

FRENCH DEFICIT MAY BAR U. S. DEBT PAYMENT

Bond Issue Would Be Necessary and Could Only Be Authorized By the Chamber of Deputies.

Paris, Oct. 22.—Before the government can meet its semi-annual debt payment of $19,261,432 to the United States, due December 15, such payment will have to be debated in the Chamber of Deputies and approved by it, according to indications today.

It appears, likewise, that French finances are in such a straitened condition that it will be impossible for France to pay America without a special bond flotation to procure the funds.

These two circumstances combine to make it increasingly more speculative whether parliamentary approval will be obtained and the December payment will be made.

Confers With London Yesterday Jacques Biot, director of movement of funds in the Finance Ministry, went to London to confer with British Treasury officials on the mutual problem of the French and English approaching debt obligations.

This prompts speculation as to whether the two governments may be considering asking postponement of their December payments.

What is assured is that French financial difficulties will not permit payment without embarrassment and probably caustic debate in the Chamber.

Safeguard Clause When the Senate and Chamber ratified the Mellon-Berenger debt funding accord with the United States, the Callaghan-Churchill accord with Great Britain, they did so with an important safeguard clause, dated July, 1929, stipulating that French economy could only "and necessary means to execute the agreements."

In the regular fulfillment of Germany's obligations. The safeguard added that France's debt payments must be covered exclusively by reparations from Germany.

Since the Lausanne settlement has ended reparations payments, Premier Edouard Herriot will be obliged to seek Parliament's approval for making the December payment to the United States—approval which some French circles say it is doubtful he can procure, with the budget deficits for this year and next mounting steadily.

WEIGHS 34 OUNCES; BABY WILL LIVE

Father Rushes Infant To Hospital Where It Is Now In An Incubator.

Norwalk, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Taken to the Norwalk hospital, wrapped in a blanket inside a suitcase by his father, 34 ounce James Castle, Jr., is doing nicely today in the incubator and physicians say he will live.

The baby was born prematurely yesterday afternoon to Mr. and Mrs. Castle on their 80 foot sloop "Alabama" anchored 1,000 feet off Westport in Long Island Sound.

On Thursday night the mother was pitched overboard from a row-boat by high wind and heavy sea and rescued by her husband. This accident is believed to have caused the premature birth with only Mr. Castle in attendance. Mrs. Castle is also resting comfortably today.

Following the birth of the baby, the father rushed it to the hospital.

STUDENTS IN CRASH

New Haven, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Five Yale students and a young woman were injured in a collision at an intersection early this morning. Both drivers were arrested charged with reckless driving.

Lawrence Pomeroy, 19, driver of one car, and his brother Horace, of Buffalo, N. Y., received minor cuts and bruises, and were expected to be discharged from the hospital today. Sylvia Thresher, 25, of Dayton, Ohio riding with them, suffered a fractured rib.

KENTUCKY NEXT STOP ARRANGED FOR ROOSEVELT

Leaves St. Louis Behind Where He Accused the G. O. P. of Using "Panic Creating Tear Gas Bombs"

Aboard Roosevelt Special, enroute to Louisville, Ky., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Turning back from the shores of the Mississippi and heading into the south today, Governor Roosevelt left behind him at St. Louis the charge that President Hoover and former President Coolidge are attempting "to throw political and economic tear bombs among the people of the country."

In the St. Louis Coliseum where President Hoover made a campaign speech four years ago, the Democratic presidential nominee told a near-capacity house last night that "as a last resort" the Chief Executive and his predecessor are employing "panic-creating tear gas" in order to "blind you for the occasion."

The life blood of this Republic, he said "is its integrity and independence of the electorate. You American farmers and American workmen are entitled by all of the fundamental rights that you have acquired in generations of fighting to a free and untrammelled choice on election day."

Stage Properties. Accusing the Republicans of resurrecting the "old fashioned melodramatic campaign stage properties" patented by Mark Hanna and Matt Quay, he said "the workers and the farmers of today have heard from their fathers of the old terroristic threats that were put into their pay envelopes just before election."

With this single address in the border state of Missouri, the governor headed for Louisville, Ky., on his return jaunt through the South. His program called for an address in Louisville's big armory about 11 a. m., Central Standard Time, after which his special train was to continue on through Kentucky and Tennessee toward Atlanta.

A 15 minute stopover at Knoxville, Tenn., was planned. The train is scheduled to reach there at nine o'clock today.

Many times in the course of his St. Louis address, applause and cheering interrupted him, particularly when he departed from his prepared speech to declare again for the repeal of the 18th amendment to the people their own rights to handle the liquor question.

Governor Roosevelt took the administration to task for the losses suffered by investors in foreign bonds and in domestic financial securities such as the Insull public utilities collapse.

DECLARES WILSON BEGAN DEFLATION

Vice President Curtis Answers Charges Made By Democratic Orators.

Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Vice President Charles Curtis told Iowa voters that "the Democratic candidate never had much to say about farm relief" until he started running for the presidency.

Replying in an address here last night to charges by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt that the agricultural depression began with the advent of the Harding administration, the vice president said that President Wilson began a "deflation" policy after the war and after American agriculture had been geared to a high pitch of production.

Republican efforts to lift the farmers from the economic bog occasioned by this policy, he declared were numerous and persistent. He defended the Republican tariff policies as aiming to improve the situation on the farms and death separately with the effect of the tariff on several individual farm products.

Curtis departed from his prepared speech to touch briefly on financial moves made to alleviate farm distress.

"The policy of the administration is to stop foreclosure," Curtis said. "Every effort should be made to give the farmers an opportunity to save their farms."

DRY AGENTS' PADLOCK IMPRISONS TABBY

When federal marshals closed and padlocked a former speakeasy in Newark, N. J., they unwittingly imprisoned an old habitue of the place—a big cat which had hidden out by made known its plight by promenading in the window as shown here. Finally, from Trenton, 40 miles away, came a federal marshal with a key, and Tabby came out—for repeal!

CHINESE FACTIONS MEET FOR A FRIENDLY PARLEY

First Session of Its Kind Under National Government in Many Months; May Mean a United China.

Shanghai, China, Oct. 22.—(AP)—A friendly political parley, the first of the kind under the National government in many months, took place here today on the eve of the departure for Europe of young Wang Ching-Wai, who retired last August as chairman of the Executive Yuan.

His retirement threw the government into turmoil, for as the leader of the Left Wing stepped out he directed a withering attack upon Chiang Kai-Shek and Chang Hsiao-ling, charging those two with maladministration and many other political offenses.

Since then there have been two months of uncertainty, involving the future existence of the National government, but today the Nanjing leaders assured Wang of their good will and expressed a hope that he would return soon to assume an important place in the government council.

Whether the breach has been healed between Wang Ching-Wai and Chiang Kai-Shek remains to be seen, but in political circles the developments are taken to indicate at least that the leaders have decided to shelve their disputes so that there shall be no recurrence in the immediate future of the difficulties of last August. Renewal of the political battle, Wang is going to Europe to see a doctor for he has been suffering from a severe case of diabetes. As he departed he said he hoped to come back within three months to resume his place in the government.

IRONSIDES ENTERS HER 136TH YEAR

Famous Old Warship Is Now Resting in Peaceful Waters of Potomac.

Washington, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Amid the revived and glory memories of her 136th year today, resting peacefully in the Potomac River, the famous old warship USS Ironsides is commemorating the 136th anniversary of her launching at Hart's Ship Yard in Boston. The tribute was broadcast.

In her cabin the treaty of peace was signed with the Barbary pirates June 3, 1802.

Wm 48 Battles Commander Louis J. Gulliver, skipper of the historic ship, said her materials were gathered along the coast from Maine to Georgia and added this tribute: "The ship won 48 battles in war; in peace she has won another and one just as momentous; she has conquered time. Her colors have often been battle-scarred but never hauled down in defeat."

Gulliver said that in 1861, Old Ironsides helped beat Confederate forces away from the Naval Academy at Annapolis and that on her decks officers were trained for World War service. Secretary Adams told the story of her restoration.

ALL TARIFF SCHEDULES WILL BE INVESTIGATED

Niece Nearly Blinds Sixty Year Old Aunt

Brookline, Mass., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Miss Agnes Murray of Burlington, Vermont, was sought today for an alleged attack on her 60 year old aunt, Miss Margaret Stone. Miss Stone told police she had been attacked by her niece last night with an automobile jack. She was found on a lawn badly beaten about the head.

HERE IS FULL TEXT OF HOOVER'S SPEECH

Chief Executive Tells Charleston, W. Va., Audience Protective Tariff Aides Nation.

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 22.—(AP)—The full text of President Hoover's address here today follows: "The Democratic candidate for President has said that he and his party propose to reduce the tariff. He states that the protective tariff is a justly just. That becomes a curious description of the great industrial development of this state."

Right here the Kanawha valley, once a wilderness, has become the great chemical center of our country. That industry would never have been created except by the protective tariff, and it cannot survive today and the people obtaining their daily bread from it could not continue their job if the tariff be reduced.

The protective tariff made possible all the plants in this valley and the employment in them. That great American policy, adopted and defended by the Republican Party, has also made possible the steel, glass and pottery industries in this state. All these plants are today the backbone of our employment and business. They give the market for your agriculture. They will continue to do so for generations unless they are destroyed by this promised action of the Democratic Party.

Foreign Inflation Due to depreciated currencies in foreign countries, the tariffs have been seriously impaired lately in a number of commodities. The depreciation in currency in foreign countries has in effect lowered wages and lowered standards of living in those countries.

Four years ago I directed a survey to be made of the cost of living amongst workers in foreign countries. The survey showed that in the United States, in comparable jobs, and I found that in the countries of lowest wages they could purchase with their wages about one-third of the amount of bread and butter that could be purchased by the American workman.

Recently I had this situation surveyed in view of depreciated currencies. I found that in the highest paid countries, instead of being able to purchase half as much bread and butter as an American workman, they could only purchase one-third as much and in the countries of lowest standards of living, instead of purchasing one-third as much they could only purchase one-eighth as much.

In the face of this the Democratic Party promises to reduce your tariffs. In the face of this I have asked the tariff commission to re-investigate the whole rates on many commodities to see whether the tariff is giving the protection provided in the law.

And now the Democratic Party promises to destroy the effectiveness of the tariff commission. That is a bi-partisan body directed upon application of any substantial person to investigate and determine what is the difference in cost of production at home and abroad, and to report their recommendations to the President for any change in the tariff. The President makes these changes effective by executive order.

Democratic Proposal The Democratic Party proposes to take away this power of recommendation to the President, reduce the commission to a statistical body into the rear seat, Miss Stone said, and suddenly placed a handkerchief soaked in what she believed a drug, over her face. She said she struggled and tried to get out of the car and was struck on the head with a heavy piece of iron.

Police said they would apply for a warrant charging assault with intent to kill. Miss Stone was unable to give police any reason for the sudden attack. She said she and her niece had been on the friendliest terms.

President Hoover Announces That He Has Asked Federal Board To Determine Whether Commodities Are Being Given Adequate Protection In the Face of Depreciated Foreign Currency.

Aboard President's Special Enroute to Detroit, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Speaking from an improvised platform in Laidley Stadium at Charleston, W. Va., President Hoover announced today he had asked the tariff commission to investigate whole tariff schedules to determine whether many commodities were being given adequate protection "in the face of depreciated foreign currency."

The President left his special train bearing him to Detroit for a campaign speech tonight in order to discuss the tariff and difficulties of the coal industry before a cheering audience of thousands in the West Virginia capital.

He advocated limited cooperation in marketing coal and other natural resources to safeguard them from destructive competition.

First Since 1832 Mr. Hoover was the first president to visit this capital city during his term in office, since Andrew Jackson in 1832.

Mr. Hoover told his cheering audience estimated at thousands by police, that he had in the past suggested some measure of cooperation in the marketing of coal because he was "impressed with the absolute destruction of our National resources and the improvement of labor through destructive competition."

"Neither you nor I wish to destroy the fundamental basis of competition in our country," the President said. "But a limited cooperation to prevent this destructive action should be undertaken. We have already extended this privilege to your agriculture and labor. The coal industry could have such safeguards as would make it possible to pay a fair wage, earn reasonable profit and save hundreds of communities from their steady degeneration and impoverishment."

As in his other speeches along the route of campaign trips, the President discussed the Republican protective tariff principles at length.

BOARD NOTIFIED Washington, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Chairman Robert L. O'Brien said today the tariff commission would meet within a few days to take up the request of President Hoover that it investigate whole tariff schedules.

The Chief Executive called him to the White House yesterday, he said, and requested that the commission "give serious consideration and focus its attention" on determining whether American tariffs were adequate for protection against imports from countries which have depreciated currencies.

The chairman was unable to say the method by which the commission would go about the investigation, or the time it would take. This would have to be worked out, he said, in drafting the program for the survey.

PRESIDENT'S ROUTE Aboard Presidential Special, Enroute to Detroit, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Carrying his drive for re-election to the political battleground of the middle west again, President Hoover swung today into the border state of West Virginia on a swift dash to Detroit for a campaign address tonight.

The Chief Executive faced a series of rapid-fire appearances in more than a dozen cities, beginning with a brief speech in Charleston, W. Va., as his train rolled through three states in the brief span of 12 hours.

His route was carefully mapped to carry him through West Va., Ohio and Michigan states with a total of more than 50 electoral votes, which are claimed by both parties.

At Charleston, in the heart of West Virginia's mountainous coal mining section, the President was to leave the train and make a short speech from a stadium near the tracks.

Other Stops Stops also were scheduled during the day at Huntington and Keokuk, W. Va., Ironton, Portsmouth, Waverly, Chillicothe, Clarksburg, Columbus, Delaware, Marlinton, Fostoria and Toledo, Ohio, and Monaca, Mich.

BELLUCCI FINED $100 AND COSTS IN RUM CASE

Birch Street Man Convicted of Keeping With Intent to Sell in Police Court This Morning.

Harry F. Bellucci of 124 Birch street in town court this morning charged with keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell was found guilty by Judge Raymond A. Johnson and fined $100 and costs. Judge Johnson remitted $50 of the fine.

Bellucci was arrested last Sunday night when a complaint was received by the police and Sergeant McGlinn and Officers Raymond Griffin and Joseph Prentice made a raid on the Bellucci home.

Attorney Harry Schwolsky of Hartford appeared for the defendant and questioned Sergeant McGlinn about his knowledge of chemistry. It was brought out in cross examination that the still was found on the hatchway going down to the cellar.

Officer Joseph Prentice testified that he was with the other officers in the raid and found one man in back of the house drunk and admitted seeing Mrs. Bellucci going down into the cellar with a jug.

Officer Griffin corroborated the testimony of his brother officer. Captain Herman Schendel testified that he had received a complaint by telephone to the effect that it "was about time to go there."

A search warrant was secured and the raid ordered. The state raised its case with the testimony of Captain Schendel.

Attorney Schwolsky asked the court that the case be dismissed as no evidence that a sale had been made was presented by the state. He also stated that the accused had not been given an opportunity to face his accuser.

Judge Johnson denied the request of the attorney for the defense. Bellucci on the stand denied selling liquor and also that he owned the still found in the cellar.

He said that the hatchway was used by both tenants of the house. He said that the beer found had been made for a banquet but had been brought back. He denied having received any money for the liquor.

He said that he had not used the cellar for three years. Captain James H. McVeigh, commanding Company G, C. N. G., was a character witness for Bellucci, who is mass sergeant of the company.

Howard Cassella, a sergeant in Company G also testified for the defendant's character. Officer Winfield Martin testified that he knew the Bellucci home as a place where intoxicating liquor could be bought.

The case of John Hallenbrand, 73 years of age, was heard with non-support was continued to Monday.

PEARSON TO TEACH AT LONGMEADOW

Local Musician Named High School Instructor in That Town.

G. Albert Pearson, who is widely known as a chorus director, bass soloist and vocal instructor, has been appointed supervisor of music at the Longmeadow Junior High school at Longmeadow, Mass. It was announced today by school officials.

G. Albert Pearson

Mr. Pearson was recently placed in charge of the glee clubs and assembly at Manchester High school and has achieved much success in creating increased interest in music among the students. His duties at the local school occupy Monday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The position at Longmeadow will occupy Tuesday and Friday each week. He will be in complete charge of musical activities at the latter school.

Mr. Pearson began his musical career on coming to Manchester from Worcester, Mass., seven years ago. He rapidly gained prominence as a bass soloist, singing at many concerts locally and out of town and also on the radio.

Last year he won the Hartford District Water Kent Radio Audition.

In recent years he has enlarged his activity and study in the field of music, spending two years at the Summer School of Music at Skidmore College in New York.

He organized the Junior Boys Glee Club at the Emanuel Lutheran church and later the Schubert Singers of Hartford, being director of both organizations.

He is bass soloist at the First Presbyterian church of Hartford, and conducts vocal studies here and in Hartford.

Mr. Pearson is a brother of Helge Pearson, organist and choirmaster of the Emanuel Lutheran church and director of the Bethoven and G. C. Glee Clubs.

HERE IS FULL TEXT OF PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

reporting to Congress. This effective authority of the tariff commission was secured by me with the help of the Senator from your state in the last tariff bill.

To take that authority away means to take the ability to change the tariff with changing tides of economic life. It means that no remedy may be had except by action of Congress which means the old scenes of log rolling, greed and compromise, with stagnation of business for years before final action is arrived at.

No Bill Perfect I have said many times that no tariff bill is perfect but under the commission its inequities can be removed and the rates of duty can be adjusted in the shifting economic situation, schedule by schedule, without disturbance of business and based solely on fact.

The reason they wish to destroy this independent authority is obvious. So long as the tariff commission holds in this position they do not dare to criticize schedules in the tariff because at once any valid criticism could be promptly answered by investigation and revision through the commission.

But of more importance from this purely political point, the Democratic Party would not wish to reduce the tariffs and have the tariff commission promptly restore them.

In order to attack the tariff they have proposed a hypothetical condition that prevents imports into the United States and thereby decreases the ability of foreigners to buy our goods and they say to the American workman that he will produce and sell more goods for export if there were a lower tariff.

I call your attention to the fact that 93 percent of the Market for the American workman is within the doors of the United States and seven percent outside the borders. They propose to place our 93 percent of the market in the hands of the world with the fantastic idea that the American farmer and worker can reduce his standard of living so as to increase his part of the seven percent, by reducing his standard of labor which can only buy one-third as much bread and butter.

Easy to Answer They say that the decrease in our exports during this crisis has been due to the retaliatory measures against our tariff. This can be proved in the easiest fashion in the world. Two-thirds of the goods imported into the United States are on the free list and the decrease in our imports has been just exactly in the same percentage on free goods as it has been on dutiable goods. It must be obvious that some force is working in the world which effects free goods just the same as protected goods.

I could give you still a further answer in the fact that American trade has fallen in the world wide depression from the same cause that have affected other countries and in about the same amount or even less than other countries. I would also call attention to the fact that since our great measures for recovery have been in free action during the past four months imports and exports of the United States have increased 23 percent.

If the stories you are told are true, that our trade has been destroyed, this increase must come as a great disappointment to the Democratic Party. The fact is that foreign trade comprises but a small portion of our National activities. It is a valuable portion but when we consider the well being of American homes and families the preponderant safeguard to those families lies in maintaining for them the domestic market of the United States.

Applies To State There is no part of this union where these matters so definitely apply as to this state of West Virginia where the dangers to you and your employment and living are so great by change in our policies.

There is another question of vast interest to the people of West Virginia and one of ranking importance with your agricultural activities and second only to that of all states in the union—that is, your bituminous coal industry.

The competition of oil, electricity, improved efficiency in use of coal—all tend to prevent the expansion of your industry, or even its maintenance on a fair level. These competitors have in my view out-grown themselves and the natural growth of the country will give to you a greater future.

But in the meantime the industry has been reduced to a bitter, desperate competition, the main burden of which falls upon the backs of those who labor. I know the hardships that have been piled upon this industry, and the men engaged in it.

A large part of my life was concerned with the mining industry. I have worked with a pick and shovel at the face; I have managed coal mines on a large scale. I am interested in the restoration of that industry and every man is interested in the welfare of an industry in which his own profession is involved.

The coal we use in steel, chemicals and manufactured articles is itself dependent on the tariff for without the tariff on those goods there would be no demand from those manufacturers for coal. Therefore the welfare of the coal industry is tied up with the maintenance of an adequate protective tariff on industry, for which we stand. The tariff has contributed to prevent further unemployment in the mines.

Miss Gertrude H. Rogers of 65 Prospect street, former owner of Rogers Paper Manufacturing Company, has been awarded a painting entitled, "Dallas and Delphiniums", the work of Cullen Yates, through her participation in the annual drawing among art members of the Grand Central Art Galleries, noted art mart of modern American Painters and Sculptors, in New York city today.

Judith Anderson, prominent Broadway dramatic star, made the announcement after a little Chinese boy, dressed in native costume and blindfolded had drawn Miss Rogers name from a jar as the lucky winner.

Others attending were Mrs. Albert H. Wiggin, wife of the chairman of the Chase National bank of New York, Mrs. Walter C. Teague, wife of the president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and others, prominent in society in New York.

WHERE MEN LIKE TO SHOP

GLENNEY'S POPULAR CLOTHING STORE

One of Most Attractive Men's Furnishing Stores Manchester Affords.

The name Glenney's stands for one of Manchester's leading men's clothing dealers. For more than a decade this location has been the site of a men's store featuring a line of fine clothing and furnishings for men. During this period of time a vast amount of prestige has been built up at this store and hundreds of men have made it their headquarters for clothing and furnishings.

Attractive Store The store is equipped with modern fixtures and laid out in a manner that makes it easy and pleasant to shop in. It has been said by men from other cities much larger than Manchester that more attractive stores for its size are not to be found anywhere.

Christopher Glenney is owner and proprietor of the business and has put in a great deal of effort and expense to bring the store up to and keep it at its present high level. During the years that he has been in business there he has made a host of friends.

Glenney's features an exceptional line of fine clothing for men and young men. One will find many of the leading manufacturers of the country represented in his stock. Most of these lines are nationally advertised and known the country over.

In recent months Mr. Glenney has proved his merchandising ability by offering some of the best values in fine suits, topcoats and overcoats to be found anywhere. These clothes have all the refinements of tailoring and workmanship that one could ask for yet they are being sold at prices that are consistent with present day business conditions.

Young Men's Store Many young men find this store suited to their needs and find that the line of furnishings featured in this store is new and up to the minute. Again one finds many nationally known and advertised brands. Mr. Glenney has found that in the long run it pays to feature this type of merchandise. It is in keeping with his policies of operation.

The shoe department is another large part of this business and in recent years many men have turned to this store for their footwear because of the accuracy in fitting and the quality of the shoes sold. Mr. Glenney features such well known makes as Florsheim, Eastonians, Freeman and Mansfield. Each make represents probably one of the foremost lines of footwear in its respective price class.

Fine Displays Glenney's has always had a reputation for attractive display windows and at several times they have entered their windows in nation-wide window decorating contests. In a nation-wide contest for neckwear displays they took second prize for the country with one of the most attractive and colorful displays of Cheney cravats that one could want to see. The store has always made a feature of Cheney neckwear and one will find their latest styles on sale at Glenney's as soon as in any other store. Despite the fact that these ties are manufactured right here in Manchester Mr. Glenney says that their sales are very good, and outsell many other makes even with the competition of a retail sales outlet selling these ties in town.

GLENNEY'S POPULAR COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

Local Woman Who Is Expert Dietitian Addresses Club Members At Their Meeting.

Mrs. C. C. Currier, B. A., of East Center street, gave an illustrated talk on "Dietary Regulation" before the members of the Cosmopolitan club yesterday afternoon at its meeting in the Center Church house. Mrs. Currier was formerly a dietitian at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital in Boston and stands high in her profession. She exhibited a chart setting forth the normal diet, and indicated how to maintain the same dietary balance by increasing or decreasing ingredients. A question period which followed her talk brought out much additional information.

Mrs. E. E. Fish was hostess for yesterday's meeting. Tea was served by the hospitality committee of which Mrs. Raymond Goslee is chairman.

LAST LOT OF NEW VOTERS SLOW IN APPEARING Only a Few Showed Up This Morning To Be Made; Rest Have Until 8 O'Clock.

The last chance to be made a voter before the presidential election will be until 8 o'clock this evening. The Board of Selectmen, the Town Clerk and Registrars of Voters are in session all day to give the elector's oath to the 437 applicants still on the "to be made" list.

This morning only a few of the number to be made appeared at the office for enfranchisement, promising either a large afternoon attendance or disappointments for those that may be under the impression that there will be an opportunity to be made within the two weeks remaining before the national election.

At the September sessions of the board 540 new voters were made and on October 16 and 19 a total of 460 men and women qualified. Almost half of the total number of applicants registered for the final session of the board remain to be made this afternoon and evening.

HOSPITAL NOTES Albert Parkinson of 45 Village street and James Wells, 70, of Silver Lane were admitted yesterday and Emil Hickling, of 63 Clinton street was discharged today.

Fred Miller of 150 Spencer street, was given emergency treatment at 5 o'clock last night for a cut on his hand.

John Andrews of 37 Park street was treated for a laceration of the forehead last night.

Thomas Todaro of 76 Bigelow street was discharged today.

STATE REMAINS HOPEFUL (Continued From Page One) dustry generally. Steel ingot output in the third quarter was about 2,800,000 tons. In the second, 3,241,000 in the first, 4,328,000, according to American Iron and Steel Institute figures. The United States Steel Corp., is expected to issue its third quarter report after the directors' meeting next Tuesday, and Bethlehem Steel Corp., two days later.

The steel industry is particularly hopeful that its cut in rail prices from $43 to $40 a ton, the first since in this item in a decade, will stimulate railroad buying. Furthermore, the automobile industry is now preparing for its 1933 models, but has as yet purchased very little steel for its production.

ABOUT TOWN

The annual fall rummage sale of the South Methodist Ladies Aid society will take place Thursday of next week in a vacant store in the State Theater building. The committee in charge is Mrs. Bertha Dowd, chairman; Mrs. Annie Bronk, Mrs. Emma Dowd. Friends wishing their donations called for should telephone Mrs. Bronk or Mrs. Emma Dowd.

There will be a special meeting of the Emmanuel Lutheran church congregation next Wednesday evening at 7:30 for the purpose of listening to an address by Oscar E. Anderson, treasurer of the New England Conference, who will speak on the "Christian Service Program of the Church."

The large clock opposite the Manchester Trust Company has been completed except for putting on the pointers and turning on the electric current. It may be in use tonight.

The Board of Education meets Monday evening in the high school to listen to the complaint of residents of the Fifth District against the committee's plan to close the Keeney street school in the interest of economy. The Keeney street group entered a petition signed by 39 men and women.

There was a get together party of the Democrats of Manchester held last night at Castle Inn in Oakland, promoted by the Democratic Town Committee which was attended by about 100 couples. There was an entertainment provided in the early part of the evening that was followed by dancing, both old time and modern. During the evening refreshments were served. It was the first opportunity that has been given for the members of the party and the workers to get together in a social session and another is planned for the near future.

At the meeting of Campbell Council K. of C., to be held Monday evening in the clubrooms there will be a debate in addition to the regular business of the evening.

Miss Ruth E. Henderson of Hemlock street was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower given last evening by Miss Alice Baker at the home of Mrs. Edward Wittfalls of Co-burn Road. The guests who numbered 26 were for the most part Miss Henderson's former associates in Cheney Brothers' cravat department. The Wittfalls home was beautifully decorated in keeping with Halloween. A buffet lunch was served and Halloween games played. Miss Henderson, who is to become the bride of Harvey Barrett of Rockville, on Monday, received many choice gifts.

Superintendent of schools Fred A. Verplanck will speak on "Manchester Schools" at the meeting of the Men's League of the Center Congregational church at 9:30 tomorrow morning. The meeting will be open to men and women of the church and others not members or attendants who are interested in the subject of the Manchester schools.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Problems of the Modern Home

Text: Josh. 24:14, 15; Eph. 6:1-9. The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Oct. 23.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist

Probably it would be a mistake to assume that the problems of the modern home are greater than those that have confronted homes in the past. But surely the conditions and forces confronting the modern home are very different.

One senses the lack of any adequate home life in past generations when masses of people were under feudal lordship, where the home conditions were narrow and disheartening, where there was little equipment for real living, and where in many instances the head of the home was called away on duty for his feudal lord in war or in some other capacity.

But the home of the past was in a relatively self-contained community. The mass of homes were rural, and in the main there was a possibility of a sort of patriarchal organization and tradition.

That phase of home life is now fairly well broken up. Complex modern life, with an abnormally large urban population, has created new problems for the home through the new conditions.

"Home" for many people today is simply a place where they eat and sleep. The real activities of life are largely outside of the home, for persons as well as children, and under such conditions it is obvious that there can be no such thing as real or ideal home life.

Then, the conditions are changed morally and psychologically as well as economically and socially. Old and well established ideals are challenged, and books go so far today as to suggest that the rebellion of children against their parents is a valuable thing.

There has been in our own day a general breaking down of standards, revealed in the statistics of the divorce courts, and in the conditions under which the masses of children are growing up with no real home ties and no home guidance. The problems incident to maintaining a home, and making it effective, were never more acute or complex than they are today.

Someone not long ago made the tragic and terrible comment upon the saying "There is no place like home," in remarking, "Thank God there isn't."

But is the picture all as dark as this might suggest? Are there not brighter and better aspects? Most assuredly there are. The very complexity of conditions implies new opportunities and new advantages. For those who would discipline their own lives and build up a sound and healthy personal life and home life, the world of today offers a great deal that was denied earnest and serious people in the world of yesterday.

One does not, of course, take into account exceptional circumstances or tragedies occasioned by such conditions as unemployment, but it must be remembered that there were always present exceptional and tragic circumstances. The one thing that is clear, however, is that there can be no satisfactory life in the modern home itself, or coming from the modern home, except as old and well established standards are recognized. Home depends in its very nature upon love and loyalty, upon the faithfulness of its members to one another, and upon their mutual devotion to high ideals.

Unrestrained and carelessness can be only destructive in their results, and one must view with alarm a great deal of the license and reactionary attitudes that carries on falsely under the pretense of self-expression. Self-expression is most dangerous to the self when it pursues paths that are against the welfare and building up of sound home life and ideal social relationships.

THE SERVICE OF THE LORD

BY GEORGE HENRY DOLE

International Sunday School Lesson Text, Oct. 23rd.

"As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."—Josh. 24:15.

There is no possible service of the Lord other than the service of mankind. Who cannot at once see that the Infinite, He who created all things, does not need for Himself the service of what He has created? The Lord has given the dominion of the earth and all therein unto man. He wants the dominion of the earth to become the veritable kingdom of heaven, not for His sake, but for man's development and happiness. He gave the dominion to man because nothing can become man's or enter into his character, except through his will. As one serves the Lord by serving the neighbor he brings the Lord's spirit of service into the world, and advances the kingdom of heaven.

Do you want someone to render you a service to get something from you? That spirit of doing brings no profit; so the Lord bids us to do good, hoping not for reward.

Let us well know that we are Christians only in the degree that the Lord's love is used by us. Reflect upon the fact that He did nothing for Himself and laid down his life for others.

We can serve the Lord only as we serve others with the love that is in Him. This we will do as we eliminate the over-trusting ego.

It is not a thing of barter and trade. No number of good deeds can purchase heaven. In fact deeds good to the receiver may be evil to the doer, for deeds done for honor, gain or to get to heaven are essentially selfish. For a deed to be good to the doer, there must be in it the life of heaven, which is the love of service.

Do you want someone to render you a service to get something from you? That spirit of doing brings no profit; so the Lord bids us to do good, hoping not for reward.

Let us well know that we are Christians only in the degree that the Lord's love is used by us. Reflect upon the fact that He did nothing for Himself and laid down his life for others.

WOODCOCK SEASON ENDS 4 DAYS AHEAD OF OTHERS State Board Corrects Error In Announcement; November 19 Is Last Day.

The State Board of Fisheries and Game today announced that under federal regulations which govern hunting seasons on migratory game birds in Connecticut the open season on woodcock which began October 20, will close at sunset on November 19, not on November 23 as previously reported. The open season on ruffed grouse and male pheasants will continue until November 23 inclusive, the board announced, but the woodcock season will close four days earlier.

Other federal regulations affecting woodcock hunting in Connecticut this season provide the hours of shooting shall be from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset, not more than two days' bag limit of eight woodcock may be exported or removed from the state by one person in any one calendar week and use of a gun larger than ten gauge in hunting them is also illegal.

Pamphlet giving a summary of game laws, a list of public shooting grounds and regulations for hunting thereon and much other interesting information about the activities of the State Board of Fisheries and Game can now be obtained from sporting goods dealers, town clerks, gardeners and from the office of the State Board of Fisheries and Game.

ST. MARY'S JUNIOR CHOIR'S ELECTION St. Mary's Junior choir members under the direction of their leaders, Miss Violet Madden and Miss Margaret Stratton, held a business meeting and election in the Parish house Thursday evening. The following officers were elected: President, Evelyn Carlson; vice-president, Mary Law; secretary, Marjorie May; Evelyn Stevenson and Valeria Turner were appointed as a publicity committee. Those in charge of the refreshments for the next meeting are: Evelyn Stevenson, Mary Law, Edna Neville and Doris Dickson.

Following the meeting, games were thoroughly enjoyed by all until 9:15 when the members adjourned to the dining hall, where after the Doxology was sung, refreshments were served. The leaders wish to thank all who assisted in any way during the course of the evening.

QUOTATIONS If there is a position anywhere in creation that is open, my name always seems to be mentioned.—Ex-President Calvin Coolidge. The trouble with many modern parents is that they have more wishes than backbones.—Dame Beatrice Loyal, British Social Worker. If there is any lesson in history it is that we should go to the operating room quickly if we wish to keep our political institutions from taking a trip to the morgue.—Jay Franklin, writer. At last I've found out what the old world looks like at 6 in the morning.—James J. Walker, ex-mayor of New York, on return from abroad. Rich people need no longer fear that it is a disgrace to spend money lavishly when people are out of work and some of them starving. It is this very hoarding of money by the rich that adds to unemployment and its distresses.—Joseph H. Appel, New York advertising director.

WOMEN MOBILIZE TO ASSIST NEEDY

Party Lines Forgotten In Campaign To Reach the Entire Nation.

Washington, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover, made honorary chairman of the new National committee of welfare and relief mobilization planned to number 1,000 women community leaders, in a statement today urged "maintenance of morale" in the economic situation.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the Democratic candidate for President, was asked to serve as a vice-chairman in a list of seventy-three to which invitations were issued today by Mrs. Hoover, chairman, and Mrs. Nicholas F. Brady, chairman of the group. It was organized to aid the Newton D. Baker relief committee.

Mrs. Brady said that in selecting women for the committee, neither party lines nor politics was considered, the only qualifications being "community interest and leadership in social service work."

Simple Duties. Commenting that the name of the committee sounded "very ponderous and involved," Mrs. Hoover pronounced its duties "very simple and straightforward."

Mrs. Baker, she said, had made clear that money-raising and actual gathering of relief supplies and their distribution were provinces of other committees.

"Our duties will do primarily with matters of co-ordination and maintaining of morale," said Mrs. Hoover.

"There are going to be some millions in want. Many of these sufferers have not been in need before and will not know how to go about relieving their own distress. Many of their neighbors will not know they are in distress."

To seek these out and put them in touch with the sources of supply will be the aim of the group.

"But food and warmth and health are made to satisfy the desires of life," she added. "We should redouble our activities to supply educational and avocational opportunities, and recreation opportunities."

"The morale of the people, both of the sufferers and of their aides should be maintained, that they may be ready to take their usual place with full strength and zest when the current of their local life is re-established."

The following 73 women have been asked to serve as vice-presidents: Mrs. Lester Armour, Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. Newton D. Baker, Cleveland, Ohio; Mrs. August Belmont, New York; Mrs. Freda Brody, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Allen T. Burns, White Plains, N. Y.; Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, Northampton, Mass.; Mrs. W. H. MAY STANDARDIZE RELIEF SUPPLIES

Selectmen and Dealers To Confer On Plan To Cut Waste In Filing Orders.

A new plan for a standardized issue of groceries and necessities to be issued weekly to needy families will be discussed by the Board of Selectmen, the Charity Superintendent and representatives of local stores, Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Municipal building. The conference is a result of complaints received that recipients have abused the privilege of the weekly orders to obtain cigarettes, costly cuts of meat and other non-essentials which the town is not able, or willing to buy for those actually in want for groceries and meats.

Limits Chose. A new form, listing those things which may be obtained by the holders of the orders, will be issued weekly to accredited persons on the charity list. No items except those on the order blank, approved mutually by the co-operating stores and the town officials will be obtainable. It is expected that some form of a blanket contract covering the necessities authorized and accepted by both parties for the winter months will be agreed upon.

In the past recipients of orders have been allowed to obtain their groceries at their neighborhood stores. According to the projected plan of the Selectmen and the Charity Superintendent, purchases will be made only at those stores who agree to co-operate with the town officials in an effort to reduce the cost of the charity department in the approved manner.

MR. AND MRS. HEWITT RETURN FROM EUROPE

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hewitt returned this week from a five months' stay in Europe during which they visited England, Belgium, Holland and France. It was Mr. Hewitt's fourth trip across the Atlantic. He is a native of London and was formerly engaged in the milk business here. Mr. Hewitt said that he and his wife would probably motor to Florida in November to spend the winter months. While in Europe on their latest trip, the Hewitts visited World War battlefields where trenches and fortifications are still preserved.

IN THE LIFEBOAT

The sailor in the lifeboat of a wrecked ship who isn't willing to share equally with his mates in the dole of water; the castaway who seeks to get more than his companions of the scanty store of food on a desert island; the blizzard-trapped prospector who shrinks his part of the struggle to get the sledge load of supplies through to the cabin—these are familiar characters in familiar situations employed by dramatists for emphasis of contrast between worthiness and unworthiness. They never fail to bring reaction according to formula. The teller of the tale knows the depth of detestation in the normal human heart for the individual who, in the face of a great common danger or a great common need, is not willing to cast in his lot with his fellows and share-and-share-alike; who expects from others sacrifices he is not willing to make himself and schemes to soften his own hardships at the expense of those with whom his lot has fallen. The playwright or author knows to a nicety how the normal spectator or reader is going to feel about the water thief in the boat or the malingering in the snow storm—and that the eventual downfall of the despicable character will be greeted with rejoicing.

He couldn't figure on such reaction if the majority of the playgoers or the readers did not belong in a different category from the greedy, selfish character in the story. He can figure on it because the greater part of the people are generous, fair, asking for no more than an even break in life, and because their souls revolt at callous selfishness and self-love feeding themselves on the flesh of humanity.

The fair minded majority holds in fervid contempt the unfair minded minority. In fair weather, in good times, it may hold that contempt in abeyance. It may let selfishness and self-seeking work itself out, go its own way, preferring to put up with such injuries as itself suffers in consequence rather than to roll its own soul with anger and conflict. But when shipwreck comes and all are in the boat together and there is only a little water, we betide the greedy individual or group that seeks to get more than its righteous share.

These are stern times that are upon us. They are liable to prove had times indeed for those who will not play the game according to the standards of the life boat and the desert isle. Because if they refuse to play fair they needn't be in the least surprised if nothing but applause comes when they are pitched out of the boat.

A CULMINATION

The promptness with which various Republican leaders have seized upon Governor Roosevelt's Pittsburgh bonus pronouncement is only equalled by the enthusiasm with which they have greeted an excellent opportunity to convict the Democratic Presidential candidate of shillyshallying. There is no question about it; Mr. Roosevelt, in trying to be over-smart has out-smarted himself completely in this matter of the bonus. With half a dozen words he could have committed himself positively on the side of determined opposition to bonus payment and at the same time presented plausible evidence that his present position was consistent with his position prior to the campaign. He could have come out of this bonus controversy with flying colors, as a matter of fact, and could have made his Republican hecklers on the bonus look a little foolish.

Instead of that, Mr. Roosevelt has tried, somewhat ingeniously but not quite ingeniously enough, to make it appear that he is against the bonus, at the same time leaving, for the encouragement of the bonusers, a loophole observable only to seeking eyes by which he might crawl if, as President, he should be called on to approve a bonus bill. This might have worked if there were no seeking eyes but those of the bonus boomers. Unhappily for the Democratic candidate the Republican leaders were neither blind nor asleep.

Wherefore the Pittsburgh straddle is getting a terrific showing up and Mr. Roosevelt is more effectively than ever before disclosed as an Artful Dodger.

Mr. Roosevelt, from the beginning of the campaign, has consistently been less anxious to tell the people what he would do or would not do, as President, than he has been to tell them things that would induce them to elect him. His bonus statement is the culmination of a long series of tricky evasions.

TOWN MEETING?

The school teachers of Manchester want another town meeting held, hoping that such a meeting would rescind the action of the annual meeting in reducing the school budget from $888,000 to $800,000. They seem to have a clearer idea of the right way to go about nullifying the town meeting's vote than the Board of Education had when it went two-thirds of the way in complying with the town's mandate and declined to go any further, standing pat on its own amended formula. If the schools cannot be run on the sum voted by the town meeting then the proper proceedings, it would seem, is to put it up to town meeting again. The teachers have the right idea. They acknowledge the final authority of the voters in assemblies.

As to their having the right idea in hoping that another town meeting would amend the action of the annual meeting, that is another matter. It might and it might not. It might even amend the action in a direction contrary to that sought by the teachers. You never can tell what a town meeting will do. Still, the main idea is that the teachers are going back to the only real authority in the premises when it comes to saying how much money, or how little, shall be spent on schools.

It should not be forgotten, however, that with the passage of each day the country as a whole is learning more and more about municipal bankruptcy. The devastating experience of Chicago, which hasn't been able to pay its teachers at all for months at a time, of New York city which even yet is under the shadow of an empty treasury, and the situation in many towns throughout the country that have had to close their schools for a large part of the year—all these things are in the minds of the people. And the people will be very determined not to get themselves into a place where they will have to close the schools here.

We don't pretend to know what the people of this town would do about this business of a few thousand dollars in the school budget. But if we were in the teachers' position we should hate to risk it.

BLESS THE DEMOCRATS

As a Republican newspaper, the Herald desires to go on record as strongly approving one feature of the Democratic Presidential campaign—still in the future. We are heart and soul for that torchlight parade with which the Democrats of New York city are planning to celebrate the return of Governor Roosevelt from his final tour of the country on Thursday next.

This has been a sour campaign, full of vitriol and vinegar and spleen. No fun in it at all. Even the humorous stories with which spellbinders have always in times past been wont to lighten up their turgid warnings have been either missing altogether or about as comical as a dirge. Here in Connecticut, for our sins, we have had to listen to Governor Cross.

It has been an unhappy, dispiriting, grouchy, snarling time. If the New York Democrats, by the simple device of lining up their cohorts in some sort of marching formation, giving each of the faithful a tin can full of kerosene slung on a pole and having them parade behind bands and fill the West Side full of the pungent fumes of lantern smoke, can bring back some glimmering spark of the enthusiasm that used to attend Presidential campaigns, they will deserve a definite measure of gratitude at the hands of a bored and disgruntled public regardless of politics.

Of course there is little likelihood that it will be anything more than a ghost of the torchlight parades of the last century when the biggest part of the campaign funds went into uniforms, drill halls and liquid ammunition for the marching clubs—in the days of the magnificence of the Bulkeley Guards of Hartford and when every ward in every city had its Republican and Democratic martial organization. When they foregathered by trainloads and held

"state" parades in every city and half the towns.

But at least there will be a slender savor, no doubt, of the way they used to do it in the 80's. And for that savor, in these days of bitterly sombre politics, let us be thankful!

MORE FISCAL GRIEF

Despite the fact that a day or two ago it was gleefully announced by American newspaper correspondents in London, that Great Britain was preparing to meet in full her war debt payment to the United States due December 15 it is improbable that there will be any payment then either by England or France.

Mr. Roosevelt, from the beginning of the campaign, has consistently been less anxious to tell the people what he would do or would not do, as President, than he has been to tell them things that would induce them to elect him. His bonus statement is the culmination of a long series of tricky evasions.

Behind the Scenes in WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUCHESNEAU, NRA Service Writer

Washington.—This is the annual story about whether we are in for a cold, harsh winter or a warm, mild winter.

Your guess, as usual, is just as good as the Weather Bureau's. If this winter is anything like last winter it will be relatively balmy, whereas if it is the opposite of last winter it will be a tough one.

The last six winters have been warmer than the normal winter, which does not demonstrate anything about the weather. The fact that there has been a general marked trend toward milder temperatures in the last 50 or 60 years.

If it is warmer than normal in the coming season, a succession of seven warmer-than-normal winters will have occurred for the first time anyone remembers.

All of which is in no way conclusive but it is about all anyone can say.

The weary patience of the Weather Bureau officials in an attempt to answer the question about the winter's prospects is one of the more convincing evidences of the extreme limits of human endurance.

"Every time we think we have established sequences and cycles for the weather, nature comes along and blows us wrong," Dr. Charles F. Marvin, veteran head of the bureau.

"We still don't believe anyone can yet make a long-distance weather forecast on a scientific basis, although studies in all parts of the world and men have spent decades seeking to demonstrate a weather periodicity."

So if those old bones of yours just tell you this winter is going to be pretty awful, you have just as much right to your prophecy as anyone else. It's just as good as that of the farmer up surely need a diet rich in vitamins and organic acids, such as are found in the non-starchy vegetables, especially when used uncooked.

(Craves New Potatoes)
 Question: Miss Vera Jane R. writes: "I seem to have a craving for raw potatoes and I would like to know if it is harmful to eat them."
 Answer: I do not believe that potatoes are injurious to your health. Perhaps there is some element of vitamin which they contain that your system craves. Eating large quantities of other raw vegetables would probably overcome the desire for the potatoes.

(Fatty Lump: On Nose)
 Question: Y. writes: "A few years ago small lump: began to appear on the side of my nose, after a while on the other side, and now are coming to my forehead. Will you please tell me the cause, and is there any treatment besides removal with the electric needle?"
 Answer: The fatty lumps you describe are usually caused by faulty metabolism. A correct fasting and dieting regimen, as outlined in my Cleansing Diet Course, may not remove the lumps which have already formed but this will tend to correct the metabolism and prevent more from forming.

(Arsenic Poisoning)
 Question: O. O. writes: "As a smelterman I have to work where there is an abundance of arsenic. The dust flying in the air causes many burns regardless of what we do for protection against it, such as respirator, goggles and face painted with iron. I would like to know if there isn't some medicine that can be injected into the blood that will counteract arsenic poisoning?"
 Answer: I do not know of any medicines that could be injected into the blood which would counteract arsenic poisoning. The chemical antidote is hydrated sesquioxide of iron. For poisoning caused by absorption, the best treatment I have found is the milk diet, instructions for which I shall be glad to forward upon receipt of a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope. You should be sure to drink large quantities of water.

(Lettuce Soup)
 Question: Mrs. Vivian K. asks: "Will you please publish a recipe for lettuce soup?"
 Answer: Shred two medium-sized heads of lettuce and put into a large kettle, over a low fire with three or four cups of water. Let simmer for an hour and strain off the liquid, mashing as much as desired of the cooked lettuce through the colander. If liquid does not equal three cups, add hot water. Next add a tablespoonful of chopped parsley and a dash of whipped cream to each serving. Thin strips of Melba toast may be used if desired.

(Blue Spots)
 Question: Mrs. Coral L. writes: "What would cause blue spots to appear on my flesh, even when I am not conscious of having been touched by anything which would cause a bruise?"
 Answer: You should have a careful examination, as the tendency to turn blue is often a very serious condition denoting a weakness of the walls of the blood vessels. You ducing them. Your trouble may be due to a form of arthritis which may exist even without much pain. My article on arthritis may give you some helpful information, and I shall be glad to forward it if you will send a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope with a request for it.

Health and Diet Advice

USE MORE FRESH CIDER

The consumption of cider has increased a great deal in the last few years, both in Canada and in the United States. More fresh cider is being used and also, in some places, a large amount of fermented cider which often contains as much as 8 per cent of alcohol. More of both the sweet and hard kind is being sold each day from fruit juice stands and the drug stores.

Apple juice is not improved, in any way, by fermentation but is really more palatable and wholesome if used as soon as possible after being squeezed out.

Cider making may be carried on at home as there is nothing complicated about the making of it. All it is necessary to do is to grind the apples to a pulp and then press the pulp to extract its juice. Small presses can be purchased for use in the home. In the fall, apple cider may be made at very little expense by those who live in sections where apples are plentiful. During the later winter months and in the spring the price of apples, out of which cider can be made, is almost prohibitive for those of moderate means.

In many places large companies are now meeting the need for fresh cider by storing away large quantities of apples and using them all during the year, making the cider fresh and delivering it fresh to soft drink stands and soda fountains each day. It is possible, for some time, to keep sweet cider fresh by fermenting by powdered wood charcoal in the ratio of about a pint to a barrel. The use of preservative in the cider made for beverage purposes is undesirable, and is unnecessary if it is carefully made and bottled in favorable conditions. The bottles or barrels of cider must be kept in a cool place. The cooler the cider is kept, the less fermentation will develop.

The best way to use cider is to drink glassfuls as the tendency to a meal, or a glassful may be taken an hour before meals or just before retiring.

I find I have very good results from fasting patients on an exclusive diet of apple-juice and water. A glassful may then be taken every two hours during the day. Cider has a mild laxative effect and this effect is noticed even when no other food is taken. The bowels usually do not move during a fast, except with enemas, but on the cider diet one will often have several evacuations daily.

It would be a good idea if more cider were used by school children at lunch-courses in place of talking milk, sandwiches, etc., which foods are hard to digest and remain in the stomach to interfere with the next meal. The nourishing part of cider is quickly assimilated and the liquid passes out of the stomach. Fresh cider is sweet enough to satisfy the child's desire for sweets, and a glassful or two a day will supply the system with some good vitamins, and at the same time, will insure freedom from constipation.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Knots on Finger Joints)

Question: Mr. Fred E. A. asks: "Is there any way of removing knots from first joints on my index fingers, presumably caused from hard work? They have just formed within the last six months."
 Answer: Since the enlargements appeared only within the last six months, it is likely that there is some inflammation present, in which case these knots can be reduced; but, if due to a growth of bone, there is no feasible method of re-

IN NEW YORK

A Felice Trouper
 New York, Oct. 21.—They found Lulu, degenerated to a cadaverous staid and ghastly, haunting the botched and rusting stage door of the old Belasco Theater.

A trouper to the last! Waiting for the time when someone would open the door again; when the stage would be lighted; when there would be music and voices again and she could curl up in a stage chair and take her entrance and exit cues.

Alas, Lulu had been one of the theatrically unemployed since her discovery as a sponsor, David Belasco, died and the house closed its doors. Oh, well, that's the way of the theater; a sickle profession for man, woman or cat.

After all, Lulu had been taken from the gutter, raised to the heights and now the gutter again! She was making the rounds of the Broadway ash cans when an actor lifted her from the street and took her back stage. Belasco was rehearsing "Lulu Belle." Named after that exotic leading character, Lulu was just the cat Belasco had been looking for—and if you saw the play, you may remember her.

(Distinguished Family)
 So it came about that Lulu became mother of the most famous theatrical cat family that Broadway has known. Didn't Min, one of her offspring, make a long and distinguished road tour with Beatrice Lillie? Those were the good days when a fellow knew where his next bowl of milk was coming from.

And there was Louise! What ever had become of that promising kitten? Louise had the heart and the temperament of the trouper. Louise had been able to take a cue when but a few months old. Lulu was mighty proud of her.

A Mouse-hunter Again
 Now you have the cast of characters: Lulu, Louise and Min—and we can take up this tale of the shadowed, gloomy, half-lit alleys that lead to the wonderland of lights and illusion which lies just beyond the forbidding looking stage doors. Just why the gateway to so many hopes and dreams should always be a dank, damp and dolorous passage-way has never been explained. Yet there is nothing so unpromising as a stage entrance!

And there, as stated at the beginning of this tale, they came upon Lulu, acting like any other street cat and as desperate as any jobless actor of the Great White Way. She had descended to catching mice again, and when she could find them. They found her just in time, for winter was approaching and her skin was stretching about her skeleton until she had begun to look like an illustration out of Poe.

Guest of Honor
 They took Lulu down to the Actors' Dinner Club, where they feed all hungry actors who care to drop in. They turned her over to Margie, the chef, and they told Lenore Uric, who was opening in a new show and who had been a fellow member of Lulu's cast. There was a banquet in the kitchen back of the big dining room and actors all came out to welcome Lulu, the cat that had learned her stuff from the famous Belasco.

Lulu ate and stretched. Again she was every inch a cat. A bit old and weary, to be sure—

Surprise Party!
 Lulu, as I say, stretched and jumped on a chair, curling up while kings of the stage looked at a cat. And then, from under a warm place behind the stove, came another cat—

You've guessed it—it was none other than Louise! Louise had been brought in from the street by Helen Morgan—or maybe it was Laurette Taylor. Louise had been when a fellow knew where his next bowl of milk was coming from.

And there was Louise! What ever had become of that promising kitten? Louise had the heart and the temperament of the trouper. Louise had been able to take a cue when but a few months old. Lulu was mighty proud of her.

Meanwhile, Lulu has retired, but agreed to play a benefit at the Actors' Club the other evening.

TOMORROW

What discoveries are around the corner—what things, undreamed of today, will be commonplace tomorrow? The past has been products once rare and unknown become widespread and familiar. The future will see the process repeated.

Advertising is the driving force which brings about these changes in your life. For when a new product is developed, its distribution is limited until the advertiser tells you about it. When the product is known, you and all your neighbors form a great potential market, permitting quantity production. Economies in manufacture result—and the article comes within the reach of everybody. It has happened before—and it will happen again in the same way.

Read the advertisements! They are of vital importance to you. Your homes and habits are changed by advertised goods. What things novel, interesting modern—will be offered next? You will find new horizons in the advertising pages of this newspaper.

AMHERST INAUGURATES NEW PRESIDENT NOV. 11

Dr. Stanley King To Be Formally Inducted—Dr. Hopkins, Walter Lippmann Speakers.

Amherst, Oct. 22.—Dr. Stanley King, President-elect of Amherst; Dr. Ernest Martin Hopkins, President of Dartmouth; and Walter Lippmann, editor and author, of New York City, associates in the War Department at Washington back in the stirring days of 17-18 when they all served under Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, will hold a reunion here on Armistice Day, Nov. 11, when Dr. King will be inaugurated eleventh President of Amherst and Dr. Hopkins and Lippmann will be the "outside" speakers at the inauguration and a member of the Advisory Commission of the Council of National Defense, asked King to come to Washington and join the Committee of Supplies for the Council, because of the experience he had had with the purchasing department of the War Department in his year and a half abroad from 1914-1916; and he therefore went to Washington and took up his work as a dollar-a-year man with the Council. He was one of the first dollar-a-year men to go to Washington. He built up the organization of the Committee of Supplies very rapidly, bringing in expert American business men in many fields of activity.

Lippmann went to Washington in the early summer as a special assistant to the Secretary of War dealing with labor problems. He and King lived together with a small group of bachelors in the government service in what was then known as the House of Truth. About the first of September, 1917, the Secretary of War asked King if he would join his staff as special assistant dealing with business problems. He immediately retired from the Council of Defense and joined the Secretary's staff.

A week after this, Lippmann resigned from the Secretary's staff to become associated with Colonel House in the group of experts organized by the Colonel called the Inquiry. This group was dealing with problems which would arise in a subsequent peace conference. Secretary Baker then asked King to take over Lippmann's work in the War Department in addition to his own, which he did.

It quickly became obvious to King that the direction of policy and administration of detail in handling labor problems incident to government work in the war would become a very big job, for which were needed the best men in the country in this line.

King telegraphed to President Hopkins at Dartmouth. He received the telegram when he was on a speaking tour to the alumni of Dartmouth and he cancelled the rest of his speaking engagements, took the next train for Washington and entered the service, with the approval of his Board of Trustees. At the outset the set-up was that President Hopkins was on General Goethals' staff in charge of labor problems of the entire Quartermaster's Department. Under him was a staff which he quickly built up.

Made Baker's Secretary Early in 1918 the private secretary of the Secretary of War joined the Army and went to France and the Secretary appointed King private secretary, a position which he held until June, 1918.

When he became private secretary to the Secretary of War, Dr. Hopkins became special assistant to the Secretary, taking King's previous position. Dr. Hopkins held this office until the opening of college at the end of September, 1918, when he resigned and King reassumed the office, and held it in addition to his office of private secretary. During this period President Hopkins, Dean Scherwin, of the University of Cincinnati, who was serving the Ordnance Department, and King worked closely on labor policy. Schneider became President of University of Cincinnati two or three years ago and held the office until last September when he resigned and returned to his previous position as Dean of the Engineering School. Lippmann, Hopkins and King had known each other before the war but of course came to know each other much better during their service in Washington.

WAPPING

The teachers meeting which was to have been held last Thursday afternoon was postponed as Mr. Young had another engagement. It will be held next Thursday afternoon at the Union school at South Windsor. There will be a special meeting of the Wapping Federated church next Wednesday evening, at 7:30 o'clock to copy further proposed amendments to the articles of association of the church, recommended by a committee with particular reference to finances and a common treasury for the Federated church. While Charles J. Dewey was picking apples at his home on Tuesday a limb broke and he fell several feet. No bones were broken but he was shaken up and sprained his ankle. He is on crutches. Tomorrow will be the fifty-third anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey's marriage. Wapping Grange will hold its sixteenth regular meeting at the school hall next Tuesday evening. It is to be "Spook Night." Everyone must mask or pay a fine. There will be games and stunts.

Ten-Shun Buddies

The Bulletin Board of Ex-Service Organizations. Legion Notes. At the annual meeting of the Drum Corps the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President Everett Kennedy, vice president Louis T. Milligan, secretary Arthur F. Sullivan, treasurer Marcel Donze. Past President John D. Hartnett was elected chairman of the executive committee, the other two members being Walter Fox and John G. Giannetty. The regular monthly meeting of Hartford County Association consisting of twenty-five posts will be held in the Town Hall, Suffield, Sunday, Oct. 23, at 8 p. m. with Suffield Post, No. 94 as host. At the November meeting the new change in the by-laws will be in effect limiting the voting strength of each post to two votes, namely the commander and adjutant or their duly appointed alternates.

We are pleased to learn that the rifle range located on land donated by Comrade William Thornton in the northeastern section of the town near the Vernon town line has been completed. The materials were donated and the members of the club did the work. The range deserves a lot of credit for the job and we wish them well for the future when they are enjoying the fruits of their good hard labor. Marcel Donze has been elected president of the new organization and with him will serve Luther J. Chapin as vice president, Everett Kennedy as secretary and treasurer, with Louis T. Milligan acting as instructor and range officer. We, who served in the navy, do not know much about a rifle range, but the writer has been informed that the work just completed will compare very well with any rifle range in the state. Well done boys, well done.

Vice Commander Frank E. Zimmerman is now able to be about a little each day following a major operation performed at the Veterans' Hospital at Newtonington. We wonder whether another one of those enjoyable sports nights will be held again this winter, with all the veterans organizations competing. Let's get together and plan another, they're good fun.

The State Executive Committee has granted a charter to a new post at Somers, Conn. The new post started with a membership of 47.

American Legion Auxiliary. Our regular meeting was held at the South Methodist church on Monday evening, preceded by a delicious supper served by the Ladies Aid society. Much credit is given to Mrs. Eunice Hohenthal and her committee who helped to make this banquet a success.

The regular business meeting followed, the main feature of which was the installing of the new officers by Mrs. Mary Brosnan, county president, assisted by Mrs. Margaret Palmer, county sergeant-at-arms. Mrs. Brosnan, who is also our retiring president, was presented with a Past President's jewel pin, the gift of the Unit.

Mrs. Helen McFarland, National executive committee woman, gave a very interesting talk on her trip to the National Convention in Portland, Oregon, and showed pictures which were taken on the trip. Mrs. Palmer who is department chairman of legislation, spoke briefly of the necessity of keeping in touch with our Congressmen and Senators in regard to veteran legislation. She stated that the Widows' and Orphans' bill has passed the House of Representatives and will come up in the next session of the Senate.

It was voted at the meeting to pledge a contribution to the local Girl Scout work.

Mrs. Christine Glenny of 70 Bigelow street has offered the use of her home for a card party for the benefit of the Auxiliary on Monday night, Oct. 24. She will be assisted by Mrs. Hess, Mrs. Bausola, Mrs. Hohenthal, Mrs. Donze and Mrs. Woodhouse.

It was also voted to hold a turkey drawing again this year, the money raised to be used for our Christmas Welfare Fund.

Mrs. Mary Brosnan, county president, has been very busy this past week. One day she represented the department president at the State meeting of the D. A. R. in Bristol. Last Thursday night she attended the meeting of Rocky Hill Unit, the unit being one year old on that date. Last night she was present at the installation of the Jean Cargill Nurses' Post in Newtonington.

The next county meeting will be held in the Town Hall in Suffield at 8 p. m., Sunday, Oct. 23. All members are urged to attend if possible. November 1 starts the new year for the Auxiliary and dues are now payable. In order to get a good start for the new year, all members are urged to pay their dues as soon as possible. The following is taken from our Department Bulletin on membership: "The Legion needs our support more than ever this year, and this would be conclusive evidence of our realization of the purpose for which we, as an Auxiliary, were created." "We strive until the Goal is Gained. Then reach for one still unattained. Our course points not from what we've done But from the work we have just begun."

Anderson-Shea Auxiliary V. F. W. President Eleanor Freelese, attended the D. A. R. Washington Tree dedication exercises held Wednesday afternoon at the old Glass-works ruins at Manchester Green. Mrs. Freelese reports that the ceremonies were very impressive and that she enjoyed them immensely. The next Hartford County Council meeting will be held in Unionville on November 13th. The time and places will be announced later. Election and installation of officers for the coming year will take place at that time.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held in the State Army on Friday evening, November 4th. About thirty of the members of the Auxiliary attended the party given to the Rockville Auxiliary and Post by the Hartford County Council, Friday evening, Oct. 14. Manchester had the largest number in attendance. After the parade a class of candidates was taken in Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served and dancing was enjoyed until midnight. Needless to say all had a good time.

On Friday evening, October 20, there will be a Halloween party given by the Hartford County Auxiliaries to the comrades at the U. S. Veterans' hospital at Newtonington. Several of the sisters will attend, assisting Mrs. Mae Chrysalis, Department hospital chairman, Gertrude Buchanan, Hospital chairman will visit the hospital next Tuesday and make a regular monthly visit to Ward F and the boys from Manchester.

The quarterly meeting of the Department will be held in Milford on Sunday, October 30. It is hoped that a large number from the local Auxiliary will attend, as these meetings are very instructive.

British War Veterans. A special meeting of the Mous-Ypres Post will be held in the Army and Navy club this Wednesday evening, Oct. 26 at 8 p. m. All members of the Post are urgently requested to attend the meeting as business of a very important nature must be discussed. Members will be notified by the secretary so we are hoping for a very large attendance.

The members of the Mous-Ypres Post who attended the supper and entertainment given by the members of the Army and Navy Club which was held at their clubhouse last Wednesday evening, Oct. 19, report having had a very fine time. Some very fine acts of vaudeville which followed a roast beef supper, prepared by Dave McCoolum was enjoyed by over 250 members, which shows how an affair of this kind is appreciated. A vote of thanks in order to the very hard worked staff to make it such a success.

The secretary of the Mous-Ypres Post received a letter this week from the secretary of the British War Veterans' Post of Springfield, Mass. The Springfield Post is getting along fine and now has a membership of 150 British War Veterans. They extend their greetings and good wishes to the Mous-Ypres Post and hope to pay us a visit in the very near future.

Members of the Mous-Ypres Post are again reminded of the Annual Armistice dinner and entertainment which will be held in the Oasis club, East Hartford, on Armistice Night, Nov. 11. This affair is sponsored by the Edith Cavell Committee at Hartford. Tickets can be procured from F. Baker. And so-long till next Saturday.

SOCIETY ATTENDS BIG RACE EVENT

Secretary of State Stimson Plays the Part of Country Squire Today.

New York, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson plays the part of a country squire today.

He turned over a section of his Highhold estate near Woodbury, Long Island, for the annual running of the smart West Hills race meet—the magnet each year for hundreds of society folk.

The running of the first race—the Highhold, named for the estate—was set for 1:45 p. m. and was preceded by a buffet luncheon.

The meet was in charge of a committee headed by Frederic C. Thomas, F. Ambrose Clark, Earl Potter and Robert Young. A fringe of the property of Thomas F. White, which adjoins the Stimson estate, also was used for the steeplechase.

Combining pleasure with philanthropy, fashionables attending the race planned to gather this evening at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis LeB. Robbins, Jr., at Woodbury, nearby, for a race ball. Proceeds from the ball—an invitation subscription affair—will go to charity.

Many of the social elite who are keeping their country homes open until after the November election are taking advantage of the extension of time to get their fall gardens in order and to reorganize their clubs. Wednesday Mrs. Edwin Denison Morgan, whose country place is at Wheatly, Long Island, was hostess at the annual meeting of the North Country Garden Club—the most exclusive organization of its kind on the island. Mrs. Harold I. Pratt was reelected president for her third year.

One of the requisites for membership in the club is that each member must actually direct or do work in her own garden.

ROCKVILLE

RETAIL MERCHANTS HOLD FIRST DINNER MEETING

Corbin Englert Heads Local Business Group—"Ladies' Night" Banquet Is Planned. The first dinner meeting of the Rockville Retail Merchants' Association was held at Wayside Lake, the cottage of William Fohmert, in Tolland, on Thursday evening. There were about twenty members present. Officers were elected and Corbin Englert was chosen president to succeed William Conroy. The other officers elected were: Vice-president, William Fergus; secretary, Edward Connors; treasurer, Miss Marjorie Mackin. A German dinner was served.

The members voted to hold their meetings the first Thursday evening of each month instead of on Tuesday evenings. It was also voted, on the suggestion of James R. Quinn, to hold in the near future, a "Ladies' Night" which will take the form of a banquet. The president will name a committee soon.

The taxation of peddlers coming into the city was also the topic of much discussion. The Dramatic Club of St. Joseph's Polish Catholic church will present a play, "The Village Wedding", in St. Joseph's School hall on Sunday night at 7:30. Rehearsals are being held. Following are in the cast: Anna Baskak, G. Sierakowski, Amelia Jasion, Edward Grous, Danley Sierakowski, Mary Malaya, M. Kania, Helen Grous, Elizabeth Radowska, Anna Gworek, W. Suchocki, Francis Rogalus, B. Mazowska, Clementine Gworek, Alexander Wagner, C. Suchek, Felix Zaleski, Eugene Roszczak.

State Arcanum Officers. J. Herbert Annear of New Britain, formerly of this city, who is grand regent of the state council, Royal Arcanum, was in this city with his staff and other officers on Thursday evening when a union meeting was held in Red Men's hall of this city. Grand Secretary L. Erwin Jacobs was among the officers present. Refreshments and a social hour followed.

Lions Reception Committee. At a recent meeting of the Rockville Lions Club the members voted to act as a reception committee to Miss Helen Keller, the American writer and lecturer, who has been blind since babyhood. She will come to Hartford on Sunday evening, November 13, and the members will also act as ushers at the service. As the Lions Club in all sections of the state has taken great interest in blind people, the members wish to do their part when Miss Keller comes to Rockville. The noon meetings of the Lions club will be discontinued and only evening meetings held.

Garden Club Plans. The Rockville Community Garden Club's executive committee is planning to hold a meeting in the constitution, which will be held up at the November meeting. The fall clean-up of the garden will be the subject for discussion. In December a Christmas party will be held, and in January "Iris Gardens" will be the subject. The Club will hold a food sale on Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 26, at the Rockville-Williamson Electric Lighting Company on Park street. Mrs. Frank Schott is in charge of the sale.

Notes. Mrs. Florence Young has returned from a hospital in Hartford to her home on Union street. She underwent an operation for appendicitis. Miss Gladys Nettleton of Redding, Pa., is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis S. Nettleton of Talcoville avenue.

Miss Ruth Skinner, formerly with the Rockville Visiting Nurses Association, is seriously ill at a Springfield, Mass., hospital. J. Andrew Trull, local sportsman, is on a hunting trip this week.

The Rockville National Bank, William Partidge, assistant trust officer, is administrator of the estate of the late Margaret Ann Kynoch. Notes. The Willimantic Glee Club will appear at the Rockville Methodist church on Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Wetstein have returned from several days' visit with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wetstein of Orange, N. J. Raymond Ertel of the Rockville Post Office force is enjoying a few days' hunting trip.

LITZMANN NOMINATED. Berlin, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The National Socialists of Adolf Hitler voted to nominate 42-year-old General Karl Litzmann for the Reichstag to prevent the possibility of the veteran Communist Clara Zetkin opening the next Reichstag by virtue of her seniority.

General Litzmann opened the Prussian Diet as its oldest member recently. Both of those legislative bodies honor the oldest member by naming them temporary president at the opening sessions. Clara Zetkin, who is 75, was the oldest member of the Reichstag at its latest session, and delivered at the outset an attack on President von Hindenburg and Republican government.

OVER 5,000 VISITED FAIR HEALTH SHOWS

Ten Exhibits Staged By State In September and October Drew Great Interest.

More than 5,000 people attended and received information of various sorts concerning health protection at the ten public exhibitions which the State Department of Health staged at country fairs in different sections of Connecticut during September and October this year. The season for these exhibits began on September 1 and closed Oct. 13.

During the course of the ten exhibits, more than 7,000 leaflets on subjects dealing with health' conservation were taken by adults who visited the tents. Of those who attended, 1,800 witnessed a display of health moving pictures, 1,512 children were weighed, to say nothing of the large number of adults who were keenly interested in checking their weights. Sixty different health films were shown at the department's tents.

The exhibits largely centered upon child health in the form of colored, lighted panels which suggested various phases of child care. These became talking points for conferences with parents who asked pertinent questions about diphtheria immunization, behavior problems, problems of sex, eating habits, proper selection of food and innumerable others. Wall panels in black and white emphasize other health points, one of which brought forth many discussions about birth certificates and led many to question whether all members of their family had one and if not where they could be obtained.

It is reported by the bulletin that many of the large fairs were discontinued this year and that the fairs which were held were taking on the character of old home days, or gathering places for friends to meet, which affords a real opportunity to place health information in the hands of family groups.

The loneliest policeman in the world is the Royal Canadian Mounted constable who is posted 1,000 miles north of Hudson Bay and only 700 miles from the North Pole.

THEATERS AT THE STATE

"Smilin' Through"

Richard Barthelmess in "The Cabin in the Cotton," and Jackie Cooper and Lewis Stone in "Divorce in the Family" will be shown at the State for the last times today. Another chapter of "Heroes of the West" will also be included on today's program.

Norma Shearer in "Smilin' Through" will head the program for three days starting Sunday night. This beautiful story which has stirred the hearts of countless theatergoers since Jane Cowl first presented it on the New York stage, takes on a new glow under the witchery of Norma Shearer's acting. In this she is rendered superb support by Fredric March, Leslie Howard, G. P. Haggis, Ralph Forbes and others. Norma, in this picture, turns away from the sophistication of her past roles. In her dual roles of Mooneyen and Kathleen she attains an ethereal charm as the one and touches new dramatic heights as the other. It is a romance that will touch the very depths of your heart—you will smile through your tears at this great romance. If your heart responds to romance—if your pulse quickens to a drama of love as turbulent as life itself, you will enjoy every moment of this picture. It has captured the heart of the world and the haunting beauty of the production will linger in your memory forever. If you do not see another picture this winter, do not miss seeing "Smilin' Through!"

The State management will run a special matinee for local high students on Monday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock. This special matinee will follow immediately after the regular daily matinee which starts at the usual hour, 2:15.

PARSONS' HARTFORD

"Mourning Becomes Electra" by Eugene O'Neill, will be presented by the Theater Guild on Monday, October 31, at the Parsons Theater, Hartford, and again on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. O'Neill's play is called a trilogy, and for convenience is arranged in three plays with a total of fourteen acts. Each play bears a separate title. The first one is "Homescoming," the second "The Hunting," and the third "The Haunting." The performance begins at 5:30 and continues until seven. There comes an intermission of one hour for dinner. At 8 o'clock the performance is resumed and continues until shortly after eleven.

As the title indicates, "Mourning Becomes Electra" follows the scheme of the Orestes-Electra legend that Aeschylus, Sophocles and Euripides translated into drama in the days of Greek classicism; but O'Neill has modernized it, and, according to the eminent critics of the metropolis and wherever else the trilogy has been presented, it is easily one of the truly great masterpieces of the modern theater.

As always, the Theater Guild has assembled a notable cast, including Elizabeth Risdon, Leona Hogarth, Lee Baker, Charles Brokaw, Bernice Elliott, Robert Strange, Brandon Evans, Eric Kalkhurst and others. Philip Moeller directed the acting, while Robert Edmond Jones designed the settings.

GILEAD

About eighty persons attended the Grange meeting at Gilead hall Tuesday evening. A very interesting program was presented by visiting Grangers from Manchester, Colchester and Lebanon. Doughnuts and sweet cider were served by the committee and there was dancing. An invitation to visit Borah Grange on the evening of November 9 was accepted.

Miss Viola Dingwall of Meriden was a week-end guest at Mr. and Mrs. Norman Warner's.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Miller and their children of Milford were Sunday visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Hart E. Buell's.

Local schools were closed Thursday afternoon as the teachers attended a meeting for teachers in Colchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fish were visitors in Hartford Wednesday.

The hunting season opened Thursday and the city dwellers were on hand to get the first bird. There will be a chicken-pie supper and sale of useful articles at the local hall next Friday evening.

There is a big apple crop this year and local farmers have their crops nearly harvested.

BON AMI AND NURSERY STOCK RUSH ON NOW

Manchester Post Office Doing Big Business—Bon Ami Samples Being Mailed.

The Manchester Post Office at the north end is in the middle of one of its busiest seasons at present, the result of large Bon Ami and nursery shipments, it was learned today from Postmaster Ernest F. Brown. The C. R. Burr Nursery Company and Wilson Nursery are sending large shipments of rose bushes, perennials and evergreens all over New England and to New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York as well. The nursery shipment, however, is not as heavy as last year.

The Bon Ami shipment is going to every state in the country and consists mainly of sample packages for domestic science teachers in high schools. This is part of a gigantic advertisement scheme which has proved its worth in past years. Thursday a total of 350 sacks of mail were dispatched from the north and office which is more than the combined Christmas business at both the north and south end offices for a similar period. The nursery is largely shipped in 20 pound packages.

The mail boys don't seem to be enthusiastic about plans for Homescoming Day.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The first class party of the year was for the class of 1935 and was held last evening at the high school hall. Stunts in the form of entertainment on the stage followed by refreshments and dancing were included in the good time held by the two hundred or more students who attended.

As each person entered he was presented with one of the following symbols: Skulls, black cats, gnomes, pumpkins, bats, masks, owls, witches. Later those having the same symbol were divided into groups so that finally there were eight groups each with a group leader. Each leader of the group knew what his stunt was that he was supposed to coach in his group so after fifteen minutes were given to prepare the stunt there was to be a prize awarded to the best stunt, very clever interpretations of various titles were made.

Group leader, Brimley had his "Gnomes" group put on "Little Orphan Annie." The "Black Cat" group under the leadership of the group leader, put on a sketch entitled "Black Cat Crosses Your Path at Midnight." The "Skull" group under the leadership of the group leader, put on "The Screaming Skull." The "Mask" group under Gess put on "Shylock Holmes" at the "Manchester High School."

The "Bat" group under Chapman put on "There are Bats in Your Belly." With Mackintosh as group leader for the "Owl" his group put on "The Owl and the Pussy Cat." The "Pumpkin" group under Esther Wells was the winning group as they put on a very clever interpretation of "The Headless Horseman." The students who took the leading parts were Robert Knapp as Mr. Van Tassel, Katherine Flke as Katrina, David Muldoon as the Carpenter and Ed Gilman as horses.

The prize was awarded by vote of a committee of judges and also by the amount of applause given at the end of the act. The "Witch Group" under Helen Pietrowski put on "The Witch Scene from Macbeth." At the conclusion of the stunts the students marched around the hall and attempted to guess the number of cats that decorated the walls, lanterns, etc. William Weir was this prize as he guessed 300. There were 2,840 black cats in all.

Refreshments were served and dancing to the radio and victrola followed. Miss Ione Fellows was the general chairman on the committee of teachers. Miss Mary McGuire was in charge of the refreshments and Miss Eugenia Walsh was in charge of the decorations. The hall was very cleverly decorated with black cats, moon, cornstalks and other things suggestive of Halloween. Lighted jack-o-lanterns winked at various corners on the platform.

The first class party of the year was for the class of 1935 and was held last evening at the high school hall. Stunts in the form of entertainment on the stage followed by refreshments and dancing were included in the good time held by the two hundred or more students who attended.

As each person entered he was presented with one of the following symbols: Skulls, black cats, gnomes, pumpkins, bats, masks, owls, witches. Later those having the same symbol were divided into groups so that finally there were eight groups each with a group leader. Each leader of the group knew what his stunt was that he was supposed to coach in his group so after fifteen minutes were given to prepare the stunt there was to be a prize awarded to the best stunt, very clever interpretations of various titles were made.

Group leader, Brimley had his "Gnomes" group put on "Little Orphan Annie." The "Black Cat" group under the leadership of the group leader, put on a sketch entitled "Black Cat Crosses Your Path at Midnight." The "Skull" group under the leadership of the group leader, put on "The Screaming Skull." The "Mask" group under Gess put on "Shylock Holmes" at the "Manchester High School."

The "Bat" group under Chapman put on "There are Bats in Your Belly." With Mackintosh as group leader for the "Owl" his group put on "The Owl and the Pussy Cat." The "Pumpkin" group under Esther Wells was the winning group as they put on a very clever interpretation of "The Headless Horseman." The students who took the leading parts were Robert Knapp as Mr. Van Tassel, Katherine Flke as Katrina, David Muldoon as the Carpenter and Ed Gilman as horses.

The prize was awarded by vote of a committee of judges and also by the amount of applause given at the end of the act. The "Witch Group" under Helen Pietrowski put on "The Witch Scene from Macbeth." At the conclusion of the stunts the students marched around the hall and attempted to guess the number of cats that decorated the walls, lanterns, etc. William Weir was this prize as he guessed 300. There were 2,840 black cats in all.

Refreshments were served and dancing to the radio and victrola followed. Miss Ione Fellows was the general chairman on the committee of teachers. Miss Mary McGuire was in charge of the refreshments and Miss Eugenia Walsh was in charge of the decorations. The hall was very cleverly decorated with black cats, moon, cornstalks and other things suggestive of Halloween. Lighted jack-o-lanterns winked at various corners on the platform.

Had to Tear Down House To Dispossess an Indian

Chicago, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Chief How, medicine man of the Pottawatomie, is looking for a new wigwam.

Judge John Sbarbaro so ruled when the Indian was brought before him.

"What's this all about?" inquired the court of Charles W. Schaub, owner of a building on East Ohio street, in which the Indian has been selling his herbs to the white man or anyone else having the wherewithal to purchase.

"It's about this Indian," Schaub replied. "I'd like to get him off the premises. He doesn't pay any rent, and hasn't paid any within the memory of living man."

Chicago, Oct. 22.—(Special)—Fire of unknown origin destroyed a huge barn and two automobiles on the estate of William Schwarz of 75 Spring street early this morning, the fire bringing all four companies of the city fire department to the scene. The building, a part of which had been converted into a nine-car garage, was insured for $1400.

The fire was discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Olin Brooks of Nye street, who saw the reflection of the flames on the windows of their home. Raymond Brooks, a son, turned in an alarm from Box 45 at 1:30 o'clock that brought out the Hookman, Fitton, Hook & Ladder and Fitch departments. The firemen arrived too late to save the barn and garage and turned their attention to nearby buildings. A strong wind blew the flames away from three other barns and a number of houses, or the damage would undoubtedly have been considerably greater.

The roof of a new barn nearby caught fire but the flames were extinguished without much damage. The roof and windows of the Schwarz home were subjected to intense heat but did not catch fire, as firemen played streams of water on the buildings.

The two automobiles that were destroyed were owned by Harold Weber, a relative of Schwarz. The cars were a Studebaker and a new Essex, neither being covered by insurance. A truck owned by George Schwarz, who is in the trucking business, was saved, as was a Plymouth roadster owned by Fred Keysaid.

The fire lasted two hours. The barn caught fire once before on March 11 last and at that time a man was seen running from the building. Mrs. Harold Weber said that she believed the barn was occupied by vagrants overnight, who were careless with matches or cigarettes.

AMARANTH HALLOWEEN SOCIAL WELL ATTENDED

Masonic Temple Has Its Own Moonlight For Masque Frolic, Fortunes and Dancing.

Amaranth members to the number of 75 attended the meeting and Halloween social at the Masonic Temple last evening. After a brief business meeting adjournment was made to the banquet hall. Mrs. Frederica Spess and her associates on the entertainment committee had the hall beautifully decorated to represent an outdoor scene. Blue electric bulbs were used and an effect of moonlight created by a large illuminated disc. An outdoor fireplace with red lamps, cornstalks in stacks and autumn leaves and pumpkins made the scene more realistic.

A grand march of all those in costume and masked followed. Members who came in their everyday clothes were paraded and required to do stunts. Games appropriate to Halloween were in charge of Mrs. Spess and her committee.

Another feature was the appearance of Mrs. Anna Crocker as a fortune teller. This was another source of fun. A food sale of home cooked dishes donated by the members under the direction of Mrs. Alice Weir was so well patronized they were sold off early in the evening. Mrs. Ethel Montle played for chorus singing and for dancing which ended a full evening. Pumpkin pie, doughnuts and sweet cider were served by Mrs. Rachel Tilden, Mrs. Astrid Dougan and Mrs. Ethel Wickes.

TWO BISHOPS GUESTS AT ST. MARY'S CHURCH

Redication Services Tomorrow With Bishop Coley and Bishop Cross As Preachers.

Two Bishops will speak at St. Mary's Episcopal church tomorrow. The Right Reverend Edward H. Coley, D.D., Bishop Suffragan of Central New York, will speak at the rededication service tomorrow morning at 10:45 o'clock, and the Right Rev. Edward Makin Cross, D.D., Bishop of Spokane, Wash., will speak at the evening service at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening.

The interior of the church was recently renovated and Dr. Coley, a former rector of the church, was obtained as the rededication speaker. During his ministry here, the Bishop founded the St. Mary's Young Men's Club.

Bishop Cross has spent most of his ministry in the West, becoming bishop in 1924, after serving as rector in South Dakota, Wyoming and Minnesota.

CHINESE FACTIONS MEET FOR A FRIENDLY PARLEY

however, remains a possibility for the future.

At today's conference were nineteen ministers and vice-ministers, the largest gathering of National government leaders at Shanghai in recent years. Every important official was present except Chiang Kai-shek, who is still fighting bandits at Hankow, Chang Hsiang-liang and Lin Sen, chairman of the National government, who are making political tours through the coast cities.

Were Represented

These absentees were represented by capable lieutenants who also pledged the efforts of their chiefs to further the paramount task of the government, that of promoting domestic progress and international peace.

It was an unofficial conference, but those present discussed all the issues before the government, both domestic and foreign. No decisions were recorded, but it was considered that the meeting augured well for the future, making it unlikely that there will be any shakeups in the government personnel in the immediate future.

The Manchurian problem, including the Lytton report, was discussed but details of the conversation were not divulged. Foreign Minister Lo Wang-Kan said he regards that "the National government will continue to base its attitude toward the Manchurian problem upon the principles which the foreign ministry already has enunciated, the most important being that China never will agree to a settlement which involves any violation of the League Covenant, the Kellogg Pact or the Nine Powers Treaty."

STUDENT KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

college, son of a Lake Forest, Ill., attorney, was killed last night in a triple automobile crash on Memorial Drive. Steve Potter, 18, Wellesley college student of Winnetka, Ill., and Hal Hixon, 21, a Dartmouth student of Riverside, Ill., companions of Fleming, were injured.

Four others were injured less seriously. They were: John Marshall and his sister Dorothy of Auburn, Me.; a man known to police as John Dwyer of Cambridge and an unidentified man.

Details of Crash

Police said they were told an automobile driven by Dwyer had driven out of line, sideswiped the Marshall car and overturned and the students were buried in the wreckage.

Fleming died of a fractured skull. Miss Potter and Hixon were taken to a hospital in serious but not critical condition.

Police said a man escaped from the Dwyer car during the confusion. A man giving his name as Dwyer ran from the emergency room of a hospital to which he had been taken for treatment.

Marshall and his sister escaped with minor injuries.

PROFESSOR KILLS SELF

Bridgeport, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Discouraged because of his inability to obtain a position, Dr. Serjeu Gopgates, 38, former professor in the National University of Spain, instructor in Spanish and European history and author of several books published in Spain, turned on the gas in a rooming house at 542 State street early today and while his life ebbed away scribbled a farewell note to his wife. His home is in New Haven.

EDUCATION NO AID IN A FIST FIGHT

Graduate of Chinese University Finds That Out To His Sorrow.

New York, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Education, as Charlie Chin, the laundryman, still insists, is a great thing; but there is nothing quite the equal of a well powered right-cross.

Mr. Chin, who graduated from the University of Soochow, was behind the counter of his West 26th street Salon de Laundry yesterday when in barged a six-foot rip-roarer from down-by-the-docks.

He wanted his laundry, but had no ticket. He did not know about the University of Soochow. His method of dealing with Chinese laundrymen had always been to resort to the good old laundry dialect.

"No gotten! No gotten! Allee same want to get washes," he said banging a big fat on the counter.

"Restrain yourself, sir," responded Charlie Chin in his best University of Soochow. "No one is better aware than I of man's faculty for losing his laundry ticket. I shall inspect the racks and in all likelihood we will find your laundry. Thus everything will be as you Americans so delightfully put it, 'Jake'." "Catchem shirtee quickie or I'll go chop-chop, bang-bang, kickem in the pants," belittled the customer. Chin's University of Soochow was wasted on him.

He let go a kick and followed with a right cross. He threw shirts, collars and underwear all over the place as he pawed about for the shirtee for which he had no ticket. Mr. Chin battled as best he could, but the University of Soochow had no defense for what the gentleman from down-by-the-docks refer to as "a punch in the puss."

Finally Chin ran for a ganderam. When he returned the bruiser was gone. He had taken nothing. There was no shirt in the place larger than a 15; and that is no fit for a rough-neck.

The conclusion reached today by Charlie Chin was that education is a great thing, but allee same there is much, too, to be said for well-powered punches on the jawes.

LUTHER LEAGUE HOLDS HALLOWEEN SOCIAL

Over 75 Members At Party In Emanuel Lutheran Church Last Evening.

More than 75 members of the Lutheran League of the Emanuel Lutheran church attended the Halloween Social held in connection with the regular meeting last night. Miss Mildred Bergren was in charge of the program and had a typical Halloween program and social, including a pie eating contest, apple ducking contest and many other stunts.

A short business meeting preceded the social, at which nominating committee was appointed to prepare a slate of officers for the annual meeting, Friday, November 18. The committee consists of Herbert Johnson, Ivar Scott, Herbert Johnson, Gunnar Johnson and Ida Anderson. Herbert Johnson was elected a committee of one to attend a meeting at Middletown Sunday, October 30, at which plans will be made for a Hartford District bowling league.

CELEBRATE THEIR TENTH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Armstrong of Trotter street were pleasantly surprised at their home last evening by a party of 35, relatives and friends from Hartford, Westfield, Willimantic, Tolland and this town. Games, music, and the usual social pastimes were enjoyed, together with a salad and baked bean supper. The affair was in celebration of their tenth wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Armstrong prior to her marriage was Miss Florence Dowd. Her father, William H. Dowd, in behalf of the gathering presented to the couple a handsome end table with book trough and a silk bedspread with bolster. Numerous other amusing gifts, some of them tin were received by Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong.

NEW POST OFFICE IS READY FOR PLASTER

Rain of This Week Delayed Work—To Complete It By Middle of January.

Manchester's new United States Post Office building at the Center will be completed by the middle of January, it was stated by Paul Heimer, government inspector, who is supervising the work.

A few dry days are needed to finish the roof and then the plastering work will be commenced. This will take about three weeks. Then will come the laying of the wood floors and trimming; also the marble wainscot in the lobby.

The post office bears no such name as Manchester or South Manchester, simply that of "United States Post Office" as is the government's policy on all buildings owned by the government.

The building is a one-story structure with a large basement and is of brick with limestone trimming. It has a 58 foot frontage on both East Center and Main streets plus 51 additional feet facing the junction of the two streets.

Delivered to your home in any quantity. Prompt Service. V. FIRPO 116 Wells St. Phone 6145

Workers will enter from the rear on the basement level. All mail will be delivered to the office through the basement where trucks will drive to a loading platform near an elevator which connects with the working rooms on the main floor.

All departments of the post office contacting the public will be most conveniently located. As one enters the main entrance he will be confronted by the letter drops, stamp and general delivery windows.

The entrance, which is nearly as long as the building's frontage on either Main or East Center street, features four large pillars in the center. The front has been completed with the exception of placing the leaded glass in a shield over the entrance.

Monday morning there will be an interesting front window display at Hale's of articles which won prizes at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield last month.
