TOWN FOOTBALL SERIES OPENS SUNDAY

PAST RECORD GIVES BROWN SLIGHT EDGE

May Be Favorite In Game With Columbia Saturday; Bruins Have Defeated Five Unbeaten Elevens So Far.

New York, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Brown and Columbia, which between them have handed nine rivals their initial defeats so far this season, get together at Baker Field this week, determined to do a little more record-smashing at each other's expense. Of the two, Brown's accomplishments seem to rate a trifle above Columbia's and for that reason, they may enter Saturday's game slight favorites. In their previous six successive games, the Bruins have beaten five previously undefeated elevens—Springfield, Yale, Tufts, Harvard and Holy Cross. Columbia was first to wreck the records of Lehigh, Princeton, Virginia and Cornell.

Supporters of Brown's side of this week's argument will do well however, to forget about Columbia's more or less indifferent performance against Navy last Saturday. Colgate, the only other major eastern eleven unbeaten and untied and the only major team in the country with an unbroken goal line, still will be waiting for Brown even should the Bruins check Columbia. Colgate, facing a well beaten and inexperienced Syracuse outfit in a traditional battle this week, is almost certain to win and thus continue its unbeaten record right up to the battle with Brown at Providence Thanksgiving day. Of the East's five other unbeaten arrays, Pittsburgh will be favored over Nebraska.

ROSE BOWL NOMINEES

New York, Nov. 8.—(AP)—There are other possible nominees but right now it appears that one of three eastern football machines—Pittsburgh, Colgate or Brown—will receive the bid to play the far western representative, probably Southern, in the annual Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, New Year's day. Of these Pitt, on the basis of its more lustrous record, seems most likely to win the nomination, provided the Panthers, conquerors of Army, Notre Dame and Pennsylvania, can get by Nebraska, Carnegie Tech and Stanford without defeat.

YALE DENIES CHANGE

New York, Nov. 8.—(AP)—With the Yale varsity football eleven in the midst of training for its "big three" games, the Yale Athletic Association has served notice that reports that changes will be made in the coaching staff for next season are "so much idle talk." Taking official notice of numerous reports of contemplated changes in the coaching personnel, the Association issued the following statement last night: "At the present time Yale is not thinking about any coaches other than those in charge of the team now. The many rumors of expected changes in the personnel of the staff are so much idle talk." Yale officials declined to amplify the statement.

Punts—Passes

By Associated Press
Pittsburgh—Pitt scouts may say Nebraska has an "even chance" against the Panthers Saturday but there's nothing in the record to give the Cornhuskers much hope against the conquerors of Army, Notre Dame and Penn. Nebraska has beaten Iowa State and Kansas State by one touchdown, Kansas by two and a weak Iowa eleven by one point as against their one defeat 7-6 by Minnesota and none of these teams looks to be anywhere near as strong as Pitt.

Providence—Perhaps the schedule maker knew something or maybe it's just a coincidence, but so far five of Brown's first six opponents have been undefeated up to the time they met the Bruins. The seventh, Columbia also is undefeated and the eighth, Colgate, is almost certain to be in the same class.

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard which has been fighting the injury jinx all season is about ready to throw in the towel. Seven names, including those of three backfield regulars, were added to the casualty list in the Army game and none may be able to play against Holy Cross.

All players are requested to report above nights promptly at 6:30 at Pearl's lot on Woodland street so as to perfect their play. HOOKS AND SLIDES

The Sporting News is a paper printed weekly in St. Louis, and is devoted exclusively to baseball. It might be regarded as being "in the know" regarding any inside talk concerning Hornsby's possible succession to Gabby Street as manager of the Cardinals. Says the Sporting News:

"Although Sam Bredon and Branch Rickey, as well as Rog Hornsby himself, went out of their way to assure everybody that the engagement of the Rajah as player on the 1933 Cardinals was not the forerunner to his eventual elevation to the management of the team, the man on the street arched a quizzical eyebrow when the news became known. 'Somehow, the man on the street could not be convinced that the Major League Baseball was not looking ahead for possible eventualities that might bring the Rajah back in charge of the team on which he won his greatest distinction as a field leader in 1926. 'This was a manifestly unfair attitude toward Charley Street, who has given St. Louis two pennants during his three years' incumbency, but you can't shoot a fan for making the first and last guess.'"

There you have it—the excitement has begun already! You know, the whippersnapper Hornsby has come to the Giants, Braves and Cubs—Stories of discord have followed him. The Sporting News suggests that St. Louis fans are "guessing" that Hornsby will succeed Street and that the man on the street is right. Hornsby and Rickey getting ready for such an eventuality.

Why, doesn't it appear that there's trouble already! Hornsby at Second Ostensibly, the idea is to play Hornsby at second base and Frisch at third. But surely there is little doubt among any of those who have watched Hornsby's play the last few years that he no longer is a second baseman. He can still hit for a sure, but around the base his fielding just won't do. The hardest optimist among the critical paying clientele knows very well that Hornsby, no longer is an infielder, and Hornsby knows it himself.

He would be more reasonable to assume, in the light of the facts, that Hornsby's chief baseball services in the year of 1933 will be as a coach. He is a great developer of youthful talent. There probably is not a better teacher in baseball. Many remarks in the press book during the late world series were to the general effect that "this would not have happened if the old Rajah had been running the show for the Cubs."

That appears to be the best guess this corner can offer, since it is just about impossible on the face of the whole matter that Hornsby will play. He will coach and wait.

Wait—For What?
And if the team, directed by Old Sarge Gabby Street should play next year as badly as the boys fell off in 1932, what will happen?

Will Messrs. Bredon and Rickey call the Old Sarge aside and pat him on the shoulder and say, after the manner of college football coaches "Oh, that's all right, Charley, better luck next time. Baseball's only a game, after all!" Maybe they will. Maybe they also will hand him a ticket to Rochester or another of the Cardinal farms. It has been done.

Then who would become manager of the Cardinals? Perhaps, Santa Claus?
West Point—About 25 per cent of the class graduated from the U. S. Military Academy here last June have been detailed for air service. These men have been detailed to the Air Corps for flying training. These men have been sent to Randolph Field, Tex., for their instructions.

RED MEN AND EAGLES START BATTLE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

ENGLAND RICH IN "COMING" CHAMPS, TAKE JACK DOYLE

Is Hailed As a World's Champion Prize Fighter—On Paper; Needs Lots of Experience.

London, Nov. 8.—Wonder whether any of you American fight fans heard a happy cocking like that emitted by a brood hen when she has hatched out a chick?

If you did, then you should know that it means England has once more found a world's champion heavyweight prize fighter—on paper. This time his name is Jack Doyle.

For 40 years or more the British have been trying to find a scrapper who will teach those proud Yanks something, and always it is the other way around. Forty years ago their best bet was Charley Mitchell. When he finally got into the ring with that husky champ, John L. Sullivan, he hoped around the ring so fast that John L., getting a bit out of breath and slightly sore, granted: "Say, Limey, what is this, a running match or a fight?"

In later years the British champ was Bombardier Wells, but he didn't do much bombarding. Then it was Joe Beckett. Joe vowed he would polish off that French dancing master, Carpentier, and then visit America and show the Yankees what real fighting was.

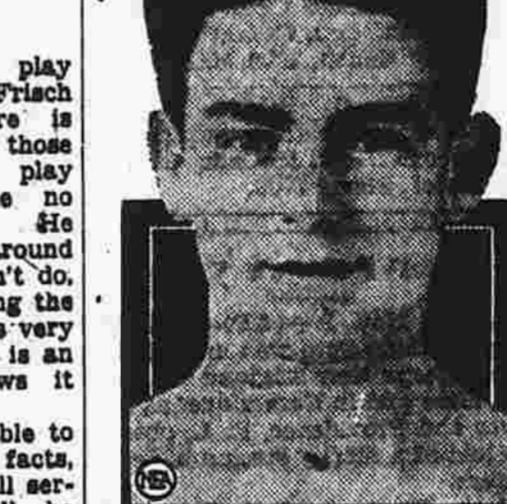

All London turned out to see his polishing act. But the only polishing poor old Joe did was to the ring. It was the famous contest in which two blows were struck. Carp hit Joe and Joe hit the floor.

Then there arose a new champ in the person of Phil Scott. He got as far as America and inside of some fight rings. The trouble with dear old Phil was that his fighting was done mainly in a nice comfortable horizontal position on the floor.

The present year has been very rich in "coming" British world champions. First there was Jack Peterson, who won a couple of ordinary fights and thus became British heavyweight champ. Before the London adjective slingers could get very busy, a new star arose in the person of the giant Jack Pettifer, who looked a number of fifters rater and holed for a fight with Peterson.

But before his ambition could be satisfied, he bobbed another "coming champ" in the shape of 19-year-old Jack Doyle, a handsome Irishman who, having licked every fighter in his regiment, the Irish Guards, quit being a soldier and took up fighting for a living. He met several "stumble bums" before he was hailed as one of the challengers for Peterson's crown. Then the fans insisted he meet Pettifer.

Jack Doyle... he's a "fighting monster."

Jack Doyle... he's a "fighting monster."

In the battle the first round was all Pettifer's. He had Doyle stumbling around in circles, and hit the Irishman on the mug so often that he didn't know whether he was going to bed or back to Ireland when the bell rang.

But read what the London sports writers had to say of the second round: "A fighting monster was Doyle, his teeth clenched, his eyes awagons in the viciousness with which they roared fire. He shot out a left-handed blow to the jaw as if released from a giant catapult. Naturally a guy like that is bound to win the fight. Doyle will soon get a shot at Peterson. If he wins, he'll visit America and stand bowling for a fight outside Sharky's door."

But until he gets a lot more experience, there are probably dozens of second raters in the United States who can take his measure.

The human conscience began to tickle sellers in all four corners of the club, with one person in charge from each team. These men will pair up, one selling tickets and the other handling the money. The managers and head ticket men will handle the payment of all bills. The North Enders Defend Crown Won By Majors Last Year; First Game At Mt. Nebo; Winner Must Capture Two Games As Ties Will Not Count; Neither Team Boasts Impressive Record But Eagles Look Better On Paper.

The annual football series for the championship of Manchester will open Sunday afternoon, between the Eagles of the North End and the Red Men A. C. of the South End, it was announced today, following a meeting of officials of both clubs at which final arrangements for the title tilt were completed.

Eagles Defend Title.
The game will be played at Mt. Nebo, starting promptly at 2:15 o'clock. The Eagles will defend the mythical championship which the Majors wrested from the All-Manchester and Cub elevens in 1931 and 1930, after the Cubs had held the title in 1929, 1928 and 1927. The Eagles and the Red Men are the successors to the old Cloverleaves, Majors, Cubs and All-Manchester teams, their rosters including many of the players from these disbanded elevens.

According to the agreement reached by officials of the Red Men and Eagles, the winning team must capture two games, as ties and scoreless games will not be counted. The teams have agreed on a split of sixty per cent to the winner and forty per cent to the loser, but the financial basis is somewhat involved as it depends on weather conditions. Should the Red Men or the Eagles win the first game, the second game ends in a tie and weather halts the series, the team winning the first game will take sixty per cent of the receipts of the first game, splitting 50-50 on the second game, all percentages being figured after expenses are deducted. Should one team win the first game and lose the next two, the winner of the last two games will take sixty per cent of the receipts of all three games. On this basis, each team will collect forty per cent after each game, the other twenty per cent being banked pending the outcome of the series.

Other Series Tilt

It was back in 1927 that the Cubs announced the town championship, defeating the Cloverleaves in the second game of the series, 13 to 6. After the first game ended in a scoreless tie, in 1928, the Cubs had a comparatively easy time, winning both games from the Cloverleaves, 13 to 6 and 6 to 0. In 1929, the Cloverleaves were replaced by the Majors, who fell before the Cubs by overwhelming score, 19-0 and 22-0, after the south enders went through their season undefeated.

In 1930, the championship changed hands after four bitterly fought games. The Majors won the first 6-0, and the next two ended in scoreless ties, the Majors winning the fourth, 6-0. Last year, the first game ended in a scoreless tie, when the Majors played the All-Manchester, successors to the Cubs, and the second game, at Mt. Nebo, the Majors 13 to 0, after which the team gave way to the Eagles who will attempt to duplicate the Cubs' record by bringing three successive championships to the north end.

POP WARNER'S DOUBLE WINGBACK FORMATIONS

ONE of "Pop" Warner's pet formations is the double wingback formation. This technical-sounding formation simply means that the two halfbacks move out to flank both ends. This formation is one of deception, and has been used with great success by Warner's Stanford teams and other schools.

In the first diagram at left is Warner's formation "A." It shows the two wingbacks in position, the left end shifted over to the right side of the line, and the fullback in position to receive the ball.

The fullback always received the ball from this formation, and false reverses, double reverses and spins, on either the strong or weak side of the line, are worked.

In the lower diagram, showing Warner's formation "B," either the quarter or fullback may take the ball and work deception plays.
