

ROOSEVELT FACING BIG OPPORTUNITY

Never in Whole History of the Nation Has a President Had So Universal Support of Public.

By BYRON FRANK

Washington, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The more the elections returns are studied, the more apparent it becomes that few Presidents in the whole history of the country have entered the White House through so wide a door of opportunity as that which awaits Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The millions of his supporters represent every section and every political party. Serving with him will be a Congress highly sympathetic with his political purposes. And he has come through the campaign pledged only to broad principals and fettered by a minimum of promises as to specific enactments.

The election figures demonstrate that the country is in a state of peaceful insurrection against the present order in Washington.

In an extraordinary degree, the country will look on hopefully as the Roosevelt administration shapes its policies and the vast majority which voted it into power will be eager to applaud whenever opportunity offers.

The situation in Congress after March 4 will be the most advantageous any President has found in recent years. Not even the Wilson victory of 1912, though it split the Republicans, brought a party at so low a point as it will reach in March.

At one particular point, the Democratic strength in Congress will offer a tremendous leverage to the Democratic administration. With so many members elected on a pledge to reduce government spending, the new President will be in a position to slash drastically at the Federal budget, with every expectation of both Congressional and popular support.

In several of his campaign speeches, Mr. Roosevelt voiced an aspiration for closer cooperation between the White House and the governors of states. For such an endeavor, conditions scarcely could be more auspicious. Of the forty-eight governors 33 will be Democrats who supported him for the presidency.

REVERE WORLD WAR HEROES IN SERVICES HERE

Parade and Memorial Ceremony Feature Morning Program; Rev. K. E. Erickson Delivers the Address.

The last day of the World War was again brought to mind today when Manchester veterans, a little more aged paraded through the streets of the town to honor their buddies of 1918 in services at the Memorial hospital.

The parade left the designated point at the intersection of Main and Forest streets on time at 9:30 and at 9:45 Wells A. Strickland, chairman of the Board of Selectmen and other town officials and guests reviewed the 14th Armistice Day parade at the hospital.

PRESIDENT CUTS SHORT VACATION

To Leave Palo Alto At 9 O'Clock Tonight In Quick Trip To Capital.

Palo Alto, Calif., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Feeling a call of governmental affairs, President Hoover cut short his vacation and prepared to leave his Palo Alto home tonight for a speedy 90-hour crossing of the continent by special train.

What necessitated the quick journey to Washington, Mr. Hoover's aides would not say, but international debt questions and the program he will place before Congress December 5 are pending.

The President has a quiet observance of Armistice Day. Invitations to various ceremonies commemorating the end of the World War were declined by Mr. Hoover, but he did send a message to be read at the dedication of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Washington.

FIERCE STORM ON WAY TO NEW ENGLAND COAST

Weather Bureau Issues Warning—Is Expected Within Next 48 Hours; Ships Keep To Ports.

Boston, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The Weather Bureau today gave warning of a storm of great intensity expected over New England within 48 hours, as the Special Communities of Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Maine recovered from a terrific gale.

The new storm was expected out of the southwest while the winds that lashed the New England coast yesterday and last night traveled in to the northeast.

Cells were flooded, railroad schedules disrupted, shipping delayed and small craft were driven on the beaches during the gale just finished. In Boston, two inches of rain fell from late Wednesday night until noon yesterday.

Nation Pays Tribute To Unknown Soldier

Washington, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Tribute to the Unknown Soldier culminated today in the solemn ceremony of Arlington National cemetery today with the reading of a message from President Hoover which said: "The nation will linger today in its annual tribute of reverent memory of the glorious youth who gave their lives to defend our heritage of liberty and will pay special homage in the dedication of the completed Tomb of the Unknown Soldier."

In a brief address, Secretary Hurley stood before the new tomb paying honor to the soldiers and sailors of the war. As he rose to speak, some seventy or eighty of the audience rose and left, in accordance with previously announced intentions as a protest against eviction of the Bonus Army from its squalid encampments here last summer.

There was no disturbance, however. Half a dozen who described themselves as members of the Bonus Army, led by some of the blue uniformed members of the drum and bugle corps of the local Victory Post of the American Legion, placed wreaths on the graves of William J. Hushka and Eric Carlson, victims of the B. E. F. rioting, while Secretary Hurley was speaking. Members of the Victory Post declined to enter the amphitheater to hear the secretary of war's address and joined in the tributes to the dead B. E. F. men instead.

Unmindful of Danger But the rest of the 4,000 residents remained with their belongings. They lived through a 100-mile an hour wind, but little did they dream that behind it was a 20-foot wall of water.

Other Towns In Path of Storm Have Not Yet Reported; Tremendous Property Damage—Vessels At Sea Ask For Help But Only One Said To Be Wrecked.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS The ten days old Caribbean hurricane headed over the Atlantic today, leaving in its wake an estimated 1,000 or more dead in central Cuba and a trail of wreckage and destruction on land and sea.

First reports from Cuba said most of the Province of Camagüey devastated and parts of Santa Clara and Oriente provinces were damaged by the storm, which cut a wide swath through the island Wednesday.

Nearly all the dead were reported from the Caribbean coast village of Santa Cruz del Sur in Camagüey province. The hurricane blew up a tidal wave that virtually destroyed the town, trapping its residents in the night.

Others in Path Camagüey, Manzanillo, Redencion, Nouvitas, and other nearby cities and towns were badly damaged, but of these only Camagüey thus far has reported a death list. Seventeen were killed there.

One Vessel Wrecked The storm thus far has wrecked only one vessel, the American schooner Abundancia off Jamaica. Its crew was rescued. Several vessels were damaged but later proceeded on their way or are awaiting assistance. These included the British Blue Funnel liner freighter Phoenix, the American Quaker line vessel San Simon, the British steamer Ingola, the steamer Valma Lykes out of Houston, Tex., and the tanker Sunoil.

The storm appeared first on Nov. 2, off the Virgin Islands, and cut off the main shipping route to the coast of Mexico. Several vessels were damaged before the disturbance turned northward.

Due to the lateness of the hurricane season, the path of the winds was hard to trace until the Phoenix was caught in them last Sunday, 260 miles off Nicaragua.

At that point the storm started moving steadily northward, Camagüey, Jamaica, and heading straight for Santa Cruz del Sur, Cuba. A tidal wave followed the storm, rolling a 20-foot wall of water through the town.

The hurricane then tore its way northward through Cuba, leaving the island a wasteland on its north coast, and passing east of Nassau in the Bahamas last night.

Official agencies were moving fast to send aid to Camagüey province. A Havana hospital was preparing medical material and antiseptics. Serum to be dispatched to Santa Cruz del Sur. The Health Department arranged to send a plane there with eight physicians.

Secretary of Interior Zuberbarre, fifteen surgeons, twenty medical students and forty nurses prepared to leave Havana on a special train at 3:00 p. m. The secretary of health was leaving by automobile.

Hundreds Injured Reports were received that a train from Santa Cruz del Sur reached Camagüey city with 600 survivors of whom 450 were injured and were to be hospitalized.

The army was helping the population in all parts of Camagüey province. A public works gang was working at Santa Cruz burying victims. The Navy gunboats "10 October" and "24 Febrero" were to reach there today.

The Marine Department ordered a ship from Trinidad to Santa Cruz with surgical material, quinine and vaccine to fight typhoid and ga-gaine.

ALL HOUSE GONE Camagüey, Cuba, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Secretary of Public Works Cárdenas returned today from Santa Cruz del Sur, Camagüey province, and there were more than 1,000 dead and more than 700 injured at that place alone as a result of the hurricane. He said not a single house was standing at Santa Cruz.

"I have never seen such a tragedy in all my life," said Secretary Cárdenas. "Damages are incalculable since the entire city, which had 3,500 inhabitants, was wiped out. I lifted boards and planks and saw bodies of women and children underneath. It was horrible."

"Most of the victims were women and children. Many were women who hungered and fought the waves with heroism," he said. "About 100 bodies would be found, he said, but would not be counted."

The secretary explained that the geographical position of Santa Cruz was a trap, putting her in the open.

STILL ANOTHER TIRE SLASHED

Vandal Attacks Car On Eldridge St. Last Night; Same Type of Cut.

Another case of a slashed tire was reported this morning by George Flanigan of Maple street. About 11 o'clock last night Flanigan had occasion to make a call on Eldridge street and on returning to his car parked nearby, found that one of the tires was flat. Upon investigation he found that the fabric had been severed, evidently by the same kind of an instrument that had been used in cutting tires on 10 other cars.

Last night's car was the 10th case reported since October 10, with approximately 30 tires ruined. On Nov. 8, 15 tires on seven cars were cut within one hour from 12:30 a. m. to 1:30 a. m. Five tires on the car owned by Felix Pagan and parked in his yard at 128 Eldridge street were ruined on that night.

POLISH STORE BOUGHT BY TWO GRANBY MEN

Alexander Mekolowky and Joseph Kurovski of Granby, this morning bought at auction the stock and fixtures of the Polish Grocery Corporation and also the building, paying a total of $6,150 for the property. There was no stock to be disposed of as this had been removed, but the sale included all of the fixtures.

Before the auction opened William H. Wakeles, the official referee in bankruptcy announced that there were encumbrances upon the property of $4,717 of which amount $4,500 was a mortgage and that the first bid for the property if brought in the whole, would have to bring this amount, but that there would first be sold, because of a request the stock and fixtures of the store, hall, poolroom and all the knives and tools that went with the place.

This bid, it is expected will be accepted by the referee in bankruptcy and when Kurovski was asked to put up the 10 per cent deposit required he offered a check. This was not acceptable so Mekolowky produced a bank book that showed $4,800 on deposit and offered that as a down payment. Only 10 per cent was required and when informed that was the amount that could be accepted, $615, he went down into his pocket, pulled out a roll of bills and counted out the necessary amount in cash.

The new owners are at present residents of Granby and intend to reopen the store on North street but will not be able to do so for a couple of weeks as they intend to repair the interior and replace some

HENPECKED HUSBANDS

THEME OF LOCAL PLAY

Community Players To Present "Broken Dishes" On Monday Night, November 21.

Henpecked husbands have existed since marriage was instituted and probably before, and will exist as long as man lives with woman. They are a perpetual source of amusement to everyone but themselves. Such is the theme of the delightfully wholesome comedy, "Broken Dishes", which the Community Players will present at the Whitton Memorial hall, Monday evening, November 21, under the auspices of Ever Ready Circle of Kings Daughters.

Cyrus Bumpstead is the name of the long-suffering husband, and Elaine, his youngest daughter and favorite is also persecuted by Cyrus' wife, Jenny, a perfect example of a virago. Leonard Johnson just lives the part of Cyrus, Miss Margaret Petcolas as Elaine, and Miss Anne McAdams as Jenny. The comedy is splendidly in their respective roles, according to the director, Mrs. Joseph Handley. Miss Petcolas is new to the Community Players but has had wide experience in amateur theatricals. Miss McAdams was lauded by her work last season in productions of the players and will do doubt, measure up equally well in her part of a shrew.

Miss Faith Fallow as Mabel Bumpstead and Miss Sylvia Hagedorn as Myra Bumpstead the older daughters of the couple, are the mother's pets. Minor parts will be played by Robert Marchant, Walter Henry, Ray Merz, and Michael Savino.

"Broken Dishes" has been accorded a most enthusiastic reception in theaters in New York and the larger cities, and Manchester people who have seen it with Donald Meek in the lead, characterize it as a clean, charming play, packed with laughs.

revere. It is in the car, he said, in which the historic Armistice was signed on the morning of Nov. 11, 1918 at 11 a. m.

The first Armistice speaker drew a picture of the first Armistice. He told how the news spread from trench to trench camp to camp, ship to ship and into the most remote of villages that the World War, as the greatest war in the history of the world had come to an end. He described the feeling of joy and relief after a year and seven months of warfare that had resulted in the enlisting and training of four millions of men for combat. The first Armistice was unlike anything ever experienced in the annals of the civilized peoples of the world.

Then came in rapid succession the removal of bodies from France, the erection of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and the designation of Armistice Day by the President of the United States, Rev. Erickson spoke of the first year and a half of the war in setting apart an institution of mercy as a Memorial to those that had died and died on foreign soil. He had expressed of love and gratitude in the memory of those who served the service of their country, and in sympathy for those that are in the hospitals throughout the land, crippled—without arms, legs, eyes and without health.

"There are multitudes of others who have undergone years of suffering," he said. "For them the World War is not over—until the Angel of Death takes them mercifully from their suffering. If we have visited those in suffering, we will not be grudge the money spent to ease their suffering while they remain with us."

The speaker urged greater efforts on behalf of all people today and find a way to settle differences between Nations other than war, through Love, even as Christ loved his people. Rev. Erickson told a touching Armistice story of Harry Leuder's experience at the grave of his son, killed in the war. He said Leuder saw the boy in the succeeding stages of his life as he knelt at the grave, first a baby, then a happy and healthy boy, and finally a corpse which he wanted to press to his own heart again but was denied through the spoils of war.

TURKS MUST PICK NAMES

Istanbul, Turkey, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Millions of Turks were racking their brains today to choose family names for themselves while the minister of interior prepared a law to enforce this latest western reform.

Any names may be chosen as long as they are consistent with Turkish customs.

Heretofore family names have been non-existent in Turkey, thousands of women being simply "Fatimas" and thousands of men "Mustaphas" or "Hussais." Sometimes men have added names indicating they are the sons of a six-fingered man or a fishmonger—just for distinction.

Names must be chosen within six months after promulgation of the new law.

FRED WERNER DIRECTS CHURCH FAIR COMEDY

Bazaar To Be Held At Concordia Lutheran Church On Nov. 16, 17 and 18.

"The Church Fair" a musical comedy is being directed by Fred Werner, organist and choir director of the Concordia Lutheran church. Several rehearsals have been held in the past two or three weeks and much headway is being made toward the forthcoming bazaar which will be held November 16, 17 and 18. This musical comedy contains various songs and comic songs and is being supported by a cast of about 20 young people. It will be presented on Wednesday and Friday evening, Nov. 16, 18.

On Thursday evening the program will include various German songs and sketches. This entertainment is under the personal direction of Mrs. H. O. Weber and is favored to be very successful. The bazaar on a whole is well under way and on the second afternoon doors will be open for the convenience of those who cannot attend in the evening.

Many useful and beautiful articles will be given to lucky ticket holders including a door prize of a choice of either one-half ton of coal or 100 gallons of oil. This prize will be awarded to the lucky admission ticket holder.

ABOUT TOWN

Harry Stevenson of Walnut street, a veteran of both the Canadian and United States forces in the World War was admitted to the Veterans' hospital, Newington yesterday.

St. Mary's Ladies Guild at its meeting yesterday afternoon made plans for the annual sale, supper and entertainment, the date of which has been set for Thursday, December 8. Mrs. Anna Wade was appointed general chairman.

Miss Emily Smith of East Middle Turnpike has as her guests, her former classmates at Middlebury college, Miss Ruth Stebbins of Norwich and Miss Jane Coulter of Waterbury. All three were graduated in June of this year. They left this afternoon for Middlebury to attend the football game between the University of Vermont team and that of their alma mater, tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. Jack Sanson, formerly of this town, but now of New Haven, was taken to St. Raphael's hospital in that city last night and will undergo a major operation tomorrow. Mr. Sanson, formerly manager of the State here is now manager of the Roger Sherman theater in New Haven.

The regular meeting of Washington Lodge, No. 117, L. O. L. will be held in Orange Hall at 7:30 tonight.

A change has been made in the organization of the Red Cross campaign here. Under Division No. 2 in charge of Mrs. Maude Shearer the captain of Team No. 3, American Legion auxiliary is Mrs. Charles Wigren instead of Mrs. Sybil Russell.

The Buckland Setback Club, last night started its eighth annual tournament. They are starting with eight teams. As the result of last night's play the sparks took high honors with a score of 187. Other teams playing and their scores for last night are: Sons of Rest, 157; City Club, 155; Clover Leaf, 133; Hacketts, 128; Bears, 128; K. of P., 111; Hartmans, 110. Gus Bingham and Franklin Smith were high scorers last night.

40 STUDENTS ACTIVE IN HIGH SCHOOL PLAY

Sock and Buskins To Present "The Torch Bearers" In Assembly Hall Friday Night.

The production of the play "The Torch Bearers" to be presented by the Sock and Buskins this Friday, November 18, is keeping over forty students active. As in most productions of this sort, the play gives varied training. There are many responsibilities to be assumed and these have been divided, besides the acting, into business, construction of scenery, interior decorating and ushering.

Those on the property committee have found it necessary to be present at all of the recent rehearsals in order to get a good idea of what articles are to be used. As flowers are to be one of the decorative essentials in the third act, many of the Senior girls under the able direction of Miss Betty Walworth, have been learning to make artificial jonquils, roses, carnations, Thysanotus and what-have-you. Miss Walworth has devoted a great deal of time in receiving instruction in the correct way to make these artificial flowers. "There are tricks to all trades," she says and she has succeeded in making a group of workers into "super amateurs."

DEMOCRATIC MAJORITY IN STATE SENATE SURE

Hartford, Nov. 11.—(AP)—A Democratic majority in the State Senate, when the General Assembly convenes in January, was definitely assured today, when Major John Busby, Republican State Central committee man from the Thirty-fifth Senatorial District conceded the election of Dr. Edwin E. Dimock, Democratic candidate for the Senate there.

Meanwhile, with the possibility under consideration that a recount in the Second Congressional District might secure the election of two more Democratic candidates—Thomas Hewes as lieutenant-governor and William M. Citron as congressman-at-large—Governor Cross, Senator-elect Lemoyne, State Chairman David A. Wilson, Mr. Hewes and other Democratic leaders were conferring at State Headquarters here this noon.

Major Busby, at his home in Union this morning said that a check-up of all the figures in which he was interested in the State District had shown that Dr. Dimock was elected, the only question remaining to be determined being the size of his plurality.

A check-up made by the Times through the offices of the town clerk in Union this morning in the district gave Dr. Dimock a plurality of 106, the vote being 544 to 438. The Times first figures gave him 110, but minor errors reduced his vote by five, and that of John E. Cameron, his Republican opponent by five.

DESPONDENT, WIFE ILL, LOCAL MAN TAKES LIFE

Andrew B. Swanson Despairs Over Finances and Wife's Health, Ends Life Today.

Andrew B. Swanson, of 7 Florence street, took his life by hanging in the cellar of his home here this morning. Despondency over financial difficulties was believed to be the principal cause. He was 40 years old and the only one working in his family of seven living at home.

It was also thought that Mr. Swanson might have brooded over the fact that his wife is not well. She had been resting at home for her son in White Plains, N. Y., for two weeks and hastened home with her son upon learning of her husband's death. Mr. Swanson had been employed at Cheney Brothers for most of the 40 years he had lived in Manchester, coming here from his native home in New York.

Of late, however, he had been working four days every other week and, according to his sons, was unable to meet steadily accumulating bills. He worked yesterday and last night, complaining of a pain in his side. He insisted he was not fatigued enough to warrant calling a doctor. This morning he arose as usual about 6 o'clock, went down stairs and started preparing breakfast after which he went down into the cellar to fix the fire.

One of his sons said he heard his father fixing the fire in the cellar. About 9 o'clock Elmer and Victor, two of his five sons, went into the kitchen where they found coffee boiling on the stove. Their father was not there so Elmer started into the cellar where he found his father.

Medical Examiner Dr. William E. Tinker was called and made the official finding as suicide. Although it was apparent that life was gone his children refused to give up hope and for nearly an hour efforts were made to bring back life through the use of a pulmotor loaned by Hose Company No. 3 and through the artificial resuscitation process. The efforts to bring back any signs of life were unsuccessful.

Mr. Swanson's five children were at home at the time, Elmer, Carl, Victor, Eleanor and Edward. There are two other married sons. They are Rudolph of Hamlin street, this town, and Oscar of White Plains, N. Y. There is also one married daughter, Mrs. Walter (Esther) Quinn of Westfield, Mass. His wife was formerly Miss Hanna Benson. There are four grandchildren and two half-brothers, Henning Anderson of Middle Turnpike East and Sven Anderson of Los Angeles, Cal.

Mr. Swanson was a charter member of the Knights of Columbus, a member of the Emanuel Lutheran church. His work at Cheney Brothers was in the dressing mill. Funeral arrangements are incomplete, pending the arrival of Oscar Swanson and his mother, from White Plains but burial will be in the East cemetery with the funeral service at Watkins Brothers either Sunday or Monday.

Watkins Brothers will be open Saturday evening from 7 to 9 for the friends of Mr. Swanson.

Democratic Majority in State Senate Sure

Hartford, Nov. 11.—(AP)—A Democratic majority in the State Senate, when the General Assembly convenes in January, was definitely assured today, when Major John Busby, Republican State Central committee man from the Thirty-fifth Senatorial District conceded the election of Dr. Edwin E. Dimock, Democratic candidate for the Senate there.

Meanwhile, with the possibility under consideration that a recount in the Second Congressional District might secure the election of two more Democratic candidates—Thomas Hewes as lieutenant-governor and William M. Citron as congressman-at-large—Governor Cross, Senator-elect Lemoyne, State Chairman David A. Wilson, Mr. Hewes and other Democratic leaders were conferring at State Headquarters here this noon.

Major Busby, at his home in Union this morning said that a check-up of all the figures in which he was interested in the State District had shown that Dr. Dimock was elected, the only question remaining to be determined being the size of his plurality.

A check-up made by the Times through the offices of the town clerk in Union this morning in the district gave Dr. Dimock a plurality of 106, the vote being 544 to 438. The Times first figures gave him 110, but minor errors reduced his vote by five, and that of John E. Cameron, his Republican opponent by five.

Working Girls They may be in college, but they're working girls. Twenty-six per cent of the 2,000 girls enrolled at Smith College this year have applied to the Student Aid organization for ways of helping to support themselves. Some want low-priced rooms, or a place in a co-operative house where the students do a large part of the work, or a job, loan or scholarship. Already 275 girls are doing work on the side, with as many as last year.

Just a Word We've gathered up a new expression (how to use, anyway) which we are told is supposed to mean "less than nothing." If you want to say that somebody is less than nothing you call him "nadir." The dictionary says the information that nadir is a term used in astronomy, meaning the point directly opposite the zenith. The zenith (unless we've forgotten astronomy) is the point in the skies right over your head, so "nadir" must be the invisible point farthest from the feet! Quite a safe word to use; most people won't know what it means.

"STITCH" MCCARTHY MAKES STATEMENT

Says Locality Mayors Cannot "Write In" Names Because They Can't Write.

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The election of the League of Locality Mayors will be held Sunday—a week—and a three-edged "write-in" movement has assumed such momentum that Chief Mayor Stitt McCarthy is perturbed.

Mr. McCarthy has no thought that he won't be re-elected. He would be a poor chief mayor, he pointed out today, if he couldn't take care of a little matter like this. Nevertheless, his pride is hurt that anyone should even suggest opposition.

The nation at large knows of Mr. McCarthy only by hearsay. This does not disturb Mr. McCarthy as the nation at large has no vote in the league. It has been suspected by McCarthy that the nation has no true appreciation of the noble work carried on by New York's locality mayors. Just because the mayors are unofficial, get no pay and actually are no different in the political scheme of things than any other citizen is no reason, in the McCarthy mind, to look lightly on their dignity.

What Makes Him Mad
What makes him mad now is this write-in movement. "They're three dark horses," said McCarthy. "They're out to beat me, which is silly to begin with. I intend to win this election, even if I have to count 'he votes myself."

"If they think they can horn in on my racket by having their names written in, they're schlemiels," which is "saps" to you, cowboy. Just because Joe McGee got his name written in Tuesday in the city mayor's election, these guys have got funny ideas.

And who are these dark horses? Isidore Pinckowitz, the mayor of East Broadway; Murray Abramowitz, mayor of 172nd street, and Abe Halimowitz, mayor of Forsyth street.

"Imagine that! Pinckowitz, Abramowitz, Halimowitz; swell chance them schlemiels got of having their names written in! Why, the other mayors couldn't spell those names! No sir! Not even if they could write!"

Wanted: Boys with air sides to sit the hangars at Bettis field of sparrows. Must be able to miss the windows.

Colgate, Okla.—At Colgate's Anniversary Day celebration continues of '49 are the order of the day and bawled and booted "wonderdances" to play the games of chance that thrived in gold rush days—fargo, poker, Klondike, Roulette and dice. There was a bar with a brass rail, too.

Tonkawa, Okla.—Uncle Sam isn't dispensing beer with postage stamps, an Oklahoma farmer, J. J. in hand, was informed at the Tonkawa postoffice. "Why, they said we could get beer at the postoffice as soon as Roosevelt was elected," he told Assistant Postmaster Trotter.

Salt Lake City—Woody Greenwell's desire to get even with his girl friend for jilting him got him into jail. The 26-year-old cook told the court he stuffed the girl's coat into a dumb waiter in an apartment. Some one dropped a cigarette on it and fire ensuing. $3,100 damage followed. Greenwell pleaded guilty to destroying property and was sentenced to 90 days in jail.

Baltimore—"Bonesetter" premature remarked United States District Attorney Simon E. Soboloff as he turned over to William F. Lane, Jr., Maryland attorney, general, a telegram asking information about handling beer and wine in the state. "World like to make application for license to handle wine and beer in Maryland in event the December Congress legalizes the sale of same," wired W. F. Lane, Jr. of Richmond, Va. "Also liquor when 1933 Congress repeals Eighteenth Amendment. Appreciate information concerning this."

Verona, Ore.—City Marshal Earl Smith was locked securely behind the bars in his own jail all day Wednesday. The marshal was rudely routed out of bed in the morning, and hustled to the prison, where breakfast was served him behind the bars.

And another Hoover-Roosevelt bet, this one with Councilman B. J. Cline, was paid. "Earthquake" shouted William J. Gabriel to Mrs. Gabriel as they clung to their rocking bed while windows crashed and pictures clattered from the walls. It was quite a shock, all right. Malin Head, Ireland-A postcard which floated across the Atlantic in a bottle was picked up here. The bottle bore the seal of the United States Bureau of Fisheries. On the seal was a request to send it back with the date it was found and details of the locality. The seal was posted.

Michigan City, Ind.—Three Mounts, Ind., youths stole 27 cents from a butcher shop. Pleading guilty, each was sentenced to six months and fined $200.

Waynesburg, Pa.—Anxious to get married but fearful of the business outlook, James Ward and Lillian Garbin, both 31, decided to await the outcome of the election, saying "If Roosevelt gets in times will pick up."

Wilmington, N. C.—(AP)—The active campaign of Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for the presidency, appears to have brought him several times as many votes as he had in 1928. More than 400,000 ballots were recorded for him in the far from complete returns, the largest vote having been cast in New York state. New York City returned the major portion of the latter count, 120,496. In some states there was no tabulation of the Socialist vote.

CLAIM 500 SLAIN BY JAP SOLDIERS

Battle With Chinese Takes Place in Manchuria—Few Japanese Killed.

Tsitsihar, Manchuria, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Japanese army headquarters here reported today 500 Chinese were slain in a battle yesterday near Khurkura, Chinese Eastern Railway station, five miles west of the Nonni river.

A Japanese regiment, seeking to relieve the menace to Tsitsihar of revolting Chinese troops in northern Manchuria, was reported to have routed 3,000 followers of General Chang Tien-Chu, principal lieutenant of General Su Ping-Wen. The Japanese reported their losses as 13 killed and 50 wounded.

The Matsuki division headquarters here asserted General Su, who is controlling all northwestern Heilungkiang province in opposition to the Manchukuo government, was disregarding Japanese efforts to end the revolt peacefully.

Large Forces Gathered He was said to have recently massed large forces west of Tsitsihar.

The Japanese attacked General Chang's followers at dawn yesterday.

Gen. Su still held 245 captives at Manchuli, in northwest Manchuria near the Soviet border. The Japanese command was hoping to negotiate their release soon. Winter gripped the northwest area today with 30 degrees below zero (Fahrenheit) reported at Manchuli.

At the request of the Japanese, Soviet consular authorities at Manchuli were arranging for evacuation of Japanese held prisoners there to Soviet territory. In a note to the Moscow government, General Su promised to release all who were not active in supporting the Manchukuo government. Earlier reports said there were 300 captives, including many women and children.

HITLER IS INVITED TO JOIN CONFERENCE

Berlin, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Chancellor Franz von Papen invited Adolf Hitler and four other political party leaders today to a meeting to determine how far they are willing to support the government in its political and economic program.

Others invited, in accordance with instructions given to the chancellor by President von Hindenburg, were Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, Nationalist; Dr. Ludwig Kaas, Centrist; Herr Schaefter, Socialist; and Edward Dingeldey, German Popularist.

In government circles it was intimated that if Hitler, National Socialist Party leader, refuses to meet with the chancellor, it is doubtful whether President von Hindenburg will receive him at a later stage in negotiations. Insofar as party newspapers reflect the opinion of the respective leaders, the National Socialists, Centrists and the Bavarian People's Party oppose the chancellor personally but are willing to cooperate in a cabinet of national concentration.

HARTFORD'S OBSERVANCE

Hartford, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Memorial services at Colt Park this morning opened Hartford's Armistice Day observance which were to culminate, after a large parade this afternoon with the dedication of a bronze equestrian statue of Lafayette near the State Capitol and the christening of a new Boeing bomber, "City of Hartford" at Brainard Field.

The Colt Park services included the placing of wreaths by Boy and Girl Scouts and a recitation of the memory of Hartford's 210 World War dead, a 21-gun salute, and talks.

Mrs. W. H. Storrs, who had the bronze statue of Lafayette cast from the plaster model that formerly stood in the Capitol and gave it to the State and city, was to unveil it at 3 o'clock. Governor Cross was to receive it for the State and Mayor William J. Rankin for the city. Lieutenant-Governor Samuel Spencer, chairman of the State Capitalism Commission, and a new Boeing bomber, "City of Hartford" at Brainard Field.

NOTED SURGEON DIES

Bologna, Italy, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Augusto Murri, once regarded as Italy's greatest surgeon, died today at 51 of an apoplectic stroke. His death recalls the family mystery which surrounded the murder of a son-in-law who was killed thirty years ago. Dr. Murri's son, Tullio, was sentenced to seventeen years in prison. He died last year and it was said that he had left a written revelation to be opened only after his father's death.

U. S. TOO LIBERAL IN AIDING VETS

Senator Robinson Says Cash Payment Would Threaten National Credit.

Fayetteville, Ark., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Senator Joe T. Robinson, Senate Democratic leader, declared in an Armistice Day address here today, in favor of this government announcing a fixed policy for collection of the war debts and said the printing of more money for immediate cash payment of the soldiers bonus would threaten the national credit and result in much more harm than good.

Reviewing the National expenditures for veterans' compensation, he said that "from the origin of pensions for disabled soldiers during the period of the Roman Empire down through the Middle Ages to the present, there has been nothing comparable in the history of any country to the liberal manner in which the United States government has made provision for its veterans."

"Many have grown accustomed to believing that our Federal government has some mysterious source from which to obtain unlimited sums without oppression," he said. "Any one who thinks must realize that every dollar which the government spends must be made up from taxes; that while there is no difficulty in employing the National credit for the sale of bonds to meet emergency requirements for limited amounts, any proposal to print money and pay it out to the holders of adjusted compensation certificates would not only result in great injustice to those whom such payment is intended to benefit, but it would threaten the national credit and probably result in much more harm than good.

"If it is sound policy to print money for advance payment to veterans, or if it is safe to do what amounts to the same thing, namely, issue bonds, and then require the banks to take the bonds and issue notes to the veterans, why worry about balancing budgets? Why levy harassing taxes? Why not make up the deficit in that manner?"

Tracing the history of the war debts due the United States, Senator Robinson said "there is no equity in the appeal for cancellation. "It seems the part of prudence," he said, "to declare a fixed policy on the part of this government to collect the debts and end the agitation which is certain to gather volume in the early future in favor of cancellation.

"If the President should let it be known that the settlements now in force are final and not to be revisited or opened up for further consideration, such decisive action would promise the stabilization of conditions throughout the world."

BEETHOVENS TAKE PART IN HARTFORD PROGRAM

Sing At Bushnell Memorial In Gustavus Adolphus Tri-Centennial Celebration.

More than 1,000 persons attended the Gustavus Adolphus Tri-Centennial Celebration at the Bushnell Memorial in Hartford last night, arranged by the Swedish Cultural Society for the benefit of the Swedish Relief society.

The Beethoven Glee club of this town, under the direction of Helge E. Pearson and accompanied by L. Burdette Hawley, presented two groups of numbers on the program. The first group included "Laudamus" and "Thanks Be To God," the second, "Good Night," and "Schneider's Band."

LARGE CROWDS AT ELLINGTON DANCES

The series of dances at the Ellington Town hall are proving very popular and the reason is that the Novelty Syncopators of Hartford is the band that is furnishing the music. On the two Saturday evenings that the girls have played there the crowd has doubled the attendance over that of the opening dances of the series. Old fashioned and modern dancing is enjoyed with Prof. French of Springfield doing the prompting. The girls' band after playing in Ellington for the next two Saturday evenings, will open their winter tour of various ballrooms.

ASK FIRE DISTRICT TO MAINTAIN NO. 1

Cheneys Notify Annual Meeting of Decision—Adds To the Budget.

All for some time and unable to attend the annual meeting of the South Manchester Fire District last night, Fire Alarm Superintendent N. N. Heebner was re-elected to the office he has filled for many years and a vote of appreciation of his great services to the department was adopted by the meeting.

Must Take Over No. 1 One of the most important matters dealt with was an announcement on behalf of Cheney Brothers that the fire district must prepare to assume the cost of maintenance of No. 1 headquarters, which includes the pay of call men who sleep there and which has been assumed by the department beginning by the Cheney company.

This action is in line with the Cheney policy of divesting itself of the many public functions it charges itself with in the past. A matter of about $7,000 annually is involved, which the district commissioners may be able to reduce by about a thousand dollars, perhaps by having fewer call men sleep in the house.

It has been expected that the year's budget for the district would be $36,000 but the necessity of assuming the maintenance of No. 1 house made it necessary for the meeting to appropriate $42,000 for the current expenses of the district and the carrying charges on $18,000 indebtedness. Chairman Frank Cheney, Jr., of the district fire commissioners, explained that there was no necessity of laying a district tax this year since a 2-mill tax next year would take care of the budget, charges and accumulated indebtedness.

Fire Loss Increased The commissioners' report, carrying with it the reports of the treasurer, secretary, tax collector, department chief and superintendent of fire alarm, shows an increase in the number of fires and in total fire loss, the latter due mostly to the blaze in the Rutlow building. Apparatus and buildings are reported in good order. No. 1 truck having been repainted and equipped with new tires and the chief's car overhauled and repainted. No. 2 building has been repaired and its exterior repainted. During the next year a new pump may require new tires and the interior of No. 2 house may have to be repainted. The fire alarm system is reported in good order, with no important repairs or additions under consideration.

As no tax was voted in 1931 there remain uncollected only balances from previous years amounting to about $4,400, mostly covered by liens. The treasurer's report shows expenses for the year of $35,133.57, a cash balance of $978.24 and a debt of $18,000.

Chief's Report The report of Chief Foy shows that the department responded to 152 alarms, 41 more than in the previous year. Five of these were for fires outside the fire district. Box alarms numbered 32 and stills were 120. Chimney, grass and wood fires caused 98 alarms. The department had nine calls from Hartford under the mutual aid system to hold itself in readiness. There was no call for the use of the department's inhalator. The largest fire of the year was that at the Rutlow building February 4, at which the loss was $20,000.

The total fire losses in the district during the year were $43,320. The total value of buildings at risk reported fires, with contents, is placed at $245,200.

Officers Re-Elected The district meeting re-elected all its officers. E. L. G. Hohenthal, Jr., was re-elected to the board of commissioners for three years, his being the only term to expire. Daniel Haggerty was re-named as first assistant chief, Joseph Chambers as second assistant, J. O. McCaw as assistant superintendent of the fire alarm system, William F. Taylor as collector and E. L. G. Hohenthal as treasurer.

At the commissioners' meeting held after the district meeting Chief Albert Foy was reappointed.

FIVE MEET DEATH IN PLANE CRASH

Far Off Its Course, Machine Falls Into Woods During High Wind.

Kempville, Tenn., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Flying far off its course and apparently lost, a plane crashed in a woods on a steep hillside near here last night, carrying its five occupants to their deaths.

Two of the dead were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Hirt, of Chicago. A young woman, and a boy and girl, about five and four years old, respectively, were the other victims. All were killed instantly except the girl, who died this morning.

Dr. C. W. Robinson, who was with the searching party that found the demolished plane, said it crashed during a high wind that was accompanied by a slight drizzle. The plane had left Sky Harbor, near Nashville, at 5:15 p. m., yesterday en route to Atlanta via Chattanooga. Favorable weather conditions prevailed all the way, but instead of flying southeast, the plane went northeast and was about 200 or 300 miles off its course.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Servants at the home of Joseph F. Hirt, Chicago industrial engineer killed with his wife and two others in an airplane crash, said the Hirts were accompanied on their airplane trip by Mrs. Elizabeth Hunter, a widow, and her two children. They did not know Mrs. Hunte's home address or the names of her children.

BOY'S BODY RECOVERED Bristol, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The body of Frederick Blier, 8, who was drowned last night in the flooded Pequabuck river was found today a mile down stream from where he disappeared.

The boy fell from a footbridge guarded by a rail while crossing to his home with his brother. The water there is normally about a foot deep, but was swollen to more than four feet by Wednesday night's heavy rains.

STATE OBSERVES WORLD WAR'S END

Cities and Towns Hold Ceremonies in Honor of Armistice Day.

By Associated Press. The rejoicing and sorrowing which marked the cessation of hostilities November 11, 1918, were recalled today as Connecticut communities joined in the observance of the 14th anniversary of the signing of the Armistice.

Memorial services for those who lost their lives in the conflict, parades in the larger cities of the state, and social functions were crowded on the day's program. The day was a legal holiday, one of ten observed in Connecticut. Schools and banks were closed and flags lined the principal streets of towns and cities.

Most of the memorial services were held in the morning and were timed so they reached their climax at 11 o'clock, the hour when the order to cease firing flashed along the shell-torn front. At that hour today all activities in the state came to a standstill as Connecticut men, women and children paid their tribute to the fallen heroes with a moment of complete silence.

Members of nine veterans' organizations gathered with other citizens on the green in New Haven for community exercises led by Mayor John W. Murphy. Tonight ex-service men in that city will hold their annual frolic at which Brig.-General James A. Haggerty of the National Guard will receive a silver star citation with two oak leaf clusters for bravery in action and exceptional leadership.

Hartford honored the 210 souls lost in the conflict with memorial services at Colt Park. At 11 o'clock a 21 gun salute was fired. Later in the day war veterans and members of civic and fraternal organizations and school children participated in a parade.

An airplane drenched over cemeteries in Bridgeport, swooping down at each burial ground to drop flowers on the graves. A parade and special exercises at the Central High school auditorium were also on the program.

Norwich dedicated a boulder in memory of Captain Samuel Chester Reid, a native son who distinguished himself as a naval officer during the war of 1812. A parade arranged by the American Legion, and a Drum Corps contest followed.

Honor roll exercises and a parade featured the celebration in Waterbury. Yale students gathered in Dwight Memorial Chapel to listen to an Armistice Day address by Prof. Charles P. Howland, who during the World War went to England and France on various missions for the State Department.

WINS NOBEL PRIZE

Stockholm, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Dr. Irving Langmuir, associate director of the General Electric Laboratories at Schenectady, N. Y., has been awarded the Nobel prize for chemistry for "pioneer work in surface chemistry" by the Swedish Academy of Science announced today.

It explained he has been given the special recognition for his contributions toward the advancement of radio science. His research in laws governing electron emission from glowing metal threads which led to construction of a new type of vacuum tube, was regarded by the academy as the most important step in development of radio technique in the past decade and of great economic benefit.

The Swedish newspapers hailed the award with enthusiasm, calling attention to his development of new research methods for the future as well as his own work. It praised the economic as well as the scientific value of his discoveries.

He urged that selective systems be administered "with human understanding and a wise flexibility" and expressed doubt as to the complete efficiency of recent systems of admission to the higher schools of learning.

In closing he paid tribute to the memory of his former colleague of the board of trustees, the late Dwight W. Morrow.

AMHERST COLLEGE HEAD RAPS CODDLING METHODS

Amherst, Mass., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Dr. Stanley King in his inaugural address at his inductment as 11th president of Amherst college today warned that "we must get away from the all too prevalent coddling and immaturities attitude toward young men."

Dr. King addressed an audience which included Governor Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts, former President Calvin Coolidge, one of Amherst's trustees and more than a score of college presidents and nationally known educators.

 FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 11.
ARMISTICE DAY
 Especial significance attaches to this fourteenth anniversary of the signing of the great Armistice. Since the celebration of the last preceding one there has come to pass a great change. Through an overwhelming uprising of the people the political party and the governmental leaders who have determined America's foreign policy, and so in large measure the whole post-armistice course of world events, have been displaced. Another party and other leaders who profess an entirely different international philosophy have been elevated to the succession.
 Whether or not the relationships with our former allies and with our former enemies which the American nation established were the wisest possible, they were consistently adhered to. It is now inevitable that they are to undergo drastic revision. It is the mandate of the people that they be revised. So that at one sudden stroke the post-war history of the United States, so far as it relates to conditions and problems growing out of the war, has been erased from the slate and we are back at the point from which we started on November 11, 1918.
 Our future, with relation to the post-war world, lies all before us. In a moment all our achievements and all our failures within that zone have been wiped out. The past is dead and before us lies a blank page susceptible to all error or all wisdom.
 So that this fourteenth anniversary is infinitely the most momentous recurrence of the day that America or the World has witnessed. May this great nation be guided aright, is the prayer that will go up today from a hundred and twenty million hearts.

DIRECT EMPLOYMENT
 May we suggest to the committee of the Manchester Emergency Employment Association now engaged in planning the routine of the association's relief procedure one idea, perhaps of no major importance but possibly useful in some small degree?
 Last year regular contributors to the relief fund were credited on the accounts of the association with the sums turned over to the association's treasury by them and were entitled to make drafts against that credit in the form of services of the unemployed at an established rate of hourly wage. The plan, we believe, worked fairly well but it had its drawbacks in some instances. One of them was a reluctance on the part of a good many contributors to avail themselves of the opportunity to receive compensation in the form of labor because the machinery for carrying out the arrangement was necessarily a little cumbersome and fussy; they were a bit fearful perhaps of appearing conspicuously eager to get back the equivalent of their contributions. Another drawback possibly may have been the circumstance that each time a contribution requisitioned services under this arrangement he not only had to make a separate application but would most likely get the services of a different person, which had its obvious objections.
 It has occurred to us that a larger total number of hours of employment might be provided through a more permanent arrangement that perhaps might be fixed up between the committee and a not inconsiderable number of home owners. Undoubtedly there are a good many people in Manchester who would be very ready to agree to give so many hours of employment each week at the rate of pay fixed by the M. E. E. A. to certain men or women regularly assigned to them by the association, such employment being domestic in its nature. And instead of paying their contributions to the M. E. E. A. it possibly might make the relationship pleasant for all concerned if the payments were made direct by the employer to the employee.

 For example, the housewife who found that she could, at a pinch, devote a dollar and a half a week to the relief of unemployment, instead of contributing that amount to the M. E. E. A. treasury might arrange with that body to employ the same woman helper a few hours each week to the amount of her relief appropriation, paying the wage into the worker's hands. The helper, if fortunate enough to be provided with several such part-time jobs, would be relieved of all consciousness of being the beneficiary of public aid. At the same time the employer's assistance to the general unemployment situation would be recognized and acknowledged, the whole transaction necessarily being a matter of record. The M. E. E. A. would know that Mrs. A. had say two and a half days' work, all told, each week, at the homes of Mrs. B. Mrs. C. and Mrs. D.
 There would probably be even more demand for stated hours of the services of men, on the same basis. There are few houses where an able bodied man of any degree of "handiness" could not be used several hours a week on jobs that accumulate from day to day, from cleaning out the cellar or beating rugs to washing the family car. And a number of such part time jobs, with the compensation coming directly from employers who were getting something for their money, would, it seems to us, not only provide the beneficiary with earned cash for the support of his family but help him to better retain his full self respect.
 At all events the idea may be worth considering.

CREATIVE EFFORT
 Dr. John Erskine, addressing a lot of financial district clerks in New York, urged each of them to adopt some sort of creative hobby and warned them against the inhibitions which tend to make people refrain from doing something they want to do which probably is entirely innocent and worth while.
 Talking as though he were about a thousand years old instead of very little over fifty the celebrated educator-novelist said: "In my day I lived in a bad time and the boys of our day lived only to make money. They were an admirable crowd but pretty dull. A group of six of us in college wanted to be writers but we used to sneak off by ourselves to talk about it. It was something to be ashamed of. I think things are somewhat different now."
 As a picture of contrasting periods this wouldn't have amounted to much so recently as three or four years ago. Dr. Erskine's bright college years were passed very early in the present century. From that period until the grand blow-off in 1929 there was no time, with the exception of the two war years, when the condition which he pictures did not grow worse. But there is little doubt about things being "somewhat different now."
 Sweet will be the uses of adversity indeed if the collapse of our materialistic jamboree brings to youth the realization that there is more solid satisfaction in building the best piece of stone fence in the county with your own hands than there is in cheating other folks out of the labor of building it for you.

CABINET GUESSING
 Those persons who have been dividing their time, the last two or three days, between piecing picture puzzles and putting together Mr. Roosevelt's Presidential cabinet, might as well take some more pieces out of the circulating libraries and forget about the cabinet. Nothing, says the President-elect, will be done about the cabinet for at least two months; and sixty days is too long a time to wait for a verdict on a guess. Those cabinet makers who don't care about picture puzzles might, if they cared to, turn to guessing on whether the West Indian storm promised within the next day or two will raise any more rim along the Connecticut shore than yesterday's.
BINGHAM NO LAME "DUCK"
 It is easier to understand Senator Bingham's determination to abandon the Senate leadership of the fight for Volstead law modification than it is to subscribe to it. Mr. Bingham says: "I do not like to see a lame duck thrust himself forward; I do not believe it is appropriate for a lame duck to act as though he had the backing of his constituents. . . . I have lost the mandate of the people."
 Senator Bingham may be technically a lame duck. With relation to party policies he may belong to a large Congressional group now marching with a uniform limp. But when he talks about having lost the mandate of the people of Connecticut in the matter of prohibition reform he is displaying a sensitiveness so acute as to interfere with his perceptions. The senator retains the mandate of Connecticut voters voiced by a thunderous chorus of "yes" votes on election day, to the tune of five to one.

 So far as we can see there is no reason in the world why Senator Bingham could not or should not continue his splendid battle for sanity in the administration of the liquor problem. It is not a party question. In relation to it there is no such thing as a lame duck. The fight he has been waging has the overwhelming approval of the people not only of Connecticut but substantially the whole country. The senator bore the brunt in the hours of stress, why should he waive his right to ride at the head of the army of modification now that the moment of victory is at hand?
SO KIND
 "If the Republican party needs me," says Dolly Gann, "I'll be ready."
 So kind, dear Mrs. Gann; but really—don't you know—it's almost quite certain that the Republican party wouldn't think of troubling you. Thanks so much.

Health and Diet Advice
 By Dr. Frank McCoy
FOOD POISONING
 Every once in a while we read of poisoning from food. Whenever several people become sick after eating a meal together food poisoning is suspected. One rarely hears of food poisoning occurring to an individual; this is because the symptoms may closely resemble several digestive disorders.
 There is a good deal of misunderstanding about the term "food poisoning" as it is used in a great deal more restricted sense than formerly. Naturally one could not include diseases caused by deficient diets, nor infectious diseases such as typhoid, tuberculosis or trichinosis even though the foods eaten contain the germs responsible for the diseases. Food poisoning must be restricted to cases where there is a poisonous chemical substance inherent in the food or toxins in the food formed by infection. Decomposed food is not necessarily capable of causing poisoning. Many races of men enjoy eating meat which would seem putrid judged by our standards, yet they are not poisoned by the meat. In order for the meat or other food to contain poisonous toxins it must be infected by some special type of bacteria, the most common culprits being of the botulism or salmonella group. Unfortunately there may be little change in the appearance or flavor of a food poisoned by the salmonella group of bacteria. When the botulism bacteria is the cause of infection, the food may have a peculiar sour flavor and taste.
 The symptoms of food poisoning generally begin within six to twelve hours after eating a meal. The attack is preceded by chilliness and headache followed by a severe gastroenteritis which is manifested by severe vomiting, diarrhea and cramps. Sometimes there is extreme prostration and even fever and delirium. Fortunately the vomiting and diarrhea usually are capable of getting rid of most of the poison toxins so that fatalities are not as common as many people believe. The attack is usually limited and leaves no complications.

 One should not, however, take it for granted that recovery will take place and vigorous treatment should be started immediately. If the patient has not vomited a great deal, the stomach should be washed out with a stomach pump, or an emetic with warm water and mustard may be used. Then the patient should drink a large amount of water in small sips so that the water will help to dilute the toxins. If the diarrhea has not been severe, castor oil should be taken, but whether or not diarrhea is present, frequent enemas should be used. Needless to state, no food should be used until the acute symptoms subside, and it is better to then use a liquid diet, such as milk or vegetable broths, for a day or two in order to allow time for the inflamed intestinal lining to heal.
 Doctors sometimes give drugs, such as morphine, paregoric, laudanum or pantapain, in order to relieve pain, but I do not believe these drugs are advisable as they retard the elimination of toxins, thereby making the cure less certain. It is all right and advisable to use hot wet towels frequently changed over the abdomen in order to relieve the pain.
 Remember that it is very difficult to make a diagnosis of food poisoning except by the knowledge that one has been exposed to suspected food and also to rule out or exclude the possibility of diseases which might have similar symptoms. Whenever food poisoning is suspected it is better to begin treatment immediately rather than to wait for the symptoms to become worse. If any of the suspected food remains, it should be referred to an expert for analysis. The contamination of food from the salmonella group of bacteria generally occurs when food has been allowed to stand where it can be eaten and walked over by rats and mice. Great care should always be used to keep prepared food under cover and in a cool place until it is consumed.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
 (Symptoms of Floating Kidney)
 Question: J. Ward F. asks: "Will you please tell me in your health column the cause, symptoms and cure of a floating or wandering kidney?"
 Answer: The kidneys are not definitely anchored in an exact position, but change their position slightly with the movements of the body. Those who have a general prolapsus of abdominal organs will find that the kidneys are always lower down than is considered normal. There are seldom any definite symptoms except those which go with the general prolapsus. The backache and bear-down feelings associated with prolapsus are seldom caused by the floating kidneys alone, but come from the general weakness of abdominal and back muscles which allow the prolapsus to exist. The only cure is in raising these organs through strengthening the abdominal and back muscles by taking suitable stretching-up exercises.

 (Evaporated Milk)
 Question: Mrs. Olga J. asks: "Is it all right to use evaporated milk for puddings, and for creaming vegetables? What I mean, is the food value of canned and fresh milk nearly alike?"
 Answer: It is just as well to use evaporated milk for creaming vegetables; as there is less water in it, it is even richer in food value and a smaller quantity is required.

FISH HALL TRIAL
 Birmingham, Ala.—The trial of Gus Walker, who was charged with burglary, can be held any day but Friday and Saturday. When Walker's case came up for trial it was found that Walker was serving time on the county roads on another charge and the case was to be reset. Saturday is an off day to start a trial, and Jim McK. Long, assistant solicitor, asked that Friday be excluded, because all the witnesses work in the fishhouse, and Friday is their busy day.

Behind the Scenes in WASHINGTON
FEW DRY VICTORIES HAVE MARKED RECENT WET FIGHTS TO CONTROL STATES
 Washington—Nearly half of the 48 states may have voted against prohibition through referenda by the time Congress encounters the wet-dry issue once more at its short session this winter.
 This is by far the biggest year for direct popular votes on the issue, and although only nine or 10 states are now in a position to permit the sale of beer in case Congress legalizes it this winter, wet victories in November are likely to be headed by several state legislatures at their forthcoming sessions.
 A dozen states will vote on their own enforcement acts or on the merits of the eighteenth amendment. Those whose voters will declare in mandatory or advisory referenda for or against the state codes are Arizona, California, Colorado, Louisiana, Michigan, New Jersey, North Dakota, Oregon and Washington.
 The question of repealing the federal amendment is before the voters of Wyoming and Connecticut, while Louisiana voters will decide whether the state should petition Congress for resubmission.
 The wets, riding on the great tide of anti-prohibition sentiment reflected in the major party platforms, are just confident enough to believe that they will win victories in all 13 states.

 Six states already have repealed their own enforcement acts—New York, Nevada, Montana, Wisconsin, Massachusetts and Rhode Island. Maryland never had such an act. Illinois two years ago voted overwhelmingly for repeal of the state act and the amendment, and when the legislature sought to carry out the mandate it was balked by the governor's veto.
 At the time of the Democratic primary this year, Texas voters cast their ballots there to one for resubmission.
 In addition to these 21 states certain others are suspected of being wet because of their choice of wet candidates in statewide elections, including Ohio, North Carolina and Maine. In Louisiana, Pennsylvania and Missouri the legal definition of intoxicating beverages is dependent on the Volstead Act.
 Since 1926, the largest previous referendum year, the trend in such popular votes has been all to the wets, except for a single minor defeat. The general momentum of the wet tide lately has caused all referenda, advisory and otherwise, to be regarded as virtual mandates to state legislators and other officials.
 Some of the most ardent dries in Congress have long since agreed to abide by the result of any referendum in their states.

 Only four of the last 38 statewide referenda have been won by the dries, and none since 1928.
 In 1928 California barely sustained her state enforcement act and Missouri did so by an overwhelming vote. Colorado voters rejected a proposal which would have allowed intoxicating liquors if sold when not in conflict with federal law.
 In the same year Montana repealed her state act, Nevada voted for federal repeal and New York, Illinois and Wisconsin voters declared for modification of the Volstead Act by large majorities.
 The only subsequent dry victory was that in North Dakota, where the state enforcement code was retained by a small margin in 1928. Massachusetts that year voted for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and Montana voters refused to reenact state enforcement. Wisconsin voted for repeal of her state act in 1929.
 Illinois voted overwhelmingly in 1929 for state and federal repeal as well as modification, while Massachusetts and Rhode Island voted for repeal of their state laws. The last referendum was the surprising wet victory in Texas this year.

EDUCATION

A Series of Articles Discussing Modern Methods of Training the Youth of Our Country.

TEACHER TRAINING TODAY

Practically all teachers employed today have received their training in one of the ways described below. Some have been in normal schools, some have graduated from a liberal arts college, others have received their training in special institutes or schools or have no training other than experience, while a very few present day teachers have had a general college education and a provision education in addition. Something will be said relative to each type of training.

Normal Training Normal school training is the lot of most elementary school teachers. Such training is of two, or three, or maybe four years duration. They have attended a state operated institution the expense of which is very small compared with a college education. The entrance requirements to such places are considerably less difficult than to other institutions although recently a number have been able to be more select in their choices. The training received in such schools consists chiefly in methods of teaching various subjects together with a good deal of psychology. Of late several normal schools have been permitted to award a degree of one kind or another and their graduates permitted to teach in the high school. A normal school graduate can be expected to know methodology very thoroughly but the scant general humanistic training received is often missing.

The next type of teacher is the ordinary college graduate. There is, however, a great difference between college preparations, a great difference among the trainings offered. Four outstanding types of colleges offer as many types of graduates. These are: (1) the great state universities and the small state colleges; (2) the large private colleges; (3) the small, financially weak, denominational colleges; (4) the small, well-established, cultural colleges. The differences which may seem important to the student are often taught by state college graduates, Latin and literature often taught by cultural college graduates. The best college training will include a good amount of history, literature, languages, and philosophy with very few money making subjects offered. However, several small colleges permit their students to take so many "bread and butter" courses that the education is little better than that received through a correspondence school. So far as the student is concerned, a college graduate may be criticized for knowing little about the technique and formal method of teaching, and what he is able to contribute to his classes by way of background and diversity of interest may partially balance this admitted lack.

Special Subjects Special subjects, swimming, gymnastics, manual training, and perhaps commercial material, often have little or no training, relying upon experience alone. What training such teachers have often consists of a course of study of from three months to two years at some institute not directly under the control of the state. It not infrequently happens that such teachers have interests and ideas which differ quite widely from other faculty members. There has always been a good deal of disagreement about such teachers; many believe that all teachers should have the same amount and quality of training while others say it would be a waste of time to demand so much of the faculty members. CRAFTSMAN'S MODEL VESSEL ON DISPLAY

Work of Chris Christensen Being Shown At Brunner's Market - Correct In Every Detail. Chris Christensen, of 46 Woodland street, has constructed during his spare time a three-masted bark which now forms the center of an interesting display in the window of Brunner's Market on Oakland street. The boat which is exact in its details and correct in its working parts is a splendid example of Christensen's craftsmanship. The hull and frame of the boat are constructed of copper, the spars and masts of oak. Mr. Christensen labored a little over 700 hours in constructing the little vessel that measures only 45 inches long, 33 inches high and 6 inches across the beam. Each and every part from the pulleys to the anchor was hand made. The only piece purchased was the figure head of the little vessel. It is reported that already Mr. Christensen has received an offer of $500 for the model. Those interested are invited by Mr. Brunner to see the ship at any time while it is on display at Brunner's Market on Oakland street.

NEW FARM CHAMPION

Galva, Ill., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Out of the gumbo mud of an Illinois corn field has emerged a new American corn husking champion. He is Carl Sells, 29 year old, left-hander who boasts no mechanical corn pickers have been used on his father's farm near Onida, Ill. Forty thousand persons watched Sells win from 17 other contestants by husking 38,914 bushels in 90 minutes—a new National record. The previous high of 35.8 was held by Elmer Williams of Henry county, Illinois. Walter Johnson, Audubon county, Ia., with 35.2 was the runner-up, while Clarence Moley of Minnesota, with 35.143 was third. Excitement was so high that two women fainted.

GENEVA QUIET

Geneva, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Geneva Socialists today decided against a general strike, but arranged a day of protest and mourning for Saturday, the aftermath of a riot in which eleven persons were killed on Wednesday. The government, seeking to avoid demonstrations at funerals, announced that the dead would be given burial separately at the expense of the state. The night was quiet with no hint of a renewal of disorders, although snipers and soldiers were on the alert.

CLAIMS VOLCANOES CAUSED BY RADIUM

California Geologist Suggests This Theory After Series of Experiments. Pasadena, Calif., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Eruption of volcanoes and the building of the earth's mountain ranges may be the work of radium, Benjamin Holzman, geologist, suggested here today. He explained his experimental work with radon, radium gas which is heavier than lead, suggested the possibility. The gas is extracted from granite rock with an electrical furnace by Holzman in his experiments as assistant in geology at the Norman Bridge laboratory of physics. Many scientists, he said, have held that radioactive elements are confined to the outer crust of the earth. Holzman, with the extraction of radon from granite, suggests the possibility of radioactivity far below the outer crust. On this assumption, he suggests, scientists may explain the great temperatures in the interior of the earth, causing volcanoes and geologic upheavals which build granite mountain ranges.

WORLD MELT GRANITE

"A gram of radium emits 130 calories of heat per hour, a million calories a year," he said. "Calculations would indicate that one thousandth of a millionth of a gram of radium emits sufficient heat in a 100,000 years to melt granite to 1,000 degrees centigrade, if no loss were figured for conduction. "If it were calculated that the amount of radioactive elements existing in the sea, or outer layer of the earth, does not decrease with depth, it is shown that the heat generated by this radioactivity would be sufficient to melt the materials in the interior of the earth." In heating granite to 1,800 degrees centigrade in an electric furnace, and passing the gases through an iron trap, the radon gas is collected measurably in an electro-scope.

JOB OF FIREMAN AT NEW P. O. OPEN

Examination For Position To Be Conducted By Civil Service Board—Pays $1260 Yearly. The United States Civil Service Commission announces an open competitive examination for fireman (steam) to fill one vacancy in the position of fireman-laborer, Custodian Service, New Post Office Building, Manchester, Connecticut, at $1260 per annum. Applicants must have had at least six months of paid experience in firing steam boilers. Experience in firing small home heating plants is not acceptable under this requirement.

DEATHS LAST NIGHT

New York—Alexander Clark, 68, an actor for more than 40 years who appeared on many important bills in the early 1900's. Chicago—Capt. Frank M. Course, 63, president of the Erie Canal Company and a former officer in the 14th Field Artillery of the famous Rainbow Division. Minneapolis—Mrs. Louise Preese, 79, educator, whose method of physical training has been adopted by schools throughout the United States. Santa Barbara, Cal.—H. H. Spalding former New York official of the Aluminum Corporation of America. New York—Robert Foreman 76, one of the founders of Scott, Foresman and Company, Chicago publishers.

GANGSTERS CONVICTED

St. Paul, Nov. 11.—(AP)—A jury in District Court last night convicted Joseph Schaefer and George Young of a charge of first degree murder for the death of Abe Loeb, killed in a gangster quarrel here July 29. Judge C. R. McNally sentenced each to life imprisonment at hard labor in the state penitentiary. Both Young and Schaefer are wanted at Elizabeth, N. J., for the slaying of a prohibition agent. Loeb was said by New York police to have been known as Abe Wagner, once sought in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping case.

POLITICS NOW CENTERS ON POSTMASTERSHIP

Point Out That George E. Dickinson Didn't Get Job As a Political Plumber. Attention is centered, since the election of Franklin Roosevelt, upon the local political plumb, the postmastership. Many are asking, who will get this position? It was announced Thursday that the present postmaster, George E. Dickinson did not receive the job as a political plumb, but instead was advanced from the position of a postal worker to that of postmaster and assistant postmaster. He was first appointed by President Coolidge at the close of 1924, which was at the close of the first Republican administration. Mr. Dickinson is now completing his second term, having been appointed to it in 1928 by President Coolidge. There is still an appointment to be made by Mr. Hoover's term, and so it is expected that Mr. Dickinson will be renamed by President Hoover when the present term expires December 8.

HONOR ROLL BLOWN DOWN

During the wind storm on Wednesday night the honor roll board on Park Place Memorial Building was blown over, and badly damaged. This board has not been in the best of condition for some months past, and the rear which faced several of the offices in the Memorial building was a most unattractive sight. It has been suggested that this board be taken away, and the names be used in the form of a pamphlet form, until a suitable memorial can be erected. There is already $6,000 available for this purpose, and the boys are entitled to something better than the board in the center which is becoming weather worn.

WALTER KREYSIG KNOWN HERE

Walter Kreysig, 22, of Melrose, who was killed in an automobile accident in East Hartford on Tuesday morning was well known in this city, where he frequently visited his sister, Mrs. Thomas Blake of Orchard street. He was a regular attendant at the fights here. He leaves his father, Max Kreysig, four brothers, Oscar and Frank Kreysig of Providence, R. I.; Emil Kreysig of East Hartford and Fred Kreysig of Melrose and four sisters, Mrs. Elsie Frost of Stillwater, Mass.; Mrs. Thomas Blake of Rockville, Mrs. Charles Schlichting of Broad Brook and Miss Estelle Kreysig of Melrose. The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late home in Melrose, Rev. C. H. Peck, pastor of the Broad Brook Congregational church will officiate. Burial will be in the Melrose cemetery.

HALF MILLION BLAZE

Peabody, Mass., Nov. 11.—(AP)—The Adams-Limon tannery was destroyed last night by a fire of undetermined origin which threatened for a time to wipe out the entire industrial section of the city. A watchman discovered the blaze that wiped out the four-story wooden structure and warned ten employees in the building. Fire officials estimated the damage at $500,000 and 600 men were at least temporarily thrown out of work by the burning of the structure. Today only part of the walls were left standing.

STATE TAXES DUE

Hartford, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The state tax of $1,260,000 and the military tax of $515,863.30 was due and payable from the 169 towns of the state yesterday. The military tax is based upon the amount approved by the General Assembly for the support and maintenance and expense of the organized militia, National Guard and naval militia. Hartford pays the largest tax with New Haven second and Bridgeport third. The total for Hartford for both taxes is $268,068.97 and New Haven $187,114.25.

SMALL CROWDS ATTEND FIRST HOCKEY GAMES

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The king of winter sports, hockey, has raised the annual late autumn challenge to the supremacy of football, but from the indications of the opening games of the National Hockey League season last night, it appears hockey must wait awhile before it wins the full favor of the crowds. Three games which started the season last night drew crowds of only ordinary week day proportions.

Week-end MURDER

GABRIELLE E. FORBUSH

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The story opens with a prologue in which a murder is committed by a homicidal maniac. Later boards a train for Long Island, thinking of the pleasant week-end he is to have there. The name of the murderer is not disclosed.

The scene changes to the Long Island home of LINDA and TOM AVERILL, married three years and much in love. Linda announces that instead of three guests over the week-end they are to have five. The guests will be COUSIN AMOS PEABODY, elderly, distant relative of Linda's who was in New York on business and invited himself to visit the Averills; CAPTAIN DE VOS, handsome Belgian representing a European perfume manufacturer with whom Averill hopes to do business; MR. STALLANDER, middle-western manager of the firm Averill works for; MARVIN TRATT, former suitor seen for several years, and LANA SHAUGHNESSY, Irish writer on a lecture tour.

Cousin Amos arrives first. Linda shows him to his room and then goes to meet the other guests.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Linda said, "There's a—sort of thunder-stormy feeling in the air."

CHAPTER III

"But I don't know," Linda confessed later, in the brief interlude between a somewhat stiff and formal tea and a dinner of fairly large proportions. "I certainly don't know why, but I feel very queer about this week-end."

"Why? Everything seems going fine?"

"Engaged in some baffling quest which involved much rooting in neat wardrobe drawers, Averill dismissed her perfunctorily with many-going masculine abstraction. "You can't expect all these strange qualities to loosen up and be blood brothers at first meeting. Give 'em time!"

"I'm not exactly that," Linda said in the minimum of chifon and lace beneath a negligee that was itself a mere breath of turquoise air. Linda puffed from the window seat her husband's heated efforts to collect his evening regalia. "There's a sort of thunder-stormy feeling in the air."

Even the layer of chifon seemed to add to the heat and suddenly Linda was not only hot but horribly distressed; so heavily conscious of the weight of air upon her and of some distant hovering as if unheard of thunder that she felt silent and her fingers moved mechanically.

"I wish this week-end were over!" she said to herself, and then wondered if she had said it aloud. A glance at Tom reassured her. The old darling was giving that irrepresible look at the exact center of the back of his head a final stiff brushing down and whistling soundlessly in serene concentration.

"I'm ready, angel, and I'm starting," she said. "I want to slip down the back stairs into the kitchen a moment. Kiss me, Tom!"

He came back from his struggle to peek at her cheek with abstracted affection. "All right, Binks?"

"Fine!" she answered and managed to put into her words a ring of conviction. But it did not dispel the lurking uneasiness within her. How explosive the elements she had prophetic soul had lamentably failed to inform her.

Going down the front stairs only a moment later, Tom was first to meet the long-unseen former suitor, meeting attentively over the lower shelf of a bookcase in the big central room.

"You must be Mr. Pratt!"

A startled face, with pronouncedly undershot jaw below an iron-gray pompadour, turned quickly at the words and the man seemed for a second to recoil against the shelves of books, one hand behind him. Inwardly Tom was thinking, "And you must be a darned quick mover—last to come and first down-stairs!" He finished the sentence audibly with the warm smile which was among his best assets.

Recovering from his momentary surprise, the other gripped his arm so firmly that for all his own little Averill almost showed his discomfort.

"And you're Tom Averill?" A voice deep and resonant, the voice of an accomplished public speaker and a smile which, though humorous, relieved and lightened a face too heavy in repose.

The greeting over, the two men stood a moment awkwardly, then each broke the short silence with hasty speech.

"Your wife's all right—?"

"Linda's coming right down."

They laughed with a little constraint and this time Averill took the lead more naturally.

"Sit down, won't you, and have a cigarette."

The other walked over to the long windows.

"Thanks—I don't smoke anything but a pipe—and that outdoor. But I say, there's a fat white dog out here—"

He gestured toward the screened casement. "Seems to want to come in. I don't know whether you permitted dogs in the house."

"That's Bunty. Sure, let her in please. She has the run of this house, all right."

None too rapidly, Marvin Pratt unfastened the long screen door and pushed it slightly ajar. Instantly there was a scuffle of paws and a black, rather porcine nose appeared urgently in the crack. With another scramble and push the door was opened wide enough to admit the white, puffing little dog, who came up to Averill wagging apologetically, though with a sharp sideways glance at the stranger standing by the screen door.

As Averill patted Bunty, he saw Pratt fidgeting the door still wider and Cousin Amos came in from the terrace.

"Ah, Thomas—Mr. Pratt!" Acknowledging the introduction. "Thomas, I am sorry not to have seen you sooner. I have been down-stairs for some time—some little time. I thought it would be pleasant to stroll a while down towards the water but this—this small but determined animal thought otherwise. I have been occupying that marble bench halfway down the path for some moments—in considerable discomfort—considerable," exclaimed Cousin Amos warning at the thought. But as his voice rose, Bunty, who had kept her ear cocked in his direction, advanced stiff-legged toward him, the ghost of a growl in her aged throat. Her manner indicated that for all she was an old lady, she was still guardian of the house.

"Here, old dog! Stop that!" Tom Averill could not completely hide his amusement. "Sorry, Cousin Amos. The dog's been trained to watch strangers. We leave her with Bunty a lot. She wasn't properly introduced and I'm afraid she's a little crazy."

Cousin Amos sat down in a well-cushioned chair.

"You should reprimand her," he observed. "Dogs know the difference between—ah—wandering scraps of rufians and—gentlemen and ladies. A sound reprimand should teach her to—"

"She shall be reprimanded—tomorrow," promised Averill. And then, reproaching that the little dog, unusually suspicious, was now sniffing about the trouser-cuffs of the guest's masculine attire. "All right, Bunty! Another visitor and no enemy!"

With a pronounced sniff, Bunty ignored Pratt's extended hand and, trotting over to the casement window, dropped heavily against the screen.

"She isn't even chummy," apologized Averill, noticing the sudden tension of Pratt's pugnaeous jaw. Evidently he was one of those men who pride themselves on being liked by animals and therefore sensitive to the dog's snuff. "But we encourage it. There've been burglars—daytime ones, too—operating around here this summer. And then, too, there's the kid."

"Your small son is in bed, I take it?" inquired Cousin Amos blandly, recovering now that attention was shifted from his own discomfiture.

"I've heard no childish voice this evening. I trust he is well?"

"Oh, Bingo's always flourishing, except his father carelessly."

"Bingo?"

Pratt's deep voice repeated the absurd syllable.

"Thomas, Junior—not very original, but the best we could think of. Somehow he got the nickname and it seems to stick. He's down at my mother's with his nurse over the week-end. Nanna'll bring him up each day. You'll probably see all you want of him tomorrow, Cousin Amos."

And he'll want to see Cousin Amos! Linda appeared, smiling, amazingly young and cool and girlish in the fluttering green blue chifon which brought out so flatteringly by the creamy tan of her skin and the red lights in her close-cropped wavy hair. "Why, hello, Marvin! I didn't see you by the door there. It is nice you could come!"

Tom Averill watched their meeting rather closely—not that this old-neighbor-and-school-friend matter worried him. But the chap had that queer air of holding off—he needn't make it too plain that Linda was the only one he cared about.

But if he expected a sudden thaw, Averill did not perceive it. Pratt stiffly murmured something conventional as he took Linda's friendly little hand. She did not seem at all dashed. She'd often said, Tom remembered, that Marvin was "a per-feet stick" until you hit something he was interested in. Well—Tom hoped fervently that would happen. The fellow'd be a light on any party if he kept up that front.

Under Linda's laughing guidance, the little group drifted into the large living room. Stallander, correctly formal in evening clothes of slightly out-of-date cut, came down-stairs rather pompously behind the quick-moving, graceful Belgian. Again, as she welcomed them, Linda responded instinctively to the flashing smile, the courteous friendliness of the European. He had the gift of seeming fascinated by whom ever he talked to, and that in turn exerted its own fascination. As the spell was turned upon the others Linda hurried to the door where a burst of laughter and talk, the slamming of the screen and noise of feet announced the arrival in a single car, of the "unattached" girl she had assembled for her unknown guests. With them, apparently un-abashed by the feminine preponderance, came the last house guest, or rather the garage guest, Lan Shaughnessy, whom several of them recognized and hailed as the star of the afternoon meeting.

Again a round of introductions—the obvious time-killing chatter of that deadly five minutes before dinner, when the most glittering epigrams fall slightly flat—and then the hired butler-footman-kitchen-standby who helped all the neighborhood on such occasions came with the welcome announcement that dinner was served.

U. S. HOSPITALS REPORT OF RADIUM USED IN CANCER TREATMENT

Twice Present Quantity Is Needed

By DR. MORRIS FISHERBIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Since the time when Monsieur and Madame Curie found that a substance which could be taken from uranium minerals possessed a high degree of radio activity, and thereafter isolated this substance which is now known as radium, both the scientific world and the public have been extremely interested in the nature of this substance and in its possibilities for use in the treatment of disease.

Radium-containing ores, as pointed out by Dr. R. S. Sayers, chief surgeon of the United States Bureau of Mines, are now found in 10 different countries. Because the amount of radium in the whole world is not unique, there are many people today who will read this and declare it to be their own experience. But perhaps there is something they do not know. That this experience with competitive games has been invaluable in a thousand ways to them all through life.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
BY NEA SERVICE INC.

When we were little our parents did not regard playing cards as an invention of the devil. Many of our neighbors thought so and shook their heads when they came to call and found my father, mother, sister and myself playing an innocent game of "pe-dro" or "stuck-up."

As we grew older the rudiments of what were taught us.

Our minds were amazingly adept at thinking out plays and we gloated as only children can when we outsmarted our elders and took tricks by our own generalship and wit.

After I was married, but still quite young, I learned to play chess with my husband. And of course bridge, although bridge was not the national pastime that it is today. We bought "Ezra" and "The Book of the Game" and "The Game of the Game" and all their kind are dearly beloved by children.

But they should not be allowed to show out the other games that sharpen wit and develop initiative and memory.

From a week ago a woman of large affairs, almost the best person I know, who directs a large business and a complicated household as well, replied when I asked her how she did it: "Because I learned how to play chess, and to win, when I was twelve years old."

MARVELOUS MANHATTAN

WILLIAM GAINTS

New York.—How suspicious of the neighborly spirit can work to one's embarrassment in New York is exemplified again in this story trickling out of an apartment building in the East Sixties.

A young man who arrived here from Detroit in the middle of October was invited to occupy the apartment of his only friend in town, who would be away. He moved in alone, and waited for a promised job to open up.

After the first few days of the excitement of the city, he began to find his days and evenings heavy on his hands. He wanted companionship, and had no very definite idea as to how to find it.

There in the midst of a building full of people he wondered why he shouldn't just try to make the acquaintance of some of his neighbors—if only he knew how to go about it. One day he spoke to the superintendent—asked him a few questions about some of the people on his floor. The superintendent was sort of snifty; didn't give him much information.

At last he decided on a rather daring move. He singled out a couple and, knocking at their apartment one night, asked them if they wouldn't join him for a bit of refreshment and listen in on a political talk on the roof of our country, consented without enthusiasm. But later they loosened up and called in another couple.

In turn, the couples asked him to their apartments.

Neighborhood Chilled

It was just about a week after his first party that the young man came in for the check of his life. A diamond ring was missed from the apartment of his new friends' friends.

Detectives called upon him. They questioned him tactfully about his few visits to the apartment, but it was evident to him that he was under suspicion. They inquired, of hand, as to his means of support; how he happened to be using the apartment; where he was during the day when the loss of the ring was discovered. The last straw was when one of them asked him: "Well, you went to the superintendent to find out about these people, didn't you? Then you tried to get in with them, didn't you?"

As soon as the detective laid him the craftfallen fellow wrote to his friends that he was moving out—going to a cheap lodging place. He described the incident and said he didn't want to see any of his new friends again. Then he slunk away from the place.

The next day the owner of the diamond ring found it behind a medicine bottle in her bathroom cabinet. She had just forgotten it.

The little Girl who wouldn't EAT

When a youngster has no appetite, it's probably due to stasis. A little syrup of figs will soon correct this condition—then watch the child eat.

Nature knows best! Never coax a child to eat! Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite—get rid of stasis. Children who don't eat are sluggish. Not to correct this is inexcusable. It is so easy to do, if you will only use the California treatment. Read what it is doing for listless children in every part of the country!

When appetite fails, tongue is coated white, eyes are a bilious yellow, don't give small children any constipating cathartic that drains the system and weakens twenty feet of tender bowels! California syrup of figs is the only "medicine" they need!

Sluggishness ended in 2 Weeks!

That girl or boy with a furry tongue and a bad breath should not be doctored with salts! California syrup of figs will gently stimulate the colon muscles—and the child you used to coax to eat will fairly devour his food, digest it, gain weight.

Try the California treatment! Begin tonight, with enough of the pure syrup of figs to cleanse the colon thoroughly. Give less tomorrow, then every other day, or twice a week until the child's appetite, digestion, weight, complexion, tell you the stasis is gone.

Be sure to get the real California syrup of figs. Any druggist has it, all bottled, with directions. It's a natural, vegetable laxative. Just as good for babies of two years as boys of ten. They all love its taste!

NOTICE TO MOTHERS

There are imitations of California Syrup of Figs and those who would sell you some substitute even when a child's health is concerned. Don't give a child a medicine that is not plainly labeled CALIFORNIA.

LINEUPS ARE ANNOUNCED FOR TOWN TITLE SERIES

Red Men Have More Experienced and Heavier Team, But Eagles Possess Speed; Coaches Harrison and Moske To Play.

Walter Harrison, coach of the Red Men A. C., and Brunig Moske, coach of the Eagles, today announced their starting lineups for the opening game of the town title series at Mt. Nebo Sunday afternoon.

The Red Men's lineup will consist of Squatrito and Salmonds, ends; Harrison and Spencer, tackles; McLaughlin and Purdy, guards; Fenore, center; Groman, quarterback; Mantell and Farr, halfbacks; and Brown, fullback. The entire team, with the exception of McLaughlin and Purdy have had experience in the town series before, and this should prove an advantage to the Red Men.

The Eagles lineup will consist of McCarthy and Vince, ends; Tuminski and Kovis, rt. Krapatis and J. Mitchell, guards; Olcavage, center; Balon, quarterback; Moske and Copeland, halfbacks; and Slaga, fullback. Only three members of the team have had previous experience, McCarthy, Tuminski and Moske playing with the Majors last year.

Both starting lineups include the two coaches, Harrison at tackle for the Red Men and Moske at halfback for the Eagles. The north ends will undoubtedly be outwitted by the Indians, but this handicap will be neutralized, it is expected, by the greater speed of the lighter eleven.

It was also announced today that Al Hubbard of Hartford will umpire. Earl Wright has been named to referee. The head linesman and the field judge have not been chosen as yet.

TO PLAY FOR JUNIOR GRID CHAMPIONSHIP

Cleary's and Orioles in Preliminary At Mt. Nebo Sunday At 1 P. M.

Cleary's Lunch and the Orioles will play the preliminary to the Red Men-Eagles game. This preliminary will also be for a title, the town junior championship. The game will start at one o'clock sharp so that the big game will start on time. The Orioles' record for the season is five victories and no defeats and Cleary's Lunch is two victories and two defeats. The starting lineups:

HARD TASK-FACES GRID EXPERTS IN GAMES TOMORROW

Plenty of Naturals On Card That May Go One Way Or the Other; Here's What "Dope" Indicates.

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Prognosticators will need to ponder well this week's slate of eastern football contests if they wish to avoid embarrassment. There are plenty of "naturals" on the card which seem just as likely to go one way as the other, depending upon which direction the "breaks" go. Nevertheless here's what the "dope" indicates in the leading games:

Brown-Columbia—Two well matched teams which have marched along undefeated and untied so far. Brown may start a slight favorite.

Syracuse-Colgate—Syracuse is definitely on the upgrade but the Orange does not seem to have much chance against the "Red Raiders" undefeated, untied and unscathed on Cornell-Dartmouth—These rivals have put on many a thrilling, high-scoring battle and their meeting Saturday looks like a toss-up.

Princeton-Yale—Only the shortest of Princeton memories fails to recall last year's 31-14 rout at Yale's hands. Despite Yale's improvement, as manifest in the Dartmouth game, the Tigers look like winners.

Harvard-Holy Cross—The suspension of Captain McEwan, head coach, will do Holy Cross no good but the Crusaders still look like a better team than anything Harvard has put on the gridiron in the last three weeks.

Pitt-Nebraska—The Cornhuskers are hoping to avenge the beating they took from Pitt last year but it doesn't look like much more than a hope.

Ohio State-Penn—On the face of it, this looks like one of the evenest games on the list, with the edge, if any, belonging to Ohio State.

Army-North Dakota State—The midwesterners are a strong small college eleven but they do not rate within a couple of country miles of Army's class.

Navy-Maryland—Navy is coming along slowly but surely and this may be the spot for the Tars first major victory.

Temple-Penn State—After two successive ties, Temple's unbeaten team looks for a victory here.

Villa Nova-Detroit—Two well matched teams with Villa Nova's greater punch perhaps the decisive factor.

Fordham-N. Y. U.—Fordham's reorganized outfit looks better than N. Y. U. whose line play has been weak all season.

WEST SIDES PRACTICE

The West Sides football team will practice tonight at the West Side Oval at 7 o'clock sharp.

BERRY, THE BEAUTY, IS FEARED AS THE ABINGDON ASSASSIN

The Girls Call Him "Handsome," But He's a Raging Terror On the Gridiron In Big Ten.

By JIMMY DONAHUE NEA Service Sports Writer

Whoever heard of a "lovely" football player?

The answer is at the University of Illinois in the person of Captain Gilbert I. Berry, the Abingdon, Ill., Assassin.

Berry, a raging terror on the gridiron, has to bear the disgrace of what the girls call "classic features." He dashes up and down the gridiron all afternoon, and in the evening has to bear himself referred to as "handsome."

He runs the ends, he crashes off tackle, he hurls himself into an crushing pile of interference all afternoon—and then on Saturday night must take the rap of being beautiful.

The story of Gil Berry is marked by tragedy in the same measure that the story of Red Grange was full of financial success. He joined the Illinois ranks in 1928. As a member of the freshman squad, he was hailed as "another Red Grange." Many promising youngsters were being hailed as Red Granges in that year, but they didn't come through.

Gil reached the Urbana institution at the wrong time. Illinois had won the Big Ten championship in 1927 and 1928 and was among the leaders in Berry's freshman year.

In 1930 the depression among football players started to set in at Illinois. Coach Bob Zupple found himself searching for material. Berry seemed to be the only ball carrier he had.

For two years the condition continued. Zupple tried to find some sort of help for Berry in his voyages. But there was always something the matter. The line was weak. The opposing secondary was too strong. There were no blockers like McMillan who had mowed down bodies in the path of Grange.

Berry was full of the old fight. In the Michigan game of 1931 he insisted on playing with a wrenched back. And in that game, though the Illini were snowed under by a score of 35 to 0, Berry started at punting position, running, and kicking. It hadn't been for his deadly tackling, the score might have reached clearing house figures.

This year, it's a little different at Illinois. The line is a bit stronger and Zupple has developed some backs who know about blocking. In the recent Wisconsin game, which Illinois lost, 20 to 13, the handsome griddler grabbed the spotlight.

He took the opening kickoff on his own 11-yard line and scampered through the whole Badger team for 87 yards before going out of bounds on the two-yard line.

His next run came after receiving a punt. He ran to the Wisconsin 30-yard line. On the next play he passed to Froehner, who beat it across the goal.

Thus he accounted for the team's two touchdowns. Who could ask for anything more "lovely" from one man?

The girls who look at the campus hero with longing eyes had better be advised. Gil is married. His wife has voted one of the six most popular and beautiful girls on the Illinois campus.

All of this "beautiful" business, of course is not of Berry's doing. "It means little to me," he says, "and should mean nothing to anyone else. Being accepted as handsome is a detriment rather than a benefit, especially to me, because I am a football player."

And he is a football player!

Take a look at Coach Spaulding's assets so far this season. In the first place his team holds membership in that select and steadily diminishing coterie of undefeated and untied football teams in these United States.

In the second place the Bruins are sharing a tie with their cross-town neighbors, the Trojans of the University of Southern California, in the Pacific Coast Conference title race, with a good chance to go through the balance of the season undefeated.

For six seasons after it was founded here in 1919 as a branch of the University of California, the university never won a football game from any sort of competition. The school was in the small Southern California Conference then, and did not play the coast's "big three."

Then, Coach Spaulding, former Minnesota mentor, came west in 1925 and guided the Bruins from the cellar to the top of the Southern California Conference. His first team was so good that a meeting with Stanford was arranged. But the Bruins were swamped, 23-0.

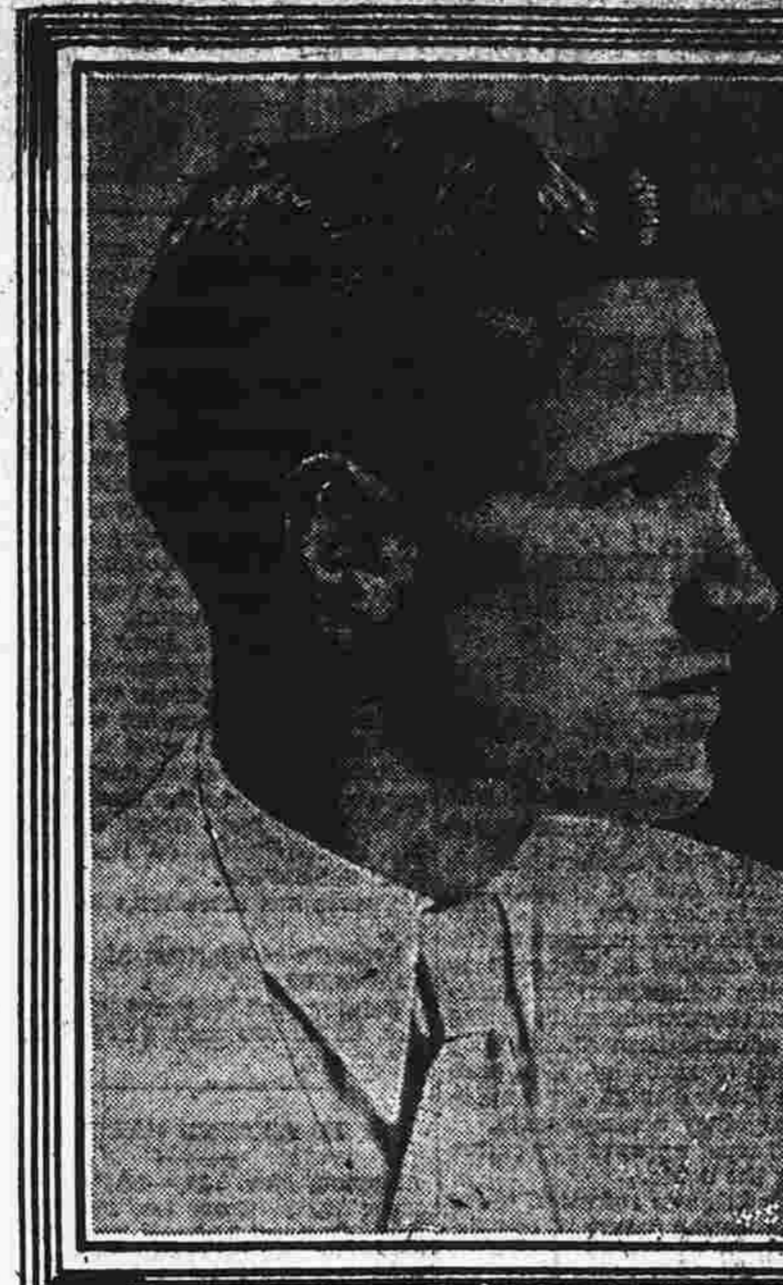

Between 1925 and 1928 Bruin teams were highly successful in the small league. At the same time, the institution had a phenomenal development. Its enrollment reached 6,000 and new buildings were erected on a 284-acre campus in the Westwood Hills several miles from the city.

Finally, in 1928, the University of California at Los Angeles was admitted to the Pacific Coast Football Conference.

The first four seasons were disastrous. The Bruins were at the bottom of the percentage column each year. During the fourth season, 1931, however, U. C. L. A. scored a great 12-0 upset over St. Mary's College. In doing so the Bruins gave the national title to their cross-town rivals, the Trojans. St. Mary's had previously defeated the Trojans, who, in turn, beat Notre Dame.

So far this year, the Bruins have won five games. In addition to defeating Stanford, the Bruins took into camp the California Aggies, Idaho, Oregon and Caltech. The victory over Oregon came on that

NEW STAR SHINES IN PACIFIC COAST GRID CONFERENCE

University of California At Los Angeles Has Won Five Games This Year; Its Record.

By ERSKINE JOHNSON NEA Service Writer

Los Angeles, Nov. 11.—The year is 1925. University of California at Los Angeles and Stanford University football teams clash on the gridiron. Pop Warner's Indians run wild. The score: Stanford University, 22; University of California at Los Angeles, 0.

Time marches on. The year is 1932. Indian again faces Bruin. Pop Warner's charges are out to regain prestige lost at the hands of Howard Jones' Trojans. The final gun barks. The score: University of California at Los Angeles, 13; Stanford University, 6.

That, in a nutshell, tells the sensational story of the rise in Bruin football since the year which reads like a Horatio Alger story and contains chapters which rival anything that Frank Merriwell ever did. And it tells the story, also, of Coach William H. "Bill" Spaulding.

Time was when Bruin football teams were placed on schedules for the same season lettuce is placed on chicken sandwiches. But it's a different story now. After a long struggle, the Bruin has arrived, and quite definitely is entitled to big league competition.

Take a look at Coach Spaulding's assets so far this season. In the first place his team holds membership in that select and steadily diminishing coterie of undefeated and untied football teams in these United States.

RED SOX MANAGER IN TRADING MOOD

Quinn of Boston Says He Has Plenty of Material To Exchange.

Boston, Nov. 11.—(AP)—President Bob Quinn of the Boston Red Sox is in a red-hot trading mood but he fears the baseball market is going to continue sluggish until the major league meetings next month.

"We have plenty of material for trading," he said today, "and I would not hesitate to exchange one good player for two fair ones, if I thought their respective values were right. I am in a position where I am willing and even eager to talk trade."

Quinn predicted that most of the American League trading would be with second-string men for, he pointed out, few times in that circuit had the background or material to be come involved in important deals.

The boss of the last place Red Sox is more than proud of his bartering last season, especially the deal that brought Dale Alexander and Roy Johnson from Detroit to Boston.

Travels To Thread City Tomorrow Afternoon; Victory Will Close Year With Four Wins, Four Defeats.

Manchester High's football team journeys to Willimantic tomorrow afternoon for the final game of the season against Windham High school. The Red and White will be at full strength and hopes to turn in a victory that will close the 1932 record with four wins and four defeats.

Little is known as to the strength of the Willimantic eleven but Coach Tom Kelley's team expects a hard battle, as this game is always bitterly contested and an intense rivalry has been developed in past years. Last year Manchester won by the score of 6 to 0. In 1930, Windham edged out the locals, 21 to 19 and the year before Manchester won easily, 25 to 12.

Coach Kelley put his squad through a scrimmage Wednesday but because of rain a blackboard session was held yesterday. Several players who have been on the injured list will return to the fray for the last game and if the team clicks as well as it did against Bulkeley High, the outcome should not be in doubt.

LAUNCH CAMPAIGN OF RED CROSS HERE

House-to-House Canvass Gets Underway; Quota For Town This Year $1,800.

An enthusiastic meeting of volunteer workers at the Center Congregational church last night, launched the local Red Cross Roll Call for a quota of $1,800. Miss Marjorie Cheney, chairman of the campaign, outlined the details of the house-to-house canvass, and Dr. D. C. Y. Moore, president of Manchester Chapter, gave a brief talk on the activities of the Red Cross, both locally and nationally.

The organization consists of nearly 175 workers, divided into four divisions, consisting of four teams of up to ten and more persons. Each division is headed by a leader, assisted by four team captains. The various districts into which the town has been divided were allotted to the teams and workers were urged to begin canvassing at once, in order to raise the quota.

The first report will be made Monday, between 12 o'clock and 3 o'clock, to W. W. Harris at the Manchester Trust Company. The next report will be made between the same hours on Thursday. The drive will close Thanksgiving Day. Preliminary steps of organization were completed at the Chamber of Commerce office, with the assistance of the Chamber staff, after which the headquarters were transferred to the bank.

CHAIN STORE IS SUED BY FORMER MANAGERS

Hartford, Nov. 11.—(AP)—In what is expected to be the first of a series of actions brought against the A. H. Phillips Company by former managers of local stores operated by this concern, a jury in City Court last evening returned a verdict for $200 in favor of John Schaub. The case had been on trial for two days before Judge Herbert A. Ross and Schaub had alleged that he had been discharged soon after he was named manager of a Phillips store and made to forfeit the $200 cash bond that he had furnished when appointed to the management.

According to testimony in the case, Mr. Schaub and other local Phillips store managers have been made to furnish a $200 cash bond when named as managers, and then, upon the allegation that there exists a shortage in the stock of goods at the store, they have been discharged and forced to forfeit the $200 cash to make good the alleged shortage.

Abraham A. M. Schweitzer and Moses Berman represented Mr. Schaub and W. Arthur Countryman, Jr., represented the Phillips company. It is understood that another action brought by a former Phillips store manager is pending in Common Pleas Court and that several other claims are in the hands of attorneys.

SEA CAPTAIN DIES

Bridgeport, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Captain Elmore N. TO DELAY PARLEY ON EUROPE'S DEBT

No Answer To Be Made To Notes Until President Hoover Returns.

Washington, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Overtures from Great Britain and France for reconsideration of war debts seem likely to go unanswered until the return of President Hoover to Washington and a conference with leaders in Congress.

President Hoover's message to the incoming session is expected to set forth the administration's attitude toward the war obligations. The amount of more than $123,000,000 which should be made by European powers on December 15 are important to budgetary arrangements.

Congress must approve any action concerning the debts.

Secretary Stimson refrained today from divulging the nature of conversations he had yesterday with Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, and Paul Claudel, the French ambassador, and will not discuss the British note on debts. State Department officials declined to say whether a note has been received from France.

However, dispatches from Great Britain and France and statements of European leaders make it clear there is a concerted drive on by the debtor powers to effect an extension of the one year moratorium which ended June 30, pending a revision of the debt settlements.

War debt discussion ceased until

GUN VICTIM DIES

Seymour, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Jack B. Baylis, well known local young man who was recently wounded by the accidental discharge of a revolver, died at the Griffin hospital in Derby this morning.

Baylis, who was 23 years old, was shot in the chest while playing pool at the Griffin hospital in Derby this morning. The bullet, which lodged near the spine, could not be removed and complications followed as a result of the wound. Mr. Baylis, a native of England, was a son of Walter Baylis, of 63 Cedar street, Seymour.

TO ATTEND PARLEY

Boston, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Governor W. L. Cross has notified the New England Council he will attend the eighth New England conference to be held here Thursday and Friday.

In his statement made public today, he said "I look forward especially to meeting there the governors of the other New England states and exchanging views with them on the major problems we have in common at this time."

Governors will address the opening general session Thursday afternoon.

The anthracite coal mine at Summit Hill, Pa., has been burning since 1860.

HARTFORD ASSOCIATES SHOWER LOCAL GIRL

Miss Alice Steinberg of Benton Street Given Party in Honor of Coming Marriage.

Miss Alice Steinberg of Benton street was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower given yesterday by Mrs. Florence Lundin and Miss Kathlee McCaw, both of Hartford. The party was held in the girls' clubroom of the "Two Hartfords" insurance companies. Thirty-two of Miss Steinberg's office associates attended and presented the bride-to-be with a choice selection of beautiful gifts. After Miss Steinberg had unwrapped, and all had admired the gifts, a full course chicken dinner was served.

Miss Steinberg is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest F. Steinberg. Her marriage to Otto J. Gaudian, son of the late Rev. and Mrs. Martin W. Gaudian of New Britain will take place Thanksgiving Day.

THEATERS

AT PARSONS'S, HARTFORD "The Green Pastures"

"The Green Pastures," Pulitzer prize play, and the most widely discussed stage offering of our times, will have its first Hartford performance at Parsons' Theatre on Monday evening, November 21. Drama and musical enthusiasts have awaited with patience the local advent of this splendid play. Its world premiere occurred at the Mansfield Theater, New York, on February 28, 1930, and 640 consecutive performances were registered before it departed Broadway for Chicago. At the Illinois Theater in the latter city, the play achieved a run of 180 performances, a brave record for these days of meagre support for the theater. The Boston engagement, which opened in September, marked the start of the third season for "The Green Pastures," and still such sizeable municipalities as Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Cleveland, Baltimore and Washington have not witnessed the work. Five full years will be required, according to the sanguine estimates of Rowland Stebbins, its owner, for the Marc Connelly fable to fulfill its entire nationwide bookings. And by that time (1935) it is contemplated to play a return engagement in New York.

In eighteen scenes "The Green Pastures" depicts the rise and fall of mankind as viewed by the simple plantation dandy of the Old South. Marc Connelly, the author, found the basis for his play in Roark Bradford's collection of Negro stories, "O' Man Adam and His Chillun," and the piece is enacted by a Negro cast of more than a hundred, which includes Hall Johnson's "Heavenly Choir," the latter rendering spirituals which are interwoven with the play's dramatic action.

The outstanding figure in the big cast is Richard B. Harrison, who plays "the Lawd," and is revered as a sort of deity by the other members of the company. He was a professional play reader before he undertook this role, a Shakespearean scholar, who made his home in Southern California and was a familiar figure in club, church and Chautauque entertainments and taught at various Negro educational institutions in the Southern states. Seventy years of age, Mr. Harrison will celebrate his 1117th performance in "The Green Pastures" when the play has its Hartford premiere on November 21. Other prominent players in the huge cast are Salem Tutt Whitney, Daniel L. Haynes, Alonzo Fenderson, Susie Sutton and Doe Doe Green, the latter portraying the role of "Gabriel," vacated through the death last February of Samuel Davis. Mr. Green is the sole member of the cast who was not in the play when it opened in February 1930. There will be matinees Thursday and Saturday.

IMPRESSIVE RITES FOR MRS. STALIN

Infantry and Cavalry Guard
Whole Length of Procession in Moscow.

Moscow, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Madame Joseph Stalin, always inconspicuous while she lived, was buried today with the most impressive funeral ceremonies since the death of Lenin.

The red coffin was taken from its place of state on Red Square through the city to the ancient Novodevichi Monastery while most of Moscow crowded the sidewalks.

Stalin himself, his face drawn and careworn, marched behind it scolding the big automobile which had been brought for him. At his side trudged his two young children, a boy and a girl, and behind them were all the high ranking officials of the government and the Communist Party.

Infantry and cavalry guarded the whole length of the funeral route, and the several thousand comrades who marched four abreast in the cortege, required half an hour to pass.

Reporters Barred
Newspapermen were barred from a two-hour ceremony in Red Square after which the funeral procession moved slowly down one of the principal streets which had been cleared of all traffic and pedestrians. The crowds broke through the police lines at one point but they were quickly herded back.

NEGRO PORTER SAVES $150,000 IN JEWELS

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Police today credited a negro porter who dodged the shots of five hold-up men and ran to give an alarm with having saved a jewelry firm valuables worth $150,000. His act also was said to have been responsible for the arrest of the robbers.

The bandits entered the offices of the firm of Kasper and Esh, manufacturing jewelers, in West 51st street yesterday afternoon and lined up nine employees against the wall.

Archer Grant, the porter, saw what was going on and made a dash for the door as the men fired several shots after him. He got through the barrage without injury and notified police.

Two of the men were arrested in the building and gave information which brought about the arrest of the other three.

Police said that in the safe which the men were about to rob when Grant gave the alarm was $150,000 worth of diamonds, gold and platinum.

GRID AUTHORITY DIES

New York, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Intercollegiate football has lost one of its wisest councillors in the death of Edward K. Hall. For more than a quarter century he had been a dominating figure on the national football rules committee, a powerful influence in the correcting of conditions which led to the two major crises the game has faced in years.

"Tunnel" of the Dead Explains Ancient Legend of a "Miracle Army."

Oaxaca City, Mexico, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The exploration of an ancient "tunnel of the dead" under Monte Alban today was apparently helping solve a Zapotec legend of miracle armies that appeared or disappeared at will.

The legend is that more than 500 years ago, during the Mixtec-Zapotec wars for control of this section of Mexico, there were many battles around Monte Alban, the center of Zapotecan culture.

The tale relates that the Zapotec armies, when hard pressed, often disappeared as if by magic and reappeared at the enemy's rear, or wherever convenient to surprise him.

Dr. Alfonso Caso, government archaeologist, discovered the "tunnel of the dead" early this week, his third such discovery in recent months.

He noted today that the mouths of these tunnels are very difficult to find and the tunnels themselves are very small near their entrances, becoming larger and deep under the mountainside.

His tracings of the tunnels to date indicate they may all be connected under Monte Alban, and the whole territory literally honeycombed with these engineering works of the ancients. If so, the mystery of their original use would be solved and it would be clear that they were used to transport Zapotec troops in secret, so they could appear where needed.

As Burial Tomb
The third tunnel, it was found yesterday, was later used as a burial tomb for warriors of some race, probably the Mixtecs who finally won Monte Alban. Yesterday a skeleton was found, and with it small quantities of gold, red and white onyx beads and an ornate funeral urn. Other skeletons were found earlier in the week.

Meanwhile, work proceeded on main "Tomb No. 10," which Dr. Caso believes may yield great treasures, like those taken from Tunnel No. 7 in January. The January find was hailed as the greatest in American archaeology.

The archaeologist is unable to find an entrance to Tunnel No. 10. The plaster walls and outer floor work that characterize all these Mixtec tombs are proving difficult material, and work must needs be slow to prevent destruction of the art.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Child With Blood Pressure)
Question: Mr. DeM. asks: "Could a child of twelve years have high blood pressure? Also, what would cause him to have night sweats?"
Answer: You can easily find out if the child has high blood pressure by having him examined. Any physician can tell you in five minutes his exact blood pressure. If he has high blood pressure and night sweats, he is undoubtedly in a serious condition, and you should consult a physician at once for a diagnosis. If you will then write to me, sending the doctor's report and a large, self-addressed stamped envelope, I may be able to send you some helpful information.

(Head Shakes)
Question: Mickey M. asks: "What causes the head to shake violently from side to side when one gets nervous? What is the cure for this condition?"
Answer: The head-shaking is due to a form of palsy and comes from a degeneracy of the nerves. The cure is to improve your health by hygienic measures, and to remove every mental or physical cause which may produce nervousness.

(Carrots and Raisins)
Question: Mrs. Geraldine K. writes: "Should carrots be boiled with their skins on or off? Also, I use raisins a lot in baking and puddings. Is this good?"
Answer: Carrots should always be cooked with their skins on, and it is all right to use a small amount of raisins in baking, but I do not recommend ordinary puddings, as they are usually made of starch, sugar and acid which make a bad combination.

AVOID THE DANGER OF CONSTIPATION

Delicious Cereal Overcomes This Condition Safely and Pleasantly

The first signs of constipation may be headaches, tired feelings, yellow complexion, sleeplessness, loss of appetite. If neglected, constipation may seriously impair health.

Today, you can banish constipation by simply eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a good source of iron for the blood.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action, similar to leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, and gently clears out the intestinal wastes.

Two tablespoons daily will overcome most types of common constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Use ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

There was time for little besides mad dashing for a safety that could not be found anywhere.

The Santa Cruz station agent, said hundreds of persons crowded about five empty boxcars on a railway siding.

Disas took refuge on the station, and watched the terror-stricken group below clamber inside the cars.

The water began going down yesterday. A hasty check revealed the town with but a few city officials to run it in its greatest emergency.

Among the dead were Mayor-elect Juan Vega Barzaga, and his father, Brigadier General Antonio Martinez Barzaga.

The latest survivors arriving here said the authorities were on the point of ordering wholesale cremation because the able-bodied citizens could not bury the dead fast enough.

PREDICT BATTLES AT SHORT SESSION

This tax on beer is $6 a barrel of 31 gallons.

L. H. Parker, chief of the staff of the joint internal revenue taxation committee estimated for the Vinson committee that Federal revenue would be increased by $300,000,000 annually on beer and wine alone at the existing rate.

Both branches will face after March 4 the problem of reorganization, as the House must select its speaker to replace Vice President-elect Garner, and Senate Republicans will choose a leader to replace the defeated James E. Watson of Indiana.

Charles L. McNary of Oregon, popular assistant leader under Watson probably will be designated as minority leader in the Senate.

David Reed of Pennsylvania, long a Republican stalwart in the Senate and will find himself ranking member of the finance committee, by virtue of the defeat of Reed Smoot of Utah the present chairman and Senator Watson of Indiana, next ranking member.

Other victories and defeats provide a problem for both parties in both Houses in the shifting of seniority and control.

"We had no intention of going in the amphitheater and causing a disturbance by walking out in the middle of the secretary's address as it had been reported we would do. We merely stayed away because we didn't want to hear him."

Some of those who had been in the audience in the amphitheater and who left were women.

The invocation was delivered by the American Legion chaplain, the Rev. Irvin Q. Wood, of Pocatello, Idaho.

Louis A. Johnson, Legion commander, spoke on the program with the secretary of war, saying "loyalty to our departed comrades makes us stress necessity for a reasonable arming and preparation" in event of the need for such.

The President's message was read by Dr. George C. Havener, vice-president of the District of Columbia bicentennial commission.

Secretary Hurley closed his speech by quoting the preamble to the American Legion Constitution, saying "for these ideals the Unknown Soldier gave his life. To achieve these ideals we must be true."

Before starting the march to the two graves in the southern angle of the cemetery, the Victory Post members and B. E. F. unit placed a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The B. E. F. men, several of them shabbily attired, carried to the graves of Hushka and Carlson large wreaths which they said were paid for by a gold star mother who wished to keep her identity secret.

THINK PRACTICAL JOKER TOOK TAILOR "FOR RIDE"

New Haven, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Jacob Alster, a Mount Vernon, N. Y., tailor, walked into the detective bureau today and reported he had been "taken for a ride" but detectives said he apparently was the victim of a practical joke.

Alster said Earl Reed, a Mt. Vernon automobile salesman, entered his shop yesterday and told him: "Come on, Jake, we're going for a ride."

The tailor had no hesitancy in accompanying him, Reed, he told the officers, made several business calls in Mt. Vernon and then headed east.

Alster said he started to protest, but Reed told him to keep still and hand over his money. Alster acceded. Ultimately they reached New Haven.

Reed stopped at a bus station, the tailor said, and told him, "You can get a bus there for New York—one that will stop in Mt. Vernon. Here's your ticket."

STORM IN STATE CAUSED BIG LOSS

Over Million Dollar Damage To Beach Resorts—One Death Reported.

(By Associated Press) With fair weather prevailing throughout the state and Long Island Sound calm, Connecticut citizens set to work today to repair the damage suffered by the heavy rains and the highest tide since 1896.

The storm caused one death in the state. Swollen streams started dropping yesterday afternoon, the water stopped. The Connecticut river, dropping more slowly reached its peak early this morning and began to subside, although it never approached flood level.

Yesterday morning's high tide caused damage as far inland as Deep River. The body of eight-year-old Frederick Bielert of Bristol, who was drowned in the swollen Pequabuck river when he fell from a bridge near his home, was recovered today.

The water where he fell is normally about a foot deep, but was swollen to more than four feet by yesterday's rains. Damage along the shore line was officially estimated at as much as $1,000,000.

Cottages from Greenwich to Stonington were swept from their foundations, while docks were destroyed and seawalls undermined or washed out.

Highway crews were engaged in removing the sand and debris from the flooded roads. At Walnut Beach the right of way of a trolley company was washed out and many cottages damaged.

In Niantic eastbound trains were still re-routed pending the reconstruction of a washout of one track of the New Haven railroad.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

DO YOU REMEMBER?
No other piece of jewelry
Has ever meant the same to me
As the simple little ornament
Concerning which I sing.

Let's give a word of fulsome praise
To the trinket of our childhood days—
The horseshoe nail the blacksmith
bent
And made into a ring.

Did you ever get in the bath tub, fill your mouth with the water and spout it like a whale? Well, why do it in a bathing pool? It isn't any cleaner, is it?

YOUNG HUSBAND—Do you know, my dear, there's something wrong with the cake. It doesn't taste right.
YOUNG BRIDE (triumphantly)—
That is all your imagination, for it says in my new cookery book that it is delicious.

A policeman caught a flapper in the act of tearing a letter into tiny bits, which she threw to the ground in the park, and the following conversation took place:

Policeman—You ought to know better, miss, than to throw rubbish around in the park.
Flapper—What impudence! That's not trash; that's a love letter from my very best swizzle.

THE WRECK—No, sir, the trouble is not due to any lack of care on your part. It seems to me that your power is not being transmitted properly, and it's my opinion that there is a breakdown in the ignition system.
Of course, if you insist, I can have one of my mechanics thoroughly overhaul it. But I feel that it would be a complete waste of time.
I feel reasonably certain that the damage is irreparable. My advice to you, my dear sir, is to purchase another cigarette lighter.

Old Lady (on platform)—Which platform for the Chicago train?
Porter—Turn to the left and you'll be right.
Old Lady—Don't be impertinent,
my man.

Porter—All right, then, turn to

ill.

"This nation cannot survive half drunk and half sober," declares the impassioned orator. Which is precisely what we have been doing

Mrs. Clubber—She should be ashamed to use such language.

Diner—What's this leathery stuff?
Waiter—That is fillet of sole, sir.
Diner—Well, take it away and see if you can't get me a nice piece of upper with the buttons off.

Jerry—How did Sandy ever fall out of that plane?
Terry—Oh, his hat blew off and he jumped out to catch it.

Mrs. Harris—My wife is suffering untold agony.
Neighbor—Brown—I am sorry.
What is the matter with her?
Mr. Harris—She has an inflamed throat and cannot talk about it.

FAMOUS FOOTBALL PLAYS

"THE MINNESOTA SHIFT"

SOME credit Dr. Harry Williams, former coach of the University of Minnesota, with the development of shift plays. His first shift, now known as the "Minnesota shift," was produced in 1909, and had a lot of opposing teams guessing.

It is worked this way: The six forwards line up a few yards back of center, with the backs in formation behind them. At the signal, the linemen "hit" into line, followed by the backs, who take up the position before the play. This position can be either to right or left of center, in order to outflank the opposing defense.

Numerous plays can be worked from this shift, from line backs and end runs, to passes and trick reverses.

The monthly business meeting of the Buckland Parent-Teacher association will take place at the school assembly hall Monday evening.

The Hartford Chapter of the Women of the Moose has extended an invitation to the Manchester Chapter to attend its meeting and supper Monday evening, November 14.

Rev. John H. Nolan, rector of St. Barnabas church, Springfield, will be the special preacher at the 7 o'clock service Sunday evening at St. Mary's Episcopal church.

The Elletts Bridge club conducted a successful card party last night at the Masonic Temple for the benefit of Tempie Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star.

Miss Julia Selwitz of 4 Pearl street is visiting friends in New York.

The Center Church Women's Federation has set the date of Wednesday, November 16 for an autumn luncheon at 1 o'clock.

The Manchester Kiwanis Club will meet Monday noon at 12:15 at the Hotel Sheridan.

Tonight setback players at the Manchester Green school will have another opportunity to play for turkeys for first prize and dollar bills for second awards.

SHOWS ARMISTICE DAY COPIES OF NEWSPAPERS

Glennay's Clothing Store Windows Show Front Pages of Herald and Courant of Nov. 11, 1918.

Christopher Glennay's store windows today display copies of the Manchester Evening Herald and the Hartford Courant of November 11, 1918, the day when the World War ended.

The Herald featured in bold display type, "Armistice Terms Out" and told of the detailed agreement between the Allies and Germany.

The Herald also carried a detailed story of the monster celebration which took place in Manchester, starting at 8 in the morning and lasting throughout the day and into the night with about everybody in Manchester participating.
