Emergency Employment Association Reviews Projects Suggested As Jobs.

It is expected that increase will be made in the number of workmen employed by the M. E. E. A. upon receipt of pledges to the campaign fund now in progress. At the present time there are but two principal labor projects in operation, one in Center Street park and the Broad Street extension job.

LOSS OF HIS AIDS GIVES SNELL TASK IN 73RD CONGRESS

Washington.—Bertrand Snell of New York, Republican leader of the House, must look with something akin to dismay at the job that faces him in the 73rd Congress.

The Democratic sweep of November 8th not only left gaping holes in his ranks on the left side of the political aisle, but it also tore from his side his most powerful and trusted lieutenants.

First of all, Earl Michener of Michigan will be lost to him. The short, curly-haired Michener has been Snell's right-hand man for perhaps more than any other Republican in the actual direction of G. O. P. forces in the House.

Also snatched from his side is another stalwart, Fred Furnell of Indiana. Furnell shares with Michener the confidence of the leader. In the rough and tumble of debate Snell invariably had one on his right and the other on his left.

That veterans of 18 years in the House, Will Wood of Indiana, former chairman of the powerful appropriations committee, passes from the scene, too.

Snell always summoned the gray-haired, relentless Wood to the quarterdeck when the battle shifted to the fiscal policies of the government. Wood was ready at all times for the call.

Snell in the next Congress must even find him a new whip. The Democratic sweep carried with it Carl Bachmann of West Virginia, who holds that job.

He must also get along without the counsel of Col. Johnny Tilson of Connecticut, formerly Republican leader of the House, and Willis Hawley of Oregon, his tax and tariff expert. Tilson resigned and Hawley went down to defeat in the primaries.

Just whom he will select to "carry on" in the places of these departed ones, only time will tell. He still will have a number to choose from.

Fred Britten of Illinois is a good fighter. He can depend on Ike Bacharach of New Jersey. James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, one of the most scholarly men in the House, also will be available.

SAY BEER WILL BRING MILLIONS INTO TREASURY

(Continued From Page One) could not be purchased by laborers. Asked by Representative Crowther (R., N. Y.), if by legalizing beer, bootlegging would be eliminated, Huber said:

"I believe it won't except to the degree of consumption other sorts of liquors are reduced by those drinking beer. "I don't think anything but a miracle would stop bootlegging, until all sorts of liquors are legalized. "We don't claim beer is a panacea. It's not going to solve the bootleg problem, and it is not going to solve the unemployment problem, and it is not going to solve the farm relief problem, but it will minimize them to some degree."

HEARING OPENS Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Hearings on proposals for beer and light wines began with a rush today in a huge and thronged committee room of the House building with proponents of the legislation crowding to present their cases.

Standing before the powerful ways and means committee of which he is chairman Representative Collier of Mississippi started proceedings with the statement that the proposed alcoholic content of 3.2 per cent for beer and 3 per cent for wine of 81 gallons were "not arbitrary."

"The committee will decide," he said. Among prominent spectators was Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees. Representative Treadway (R., Mass.) asked if the Collier bill would be brought before the judiciary committee, or whether the ways and means committee would handle both the tax phase and the section modifying the Volstead Act.

Collier said that if there was another tax bill, it would be handed separately from the beer bill. Representative Hawley (R., Oregon) said he understood the Collier bill was to receive "preferential treatment."

"It is hoped that this matter can be determined one way or the other before the holidays," Collier replied. As the first witness, Representative Sabath (D., Ill.) urged the committee "to write the right kind of a bill," and do it quickly.

So great was interest that a number of congressmen not on the committee sat with committees behind the large, raised and semi-circular mahogany table facing the audience. Fingering a copy of the Collier bill, Levi Cooke, attorney for the United States Brewers Association testified "it provides a tax for revenue purposes and in another section provides absolute protection to the dry states."

A barrel would reduce to $5 the $6 a barrel tax on beer that is still on the books. Most of the spectators were men, but there was a fair representation of women in the audience. Cooke went into different phases of the measure, noting it means Congress will withdraw from the treaty and ratify over beer, also, porter, not containing more than the prescribed alcoholic content."

Representative Chindblom (R., Ill.) asked "the difference between beer and lager beer." "Lager beer is a beer that has been aged," Cooke explained. "It is the method of treatment to improve its taste." "You gentlemen know well the Webb-Kenyon Act passed in 1913," he said at another point. "This act was passed to protect dry states from inter-state commerce in liquor."

In his view, the Collier bill protects the dry states from importation of the beer authorized by it. Cooke reiterated, "furnished complete and effective safeguard for protection of states and communities which don't want this product." On the basis of court decisions, he

HEAR TRANSPORTATION PETITION OF CHAPONIS

State Board Representative Meets With Local Board On Appeal of Buckland Man. George R. Sturges, senior supervisor of attendance and employment of the State Board of Education, presided over a hearing at the high school this afternoon in which a petition to the State board requesting transportation for school children was filed by Charles Chaponis of Buckland.

Chaponis requested only transportation during the winter months. He has three children, Anna 12, Anastasia 10, Charles 6. No other children live in the section that attended the Buckland school. For a period of eight years, Chaponis said he was paid to transport his and other children in the neighborhood to school.

Last year his children attended Wapping school but a few weeks ago they were involved in an exchange affecting the two towns and Chaponis attended the Wapping school again. Attorney George C. Lesner presented the case of Chaponis before Mr. Sturges. The petition claims that the local board of education "neglected and refused" to provide his children with transportation. Attorney Lesner called attention to the fact that the old seventh district committee apparently thought transportation was necessary during its term.

Only three members of the board of education were present at today's session, Edward J. Murphy, Mrs. Lillian B. Bowers and Mrs. Andrew J. Healey. None had any statement to make when queried by Mr. Sturges. Supt. F. A. Verplanck spoke briefly telling of the distance the Chaponis children had to go to school. Attorney Lesner made it plain that Mr. Chaponis was not attempting to get a job for himself; that he would be satisfied regardless who transported the children.

Mr. Sturges said he had found board of education at its meeting next month and a decision announced at that time.

OBITUARY

DEATHS WELL KNOWN VETERAN RAILROAD MAN DIES James O. Bacon, Friend of Many Old Timers Here, Passes Away At 85. Many old-timers in Manchester, especially those who used the railroad frequently, will regret to learn of the passing of James O. Bacon at his home in Willimantic yesterday at the advanced age of 85 years. Mr. Bacon was for years a well known conductor on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, running between Putnam and Hartford. He started his railroad career as a brakeman on what was then the Hartford, Providence & Fitchburg. Later it became the New York & New England and still later was taken over by the New Haven railroad. Mr. Bacon was retired in 1919 and had since that time made his home in Willimantic. He was known by every person who commuted between Putnam and Hartford. And to his credit let it be said that in all his years as a conductor he did not have a single black mark.

John J. Dwyer, the present agent at the Manchester station, who began railroading when a boy, was a particular friend of Mr. Bacon. He maintained his acquaintance with him after he retired and within the last few months Mr. Bacon stopped off at Manchester to visit his friend.

DECISION RESERVED Bridgeport, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Judge F. P. McEvoy reserved decision today in the mandamus action brought by William L. Conley, seeking to compel the state board of canvassers to certify his election as State Senator from the 21st district. Conley, Democrat, apparently defeated his Republican opponent, Fred W. Harrison, by 25 votes. Dr. William L. Higgins, secretary of state and a member of the board was the only witness. He testified the board delayed the certification of the election in the 21st district because of pending court action brought by Harrison. The latter sought a reannulment of the vote, but his petition for a mandamus was denied recently by Judge McEvoy. Harrison has filed an appeal from the action of the Superior Court.

THINK 90 KILLED IN BIG EXPLOSION

Men Trapped in New Mexico Mine — Doctors Rushed To Scene. Albuquerque, N. M., Dec. 7.—An explosion in the Morgan coal mine at Madrid, N. M., 40 miles north of here, caused death today to a number of miners, early estimates ranging from eighty to ninety. All available ambulance equipment and physicians were rushed from Albuquerque.

The company's office at Albuquerque reported "eight or nine" miners were killed, but unofficial reports placed the number as high as thirty. Passengers on a train at Domingo, who were in Madrid this morning, said they understood about 70 men were killed. One of the passengers said he saw flames leap high into the air from the mouth of the mine after the blast.

Company officials said they were not certain how many miners were at work when the explosion occurred and declined to make an estimate. Those familiar with mining operations at Madrid reported about 100 men are employed ordinarily.

Bodies Recovered A telephone call from Domingo, about 15 miles from the mine, from one of the train passengers indicated eight or nine bodies had been covered and that at least sixty men, many of them believed to be dead, were trapped inside. The fire prevented rescue workers from penetrating the mine immediately. Warren Braceland, state mine inspector, left Albuquerque to aid in the rescue work and to make an investigation.

The explosion occurred in a soft coal mine of the Albuquerque and Cerrillos Coal Company, located one mile from Madrid. There are no telephone facilities in the town and this prevented reports from being confirmed immediately. Company officials said the mine had been closed and that it reopened only this morning. They said the normal number of miners was not on duty and they believed that no more than ten were killed and that none was trapped.

MRS. ANNIE HOPSON, REPORTER, IS DEAD

Bradford, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Annie Hopson, who for 85 years enjoyed the thrills and experiences of being a small town correspondent for newspapers, died today at her home. She served the New Haven Register for that period of years as well as the Associated Press and was known the length of the north shore of Long Island Sound from her home to the Connecticut coast.

Unlike so many who follow the profession of a newspaper correspondent she carefully preserved clippings of news events of Bradford. They are contained in 40 volumes which are a part of the history records in the town library. Mrs. Hopson came here as a young girl from Scotland backed with a diploma of her skill as a telegrapher. She made New Haven her home and was employed by telegraph companies. She married on the day that she returned here and widowhood she returned to her home in the Register's correspondence. First she used a bicycle to cover a "beat" along the shore; then a horse and carriage; later an automobile. She was an intimate friend of the late Ella Wheeler Wilford.

Triciple Mrs. Hopson made a trip to Scotland to see a brother. A few years ago she gave up newspaper work and had lived quietly at her home since.

TO AID TOBACCO MEN

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The Federal Farm Board reported today it had conducted a preliminary investigation into the possibility of developing a tobacco growers cooperative association in Connecticut. With the cooperation of growers and state agencies, the board said in its annual review, the inquiries had been made in Connecticut, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

"The board has had an important share in the renewed development of the cooperative tobacco marketing since 1929" said the report. "A successfully coordinated tobacco marketing system must be developed by working out types of production which can solve the peculiar marketing problems confronting tobacco producers."

CONFER ON DEBTS

Premier Herriot Will Make No Decision Until After the Conference.

Paris, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Premier Herriot said today that he will make no decision regarding the French policy on the money owed the United States until after he has talked tomorrow with Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain.

Mr. MacDonald was in town today, but the two premiers will await the arrival of Neville Chamberlain, British chancellor of the exchequer, who is due tonight, before undertaking discussion of the situation.

M. Herriot quoted Mr. MacDonald as having said that the purpose of this Franco-British parley is first to clarify the attitude of France toward England and toward the United States; second, to discuss the debt which France owes England, and third, to talk over the Lausanne accord.

Some Alternatives
The premier attended a Cabinet meeting this morning, and it was understood that the ministers had examined several alternatives—payment of the American debt installment this month without reservation, payment in bonds, assignment of the amount due to the World Bank or the Bank of France, and arbitration which would cover all possible solutions from payment to refusal to pay.

"In any event," said M. Herriot this afternoon, "we must take into account the attitude of Great Britain. When I was talking to Mr.
MacDonald at Geneva he said to me that it would be best for him to come up here with his chancellor and talk things over. He said there were some obscure points to be cleared up.

"I know the American Congress has our second note before it, but I don't know what the reply will be or whether there will be any reply."

Y. M. C. A. Notes

The Washington Y. M. C. A. club known as the "Doves" visited the Y.
M. C. A. last night and gave a demonstration of how the club works.

Its regular weekly program and order of business was conducted and the discussion on finger prints was led by Mr. Sharpe. The leaders from the local Y. groups were invited to attend the meeting and enjoyed seeing what one of the most successful groups in the state is doing. Plans are on foot to have a similar group here made up of the leaders from all the groups in the association.

Last night the Senior Basketball league had its games. The Rangers and the Eagles played at 8 o'clock and the Shamrocks vs the boys of Joe's Filling station at 9 p. m.
Rangers won 45-21, and Joe's defeated Shamrocks 35-23.

Friday night the A. Glass County league team from Southington will be here at 8:30 to meet the local A. team. After the game the leaders of the Senior League are planning a dance. Tickets to the game will admit to the dance.

Tonight the Intermediate League will get a chance to try its wings again when the first game at 6:30 will be played between the Oxfords and the Wildcats. The North Ends and Community Filling Station will play and the boys from Talcottville will play the Falcons.

The first half of the meetings of the jewelry class which meets on Wednesday at 7:30 ends tomorrow night. There is room for a few more in this class and any interested in seeing the work this is being accomplished are asked to come to the Y Wednesday and see the class actually at work. The fee for this expert instruction is very small.

V. P. W. POST OPPOSED TO ECONOMY LEAGUE

Anderson-Shea Group Questions
Sincerity of Drive
Against Veteran Benefactors.

Members of Anderson-Shea Post
No. 2048, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at a regular meeting held last night expressed its opposition to the anti-veteran objectives of the National Economy League following a discussion of this movement led by J.
H. Holshelmer, aide to Department Commander James J. Lee of Wil-liamsite. Holshelmer questioned the sincerity of the Economy League because of its concentration on a proposed reduction in veteran benefits.

Holshelmer, who has spent the past month working with Hartford County Council and Departmental committees combating the work of the Economy League, stated that the great majority of veterans were opposed and it followed that the veterans of the United States are just as interested as any other citizens in the economical administration of federal expenditures.

However, he naturally resented the discrimination against disabled and needy veterans.

Statistics were presented to members of the post last night, tending to show the "charge" that the World War veterans is responsible for the major portion of existing federal expenditures in behalf of veterans. It was pointed out that the present budget includes possible payments to seven widows of veterans of the War of 1812; 423 widows of veterans of the Mexican War;
5,172 veterans and 4,403 widows of veterans of the Indian War; 33,433
Civil War veterans, 198,401 Spanish-American War veterans, 35,829 widows of the Spanish-American War veterans, 530 Spanish-American War nurses; 17,893 soldiers who are retired from the regular army under the general pension law, and 4,429 widows of regular army retired veterans.

EDUCATION

A Series of Articles Discussing Modern Methods of Training the Youth of Our Country.

THE CASE OF THE SCHOOLS

How many of us could make a fair statement of just what the situation of education is today? The briefest statement of the case is: increased responsibility with decreased resources. Up and down the land pupils are flocking into the school houses. They come from four sources: those who would ordinarily have quit school for a job; those who have quit and are now returning; those who are entering high school for the first time after a long interval since elementary school; and finally, post-graduates, those who have graduated but who want to remain a year longer since no employment is in view. For the last type of education New York City has made a special appropriation of a substantial sum. In several communities these four groups compose over ten per cent of the total high school enrollment. Statistics mean little to one not grounded in the background of the total situation. But in 1914 our total school enrollment was 1,500,000 for high schools; in 1930 the figure was 4,800,000. Figures for high school costs alone are not reliably estimated at the moment but costs for all education, elementary, secondary, and collegiate, paid for by the public are. In 1914 all public education cost about $900,000,000; in 1930 the expense was about $2,500,000,000. High school education is much more expensive than elementary education. But large as our educational bill may be we spent five times as much for pleasure cars in the depression year of 1930 as we spent for all public education.

The causes of the increased expenditures are as follows: Depreciation of the buying power of the dollar, 48 per cent; increased attendance, 27 per cent; all other costs, 24 per cent. Other costs include additional equipment, added subjects, and increased salary expenses. There has been a 20 per cent increase in all school enrollment and an actual attendance increase of 50 per cent. The average school term has grown from 158 days to 172 days, about 8 per cent. High school attendance has actually increased 500 per cent, this figure being arrived at by considering the increased enrollment; the more faithful attendance, and the increased school year. Today there are 20 per cent more boys and girls of the whole country between the ages of 5-17 in school than there were in 1914.

With the enormous number of pupils enrolled in our schools one might suppose the growth at an end. A prediction will be ventured in the other direction. The greatest factor in American life for twenty-five years has been the mechanization of industry. Except for a trifle in the home and on the farm employment of youth under 18-20 years of age will very soon disappear entirely. Monotonous work, shorter days, with shorter weeks will be the order of things in the future. All this is going to increase the school's burden. Not only will greater numbers enter but these greater numbers will be of increasingly lower mental caliber. In turn they will have to be provided with study material simpler than even today's offerings although their low intellectual intelligence will require more highly trained teachers to properly educate them.

Such persons will have to be divided up into smaller groups than we have at present because they will individually require more of the teacher's attention. Finally, these new-comers will have to be provided with materials and facilities so that they may use their hands much of the time; they will be unable to sit and concentrate with books and papers. In short the school will have to take care of increasing numbers of duller pupils, requiring more expert attention in smaller groups, and greater supplies and facilities for manual work will be required for passing their time in school. American life has been becoming increasingly easier in the twentieth century. Today masses of people, who a generation ago would be toiling long hours at manual labor, find light work for short hours. Millions there are who do not want much; they do not care about having very much learning, property, or voting privileges. If the state forces such persons into the schools and the schools continue to offer them work suitable for college preparatory pupils, they will sullenly waste their time. Instead of removing what at first glance seem to be useless frills and fancy trappings, we actually must steadily add such seemingly frothy things. Over half of us will spend our entire lives enjoying just such stuff. If any reader wishes a picture of the lower fifty per cent let him read "Life Among the Lowbrows."

RAPS FEDERAL TAX

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Representative William L. Tierney of the Fourth Connecticut District today received from Patrick Healey of Waterbury, counsel for the Connecticut Motor Stage Association, Inc., a letter urging him to support repeal of the Federal gasoline tax. Healey said the organization was composed of independent bus operators. Just before he voted in favor of suspending the House rules to permit consideration of the resolution to repeal the 18th Amendment, Tierney received a letter from F. A. Cantwell, of Bridgeport, president of the Connecticut Hotel Association, reporting that the organization favored repeal.

"I consider that the hotel industry in our state is in jeopardy without repeal," wrote Cantwell.

JACK MEETS ESTELLE

Albany, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion and Estelle Taylor, actress wife from whom he was separated by a divorce decree, met by accident here today and had breakfast together.

Jack who had been officiating as referee in boxing bouts at Buffalo, arrived here this morning on his way to Glens Falls. At the hotel where he stopped for breakfast the clerk told him his former wife, filling a theatrical engagement in the city was a guest. Dempsey telephoned Estelle and was invited to take breakfast with her. Later he left for Glens Falls.

POLICE STATION ROBBED

Lynfield, Mass., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Officer, call a cop! Chief of Police Albert G. Tedford, who is 83, and his force (both of them) reported today that during the night police headquarters had been visited by a thief or thieves.

Entrance had been gained by removing the front door from its hinges. Pictures and other decorative items were removed from the walls. Constabulary raiment was yanked from hooks and thrown on the floor, and the department's short wave radio set was stolen. The crime was committed during the enforced absence of Officer Henry Smith, acting commandant, who was on a tour of pavement duty.

They say an ocean liner's cabin is the safest spot in the world and a Pullman berth comes next. So if you stay at home—it's at your own risk.

TO STUDY COAL TREATY

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Attorney General Mitchell will rule on whether the anthracite tariff violates treaties with Great Britain and Germany.

Senator Reed (R., Pa.), told newspapermen today he had obtained an agreement from Secretaries Stimson and Mills to refer the question to the Justice Department. Levying of the import tax recently was suspended upon representations that the law enacted last spring contravened treaty stipulations. The Pennsylvania Senator, accompanied by Erico Disque of New York City, executive director of the Anthracite Institute, conferred with Stimson early this morning. He received Mills' consent at the White House when the secretary of the Treasury momentarily left a conference with the President.

TO SETTLE ESTATE

Winston, S. C., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Negotiations looking toward a final settlement in February of the estate of the late Smith Reynolds, tobacco fortune heir, have been begun by attorneys for the Reynolds family and Mrs. Libby Holmes Reynolds, the youthful millionaire's widow.

Benet Pollock, Winston Salem attorney retained by Alfred Holman, Cincinnati, Ohio, lawyer, to represent his daughter when Mrs. Reynolds was indicted for murder in connection with young Reynolds' death, announced today settlement of the estate had been started.

Pollock refused to disclose any figures or to say along what lines the settlement would be made. He said Holman had come here last week to confer with him.

Mrs. Reynolds, former Broadway torch singer, and Albert Walker, Winston Salem youth, were cleared of murder charges in connection with Reynolds' death when the indictments against them was not pressed by Solicitor Carlisle Higgins for "lack of evidence."

LAUDS ROOSEVELT PLAN

Philadelphia, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Dr. Edward S. Mead, professor of corporation finance of the University of Pennsylvania, told the Engineers Club today that "the voluntary allotment plan, which represents President-elect Roosevelt's ideas of effective farm relief, offers the best method immediately available to bring the country out of the business depression."

"The voluntary allotment plan," said Dr. Mead, "aims to restore farm prices at least to the levels of 1928."

MOTHER BEING TRIED FOR POISONING SON

Toronto, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The crown closed its case today against Mrs. Katherine Whalon, East Dorset, Vt., charged with the murder of her four year old son, Cornelius, last September by poison. Two prominent alienists both concurred the woman was a victim of a disease of the mind known as "manic depressive insanity."

Dr. Bert T. McGhie, superintendent of the Provincial hospital, was the last witness called. Defense counsel, Katharine Mackay, said she offered no evidence. Dr. McGhie said his opinion was the same as that of Dr. C. B. Fraser, of the Psychiatric hospital. Throughout all the evidence, Mrs. Whalon, clothed in a fur trimmed coat, hat and wearing gloves, sat unmoved. Even the story of how the child died as recounted by the Crown counsel in his address to the jury failed to move her.

The home environment and relationship were of such a nature as to be certain to bring about her condition in that temperament," McGhie said.

CONGRESS GIVEN REDUCED BUDGET

President Recommends Excise Tax and Slash In Veterans' Benefits.

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—President Hoover presented to Congress today a drastically reduced budget, recommending a 2 1/2 per cent cut in government salaries, and a big slash in veterans benefits.

He asked for total appropriations of $4,218,808,344, saying net expenditures would total $3,256,254,900 against receipts of $2,949,162,713—leaving a deficit of $307,121,187. It was to offset this that the new tax was proposed.

No mention of war debts was made in the presidential message, but the report of the secretary of the Treasury, sent to Congress simultaneously, disclosed that payments due from foreign nations had been included in striking the government's balance.

Neither did Mr. Hoover make any mention of legalization of beer.

Estimated internal revenue collections included no figure from this source.

Present Deficit

The President estimated the present fiscal year would end next June with a deficit of $1,149,478,307. Expenditures being $3,770,783,000 and estimated receipts $2,624,256,693. Of this deficit he said:

"Such a situation can not be continued without disaster to the Federal finances. . . . It can not too strongly urge that every effort be made to limit expenditures and avoid additional obligations not only in the interest of the already heavily burdened taxpayers but in the interest of the very integrity of the finances of the Federal government."

In his veterans' emergency proposal the President defied those clamoring for bonus payment and maintenance of present benefits, by recommending to Congress legislation which would strip $127,000,000 worth of pensions, compensation and allowances off the rolls. This would be done by limiting all benefits, except to ex-soldiers with claims based on active service at over 65, to persons with a net income, if single, of less than $3,500. If married, of less than $3,500. Wholesale re-examination of those on the rolls would be followed by removal at the end of six months of ninety days depending on category, of all not qualifying under the new terms.

Benefits Reduced

Many specific forms of benefit would be reduced, including pension to veterans receiving hospitalization, and stringent administrative regulation would limit further additions to the rolls.

To cover his proposals for new tax and economy legislation the President in his message departed from custom, gave a list of appropriations as recommended in the budget itself, and flanked it with his own further reduced figures. Without his veterans and pay cut savings, estimated reductions totalled $397,553,000. With these included, $581,923,000 was trimmed below the actual appropriations for the current fiscal year.

The new tax proposed by the President—essentially the same manufacturers sales tax advocated in Congress last year but extended to include everything except food at a flat 2 1/2 per cent—was estimated to yield $355,000,000. Continuance of the one-cent tax on gasoline—which unless re-enacted would end next June—was estimated to produce $137,000,000. The total of $492,000,000 would cover the estimated deficit for the year.

The government pay cut proposed would affect all income above the first $1,000 of annual wage or salary, saving an estimated $55,000,000. It would be imposed in addition to the present 30-day payless furlough which constitutes an 8 1/3 per cent salary reduction.

The pay cut recommendation was accompanied by a draft of legislation to put it into effect. This provided that all government-owned corporations impose similar cuts on their employees.

Building Program Except for a few miscellaneous projects, no provision was included for additional projects in the government's huge building program. The President said the $100,000,000 authorized under the emergency relief act of the last Congress had taken care of all additional public construction now needed.

The budget provided $588,477,000 for national defense, as compared with $632,466,000 last year. It carried $39,388,120 for rivers and harbors work, a reduction of $20,161,871; and $40,000,000 for the Federal aid highway system. Mr. Hoover said no more than this should be allotted to highway aid until the Treasury is in better condition.

The President said appropriations for public works in his budget were less than those for the present year.

"Speaking generally of public works, this program is well in advance of the country's immediate need by virtue of the vast appropriations made for this purpose as a means of increasing employment. The authorization of large programs of self-liquidation works to be financed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation provides aid to employment upon an even larger scale, without burden upon the taxpayer."

Autographed Articles Given By Mrs. Hoover, Mrs. Roosevelt and Mary Pickford To Go For Relief.

The Golden Rule Club of the Talcottville Congregational church will hold an entertainment and auction of fancy articles and home cooked foods in Talcott Hall on Friday at 8 p. m. It will be given by local talent. The auction will start at 9:15 and will be open to the public. Among the articles to be offered is a picture of the White House autographed and contributed by Mrs. Herbert Hoover; also a white silk handkerchief with autograph contributed by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and a green silk novelty with autograph donated by "America's Sweetheart," Mary Pickford. The club made an appeal to these women and received a ready response. The proceeds of this sale will be used by the club to carry on their work among the needy.

Since the Golden Rule Club was organized eight years ago it has done a worthy work. It has sent two fully dressed "friendship" dolls to Japan for the doll festival, two "friendship" school bags to the school children of Mexico, two treasure chests to the children of the Philippines and has also contributed money and clothing to the Mountain Whites of our own United States. A part of each year work is given over to a foreign friend, Robert M. Reid, well known auctioneer will be in charge of the auction. The public is invited.

THINK STUDENT'S DEATH WAS THROUGH ACCIDENT

London, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Coroner Bentley Purchase ordered an inquiry today in the strange death of J. O. Kent Sanders, an American student of Roxbury, Mass., who was found dying after a private party last Thursday.

The coroner started an inquest today but adjourned it until Friday declaring that there was "another line of inquiry which could be followed up."

The coroner said that if the matter rested on evidence already submitted as to the death of the young man, it was clearly accidental. "But I am not going to deal with the matter finally today," Mr. Purchase said. "There is another line of inquiry which could be followed up. I shall have another inquiry made in the meantime."

The evidence thus far tended to show Sanders was trying to climb down a pipe from a second-story window to a garden when he fell and sustained fatal injuries. Sanders was a graduate of Harvard University and a student in the London School of Economics. The head of the school early this week said he felt investigation would show the death of the student to be a sad and deplorable accident. Fellow boarders said Sanders was a quiet young man of conservative tendency.

COLD IN MINNESOTA

Helena, Mont., Dec. 7.—(AP)—On the wings of a biting wind that created a blizzard in the northern part of the state, sub-zero temperatures spread over much of Montana today. Snow was general over the state.

From a maximum reading of 17 above zero, the mercury had skidded to 8 below zero in Helena. Lewistown and Butte both reported 6 below with the weather growing colder. A strong wind at Great Falls whipped four to eight inches of snow about and sent the thermometer down to 4 below.

In Canada, whence the storm came, Calgary experienced 12 below zero weather.

SALES TAX ISSUE BOBS UP AGAIN

Secretary Mills Tosses It Back Into the Lap of Congress Today.

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The turbulent sales tax issue was tossed squarely back into the lap of Congress today by Secretary Mills with a recommendation that a 2 1/2 per cent general manufacturers levy be adopted.

In his annual report, the secretary of the Treasury said the present specific excise taxes adopted at the last session of Congress had failed to produce the expected revenue and he proposed their repeal. Mills directly asked the House to reverse itself. Only six months ago, that body bolted its leadership to vote down a one and three-quarters per cent sales tax, and the issue was not even brought to a vote in the Senate.

Drastic reduction in governmental expenditures was insisted upon by the secretary who predicted that the present fiscal year would end next June with a deficit of $1,149,000,000 and the following year, at the present pace, with a deficit of $307,000,000 exclusive of debt retirement. He said government spending could be reduced by $479,000,000 in the 1934 fiscal year if recommendations made by the President in his budget message were followed.

Keep Gas Tax

Mr. Mills asked Congress to retain the one-cent a gallon tax on gasoline, which was to be effective only until next June, saying if it was continued for another year it would provide an additional $137,000,000 of revenue, reducing the estimated deficit by that amount. It is not feasible, he said, to provide for resumption of the normal reduction of the public debt in 1934 but urged that otherwise the budget be balanced.

His recommendation was: "That those excise taxes which experience has demonstrated are relatively unproductive and give rise to serious administrative difficulties be repealed, and that there be imposed a general manufacturers' excise tax substantially in the form appearing in the bill originally reported by the ways and means committee of the House of Representatives during the last session of Congress."

It is estimated that such a measure with the 2 1/2 per cent rate will yield about $355,000,000, assuming a full year's collections, thus making possible the elimination of a number of the unproductive new excise taxes.

Some Misunderstanding "In view of the misunderstanding as evidenced in the Congressional debates of last winter, I must emphasize that I am not recommending a general sales or turnover tax with the inevitable pyramiding of the tax but a manufacturers' excise tax, imposed at one point only. The manufacturers' excise tax has referred to by Mills, levied a tax upon all finished manufactures, excepting only food and moderate priced clothing. Later other exemptions were added in an effort to win Congressional approval. Mills did not name the new taxes he would like to see repealed but said the taxes on brewers' wort, on bank checks and recreation admissions had produced much less than had been expected. The internal revenue bureau report he transmitted to Congress said it had been difficult to administer the new taxes on checks, furs, toiles, articles, sporting goods, soft drinks and brewer's wort.

Customs Duties

The secretary said that while it had been estimated last May that the income of the government for the 1933 fiscal year would amount to $3,098,000,000, revised estimates indicated they would total $2,524,000,000. He said Customs duties now were estimated at $290,000,000, a drop of $176,000,000; brewer's wort at $10,000,000, a drop of $72,000,000; bank checks at $45,000,000, a drop of $33,000,000; and admissions at $21,000,000, a decrease of $23,000,000.

Government receipts were estimated for the 1934 fiscal year from all sources at $2,949,162,713 and expenditures at $3,790,425,200, for the present fiscal year he estimated that receipts from all sources would amount to $2,949,162,713 and expenditures to $3,978,794,200.

"However difficult and painful it may be," Mills told Congress, "government expenditures must be drastically cut when, owing to extraordinary circumstances, the government finds that within a comparative short period its revenues have been cut in half with little prospect of substantial improvement in the near future."

"In a period of deep depression, with the income of the people greatly reduced, with their buying power drastically curtailed, and with millions deprived of their earning capacity, it is not only unwise but impossible to bridge the gap in the budget entirely by increased taxation. There is no other course for the government to follow but the one to which individual and business enterprises are driven under similar circumstances, that is, to endeavor to live within its income."

Mills recommended that when money advanced to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is repaid it be applied to reduction of the public debt. Such action would reduce by approximately $1,000,000,000 the increase in the public debt in recent years.

WEDNESDAY DECEMBER 7.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

The President's message to Congress delivered yesterday displays perhaps a little of the perturbation inseparable from the leadership of a chieftain who has been deposed and who is only commanding by the grace of a system already discredited. There is nothing about the message to indicate that Mr. Hoover sees in the result of the election the slightest reason for self doubt. He sticks sturdily to the set of convictions which he set forth during the campaign and advocates now what he advocated then. If there are indications that he does so a little wearily that is not surprising.

Perhaps the most interesting part of the message is that dealing with banking. We get from the text of the President's communication the conviction that he believes an immediate reform of the banking situation to be of primary necessity, but he has not undertaken to set forth at this particular time the exact nature of the changes he has in mind. We do find, however, that Mr. Hoover firmly believes that the great changes he knows to be necessary must be accomplished within the zone of private banking and the gold standard. There must be, he is very sure, no inflation and no banking by government.

At another point the President goes just a little out of his way to reiterate one of his best known social and economic articles of faith, for he says, "We have builded a system of individualism peculiarly our own which must not be forgotten in any governmental act."

Mr. Hoover is undismayed by the fact that there are a good many fewer people in this country who subscribe to his faith in rugged individualism than there were a few years ago, nor by the fact that the financial leaders of other countries are losing their complete confidence in metallic currencies at a tremendous rate. He sticks manfully to his guns. At no point does he yield a tittle of his political, social or economic creed.

Well, there is no special reason why he should. The President knows perfectly well that Congress will go its own way during the lame-duck term. His influence with it, never any too powerful, is less than it was. Even if he saw reason for self doubt in the mandate for great departures registered in November, it would serve no good end for him to say so in this message. And there is not the slightest cause for believing that he does.

Mr. Hoover says nothing whatever about raising revenue through a tax on legalized beer. That may indicate, to some minds, a likelihood that he would veto a beer bill. Other minds will find no such implication. But since he would certainly have vetoed a beer bill in 1929 perhaps the chances are that he may do so now if one is submitted to him. The message indicates that Hoover and change of outlook are strangers.

NO ROW WITH SPAIN

Public opinion in America with relation to the new situation in Spain affecting American interests will do well to hold itself in suspense for a while. News articles emanating in Washington, which suggest the possibility of a rupture of diplomatic relations with that country in connection with the proposed confiscation of the American-financed national telephone system there, are premature and ill advised. We are told that an "acute situation" between the United States and the young Spanish republic has been created by the probability that the Spanish Cortes will pass a bill taking over the telephone system as a national function. Whether or not the situation is at all acute remains to be seen.

The American interests who went into Spain and undertook the development of the telephone system there did not do so in any spirit of helpfulness to the Spanish people. They went there to make money. They did business with a dictator who, on the face of things, controlled the government by force. Inevitably his government's tenure was precarious. The American capitalists took the risk, always imminent, of a revolution. They had no right to expect that a succeeding government would honor the dictator's grants of permanent monopolies to foreigners. Their moral right to support by their own government was then, and is now, extremely limited.

On the other hand, there is a provision in the bill of condemnation now before the Spanish Cortes which indicates that it is not proposed to rob the American investors. One article in the measure says:

Within a period of six months the minister of communications shall present to parliament a bill fixing the basis for a just indemnification in order to guarantee the legitimate interests affected by the present law.

Fair enough! If that means anything it means that a right and proper return will be made for the investment, from whatever source, made in the national telephone monopoly. What remains then, for a loss to the American investors, apparently is only their expectations of future profits from an enterprise of exceedingly dubious origin.

So far as the matter has proceeded it is impossible to see where there is the slightest justification for making an international diplomatic problem of it. It is very doubtful indeed whether any measure of public sentiment can be stirred up in favor of still one more quarrel abroad over the adventures of imperialistic American capitalists.

THE IDEAL STATE

Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, wife of the New York banker, got to thinking the other day about the widely advertised plans by which Russia is trying to bring forth the ideal state; and it occurred to her, as it probably has to many another American, that Americans, if they put their minds to it, ought to be able to plan rings around such folk as the Russian Marxists.

"Certainly," she said, "it is within the power of the brains of the United States to form a workable plan. The Bolsheviks have a plan. They don't, they haven't and they can't humanly follow it. Well, why shouldn't we get a better plan? We can."

"The Bolshevik party insists that every member of their very exclusive group give a definite number of hours a day to the party's program. Think what it would mean if every member of Tammany had that duty, and the party programs were planned for the benefit of all the people instead of just Tammany."

A good many of us, no doubt, have thought along the same lines of late. We have an abundance of brains in this land; we have all kinds of natural resources, mechanical skill and what-not; why shouldn't we formulate a far-reaching program, stick to it and provide ourselves with a depression-proof land in which poverty would be unknown?

Unfortunately, however, a plan isn't much good unless you have some way of putting it into effect; and to do that, in a matter of this kind, you have to have a nation whose people are willing to surrender to the central government a far greater part of their individual liberties than Americans have ever dreamed of giving up.

And this, of course, only serves to illustrate our present dilemma. Our sufferings are to a great extent inherent in our traditional American system. Are we to keep the system, put up with its abuses and trust to luck that eventually we shall find some way out; or are we to modify the system, go in for planning and head for a less individualistic but more prosperous era?

BICYCLES

There are no more poignant tragedies than the increasingly frequent killing of boy and girl cyclists in automobile accidents. They come with such appalling suddenness; they snuff out young lives full of action and health; they are so utterly gratuitous and unnecessary. Yet the amazing thing is that they are not far more frequent.

There is something about cycling that imparts to children an almost unlimited degree of confidence. It teaches them a high measure of physical orientation—the art of "handling themselves" in emergency. And it sadly overdoes it where (the automobile is concerned).

The chances taken by young bicycle riders on the streets and roads— not occasionally but habitually—are simply frightful. Due to their almost miraculous skill and their imperviousness to panic they escape injury a thousand times where one falls victim to accident. But they cannot all get off scot free and now and then some home is darkened.

What is to be done about this situation it is not easy to assert. The bicycle, for the children especially, is as much of an institution as the automobile. It cannot well be banished from the roads.

But it does seem as if the hazard of the boys and girls a-wheel might at least be somewhat reduced by the setting up of the rule that bicycles must travel on the left side of the road, facing the major traffic, as pedestrians have been trained to walk. That this would remedy all the perils no one will pretend. That it would reduce them very largely is almost self evident.

It might very well be made the subject of statute law.

GOOD OMEN

One little by-product of the election, almost unnoticed in the excitement of counting votes, is the fact that next March we shall install in the White House another of those rarities—a President who did not begin life as a poor boy but who came up from surroundings of comparative luxury.

The log-cabin-to-the-White-House tradition doesn't often fall. Mr. Roosevelt breaks it, for the moment. Back of him it held sway for a good many years. Hoover, Coolidge, Harding, Wilson—all were poor, or comparatively so, as boys.

Indeed, the last President before Mr. Roosevelt who came from a well-to-do family was—the other Roosevelt, and none other!

Is that, possibly, a good omen?

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

NOW IT'S OUT—THE CAUSE OF AL SMITH'S RAGE

Here's a Tale of Backstage Politics and the McAdoo Grudge That Helped Make Political History.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

Washington—Probably there is some great moral lesson in the story of what happened during the Chicago convention between Al Smith and William G. McAdoo and between Al Smith and Jack Garner.

If not, then it's just a tale of three slick politicians, a rather diverting tale of some of the under-cover machinations which preceded the nomination of another politician who proved slicker than any of them.

What appears to be Smith's version of his dealings with McAdoo and Garner has been given by Frank R. Kent in the Baltimore Sun. It serves to explain the grim rage which possessed Al as he left Chicago after his failure to block Roosevelt, a rage which apparently possessed him for some months thereafter.

Roosevelt had a very large majority of delegates, but Smith, full of bitterness, was never any believer in the theory of majority rule. He had taken on the job of stopping Roosevelt in favor of someone whom he could nominate in agreement with other leaders—"smoke-filled room" stuff.

Mind you, Al was not inexperienced at blocking leading candidates for the nomination. He had carried the flag for the northern Democratic bosses in 1924 when they used the two-thirds rule to break the favorite candidate of the West and the South. And his victim in that weird deadlock was none other than this same McAdoo, who then had plenty of support of the Ku Kluxers and even a spot or two of oil on him.

But in Roosevelt he now had a far tougher piece of meat to chew. McAdoo never quite did get a majority at Madison Square Garden, although he could have had it and would have won had it not been for the two-thirds rule.

Smith still disliked McAdoo at Chicago, but perhaps he didn't realize that McAdoo disliked Smith much more intensely. And Smith was willing to make a deal with his old victim because, as he told Bernard Baruch, who arranged the meeting, "in this fight I would sleep with a Chinaman to win." McAdoo held nearly 100 delegates for Garner, for the Texas delegates wouldn't break before he released his own Californians.

Then begins the story of wilyness and guile.

Did Smith or McAdoo consider for a moment the thought that the millions of Democratic primary voters and the hundreds of delegates picked by state conventions ought to have something to say about the nomination?

Was any thought given to popular government or the idea that Roosevelt's huge majority might mean that he was the party's real choice? Hardly.

Here were a couple of slick politicians.

Smith undertook to show how Roosevelt could be held for five hours and then smashed. (You wonder whether McAdoo's mind during those moments was more in Chicago or back in the old Garden of 1924.)

Smith is quoted as saying: "If we work together we can beat the fellow. . . I can't be nominated, but we can sit down around a table and get together on a candidate."

McAdoo is said to have asked: "When sit around the table, will I be there?" Smith replied: "If you're not there I won't be there either."

The purported conversation ends there. Smith felt he had a " bargain" with McAdoo, but he was telling his friends afterward that "the fellow will double-cross us." Anyway, he didn't see McAdoo again. After the third ballot he heard that California and Texas were going to switch to Roosevelt. He failed to get Garner by telephone in Washington and a clerk whispered confidentially that Garner didn't want to speak to him.

Another "deal" had been made—one on which hardly any light has been shed. Garner got the vice presidency, although no one knows why he wanted it. What was McAdoo promised, beyond his great opportunity for revenge on Smith? Your correspondent has heard two or three versions, each of which sounded phony.

IN NEW YORK

THE DE MILLES

New York, Dec. 7.—For amusing close-ups on the off-stage life of the Cecil De Milles, you have to make the acquaintance of Mrs. Cecil De Milles. She has hair as white as the bewigged ballerinas of the minstrel; she suggests a bit of the aristocrat, a bit of the theater and a twinkling sense of humor. She has carved pleasant, whimsical lines at the corners of the eyes; an upper lip has become accustomed to drawing itself up into a humorous curve at the left side. She appears to have a lot of fun.

Mrs. De Milles is in New York with her husband, whose bold spot now is sun tanned to leather brown. They have come to attend the opening of De Milles' most spectacular picture, "The Sign of the Cross."

What's No Splendor?

Guests at the De Milles house, it appears, ask at once to see the bedroom and bath. They invariably express disappointment at finding no Roman pools and Moorish tiling in the bath room. It is tiled, but simply. There are no lavish curtains, hangings or exotic adornments in the bedroom.

All of which is a let-down to strangers brought up on a diet of De Milles bedroom splendor.

Get a Kick From Kicks

De Milles is vastly amused by the comments his super-lavish sets have brought from critics. He has kept a large scrap book of unfavorable writings. Frequently he takes this out and gets many a chuckle. But Mrs. De Milles has a notion that those far-famed De Milles sets may have been a secret "wink fulfillment" as the psychologists put it. De Milles, she thinks, has a definite slant for the Oriental.

They have four children, three of them adopted. None has shown any feverish symptoms to go on the stage, or to work in pictures. Their own daughter hinted at it as a youngster, but grew up, married and has a child of her own. Her chief interest is horses and no films. One of the adopted daughters, Mrs. De Milles says, is a great beauty and may possibly appear in pictures.

Mrs. De Milles, a handsome woman, has threatened twice to face the camera herself. But never in her husband's company. He rarely discusses any of his film problems with her. He often talks about pictures in general, but he does not solicit advice. Often she gives it willy nilly.

He does let her wander around the lots on which he happens to be working and she often does. She does not intrude on his scenes or work, however. During the making of the latest picture, she has been well acquainted with the lot-used in one sequence. They were so accustomed to being caged that they hated to leave.

Speaking of movie folk, remind me of an amusing tale of the ways of the modern New York lassies. When Sue Carol, the film actress, had selected a baby recently for a friend who wanted to adopt a child, the mother and Miss Carol left for a moment and only a group of newspaper woman, press agents and such were left. The baby began to cry. A bottle was produced. It had no nipple. And so the poor child had to go on weeping until Miss Carol returned. Not a girl in the room could properly put a nipple on the bottle!

IN NEW YORK

THE DE MILLES

New York, Dec. 7.—For amusing close-ups on the off-stage life of the Cecil De Milles, you have to make the acquaintance of Mrs. Cecil De Milles. She has hair as white as the bewigged ballerinas of the minstrel; she suggests a bit of the aristocrat, a bit of the theater and a twinkling sense of humor. She has carved pleasant, whimsical lines at the corners of the eyes; an upper lip has become accustomed to drawing itself up into a humorous curve at the left side. She appears to have a lot of fun.

Mrs. De Milles is in New York with her husband, whose bold spot now is sun tanned to leather brown. They have come to attend the opening of De Milles' most spectacular picture, "The Sign of the Cross."

What's No Splendor?

Guests at the De Milles house, it appears, ask at once to see the bedroom and bath. They invariably express disappointment at finding no Roman pools and Moorish tiling in the bath room. It is tiled, but simply. There are no lavish curtains, hangings or exotic adornments in the bedroom.

All of which is a let-down to strangers brought up on a diet of De Milles bedroom splendor.

Get a Kick From Kicks

De Milles is vastly amused by the comments his super-lavish sets have brought from critics. He has kept a large scrap book of unfavorable writings. Frequently he takes this out and gets many a chuckle. But Mrs. De Milles has a notion that those far-famed De Milles sets may have been a secret "wink fulfillment" as the psychologists put it. De Milles, she thinks, has a definite slant for the Oriental.

Free Advice

He is a collector of swords, guns, tapestries, shields, coats of arms and other antiquities. The house is cluttered with them. They never have found enough room for his books. These are all over the floor.

They have four children, three of them adopted. None has shown any feverish symptoms to go on the stage, or to work in pictures. Their own daughter hinted at it as a youngster, but grew up, married and has a child of her own. Her chief interest is horses and no films. One of the adopted daughters, Mrs. De Milles says, is a great beauty and may possibly appear in pictures.

Mrs. De Milles, a handsome woman, has threatened twice to face the camera herself. But never in her husband's company. He rarely discusses any of his film problems with her. He often talks about pictures in general, but he does not solicit advice. Often she gives it willy nilly.

He does let her wander around the lots on which he happens to be working and she often does. She does not intrude on his scenes or work, however. During the making of the latest picture, she has been well acquainted with the lot-used in one sequence. They were so accustomed to being caged that they hated to leave.

Speaking of movie folk, remind me of an amusing tale of the ways of the modern New York lassies. When Sue Carol, the film actress, had selected a baby recently for a friend who wanted to adopt a child, the mother and Miss Carol left for a moment and only a group of newspaper woman, press agents and such were left. The baby began to cry. A bottle was produced. It had no nipple. And so the poor child had to go on weeping until Miss Carol returned. Not a girl in the room could properly put a nipple on the bottle!

PRESIDENT GREET'S VISCOUNTESS ASTOR

Chats For 15 Minutes With Former Nancy Langhorne of Virginia.

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Viscountess Astor, the former Nancy Langhorne of Virginia, today had a talk with President Hoover that was "most interesting" and him philosophical as usual.

Accompanied by her husband, and Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, Lady Astor chatted with the President for nearly 15 minutes, and then stopped again at the request of newspaper correspondents as the group left.

Asked about the interview, Lady Astor bowed slightly and pointed to Sir Ronald.

"But Lady Astor did all the talking," said the tall British ambassador, with a smile.

Asked if war debts were discussed, the Englishwoman by marriage replied smiling.

"He said he knew nothing about them. Is that not right, Sir Ronald?"

"Yes, I think that's right," the ambassador replied.

"Our talk was informal—quite," Lady Astor said.

"But we did discuss one interesting subject from a Parliamentary point of view. I said I thought it was a shame that after four years experience in government the American Cabinet and President should not be kept in the government where their experience could be employed. This is done in Great Britain."

The Astors plan to sail from New York to return to England on the steamship Berengaria on December 14.

HUNGER MARCHERS LEAVING CAPITAL

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Truck after truck headed into the west and south today carrying the last of the shouting, singing demonstrators for unemployment relief over the long, tedious miles to their homes.

With a final jeer at police who had confined them to a pavement encampment for three days, the men and women piled into their vehicles, stowed away blankets and said they were satisfied with the showing they had made.

Police vigilance was not relaxed until the last truck had gone, and then, wearied from almost continuous duty since Sunday, the hundreds of Washington bluecoats sought rest.

Every available police marched with the cheering and jeering demonstrators yesterday from their camp to the capitol grounds and back again. Strong lines held the marchers outside the grounds while select committees presented relief demands to Vice President Curtis and Speaker Garner.

Five of their number were left behind in hospitals today, ill with pneumonia. They had been sleeping in a vacant house without heat.

MAYORS ARE ELECTED IN BAY STATE CITIES

Boston, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The defeat of Mayor Thomas J. McGrath of Quincy today was the outstanding feature of yesterday's mayoral contests in eight Massachusetts cities.

Charles A. Ross, veteran of 13 years in the Quincy City Council, defeated McGrath by a margin of approximately 1,600 votes. It was his third attempt to defeat McGrath, who was making a bid for a fourth term.

Mayor Charles S. Ashley of New Bedford, 74-year-old veteran who has been New Bedford's mayor off and on for more than 40 years, won an easy reelection. He will serve his 26th term and it will be his 29th year in office.

Charles F. Archambault nearly 4 to 1. It was Archambault's third attempt to defeat the veteran Ashley.

Mayor Daniel F. Sullivan of Fall River was added to the list of defeated incumbents. Joseph L. Hurley led Mayor Sullivan by about 2,000 votes to win the city election.

WILD RUMORS

Palo Alto, Calif., Dec. 7.—(AP)—The Stanford University campus excited, following published reports several freshmen football players intended to follow Coach Glenn S. Warner to Temple University, where he has signed a contract, was calm today with formal denial of the report by the athletes. The board of athletic control at a meeting tomorrow will consider the selection of a successor to Warner.

Warner was to bid goodbye to Stanford today—if sufficiently recovered from his cold to travel before going to Philadelphia, however, he will watch the Notre Dame-University of Southern California game in Los Angeles Saturday.

Mirrors exposed to strong sunlight will become cloudy.

DOOLITTLE FORCED DOWN IN LOUISIANA SWAMPS

New Orleans, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Major James E. Doolittle, flying as a representative of the Chicago World's Fair, said at a hotel here today that a broken propeller blade on his plane forced him to set the ship and his two passengers down in a marsh section of St. Mary Parish late yesterday on his flight from Houston to New Orleans.

He said the ship was mired in the marsh and that the three, slightly bruised, trekked through the swamp until a trapper picked them up in a motorboat in which they reached Franklin, La., afterwards coming to New Orleans during the night in a hired automobile.

Doolittle's passengers were Art Kassel, Chicago bandmaster, and A. B. Heiberg, an advertising man.

The three were reported missing for several hours last night after coming down in the swamp. The ship left Chicago yesterday on a proposed 10,000-mile trip to 25 cities to advertise the Chicago fair.

Doolittle said the ship was undamaged save for the broken propeller, but he believed it would be impossible to get the plane out of the swamp except through dismantling.

"The horse has been shot from under me and I don't guess we can continue the trip we started on," Doolittle said this morning.

BISHOP MAKES APPEAL

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The Rt. Rev. Frederick G. Budlong, bishop coadjutor of Connecticut today urged members of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York to reconsecrate their lives in terms of Christian ideals as their contribution to a solution of present world distress.

Bishop Budlong addressed about eight hundred women at a communion service at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, preceding the annual meeting of the organization.

Bishop William T. Manning presided at the communion service.

"There is a defeatist philosophy abroad today," Bishop Budlong said. "Men are afraid. They tell us that God has lost His power. They tell us there is no leadership they can follow with confidence."

"It behooves us in these days of distress of nations and of world perplexity to make a new declaration of faith in Him who has demonstrated a power superior to any force in the world that would fetter Him."

FARMERS TO WAIT FOR NEXT CONGRESS

Chicago, Dec. 7.—(AP)—While the American Farm Bureau Federation listened today to recommendations for tariff equalization and a flexible dollar, its president, Edward A. O'Neal said that the Democratic chiefs had received orders, purportedly from President-elect Roosevelt, to hold up all farm legislation in the short session until the Farm Bureau's program was finally approved and presented to Congress.

The Farm Bureau's legislative demands will be announced in its final session tomorrow.

Henry A. Wallace, farm editor at Des Moines, and Dr. G. F. Warren, agricultural economist at Cornell University, told delegates that tariff and monetary systems were now unsatisfactory.

"I hope the Republicans learned a lesson in this last campaign," Wallace said, "and will not attempt again to make farmers believe that they should be thankful for worthless paper tariffs on farm products, while at the same time the price for nearly everything they buy is raised by industrial tariffs."

Dr. Warren criticized the dollar as having "a fixed weight with a rubber value."

PRESIDENT CUTS DEFENSE FUNDS

Over 46 Millions Less Than Last Year Is Suggestion Made By Hoover.

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—President Hoover has fixed the national defense cost for the next fiscal year at $586,447,000, a decrease of $46,019,000 compared with this year.

These figures presented to Congress today in the Chief Executive's budget message covered recommendations for the Army, Navy and Marine Corps and excluded all items of a non-military nature.

To obtain a proper basis of comparison, the president explained at the outset, there should be deducted $16,998,000, which represents the deductions made in the 1934 estimates predicated upon a continuance during the fiscal year of certain provisions of the economy act.

The War Department's estimate was approximately $272,000,000 less than this year.

Estimates of the Navy were approximately $308,000,000, a decrease of $10,000,000.

As last year, the personnel of the Marine Corps, which operates under the Navy, would be cut again—about 1,700 enlisted men, but the personnel of the Army and Navy remain as formerly.

National Guard The President stressed a decrease of $2,590,000 for equipping and training the National Guard, which would curtail the number of armory drills per year from 48 to 24.

The chief item of army decrease is construction, for which $17,414,000 was appropriated in 1933. No similar item was included in the present budget.

The chief army increase provided for was $4,433,700 for subsistence, due to the fact that the appropriation for 1933 was supplemented by $5,435,000 of excess stock and funds accumulated from prior years.

ROCKVILLE

CITY BUDGET EXCEEDS NINETY-NINE THOUSAND

Police Salary Item Kept At Old Figure By Switching Department Accounts.

At the annual city meeting in the Town Hall, last night the bill was filled with interested taxpayers. The budget prepared by the City Council and meeting on November 15 was voted upon by department.

An appropriation of $30,250.00 for the Public Works Department was adopted. There was some discussion of a cut in this item, but a rising vote was favorable.

The sum of $3,750.00 was voted for the improved entrance to Union street. This is one-fourth of the cost of appropriation voted April 29, 1931 and made the total of the Public Works Department $34,000.

An appropriation of $10,663.85 was asked for the Police Department, including $7,663.85 for salaries, $1,000 for special police and $2,000 for other expenses.

There was considerable discussion on the item of $12,000 asked for the Lighting Department. It was voted, however, to cut this appropriation to the extent of $2,000.

The Rockville Fire Department appropriation is $8,750.00, and there was no opposition. This appropriation includes $5,000 salaries, $3,000 for running expenses, $250.00 for repairing wires and cross arms, transportation, $100.

The sum of $11,900.00 was appropriated for the Health and Sewer Department. This includes an appropriation of $2,000 for a sanitary sewer on Pillsbury Hill.

For salaries of city clerk, city treasurer, corporation counsel, collector of taxes and tax bond, assessors and rate maker, board of relief, city sheriff, city auditors, milk inspector, city court and health officer, the sum of $4,500 was appropriated. The total voted for miscellaneous was $17,605.00.

The grand total appropriated amounted to $99,118.85.

At City Treasurer Parley B. Leonard's suggestion the mayor and city treasurer were authorized to pay the Rockville National Bank, $14,000 interest on money borrowed.

These two officials were further authorized to borrow to the extent of $60,000 if needed in tax anticipation.

SEEKS HIGHER UPS

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—An objective of detecting and bringing to justice commercial rather than private violators of dry laws, has been set for the Prohibition Bureau by Director Amos W. W. Woodcock.

In his annual report today—the second since the bureau has been under the Justice Department—Woodcock said:

"This objective seems correct, both tactically and strategically—tactically because commercial violators may be reached by the law directly, whereas the purely private violators have many constitutional and statutory protections—strategically because the commercial violator is the source from which most private violations originate, and because commercial violators are the kind of offenders which our people expect the law to reach."

A total of 90,217 prohibition cases made by the bureau for the 1932 fiscal year, compared with 76,580 in the previous year, was reported by the prohibition director.

WORK FOR PRISONERS

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The large number of prisoners which the Federal government now maintains in idleness will soon be put to work under a plan of the Bureau of Prisons.

Sanford Bates, director, in his annual report today, said that as soon as a few remaining details were worked out, Federal prisoners would be employed on various governmental projects for which funds were not available.

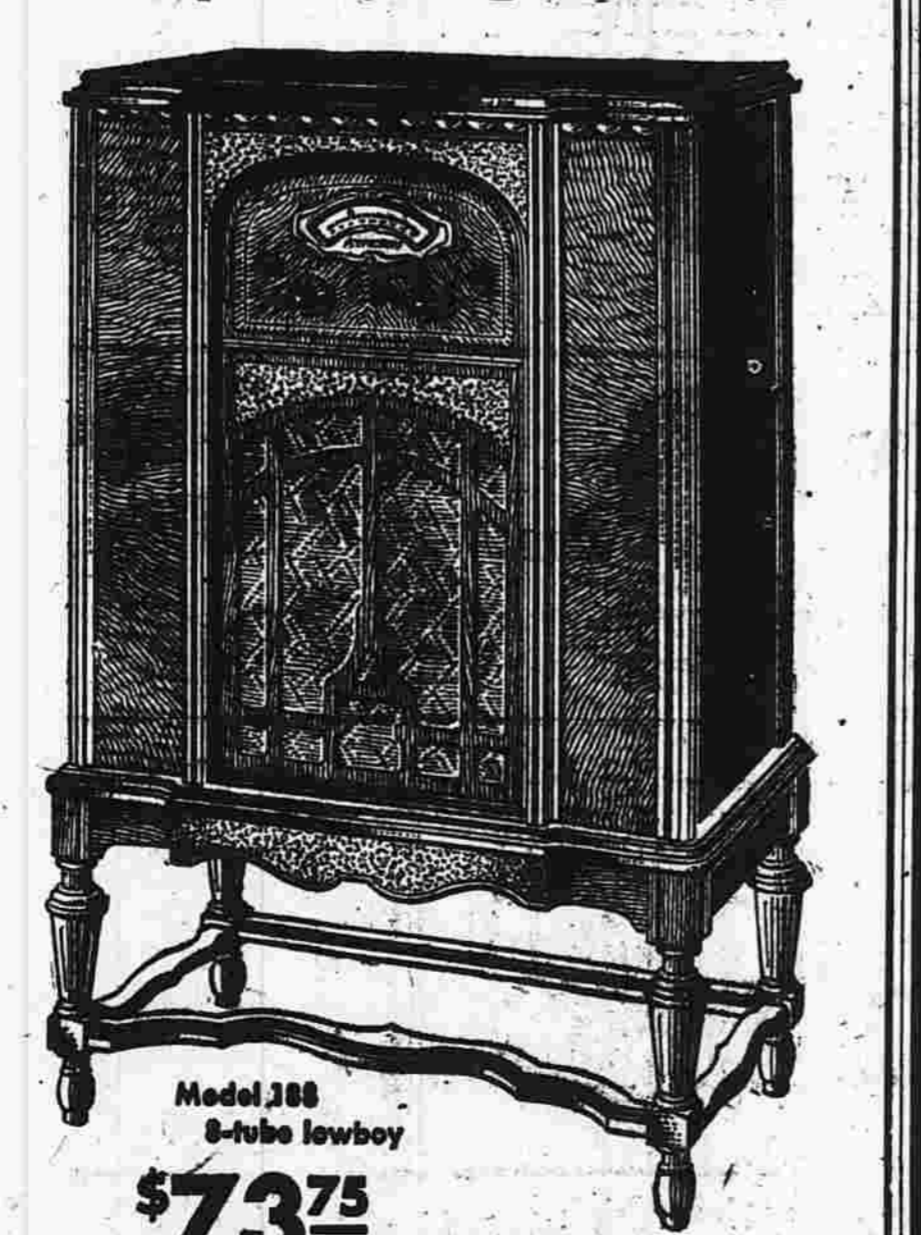

GOV. CROSS INVITED

Hartford, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Governor Pollard of Virginia has invited Governor Cross to attend the closing of Virginia's celebration of the Washington Bicentennial to be held at Washington's Tomb at Mount Vernon, Dec. 18 at 3 p. m.

This final observance will be on the day and at the same hour of the Washington funeral which took place Dec. 18, 1799 at 3 p. m.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Bulls, spurred by the successful short squeeze in the previous session, were more enterprising in today's Stock Market than they had been in some time.

The market modestly extended its gains yesterday, while some of the more popular trading favorites were churned about in fair-sized blocks. On the whole, however, it was up-hill work. Oils, mail order shares, some of the rails, and miscellaneous industrials were firm spots.

Issues up 1 to nearly 2 points included Standard of N. J., Texas Corp., U. S. Steel Allied Chemical, Case, Air Reduction, and United Aircraft, while advances of major fractions to a point appeared in Montgomery Ward, Pennsylvania, New York Central, Southern Pacific, and others. American Telephone and Union Pacific, strong spots yesterday, made little further progress. Gold mining issues eased, and American Water Works dropped 1-2 on reduction of the dividend.

The strength of the oil evidently reflected reports that the Texas commission was considering another sharp reduction in allowable crude output in that state. Oil circles expressed the hope that such action would bring the recalcitrant companies into line with the recent increase in mid-continent crude prices. The petroleum statistics for last week were none too favorable, showing a gain of 610,000 barrels in gasoline stocks and a daily average increase in crude output of 28,300 barrels.

American Water Works cut its annual dividend rate to $1 from $2. While the action was not unexpected, it brought some selling into the issue. Selling of the gold mining issues evidently reflected the better tone of sterling exchange, and of commodity prices. Montgomery Ward has attracted bullish attention on the basis of its sales volume in the past several weeks, which is understood to have been sufficient to take operations into black figures, and out into the losses of the first nine months of the year.

The rails seemed to respond to indications of a fair pickup in freight volume, after the sharp loss of the Thanksgiving Day week. Pennsylvania reported that cars handled in the week ended Dec. 3 totaled 80,480 against 74,915 in the previous week. New York Central reported a similar gain. The latest theory advanced for the reported shifting by Union Pacific of an investment of 100,000 shares of New York Central into shares of Pennsylvania, is that it was done to establish a loss for tax purposes. Despite his pain, he refused to relinquish the command of the Europa until the last possible moment. Even after his operation, he issued orders from his bed by telephone.

As he was carried off the ship Saturday, he smiled indomitably at an old friend, a representative of the German Embassy, and said: "I shall yet tread your toes."

UNEARTH NEW CLUE IN MYSTERY DEATH

gain husband's differences with Eugene A. Babbitt, who said the man had attempted to kill Wanderer long during the night. Seattle police sought two men acquaintances of Guy in an effort to locate him.

While this development took place, the group of adventurers which had signed on as members of the crew—pretty women, some of them authors, some of them waitresses, and a collection of men ranging in class from a scion of British nobility to roustabout seamen—huddled in the dank and untidy cabins of the Carma.

The party, including eight women and seven men, had been held by Long Beach police for nearly 24 hours as "material witnesses" that each might be questioned and cleared of the killing.

Captain Wanderer—the erstwhile Valerian Johannes Pleczynski German-Pole, world wanderer, adventurer and accused of war time spying—had purchased the former runner at a government auction.

15 ADVENTURERS

The fifteen adventurers had signed on as members of the crew in order to avoid conflict with maritime laws since Federal authorities had declared the Carma unseaworthy and had threatened to stop the voyage.

They were: Lord Edward Eugene Montagu, second son of the Duke of Manchester, of London, a "remittance man"; Captain James E. Faris, of Portland, Ore., captain of the craft; Miss Ruth Loucks of Portland, fiance of Captain Faris; Mary Louis Smith, 24, and her sister, Marian, 19, of Rockport, Ga.; Mary Parks, 24, secretary, East Saugus, Mass.; Aileen Allen, a waitress, Los Angeles; Mrs. Florence Wegel, 32, Hollywood; Eugenia Nobel, 29, an actress; Cuthbert Wills, engineer, and his wife, Elsa, Hollywood; Edmund Zeranski, Hollywood cameraman; Jack M. Craig, 20, seaman, Hollywood; Forrest L. Plummer, 24, Hollywood and Eric W. Owen, 23, Los Angeles.

While police searched for Guy, Mrs. Wanderer stated the trip would not be canceled.

"We will sail on Saturday," she said. "But we won't go unless I am sure the Carma is all right."

"Iron Age" reports lower heavy melting steel scrap prices at Pittsburgh, Chicago and in eastern Pennsylvania. The publication's composite is down to $9.92 a ton, the lowest since February and within 50 cents of the year's low. Finished steel is unchanged at 1.945 cents a pound, but a decline in eastern Pennsylvania foundry pig iron, largely a result of foreign competition, has reduced the composite for that commodity to $13.56.

ASK REINSTATEMENT

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Joseph C. Guilfoyle, who was suspended from the practice of the law in May of 1929 by Judge Edwin C. Dickenson of the Superior Court today filed a petition asking the Superior Court for reinstatement. He expresses willingness to comply with all suggestions made by the court in the decision.

The charge on which the lawyer was suspended involved a mortgage transaction in which the court found the lawyer absorbed the interests of his clients and failed to account. Because of possible mental stress the decision of 1929 court was for suspension rather than disbarment.

DAVIS BACK IN SENATE

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Senator Davis of Pennsylvania answered the opening roll call today in the Senate.

By taking his seat, he ended speculation whether he would appear in the Senate before his trial on a charge of violating the lottery law. The trial was scheduled to start December 12.

A New York Federal Grand Jury indicted the Pennsylvania junior Senator as director general of the Loyd Order of Moose.

Davis failed to appear in the Senate Chamber Monday or yesterday. After leaving the Army-Navy football game Saturday in Philadelphia, he did not let his whereabouts be known generally.

FARM BOARD ADVOCATES INCREASE IN PRICES

ing loans are appraised on a conservative basis.

"Except for the necessity of setting aside $48,000,000 to cover the board's equity in wheat and cotton turned over to the Red Cross," the report said, "the present value of the revolving fund would be $198,000,000."

"These amounts are left after deducting all losses on account of stabilization operations, and setting aside liberal reserves against possible losses on loans now outstanding to co-operative associations."

Along with the legislative recommendations, the board transmitted to Congress its annual report which laid down a five-fold program for boosting the agricultural income. It advocated a general reduction in international trade barriers and readjustment of agricultural debts by agreement among debtors and creditors.

Other Causes

Holding that the present low prices of farm products must in general be ascribed to other causes than heavy surpluses, the board said any remedial plan should include:

"1. Hastening business recovery in the United States, thereby increasing returns from products sold in the domestic market.

"2. Steps to initiate recovery in international trade, thereby strengthening foreign demand for export products.

"3. Readjustment of taxes, interest and principal payments, freight rates and other fixed charges which enter into the farmer's expenses and now abnormally depress the share which he receives of the final retail price.

"4. Further strengthening and expanding of co-operative organization to reduce the expenses of marketing and increase the producer's share of the consumer's dollar.

"5. Efforts, through co-operative marketing associations or in other

ENDORSES 51 OF 55 MEDAL APPLICANTS

War Dept. O. K.'s Most of Manchester Awards For Purple Heart Decoration.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—(AP)—The War Department has acted on 51 of 55 applications for award of the order of the Purple Heart to war veterans from South Manchester, Conn., Representative Augustus Loneragan has been informed. The records of the other four men are still being examined to determine their eligibility, he was notified. Anderson-Shaw Post of Veterans of Foreign Wars sponsored the applications. Chairman Neal Cheney of the local Purple Heart committee has reported the receipt of 50 Purple Heart citations and medals with five applications pending. It is expected that the Manchester veterans will receive their decorations later at a public ceremony to be held in the state armory to which Brigadier General James A. Haggerty of New Haven, a former Captain of Company G, 102nd Infantry, 26th Division, will be the guest of honor and will decorate the Manchester boys. The committee also hopes to have several state and national officers of the V. F. W. and Legion in attendance at the unusual ceremony.

BOY CYCLIST KILLED; AUTO DRIVER IS HELD

(Continued from Page One) denly swerved sharply across the road directly in front of him making it impossible for him to avert a collision. It is understood that two girls on the sidewalk on the opposite side of the street spoke to the boy on the bicycle causing him to turn across the road. "I was going about 25 miles an hour at the time," Carabino informed the Herald, "and when the boy turned in front of me, I tried to avoid hitting him by pulling my steering wheel to the left with both hands. The right front bumper hit the bicycle, throwing young Merz onto the pavement head first. The car did not strike him. During this time I also applied the brake. After I stopped, I called to two men walking on the sidewalk and asked them to help me remove the boy to the hospital. I think one of them was Bob Russell of Cooper street. "Patrolman Rudolph H. Wirtala investigated the accident and this morning was assisted in further investigation by Police Lieutenant William Barron. Carabino was not arrested at once but later was taken into custody on the manslaughter charge. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Santa Carabino who own property on Glenwood street. Later Carabino was allowed to go on his own recognizance. He said that the car, a Willys Knight sedan, is owned by his mother and that she carried insurance. Tire Marks for 85 Feet Police traced tire marks on the pavement for a distance of 85 feet but the marks were not consistent all the way. The marks indicate that in trying to avoid a collision, young Carabino drove clear across the street and grazed the curb. The street is 85 feet wide. The boy was struck almost in front of the driveway leading into the home of J. W. Conrow at 323 Main street. No one at the Conrow home saw the accident. At the hospital Merz was found to have a fracture at the base of the skull but no other injuries. The boy was the youngest of four in the Merz family. The others are John, 21, Raymond, 17 and George, 15. The father of the family is a well known owner of a barber shop at the north end and formerly lived near the Vernon depot. The boy was in the sixth grade at St. James's parochial school on Park street. Four eye-witnesses of the accident were Kenneth S. Rogers, 18 year old high school student from Russell street, Harlow Draw of 180 Summit street, Samuel Elliott of 281 Center street and Robert Russell of 65 Cooper street. Funeral Friday The funeral will be held Friday morning at St. Bridget's church with Rev. John J. Brennan of Hazardville, uncle of the deceased, officiating. Burial will be in St. James's cemetery.

PRESIDENT-ELECT TO CALL EXPERTS

To Make Study of Whole Federal Structure Before He Takes Office.

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt plans to make a thorough study of the whole structure of the Federal government during a series of talks with experts he will call to Warm Springs late in January. The plans of the President-elect were disclosed today shortly before he reached Washington for a 15-minute stop before spending on to New York for a conference on State affairs tonight. Mr. Roosevelt plans to leave for Warm Springs either January 18 or 20 and immediately after his arrival there will begin an intensive study of the governmental structure and the budgetary system. During his stay there, he will see only those experts who are called to Warm Springs to supply him information. The President-elect feels that he should have a broader knowledge of men and bureaus that have been created, or whose work has been broadened in the years that he has been away from the capital. The plans of Mr. Roosevelt before the inauguration of Herbert Lehman as governor of New York on January 2 and his departure for Warm Springs call for him to spend several days each week in his New York City home and the week-end at Hyde Park.

RAILROADS PLEAD FOR ASSISTANCE

(Continued from Page One) struction Finance Corp. be permitted to advance funds to the roads as the government did after the return to private operation in 1920, on a reasonable assurance of a reasonable return." Bruere was occasionally interrupted in his discussion by questions from Mr. Coolidge, former Governor Alfred E. Smith and other members of the committee. Mr. Coolidge had his questions neatly arranged on slips of paper and when he had a query to offer he presented the proper slip to the witness. Mr. Smith, one of the busiest of the cross-examiners, preferred the oral method. He asked Mr. Bruere whether he favored compulsory consolidation. "No, rather through persuasive pressure," was the reply. "We urge that the roads be put in a position as quickly as possible to enable them to pay off their debts. They are not able to do so under the present rate-making structures." French families are growing smaller. In 1895 the average was four children; now it's only two.

OPEN FORUM PLEADS FOR THE LIVES OF YOUNG BICYCLISTS

Father of One Condemns High Speed of Autos, Urges Use of Sidewalk For Wheels. Editor of The Herald: May I have a little space in your valuable paper to express my feelings in regard to this miserable spot of highway between Bigelow and Street streets where so many of our young boys have been injured, crippled for life and lastly killed. These accidents also have all happened in broad daylight. This afternoon a young lad of 12 years, after playing basketball was coming home from school on a bicycle and on reaching this terrible spot somebody had the misfortune to run him down, and take his young life from him. What a shock to those who love him and to the one who struck him. I have a son 15 years old who rides a bicycle every morning, noon and night. I have cautioned him not to take any chances on this road but that will not prevent an accident if the person at the wheel is not awfully careful with his mind on a bicycle and his eyes on the road in regard to those who push a bicycle. A boy on a bicycle is apt to do anything. Being full of life and pep, it is expected from any boy. When you pass them on the road, use not only the horn but also the brakes. One child was taken to the hospital with a fractured skull, another crippled losing one leg, and now this young fellow killed outright. All happening within 50 feet of each other. I would like to suggest that the Police Department place signs along Main street from the Center to North Manchester stating the rate of speed that cars should be 20 miles an hour. Then it will be safe for both the lad on the bicycle and the person at the wheel. Let's take the race track out of Main street from the Center to North Manchester and make it safe for all. Otherwise let these bicyclists ride on the east side walk down. Very few people walk on this side and it is very seldom that one hears of anybody being run down by a bicycle. It surely would be well worth trying. I don't think the road is a safe place for anyone to ride a bicycle. I hope the people who read this will take notice and voice their opinion. K. G. M.

DO TRUCKS BURN HIGHWAYS?

Editor, The Herald: After reading the report of Mr. Harry Blanchette's speech made at the Manchester Improvement Association Monday night one might come to the conclusion that the highways are in danger of being worn out by trucks and buses or go up in smoke. I would like to ask Mr. Blanchette just how much stronger roadbed had to be in order to stand up under the buses and trucks. Mr. Blanchette also points to the number employed by the railroads but makes no mention of the number employed by the automobile industry or industries depending directly or indirectly on same. I wonder if there is a possible chance of Mr. Blanchette trying to arouse sympathy by "ringing in" that word taxpayers. He does not come out and tell just how much the trucks are taxed but tries to make one believe that they run up and down the highway without paying a "nickel." Perhaps if the motor truck industry had a few executives like the railroads that receive $100,000 a year salary they would also be telling their troubles to the wide world. (Signed) FAIR PLAT.

ASK FOR BIDS HERE ON TOWELS FOR P. O.

December 19 Closing Date Also For Bids On Removal of Ashes and Rubbish From Building.

Bids will be received until December 19 for the furnishing of towels for the new postoffice at the Center according to notices posted in the Manchester postoffice this morning. Bids will also be received up to December 19 for the removal of ashes and rubbish from the new building. Work on the interior of the new federal building which was held up by the plastering, is again resumed. The grading of the grounds is well underway. Yesterday the temporary structure at the north end of the building, used as an office and storeroom, was torn down and the day is now being used for the grading of the grounds as well as at the front. The combining of the Manchester and South Manchester postoffice, will cause the elimination of the part time parcel post delivery, for which a two hours allowance per day is now made at the north end. There are two regular parcel post carriers out of the South Manchester postoffice and they will be able, it is figured, to cover the entire territory, with provision for extra men and cars during the holiday seasons.

NEW THEATRICAL VENTURE

New Haven, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Harry Arthur, organizer of the theatrical company which proposes to reopen theaters in various cities by placing them on a year-round circuit for stock companies playing popular priced dramas and comedies, said today that the success of the venture as conditions were never better for a revival of the legitimate stage at popular prices. Arthur operates a circuit in New England given over largely to motion pictures. He said there was a prospect of success for the venture as conditions were never better for a revival of the legitimate stage at popular prices. Four hairs of good strength will hold suspended a one-pound weight.

FIREMEN HERE GO TO WORK FOR SANTA

Salvage Group Formed By No. 3 To Repair, Fix Up Toys For Christmas.

Members of No. 3 Hose Company of the South Manchester fire department have volunteered to repair, repaint and fix up broken toys that may be donated for distribution at Christmas time through the town's charity department. There are twenty members in the group that No. 3 has gathered to do this work. They are all men in about every kind of a craftman. A toy will have to be pretty badly broken if they can't find some way of using it in whole or in part. These volunteers have consulted Miss Jessie Reynolds, town welfare worker, who will have charge of the distribution of the toys when completed. Any one who wishes to donate a toy with any kind of a broken or mangled part without hose or plaster noses, paint up doll faces or do whatever is necessary to get the toy in first class condition. The men would like to get to work at once. Contributors are asked to drop such toys to the house of No. 3 at once and let the repair work get started. Or one may call Miss Reynolds at 5606 and the toys will be called for.

SUPREME COURT HEARS SEVEN CASES TODAY

Hartford, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Seven cases were to be heard in the Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors today, with Chief Justice William M. Maltbie presiding. Five of these were from New Haven county and three from Hartford county. The first case was that of Mrs. Sherman S. Stocker, against Alma Gillette and others, New Haven county, was heard this morning. The plaintiff son-in-law and daughter of the late defendant Rhoda Gillette, who died after the action was instituted, brought suit to recover for services rendered in caring for the mother, furnishing her with a home and board, and for improvements made upon her real estate, under agreement that she would convey the premises to the plaintiff by will, if not before her death. Two cases were tried together, those of Esther Freeman against Wolf Hurwitz and Irene Kleinfield, against Wolf Hurwitz. Three actions were tried together in the Superior Court in Waterbury, all arising out of the same automobile accident Sept. 1, 1930, on Southington Mountain. The case of Wallace Bonster, Jr., against John J. Kenney, arose from an automobile accident on State street, New Haven. The collision of an automobile whose driver was returning to New Britain from a New Year's party in Hartford early in the morning of Jan. 1, 1932, with a 72 year old pedestrian gave rise to the case of Emanuel E. Peterson, administrator for the estate of John E. Peterson against John F. Meehan and others, under these heard were: Walter Kowalski against the N. Y. New Haven and Hartford railroad, plaintiff's appeal from the Superior Court. Henry Molaki against Joseph Benda, Hartford county defendant's appeal from the Court of Common Pleas.

EVER READY CIRCLE SPONSORS SALE, TEA

Pleasant Entertainment Also Yesterday Afternoon—Held in Whitton Library.

Ever Ready Circle of King's Daughters sponsored a sale, tea and entertainment yesterday afternoon which proved a most charming affair socially and a success financially. It was held in the directors' room of the Whitton Memorial Library, which was beautifully furnished last year by Ever Ready Circle. The Ways and Means committee, Mrs. David Austin, chairman; Mrs. Scott Simon and Mrs. Charles J. Strickland were in charge, assisted by many of the other members. The proceeds will be used in carrying on the welfare work of the organization. Tables filled with useful and attractive objects suitable for gifts were offered for sale at reasonable prices. Mrs. Allan Cox, Mrs. F. A. Nickerson and Mrs. Meredith Stevenson constituted the refreshment committee. The tea table, gay with holiday decorations and candles, was presided over by Mrs. William A. Knoda and Mrs. Susan G. Rogers. The entertainment in charge of Mrs. C. J. Strickland, was presented by some of the younger local talent. Each young artist was enthusiastically received. Miss Frances Hyde and Miss Frances Walliet were heard in piano solos and responded to an encore. Miss Estlin Pitkin showed much natural ability as a reader, giving four numbers, "An Important Errand," "Sister in the Medicine Closet," "Tomboy" and "At the Movies."

Yesterday's affair brings to a close a year of activities planned by the Ways and Means committee of the circle, all of which have been successful through the general patronage of many interested in the work of the King's Daughters.

Week-end MURDER

GABRIELLE E. FORBUSH

BEGIN HERE TODAY
AMOS PEABODY, elderly cousin of LINDA AVERILL, falls to his death from the second floor balcony of the Averills' Long Island home. Linda reaches him just before he dies, in time to hear him gasp a few words which convince her he was murdered. Linda rushes upstairs. Someone tries to strangle her and she faints.

There are four guests in the house—all suspects of the crime. They are: MR. STATLANDER, business associate of TOM AVERILL; CAPTAIN DE VOS, hussar from Belgium; MARVIN PRATT, former suitor of Linda's; and LIAN SHAUGHNESSY, Irish writer. When Linda tells her husband what happened she persuades him they must keep these four men in the house until they can decide which one is guilty. There is no evidence sufficient for arrest. Tom and Linda are aided in their plan when DR. BOYLE, official medical examiner, sends word that everyone must remain until he has questioned them. Boyle is on a fishing trip and can not return for several hours.

Linda talks to Pratt who refuses to say why he quarreled with Cousin Amos the night before. She overhears a conversation between Shaughnessy and ROSE, the maid, concerning a shirt Rose has promised to launder.

Tom and Linda discuss their findings. Tom is eager to see the shirt, believing it may be an important clue.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV

Linda said slowly, "I wish I'd seen that shirt before it was laundered. Of course I could ask Rose—I think she'd tell me, though she'd evidently been sworn to secrecy. Only I don't want to confess—yet—that I overheard them."

Tom was thoughtful. "She'd been sworn to secrecy about something that happened last night, not the night before."

"Well, it all goes together, I guess. But, Tom—Shaughnessy spoke of talking with her about County Athlone and other things last night. You know when you had to help him into the car—leaving the club—and how he appeared from that row of trees on the edge of the grounds?"

"Yes. He started in the wrong direction. Thoroughly confused, I thought."

"It could see from where I sat at the wheel of the little car. His back was all covered with dirt and pine needles—and the only place around here is that you can pick up those needles is on that walk between our house and the club."

"He was missing all evening," related Tom.

"And Ella Mondell said he wasn't with her."

"Their eyes met. 'Rose!' said both glances."

"He probably coaxed her to meet him on that path."

"Or ducked out altogether and came back here to have much fun," said Linda forgivingly. "It would seem a lark. I wonder!"

He looked pointedly at the little boudoir clock.

"Yes, I must hurry. Well, so much for Mr. Shaughnessy. She checked off on her fingers, "I saw this morning and came around the corner of the house where he shouldn't have been. Bringing Rose to clean some stains from his shirt. Note—find out whether last night's or from the night before. Swearing Rose to secrecy about that and telling her she'd forgotten what happened last night."

"I wonder if he would have fed her nothing stronger than tea if she'd accepted his invitation to the garage," mused Tom. "Well—push on to DeVos. Time flies."

"There I got very little except practice."

"In this business of flirting with your guests?" Tom grinned. He was entirely aware of the fascination the man held for her.

"Pig! Not at all! Even if I wanted to, his heart's safe with Fleur—and her $6,000,000, or whatever Prast Stoner has salted away. No—practice telling my tale. It was the first chance I had had to try it out."

"Go well?"

"Perfectly. In fact, I quite believed it myself," she said naively. "Amazing how quickly you accept these slight variations from the truth! I was sure it was so as I told it and after I've told it a couple of times more. I'll resent even your suggestion that it isn't every word true."

"Perhaps it is." A sudden impulse prompted him to test her memory again. Her eyes met his squarely.

"Cousin Amos was murdered and I was nearly strangled," she said very slowly. "You can pin your faith to that, Tom. It's the gospel truth and I shan't forget it and you mustn't either. Now—DeVos. Oh, yes—he talked, very simply and naturally, about the accident. He'd noticed the top rail was in place. By the way, did you do that, Tom?"

Santa's Coming—Look at the Industry

Right now there just never seems to be a moment of rest in the life of a growing lad—at least the photographers could not find one. The three pictures are the prize winners in the Master-Snap Photo Contest of the Master Photo Finishers. Mrs. F. P. Crawford of Columbus, O., caught the young man washing his teeth without any coaxing (upper left) and won first prize in his contest. A born mechanic (upper right) was at work on his velocipede when Ralph H. Brown of St. Paul photographed him for second prize, while the exploring genius—maybe it's cookies—came to the fore while the dog looked on expectantly so Mrs. Ramon E. Keyser of San Francisco could win the third prize.

gets it. It ought to be just like this but it's a shade cooler. You know we thought we might take it for that reason and then decided on this because of the way the bathrooms were arranged, for the nursery—

"Yes, I remember. He undressed and sat there—"

"Said he dozed at first and then slept soundly. Didn't hear Cousin Amos go. That's possible—sound sleep always carry upstairs and around a corner. Said he vaguely heard me flop and was roused wide-awake by Marvin Pratt dashing out. He rather makes fun of Marvin—vigilant in that smooth way at his vigorous heartiness. But Marvin does thump and bump around like a bull in a china shop when he's started. His energies enormous and I'll bet he slammed out of that room—"

"To be the first on the ground," said Tom dryly. Then he added more fairly, "But he is a quick mover. I noticed that Thursday night. He was first dressed and downstairs though he was last to come."

"He believes in doing everything without lost time or motion—like a freeman going to a fire. Anyhow, Mr. DeVos said that when he and Mr. Statlander got there Marvin had just picked me up—"

"No, nor which got there first. Spoke as if they were together. As a matter of fact I got there first. I turned around and saw the two of them in the door."

"So you did." She remembered her husband's description of the scene. "He said 'Mr. Pratt had already lifted you as Mr. Statlander and I came in. We could only offer assistance. Then when your husband came, he naturally took command'"

"That's a contradiction but a small one. He was roused from sleep. And anyhow, Binks, they say two people cannot tell the same story about the simplest thing that happens under their eyes."

"Still he spoke later of your running upstairs all dripping wet, as if he'd seen you—"

"Did he actually say he had seen me come up the steps?"

"No—I don't think his words could be interpreted that way. He just said 'he ran upstairs, dripping—'" Linda stopped rather abruptly she doubted whether it would be politic just now to suggest that someone else had noticed the tension between Marvin and her husband.

Tom, meditating, did not notice her sudden stop or thought she had come to a period of reflection.

"Well—won't forget it. It may be a bad slip. It's a contradiction at best. You told the story about fainting—how did he take that?"

"How should he take it? Perfectly natural—but rather bored as I developed my sensations. I got in about feeling as if I were strangled."

"Perfectly. In fact, I quite believed it myself," she said naively. "Amazing how quickly you accept these slight variations from the truth! I was sure it was so as I told it and after I've told it a couple of times more. I'll resent even your suggestion that it isn't every word true."

"Perhaps it is." A sudden impulse prompted him to test her memory again. Her eyes met his squarely.

"Cousin Amos was murdered and I was nearly strangled," she said very slowly. "You can pin your faith to that, Tom. It's the gospel truth and I shan't forget it and you mustn't either. Now—DeVos. Oh, yes—he talked, very simply and naturally, about the accident. He'd noticed the top rail was in place. By the way, did you do that, Tom?"

"No." Ella took a perceptible breath. "I didn't and I don't know who did. I want to go back and ask you about that later. Go ahead now."

"Well, with him I got a straightforward, consecutive account of what he did last night and this morning—what I meant to get from Marvin."

"He said he found it awfully hot so he didn't go to bed but undressed and sat in that big, comfortable chair by the window, toward the South. That sounds all right. If there's any air stirring that room

CHILDREN ENJOY CHRISTMAS PLANNING

"What was the most fun you ever had on Christmas?" I asked a seventeen-year-old girl the other day. "Quite naively she answered, 'One year when mother was sick in bed.'"

"Perhaps it was the best she had too," I had to say. "If she wasn't too sick to rest, and sick enough not to worry about you children."

"She had had an operation," she replied. "It was in Iowa where we spent a year, while daddy was getting some company or other together. I was about eleven and Howard nine. We didn't know many people and there we were, mother sick in bed and Christmas coming."

"Grandma was coming out but she got sick, too. We had a maid and that was all right, but daddy was hardly ever home except the week-ends. He had to be out in other towns a good bit. Mphpr did worry because we always had a big Christmas back home and she didn't want us to be disappointed."

"Something must have turned up to make you remember it this way," I replied.

"Bought Own Tree. 'Yes it did,' she continued. 'Daddy gave each of the two dollar couple of weeks before Christmas. And did we have the time of our lives?'"

"Howard and I knew there wouldn't be any Christmas unless we made it ourselves. Were we excited? We decided to surprise mother instead of her surprising us. The first thing we did was to get a tree. We youngsters picked it out, the kind we'd always wanted with long needles."

"Then we proceeded to shop. We bought 'traps' for the tree. We decided to spend some conscience money and bought a dollar's worth of toys for poor children. That took two days and we would spend hours trying to decide on the color of a ball or the built-up top of the tree. We had to make a vestible of a church and marked it 'For the poor.' We felt very useful and grown up."

"After that we went shopping in real earnest. With that twenty dollars we bought 'enough' presents. However, there are quantities of gorgeous gifts for men this year. It almost seems as if men themselves have gotten behind the manufacturing enterprises of our country to make sure there will be innumerable things purchasable that they will love."

"Father, long-suffering, deserves something nice. If he has an automobile, there are new robes, cigar lighters, radios, a new umbrella, whose case attaches to the rear of the car and holds the umbrella until it is needed, slip-covers and decorative radiator caps. If he has been complaining about getting a paunch or needing exercise, give him a ticket to the nearest gymnasium. If he is uncomplaining, he deserves comfortable pajamas. In this group come lounging pajamas and shiny leather or horse slippers; a comfortable easy chair with footstool, an electric clock; his own bathroom cabinet all equipped with a magnifying mirror for shaving; an electric razor; or even one of the mechanical men who run the furnace for him."

Husbands and sweethearts, brothers and friends, often lean to liking a bit of luxury. Some of these come cheap. A necktie rack that holds its neckties; a box of three handsome four-in-hands; evening dress clothes; a good-looking Gladstone bag; golf bags; traveling convenience such as bags to hold ties; others for handkerchiefs and ties; huge bathroom towels with black monograms; a new golf sweater; silk pajamas; a good watch or a new wristband in silver or platinum for a good watch he already has; a musical alarm clock; combination bill folds, auto license case with a special little pocket for cards; all kinds of trick beverage gadgets and smoking equipment; wooden things for his den, such as one of the old tavern signs that are so popular; old English prints, black and white; monogrammed stationery; evening suspender and garter sets; silk shirts; cuff links of the new design; bedside equipment, this year in copper or wrought iron.

Why Not Lotions. The one good gift for men, that woman often overlooks, is lotion. The man hardly lives who doesn't have a smacking weakness for scented soaps, lavender or violet preferred by most. Then they always adore after-shaving lotions, pine needle bath salts, a huge box of bath powder with an enormous puff; creams for chapped lips and rough hands; a ticket for a dozen manicures; all kinds of new shaving gadgets.

Most acceptable for men, too, are whole long lists of goodies to eat. All men like chocolates, it seems to me. Whoever gives them a handsome five-pound box with innumerable different shapes and kinds all done up pretty? Cheeses are in high favor with men. So are all kinds of imported cheeses and that for serving with beverages. These include wine containers shaped as bottles with both necks filled to brimming with olive and kinds with something besides pimento, caviar, anchovies with capers, specially prepared hors d'oeuvre tidbits redolent with cheese; fancy jams, conserves, individual plum puddings or even just a huge jar of home-made cookies.

As a matter of fact, if you have a son or brother away at business or school, if you have just a friend you would like to remember, when in doubt as to what to give, of one thing you can be certain. If you give something handsome in the way of imported or home-made goodies, he will discover the way to his heart.

The novel concerns itself chiefly with Dinny Charwell, daughter of an incredibly aristocratic English family. Dinny falls in love with a man who has just returned from 10 years in Arabia and its environs, a hectic young poet who, it develops, has signed against the odds.

What the young man did, you see, was this: He had captured him and vowed to kill him unless he accepted Mohammedanism. Since the lad had long since given up the vestiges of his faith in any religion, he quits sensibly and saved his life. But when news of it reached upper-class London there was a terrible fuss.

He had "let England down," he had failed to be a pukka sahib. His club forced him to resign. A horse-breeding country gentleman tried to horsewhip him. Dinny's family almost died of shame. And in the end he found that he himself couldn't live it down; so Dinny's romance went to pot, but he still had honor, or something, was avenged. Published by Scribner's, the book is priced at $2.50.

Daily Health Service

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famed Authority

By DR. MORRIS FISHEBIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

It has been demonstrated that human beings tend to inherit various characteristics. It is known, for instance, that blue eyes tend to run in certain families. Some families are characterized by a streak of white hair on the forehead, and there are other interesting manifestations.

In a recent number of the Journal of Heredity, a Norwegian investigator, O. L. Mohr, describes a family of Scandinavians in which there was a tendency to inherit woolly hair. This family lived in the same part of Norway for a long period of time and had kept careful record of the members of the family.

In these Norwegians the hair was covered by curly, frizzly hair like that which is characteristic of the colored race. The hair never grew long. It was thick and extremely curly. The reason the hair did not grow long was that the curling made it break off after reaching a certain length.

Before bobbed hair became popular, the women members of the family were disturbed because they could not arrange their abnormal and strange looking hair in a manner which would prevent annoying stares by their neighbors. The hair was light colored, but not blond, and grew darker as the members of the family grew older.

When the records of the family were studied, going back five generations, some interesting relationships were found.

In the first generation there were seven children, of whom only one woman had curly hair. She married twice and had therefore two lines of descendants. There were no children with woolly hair among the descendants of her six brothers and sisters.

From one of her marriages this woman had two daughters, both of whom had woolly hair. From her other marriage she had three daughters none of whom had woolly hair and all of the children of these daughters have smooth hair.

However, for the last three generations the descendants of the two daughters with woolly hair show this characteristic in a considerable number of cases, proving definitely that frizzly hair of this type is inherited as a dominant trait.

There is no evidence of any mixture of Negro blood with this family at any point in its history. All of the characteristics are Nordic, so that the woolly hair must be considered a special manifestation and one which is inherited as a dominant characteristic.

MARVELOUS MANHATTAN

By WILLIAM GARDNER

New York.—The familiar touch of the old home town is found in some of New York's neighborhood delicatessens.

Natives of the hinterland, cooped up in apartments here, establish a trade intimacy with the delicatessen man which brings back memories of the corner grocery back in Podunk or Cactus City.

The neighborhood delicatessen is a small shop where the boss himself—usually an affable but angle-eyed Italian, German or Jew—is on duty himself most of the time from morning till midnight, or later. In many cases the members of his family are his clerical force; the sons and daughters helping with the business after school hours.

It is good business for the boss and his wife to learn the names of the neighborhood folk who telephone for canned goods or drop in for a late sandwich. On the third or fourth visit, the customer is apt to be saluted: "How are you tonight, Mr. So-and-So?" The customer grins and likes it, and buys a hunk of choice cheese that he might otherwise have done without.

There is a Jewish delicatessen man in my neighborhood who not only knows all of the members of the family, but also the live-in nearby apartment buildings, but all of their dogs and cats as well. He always inquires after their health and appetite. He is particularly interested in their appetites. "We got a cold in today; another howler he says. 'Don't you think Fluk (the cat) might like some?'"

Stand in his place for awhile and you'll hear him call three out of five customers by their names. He asks one how little Johnny's bad cold is today; another how her husband liked that Camembert cheese he sold her yesterday; another if the decorator did a good job on his living room.

He is the nearest thing in town to old man Jones, the grocer back home, who can recall your family history before the day of your birth.

Filling a Hole. The meaning of all the depression talk has been minimized by that gigantic enterprise, Rockefeller Center, going on right through it all.

Day and night, week in and week out, the vast venture has been going ahead—towering office buildings and great theaters rising in the heart of New York. It contradicted all who called the future hopeless. If so hopeless, why all this preparation for the future?

A brief year ago Rockefeller Center was a great, gaping hole in the ground. Already it is a mass of stone and steel, a monument to business hope and enterprise—even if you can't agree it's a monument to beauty.

Models' Worry. Models are more than ever worried this fall by the intrusion of debutantes and matrons into their professional field.

Society women go into the business these days not as much for thrills, and just to be doing something, as for the actual cash. Of course their names mean something to the stylists who employ them. The girls and their mammae are perfectly willing to pose for pictures for the press and grant interviews.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

"Flowering Wilderness," by John Galsworthy, is a book replete with the kind of strange atmosphere of reality.

It is unusual, probably because it gives, with painstaking minuteness, a picture of a society and a code of values which are no longer current. Its people seem as out of place in the present age as the conquistadors of old Mexico.

The novel concerns itself chiefly with Dinny Charwell, daughter of an incredibly aristocratic English family. Dinny falls in love with a man who has just returned from 10 years in Arabia and its environs, a hectic young poet who, it develops, has signed against the odds.

What the young man did, you see, was this: He had captured him and vowed to kill him unless he accepted Mohammedanism. Since the lad had long since given up the vestiges of his faith in any religion, he quits sensibly and saved his life. But when news of it reached upper-class London there was a terrible fuss.

He had "let England down," he had failed to be a pukka sahib. His club forced him to resign. A horse-breeding country gentleman tried to horsewhip him. Dinny's family almost died of shame. And in the end he found that he himself couldn't live it down; so Dinny's romance went to pot, but he still had honor, or something, was avenged. Published by Scribner's, the book is priced at $2.50.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

EYEBROW CULTURE IS IMPORTANT

Self-made eyebrows are the rage today. Greta Garbo started it all. Thousands of women have shaved their home-grown eyebrows clear off and penciled in delicate arches which they think makes them look like Greta.

As a matter of fact, this device does do something. Personally, I prefer a natural line, or real, honest-to-goodness brows.

Don't get snooty, though, about the girls who have tried to improve upon nature. There's probably something you can do about your eyebrows right this minute, if you just get an objective view about your own appearance.

Too heavy an eyebrow detracts from your eyes. Why not have a few, stray brows grow too close together over the nose, certainly you should take drastic measures to separate them. That placid look of assurance comes from wide-spaced eyes. You can give the impression of having this kind of spacing by separating your brows more. Have them taped just a trifle and see if you don't like the looks better.

Faint eyebrows never got a girl anywhere. If your lashes and eyebrows are pale colored, pencil the brows a bit and use just a little mascara on the lashes.

Brown eyes call for brown penciling. Blue ones can use either brown or blue-black or even a Keen Rivals Fight For Third Time Friday Night In Madison Square Garden.

New York, Dec. 7.—The fight three seems to have a lot to do with the coming battle between Kid Chocolate and Fidel La Barba in Madison Square Garden here Friday night. It will be the third time the two boys have battled each other, and it will undoubtedly be the third great fight staged in the east during the present festive season.

Fans are still chattering about the great Schmeling-Walker and Cannonier-Petrolle sludges, and there's every reason to suspect that this tilt between the two featherweights for the championship as far as the New York Boxing Commission is concerned, will be a wow.

The rubber bout, the boys are calling it around the ballyhoo agencies. And it's figured that the two featherweights will be in there winging for the rubber decision just as enthusiastically as a foursome of old maida having their weekly bridge.

La Barba, the erudite kid from Los Angeles, who went to Stanford University after his retirement from the flyweight championship, and who learned a lot about literature, astrology and spiritualism, is showing his second time out for the championship.

The first crack he took at the heavier division was against Bat Battalino, and he lost by a shade. Since then Bat has forfeited his title to Lew Feldman, and Feldman turned it over to the "Keen" after the obnoxious package of lefts and rights beat him in New York last October.

Fidel, an Italian-American, began belting them around about 10 years ago. Before he knew it he was selected to fight for Uncle Sam in the 1924 Olympic games. He came out of those games amateur champion of the world. Right then and there the kid began his rise, and only engaged in 10 professional scraps before he was matched with Frankie Genaro for the world's pro title. He won that honor in 1925.

In the meantime the Cuban flash, who was on his way up when he met La Barba the first time in 1928. The chocolate flash bested Fidel in a 10-round bout. The following year La Barba again met Chocolate, and this time he won, taking the bout in the last of 10 rounds.

So they meet again. Chocolate to the New York moguls, and La Barba, challenger. The goal of both is probably a bout with Tommy Paul, recognized as champ of the division by the National Boxing Association, by virtue of his winning an elimination tournament some time ago.

Praying? No, Ed Was Just Asleep

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 7.—Centre's Praying Colonels didn't have anything on Tarzan Taylor's Brooklyn Horsemen professional football team of 1925.

Taylor, now line coach at Marquette University here, likes to tell the following story on Ed Garvey, former Notre Dame tackle who played on the Horsemen team.

"As the Horsemen prepared to kick off, the kicker noticed that Garvey was standing with his hands on his knees and his head bent toward the ground," Taylor relates. "I shouted for the kicker to go ahead; that Ed was just praying and would be ready at the kick."

"The kick was made and the receiver spilled in his own territory, but Garvey didn't have anything to do with it. We looked around and there was Ed, his head still bent and his hands on his knees. We found him fast asleep."

PITTSBURGH COACH HAS BETTER HOPES

Jock Sutherland Writes That He Thinks His Present Combination Will Do Better Than Last Two He Took To the Rose Bowl.

By DR. J. B. "JOCK" SUTHERLAND
Football Coach, University of Pittsburgh.

(Copyright 1932, by NEA Service)

During the undefeated season through which the Pitt team has just passed it seemed to me as though each time we needed a super bit of play to win or stave off defeat that it was there.

What will happen when we face Southern California in the Rose Bowl game New Year's Day I cannot predict. I have taken two fine teams out there, teams which compare favorably with this year's team. But I think we will be better prepared than we were in either 1928 or 1929 when we played in the Bowl.

In every game this year's Pitt team has played, certain players have risen to the occasion and pulled his teammates through to win.

I do not hold the scoreless ties with Ohio State and Nebraska against us. I believe we had to have a pretty good team to hold Nebraska scoreless. The season has been more than satisfactory to me and, I believe, to my players.

There was one climax after another. Despite the scores, we had to play hard to win from West Virginia and Duquesne, two rugged local rivals, each of whom wanted especially to win from Pitt.

The man who brought the team through the Army game was Warren Hilder, my fine, consistent halfback. He went through the whole season without a second of loss. He put us ahead, and when we got behind he put us back in the lead. Pressed for reserves in that game, I was pleasantly surprised by the showing of Harvey Rooker, a scrub player who rose to the heights on that day to stop the Army three times at our goal line.

Against Notre Dame the players came up without help from me. They realized they had to play better than they had shown to make a good game of it, and they went on to exceed this demand.

When the ball was on the one-inch line, Hogan drove it 70 yards to throw back the last Notre Dame threat, and then followed up by intercepting a perfectly thrown pass. Two minutes later, Sebastian, who had been bottled up all day, ran away from the Notre Dame backs and kicked to score the winning touchdown.

Against Penn. an overconfident Pitt team managed to pull itself together just long enough and frequently enough to edge out a 19 to 12 victory.

On the following Saturday against Nebraska, the Pitt team actually showed no offense whatever, time after time when it seemed a score was inevitable.

I never can forget our line holding the Army for seven downs on the three-yard line; Warren Heller scoring the first touchdown against the same team; Harvey Rooker twice throwing fields for a loss when he was trying to stop the winning touchdown; Warren Heller, ever present in the Notre Dame game; Bob Hogan driving out that tremendous kick; Mike Sebastian evading five Irish tacklers on his touchdown run; Heller taking a sure touchdown out of Hokur's arms at Nebraska; Rooker and Dalley bounding the perfect punts in the Carnegie Tech and Stanford games; and Skidaway rushing through to stop the last desperate Notre Dame passes before they could be thrown.

The Rose Bowl game? I do not like to predict. But we will know more what to expect after seeing how Southern California and Notre Dame make out Saturday.

WRITES SERIES FOR HERALD

NAT HOLMAN

Nat Holman Criticizes New Basketball Rules

Nat Holman, the Babe Ruth of basketball, has prepared a series of 55 basketball problems from his new book, "Winning Basketball" for the NEA Service, and its clients and they will be published in The Herald daily except when shortage of space makes an occasional omission necessary.

In addition he has prepared a special introductory article in which he criticizes the new basketball rules. He sees difficulty in the blocking change and believes that stalling will cease with the new rules. One of the most brilliant players and commentators the modern game of basketball has known is the honor sports writers throughout the country accord Nat Holman.

Twenty-five years ago he was a poor boy in Hester street, colorful center of the old Bowery. He played basketball then with urchins of the sidewalks in New York. He struggled through public school. His play with the University Settlement outfit won such approval that he decided to follow the game as a life work. He became one of the most spectacular players the City College team ever had known.

Then, continuing as a professional, he toured the country for years, with the famous original Celtics. When the demand for the pro brand swept the country, he became the highest salaried star in the game with an income of $15,000 a year.

He was retained as a coach by City College, where he had left such a brilliant record as a player. One of his books on basketball, "Scientific Basketball," was a best seller some years ago. He has written a new book which is currently popular, "Winning Basketball," in which he discusses many phases and problems of the modern game. The qualities that made him a great "crowd pleaser" in his days as a star flow through his interesting writings.

In regard to the new basketball rules, Holman has the following to say:

"Basketball rules this year provide for four major changes. They are, respectively: the ten-second rule which is intended to eliminate stalling; the three second rule, directed at the pivot play, and rules on blocking, and face guarding.

At present nearly all coaches, officials and players are experiencing some confusion as a result of conflicting opinions concerning the manner of applying the new rules. With the new season just beginning it is my opinion that there is likely to be considerable trouble in this respect.

"Recently my basketball team of the College of the City of New York opened its season against St. Francis' College. Using that game and the pre-season practice sessions of the team as a basis, I have formulated some definite views regarding the changes in the rules.

I am heartily in favor of the new ten-second rule. It may eliminate stalling and will speed up the game. On large courts particularly, that is court in excess of 75 feet in length, the new rule will prove a blessing to the game. It aims to compel the team in possession of the ball to advance the ball past the middle of the court within ten seconds after gaining possession and to confine its offensive maneuvers within half the playing court.

"This should prove no hindrance to the game on the average-sized court. It certainly should prevent teams which made use of the stalling style of offensive from employing successful delays in the back court which heretofore have proved annoying to the spectators and a detriment to the game in general.

"The other important change in the rules is the three-second rule. It provides that the pivot man when in the foul lane, must rise himself the ball for no longer than three seconds after receiving it.

This rule, in theory, is an excellent one. Under ordinary circumstances there is no need for the pivot man to retain possession of the ball for no longer than three seconds.

The difficulty, however, is in the application by officials in actual practice. Since there is no effective mechanical timer in use and since officials will have much difficulty in agreeing as to the lapse of three seconds on each play, I expect that the coming basketball season will find much dissatisfaction with the rule. Except for the matter of applying the rule, I approve of it.

"The legislation on blocking may prove particularly disagreeable. Under the old rule the intention of the player was the paramount consideration. If, in the opinion of the referee, the player responsible for the block intended to produce the block, he was guilty of a foul.

The new rule says that if a player is standing still and is in the playing area before the play reaches that zone, he is not guilty of a foul even though he intentionally causes interference.

In my opinion this legislation is dangerous and objectionable since it will place a premium on block plays built around a stationary player. Such block plays have heretofore been illegal.

"I think that it is the intention to commit a block which should be legislated against.

"The last change in the rules, that against face guarding, has, so far proved of negligible importance. It is perhaps too soon to pass critical judgment on this rule."

HARVARD SELECTS CLASS MARSHALS

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 7.—(AP)—The senior class at Harvard has upheld the ancient tradition of selecting its outstanding sports figures as class marshals.

Robert Saltonstall, Jr., of Milton, varsity hockey captain and president of the student council, emerged as first marshal with a total of 219 votes. Carl H. Hageman of Lorraine, O., who led the Crimson football team during its recent disappointing campaign, received 207 votes to win the office of second marshal and Irad B. Hardy, son of a Wellesley minister and vice tackle of this season's eleven, was named third marshal with 171 votes.

The campaign for class marshals was warmly contested and ended with the election of Alexander Hamilton Young, varsity football manager, who received 151 votes but seven more than his closest opponent Edward H. Hickey of Boston, vice-president of the University's Democratic Club.

HELEN MOODY BACK, READY FOR TENNIS

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Helen Wills Moody is back home from an extended visit abroad and already looking forward to regaining her national women's tennis championship.

"Queen Helen" let that particular title go by default last season preferring to remain abroad after winning the French and British championships and leading the American Wimbledon cup team to victory.

Mrs. Moody said she was now laying plans to compete in the 1933 nationals and probably in one or three of the big eastern tournaments as well.

HOOKS SLIDES

Two members of an illustrious racing family met for the first time the other day at the John Herts farm near Cary, Ill. One was Reigh Count, champion of five years ago. The other was Our Count, son of Reigh Count. The mother, Nita Peabody, could not be present.

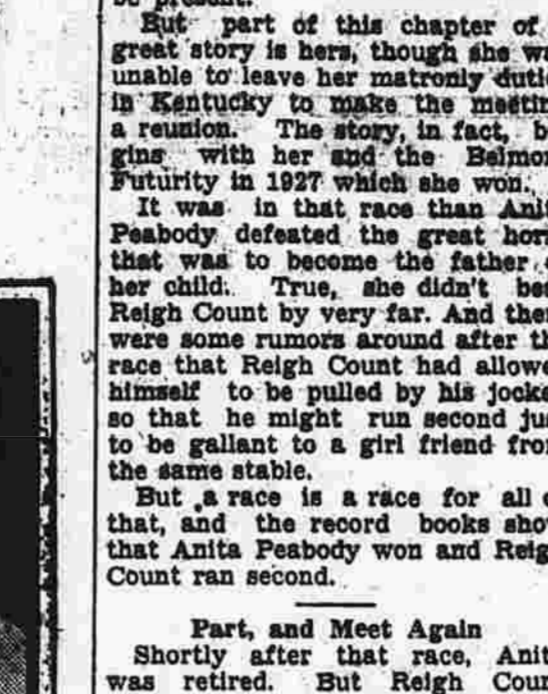

But part of this chapter of a great story is here, though she was unable to leave her matronly duties in Kentucky to make the meeting a reunion. The story, in fact, begins with her and the Belmont Futurity in 1927 which she won.

It was in that race that Anita Peabody defeated the great horse that was to become the father of her child. True, she didn't beat Reigh Count by very far. And there were some rumors around after the race that Reigh Count had allowed himself to be pulled by his jockey so that he might run second just to be gallant to a girl friend from the same stable.

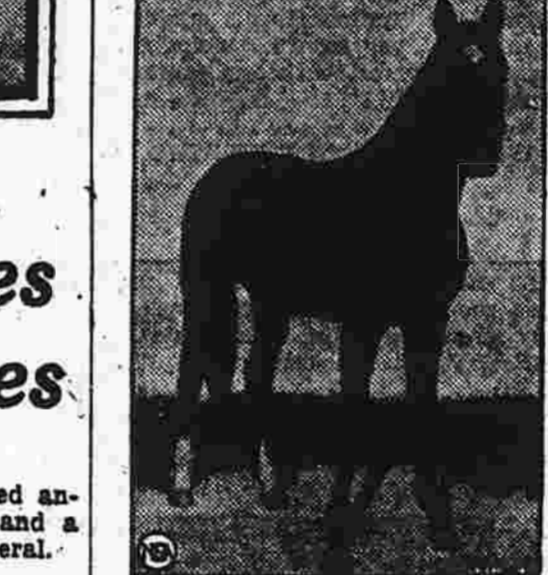

But a race is a race for all of that, and the record books show that Anita Peabody won and Reigh Count ran second.

Part, and Meet Again

Shortly after that race, Anita was retired. But Reigh Count went on to become the American champion in the following year, winning the Kentucky Derby, the Belmont Handicap and other high-class turf contests.

In 1929 Reigh Count conquered some of the best horses in Great Britain in the Coronation Cup. He was beaten by a narrow margin in the Ascot Gold Cup. When they brought him home there was a happy reunion with his friend of high school days.

Just Like Father

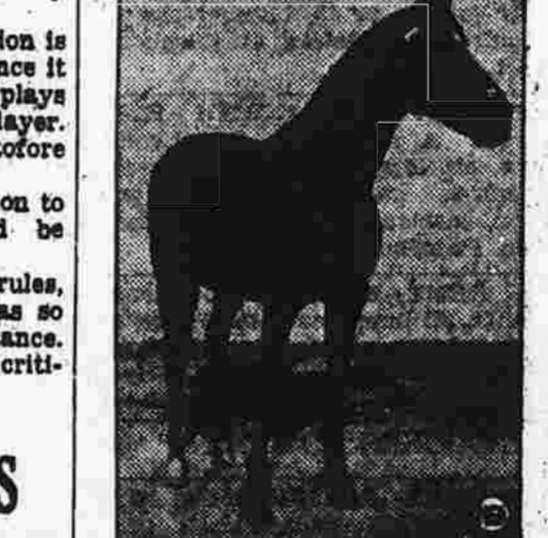

When the reception committee from Chicago met the train which brought Our Count from Kentucky to meet his old man, there were expressions of astonishment. For the strong boy that came down the plank was so nearly like his father that you could hardly tell them apart, as far as lines and markings went.

Our Count's head there is a white star, not quite so long as the white strip on Reigh Count's nose, but the heads and necks of the two are almost exactly the same in color, shape and size.

Their withers and shoulders are similar, but in appears Our Count is going to have the edge on his father in these departments as far as size is concerned. Horsemen point out that each has the same sloping rump, which means speed and distance. Their legs conform even to the white markings on the back ankles.

It was the consensus of opinion of all who saw the two horses that Our Count is better looking than his father as far as personal appearance is concerned.

And, oh yes, the word from Kentucky is that Our Count also can run. Well, if only he can run like his father, too, he will be pretty good.

NEW BRITAIN RALLY IN FINAL QUARTER ALMOST WINS GAME

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Mildred Babe Didiakon, one of the world's greatest feminine athletes, is so eager to play amateur basketball this winter she has demanded immediate investigation of her disqualification by the Amateur Athletic Union.

And at the same time she expressed her desire to lead, as the district captain, a team called the Golden Cyclones and sponsored by the insurance company for which she works, the 19-year-old Olympic games star reiterated her denial that she authorized use of her name or picture in a motor car advertisement.

Insurance company officials have announced they will aid Miss Didiakon's fight for reinstatement in the A. A. U., but it appeared likely she would not play on the basketball team until the matter was cleared up.

Lawrence Di Venedetto, chairman of the Southern Amateur Athletic Union at New Orleans said he had started an investigation. At Chicago, J. Lyman Brundage, assistant to Avery Brundage, president of the A. A. U., said Miss Didiakon's case rested now with the district committee.

Miss Didiakon said she felt she had been wrongly convicted of circumstantial evidence. She said she never had seen the testimonial for the automobile until it appeared in print. She admitted that several weeks ago she posed standing beside an automobile of the make advertised, but that she had told the Dallas agent of the company the picture could not be used until she turned professional, if ever.

The name of W. Foster Jacoby of Dallas, director of city parks and secretary of the Texas A. A. U., was brought into the case when Miss Didiakon asserted he had asked her to sign an endorsement of an automobile, promising her that it would not affect her amateur standing. She stated she refused to sign and told Jacoby the use of her name in that connection would be against her wishes.

Miss Didiakon also said Jacoby had urged her to turn professional soon after she returned from the 1932 Olympic at Los Angeles. Jacoby could not be reached for a statement.

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Mildred Babe Didiakon, one of the world's greatest feminine athletes, is so eager to play amateur basketball this winter she has demanded immediate investigation of her disqualification by the Amateur Athletic Union.

And at the same time she expressed her desire to lead, as the district captain, a team called the Golden Cyclones and sponsored by the insurance company for which she works, the 19-year-old Olympic games star reiterated her denial that she authorized use of her name or picture in a motor car advertisement.

Insurance company officials have announced they will aid Miss Didiakon's fight for reinstatement in the A. A. U., but it appeared likely she would not play on the basketball team until the matter was cleared up.

Lawrence Di Venedetto, chairman of the Southern Amateur Athletic Union at New Orleans said he had started an investigation. At Chicago, J. Lyman Brundage, assistant to Avery Brundage, president of the A. A. U., said Miss Didiakon's case rested now with the district committee.

Miss Didiakon said she felt she had been wrongly convicted of circumstantial evidence. She said she never had seen the testimonial for the automobile until it appeared in print. She admitted that several weeks ago she posed standing beside an automobile of the make advertised, but that she had told the Dallas agent of the company the picture could not be used until she turned professional, if ever.

The name of W. Foster Jacoby of Dallas, director of city parks and secretary of the Texas A. A. U., was brought into the case when Miss Didiakon asserted he had asked her to sign an endorsement of an automobile, promising her that it would not affect her amateur standing. She stated she refused to sign and told Jacoby the use of her name in that connection would be against her wishes.

Miss Didiakon also said Jacoby had urged her to turn professional soon after she returned from the 1932 Olympic at Los Angeles. Jacoby could not be reached for a statement.

Visitors Regain Lead In Last Few Minutes But Faulkner Turns Tide Back To Home Forces With Clever Play

The Recreation Center basketball team defeated the New Britain Alumni DeMolay quintet in the Rec Gym here last night by a score of 60 to 37 in a close and very interesting battle. It was the third triumph of the season for the Red Fives in six games and squared accounts with New Britain which lost 26 to 28 in its own city. Tomorrow night the Rec travels to Pittsfield, Mass., and Sunday afternoon goes back to the same territory for a game in North Adams.

Set Fast Pace

The Rec quintet traveled at an unusually fast pace throughout the game which included more action than several of last season's contests put together. Judging from the spirited playing of the home team, Manager Ben Cline must have been right in an effective manner prior to the battle. There was none of the stalling tactics which slowed up the games last season, this being partly due to the new rule which limits a team to ten seconds in its own backcourt.

The Rec attack was led by the spirited play of two freshmen to the team this year, "Whitey" Bycholski and Tony Saimonds. Not only did this pair lead the scoring but for sheer aggressiveness, their work was unsurpassed. Bycholski, usually spotted in the line-up as being everywhere on the floor at the same time. As a matter of fact, this was almost the case. He was here, there and everywhere, following the ball without a pause to rest. And all this despite a bandaged left wrist.

GUARDS TO PLAY SAINTS TONIGHT

Game To Be In East Hartford Hall; Other Games Rest of Week.

The National Guards step into the basketball limelight tonight when they go to East Hartford to play the St. Mary's. The locals defeated the Saints in the opening game of the season here.

Undoubtedly quite a large number of Manchester people will follow the fast-traveling Guards to the St. Mary's hall tonight in hopes of watching them keep their record unimpaired by defeat.

Friday night the Guards entertain the Polish Collegians of Chippewa Falls, Mass., here at the armory and Saturday play the Knights in Meriden.

Manchester High opens its C. C. L. season in Meriden Friday evening.

ENGLAND CONTINUES ROUT OF AUSTRALIA

By Sydney, New South Wales, Dec. 7.—(AP)—England continued its rout of Australia yesterday as the Aussies went in to bat for their second innings and were able to get only 164 runs for nine wickets at the close of play.

The Australian total voided the possibility of an innings defeat as they had scored 380 in their first innings against 524 for England, but almost surely lost them the first test as it is hardly possible they can hold their last wicket through today for a draw or score more runs than England can match in their second.

The result was forecast almost from the start of batting as Captain Woodfull and W. H. Ponsford lost the first two wickets with the score at only 21. Voce and Harold Larwood, the two great English bowlers, were bowling with deadly accuracy and only H. Finlayson seemed able to stand against them. He scored 40 runs before losing his wicket to Larwood. Stanley McCabe, who scored 137 in Australia's first innings, was unable to repeat and fell for 33 runs.

Australian hopes had been considerably raised as England lost its last three wickets quickly, due to the work of J. Reilly's fine bowling, but the crowd of 25,000 soon had resigned itself to defeat as the English bowlers got warmed up. Jey concludes today.

DAVIS BACK IN SENATE

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Senator Davis of Pennsylvania answered the opening roll call today in the Senate.

By yielding his seat, he ended speculation whether he would appear in the Senate before his trial on a charge of violating the lottery law. The trial was scheduled to start December 12.

A New York Federal Grand Jury indicted the Pennsylvania junior Senator as director general of the Lord Order of Moose.

Davis failed to appear in the Senate Chamber Monday or yesterday. After leaving the Army-Navy football game Saturday in Philadelphia, he did not let his whereabouts be known generally.

ASKS REINSTATEMENT

Waterbury, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Joseph C. Guilfoyle, who was suspended from the practice of the law in May of 1929 by Judge Edwin C. Dickenson of the Superior Court today filed a petition asking the Superior Court for reinstatement. He expresses willingness to comply with all suggestions made by the court in the decision.

The charges on which the lawyer was suspended involved a mortgage transaction in which the court found the lawyer absorbed the interests of his clients and failed to account. Because of possible mental stress the decision of the court was for suspension rather than disbarment.

EXPECT ROOSEVELT IN N. Y. TONIGHT

Preparing a Message For Special Session of His State's Legislature.

Aboard Roosevelt Train, enroute to New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—With 12 days of study of national problems back of him, Franklin D. Roosevelt today thrust aside the role of President-elect to return to the state of his birth.

Spending northward to take up the duties at Albany, Mr. Roosevelt gave thought to his message to the special session of the State Legislature that opens on Friday.

During his stay at Warm Springs, the President-elect talked with more than a dozen members of Congress, each of whom brought him their own ideas of what the Democratic program should include and went away with their conception of his own program.

Farm Relief Plan.
In the variations of his program that came from the round of conferences was the distinct impression that Mr. Roosevelt was giving thought to the possibilities of a domestic allotment plan of farm relief and to drastic changes in the Nation's budgetary system.

Out of the conference also came the impression gained by some Congressmen who attended them, that farm relief and budgetary legislation formed the foundation stones of a program of legislation which would result in a special session of Congress early in the new administration if it failed of enactment in the present session.

The failure of the resolution to repeal the 13th Amendment in the House Monday caused some familiar with the progress of the conferences to believe that there probably would be a special session.

Mr. Roosevelt was expected to arrive tonight at his 68th street home in New York City.

FARMERS PRESENT PLEAS TO CONGRESS

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Two men in working clothes today called on Speaker Garner and Vice President Curtis asking permission to present to them Friday a petition to be drawn by the Farmers National Relief Conference.

The were Earl Dahlsten of Newmarket, Groves, Neb., and George Keith of Buhl, Idaho.

When asked for an appointment, Garner said:

"Yes, I'm here from about 7:30 every morning until 4 or 5 each evening. I'll be glad to receive any communication you have and present it to the agriculture committee, if that's where it should go."

As they posed for a picture, Garner shook hands with Dahlsten, who was clad in red sweater and corduroy pants.

"You boys haven't worked on a farm much more than I have," said the Speaker. "Of course, I quit when I was 19, but I followed a plow many miles before then."

"The two delegates then left for Vice President Curtis' office before going to the first meeting of the conference opening here.

The farmers meanwhile established a means for presenting their petition to Congress.

A delegation of three called on Vice President Curtis and received assurance he would present any petition they offered. He suggested, however, that if they wanted the petition read in the Senate it should be filed through a Senator.

C. N. G. ORDERS

Hartford, Dec. 7.—(AP)—First Lt. William C. Bushnell of Headquarters, 89th Field Artillery Brigade, has been appointed first lieutenant adjutant general's department in military orders issued today. He is assigned to headquarters 43rd division as postal officer.

GOLF TOURNAY

San Francisco, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The third annual San Francisco National Open match play golf tournament got under way today with nearly 200 entries at the Lakeside course. Favorites included Horton Smith, Olin Dutra and Leo Diegel.

DEMANDS REPEAL OF HOME LOAN ACT

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—A bill to repeal the Home Loan Act and abolish the system created at the last session of Congress for liberalizing home mortgage conditions was introduced today by Senator Borah (R., Idaho).

Introducing the bill, Borah told the Senate the act had proved "a complete failure."

He proposed to repeal the entire law, except the rider attached at his instigation for expansion of the currency.

"In my opinion," Borah said, "the act has proven and will continue to prove a complete failure. It is not reaching and will not reach the home owner or those really in need of assistance and who should have help if the government is to take a hand in the situation."

The Home Loan bank system was introduced in 1932 in the closing moments of the last session at the urgent recommendation of President Hoover and set up during the summer with former Representative Franklin Fort, Republican of New Jersey, as chairman of the board.

Without specific endorsements, another resolution would give the Farm Bureau authority for supporting any plan for control of surplus farm crops.

The currency resolution would increase the price of gold from around $30 to $300 a fine ounce. The amount of gold behind each dollar of currency would be reduced from 23.22 to 16 grains. The result would be that each dollar would buy less, causing an increase in prices.

Creation of a "stabilization bureau" in the Treasury Department was proposed to be charged with responsibility for making future changes in gold prices necessary to maintain commodity prices at the 1920-1929 average.

Called Sound Plan
"We believe the above method is the only sound way to perpetuate the gold standard," the resolution said. No mention was made of renunciation of silver.

"Commodity prices have continually fallen," it declared, "and conditions have now become so acute that unless arbitrary and effective measures are taken to reduce the purchasing power of the dollar to a point where commodity prices are restored to a level where major portions of long term public and private debts were contracted, greater disaster and distress are sure to come upon our people."

Other proposed resolutions advocated:

Reorganization of agricultural credit machinery for long term financing of farm mortgages at "very low" interest rates.

Tariff protection for substitutes for commodities as well as the commodities themselves.

Revision of the "National commercial banking structure" to protect depositors.

Independence of the Philippines. Budget balancing through economy rather than increasing "the general tax burden."

Further promotion of farm operations through the Agricultural Marketing Act.

Early completion of negotiations for the St. Lawrence and Lakes-to-Gulf waterways.

Appointment of a farm woman as assistant in the Department of Agriculture.

Research to develop further uses for domestic farm products.

Enactment of a National credit union law.

Encouragement of transportation agencies.

A Kansas woman who has written a verse entitled "The Twang of the Sea" sought to divert her attention to another one, entitled "The Boom of the Piccolo."

ROWE TO CAPTAIN MANCHESTER

SENSE AND NONSENSE

Harriet—I hear Imogene Nelson is to be married Christmas!
Judith—Yes, she's joining the Yule-Tide.

Brown fell victim to the crossword puzzle craze. He neglected his meals, his business, his family, and the insidious squares. His principal diet became the end of a pencil and his hair was torn out in handfuls during the search for chemical compounds in four letters and antipolean mammals in five. In his sleep he raved about "Part of a railway engine," and "Native of an eastern country."

One evening he came home and discovered a note from his wife on the dining room table:

Dear Clarence: Since your life is centered in the solution of crossword puzzles, here is one that I have made for you:

- 1—A pronoun of one letter.
- 2—To possess, with four letters.
- 3—Verb with four letters.
- 4—Place where people live.
- 5—Preposition.
- 6—Female relative.
- 7—Girl's name.

Eagerly he concentrated all his wits on the deciphering of this intriguing puzzle, and at last he solved it as follows:

"I have gone home to Mother—Mary."

Her father married her mother for the bread she made. Her suitor wants to marry her for the dough she's got.

Woman (to neighbor)—Our house ought to be warm this winter.

Neighbor—Why?

Woman—The painter gave it three coats last week.

Which reminds us of the Scotchman who had a fever. When told he would be bed-ridden for at least several weeks, he ordered a dozen hatching eggs.

Wife—I've got a lot of things I want to talk to you about, dear.

Husband—That's good. You usually want to talk to me about a lot of things you haven't got.

Prosperous times are those in which almost everybody has a few thousand dollars to lose bucking Wall street.

Father—Can you keep her in the same shape I have?

Suitor—From what I've seen of her on the beach, its worth a try.

Tired Club Woman (to her husband as she arrived home about seven o'clock one evening)—Got a good supper ready, honey?

Army Dentist—My man, you don't have to pay for teeth extraction in the Army.

Recruit—I know that sir, but I'm just counting my money before you put me under gas.

What has become of the old-fashioned woman who used to say a kiss without a mustache was insipid?

Son—Give me a dime, please Dad?

Daddy—Don't you think you're a pretty big boy to ask for a dime?

Son—Maybe so. Give me a dollar, then.

Winter? Never heard of it! Winter is coming—it's getting later earlier.

Our theatrical experience has taught us that most plays are failures for three reasons: The First Act, the Second Act and the Third Act.

Winter Blasts... Another thing sadly needed, is a lipstick that will make lips look like lips... It is useless to be good unless you are good for something... You're not a failure until you quit trying... Most of us can fool ourselves easier than we can fool others... The more you expect from yourself the more you will accomplish... The more firmly a man believes in something the more he's getting out of it.

Experiments show that kissing stimulates the heart action and is therefore a healthful form of exercise. And with a good looker a fellow wouldn't mind doing his daily dozen.

Here's something for the merchant to think about who wants to get ahead: "Count that day lost, whose low descending sun, sees goods sold at less than cost, and business done for fun."

A good deal depends on the location. A man enjoys a pat on the back but is sure to resent a slap in the face.

Wife—Shall I repair this rip in your trousers?
Husband—Yes, do sew by all means.

The girl who used to get married for better or for worse is now getting married for more or less now and then.

If we were the Lord we believe we'd get awfully tired listening to the same prayers read to us out of a book every Sunday.
