit .332, even a southpaw pitcher.

They picked up Hurst and sent him to the Fort Smith Ark., farm in 1928. For two years the Cardinal system kept him at Syracuse, where he was alternated between first base and an outfield job.

Stottson got him in 1932 and decided he was a first baseman. It is becoming more and more evident that Stottson was right.

In a recent game with Pittsburgh, Hurst was hit behind the ear with a ball pitched by Glenn Spencer, and was out of the lineup for several days.

Occasionally a mishap results in a batter's becoming plate shy, but that hasn't seemed to affect Hurst that way.

Since returning to the lineup, Hurst has been batting around .330. "It wasn't much," he said, "it just gave me a little headache."

So he has been passing the headache right back to the pitchers. That's fair enough.

Pile Up Nine Runs in First Inning and Coast To 11-6 Victory; 14th Defeat in 15 Starts For Corsairs; Cubs Have Game and One-Half Lead.

By HERBERT W. BARKER

First blood in the annual series between the Brooklyn Dodgers and Pittsburgh Pirates was with the Dodgers and second place in the National League, only a dream a few weeks ago, was only half a game away from Max Carey's charge today.

The Dodgers piled up nine runs in the first inning of their battle with the Corsairs yesterday and then coasted in to an 11-6 victory, their 14th in 15 games.

Retnie Meine was on the firing line for the Corsairs when the game opened but he stayed around only long enough to get one man out. Although Meine evidently didn't have much on the ball he was handicapped badly by errors by the young Pirate keystone combination of Floyd Vaughan and Tony Piet.

Taylor, first man to face Meine, tripled and scored Stripp's fly. Then followed a hit batsman, a single by Wilson, doubles by Cuccinello and Lopez and two bad fumbles by Piet and Vaughan. Six runs had scored and Meine had enough. Harris came in to pass Meine and allow Taylor, up for the second time, to start. Stripp's sacrifice scored one more run and O'Doul's single accounted for the last two tallies.

The Dodgers bombarded Harris for two more runs in the second frame but Leon Chagnon held John Rodgers the rest of the way. Joe Shantz held the Pirates safely in hand.

For the Pirates, who boasted a healthy lead in the race a few weeks ago, it was their 14th defeat in 15 games.

The Brooklyn-Pittsburgh fray was the only game played in the major leagues, all other clubs having an off day.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

The Impossible Task
Here's a simple little rule
That's good in any town—
Keep your savings up to snuff,
And your expenses down.

Remember 'way back in the good old days, when, I, a man sewed on his own buttons and drew the hole in his sock together, he was a bachelor.

Politician—Can you give my friend a job on your railway?
Railway Manager—But he cannot talk English.

Politician—Well, then give him a job calling out trains.

I "wouldn't marry a man simply because he was a good dancer," declared a flapper. "Now my boy friend is a good golf player, also."

Customer (looking doubtfully at box from which he is being served) —These cigars are smaller than they used to be.

Cigar Store Salesman—Yes, sir.
You see, the manufacturer noticed that the last inch of the cigar is always thrown away, so he's making them that much shorter.

A woman who wins a lot of bridge prizes almost went into hysterics one day last week when she learned her little boy was playing marbles for keeps.

Susie Wimple (to her boy friend).
—Say, it's after midnight; do you think you can stay here all night?

Boy Friend—Gosh, I dunno, I'll phone Ma and ask her.

It is a peculiar but undeniable fact, that ten persons can successfully adjust themselves to poverty, where one can actually and intelligently handle prosperity.

Patient—Well doctor, here am I.
Doctor—Very well. Your legs are still a bit swollen, but that doesn't disturb me in the least.

Patient—Sure, doctor, if your legs were swollen, it wouldn't disturb me either.

Billings—(at the supper table)—
All the money in this country is in the hands of a few.

His wife—Why, George, I thought you said there were lots and lots of bootleggers.

Pellets: After a little experience, a man realizes that he can go to bed at midnight and seldom miss anything—if stupidity were a crime, we'd all spend time in jail—if only women who actually intend to buy something came into department stores the proprietor could let half his clerks go.—You may not be able to fool a woman, but you can at least keep her guessing—if a woman will talk, there's hope; but if she won't talk, things are in a pretty ugly state.—An artist now and then sees a face to paint—but every girl knows she has one that has to be.—The best way to have others respect you is to begin by respecting yourself.—Some people consider sympathy so precious they reserve it for themselves.

No young man, you're not important because you carry a large bunch of keys—Consider the night watchman.

Clark (in private office)—As I am getting married, sir, is there any chance of an increase in salary?
Boss—If you don't get out of here quick, we'll make you a partner and you won't get anything.

Teacher—Now, Mary, can you tell me to which family the gorilla belongs?
Mary—No, miss, we have only lived in our flat a month and do not know the neighbors.

SHOCKING, EH?

Quincy, Mass.—Just after local police had staged a raid and were removing from a speakeasy some bartenders and the circumstantial evidence, there occurred two sharp explosions in rapid succession. The officers glanced anxiously at each other. Reinforcements? But no laughter and caustic comments from the surrounding crowd revealed that two bottles of beer had blown up.

ROLLING NICELY NOW

Boston, Mass.—"Brownie" a pet cocker spaniel belonging to Nicholas Bounonata, probably thought he wasn't running as smoothly as he should, and so he swallowed a couple of ball bearings. Whenever anyone shook him, he clicked, so he was taken to a veterinary, who discovered the trouble. Now, Brownie can no longer imitate the four original Spanish dancers.

STAR TO OPEN IT

Philadelphia.—When this city celebrates the 250th anniversary of William Penn's landing on American shores, the light of a star will illuminate portraits of various Quaker colonists. The star Scheidt has been chosen for this task because its light, in taking 250 years to reach the earth, was created about the time Penn landed in America.
