

THORNTON AND ROGERS GIVEN FULL SUPPORT

Republican Town Committee Gives Them Unqualified Endorsement—Three Selectmen Supported.

Members of the Republican town committee met last night to clear the situation that has previously existed with regard to the large number of candidates for offices in the Primary next Tuesday. Voters in town meetings were awaiting the committee's selection for endorsement although in years past the committee has refused its endorsement to any of the proposed candidates in the Primary race.

Miss Cheney's Position

Most important of all at last night's meeting was the setting of the understanding over the contest for Representative. Miss Marjory Cheney, who has served four terms in the General Assembly, had claimed that a large number of the members of the town committee had promised her their support. A canvass of the committee members last night showed that but one had promised to vote for Miss Cheney but had stated definitely that she would not work to get out a vote for Miss Cheney. William J. Thornton and Thomas J. Rogers were given the unqualified support of the committee on the ground that Miss Cheney has served long enough.

After considering the field of 15 candidates for Selectmen, the committee decided to endorse but three. This action was taken in order to try to be fair to those who are entered as candidates. The committee have served the town well and the committee feels that it is for the best interests of the town that they be returned to the board. The three given support are W. George Cheney, William W. Robertson and William J. Thornton on the ground of previous good service.

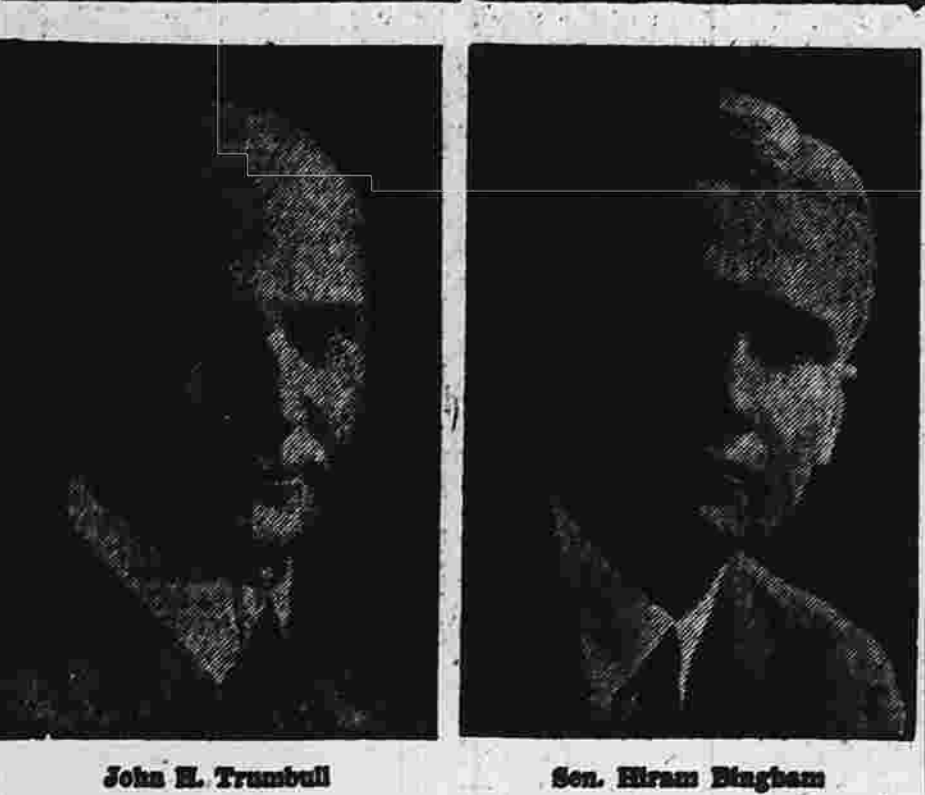

To Get Out Vote

No action was taken with regard to the contests for the Constable nominations nor for the Justices of Peace nominations. The highest vote made by the committee was out a big vote on Primary Day. The committee will use its usual room at the back of the Municipal building and three telephones will be installed with check-lists all prepared for tabulating the vote as it comes in. The committee will strive to get out a big vote, but it will naturally lend its aid and weight for the candidates whom it has endorsed. It is expected that other candidates will use some of the other offices in the Municipal building.

For Best Interests

In giving endorsement to several candidates the town committee through Judge Hyde states that it is working for what it considers the best interests of the town. Judge Hyde said today that this year of all years is one in which sound

DEMOCRATS CONTINUE BATTLE OVER TICKET

Factions To Carry Fight To Convention Floor—No Compromise in Dispute Over U. S. Senatorship.

Eastern Point, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Barring a last minute compromise, Connecticut Democrats were ready today to carry their factional battle over the makeup of the State ticket to the floor of the State Convention tomorrow morning.

The convention will open at 8 o'clock tonight with a keynote address by Robert F. Butler, Hartford attorney, but no controversial questions will come before the first session.

Leaders of the Old and New Guards began to gather at Hotel Graywood, there was talk of compromising their differences over all nominations except that of U. S. Senator. A floor fight between Prof. Harry Morgan Ayres of Westport, New Guay, candidate, and Representative Augustine Louorgan of Hartford was freely predicted.

Mayor Francis T. Maloney of Meriden, who last week was endorsed for the Senatorial nomination by Old Guard leaders, issued a statement last night denying he would agree to accept the nomination for lieutenant-governor instead.

Hewes As Compromise

In the event of a convention battle, State Senator Michael Connor said he would present the name of Colonel Thomas Hewes, of Farmington, attorney and member of Governor W. L. Cross' staff, as a compromise choice.

Only one contest over setting of a delegation was definitely in sight. Two sets of delegates elected in Prospect said they would appear at a meeting of the State Central Committee at 3 p. m., and there was a possibility a contest would be brought from Stamford. Old Guard candidates, defeated in a town primary, reserved the right to try for convention seats.

A group of party leaders has been working on a draft of the State platform, which will be brought before the resolutions committee after tonight's convention session. The rules committee will consider the U. S. Senator In Accepting Renomination Also Calls For Repeal of 18th Amendment.

New Haven, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Accepting renomination for United States Senator at the Republican State Convention today, Hiram Bingham reiterated his belief in a high tariff, a reduction of governmental expenditures and expressed again his views for repeal of the 18th Amendment.

Senator Bingham said in part: "It is my belief that government expenditures ought to be kept as low as possible without endangering the National defense and the proper activities of government. Federal aid projects lead to extravagance on the part of many states, and this leads to a heavier burden of taxation. We love to get something for nothing, consequently it is not surprising that those Senators who represent states which receive more in Federal aid than they contribute toward the Federal treasury should always be found working ardently to secure more and more Federal aid. x x x Tariff a Necessity.

"I believe that the protective tariff is just as necessary in order to keep cheap foreign labor, and particularly coal labor, from taking their highly prized jobs away from Connecticut workmen, and keeping thousands from securing new jobs as in our Army and Navy in order to keep envious or aggressive foreign governments from taking away our property and our lives and liberty. It is my desire to see the industries of Connecticut and of the United States protected against cheap foreign competition.

"Those who tell us that the United States would be better off without a tariff wall so that foreigners might do more work and earn the rewards now earned by American citizens, do not appear to be following sound common sense. Normally the American market is the richest market in the world. To open it any wider to foreigners than is the case at present would be to increase the number of unemployed in our country. Our problem is to find more jobs for American citizens. It is not our job to find more work for aliens. x x x

President's Ability.

"It is a splendid tribute to President Hoover's ability that so many of the constructive measures he advocated were passed with the aid and cooperation of the leaders of both great political parties. The effect of their passage is already beginning to be felt. Confidence in the future of our country is returning. Those European bankers who sold America 'short' and depressed the market by the dumping of hundreds of millions of dollars worth of securities are now regretting their action and trying to get some of them back. x x x

"We prize that economic liberty which makes America great. But if those who have the wit and courage to accumulate great economic power through personal wealth or large combinations of capital use this power to harm or hurt their neighbors then public opinion demands that government restrict it. REPUBLICANS PICK TRUMBULL; SEN. BINGHAM IS RENOMINATED

Wet Plank Endorsed By G. O. P. Committee

New Haven, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Repeal of the 18th Amendment and immediate modification of the Volstead Act was endorsed today by the resolutions committee for presentation before the Republican State Convention.

The prohibition plank also recommended the return to the states of the power to regulate, control or prohibit the liquor traffic, leaving each state free to adapt its solution of the liquor problem to the public sentiment of its citizens.

United States Senator Hiram Bingham, avowed foe of prohibition, was commended "for his efforts for repeal in the Chicago convention and for his subsequent activities in the Senate which put to the acid test the sincerity of the professions of the Democrats."

The committee also recommended such revision of the state enforcement act to make possible "automatic adjustment" with any future change which may be made in the Federal prohibition laws.

J. William Hope Nominated For State Treasurership As Compromise Candidate To Settle Dispute Between Two Fairfield County Men—Quigley Fails To Get Place On State Ticket—Rockville Man Among Presidential Electors—Convention Adopts Resolution Urging Repeal of Eighteenth Amendment.

New Haven, Sept. 7.—(AP)—A resolution urging repeal of the 18th Amendment and immediate modification of the Volstead Act, was adopted by the Republican State convention today after renominating Senator Hiram Bingham, an anti-prohibition leader.

The convention, which called back former Governor J. H. Trumbull from political retirement to head the ticket, endorsed Bingham "for his efforts for repeal in the Chicago convention and for his subsequent activities in the Senate which put to the acid test the sincerity of the professions of the Democrats."

Besides a direct statement for repeal and immediate modification of liquor laws, the prohibition plank, approved without opposition, recommended returning to the states "the power to regulate, control or prohibit the liquor traffic, leaving each state free to adapt its solution of the liquor problem to the public sentiment of its citizens and to the conditions prevailing within its borders."

It called for revision of the state enforcement laws to make possible "automatic adjustment" with any possible change in Federal prohibition statutes.

Other portions of the platform advocated economy in government, with no additional taxes, and commended the administration of President Hoover.

Senator Bingham was the only person on the ticket accorded renomination. Roy Wilcox of Meriden was nominated for lieutenant-governor to succeed Samuel R. Spencer; John Danaher of Hartford for secretary of state to succeed Dr. L. Higgins, and J. William Hope of Bridgeport to replace Wilcox as treasurer.

Anson F. Keeler of Norwalk, state Senator and former mayor, was placed on the ticket for comptroller to succeed Frederick R. Salmon, while Professor Charles M. Bakewell of the Yale philosophy department was nominated for the newly created office of Congressman-at-large.

Battle Settled

Approval of party leaders was granted to Hope at about the last minute to settle a battle between two other Fairfield county men—State Senator A. E. Lavery and former Lieut.-Gov. Clifford B. Wilson.

When chiefs were unable to agree on either of these candidates, they turned to Hope, former town chairman and a certified public accountant.

Supporters of Mayor George A. Quigley of New Britain endeavored to obtain a place for him on the ticket, and this morning were reported to be meeting with success. He was mentioned for the nomination for secretary of state but after a conference, Danaher, who had been the early choice, was placed on the ticket.

Eight presidential electors were named in the only other item of business on the two hour session, which adjourned at 1:15 p. m.

OPENING DELAYED.

New Haven, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Last minute conferences over the composition of the ticket and additional work by the resolutions committee on the platform kept the Republican State Convention today from assembling promptly at 11 a. m.

As the hour for convening approached only a handful of the 808 delegates was in the big-draped Shubert theater and with but a few lights twinkling in the high ceiling, the hall was in semi-darkness.

Meanwhile party chieftains, huddled in hotel rooms passed finally on the slate of candidates to be presented to the convention. The names of Mayor George Quigley of New Britain was advanced for secretary of state after John Danaher of Hartford and Miss Katherine Byrne, National committeewoman, were eliminated from consideration.

A Fairfield county battle over the nominees for treasurer also was in progress, with the probability that a compromise choice would put both Senator A. E. Lavery and former Lieut. Governor Clifford B. Wilson on the running.

Platform announced.

Completion of the platform draft will follow 11 a. m. brought a swarm of delegates to the convention hall. They sat quietly awaiting the appearance on the platform of Senator Frederic C. Walcott, temporary chairman, who was endorsed

FARMERS MASSING FOR PICKET DUTY

Sheriff Swears In 200 Deputies To Prevent Trouble Near Sioux City.

Sioux City, Iowa, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Sheriff R. E. Rippey of Plymouth county mobilized about 200 special deputies today upon reports that 1,000 farmers' holiday adherents were massing at James with the expressed intention of preventing 22 trucks of livestock from reaching markets here.

The deputies were armed with clubs and shotguns, and were sent to the place where Monday several hundred farmers, who seek higher agricultural prices by keeping produce from the markets, attacked drivers of 14 trucks and threw scrap iron, clubs, timbers, and stones at the machines. Four drivers were hurt.

One report Sheriff Rippey received was that the pickets had burned gasoline over the highway and planned to ignite it at the approach of the trucks.

James is a little town just over the Woodbury-Plymouth county line, not far from Sioux City. Yesterday Sheriff Rippey and his men escorted trucks through this latest trouble zone in the strike sponsored by the Farmers Holiday Association without trouble.

Sheriff Rippey was apprehensive of a clash between pickets and

New Haven, Sept. 7.—The keynote of United States Senator Frederic C. Walcott as temporary chairman of the Republican state convention here, delivered last night, was as follows:

"We have come together here—on all parts of this state, which we love, to take account of stock, make plans for the safety and integrity of our State and Federal governments by nominating candidates for the highest offices within the gift of the state, and take some bearings to

Here Is Full Text of G. O. P. Platform

New Haven, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The text of the Republican platform as presented today by the resolutions committee before the state convention follows:

"We commend the administration of President Hoover. Through many months of depression, he has proved himself courageous, patient, understanding and unwaveringly faithful to the American people. His retention in the White House is imperative to insure our return to normal times.

"We pledge ourselves to continue the policies of the Republican Party in Connecticut in which through years of practice and adherence to duty we have achieved a record of success in the past two years, have made our State a model of efficient government and outstanding among the states of the Union.

On Budget Basis

"For many years the Republican Party has been responsible for the conduct of the state's business. We have operated upon a budget basis, and have paid our bills as they were contracted. The debt, created by the Democratic Party, is at the present time more than offset by the State's sinking fund established by subsequent Republican administration. By the practice of paying our bills as we go, and funding successfully the indebtedness previously acquired, we are today out of debt, and have shown a balance on hand at the end of each fiscal year. Meanwhile neighboring states have increased their indebtedness. The indebtedness of these is Governor Roosevelt's Democratic state of New York which, since 1915 with ever mounting taxes has increased its indebtedness more than 100 per cent until today it amounts to $388,000,000, while during the same period our indebtedness administration has completely disappeared.

Sound Policies

"The experiences of other states and political units during the past two years resulting in a record of indebtedness and the probability of increased taxation to meet it, have proved Connecticut's Republican policies as to state appropriations to be sound and beneficial. Under our system of taxation, the income received by the state is dependent upon business conditions. Owing to economic conditions during the past year, the state's income has decreased five millions of dollars. Today while other governmental bodies have either failed or have had serious difficulty in balancing their budget, Connecticut, owing to the foresight of the last Republican General Assembly, ended her fiscal year on July 1 with a substantial surplus in the treasury in addition to retiring $2,940,000 of state bonds. By affecting economies, the appropriations committee of the 1931 General Assembly made this condition possible. Continued economies in appropriations are necessary to keep this businesslike financial condition a fact, and to this end we pledge our best efforts.

"We believe that business conditions do not warrant the imposition of any new or additional taxes by the next General Assembly. We believe that the affairs of state can and should continue to be carried by efficiently within the income which may be expected from the present forms of taxation and that all departments and institutions should exert every effort to reduce their expenditures so that, without impairing their efficiency, they may contribute to the general welfare of the people of the state without the necessity of an increase in taxation. We further urge a study of the means whereby the entire tax burden may be most equitably distributed.

"We are not in favor of committing the state to any new, untried or uncertain policies calling for substantial expenditures of state monies. Rather we favor a close and think of the time that would be wasted at a most critical period in training a new crew from the top down when we have now not only an efficient crew, but the wisest, most experienced, best trained leadership that can be found.

WITNESS MURDERED, DEPUTY IS BLAMED

Doctors Discover Man Found Hanging In Cell Did Not Die of Strangulation.

Pekin, Ill., Sept. 7.—(AP)—C. O. Skinner, a Tazewell county deputy sheriff, was in jail today awaiting arraignment on a warrant charging him with murder as the result of the death of Martin Virant, a witness to a slaying who was found hanging in his cell last Thursday.

The warrant charging Skinner with murder was sworn to by Coroner A. E. Allen of Tazewell county and State's Attorney L. P. Dunkelberg.

Virant, who was being held as a witness in the death of Louis Nolan which was reported to have resulted from a speakeasy fight, testified at a coroner's inquest that he had been beaten by Skinner and other deputies who had sought to make him confess complicity in Nolan's death. Virant was found hanging in his cell a few hours after the inquest.

Was Not Strangled

Coroner Allen was told by two Pekin doctors who viewed the body that death had not resulted from strangulation, as the hanging might indicate.

Virant's body, the coroner said, was covered with bruises, and he suffered a concussion of the brain, a broken rib, and other injuries.

Deputy Skinner was taken to the Pekin county jail at Pekin because, Tazewell county officials said, "feeling was running high in Pekin."

Skinner denied attacking Virant and claimed he knew nothing of the cause of death.

Republicans Cheered These Keynote Bits

By Associated Press

Excerpts from the keynote address of U. S. Senator Frederic C. Walcott which were applauded at the opening session of the Republican State convention:

Some one must pay (war debts); either the nations which borrowed or the Federal government of the United States, because that money was borrowed of the American people in good faith by the sale of Liberty Bonds and it is going to be paid back to them.

We must never pile up a deficit to be placed upon the shoulders of the succeeding generations. Our budgets must be balanced.

Fortunately, Connecticut's attitude toward the 18th Amendment has been one of unremitting opposition to National Prohibition.

Mr. Hoover has sounded the death knell of our attempt at prohibition by constitutional amendment and Federal law, which he frankly admitted led to degeneration in municipal government and an increase in subsidized crime and violence. This leads him to declare, "I cannot consent to the continuation of this regime."

It is my opinion that Senator Bingham's uncompromising attitude in favor of liberalizing the prohibition plank at Chicago did much to force the fight in favor of sane and

EXCHANGE PRICES KEEP PUSHING UP

Coppers and Utilities Show Pronounced Strength; Utah Advances $10.

New York, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Ignoring hesitancy of principal commodity markets, the Stock Market pushed ahead again today with coppers and utilities showing pronounced strength.

The domestic copper price was boosted 1-4 of a cent to 6 1-4 cents a pound, and the trade was actively discussing 7-cent metal. Copper stocks continued their advance. Utah, a thinly traded issue, sold at $71, up $10 a share. American Smelting rose $2 to $27.

American Telephone advanced more than $2 to above $118. U. S. Steel rose $1 to $51. Radio Corp. advanced about $1.50 to a new high for the year, above $12. North American rose $2 to above $41. Standard Oil of California advanced more than $1 to a new 1932 high close to $22.

NO WALKER DECISION

New York, Sept. 7.—(AP)—John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, indicated today that decision on whether James J. Walker will be Tammany's candidate, should there be a special majority election this fall, may be delayed for more than a month.

Asked when a decision might be expected on whether former Mayor Walker will be renominated for the office from which he resigned last week, Curry replied that it was his understanding that the nominations did not have to be made before October 15.

That was his only comment on this subject, except that he added that he had not seen Walker since his resignation.

MURDERS HIS WIFE, THEN SURRENDERS

Doctor, Native of Hartford, Says There Was No Quarrel Before Shooting.

Boston, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Dr. Townley Thorndike French, 57, graduate of the Harvard Medical School, class of 1896, was held for hearing today on charges of slaying his wife.

Dr. French gave himself up to police at La Grange street station. He walked into the police station last night, laid a pistol on the desk and said "I have killed my wife."

He told officers that he would find her in bed and explained "there was no controversy, no fight. Perhaps the psycho-analysts can explain why I did it."

Police found Mrs. Grace Alward French, 40, dead in bed at a rooming house where French lived. She had been shot through the head and doctors established the time of death as early Monday morning.

French told police he was born in Hartford, Conn., the son of Henry W. French, author and lecturer. He said his wife was the former Grace Alward of Stoughton and that he was once a member of the State Board of Health Inspectors.

Government ownership, government operation of business means a distinct loss to human progress. It means the loss of the advantage of that keen personal incentive which makes man struggle to progress.

"I am glad that President Hoover in his speech of acceptance has recognized the evils of the present situation and the necessity for a change. I am delighted that he recommends that the control of the liquor traffic be turned back to the States where it belongs. I differ with him however in one particular. We in Connecticut are very jealous of state rights. We do not believe in having the Federal government tell us what to do or how to do it. Consequently we do not agree with him that the Federal government ought to supervise the way in which our general industry and municipalities decide to control the sale of intoxicating beverages.

"That is a question, I believe, which can only be satisfactorily settled by the communities themselves. Public opinion in the communities can best regulate restrictions on personal liberty. I am for the repeal of the 18th Amendment and the immediate modification of the Volstead Act and when I say 'immediate' I mean immediate."

Wilcox of Meriden for lieutenant-governor, John A. Danaher of Hartford secretary of state, J. William Hope, former chairman of the Board of Bridgeport and a certified public accountant, for state treasurer, and Anson Keeler, former Norwalk mayor for state comptroller.

HOPE THE COMPROMISE

Hope was placed on the ticket as a compromise candidate representing Fairfield county after a deadlock had developed among supporters of Senator Lavery and Wilson.

The nomination for Congressman at large went to Prof. Charles M. Bakewell of Yale University.

In response to calls from delegations for the nominees, Senator Walcott appointed Representative E. W. Goss, Lawson W. Hall of New Haven, and former Lieut.-Governor J. E. Brainerd to escort Prof. Bakewell to the stage.

The nominee of a Congressman at large this year was necessitated by the new Reapportionment Act passed by Congress under which the number of Connecticut representatives was increased from 6 to 8.

Prof. Bakewell was frequently interrupted by applause as he pledged to support the policies of President Hoover.

BINGHAM RENOMINATED

New Haven, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Senator Hiram Bingham was renominated without opposition at the Republican State convention today, shortly after the resolutions committee recommended appeal of the 18th Amendment and immediate modification of the Volstead Act.

Prof. Bakewell, who was elected to fill a vacancy eight days ago after serving one day as governor, reiterated his opposition to present liquor law in an acceptance address. He led the minority effort to have the Republican National convention to be held in the State at the National platform.

"I am glad that President Hoover in his speech of acceptance" he said, "has recognized the evils of the present situation and the necessity for a change."

"I differ with him, however, in one particular. We in Connecticut are very jealous of state rights. Consequently we do not agree with him that the Federal government ought to supervise the way in which our general industry and municipalities decide to control the sale of intoxicating beverages."

IN THIRD DISTRICT

New Haven, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Discussion of the Republican Congressional situation in the Third District entered into generally by delegates to the State Convention last night. Lawson W. Hall, who was defeated for mayor last fall, said he expected to be a candidate, while friends of State Senator John F. Lynch of West Haven, said he was going out for the place. These two names are the only ones as yet definitely before the party in the seat to be vacated shortly by Congressman Tison.

"A STRONG TICKET"

New Haven, Sept. 7.—(AP)—J. Henry Corbush, chairman of the State Central Committee, termed the Republican ticket chosen at the party's convention one of the "strongest nominated in Connecticut in a long time."

"The ticket" he said, "is most satisfactory and we are going to win with it."

They made the flight in direction of Dr. R. A. Millikan, noted California physicist, who is here studying cosmic rays. The planes carrying recording instruments furnished by Dr. Millikan and intended to ascend 35,000 feet. It was believed they may have landed safely on some isolated lake.

The fliers were to have returned before 6 p. m. yesterday.

SHOT AT CONSTABLE ONLY "BACK FIRING"

Bolton Officer Says Manchester Police Didn't Help Him Get "Bandits."

Constable Chesterfield Pirie of Bolton told justice of the Peace Louis D. Eaton of Bolton, in the latter's court yesterday afternoon, that Manchester police failed to cooperate with him in the arrest of three of the young men wanted for breach of the peace on the constable's native beach.

To which local police point out the fact that a call from Constable Pirie was received shortly before 4 o'clock Monday morning, asking the department to keep a lookout for the persons wanted. Sergeant John McGilhin immediately sent Officers Cavagnaro and Cassella to the Center and Officer Prentiss was sent towards Bolton in the police car.

The failure of the local police to discover the alleged culprits was explained in person and said that he had imparted misinformation as to the make and number of the car.

The State Police were called in on the 10th and later apprehended Frank, George and Harry Lesina, brothers, of Westfield, Mass. In court yesterday, Pirie insisted that he had been shot at three times by the trio, but state police said that the "hole" was caused by the backfiring of the car.

Nevertheless, the brothers were found guilty of breach of the peace and were fined $5, with costs of $31.75, which they are to pay between them.

In court Pirie claimed that the incident started at 4:40 o'clock Monday morning. Records at the local station show the call was received at 3:50 o'clock. State Policeman Thomas Abbott said that no revolver was found in the car or on the occupants and that the noise was caused by backfiring.

It is claimed that the young man appeared at College Inn for a dawn dance and got into an argument. When ordered to leave by the constable, Pirie claimed that the trio fired on him and drove away.

N. Y. POLICE HOLD SPRINGFIELD MAN

Former Stage Dancer Caught In Wife's Apartment; Called Dangerous Man.

New York, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Patrick J. Flynn, 26-year-old son of a Springfield, Mass., superintendent of road construction, was arraigned in West Side Court today as a fugitive from Springfield, where police said he is wanted on a charge of assault and robbery. On the ground that Flynn had a criminal record, Magistrate Guy Van Amringe held him without bail pending a hearing on September 14.

Flynn worked for Earl Carroll about seven years as a tap dancer, and met his wife, then also a dancer for Carroll, at that time. Her stage name was Dorothy Jeans, Flynn said. She comes from Newton, Mass., and is now employed as a laboratory technician at Misericordia hospital according to Flynn.

Unusual precautions were taken by the police in effecting Flynn's arrest, a telegram from Chief of Police Fleming of Springfield, directed detectives to a building at 80 Riverside Drive where Flynn's wife has an apartment. The telegram contained a warning that Flynn was dangerous and probably armed. Detectives A. Kellerman and Raskin who made the arrest, were reinforced by a police squad armed with rifles and tear gas bombs.

Police surrounded the building last night while the detectives entered. Flynn made no resistance. He said he came here last Saturday morning and knew nothing about the charge against him.

At sea or over a level plain the human eye, at a height of five feet from the ground, can see an object 2.9 miles away.

Thumbnail Sketches of G. O. P. Candidates

Charles Montague Bakewell, for Congressman-at-large, an office created under apportionment as the 10th congressional district on census figures holds a chair as professor of philosophy at Yale college. His election probably will mean retirement from the faculty for which he is eligible. Prof. Bakewell was born in Pittsburgh in 1867, was graduated at University of California, studied abroad, began teaching at Harvard, went to Bryn Mawr in 1898, was made a professor at University of California in 1908. He took his place at Yale in 1908 after attaining his master's degree. In four years he was with the Red Cross commission in Italy.

Roy C. Wilcox, of Meriden, named for lieutenant-governor, is state treasurer. He is secretary of the International Silver Co. and manager of the Factory A. He served in the World War with French forces, at first as private and non-commissioned officer with Mobile Transport providing supplies to the front line, and later as United States officer commanding a French battalion. For his handling of transport organization under fire he received the Croix de Guerre with two citations.

United States Senator Hiram Bingham, renominated, stands out as a National figure because of months of verbal warfare in advocacy of the repeal of the 18th Amendment. He was a towering figure at the recent National convention.

In the Senate, aviation, military affairs, and problems of the Philippines have attracted his attention, naturally, because he is an aviator, a past army flying officer and a native Honolulu. He is one of the most versatile members of the Senate.

Bingham went into politics from a professional berth at Yale, was lieutenant-governor, served as governor and resigned to go to Washington as senator, to which office he was elected between the time of his election as governor and his induction into that office.

Anson F. Keeler of Norwalk, named for comptroller has been named for the Chicago convention. His legislative experience was in the last Senate. He has not been a state figure in politics but his selection was a recognition of Fairfield on the ticket in a place held since 1923 by F. W. Salmon of Westport whose name in the office is the longest in over a century.

John A. Danaher, of Hartford, named for secretary of state is a son of C. Danaher, of Meriden, an attorney, who looked after legal interests of organized labor through the Federation of Labor and in drafting labor measures to be offered to the General Assembly. He is an assistant district attorney under Major John Buckley.

John E. Trumbull, man of affairs "drafted" as the nominee for governor, an office he filled six years, has been credited with the "pay as you go" policy in State government. He went into politics at the request of his close friend, J. H. Roraback, as a committee man, and was state committee man, went to the Senate twice, sponsored the law for serial retirement for State judges. He elected he will find the State without bonded indebtedness.

Trumbull served as lieutenant-governor one day, taking the governorship as Hiram Bingham gave it up to be U. S. Senator. He was the "flying governor" to the county during his office. His daughter Florence married John Coolidge, son of former President Calvin Coolidge, three years ago.

'T WAS A MISTAKE SAYS MRS. VALLEE

Wife of Crooner Declares There Will Be No Divorce As She Loves Him.

Reno, Nev., Sept. 7.—(AP)—There will be no divorce for the Rudy Vallees, the former Fay Webb, actress wife of the crooning radio singer, said here today.

"It was all a mistake," Mrs. Vallee said. "My husband and I always have loved him, and he has never wanted a divorce. He is now for Santa Monica and will join Rudy later in New York. I'm so happy."

The startling turn came as Mrs. Vallee was believed to be preparing to establish divorce residence here.

A sudden realization that her separation from Vallees was all the result of a "childish and foolish quarrel" coupled with a midnight telephone conversation with the radio singer and orchestra leader in Atlantic City, was responsible for the change in plans.

"I know now that I was just a little fool to even think of a divorce," Mrs. Vallee confessed. "Rudy never wanted one, although he was just a perfect dear and told me that if I thought a divorce was best, that was what I should get. But I was wrong and we love each other more than ever now. We both admitted that last night."

CORONA IS YELLOW.

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 7.—(AP)—The solar corona which by belief is whitish about its center, appeared definitely yellowish to Miss Annie J. Cannon, curator of astro-photography at the Harvard observatory, she told the triennial congress of the International Astronomical Union here today. The Harvard expedition at Gray, Maine, was one of the relatively few expeditions to obtain excellent photographs of all phases of phenomena attending upon last Wednesday's total eclipse of the sun.

The ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride by the Rev. F. C. Allen of the Second Congregational church. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Muriel Palmer, and Dr. A. S. Pillsbury of Connecticut Agricultural College was Mr. Middagh's best man. Mrs. Jane Wood of New York City played the wedding march from "The Marriage of Figaro" as the bridal party entered the living room and took their places at a bower of gladiolus, ferns and vines.

The bride was gowned in green chiffon velvet and carried a bridal bouquet of gladiolus roses and lilies of the valley. The girl was taken to the hospital and given emergency treatment for a bruised ankle and later discharged.

through examination of present state activities and the elimination, suspension or curtailment of any which may appear unwarranted under existing conditions. We pledge ourselves, however, to continue our policy of adequately caring for those in need.

Rural Roads The development of rural and secondary roads in Connecticut has been accomplished under Republican administration over a period of many years. The appropriation of 1931 General Assembly of three million dollars a year for rural roads improvements was accomplished by the votes of a Republican appropriation committee and a Republican House and Senate. The Republican party now subscribes to a continuation of such development of rural roads in the State as conditions warrant, so that Connecticut highways may continue to be models for other states.

Under the leadership of Governor Trumbull, the state planned for the past two years the largest building program ever attempted in one session. This work was undertaken on both to create additional vacancies for the various wards of the state and to assist in the unemployment situation. Many new buildings in existing institutions were erected. Four hundred additional beds have been added in our tuberculosis institutions. A new institution for the mentally afflicted is being erected at Newtown. We believe that these large capital expenditures may provide sufficient accommodations for those in need and allow for a reduction in capital expense to keep a balanced budget during the next two years.

Health Department We commend the work of the state department of health, particularly in the policies directed toward the prevention and the cure of disease.

The veterans of Connecticut have benefited from the state since the war to the extent of $13,421,123. The soldiers' relief fund, established by the Republican General Assembly in 1919, has proved itself to be a solid, substantial endowment of annual income from which has done material good. Connecticut has always believed in caring properly for its veterans and the Republican Party heartily endorses this policy.

Connecticut has always been among the foremost of the states to maintain its share of National defense and we endorse the policy of continuing an adequate National Guard.

Child Welfare The recently created commission on child welfare has made an extensive study of all the agencies concerned with the care of our wards, and the laws under which these agencies operate. We pledge the Republican Party to careful consideration of this study to the end that such recommendations of the commission as may be feasible may come into effect.

The state of Connecticut has always maintained a position of dignified self-reliance. We commend the people of the state for their attitude in upholding this policy, and we pledge the Republican Party to its continuance.

We favor the repeal of the 18th Amendment and the return to the state of the power to regulate, control, or if they will, prohibit the liquor traffic, leaving each state free to adopt its solution of the liquor problem to the public sentiment of its citizens, and to the conditions prevailing within its borders.

Modify Volstead Act We favor the immediate modification of the Volstead Act and urge our Senators and Representatives in Washington to do all in their power to bring this about at the next session of Congress.

We commend Senator Bingham for his efforts for repeal in the Chicago convention and for his subsequent activities in the Senate which put to the acid test the sincerity of the professions of the Democrats. They were tried and found wanting. We commend him for consistency reasoning and good judgment are needed in the conduct of town and state affairs. The committee wishes to see only the best material the voters afford named and elected.

New Machines Town officials who have inspected the new voting machines at the Municipal building being erected and prepared for the town and general elections, are very favorably impressed with the appearance of the new units. The new machines are about a foot and one-half wider than the old machines in use for nearly 30 years and are equipped with a stiffer and wider base to which the upper part of the machine is attached through the use of rubber gears. The new machines are surrounded by a much heavier curtain which operates similar to the old type machines.

Demonstration Saturday A demonstration of the new machine will be held in the lobby of the Municipal building Saturday from 10 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock at night to allow voters to familiarize themselves with the larger machines.

SHOPPING NEWS

One-Man School

"Nobody really teaches you anything but yourself," says Walter Pithin of Columbia's School of Journalism.

The newest idea in entertaining is to provide for the guests fig-saw puzzles. It's different and great fun, and enthralls week-end parties too. You can rent them at Hale's Stationery Department for 5c per day up, minimum charge, 10c.

Careless No More

In times like these, when pennies count, customers become more and more shrewd and calculating. Which is right. Careless buying is a thing of the past. But there is one thing that people often forget; that is, that the truest economy lies in buying good quality. We can't always afford to buy the best that is on the market; but we should buy the best that we can possibly pay for.

Have you ever tried the services of the New Model Laundry?

If not, you will be surprised at the amount of work you can have done for a small sum per week, or if you have a small family every two or three weeks. Call 8072 to have the delivery call.

Come Crazy

The ice cream cone certainly came into its own this summer. Both the traveling and stationary public seems to have been bitten by the ice cream cone craze. The number of places along the roadsides where you can get fifteen or twenty different kinds of cream has multiplied, and they all seem to be selling cones at a great rate. A little questioning at these places reveals that most customers want the big ten cent cone, rather than the five cent one.

Excelsa Patterns are so easy to use that any woman can make some fall dresses herself. The new fall designs are now selling at Hale's Pattern Department. We've looked them over and found them very smart. You'll like the prices; 15c, 20c, and 25c each.

Snobbishness

People will bow and scrape to get the acquaintance of wealthy or influential people, Ruskin says, and spend their whole lives at useless social climbing; but they ignore a whole band of famous and brilliant folk, whose acquaintance they might easily have, in books.

New Life

It gives you a kind of new life when the season changes and the stores begin to show the fascinating lines of new clothes. It shows that the world is going right ahead and making new things and always will. We stick up for the woman and say that it isn't for frivolous reasons that they get such tremendous pep out of a new outfit. Who can be up-to-date and abreast of things in old-fashioned clothes? In introducing the new season, Manchester stores have certainly done their part in buying merchandise that will give good value for the price asked.

THE OPEN FORUM

Communications for publication in the Open Forum will not be guaranteed publication if they contain more than 200 words. The Herald reserves the right to decline to publish any matter that may be libelous or which is in bad taste. Free expression of political views is desired but contributions of this character which are defamatory or abusive will be rejected.

DEFENDS LLOYD

Editor, The Herald: I refer the writer of last night's Open Forum to the edition of Tuesday's Herald, August 30, in which it clearly states that dancing on the green would be enjoyed for the last time this season on Friday, September 2, music to be furnished by Jill and his Band gratis.

The previous paragraph goes to show that the West Side Club is all wet in their declaration that Lewis Lloyd knew of the plans of the West Side Club in securing the services of the Bond Bread Radio car.

I praise Mr. Lloyd for his attitude in holding out for the local band in preference to "canned music." As for the writer who referred to Mr. Lloyd as the so-called "Error Boy," I recall that he is still listed as Vice President of the West Side Club.

Allow me to ask the writer "if it is good policy to criticize a man behind his back?" Thinking you for the allotted space, I remain, "A DISINTERESTED PARTY," September 7.

ANSWERS "WEST SIDE"

Mr. Editor: In answer to "A West Sider" I wish to state the following: The Bond Bread Radio car might have stayed until 10:30 p. m. and there might have been 1,500 people at the West Side Playground Friday night.

These two statements I grant you. Then you say you didn't know that Jill and his Band were to play at the West Side Friday night. I believe I saw in the Manchester Evening Herald on August 30th a statement to the effect that this orchestra had been procured for the evening. Again on Friday a short topic in the "About Town" news appeared and this also was to the effect that this orchestra would play at the West Side on that night as in the previous installment. I hope that this was ample notice to you and others concerned that this band of musicians was to appear at the West Side this Friday night (Sept. 2d). But if I remember correctly I heard nothing of the Bond Bread Radio Car meeting its appearance on that particular

NEW LIBRARY HERE READY IN FEW DAYS Alterations At School St. Recreation Center Are Nearly Completed.

The alteration work at the School street Recreation Center is nearly completed. The new quarters will be more spacious and with the location only a few rods away, it is expected that the change will not inconvenience anyone to any extent. The main entrance to the library will be from School street in the middle of what was formerly the auditorium. Practically all of the books saved those used for school children will be kept in this room in stacks extending across the room in an east and west direction.

The main reference room which will be used for students and adults as well will be on the main floor where the Rec reading room and the office of the physical education instructors was formerly located. The latter office has been removed to enlarge the space. Students' books will also be kept on racks in the reference room. The main entrance to the reference room for students will be from Educational Square.

Separate from Rec Upstairs there will be four smaller rooms, one for the office of the head librarian, one for the smaller children, one for catalogue work and another for repair work. The change which has been made under the plans of Laberge, Geer, Cheney Brothers' architect, separate the library from the Recreation Center activities entirely. Partitions, have been built wherever necessary and the only interference will be the passing of girls classes through one entrance of the building from Educational Square leading through the west end of the reference room to the stairway that leads to the swimming pool. The contract for the alterations was awarded to David Chambers.

The Recreation Center activities will continue, practically unaffected by the change, save for a little congestion. The two gymnasiums, the swimming pool, upstairs club rooms and kitchen at the east end of the building as well as the canton room, ladies' parlor and ping-pong table room between, remain intact. So does the main office. Except for a few changes affecting the canton and ladies' reading room the Recreation Center will continue to operate as usual. The canton room may later be used for a main lobby.

GRETA GARBO HAS COLD

Stockholm, Sweden, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Greta Garbo was suffering from a bad cold today at her island home near here. The movie actress cancelled all social engagements. Attendees said she was in a fretting mood because of her inability to be with her mother in Stockholm, who also is ill.

FIRST FALL MEETING OF CHAMBER SEPT. 20

The first all-membership meeting of the Chamber of Commerce this fall, marking the resumption of activities after the summer vacation period, will be held at the Country Club, Tuesday evening, September 20. It will be a dinner meeting and Catero of the Coffee Shop will cater.

It is planned to obtain a prominent speaker to address the members, according to plans begun at a meeting of the meetings committee at the Chamber office this morning. The Board of Control of the Chamber will hold its first fall meeting next Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at which President William B. Halsted will recommend the names of three members for the Selectmen's budget committee.

THE WALCOTT SPEECH
 The keynote speech of Senator Walcott at the Republican state convention is actually deserving of the term. It should provide the keynote of the campaign in this state.

Very wisely indeed Senator Walcott refrained from those extravagances of utterance, those attributions of genius unparalleled to the candidates and of holiness unspokeable to party purposes which on so many such occasions so completely defeat the ends in view. Instead he portrayed the Republican party in state and nation merely as a political body animated by a profound desire to undo the mischief wrought by more than a decade of national lunacy in which everybody shared, and the one fitted through experience and leadership to accomplish that purpose.

No doubt some who listened to the speech may have thought that it was surprisingly free from criticism of the opposition party. That there is abundant room for such criticism, in view of certain proposals of the Democratic House in the late session, there is no doubt. But Mr. Walcott was indubitably right in assuming that there is really little vote-making effect in such a line of argument compared with a sturdy, honest and unvarnished defense of the Republican record during the period of the depression.

It may have surprised others that the senator so uncompromisingly placed upon the shoulders of the great banking institutions so heavy a share of responsibility for the collapse of business and so forthrightly declared for a reform in the banking system and for the adoption of branch banking. Authoritative speakers of both parties are usually inclined to deal gingerly with this topic. Yet it is a vital one; the subject reaching deep down into the sources of national prosperity. The Walcott speech, in this respect, contains more of promise of a permanent betterment in banking conditions than any previous utterance of this campaign—particularly when it is remembered that it was delivered by a man who is very close to the President.

If Republican speakers everywhere would adjust their speaking policy more to the justifiable lines of the Walcott speech and the Coolidge Saturday Post article and use less nonsensical bragging and useless damning they would greatly strengthen the effectiveness of their gunfire. There is too much wild over-shooting. That sort of thing would better be left to the Jack Gamers.

A GREAT PRIVILEGE
 As the boys and girls of Manchester return today to their schoolrooms and enter upon the beginning of another year of receptive education, it might not be a futile idea, if, at the outset of the term, their principals and teachers were to make opportunity to address them on the subject of their opportunities, with especial relation to the state of the times.

Even quite young children are capable of understanding the quality of sacrifice and, to some extent, to appreciate it when it is made in their behalf. And the sacrifices that are being made, by millions of hard pressed people, to maintain in full effectiveness the school system of America are nothing less than heroic. It could do no harm and merit contribute to an especially healthy state of mind on the part of the young folks, if they were given opportunity to fully understand the extraordinary privileges they are gaining through extraordinary effort on the part of their elders.

There are a very few relatively very small areas in the United States where the fiscal condition of communities has led to really serious restriction in the operation of schools, but these areas are practically negligible. On the whole there has been no elimination of any essential element of the educational system. Nor has there been any serious cutting of school salaries—nothing even approaching a point where the quality of the instruction might be imperiled.

Whatever else has had to be given up because of straitened public income, the schools have been maintained with an almost unbelievable tenacity of purpose. The children would be the better and the school year more successful, we make no doubt, if at the outset they were made completely clear to the children at what cost in sacrifice their schooling is being provided.

A PUZZLE IN YELLOW

If you take an American $20 bill into a Canadian bank and ask to have it changed into smaller American bills you are courteously accommodated and will get a ten and two fives or their equivalent, to the value, as you had expected, of $20. If you take an American $20 gold piece into the same bank and ask for United States bills you will receive, at the present time, $17 in bills and 60 cents in coin, or $24.40 less than for the paper twenty. If, on the other hand, you ask for Canadian bills for your American paper twenty you will be given $22.40. But for the gold double eagle they will give you only $20 in Canadian bills.

Here we have a curious example of the workings of the banking mind when it applies itself to the subject of the gold standard. It is explained that Canada is still theoretically on that standard. Therefore its paper money is at an exact parity with gold. A twenty dollar gold piece is good for twenty Canadian paper dollars, no more. Yet the actual difference in exchange between Canadian and United States currency is such that it takes $22.40 of the former to buy $20 of the latter, and as your gold piece represents only the even twenty of Canadian dollars you must pay $2.40 to have that much theoretical Canadian money converted into United States bills.

Americans in Canada recently have walked out of banks with their heads whirling and feeling that strange sense of confusion that visits the cashier who has just been chiseled out of a ten dollar bill by a slim-finger expert. The situation has all been explained perfectly by the teller but that doesn't compensate for the missing $2.40 nor does it replace the exploded faith of a lifetime in the immutable quality of the "good old yellow gold."

How this same idea would work if you went into the Canadian bank with $17.60 in American currency and asked for a $20 gold piece we haven't yet seen explained. If it would work at all we should think that would be a pretty good way to make some money. If assured that sauce for the goose was also sauce for the gander we're not so sure that we might not be up there next week, with all the seventeen-sixties we could rake, scrape or borrow, swapping them for gold twenties—and we wouldn't be fussy whether they were United States or Canadian gold, either. Somehow, though, we suspect it might not work so well, 't'her way about.

TURN ABOUT

According to reports coming from Soviet Russia by way of the London Morning Post's special correspondence, Bolshevik Russia is beginning to encounter, just as Imperial Russia did, the effects of youth's disposition to kick over the traces no matter what the particular color of the harness.

For many years it was the student element in Russia that kept alive the spirit of revolt which, first as Nihilism and then as Bolshevism, eventuated at last in the elimination of czarism. Now it is the studious and thoughtful young men and women, in a sense exactly corresponding to conspirators of the turning century, who are declaring among themselves for the rights of the individual and agitating against the proletarian tyranny which succeeded the tyranny of the old regime.

There is in this no suggestion of counter revolution by a class, no relationship to the White Russian movement that years ago sought to re-establish Imperial Russia. It is merely a spontaneous outbreaking of dissatisfaction with the restriction of personal liberty, no matter in what guise, that always appears when young men and women put inquiring minds at work to compare their lot with the lot of their ideals.

Bolshevism was as certain to rebel this turbulent, "demanding soul, sooner or later, as was czarism. We have no doubt that the Morning Post's writer tells the truth when he says that the country's young intelligentsia is seething with

LONERGAN DRAFTED?

The unexpected entrance of Congressman Loneragan into the contest for the Democratic nomination for United States senator, on the very eve of the party's convention, may prove to be a solution of one of the party's difficulties but it would seem to be complicating Mr. Loneragan's own situation and that of the Democrats of the First Congress district.

Though in the earlier stages of the proceedings Loneragan was looked upon as the most likely candidate for the senatorship, conditions have altered greatly since then. The early Loneragan boom belonged to a period when Democrats had the notion that they were going to sweep the country without half trying—to the same period that gave Mr. Roosevelt his inspiration to get busy and clinch the Democratic Presidential nomination. For some time, however, it has been apparent that Democrats in contestable states will have to fight for every inch of ground and that, in Connecticut, any opponent of Senator Bingham must face heavy odds. So Mr. Loneragan, it has been assumed, had some time ago decided that there would be no percentage for him in the Senate nomination.

His belated declaration looks as though the representative from the First district were being drafted. He won't claim exemption but it is easy to imagine that he would have preferred to be let alone to run again for the House of Representatives from a district in which he is particularly strong and would have at least a fair chance of election. Republicans of this district will make no bones about expressing their hope that the Democrats will name Loneragan against Bingham. They are completely confident that the latter will be re-elected, no matter who opposes him, and the withdrawal of Loneragan from the First district candidacy would assure the G. O. P. of the election of a Republican Congressman.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

HERE ARE FACTS ON WHAT MUST BE DONE BEFORE NEW LAWS MAY BE CHANGED
 By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

Washington.—President Hoover's acceptance speech and the division among the dry leaders as to how to act in this presidential campaign have stimulated everybody to speculating again on the question when the country really can expect to get rid of its prohibition laws.

The wets want to know whether there is any hope that the present Congress, which stayed "good and dry" but not as dry as usual—in its last session, will not kindly modify the Volstead act at its next session, which begins in December after the elections. Some of them even profess a hope for passage of some amendment which could be submitted forthwith to the states.

The mechanics of the situation are, chiefly:

That majority votes in House and Senate can change the Volstead act assuming there is no presidential veto, whereas two-thirds votes in both houses plus ratification in three-fourths of the states is necessary for any change in the constitution. Some wets believe it will be several years before repeal or revision can be attained.

The Situation in Congress
 The next Congress is certain to be wetter than the present one and is likely to have a wet House majority, but it won't meet for at least 15 months unless called into special session after coming into existence next March.

In test votes during the last session the wets got from 169 to 187 votes in the House and a top strength of 26 in the Senate, indicating the greater difficulty of passing wet legislation through the upper chamber whose members, furthermore, come up for re-election only once every six years.

The question now is whether, in view of the wet declarations of both party platforms and both party presidential candidates, wet victories in primaries and elections which indicate the rapid general trend, enough members will be willing to switch next winter to create wet majorities.

Not many candidates this year will be found completely repudiating their party platforms and presidential candidates, but whether enough of them can get together on any specific measure between November and March remains to be seen.

The Political Angle
 Politics may complicate the congressional situation. Roosevelt is out for modification and light wines and beer as soon as it can be achieved, whereas Hoover has dealt only with resubmission of the amendment.

The obvious possibility is that most Democrats, following party leadership, might support modification next December with 80 or 100 wet Republicans falling in line. The parties are jealous of each other, however, and modification probably could not be passed over a Hoover veto.

The question of the constitutionality of light wines and beer, arising from the amendment's prohibition of intoxicating beverages, would almost surely be raised, and it might be enough to block modification or cause a veto.

The Glass Amendment
 If the present Congress doesn't do anything about prohibition there is a good chance that the next one will be called into special session next spring to take action, especially in case Roosevelt is elected.

Prohibition comes up in the Senate right at the start of the session in December. The Senate will have before it, as unfinished business, the resolution of Senator Carter Glass of Virginia for submission of an amendment which would repeal the amendment but prohibit the saloon and prevent transportation of liquor into a dry state. This is just the sort of thing President Hoover advocates and the first vote is expected to be on a motion of Senator Norris to refer the resolution to the Judiciary Committee.

Several states will hold November elections on their state prohibition laws and the wets' victory in most of them. Unless such laws are repealed, only about ten states would be legally wet regardless of what was done about the federal laws.

THE SYMPTOM OF BILIOUSNESS

Although "biliousness" is not recognized as a disease by medical text-books many patients have what they called bilious attacks every once in a while. Since I know that this is a fairly common trouble and since I know that most of my readers will understand what I mean when I use this familiar term, today's article will be on Biliousness.

Common symptoms of biliousness are: thick, furry coating on the tongue, spots before the eyes, dizziness, blinding headache, lack of appetite, weak feeling, depressed or "blue" state of mind, yellow tint to the skin, nausea, and sometimes, tenderness over the liver. The patient may have to go to bed, as the pain in the head becomes severe at the slightest jar, feeling as if someone had struck the skull with the hammer. Patients with bilious tendencies may easily become champion worriers.

Curiously enough, when biliousness is present, it is more often a sign that something is wrong with the intestines, than that the liver is at fault. Over-eating of rich, heavy food in a patient already constipated is one of the fundamental causes which produce intestinal putrefaction and fermentation, which in turn, will induce biliousness. Most cases of biliousness can be cured by removal of all causes of this intestinal putrefaction and fermentation. This bile is composed largely of wastes and toxins which are absorbed from the alimentary canal. When an extra large amount is made, it shows that there has been an overloading of the intestines with excesses of certain kinds of food, or inharmonious food combinations. The liver is not able to take care of the heavy burden placed upon it and gets out of order. The patient is bilious and will tell you that he has too much fat and feels sick at his stomach. One in this condition is being literally poisoned by bile which in the right quantity is helpful to digestion.

Another cause of biliousness is stoppage of the bile ducts through which the bile travels to the intestines by catarrhal inflammation of these ducts. In such a case, the bile does not escape and not enough of it reaches the intestines to carry on normal digestion. When the ducts are stopped up, the stools are likely to be very light colored, or almost white, showing that the normal bile coloring is absent. Gallstones, bladder inflammation, adhesions around the gall-bladder, cirrhosis of the liver and pressure from tumors may also cause the bile to be stopped up in the liver or gall-bladder.

Treatment for Bilious Patients
 Bilious patients will often experience a remarkable change for the better by going on a diet of only green vegetables. This diet should avoid meat, eggs, starches, and sugars. It is all right to use some of the acid or sub-acid fruits by themselves as a separate meal. Two or three meals a day should be used, and all food non-starchy vegetables both cooked and raw are permitted.

To get the quickest results it is best to take one or two enemas a day to keep the lower bowel cleansed. In practically every case of ordinary biliousness, two or three weeks on this diet will bring about a great improvement. If this does not occur, then it may be necessary for the patient to take a fast on fruit juices for four or five days. During the fast, vast quantities of bile will be eliminated by the liver. After the fast, a careful diet must be used, avoiding the rich foods so that the liver will stay in good condition. It is also helpful to keep the bowels functioning well and to take plenty of outdoor exercise.

In chronic cases, massage over the liver region is often beneficial, unless inflammation or infection is present, as it seems to stimulate the flow of bile. Acute cases do not require this, as they clear up quickly on the vegetable diet, and all that is necessary to prevent their return is to eat carefully.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Lichen Planus)
 Question. C. S. writes: "I would be very much obliged if you would tell me of a cure and give me a diet for a skin affection known as Lichen Planus."

Answer: Lichen planus is a skin disease caused by algae or fungi, producing an inflammation of the skin with wide, flat papules, often very persistent and occurring in definite patches. Strong local treatments with the ultra-violet or actinic light will often clear up this trouble. The area should be painted with camphor-chrome after taking the light treatment. I would also advise that you use a cleansing diet in order to increase the resistance of the body against the infection. Such a diet will be made direct upon receipt of a large self-addressed stamped envelope.

IN NEW YORK

Chinatown—As is!
 New York, Sept. 7.—Self-conscious as a Southern California blurb are the frock-coated boosters who now seek to erase from New York's Chinatown the stain of fading malodors.

Most recent demonstrations in the direction of neighborhood dignity has been an outburst against those movie camera men who seek to keep alive the legends of opium dens and white slaves of the pipe. Reminiscent of old Keanoa comedies was an effort of the cinema lads to record scenes of ultra-lurid nature.

For certain cash rewards, several police identified with the Chinatown sector and some of the natives agreed to appear in a "hop joint" sequence. The almost forgotten movies were revived and costumes, smoke almost as readily as they were worn. But when the performers crept furtively and manacledly through Doyers, Pell and Mott streets, a barrage of not-too-ripe fruit greeted them. The newer generation had added a slap-stick touch to the vintage notions of sinister goggles on.

The consul-general has complained to the police commissioner, and before it's all over with there, will doubtless, be some inquiry into the cinema ambitions of certain coppers.

Once Upon a Time
 All of which recalls the colorful Chinook Connors, who can be blessed or blamed for most of the melodramatic memories concerning Manhattan's Chinese quarter. Connors was a shrewd and clever showman, who wore a pearl grey bowler hat and a theatrical suit of clothes which included dollar-sized pearl buttons. He was, by himself, a sight for the eyes of tourists bent on getting large doses of local color.

At the time, these actually were opium dens and white men and women could get the sensation of "a smoke" almost as readily as they can today get a snack of speakeasy liquor.

Connors, aware of a visitor's thrill seeking, became a guide who conducted tourists, through the opium dens. Having a keen sense of lurid stage craft, Connors created "hop dens" scenes in the best yellow-nevel fashion. Most of the places to which he steered cash customers were mere "plants". Here the wide-eyed visiting fireman would observe white girls smoking in dim-lit bunks beside an Oriental. This, you can readily imagine, was a swell shocker—something the visitors could talk about at home for years afterward. And did!

The while, Connors reaped the rewards of the showman with a good box-office sense. What mattered was the white girl and the Oriental were mere "set ups" and that the "light" was a mere stage property. It worked! Connors' lurid appeal added reality. And passed for the "real thing". Fact was that any real smoker would to some private place and was never seen by a gaping crowd.

Finally the "game" played out. Connors appeared in Broadway with a girl who had been a "hop den" stogie. Actually she was a dancer, and they came on at a road garden set with Chuck wearing his best Chinatown make-up.

All this is long ago and far away. Today Chinatown tries to live down a reputation so theatrically built.

Once-Over
 My favorite character for some time to come is likely to be one Paul Chris, able logger of the Pacific Northwest. It appears that in Portland and thereabouts, someone doubt was expressed concerning the fate that hardy woodsman, shaved, shaved himself with a sharp saw.

Several newspapers carried on debunking campaigns—what in them the woods strode Chris, intent on keeping a legend alive and proving that strong men still rode the big jams. Swinging an axe that had killed a hardy spruce, he confronted soft-fleshed city folk by giving himself a quick and sharp shave. The grunting onlookers, dumfounded, "how come?"

"Oh," said Chris, "I'm a woodsman in the family."

WALCOTT TELLS HOW U. S. CRISIS WAS MET, ENDED

help us through the coming campaign. We seem to be in a calm after the storm, which have left much wreckage and a heavy ground swell. It is our solemn duty to consider well our policies.

The most crucial election in the history of our country lies just ahead. The times call for cool heads and sound judgment. For we are still reeling upon an unstable bottom which may prove only a thin crust. If we break through into the abyss, it means what happened in 1873, a suspension of banks, the closing of all business, and the increased suffering of countless thousands.

It shall not attempt a detailed list of the causes; they are world-wide and our distress is today less than that of most European countries. From our experience, however, we must gain knowledge for the future. We thought there was no real reason for the depression, but we are still reeling upon an unstable bottom which may prove only a thin crust.

Three-fourths of the total annual cost of running our Federal government is chargeable directly and indirectly to wars, past and future. It is just as vital for the states and municipalities to economize and save taxes, which rest heavily upon a long suffering public, and the only way to reduce taxes is to cut down expenses. Connecticut is the envy of most of the states in the Union because she has no personal income tax and has not increased her taxes during this panic.

Prohibition Fortunately Connecticut's attitude toward the Eighteenth Amendment has been one of unremitting opposition to national prohibition. Every member of each term's delegation in Congress since the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment has voted against it. The Volstead Act, which has interfered with state's rights in the matter of prohibition and the sale of liquor. Time has amply justified Connecticut's position, but the end is not yet. There is much work to be done.

Our senior Senator, Mr. Bingham, has persistently and consistently fought for a modification of the Volstead Act and a test of its scope. The President's interpretation of the ambiguous prohibition plank adopted at Chicago is courageous and clear. He stands squarely for state control of the liquor traffic with but two reservations: One, that the old saloon system be outlawed; two, that the states voting dry obtain Federal aid in protecting them from border-line bootlegging.

Democratic Degrading Thus Mr. Hoover has sounded the death knell of our attempt at prohibition by constitutional amendment and Federal law, which he frankly admits has led "to degeneration in municipal government and an increase in subsidized crime and violence." This leads him to declare: "I cannot consent to the continuation of this regime."

Foreign Loans In 1927, our loans to foreign countries exceeded the total borrowings of all American states, counties, townships, districts, towns, boroughs and cities. The toll of the loaner exceeded the extravagance of the borrower. We found ourselves over night, as the result of the war, a creditor nation with no experience and no policy, and we lost our heads as well as our money.

Not we find that the nations of Europe and the friends of Europe in this country, particularly the international bankers, who are caught in the trough of the sea with their billions of foreign bonds, have organized the cleverest kind of propaganda favoring a collection of government loans at the expense of the American taxpayer.

Someone must pay! Either the nations which borrowed or the Federal government of the United States, because that money was borrowed of the American people in good faith by the sale of Liberty Bonds and it is going to be paid back to them. "It is a fraud to accept what you cannot repay."

The government of the United States does not default. It is our government's business to collect this money from the borrower who benefited by it. It is secured by equilateral reductions in armaments and international agreements for the benefit of foreign commerce and our export trade.

Banks This depression has exposed many weaknesses in our financial structure. Our banks have been the blackest spot in this panic and one of its chief causes. Ten thousand out of thirty thousand banks of all our banks, most of them state banks, have closed their doors in the last ten years, forcing untold hardships upon millions of innocent victims through the locking up of more than two and one-half billions of deposits, much of which will never be recovered.

In many cases the cause of failure has been the practical forcing of those large banks, known as affiliates, to subscribe to securities which had previously been advanced to dizzy heights many times their intrinsic worth by pool operations engineered and financed by the large banks, largely through the investment companies of those large banks, known as affiliates.

Some of our banks have been under-capitalized, but the chief fault lies in the fact that we have not enough real bankers to go around.

The Republican Party can be trusted to initiate some much needed reforms in our banking laws, which will tend to control these affiliates, which have proved so unreliable and in many cases, dangerous. We need a unified banking law eventually, and branch banking. In the future, let us borrow something from the peaks of inflation to will be in the position of greatest influence to urge upon Congress the necessity of getting rid of the Eighteenth Amendment and passing the required legislation. It is my opinion that Senator Bingham's uncompromising attitude in favor of liberalizing the prohibition plank at Chicago, did much to force the fight in favor of sane and definite action, which the Republican party can promise if successful this fall.

In the future, let our remedies and reforms be more suitably adapted to human nature, which cannot be materially changed. Our State Record We can point with pride to Connecticut's record of the last 20 years. Hindsight is always better than foresight, but if we had been warned 18 years ago of the catastrophe which was to sweep over the civilized world during the last three years, we could scarcely have acted with greater wisdom or sounder judgment.

Eighteen years ago, the leaders in authority adopted a pay-as-you-go policy and forced the State to pay its debts, which amounted at that time to $18,000,000. The State then forced upon the cities of the state, many of them unwilling at the time, to limit their borrowing powers equal to 5 per cent of the assessed valuation of their property.

Today after three years of devastating panic, Connecticut has a surplus of approximately $4,000,000, instead of a debt. Not a city in the state is in default on its bonds, and the credit of both the State and all the larger cities in the state is unimpaired. No other state in the United States has a record for sound financing, both state and municipal which compares with Connecticut's.

Connecticut's Record The policies of the party have been largely shaped by the chairman of the State Central Committee, J. Henry Roraback, whose only reward must be the satisfaction of having served his state and country well and benefited hundreds of thousands of people by keeping taxes low and efficiency high, making Connecticut the best of all states in which to make one's home.

Connecticut has passed through the last three years of acute depression without the necessity of a special session of the Legislature, without the issuance of a bond or the levy of any special or unusual tax, because during the previous 18 years of Republican administration, particularly the six years of Governor Trumbull's regime, the State accumulated large reserves which have been used to augment the receipts from taxation.

Our state income is derived from taxation. Under our system of taxation the amount of income received therefrom is dependent upon business conditions. It has increased or decreased automatically as business has expanded or contracted. In times of depression less is paid than in times of prosperity. During the last year $8,000,000 less was received from taxes than during the previous year, but Connecticut did not increase her rate of taxation and she does not intend to.

Reconstruction Now let us examine the record that has been made in Washington by a Republican President with a Republican Senate to help him against the determined opposition during the last session of a Democratic House.

The National Credit Association was first formed with $200,000,000 in voluntary subscriptions by banks to save members banks in distress, to be followed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation with its $2,000,000,000 of resources. Before this was organized, our banks were closing at the rate of approximately 300 per month during November and December a year ago.

When the Reconstruction Finance Corporation commenced to function the epidemic of bank failures stopped and many railroads were saved from the hands of the receiver. Then in July another tremendous load was placed upon the Reconstruction Finance Corporation with an additional two billion dollars of the entire burden of relief through loans to states, public projects and self-liquidating enterprises.

It must be remembered that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is a lending not a spending corporation. These enormous cash resources, nearly $4,000,000,000, are to be loaned for the rehabilitation of financial institutions, including building and loan associations, savings banks, livestock credit corporations, insurance companies and the liquidation of closed banks, the rehabilitation of the railroads, the development of self-liquidating projects, agriculture and the relief of the destitute and unemployed, in whose interest $800,000,000 may be loaned to the States.

Sublime Faith No other government in the world could have attempted such a prodigious program. It took great vision and courage and a sublime faith in the resources of this country. The spirit of the nation was the ultimate future of world progress to devise and urge such measures. It required great tact, perseverance and patience to get these measures through Congress and keep them free from unbound and dangerous amendments to the point of opposing and killing many bills, which were approved by a Democratic House of Representatives which would have riddled our financial situation, made a laughing stock of us throughout the world, wrecked our business and threw us off the gold standard.

Can you imagine turning back from this course of the eve of victory? To change leaders now would be to betray the nation by engineering fundamental principles upon which this government was founded because the devastating, subtle forces of extreme state Socialism are at work as never before. Radicals in Disguise The radicals in various disguises, some of them labeled Republicans, others bearing the Democratic label, already in the halls of Congress, are at our gates. No one could criticize these men if they would run for office under the banner of Socialism or Communism, whichever was more appropriate.

It requires stern and able leadership to keep them out and preserve the liberties of individuals, the equality of opportunity, the protection of property and states' rights upon which our government rests. The most acute, and the most difficult problem that the country has produced since the founding of this government is that of finding jobs for our 10,000,000 unemployed citizens. This is a matter with which it is almost impossible to deal directly. Several commissions have striven with it to the utmost, only to add that they cannot be created. Organization of Buying The need for workers must be met first, and this need is predicted, in turn, upon a demand for the products of labor. No one is seeking any but the most indispensable purchases during times of hardship and uncertainty.

Thus, the whole solution of unemployment seems to be the problem of stimulating buying by removing the general inhibition of fear that has paralyzed the economic world—in other words, rests upon inducing economic recovery.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has been given the titanic duty of facilitating recovery in every way that the Government can be of help without threatening its financial stability. The results of its efforts are beginning to appear in tables of rising commodity prices and increased employment. Much remains to be done, but real headway has already been made in a discouraging, elusive and monumental undertaking.

On Road to Recovery If we plunge into this campaign with energy, determination, enthusiasm and faith we shall turn the tide of battle as we did four years ago and inaugurate a constructive program, already developed, which will eventually lead this way out of chaos brought on by war conditions resulting chiefly from the war. We are already on the road to complete recovery. Let us not risk a certainty for a dangerous experiment.

A change in the administration of Washington this fall would imperil our national structure, shock business enterprise and materially delay the recovery of business, which alone can permanently relieve unemployment by putting people to work. Think of the time that would be wasted at a most critical juncture in our history when we have now not only an efficient crew, but the wisest, most experienced, best trained leader than can be found.

It is essential to the protection of the nation's future that we plan Herbert Hoover at the helm for another four years. FARMERS MASSING FOR PICKET DUTY drivers. With the exception of this highway, Number 70, all other roads into Bloom City were clear of automobiles.

DEMOCRATS CONTINUE BATTLE OVER TICKET (Continued from Page One) report of a special committee on revision of the party code.

ROSES FOR HARMONY Stamford, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Just before he departed this morning for Eastern Point to attend the Democratic State Convention, Homer Cummings said that he had hopes that the party would iron out its differences at conferences to be held before the convention gets down to real business.

"Personally," said Mr. Cummings, "I am more interested in having our ticket of men of character who will command the respect of the state at large than I am in the question of what group of the party they belong to. I am hoping that the situation will be ironed out and that all elements of the party will be satisfied."

Mr. Cummings and Dr. Edward Dolan of Manchester have been representing the so-called New Guard of the party in a series of conferences with the Old Guard looking to an agreement on candidates that would do away with harmony destroying contests. Thus far, their efforts apparently have not been any too successful, the nomination for United States Senator having been the principal stumbling block.

This conference committee arguments, perhaps, will continue to function today at Eastern Point. "We are willing to go a long way," said Mr. Cummings, referring to the New Guard conference. "How far is another matter. It depends upon the candidates who may be proposed."

Mr. Cummings declined to discuss personally the availability of candidates already mentioned for United States Senator and other posts. Both young men were charged with intoxication, driving under the influence of liquor and driving an automobile without the owner's permission. Cahay was fined $5 and costs on the first two counts and was given a suspended jail sentence of 90 days on the last. Costs amounted to $13.95.

Kulo was fined $10 for driving under the influence of liquor and was given a suspended sentence of 90 days on the third count. The intoxication charge was nolleed. Costs amounted to $12.95.

Cahay and Kulo took the car on Monday and drove all over the city, until halted by lack of oil and gas. One of the young men was found in the car early Tuesday morning, which led to the arrest of the other and the hearing of the case today.

FOR LOVE or MONEY

By HELEN CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MONA TOWNSEND, beautiful young widow, inherits her husband's million with the provision that she must not rewed. Her marriage, arranged by her husband's lawyer, who was Mona's employer, was a strange affair, leaving her free at the end of a year to become her husband's wife in actuality or secure a divorce. Mona, in love with her husband's nephew, BARRY TOWNSEND, agreed to the marriage when she thought Barry was lost to her.

She employs LOTTIE CARE, a fashion model, as her secretary-companion and they set out for South America, where Barry and STEVE SACCARRELLI are partners in a diamond mine. Mona's brother, BUD, works at the mine. Mona hopes for a reconciliation with Barry. She also feels Barry is entitled to a share of his uncle's fortune and wants to find a way to arrange this legally.

Learning that Barry and Steve are on vacation at Holiday Island, the girls leave their boat at Port of Spain. There they meet Barry, who takes them to Holiday Island. Barry and Steve are cordial but their greeting lacks warmth. Mona wishes she had not come. Barry does not ask for explanations and she cannot make any.

MISS GRACIE, middle-aged spinster, comes from Port of Spain to serve as chaperone.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIII

For all Lottie's artil planning, dinner at Holiday House that evening was singularly unromantic. There were no lovely gowns and there was no lingering over a candle-lit table, no strolling in the moonlight. It proved to be the first evening since the girls' arrival that no one dressed for dinner.

Their departure from Grenada was delayed, the carpenters taking a great deal of time to decide finally that they could not begin work on the hangar for at least a week. The motor boat, left for New York two hours later than had been planned. Sam, the native boy, was at the wheel while Barry and Steve spent most of the trip in rather disgruntled discussion.

When they arrived at the house they found the table on the veranda still set for dinner, the flowers drooping under the electric light and fireflies gathering on the terrace. The food in the kitchen had long since cooled and lost its flavor-omeness.

"I sent the maids home for the night," Miss Gracie said, unperturbed. "There seemed to be no knowing when you'd come, I thought you might have dined at Grenada."

"Well, we can't lure those carpenters here for a week yet," Steve announced. "I was going to buy this girl a pair of monkeys to take back to New York."

Back to New York! Mona felt her heart throbb sharply, her cheeks suddenly grow cold. Steve and Barry were thinking then of their departure!

"Don't buy those monkeys yet a while," Barry said hastily and Mona sighed, reassured. "We're not going to let Mona and Lottie get away for a long time. They haven't seen half the sights yet."

"Well, they've seen what many a girl in Port of Spain would give her eye teeth to see anyhow," Miss Gracie interposed comfortably.

"What's that, Miss Gracie?"

"The older woman's fat face crinkles in a smile and her kind eyes were hidden for a moment.

"This house," she nodded vehemently. "Barry and Steve are popular young men, you know. When they come to our house—"

"Did you ever know a girl named Celeste?" asked Mona idly.

Barry and Steve glanced at each other and burst out laughing.

"Let Lottie tell you that one, Barry. I can't do it justice."

They listened to Lottie's diverting version of the affair on the boat but when she related the gift of Barry's portrait to Celeste the men became instantly sober.

"Great heavens, that practically constitutes an engagement!" Steve exclaimed.

"But she was honest, anyhow. She insisted Barry hadn't paid much attention to her," retorted Lottie.

Steve rose. "Yes, that's honest, only a little too mild. You might as well say a man pays you attention to a mosquito buzzing around him 24 hours of the day."

"I think I'll say good night," Mona decided, rising. "I'm tired, hot and have a headache."

"Anyhow we had a fine trip," Lottie announced, as she rose to follow her friend. "Well, good night!"

As the two girls mounted the stairs Lottie said quietly, "At least Barry doesn't want us to hurry away."

"Oh, I don't know!" Mona's voice was weary. "He could hardly have said less. Steve practically put us aboard the Miranda."

"He didn't mean it that way," maintained Lottie. "He really did promise to get me some monkeys and I told him to wait until we were ready to leave."

In her flowing negligee Mona stood before the mirror, brush in hand, her bronze hair floating over her shoulders. For a moment neither girl spoke. The brush pitted evenly with long, deft strokes.

"She's a great one," was Lottie's thought. "Her heart is breaking but she doesn't forget the 40 strokes—or is it 50 or 100?"

It was, as a matter of fact, 50 it is night. The brush was replaced in the dresser drawer. Mona moved from chair to closet hanging this way and smoothing out that, taking out fresh garments for the next day.

Seated on the bed, Lottie swung one foot reflectively and watched her.

"Maybe he'd better go soon, Lottie," Mona remarked presently in a low voice.

"Before you've talked about the will or anything to Barry?"

Mona spread both hands wide. "How can I? I might possibly say something to Steve but neither one of them has recognized your marriage," finished Lottie, rising.

"Well, I'm ready to go if you say so, Mona. But my advice is to get into action! Listen, tomorrow, I'll corral Steve and take him some place. That will leave you and me alone so you can talk to him. Tell him why you came. Tell him you love him. You do, don't you? He can't do anything more than call you a forward hussy and after that you'll know where you stand! Tell him you're the fourth wealthiest in the dresser drawer. He won't want to hand over some of your gold. Ask him how it can be done."

"He won't tell me if he knows—and I don't think he does," Mona argued.

Lottie came a step nearer. "Barry will never let you get that far," she went on. "When you tell him you love him he'll either stop you or say everything is O. K. or else he'll leave you standing right where you are! I think tomorrow is the best time would be a good time—"

"I see you have it all planned," Mona said acidly. Then her manner changed. She took Lottie by the shoulders. "You are a darling, Lottie! You are!"

"Anyhow I mean well," mimicked Lottie, her face close to Mona's own.

They both laughed.

"I doubt it," Mona added, kissing her. "I never will trust blonds—or brunets either. Only I can't do all that, Lottie. If Barry doesn't speak to me soon it's all over. We'll go back home and think of something else to do but I can't speak to Barry about—"

"Oh, I'll sleep," Mona promised. But she did not. Long after Lottie ceased moving about in the next room long after lights had ceased to shine through the lattice work at the top of the door leading into the hallway and silence settled over the entire household Mona lay wide-eyed and heart sick.

She sat up in her huge bed, intent on the amazing stillness of the tropic night. The fragrance of honeysuckle and jasmine floated through the wide windows which enclosed the stars. The fringe of trees beyond were carved in jade, bathed in white moonlight.

Mona arose and, walking to the window, drew in great breaths of the sweetened air. Far below, the beach lay white in the moonlight. The sea murmured. She could hear the waves roll in, hesitate, churn, then spill into whispering foam.

Steve rose. "Yes, that's honest, only a little too mild. You might as well say a man pays you attention again. Otherwise the night was so still that she could hear the beating of her own heart.

"I believe I'll go down there for a walk," Mona decided presently. "Perhaps I can think there's a little more easily. Perhaps I'll be able to make up my mind what to do," she paused uncertainly. "There is, of course, only one thing to do—and that is go home!"

Swiftly and quietly she tossed off her pajamas, dressed in a white skirt, soft yellow sweater and rubber soled shoes. She knew it would be cool on the beach.

The door opened gently and the stairs, fortunately, made no sound beneath her feet. She crept across the wide hall to the door which each night she had learned was left wide open. There were no prowlers to fear on Holiday Island.

Beneath the stars on the terrace Mona stood for an instant, considering the stillness which held the seaward. Far away toward the Grenadines a necklace of yellow lights was flung out on the water. The twinkling of the motor boat bobbed in the harbor.

As she moved down the pathway the flamboyant trees flicked her face gently with their fragrance. It did not occur to Mona to be afraid. She gained the sand, Ah, here she could really think! Was it safe to lie on the sand at night or any other time? Of course it was safe! Why not? Anyhow, it was delightful. Mona stretched her slender length along the shelf of rock where the shadows played, her hands beneath her head. This was comfort. "This was peace."

Silence and still more silence. All of a sudden Mona felt rather than heard a sound. Someone was near her! She sat upright, tense and alert. It had been foolish some. Foolhardy, and silly beyond words. Who was making that sound? A bird perhaps or the wind? A shadow separated itself suddenly from a clump of trees and moved toward her. The girl started to scream and found she could not.

FOOD AT LOW COST

The problem of feeding the family at low cost is still a serious one, although the abundance of fresh fruit and vegetables available at this season of the year should simplify it somewhat.

One of the greatest stumbling blocks, apparently, is the lack of knowledge of what constitutes an adequate diet even in normal times. Without this knowledge, there is great danger, in times of economic stress, of dropping out of the diet some of the most essential foods, in the effort to get enough to eat. Hence, one should keep clearly in mind a definite meal plan for the day that will meet the needs of the family, varying it as occasion demands, but trying to live up to it in so far as it is possible to do so.

A meal plan for the day by the State Department of Health calls for the following:

Breakfast—Fruit, stewed or fresh, if possible; Cooked cereal with milk; Bread and butter; Milk for children; Coffee for adults.

Noon meal—Main dish, choice of meat or fish; dried peas or beans; macaroni and cheese; eggs; Potatoes; Bread and butter; Milk for children; Pudding or fruit, when possible.

Supper—Soup, scalloped dish or salad; Bread and butter; Cereal and milk for younger children; Milk for children; Tea for adults.

In times of dire necessity, butter may have to be curtailed but it should be retained in the child's diet if possible, leaving the adult to make the sacrifice with other fats. Milk must be retained at all costs as it contributes so much to health. Both children and adults need it. Dropping milk out would impoverish the diet of calcium which is one of the most essential elements and cannot be made up by other foods.

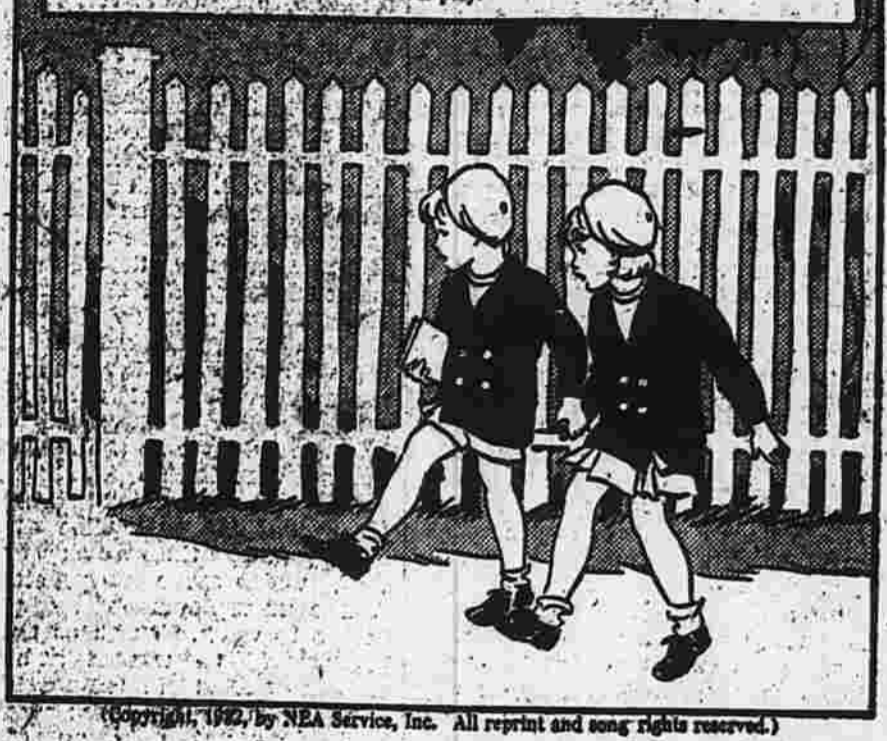

If fresh vegetables and fruits are difficult to get, with the money both children and adults need it. Dried vegetables, such as tomatoes, should be liberally used, canned tomatoes being just as valuable as fresh. Effort should also be made to use as many green vegetables as possible—spinach, kale, lettuce, dandelion, and fresh greens to supply needed iron as milk is extremely low in this.

EVERY time you see a girl who looks like a doll, you wonder how she does it. She has a soft, sweet smile that melts your heart. She has a way of talking that makes you feel like a child again. She has a grace and a charm that are irresistible. You want to be like her. You want to know the secret of her beauty. You want to know how she does it.

My neighbor never me because she has a soft, sweet smile that melts your heart. She has a way of talking that makes you feel like a child again. She has a grace and a charm that are irresistible. You want to be like her. You want to know the secret of her beauty. You want to know how she does it.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

DON'T BE TOO TIRED AT NIGHT

EVERYBODY knows that there are certain colors that enhance a woman's beauty and have a devastating effect on blondes, just as there are colors that will see what they can do for a blonde and refuse to offer any assistance to the darker-skinned girls.

The same thing applies to the cosmetic world. You may spoil your complexion by using a rouge that was never intended for your face, or eyeshade that doesn't belong on your eyelids.

If you are blond, with fair skin, and blue, or gray-blue eyes, your powder should have a fresh tone to it. Your lipstick should run to rose instead of red. Blue or orchid eye shadow will give your eyes the dusky light that throws glamour across a face.

Brunets, whose skins are darker, and whose eyes are brown with a gray or green touch, need a powder that is warmer, a lipstick that is more of a red, and eye shadow that is a few shades darker than the blonde's.

If you are a blonde, make up your face with various shades, until you find the face that you prefer to have reflected from the looking glass. Then cultivate it.

If your hair is red, your skin is fair, and your eyes are blue, you may follow the general cosmetic design that the blonde with the blue eyes does, only your lipstick should be more of a medium shade. If your eyes are brown, the brown-eyed blonde will act as a model for you.

The deep, flaming colors that add glory to a brunet's ensemble are disappointing on blondes, and the clash is so startling when they appear on the cheek or hat of a girl whose hair has auburn tints that they grow gaudy. Blondes and auburn-haired girls should develop the high lights, the glow and gleam of their own hair, and let it sparkle. Cosmetics run true to the color chart. Find your color line, then use it.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

Simple, wholesome meals day by day go far toward insuring good health for school children. Food, drink and sleep constitute the most important needs of a growing body and are essential factors in the development of a child's resistance to disease.

Breakfast for school children is of utmost importance. The child has been without food for twelve to fourteen hours. A period of both mental and physical activity is before him and both require energy. One-third of the food requirement for the day should be taken at breakfast.

Dinner should be a hearty meal and supper a light one—one that is easily digested and conducive to sleep.

During the first school weeks a child's diet should be very carefully watched. He has many new conditions to meet and extra effort in the way of caring for food disposal and digestion should be spared him.

Meals should be served regularly and plenty of time allowed for them to be eaten slowly. Care should be taken that soups are not served too hot. And food that cools slowly should be cooled before serving. This is particularly true of breakfast and luncheon when a child is impatient to eat and eager to be on his way to school.

Each day's meals should furnish enough calories to supply heat and energy requirements, repair worn-out tissues and build new ones. Mineral constituents and vitamins are necessary for growth and health and the regulation of body functions. Water is necessary for regulation and elimination. Each meal must play its part in meeting these needs.

Protein is necessary for the growth of children, and of course one of the chief sources is meat. However, meat is harder for children to digest than eggs and milk, which are both excellent protein foods and also rich in mineral salts and high in vitamin content. Broiled or roasted meats are desirable occasionally for the noon meal but not for the evening meal.

A quart of milk every day is the rule for every child. Two-thirds of it can be drunk and the rest used with vegetables and cereals and desserts.

Well-cooked vegetables, shredded fresh raw vegetables, stewed and fresh fruits, cereals, eggs, simply cooked meats, plain cakes and cookies and simple desserts offer a wide variety for a nourishing and balanced diet for school children.

When strict economy must be practiced the cheapest food for each group may be chosen, but every effort should be made to provide a full quart of milk for every child.

CABBAGE, NEW STYLE

Kaldamas, as the Swedish way of serving cabbage is called, is a recipe worth remembering the next time you have this vegetable to prepare. Boil the green cabbage, in salted water, until it is tender, after which you may separate the leaves, being careful to keep them whole. Now take one pound of raw ground beef, 2 cups of boiled rice, 1 egg and seasoning, combine them, moisten the mixture with evaporated milk, shape into small balls, and place on the cabbage leaves. Roll the leaves until the contents are out of sight. Cook in butter, slowly, until browned. Add a little more milk before serving.

YOUR CHILDREN

TOO MANY "BOSSIES" SCOWL THE CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Billy, go up and get dressed now. Put on your blue shirt and polka dot tie."

"I like his new lavender shirt best," suggested Grandma. "Go on, Billy, put on your lavender shirt just to please me."

"I saw that little Martin boy a few minutes ago," it was Aunt Jane's turn to say. "He got into the limousine with his mother just as I was passing and he looked like the Prince of Wales. He had on a white shirt with a big blue collar."

"The Prince of Wales wears blue shirts," said Billy's mother. "And he doesn't wear Buster Brown collars."

"They're Eton collars. He wore them when he was a boy. I have his picture," declared Jane.

"Well, Billy, let's see the Prince of Wales go and put on your lavender shirt, honey. Do go on, Grandma loves you best in your lavender shirt."

The Argument Continues

"Mother, when I tell Billy to do something, please don't interfere. When I say 'do this,' his father likes him in blue; so do I. It brings out the color of his eyes, and accents that copper shade in his hair."

"Why don't you take suggestions, Gracie, and look about you," Jane interrupted. "All the boys at the school wear these broad white collars and the new lavender shirts. And you were among the first families in town. You were saying only a few days ago that you wished Billy knew some of them. Now you can't make friends unless you learn how to dress first."

"His father hates those collars. He calls them slavy. Of course, I rather like them. Maybe I will get a couple the next time I'm in town."

"Well, I must say," put in Grandma, "that's a nice thing to say after I have been fussing at his shirts and nearly ruin my eyes doing it. Have you made him sit new shirts and now you're walking off to buy a lot more. Can you get lavender shirts with those wide collars? Lavender shirts and a violet tie—that's my idea of a gentleman. Your father always loved them. And a pinstrip in his buttonhole."

"Billy, go up now, dear, and get dressed," said mother. "Put on the shirt and tie I said. No, wait—I've changed my mind. Put on your brown suit and the tan shirt, and the white tie with red stripes. I just want to see how you—why, where is Billy?"

Dinner-time—And No Billy

"Billy, Billy—oh, Billy!" she called upstairs. "If you have that blue shirt on, take it off and put on the tan shirt. Father came home and dinner was ready and they all went in to sit down."

"My, Billy takes forever to dress," said Grandma. "And we came over just to see him."

"Come on, Billy, hurry up," called Aunt Jane. "We're waiting."

Then something started. There was no Billy anywhere. The blue, tan, and lavender shirts were in the drawer; so were the red tie and the blue one. The brown suit hung in the closet.

Dinner got cold, but finally they ate what they could. At last, Billy came in with two little catfish. He was dirty, muddy, and hungry. He carried his shoes in his hand.

"Billy Smith! Didn't I tell you to go up and get dressed!" Billy looked around the accusing faces with puzzled wonder. "Huh? Why I didn't hear you, Mom. Honest I didn't."

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famed Authority

INABILITY TO DETECT ODORS MAY HURT APPETITE

By DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Whereas in the lower animals the sense of smell is highly developed, in the human being it is subject to extraordinary variations.

Some people can detect certain odors in much less concentrated form than other people; at the same time the sense of smell for other odors may be either normal or subnormal. When a person has been taking certain drugs, such as strychnine or cocaine, his sense of smell becomes exceedingly delicate. This may be due to the fact that the drug shrinks the membrane of the nose and thereby permits easier access of the vapors which carry the odors to the delicate nerves of the nose.

An inability to detect odors may, of course, be associated with a bad cold or any condition which swells the membrane of the nose, or interferes with secretion. There are, however, cases of people who are born without the ability to detect odors.

Dr. E. M. Seydell, who has recently reviewed this subject, points out that the ability to detect odors may be interfered with by the toxic action of certain drugs. Sulphur or the fumes arising from the manufacture of rubber, alcohol, tobacco, chloroform, ether, morphine or carbolic acid, if repeatedly inhaled, will interfere with the ability to detect various odors.

This is perhaps due to an anesthesia of the nerves responsible for the sense of smell. These nerves are like the other nerves in the body, subject to fatigue, and when tired they do not act as well as when they are fresh. Hence, the nerves of smell may be exhausted by long stimulation or intense stimulation from various sources. In the same way, the ability to detect odors gradually wears out in the aged, as do other senses such as those of sight, hearing and taste.

For this reason perfumes for the aged must be stronger and foods spicier if they are to give the pleasure associated with the use of the special senses.

The sense of smell is so closely associated with the sense of taste that a disturbance of this sense interferes frequently with appetite. There are, of course, various disturbances of a psychologic character which center on the sense of smell so that people complain constantly of bad odors which do not exist.

There are other cases in which the nerves may be stimulated by

BOOK STRESSES IMPORTANCE OF COMMON LAWS

Lunt Shows That Statutes Do Not Cover Multitude of Cases Before Court.

If you own an elephant and someone sneaks into his stable and gets stepped on, are you liable for damages?

If you find a chest of pirate gold on somebody else's farm, does it belong to you or to him?

If your own carelessness permits a hayrick on your land to catch fire from spontaneous combustion and it sets fire to your neighbor's house, can he collect from you?

Life being what it is, you may never have to know the answers to any of these questions. But you'll find them all discussed, together with a great many more, in "The Road to the Law," by Dudley Carmel Lunt; and you'll find, also, that the book is a readable, easy-to-understand account of the way in which English and American common law has been built up through the years.

Mr. Lunt points out that most of us believe "the law" to be chiefly a matter of statutes, whereas as the common law—the accretion of court decisions on points not covered by legislative enactment—is apt to be a whole lot more important as far as our daily lives are concerned. He shows, here, how the common law has developed why lawyers place such store on precedents, why the decisions of various courts are scanned so carefully and how legal rulings on certain questions can change from generation to generation.

It makes a pleasant and instructive introduction to the law for the layman. Published by Whittey House, it retails for $3.50.

Rising farm prices have changed the farmer, a banker says. Imagine how cheerful you would be if you found that you would lose only $1,000 instead of $3,000 on this year's crop.

CHICAGO FAVORED IN REST OF GAMES

Records Show Cubs Fared Best At Home and Pirates Away; Leaders Have Six Game Edge.

The Chicago Cubs are not the best road club in the National League but there's nothing in the record to indicate they'll lose much of their present six game lead on their current Eastern invasion.

The second place Pittsburgh Pirates can boast a better record on the road, but the Cubs have overcome this by a vastly superior showing at home.

Here's how the two contenders have fared this year:

At Home	Won	Lost	Pct.
Chicago	51	20	.718
Pittsburgh	45	31	.592

AWAY: Pittsburgh 29 29 .500 Chicago 28 33 .459

The remainder of the schedule also favors the Cubs, six of whose remaining 22 games will be played at Chicago. Pittsburgh must play all her remaining 20 games on the road.

Action in the major leagues yesterday was restricted entirely to one doubleheader in the American league, the Cleveland Indians taking the St. Louis Browns over the hurdles twice, 4-3 and 6-0.

GOOD BOUTS KEEP FANS BLOOD WARM

Cold Weather Fails To Chill Enthusiasm Over Crystal Lake Show.

Romeo Dube of Holyoke, 146, whipped Young Leonard of Stamford, 144, in a three round fight held at the Crystal Lake stadium last night, and even though the weather was a little chilly on the way out to the site of door exhibition, there was just enough of real fighting to keep the blood of the spectators warm all through the ten bouts scheduled for the evening.

The Dube and Leonard fight was booked for the star attraction, but the big star had been set such a pace by some of the other contestants on the card that they did not show the life and spirit of several others. Dube being away out in front when the three chapters were ended.

Tommy Lynn of Worcester and Eddie Oel of Thompsonville met in the curtain raiser and it was a real nice little fight with Tommy taking two and half of the three rounds and the only reason that he should not be awarded the other one-half was because of his inability to finish his man by a knockout. But he got the decision just the same.

Red Quinn of Thompsonville and Bert Troy of Rockville met in a pretty good boxer, was allowed up when he slipped and was sent down for the count of two. From then on Troy had the decision of the argument and won the decision.

Tony Burke, 130, Worcester met Otto Berry, 135, Holyoke. If there is any two places in this country where it is necessary to fight it is Holyoke and Worcester and that is just what the decision was. Berry looked good for the first round, but that was all as Burke was all over him and under him for the next two rounds and with two knockdowns against him in the third he was ready to fall when Bill Conway stepped the fight.

Lucian Terrault, 110, Pascoag, R. I., was defeated by Young Roland, 114, of Hartford. Roland was some sort of a musician as he played a rap-tap-to on the bread basket during the long named R. I. entry with such telling effect that the Hartford boy was awarded the decision.

Belle Milano, 120, Hartford and Frankie Roberts, 116, Holyoke went three rounds to draw. The fifteen pound advantage that Milano had over his opponent was offset by the latter's boxing and although the Hartford boy tried hard, a draw was the award given by Bill Conway, the third man in the square.

Jackie Parker, 140, Worcester, picked a nice spot on Lawrence Cotter's nose to shoot at. Cotter came up from Rhode Island. In the first round he was hit on the nose so many times that it served as a target and when Parker was not shooting at that he was hitting in places that hurt and put the k. o. over after 2 minutes and 40 seconds in the second.

Jimmie Angelo, 130, and Joe Sal- timore, 119, showed action plenty and there were so many knockdowns that the scorers could not agree on the number, but after two minutes and 20 seconds in the second Joe was laced headly and Angelo got credit for a k. o.

FIRST 140 YEARS HARDEST FOR FOUR VETERAN COACHES

Stagg's Experience Totals 42 Years, Warner's 38, Dobie's 31 and McGugin's 29

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Amos Alonzo Stagg, 42 years! Glenn S. (Pop) Warner, 38 years! Gilmore (Gil) Dobie, 31 years! Dan McGugin, 29 years!

Add up the years these venerable grid mentors have spent on the football field and you have, or will have at the end of the 1932 season, a total of 140 years of coaching experience, and intercollegiate football is less than 65 years old.

It is purely a coincidence that the four oldest football teachers in point of service represent the four major geographic sections of the grid world. At the same time, it emphasizes the point that football is universal in this country.

Stagg is a Yale man, one of the first men in Yale to win All-American honors, but he has put in all of his coaching years at University of Chicago, in the midwestern sector. Despite some rather lean years of late, he still has an edge in victories over most of the teams his Maroon encounters.

Warner came from Cornell and got to Stanford University on the Pacific coast by way of Carleton and Pitt. There never has been a Warner-coached team that was lightly regarded by its opponent, that is, not since Pop's tricky Carlisle redskins ran wild 30 years or so ago. Whether Jim Thorpe of the old Indian teams, or Ernie Nevers, more recent Stanford All-American fullback, was the greatest of Warner's players is beside the point. They were among the game's greatest, at any rate.

Dobie learned his football at the University of Minnesota. Cornell took him as head coach about 12 years ago, after his steady progress upward from an assistant coaching job at Minnesota to head coach at Washington and the U. S. Naval Academy.

His first years at Cornell were bright with the great deeds of Kaw, Pfann, Sundstrom and others. Then his horizon clouded and only in the last two years has any sun shone on Cornell's football. Rumors had him resigning under pressure in 1929, but he weathered the storm. The last two years again have been sunny. But Gill continues to be the gloomiest of tutors.

More than any other individual, McGugin is responsible for the growth of football in the south. From Michigan's "point-a-minute" teams under Fielding Yost, Dan moved into Vanderbilt University in the fall of 1904.

He was met at the train by a delegation headed by Tom Graham, Vanderbilt captain. McGugin climbed to the cab driver's seat and cracked jokes with that individual all the way to the campus. He has been cracking jokes and making great football players ever since.

OLYMPIC CHAMPION IS FILM DOM FIND— AND IS SHE HAPPY!

Eleanor Holm Signs For Seven Years In Movies; Quit 'Follies' To Win Swim Title For U. S.

By DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Writer

Hollywood, Sept. 7.—The Olympic backstroke champion has become the screen's newest comedienne. And is she happy? You ask her.

Needless to say, the little girl of whom we're speaking is Eleanor Holm, generally regarded as the prettiest of the Olympic contestants. That's an opinion in which the movie moguls seemed to coincide, too. At least, out of 200 or more girls who came here to compete, Eleanor was the only one to grab off a film contract. And it was only last winter that she had a short fling in the Ziegfeld 'Follies'—which should mean something, knowing the late impresario's eye for beauty.

Having heard several conflicting reports on Miss Holm's career in the 'Follies, I decided to learn the real story from her.

"Yes, I was in the 'Follies' for four weeks but I never played in New York," she told me. "I was with the show in Pittsburgh, playing a small part. Then they took that part away and wanted me to be just one of the chorus. So I quit.

"The National swimming championships were drawing near anyway and I wanted to get in shape to compete in them and win a place on the Olympic team. For the last three years my one big thought was to win the Olympic. Nothing else seemed to matter."

That she made the Olympic team doesn't have to be told. And her most valued possession today is the gold medal she received for winning first place in the backstroke. For when she won that title, she was 16 years old. Henceforth the big thing in her life is going to be acting. She still intends to retain her amateur standing as a swimmer but acting will be given first consideration.

Several studios made offers to Miss Holm but it was Warner's First National that got her name on the dotted line of a seven-year contract.

However, despite the fact she already has started drawing her salary, it will be some months before she appears on the screen. Her first film will be a featured one and studio executives are going to insure her success in it by having her thoroughly schooled first.

It may require four or even six months for Eleanor to learn enough acting to carry a leading role. If it does, she'll spend that much time doing nothing but studying. But wait until she once steps before those cameras! Unless I am mistaken, nothing will be able to hold her back. She has enough personality for three actresses and seems to have a sufficient amount of head to be able to keep her feet on the ground regardless of the success which comes to her.

Oh, yes, and regarding that romance with Dick Deagan, another Olympic swimmer, Eleanor says she has nothing to it. They simply like to go swimming together, she says. And adds that she never has had a regular date with him in her life. More details on that another time.

LITTLE IS SCARED OF CORNELL TEAM

Columbia Coach Says His Hardest Game of Season Will Be Against Ithaca.

New York, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Lou Little is always ready to talk about Columbia's football prospects, but he'd rather you didn't mention the team Gil Dobie is building at Cornell. The very mention of the big red eleven from Ithaca stops Columbia's coach cold.

He's ready now to tell the world Columbia's hardest game will be with Cornell here October 29. "I want to tell you right now," he remarks to prospective interviewers, "that when Dobie said his prospects this fall were 'pretty fair' he flattered me. Ever since then I've been scared to death every time I think of that game we've got to play with his boys.

"Is that our toughest game? Say when Dobie says things 'pretty fair' the other teams ought to close down. They haven't got a chance. Give him any kind of good material and he'll have a football team." I know it.

Not World Beaters "I'm not saying we're not going to have a good team here at Columbia ourselves, but we're not going to be world beaters or anything like the advance reports suggest. "If we can put out a team as good as last year's it will be a miracle. We were lucky last year and I don't think we can win as many games as we did then.

"I'm not doing any innovation this year and there won't be any changes in our style of play.

"And say after a week of practice and two or three scrimmages it has become increasingly clear to me that the rules committee, in formulating the changes, acted with a great deal more foresight than they've been credited with.

Englishman Shocks 'Em With Shorts

For the first time in the history of the national singles tournament, a player—and an Englishman at that—appeared on the court in shorts instead of the traditional long white knickerbockers. But if Henry W. (Bunny) Austin realized the stir created by his attire, it made no difference in his game. He is shown here in action during his match with Cecil Metz, of Memphis, Tenn., whom he defeated in straight heats.

DONAHUE INVITES CRITICISM, IDEAS OF SPORTS WRITERS

Desires To Bring State Supremacy In Conduct of Boxing, Wrestling; Opinions Asked.

The following letter has been sent to Connecticut sports writers by Thomas E. Donahue, athletic commissioner of this state, and local readers are invited to submit their suggestions and answers to the various questions contained in the letter, to The Herald sports department.

To the Connecticut Sports Writers: It is my ambition to have boxing and wrestling on a higher plane in Connecticut than in any other state. May I depend upon your co-operation in the form of constructive criticism and suggestions as to how we can bring Connecticut supremacy in the conduct of its ring sports?

A few questions have been under consideration for some time. I am taking the liberty of submitting them to you and requesting that you forward to me your opinion on each. You may be assured that I will give full consideration to your reply and it may help us in improving boxing and wrestling both for participants and spectators. They are:

1. Has the resumption of draw decision helped or hindered promoters? (B) Wrestlers and Boxers? (C) Please the spectators? Is the present system better than the compulsory award to one of the participants?

2. Is the present state rule regarding the length of time between bouts too drastic? Would you decrease or increase the intervals? Should the amateur boxers be forced to perform under the same rules as the professionals in this?

3. Would a bulletin service, issued weekly from my office, containing suspensions, reinstatements, a list of bouts for the week to come and a record of bouts and decisions of the week just past provide you with material which you could use to advantage? Would you be interested in excerpts from bulletins of the National Boxing Association? Also from National Wrestling Association?

4. Have you any suggestions on any other phase of the sport which in your mind would aid this department in achieving our ambition of making Connecticut the model state as far as boxing and wrestling are concerned? If so, will you please explain them in detail.

HANLEY UNCERTAIN OF WILDCAT TEAM

Northwestern Has Fine Backfield But Misses Tackles; Will Be Easier To Score On.

Evanson, Ill., Sept. 7.—(AP)—For the first time since he went to work at Northwestern six years ago, Coach Dick Hanley doesn't know just what to make of the Wildcats' chances in the approaching football wars.

When he thinks of Pug Rentner, All-America halfback and the rest of his backfield talent, Hanley almost smacks his lips. When he thinks of the absent tackle, Dal Marvel and Jack Riley, he shakes his head.

"For three years out here," he said, "I didn't think so much about championships and we didn't get any. In 1929 and 1931 I was pretty sure we would be right up around the top of the Big Ten and we were. This year I don't yet know just how to figure.

"Rentner, Potter and Olson and whoever we start in the backfield look like about a match for anything the conference has."

"But," he asks, "where am I going to get another pair of tackles like Riley and Marvel?"

"I'd look as though we will be a little easier to score on, so we will just have to do some scoring ourselves."

New Material Will Make Up Manchester's Team; Prospects Low; Face 8 Game Schedule, Opening Sept. 24.

Manchester High school's prospects for the 1932 football season were not overly bright today, as Coach Thomas Kelley held the first practice session at the West Side field this afternoon. Only three veterans returned to form the nucleus of the new squad, which will face a hard schedule of eight games, including five Central Connecticut Intercollegiate League contests.

The three veterans of last year's team are Captain Elmore Hultine, and Raymond Mosser, center; and Edward Rowe, guard. The remainder of the team that won six out of eight games in 1931 has been lost through graduation. Manchester High's defeat last year were at the hands of Bristol and Hartford Public High school, both by scores of 18 to 0.

Although Coach Kelley does not believe that his team will be as good as last year's he is hopeful of fashioning an eleven that will make a determined bid for the league championship, now held by Bristol. He said today that he will not be able to venture an opinion on his team's prospects until practice sessions get underway, as it is possible that new material of a high caliber may be uncovered.

Schedule of Games
Manchester High will open its season on Saturday, September 24, meeting Hartford Public High school at Hartford.

The rest of the schedule is as follows:
Friday, Sept. 30, Middletown, here.
Saturday, Oct. 8, Bristol, there.
Friday, Oct. 14, Meriden, there.
Friday, Oct. 21, East Hartford, here.
Friday, Oct. 28, West Hartford, here.
Saturday, Nov. 5, Bulkeley, Hartford, here.
Saturday, Nov. 12, Willimantic, there.

COCHET CONTINUES AS DRAWING CARD

Marvelous Little Frenchman Packs Them In At Tennis Matches In U. S.

New York, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Henri Cochet may or may not be the world's greatest tennis player at the moment, but there can be slight doubt the marvelous little Frenchman tops them all as a box office "draw."

For three days now the big horse-shoe stadium at Forest Hills has been comfortably filled with spectators and hundreds more have spilled on to the outlying courts, all having paid a pretty stiff price for the privilege of watching what was bound to be indifferent tennis in the opening rounds of the National championships.

It is easy to understand Henri's hold on the public. He exudes color and his grace on the court is that of a dancer.

Prospects were he would need all his resources today when he encounters John Van Ryn, the steady Philadelphia, in the outstanding dual of the fourth round.

Things also promised to warm up today for Ellsworth Vines, American champion, who has headed through two previous matches. The champion meets his old friend and doubles partner, Keith Goddard, in front of a lady's revolver loaded seriously. President Vosek of the Cubs called in his accents, made a few plain statements and away they went scurrying for reserve infield material. Jack Doyle found Cochet.

If you've read of the Cubs these last few weeks, or since Boss Grimm talked them into that big winning streak, you've seen the name Cochet mentioned frequently in the columns for comments on spectacular hitting and hitting. His batting average hovers around the .400 mark.

Two old pals are planning a reunion at the world series. They will be Mark Koenig and Tony Lazzeri.

Young Billy Sullivan, son of the old-time White Sox catcher, has been trying his hand at receiving, though he came to the Sox from Notre Dame as a first baseman.

MARK KOENIG WILL SEE PAL, LAZZERI, IN WORLD SERIES

Comes Back From Buses To Star For Cubs; Tony War Once Washed Up With Yanks.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—One of them narrowly escaped the humiliation of being traded off as washed up. The other was through, waived clear out of the league, back to the bushes. And yet here they are again, mighty figures in the world series plans of the New York Yankees and the Chicago Cubs.

Tony Lazzeri and Mark Koenig left San Francisco 10 years ago with boyish dreams of the major leagues. Both arrived at the same time, in 1926, and played side by side on the pennant-winning Yankees of '26, '27 and '28. Tony slumped so low as to become trading material and stayed with the Yanks only because nobody wanted him. Mary was traded to Detroit in 1930, slumped in 1931 and was booting clear out of the league early this year, only to come back recently with the Cubs in the rival circuit.

But this is a story of Mark Koenig. This is a story of a man who came back.

It was only seven years ago that the Yankees plunked down $50,000 in cash and several players for the very promising Koenig, a rookie shortstop at St. Paul, in 1925. Mark stepped into the varsity infield at shortstop. Breaking in with him at second base that season was the young Lazzeri, his playmate of the San Francisco sandlots.

Mark made good, and so did Tony. Koenig was the more erratic fielder, but he also turned in more impossible stops and throws. Three times in a row they went to the world series, twice emerging world champions by the shortest possible route of four straight victories.

Koenig's fall from the peak was gradual, a result of failing eyesight. At first only his hitting suffered, but soon he no longer was able to judge sharply batted balls into his territory. The shift to third base failed to help matters. Glasses were fitted to his eyes, temporarily halted his drop. But in May, 1931, he was tossed in to boot with Waite Hoyt in exchange for Owen Carroll, George Wustling and Harry Rice of the Tigers.

Detroit gave him every chance to come back, even going so far as to let him try his hand at pitching. The result was inevitable. Waivers were asked, no takers spoke up and Koenig departed. Back in San Francisco, he caught on with the Mission club.

It seemed odd that Koenig should strike a winning stride again in the Old East League, where they play baseball. But strike it he did, and before long he was fielding brilliantly and batting near the .400 mark. He wasn't entirely blind, after all.

The story would end here if young Bill Jurges, Cub shortstop, hadn't got in front of a lady's revolver loaded seriously. President Vosek of the Cubs called in his accents, made a few plain statements and away they went scurrying for reserve infield material. Jack Doyle found Cochet.

OFFER THREE HILLYER ENGINEERS COURSES

Automobile Mechanics, General Welding and Power Engineering Are Included.

Three very practical courses will be given this year in the Engineering division of the Hillyer Y. M. C. A. Schools. They are: Automobile Mechanics, General Welding, and Power Engineering. In each course the students enrolled will learn "the how" as well as "the why" of these subjects in the special laboratories of the educational department of the Y. M. C. A. with their ample equipment. Each course employs instructors skilled in their respective trades. The Automobile Mechanics course, by the oldest course of the three, holding classes in 1907, will begin Monday evening, September 23, when John F. Misch, the instructor, will give an outline of the material to be covered during the course of 30 lessons, the classes meeting three nights a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. Misch, expert mechanic of the Connecticut Expmobile Company, who has served as instructor for the Hillyer Auto School for the last five years, combines the practical with the theoretical in this class. Following the classroom work on such subjects as electrical systems, transmission, and types of engines, practical repairs are made on the student's cars in the "Auto lab" in the basement of the Association building. This year the course has been adjusted so that the car owner and the truck driver will obtain a thorough training in making the minor automobile repairs that need prompt attention. In addition to this course in Automobile Mechanics, a special course entitled "Automobile Pointers for Women" has been planned. This class is scheduled to begin on or before October 20 and will be taught by W. E. Brown, chief technician of the Automobile Division of the State Motor Vehicle Department. In the ten lessons of this course instructor Brown will stress the important points that women should be acquainted with, such as engine, transmission, driving rules, and what the state expects of candidates for operators' licenses. The second very practical course, General Welding, is scheduled to begin Thursday evening, September 27, at 7:30 in the Welding Laboratory. Robert J. Dampman, veteran teacher and supervisor of welding at the Whitlock Coil Pipe Company, will give a free demonstration lecture, illustrating the principle of the oxy-acetylene torch, at the opening class on October 20 and will be followed by six classes in general welding, having trained 56 men in the use of oxy-acetylene torches. Many of the students of these classes are using welding as an adjunct in their own trades, such as blacksmithing, sheet metal work, mechanics, motor, steam fitting, construction work and plumbing. The classes will be held every Tuesday and Thursday evening for 15 weeks, and during the course special motion picture lectures on a different important uses of welding have been scheduled. The motion pictures will show how production, construction, aircraft and electrical welding are done. The Hillyer Welding laboratory is one of the best equipped of the welding laboratories in the city; 24 torches employing light, medium and heavy tips are available for the students. Power Engineering, the third very practical course in the Engineering Institute of the Hillyer Schools, is designed for the entire school year; that is, 32 weeks, or two terms of 16 weeks each. The classes meet two nights a week, Tuesday and Friday, for two hours. Power Engineering has been outlined by Clarence L. Johnson, the instructor, who has charge of meter testing for the Hartford Electric Light Company. The course will prepare men to handle electrical power in industry and to service electrical machines.

HEADQUARTERS FLOODED WITH ROOSEVELT SLOGANS

New York, Sept. 7.—(AP)—An estimated 50,000 have written or printed "Democratic National Headquarters" to tell how they think Franklin D. Roosevelt can be elected President with the help of their special brand of slogan, song or knock-knock. The out-of-towners are mostly content to write or telegraph, but a large percentage of idea-inspired New Yorkers come right into headquarters to demonstrate. And that's where Ralph Hitchcock comes in. He listens to their songs, rolls their slogans over his tongue, looks at their cartoons, blinks non-committally at some of the strange inventions, and thanks one and all for their interest. Filing cabinets in Hitchcock's office are crisscrossed with offerings, including such engines of propaganda as a transparent cake of soap enclosing a picture of the Democratic candidate and a tricky little gadget that is supposed to "talk for itself," a rose on a piece of felt.

WITNESS IS MISSING AT FLEISHER HEARING

Detroit, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The case of Harry Fleisher, charged with murder for the death of one of three men killed in a gang shooting almost a year ago, was on call today in Recorder's Court, but Solly Levine, the state's star witness, was missing. Levine's testimony that it was Harry Kellwell Irving Milberg, Ray Bernstein and Fleisher who shot down three of his companions in an apartment house last Sept. 16, was principally responsible for the conviction of the first three named. They are serving life terms in Marquette prison. Levine disappeared after the trial, but returned to Detroit a few months ago. Then he vanished again and Prosecutor Harry S. Tilly said a nation-wide search had failed to disclose his whereabouts. Fleisher, who once was sought in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping case, has notice of an alibi on Sept. 12 says he will attempt to show that he was in the Reading, Pa., jail on a disorderly charge on the day of the killing.

FIRDAUSSI THE WINNER

Doncaster, Eng., Sept. 7.—(AP)—The Aga Khan's Firdaussi, an outsider, today won the classic St. Leger Stakes for three-year-olds at five miles, six furlongs and 132 yards at Epsom. The Aga Khan's Firdaussi was second and Mrs. C. Rich's Silver Mere was third. Nineteen of the leading three-year-olds of the English turf ran. Firdaussi is by Pharos from Brownhynda. The race, which carries an added value of 4,000 sovereigns, was worth about $60,000 to the winner.

APPLES BRING HIGH PRICE

Kentville, N. S., Sept. 7.—(AP)—The first cargo of Nova Scotia apples to arrive in the overseas market this season was sold at Liverpool, England, five minutes after it was landed and brought prices far in advance of last year's quotations. Growers expressed confidence that a shipment of 30,000 barrels now crossing the Atlantic would yield high returns.

OLD GOLD WANTED

WE PAY THE HIGHEST PRICE FOR Old Gold, Silver and Platinum. BeRoberts Jewelry Shop 36 Main St., Hartford. Brown Thomson Building.

RISE IN OPERATIONS IN THE STEEL INDUSTRY

New York, Sept. 7.—(AP)—"Iron Age" today reported a gain in steel ingot production this week to 14.2 percent of rated capacity from 13 percent last week, due to a sharp rise in operations in the Cleveland district. "Further gains this month," it said, "are largely dependent on the volume of incoming business for immediate requirements, as steel mills have virtually no backlog tonnage on their books." A larger number of miscellaneous steel orders, mostly covering small orders for nearby shops' and been received, even though there has been little support for the industry from the railroads and automobile manufacturers. Some improvement in pig iron buying, notably at Cleveland, has occurred. Pig iron production declined last week to 850,878 gross tons, a drop of 7.3 percent from July. There was a net loss of four blast furnaces in August, bringing the number in blast on September 1 to 42, or just one-fifth the total operating three years ago.

ANDOVER

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jepson and son, George, of Birmingham, Mich., are visiting Mrs. Jepson's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bass, Monday and returned to Hartford. They will probably spend the weekend here while the warm weather lasts. Raymond, Marshall and Russell Green have returned to the Winsted school after spending their vacation with their mother, Mrs. Samuel McNeil.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Meetsville, Wyo.—Young Jerry O'Leary would rather hang on to the tail of a wild steer any day than the tail of an airplane. Unknown to Pilot Bill Monday, the youth grabbed the tail of Monday's airplane and rode aloft 1,000 feet hanging on grimly as the ship wavered with its rear-end weight. When the pilot found out what was wrong he made a forced landing without injuring O'Leary. New York—Aaron Burr built good water pipes. Workmen repairing a water main dug up a piece of several miles of wooden pipe which was the city's first water system 133 years ago. It was a white pine log, 6 feet in diameter, with a three inch bore and was in good condition. Aaron Burr was a member of the company which laid the main. Atlantic City, N. J.—Alas for tradition, the minnow got scared. The minnow, a sensitive plant, which closes its leaves when pinched or slapped, is on display at a flower pageant. It is said the minnow is afraid of dogs and will tremble when they bark. But in an experiment at the show a fox terrier seemed afraid of the minnow, while the minnow remained perfectly calm. New York—The liner Drottningholm apparently caught the spirit of speed from her passengers. Carrying the Swedish and Finnish Olympic athletes back home, the Swedish-American vessel set a record of eight days, four hours for the New York to Gothenburg voyage. She broke her own record of eight days, seven hours.

STORM WARNING

Washington, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The Weather Bureau today issued the following storm warning: "Advisory 10 a. m. northeast storm warnings continued north of Wilmington to Hatteras and northeast storm warnings ordered north of Hatteras to Virginia Capes. Tropical disturbance of great intensity with lowest pressure below twenty-eight inches, centered about Twenty Nine North Seventy Five West, moving slowly north-easterly, attended by wind hurricane force over considerable area."

It is necessary that efforts of every person engaged in the management of transportation, especially where operators have other human lives in their care, must be intensified to make sure operators get proper rest so that they are never in the physical condition where fatigue can enter into performance. The best thing to do is to surrender the wheel to someone who is not tired. It is necessary for all to "wake up" to the fact that self-government in all matters is the best safety accomplishment in this situation.

SLEEPY AUTOIST SERIOUS HAZARD

Extensive Measures To Combat Menace—Study Radio As a Means.

It is not always possible for a man to take a wife, or sweetheart, along with him in a motor vehicle to talk to him and keep him awake during a long drive. Neither is it possible for one to depend upon a car radio to banish the urge to rest and relax. "And yet sleep or the desire to sleep makes a serious hazard," says Robin B. Stoeckel, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, who suggests that "such remedial action as may be devised should be pointed toward this menace." Operators of truck traffic have long since adopted extensive measures to combat the menace. Mr. Stoeckel adds. They have provided helpers for men when long driving hours are required. Truck operators are now frequently seen resting at the roadside when fatigued. The same general situation applies to bus operation, following agitation arising from several serious accidents, so that demands upon operators are less exacting. "But," he continues, "there has yet been nothing devised and no means considered by which the ordinary operator of the pleasure car can be protected against his tendency to fall asleep while at the wheel. It is entirely probable that professional men who do their own driving, and others whose work causes mental strain during the day, and who are compelled to drive at night for one reason or another, do recognize the danger and are forced to fight off the urge to sleep. "Generally this is a successful proceeding. It can be accomplished by a man through will-power alone, but it takes a tremendous amount of determination and usually is accomplished through some diversion. Many suggestions, some facetious, as to how these conditions can be met have been made from time to time, but one cannot always have the companionship referred to nor yet the radio programs that might serve. It might be claimed, perhaps with some reason, that there are radio programs which would not banish sleep but certainly some of the musical productions in some time will do it. The effect of radio music upon the mentality of an operator has not as yet been thoroughly studied but in such cases observed it has been noted that attention has not been diverted to an extent where performance standards have been lowered.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Meetsville, Wyo.—Young Jerry O'Leary would rather hang on to the tail of a wild steer any day than the tail of an airplane. Unknown to Pilot Bill Monday, the youth grabbed the tail of Monday's airplane and rode aloft 1,000 feet hanging on grimly as the ship wavered with its rear-end weight. When the pilot found out what was wrong he made a forced landing without injuring O'Leary. New York—Aaron Burr built good water pipes. Workmen repairing a water main dug up a piece of several miles of wooden pipe which was the city's first water system 133 years ago. It was a white pine log, 6 feet in diameter, with a three inch bore and was in good condition. Aaron Burr was a member of the company which laid the main. Atlantic City, N. J.—Alas for tradition, the minnow got scared. The minnow, a sensitive plant, which closes its leaves when pinched or slapped, is on display at a flower pageant. It is said the minnow is afraid of dogs and will tremble when they bark. But in an experiment at the show a fox terrier seemed afraid of the minnow, while the minnow remained perfectly calm. New York—The liner Drottningholm apparently caught the spirit of speed from her passengers. Carrying the Swedish and Finnish Olympic athletes back home, the Swedish-American vessel set a record of eight days, four hours for the New York to Gothenburg voyage. She broke her own record of eight days, seven hours.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

The saying is that heaven will protect the working girl, but who will protect the fellow she is working for?

Mrs. Higgins had just paid the last installment on the baby carriage.

Collector—Thank you, madam. How is the baby getting on now? Mrs. Higgins—Oh, he's all right. He's getting married next week.

A political office in a small town was open. One of the candidates, Ezekiel Hicks, was a shrewd fellow, and a neat campaign fund was turned over to him. To the astonishment of all, however, he was defeated.

Leader of Rick's Party—I can't account for it. With that money we should have won. What plan did you follow, Ezekiel? Ezekiel (slowly)—Well, that office only pays $250 a year salary and I didn't see no sense in spending $900 to get it. I bought a little truck farm instead.

Static has a way of getting in its best licks just as the announcer is telling about a home run with three men on bases!

Customer—I want some eggs but I must be sure there are no chickens in them.

Grocer—Well, how about a dozen duck eggs?

China and Japan may be considered stupid, but they had brains enough to stop their war before their taxes got so high they couldn't pay the bill.

Flower Seller—Buy a bunch of violets for your sweetheart, sir? Young Man—Haven't got one.

Flower Seller—Take a bunch home to your wife? Young Man—Sorry, but I'm not married.

Flower Seller—Here, buy the bloomin' lot to celebrate your luck.

"My boy friend is like an egg," declared a Sweet Young Thing. "He never gets too fresh!"

Boy Friend—Shall I have your lunch brought up to the deck, dearest.

Girl Friend—No, darling; just throw it overboard—it'll save time and trouble.

Mrs. Mannerly (to her little daughter, who has just returned from tea with friends)—I hope you said 'No, thank you' oftener than 'Yes, thank you.'

Little Marguerite—Yes, I did. I hadn't been eating more'n half an hour before they began saying, 'Don't you think you've eaten enough?' 'Aren't you afraid you'll make yourself ill?' 'And I said: 'No, thank you,' every time.

JUST PRETENSE

"Do you let your husband have a latchkey?" asked Mrs. Newbride. "Yes, I humor him that way," said Mrs. Oldun. "He likes to show it to his friends to let them see how independent he is."

"A good idea," put in the other. "But," interrupted Mrs. Oldun, "it doesn't fit the door."—Answers.

FILLING IT OUT

"Well, how do you like my new suit?" a man asked his friend as they seated themselves at their usual table for lunch.

"Not bad," replied the other. "Only there's a wrinkle in the vest. You ought to get rid of that."

"By jove, so there is! Waiter! Where's the menu?"—Der Lustige Eschke.

NEW FIRE SIREN PLACED AT THE CENTER TODAY

New Type of Alarm To Clear Traffic When Apparatus Approaching To Be Tested

The first of several proposed for alarm sirens was installed at the Center today. This will be operated electrically from police headquarters. The purpose is to help clear the nearby streets of traffic in case of a fire in that section.

The siren is similar to that of the fire trucks but is much larger and makes a louder sound. It will be placed on trial and if it is helpful in clearing traffic, others may be placed at various points about the town. Chief Albert Foy said today, August had a record of only one fire for the entire district covered by the S. M. F. D.
