BANK ADVERTISING IS IMPORTANT NOW

New York Financier Says No Field of Business Is in Greater Need of It At the Present Time.

New York, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The importance of advertising to finance was stressed today by Francis H. Sison, incoming president of the American Bankers Association, in an address at a luncheon of the New York Financial Advertisers.

Mr. Sison, who is vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company, said "the difficult conditions through which the financial world has passed in recent years have brought a new challenge to the financial advertiser."

"In no field of business," he added, "is there greater need for vigorous and intelligent advertising policies at present than in finance."

There are two fields in which publicity can be most profitably employed by bankers at the present time. First, to sell banking services in its various ramifications on the basis of its merit and value to the business community. Second, to spread a better understanding of banking and its functions to the general public.

ARMS CONFERENCE CALLED A FAILURE

British Labor Leader Disappointed Over Meager Results of the Parley.

Newcastle, Eng., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Disappointment and dissatisfaction is widespread in England and other countries over the meager results of the first six months of effort at the world disarmament conference at Geneva, Arthur Henderson, British labor leader and president of the arms conference, told the Trades Union Congress here today.

It was Henderson's first public pronouncement on disarmament since the adjournment of the Geneva conference. He said he frankly confessed the results were far from what he had expected.

"I would lead certainly," he said, "to a renewal and intensification of the old competitive race for armaments."

Germany, he said, had nothing to gain by leaving the conference, which was not responsible for her present position. Her case must be dealt with by the former allied and associated powers," he said.

HAMMOND FAVORS SILVER STANDARD

Engineer Urges Educational Campaign To Have World Learn Benefits.

Wellesley, Mass., Sept. 8.—(AP)—John Hays Hammond of Gloucester and New York, widely known mining engineer, would have "the people of the world exert their influence in behalf of the rehabilitation of silver."

"One cause contributing to the prevailing economic and financial depression," he told delegates to the 19th annual National Business Conference at Babson Institute, "is the appreciation of gold in gold-standard countries and the depreciation of silver in silver-standard countries."

"This condition could be remedied as contended by many authorities by the rehabilitation of silver through a reasonable stabilization of its value in relation to gold."

MONSIGNOR SPELLMAN CONSECRATED BISHOP

OFFERS SOLUTION OF FARM PROBLEM

Chairman Stone, of Federal Board, Claims Co-operation Is Solution.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Cooperative marketing is the opinion of James G. Stone, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, offers the only permanent solution for the farmer's problem.

Addressing the annual farm dinner at the New York State Fair last night, Chairman Stone urged New York farmers to fight for the cooperative plan. "The attack on it," he said, "has just started."

Stone defended the Federal Agricultural Marketing Act and the Farm Board, which administers the act, against what he said had been unjustified criticism.

HOOVER'S CHANCES O. K. FOR ELECTION

Ambassador Mellon Tells Reporters His Actions Already Show Effects.

London, Sept. 8.—(AP)—President Hoover's chances for re-election at the present time, Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon said on his return from the United States today are equally good as they were two months before the election in 1928.

"While from 1928 to 1931 prices paid to the farmer for his products dropped 41 per cent, costing them a billion dollars," Stone said, "the earnings available for stockholders in companies handling dairy products were in 1928 per cent greater in 1931 than in 1928."

What Cross Emphasized In Acceptance Speech

By Associated Press. Nothing in my career gives me greater personal satisfaction than that I have ever kept within the Democratic tradition that government exists for the welfare and happiness of all the people without distinction of racial antecedents or of religion.

In a larger sense ours (Democracy) is the party of the people—not of contentment—but of those forgotten men and those forgotten women. "Who live, love, labor, free, nor discuss A brother's right to freedom."

We entered the campaign two years ago fearful, disappointed, the governor stood alone as your representative in the executive department. At the outset, the General Assembly assumed a hostile attitude. As time went on the Republican proposal that the governor should propose that they should cooperate with him in a large measure of legislation for the public welfare.

PRICE OF COTTON TAKES $3 SLUMP

Contracts Sell Heavily On Market Following Reports of a Big Crop.

New York, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Cotton broke $3 to a bale here today on the government crop report, which placed the indicated yield well above trade expectations. At the reopening of the market following the report, contracts were sold heavily.

Prior to the report the market was ruling slightly above the previous final and its general firmness was attributed to expectations of a bullish government estimate. Due to reports of insect damage and deterioration, the trade had looked for an indicated yield of around 10,700,000 bales, or in line with some of the heavy liquidation of long cotton that had been carried over the report came into the market as well as general selling from many sources. Mills and the trade in this country supplied most of the support, but their purchases were made on a scale which was below the market rather ineffective support.

October contracts sold at 8.25 cents off $3.35 a bale, December 8.25 off $4.10, January 8.25 off $3.95 and May 8.25 off $3.65.

SPORT SLANTS

ZALAN GOULD
BRANCH HEAD, SEASIDE SPORTS EDITOR

Branch Rickey was not spoofing your correspondent this spring when he outlined the reconstruction policy of the Cardinals, which removed them quite definitely from the pennant picture, and at the same time sounded the slogan:

"Watch the Cards in 1933."

It is seldom when any major league organization can afford to tear its machinery apart after a world's series conquest, thereby forfeiting the chances of repeating and still be confident of coming back quickly.

Only an organization such as the Cardinals, with their almost limitless resources in player talent, could do it. Even then it takes a rare combination, such as the Breardon-Sickey leadership possesses, to make it look good.

Consider what the Cards will be able to show when they are turned face up for inspection next spring: Dizzy Dean and Tex Carson, two great young pitchers, with a year's experience behind them and all the confidence needed to move along at a swift pace.

Pepper Martin, on the upgrade again after experiencing the reaction that was bound to follow his startling 1931 flight.

Paul Dean, a sensational young pitcher who will be coming up with almost as great a record behind him as Brother Dizzy.

Joe Medwick, best all-around outfielder in the Texas League and a .360 hitter.

Seasoned players like Wilson, Watkins, Frisch and Gelbert to hold down the key positions and fingers like Hallahan, Derringer and Johnson to steady the young firebrands.

Upside Down

The Cardinals, even though the situation was partially calculated, look no more nose-divers this year than the New York Giants, who lost John McGraw as well as a lot of pre-season confidence and prestige.

The Cubs, on the other hand, didn't start their upward drive until Rogers Hornsby was ousted and replaced by Charley Grimm.

The Cardinals, the Giants and the Cubs were picked to figure in a three-cornered scramble for the 1932 pennant, with the Cubs as the outsider among the three, but the end of August found the Braves well in front, with Pittsburgh and Brooklyn doing the pursuit stuf.

First 2,500 Hardest

In passing if anybody is interested in a few big numbers, it seems that Connie Mack's Athletics have passed the 2,500 mark in victories under the regime of the tall tutor. They only needed 77 to touch that figure, and they reached it before the end of August.

Mack's nine championship clubs, according to Ernie Lane, who counted for 886 triumphs and his seven tall-enders for 823. The others turned in 1,291 victories toward the total of the first 2,500.

No fewer than a dozen pitchers contributed more than 50 victories, including Grove, Barnshaw and Walberg of the current A's. The biggest contributor, by a wide margin, was Eddie Plank, who turned in 225 victories, followed by Chief Bender with 191, and Ed Rommel with around 175. Grove, fourth on the list, added 156 to the list. Rube Waddell, Jack Combs and Rube Walberg each contributed more than 100, but Barnshaw was considerably short of this figure.

The others contributing 50 or more were Jack Quinn, Slim Harris, Joe Bush and Jimmy Dyer.

WORKED TOO WELL

Detroit.—A minor traffic accident claimed the attention of Patrolman Hoffmann. The officer decided to inspect the brakes of the car, driven by Frank Manzo, who was involved in the accident. Frank was so sure his brakes were in good condition that he offered to show the policeman himself. Patrolman Hoffmann stopped on the runway board of the car. When he saw a flash, he stepped on the brakes so hard that the officer was thrown off the running board and on to the street. The brakes worked to perfection.

Motor Hints

Timely Suggestions on the Care of the Car by the Automobile Club of Hartford.

Installing New Plugs

One of the detailed changes in car ownership which every motorist should bear in mind concerns the condition of new spark plugs. It isn't so long ago that owners were warned not to consider the points of the plugs properly set when new, but to reset them for the particular motor with which they are to be used. Today the plugs should be used exactly as received, they are the correct type for the motor.

If the motor is of the higher compression type, with a pressure of around 100 pounds to the square inch, the points will be found set for around .018". Should the owner increase the gap he would be making a great mistake as if he were to add a plug of the wrong heat range.

In addition to being packaged for particular types and kinds of motors the modern plugs are done up in such a way that even if the cartons are dropped the points are protected against sanding.

Brightening Dim Lights

Lights that are supposed to be merely dimmed often are too dim even for city driving. This may be due to the use of a dimmer of too great a resistance and, if so, the condition can be remedied.

A dimmer device on a car is simply a coil of resistance wire. If part of the coil is cut off the resistance is reduced and the lights will burn more brightly because more current can flow to the bulbs.

The change is easily made since the resistance usually is placed behind the switch, around the fuse box or at some other convenient point.

The resistance is originally installed on the car may be correct for conditions where the battery is fully charged and the consumption of current is normal but often owners add a lot of additional electrical devices and lights which have the effect of making the dimmer resistance too high.

Water On the Springs

Observing motorists often notice that their cars ride easier after a wash, but seldom know the reason why. The period of easy riding is, true enough, temporary, but it is long enough to be noticed.

The truth of the matter is the springs get pretty well watered during a wash, especially if a high pressure system is used so that water is forced between the spring leaves. Under such circumstances water acts as a temporary lubricant.

Just as exposed bearings will slip after a washing and until they dry out so the spring leaves slip as though oil had been forced between them when they are thoroughly wet.

The motorist who continues to drive with springs uncovered, however, must suffer the penalty of the rust that follows as well as many other troubles that develop where springs are not protected.

Caster May Be Reversed

Where a car has what is known as reverse caster there is always the possibility that a misguided mechanic will add to the complications should any trouble develop with the steering. Most front axles are set for the regular caster effect in which the front of the axle is higher than the rear, tilting slightly upward.

Some cars have differed from the usual run just enough so that the steering assembly comes through from the factory with the caster reversed. In one case this ran to as much as between 2 and 3 degrees. Between 1 and 2 degrees of reverse caster is not uncommon. Now and again a repairman will discover this and assume that the caster is wrong. Without checking up with factory specifications he will make a troublesome alteration.

Should he give the axle a normal caster he may deviate from the particular car's specifications as much as 4 or 5 degrees.

Pep Not Always Power

There is a period in the life of every automobile motor when it loses some of its truer power and acquires more pep. This occurs when the pistons, rings and cylinder walls start to wear.

A motorist often will complain of lowered efficiency of the motor yet feel that it is as powerful as before.

He should say that the motor is poppy, its new liveliness is due to the looser fitting of its parts, including the wear on the main and connecting rod bearings.

Wear on the rings and walls results in a lowering of compression. More gas is required to obtain the same power output. This is especially true on long grades and during acceleration. Because the motor seems to have acquired more power, because of its liveliness, there is a tendency to accelerate too freely. This would increase gas consumption under any circumstances.

At higher speeds, or when heated up, a warm motor often shows reasonable efficiency. This is because the pistons expand abnormally.

Checking Low Gas Mileage

Persistently low gasoline mileage often calls for some special detective work on the part of the car owner. If he would fit the cause of the added expense he must consider some of the less obvious possibilities.

Clutch slippage is one explanation of mileage reduction. This can be very extensive without the driver noticing it, if he happens to use the car mostly in traffic and over level streets. Another frequent cause of gas mileage drop is late timing. This may develop suddenly.

When everything has been considered it is well to try locking the cap of the gas tank, as someone may be syphoning fuel from the system.

A leak in the fuel line is another possible explanation of a higher rate of gas consumption. If the motor habitually operates better, or if the wrong kind of oil is used, gas mileage may also diminish.

Mayor Cermak told a Betty audience that the bandits have been driven out of Chicago. By their chauffeurs, probably.

NEW YORK WOMAN CALLED "MRS. BERN"

New Angle Discovered In Hollywood's Latest Tragedy—Bern Paid Her Bills.

New York, Sept. 8.—(AP)—An attractive blonde, about 35 years old, who made her home for nearly ten years at a West 44th street hotel but who left there several months ago without giving a forwarding address, was believed today to have been the "other woman" in the life of the late Paul Bern of Hollywood.

She lived at the hotel as "Mrs. Paul Bern," she paid the bills with checks from "Paul Bern" in Hollywood. She seldom left her room, taking all her meals there, and she seemed to have few acquaintances.

At the hotel today it was said Bern, the film executive whose suicide is now puzzling Hollywood, visited her about once a year. The last visit being in October, 1931.

MAKE NO STATEMENT

Los Angeles, Sept. 8.—(AP)—A conference between Jean Harlow, platinum blonde screen actress, and Henry Bern, New Rochelle, N. Y., ended at 1 a. m. today without a statement concerning the apparent suicide of Paul Bern, husband of the actress and brother of Henry.

Bern, who arrived by airplane late last night after a dash across the continent, said there would be a statement "soon enough." He expressed a desire to confer first with relatives.

From the airport Bern went direct to the home of Miss Harlow. Their conference was unattended by any other relatives, friends or police officers who have been investigating the death of the 42-year-old film executive who was found in his home Monday with a bullet wound in his head, a discharged pistol in his hand and a note signed "Paul," addressed to the "Dearest Dear" and confessing a "rightful wrong."

He has been with the government postal department the greater part of the time.

While reporting his condition as satisfactory his physician said that he would not be able to attend to any business for several weeks.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The bull market in stocks encountered some decided selling today, receiving a particularly sharp jolt in a larger than expected government cotton crop estimate.

Speculators for the rice market, with determination against a large volume of profit taking, and after many of the leaders had lost 1 to more than 2 points in the middle of the day, in sympathy with a break in cotton, the list recovered somewhat in the early afternoon. Trading was in huge volumes, but a number of prominent issues, notably U. S. Steel, had failed to make notable progress on the upside from the start.

Steel dropped 2 1/2 points to 60 in the middle selling, then recovered partially. Such issues as American Telephone, Santa Fe, Dupont, Case and United Aircraft got down about 2 points, and miscellaneous issues of a point or more at the lower end included American Can, Bethlehem, Consolidated Gas, General Electric, Westinghouse, Eastman, North American and others.

Rails retained a substantial part of a morning rise, however, Norfolk Western led off with a gain of 2 points after a slump of 6. In the fourth hour, Southern Pacific was up 2 points, and New York Central, American Radiator, Johns Manville, Lorillard and Corn Products were up 1 to 1 1/2.

The day's news was by no means devoid of items susceptible to bullish construction, but the recent advance had been so swift that traders were anxious to take profits. Despite some convincing signs of a seasonal quickening of business activity, cautious traders pointed out that it might be well to wait before business improvement is reflected in substantial gains in corporate earnings. Many leading stock calculations, will show no profits applicable to the common stocks for the full year 1932. A survey by Standard Statistics indicates that with two or three exceptions, the leading steel and automobile manufacturers will show no earnings for their common stock for 1932. Nevertheless, the more enthusiastic bulls felt that it was currently time to anticipate improvement in 1933, and some felt that earnings should recover quickly, in view of operating economies inaugurated during the depression years.

While the August automobile production figures had shown a considerable shrinkage, this was evidently due in part to the Ford shutdown. Tangible evidence of the reported quickening of retail sales during the month appeared in General Motors monthly report, issued at noon. August sales of General Motors cars to consumers in the

A CONTRAST

In nominating former Governor John H. Trumbull for the first place in its state ticket the Republican party of Connecticut has provided itself with a gubernatorial candidate presenting the strongest possible contrast to the present incumbent.

John H. Trumbull has served the people of this state, in the capacity of governor, for three terms. There never was a moment of that time when he was not alert, enterprising, determined and effective.

In support of the head of the ticket, the list of nominees for the other state officers could not well be improved upon.

The convention and the party are to be congratulated on the unqualified support they gave to Senator Bingham's position on prohibition.

MR. BUTLER, ARTIST. If there is any derivation that since the Civil War could by any possibility be attributed to the Republican party and which was overlooked by Robert P. Butler, key-note of the Democratic state convention, it is probably not to be found in any campaign book.

Also it is perfectly obvious that Mr. Butler was just as painstaking in elimination as in inclusion, for in his survey of the performances of the G. O. P. there is simply no good deed—not even an innocuous or excusable one.

To the Hartford key-note must go the palm for having scooped the top-most pinnacle of partisan one-sidedness. Even the famous Claude Bowers never quite so completely put the wretched old elephant so completely in his barrel.

Of course it wasn't Mr. Butler's job to explain, when he was pointing the iniquities of the protective tariff, that members of his own party were among the most conspicuous log-rollers who helped to produce the Smoot-Hawley bill.

work of Democrats in both houses of Congress. But then, how seriously Mr. Butler's speech is to be taken is best of all illustrated by that part of it in which he said, referring to Governor Cress: "Not since the beloved Tom Water of blessed memory has Connecticut had a governor so close to the hearts of the people."

Mr. Butler did say that. He actually said it—and kept his face straight. Nimble witted, expansively genial, diplomatically cunning, winsome Tom Water of the silver tongue and the fiery heart—who could wrap friend and enemy alike around his little finger and get anybody anywhere to do anything for him at any time, and did! What a comparison!

ANTHRACITE. It is well known that the anthracite coal industry has been flourishing for some time from a diminishing market. This was true even before the depression.

The reason, of course, is perfectly obvious to those of us who live in the anthracite-using areas of the country. Coal costs too much. It was out of line with general prices, as the boom times. It is ridiculously so now.

It is therefore of very lively interest to many people far from the anthracite fields that spokesmen of the United Mine Workers of America and the anthracite operators are now discussing a proposal of the latter to reduce wages from 20 to 25 per cent.

The operators insist that they cannot regain their fading market, and so of course cannot long continue to operate their mines, at the existing schedule of miners' pay. They must, they say, get their coal cheaper in order to sell it at a price that consumers can pay.

The miners, on the other hand, contend that it is not excessive wages but high freight rates, excessive royalties and too big a spread between producer and consumer that are responsible for the inability of the public to buy hard coal fast enough to keep the industry going.

Wages in the mine fields and on the railroads are, of course, very much higher than in those days. But we should vary much like to see authoritative figures on the actual production and transportation cost of a ton of anthracite, today, and the figures for 1882.

deal too much at the retail price of each ton of hard coal goes to pay dividends and royalties and that in many instances the same people got both the royalties and the dividends.

Mr. McKee's wisecrack. Jimmy Walker won his way into the hearts of the New York rabble by wisecracking. Within a few days of his unexpected elevation to the mayoralty Mr. McKee has made a crack so much wiser than any of Jimmy's that, if the rag-tag has one fourth of the appreciation of the harassed taxpayer, will make him so much bigger than Jimmy, in popular esteem, that New York soon won't be able to see the latter at all.

From right now my salary will be cut from $40,000 to $35,000, and hereafter no commissioner appointed by the mayor will draw more than $12,000. The full force of this bon-mot is understandable when it is disclosed that there are two such commissioners who have been pulling down $25,000 a year, one $22,500, three $20,000, five $17,500 and sixteen $15,000.

A hundred and fifty-one thousand dollars yearly savings, to a city which pays a million dollars a day in salaries and wages, is a drop in the bucket, to be sure. But it might be gratifying to the New Yorker conscious of being eaten alive by the cost of municipal government to receive such assurance of a determination to really economize as is given by this action of the city's new mayor.

IN NEW YORK. Over the Moon. New York, Sept. 3.—When "The Cat and the Fiddle" recently jumped over all Broadway hit records of the year, mooning producers continued to scratch their heads and ponder the strange case of Max Gordon.

Gordon's theatrical education began while attending City College of New York. His evening diversion was hanging around the burlesque theaters, then featuring such performers as Fanny Brice, James Barton, Leon Errol and Clark and Mollie Culloch.

Gadget Gables. The pent-house-office idea has captured Billy Rose, another successful rebel. High up in the peak of the glided Wurlitzer building, Rose maintains a "house of gadgets."

Notes believe that an office should be as exciting as a stage set. Since he must deal with singers, hoofers.

LOVE OR MONEY
by H. W. CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MONA TOWNSEND, beautiful young widow, inherits her husband's millions with the provision that she must not be rewed. Her marriage was arranged by her husband's lawyer who was Mona's employer, was a strange affair, leaving her free at the end of a year to become her husband's wife in actuality or secure a divorce.

Mona, in love with her husband's nephew, BARRY TOWNSEND, agreed to the marriage when she thought Barry was lost to her. She employs LOTTIE CARR, a fashion model, as her secretary-companion and they set out for South America, where Barry and STEVE SACARELLI are partners in a diamond mine. Mona's brother, BUD, works at the mine. Mona hopes for a reconciliation with Barry. She also feels Barry is entitled to a share of his uncle's fortune and wants to find a way to arrange this legally.

Learning that Barry and Steve are on vacation at Holiday Island, the girls leave their boat at Port of Spain. There they meet Bud who takes them to Holiday Island. Barry and Steve are cordial, but their growing lack of interest in Mona's wishes had not come. Barry does not ask for explanations and she cannot make them.

After several days Lottie declares they must take matters into their own hands. She urges Mona to have a frank talk with Barry.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIV

It was Barry's voice that Mona heard. "Oh, my darling, you've come at last!"

Barry was beside her. After all these days and weeks of courteous formality, the coldness almost, he was again the Barry she had learned to love. For a moment Mona did not speak, did not turn her head. She sank against the white linen shoulder, against the arm which enclosed her and sighed.

Then, still without speaking, she raised her hand and pressed it against Barry's face. "Yes, Barry, I—I'm here!" They stood in silence. The sands lay white around them. The sea under the white moonlight rippled quietly. The flamboyant trees close at hand swayed softly. There seemed no one else in the world except these two.

"Mona did not look at Barry. Her head sank low against his shoulder. She could feel the beating of his heart as she felt as her own. "Mona, why did you do it, darling?" he said at last.

"Do what, Barry?" Still she did not look at him. He had caught her hand in his own. "Do what? Oh, Mona, now could you! Why did you marry my uncle?" The despair in his voice tore her heart.

"Why did you run away?" she countered. He was miserable and she was adding to his misery. "How could I stay when I knew?"

"Barry!" He did not speak for a moment but his arm tightened about her. "Barry! Do you think I married your uncle for his money?" "It certainly looked that way, you knew I had none. You knew—"

She shook her head. The tendril of her hair touched his cheek. "How could you think that of me?" Mona demanded. "You hadn't asked me to marry you. You hadn't even said you loved me!"

"But you knew?" "I thought I did! That was why when Mr. Garrison asked me to rush to Twilands and marry Barry Townsend I didn't hesitate! That was the way it all happened, Barry! It didn't occur to me that your uncle's name was Barry, too! It didn't occur to me that I was going to Twilands for any other reason except to marry you!"

"But when Garrison told you it was my uncle—?" Barry began. "He didn't! We talked it all over without mentioning the man's name. Finally I asked him just as I was going out the door who the man was and he said "Barry Townsend." "And you thought you were going to Twilands to marry me?" Barry said slowly. Mona nodded. "Until I was there in the silk room." "And by that time I was on board the Mirandas!" Barry's head dropped miserably and Mona touched his cheek. "It's not too late now, Barry," she said timidly. "It's not too late. We aren't old yet. And we're here—"

"How can I marry my uncle's wife?" demanded Barry bitterly. "My aunt!" He stared into space. "Mona, oh, how could you—how could you!"

"Your uncle's widow, Barry," Mona whispered, "but never his wife! I was never that!" "You mean—?" "I mean I was to consider the marriage for a year. I told you that before. He died before the year ended."

There was a silence in which little Barry's misery spent itself. Here was Mona, loving him wholeheartedly, just as she had explained away. She had come to him of her own accord, since she guessed rightly that he would not seek her out.

"They would be married tomorrow! They would go to Port of Spain and the consul could perform the ceremony. Was there anything irregular about marrying one's attendants. They could live here always in happiness and peace. Why not?"

Mona stirred in Barry's arms. She laughed a little, happily. "Will you marry me, Mona? Right away?" He could feel her stiffen suddenly at the words. "I can't do that, Barry."

"Why not?" "Why do we have to think about that now? Isn't it enough that we have found each other and understand each other?" "But I don't understand you, Mona. His voice was hurt, puzzled. "You said you loved me and now you say you can't marry me! Why?"

She did not answer for a moment. "I have something I must do first, Barry," she said slowly. "You mean you must go home first?" She shook her head at this, then slowly nodded. "Maybe. It might be necessary."

"There isn't any reason why you can't marry me, is there?" he asked quickly. "Uncle didn't bind you in any way? He didn't specify that you could never marry me?" "Not exactly. He said—"

"Then it's the money!" "Then it's the money!" she nodded, agreement and Barry's expression hardened. "You mean if you marry me you'll forfeit your right to the fortune?" "As the girl did not speak he went on again. "Is that what you meant, Mona?" "If I marry anyone, Barry?" "You mean you lose the money and you care for that? It means more than your love for me? Is that what you're trying to say?" Tell me you would rather have this money than marry me! Tell me!" He shook her fiercely. "You don't understand," Mona began. "I do want to marry you some time. But not now."

"Why not?" "It is because you want to enjoy your fortune a little longer? Mona, can't you take me as I am with what I have to give you? Isn't that enough?" "Do you own half the mine, Barry?" she asked deliberately. He considered this. "No," he said, "but what has that to do with it? I'm not starving. You wouldn't starve as my wife."

FOR YOUR CHILDREN

SCHOOL DAYS HERE, REMEMBER THESE Things for mothers to remember:

Don't take sides with the children against the teacher. If things go wrong or you are convinced that John or Mary is not getting a square deal it is best to put all prejudices in your pocket and go out and find what the real trouble is. Home work is less and less popular, but there are cases when it must be done. When John has home work try to see that he has quiet, private places to study. And try to co-operate with him about hours to himself.

Children in school all day need time to exorcise after sitting in a crowded room. An hour's play in the fresh air when weather is good is necessary to the health of the child. Get the children to school on time. Don't let them go without breakfast. A warm lunch is better than a cold one. Don't criticize. Eight o'clock bed time for six to nine-year olds. Nine o'clock for other children up to high school age. Early movies or none except on Fridays and Saturdays. Don't criticize. Give each child a clean handkerchief every morning. Twice a day if he has a cold.

If a child has a temperature (a clinical thermometer is a necessity in every home—they are very easy to read) don't let him go to school. Don't criticize the teacher before your boy or girl. Try to meet the teacher outside of school hours or on a short friendly visit. The principal, too.

Things for the teacher to remember: Fifty children have fifty homes. cleaning cream and cold cream. And don't forget to brush the dust from your hair faithfully and conscientiously.

KEEPING STEP WITH GOOD POSTURE It is surprising how many people don't know how to walk. Their weight rests on their heels, and their feet, we grow fatigued and tired. They grow tired and don't know the reason why they do.

A few suggestions would help to send them along the right path. Take your position against the wall. Remember that your heels, buttocks, shoulder blades and the back of your head level with your nose should touch the wall. Now imagine that a pulley is raising your head. Then step out. When you do it, keep slightly forward with your shoulders. For get them. Let them go. They'll do the forward act unconsciously.

Now pretend that you have a new pair of rubber heels and can't afford another pair of them for a year. Since you will let most of your weight go forward. Never let your heels come down first. If this doesn't help, pretend that you are wearing a pair of new shoes, which you may decide not to wear them you will walk lightly, saving the heels.

Walk across the floor several times. Keep this exercise in mind whenever you are walking. It is practical and can be done anywhere. Keeping a graceful position when you are sitting is another important part of the program. Choose a chair that is comfortable. Make sure that it has a back that will support you. Now sit at your shoulders touch the back of the chair. Don't slide down on your spine. Stay erect. Let your feet rest on the floor. This position may sound stiff but it is surprisingly comfortable. The correct way to walk or sit is usually the easiest way. It is astounding how difficult we make life sometimes.

Oh, Baby! All the pretty babies won't be in perambulators when the annual baby parade is held at Wildwood, N. J., this year. For instance, there's a young Margaret Daniel (above), of Eastlinton, Ark., who has been chosen to ride in "Queen Cecilia's" during the celebration.

TAKE BEAUTY WITH YOU IN TRAVELING When you are traveling, of course you want to look as though you just stepped out of a hand box. But when you are traveling you usually don't.

Naturally, you want to make a good appearance when you leave the train and greet your family or your hostess. It can be done! But you must take along the right beauty aids. First of all, make sure that you have a large jar of cleansing cream that will melt into your pores, and fairly force out the grime and dust. Take cleansing tissues with you. Pulling towels deserve better treatment than the dirt of the trip will give them, if they are used for cleansing purposes. Besides, your face is softer if the fabric of the towel doesn't compel the dirt to lodge.

You will need soap, too. Liquid soap has its limitations. A bar of your favorite toilet soap will make a real hit. Body powder is important, too. Now and then a woman hesitates to use cold cream on the train for fear the dust particles will adhere to it. By all means use it. Your face is protected by it, rather than exposed. You make-up should follow your usual routine.

Wait until you are half an hour from your destination before performing your final cleansing rites for arrival. You will not only look fresh and lovely but you will feel that way, as well. If you are making a long journey, don't neglect your appearance, however, thinking that you will make up for it just before leaving the train. Your self admiration scores higher if you are always prepared, in case an old friend turns up, or a good looking man boards the train at the next stop. If no one does, it is remarkable how much more jubilant you will feel just because the mirrors in the car (tell you that you are worth a second glance.

By HELEN WILSHAMER

I TITLED this to anything... Running water... Make no sudden whir of dust... Lead to where you are.

IF I took a moment's rest... Running step and... Would I see you grow fat? Right against the sky?

IF I chose a valley road... Lilies blooming late... Rain-sweet in a dark blue night... Might show what you want.

I MUST take town roads instead— Only now and then... When a hardy-gurdy plays... And it's dark again.

ALL the twisted little paths... Running near and far... Make me wonder which of them... Leads to where you are.

FAIRLY THE HEART

Nervous Condition or Rheumatism? Ask the Cause Mysterious

EDITORIAL NOTE: This is the first of two articles by Dr. Fishbein on Pain in the Heart. The second will be printed tomorrow.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Pain is a danger signal. For that very reason, however, nature has placed limitations on our awareness of pain. Otherwise, we should constantly be in dread. For that reason also pain is seldom felt in any of the internal organs unless there is some powerful stimulus such as swelling of an organ in its envelope or an excessive contraction of any of the hollow organs of the body such as the intestines or the tubes which carry away the excretions.

Because the heart is such a vital organ it may undergo only a fairly extreme change before arousing sufficient pain to cause exceeding distress. This fact is emphasized by Dr. Carey F. Coombs, a famous British physician interested in research of the heart.

On the other hand, he says, there are cases in which extreme pain is suffered in the region of the heart and in which no serious damage is found when the heart is examined after death.

In few instances are pains in the body sufficient in themselves to merit the dignity of diseases. They are, in most instances, symptoms of diseases associated with changes in organs.

There are two instances in which pains are in themselves apparently the chief factor in the disease; namely, the facial neuritis that is called trigeminal neuralgia and the serious pain in the region of the heart that is known as angina pectoris.

Dr. Coombs lists several types of pain in the heart. Probably most frequent are those very discomforts called palpitations which vary from the peculiar feeling in the region of the heart observed by a nervous boy or a man worried about a physical examination to the serious anxiety and distress felt by the person whose heart is suddenly beating at a rate of several hundred per minute.

Extra beats of the heart and skipped beats may also occasion alarming unrest. It is now recognized that many people without grave disturbance of the heart, but with a good deal of mental or physical excitement to the region of the left ventricle and sometimes mislead physicians into a wrong diagnosis of heart disease.

Such a symptom is often associated with nervous exhaustion and general weakness and particularly with unusual fatigue.

There are, of course, as well, cases of pain due to actual inflammation of the envelope of the heart or to serious narrowing of the valves of the heart.

Sinclair Lewis says that the next president of the United States will be a fathead. He evidently believes in judging the future by the past.

If you take the most old-fashioned LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these things out of your system, you will have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. You often feel sick and your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is out of balance.

But don't take five pills. Take the LITTLE LIVER PILLS. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the wrapper. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is out of balance.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Carmarant Lake, Man.—Robert Millikan, noted American scientist, has been so busy finding out about cosmic rays that he apparently hasn't glanced at any sports pages recently. When he was informed that Geo Wood won the Harmsworth motor boat races, he looked interested. "Who is Gar Wood?" he asked.

Denver.—If the pickpocket who got away with Saylor Guy McWhittier's furs knew he robbed a writer of a visit with the home folks in Greenville, Ky., maybe he'd have a sorry conscience. McWhittier was on his way home when the thief took $110 from him. Sady he started back to the battleship Nevada at Seattle.

St. Paul.—Porkers on the State House lawn: That's Farmer Charles E. Ott's idea of retribution. Appeal before the governor to complain the state's deer was spoiling his truck garden, he shouted: "If it isn't stopped I'll turn my pigs loose around the Capitol." The governor referred the matter to the game and fish department.

Cleveland.—Elliott Robinson, 29, is minus his teeth but he can register a complaint. He had a quarrel with his girl friend, he told an assistant police prosecutor. "Go to make sure I'd come back she took my teeth." The girl, explaining, she had lost the teeth, was given a day to find them.

Ossining, N. Y.—The Sing Sing prison football team is relying on the Rockne system to even up for their defeat by the Port Jervis team last year. John Law, captain on the 1929 Notre Dame eleven and now a real estate man, comes to the prison once a week to drill the team's back field.

Ottawa.—Just another example of how times change. Of the 406 doctors, attending the 12th Congress of French-speaking doctors of America, not more than a dozen have beards.

London, Eng.—Where formerly the advertising messages on the backs of local omnibus tickets were such as to induce thirsty thoughts of a frothy cup of ale, they will, from now on, direct the minds of omnibus riders more toward the spiritual side of life. Indignant at the omnibus company's policy of allowing drink advertisements to appear on the back of train tickets, a religious society has booked the space hereafter for the insertion of religious texts.

STORM WARNING

Washington, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The Weather Bureau today issued the following storm warning: "Advisory 10 a. m. storm warnings displayed Cape Hatteras, to Eastport, N. H., except whole gale warnings Rhode Island and southeastern Massachusetts coast; local disturbance of wide extent and great intensity centered about thirty-six North Seventy West moving rapidly northward attended by wind hurricane force over considerable area.

What Delegates Cheered In Keynoters Address

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Excerpts from the keynote address of Robert F. Butler which were applauded at the Democratic State convention:
Two years ago the voters of Connecticut, fed up on the hand-picked candidates of a one-man Republican oligarchy, turned eagerly to the support of our nominee for governor and elected our own "Uncle Toby."

In the light of the past three years I say without hesitation that Mr. Hoover on that occasion in 1922 (during the oil lease wars) proved conclusively his monumental political ineptitude and stupidity, six years before a deceived and a deluded people elevated him to the presidency.

I venture the prediction that when Franklin Roosevelt is elected to the presidency we shall find, out more, much more than we are now permitted to know by a Republican administration (concerning marketing of foreign bonds).

reductions in armaments universally the conference not only will have created a position of grave world danger.

After this speech the Congress adopted a resolution demanding that the delegates representing the South Wales Myners Union urged the Congress not to sponsor the Hoover proposals because President Hoover is "The Archangel of Capitalism." He urged adoption of the disarmament proposals advanced by Soviet Russia.

It was adopted unanimously although a delegate representing the South Wales Myners Union urged the Congress not to sponsor the Hoover proposals because President Hoover is "The Archangel of Capitalism." He urged adoption of the disarmament proposals advanced by Soviet Russia.

Arthur Hayday, who sponsored the resolution, said all labor leaders would compromise with capitalism if they could obtain reduction in working hours.

buying power of those who purchase farm products."

Stone said that in three troubled years the Farm Board has made loans to farmers' cooperative organizations of $1,019,000,000. This, he said, in turn encouraged further credit from private sources.

The board, Stone added, had loaned $3,941,499 to eight farm organizations in New York state.

SHOWBOAT SINKS

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 8.—(AP)—A showboat that once proudly plied the Ohio river between Cincinnati and Pittsburgh sank ignominiously in the Licking river early today. Rats had gnawed holes in its planks.

The boat was the "Valley" owned by Harry Hart. He, his wife, their child and his parents were sleeping aboard when the boat listed and sank at its moorings. All escaped.

Hart said he and his family had operated the show boat for years but had temporarily given up their tours and had been using the craft only as living quarters.

STEAMER NOT IN DANGER

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Sept. 8.—(AP)—The master of the Munson freighter Munloy advised Coast Guard headquarters today that his vessel is in no immediate danger in the tropical storm area off the Florida coast and would not require the assistance of Coast Guard cutters.

The radio message said the weather is moderating and that a tug from Key West is coming to the Munloy's assistance.

Yesterday the freighter reported she had lost her propeller 350 miles off the coast and was drifting near the tropical disturbance.

Soon after the first message was received, Coast Guard headquarters dispatched two cutters to aid her.

PARALYSIS DROPS OFF

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—(AP)—With only ten new cases of infantile paralysis reported in the city during the last 24 hours, officials of the Department of Public Health today expressed the belief the arrival of cool weather had helped stop the spread of the disease.

The number of new cases is half the total reported yesterday. Three additional deaths yesterday and the total for the year to date, cases, with 46 deaths. Although officials were elated over the reduction in the number of cases, they stated there would be no slowing up in the work of combing the disease and two new transfusion clinics were opened.

ASK RULING ON BANK

Hartford, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The Federal Home Loan Bank today requested a ruling of Attorney General W. B. Burrows on the eligibility of building and loan associations to banks and insurance companies to subscribe for stock in the Federal Home Loan Bank of this district.

The date of reconvening the Connecticut General Assembly is also requested, in a wire sent by Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the Federal Home Loan bank board at Washington, D. C.

A reply in the form of a ruling is expected in two or three days. Attorney General Burrows and Deputy Attorney General Averill took the matter under advisement.

ELECTRO-SURGERY

New York, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Dr. Grant E. Ward, assistant in clinical surgery at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, told the American Congress of Physical Therapy today that electro-surgery is effective in making operative incisions.

"Although originally electro-surgery was introduced for the destruction of tumors and cancers," he said, "many non-malignant conditions are now attacked. Operative incisions can be made as cleanly as with the ordinary surgical knife."

He said the most important factors which influence the results are "a precise knowledge of the high frequency currents used, sound surgical judgment, careful pre- and post-operative care of wounds and accurate attention to the general condition of the patient."

JAPAN MAY WITHDRAW FROM NATIONS LEAGUE

Montreal, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Ezra Nitobe, member of the Japanese House of Peers, said today that Japan will feel impelled to withdraw from the League of Nations if the Lytton report on the Far Eastern situation is unfavorable to his country.

Dr. Nitobe is on the way to New York for a meeting of the Institute of Pacific Relations. The Lytton report already has been forwarded to the League secretariat by the commission appointed to investigate conditions in the Far East.

The Japanese statesman expressed a high opinion of the League but voiced the hope that "the League will not make the blunder of passing judgment upon Japan."

Manchuria, he said, is Japan's natural resource and as a field for investment. In addition, he said, it provides security against encroachment from the west, but because of its climate it will never prove an outlet for Japanese population.

A novelist makes the hero say: "As I gaze upon your face, time stands still" and the heroine protests: "Why should I have you do, to match this silly wadding whether it means that her face would stop a clock."

Singing Day
When the sky is gloomy
And the world is gray—
When the rain is pouring—
That's my singing day!

To sing when life is gay,
But when troubles gather—
Be that your singing day!

Lady—Yes, he is in the barn with the cattle.

Insurance Agent—Shall I have any trouble finding him?
Lady—No. He's the only one with the whiskers.

About one-fifth of the state of Florida is composed of rivers, streams and lakes. No doubt the other four-fifths is occupied by marshes, orange groves and real estate agents.

A woman advertised for a man to work in her garden. Two men applied for the job. While she was interviewing them she noticed that her mother was making signs to her to choose the smaller. When the women were alone, the daughter said:
Daughter—Why did you signal me to choose the little man, mother?
The other had a much better face.

Mother—Face! When you pick a man to work in your garden you want to go by his trousers. If they are patched on the knees, you want him; if they're patched on the seat, you don't.

If prosperity will only come back, we will forgive her almost anything.

Angry Man (to superintendent of the railroad)—I have come here to get justice, sir. Yesterday, as my wife was getting off one of your cars the conductor stepped on her dress and tore a yard of frilling of the skirt.

The Superintendent (remaining very cool)—Well, sir, I don't know that we are to blame for that. What do you expect us to do? Get her a new dress?

Angry Man—No, sir! I don't intend to let you off so easily as that.

DEPRESSION HONEYMOON

New Lexington, O.—No matter what the circumstances, or how low the finances are, every newly-wed couple should have a honeymoon. It is the way Mervin Miller, Hobson, O., figured. So, with little regard for falling soot and discomfort, he and his bride boarded a gondola of coal on a fast freight train and commenced their honeymoon by rail. They'd still be going if they hadn't been mistaken for a burglar and a girl friend who had broken from jail. They were taken off the train here and held until identified.

London.—Scotland Yard is testing a new device to stop automobile bandits. It is in the form of a bomb that is hurled in front of a speeding car. As it explodes it releases coils of fine wire springs contained in the bomb which ensnare the brake-drums of the car.

As customary, Coach Kelley started things off again this year with a bang when he announced that football practice would start today.

For about a half-hour Coach Kelley talked to the boys on the fundamental rules which it is necessary for them to know concerning the league.
