Under Heavy Police Escort Delegates Meet Speaker Garner and Vice President Curtis; Report No Trouble.

Washington, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Under heavy police escort, delegations from 3,000 demonstrators who marched to the capitol in orderly ranks, today presented to Vice President Curtis and Speaker Garner petitions for cash relief to the jobless and for unemployment insurance.

Three Department of Justice agents sat in the room with Vice President Curtis as the delegation headed by William Reynolds entered.

"In presenting our petition," Reynolds said, "we represent the needs of 15,000,000 unemployed workers and their dependents, and farmers similarly facing starvation and ruin. These requests represent the minimum requirements for life for millions of people."

Reynolds began to say "we haven't much confidence that you,"

"Stop that, no reflection on me, Mr. Curtis demanded."

"That you, body will put these demands in effect," Reynolds finished.

Reynolds said he intended to "go back and say to the workers that our message has been delivered."

"Your petition will be delivered; goodbye," said the vice president.

Make Protest

During the interview, Reynolds protested against not being allowed to enter the capitol grounds and charged an agreement had been violated in reducing the number of the delegation from 25 to 16.

"I said three," the vice president snapped back, adding if they did not refrain from voicing such protests he would have them ejected from the building.

The vice president would present the petition to the Senate today.

At the House end of the capitol,

NEED CO-OPERATION FOR CHURCH MERGER

Head of Federal Council Says More That a Resolution Is Necessary.

Indianapolis, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Cooperation among denominations is necessary, Bishop Francis J. McConnell told the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America today, "before we can have a union among the churches."

The Methodist Episcopal bishop made the declaration in addressing the opening session of the quadrennial meeting of the federal council, of which he is president. Reviewing the four years he has held the office, Bishop McConnell said:

"It is perfectly amazing how well you can get along with another denomination if you have any kind of an opportunity to sit with the representatives of that denomination long enough, no matter what your own theories may be."

"We have come to see that we didn't have to understand everything about a man, or denomination, to come to some kind of a working agreement with him, x x x Must Live Together

"You can't get union among the churches simply by passing a resolution about it. You have to think together; you have to live together in terms of Christian fellowship, and then, the first thing you know, union is simply the ratification of a condition that already exists."

Bishop McConnell added that the Council is "stopping x x x from any direct planning for formal organic union, but x x x we are to do all we can to create the conditions out of which union might conceivably come."

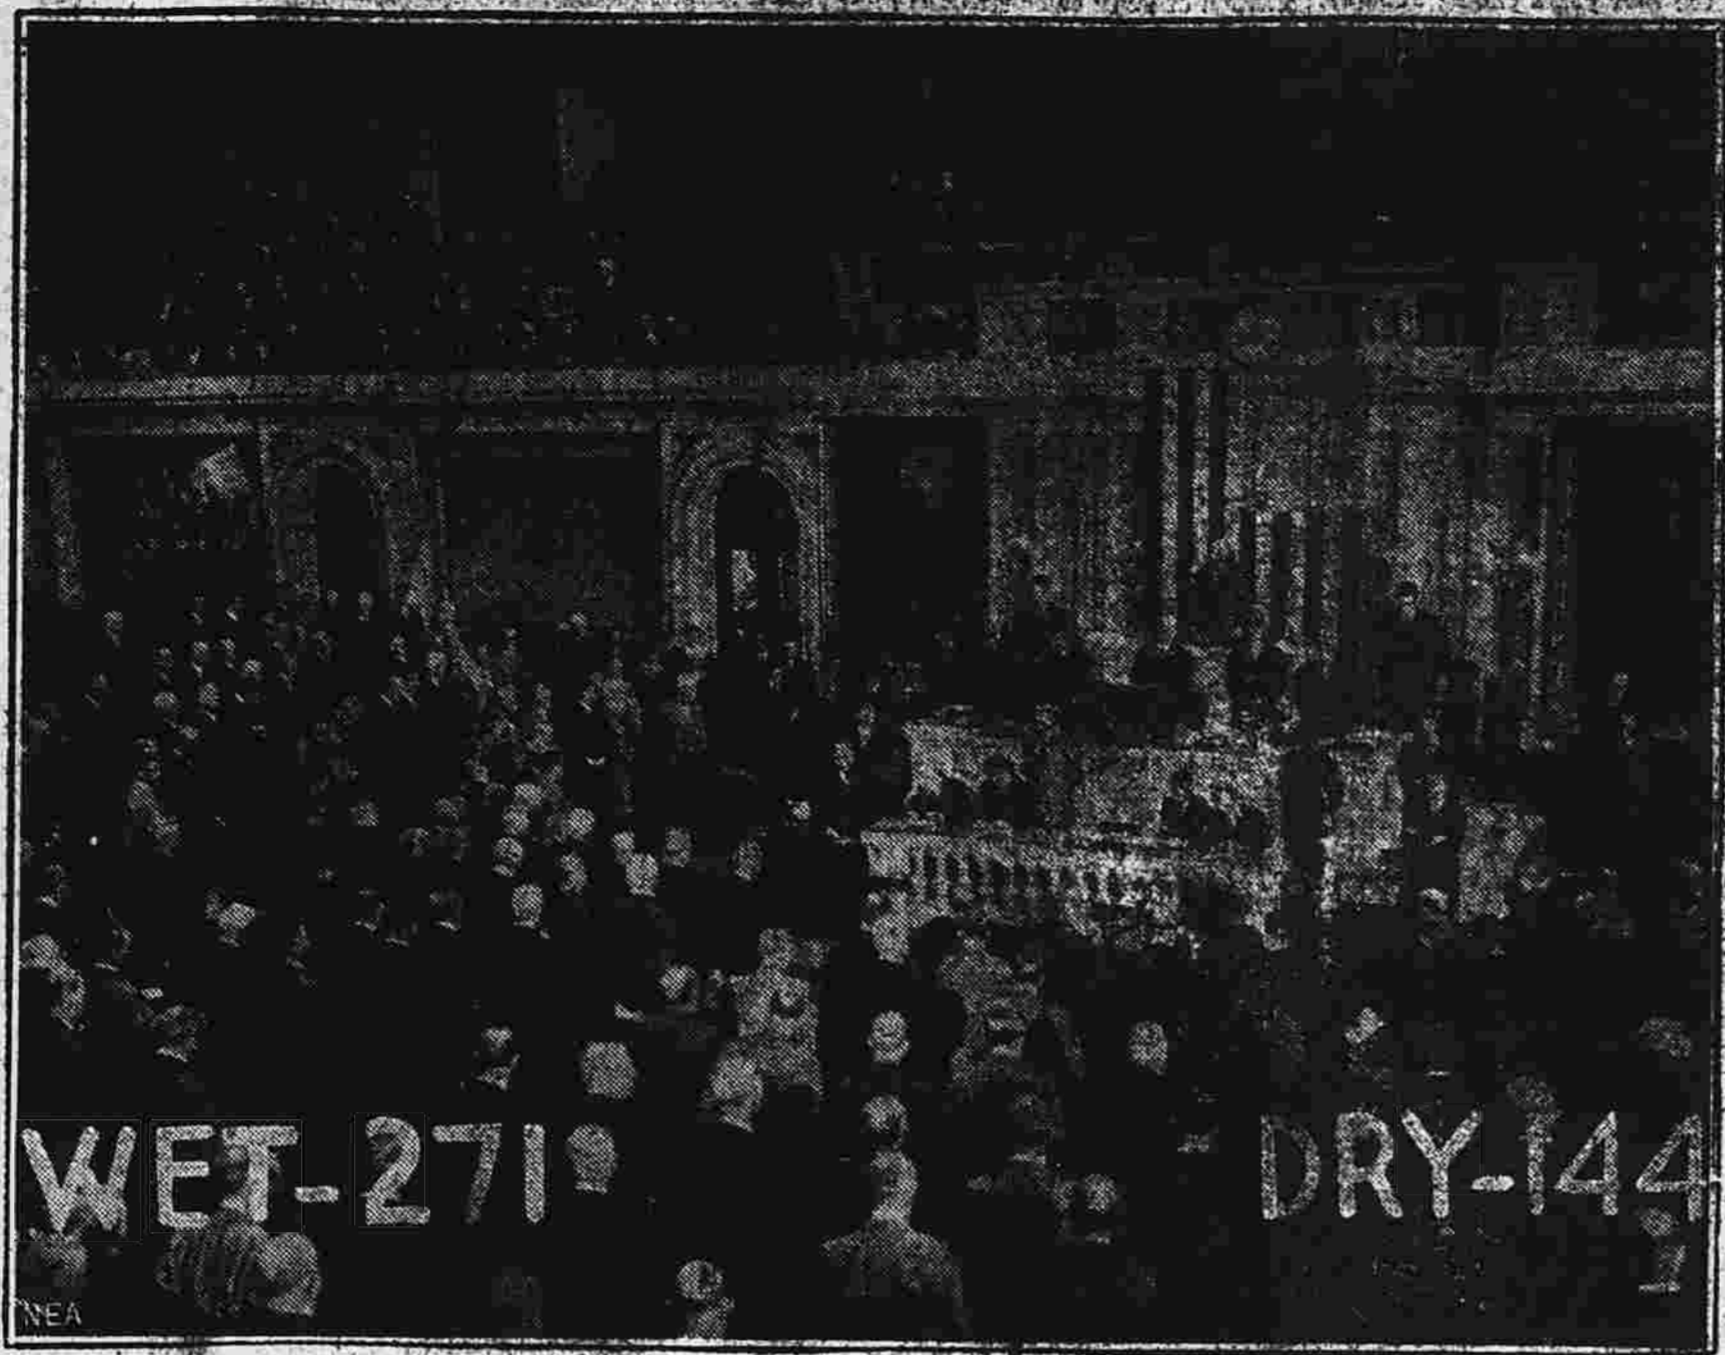

Foremost among the business to come before the four-day meeting was the recommendation for reorganizing the Council. The report made public Sunday was to be submitted during the day by the committee on function and structure.

The committee explained that its recommendations were intended, if adopted, to make the Council more responsive to the will of its 26 constituent denominations.

Because of certain of the Council's pronouncements on social and other controversial subjects, especially birth control, it has been accused by some member churches of exercising the limits imposed upon it.

Dr. Charles Clayton Morrison, editor of Christian Century, and Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president of Mt. Pleasant college and a United States delegate to the world conference, will speak at Morrison's session.

REPEAL BILL LOST AS CONGRESS OPENS "LAME DUCK" SESSION

The most serious test to the eighteenth amendment in its nearly 13 years of existence came when the House of Representatives at the opening of the winter session of the seventy-second congress, lacked only seven votes of the necessary two-thirds majority to pass a repeal proposal. The vote was 271 to 144 with 278 votes necessary for passage. Speaker Garner, who may be seen on the rostrum opening the momentous "lame duck" session, was sponsor of the repeal resolution.

CAPTAIN MURDERED; PASSENGERS HELD

Eight Women and Seven Men Be Questioned

Mysterious Shooting.

Long Beach, Calif., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Eight women and seven men, passengers or members of the crew of the 110-foot round the world yacht Carma, were booked at the Long Beach city jail as "material witnesses" today in the mysterious slaying of Captain Walter Wanderwell, globe trotter.

Wanderwell was slain last night aboard the vessel after he had been called from the dining salon by a man who appeared at a screened fore hole and asked for the captain. Companions with whom he was discussing a round-the-world cruise, found him in his cabin. Shot in the back, his right hand covering his

MILLIONS STOLEN BY CHICAGO THUGS

Five Masked Robbers Ambush Mail Carrier and Guard—Take Mail Sacks.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Five masked robbers ambushed a mail carrier and his guard in the shadow of the main postoffice at Adams and Clark street today and escaped with mail sacks containing securities that might be worth $300,000 to $2,000,000.

It was one of the most spectacular daylight robberies in years. Shortly after 7 a. m., the carrier, Fred Voelck, and Frank Stabny as escort stepped from the subway entrance of the Federal building and crossed Adams street on his way to make deliveries of registered mail at the Loop banks.

A small sedan containing five men drew alongside. While one remained at the wheel, the other four forced the pair into the lobby of the Edison building across the street, seized the mail sacks and the guard's pistol, jumped into their car and sped away.

153 Sacks of Mail

In the sacks were 123 pieces of mail for the First National bank and 40 pieces for the First Union Trust and Savings bank.

Only the senders know their contents, and it will be impossible to approximate the loot for several days. Bank and post office officials said the usual morning registered mail carried a half million dollars or more in stocks and bonds, mortgages, checks and other securities. The carrier said he understood most of his mail usually consisted of non-negotiable securities.

E. E. Brown, vice president of the Union Trust, said it was unlikely there was any currency in the sacks, and that the present difficulty was an unlikely time for receiving coupons for collection.

BELIEVE 104 DROWNED WHEN SHIP IS WRECKED

Monsoon Strikes Japanese Destroyer and Capsizes It, Only 16 Members of Crew Are Saved.

AS HARVARD HEAD Trustees To Meet Thursday To Pick a Successor To Dr. Lowell Who Resigned.

Tokyo, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The trim Japanese destroyer Sawarabi drifted upside down in the East China sea today with 104 of her crew probably dead, victims of the treacherous monsoon that blows off the coast of Asia.

The monsoon struck the Sawarabi and three sister ships 100 miles off Formosa island Monday afternoon.

The destroyer descended on the destroyer late yesterday afternoon in the midst of the storm, and the sister ships—the Samays, the Kuratsake and the Wakatsuki—lost sight of the Sawarabi as she, wallowed helplessly in the troughs of the sea.

The three stood by the Sawarabi and as soon as conditions cleared early today, picked up 16 survivors from the sea, one of whom later died of his injuries. The shipper, Lieutenant Commander Kengo Kato, went to his death with his ship, as far as the naval ministry knew.

Meanwhile the commander of the Mako Naval base in the Pescadore off Formosa sent a cruiser, four destroyers and an aircraft carrier to the scene.

The naval ministry prepared a preliminary report to the Emperor today and ordered an investigation.

Inside the hull of the ship, as it bobbed dangerously in the north-south channel of Formosa Strait, were believed to be most of the bodies of the officers and men who manned her when she left the Kure naval base.

The Sawarabi was a 520-ton craft with a speed of 31 1/2 knots. She was completed in 1923.

Small Hope Held

As the Navy Department swung into action today, more than a dozen crew members were either at the scene of the disaster or on the way.

Small hopes were held, however, that any more of the crew would be picked up alive.

High naval officers studied reports of the disaster, as the day wore on.

Some were of the belief that the vessel developed structural defects or "fatigued condition" of some structural members.

Reports indicated the Sawarabi was plunging head-on into the waves. It was believed possible that water poured in through the funnels and deluged the engine rooms. This would have rendered the craft helpless.

GIRL FLIER KILLED

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A 19-year-old Italian girl flier, Signora Greta Angelina, who was flying from Italy to India, was killed today when her plane crashed during a dark fog. The girl was one to arrive here today after leaving Bergamo Saturday.

She was accompanied by an Italian military airplane but her exact fate has not been determined.

JAPAN IS CALLED AGGRESSOR BY CHINA

League Again Told That Japanese Have Treaty About Manchuria.

Geneva, Dec. 6.—(AP)—China called on the Assembly of the League of Nations today to denounce Japan as the aggressor in Manchuria, and Japan replied that the military occupation of that vast province was an act of self-defense.

Addressing the Assembly which had constituted itself into the role of a prosecuting council, W. W. Yen spoke for China. He accused Japan of "broken" "over" unilateral treaty that had application to the Manchurian question, stipulated by the most sacred of the principles that govern international relations, and noted the authority of the League.

Yen's spokesman, the special counsel, spoke for Japan. He challenged the findings of the Lytton commission which investigated Manchurian affairs for the League.

"That we acted in self-defense," he said "is clear and warranted. M. Matsuoke protested against the Chinese boycott as a hindrance to the promotion of international peace and cooperation."

Yen's spokesman said the Lytton commission which investigated the situation between Japan and China, said its report back into the history of the last two years, that the Chinese have been provocative and hostile towards the Japanese and that disclosures in China led to and justified the forcible power sending soldiers to suppress these conditions.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain, Premier Herriot of France, Foreign Minister Koestner and Neurath of Germany, and Norman Davis of the United States were present to hear the chief speaker's charges.

Dr. Yen pointed to the Lytton report which was before the Assembly and declared "Japan deliberately and without provocation seized the three eastern provinces (Manchuria), the both military force and political influence, not only in Manchuria but in all the provinces."

It also would provide for protection of dry states from the invasion of liquor from wet commonwealths.

DISCUS BEER TAX

Washington, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Legislation to legalize and tax the sale of 2 1/2 per cent beer and wines was drafted today by Chairman Collier of the House ways and means committee, as the basis of hearings beginning tomorrow.

Collier explained that while the bill places alcoholic content of beer at 2 1/2 per cent, this percentage was chosen simply as a basis on which to work.

"It will be for the committee to determine the content desirable," he said.

The same is true of the tax rate. He was of the belief that his bill would levy a 5 per cent tax on beer and a 2 per cent tax on wine, with wine made without the addition of distilled spirits.

Witnesses designated by Secretary Mills will be the first heard tomorrow.

TEMPERANCE COMMITTEE

Advocates of modification in the house immediately turned their inquiring eyes on the Collier bill, inasmuch as he heads one of the most important committees slated to go into the matter. It would be

PREPARING NEW BILLS FOR RETURN OF BEER

Senate Takes Up Glass Measure and House To Debate Volstead Act Mod- ification Tomorrow.

Washington, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The Senate today referred back to its judiciary committee the Glass resolution proposing repeal of the 18th Amendment and substituting a ban against the saloon.

This had been suggested as the probable vehicle for early prohibitionists' desire to repeal the Volstead Act.

Referring of the Glass resolution to committee was the first legislative action of the Senate this session, and came at conclusion of the reading of President Hoover's annual message.

The Senate gave unanimous consent to the move at the request of Senator Glass (D., Va.), after he said he had received "reasonable assurance" the judiciary committee would give "prompt attention" to the legislation and report on it.

It was on the Glass resolution at the end of the last session that there was referred for the first time a bill on the question of considering the repeal of the 18th Amendment.

The resolution proposes to repeal the amendment and substitute a provision in the constitution making it illegal to sell liquor in saloons, but permitting its sale in hotels and restaurants.

It also would provide for protection of dry states from the invasion of liquor from wet commonwealths.

"The welfare of our people is dependent upon successful issue of the great causes of world peace, world disarmament and organized world recovery."

AVERILL REPLIES TO LEGAL ACTION

Says State Board Awaits Court Decision On Bridge- port Election.

Bridgeport, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A reply was received today at the office of the Superior Court in answer to the mandamus action filed recently that the state board of canvassers place the name of William Connors as Senator-elect of the First Senatorial District as shown in the election returns. The answer is by Ernest L. Averill, deputy attorney general, acting for a board of canvassers.

Frederick B. Barrows, Royal C. Wilson and William L. Higgins, the state board of canvassers.

The answer says that the board was not without sufficient cause to believe that the returns were not correct. The board of canvassers submitted by the board of canvassers to the Superior Court in answer to the mandamus action filed by the board of canvassers.

TREASURY BALANCE

Washington, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Treasury figures for December 3 show $9,976,472.29 in expenditures, $10,538,534.83 in receipts, leaving $562,062.54. Customs duties for the three days of December, were $2,200,000.

HIGH LIGHTS OF MESSAGE

Washington, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Here are some high lights from President Hoover's annual message as it was read today to Congress:

"Continued constructive policies promoting the economic recovery of the country must be the paramount duty of the government."

"In the face of widespread hardship our people have demonstrated daily a magnificent sense of humanity, of individual and community responsibility for the welfare of the less fortunate."

"Institutions and men may have resources and credit but unless they have confidence progress is halting and insecure."

"The Congress must be warned that a host of interested persons inside and outside the government whose vision is concentrated on some particular function will at once protest against these (Federal reorganization) proposals."

"If we are to secure rapid and assured recovery and protection for the future we must cooperate with foreign nations in many measures."

"The welfare of our people is dependent upon successful issue of the great causes of world peace, world disarmament and organized world recovery."

"We have built a system of individualism peculiarly our own which must not be forgotten in any governmental acts, for from it have grown greater accomplishments than those of any other nation."

"As a competitor (the government) becomes at once a tyrant in whatever direction it may touch."

"The highest form of self-government is the voluntary cooperation within our people for such purposes."

AGAINST INFLATION

Warned, however, that inflation of the currency or governmental conduct of banking, should not have a part in these reforms.

The government, Mr. Hoover said, should exercise care not to become a participant in economic and social life except in emergencies, because by so doing it becomes a competitor with the people.

"As a competitor," he said, "it becomes at once a tyrant in whatever direction it may touch."

SAYS TRUCKS BURN UP THE HIGHWAYS

Speaker For R. R. Workers At North End Meeting Urges Equality of Control.

Much of the huge expense necessary to maintain the highways is caused by heavy motor truck traffic upon which there is no tax such as must be paid by railroads, Harry Blanchette, president of the Williams branch of the Railroad Employees and Taxpayers Association of Connecticut, told members of the Manchester Improvement Association last night at the Y. M. C. A.

About 50 persons attended, among them representatives of the Board of Selectmen and Board of Police Commissioners. The meeting lasted a little over an hour. In addition to Blanchette, J. W. Coleman, president of the Hartford unit of the same association, spoke briefly after which President Joel Nichols of the Improvement Association called upon various prominent persons for remarks.

Organization
Mr. Blanchette pointed out that the Railroad Employees and Taxpayers Association is composed of railroad employees and other citizens and that it was formed in New Haven, October 5 of this year by 28 employees representing various departments of the railroad. The purpose of organization, he said, was to protect the railroads and railroad employees from "unjust, unreasonable and discriminatory" operation of buses and trucks in the state of Connecticut against the well regulated operation of railroads.

In pointing out the alleged harm which the buses have caused railroad employees and merchants who receive their business from the railroads, Mr. Blanchette said, "Buses and trucks do not pay taxes and other governmental costs in the same proportion as the railroads. This has caused unfair competition between the buses and trucks against the railroads which naturally affects the railroad's revenue. It has resulted in the dropping from the payroll of many railroad employees, due to trains being taken out of service.

His Business
"Merchants have also felt the effect of this unfair competition, as when the railroad employees suffer from lack of employment, every business in the state suffers either directly or indirectly because of a greatly reduced purchasing power. This includes professional and business men, churches, fraternal organizations, welfare organizations, manufacturing concerns and business in general.

What the organization hopes to accomplish, Mr. Blanchette said, is to form an immense organization which will create public support and approval to such an extent that national and state law making bodies will heed its demands and enact laws in accordance with the declaration of policy adopted by the organization. "It is the aims and purposes of our association are made effective by statute," he declared, "we feel confident that our public highways will be safer for the traveling public and highway transportation companies. An equalization of taxes, a safe and sane regulation of all motor trucks and buses will stabilize our present transportation systems and thereby provide additional employment."

People Like Nero
Mr. Blanchette said that of the 3,500,000 motor trucks in the United States, about 10 per cent, or 350,000, heavy trucks of the type which damage the roads. Blanchette compared the American people to Nero, Roman emperor, who, he said, added while Rome burned. He said the people are also sitting idly by while the motor trucks are burning up the roads to the tune of millions of dollars' expense which must be shared by the taxpayers. He also pointed out that the five billion of the eleven billion dollars of railroad securities is owned by savings banks and insurance companies and estimated that 80,000,000 people have a stake in the railroads.

In closing Mr. Blanchette read the declaration of policies which are advocated by the Railroad and Employees and Taxpayers Association of Connecticut after which application blanks were passed out to be signed. There were three, one for membership of the association, one for a petition to Congress and the other as a petition to the state legislature.

J. J. Snaverly, superintendent of the Hartford division of the "New Haven" road, was scheduled to be the principal speaker but he was unable to attend.

New Haven, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Joseph Ferrara, 49, and his 20 year old son Michael, suffered fractured legs today when struck by an automobile as they were standing beside their stalled machine. Both were admitted to New Haven hospital.

MEEA WORKERS GET DRIVE INSTRUCTIONS

Employment Association's Campaign Has 500 Hands To Handle Solicitation.

More than five hundred workers attended the meeting last night in High school hall that marked the opening of the Manchester Emergency Employment Association's campaign for funds which will continue throughout the week. Last night's meeting set a record for attendance and interest. Complete instructions were given to the large gathering within the space of one hour.

William C. Cheney, chairman of the Finance Committee, opened the meeting, stating that the attendance showed a willingness on the part of the citizens to "help their neighbors" in the situation that confronts the people of Manchester during the winter months.

Disposition of campaign material was made with military snap and orderliness, the twelve majors meeting with the 88 team captains during the preliminary meeting, who in turn passed on the information to the workers.

Brief talks were made by Frank Cheney, Jr., president of the M. E. E. A.; Aaron Cook, selectman and a member of the Board of Directors of the M. E. E. A.; Edward J. Holl, chairman of the Works Creation Committee; Eldred J. McCabe, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and Fred A. Verplanck, past president of the emergency employment group.

The workers will solicit many thousands of persons for weekly contributions for 20 weeks, the first installment due next Monday, Dec. 12.

In the particular provisions guaranteeing territorial and administrative integrity for China and enjoying the privileges to refrain from resorting to force for the settlement of international differences.

Dr. Yen asserted that Japan's attitude toward the League's efforts at settlement is "to propose conciliation, if you please, but to touch not Manchukuo." The Chinese outlined what he considered the League's judgment should be.

His Proposal
First, he said, the assembly should declare that Japan had violated the League covenant, the pact of Paris and the nine-power treaty; second, that the assembly should call upon Japan to execute forthwith council resolutions, so that all Japanese troops shall be withdrawn into the (South Manchuria) railway zone and that the so-called Manchukuo government be dissolved; and third that the Assembly, pending dissolution of Manchukuo, pledge itself not to recognize any situation, treaty or agreement, which may be brought about by means contrary to the covenant or the Pact of Paris, and declared it will not recognize Manchukuo or enter into any relations with it; that the Assembly make and publish before a definite date and within shortest possible time, a

ABOUT TOWN

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners was held last evening in the Town Court room. Permission was granted to the local Police Mutual Aid Association to arrange for its annual entertainment to be held in February. The police are planning an entertainment with a different angle from previous years and are also considering the division of the profits between the benefit association and the town Charity Department.

St. James' Ladies Guild will be in charge of a card party for Christmas cheer baskets, Thursday afternoon at 2:30 sharp. The social will be held in St. James' school hall and progressive bridge and whist played. Six prizes will be awarded to the winners and a door prize will be drawn. Following the games refreshments will be served by members of the Guild.

Only Four on Board
Only four of the passengers, the Smith sisters, Willie and Zeragani, were said to have been aboard the craft when Wanderwell was slain. The remainder of the party was detained when they returned from a motion picture show.

Thirty rifles stored for the intended ocean voyage were intact. Police reported the fatal wound was caused by a revolver bullet. Wanderwell's two children were asleep in a cabin only a few doors from the room in which Wanderwell was slain. Mrs. Wanderwell was visiting friends in Hollywood.

Wanderwell, whose name government records revealed was Valarian Johannes (Kocymann) and was said to have been interested in a stockade as an alien at Atlanta, Ga., during the World War, had recently purchased the Carma, a former rum runner, at a government auction sale.

FAILURE OF REPEAL
 Rejection of the repeal resolution by the House of Representatives on the first day of the lame-duck session of Congress disposes of that question for the remainder of the term and gets rid, at the very outset, of a subject that could never possibly have been disposed of in any other way by the present Congress. It leaves the fate of the Eighteenth amendment where it properly belonged, in the hands of the Seventy-third Congress, which, despite all the talk to the contrary, is almost certain to be called in extra session next spring. It would have meant very little if the repeal resolution had received yesterday the few extra votes needed to carry it, because there is nothing like a working wet majority of sufficient size in the Senate and if it had been adopted in the House it would have constituted a bone of contention in the upper house probably all winter—and could only have failed in the end.

There is very little question that repeal will be triumphantly accomplished in the next Congress, so that the worst that can result from yesterday's action—if the failure of the House to adopt the resolution can truthfully be said to have been of any effect at all—is a delay of a year or so in getting prohibition out of the Constitution. In view of the length of time it has been there, and the training in suffering from its effects, that the country has received, that is not so very long to wait.

In the meantime Congress, by this unprecedented rapid disposition of a major question, has cleared the way for the transaction of business of the utmost importance. That, it is to be assumed, was the major purpose of the House majority in jamming the prohibition repeal resolution through to its fate.

Doubtless there will be a great many disappointed wets because the repeal resolution failed, and a great many jubilant dries. There is no real reason for either emotion. Beyond shadow of doubt the next Congress will send the question of repeal to the states—and it may be a matter of only a few months before it does so.

Now, of course, we still have the question of liberalizing the Volstead law. There is no reason to fear that this cannot be done by the present Congress, and very little reason to believe that it will not be done. The need of additional revenue is too great, and the plight of the country and its people too serious, to credit the theory that Congress will refuse an opportunity to raise several hundreds millions a year to be obtained by legalizing the sale of beer.

FACING DEFAULT
 Rumors that both Great Britain and France will default the December 15 payment of their war debt installment grow more and more persistent on the eve of President Hoover's expected message to Congress of the subject of the debts. It is perhaps unfortunate that a very large proportion of the members of Congress interpret these rumors as propaganda put forth as decorations of a bluff and, being in that frame of mind, become only the more determined to call the bluff and "let 'em default."

If the choice were between paying and defaulting and were solely a matter of European option, that would be one thing. But since it is becoming more and more apparent that the choice is between default and postponement, and since it is up to Congress and not to Europe to say which it shall be, that makes it another matter altogether.

We may be as high as we please about this business, the fact remains that if the shoe were on the other foot and it became a question of our paying a debt to Europe—and if the payment of that debt were quite certain to further lower prices, further curtail employment and further add to our economic troubles—there are a good many of these Congressmen who are saying "let 'em default" who would then be advocating our default as a patriotic act as well as a necessity.

As conditions stand at present, with our depreciating currency made the basis of payment, with a tariff system that precludes payment in goods, and with European gold stocks at a minimum, for currency protection, there is nothing to be expected but eventual default, anyhow. Many authorities are agreed that if these payments are made on December 15 they will be the last ever to be made on a gold basis. So that the utmost to be hoped for is the payment of the single installment—and hardly any likelihood that it will be made.

As a matter of fact it is a serious question whether the collection of something like 120 millions from Britain and France this month would be a much more costly thing to us than its default. It is impossible to see how gold payments could fall to lower prices abroad. We are already suffering from the depreciation of foreign currencies and from an influx of commodities manufactured on a cheap currency basis, besides the inability of foreigners to buy our goods. It might be better to have our debtors default than to postpone them to force a default.

THE SOUTH VOTES
 Seven gentlemen from Arkansas, Democrats all, constituting the entire House delegation of the Bowie Knife state, voted "No" on the proposal to submit prohibition repeal to the states, in complete disregard of the fact that their party's platform and the country's mandate call for exactly the kind of a resolution they voted against.

Arkansas is notable for its illiteracy, for the fact that its original statute is a curious hodgepodge of creole French and Spanish blood blended with that of Nordic frontiersmen and all the queer strains that gravitated to the Southwest in the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries, and for the laziness and footlessness of its people. Also its nickname indicates something of its traditional character.

It stands as the banner stronghold of prohibition—and if it contains a single teetotaler common belief is at fault.

Virginia, on the other hand, likewise a Democratic stronghold and also rating as a Southern state, gave all its ten votes to support of the repeal resolution. After all the standards of the South are not all the same. North Carolina, too, long a fortress of prohibition sentiment, recognized the existence of change and voted unanimously "Yes." But in Georgia six Democratic Congressmen voted against the party's platform while only five supported it. Alabama was wet by the score of 8 to 2, Florida solid wet with four votes and Mississippi, neighbor and close-kin to Arkansas in benightedness, polled six votes against the resolution to merely two in favor of it. Louisiana, long a separate unit on this subject from the rest of the South, reversed the Mississippi vote with six in favor and two against.

These Southern Democrats, voting against their own party's principles, defeated the repealer. No wonder people throughout the country have been congratulating themselves because the Democratic victory last month, having to be, so great that in the next Congress the South will cut little figure even among the Democratic majority.

SALES, LUXURY TAXES
 When the House of Representatives faces the necessity of supplying the government with sufficient revenue to balance the budget, after making whatever expenditure reductions it has the sense and the courage to put into effect, it will have to consider the manufacturers sales tax. This will be the administration's major taxation proposal. The measure to be presented will be, in effect, substantially the same as that proposed in the long session of the present Congress and which was wrecked by the runaway of the House, which instead forced the adoption of the present hodgepodge federal tax law with its numerous imposts and its glaring inadequacy.

It is to be hoped that there will be a better understanding of the principle of the manufacturers sales tax. It is the simplest, most economically administered kind of direct tax. It cannot help being fruitful. It imposes no more hardship than any other form of taxation and very much less than most. It is not planned to make it apply to the vital necessities of existence. It would be bearable and it would produce revenue. It cannot well be dodged. There is little opportunity for its exploitation for individual profit. As taxes go, the sales tax is fair, workable and unlikely to fall of its own weight as the special taxes have done.

It is to be hoped, however, that Congress, in passing a sales tax, will supplement it by the system of luxury taxes that this country employed during the war. There never was a tax better calculated to lay its weight on shoulders well able to bear it. As a complement to the proposed sales tax it is, in the present exigency, highly desirable.

OMINOUS
 Farmers living near the town of Arborg, in Manitoba, have provided us with an ominous demonstration of the sort of thing that can happen when tax burdens rest too heavily on agriculture.

Several hundred of them stormed the tax office in that town the other day, tore the clothes of the tax official and destroyed his records and assessment sheets, in protest against the steadily increasing sale of farms for delinquent taxes.

It is easy enough, of course, to point out that the action was very wrong and tragically mistaken. But if the effort helps to impress on governing officials everywhere the supreme importance of lightening the tax load it may turn out to be very useful—even if it was wrong and mistaken.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington
 Washington—Senator Borah of Idaho apparently is imperishable. Anyone else in his present position would be likely to be sunk in prestige, shorn of power, virtually a dead duck.

His own tenure good for four more years, he went through the presidential campaign without declaring himself, advocating a strong position of personal leadership. He will soon lose his powerful post as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to a Democrat. The voters of Idaho have just told him to go chase himself. He persists in aggressively identifying himself with a lost cause—prohibition.

But does anyone predict that he will become any less a vital force in Congress in public life? Is there a single sign that he is in any degree fading from the picture? Does he receive any less attention than of yore? Not yet.

Insofar as anyone can foresee, he will be the same old Borah with the galleries filling rapidly whenever it is known that he is going to speak, with the newspaper correspondents piling eagerly into his offices for his famous daily three o'clock conference, with millions in the country and in foreign lands still regarding him as an accepted oracle.

It may be that the old lion from Idaho is entering into the peak period of his career, despite the fact that the party to which he gives titular allegiance will be a minority in the next Congress. He seems almost certain to play the star role in the dramatic last stand which the dries will make against modification of the Volstead Act and repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. He can't win, and in all probability, will be unindicted as the fatal barrier in the path of the wets when they attempt to jam through a beer bill during the short session.

The other day he declared himself so vigorously against the sales tax, another prospective source of storm and strife, and to leave little doubt that he would be found in the forefront of that battle. And when Borah gets into the president of any fight he is more than likely to steal the show from all the other progressives.

Another dramatic and important issue will be the question of war debts with its interlinked feature of disarmament. That, of course, is Borah's special dish. Next to the president and the president-elect he is the man whose views on that problem are sought most often.

Obviously, if he becomes a major figure in the wet-dry tax and debt battles of the coming session, he will have the head and the ideas that Borah has entered a period of eclipse.

President Hoover probably has no love for Borah, following his refusal to support the president in the recent campaign. The Democrats, now in the secondary, owe him nothing except for his silence, whereas the other important progressives—Norris, LaFollette, Johnson and Cutting among them—were campaigning for Roosevelt. And his stand for prohibition is the point of major party sentiment.

You might think that the senator could at least be fortified with the thought that his constituency in Idaho was still 100 per cent behind him. But if you did you would be fooled.

The fact is that the old master went out campaigning in a big way for the re-election of his Republican colleague, Senator John Thomas, a regular and a Hooverite. After he had made 16 speeches for Thomas the voters of Idaho went to the polls and defeated Thomas, although as overwhelmingly as they turned down Hoover.

Borah is here for four more years, at least. Try to ignore him!

The Brooklyn house painter who saw $250,000 slip through his fingers when his claim to the Wendell fortune was thrown out of court, can't be blamed if he loses his grip on the paintbrush now and then.

FATS AND OILS GOOD IN COLD WEATHER
 Fats and oils may be considered identical in their food value. They differ from proteins in that they contain no nitrogen but consist almost entirely of carbon, oxygen and hydrogen. There are two main classifications: fixed oils, used mainly for food; and the essential oils, used principally for flavoring. Fats and oils contain more heat units per weight than any other food substance and for this reason they are important foods in very cold climates but are of much less value in warm climates. In a temperate climate they should be used more abundantly during winter and should be restricted during summer.

As much as one-sixth of the entire body weight may consist of fat. The blood carries only a small amount at any one time, probably not over one-fourth of an ounce. The fat is stored away in various tissues throughout the body and acts as a reserve food supply. The average person has enough fat stored away to live from sixty to ninety days under proper conditions without the body needing to consume any vital organs. Some of the fat that is stored away in the body may have been manufactured from starches, sugars and proteins, but most of it comes directly from the fats and oils that have been eaten. In cold weather fat, besides providing heat, may also be an important source of energy. In warm climates the attempt to use fat as the principal source of energy results in overheating and, in some cases, combustion of fat that causes diabetes.

Although fats are readily digested themselves, they slow up the digestion of proteins and starches if the fat is mixed with them. Fat meat requires considerably longer to digest than does lean meat. Fat is absorbed more readily in hot fat, as in the latter case the fat is not absorbed to any large extent but forms a crust on the outside.

The fats and oils most used in our diets come from animal sources, such as beef, pork, fish, and cream; and also from nuts, oily fruits and various seeds. Fats and oils combine readily with any one of the vitamins and are carefully regulated by the climate and the ability of the body to digest fats, which differs widely with individuals.

In preparing foods with fats or oils it is better not to process them during the cooking process but rather add them just before serving. For instance, add butter to your cooked vegetables just before they are taken to the table rather than cooking them with butter. The frying of fats often results in the release of fatty acids which are irritating to the stomach. A small amount of fats or oils often undoubtedly makes foods more palatable and an excessive amount is nauseating.

The principal digestion of fats takes place in the duodenum, and is in the duodenum that it is mixed with alkaline elements and a digestive ferment (steapsin) from the pancreas, the result being that the food is emulsified and saponified and is absorbed by the lacteals in the small intestine. The emulsion is carried by the lymphatic thoracic duct which empties it into the blood stream at about the level of the shoulder. Some may, however, be absorbed directly by the small blood vessels of the intestine. As much as one-fourth of a pound of fat may be digested daily by the average person.

Fats should be restricted in certain disorders, such as acne, eczema, obesity, waxy liver and catarrhal conditions. Some cases of obesity are due to a metabolic defect necessary in maintaining health for

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
 (Pneumonia)
 Question: Mrs. Norene P. asks: "Will you kindly give me information as to whether the skin disease called pemphigus is contagious in an advanced stage? About two months ago I lost the nearest and dearest friend I had in this world with pemphigus and was at a loss as to what advice to give, as doctors seemed stumped. I also was in contact with the germ, but in having touched the rash when I had a cut on my hand."

Answer: There are a number of skin diseases characterized by the formation of bullae which are known as pemphigus. Some of them are more severe than others. However, most of them may be contracted by contact. If you have not contracted the disease by this time, it is very unlikely that you will do so.

(Blind Bell)
 Question: Stewart B. writes: "I have a blind bell that has bothered me for about four months and it will not heal. Have consulted physicians but with no good results. Would be greatly obliged for your advice, as I am beginning to be much worried."

Answer: Your blind bell is no doubt in a very toxic condition or the bell would have healed before this time. Correct your diet and keep your intestines free from any accumulated poisons, and I am sure you will find the blind bell will soon heal naturally without any local treatment.

IN NEW YORK
 Yuletide-Santa Claus
 New York, Dec. 6.—Not only is there a Santa Claus but this year the role is likely to be played by a former Hamlet or Macbeth.

Jobless actors, I am told, are getting first chance at the Yuletide job in the major Manhattan department stores. After all, the St. Nicholas play runs for a month or more, which is a "long run" for many a character man.

Too Many Santas
 Not only is there a Santa Claus, but this year his clan is so great that one cannot help but wonder why any doubt existed concerning the generous, bewhiskered old fellow. To be candid, if ironic, the job plays Santa Claus to the fellow who plays Santa Claus.

Advertising departments of the big stores report a veritable landslide of Santas. They wait in line for an interview; they haunt the quarters of the charitable organizations, seeking an opportunity to stand shivering on winter-bitten streets, nursing a pot of dimes and nickels which will go to other poor folk; they put ads in the papers and they are willing to pose in the store windows.

Tragic Bureaucracy
 Gotham's annual ragamuffin parade, a pageant of pranksome children transplanted to the metropolis from Italy, takes on a more poignant and tragic note this season. It was designed as a slice of carnival, in which youngsters would paint their faces; don the old clothes of their elders; wear masks and wig and go prancing through the streets in groups. A taint of beggary crept into this innocent Mardi Gras some years ago, when the youngsters from Bleeker street, south and east, discovered that by ringing door-bells they would be given candy or pennies. In recent years, they learned to panhandle on this day.

But now, there is honesty in their plea. The ludicrous burlesque, which childhood wears best, has come to hide a dismal background, where brothers and sisters, mothers and fathers are hungry. The doorbells ring this year in a more earnest and less in the spirit of fun. Careful admonitions had been given the children before they set forth. They were to bring home food and money.

And so a gay occasion was turned by times and circumstances into a mockery—heartbreaking in its way!

Banker to Wealth
 It's nice to hear that Freddie March has been rewarded, at last, for his superior screen performance. He was winner of the year award for the "best screen actor prize" awarded annually out in Hollywood.

March did a noble job some time ago in a vastly amusing picture titled, "Laughter."

It was the peculiar accidents of life that but for a change in bank presidents, March might now be worrying about mortgage payments and overdue loans. He has James A. Stillman, the banker, to thank for his spot. March, a son of Radio, Wis was a student at the University of Wisconsin and won a scholarship offered by Frank Vanderlip, another financial wizard. He was brought to New York and placed in the National City Bank.

When Stillman replaced Vanderlip, March decided that he might be caught in a possible shake-up. So he quit and went to the stage. A Dayton, O., stock company saw his first efforts. Today he is a leading screen actor—his Jekyll and Hyde dual seeming to have clinched the coveted spot.

AMERICA LACKS REVOLT ARDOR, SAYS EXECUTIVE
 By STANLEY P. RICHARDSON
 Moscow.—(AP)—Taking new stock of the world status of communism, the Communist International acknowledges there is no "direct revolutionary situation" in the United States and other leading countries.

It calls for increased energy on the part of the various communist parties to hasten developments.

In a declaration reflecting its disappointment that the world economic crisis had failed to bring about the long-heralded downfall of capitalism, the executive committee of the agency directing communist propaganda, urges more "revolutionary activity" among workers.

Only Hope in Workers
 "The stabilization of capitalism is at an end," says a resolution adopted at the executive committee's twelfth plenary session, the first since April, 1931, "but there still is no direct revolutionary situation in the most important countries."

"We must not count on the automatic failure of capitalism. We must rely upon the revolutionary activity of the workers."

The resolution outlined specific programs to be followed by communist parties in various countries. With reference to America it said: "The communist party of the United States must mobilize the masses to fight the social insurance, against wage reductions, for immediate relief to the unemployed, assistance to farmers, the rights of the negroes and the self-determination of the black belt and for the defense of the Chinese masses and the Soviet Union."

Predicts Class Wars
 Describing the present time as a transitional period which will lead to collisions between classes and countries—"Comintern" claims that revolutionary forces are growing in all capitalist countries but adds: "What is the very important countries like the United States, England and France, the speed through increasing, is still behind the tenacity of international conditions."

Reviewing the world situation from the communist viewpoint, the resolution continues: "In Spain the revolution is going on. In China we have a revolutionary situation in the greater part of its territory, which has been marked by great soviet successes."

In Germany we have a sharpening of class antagonisms—on one side the growth of fascism and on the other the growth of revolutionary mass struggles.

"Some other countries also are approaching the revolutionary crisis, notably Poland; and we also may predict the same for Japan."

"In India and Latin-America a revolutionary crisis is prevented by the had organization of the proletariat."

World Attack Unions
 A "constant, animated connection" between the communist parties and a majority of workers in every country is necessary, the resolution said, recommending that vigorous unions also among unorganized workers and the unemployed.

"It is necessary to increase the bolshevik mass work and acquire to our side a great majority of the workers' class, the committee said. "Our opponents have lost the support of both organized and unorganized workers, which fact prevents adequate revolutionary activity and endangers our success."

"The main problem of the communist is to fight against capitalism and against capitalism, against fascism and intervention against the Soviet Union and destroy the mass influence exercised by social democracy—all in the interests of the broad masses of the population of the world."

MARVELOUS MANHATTAN
 BY WILLIAM GAFFNEY
 New York—Lonely out-of-towners who, might want a gigolo on a giglette for an evening of dancing or theater-going in New York are apt to find themselves out of luck these nights. The principal agency which supplied charming and proper young companions for visitors of the opposite sex has gone out of business.

Roy H. Griffin, who operated the agency, tells me he has returned to the banking field.

Griffin still believes the idea might prove profitable. Plenty of unattached men and women who come to New York would be glad to pay a few dollars for pleasant company, with a guarantee of safety from any sort of racket. But Griffin says a goodly sum would be needed for national advertising, to let prospective visitors know where they might call for such services.

He himself got the idea from being lonesome in strange cities. He used to travel as a bank examiner and frequently had an evening on his hands in some town where he knew nobody and no place to go. Finally, he decided there must be thousands of visitors to New York who find themselves in just such a predicament. But Griffin couldn't reach enough of them to make his venture pay.

Marion Beeson Fries
 Frequently come out-of-towner inquires what it costs to have an evening of diversionment in Marion, W. Va. Marion is neither high nor cheap, as prices go after dark.

The cover charge at one of the most popular floor show places is $1.25 per person on week nights and $3.50 on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. Ginger ale, coffee and tea are the drink order includes cracked ice.

If you want food you can get anything from a 50 cent sandwich to a $3 diet mignon. Another of the big, popular places has a $3.50 seven change every night, but the menu is about the same.

It is customary to have the waiter $1 for looking after a couple (for an average order) or $3 for a party of four. Two-bits or a half-dollar will do for the hat check girl.

After the night club, many persons still have appetites or are reluctant to go to bed. They move on to a well known chicken resort, where about a dollar apiece is anough for fried chicken and trimmings. Count off another dollar for the waitress here.

Unless you are economically inclined to ride subway, figure about $1.50 each way for the taxi, including in the driver's tip, if your hotel is in the midtown section.

As for the resorts that people only whisper about, you had best not go well there unless you are well-to-do. Have a responsible guide who knows the ropes. Don't get caught in any unfamiliar place recommended by a taxi driver or a street vendor who pokes you on the street, with a hard.

EDUCATION

A Series of Articles Discussing Modern Methods of Training the Youth of Our Country.

EDUCATION: A COMPETITIVE CAREER

As a national organization rendering the country a social service our school system has outstripped most nations. And this achievement is the work of those teachers who have gone before. Yet modern teachers are probably a more efficient and desirable body of workers. Not long ago a girl went through high school, a term or two to the academy or normal school and then returned to teach at home—she could find no other job or could not get married. To many persons teaching school, like farming or preaching, was a last resort to fall upon; few chose teaching deliberately in preference to something else. Many persons could never get along with mature adults but the children had to get along with whomsoever the "descriptive" committee thrust upon them.

School teaching in the past has been a way of earning money to continue college training—for a job better than teaching. The classic example is Daniel Webster who taught a term now and then to pay his way at Dartmouth College. A good many half-trained and backward persons entered the school room. Education as a career only recently has begun to compete with business, commerce, and the professions. Education is asked to weigh its methods, subject matter, and aims; there is great demand for educators who will study the history, application and interpretation of education as thoroughly as business men examine their chosen field of interest. There is enough reward in education, financially, socially, and otherwise to make well worthwhile the added training expected today.

There are two causes for the new type of educator. The greater is the better type of school board who in turn engage a better superintendent. Board members are more intelligent, interested, and capable. They are more able, interested, and willing to search out and offer more practicable school plans. Many an old district board thought more of its own glory than of the school's welfare. Of course, of course, were incapable of being of any real use because of the quality of membership. Better members, chosen at large for their own abilities rather than for abilities to get their district's "share" have made a town's school work a continuous and progressive proposition.

This continuity and understood school policy is the second drawing card of the school. Promotions, pupil load, hours per day, schedules of pay, vacations, and extracurriculum work are fairly well established now and a teacher knows what he must offer and what he will receive. A man with ambition will never buy a pig in a bag; he will work toward something definite and reliable. School work offers something worthwhile.

Pay, security, hours of work, social position, and promotion are all factors which a young man or woman considers when choosing a life career. Education must offer just as much in all these respects as any other position or be doomed to take those who cannot make their way in the better jobs where the going is more severe. Many people do not realize the fact but nevertheless it is true that business offers great lengths to employ the right man and to keep him at great cost. Many concerns give beginners several weeks' training, college graduates, usually, and pay them the while. In the end they reject several and keep a few. These few do much to keep rather than go shopping about for anyone who will go to work. And they never think of hiring cheaper employees, except day laborers, unless a crucial reason arises. And in prosperity a business house which had bought its employees at auction in a depression would be stunned like poison by really able people in prosperity.

In financial depression ignorant people demand teachers' salaries to be cut, alleging that hordes could be hired to take their places. But what kind of hordes would be willing to supplant someone else for a few dollars? What kind of a reputation would a town get which had bought teachers at auction? A teacher coming to a new school carefully examines the record of the town as surely as the superintendent examines the teacher's record. No one wants to get into a town where hiring and firing and bickering has been the lot in the past. The school committee must take the teachers' lot for they cannot meet like miners and strike and openly fight their battle. They have trusted their lot with the committee and cannot defend charges directly.

Today there is as much real purpose and substance to education as there is to business, commerce, or law. Successful results demand careful training and thought. Teaching has offered something commensurate with other ways of getting a living and it is receiving people with ability and interests commensurate with abilities and interests of people in other fields of work.

NEWTON D. BAKER LAUDS YALE LAW SCHOOL

New Haven, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in the Cabinet of President Wilson, lauded the Yale Law School Bar Association today for the use it is making of the advantages furnished by the Yale law school.

The war-time secretary told members of the association at its monthly meeting that there has been a steady growth in the "feeling that we must make our education a continuous thing."

Before his brief address Baker was greeted warmly by Colonel John Q. Tilton, who was not at the opening of Congress today.

Baker traced briefly the beginnings of adult education in the English universities of Oxford and Cambridge and added:

"I'm particularly happy to find that we in America are imitating that system."

The meeting was made the occasion for an informal reunion of University of Michigan alumni in honor of Prof. Edson R. Sunderland of that university, the principal speaker.

EINSTEIN GRILLED BY AMERICAN ENVOY

Famous Scientist Asked If He Is Communist Or Anarchist—Is Surprised.

Berlin, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Albert Einstein, Germany's most famous professor, stood like a schoolboy today before an American consular official who asked him rudimentary questions concerning Communism, Fascism and Anarchism.

The professor took the questioning meekly for awhile and then he regarded up in all of his professional dignity and declined to be put through a third degree.

The occasion was his application for a visa for his impending trip to the United States. After the incident he issued an ultimatum to the consulate, declaring that if he failed to receive the visa within 25 hours he would not go to America.

Ordinarily a visa is granted to Prof. Einstein without his moving a finger. The reason for the questioning this time was not explained, but recently the State Department at Washington forwarded a demand by the Woman Patriot Corporation that the famous scientist be barred from the United States on the ground that he is a Communist.

Much Surprised. The relativity expert, who proudly recalls that he once received from President Hoover a message of congratulation and that New York

State abruptly his usually casual face stern and his normally mild-mannered voice militant, he cried:

"What's this an innuendo? Is this an attempt at obscenity? I don't propose to answer such silly questions."

"I didn't ask you to go to America. Your consular system invited the Yen begged me. If I am to enter your country as a suspect I don't want to go at all. If you don't want to give me a visa please say so, then I'll know where I stand. But don't ask me humiliating questions."

SCHLEICHER TAKES HELM IN GERMANY

Picks Cabinet Determined To Manage the Nation During Its Crisis.

Berlin, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A new chancellor—Gen. Kurt von Schleicher—and his Cabinet took the helm of government today, determined to carry the country through the winter without political discord.

This was made possible by the chancellor's complete having authority, handed him by President von Hindenburg when he commissioned the head of the Reichwehr (German army) to run the nation in a period of domestic crisis.

Nevertheless, Schleicher approached tomorrow's session of the hopelessly divided Reichstag with a "conciliation Cabinet," which would wield its power to dissolve the lawmakers only in the event of necessity.

The President's mandate itself, designating the chancellor merely to carry on the affairs of the army until further notice, gave a hint of this.

General von Schleicher's Cabinet choices also appeared intended to promote political peace. Here is the Cabinet that will face the Reichstag.

Chancellor, Gen. Kurt von Schleicher.

Foreign Affairs, Baron Konstantin von Neurath.

Interior—Frans Bracht.

Finance, Count Lutz Schwerin von Krosigk.

Defense (Temporary), Gen. Kurt von Schleicher.

Justice, Franz Guertner.

Transportation and Posts, Baron Eits von Reubenech.

Labor, Dr. Friedrich Syrup.

Economics, Dr. Herman Warmbold.

Agriculture and Eastern Relief, Baron Friedrich Eder von Braun.

Minister without Portfolio, H. Johannes Popitz.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Chicago—"Shoes" has a nose for pork chops, but that's not helping Mrs. Kristie Hojek get back the $1,071 three negroes took away from her the other night.

Her son William borrowed "Shoes," who is a large and sleazebag looking police dog. William let Shoes take a sniff of the pocketbook the thieves threw away after removing the money, and then set out on the trail of the culprits.

The "trail" led in turn to several houses in the neighborhood. Each time there was commotion and a bitter protest by the neighbors. They complained that "Shoes" was not following a pocketbook trail, that each and every time it was the scent of frying pork chops that attracted him to a house.

Police politely suggested that perhaps "Shoes" had no license to hunt thieves. William is dutifully thinking of taking "Shoes" off the case altogether.

Uniontown, Pa.—Starn officers of the law gasped as they saw Frank Bonatino and Joseph Angone driving through this city in a car piled high with liquor. Pre-prohibition trade marks flashed from cases stacked on the running board.

Bonatino and Angone, who made no pretense of secrecy, expressed surprise as the officers, expressed the car containing about 500 gallons of liquor and marched the owners off to jail.

"Why," the prisoners clamored, "we thought they just repeated the 18th Amendment."

Philadelphia—Joseph A. Mooney had his daughter, Beatrice, arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct because, she said, she smoked tobacco. She said she was 22 and within her rights but police looked her up in a cell.

However, when she started to scream and cry they released her and she went back home where, her father said, she resumed her smoking.

Winsted—Unless its confidence in the manhood of its members is justified, the Northeast Connecticut Sportsmen's Association is going to have a "foodless" banquet Thursday. It plans to serve a game dinner. One member has been sent to Maine to shoot a bear, while another has been ordered to Massachusetts to bring back a deer.

Avon, Conn.—The State Highway Department has invaded the antique business. It condemned as a traffic hazard an eighteenth century tavern and now has for sale a circus bar, nine fireplaces with fixtures, some time worn wicker, and a lot of antique furniture.

HOLD TWO SUSPECTS

Boston, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Witnesses to the theft of five $100,000 treasury notes from the Continental Bank and Trust Company, New York, were expected in Boston today to view two suspects.

William Downey, 38, and John Gallagher, 38, both of Boston, were arrested by Boston police yesterday as suspicious persons in connection with the New York theft, which occurred last month.

Boston police also held a warrant charging Downey with the larceny of $700 from the Industrial Trust Company of Westbury, R. I. Authorities at Westbury were notified Downey was in custody.

Police believed the New York robbery was accomplished by use of a cane with gum on the end of it to pick up the notes from a bank employee's desk while one of the robbers distracted his attention.

3 EASY RULES for Using Koppers Connecticut Coke

1 Shake less—Because Koppers Connecticut Coke is all fuel, and burns down to fine ashes that drop through the grate with very little shaking. Once a day is often enough to shake—less frequently in mild weather.

2 Use less draft—Because Koppers Connecticut Coke is High Test Fuel, it burns evenly without forcing the fire and wasting heat up the chimney. It responds at once to closing as well as to opening of dampers.

3 Fill the fire pot heaping full—You can do this without danger of smothering the fire. Koppers Connecticut Coke is lighter, than coal and burns most economically and effectively when you keep a deep fire.

These 3 rules mean less work and less attention. Your Koppers Connecticut Coke fire requires less work in firing and in taking out ashes, burns perfectly and provides a steady warmth for less cost.

STATE COPS RAID LOTTERY QUARTERS

Old Inn In Montwese Had Been Turned Into a Printing Shop.

New Haven, Dec. 6. — (AP) — State Police raided today what was claimed to be the headquarters of a state wide "lottery ring" at Old Pleasant View Inn, Quinnipiac avenue, Montwese. They arrested three men, took a four press printing outfit, stitching machines, large amount of paper, and thousands of tickets for four types of lotteries.

The men gave their names as Charles Montgillo, Alphonse Grimaldi and Joseph Valle, all of this city. Their arrest was on bench warrants issued by Judge A. F. Ellis of the Superior Court on application of State Attorney Hoyt. Their presentation in court was expected during the afternoon.

ON LARGE SCALE

Police said the inn had been made over into a well appointed printing shop for production of lottery material on a large scale. They did not know how long the printing of tickets had been going on.

Lieut. W. J. Schatman of the Beacon Falls barracks, said investigation was necessary to determine the ramifications of the lottery schemes. The four which have been in use were based on Federal treasury balances. Two had Italian names, another "Christmas Day Special" and the fourth "Lucky Dime Special."

All material seized was moved to the courthouse for use as evidence.

FOUR MINOR ROBBERIES IN NORTHERN AREAS

Thieves Take Gasoline, Chickens and Office Supplies At Widely Separated Points.

Four robberies were reported to Manchester police today as having occurred some time last night. There were no outstanding cases which might link one break with the others. The thefts were also of a widely different nature. One included the theft of gasoline, two others were those of chickens and the fourth stamps and pencils were taken. Lieut. William Barron is working on the cases.

At Oakland Filling Station on Oakland street, the gasoline pump was forced open and ten gallons of gasoline were stolen. The station bear of the Buckland Farm on the Olin Wood farm in Buckland chicken coop well in the rear of the house was opened and forty chickens were stolen, the owner estimating a total of about 250 pounds.

Twelve Rhode Island Red hens were stolen from the henhouse of Martin Koehler of 708 North Main street also. The thieves gained entrance to the Koehler henhouse by cutting the chicken wire in the yard.

The other break was at the feed store of Little & McKinney, at the rear of the Balch and Brown block at the north end. Entrance was apparently effected by using a skeleton key. The desk in the office was forced open but a safe nearby was not tampered with. Nothing but a few stamps and pencils were taken.

Monte Carlo whist and various contest games were played during the evening and prizes awarded the winners, both men and women. During the evening, Mrs. Wallace Robb, associate royal matron, in behalf of the officers for 1932, presented to Mrs. Tryon a tiptop table and handsome table mat. It's great to feel fit!

Everybody has days when every waking hour is packed with rest of living. Why not make every day like this?

A frequent drawback to fitness is constipation. It may dull your energy, steal your appetite, lower your vitality. Yet it is so easy to overcome.

Try eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Science shows this delicious cereal supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to promote appetite, and tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much safer than laxatives. How much safer than taking patent medicines—so often harmful.

Two tablespoons daily will correct most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN has iron for the blood. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

HELPS KEEP YOU FIT

BLUE COAL THE FIRST COAL TO BE DELIVERED BY PLANE

'blue coal'—America's Finest Anthracite—recently added another distinction to its record by being the first coal in history to be shipped by air. Hon. C. Bascom Sloop, (left) former Secretary to ex-President Coolidge and for many years a Republican congressman from Virginia, made a bet with John F. Costello, (right) chairman of the Central Democratic Committee of Washington on the recent election.

The stake was a ton of coal. The stipulation was that the coal must be delivered direct from the mines to the home of the winner in Washington within five hours. Mr. Sloop, who placed his confidence on the re-election of President Hoover, lost. He selected 'blue coal' as the medium for prying off his bet, and commissioned the local distributor in Washington, D. C. to make delivery in accordance with the terms of the wager.

In order to accomplish this, it was necessary to load the ton of coal on one of the Eastern Air Transport planes at Camden, N. J. on Friday, Nov. 11, 1932, and it was unloaded at Hoover Airport in Washington 11 a.m. on that day.

The loser certainly showed himself to be a judge of good fuel when he selected 'blue coal'. No finer coal has ever been brought above ground. For more than half a century D. L. & W. Scranton & Wilkes-Barre anthracite has been the largest selling home fuel in America. Its reputation for starting quickly on cold mornings—for burning evenly and steadily all day long—and for banking perfectly at night, has been proven many times. It is dependable and economical. It is a high quality Pennsylvania hard coal, colored with a harmless blue tint so that you can always be sure that you are getting coal that gives full heat value in every ton.

You will be a winner, too, if you specify 'blue coal' every time you order fuel for your furnace! Put your dollars on a "sure thing" this year. Have your dealer fill your bins with 'blue coal' today. You will find his name, address and telephone number in the classified section of your telephone directory under the words 'blue coal'.

AMERICAN STUDENT KILLED IN LONDON

Body Found in Street Before House Where Party Was Being Held.

London, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The police were investigating today the mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of Jo Kent Sanders of West Roxbury, Mass., a student in the London School of Economics.

Sanders died yesterday in University college hospital of skull and nasal injuries suffered the preceding Thursday evening.

It was learned the American had attended a dinner of the students association Thursday which was also attended by Sir Joshua Stamp and Sir William Beveridge.

After the dinner Sanders went to a private party in Bloomsbury where he remained until just before midnight. At about that hour his friends missed him and started a search.

Before long they found Sanders' body in the street just outside the house. The base of his skull was injured, his nose was broken and an ankle fractured.

Police learned from those at the party that Sanders' companions were of the belief he had been taken to the second floor balcony. Others at the party said Sanders was in cheerful spirits. One of them added, "I can only assume that during the party he went outside for a breath of fresh air, then fell over."

"We didn't notice he was missing for some time," this narrator went on, "a search was made and he was found nearby."

Sanders was graduate of Harvard University and he came to London some months ago to study for a doctorate of philosophy. His wife and child were expected from the United States in a day or two according to the Daily Mail, to spend the Christmas holidays.

Sir William Beveridge, director of the London School of Economics, said later today, "at the inquest which will be held I think it will be found from the facts that this was nothing but a bad and deplorable accident."

NEW STEAMER IS IN TROUBLE

S. S. Conte de Savoia, at Sea, Dec. 4.—(AP)—This new Italian liner en route to New York on her maiden voyage ran into difficulties with a turbo-generator during the night, which put the main dynamo room out of business and caused the captain to reduce speed.

The captain's quarters permitted the statement that the trouble was caused by the breaking of a discharge pipe from a turbo-generator at 5 p. m., yesterday. This caused a leak which was repaired and reinforced during the night.

There was no panic. The passengers were reassured and ship's officers said there was no danger. Dinner was served by candle-light last night.

At 3 a. m., repairs on the vessel were completed and the vessel proceeded on her course.

ROCKVILLE READY TO QUIT AS CITY

Holds What May Prove To Be Its Last Election; Plans Town Government.

Rockville, Dec. 6.—(Special)—In what will possibly be the last municipal election in the city of Rockville, held yesterday in the four wards, the Republicans carried their entire ticket by nearly a two to one majority. The vote was the smallest in the history of the city as less than one-half of the registered voters cast their ballots.

The best showing in the Democratic ranks was in the Third Ward, normally Democratic, where the Republican ticket won by fifty votes.

Interest in the city election was at such a low ebb possibly because of the fact that work on re-writing the town charter to include the city of Rockville and the elimination of the city charter, is to start within a few weeks. The plan of having both one governing body, in place of both the town and city government, has gained such headway during the past month that the little doubt that it will be brought before the coming session of the Connecticut General Assembly in January.

With the unification of the town and city governments, it is planned to have two taxing districts, the first district to embody the present city limits and the second the outlying territory which is the remainder of the township.

The combining of the two governments, it is contended, would reduce the taxes some four or five mills and save the taxpayers a great deal of worry. As the city of Rockville is now conducted, appropriations are to be made tonight for the fiscal year which started on November 15 last and the city taxes will not be collected until next September.

The last of the session at the Tolland Federated church Sunday morning was "Constructive Influence for Good."

Miss Eunice Barrows of Northampton, Mass., was a week-end guest of Miss Florence Meacham.

The regular meeting of Tolland Grange will be held Tuesday evening in the social rooms of the Federated church. The lecturers' hour will be in charge of the Home Economics committee.

Mrs. Elizabeth Allen of East Windsor was a week-end guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lathrop West of Sulpice Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Emery Clough had as Sunday guests Mr. and Mrs. Lee Darling and daughter Dorothy and Edward Benson of Hartford and Mrs. John Darling of Newington. John Darling who has spent some time at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clough, returned to his home in Newington Sunday.

Tolland members of the Rockville Community Garden Club have been invited to the annual Christmas party of the club to be held Tuesday evening at eight o'clock at the home of Judge and Mrs. John E. Flak on Prospect street, Rockville.

Mrs. Ellen Benson West and daughter, Hazel, of Hartford, spent the week-end with relatives.

L. Ernest Hall, who hurt his shoulder several weeks ago is now able to attend to his work.

At the annual meeting of Maria Newell, Tent No. 22, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, held Thursday evening in Rockville, Mrs. Minnie Metcalf was re-elected president of the organization and Mrs. Maud Clough one of the Council members.

The Ladies Aid society of the Tolland Federated church will serve its regular monthly supper next Friday evening at 6 o'clock in the church dining rooms. The community is invited.

"I'M THROUGH WITH BEING DEPRESSED!"

"FOR the past three years I have lived a horrible life. There has been nothing the matter with me except that I have been scared stiff. After three years of fright, during which none of the things I was afraid of happened, it is high time I changed and began to live like a normal human being once more.

"My salary was cut, yes, but it really wasn't very serious, and I can certainly still live pretty well, and a lot better than I have been living lately.

"I propose to start living here and now—today!

"In my closet there are two business suits. One is too badly worn for any man in my position to wear at all. It will go to some one who really needs it. The other I can wear when I do odd jobs around the house. I'm going to buy two new suits, and wear them on alternate days, for that's the way to get the best wear out of them. I'm going to buy an overcoat and a hat too.

"My shirts have fringes on the cuffs. My underwear is patched, and my darned socks are ugly and uncomfortable. My shoes have been half-soled, and the uppers are cracked. I am buying an entire new outfit, and my old things are going where they will do some real good. I'm going to stop being ashamed of my appearance.

"My wife needs dresses, underwear, shoes, hats, gloves. I've given her the cash to buy them with. 'Get everything you need,' I told her, 'nothing more and nothing less!'

"The living-room rug is a sight. Out it goes, and in comes a new one. The sofa needs repair and recovering. It's going to be done. We need new curtains, new napkins, new towels, even new sheets. Did you ever sleep on patched sheets? Never again!

"My old automobile has 56,000 miles on it, and the best you can say for it is it still runs. The paint is dull and chipped, the nickel is rusty, the upholstery stained and worn threadbare, and there are enough rattles and squeaks to amuse all the babies from now to kingdom come. Every few hundred miles some annoying little repair costs me from 50 cents to $5. It nearly burnt up one night because the insulation had worn off a wire, causing a short circuit. I'm going to buy a new car because I need it and want it and because I can afford it.

"My old radio still works, but I know that during the past three years there have been big improvements. The new radios sound a lot better, look better, are easier to work, and they give you more stations. There's a new radio coming to our house.

"I'm going to buy the books I have been wanting to read. I'm going to see the shows I want to see. I'm going to buy everything I need and can really afford.

"And I'm going to contribute generously to the unemployed, because, like most Americans, I want to help people in distress.

"It all comes down to this—I am going to live the kind of life I am entitled to lead. In living that life I am aiding others, directly and indirectly, to live their own lives by helping to provide them with the money and work they need.

"I'm through with being depressed in body and soul. From now on, see my smile and Watch My Dust!" (Signed)
John W. S.

3,000 MARCHERS PRESENT PLEAS IN WASHINGTON

Garner walked out of his office and said: "Good morning, gentlemen," and then spying one woman in the group added "good morning, young lady."

Benjamin spoke for the delegation. He said: "We request an opportunity for representatives of the unemployed to present their demands before Congress. We represent the 3,000 who came here. The previous Congress and those who make it up do not justify any confidence that this program will be acted on. But we feel that its presentation at least we have represented their views."

"We would like some statement from you that we could carry back that there would be some relief this winter and unemployment insurance."

Benjamin made his plea, Speaker Garner said: "I'll take it under consideration. That is all I ever do when people present a plea, whether they be hunger marchers, Senators or farmers."

Were Behind Time "I looked for you at 10:30 o'clock, the time your representative said you would be here. Now it is almost time for Congress to meet, in fact within five minutes. I am compelled to leave you now."

Detaining the Speaker, Benjamin said: "The eyes of the entire people are now focused on you and Congress to see what you are going to do to relieve them."

"What is your attitude on the question?" he demanded. Garner replied: "I think if you take the Congressional Record of last spring you will find my attitude." He referred to his relief bill calling for an outlay of $2,200,000,000 for public buildings and other Federal activities.

"Everybody wants work," Benjamin said. "I am willing for everybody to have a job," Garner said, "and I'll make every effort I can to get them work. I'll contribute that much. Now I must bid you goodbye."

"We'll carry your message back to the people," one young girl demonstrator yelled.

When Garner turned toward his private office, a big policeman said: "Gangway," and the group hastily departed.

PREPARE TO MARCH Washington, Dec. 6.—(AP)—After 36 hours of virtual confinement on a barricaded stretch of pavement in the outskirts, hundreds of demonstrators formed ranks today for a march to the foot of Capitol Hill under police supervision.

Orders for the bluecoats to open their ranks and clear the barricades were given by Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, who last night granted the marchers a permit to parade after holding them in their byways during the opening day of Congress. They had hoped to present their demands in a demonstration at the Capitol yesterday.

At 9 o'clock the marchers lined up for coffee and sandwiches supplied by their leaders.

Dozens of the approximately 200 who were allowed to spend the night in downtown Washington, mostly women, poured into the camp to take part in the parade.

Most of the demonstrators seemed to be in a good humor.

As the marchers prepared to move on the Capitol the guards on the huge Treasury building and on the new $17,000,000 Department of Commerce building were strengthened.

Treasury Guard

At the Treasury only one entrance, the main one on 16th street, was open.

The others were barred by huge iron doors back of which were the two usual guards supported further down the corridor by another guard in plain clothes. At the center door two guards were on duty and just inside the building others were stationed.

The Treasury guards were armed with tear gas guns while the Department of Commerce guards were revolvers. The Treasury guards said they expected no trouble but were prepared.

At the Capitol, David Levinson, of Philadelphia, legal representative of the marchers, called on Speaker Garner and informed him that "the delegation will be here in an hour."

Levinson was asked what delegation and replied "The Hunger Marchers."

"Is that so, Levinson?" Garner asked.

"My name is Levinson, not Levinson. What's the difference?" Garner countered with a laugh.

Garner previously had refused the demonstrators permission to parade on the Capitol grounds and had made no change in his decision although he said he would receive a representative delegation in his office.

Police at the House side of the Capitol were re-enforced. Plain clothes men were stationed outside of Speaker Garner's office and in the corridors.

The plaza was cleared of automobiles. Extra policemen were stationed along the driveway leading into it.

Guards were increased at the entrances to the House chamber and temporary fences were placed in the passageways.

A string of police patrol wagons and officers preceded the marchers who were five abreast in a line about a half mile long as they started their parade toward downtown Washington.

The marching column was flanked on both sides by policemen who walked along with the demonstrators. There was a bluecoat every six feet.

Motorcycle policemen were about every hundred feet. Firemen were patrolling the sidewalks to hold spectators back.

As the marchers reached the foot of the viaduct leading into downtown Washington, there was a scattering burst of applause from spectators.

Walking with Reynolds and Benjamin were a negro and Anne Burialk of Providence, R. I., leader of the women among the demonstrators.

Special Gas Squad Police patrols containing a special squad equipped with gas, armed with tear gas and another more powerful gas were spread along the line of march.

As they marched the different groups set up yells, shouted in unison like college cheers.

"We Want Bread; To Hell With Beer," they yelled.

Other yells were "Unite and Fight," and "We Demand Unemployment Insurance."

Small crowds of onlookers gathered at street corners and among the unmarred traffic, and for the most part were silent.

As word reached the Capitol that the march had started, spectators by the hundred crowded about.

On the Capitol Plaza and inside the big domed building were swarms of police.

Crowds thronged the area between the Capitol and Union station when the marchers went to halt. Vice President Curtis and Speaker Garner.

At 11:10 a. m., the marchers came within full view of the Capitol, their banners waving in the sun and some of them stretching almost across the street.

The column moved in orderly procession.

PRESIDENT PROPOSES GENERAL SALES TAX

plan of payments due the United States on December 15 next, to be accompanied by exchange of views upon this debt question. Our government has informed them that we do not approve of suspension of the December 15 payments. I have stated that I would recommend to the Congress methods to overcome temporary exchange difficulties in connection with this payment from nations where it may be necessary."

Upon the finding of solutions to international questions, the President said, depends "the preservation of civilization." He added that solutions could not be found except "by honest friendship, by adherence to agreements entered upon until mutually revised and by cooperation amongst the nations."

The Chief Executive linked closely the goals of world peace, world disarmament and world recovery, and spoke of currency depreciation and the decrease in price levels in connection with the projected world economic conference.

Trade Barriers "From these origins rise most of the destructive trade barriers now stifling the commerce of the world," he said. "We could by successful action increase security and expand trade through stability in international exchange and monetary values. By such action world confidence could be restored. It would bring courage and stability, which will reflect into every home in our land."

The President spoke but briefly of general legislation in his message. He said he would send special messages to Congress "where necessary." He recalled that in previous messages he had urged among other things reform in transportation and power regulation, reform in the anti-trust laws as related to natural resource industries, membership in the world court, ratification of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway treaty, revision of the bankruptcy act, and of Federal court procedure.

Turning to taxation, he said that some of the older revenues and those in the billion dollar tax bill "generally referred to as nuisance taxes," had failed to produce the income hoped for, many of the manufacturers' excise taxes upon selected industries, he said, have proved "unjust and discriminatory."

"The time has come," he said, "when, if the government is to have an adequate basis of revenue to assure a balanced budget, this system of special manufacturers' excise taxes should be extended to cover practically all manufacturers at a uniform rate, except necessary food and possibly some grades of clothing."

Speaking of the general state of the union, Mr. Hoover included tabulated figures to show that the public health is today at its highest known level, with general mortality at 10.8 per 1,000 and infant mortality at 55.

He inserted a table also to "show the general economic movement during the past 11 months." The figures in all cases were below the level of last January, but in all except factory employment, department store sales and export and import values showed improvement over May.

His annual message was read to the House and Senate a few minutes after each convened for the second day of the new session.

The scenes were vibrant over prohibition developments, and the clamorous column of 3,000 demonstrators who stood at the edge of the Capitol grounds while their leaders submitted to Vice President Curtis and Speaker Garner petitions demanding cash relief for the jobless and unemployment insurance.

As the reading clerk informed the members that the President believed it was necessary to impose a manufacturers' sales tax covering almost everything but food, and to cut Federal employees' salaries by eleven per cent, comment both favorable and sharply critical was immediately forthcoming.

Praised by Republicans Republican leaders praised the President's stand, especially his recommendations for the sales tax and for revising the entire banking system of the country. Democrats in many cases were strongly critical.

Vice-President Curtis presented to the Senate a petition he had received but a while before from a delegation of ten demonstrators.

Only about a half of the membership was present on the House floor in contrast to yesterday's great attendance when the Democratic prohibition repeal proposal was defeated.

The galleries also were but partially filled.

Little attention was paid by the members to the reading. They conversed in various parts of the chamber, so that Representative Snell, of New York, Republican leader, had to ask Speaker Garner to restore order.

Senate galleries also had many vacant seats.

Most of the Republican members were present.

In the midst of the reading, Senator Watson, (Republican leader), broke precedent by interrupting to ask that the clerk be excused from reading the tables included in the speech.

The Senate agreed to skip them. Most Senators followed the address in printed copies as it was read. But, typically, Senator Huey Long (D., La.), was constantly on the move, chatting with one Senator after another. Others too stopped reading and chatted together in the rear of the chamber.

The scene was in strange contrast to the last time the Senate received a major presidential message when President Hoover appeared personally last spring to appeal for adoption of a modified sales tax.

Only a majority is required in House and Senate to enact such a measure, as compared with the two-thirds vote needed for approval of constitutional amendments such as that rejected in the House yesterday by a 144 to 372 vote.

That vote showed a 128 majority in favor of outright prohibition repeal, and a change of six votes would have given a two-thirds margin.

Collier estimated to newspapermen that his bill, after being in operation for a while, would yield $300,000,000 annually in revenue.

Another Beer Bill. Meanwhile, Senator Tydings (D., Md.) sponsored a bill to strike one-half of one per cent from the Volstead Act and allow the courts to decide what constitutes an intoxicating beverage.

He will urge early consideration for the measure, which would levy a tax of one cent a glass or two cents a pint on beer. The Senator estimated this would raise $200,000,000 the first year and more later. Senator Watson, the Republican majority leader on that side of the Capitol, said the Senate was "sure" to take up the prohibition issue at this session.

He believed it would be first threshed out in the judiciary committee and he made no attempt to forecast the form of a repeal or beer bill that would come up.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, also is making plans for "prompt" action on the repeal and beer proposals.

Senator Tydings said the Volstead Act as originally drawn covers more territory and usurps more authority than is contained in the 18th Amendment.

The act makes it a crime to manufacture alcoholic beverages, which are not really intoxicating liquors. Thus, it went further than the prohibition of the amendment.

"My bill seeks to enforce the 18th Amendment one hundred per cent and eliminates from the present Volstead Act the penal provisions for the manufacture, sale or transportation of alcoholic liquors which are not in reality intoxicating liquors."

He proposed that the revenues collected from sale of beer should be used to set up an "unemployment reserve fund" in the Treasury of $5,000,000, after which they should be used to meet the general expenses of the government.

A bill to legalize liquor up to 5 per cent alcohol was introduced by Senator Barbour (R., N. J.).

He also is author of a resolution to repeal the 18th Amendment, now on the Senate calendar.

The modification bill protects states rights, Barbour said, by leaving untouched any local enforcement acts now on the statute books.

Senator Blaine (R., Wis.), said he was preparing a resolution repealing the Eighteenth Amendment but providing for regulation of interstate commerce in liquor.

The purpose, he said, "would be to protect the wet states as well as the dry states, so that those which want liquor can get it, and those which want to be dry can keep it out."

The kiddies get a real thrill out of Hale's Annual Sale
Children's Hose
 WITH A GIFT FROM SANTA
39c pair
 (Regular 50c Grades)

The kiddies get a real thrill out of receiving a filled stocking from old Santa, himself. Mothers and friends of little folks come in and buy a pair of these stockings. Leave one stocking of each pair at the store with the name and address of the child to whom you wish to give it. We will fill this stocking with all sorts of surprises and Santa will present it to the child in Toyland Saturday, December 17.

For boys we are featuring part-wool socks. Young girls may have good-looking worsted hose. The very small tots all wool stockings. Open to children 2 to 12. Sale ends Thursday, December 15th.

At HALE'S Hostery Department—Main Floor, right.
