U. S., Britain, France, Russia and Japan Are Breaking New Trail To Promote Security.

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Five world powers—the United States, Great Britain, France, Russia and Japan—were breaking trail today toward new alignments intended to promote peace and security.

As reflected in Associated Press dispatches from several capitals, their activity also introduced three powerful factors into the international problem. These factors were:

1. Improved relations between Russia and Japan despite the troublesome Manchuria that lies between them.
2. The proximity of a treaty of non-aggression between France and Russia stipulating that France will give no aid to a country attacking Russia, and vice versa.
3. Apparent Anglo-American unity at Geneva, implying that the world's two largest naval powers have reached an agreement in principle to harmonize their views on disarmament.

Better Relations

Moscow reports told of better relations between Japan and Russia, especially affecting Manchuria where Russia has been acting as go-between between Chinese irregular troops and the Japanese.

The Chinese news have cut off a large area of northern Manchuria and several hundred Japanese are held in Manchuria, just across the Russian border. Half of these may be released through the good offices of the Soviet. Besides, Russia has been sending Japan fifty reports on the Manchurian situation.

Also, Yosuke Matsuo who will lead Japan's defense of her Manchurian policy before the League of Nations in November, first will visit Moscow, presumably to learn Russia's attitude toward the Lytton report to the League, which condemned Japanese aggression.

Paris dispatches said the new French disarmament project has a security section based on the idea of strengthening the Kellogg-Briand pact outlawing war. "In line with this policy," it was learned authoritatively, France virtually has reached an agreement with Russia on terms of a non-aggression pact. There was no amplification.

Norman Davis, the American representative at the disarmament conference, went to Paris today to discuss disarmament with Premier Eduard Herriot.

Mr. Armour left London last night after reaching an agreement in principle with Prime Minister MacDonald to harmonize the Hoover disarmament proposals with the British viewpoint.

Mr. Davis, incidentally, talked with Teisuke Matsuda, the Japanese ambassador to London, and

DR. RINEHART DIES; AUTHOR'S HUSBAND

Specialist Had Long Been Ill; One of Founders of the "40 and 8."

Washington, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Dr. Stanley Marshall Rinehart, husband of Mary Roberts Rinehart, the author, died at his home here today after a year of ill-health. He was 65 years old.

First stricken with arthritis, Dr. Rinehart spent some time in Germany, in an unsuccessful quest of health, returning to Washington some months ago for extended hospital treatment here.

He went to a mountain camp near Old Forge, New York, to recuperate during the summer, but collapsed because of a weak heart. He spent some time in a hospital at Utica, New York, before returning to the capital. Death came at 1 a. m.

He was born in Pittsburgh, Jan. 25, 1867. Dr. Rinehart was graduated from Adrian college, Adrian, Mich., in 1888. He subsequently attended the Hahnemann Medical college at Philadelphia.

Meets His Wife

Returning to Pittsburgh, Dr. Rinehart became a member of the staff of the Pittsburgh homoeopathic hospital. During that period he and his wife first met when she sought his advice about studying medicine. Dr. Rinehart aided her in entering a nursing school.

On April 21, 1896, Dr. Rinehart and Miss Roberts were married and spent immediately Mrs. Rinehart abandoned medicine for writing.

Dr. Rinehart was a specialist in chronic diseases of the chest. He was placed in charge of tubercular cases at Camp Sherman in Ohio during the World War.

He was one of the founders of the famous "40 and 8" organization of war veterans, and was actively interested in American Legion affairs.

AL URGES BOSTON TO AID ROOSEVELT

Smith Asks Hearers To Forget Chicago Convention and Vote For Party.

Boston, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Massachusetts Democratic sons turned out in a cheering horde last night to hear Alfred E. Smith urge upon them the "unqualified, full and complete support of Franklin D. Roosevelt." He called for the election of Governor Roosevelt in the opening sentences of his speech, and again, just before he closed, he expressed confidence that "the salvation of the country in this crisis x x x lies in the success of the Democratic ticket under the leadership of Roosevelt and Garner."

The crowd of 15,000 that fought its way into the Boston Arena lauded the approval of his criticisms of President Hoover. It roared its agreement with his attacks on administration policies. It laughed as he greeted with "suspicion" the "solicitude of Senator Moses after his (Smith's) defeat at the Chicago convention."

Smith felt that he had come "home," that he was "sitting around his table" and he told his cheering audience that he was going "to be pretty frank."

Need No Advice

"I was not advised with this Chicago convention" he said "and I know that you were not satisfied with it. But listen, we'll settle these troubles in our party. We don't want any advice, and above everything else we want no sympathy from Senator Moses or his Republican cohorts."

The crowd roared its mightiest as he said: "Every successful and proper" (Continued on Page Twelve)

MISSIONARY FLEES BEFORE BRIGANDS

American Woman Tells of Nerve Wracking Trip of Over 200 Miles.

Foochow, China, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Miss Leona Burr, a Congregationalist missionary from South Dakota, arrived here today in a motorboat, with two other missionaries after a nerve-wracking trip of 200 miles to escape a horde of Chinese Communist bandits.

Miss Burr was stationed at the Shaowu Mission beyond the headwaters of the Min river 200 miles northwest of here. The bandits, harried from the rear by provincial troops from Kiangsi, threatened the mission and she fled alone.

For fifty miles she traveled by herself through a bandit-infested region until she encountered Dr. Edward Elias, another American Congregationalist. Dr. Elias had acquired a motorboat and was making for Foochow with an Australian missionary. They took Miss Burr aboard.

Many Kidnapings

Eventually they reached Yenching, after which their trip was virtually uneventful, but the river country behind them was swarming with bandits, kidnaping whomever they laid their hands upon.

Miss Burr said the northwestern part of Fukien province was overrun by Communists who were looting towns. She did not know whereabout of other American and British missionaries in the dangerous area. She had no opportunity to investigate their welfare, she said, for in her plight she was just ahead of the bandits. She assumed, however, that they were all trying to escape.

The headquarters of the Congregationalist Mission is at Boston.

Rheumatism Was Common Among Ancient Egyptians

Indianapolis, Oct. 28.—(AP)—vaccine made from germs that we discover in the joints afflicted. Dr. Joseph F. McCarthy, of Columbia University, in another lecture, told the assembly that new operative work on prostate ailments is of vital importance inasmuch as it affects 20 per cent of all male adults.

Until recently, he said, it had been the practice to defer operations on elderly men until the point of intolerance was reached.

"Because of the advent of the new methods," Dr. McCarthy explained, "it is now possible to take the patients under and by means of relatively minor procedure to remove these obstructive manifestations and avoid serious consequences."

Royalty's First, Fall Wedding

More than 60 members of the royalty and nobility of a half-dozen European countries participated in the colorful ceremonies marking the recent wedding of Princess Sibylle of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha and Prince Gustaf Adolf, eldest son of the Swedish Crown Prince, in the medieval Church of St. Moritz, Coburg, Germany. The bride couple are shown after the ceremony which united two royal houses of Europe. The Princess is wearing a cream crepe satin gown with lace and a high collar, and is wearing a large green and gold crown. The groom is wearing a blue uniform of a lieutenant of the Swedish Guards. Three days of festivities preceded the ceremony—the most brilliant in Germany since the World War.

SEC. MILLS IN STATE ON A TWO DAY VISIT

Speaks In New Haven, To-night and Hartford Tomorrow Night—Sen. Bingham Continues Campaign.

By Associated Press

While enthusiasm remained unabated among State Democratic leaders over the reception given Al Smith during his trip through Connecticut, Republicans looked to a member of President Hoover's Cabinet today to continue their party's battle in this state.

Secretary of Treasury Ogden L. Mills came to the state for a two days' visit. He will speak in New Haven tonight and tomorrow and will speak at Hartford tomorrow night.

The Socialists also pushed their plans for welcoming in Mr. President nominee, Norman Thomas, on his second visit of the campaign to Connecticut. Thomas' visit is scheduled for Sunday when he will speak in Bridgeport, New Haven and Hartford.

After several hours after Smith had issued a statement in New Haven yesterday urging the re-election of Governor W. L. Cross, the Connecticut governor resumed his campaign with speeches in Meriden and Cheshire during which he assailed the Republican Party. In Meriden Cross criticized as "antiquated" the state public utilities laws, urged they be modernized and criticized J. Henry Roraback, state Republican chairman and John H. Trumbull, the Republican nominee.

At Meriden Trumbull attacked Trumbull for signing while the latter was governor in 1927 a bill "which conveyed to the Connecticut Light and Power Company all the tributaries of the Housatonic River; all of our rights on the small streams that run into the river."

The governor recalled that two

AMERICAN ASSISTS PRINCE AT RITES

Bay State Official Present At Dedication of Bridge In Worcester, England.

Worcester, Eng., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Henry O. Tilton, president of the Common Council of the City of Worcester, Mass., participated with the Prince of Wales today in the opening of a new bridge across the river Severn.

The mayor of this city introduced the Massachusetts visitor to the Prince in the Guildhall, and the two chatted for several minutes. Afterward they proceeded through gaily decorated streets, packed with crowds from nearby villages to the ceremony of the bridge opening.

The Prince, in his dedicatory speech, voiced his concern with the plight of Great Britain's unemployed.

"Unfortunately," he said, "in these days the care of our fellow citizens is not limited to protection of their health. Over every town and every county of England the terrible problem of unemployment is casting its shadow."

"I need not tell you that the question is really out of my mind now to restore the old level of employment and how best to care for those for whom, through no fault of their own, no work can be found."

Delighted With Welcome

Mr. Tilton said later that he had been delighted by the Prince's welcome.

"It was the first time I ever shook hands with the Prince," he said. "He asked me about Worcester and I told him it was the second city in Massachusetts and the third largest in New England."

"He asked when I was going back and I told him I'm starting home on Nov. 15 to be there for Thanksgiving. I think he's a great fellow. He is very democratic and he certainly was nice to me."

In the course of his dedicatory speech the Prince referred to the fact that although he had been invited to Worcester several times, this was the first time he had been able to accept.

"But," he said, "I'm not the only man to be visiting you for the first time today. On this platform is a very distinguished American, Mr. Tilton, the mayor of Worcester, Mass., and although he has made a much longer journey than I have, he was not so late as I am."

He expressed the hope that Mr. Tilton would enjoy his visit to England and that he would find the journey well worth making.

THROW GOLD BARS INTO EAST RIVER

Pursued by Sleuth Men Toss Loot Worth $50,000 From a Bridge.

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Six men and two women were questioned in the police lineup today as police prepared to dredge the East river for a number of gold and silver bars three of the men were alleged to have pitched into the stream from the Williamsburg bridge.

The bars were variously estimated to be worth from $25,000 to $50,000 and were said by police to have been taken from the plant of Kasenhuber and Lehrfeld, at 32 Flushing avenue, Brooklyn, in a robbery Tuesday morning. All the prisoners denied any connection with the robbery.

A detective assigned to watch a party of three men on the bridge, after he said, he trailed an automobile that had remained hours before a gold firm's office in Manhattan. Police said the car was driven to Brooklyn, where three men entered it with a heavy sack. Driving onto the bridge, police said, the men threw the sack into the river.

The three prisoners described themselves as Jack Kaplan, 28, Brooklyn; Joseph Charas, 26, the Bronx; and Frank Jendrosjak, 35, of Brooklyn.

Police said all but four of the bars were taken into the river but did not make it clear whether these four had been recovered by the police.

Later police arrested Kaplan's wife, Emma, 28; his brother, William, 28, and the brother's wife, Ida, 19; Joseph Cohen, 25, the Bronx; and Julius Kaplan, 32, of Brooklyn.

Julius Kaplan, who police said was a jeweler and was not related to the other Kaplans, was charged with "withholding" evidence against the other three.

The two women were charged with violation of the Sullivan law because of the alleged findings of three revolver licenses in the rooming street apartment. The other five men were held on charges of assault and robbery and violation of the Sullivan law.

TEASURY BALANCE

Washington, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for October 28 were $84,000,000; expenditures $82,000,000; balance $2,000,000. Receipts for 28 days of October: $21,520,270.36.

SIXTY INJURED AS LONDON MOB FIGHTS POLICE

Jobless Army Finally Dispersed After Hours of Rioting; Reds Are Blamed For the Disturbance.

London, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Sixty or seventy persons were nursing injuries today in the wake of a riot that raged in Hyde Park as the climax of the "hunger army's" march on London.

A dozen of the casualties, three of them policemen, were seriously hurt in the furious melee that transformed the fashionable park into a battleground yesterday and last night.

The battle was between several thousand police and many thousands more of unemployed, who contendingly were fighting under a red flag that bore the hammer and sickle of Communism.

The signal for warfare was a brick heaved through a postoffice window near the park. The missile was thrown just as 2,000 hungry marchers from all parts of the island marched wearily into the park behind red banners to the tune of "The Red Flag" and similar songs.

The policemen nearest the brick-heavers swung a club, and before many minutes passed, pandemonium came.

Police Organized

Completely organized to fight in the presence of 100,000 persons that jammed the park, the police charged again and again, especially along the bridge path west of the marble arch.

Each charge provoked a barrage of stones and mud. Even the trees and railings in the park were mutilated by the mob in its desperate effort to climb the upper hand.

But the police prevailed, and slowly but surely cleared the area of the rioters, arresting only 14 persons during the whole disturbance.

The police laid blame for the worst of the outbreak to London toughs, their ancient enemies. These men, the authorities said, were always ready to take advantage of every opportunity for an anti-tribe.

The police cited the fact that very few of the injured were the hunger marchers.

Staged by Moscow

The press this morning in the main was ready to credit the marchers with a desire for peaceful demonstration, but the Conservative paper said that the "Moscow's clenched fist shaken in London's face."

FOURTEEN NAVY PLANES ARE STRANDED IN MIDAIR

Two Up For Hours—Four Crash But No One Hurt; 2,500 Autoists Use Field During Fog.

San Diego Calif., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Stranded in mid-air for hours by dense fog which swept in suddenly from the ocean and wiped out all land marks, aviators of 14 naval planes were safe on the ground today as a result of dramatic rescue and their own daring and skill.

Four planes crashed, one of them bursting into flames, as 12 pilots dived blindly through the fog. But the greatest injury to any of the men was a sprained finger.

The two remaining ships were guided to safety by a transport pilot and 2,500 motorists summoned by radio to the abandoned Camp Kearney Airport and transform it with their headlights into a blinding field of light.

Naval Day Maneuvers

Twenty-two planes from North Island Naval Air Station were aloft at dusk yesterday participating in Naval Day maneuvers when the fog swept in unexpectedly. Eight of them raged immediately to landing fields, but the others were caught in the swiftly forming impenetrable blanket.

By 8 p. m., two hours after the fog had swept in, only two planes were aloft.

Naval officials estimated they had only enough gasoline left to stay up 20 minutes longer.

At the Navy's request, the United Air Lines directed Transport Pilot Charles P. Sullivan by radio-telephone to locate the missing planes and guide them to safety before landing with his passengers from Los Angeles. Sullivan led them through the fog to Camp Kearney, where the wild cheering and tooting of horns as the planes landed bewildering the Navy pilots and Sullivan's passengers, unwitting participants in the aerial rescue.

STATE BETTER OFF THAN MANY OTHERS

Head of Manufacturers Declares It Is On Sure Road To Recovery.

New Haven, Oct. 28.—(AP)—E. Kent Hubbard told the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association in his annual presidential address today that "Connecticut industry, in the whole, better off than industry in any other state of the Union."

"The employment problem in Connecticut, while serious," he said, "has not and we believe will not reach the magnitude that it has reached in most other industrial sections. Connecticut with New England emerged first on what I believe is a sure road to economic recovery."

"Every indicator points to the fact that after the National elections are out of the way and the first skirmishes have been completed in Congress, we may expect better times."

Hubbard discussed the political campaign without mentioning names of individual candidates, asserting: "As president of the Manufacturers' Association I have no right to engage in partisan opinion but I may say that it is difficult for me to understand how any intelligent man or woman with a knowledge of the operation of economic laws, or with a knowledge of the events of history of past depressions and panic can truthfully and honestly say conditions could not have been worse." "Unless we are radical in thought and action we cannot agree with those who would lay upon us discontent. The Honorable Alfred E. Smith had, I believe, some cause for his attitude in connection with the plea to the so-called 'forgotten man'."

BIG CROWDS ACCLAIM HOOVER ON RAIL TRIP

Speech of President At Parkersburg Stop Greeted All Along Route On Way To Indianapolis By Enthusiastic Audiences; Says Continuation of Republican Policies Will Win Out Over Economic Difficulties.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Oct. 28.—The text of President Hoover's speech at Parkersburg today follows:

I am deeply gratified by this generous reception here in the heart of the Ohio valley. I thank you for your welcome. In the few moments at my disposal I cannot touch upon more than one of the vital issues of this campaign.

In your city of diversified interests, your progress depends upon the program of your industrial plants. They have been hard hit by this depression. Only a few days ago a delegation from one of your principal industries called upon me in Washington to describe the situation as you feel it here, with an employment reduced to only 1-2 days a week. These gentlemen represented both employers and workers.

I would point out to you that this situation illustrates perfectly the imperative need of the protection afforded by the protective tariff. For example, pottery and porcelain industries suffer from the competition of Japanese skilled workers who are paid a wage that at best dooms them to a standard of living poorer than any unskilled day laborer in America would tolerate. If it were not for the protective wall of the tariff, your industries would not be merely depressed, they would be utterly destroyed. Instead of 1-2 days a week to work your artissans would be without any hope.

Yet our Democratic opponents propose to tear down this protection. Their candidate for President, constantly repeats his demand for repeal of what he calls "this exorbitant tariff."

My own position is clear. I am squarely for a protective tariff. I am unalterably in favor of preserving the right of American capital and American manufacturers on an American standard of living.

One point further. The depreciation in the value of foreign monies, as compared with the sound American dollar, adds another handicap against which only the tariff protects you. Due to this fact—that the Japanese employer's cost of production when measured in American dollars, is present abnormally low—Japanese pottery and porcelains are now flowing into the United States even over the high tariff wall and are displacing your goods in your own home market. This is in large part the reason for the lowered production in your plants with its consequent loss of work hours or of jobs altogether.

And yet the Democratic Party proposes to lower these tariffs. I am determined that they shall not do so. Your votes on November 8th will help to determine which of these policies shall be adopted. I am confident that you will support the Republican Party, which is pledged to the protective tariff.

Aboard President Special, Enroute to Indianapolis, Oct. 28.—(AP)

—President Hoover told a cheering crowd of thousands at Cincinnati today that the continuation of Republican policies including the tariff would "win out" over economic difficulties.

The President chose the activities of his administration in fighting economic ills as the theme of his talk at a stop at Winton place here, enroute to Indianapolis for a campaign address tonight.

The "unprecedented measure" taken by his government, he said, had succeeded, and, he warned, "personalities are immaterial" in the campaign, declaring instead, it is a choice between parties and policies.

His Democratic opponent, he said, had offered no concrete measures for fighting the economic situation.

Big Demonstration

Guns boomed and factory whistles blew as the President's train pulled into Cincinnati. The crowd that greeted him at Winton place was that a major gathering of those who greeted him all along his route, cheering as he made platform appearances, with Mrs. Hoover, at four stations along the way in West Virginia and Ohio.

Crowds lined the tracks at several points, waving American flags and looking eagerly for the President and his First Lady, but the train did not stop.

The cheers that greeted him here, the President said, are "an indication of where you will stand on November 8."

"If there should be a change in administration" he said at one point, adding "there will not." And the crowd broke into cheers once more.

Another stop in Cincinnati was made at the Stators' station, and though it was only scheduled as an operating stop, another crowd was on hand to welcome the President and Mrs. Hoover.

Earlier, at Athens, O., where he was greeted by a crowd police estimated at 5,000, the President predicted better days for the bituminous coal industry and said he believed his chief competitors, oil and electricity, had "about exhausted themselves."

"The competition of oil, electricity—all have tended to prevent the expansion of your industry or even its fair maintenance on a fair level," Hoover said. "These competitors have in my view about exhausted themselves and the natural growth of the country will give you a greater future."

The President reiterated his suggestion of a few days ago that there should be a limited measure of co-operation in the marketing of coal, though stressing again that he did not mean repeal of the anti-trust laws.

Jokes With Crowd

"The President did not speak at Chillicothe, because he addressed a crowd at that same city last week on his way to Detroit, but he exchanged banter with those in the crowd, while the train made an operating stop.

"We're going to re-elect you, Mr. Hoover," one man in the crowd shouted.

"That's the spirit," the President replied. "You're not re-electing me, you're re-electing the Republican Party."

To a woman who said she was working for his re-election, the President replied:

"You want to be sure to get the whole woman's vote?"

While they waited for the train to start, Mrs. Hoover pointed out to her husband some pictures of him in nearby buildings.

"That's a nice art collection over there," she said.

A number of Ohio Republican leaders boarded the train at Chillicothe, including Robert A. Taft, son of the former President, Representatives Hollister and Hays, of Ohio, Joseph H. Aspel, C. Lincoln Mitchell, and Julius Washburn.

At the first stop of the day in Parkersburg, W. Va., President Hoover told an early morning crowd of several thousand people that the pottery industry in their city "hasn't had a better day in its history since the protection afforded by the tariff protective tariff."

Elting again at Indianapolis, the President said:

"Our Democratic opponents propose to tear down the protective tariff by legislation. I am unalterably in favor of preserving the right of American capital and American manufacturers on an American standard of living."

YOUNG COOLIDGE ENTERS CAMPAIGN

Writes Letter Backing Junior Republican League and Gives Reasons For It.

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—John Coolidge, son of the former President, today in a letter to Allen H. Seed, Jr., eastern director of the Young Republican League, said that in his opinion present conditions demanded a continuance of the principles of the Republican Party.

"It seems to me," he wrote, "that the Young Republican League fills a very important place in paralleling the regular party organization. Its first purpose seems to me to be that of interesting young people in the political campaign and inducing them to give serious consideration to the various candidates and the issues involved so that they may choose intelligently."

"The second purpose is that of getting young people to vote. Only eligible person can organized militia be effectively dealt with and the cause of good government and true Democracy furthered."

"I am firmly of the opinion that present conditions demand a continuance of the principles of the Republican Party, and I want to endorse your efforts to educate the young people concerning these principles."

The Women's Side
Mrs. Charlotte Farrar, vice-chairman of the Republican woman's division, conferred at eastern campaign headquarters today with Senator Felix Hebert, eastern campaign manager, and gave him reports from women leaders predicting the electoral votes from the New England states and from New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey and West Virginia will be notably "safe" for President Hoover.

"Here is what Republican women who are on the firing line in this campaign report," Mrs. Farrar said. "Committeewomen from the six New England states feel safe in predicting that the 41 electoral votes from that section can safely be listed in the Hoover column. In addition we have every assurance that the 110 electoral votes from five of the middle Atlantic states will swing the same way. These include the following:
"New York 47, New Jersey 16, Delaware 3, Pennsylvania 36, and West Virginia 8.
"We feel here that if these eleven states swing unitedly into line behind President Hoover, giving him 151 out of the total 266 electoral votes necessary for a presidential election, there can be no question whatever as to who will be the next President."

ABOUT TOWN

The Manchester Emergency Employment bureau has registered a total of 176 people who were carried on the lists last year. The manager of the office is anxious to have all persons who are out of work and who were carried on the list last year register this year so that a clear picture of the situation confronting the department be shown. Fifty new registrants filed with the bureau yesterday and today.

Town Clerk Samuel J. Turkington today issued the call for the State and National Election to be held Tuesday, Nov. 8—from 6 a. m. until 6 p. m. Besides the State and National officers voters will cast their ballots on a petition to Congress to submit to the States an Amendment to the Constitution concerning repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The second rehearsal of the Old Timers will be held at the Emanuel Lutheran church Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The rehearsal will be followed by a social hour and refreshments. It is hoped that all the old choir members will attend this meeting.

Mrs. Emma E. Peterson, wife of Lauritz Peterson, manager of the Greenway Farm of Cheney Brothers on Farm Drive, is recovering from a major operation which she underwent recently at St. Luke's hospital in New York city.

A daughter, Rosalie Merle, was born this morning to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Palmer of Glastonbury. The baby was born at Mrs. Howe's Maternity Home on Wadsworth street.

A meeting of the Permanent Joint Armistice Day committee will be held tonight in the Army and Navy club. The meeting will open at 8 o'clock. All chairmen of committees and members of the joint committee are urged to be present at tonight's meeting.

RABBI FELDMAN SPEAKS HERE SUNDAY EVENING

Will Be Guest At South Methodist Church in Good Will Service Series.
Rabbi Abraham J. Feldman will be the guest speaker at the Good Will service Sunday evening at 7 o'clock at the South Methodist church. He is rabbi of Temple Beth Israel, Hartford, and graciously consented to delay a trip to the West to attend the National Council of Rabbis so that he might speak at the church in place of the scheduled speaker.

Rabbi Feldman spoke at the Good Will services held two years ago at the South Methodist church and made such a profound impression that he was invited to address a meeting toward the end of the present series. He made many friends who will want to hear him discuss "Religion and Friendliness."
Acting Organist G. H. Byles is planning several vocal and organ numbers, with Mrs. L. L. Hohenthal as soloist.
A most cordial invitation is extended to all Hebrew residents of Manchester to hear Rabbi Feldman.

DAVIS IS SENTENCED

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Frank C. Davis was sentenced today to four and one-half years in prison for using the mails to defraud Miss Kathryn Beeson of Pittsburgh of $177,000.
Davis was convicted yesterday by a jury which had listened to testimony for a week and which recommended leniency.
In imposing sentence Federal Judge Francis G. Caffery said he considered the maximum five year penalty possible under the law was altogether inadequate but that in view of the jury's recommendation he would deduct six months from the maximum.

Davis and William O'Brien, who has never been arrested, were jointly indicted for swindling Miss Beeson, who is a sister of Charles E. Beeson, vice-president of the Pittsburgh Steel Company.
They were charged with using the mails in a scheme to induce Miss Beeson to turn over to them securities worth $177,000 in Reno, Nev. She was promised a profit of $2,000,000 from speculations in which she was told her securities would be used.

After turning over the securities she said the defendants told her they had lost a pocketbook containing them.

U. S. CONSUL RETIRES
New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Albert Halstead, retiring consul general at London and son of the late Murat Halstead, noted editor of the old Cincinnati "Commercial Gazette," was received at City Hall today by Mayor Joseph V. McKee.

Halstead returned to this country after 25 years service in consular work. He retired as dean of the consular officers at London, having reached the retirement age of 65.

ROOSEVELT TURNS TO IDLE RELIEF

Continues Conference To Wrangle With Problem How To Aid State's Needy
Albany, N. Y., Oct. 28.—(AP)—With the national election 10 days away Governor Roosevelt again turned his back on his campaign efforts today to wrangle with the relief problem in his own state.
The governor plans to resume today the conference he began yesterday with state officers and New York's executive leaders on the best way to continue the State's unemployment relief for the rest of this year in spite of dwindling relief funds.

The conference finished, he will study with his personal campaign advisers the latest plans for the eastern campaign with which he is expected to wind up his quest for the presidency. This will take him away from Albany at noon Saturday on a swing through New England.
Voice Recovered
The governor appeared fresh and his voice fully recovered when he gave two short radio talks last night, from the hoarseness which developed on the last day of his southern trip. Speaking from his study in the executive mansion to a group of stage and screen stars in New York, he predicted that "under the leadership of a militant, liberal democracy we are headed for better days."

In another brief talk he sent his greetings to the American-Greek Democratic Association of New York.
Late yesterday, the governor, after his first conference on the problem of meeting relief needs between now and the end of the year, said the Republican executive leaders had agreed with him that the state must continue its relief work in spite of dwindling relief funds.

Prof. Moley of Columbia University, Senators Pittman of Nevada and Byrnes of South Carolina and Louis McH. Howe, were on hand early today for the final council of war for the remaining days of the campaign.
Tomorrow the governor will leave Albany by automobile riding over the mountainous Mohawk Trail into Massachusetts. He will pass through Williamstown, North Adams, Fitchburg and Athol, reaching Groton late in the day for a week-end visit with two of his sons who are students there. Monday morning Mr. Roosevelt will leave Groton for Boston where he speaks that night.

His plans for the next day or two are still in the formative stage but he is expected to conclude his campaign with speeches in Brooklyn and New York at the end of next week.

"BE YOURSELF" SAYS AL.
Hartford, Oct. 28.—(AP)—A bit of the political wisdom which Alfred E. Smith has acquired over the years was imparted to Governor Cross yesterday by "A" himself, while the two were chatting together on the train to Boston.
"Be yourself," the governor says Smith told him. "If you want to say raddio, say raddio. Be yourself."
Governor Cross is in accord with the sentiment, he says.

HIS SPEECH AT ATHENS
Athens, O., Oct. 28.—(AP)—The text of President Hoover's speech at Athens follows:
"In the few moments that I can be here with you, I shall have time to refer to only one of the problems of special interest to your community. This is your bituminous coal mining industry. That industry has gone through a long period of difficulty. The competition of oil, electricity all have tended to prevent the expansion of your industry, or even its maintenance on a fair level. These competitors have in my view about exhausted themselves and the natural growth of the country will give you a greater future. But in the meantime the industry has been reduced to a bitter, destructive competition, the main burden of which falls upon the backs of the wage earner. I know the hardships that have been piled upon this industry and the men engaged in it.
"I have for many years cooperated officially with those who are trying to solve these difficulties, to bring the industry back to a point where it can earn a decent profit and where it can employ labor continuously at decent wages. The only way to do this is to remove the necessity for the destructive competition which has not only brought it to its recent deplorable state, but which is resulting in the absolute destruction of our national resources and the impoverishment of labor.
"To this end it is suggested there should be some measure of cooperation in the marketing of coal. In order that the industry might be placed on a sound and permanent basis I recommended to the Congress two years ago that we should institute an inquiry as to the economic working of these laws as applied to the natural resource industries."

"No action having been taken by Congress, a year ago I again returned to the subject and stated that it was necessary that some change should be made in the laws in this relation. I recommended that Congress give immediate consideration. Neither you nor I wish to destroy the fundamental basis of competition in our country. But a limited authority for cooperation to prevent this destruction of wages should be undertaken. The coal industry could have such safeguards as would make it possible to pay a fair wage earner a profitable and stable hundreds of communities from their steady degeneration.
"I do not favor the repeal of the Sherman Act. I do favor permission for such an amount of cooperative action as will put a stop to that destructive competition which is now destroying the basic resources of the country and taking the very bread from the table of thousands of families."

RIVAL PROGRAMS
Indianapolis, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Rivalry in campaign showmanship flared high in the Hoosier capital today when President Hoover and Governor Albert Ritchie brought bids for party support in Indiana voters.
The Republican President making his fourth western swing in his campaign, gave the address and the Maryland executive, speaking for the Democratic candidate Governor F. D. Roosevelt of New York headed with major addresses prepared for delivery before two great crowds.
The President's resources a Republican rally in the Butler University field house, which seats 22,000 at 7:30 p. m., C. S. T. Governor Ritchie speaks at 9:15 p. m. in downtown Cadle Tabernacle, which has a capacity of 18,000. Both addresses will be broadcast.
Arriving at four o'clock this afternoon, President Hoover will be escorted through the business district and over a three-mile route to the state executive manse where he and Mrs. Hoover will be guests of Governor Harry C. Leslie.
President's Route
The President's route will take him through Monument Circle, where a week ago, Gov. Roosevelt, his Democratic opponent spoke to a throng that covered its broad expanse.
Mr. Hoover starts to speak in the Field House, five miles from the Circle, the Democratic torch light parade will begin moving downtown from the World War memorial plaza.
Democratic leaders said the parade would be as large as any held during the campaign.
They predicted more than 15 bands in the line, leading thousands of Democratic workers escorting floats. Torches will provide illumination.
The Democrats planned to make Governor Ritchie's address audible a block away from the tabernacle.

CHILDREN OF MARY SEEK TO RAISE FUNDS

Hops To Get Big Income From Entertainment To Aid In Support of St. James's School.
The Children of Mary of St. James's church are sponsoring an entertainment that is to be given in the Parish Hall on Park street next month. In this work they are having the united support of the Roman Catholic people of St. James's parish because of the need of extra money at this time to continue the school and church work, but in the greater extent to carry on the work of St. James's school. The school has no support other than that raised from among the members of the church and with the depression there has been a falling off of funds.
The requirements for the school increase with the winter weather and there is a need for more money. Gifts have been made for the event and workers are making calls, both day and night selling tickets. The number of volunteer helpers has increased and many of those who have been satisfied to leave the arrangements to the pastor, Rev. William P. Reidy, are becoming more interested in the affair and are putting forth efforts to make the event

GLAND TREATMENT CALLED A SWINDLE

Surgeon Terms It a "Bait For Suckers"—Only a Laboratory Study Yet.

Indianapolis, Oct. 23—(AP)—Grand rejuvenation was termed a "bait for suckers" by Dr. Hugh Cabot of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., in an address before the Inter-State Glandular Medical Association at North America here today.

Dr. William E. Lower of the Cleveland Clinic likewise asserted gland implantation is still "a laboratory study and is not yet practicable for clinical use."

Both physicians, who are eminent urologists, said great advances had been made in the treatment of prostatic trouble. Dr. Cabot said that in the middle '90's more than half the prostatic operations were fatal whereas now if a specialist were to lose more than three per cent of such cases he would consider something was wrong in his methods.

Dr. John M. T. Finney of Johns Hopkins University, Washington, was chosen as president-elect of the assembly. Dr. Will J. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., was elevated to the presidency, succeeding Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan of Chicago.

Dr. Tom B. Throckmorton of Des Moines was elected secretary. Dr. Henry G. Langworthy of Dubuque, Ia., was elected treasurer and Dr. William Finney of Rochester, Minn., permanent managing director.

The 1933 convention will be held in St. Louis in October if a new auditorium being built there is completed by that time. The present assembly will adjourn tomorrow night following a banquet which will be addressed by Frank B. Noyes of Washington, president of the Associated Press.

URGES REORGANIZATION OF COMMERCE BOARD

Philadelphia, Oct. 23—(AP)—Frank S. Davis, manager of the Maritime Association of Boston, today urged a complete reorganization of the Interstate Commerce Commission with a view to straightening out the difficulties of the railroads, and solving "serious transportation problems."

He addressed a meeting of the Atlantic Deep-sea Waterways Association, now in convention here.

"It would not do the waterways any good for the railroads to fail to carry out their share of the Nation's transportation problems," Davis said, adding:

"It is time I think, to turn our minds to a solution of the railroad's ills."

Referring to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which he said has "too much work to do to execute anything very well," he said:

"I suggest an entire reorganization of the regulatory body of transportation. Whatever form this reorganization takes, it should be so subdivided that it will be comprehensive. Then, if the time ever comes, when waterways must forego something they have always fought for—a uniform port to port rate—that body must be able to consider all forms of transportation and not pick on waterways."

NEITHER PARTY GETS BOOLE ENDORSEMENT

New York, Oct. 23—(AP)—Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the National and World Woman's Christian Temperance Union, announced today that she has endorsed no presidential candidate but that she will vote in the November 3 election.

"I am opposed to the prohibition plank in both major party platforms," she said, "but there are other issues involved on which we all should vote. I believe that either Franklin D. Roosevelt or Herbert Hoover will be elected. I shall take these other issues into consideration and vote as my conscience and judgment dictate."

Mrs. Boole said she was suggesting to other members of her organization that they decide on one candidate and then write that candidate saying:

"I will vote for you on election day, but I am opposed to the prohibition plank in your party platform. I favor the retention of the Eighteenth Amendment. It is imperative that drys vote, otherwise we will leave the choice of a President to the wets of the country."

The prohibition leader said she would vote for the law preservation party candidates in this state for Congress and other offices for which they are running.

She also said she would urge members of her organization in some states to vote against repeal of state prohibition laws.

In announcing she would endorse no candidate, Mrs. Boole said:

"I don't think I should personally make any announcement as to who I will vote for. I will say I am enrolled as a Republican."

NOT TO FREE GANDHI

Delhi, India, Oct. 23—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, who was imprisoned on Jan. 4 for reviving his campaign of civil disobedience, will not be released, Viceroy Willingdon said today, until he makes a declaration disassociating himself entirely from the civil disobedience movement.

This statement was contained in a letter from the viceroy to Maulana Shaukat Ali, who had asked that Gandhi be released to attend the Sikh-Hindu-Muslim conference on communal differences to be held at Allahabad, Nov. 5.

CAMPAIGN NEARS ITS CLOSING ACT

A Week From Tuesday Nation Will Choose Between Hoover and Roosevelt.

Washington, Oct. 23—(AP)—The great quadrennial spectacle of American politics has come to its climactic final act with the stage crowded with celebrities and a capacity house roaring for its favorites.

A week from Tuesday the country will choose between Hoover and Roosevelt, determine whether a Democratic or a Republican Congress shall sit on Capitol Hill, and vote thirty-four new state administrations into power.

The big October push of the Republicans, led by President Hoover in person has made a new kind of party precedent.

In their frequency and their intense activity, the speaking trips of the President broke the custom of most of his predecessors for a generation. His speeches themselves, by their direct references to his opponent, are a departure from his practice of four years ago.

Tide in His Favor Republican managers, declaring the party organization greatly heartened by the Hoover campaigning now assert that the tide of popular favor has set itself definitely in his favor. The Democrats reply that nothing will come of it in electoral votes.

Alfred E. Smith has taken the stump for the Democratic ticket, opening his campaign with a speech at Newark which stirred up a riot of cheering, accompanied by a chorus of boos for those he attacked. He talked longest about prohibition and Senator William E. Borah told an Idaho audience that the words of the Democratic 1928 standard bearer had helped Mr. Hoover.

Senator Borah's own continued silence without his presidential preferences is attracting increasing notice amid recurring reports that he will make an important announcement soon. Meantime two more of his Republican Independent colleagues in the Senate, Johnson of California and Cushing of New Mexico, have called among the Roosevelt campaigners.

Governor Roosevelt now is through with campaigning except in the East, where he will wind up with a series of appearances in New York and New England.

President Hoover's next trip after his return tomorrow from Indianapolis will be to New York on Monday, with stops along the way at Baltimore, Philadelphia and Newark, N. J.

TEACHERS GATHER FOR CONVENTION

In Hartford Sessions Open At Bushnell Memorial — List of the Speakers.

Hartford, Oct. 25.—(AP) Public schools were closed here today for the Connecticut State Teachers Convention.

As the gathering from this part of the State opened at the Bushnell Memorial at 10 a. m. to be followed by specialized groups about the city in the afternoon, an all-day meeting of the home-making section of the American vocational association, Connecticut Division, discussed vital problems of the family and home, at the Hotel Bond.

Dr. Margaret Kiely, principal of the city Normal school, Bridgeport, addressed the general teachers' meeting at the Bushnell at 10 o'clock following a music program of the inter-high school orchestra, and greetings delivered by Mayor William J. Rankin.

Prof. Robert Emmos Rogers of the English department of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in discussing "Literature for a Democracy" at the 2 o'clock meeting of the high school section in the Broad street auditorium of the Hartford Public High School. Dean Everett W. Lord of the College of Business Administration, Boston University, addressed the group on commerce courses at the high school on "The Passing of the Pioneer."

Other speakers of the high school section at 2 o'clock are: Olive A. Kee of the Mathematics Department of Boston Teachers College on "High School Mathematics for the New Fifty Percent" and Prof. K. S. Latourrette of Yale on "China and Japan."

The home economics sections were addressed by Dr. Lemo T. Dennis of the American Home Economic Association, on "Parental Education and the Home Economist," and by Prof. Charles Benson of N. Y. University on "What is your place in your community?"

MAGAZINE EDITOR STATES IT'S FALSE

Literary Digest Did Not Get 35,000 Letters of Persons Changing Vote.

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP) — Dr. William Seaver Woods, editor of the Literary Digest in a statement published today said he had traced to "a National party committee headquarters" what he said was a false report that 35,000 persons who voted for Franklin D. Roosevelt in the Digest presidential poll had written asking that their ballots be changed to Herbert Hoover.

Amplifying his statement, Dr. Woods said he had talked with Dr. Republican National headquarters in Chicago and had been told the information came from a Chicago employee of the Digest in Chicago.

Dr. Woods said the only representative of the Digest in Chicago is an advertising solicitor.

The editor said the report first was circulated on October 15 by a Stock Exchange firm in a letter to all its branches in this country.

The Digest complained, Dr. Woods said, and one of the partners of the firm sent out a correction.

Dr. Woods said the report sprang up again last week in a radio broadcast by William Hard, who, Dr. Woods said, told the Digest he got his information from a representative of the Republican headquarters in Chicago. The latter, in turn, said he got the report from the Digest employee in Chicago.

In branding the report as false, Dr. Woods said he was issuing the statement because he was not satisfied with the explanation.

"Up until the time the falsehood was launched," he said, "the Digest had not received a single letter asking that a vote be changed."

THEATERS AT THE STATE

"Hold 'Em Jail"

The week-end bill, today and Saturday, brings that great comedy team of Wheeler and Woolsey in their latest comedy riot, "Hold 'Em Jail," and Irene Dunne and Ricardo Cortez in Tiffany Thayer's "Thirteen Women."

The thought of a prison football team is funny enough to begin with. But when it is carried out to the extreme in absurd questions, when the entire prison is given a collegiate atmosphere with bands, cheering sections and an enthusiastic alumni with quaint and original methods of obtaining new gridiron talent, the basic idea cannot be regarded as a laugh riot. These are the ingredients of "Hold 'Em Jail." The vehicle is the happiest selection possible for Wheeler and Woolsey. It is delightful nonsense which at once makes it ideal for the comics unique style of fun-making. Edna May Oliver and Roscoe Ates have the leading supporting roles.

If "Thirteen Women," a picture-ization of Tiffany Thayer's sensational novel, does no more than prove to countless women how easily they may be "suggested" into committing a crime, it will perform a considerable service to society as a whole. Those who believe their destinations are guided by the sun, moon, and stars, will have much to think about when "Thirteen Women" is shown on the screen. Irene Dunne and Ricardo Cortez have the leading roles. The strong supporting cast includes Myrna Loy, Kay Johnson, Jill Esmond, and Mary Duncan.

If there remain any sceptics who doubt that Joan Crawford should be placed at the very forefront of Hollywood's leading dramatic actresses, they should not fail to include "Rain" which will be shown at the State for three days starting Sunday night, in their entertainment budget, for here is a characterization to win the hearts of even the most sceptical. The startling feature is that the role of Sadie Thompson is an entirely new departure for Miss Crawford. Never before in her great gallery of portrayals has she essayed one like it, and yet there is probably no actress in Hollywood—or on the stage either—who could approximate the artistry she displays. "Rain" is an adaptation of the famous stage play that had extended runs from coast to coast.

Do this for Your Child in TWO WEEKS

How to rid any boy or girl of sluggishness or constipation and build a big appetite.

The trouble with children who will not eat is usually stasis. The symptoms are a tongue that's always coated, bad breath, poor color, dull eyes that are often a bilious yellow. No appetite, no ambition—even for play. Hard to get to sleep, hard to wake in the morning.

There's an absolute remedy for this condition. It gives listless youngsters the appetite and energies of a young animal! They eat! They gain! They keep well!

The California Treatment conquers Sluggishness

It's not the stomach, but the bowel condition that keeps children from eating. But the trouble is in the lower bowel—the colon. California syrup of figs is the only "medicine" that is needed to stimulate the colon muscles. The very next day, your child is eating better and feeling better. Keep on with the syrup of figs a few days and you will see amazing improvement in appetite, color, weight and spirits.

Any druggist has the real California syrup of figs, all bottled with directions. Nature never made a nicer acting or nicer tasting laxative. (It is purely vegetable.) Remember California syrup of figs when sickness, a cold or any upset has clogged a child's bowels.

WARNING
Even when it's tempting to give children, some others will try to substitute CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS.

HALLOWEEN SET FOR STATE-WIDE DRIVE UPON RAT

State Department of Health Urges All To Help Eliminate Disease-Spreading Menace.

On Halloween—Monday, October 31—there will be conducted throughout the countryside of Connecticut a state-wide party for the elimination of a certain unhealthy and unwelcome intruder, known as the rat. The State Department of Health through the medium of its monthly bulletin today urges that all citizens join in this drive, inaugurated by the County Farm Bureau, to rid the state of the rat menace.

In articles in the current bulletin, Warren J. Scott, director of the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering, and Dr. Benjamin G. Horning, epidemiologist of the Bureau of Preventive Diseases, explain the rat's very serious menace to public health and describe some of the epidemics of disease which in the past have been directly traceable to rats. More deaths can be indirectly traced to the rat than to all of the other vertebrate enemies of man combined and the public should realize that the control of rats is a public health problem of first importance. The Bubonic Plague is the most terrible of the diseases spread by this mammal. It is transmitted from rats to other rodents and from rats to man by the rat flea. The Black Death in London alone in 1364 and 1665 killed 70,000 of the then 500,000 inhabitants. It has reappeared from time to time throughout history, several times appearing in epidemic form in the United States. Rats are entirely responsible. Epidemic typhus is another acute infectious disease, traceable to rats. The germs have been found in ten to forty per cent of wild rats. Connecticut has had experience with this and the way to eliminate it is to destroy dumps and other harboring places for rats. After these were eliminated, no more cases developed. Trichinosis is a disease which frequently appears in Connecticut. It is due to a worm, the larvae of young of which encyst in the muscles of mammals, including man, hogs and rats. Rats are the reservoir for the disease. They infect hogs and man is infected by eating pork that has not been thoroughly cooked. Endemic typhus fever has recently been shown to be transmitted by the rat flea. Many food poisoning outbreaks are chargeable to rats. In fact, many types of disease may be spread by the rodent due to his filthy, repulsive habits of life. There is only one way to eliminate rats and mice and that is to remove their food supply. Public dumps, particularly garbage dumps, furnish them an excellent food supply, but even when these are eliminated or protected by traps, poisons and fumigants, the rat still has left a plentiful supply in warehouses, store basements and the like. These should therefore be made rat-proof. Practically, elimination of the rats' food supply may not entirely kill off the rodents, but it will serve to reduce their numbers greatly. Many varieties of traps are in use, but the rat is a wary animal and particularly care is needed in setting them. Poisons of various kinds have been tried over a period of years, but recently the use of a powder made from a perennial plant belonging to the Ily family has been so successful that it has outlasted all other rat poisons. It is readily obtainable and does not seriously endanger other animals. Fumigation to rid a building of rats should be undertaken only by experts, since it is apt to be dangerous to human life.

WOODHOUSE REMODELS, RE-DECORATES HIS STORE

True to his slogan, "A Progressive Store in a Progressive Neighborhood" C. J. Woodhouse, proprietor of the Hollywood Market has had installed this past week a new refrigerating plant and invites the shoppers of Manchester to visit the newly remodeled store. The store has been redecorated in green and ivory which makes a clean background for a variety of merchandise that is sure to appeal to the particular shopper. Mr. Woodhouse is a regular advertiser in The Herald and his advertisement will be found in the market news today.

STEAMER AGROUND
Blueside, Nicaragua, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The fruit ship, Ramon, operated by the Mexican Trading Company of Mobile, Ala., was aground on a reef off the coast of Central America today and navigators expressed fear it would be lost. Two passengers, the Misses Grace Jones and Mildred Delehann, both of Mobile, were removed in a lifeboat and brought to Blueside. The ship cleared here Wednesday night with 18,000 stems of bananas.

A RACE PLACE
Sidney, N. S. W.—In a recent address before the advancement of science congress, Mr. E. W. P. Chinnoy, government anthropologist for the territory of New Guinea, stated that more than 100 different known races are to be found there. Probably there are more in the unexplored parts of the territory, it was said.

OLDER BOYS TO GATHER IN STAMFORD TOMORROW

Annual Conference Opens Today and Continues Tomorrow and Saturday.

A group of twenty-five delegates, coming from 13 centers in the county, will compose the Hartford County Y. M. C. A. delegation to the State Older Boys' Conference to be held today, tomorrow, and Sunday at Stamford. This includes Edward Ludeke and Edward Ramke of Southington; Phillip P. Randall, Jack Wilcox, Frederick Wolf of Wethersfield; Robert Hartigan, Howard Simman, William Johnson and Gordon E. Vanter of Burlington; Stirling McIntyre of Avon; Filmore Gustafson, Hubbard Hills, Russell Jones, Frank Mellen of Rocky Hill; Dwight Higby of Thompsonville; Stuart Joslin, Herman Rock and Harry Davis of Manchester; Arthur Moriam, Walter Merriam and William F. Boyce of Plantville; and several other delegates going directly from Bristol, Berlin and Manchester. The delegation will be in charge of W. H. Thibodeau, executive secretary of the County Y. M. C. A., and Everett J. Simonds, secretary of the Manchester Y. The theme of the conference will be, "My Responsibilities," and among the speakers are Edman Harris of the Union Theological Seminary, New York; Dr. Fred B. Smith, World Alliance of International Friendship, New York; and Joseph B. Palmer, formerly with the Hartford City Y. M. C. A., and now connected with the Bowery Branch of the Y. M. C. A. in New York.

BEER DROPS OFF

The national consumption of beer in England has dropped from 20,452,000 barrels in 1924 to 18,785,000 in 1930, judging by the quantity brewed.

The family is FREE FROM COLDS since they changed to this LOWER-PRICED FUEL

3 EASY RULES for Using Koppers Connecticut Coke

1 Shake less—Because Koppers Connecticut Coke is all fuel, and burns down to fine ashes that drop through the grate with very little shaking. Once a day is often enough to shake—less frequently in mild weather.

2 Use less draft—Because Koppers Connecticut Coke is High Test Fuel, it burns evenly without forcing the fire and wasting heat up the chimney. It responds at once to closing as well as to opening of dampers.

3 Fill the fire pot heaping full—You can do this without danger of smothering the fire. Koppers Connecticut Coke is lighter than coal and burns most economically and effectively when you keep a deep fire.

These 3 rules mean less work and less attention. Your Koppers Connecticut Coke fire requires less work in firing and in taking out ashes, burns perfectly and provides a steady warmth for less cost.

HALF the time some member of his family had a cold, after the furnace was started. He bought the highest-priced fuel. He tugged at shakers and lugged heavy ash cans. He worked, but the furnace didn't seem to.

Then he changed to Koppers Connecticut Coke, the High Test Fuel that costs less per ton. Right away his furnace went to work without any extra attention—less in fact. It gave him more heat, steadier heat too, the kind that comes up quick at a flip of the damper, but banks down quietly at night or in mild spells of weather.

That's the kind of heat that your family wants. It's yours by making the same smart change to Koppers Connecticut Coke. Of course the comfort of the family comes first, but you'll certainly be pleased to be through for all time with heavy ash cans. Koppers Connecticut Coke has two-thirds less ashes. A week's ashes from an average home will go in a little pail about a foot high.

Because this High Test Fuel has less ashes and gives more heat you use fewer tons. Each ton costs less. So besides better heat and less work, you will save money.

Get started right away on enjoying these advantages. Call us and order Koppers Connecticut Coke. Your fuel dealer has it too.

RELIEF CHISELERS

The significance of the London rioting in the Hyde Park area is perhaps better understood when it is realized that the particular grievance of the disturbers is against that change in the relief laws which subjects recipients of public aid to examination as their actual necessities. Many dole receivers have been stricken from the lists when the "means tests" disclosed that they had means of subsistence aside from what they were receiving from the government. It is these who are making the trouble.

Naturally people falling into this category are far from being the most admirable characters in the country. It fact it isn't far from the truth to say that persons who get themselves onto public relief funds, in London, Eng., or Manchester, Conn., when there is no real necessity for their doing so, are a pretty poor sort. It is not altogether surprising that that kind of folks should throw rocks and smash windows. But they certainly do not represent the decent unfortunates of any country or any town.

Regrettably we are not, here in Manchester, without this kind of persons, lacking in either proper pride or simple honesty, who are forever trying to chisel their way onto some relief list or another. It is almost impossible for the authorities to be 100 per cent accurate in their investigations of applicants for relief without spending too much of the available funds on inquiries. So that about the only way in which the community can be protected against the unfair self-seeking of such individuals is by the volunteering of information of such cases by citizens who happen to be aware of the circumstances.

The loyalty of the citizen rightfully is to the town, to the community, which is striving to prevent suffering—not to the chiseler and cheat. There should be no hesitancy on the part of any right minded person to "sneak" on any such pretender whom he may know about. Indeed he cannot be a good citizen and keep such instances to himself when they come within his knowledge.

SMITH'S SPEECHES

Opinions as to the effect upon the coming election of the Newark and Boston speeches of Alfred E. Smith are sure to be governed by the predilections of the individual. Partisan Democrats will see in them a great gain for their party; partisan Republicans will see in them only loss for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket.

There can be little doubt that Mr. Smith very accurately measured the disposition of a great many of his Eastern followers to bolt the Roosevelt ticket in favor of Hoover. Nor is there much doubt about the efficacy of the means he adopted to prevent that bolt. He did his utmost to make his followers believe that the religious prejudice which contributed so largely to his overwhelming defeat in 1928 was attributable to the machinations of the party which this year seeks the election of Herbert Hoover. It was his manifest purpose to catch this disgruntled Democratic vote on a rebound of his own creation. And it would be futile to deny him the probability of a large measure of success. There can be very little question about Smith's having turned back to the Roosevelt ticket a very large number of potential voters who, had he remained silent, would have voted for the Republican national ticket on election day. There is no wisdom in seriously doubting that.

On the other hand, this deliberate revival of the religious passions of his last campaign may not sit so well in other quarters. There have been many disgruntled Republicans

TOO MUCH AT STAKE

In these days of worldwide stress and uncertainty it is, when you come to think of it, a particularly satisfying thing to be a resident of Connecticut. Not only because the tremendous diversity of this state's industries, their solid capitalization and the long experience and skill of its manufacturers and workers have enabled this commonwealth to resist the influences of the depression much better than most, but for another special reason.

In a great many of the states of the Union there is, among the populations, a sense of impending danger; the spectre of impending collapse of the ultimate dependence for the maintenance of the jobless—the fiscal power of the state itself. With municipalities driven to the last extremity in the raising of funds, fear comes treading on the heels of the knowledge that state credit is either exhausted or badly impaired. When the people of such communities realize that there is no reservoir of state credit to be drawn on in case of dire necessity, then their courage falters and they face black hopelessness.

Because Connecticut has conserved its resources and because its people for generations have been thrifty, its communities have not arrived at the stage of resorting to demands for state aid. It is infinitely unlikely that they ever will. Before its cities and towns shall have exhausted their capacity to take care of their own the bad times in all human probability will have passed and become forgotten.

But it is a source of tremendous comfort and reassurance to know, nevertheless, that if worse should come to worst with any of the cities or towns, there stands behind them the untouched reservoir of Connecticut's magnificent credit, backed by many hundreds of millions of unpledged wealth. In the knowledge of that great reserve of credit there is complete freedom for all of us from the corroding terrors of those who live in states that have squandered substance and credit simultaneously and whose governments are helpless, even in the most urgent need, to come to the assistance of their communities.

This situation did not create itself. It is the result of an extraordinarily wise and efficient fiscal system originated by the Republican party of Connecticut and carried out with infinite fidelity and skill. Resisting the clamor of critics who demanded wholesale spending in order that Connecticut might keep up with the Joneses, successive Republican administrations have so managed the affairs of this state that only one other, out of all the members of this Union, is even measurably comparable to Connecticut in complete freedom from debt and in its possession of limitless credit.

Very soon the people of the state are to decide whether they will not only continue in power the Republican Legislature which has conformed to this wise policy of safety but return to the head of the state government the man who has been the chief exponent of that policy, John H. Trumbull. This is, in this critical time, no mere matter of ordinary partisan politics, no mere matter of "ins" against "outs." It is a very serious matter of the well being of the state of Connecticut, of its towns and its cities, of its people, with jobs and without.

If we want to reduce the governmental affairs of Connecticut to a mere game of wits and patronage let us wait until the storm is over, when we can better afford the risky fun. This year let us approach the duty of a state election in all responsible gravity. There is too much at stake to do anything else.

as well as disgruntled Democrats and no doubt a good many of them, particularly in the Mid-West, have been inclined to cast their lot with the Democrats this year out of sheer discontent. These Republicans know very well that it was not the Republican National Committee nor Mabel Walker Willebrandt who introduced the religious issue into the 1928 campaign, but the Democrats of the South—and Mr. McAdoo; and such Republican voters will be very liable indeed to resent Mr. Smith's effort to place the blame for that unhappy fracas upon their party.

We may be quite sure that Smith has saved to the Democratic party in New England, New Jersey and New York a great many votes by this belated foray. Whether or not he has cost it more than he has saved, not only in the East but throughout the country, remains to be seen. That he has cost it a good many would seem to be inevitable.

SEEKS SPECIAL FAVOR

The attempt of Gene Tunney to compel the electors board of Stamford to qualify him as a voter is hardly likely to succeed. He did not appear before the board at the prescribed time and lost his opportunity to be made, the same as thousands of other persons have done over a long period of time. He did not, so far as has been made public, even make an effort to arrange with the board to be sworn in at the hospital where he was a patient—the success of which would have been doubtful in any event but which at least would have given his case some color of reason. He was simply one of those who did not show up.

The sessions of electors boards held on the day before election are by law restricted to the qualifying of persons who become of age subsequently to the last regular sessions of the year and on or before election day. The Stamford selectmen would have no apparent right to make an exception in the case of Tunney. Nor is there the slightest reason why they should. If he could legally be made a voter on election eve so could any other potential elector who had merely neglected to attend to his citizen's duty.

It is very much to be doubted that the Fairfield County Superior Court will find any substantial reason for interfering with the historic processes of the election laws for the against him the weight of a strong Democratic state ticket which includes Paul V. McDuff, former American Legion commander, set governor. Watson has been making speeches about the benefit of the Hawley-Smoot tariff which are said to have failed to diminish his unpopularity.

One would automatically assume that George Higgins' name was secured of reelection in New Hampshire. But authoritative advice from the battleday say he is rather more likely to be defeated by Fred H. Brown, who was nominated by the Democrats.

George Higgins is the Senate's president pro tem, and also its champion vicecracker. He has been warring through the campaign but has experienced difficulty in re-election of the Governor or the change that he raised the religious issue in the 1928 presidential campaign.

Brown is a public service commissioner, a strong and shrewd candidate, and the friend of Governor Winant, Republican, apparently are doing little to save the skin of George Higgins. Many Republicans are expected to vote for Winant and Brown. At any rate, the fate of George Higgins is doubtful.

John, author of the "Five and

Unbeaten Elevens Face Most Serious Threats

Records of East's Major Teams in Danger This Week-End; Here's Prospects of Important Games.

By HERBERT W. BARKER

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Columbia, Harvard, Pitt, Brown, Cornell, Penn and Temple of the east's major teams, face the most serious threats to their undefeated records tonight and tomorrow. Colgate alone, of the so-called "Big College" teams which so far have escaped defeat, seems virtually certain of continuing its triumphant march.

Briefly, here are the prospects for some of the more important battles:

Pitt-Notre Dame—Pitt is one of the east's greatest arrays but it will be a sensational surprise if the Panthers do more than extend the Ramblers who have scored nearly a point a minute against Haskell, Drake and Carnegie Tech.

Columbia-Cornell—This probably will be one of the closest fought games of the day with Columbia's undefeated and untied Lions a slight choice unless Johnny Ferraro, star back, is in shape to play most of the game.

Harvard-Brown—Both are undefeated but Harvard seems to pack the superior punch.

Penn-Navy—The Quakers will be favored over Navy but the Tars showed vast improvement in their scores this with Princeton.

Temple-Carnegie Tech—The beating Carnegie took from Notre Dame will not enhance the Tartans chances against unbeaten Temple although this Friday night game looks close.

Colgate-Penn State—This should be a romp for Colgate.

Purdue-N. Y. U.—It will take better line play than New York University showed against Colgate to cope with Purdue's versatile and powerful attack.

Army-William & Mary—The Southern upset Navy early in the season but they don't look strong enough to push Army.

Syracuse-Michigan State—Michigan State whipped Fordham last week and should make it two in a row over the East.

Yale-Dartmouth—Dartmouth has played 15 times without winning a game. This looks like the Indians chance of a life line.

Villa Nova-Bucknell—Only a one point defeat by South Carolina spoils Villa Nova's 1932 record and Harry Stuhldreher's eleven seems to have a slight bulge on Bucknell.

Fordham-Boston College—Fordham should resume its winning streak here.

Lafayette-Washington & Jeff—A battle of ancient rivals in which past performances can be tossed out. W. & J. however has much the better record.

Michigan-Princeton—The Tiger has small hopes of halting Michigan's undefeated machine, Big Ten leader.

Holy Cross-Catholic—Two undefeated teams with the good big squad Holy Cross, the natural favorite.

STEVENS REVAMPS YALE TEAM AGAIN

Makes Drastic Changes In Lineup For Game With Dartmouth Tomorrow.

New Haven, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Coach Mal Stevens has decided to entrust Yale's bid for its first football victory of the season to a revamped eleven. The Ell mentor made drastic changes yesterday in the lineup which started against Army, changing both his guards, the right-end and the quarterback. Jimmy De Angelo, a sophomore, and Converse were named to start as guards in place of Bud Barnum and Bronkie. The new guards are considerably lighter than the men they replaced, but are expected to make up for this with their greater speed.

Although Dud Parker, regular quarterback has been working out at right-end, Stevens decided to start Walt Kimball against Dartmouth tomorrow at this position. Parker was injured slightly at practice Wednesday, but will be ready to relieve Kimball if necessary.

Parker's place in the backfield will be filled by Pat Sullivan. The Ells completed their heavy work yesterday with a long defensive dummy scrimmage against Dartmouth plays and a brief review of their own plays. A light drill was scheduled for today.

RACE POSTPONED

The cross country race between Manchester High school and Weaver High scheduled for yesterday was indefinitely postponed by the Hartford school. The local barriers will meet the Norwich Free Academy team over the Manchester course of two and four-tenths miles next Friday afternoon. The Norwich school won a decision victory last year.

A candidate for "biggest prep-schooler" is Roy Hoke, 266-pound tackle on the Mohall, N. D., high school eleven. He requires made-to-order gear.

A SUBSTITUTE MAY WIN ALL-AMERICA HONORS THIS YEAR

Harry Newman of Michigan Is One of Greatest Quarterbacks in Football; His Record.

By JIMMY DONAHUE
NEA Service Sports Writer

"Ettie Tesserer who was expected to be a regular at quarter this year, is ineligible."

That statement, coming from Michigan's camp early this year, cast a shadow of gloom over the Wolverine campus. Michigan football is built around a good quarterback and passer, the boys figured. And since Tesserer couldn't play, there was every reason to suspect that the green team would suffer direly in the Big Ten Conference race.

But along came Harry Newman, and the gloom has turned to joy! For Michigan is on the way to the conference title.

Harry, be it known, is just about the classiest quarterback turned out in the conference since Benny Friedman tackled his name on the All-America honor roll. And there are some Michigan supporters who are ready for hat-tucks if you dispute their word that he's even better than Bennah!

This is Harry's third year on the squad. His sophomore year saw the fans singing his praise as the most brilliant step on a gridiron. But his junior year in football took wasn't so good. He sat on the bench and watched another lead the Wolverines to a three-cornered tie for the conference title.

This year Harry got his break when Tesserer was declared ineligible. And did he make the most of it! Ask Northwestern, Ohio State and Illinois!

In his first three games against Big Ten rivals this year, young Master Newman demonstrated that, as a football player, he is an excellent baseball pitcher. His uncanny ability to hurl passes at Potosky, Capt. Ivan Williamson and his fellow backfield men caused the conference associates to run around in circles and play "button, button, who has the button?"

In the Northwestern game, which the Wolverines won, 15-8, Newman grabbed the limelight. He threw one pass of some 20 yards to Fay for a touchdown. Then he kicked a field goal. And, just to show the Wildcats that he was no slouch at running, he galloped 55 yards for the longest jaunt of the day.

Against Ohio, Newman was again the shining light in the 14-0 win. He passed 15 yards to Reggeel for the first touchdown after only three minutes of play. He got off another long one of 30 yards to Captain Williamson which paved the way for the second touchdown.

Illinois saw a lot of Harry. In fact, they saw 32 points too much. He tossed three passes to Williamson, one good for 25 yards. He tossed another to Everhardus, who went 35 yards. And still another he completed to Ward for 15 yards.

Harry is like Benny Friedman in more ways than one. He's Jewish. He was born in Detroit in 1908, attended grade school and high school there, playing football at halfback and quarterback in his last two years. He was an outfielder on the school nine.

There is some foundation for Harry being called a "second Benny Friedman." The boy learned all he knows from that master passer.

Newman met Friedman in 1928 at a summer camp in New Hampshire, where the latter was chief counselor. Benny learned that Harry intended going to Michigan, so he gave the youngster lessons in passing.

Pants—Passes

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Princeton, N. J.—If the Princeton team needed any incentive to try its hardest against Michigan Saturday, it was supplied by a clipping from a Michigan paper in training quarters before the team left for Ann Arbor.

The clipping said that the Michigan students were showing more interest in the "B" team's game against a small teachers college than in the varsity game with the Tigers.

Chicago

Ann Arbor, Mich.—"Old man" Stagg, Chicago's veteran coach will be honored when the Maroons meet Michigan here November 12. The day has been designated as "Stagg Day" and ceremonies in his honor will be held between the halves.

Yale

New Haven—More speed seems to be the aim of Mal Stevens, Yale coach in his preparations for the Dartmouth game. He dropped two 200-pound guards from the varsity lineup yesterday and replaced them with a pair of speedy 170 pounders, Deangelis and Converse.

Harvard

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard will be lacking an experienced center when it plays Brown Saturday. Both Roger Hollowell and Frank Casales are on the sidelines with injuries.

BOWLING MATCH

Tonight at Murphy's Alley, Conner and Kober will bowl Murphy and Baldwin in the first leg of a home and home bowling match.

Big Green of Dartmouth Looks Too Big for Yale

By NEA Service

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 28.—It looks like a lucky year for the Big Green of Dartmouth, despite the fact that it lost to Harvard. For the first time in its 15 encounters with the Yale Bulldog, stretched over 48 years, Dartmouth looks like a sure winner over a Yale team.

Head Coach Jack Cappel has had to build an entirely new backfield, and, despite green material, has welded together an outfit that barely lost to John Harvard, 10-7, and outplayed the Crimson all the way.

Pitt Panthers Seek Revenge For Past Defeats By Irish

South Bend, Ind.—(AP)—Despoiler of brilliant Pittsburgh records for two consecutive seasons, Notre Dame nevertheless looks to its invasion of the Panther lair Saturday as one of the most hazardous undertakings on its 1932 program.

And it's no secret that Jock Sutherland's pack, thus far looming as peer of anything in the east, has its claws sharpened for an overdue reprisal.

Two years ago a then unscorred-upon Pittsburgh eleven was given one of the rudest awakenings in modern football history when Knute Rockne's last Notre Dame team ran through it to score 35 points in a wild first half. That the ever-fighting Panthers rallied to score 19 points in the last half was slim consolation for the whipping.

Then last fall another great Pitt team met the Irish with its goal uncrowded only to be sent reeling under a 35-12 defeat.

Pitt's power was proved in subsequent conquests of all other foes and the yielding of but two other touchdowns all season.

Now, despite the graduation of tackles Mackurdo and Quast, center Daugherty and guards Hirschberg and Collins, Sutherland apparently has a Panther which may not be so strong defensively as its predecessors, but is deadly in its offensive thrusts.

Veteran backfield, featuring Warren Heller and Capt. Paul Reider, proved its scoring genius in early games, and Joe Sliadany, end, has added some brilliant pass-receiving to the Heller-Reider aerial threat.

Ambitious and far-flung schedules of these rivals make their 1932 meeting especially important, as a victory for either, along with success through the rest of the season, would mean an outstanding claim to national title honors.

Among Pitt's future inter-sectional foes are Nebraska and Stanford.

Ed Kosky, veteran Notre Dame end, plays a prominent part in his team's aerial offense and may star in Saturday's melee with the undefeated Pittsburgh eleven.

ILLINOIS LEADS IN TURNING OUT PRO GRID STARS

Players In Major Circuit Come From 34 Different States; Connecticut Furnishes One.

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Football talent is nationwide and has no respect for sections if National Football League rosters are any indication. Players in the major circuit come from 34 different states and one territory, Hawaii.

Illinois furnishes the most players, 20, mainly because the two Chicago teams happen to have a large number of local players. California and Texas are not far behind, with 15 apiece.

New York and Ohio each furnishes only one less, while Pennsylvania and Wisconsin also develop good football players and have thirteen apiece in the major league. Kansas and Massachusetts have ten each, while Alabama, Arkansas, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Oregon, Washington, Michigan and Minnesota all have over five representatives playing bigtime football.

Arizona, Kentucky, Florida, Montana, Mississippi, Virginia, Wyoming, Tennessee, Colorado, Connecticut, and Hawaii furnish one apiece.

After Yale's Miserable Showing Against Army, Bates, Chicago and Brown, It Appears the Strong Green Team Will Do Something It Hasn't Done in 48 Years.

In little Sammy Fishman, Cappel has one of the smartest quarterbacks in the game. It's partly due to Sammy's generalship that the Dartmouth squad is functioning so smoothly. His handling of Powers, Hedges, Hill and Roald Amundsen Morton is remarkable.

The line play is centered around Bill Hoffman, captain and guard.

After Yale's miserable showing against Army, Bates, Chicago and Brown, it appears the strong Green team will do something it hasn't done in 48 years.

EAGLES TO TACKLE STATE PRISON TEAM

Journey To Wethersfield Tomorrow Afternoon For Game There; Will Not Play At Hickey's Grove Sunday.

Brunig Moske's scrappy Eagle football team breaks up their regular schedule for the week-end with a game tomorrow afternoon at the Wethersfield State Prison. Due to the game tomorrow the Eagles will not play on Sunday at Hickey's Grove.

Undoubtedly the Eagles will be stacked up against a heavier and more experienced team at the prison, but Coach Moske has his well balanced line with a fine pair of ends in Vince and Varrick. The Eagles also have a fine aerial attack under cover and Coach Moske may uncoil a few foxy plays to try on the prisoners.

The Eagles have played four games this season, stopping the Windsor Locks team, 14-0, a team that the Red Men held to a scoreless tie, and won from the Rockville Clerks, by the same score. The heavier All-Hartford team managed to push over a single touchdown last week. The Dunbar A. C. was held to a scoreless tie.

The lineup of the Eagles against the prisoners will be Vince, lb; M. Mitchell, lb; Kapraitis, lb; Olsavage, c; J. Mitchell, rg; Kovis, rt; Varrick, re; (c) Balon, qb; Moske, hb; Coppeland, rby; Slaga, fb.

The Eagles will practice at 4 o'clock tonight at the "Y". The team will leave for Wethersfield about 1:15 o'clock tomorrow.

TEN PLAYERS TRY OUT FOR REC FIVE SQUAD

The Rec. Five basketball team practiced at the School street Rec last night and a likely looking group of players is rapidly being turned out for the opening game of the season Thanksgiving Day evening. The players went through floor and passing practice finishing with a scrimmage and run around the track.

They will practice again tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Those present were Campbell Smith Bissell, Dowd, Sturgeon, Faulkner, Oppitz, Nelson, Anderson and Waddell.

CALL of the WEST

R. G. MONTGOMERY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

STAN BALL accuses ASPER DELO, timber king, of having men shot who attempt to check up on his activities. He tells Delo he is making a check. Delo tells him he will see personally that he does not. Upon leaving Delo's office Ball saves DONA, Asper's daughter, from a gang of thugs and tells her he is STANLEY BRUCE.

DUDLEY WINTERS, in love with DONA, goes with her to Three Rivers to get her father to give up his wild fight with Ball. Dudley plans to marry DONA and gets a certificate signed. Ball is accused of killing a ranger and of a number of crimes. He is supposed to have ambushed DELO and wounded him badly. DONA has to tell her father she is married to Dudley in order to quiet him and save him from the hunt. He agrees, but backs out when the office is robbed. The posse surround Ball. They are headed by SWERGIN, DELO's timber boss, who has taken a fancy to DONA.

DONA joins the hunt and is captured by Ball after attempting to shoot him. He takes her to a cave. SWERGIN discovers the cave while Ball is outside and captures him, rescuing DONA. SWERGIN and DONA escape, but DONA steps in and saves him. He takes her with him, but lets her have his horse to ride to camp. She returns it that night and DUDLEY follows her. He tries to shoot Ball, but misses. DONA tries to agree to marry him. DUDLEY has been riding by himself a great deal. DONA agrees to marry him that evening. They ride out and DONA, who knows now that she cares for Ball, leads him to the cave. She thinks Ball has left, but DUDLEY finds her. DONA discovers activity in Pass Creek that she is sure her father does not know about. She decides to ride over the next day. Her horse is shot from under her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIX

Dimit through a whirling black mist DONA heard vaguely at first a heavy voice. Her eyelids fluttered and slowly opened. Above her bent the wind-hardened features of SWERGIN. He was fanning her with his cup and muttering loudly.

"I'll get that dirty skunk," he muttered.

Seeing that she was coming around he fanned more vigorously and his big mouth spread in a smile.

"You're all O. K. now," he rumbled and let her head sink to the grass.

DONA smiled weakly and closed her eyes. She was striving to remember what had happened. The roan had gone wobbly from a bullet; DELO had been trying to head her off and there had been a race. DONA wondered what had become of the roan.

"I couldn't put him for fear of hitting you," SWERGIN went on. "I'll get him and get him good," he added by way of reassurance.

SWERGIN picked her up and carried her to his horse. He mounted with her in his arms, a feat that only he could have accomplished. Carefully he rode down the mountain and into camp.

ASPER DELO was on the porch, finishing his preparations for leaving Three Rivers, when SWERGIN rode in. He stared at the approaching rider. When he saw the burden the timber boss had in his arms he leaped from the porch.

SWERGIN delivered DONA to her father's arms and rushed for the doctor. ASPER carried his daughter to her room tenderly. He was trembling with fear as he bent over her silent form.

The doctor came. Rapidly he worked over DONA's limp form. ASPER stood rooted to the spot, his eyes never wavering from DONA's white face.

Finally the medical man turned to ASPER. "Bad shock. Must have had a fall from her horse. You'll have to keep her in bed for some time. She must have constant attention for 24 hours."

"Will she make it?" ASPER whispered, hoarsely.

"Unless complications set in. I'll stay with her until I'm sure." The doctor began setting out a few bottles and other things he might need.

ASPER stood helplessly in the center of the floor. The doctor motioned him outside. "You might hurt up her husband," he suggested.

ASPER walked outside. He met SWERGIN, coming out of his office. The timber boss was in a great hurry, but ASPER stopped him.

"What happened?" he demanded.

"I came upon her and she was running away from Ball," SWERGIN answered slowly.

"Ball?" ASPER's eyes darkened. "Yes, he shot her horse from under her." SWERGIN went on. "Wanted to get her I guess but I opened up on him." There was a stony light in ASPER's eyes.

"I had to stop and pick her up but I think I planted one in him." SWERGIN moved to go on.

"Where are you going?" ASPER demanded impatiently.

"I'm going out to finish the job," SWERGIN said grimly.

"Get him," said ASPER as he laid a hand on his timber boss's arm. "Get him at sight."

SWERGIN nodded silently.

ASPER went outside and toward the corral. He was irritated at not being able to find DUDLEY.

"Have you seen WINTERS?" ASPER asked MALLOY, as the latter greeted him.

"I saw him about three hours ago. He saddled up and left." MALLOY turned lastly toward the corral gate. "We have to get him at once," ASPER's voice was not too steady.

MALLOY swung around suddenly. "What's up?" he asked with more life than he had shown for many days.

"My daughter was badly injured, a fall from her horse," ASPER explained.

"What caused it?" MALLOY was showing unusual interest.

"Ball shot the roan from under her," ASPER snapped.

MALLOY's eyes narrowed. He stood still for a long minute, then he swung in a queer light in his eyes. "I believe I'll do a little riding, after I round up WINTERS," he said slowly.

ASPER stood nervously, watching the tall cowboy saddle up.

"Who brought in the news?" MALLOY asked.

ASPER did not flare up at this questioning by his corral man. Instead he leaned forward eagerly. He was grasping at every shred of comfort he could find. "Swergin."

MALLOY grunted and jerked his cinch tight. "I'll take a hand from now on," he drawled. Facing ASPER he asked another question. "Will she—that is, is she bad hurt?"

ASPER got a grip on himself. "The Doc says she will make it if we are careful. You rush that young fool in."

"I'll have him home in no time," MALLOY promised as he leaped into the saddle. He galloped across the clearing as though he knew just where he was going.

ASPER turned toward the main building and hurried up the path. He entered the sick room softly and stood behind the doctor, who was sitting at DONA's side. The doctor did not look up for a long time. Finally he got up with a nod of his head and walked out into the hall.

ASPER followed him eagerly.

"How is she?" he demanded.

"Resting easy but she will not be able to tell you anything until tomorrow. You must stay close until she comes to herself. I will likely need you then." The doctor seemed to mean this for a dismissal.

ASPER walked out on the porch and paced up and down. He was rapidly growing angry at DUDLEY for his prolonged absence. After a half hour he heard horses' hoof beats and saw MALLOY riding in. MALLOY was alone and he came straight to the big building.

ASPER met him at the bottom step. "Where is he?" he demanded.

MALLOY shook his head, slowly. "I wasn't able to find him," he admitted. "I'll go out again."

"You acted like you knew right where to go," ASPER said, plainly worried.

"I would have bet a saddle on it," MALLOY answered slowly.

"Where did you look?" ASPER asked.

MALLOY pushed back his hat and met the timber king's questioning eyes squarely. "Where I've seen him riding," he answered evenly.

ASPER grunted and turned toward the open door. "Get him here as soon as you can," he ordered.

MALLOY lingered on the bottom step, and ASPER halted to see what he wanted. "Can she talk?" the cowboy asked.

"Not until tomorrow," replied ASPER, shaking his head.

MALLOY pulled his hat down over his eyes and turned to his horse. He mounted and was off again. This time he cut through the timber close to the cabin and headed up the main trail that led toward Pass Creek. Not until he was well out of sight did he swing off and circle back along the slope.

ASPER returned to his daughter's room and sat down. He watched her soft lips move in a soundless murmur. Bending close, he tried to catch the words. In her hazy unconsciousness she seemed to be struggling to speak a name.

ASPER got up and paced outside. She was calling for DUDLEY, he was sure, and the old man's blood heated as he waited impatiently for the return of the missing husband.

ASPER would have been really worried had he known the name that DONA was repeatedly forming with her lips. In her wandering mind she was searching for STAN and trying to speak to him. It seemed to her that he was near and she wanted him to come and help her.

ASPER strode down to the corral. He was surprised to find MALLOY at the saddle barn. The corral boss was strapping a slicker back of his saddle and his face showed plainly that he was bent on important business.

"Did you locate WINTERS?" ASPER almost shouted.

MALLOY nodded. "He'll be in in a few minutes," the lank cowboy promised grimly.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Hello, darling!"

"Hello!" came a dismal grunt from the lower hall. "Where will I put this darned old umbrella?"

"In the sink. Are you wet?"

"No answer, but pretty soon Tommy came clumping up the stairs with an apple.

"Let me feel your feet. They're soaking."

"Oh, that's just outside. They are all dry inside."

"I wish you would wear your new overhoes."

"None of the fellows wears 'em, and they don't use umbrella-ellas, either. I wish you'd just let me wear my slicker and gum cap. Why can't I go out without an umbrella?"

"Because you'll catch cold. The water might get down your neck and make you damp. Anyway, you don't button your slicker half the time."

"Half the time I don't put up the umbrella-ella, either."

"Tommy! You must not disobey me that way. Hurry with those shoes."

"See—they're as dry as punk inside. Feel! The man said water wouldn't get through. He said they were all oiled or something to keep the water out."

"There! You're sneezing. I knew you'd caught cold. Let me feel those feet. They're dry enough but I'll get you other stockings anyway. And take off that suit and get into your bathrobe."

"Oh, gee, Ma, my suit's dry! Feel it."

"Yes, it feels dry, but you can't tell. You're sneezing."

"That's nothin'. I sneeze all the time."

"Have any of the children in school got colds?"

"I don't know. Anyway, I ain't getting anything."

"I'll get the atomizer, and now hurry off with your suit. I'll get some of those 'cold' pills the doctor told me to get. After supper I'll put you to bed and give you a hot lemonade."

"I ain't sick. I tell you. Aw, Ma, I promised the kids to go out."

"Out! This kind of weather! For goodness sake—are you crazy?"

"It's nice weather. I like rain. It ain't cold. And I got everything to keep the rain off."

"But Tommy didn't get. He stood at the window in his bathrobe and slippers and looked longingly at his chums behaving like seals on a moist shore."

His mother seemed to be determined to make him ill. In one way she was wise, but perhaps so wise.

If a child is well protected from rain and is warm and dry next his skin, wet weather won't hurt him. He must be exercising and he must not chill. On cold, wet days loitering on streets is not so good. If a child gets wet and sits with wet feet and damp clothes for several hours in winter, that is another question. Children should be guarded carefully against that. But don't be forever babying a child when it is not necessary.

IN NEW YORK

Theatrical Note

New York, Oct. 28.—It was just a couple of weeks ago that Lenore Ulric was giving the Broadway leads an interview, espousing "true love in a cottage" and real romance and an end to the sophisticated run of things. . . . And now comes word of her separation from Sidney Blackmer, the actor. This most exotic of the stars, who hails from New Ulm, Minn., came to New York from Milwaukee. But en route she stopped to play stock engagements in Chicago, Grand Rapids, Schenectady, and way points. There came the great role of Luana in "Bird of Paradise" and she was a Broadway name. David Belasco looked upon her as one of the most promising beauties of the stage and took her under his personal management in "Tiger Rose," "Kiki," "Lulu Belle," and other hits.

She married Blackmer just about three years ago. And, just after she stepped into her latest role of "Tiger Rose," she was reported to be in such things as love and the fun of simple things. She was just full of sweetness and light. . . . And then!

Lodge News!

It's even money hereabouts that his wife had more than a little to do with getting John Davis Lodge, who springs from the ultra-ultra Cabots, to head for Hollywood and a possible movie career. Mrs. Lodge, in private life was Francesca Brag, a charming and talented society dancer. She was among the first of the important Social Register names to be lured into the public eye.

Literary Item

For a fellow who packs so much terror in his writing, William Faulkner is the shyest of authors. Already a collector's item, this young southern author of "Sanctuary," "Sound and Fury," and more recently, "Light in August," was brought to New York recently and mass gatherings in his honor. Incidentally, he told me that he turned on jazz tunes while writing, that he prefers pure corn liquor to the New York brand, and that he writes his stories longhand.

Correction Department

Which reminds me of a blushing whisper I owe Harold Guinsberg and Milo Suttifer of the Literary Guild. I noted recently that Tom Mix had left the "Literary Guild," when I meant that he had given up his old Book League. Please remember, one has to stay up so late these pre-winter nights, my lady!

M. Guinsberg, also related to the Viking Press, has brought over that interesting fellow Yates-Brown, whose quiet, thoughtful and salon manner belies his amazing, melodramatic adventures and hairbreadth escapes.

"Lives of a Bengal Lancer," which is now being filmed, he told of bear hunts, and adventures with mystics and the crash of a plane over the Turkish was some. Now, in "Bloody Years," he goes on to tell of his imprisonment; the use of a woman's disguise; of prison escapes and recaptures and final freedom. All of which seem so strange and incredible when you meet him in a typical New York hotel reception room.

GILBERT SWAN.

PAGE HOGENES.

El Paso, Tex.—Page Hogenes! An honest man has been found! He is Hurler Von Mert, a tourist from Germany who recently stopped at a hotel here. He went back to Germany without returning his room key. Recently the hotel manager received the key by mail. Altogether the key had "dropped into any mail box," on it. Mert had paid his own postage on the key.

REAL HOT NEWS

Fort Worth, Tex.—News, they say, is real news when a man bites a dog. The local news break, while not concerning a full grown man, was warm enough when 3-year-old Louis Hartwell bit the pet collie of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Mercer. Louis was tiring of playing with the dog and when the dog persisted in pushing the lad around, he up and sank his teeth in the dog's neck, injuring it painfully.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

LOST HIS MULE AND STUMBLED ON A GOLD MINE

Prospector Who Started Nevada's "Last Rush Described in 'Gold in Them Hills.'

"Gold in Them Hills" tells the story of the last, and one of the greatest, of America's gold rushes. C. B. Glascock, the author, has written just the kind of book that ought to be written about a gold rush—one that is breezy, colorful and deeply humorous and at the same time authoritative and carefully documented.

He tells of the great gold rush that hit Nevada shortly after the beginning of the century—the rush that made boom towns of Tonopah and Goldfield and dotted the barren, picturesque Nevada mountains with a score of short-lived and tumultuous mining camps, and that added hundreds of millions of dollars of yellow metal to the world's wealth.

It all began when a lone prospector, camping in the mountains, lost his mule. Going to find it, he stumbled on a ledge where a rich vein of gold-bearing rock came to the surface. In a short time the rush was on.

The incredible complacency of the gold rush got zestful telling in Mr. Glascock's book. We read about men who became millionaires on $500 investments; about mines so rich that the pick and shovel gang in the shafts carried out in their pockets enough ore to make them wealthy; about the eastern capitalists who sunk hundreds of thousands of dollars to build a town over an utterly non-existent copper mine—and so on, through a colorful and fascinating collection of stories that will make any reader sit up nights.

"Gold in Them Hills" is published by Bobbs-Merrill. It costs $3.50.

TRIED, TRIED AGAIN.

Knockville, Tenn.—Mrs. Grace Reynolds is back in court again seeking a divorce from her hubby. This makes the fourth time in the divorce mill for Mrs. Reynolds. She has divorced her hubby three times but reintegrated after the divorces and married him again.

FROG'S LAST CROAK.

Stockton, Cal.—Mrs. John Doerkin of Graton, had just finished washing some clothes. She noticed a queer agitation among the hot wash suds. She investigated and found a live frog that had hopped into the water. The frog was rescued, but the hot water had made him make the last "croak."

Planning Panhandlers

In front of a Times Square hotel a panhandler approached with a greasy package in his hand. "Mister, I've got a sandwich," he said, "would you gimme a dime for a cup of coffee?"

A kidding attitude is helpful for the bums along Broadway, where "smart" racketeers find plenty to approve. But beggars elsewhere grow more insolent. There have been a couple of cases of assault charged against them recently because their victims refused to shell out. One woman had a panhandler arrested for berating remarks. The judge jailed him and commended his accuser for her nerve in calling an officer.

Since the police started their war on slot machines, at Mayor McKee's instigation, some of the spots keep their machines in back rooms.

Chorines in one of the major venues have been deprived of a good income by being kept at the theater for performances. No longer can they say they were detained at the hair dresser's or the beautician's—about the most frequent excuse show girls give for tardiness.

The producer tired of that and insisted on beauty shop backstage, under expert management.

Choir Boy

George Meader, a Minneapolis boy, started singing in church choirs when he was a very small child in the old home town. His voice attracted so much attention that he obtained a vaudeville booking at the age of 12, and was billed as "the choir boy."

After a couple of years, when his voice began to change, he returned to school and eventually took an L.L.E. degree at the University of Minnesota. Then he went abroad for more vocal training, sang in Leipzig and when he came back, the Metropolitan thought enough of his tenor voice to give him a place. A couple of summers ago Meader switched over to musical comedy.

During all of this time Meader never lost his fondness for choir singing and now, when he is in New York, he can be heard almost any Sunday at St. Thomas church.

When Margaret Livingston (Mrs. Paul Whiteman) had reached the $1,000 a week level in pictures back in the gold rush days, a movie company asked her to do a two-line part in a big feature. She agreed, providing her salary scale was maintained. She was employed for two weeks before the company could release her, and so rated $1,000 a line.

AIR MINISTRY HEADS.

Paris.—The French Air Ministry, recently restored after disorganization some time ago, now has two of the country's most distinguished aviation supporters at its head. They are Paul Painlevé, Air Minister, and Paul Bernier, Under Secretary for Air. The Minister of Public Works has been controlling civil aviation in the country, but the control will soon entirely vest in the Air Ministry again.

HEALTH

HAVE YOU SOME OF THESE HEALTH SUPERSTITIONS?

Teachers Aren't Immune, Test Shows.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

It is realized, of course, that children may develop superstitions by contact with ignorant people, and everything possible is being done to overcome this unfortunate situation by proper health instruction in the schools. It is realized also that the coming generation is likely to be better educated in matters of anatomy, the functions of the body, and health than have been the generations of the past.

Children in the formative years are most impressionable so that the grade school teacher has a far more important effect on the mind of the child than those teachers who meet it in later years.

It occurred to Paul Rhoton, of the Pennsylvania State College, to find out to what extent graduates from teachers' training institutions are adequately equipped to eliminate misconceptions from the health beliefs in their pupils.

In a study of previous writings on the subject he found that superstitious beliefs are prevalent to a surprising degree in this country, and that high school and college students are subject to many erroneous beliefs, showing that such misconceptions were not eliminated in the grade schools.

He found also that women are more likely to be influenced by superstitions than are men and that boys and girls from rural communities know more superstitions and are more influenced by them than those from the cities.

He developed a test which included 125 superstitions regarding foods, diet, infections, the special senses, injuries, ventilation, the care of the teeth, tobacco and similar subjects, and submitted the questionnaire to teachers in training schools in various states, asking them to indicate their opinions as to whether the statements made were true or false. Some of the statements included in the test were taken from the articles on superstitions in the health field previously printed in these columns.

For instance, there is the common belief that kidney disease usually begins with a pain in the lower part of the back; the idea that a blind person has a better sense of touch and hearing because the strength that was in the eyes went to other organs; the belief that seven swallows of water will cure hemorrhoids; that a chew of tobacco is antiseptic; and that asafetida carried around the neck will ward off disease.

There were actually 5 per cent of teachers in training schools who believed that asafetida was in this way would ward off scarlet fever and measles.

One of the most significant observations made in this study was the extent to which ordinary advertising convinces teachers as well as the public generally.

Seventy-nine per cent of the teachers believed that a pain in the back indicated kidney trouble; 51 per cent thought that exercises would correct falling eyesight; 51 per cent believed that a widely advertised antiseptic, which has about the antiseptic efficiency of strong salt water, was a powerful antiseptic; and many others believed other statements made in food and drug advertising that are really without scientific foundation.

Apparently, formal schooling has failed to a marked degree in eliminating faith in the superstitious statements about health, and modern advertising is serving to introduce some new superstitions that are even worse than the old ones.

TODAY IS THE WORLD WAR ANNIVERSARY

AUSTRIA URGES PEACE

On October 28, 1918, Austria-Hungary dispatched another note to President Wilson, urgently asking that peace negotiations be entered into without waiting for the outcome of exchanges with Germany.

The government at Vienna conceded all rights asked for the Czechoslovaks and Jugoslavs, and asked that the President launch overtures with the Allied governments with a view of halting hostilities on all Austro-Hungarian fronts immediately.

OUTLAW IN LAW.

Columbus, O.—John Outlaw was in the clutches of the law here. John a 54-year-old Negro, was picked up after he had crashed a traffic light. "That makes the case of John Law versus John Outlaw," someone cracked. "Lawdy, Lawdy," Outlaw moaned.

STORES TO BE OPEN ON ARMISTICE DAY

Merchants Decide That Two Bad Days in a Week Would Be Too Much.

The Executive Committee of the South Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce this morning voted against closing Armistice Day, having their decision on the fact that stores in Hartford and other cities will not close.

In view of the parade and sports program that is planned for Armistice Day, the committee voted, however, to recommend to members of the division that employees who are ex-service men be allowed to take as much time off as desired in order to attend the events. It was pointed out that the holiday comes in the same week as national election and that day is a poor one for business. With conditions as they are, it was felt that a day of poor business and a day of closing would not be practical.

It was also said that Armistice Day was the time to take advantage of the business from crowds attracted to the celebration, as the merchant has a certain responsibility to the public.

It was voted that the chairman be authorized to appoint a committee on Christmas street lighting. The division owns its equipment and the only expense this year will be for its erection and the cost of current. Street lighting at Christmas was favored by the committee for the cheer and holiday spirit it imparts.

COMMITTEE REFUSES TO ENDORSE PROGRAM

Solicitations Board of Chamber of Commerce Backs Up Officers in Advertising Policy.

The Solicitations Approval Committee, which represents four divisions of the Chamber of Commerce, met today and approved the advertising program sponsored by the Lions Club in connection with a musical show which the service club will present for the benefit of its Milk Fund. The committee stated that it could find no just reason for approving the program.

The committee further voted to recommend to the Lions Club that the advertising scheme be dropped, owing to the fact that Chamber members have agreed not to subscribe to space in such programs unless approved by the committee and owing to the fact that the Lions Club obtained advertising from members and thereby caused violations of the written agreement. It is felt that by dropping the advertising booklet and cancelling contracts, the club will eliminate an embarrassing and complicated situation.

The Solicitations Approval Committee consists of representatives of the South and North Merchants, the Automotive and the Manufacturers Divisions of the Chamber, and the members at large have agreed to abide by the decisions and advice of the committee on such programs. The Chamber of Commerce it was stated, does not dictate to its members, and approval or disapproval is a decision reached by representatives of the members.

GROWS DUCK-SHAPED POTATO ON FARM HERE

Peterson's Market Displays Freak Vegetables - Carrot Two and a Half Feet Long.

A group of Nature's oddities are on display at Peterson's Market in the Richards building on the west side of Main street. Included is a freak potato that resembles a duck, raised by Charles Thresher of Buckland.

The oddity was brought about by the growth of a small potato on the end of a larger one, weighing in all one and one-half pounds. The smaller potato is shaped like a duck's head. There is also a carrot, measuring nearly two and one-half feet long and a squash two or three times the size of a basketball, weighing over sixty pounds. The carrot and squash were obtained in Hartford markets.

KILLED BY POISON BOOZE

Waterbury, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Gibert Hunt, aged about 60, died here today of wood alcohol poisoning. He was found dying in an unoccupied tenement on South Main street where he was doing a painting job. He died half an hour after being discovered. There was a half filled bottle of wood alcohol beside him. He had been residing in a shack on the Old Mill lots in a colony of unemployed men. He has no known relatives.

ABOUT TOWN

Castle Farm, Manchester's delightful suburban restaurant, is staging a special Halloween frolic tomorrow night. A delicious chicken dinner is one of the many pleasing features of the evening. Buddy Bost and the Castle Farm orchestra will play for dancing.

Teachers' conventions today provide a three-day week-end holiday for boys and girls who attend the Manchester public schools. Most of the teachers will attend conventions in Hartford, although there are sessions in Bridgeport, New Haven and New London as well.

Mrs. Clarence E. Colton of 128 Pitkin street was pleasantly surprised at her home last evening by a group of 25 of her neighbors and friends. The occasion for the party was her birthday. The affair took the nature of a Halloween frolic with games in keeping, and refreshments of pumpkin pie, doughnuts and cider. The guests also remembered Mrs. Colton with many individual gifts.

Mrs. Arthur H. Illing of Chestnut street is spending the week-end in New Haven.

The Center Church Women's Federation is making plans for a Pot Luck supper to be served in the parish hall on election day, for the church, family, November 8. Mrs. Theodore Bidwell is general chairman.

Miss Mary Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Taylor of 10 Griswold street, entertained with a surprise Halloween party at her home last night in honor of Miss Nora Foley of the same street, who with her parents is removing to Burnside, Monday. Games and decorations significant of Halloween and appropriate refreshments were arranged for by the hostess. Miss Foley received a number of farewell gifts from her friends who were present.

All four groups of the Memorial hospital linen auxiliary will meet together Monday afternoon at the Center Church House, with Mrs. J. M. Shearer's group as hostess. The program will include sewing and folding of surgical dressings for the hospital.

On Tuesday evening, Nov. 1, at 8:15 o'clock, George Huntington Byles, acting organist of the South M. E. church, will inaugurate the third annual series of organ recitals at the Bishop Seabury Memorial church in Groton. He will repeat for his Groton audience the recital which formally opened the musical series at the S. M. E. church here. The program includes numbers from the works of such masters as Reger, Bach, Dunham, Borodin and Vierne. At this musical Miss Eleanor Willard will take part as soloist. Besides her choir activities Miss Willard is president of the Modern Art Study club of Hartford. Her work in the choir of South Manchester has always been of a high type.

A coach and observation train went through Manchester at nine o'clock this morning coming from Williamantic. It was the train used by the Public Utilities Commission on a trip of inspection. Harold Germaine boarded the train for Boston at 9:30 this morning on a business trip.

The committee in charge of the watch contest conducted by Manchester Lodge, No. 1477, Loyal Order of Moose, has announced that after checking all returns, the watch which won was that of Gustave Green of Bissell street. He held the ticket reading two hours and 17 minutes, which was the nearest to the time the watch stopped at 2 hours, 17 minutes and two seconds.

Put more SUNSHINE days on your calendar

How many days in the month do you feel your best? You can add to these sunshine days by simply obeying nature's laws.

The first of these laws is regular elimination. Avoid common constipation by eating a delicious cereal.

Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes "bulk" to increase the intestines, and vitamin B to help aid regularity. ALL-BRAN also contains twice the iron of an equal weight of beef liver.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. How much more pleasant than pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Serve as a cereal or use in cooking. Directions on the red and green packages. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

The Cecilia Club of the South Methodist church which gave an excellent program at the church here Tuesday evening, will repeat it in the little village of Gursleyville next Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Emma L. Nettleton of Huntington street has as her guests, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Robshaw of Norwich, Vermont, formerly of this town.

The Manchester Kiwanis club will have a Halloween party Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A., beginning with supper at 6 o'clock, at which special musical numbers will be provided by Heige Pearson. It will be "Ladies' Night," and a social time with games, card playing, dancing and bowling, with a few surprise features will be carried out. It is not a costume party and the members may invite their wives and friends. There will be an attendance prize donated by C. R. Burr.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bradley of Sterling Place, and the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Keeney of Delmont street, will leave early tomorrow morning for Kittery, Maine, where they will spend a few days.

Juniors of the American Legion Auxiliary will have a Halloween party at the State Armory Monday afternoon after school. It is requested that as far as possible the children appear in costumes. Arrangements for Halloween games and refreshments will be in charge of Mrs. Lydia Wigren, junior girls' chairman, assisted by Mrs. Mildred Clarke and Mrs. Agnes Hess.

A Halloween masquerade for all residents of the community, young and old, will be held at the Highland Park Community clubhouse tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Prizes will be awarded for the prettiest ladies' costume, the best men's or the funniest rick worn at the frolic. Popcorn, doughnuts and cider will be served by the standing social committee.

A school of instruction for the new officers of all American Legion auxiliaries will be held on Friday evening, November 4, in Hartford at Rau-Locke Legion Home. Mrs. T. E. Brosnan of this town, district president, will be in charge.

Former Selectman and Representative Aaron Johnson, one of Manchester's best known residents, is at the Hartford hospital. He has not been in good health during the past summer and a week ago today entered the hospital for special observation and treatment. He is reported to be improved somewhat, but must remain at the hospital at least two weeks more. Mr. Johnson had expected to spend next Sunday at home when a celebration of his 75th birthday was planned, but instead he will be at the hospital.

Members of the Sunshine Club of the Swedish Congregational church held a Halloween party last night in the attic of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Johnson, 124 Maple street. About 40 were present. Games were played and refreshments served. The attic was decorated in Halloween colors.

Thirty streets in Berlin are named Bismarck, and twenty-six Wilhelmstrasse.

VOTING MACHINES
Editor, The Herald:
Your editorial of October 17 entitled "Voting Machines" invites an answer from us, as manufacturers of the machines used in Connecticut, New York and other states in the union.

The voting machine is expensive, as you say, but if you will consider that every machine of the type used in Connecticut has 18,000 parts and will make a comparison with other tabulating machines such as employed in your banks and other houses, I think you will find that the voting machine is, indeed, low in price as compared with these other commodities.

It is true that the voting machines are used once or twice a year but you must bear in mind that on those occasions it is very important that the machines be so constructed as to insure and guarantee absolute accuracy in the counting of the votes, therefore you can understand that the machine is built with the same precision and mechanical efficiency that you find in any other tabulating machine.

Your difficulty of a long ballot in the State of Connecticut invites but one answer, and that is to follow in the footsteps of other states where, for the purpose of simplifying the problem of elections for the voters, steps have been taken by the Legislature to shorten the ballot and remove useless, small offices and make them appointive. Another method would be to so arrange our elections that local elections are not tied up with national elections or state elections.

Very sincerely yours,
Automatic Voting Machine Corporation,

GUSTAVE ULRICH HEADS GERMAN REPUBLICANS

Organization Perfected Last Night and Group Plans Rally For Next Week.

Gustave O. Ulrich of 185 North Main street was elected chairman of the German Republican club and Victor Bronke secretary at a meeting in the Lincoln school last night. Two speakers from the Foreign Language Department of the Republican State Committee addressed the members in attendance and outlined the principals of the club.

Ten men, leaders in the German Publishing Company directors here today, Cyrus H. K. Curtis resigned as president and was elected chairman of the board of directors. Mr. Curtis at 82 years old, wished to be relieved of the cares of the management and believed that the younger generation should assume these.

In accordance with his expressed wishes, George H. Lorimer, the editor of the Saturday Evening Post and first vice-president of the company was elected president, and Walter D. Fuller, first vice-president.

FAREWELL PARTY

A surprise farewell party in honor of Miss Marion Fraser was held at her home 34 Lewis street last night when friends and schoolmates met to extend their good wishes for Miss Fraser's future success in her new home in Hartford.

Games were played and a buffet lunch was served. Miss Lucille Kelley and Miss Dorothy Johnson sang popular songs and Miss Ethel Moore entertained with toe dancing. Miss Fraser leaves for her new home tomorrow.

CURTIS RESIGNS

Philadelphia, Oct. 28.—(AP)—At the regular meeting of the Curtis Publishing Company directors here today, Cyrus H. K. Curtis resigned as president and was elected chairman of the board of directors.

Mr. Curtis at 82 years old, wished to be relieved of the cares of the management and believed that the younger generation should assume these.

GET RUSSO AND PISANI FOR RALLY SPEAKERS

Well Known Italian Citizens To Address Gathering At Nathan Hale School Tuesday.

The plans are complete for the Republican Rally sponsored by the Italian-American Republican Club, to be held at the Nathan Hale school on Spruce street, Tuesday evening, November 1 at 8 o'clock.

The following speakers have been secured to address the rally: Judge Raymond A. Johnson, and George H. Waddell of this town and Michelangelo Russo of Middletown and Attilio Pisani of New Haven.

Mr. Russo who holds the highest office of the Grand Lodge of the Order of the Sons of Italy of this state, is well known by the members of the local Sons of Italy lodges as a very pleasing and capable speaker. Mr. Pisani is a writer with broad knowledge, he is the editor of the "Forche Caudine" an Italian newspaper published in New Haven and a speaker of a high calibre. A warm invitation to attend this rally is extended to everybody.

MANCHESTER TO WAR ON RATS HALLOWE'EN

Distributing Poisonous Bait Around Farms—Federal and State Cooperation.

Manchester will hold a genuine surprise Halloween Party for rats October 31, according to plans now in effect by the Hartford County Farm Bureau and the United States Biological Survey. Plans have been made to distribute poison bait about farms, stables, basements and places for a day of whole sale eradication.

The federal and state is co-operating in the scheme to reduce the number of rats this year and has established seven distributing points for the sale of the bait at a nominal cost for the purpose above stated. The bait has proven very effective wherever used, consisting of three kinds of food prepared and poisoned. Any person who desires may secure the bait at any of the stations named: Sherwood G. Bowers, Deming street; Frank V. Williams, Toland Turnpike; Aiton Hall, 60 Spruce street; Little and McKinney, South Main street; L. C. Bunce, 529 West Center street; W. T. Little, 185 Spencer street and F. T. Blish Company, 799 Main street.

AUTO DEALERS TO WAR ON BOGUS MECHANICS

Hope To Prepare List of Bonafide Repair Men For Wholesale and Jobbers.

A dinner meeting of the Automotive Division of the Chamber of Commerce will be held Wednesday evening, November 9, it was decided at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the division this morning. The place will be announced later.

The principal business of the meeting will be a discussion of plans whereby wholesalers and jobbers can be advised as to the bona fide repair men, garage men and dealers in Manchester, in the hope of breaking down poor business policies now in existence, whereby anyone seeking to purchase automobile parts from jobbers can obtain a dealer's discount simply by saying that he is a repair man or helper in the automotive line. The action is aimed at persons who are engaged in misrepresentation to the injury of reputable business men.

LOCAL THEATER SUIT NOT ON CALENDAR

Jaffe-Marlow Case Against Warner Brothers Is Dropped For The Time Being.

The suit for damages for failure to keep the Rialto Theater in proper condition brought some time ago and which was to have been assigned for trial in this term of the superior court, has been withdrawn from the calendar and the suit, for the present, at least, has been dropped.

The theater building was leased by Louis Jaffe and Nathan Marlow for a period of years to a theater company, which was later purchased by the Warner Brothers. The place was closed and not used as a theater. As a result the owners claimed that the place was not being given proper care and that it was being damaged. They sued to have the property, with the lease broken, returned to them. The case was ready to go to trial on the last day of the June term and went over and has not been assigned for the trials already scheduled. It is the intention of the owners to drop the suit at this time.

FRANCE'S PLANS

Paris, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The newspaper Petit Parisien said today the new French plan for disarmament envisaged a general consultative pact including the United States and a general convention for reduction of armaments.

It was learned on high authority that the security section of the proposal is based on the idea of strengthening the Kellogg-Briand pact outlawing war by creating a mechanism to define an aggressor nation.

The Petit Parisien said one project of the general plan was a regional pact for aid in the control of security. This would bind Great Britain only so far as she is already bound by the Locarno Treaty.

Another project is a pact for relative and progressive setting up of an international force.

Equality Phase

A fifth project is an application of the principle of equality of rights designed to be of a nature to satisfy Germany's claims for equality in armaments.

This was made public today just as Norman Davis, American representative, was expected in the capital to discuss disarmament with Premier Edouard Herriot. Mr. Davis left London last night, after reaching an agreement in principle with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald on harmonizing of American and British views.

Meanwhile, it was learned France has virtually reached an agreement with Soviet Russia on the terms of a pact of non-aggression to be signed at Paris. The French view is that this pact is in line with the policy of reinforcing the Kellogg-Briand Pact.

The Baltic states and Poland already have signed such a treaty with Russia.

years ago he objected to the leadership of Roosevelt.

"What was my objection?" he continued "It was that the leader of the Republican Party should be at the head of the great public utilities corporation in the state because that meant politics in the public utilities."

In his speech the governor asserted: "It is useless to go through the form of elections, if the representatives sent to Hartford from the various towns are under the control of the leader of the Republican Party in Connecticut."

The Other Side

Meanwhile in Ansonia, Trumbull was given credit by Senator Anson F. Keeler, Republican nominee for State comptroller for "the strong financial position that our state holds today."

"John H. Trumbull ran our state government as he would his own business, applying business methods and finding that they worked for the best interests of all concerned," he said.

In Bridgeport, Assistant Secretary of War Payne made his third successive Connecticut speech in as many days in behalf of President Hoover. He asserted "the fact that the depression is still spreading over the whole universe must not blind us to the many solid achievements of his (Hoover's) able and determined leadership."

Senator Hiram Bingham returned from the middlewest to continue his campaign for re-election and reported that western Republican headquarters were confident of victory.

His Independent Republican opponent Prof. Milton Conover, told an audience in New Haven, meanwhile, that the "Senate's censure of its senior Senator" for his connections with C. L. Egan of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association places Connecticut in the position of voting to either sustain that disgrace or to extricate it."

gressive President of the U. S. during recent times has been a former governor of state—Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, Calvin Coolidge." And even as they roared, a few hoos were heard at the mention of Coolidge's name. Smith frowned and shouted: "Can that, can that—I'm talking of successful presidents."

Bonus Incident

Smith spoke of the bonus army incident in Washington and said the President should have explained the situation of the finances of the country with respect to the claims the bonus army members were making.

"Instead" he said "they (the bonus army) were encouraged to remain in Washington until sanitary conditions became so bad they had

PURSuing BANDITS

Hillsdale, Mich., Oct. 28.—(AP)—State police and sheriff's officers pursued into northern Indiana today four or five bandits who obtained between $8,000 and $10,000 in a holdup of the Reading State Bank at Reading, near here, today.

Three of the bandits, armed with tear gas bombs and a sub-machine gun, entered the bank an hour and a half after it opened this morning, ordered the cashier, two employees and a customer into a rear room, and looted the place of all the currency in the vault. They escaped in an automobile, closely pursued by one of the employees. No shots were fired.

Half an hour later officials here were advised that the bandit car, closely pursued, had passed through Ray, Ind., 15 miles south of Reading. Witnesses said either four or five men were in the bandit car.

PRISONERS INSANE

Hartford, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Governor Cross has issued an order to the jailer of the Hartford county jail for the transfer of James Carter and Edward Lyman from the jail to the Connecticut State hospital at Middletown, on report of Doctors H. H. H.

had assembled in front of the building at an early hour.

Eight men were arraigned in Marylebone Police Court today on charges growing out of the riots. The first two were convicted of assaulting the police and sentenced to six months at hard labor each. The police took elaborate precautions inside and outside the courtroom during the hearing of the cases.

A. Hancock sent F. Arthur Bennett that the man was insane.

Governor Cross issued a requisition on the governor of Pennsylvania for the return of Cyril V. Smith, who is wanted at Thomaston for non-support, and who is being detained in Philadelphia.

Queer Twists
In Day's News

Barcelona, Spain—Clubby folk, these Barcelona people—and many of their club are strange indeed. There is one founded by the late artist and writer, Santiago Rusinol, whose name in Spanish means nightingale.

To get into this club one's family name must be that of a bird or animal. For example: Leon, lion; Vaca, cow; Gato, cat.

Then there is another club whose members must have long noses. It is called the Club de los Chatos, Club of Long Noses. There is also the club De Los Feos, Club of the Ugly Men.

One of the most interesting is the Bachelors Club, founded by ten women haters in 1920 and now grown to more than 800 members. If a member succumbs to Cupid and decides to marry, he must give his fellow club members a football game. They spend the two days trying to dissuade him, and sometimes they succeed.

Dallas—Imagine Mrs. F. I. Hawkes dismay when she discovered she had paid taxes erroneously for several years on a neighbor's property. Madder still, the neighbor had neglected to make the same payments on her property. City Council solved the tangle by transferring the payments to Mrs. Hawkes' account.

Cincinnati—An announcement by J. O. Meeks that the Meeks family of Cincinnati is "going Republican" brings joy to that party. There are three generations in the family, and they have 82 votes.

Oklahoma City—Although paralyzed from the hips down from an injury in a neighborhood football game, John Taylor, 16, still cherishes the ambition to make his High school team next season.

"I knew I didn't have a chance this year," he said from his hospital bed, "so I was trying to get in shape for next year. And I'll be in there, too."

Physicians expressed belief he would recover. Albuquerque, N. M.—It may come to pass that cocks that crow at dawn will have to wear silencers in Albuquerque. A proposed "health code" would make it unlawful for fowls "by sound or cry to disturb the peace and comfort of any neighborhood."

Pittsburgh—Prohibition agents, looking through the windows of a social club, said they saw and smelled wine.

Federal Judge Schoonmaker, dismissing a motion to quash the "sight and smell" evidence, held: "If the club members desired to be free from observation and prevent odors from escaping from their quarters, they should have kept the windows closed and the shades down."

Stella, Neb.—It's too bad it wasn't the day before Thanksgiving, but it's good enough anyway. A spectator at a ball game got up and started swinging his arms, batting down three geese that were foolish enough to fly so low over a baseball lot.

Freeman, S. D.—Michael Hofer's "borrowed time" lasted for 77 years. At 26, while living in Russia, he was aroused from a coma after he had been pronounced dead. Yesterday he died at the ripe old age of 103 years.

One of his boasts was that he had never been in debt. Peoria, Ill.—In Washington Mr. Hoover and Mr. Curtis live in separate houses, but not in Peoria.

Election commissioners discovered that John Hoover and Charles Curtis both live in the same house on Howett street.

Chicago—There's going to be some keen competition at the 1933 World Fair. Officials in charge announced that 2,000 clucking hens from every state in the Union as well as from Holland, Denmark, England and other countries, would compete for an international egg laying blue ribbon.

Britten, S. D.—Mrs. Theodore Stoa got her man along with 85 gallons of alcohol and an automobile.

Mrs. Stoa, a deputy sheriff and wife of the sheriff of Marshall county, received a telephone call that a liquor runner was headed for Britten from Lake City. Her husband being out, she hopped into a car, caught up with the suspect, poked a pistol into his ribs, took his liquor and car and called it a day.

The arrested man said, he was Edward Krule.

Baltimore—Elimination of the appropriations for the municipal band, the symphony orchestra, and the colored symphony orchestra was suggested for reducing the city's 1933 budget. But Mayor Howard W. Jackson did not agree. He asserted music was needed "in times like these."

Chicago—As a bandmaster, James Sylvester has been developing student bands at a junior high school that have made some of the others green with envy. But the school authorities decided bandmasters should take examinations in English. When Sylvester took his he received a grade too low to pass and lost his job.

He studied music in Naples, Italy. Detroit—When Remi Legse found a charge of $109.85 on his telephone bill for a call to Cuba, he did a bit of sleuthing around the apartment building where he lived. He found that Miss Mary Vunck had a boy friend in Havana and called in police. Miss Vunck admitted making the call, on Legse's telephone. So she now faces a warrant charging breaking and entering a light house-keeping apartment.

Bloomington, Ind.—Indiana University's marching military band split because of politics. Democrats and Republicans had rallies the same night. Each wanted the band. Compromising, each rally got half the musicians.

Little Rock, Ark.—The Monticello (Arkansas) Aggies have gone in for economy with a rush. To save and make money, they will play two football games today. Coach Foy Hammons explained a state conference ruling prevents his team from playing more than eight days of football. Two games in a day will give him extra dollars.

Detroit—Charles Shuls, 32, had what looked like a pistol in his hand when he entered a flower shop, so Edward Rode, the proprietor, let loose a right to the jaw.

When police arrived, they found the "gun" to be a trick cigarette case. Shuls insisted he had just stepped in for a light but he was booked on a robbery charge.

MOTHER KIDNAPS HER OWN CHILD

Faces Jail Term As Result;
Little Girl Adopted By An English Heiress.

Los Angeles, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Three-year-old Nancy Irene Buchanan was happily back in her nursery today unaware she was the center of a story-book tale of real life which combined kidnaping, attempted extortion a tragedy of mother love and the wealth of an old English estate.

The circumstances which brought her into the midst of this strange picture began a few hours after her birth as the daughter of Ruth Borman, unmarried mother and former Iowa girl, who was in jail today threatened with prosecution for kidnaping.

Nancy did not know Miss Borman

20 years old, as "mother." That was the name to her of Mrs. Violet C. Buchanan, her guardian; a wealthy divorcee and daughter of an aristocratic family of England and the California Spaniards, from whose home she was abducted Wednesday.

The child was found yesterday asleep in the arms of her real mother, who admitted taking her from the home of Mrs. Buchanan in an outburst of mother love.

Worth Half Million

With her mother Mrs. Buchanan inherited the $100,000 estate of her father, Cleveland Thomas, of England. The will provided Mrs. Buchanan could pass the fortune only to an heir of her own blood. Her marriage to her chauffeur, Arthur Buchanan, from whom she was recently divorced, was childless and she filed a birth certificate attesting she was the mother of Nancy. On protests of other heirs she amended this to show the real mother.

Attempts to adopt the child were blocked by Miss Borman.

After the kidnaping Miss Borman was quickly traced when her suitor, M. E. Warner, admitted driving her to the Buchanan residence. Miss Borman admitted the kidnaping but denied implication in two extortion notes demanding $12,500 from Mrs. Buchanan on threat of abduction of the child.

HEBRON

Miss Victoria Hilding attended the O. E. S. Matrons' and Patrons' banquet at Colchester, Wednesday evening. Miss Hilding held the office of matron of the organization a year or two ago.

The young people of St. Peter's Episcopal church will give their play, "The Ghost Chaser" at East Hampton Friday evening, October 28. This will make the fourth time the play has been presented and it goes better and better each time. Work on the shingling of the rectory, for which the proceeds will be used, is now going on. Harold Gray is doing the work.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Raymond and family, of New Britain, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Kibbe, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Bosley of South Manchester were also recent visitors, and Mr. and Mrs. Morgan B. Lord, and Mr. Lord's mother, Mrs. Lulu Lord, of Manchester were visitors Monday evening.

Mrs. E. G. Lord, the Misses Clarissa and Susan Pendleton and Mrs. Anne C. Gilbert were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coleman Sellers at their New London home on Tuesday. In spite of one or two sharp frosts fall flowers are still seen in the gardens, and a great many dandelions are to be seen on the lawns, and along the sides of the road. Chrysanthemums, calendulas, and petunias make a brave showing and brighten up the home gardens.

The home of Hilding Brothers was visited Tuesday by the Tolland County Kitchen Tour, under the auspices of the Farm Bureau Extension Service. There were about twenty cars in the line, directed by a special traffic officer who accompanied the sight seers all the way. The first stop was at the home of William Wolf in Columbia Center, to see an attractive renovated kitchen. The Hilding kitchens were the next objective at 10:30 a. m. They were described as "two cherry kitchens under one roof, it being a double house, used by two families. One kitchen had recently been renovated and has an attractive breakfast nook. Many thought this the most pleasing and convenient kitchen visited. A modernized farm house in Columbia the home of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Lohr was next visited. Several local people accompanied the tour which took in Mansfield Center Mansfield Four Corners and Windham, besides the places already mentioned. A basket lunch was partaken of at the church vestry, Mansfield Center, and hot coffee was served to all. Mrs. Gladys Stratton, home management specialist, spoke at that time. There were perhaps a hundred who visited the Hilding kitchens including a number of Gilead people. The Hilding place was the old Frederick P. Bissell place. It is occupied by Miss Victoria Hilding and brothers and Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Hilding and family.

A Republican rally is staged for Friday evening October 28 at the Hebron Center town hall. The speakers will be Dr. William L. Higgins of Coventry, secretary of state and Norman P. Stevens former mayor of Hartford. There is a cordial invitation to all to attend.

Professor Eugene F. Chase of Eastern Penn. Lafayette College, and his father-in-law, Francis H. Hastings of Hartford, spent Sunday at the Chase country home, Shadow Mark.

Allen L. Carr was in New Haven taking examinations at Berkeley Divinity school a few days this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson, their son Harvey and daughter Alice, and Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Cole and daughter Doris, of Manchester were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ames W. Sisson last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Kellogg and family of Hartford spent Sunday at their country place in Hopeville.

Twenty-seven voters were made at the town clerk's office last Saturday.

The members of the Standby Club are holding their annual fall meet at the club house in the neighborhood of Jones street this week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Rich who have been living in Miss Daisy White's farm in Jones street recently moved to Amston.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. White of New Haven spent a few days this week with Mr. White's aunts Mrs. Amanda Potter and Miss Adelle White at their home on Burroughs Hill.

The Rev. and Mrs. Reginald H. Hefferich called on Mrs. Helen White recently and presented her with a large bouquet of chrysanthemums that were a part of the decorations used at their wedding in Hartford the 19th of October. Mrs. Hefferich was Miss Virginia Merritt before her marriage. Mrs. Hefferich's mother Mrs. Alice F. Sisson Merritt of Hartford also called on Mrs. White one day this week.

Mrs. Helen White who will be ninety years old next February has picked up nearly a bushel of hickory nuts this fall.

Fred Jones and Miss Grace Jones had as their guests at Eureka Lodge recently Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Buckland of East Hampton.

Mrs. Emma Park the widow of the late Charles Park of the Jones street section died at her home Wednesday morning from the effects of a paralytic shock. She was 83 years of age. She leaves a son C. Earl Park and a daughter, Mrs. Lillian Taylor, the widow of the late Giles Taylor of Middletown. Mrs. Park made her home with her son. Her daughter had been with her for a few days this week but had returned to Middletown before her mother's death. Plans for the funeral have not yet been made public.

The annual banquet of the women's bridge club held Wednesday afternoon at the Colonial Airline Tea Room brought out sixteen of its members. Dr. C. J. Douglas was also a guest of the club. A fine dinner of roast pork and lamb was served at 3 p. m. Each member was called upon to contribute to the entertainment of the company in answer to the roll call. Dr. Douglas setting the ball rolling by giving an interesting and humorous description of Alaska. The treasurer's report showed that during the year the club has paid the magazine subscriptions for the Hebron Library and has presented to the library two volume reprint of Benjamin Trumbull's History of Connecticut. Mrs. Charles E. Hilding of New York and Hebron had the highest average score for the year Miss Susan Pendleton and Mrs. Frederick Wyman coming next.

Miss Clara Pendleton donated several plants of blue fringed gentian in full bloom this week in the fields. She has transplanted them and is displaying them in her window garden.

CONVICTS ON STRIKE
Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 28.—(AP)—According to demands of prison officials, convicts at a state road camp near here, filed out of their barracks and returned to work today, ending a strike that kept the camp in turmoil for 24 hours.

Subdued after being kept at bay in a camp enclosure by heavily armed guards, the striking convicts agreed to go back to work until their grievances can be aired at a hearing by prison authorities.

State Prison Inspector Joseph Gates, who was here when the disorders broke out, said an official investigation of the trouble would be conducted.

SAYS EDUCATION VOTE WASN'T FAIR
Former Superintendent A. F. Howes Says Hall Is Not Large Enough For Voters.

A. F. Howes former superintendent of the schools in Districts 1 to 5 today gave the Herald the following statement on "The Town Meeting and the Schools":

"The action of the recent annual town meeting upon the appropriation for schools was very disappointing to me and suggests possibilities both ominous and disastrous to the future of the town. The meeting voted upon the appropriation without using a check list and everybody present could vote whether or not a legal voter.

Legal Voting
"Considerable illegal voting took place according to credible eye-witnesses. A strictly legal vote would probably have resulted like the possibly illegal one but the 'ominous' in the situation is this—The town has now nearly 10,000 voters and meetings to act upon so important issues as yearly appropriations are called for an auditorium that seats only one tenth of the number. There is nothing whatever to prevent any organized group conspiring to pack the hall to promote or defeat any measure in which it may be interested. This is not meant to imply that there was a conspiracy of any sort at the last town meeting. Nothing of the kind existed I feel sure.

"To my mind however the situation is a bad one when by no possibility can more than a small fraction of the town's voters assemble at one time to discuss town problems. It seems to me now that the town authorities should either devise a scheme whereby so important measures as school appropriations would be put up to a yes and no vote upon voting machines or else take steps to change our town government into a city type. Ten thousand voters were in the town's business better I believe through representatives than through direct vote at open meetings that only relatively few can attend.

Experts Not Considered
"Another 'ominous' feature of the present situation is indicated by the easy discard of recommendations of town officials who were chosen because they were considered experts in their departments. This $338,000 budget representing a decrease of $92,000, or more than 20 per cent of expenditures of the previous year, was the product of many months of careful study for several months by groups of officials who had had experience in educational matters and who could not possibly be charged with dilatory to the financial interests of Manchester. The educational item of the budget was presented to the meeting in good faith by the Board of Selectmen. When a small number of voters can summarily 'throw out of the window' a budget item recommended by both educational officials and the Board of Selectmen one is justified in feeling that the situation involves a menace to the future prosperity of the town.

"It seems to me also that the reduction of the school budget so radically at this time involves injuries to our school system so vital as to deserve the term 'disastrous'.

"For one thing the attitude of the teachers under continued professional pressure is worth taking into account. They contributed $15,000 last year to the fund for unemployment relief. They cheerfully accepted a ten per cent cut upon present year salaries. The conditional contracts handed them they hoped meant chiefly that under consolidation the agreements would have to be ratified by the newly elected Board of Education. Now by reason of the $38,000 cut they have to submit to an additional five per cent salary reduction and in several cases to dismissal at a time of year when positions elsewhere cannot be secured. Our teachers are loyal to Manchester but they are human and at present cannot help feeling that the people are not supporting them.

Bad For Morale
"Such a condition is bad for the morale of the teaching staff and if long continued is bound to result in the loss to the town of many of its desirable teachers.

"The actual injury done the schools by the discharging of regular teachers, the consequent increase of the teacher-load and the elimination of departments is too large a topic to discuss in detail in this article. The chairman of the Board of Education has recently stated in substance that further changes that those tentatively arranged, accomplishing a reduction of about $25,000 of the $38,000 called for by the action of the town meeting, cannot possibly be made without serious injury to the schools. His opinion, representing no doubt the feeling of the entire Board of Education should be accepted as final and some means should be devised, I believe, to secure public approval of the budget reduced to the extent of $25,000 only.

"The temporary curtailing of Manchester's school activities would not seem an utterly hopeless proposition if one could be sure it would not extend on into the future. Two main attractions have brought people to settle in Manchester—its industrial opportunities and its fine schools. If Manchester is to continue to attract home makers both these features must be perpetuated, if possible. Even should the town come to be known in the future not so much as the 'Silk City' but as a city of fine homes, first class schools will be absolutely essential. Our real estate men can offer possibilities for large high class residential developments but high class residential developers will demand not simply fairly good schools but the very best available. In such a case, persistent

MAYOR HANDICAPPED IN CUTTING EXPENSES

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Acknowledging before making his motion that he was "licked at the start," Mayor Joseph V. McKee tried to effect another $1,000,000 saving in the 1933 city budget today, and failed.

At a meeting of the committee of the whole of the Board of Estimate, Mayor McKee proposed a million dollar slash in the $2,247,795 set aside to pay teachers on sick leave and the substitute teachers who relieve them.

He said he was "licked" in advance because only two people in the city, Assistant Budget Director Paul Losser and the auditor of the board of education, could understand the education department's budget.

Every member of the board voted against the mayor except George U. Harvey, borough president of Queens who was McKee's sole supporter yesterday in the mayor's attempt to save $1,000,000 by retiring all city employees over 70 years old.

In making his motion today, McKee said he did not think teachers ought to be paid while they were away from work and at the same time have the city pay their substitutes. He said that every local school board had complained of a growing tendency on the part of teachers to take advantage of this situation.

COMMITTEE NAMED
Hartford, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Deputy Commissioner of Labor Walter J. Couper today announced the appointment of the following advisory committee for the New Haven state employment office: W. S. Cable, safety car heating and lighting company, chairman; R. C. Nyman, Institute of Human Relations; J. C. McCarthy, Board of Education; Fred Synington, National Folding Box Company; Miss E. H. Little, United States Rubber and Connecticut Unemployment Commission; J. Fulton Ferguson, Chamber of Commerce; Ernest L. Symonds, Southern New England Telephone Company; Miss Bernice Smith, Y. W. C. A.

The purpose of the new committee, it was announced following an informal organization meeting, is to consider the service of the State employment office as it is now being operated in New Haven, and to suggest methods of improvement in administration. The committee will examine into the possibility of the employment office co-operating with municipal and other agencies as to avoid duplication, and to invite the co-operation of employers and the public in the system.

RECLUSE BATTLES POLICE FOR HOURS

State and Local Police Kept At Bay Until Man is Finally Subdued.

Norwalk, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Joseph Nassif, 70, a recluse, held 11 state and local policemen at bay for five hours until captured at 2 a. m. today.

Nassif is alleged to have fired eight shots from a pistol which struck nearby houses. One woman nearly missed being hit when the bullet passed close to her and severed a telephone wire. Police in answering the call for help were unable to get Nassif to put up his gun and submit to arrest. He kept the officers off at a safe distance. Even tear gas bombs failed to dislodge him from a packing box shanty.

Reserves and State police were called. While several officers engaged Nassif in conversation at the front door of his cabin, Officers Charles Bouton, Edward Williams and Frank Creamer entered the cellar and climbed up through a trap door to subdue the man in a terrific struggle.

Nassif was charged with breach of the peace, resisting arrest and assault with intent to kill. He is being held without bail at police headquarters. Police could give no reason for Nassif's attacks on the nearby houses.

UNUSUAL OPERATION

Torrington, Oct. 28.—(AP)—A most unusual operation was performed at the Charlotte Hungerford hospital here this morning when a 22 calibre bullet which had entered the heart of Alexander Pontatowski aged 15, was removed. The bullet had been located previously by X-ray and fluoroscope. The boy is now in an oxygen tank and the expectations for his recovery are good.

HEAVY SNOW IN CANADA

Winnipeg, Oct. 28.—(AP)—A thick blanket of snow today covered grain fields of the three prairie provinces, halted farm operations and brought highway traffic to a slow motion pace.

An aftermath of the wintry gust which swung eastward over Alberta yesterday, the storm assumed blizzard proportions in parts of Saskatchewan. Snowfall of more than eight inches was recorded throughout the southern section of the province.

KILLED BY MUSHROOMS

Danbury, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Prima Leanne, 79, who became seriously ill last Saturday night after eating poisonous toadstools in mistake for mushrooms, died in the Danbury hospital today, as the result to cardiac and asthmatic ailments which were aggravated by the poison.

IS KILLED BY SHELL

Shanghai, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The death toll of an accidentally exploded shell which was dug up yesterday in Hong Kow rose to 13 today. The shell was left after the desperate Sino-Japanese fighting in Hong Kow last February. Several Chinese nursery children found it and started unearthing it when the thing exploded.

ALICE ROOSEVELT GUEST OF HOOVERS

To Join Presidential Party Before It Reaches Indianapolis Today.

By BESS FURMAN

On Board the Presidential Train, Oct. 28.—(AP)—A compartment set aside for Alice Roosevelt Longworth, to join the presidential party in Cincinnati, today gave Mrs. Hoover promise of a guest at tonight's big political show in Indianapolis.

Right upon the heels of the pro-Hoover broadcast by her brother, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., from Manila, the "Princess Alice" of the early 1900's, accepted the Cincinnati to Indianapolis trip on this train, to mark even more clearly the political division line between Republican and Democratic Roosevelt.

The prospect of Mrs. Longworth's presence on the platform with President and Mrs. Hoover tonight in Indianapolis aroused interest, akin to the appearance of her step-mother, Mrs. Edith Kermit Roosevelt, at the notification day ceremonies.

A distant cousin to the Democratic candidate Franklin D. Roosevelt, and first cousin to his wife, Alice Roosevelt Longworth long a lover of politics at high pitch, had plenty in prospect as Mrs. Hoover's guest.

Rural Meetings With competitive torchlight parades and rival mass meetings promised, the Republican centering on Hoover's address, the Democrat Mrs. Longworth was going to have ample opportunity in Indianapolis to give her Republican chieftain in direct contrast to those for her Democratic kin.

Political interest was on the increase as the train sped toward the noon-day stop in Cincinnati. The President and Mrs. Hoover swung into the jolly spirit of it exchanging pleasantries with station crowds.

At Athens the first Ohio stop a woman handed a big bag filled with cookies to Mrs. Hoover with the laughing comment:

"Oh, good," said Mrs. Hoover. The President who had not noticed the bag, leaned over the rear platform railing and queried: "You haven't any about, have you?" "A whole bagful," answered Mrs. Hoover.

Smiles On Child Five-year-old Mary Juanita Hughes was lifted up to give Mrs. Hoover a corsage of roses and she was rewarded with the special smile which Mrs. Hoover always has for children.

Wifely thoughtfulness for her husband's health was forecast with Mrs. Herbert Hoover at the first morning stop at Parkersburg, W. Va. Secret Service men had told of the mountain snows that fell on the presidential train at 3 a. m. and some of their child was still in the car at 8:25, although the sun was bright.

As the President stood bareheaded in its rays, speaking to the station crowds, Mrs. Hoover handed out his hat to a member of the Secret Service with a gesture indicating that she emphatically wished it placed upon his head.

All through the President's remarks, she stood back in the car in an open doorway coming out upon the platform only to share in the first cheer and to receive a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums and a basket of hitherwest. She was smartly costumed in black with gloves matching lapers and white gloves accentuating the silver of her hair.

TUNNEY TO SPEAK

Wilton, Oct. 28.—(AP)—James J. (Gene) Tunney, retired undefeated heavyweight champion of the world, will be the principal speaker at a Democratic rally to be held in the Town Hall here on Monday evening, November 7.

Tunney will appear as the guest of Thomas H. Bull, editorial director of Collier's and the Women's Home Companion, chairman of the State Board of Fisheries and Game, and a resident of Wilton.

A couple of football players were arrested for robbery the other day. Maybe the game is becoming more honest, after all.

Y. M. C. A. Notes

Men and women interested in playing Badminton should come to the gym at 8 o'clock Monday night.

The third meeting of the Home-makers group will be at 8:30 Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Jane W. Aldrich, superintendent of the Memorial hospital, will speak on "Our Hospital." The past meetings have been very interesting and more women are urged to attend.

At 7:30 Wednesday evening there will be a meeting of women interested in making jewelry. Miss Ruth Clays will be present to make plans for the class.

At 8:15 Wednesday members of the women's division will hold their first meeting with Mrs. E. J. Simonds as guest of honor and Mrs. C. B. Loomis as hostess.

Five boys from Manchester left this noon for the State Older Boys' Conference at Stamford. Herman Heck, president, and Stewart Joslin, secretary of the H-Y club, Walter McCona as guest of honor and Mrs. C. A. Harry Davis representing the North Methodist church and Wadsworth Methodist church, are the delegates. Four hundred boys are expected from all over Connecticut.

The captain of the various basketball teams of the Y had a meeting last night and delegated Vincent Moriarty to represent them at the meeting of the County Y League to be held at Hartford next Tuesday evening. Another meeting will be held here next Wednesday night at 8:30 to continue the plans for the local league.

The north end team of Juniors came out in their bright red uniforms last night and look like they could walk away with the earth. Ed Wilson is the leader of this group. There is still time for any member of Juniors or Seniors to get lined up for this league before next Wednesday night.

CONVICTION UPHELD

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 28.—(AP)—The conviction of driving while intoxicated against Francis John Ward of St. Paul, Minn., in consequence of an automobile accident that resulted in injury to Franklin Malory and his wife, Mollie, internationally known tennis player, was affirmed today by the New York Court of Appeals.

Ward's automobile figured in a collision with a taxicab on Madison avenue, near 48th street, New York City, June 17, 1931. The Malorys were in the cab. Ward was convicted in special sessions and was sentenced to spend 30 days in jail.

Ward said the collision occurred just as he was about to sail for Paris to make preparations for a trip to the Arctic regions.

THE TWAINITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLORE THE PICTURE)

The horse called on with all its might and cried to Duncy, "Hang on tight, I know my fall will not pull out, so you are safe and sound." "You asked for speed. That's what you'll get. I'll give you plenty, you can bet. I'm going to sail high up before I head back to the ground." "The other Twain, down below, began to loudly cry out, "What's Come back and bring me Duncy. Please don't travel very far!" "We told the farmer that we would help him get home as best we could. How can we do it, if you are not here to tow his cart?" "Ah, listen to them call for me. I would return, but I can't see why I should not have fun at first." The horse said, with a smile. "This sailing through the air, you see, is as refreshing as can be. I promise that I will not travel more than half a mile." "Then I will turn back with you so they can make good use of me."

GAS BUGGIES—Where Ignorance is Bliss

SENSE AND NONSENSE

The way to end the business slump is to put everybody to work, says one congressman. Now isn't it funny no one thought of that before?

Wife (at desk)—I've been asked for a reference for our last maid. I've said she's lazy, unpunctual and impatient. Now can I add anything in her favor?
Husband—You might say she's got a good appetite and sleeps well.

Tacks—How much alike people are in general outline, but how different in detail... If, as is said, nature abhors a vacuum, why does she create so many?... People who bury the hatchet don't need a marker to remember the burying place... Truth is stranger than fiction—also scarier and less interesting... Amusement is the happiness of those who cannot think... Some women seek to attract attention by trying to look miserable... There's something good, even noble, about anyone who does his job well... Consider well your own faults and you will have less to say about the faults of others...

GET IT DONE.

It isn't the job we intended to do or the labor we've just begun. That puts us right on the balance sheet.

Its the work we have really done. Our credit is built upon things we do.

Our debt on things we shrink. The man who totals the biggest plus is the man who completes his work. Good intentions do not pay our bills. Its easy enough to plan. To wish is the play of an office boy. To do is the work of a man.

When a man buys a round trip ticket he thinks he's covered all the expense of the trip, but he forgets that his wife will have to buy a trunkful of new clothes.

Sandy—How much to the station?
Taxi Driver—Fifty cents, sir.
Sandy—Does that include the charge for my bags?
Taxi Driver—I'll take those for nothing.
Sandy—Excellent. Then I'll walk.

Truth in a Nutshell: The reason some folks never have any luck is because they spend too much time wishing on a load of hay, or looking at the moon over their right shoulder.

Something to Think About: In this period of depression 30,000,000 families in the good old United States of America are spending over $1,000,000 a day for newspapers and Evelyn—Oh, Jack, so wonderful—he's generous, polite, self-sacrificing, modest, religious and extremely affectionate. He doesn't smoke, gamble, drink or look at other women. But, just my luck, he's married.

Hattie—Don't worry, dearie; no woman will stay married to a freak like that.

Mary—I hear you intend to teach after you are graduated.
Carrie—Yes, and I have the man already picked out.

A wealthy society lady had just engaged a new maid and was instructing her in the duties of waiting on the table.

Society Lady—At dinner, Mary, you must remember always to serve from the left and take the plates from the right. Is that clear?
New Maid—Yes, ma'am. What's the matter, superstitious or something?

Justice is a bigger surprise these days than a miscarriage of justice.
