WHAT THEY'RE UP TO
 Republicans who have permitted their devotion to the cause of federal prohibition to overmaster their sense of political and economic responsibility will do well to take heed of the exhortation of D. Leigh Colvin, vice-president of the National Conference of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment, at the state convention of the Independent Republican party on Saturday.

Mr. Colvin, who it will be remembered is a product of a Tennessee school which trains young men, disinclined to work, for the profession of prohibition, urged the Independers to do to Hiram Bingham what Colvin and his crowd did to former Senator James R. Wadsworth in 1926.

Senator Wadsworth was one of the most useful members of his party in Congress, an able, brilliant statesman. He was courageous enough to take a definite stand against the Eighteenth Amendment and Volsteadism when it required more courage and foresight to do so than it does today. He was the special target of the fanatical drags. When he was renominated some New York state malcontents in the Republican party bolted and nominated a nobody in his place. The vote they polled was relatively insignificant in size, but it was enough to bring about the election of Senator Wagner, a dripping wet Democrat. For their own purpose the drags succeeded in accomplishing exactly nothing but the gratification of a sordid and savage lust for revenge. Naturally there has always been some question in the minds of a great many honest people whether the individuals who engineered this defeat of Wadsworth, from within the Republican party, did so out of sheer malice or whether there was something in it for themselves. It was, at all events, worth a great deal to the Democratic party of New York to have this treacherous scuttling operation put through.

Now Mr. Colvin has the effrontery to come into this state, appear at a gathering supposed to consist of Connecticut Republicans, and exhort the gathering and the rest of the dry Republicans in the state to do the same thing to Senator Bingham that he and his confederates did to Wadsworth in New York. They have not, of course, the remotest expectation of electing anybody to anything. The scheme is to punish Senator Bingham for being honest in his position on prohibition by electing Augustine Lonergan, declaredly fully as wet as Senator Bingham and a Democrat into the bargain.

The motives of such people as Colvin, in such proceedings, are rightly open to the closest scrutiny. Every voter has the right to ask himself whether they are working for the dead issue and the fading exchequer of the prohibition cause or in the more fertile field of assistance to the Democratic party, which now has a good deal more money to spend than all the organizations supporting the Eighteenth Amendment put together.

AS TO FEUDS
 Revival in the news of one of those famous Kentucky feuds which a generation ago intermittently occupied the shocked attention of the country, brings realization that there has been a change in the public's attitude toward this class of events. Time was when the killing of two or three persons in one of the serial family wars in the Kentucky hills could stir the absorbed interest of a nation. It was all so strange and exotic, so utterly in conflict with the routine of American life; even though there were plenty of people who could find only an irreducible minimum of romance in the Kentucky brand of warfare, which consisted usually in getting into some entirely safe place of hiding and from it shooting in the back some member of the enemy clan, first making reasonably sure that he had left his gun at home and completely sure that there were no witnesses. Now, however, a quite excellent feud war story from Clay County falls to carry any kick. The bushwhacking Kentucky variety of murder has been altogether outlashed by the city gangsters' system of mutual elimination. There is a deal more of dash and verve to the process whereby Mr. Rocco Spignasi's henchmen blast Greek George out of the beer racket picture to an accompaniment of mingled back fires and machine gun shots in the presence of a multitude than there is to the exceedingly cautious stalking of some Clay or Breathitt County grandfather in a hill pasture with no one looking on but the jaybirds.

If Clay County is in any hope of regaining its ancient fame as a dark and bloody ground and of filling the country with delighted shivers by reviving its old time show, it is out of luck. Chicago has developed a school of feud murder that makes the Kentucky mountaineers and their meticulously careful cowardice look pale and uninteresting by contrast.

BUTLER'S PLAN
 There has been no sadder, more determined or more consistent opponent of federal prohibition, from the beginning, than Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University. His presentation at this stage of the proceedings, of a fairly comprehensive outline of a plan for the handling of the liquor traffic when the Eighteenth Amendment shall have been repealed is timely and should serve as a starting point for the serious study of this question which should now be going on all over the country.

A very great majority of the people of the United States, and probably of every community without exception, very earnestly desires a solution of the liquor problem which will reduce the evils of the traffic to the minimum. They are plentifully aware of the rottenness of the old saloon system and have become regretfully convinced that its successor, federal prohibition, is markedly worse. They do not, however, believe it to be beyond the possibilities to institute a system that will eliminate most of the evils of those institutions without creating a host of new ones—and it is the working out of such a plan for the controlled distribution of liquor to which the country must turn a reasonable proportion of its thought very soon.

Dr. Butler has presented a plan. It is not necessarily the only workable one, it may not be the best possible one. But it embraces what seems to us to be one absolutely essential merit—it would take the distribution of intoxicating liquors, at least in the wholesale, out of the field of private profit.

That seems to us to be in a way the key to the whole business. In such states as may elect to countenance the sale of liquor at all the state itself must be in complete control of the supply. From that point you can work out a good many reasonable systems in detail. It is difficult to see how you can do so if desire for private gain alone is to control the sources of supply.

LOBSTERETTES
 Announcement by the State Board of Fisheries and Game that a new technique has been adopted at the Noank lobster hatchery, whereby young lobster fry are "taught" to dive before being liberated, is interesting and more than a little encouraging for the future of the delectable but naturally diminishing crustacean.

The tiny lobsters, it appears, have a foal habit, when liberated, of dawdling about near the surface where countless numbers of them are gobbling up by predatory fish. The new technique makes it possible to keep the youngsters in the hatchery till they have arrived at an age where they are susceptible of accepting deep water impressions and by the installation of "diving tanks" to get them into the habit of seeking the sanctuary of the rocky and shingly bottom before they are set free.

of the tiny savages or the practicability of treating the creatures by psycho-analysis and thus working an improvement in their dispositions, any scheme like this one of "teaching them to dive," calculated to decrease the infant lobster mortality from extraneous causes, is to be welcomed as a palliative of an irremediable condition.

NUMBED CONSCIENCE
 The Waterbury Republican is inclined to discount the protests of a good many newspapers—among which this one must be included—against such endangering of the lives of children as was involved in the Hutchinson family's ocean flight. "In fairness to Mr. Hutchinson," says the Republican, "he should not be signaled out as the only father who unnecessarily menaces the lives of his children. What about the father who drives 55 and 60 miles an hour on a congested road? What about the man who tries to beat the train to the crossing?"

The point is well taken, of course. The wholly unnecessary risking of the lives of children is an every-day and every-hour matter. What makes the Hutchinson incident so striking is not the mere risking of life but the subjecting of those little girls to the peril of a fate more awful than sudden death—that of being marooned, perhaps without even the support of adult companionship, in the Arctic wastes, to perish at last more miserably than the human mind can comprehend.

Besides, just because we have permitted our sense of right and wrong to become completely atrophied at every point where it is touched by the speed of automobiles, does the Republican believe it would improve matters if we were to extend the atrophy to include the entire body of our mass conscience?

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of four special articles on the new wage cut in the government service.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

Washington—No civil service employees have actually been discharged as a result of the government's economy effort.

Savings are being made through a policy of not filling vacancies in the federal service, but the economy law prohibits dismissals and insists on extra furloughs in places where it is necessary to save on personnel to keep within appropriations.

Thousands of employees are threatened with serious loss, however, as a result of the marked inequalities which Congress inflicted during its rather frantic, hysterical attempts to slash appropriations. The employees who, because he happens to work in one federal bureau instead of another, stands to lose a couple of months' pay instead of the loss of 24 days involved in the general legislative furlough is good and sore about it.

About 50,000 of the 650,000 hit by the pay cut, which is being effected through the legislative furloughs, are also threatened with "administrative furlough," which means many more additional payless days for no better reason, the employees say, than that the House and Senate engaged in planless, scatter-brained competition when the country was yelling for curtailment of expense.

The House appointed an economy committee which was working out salary proposals while the Senate, on an entirely different tack, started off to cut every departmental appropriation bill by a flat 10 per cent. Chairman Joe Byrns (Tennessee) of the House Appropriations Committee said the Senate needn't expect the House to block anything it sent along. So in almost no time the Senate had slashed 10 per cent from the Commerce, Interior, Labor, Justice and State Departments, along with gouges at the Federal Trade Commission, Interstate Commerce Commission, Civil Service Commission, Farm Board and other independent agencies. The cuts shot through the House in half an hour and Hoover signed the bills. No one seemed to care whether some of the government's most valuable work would have to be curtailed.

GRANULATED EYELIDS ARE INFECTIOUS

Granulated eyelids is also called granulated conjunctivitis and trachoma. This disease is contagious, not limited to any age, and frequently attacks children, quickly spreading through a school, being carried by the discharge which may linger on towels, pencils, etc. A milder type is called "swimming pool" conjunctivitis which may result when swimming pools are not properly disinfected.

One with granulated eyelids has a white discharge which collects at the edges of the lids and is hard to wash off. When much of the discharge is secreted during the night, it hardens and glues the lids together. Usually the discharge is of a thick pus-like nature. Other symptoms are tiredness of the eyes, fatigue from tedious work, watering of the eyes with itchyness, burning, a desire to avoid light, redness and swelling of the lids. The discharge is the main symptom which indicates that the delicate mucous membrane lining the inner side of will bring great relief. In making compresses for the eyes, the compress should be boiled in water and allowed to cool in the water while the pot containing the water is kept covered.

Following the above rules together with the proper local treatments by your doctor should result in the quickest possible cure of this irritating inflammation and prevent you from having the serious complications which might otherwise arise.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Acrolydno)

Question: Mrs. Grenella F. writes: "What is the disease called acrolydno, and has it a high death rate?"

Answer: Acrolydno is a rather rare disease which occurs in many countries and affects children between the ages of four months and four years. It is a pain which varies in color from pink to dark red, with excessive perspiration, and the hands and feet are swollen, cold and red. There is pain in the ends of the nerves and usually there are changes in the spinal cords and nerve roots. The percentage of deaths is from 8 per cent to 8 per cent.

have the extra furlough, along with Civil Service.

But they all hope that Congress will have a heart when it comes back after elections and votes a deficiency bill. It obviously was unfair to hit the little fellows with their 6 per cent of expenditures so hard and it is hoped that Congress will be in a reasonable frame of mind next December.

The Federal Farm Board was hit hardest of all, its appropriation being cut from $1,900,000 to $900,000. If it was to keep its employees on it would be all out of money by Jan. 1, so it devised an elaborate furlough system under which 340 employees were placed on an "indefinite furlough" which amounted to dismissal. But Comptroller General McCarl made a ruling which would have taken part of the furlough saving for the Treasury so the Farm Board changed the furloughs to dismissals, which was made possible by putting them in the "expert" group not subject to civil service. The board's research activity has been especially curtailed. There is difference of opinion whether much of that work wasn't duplicated by the Department of Agriculture.

NEXT: What happened to the five-day week plan in the government service.

the eyelids is affected. The eyes may feel as though they are full of sand due to the formation of little grains on the inside of the lids. These swollen places on the inside of the lids may be seen by raising the lid so that one can look underneath.

The treatment for granulated eyelids may be divided into two parts. One part consists of the local treatments given by a doctor. It is a good plan to remember that when any discharge from the eyes is present, the safest rule is to consult a good oculist, and, if this is not possible, then the best doctor you can find. If this condition is neglected, it may become serious, even leading to blindness. Your doctor will advise you as to the antiseptic to use in the eye after he finds out the exact type of infection present. Avoid prescribing them for yourself.

The other part of the treatment consists in measures which the patient may safely use at home. Some of the helpful measures are the following: protect the eyes from glare by wearing dark glasses when out of doors; see that others do not handle any cloths or cotton which you have used to wipe away the discharge; keep the hands away from the eyes; do not strain the eyes with close work; and keep the eyes as clean as possible. A short fast for four or five days will usually greatly lessen the inflammation and cold compresses laid over the eyes for twenty minutes night and morn-time by wrapping each bunch in waxed paper. After tying the ends they should be placed on some soft material, such as cotton batting, and kept in a cool place. They may also be packed in California redwood sawdust and stored in a cool place. Another method, frequently used in Europe, is to place the stock of each bunch of grapes in a small bottle of water containing a piece of charcoal. If a temperature of about 38 degrees is maintained, they will keep in good condition for a long time.

(Spot on Lip)

Question: Miss Adele O. writes: "Have a purple spot on the left side of my lower lip. It has been there for years, but have just lately noticed that it is pulling the lip down. What should it be?"

Answer: You should by all means have this spot examined, as it may be something dangerous. I could not give you any definite opinion about it without first examining you or having a doctor's report.

TEACH LOBSTERS TO DIVE TO PROTECT THE SUPPLY

Hartford, Sept. 19.—Teaching infant lobsters to dive is one of the latest developments in fish culture, according to experts of the marine division of the State Board of Fisheries and Game.

At the Noank state lobster hatchery fish culturists have been experimenting since 1928 with rearing of lobster fry but up to now they have experienced difficulty in rearing the crustaceans to a stage mature enough so that they would be able to outwit natural enemies after being released.

Then released in Long Island Sound waters lobsters, propagated under the new method at Noank during the hatching season now about to close, immediately dove to the bottom where they would be comparatively safe from destruction.

Successful development of the rearing method has prompted the State Board of Fisheries and Game to authorize additions to hatchery equipment which, it is expected, will increase production of the diving lobster fry fifty per cent.

With the co-operation of lobster fishermen, who have furnished egg-bearing lobsters for the experiments, production of 250,000 young lobsters for stocking purposes is planned for next year.

GOLD RUSH ON Rouyn, Que., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Through the trails of northern Quebec prospectors were rushing today to a rich gold strike reported in the townships of Rouyn and Joazeux near the gold and copper mine at Noranda.

Nearby 200 claims have been registered and the number is increasing as word of the discovery spreads.

Father Sletelski was poisoned. An autopsy was performed by Medical Examiner Thomas E. Boylan but the finding will not be made known for several days.

YOUTH IS ACCUSED OF POISONING PRIEST

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Joseph Turlek, 19-year-old Lawrence boy, accused by police of poisoning the Rev. Stanislaus Sletelski, pastor of the American Lithuanian National church of Lawrence, today faced arraignment on a charge of murder.

Albert O'Brien, 57, of Lawrence, was held as a material witness. Father Sletelski died Saturday after telling Turlek, in the presence of police: "You're a bad boy Joe. You took my $200 and gave me poison. I'm going to die. You should be punished."

Turlek, accused by police of giving Father Sletelski a powder that resulted in his death, said the powder was purchased on an order written by the clergyman himself and that he (Turlek) didn't know what the note called for.

The former Lawrence pastor came here a few days ago after resigning his pastorate. Father Sletelski went to the home of the Rev. Wladyslaw W. Dyniewicz, pastor of Holy Trinity church here, and soon after complained he was ill.

A physician said Father Sletelski was poisoned. An autopsy was performed by Medical Examiner Thomas E. Boylan but the finding will not be made known for several days.

THIS picture will bring back memories to a lot of people of the days when the boys went marching away with flags flying and bands playing. Chesterfields were very popular with those men who went overseas. They were "rookies" then. They're "old vets" today. And that milder, satisfying Chesterfield flavor is still their steady choice... after fifteen years!

GIVEN SALESMAN'S VIEWS ABOUT INDIA

"International Peddler" Relates Experiences; Praises British Control.

A fine speaker appeared before the Ki-ans club at its weekly meeting at the Country club this noon in the person of Frederick B. Walker of East Walpole, Mass., a salesman for Bird and Son.

He said that in India, salesman are called "international peddlers." He recounted incidents that occurred in his travels, including a trip from Bombay to Calcutta, the latter the second largest city in the British Empire.

The speaker also told of the manner of living of the people and of their abject poverty. He said that he was not impressed with Gandhi and his followers and praised Great Britain for its activity towards the civilization of the people in India.

THREE FROM MANCHESTER WIN IN COUNTY TENNIS

Holland, Earle Bissell and Paul Jesanis Play in Third Round Tomorrow.

The three remaining Manchester entries in the Hartford County tennis tournament by Holland, Earle Bissell and Paul Jesanis, are scheduled to play third round matches tomorrow night.

Bissell faces Bob Swain of the Tumble Brook Country Club on Bloomfield Avenue and Jesanis is up against Lee Wiley, crack Hartford southpaw, at either 4 or 5 tomorrow afternoon at the same place.

The finals are to be Saturday at Tumble Brook. Interest in the Holland-Hyde match is running high here but few give the five-time local champ much of a chance even though he is playing better than ever this year.

MAY FORM THREE SCORE AND TEN GROUP HERE

Rev. Edward Eells Instrumental in Organizing Clubs Throughout the East.

A meeting of the Three Score and Ten Club, a local group of men and women over 60 years of age will be held Wednesday afternoon in the Young Men's Christian Association at 2:30 p. m.

Rev. Eells will meet the members of the prospective club in an effort to organize a greater Manchester club. The annual dues of the club are $1.00 a year and the objects of the organization are to promote the acquaintance, sociability, health, comfort and happiness of its members.

All money taken in in dues in the club are used in the maintenance of the club's own interests. The first of the Three Score and Ten Clubs was organized by Thomas S. Meek in 1929 in Miami, Florida.

Those 60 years of age or over are included as a junior organization. Flier Injured

W. J. FLOOD, VETERAN NEWSPAPERMAN, DIES

Publisher of the Former Manchester News Passes Away As Heart Gradually Fails.

William J. Flood former owner and publisher of the Manchester News, died late Saturday night at his main street home following a comparatively brief illness.

The end was peaceful, Mr. Flood passing away in his sleep at 10:40 Saturday night. He had been confined to his bed only a week but suffered no pain.

The speaker also told of the manner of living of the people and of their abject poverty. He said that he was not impressed with Gandhi and his followers and praised Great Britain for its activity towards the civilization of the people in India.

THE LATE WILLIAM J. FLOOD

From the last photograph taken and in his family's possession.

Joseph W. Flood of 24 Eldridge street, George F. Flood who lived with his father at 915 Main street and Mrs. Harry B. Filer of Buffalo.

Mr. Flood was born in Indianapolis, Ind., May 2, 1851, the son of John and Mary Flood. His parents died when he was a boy and he was taken care of by John Wilson, a close friend of the family.

Mr. Flood had a large number of friends. He was accustomed to talking daily along Main street where he often stopped to discuss the "news of the day" with friends.

London, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Flight Lieutenant G. H. Stainforth, who set an air speed record of 408.8 miles an hour last September, was injured today when he crashed during a fight at Cornwall. A passenger also was hurt, but their injuries were not serious.

JURY IS SELECTED FOR DAVIS TRIAL

tant United States attorney for the southern district of New York.

Conviction on all the counts against Davis would provide a maximum possible penalty of 90 years in prison and fines totaling $26,000.

The court announced that it was of the opinion the trial would be protracted.

"I think the jurors should be notified to that effect when they are called," the judge said.

Fourteen talesmen were called by the clerk and the rest of the venire was ordered to step forward to listen to the questions put to them.

KNOFLAS FORM NEW CONSTRUCTION FIRM

Separate Two Branches of Their Business For More Facile Handling—Is Step Ahead.

With the filing of a certificate of incorporation of Knoflas Brothers, general contractors, with the town clerk today another forward step in the progress of the well known Manchester Construction Company is made known.

The construction business and real estate holdings of the Manchester Construction Company were formerly managed through one company. The volume of business has increased during the past 12 years until now it is necessary and advisable to form a new company, one to handle the construction business and the other to continue the operation of the apartment houses and real estate department.

The new construction company has purchased a complete line of equipment, including all former bills and other builders equipment from the Manchester Construction Company and are therefore in a position to carry on all types of construction, small or large.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

Most doctors require at least half a column to print them. Dr. Calvin L. Coopers, Kansas City health director, put his rules in the following five lines:

Keep calm — Let Roosevelt and Hoover fight it out. Don't quarrel. Keep your mind occupied. Wear light, loose clothing. Sleep plenty. Eat vegetables. And be your age.

How Much Better It Is To Belong To The Construction Gang, Than The Wrecking Crew.

Madam (to servant)—Marie, go quickly and buy me the book, 'How to Remain Young and Beautiful.'
Servant—Oui, Madame, I will tell them that it is very urgent.

Old Ragoon Tatters from Brushville drifted into town today and was heard to observe: "In the gay nineties they worried how daughter was going to turn out. Now it's what time she will turn in."

Lawyer—So these are the exact facts?
Client—Yes, and its up to you to twist them.

Love's Young Dream May Be Sweet, But It Should Be When You Consider The Amount Of Taffy Put Into It.

Boss (to applicant for job)—Are you a clock watcher?
Applicant—No, I don't like inside work. I'm a whistle listener.

It may be true that America won the war but she doesn't seem to be able to collect the price she paid for the ticket.

The traffic policeman got out his book and poked his stubby pencil. Officer—What's your name?
Traffic Violator—John Smith.
Officer (who had been tricked the day before)—No, your real name.
Traffic Violator—Well, then put he down as Calvin Coolidge.
Officer—That's better. You can't fool me with that Smith stuff.

BRITISH DRIVE FORWARD
On Sept. 19, 1918, British forces on the Hindenburg line near St. Quentin launched a great attack on a 20-mile front and drove forward more than four miles, taking thousands of prisoners and many villages.

French troops operating on the same front encountered more stubborn opposition, but held positions won against several furious counter-attacks.

British, Greek and French forces operating against the Bulgarians in the Balkan peninsula continued their drive, taking 45 villages and entering Bulgaria, at one point.

The situation of the Bulgarian Army was critical, and Bulgarian envoys were reported requesting immediate aid from Germany and Austria if Bulgaria was to continue in the war.
