ARRANGING DETAILS OF DEBT PAYMENTS

Almost Certain Now That England and France Will Meet Obligations Next Week.

By Associated Press

Developments in Europe indicate that both England and France will pay the money they owe the United States next Thursday.

There was no statement from an official source either in London or Paris that this decision has been reached, but in both capitals the cabinets gave their attention to evolving the most practical method of payment.

An official statement in London said that this matter will be considered at a Cabinet meeting early next week when Prime Minister MacDonald comes back from the disarmament meeting at Geneva.

In Paris the minister of finance advised the foreign affairs committee and the finance committee of the Chamber of Deputies that the government is disposed to pay with the understanding that this will be the last payment, pending reconsideration of the entire debt structure.

The French premier must now go before the Chamber of Deputies for approval of this course, and it was expected that he would be upheld.

When the liner Bremen sailed from Cherbourg there was a town of gold aboard for delivery in New York. Presumably this was a private shipment, the shipper having taken advantage of the rise in the price of the dollar earlier this week.

THE FINAL DECISION
London, Dec. 9.—(AP)—It was learned officially today that the American and British governments now are negotiating to find methods whereby the British governments now are negotiating to find methods whereby the British war debt payment due on December 15 can be made.

An important Cabinet meeting will be held early next week after Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald returns from Geneva, to make the final decision regarding the payment due Thursday.

Previous unofficial reports of this Cabinet meeting said it would draft a note to urge speedy revision of the war debt settlement after this month's payment of $15,500,000.

"This was marked the beginning of a new phase of the debt problem which responsible quarters here said they believed would help to take the controversy out of the realm of 'international speculation'."

HINES TESTIFIES ON VETS' BENEFITS

Sees No Reason Why Able Bodied Men Should Get Federal Aid.

Washington, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Frank T. Hines, veterans administrator today told a joint congressional committee he could "see no reasonable justification" for a veteran whose disabilities are not connected with service duty "applying to his government for aid when he is able to provide for himself."

The first witness to appear before the group, which is studying all veterans legislation and possible economies, Hines made his statement before a room crowded with representatives of veterans organizations opposing any changes in existing laws.

He put before the committee a national policy of veterans relief, resting on equality in benefits, consideration of the degree of disability, and financial need for government aid.

Those Worthy
The policy Hines continued, should extend aid first to those having disabilities incurred in or aggravated by military service. "Second," he continued, "to those who, while not suffering from disability directly attributable to military service, have become through age or disability, unable to carry on for themselves.

"If we lend countenance to the idea that any young man who renders military service to his country should thereby feel entitled to a record for such duty, then it seems to me we are undermining the very foundation of good citizenship and proper self respect."

"To a veteran who comes unscathed through a war, the government owes its gratitude for his patriotism, but until the time comes in his life when age or disablement makes it impossible for him to support himself, the government, in my opinion, owes such veteran no more than it owes any other loyal citizen."

AIMEE'S HUSBAND IN ANOTHER SUIT

More Sensations Promised
When Hutton's "Ole Pal"
Tells All.

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Take it from an indignant David L. Hutton, Jr.—he'll have "stuff that will shake up the town" when he comes to court next month.

The bland, rotund baritone of Angelus Temple and husband of his pastor, Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, is due to appear January 23 in a rather involuntary encore to his celebrated "heart balm" case.

And what he won't tell—! His emphatic promise of revelations came when he heard what an "ole pal" had done to him at the courthouse while he, Hutton, was on about the second tee at a golf course.

The "ole pal" was Roy Watkins, former Temple employe, who says Hutton has not paid him salary and expenses for services in the singer's behalf in the lost love suit.

In that case, a brunette nurse, Myrtle St. Pierre, said Hutton wooed her and then broke her heart by marrying the evangelist. The nurse won a $5,000 judgment.

Spills the Beans
Now Watkins is suing Hutton for $1,983 and yesterday he spilled a large pot of beans by reproducing, in a bill of particulars, letters and telegrams in which Hutton was quoted as offering various suggestions toward averting trial of the love suit, including a hint the plaintiff would "look better in a frame."

Through counsel, Hutton had demanded the bill of particulars, but it

NEW BRITAIN FIRE DAMAGES BREWERY

$10,000 Loss To Building
Being Renovated Pending
Return of Beer.

New Britain, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Extensive damage was caused by fire early today at the plant of the Cream Brewery on Belden street.

Flames were discovered shooting through the roof shortly before 6:30 o'clock and a call for the fire department was sent in by telephone.

At 8 a. m. the flames were still making headway, being confined to the interior of the three story brick building.

Workers had been employed for several weeks renovating the plant as the owners anticipate that Congress will modify the Volstead Act to permit the manufacture of beer.

Fire department officials estimated the damage at about $10,000 after the blaze had been extinguished.

Chief William J. Noble expressed the opinion that the fire started from a cigarette butt thrown into a pile of ground cork and sawdust in the storeroom. The loss is not covered by insurance.

Congressmen Hear Brewers Plea for Return of Beer

Levi Cooke (left), for many years attorney for American brewers, is shown conferring with August Bush, Jr., of St. Louis during an interlude in the beer hearings before the House Ways and Means committee in Washington at which the brewers urged a 3.3 per cent beer and promised a $360,000,000 expenditure if such beer was permitted.

Chairman Collier To Call
Secretary Mills Tomorrow
To Explain the Financial
Phase of the Subject.

Washington, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Strength for approval of a beer bill is believed by Chairman Collier to exist in the House ways and means committee.

That view was expressed by him today and with continuation of testimony by beer advocates that legalization of the brew would mean capital investments of millions, and vitiate many industries.

Looking to early action, Collier told newspapermen that although he had not made a committee poll, "from surface indications I imagine we will be able to report out a bill."

"Secretary Mills," he said, "has accepted the committee's invitation to give all the information the Treasury has on the proposal. He

STATE COURT BILL IS BEING DRAFTED

Would Eliminate Many of Present Tribunals On the Grounds of Economy.

Hartford, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Another bill proposing the substitution of a system of district courts for the common pleas, town, city, borough and justice of the peace courts, will be submitted to the next General Assembly.

The plan for the district courts was included in the third annual report of the judicial council submitted yesterday to Governor Cross as part of a series of recommendations for reduction of the cost of operating the state courts.

The report again recommended a reduction in the number of justices from 12 to nine with the proviso that 12 venemore might be called if the parties to a trial desire. Items on which it suggested a saving might be effected were the printing of dockets; attendance, at times, of an unnecessary number of sheriffs; excessive costs for the testimonies of experts and the printing of evidence for use on appeals, which might be eliminated in favor of typewritten manuscripts.

New Bill Drafted
A new district court bill, intended to conform to the objections which caused the defeat of the last in the 1931 General Assembly is being drafted to present to the next session, the report said.

Chief Justice William M. Malbone said Judge Lowell Jennings of the Superior Court is working on a study of all expenses of the judicial department to see if possible savings can be made in other departments.

Referring to the business management of court costs, the council proposed the appointment of a full time man to work under the direction of the judges, but in conjunction with the state auditors and the state board of finance.

REPORT SPLIT AMONG NAZIS; BLAME HITLER

Newspapers Report Retirement of Some of His Chief
Aides Giving Ill Health As Cause.

Berlin, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Rumors of a split in Adolf Hitler's National Socialist Party gained strength today and evening newspapers blamed the retirement of some of his aides on Hitler's determination to keep the party power in his own hands.

Gregor Strasser, long regarded as his right-hand-man, resigned as National organizer of the party this morning, explaining that his health would not permit him to continue the work. The party newspaper Angriff denied that it was a resignation and said Strasser was only taking a vacation.

Gottlieb Feder, one of the party's economic experts, requested three weeks leave and this too was reported to be a prelude to dropping out of the party.

There was a rumor that Chancellor Von Schleicher himself had brought about the split, possibly by offering Strasser a Cabinet job. It was said Dr. Wilhelm Frick, another important figure, had lined up with Strasser and Feder and that this was the wedge which may separate the Nationalists from the Socialist element in the party.

This evening, however, Dr. Frick issued a statement denying that he was identified with any movement of opposition against the Hitler leadership. The 162 Nazi members of the Prussian Lantag announced that they were united behind Hitler.

Conrad H. Mann Also Is Sentenced To Five Months On Lottery Charge.

New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Conrad H. Mann, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, was sentenced today to serve five months imprisonment and pay a fine of $12,000 for violation of the Federal lottery laws in connection with "trolleys" of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Frank E. Hering, who was editor of the Eagles Magazine, was sentenced to four months imprisonment and to pay a fine of $4,000.

Bernard C. McGuire, one of the promoters, was sentenced to serve a year and a day and was fined $12,000.

Mann, auditor and past president of the Eagles, was sentenced to five months on each of two counts, the sentences to run concurrently.

The three were found guilty by a Federal jury last Saturday.

Defense Motion
Before sentence was passed by Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman, Max D. Steier, counsel for McGuire, moved for an arrest of judgment against his client, claiming that the facts were insufficient to bear out the verdict. The motion was denied.

Counsel for Mann and Hering also moved to set aside the verdict and asked for a new trial. Both were denied. Then former State Attorney General Albert Ottinger, also counsel for Mann and McGuire, made a plea for mercy for his clients, citing their business records. He also called attention to the fact that the jury had recommended mercy.

"To put these men in prison," Ottinger told the court, "might help to disorganize the Eagles."

Ottinger also told the court that many lawyers were in doubt as to the constitutionality of the law under which the men were convicted.

With the consent of Assistant U. S. Attorney Louis M. Treadwell, Judge Coleman stayed execution of the sentence for ten days and re-

HOOVER RECOMMENDS GOVERNMENT CHANGES

Nation's Farmers Ask
A Half Billion Fund

Washington, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Senate immediately upon its convening and Representative Howard (D., Neb.), read it to the House.

The White House group included one overpaid farmer and two in khaki trousers. Mr. Hoover, shook hands with all. As they departed, Philip Smith of New Hope, Pennsylvania, spokesman for the group, said "the President did not make any positive comment on our request, explaining it was all new to him and that he could not give an immediate answer, but he received us very well and listened to our statement."

TRAPPER USES
TEETH FOR TOES

Unusual Story Comes Out of the North Woods—Man His Own Surgeon.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Out of the secluded north woods where only such a thing could happen came the story today of a Finnish shaker who uses teeth for toes.

Fred Carr, himself a shaker, was the story. Carr said they found the Finn, trapped by a fallen tree and badly frozen. The took him to a hospital by dog team and three doctors insisted on amputating his legs.

The Finn, said Carr, refused permission for the operation and stole away from the hospital back to his woodland shack. There his toes became infected and he amputated them himself. The stumps healed up, on the Finn is back on his trapping route, with a small section of a cross cut saw inserted in each foot. The blunt teeth are used for the Finn, Carr explained.

FARM RELIEF UP
IN CONGRESS NOW

President's Message Is Set
Aside As Other Topics
Are Presented.

Washington, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Congress received from President Hoover today a far-reaching plan for reorganization of government bureaus, but instead of taking it up at once, plunged into the farm relief question.

Overlaid farmers had presented petitions for aid to Vice President Curtis and Speaker Garner.

The President's plan, carrying no estimate of economies to be achieved through the shifting of different activities, was read to the Senate without evoking comment, but the House expenditures committee promised to take it up "immediately."

The farm petition, drafted by the National Farmers' Relief Conference, started a swirl of debate as Representative Howard of Nebraska read it to the House. Vice President Curtis presented it to the Senate.

Meanwhile, the House ways and means committee in all-day hearings pushed through agreement on a beer bill, which is to be offered next week.

The joint committee on veterans' legislation took up with Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, the question of economizing on ex-soldiers' benefits.

Philippine independence remained the official order of business in the Senate, and after preliminaries, debate on the issue was resumed.

TREASURY BALANCE
Washington, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for December 7 were $7,429,205.88; expenditures $12,709,468.93; balance $548,981,398.12. Customs duties for seven days of December were $5,013,467.20.

Difficult in Hartford To Change $1,000 Bill

Hartford, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Getting rid of a $1,000 bill is harder than making one, according to John J. Murphy of Newington, a contractor who yesterday established a number of Hartford bank clerks so much by trying to get change for "one grand" that he was taken to police headquarters for questioning.

Mr. Murphy says he got the bill and a few more in payment for a job recently completed. Yesterday he decided to pay some bills he owed and took the $1,000 bill to a bank to get change. This bank would not change it, so he went to another. There the police became interested and he was escorted to the detective bureau. Detectives tried to get him to admit that he was at least a gambler or race track man, but Mr. Murphy telephoned some of the persons he owed money, and they established his reputation as being perfectly good.

In Lengthy Message To Congress,
President Suggests
Reshaping 58 Bureaus and Eliminating 15;
Proposals Also Call For Four New Posts In "The Little Cabinet."

Washington, Dec. 9.—(AP)—In a bulky message, President Hoover today placed before Congress a series of recommendations for partially reorganizing the Federal government by reshaping 58 executive branches in a new pattern and reducing the number of independent agencies by 15.

The maze of proposals called for the creation of four new posts in the "Little Cabinet." The new titles would be assistant secretaries of the interior for public works; of the interior for education, health and utilization; of agriculture for land reclamation; and of commerce for merchant marine.

Under them would be consolidated various bureaus and agencies now spread throughout the government, although often conducting similar work.

Simultaneously with the outlining of this interwar plan, the President submitted 11 executive orders for carrying it into effect. If no congressional objection is raised within 60 days the reorganization will go forward as proposed.

No Early Comment
Senators and Representatives of both parties were chary at immediate formal comment pending study of the message. There was early speculation, however, that some block might be placed in the path of the President's plan by Democratic leaders, particularly in view of the recent announcement by President-elect Roosevelt that the intended calling in experts for a reorganization study designed to produce a reorganization plan of his own.

In addition to the consolidation under the four new titles, the President contemplated other groupings, such as the consolidation into the Coast Guard of the border patrol of the Labor Department's immigration service, and the border patrol of the Treasury Department's Customs service.

The Weather Bureau of the Department of Agriculture would be shifted to the Department of Commerce, while the powers and duties of the Federal oil conservation board would be shifted to the bureau of mines of the same department and the board abolished.

The Chief Executive told Congress he would make no attempt to calculate the total savings that might be expected from his plan. He pointed out, however, that the total appropriations for the agencies concerned is approximately $700,000,000.

Difficulties in having his proposals accepted already have been foreseen by Mr. Hoover. In his regular annual message submitted last Tuesday, he said:

"The Congress must be warned that a host of interested persons inside and outside the government whose vision is concentrated on some particular function will at once protest against these proposals. These same sort of activities have prevented reorganization of the government for over a quarter of a century. They must be disregarded if the task is to be accomplished."

Further Mergers
In his message today, in addition to outlining the proposed 58 shifts of agencies, the President disclosed that he has still further consolidations in mind for the Army and Navy, and plans to submit more executive orders in the future.

As an illustration of his present plan, here are some of the organizations and functions Mr. Hoover proposes to consolidate under the assistant secretary of commerce for merchant marine:

The United States Shipping Board Merchant Fleet Corporation, now an independent agency; the Inland Waterways Corporation of the War Department; the Bureau of Light-houses of the Department of Commerce; the Naval Observatory of the Navy's Bureau of Navigation; the Coast and Geodetic Survey; the Hydrographic office of the Bureau of Navigation; the survey of northern and northeastern lakes of the War Department; the Bureau of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection, the supervisor of New York harbor, now under the Army engineers.

Some of the agencies that would come under the new assistant secretary of the interior for education, public health and recreation would include the interior department's office of education, the public health service of the treasury department, the national park service of the interior department, the national parks, cemeteries and monuments under the War Department, the Bureau of Indian affairs, and the

EXPLOSION IN MINE TRAPS 23 DIGGERS

Rescue Crew Unable To Go Down Into Shaft Because of the Gas.

Harlan, Ky., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Twenty-three men were reported trapped by an explosion in the Harlan Fuel Company's coal mine at Yancey today. This report which came to George Ward, secretary of the Harlan County Coal Operators' Association, said it could not be determined whether any had been killed.

A rescue crew in charge of George Bryson, safety director of the Harlan Operators' Association, was sent to Yancey, six miles from here but gasses following the explosion prevented immediate contact with the men believed to be trapped.

The company, one of the largest in the county, had been employing about 300 men on part time basis.

About 275 of the miners were reported to have been working in other mine passages which were not believed affected.

The workers trapped were believed to have been about a mile from the entrance in the drift mine on the mountain side. Reports here were that some of them were believed to have escaped. Workers in other passages were equipped with concrete benches for cutting off the various passages in event of fire or other trouble.

Olyse Guthrie, son of E. Guthrie whose family owns and operates the Harlan Fuel Company, said it had not been determined whether an explosion, fall of slate, or a faulty blast had caused the trouble.

MAY CUT PENSIONS OF STATE VETERANS

Those Who Were Not Injured In War Having Cases Reviewed.

Hartford, Dec. 8.—(AP)—A total of 3,742 World War veterans in Connecticut who are getting pensions of from $12 to $40 a month for disability not traceable to their war service will have their cases reviewed—with the probability of wholesale slashes under new rulings it was learned at the Veterans administration offices in Newington today.

At the present time, the government is paying these men, whose injury are not related to their army service, an average of $18 each a month, total of between $65,000 and $70,000 a month.

Under new rulings on disability, which eliminates certain ailments, General Frank T. Hines, head of the Veterans Bureau said the cases are to be reviewed by the rating boards and the work will start next week. There will be no cuts until next year, however.

WEIGHTS OF BOXERS New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Kid Chocolate, Cuban negro today weighed in at 125 1/2 pounds, one-half pound under the limit of the featherweight class, for his 15-round title fight tonight with Fidel La Barba.

In army strength Soviet Russia heads the list with 1,180,000; France comes second with 840,637; Italy third with 241,886, and Japan fourth with 233,768.

MARVELOUS MANHATTAN

New York.—Lillian Shady, singer of torch songs, gave me a bit of a surprise when she told me:

"I don't think very much of married life. I don't want anything more, to do with it."

"I had my experience—one of those quick things. It was annulled. I see so many instances of marriages gone all wrong, and so much unhappiness—if I were proposed to by a prince I don't think I'd take him."

And she's a torch singer! I didn't know that Lillian had once tried matrimony. That isn't generally known about this former bank employe who became one of the overnight sensations of Broadway.

What does she want, then, most of all? Why, to get along with her career, of course.

"Right now I want a bit more than anything else in the world," she said.

But don't get the idea that Lillian is flippant about men, and love, and matrimony. Quite the contrary, she grows very serious when she gets into these subjects.

It was an afternoon for confessions, and soon Lillian was out with something else that weighs in her heart right heavily:

"Right now she is in love! Yes, sir, in love—and she has schooled herself to believe that she must take no man in matrimony any more."

Isn't that a complication for a singer of those tearful, setting ballads?

Why a Torch Singer? The thing that started all of this was an intimate over-the-table chat about why we have torch singers and why so many people like to hear them.

It was Miss Shady's simple theory that most everybody has some old, crushed sentiment smoldering deep inside, and that he or she surrenders to a vicarious expression of self-pity in the torch-singer's chant—no matter how silly and soppy the song.

As for the torch singers themselves, they will be with us as long as there is a paying audience for them. And if the singer has come through a burning romance or two, she profits in her technique, at least.

Lillian was born in the Bronx—22 years ago, she says. She was married when she was 17.

"I was just a silly little kid, and didn't know any better."

"Now, whenever she goes before an audience to sing a torch song, she has her 'sad experience' in mind.

Nonchalant Tunesy What's become of Scott Nearing? Oh, he's still around, making speeches.

The biggest motion picture theater in the world continues to lose money at an estimated $2,500 a week, we are informed. Yet to keep it closed would cost about $4,000 a week—all of which contributes to the insomnia of the shareholders.

RUBY KEELER SEKS SUCCESS IN FILMS

Hollywood.—Ruby Keeler had two reasons for wishing to make her movie start on her own and not as the leading lady of her husband, Al Jolson.

"First," she says, "I knew if Al had me in his picture he would spend a lot of time worrying about me and how I was getting along, and I knew he would have worries enough of his own."

"And then I never like to see a husband and wife in the same picture. Maybe it's because I'm like a child and want to believe thoroughly in what I'm seeing. If I don't then it does something to my enjoyment."

Sitting there on the set in her portable dressing room—not an elaborate affair like those affected by some of the stars, but the ordinary garden variety found on every set—she said the dainty Mrs. Jolson claimed to know so little of motion pictures as to be awed completely by them.

Still her remark hit, of course, at the very reason the screen so seldom offers husband-wife acting teams. Many fans find it difficult to believe that a hero and heroine are facing obstacles to happiness when they know that in real life the two already are married.

This awe of hers, especially regarding the recognized movie stars, is not affected, but is still a bit odd because Ruby Keeler was a Broadway star even before she married Al Jolson four years ago. As she explains it, "everybody knows them, but only a few people in New York me."

She Likes It "This picture—'42nd Street'—marks her first professional appearance in two years. Her hobby during the idling interval has been golf, which is suffering now that she is back at work, but there's the new excitement and interest to compensate."

"I never knew how thoroughly picture work takes up a player's time until I started doing it. It's get up early, report to the set, stay all day, and get home too tired to do anything but sleep—and up early again. But I like it."

Husband Al, who incidentally approves Ruby's picture career and in fact aided and abetted her signing with Warner Bros., where he made the first feature talkies, has gone east to do some remunerative radio broadcasting before returning to complete some added scenes for his own "Happy Go-Lucky."

No Easy Job Karen Morley, doubling in brass on two pictures—"The Mask of Fu Manchu" and "Flesh"—found so little time for rest and sleep that she dropped on the set from exhaustion. Think about that the next time movie-acting strikes you as the last word in ease and luxury.

Miss Morley gets a real vacation at "Flesh" is complete. Her rest is that which Colleen Moore was to have had. Colleen, it was finally decided, was not the type. And she is still waiting for an assignment.

ODDS AND ENDS

John Richthofen, Sweden's Olympic heavyweight champion, has been tried to those who sponsored his recent debut in professional circles. He almost ruined several of the country's noblest gladiators before they could extract his amateur boxing record from the ring.

A Chicago duck hunter proved that kindness really pays when he fought his way 400 yards through reeds and brambles to release a stray dog that was caught in a muskrat trap. Shortly thereafter he fell from the boat into the icy lake, up to his eyes. Add unusual superstitions: The navy football eleven always pulls down the blinds when its special train passes through Baltimore. The idea being that, for some reason or other, the city is bad medicine for the "Middlers' chances."

Eastern critics who saw Notre Dame crash the Army are predicting the Ramblers won't be that great a team against Southern California on Dec. 10. No eleven, they say, can attain that the fervor more than once a season. Wait! Hoyt, at 33, has been given his release from three clubs of the American League and two of the National.

There was a large attendance of friends and people of the church, and many beautiful floral tributes. Rev. William H. Bath of Providence officiated.

OBITUARY DEATHS

James English James English, the two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph English of Woodville, but formerly of Manchester, died yesterday afternoon at St. Francis Hospital, Hartford. The body was brought to the undertaking rooms of Mark Holmes of North Main street where prayers were said this afternoon by Rev. J. J. Martin of St. Rose's church, Burnside. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Wodland.

Edmund S. Mers The funeral of Edmund S. Mers, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Mers of North Main street, was held this morning from the home at 9:30 and at St. Bridget's church at 10 o'clock. The church was packed with friends of the boy and his grief-stricken parents.

Young Mers is the boy who was fatally injured when struck by an automobile while riding a bicycle on Main street.

The service at the church was a solemn requiem high mass with four priests officiating. Rev. John P. Brennan of Hazardville, uncle of the deceased, was the celebrant with Rev. William P. Reidy of St. James's church as deacon and Rev. F. W. Hinchey of Rockville as sub-deacon. Rev. Patrick F. Killeen was master of ceremonies. Rev. C. T. McCann, rector of St. Bridget's church, chanted the Gregorian responses.

Included in the congregation were classmates from St. James's Parochial school where Edmund went to school in the summer. Mrs. Margaret Smith Shea sang four numbers, "Take Me My Jesus to Heaven," "Beautiful Land on High," "O Salutaris" and "Some Sweet Day."

The bearers were John Branwick, Andrew Fiedler, Felix Barr, Joseph Liorick, Raymond Coleman and Charles Novak. Floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

Burial was in St. James's cemetery with Rev. Brennan officiating assisted by Rev. Reidy and Rev. Killeen.

Raymond Johnson The funeral of Raymond Johnson, of 37 Holl street, was very largely attended yesterday afternoon at his home. Rev. J. S. Neill officiated and burial was in the East cemetery.

The floral tributes were numerous. Among the larger pieces were tributes from the class of 1934 at Westland and from the fraternity to which the young man belonged, also a floral piece from John. Mathew, Chapter, Order of DeMolay, and a large evergreen wreath from the "Dills," a group of boys with whom associated. John Maher Chapter was represented by a large number of members present in a body. A Wesleyan delegation was also present.

The bearers were James Cole, Earl Ruddle, Harry Howland, Lincoln Murphy, Leonard Bjorkman and Carl Cubberly.

Mrs. Jane C. Robinson The funeral of Mrs. Jane C. Robinson was held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Paxson of Manchester Green at three o'clock yesterday afternoon. Rev. Marvin Stocking of the North Methodist Episcopal church officiated and burial was in the family plot in the East cemetery.

Robert Gordon rendered three solos at the service, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," "Abide With Me," and "Jesus Saviour, Pilot Me." The bearers were Walter Lippincott, Charles Stirling Lippincott, John C. Stirling, Harry England and Stewart Cordiner.

Mrs. Sarah Wetherell The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Wetherell, of 81 Chestnut street, was held in the undertaking parlors of Thomas G. Dougan, 59 Holl street, at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

John Chambers, soloist, sang "Aloha With Me" at the service. The bearers were Joseph C. Doyle, John P. Connors, Charles Connors, Michael Coughlin, John McNeil and Daniel Haggerty. Burial was in St. Bridget's cemetery.

Mrs. Clara Davis Funeral services for Mrs. Clara E. Davis, widow of Rev. William F. Davis, a former pastor of the South Methodist church, were held yesterday forenoon at Walden Brothers, 11 Oak street. There was a large attendance of friends and people of the church, and many beautiful floral tributes. Rev. William H. Bath of Providence officiated.

Burial was in the old East Village cemetery at Webster, Mass.

Washington, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The advisability of limiting Philippine immigration to Hawaii as well as to the United States was discussed in the Senate today as it began the second day of consideration of island independence proposed in the pending Hawes-Cutting bill.

Senator Johnson (R., Calif.), presented an amendment to accompany the Hawes-Cutting bill, which would limit Philippine immigration to the United States to 100 a year.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, said a number of persons "have suggested that the immigration restrictions also should apply to Hawaii."

Johnson said he had been informed Hawaii had been allotted relief funds by the Reconstruction Corporation because of unemployment conditions and that this was one factor prompting his amendment.

Robinson agreed this was "an important matter."

Senator Cutting (R., N. M.), proposed to make the restrictions effective upon the date of acceptance by the Philippine Legislature of the Independence Act, instead of when the free Philippine government is inaugurated, as the bill provides.

LOCAL DRY PETITIONS SENT TO WASHINGTON

Churches Ask Congress Not To Legalize Light Wines and Beer—Presented Today.

Two petitions, one from the South Methodist church and the other from the Second Congregational church of this town, were filed in the United States Senate this morning by U. S. Senators Hiram Bingham and Frederic C. Walcott, asking that the Senate vote not to legalize beer and light wines. The several petitions carried over a hundred names of local residents.

Shortly after the Presidential election local groups became active in the interests of prohibition with the result that the several petitions were secured by church and W. C. T. U. workers. Mrs. Katherine De F. Hardy forwarded the petitions to Washington.

Census Bureau's division of vital statistics.

In addition, various institutions such as Howard University, negro college and St. Elizabeth's hospital, an institution for the insane in Washington, the Columbian Institution for the Deaf and others would be grouped under the same authority.

Under the assistant secretary for public works would come such agencies as the Bureau of Reclamation, the Geological Survey, the office of the supervising architect of the Treasury, the Bureau of Public Roads, various bridge, park and monument commissions, and such agencies under the War Department as the Mississippi River Commission, and the California Debris Commission.

In addition such non military activities of the Army engineers as river and harbor and flood control work, the joint board of engineers for rivers and harbors and the inter-oceanic canal board would come under the same authority.

In his executive order providing for such changes, the President said: "Commissioned officers of the Corps of Engineers, United States Army, shall continue to be detailed by the secretary of war upon request of the secretary of the interior for work on rivers and harbors projects; but while so detailed they shall be under the direction of the secretary of the interior, and their pay and allowances shall be charged against the appropriations for the project to which they are assigned."

The assistant secretary of agriculture for land utilization would have control of the forest service, the general land office, the powers and duties of the committee on conservation and administration of the public domain, and various agriculture bureaus such as those dealing with the biological survey and the chemistry of soils.

The President pointed out also that he was without authority to abolish many existing agencies without the legislative consent of Congress. He asked permission to discontinue several such branches which he said had served their usefulness, many of them in the District of Columbia.

EXPERTS DISCUSS MARRIAGE PROBLEM

Rev. J. M. Cooper Says It Fulfills One of Basic Human Needs.

Middletown, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The Rev. John W. Cooper of Catholic University told delegates to the Wesleyan University college body parley today that marriage best fulfills, so far as it is possible with human institutions, three of the most imperative and basic human needs.

He listed these as parental care of offspring, prolonged and maximum protection and care of the mother by the father, and definite placing of responsibility on the true father.

Father Cooper's address opened the final day of the two days' parley on marriage. It was followed by a round table discussion on "mental adjustments in marital life" led by Dr. William B. Terhune, associate medical director of the Austin Riggs Foundation.

Father Cooper, professor of anthropology, said domestic relationship is a blend of three currents—physical sex urge, love, and parental impulse. Child bearing, trains parents, he said, "to unselfish altruism in deed and in motive, not by the feeble words of human exhortation but by the living experiences of their very parenthood and conjugal life."

Dr. Terhune said: "Many of the problems of marriage are largely psychiatric in nature since they lie primarily in the field of human emotions."

He asserted that success or failure in marital adjustments was largely a matter of complying with the laws of adaptation.

"If marriage is ever to become a successful experience" he said, "it will be necessary for people to understand the nature of emotions. The parental attachment emotion is the most harmful in that either one of the two parties to a marriage is likely to expect too much of his parent's characteristic in his mate."

Fear is another emotion which should be guarded against as it may lead to the husband being unable to provide a satisfactory livelihood, or to the wife's sidestepping her obligations to the home.

"Sensitiveness is the next most important cause of affective marital difficulties. x x x"

"Human beings must understand that love cannot continue to exist without intelligent effort. Sooner or later in marriage the courtship basis wears off and it is then that there is an opportunity for a real and enduring love to be built up. Happy marriages are not made in Heaven, but instead are the result of intelligent idealism based on a knowledge of the principles of human adaptation."

A second round table discussion as led by the Rev. Roy Chamberlain was led by the Rev. Roy Chamberlain, chapel director at Dartmouth. The subject was "Youth Prepares for Marriage."

In Chile the church is forbidden by law to perform marriages unless preceded by state marriages. Therefore all devoted Catholics who marry are married twice on the same day.

2 FIRMS PERFECT IN FUND RECORD

Orford Soap and Keith's Get 100 P. C. Collections For Jobless Relief.

At the second report meeting of the M. E. A. campaign tonight reports will be given from division heads that the Orford Soap Company has reported 100 per cent collections towards the fund now being raised for unemployment relief. Also, the George E. Keith Company has reported pledges totaling 100 per cent in the current drive. Several other industrial reports expected to be on par will be expected at tonight's meeting in the High school hall.

The meeting will be opened tonight at 7 o'clock sharp, the business to be completed in approximately one half hour. All workers should be in their seats at 7 o'clock.

The total reported last Wednesday night was $6,688, and it is expected that a majority of the teams will make reports more than doubling that figure at tonight's meeting.

The final meeting of the campaign will be held in High school hall Monday night at 7 o'clock at which time all reports on the drive will be recorded.

BELIEVES BEER BILL HAS COMMITTEE'S O. K.

will appear tomorrow as the first witness and I imagine, he will discuss the financial phase of the subject.

Refused Before

Previously the treasury department declined to send representatives to the hearings, informing Collier it had not made a study of beer legislation.

Witnesses, who today said legislation of beer would pour millions into industry and provide employment for thousands of workers now idle, included:

Edward Verdi of Hoboken, N. J., representing the Associated Co-operative Industries; D. C. Fenner of New York, of the Mack-International Motor Truck Corporation; Dr. John A. Harris of New York, representing numerous hotel and restaurant and associated organizations; Joseph Dilworth of Pittsburgh, representing "the committee on industrial rehabilitation;" A. W. Barreford of the National Electric Manufacturers Association of New York; J. E. Curren of Toledo, of the Owen-Illinois Glass Company, Charles H. Lipsitz, of New York, representing metal trade journals, and George P. Mills of Washington, representing the Associated Producers of Cereal Beverages.

MILLS TO TESTIFY

Washington, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Secretary Mills will appear before the House ways and means committee tomorrow to testify on the Democratic sponsored beer bill.

Chairman Collier announced the arrangement today as the committee went into its third day of hearings on legislation of beer and light wines. The Mississippi Democrat said Mills would appear "personally" indicating he would not reflect the views of the administration.

The Treasury had been invited to send representatives to testify on the opening day but declined.

Collier said Mills later called him and said he would appear before the committee Saturday.

George P. McCabe, of Washington, D. C., representing the Associated Producers of Cereal Beverages, the first witness today, recommended a beer of not less than 2.75 per cent and a 35¢ barrel tax.

He said his association represents breweries with an invested capital of $58,000,000, and a capacity of 11,600,000 barrels.

"The breweries recommend that the law be so amended as to discourage the illicit manufacturer and the bootlegger, and to guarantee a pure, healthful, non-intoxicating beer which can be sold through the ordinary channels of distribution now in use for near beer," McCabe said, "and without those restrictions which must surround the sale of intoxicating liquor."

"We recommend an alcoholic content of not less than 2.75 per cent of alcohol by weight (3.46 per cent by volume)," McCabe went on.

Ask Amendment

"We ask for an amendment of the Volstead Act which will require the manufacturer under permit from the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol of beer to be sold through the alcoholic strength determined upon by Congress."

He declined to discuss the wine section in the bill, but suggested "a saving clause" be inserted, so that in the event the wine provision is held unconstitutional, the beer provision may remain on the statute books.

McCabe said 2.75 per cent beer would be "a soft drink" and should be permitted to be sold at places where soft drinks are sold.

Attendance at the hearings had dwindled and only the first few rows in the large room were filled.

McCabe placed his manuscript on the table in front of him, put his hands in his pockets and talked in an even tone.

AMEE'S HUSBAND IN ANOTHER SUIT

was evident that what he got wasn't what he wanted.

The news was conveyed to him at the golf links.

"Good heavens!" he said, dropping a maul.

He read a proffered copy of the bill, to which was attached Watkins' statement of expenses, including:

Dinners and entertainment, $124.
Expenses at week-end camp, $84.
Refreshments, $178.

Hutton mopped his brow and exclaimed:

"Well of all—well, I'll be—why, it's outrageous! But just wait until the case comes to trial. I'll have my say then."

"I'll have witnesses and I'll have stuff that'll shake up the town—mark my words."

"Why didn't I save Watkins' letters to me? Oh, why didn't I?"

The communications to Watkins started from Kansas City, where Mrs. Hutton was holding revival, and continued through New Orleans down into the tropics.

Watkins was repeatedly enjoined to get the St. Pierre case quashed. This was before it came to trial.

Some days later,

A letter from Kansas City, April 24, headed "Dear Ole Pal" said "Sister (Mrs. Hutton) wants to know what you have done in regard to the St. Pierre case, as it worries her very much" and "can not she (the nurse) leave the state or better yet, mysteriously disappear, eh?"

"She must not appear in court as it would kill Sister," the letter said. Elsewhere was the suggestion "give the gal a couple of hundred."

From a steamship out of New Orleans: "Could a world tour be arranged for Sister and make money? Think this over now. Do your stuff on St. Pierre and pray for us."

Again from the steamer: "Oh, yes, I want a city job for my uncle in Illinois. He's a fine chap. Good mixer, clean cut. Tall Porter (Mayor John Porter) I want. Something to support wife and two kiddies on. Even if it's with City Prosecutor Johnson."

May 15, from the boat: "Roy, I hope you can settle it (the suit) as igned the defendants in the custody of their attorneys, pending motions for bail on appeal to be made before the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Judge Coleman, explaining that he had pronounced sentence on all three men together to avert unnecessary suspense.

Run Honestly

"I believe that this lottery was run honestly," Judge Coleman said, "with the qualification that many, if not most, of the purchasers of these tickets had no idea that the promoters were profiting to the extent of $500,000 from contributions, the share for charities being as small as it was."

"It may well be that the defendants did not know that they were violating a criminal statute and one may assume that they would not have perpetrated the acts complained of if they had known they were committing a crime. However, they must have known that they were skirting the criminal law. I believe they took a chance of committing a crime because of the very large profits which were to be divided among them. As to the guilt of the three defendants, my belief is that Hering is the least culpable, his interest having been smallest and his activity least, as were his profits."

Made A Business

"McGuire is the most culpable, having made a business out of promoting such enterprises. I have fixed the terms of imprisonment as low as can be done in view of the need of deterring others from like practices. The sentences are close to the minimum that action possible in view of this consideration. There has been no desire to be vengeful on behalf of the government or to inflict needless suffering. On the other hand I do think that the court is called upon to be merciful. The aim of justice is to apply the law fairly and with due regard to all of the facts involved."

Mann and Hering were on hand more than half an hour early for the proceeding. They came accompanied by Congressman Samuel B. Pittenger of South Bend, Ind., and Robert E. Proctor, attorney at Elkhardt, Ind., who was former grand worthy president of the Eagles.

Hering, editor of the Eagles Magazine and former professor of Notre Dame University, appeared considerably worried. He kept his eyes straight ahead, his lips set in a thin straight line.

and down and countryside throughout this broadland. All of them show signs of economic stress. Unemployment, business reverses, investment losses, broken banks, threatened foreclosures, called loans, reduced values of collateral, or other hardships have, invaded their comfort, and disturbed their happiness. I am personally inclined to view that the cash paid directly to living policyholders, in these times of individual pressure, enabled the life insurance institution to render a more helpful and beneficial aid to life insurance patrons, than resulted from cash payments made on policies which were matured by the death of the insured."

He said that although these loans were made "with intermittent intensity" since the close of 1929, he now sees indications that are subsiding.

The cash income of the companies during the past three years, he said, was $9,781,198,000—representing a cash residue of $5,660,867,000.

FIVE POINT PROGRAM TO ASSIST NATION

New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—A five-point program for economic rehabilitation was presented to the twenty-sixth annual convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents today by Henry I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The five points he presented were:

"Spreading of available work; unshackling business through modification of restrictive laws; a profitable basis for agriculture; stabilization of purchasing power of the dollar; and reduction of governmental expenditures, with revision of the tax laws."

Enlarging on the points, Harriman said that while no hard and fast rule could, in his opinion, be laid down for spreading work, lengthened vacation periods, the five-day week, and the 40-hour or 30-hour week could be used to rotate employment.

Turning to the question of restrictions hampering business, Harriman recommended amendment of the present anti-trust laws to provide: "(A) That business concerns desiring to enter into contracts for the purpose of equalizing production to consumption may do so, but must file such contracts with some governmental authority having supervision over the same, and (B) that companies desiring to combine may find out from some governmental authority, before the combination is made, whether or not such action is prohibited by our anti-trust laws."

to many industries, Wheeler explained.

In answer to a question he said he thought consolidation was "a practical and desirable thing," but added that consolidation without proper co-ordination of the railroads with trucks and other transportation forms would "still be a hodge-podge."

Alexander Legge, a member of the committee, asked if in Wheeler's opinion the roads had been less progressive in modernizing equipment than other industries like the motor and steel companies. Legge said he had heard such criticism frequently; that this alleged lack of progressiveness was due to the fact that the roads have held a virtual monopoly, that they operate under too many restrictions, are bothered by financing difficulties, and lastly have assumed a self-satisfied attitude. He asked Wheeler if he thought there was any basis for that criticism.

"The U. S. Steel Corp.," said Wheeler, "never hesitates, for example, to throw $1,000,000 or $10,000,000 of equipment on board, if some one comes along and shows them new equipment can do the job better."

"The railroads are fully aware of all transportation improvements that are being made," said Wheeler. "But there never has been an adequate scheme of depreciation worked out for the roads. This is in part to raise road management, but more largely to regulation. The question of providing proper depreciation is something that your

Taken From Box.

Walter D. Micaud, who conducts a barber shop in the Farr building, 307 Main street, lost $5.00 from a cash box in the barber shop yesterday noon while he was in his room adjoining the shop writing a letter. Upon noticing the theft, Micaud thought someone was playing a joke on him, but when the money was not returned he decided it to be a real job by someone familiar with the upstairs shop.

Micaud has rooms in the north end of the building and while absent from the shop for a short time the thief entered and rifled the cash drawer of the contents, a little over $5.00. He ran down stairs to the street in an effort to apprehend the thief but he had gone. The job was done evidently by someone familiar with the barber's habits.

The robbery was not reported to the police.

POLAND ASKS DELAY

Washington, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Poland in another note to the United States government, today repeated its request for postponement of the $2,400,000 war debt installment due Dec. 15, bolstering the request with a detailed statement of the country's "unsatisfactory economic position."

Poles have not forgotten American assistance in advancing credit for the necessary staples of life after the World War, said the note, and the government has done its utmost to put the country on a sound and permanent financial basis, a task in which private American capital was of the greatest assistance.

The present Polish government is ready to do its utmost to meet its obligations, but it must request now that the Dec. 15 payment be postponed "until such time as the entire matter of Poland's indebtedness to the United States is reconsidered."

This request was prompted, the note said, by consideration of the "grave effects" the December remittance might have on Poland's economic structure.

DEPOT SQUARE'S TREE IN DIFFERENT PLACE

Set Up In West Section of Park
So That Lights Can Be Easily Connected.

Depot Square merchants have decided to enhance the beauty of their Christmas decorations and street lighting during the holiday season by having a decorated Christmas tree in the park on the Square. This was the custom for many years but was discontinued by the Selectmen for purposes of economy. This year the merchants at the north end decided to erect their own tree.

The tree was put in place this morning and is in a different location than formerly. The tree has been placed in the west section of the park. This was done because of the congested condition in the east section and also because it is easier to wire the tree for lights in the west section.

This request was prompted, the note said, by consideration of the "grave effects" the December remittance might have on Poland's economic structure.

PHONE REPAIR MAN INJURED IN CRASH

Albert E. Wilson Fractures Shoulder When He Hits Unlighted Truck.

Albert E. Wilson, of 98 Cambridge street, employed as a repairman by the Southern New England Telephone Company, received a fractured right shoulder and contusions about the body and right arm in an automobile accident which occurred on the Rockville-Manchester road near the Old Lyman's switch last night at 5:15.

Wilson was returning from work in Rockville in the company's light repair truck and came upon a heavy truck owned by Louis Coffon of Plainville, Conn. which was parked alongside of the road. In an effort to avoid striking the truck, which it was reported was parked without lights, Wilson turned sharply, but not enough to clear the tires of the heavier truck.

Wilson was thrown out of the repair truck, striking on his right shoulder. The entire repair equipment of the truck was scattered over the highway, blocking traffic until wire chief Joseph Gorman arrived and assisted in its removal.

Wilson was taken by ambulance to the Manchester Memorial hospital and the repair truck was taken to Schaller's garage. Wilson's escape from more serious injuries was remarkable, probably due to the fact that he was thrown clear of the

COUNCIL TO CONSIDER TOWN FORM CHARTER

Consolidation To Be Topic At Next Meeting - Subject Brought Up By Petition

At the first meeting for the fiscal year of the City Council, held in the Council Chamber Wednesday night, a petition was presented, signed by about 20 residents of West street asking that an unclear and unhealthy condition there be abated. An investigation is underway and the matter has been referred to the Public Works Committee.

A communication was received from Town Clerk John B. Thomas, relative to a motion made at the recent town meeting that both the city and town name committees to investigate the question of consolidating the city and town governments. It was received too late for consideration by the annual city meeting. It will be taken up again at the next meeting of the City Council.

The Lighting Committee has been authorized to remove enough lights from the streets to keep within the budget of $10,000 appropriated at the recent city meeting, at which time this item was cut $2,000.

Building permits were granted to: Frank Golch, garage, 16 x 18 feet at 8 to 10 Cottage street; George Newman, remodel garage, 12 x 18 feet, at King street; M. Joseph Webster, addition to garage, 35 x 18 feet, on School street; Henry Scheibe, roof over doorway, 5 x 5, at 98 Orchard street.

Two petitions of Henry Scheibe, one to erect a sign on the property of Harry Allen on Orchard street, and one to replace the sign of John Dalley's on the pole at the corner of Prospect street were referred to the public works committee.

Musical Program Sunday
Rockville people will be interested in the musical program to be presented at the Rockville Methodist church on Sunday night by the Rockville Liedertafel Male Chorus and the Little Symphony Orchestra.

The former program is in charge of the director, Max C. Kabrick, and the latter in charge of Carl S. Frutking. Members are asked to bring a cent gift and some article for "sunshine" basket to be sent to a member of the corps. Mrs. Ida Weber is in charge of the supper.

Drunk Driving Charged
Chester J. Robinson, colored, will appear in the Rockville Police Court on Saturday morning on charges of driving an automobile under the influence of liquor. Robinson, who is from Boston, Mass., was on his way to Philadelphia on Wednesday night to attend a funeral.

Lions Membership Drive
The Rockville-Lions Club is to have a membership drive. At a meeting held on Wednesday at the Rockville House the following committee was appointed to secure new members: Alfred Rosenberg, Rev. George S. Brooks, Philip M. Howe, Dr. R. C. Ferguson, Dr. C. E. Peterson, Luther H. White, James R. Quinn, Louis Gibson, Robert Beattie.

A "Ladies Night" is also being planned for January. The committee includes James R. Quinn, Lewis Beattie, Robert Beattie, Rev. George S. Brooks, Dr. C. E. Peterson.

Tree to be Removed
The large tree at the center near the middle road, is to be removed. The tree has been dying for several years, but due to pleas of the public it was left standing. Branches have been falling during wind storms recently. Tree Warden Roger J. Murphy has decided the tree must be removed.

The tree was planted by the father of Frank Keener of Talcott avenue. After its removal improvements will be made at this corner. The cost of the removal will be on the Town of Vernon.

John Roman has returned from Boston, where he has been receiving special medical treatment at a hospital there.

William C. Stander, fourth district commander, American Legion, and Cross Street of this city attended an executive Legion meeting in Hartford, Wednesday night.

Frank Heubachner Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will meet tonight in G. A. R. hall. Plans for the district meeting Wednesday will be discussed.

Mrs. Amelia Kastelle has returned from the Manchester Memorial Hospital to her home on Union street.

A son was born Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Richards of Vernon, at the Rockville City Hospital.

TALE OF POCAHONTAS DECLARED A MYTH

Lawrence, Kas, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The story of Captain John Smith's rescue by Pocahontas again has been banished to the realm of fantasy by Ernest D. Tyler, a professor of history at the University of Kansas.

Tyler not only wields the doughy warrior from the legendary embrace of the Indian princess, but characterizes him as a "braggart and a martinet" as well.

The dramatic tale of last minute escape from impending death was described by Tyler in an address at nothing more than a splendid testimonial to the captain's abilities as a fictionalist.

Tyler says the Pocahontas myth obviously was embroidered by Smith in an effort to recall his feats in England and thus bring restoration of his political power in Virginia where he had been ousted.

PRESIDENT MAY SPEND CHRISTMAS IN FLORIDA

Washington, Dec. 9.—(AP)—President Hoover was reported today to be considering a Christmas vacation trip to Florida, but has not decided definitely upon such a journey.

The tentative plan under consideration at the White House is for the President to leave the national capital just before, or just after Christmas for a brief stay in Florida. The spot he would visit has not yet been finally determined. The Chief Executive is holding final decision as to the trip in abeyance, pending action by Congress before its Christmas recess.

Should something arise in legislative or governmental affairs that he feels would require his presence in the capital, the trip would not be made.

Should he finally decide to go, however, there were indications today that he might spend New Year's day in the south, cancelling the historic New Year's Day reception at the White House.

It is on this occasion that the general public is invited to meet the Chief Executive, and in the past Presidents have shaken hands with 5,000 or 6,000 people on that day.

WAPPING

Miss Jane Newberry returned to Colby Junior College in New London, N. H. Sunday after spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Newberry of South Windsor.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Collins, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Preston, George W. Deane, Charles J. Dewey, Alfred W. Stone, Mrs. Walter N. Foster, Mrs. Susie S. Waters, Mrs. Mary Hills, Miss Bernice Wheeler, Mrs. Ruth L. Dewey and Mrs. Lillian E. Grant, all members of Wapping Grange, attended the meeting of East Central Pomona No. 3, last Wednesday.

A class of candidates was initiated in the fifth degree in the forenoon session, with a fine dinner at noon, which was served by Suffed Grange at Mapleton Hall.

In the afternoon session the election of officers took place, and the following officers were elected: Master, Edward J. Locke of Enfield; overseer, Lathrop O. West of Tolland; lecturer, Carroll Hutchinson of Hebron; steward, Leonard O. Bragg of East Hartford; assistant steward, Harold E. Allen of East Windsor; chaplain, Henry J. Bridge of Enfield; treasurer, Charles T. Corbit of Good Will; secretary, Mrs. Laura G. Loomis of Manchester; gate keeper, George E. Ruff of Hilltown; Ceres, Mrs. Ruth L. Dewey of Wapping; Pomona, Mrs. Walter C. Havin of Coventry; Flora, Mrs. Anna Bengston of Suffed; lady assistant steward, Mrs. Alice M. West of Tolland, executive committee for three years, Mrs. F. Wilcox of Tolland; for two years, George L. Cretman of Suffed; for one year Mrs. R. A. Sikes of Ellington. There were 175 members present.

On Friday afternoon, Miss Jeannette Tritt of South Windsor organized a dancing class for children between the ages of nine years and seventeen years inclusive in South Windsor Town Hall. The full course will consist of ten lessons in ballroom steps and deportment, and will be conducted from 4 to 6 p. m. on Friday. Miss Tritt studied under Prof. George Van Arnum of Troy, N. Y., for a number of years. Mrs. Robert J. Raley of South Windsor will act as pianist for the class. It is planned to have patronesses present at every session of the class. The following ladies have consented to act in this capacity: Mrs. Horace Vibert, Mrs. J. E. Shepherd, Mrs. Marshall Bidwell, Mrs. Lloyd Burnham, Mrs. H. C. Church, Mrs. Esther J. Demming, Mrs. Thomas Smith, Mrs. John Tobin, Mrs. Leslie Newberry, Mrs. Cyril Thornton, Mrs. Edward J. Perry and Mrs. John E. Curtin. All parents are invited to attend the opening session.

About twenty-five children have already enrolled and their intentions of attending the class. An informal party will be held at the end of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor L. King and daughter, Mrs. Jacqueline King, of Little Silver, N. J., were in town last week to attend the funeral of Miss Louise King.

Miss Julia Kellogg has returned from Baltimore, Md., to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Newberry of South Windsor.

The Federated Workers' public supper and sale of aprons, quilts, fancy work and home-cooked food will be held this evening in the Wapping School hall. Supper will be served at six o'clock. Mrs. Homer Lane is chairman of the supper committee and Mrs. A. E. Stiles, Mrs. Erwin F. Stoughton, Mrs. Florence Harrison, Mrs. C. V. Benjamin and Mrs. F. W. Congdon will be in charge of the sale.

The Wapping Girls basketball team will play the Portland Girls team this evening at the basketball hall in South Windsor.

EDUCATION

A Series of Articles Discussing Modern Methods of Training the Youth of Our Country.

EDUCATION STABILITY

Up and down the land there is a great cry demanding that we reform the schools. "We said that our schools are burdened with fads and frills that bring no useful results. But how did these so-called fads and frills first enter the school? In just such a manner as the people strive to abolish or create material for the schools at present. As has been mentioned at an earlier time, the schools are a final agent of the state and society; only after all other agencies have either failed or neglected to perform a needed service do the schools enter upon the scene. And the school tries to see the needs of a community in the light of past history and present makes-up a balance between the lagging past and the untried future. "Is not the first to whom the new is tried, nor yet the last to lay the old aside." The school tries to strike a balance in its offerings which will neither favor or handicap any individual group. Groups have tried to make the teaching of fantastic subjects compulsory in the schools: Esperanto, glories of war, of peace, anti-violence, and the supremacy of the Nordic whites. Society needs a body of trained educators who know the past, interpret the present, and plan for the future and who will not later be the cry of a raggedy group who today chase a phantom and tomorrow will seek some new ephemeral vagary. The present enemies of education are those thoughtless persons whose weapons are influence and prestige in some line of business not connected with education at all. A direct attack must have a plan and such a plan can be countered back; but the man of influence, like the old General Braddock's American Indians, fights in the brush and skulls behind something. The typical example can be a coal dealer or clothes merchant. Being successful and influential in coal and clothes circles they wander about and finally stick their thumbs into the education pie to see per chance what plum they may pluck out. Without a smattering of information or experience in this new field they still bring their followers in opinion and begin to tell people how to manage the schools; withal, having naught beyond the coal yard or the goods board to guide them. They have little interest beyond their pinched wallets; the history and present circumstance of education mean nothing to such scoundrels yet they would fundamentally and immediately recast the educational system and manipulate the budget. And their empty arguments and boisterous cries attract more attention than the quiet work of the veteran school board. Of such persons Dryden writes: "Men so various, that they seemed to be Not one, but all mankind's epitome; Stiff in opinions, always in the wrong. Are everything by starts, and nothing long; But in the course of one revolving moon Are chemist, fiddler, statesman, and buffoon. Laymen are the very basis of a progressive school system. Were education left to teachers and colleges it would soon be drier than dust, as useless as medieval scholasticism. The professional in law, medicine, education, in anything must have new vigor and refreshing thought brought to him by the layman or else crystallize into stiffness and formality. It is up to the people to decide what society wants and then to up to educators to see that they get this in the best manner possible. The value of the layman's opinion and advice depends entirely upon whether he has his own or the state's benefit in mind. America like a patient mother, must educate each new child as it comes along, must begin all over again. Our present multitude from over the Atlantic are our younger children. The same methods, arguments, and policies are needed to teach and instill American educational ideas in this new group as were needed to establish and create our schools in the first place. These people profess to see no need for education beyond the amount they themselves possess. He who comes here and scrapes together a few hundred dollars is unwilling to share any part of that with the government in order that the kind of government which made his money-collecting possible may continue for somebody else. These imperfectly Americanized Americans are the present foe of all progressive and forward work among children. Such parasites confuse us and breed fanaticism. Like a bottle, the less there is inside to come out the more noise is made in the coming.

WARNS AGAINST TOXIC GASES IN HOUSEHOLD Most Fatal of All, Carbon Monoxide, Comes From Many Different Sources. Although the home is not ordinarily thought of as a place in which toxic vapors or gases may be present, they do exist at times and are likely to result in death or serious injury unless carefully guarded against. Dr. Albert S. Gray, director of the Bureau of Occupational Diseases of the State Department of Health, warns today in the department's weekly broadcast. The most dangerous of these gases is carbon monoxide which may come from various sources, the most common of them being automobile exhausts, improperly installed furnaces and gas fixtures. Injurious vapors may come from the home use of dry cleaning materials. At this time of year, Dr. Gray declared, many people make a practice of warming up their automobiles with the garage doors closed to spite the bitter cold. A six-cylinder car warming up will produce as much as one cubic foot of carbon monoxide a minute. Three cubic feet of carbon monoxide in 1,000 cubic feet of air will produce unconsciousness in a very short time. In a small garage, it takes only a very few minutes to create a deadly atmosphere. Carbon monoxide has no taste or odor and doesn't give its victims even a sporting chance. The very attempt to escape is fatal for a considerable quantity of the gas replaces the oxygen in the blood before one begins to feel "queer" and decides to flee. At this point, carbon monoxide finishes its insidious work. The movements made to escape call for more oxygen and it has been replaced by carbon monoxide. Total collapse and death follow instantly. Gas hot water heaters and stoves and furnaces, if not equipped with properly connected flues to carry off this deadly gas, may kill whole families. Properly equipped, all these appliances are perfectly safe. When one smells "coal gas," he is probably breathing in carbon monoxide. All gas odors should be traced to their source and that source immediately eliminated. Many fluids for dry cleaning contain such materials as carbon tetrachloride and trichlorethylene which, while not inflammable, remove the natural oils from the skin with the same neatness and dispatch with which they take the grease spots from clothes, often causing severe irritation. The vapors from these materials are not harmless. They should be used only in some well ventilated place, preferably out of doors. The vapors are four or five times as heavy as air and they settle close to the floor, so a good cross current of fresh air should be provided to remove them and children and animals should not be permitted on the floor of the room where the dry cleaning is being done.

RELIEF FUND DRIVE

The workers in the drive for a $100,000 fund for the treasury of the Manchester Emergency Employment Association have now been engaged in the task of solicitation long enough to have the very great difficulty of the undertaking make itself manifest. It may very well prove to be more than difficult. Whether or not there was, at the beginning, any real expectation of obtaining pledges to the extent indicated, it is not probable that any such expectancy remains. Too great a proportion of the persons canvassed are reporting absolute inability to do anything for the fund to leave room for hope of attaining the ambitious objective set.

There is no usefulness in pretending. There is no sense in shutting eyes to facts. That is no way to meet a serious situation. The very best dependence in any great emergency is the truth. The truth is that there are a great many people in Manchester this winter who are actually unable to contribute to any relief fund, who are having absolutely all they can do to maintain themselves. And the further truth is that there are also many who never have been, cannot now and never can be prevailed on to give according to their means. They are constitutionally incomplete individuals, so made up by nature that it is impossible for them to bring themselves to part with money, in any considerable sums, for anything but their own maintenance, comfort or pleasure. That means that the burden of contribution to this fund falls upon those who not only can give something but are willing to, in proportion to their ability. And this class was never so small before, nor its ability to give so straitened.

It is worse than useless, it is unfair, to plead with harassed, worried and denied people who would actually rob themselves in the giving if they pledged money they sorely need themselves. The Herald is not going to do it. It is impossible to shame the stingy, the selfish and the calloused who pinch their lips, squeeze their purses and say "No." From them no aid is to be had. So what must be done, in order to have the employment fund realize the utmost possible in this drive, is to impress with every ounce of force, upon those who can give and will give, the extreme gravity of the need of the last potential dime. Only by something very like a miracle can there be found money enough for the program of the Emergency Employment Association. What must be fought for is a reduction of the deficit by the last potential cent. Every dollar is going to be bitterly, desperately needed. If that realization is brought home to the decent and solvent people of the community every gettable dollar will be got. Beyond that nothing can be accomplished by any means whatever.

QUACK DOCTORING

Countless chickens are coming home to roost these days. It almost seems as though Fate had fixed upon this particular period of three or four years to enforce the liquidation of the political, economic and social blunders of the world over pretty nearly a century. This is settlement day with a vengeance. One of the sins committed in Connecticut was the practice of resorting to special enactments by the General Assembly limiting the home rule rights of municipalities whenever there appeared to be any political advantage in doing so. Now some of the communities are finding their hands tied by such enactments when they seek to reduce their expenditures. We are not referring in this instance to the extraordinary imposed upon local governments and municipal tax payers by laws empowering the State Board of Education, but to such proceedings as that by which the city of Bridgeport was forbidden to abolish any public office or reduce the salary of its incumbent except in the event of a vacancy.

The occasion for the passage of such a special act by the Legislature was some political row or other, the precise nature of which we do not remember. Doubtless the appeal to the Legislature seemed at the time to be a good thing. Right now, however, it proves to be a very bad thing and the people of the city are demanding the repeal of the restriction—which, beyond question, they should get.

There are other instances of intrusion in municipal affairs by the General Assembly which, later on if not yet, will be pretty sure to show themselves up as having been great mistakes.

In the treatment of acute disease it is one of the obligations of the physician that he must not employ remedies likely to set up chronic disabilities. The doctor who ignores this obligation is termed a quack. Maybe we have been doing a little quack doctoring of municipal evils in our own Legislature.

THAT BIG LOBSTER

The question is, how did the twenty-two pound lobster, probably the biggest ever found in the world, come to be on a pier at Newark, N. J., to be found there by a customs inspector hunting for smuggled booze? So far nobody appears to have made even a guess at the answer. Now lobsters do not emerge from their haunts at the bottom of the sea and climb pilings to get onto docks, even in Wonderland. Nor do fishermen who catch giant crustaceans of probable museum value leave them lying about on piers unguarded at night. Nor do little boys fishing for tomcoods bring them up from the depths and then flee away in fright at what they have evolved.

There is a tradition, however, that one of the methods by which contraband liquor is brought into the country is by stowing the cases in a big net sling, lowering the net away from the supply ship with buoy attached and leaving it there for the contact boat to pick up at its convenience. A lobster, investigating such a strange intruder in its realm, might very easily become entangled in the net when it was lifted and be hauled aboard the boat along with the booze.

Also there is another tradition that sometimes federal rum chasers spot these buoys and do a little private hauling on their own. In the case of the lobster falling into the possession of rum runners it is possible that they might disregard it altogether, since a good many of them haven't sense enough to be even surprised at a 23-pound lobster; or in the event of its coming into the more intelligent hands of the Coast Guard the reason for inventing a tale about finding it on a dock would be apparent, and the urge to exhibit the creature understandable.

For our part, we don't know. Maybe, as our telegraph editor suggests, it was cast out of an airplane. That's as good a theory as the theory that nobody knows how the lobster got on the Newark pier.

THRESHING OLD STRAW

Whether Britain or France or both pay the December 15 war debt installment or default it, it is very much to be hoped that this country will send to its war debtors no more such notes as the latest dispatched by Mr. Stimson to Britain on this subject. The note is a very courteous, very able and very elaborate brief for the justice of the debt. As such it is absolutely tautologous. The merits of America's claim to the money owed to it by Europe have been established so completely and so repeatedly reaffirmed that it is altogether beside the present question to bring them into the present discussion.

Upon one point in this whole business there is probably not a hair's breadth of honest difference of opinion between the creditor and the debtors—the latter owe the money; the debt was contracted gladly, with open eyes; there was no duress. There is, in this connection, no room for argument. Therefore the American government only weakens its position when it engages in any such argument—when it stresses the justice of its claim in support of its demand that the claim be met. Years ago that facet of the question became a closed item. It is poor statesmanship to revive it now.

What really needs to be shown to the debtor nations—if it is true—is that there is more material advantage to themselves and to us, in the whole world-wide economic situation, in payment than there is in default. If that cannot be shown then we must be making a very serious mistake in demanding discharge of the debt.

One never hears of a creditor's meeting devoting its time to repeating over and over again the declaration that the embarrassed debtor must pay because he had the goods and to a study of way bills and invoices by way of proof thereof when the debts are not disputed. Such matters are regarded as ancient history and the creditors devote themselves to considering what had best be done, in their own interests as well as the debtor's.

This is a creditors meeting of one creditor and various debtors. Nothing is to be gained by presenting ever so convincing proofs of the debts. The real question is what to do about them.

FALLEN ON EVIL DAYS

The fiscal statement of the Connecticut Temperance and Anti-Saloon League leaves the reader wondering as to whether that organization is about to expire from financial anemia. From the statement we learn that in the recent state campaign the League spent for political purposes $910.95 and received $862.98, an excess of expenditures over receipts of $47.97. Of the receipts, $791.04 was given to the League by Professor Milton Conover, Independent Republican candidate for United States senator, and $49.94 by the Independent Republican party as an organization. That leaves only $22 derived from all other sources.

The good old days when the purses of several multimillionaires were rather extensively at the disposal of the Anti-Saloon League are gone, with the conversion of the "angels" to varying degrees of moisture. The fountains of financial supply are dried up. It is pretty tough when the personnel of the Connecticut League has to face the necessity of digging up $22 out of its own pockets—or should we have said pockets? Is there more than one member of the Connecticut Anti-Saloon League?

IN NEW YORK

"Jump Jim Crow." Exactly one hundred years from the time that the minstrel show, one of America's few original theatrical products, was born, the experts and authorities are tracing it all to a song titled "Jump Jim Crow." This was, incidentally, the birth of the term "Jim Crow," which afterward came to play such an interesting part in the national vernacular.

But what the authorities still argue about is whether Cincinnati, Pittsburgh or Louisville may have been the scene of Jim Crow's birth. Louisville seems to have the edge. There is, however, no argument that the introducer was one Thomas Dartmouth Rice, born in the shadow of the spot where one Thomas Dartmouth Rice, born in the shadow of the spot where the Manhattan bridge now spans the river. Also, it seems, he donned blackface and came on at the Old Bowery theater and was escorted back to the stage almost a dozen times when he introduced the new song he had conceived on the road.

The tale goes that while playing Louisville, Rice went out to the backstage exit to get a bit of air between numbers. There was an old livery stable just behind the theater. And there worked an old negro by the name of Crow. As in the case of most slaves, Crow had taken the name of his master. He was slightly deformed and had to hop a bit when he perambulated. He would go around humming a tune of his own invention. The astute Mon. Rice, ever eager for a novelty, listened and remembered.

And it so befell that Rice was about to be cast as a coffin-bearer in a melodrama titled, "The Kentucky Rifle." The actor decided to introduce the song he had written around a stable negro's melody. Well, the show came into the Bowery—which was then the Broadway of New York. And while the play was a failure, the song stopped the show. And that's how minstrel shows were born!

Now and then, when I hear a younger generation weeping on any handy shoulder; whenever I listen to the depression blues from men of all ages, I think of a club of oldsters in this man's town, who use as their slogan: "The best is yet to be." They call themselves "The Threescore Club," and one is allowed membership unless the "threescore years" have been lived. All of them have seen trials and tribulations come and go; they have faced depression and prosperity; death has taken their loved ones and hovers over each. "But they go on singing— "Grow old with me "The best is yet to be! . . ."

Once a year they meet up on Riverside Drive. They count noses. Someone is always missing. They talk of the Civil War as though it were the more recent Great War, through which most of us lived. And they go to the Browning poem, which winds up: "The last of life for which the first was made!" GILBERT SWAN.

Health and Diet Advice
By Dr. Frank McCoy

ACIDOSIS EASILY CORRECTED BY DIET

Those who have heard of acidosis may also have heard of alkalosis which is an excessive alkalinity of the body fluids. Since the over-eating of acid-forming foods is known to produce acidosis, you might imagine that the over-eating of the alkaline-forming foods would produce alkalosis; but this is not true. As far as we know, it is not possible to give too many of the alkaline-forming foods. Alkalosis is, however, sometimes produced when alkaline minerals are given in the form of medicines.

Since the symptoms of acidosis and alkalosis are almost identical, outside of chemical tests, doctors sometimes have considerable trouble in making a correct diagnosis. Therefore, it is better to give large doses of alkaline substance to overcome the supposed present acidosis. I do not recommend alkaline minerals except as temporary remedies, preferring the use of alkaline-forming foods. There is not the same danger of producing an alkalosis. It is, in fact, an advantage to use quite a large amount of alkaline-forming foods in the diet as normal blood and tissues should be faintly alkaline in reaction. Many people do exactly the reverse, making the diet consist of almost all acid-forming foods and suffering from acidosis as a result.

The term acidosis is a poor one as it gives an idea that the blood is highly acid, a state which does not occur in the living body. What is really meant is that the blood is less alkaline than it should be. Some of the symptoms of lessened alkalinity are dizziness, weakness, lack of appetite, nervousness and sometimes trouble with the breathing. One with canker sores in the mouth and a burning sensation in the stomach may be said to be suffering from a hyperacidity of the digestive juices. The patient suffering from colds and catarrh usually has eaten too much acid-forming foods and will not permanently overcome his troubles until the normal alkalinity of the blood has returned. Acidosis is also found in diabetes, nephritis, and during a water fast. Those with rheumatism often write me that their doctors have told them that they have overacidity of the blood stream. The most common cause of acidosis is overeating of acid-forming foods, such as concentrated starches, sugars and proteins.

Alkalinity of the blood may be temporarily increased by deep breathing since this causes an over-ventilation of the lungs which removes a larger amount of carbon dioxide from the blood than usual. Another temporary method of overcoming acidosis is by taking some form of alkali, such as baking soda or calcium carbonate. This cannot be considered a permanent cure for hyperacidity although it is not harmful temporarily. Very often, if one will take soda when coming down with a cold, he will be able to abort the attack. At Cornell University it was found that students who took one teaspoonful of an alkali in a glass of water twice daily had fewer colds than usual. Students were also instructed to eat several oranges per day as oranges are known to make the blood more alkaline.

In overcoming acidity a permanent method is to supply the body with sufficient alkaline-forming foods so that the normal chemical balance of the blood is re-established and at the same time one should improve the elimination of wastes from the body to speed up the removal of harmful acids or their end products after they have been neutralized by the alkalinity. I frequently use the orange juice or tomato juice fasts in conditions of acidosis since I have found no other method that will increase the alkalinity of the blood as rapidly and at the same time permit the unhindered elimination of toxic wastes.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
(Agar Agar)

Question: Mrs. T. asks: "Is agar agar good for constipation and how is it taken?"
 Answer: Constipation is caused by eating too many concentrated foods and not enough of the green ones, lack of exercise, overeating of oranges, kinks in the colon, etc. The effect of agar agar is to provide more bulk and in this way it is often found helpful by those who do not know how to remove the real cause. It can be taken in many different ways. One of the best ways is to mix some in a cooked cereal dish for breakfast, using about a level tablespoonful to each person.

Galloping Consumption

Question: D. C. asks: "What are the symptoms of galloping consumption?"
 Answer: This form of consumption more closely resembles pneumonia and runs an exceedingly rapid course. At the onset there is a severe chill, followed by a rapid pulse and high fever. Pain is felt in the chest and the expectation from coughing is white and frothy. Within a month the disease is very well developed, with a great loss of flesh and strength. If this disease is recognized quickly enough, it is possible to stop it, if taken before it reaches the danger stage. Since it is tuberculous of an acute form, it is more dangerous than the chronic form that comes on gradually.

Behind the Scenes in WASHINGTON

Washington—The next administration will have plenty of gusto. Gusto, for better or worse, may even be a sort of unofficial keynote after Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt becomes president.

Gusto, in fact, was that quality which Roosevelt displayed more than anything else during his memorable visit to Washington for the purpose of conferring with President Hoover on the all-important question of war debts.

All Washington was agape. It was his first important appearance here since his days as assistant secretary of the navy under Wilson and Secretary Daniels, when no one paid more attention to him than is now paid to Assistant Secretary Ernest Lee Jablocke.

The president-elect smiled and laughed his way through two very busy days. Even in reference to his attitude toward the debts in his conference with Hoover he was jovial, according to Democratic congressional leaders who quoted him: "That's not my baby!" And he never lost his gusto.

So many persons have been asking just what Roosevelt said in his "off the record" address to the National Press Club, whose dinner guest he was, that your correspondent is moved to write the answer and distribute copies. After the manner of most great statesmen who talk "confidentially" to large social gatherings of newspapermen, he said nothing at all. He smiled—that devil-smile-care, rollicking, captivating smile of his. He allowed it to be known that he appreciated the party and intimated that he would like to stay all night but would have to get along.

He said that he was going to talk "off the record," that it was mighty nice to be able to talk "off the record" for a change and that he hoped to be able to talk "off the record" often in the future. And he told a couple of funny stories and everybody laughed and cheered.

And every time the male comedian said something or a female songstress let go an especially warm line, all the boys who had crammed in at $5 apiece grandly threw back at Governor Roosevelt to see whether he was smiling or not. He usually was.

No one was surprised that he didn't give away any secrets in his speech. Among the club members present, for instance, was Mr. Robert H. Lucas, executive chairman of the Republican National Committee, who also had a very nice time.

The president-elect was equally discreet at his formal press conference, which nevertheless provided additional gusto.

His second and last press conference was staged just before he left for Warm Springs, Ga. He ate scrambled eggs from a tray in his lap—his lunch—and answered questions.

He answered so well that one's most vivid recollection of anything he said was his assertion that the correspondents knew just as much about it as he did. The congressmen who had conferred with him had been buzzed by the correspondents, so that was partly true. The scrambled eggs disappeared rapidly.

Occasionally the governor led the crowd of correspondents in a gale of hearty, infectious laughter after a sparkling rally which deftly warded off a leading question. He had a fine wide-mouthed laugh which is in sharp contrast with President Hoover's rare chuckle, or giggle—as some call it. He was wearing a soft collar, which is much safer for the sort of laugh which Roosevelt laughs. Mr. Hoover always wears a stiff collar.

After sitting in on two or three sessions with the next president-elect, most anyone would be convinced that, in the words of the song whose music the band always plays for him, "Happy Days Are Here Again!" Roosevelt thinks so, anyway. And if gusto has anything to do with it, he's right.

QUOTATIONS

America will never—at least for a long time—return to the boom times of 1929 and as soon as that fact is realized our fight against the depression will be won.—John N. Willys, Toledo, O., auto manufacturer.

Why should a second Roosevelt worry me? We may have a third for all you know.—Irwin H. "The" Hoover, head under in the White House for 24 years.

We regard a football championship as incidental. It is unnecessary to know that our team gets victories over the strongest opponents—encouraging in the same degree as it is to have our debaters and orators win.—Dr. Rufus Bernhard von Klenow, Smid, president, University of California.

With a tax of $6 a barrel on our beer, the hoodlum wouldn't be able to sell his great unnumbered stuff to the American people, even at the point of a gun.—George F. McCabe, general counsel for the Associated Producers of Cereal Malt.

I think war in Europe is inevitable.—Gen. John J. Pershing, as quoted from Harper.

ST. JAMES'S LADIES' GUILD CARD PARTY

Hall Filled For Affair Held Yesterday Afternoon — The Prize Winners.

St. James's Ladies Guild held a most successful card party yesterday afternoon at St. James's hall and as a result, quite a sum of money was realized which will be used to help fill a collection of "Christmas Cheer" baskets. The hall was filled and every one of the women present seemed to be having a good time. At the close of the games the members of the Guild served cake and coffee, and sold a number of home made cakes to swell the fund.

$25,000 LOAD STOLEN

New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Two men, who started out last night with a truckload of tobacco and packaged drugs, said by police to be worth more than $25,000 today were working with police to round up five men who temporarily kidnaped them and stole their consignment.

Edgar Waterbury of 1 Martin street, Norwalk, Conn., the truck driver, and Albert Olsen of 128 Washington street, Norwalk, his helper, reported to police last night that while they were halted by a traffic light in the Bronx, two men boarded the truck with drawn revolvers.

The truckmen were transferred to a sedan and forced to lie on the floor of the auto. They were driven about the city for two hours after which their captors told them to step out of the sedan, adding: "Now you can call your boss."

TROLLEY LEAVES TRACK

New Haven, Dec. 9.—(AP)—An electric street car of the Connecticut company landed on the sidewalk today after a collision on Grand avenue with a heavy truck. Six passengers in the car escaped injury, but Charles Hemstock the motorman was bruised and cut by broken glass.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Cincinnati—"It's an old Roman custom," explained Miss Carolyn Stites as she sent out invitations to a dinner, bearing the notation: "Bring your own napkins." Miss Stites is president of Eta Sigma Phi and of Paleontologists, classical societies, which are giving the dinner tonight for the Cincinnati charities. The banquet will hark back to the period of Nero, with guests attired in Roman togas or whatever the feminine equivalent was. Between courses a classical chorus will furnish music to the accompaniment of a zither, flute and harp, and a love scene from Homer's "Iliad" will be presented. The example of bringing your own napkins, Miss Stites said, was set centuries ago by Roman emperors when they dined out.

Philadelphia, Pa.—J. Hamont Moore is mayor but to a certain newsboy he's just another customer. The mayor, hurrying into City Hall, ordered a newspaper from the young newsboy. Then he fumbled in his pockets, failed to find any funds, clutched the paper and dashed toward his office, saying: "I'll pay you later." "No, you don't," objected the boy, grabbing the paper.

"That's the mayor," somebody whispered to him. "Oh, yes," said the lad holding tightly to his paper. He held on too, until a policeman produced the two cents.

Saint John, N. B.—Maybe the Fiji Islanders don't know how lucky they are. In the Fiji, there is no unemployment, no governmental debt and there has been no increase in taxation since the depression started. So says Sir Murchison Fletcher, Governor of the islands.

Torrington—Found—the perfect man. He removed his soiled boots before entering the home of Mrs. Leo Radom during a small fire. "It was very considerate of him," the grateful housewife said, "and I appreciated it very much."

Chicago—Having played pinocchle himself, Judge Joseph B. David was interested in Adolph Christensen's story. "She," said Adolph, referring to his wife, Caroline, "had the bid for 350 hearts and when I led the ace of spades she trumped it."

OPEN FORUM

Editor, The Herald, Democracy evolves from intelligence. That is why we Americans cherish it. It has been proved by our massive wealth, our great scientific achievements, and our superior education, that a government "of the people, by the people and for the people" is the finest obtainable by man.

Our ancestors knew what real Democracy was. But does our youth—let me ask—know what it is? Why certainly they don't! Then, who are the chief instigators in our helpless downfall? I am sure that our youth isn't. My fellow citizen, there is only one class that is responsible for our destruction, and that is our older generation.

When they lived in the glorious years of "make believe," they tolerated graft, corruption, and infatuation. They tolerated athisms and sneaky Socialists to teach in our schools and public institutions. It is their anticipation of the war debts that force us to pay exorbitant taxes. Their material desires overpowered and overcame their reason and logic.

Let them continue their own, selfish way into oblivion. But let us "take up the torch" and march on defiantly! Instead of being greedy and selfish, let us all be charitable. Let us walk circumspectly. Let us uphold the issues that will mean recovery. We must all endeavor to attain the same principle: And above all, when the new president is inaugurated, we will stand by him for the general good.

—Jan Zapadka.

Many Brothers Playing In West Coast Tourney

Only Two Amateurs and 30 Pros Remain In San Francisco Golf Battle; Olim Dutra Big Favorite.

San Francisco, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The fourth of the field in the National Open match play golf tournament here will be removed from competition by dusk today. The surviving eight will be paired for quarter-finals Saturday.

Two amateurs and 30 professionals survived the first round of match play over the Lakeside Course. Olim Dutra, F. G. A. titleholder and an outstanding favorite, and Archie Hambrick, Zanesville, O., professional. Dutra stepped ahead by defeating Dick Fry, Oakland, 4 and 3 yesterday while Hambrick took the measure of Dick Metz, San Antonio, one up.

Leo Diegel was paired with Dick Goggin. Diegel advanced into today's play with a 19th hole victory over Mike Murra. Goggin conquered Claire Griswold, San Francisco amateur, one up.

The surviving amateurs are Robert Sweeney of London, England, and They Smith of San Francisco. They are meeting today. Brothers are sprinkled freshly among the third-day play contestants. Dick Goggin's brother, Willie, of Salada Beach; the three Espinosas, Abe of Medinah, Ill., and Romie and Henry of San Francisco; Earl Fry of Alameda, Calif., and Brother Dick of Oakland are among the survivors. Then there are the two Navis, Joe and Louis, of San Francisco, and two Dutras, Olim and Mortie, the latter of Long Beach.

M. H. S. IS PLAYING MERIDEN IN OPENER

Local Schoolboys Play First C. C. I. L. Basketball Contest This Evening.

Manchester High opens its basketball campaign for the C. C. I. L. title this evening with a contest in Meriden. In its first game—a non-league affair, Manchester nosed out Rockville by a garish margin after trailing by a wide margin. Victory did not come until the last minute of play. The other two league games tonight end East Hartford playing in Bristol and West Hartford traveling to Middletown.

Last Night's Fights

Philadelphia—Johnny Dattalo, Cleveland, outpointed Jackie Willis, Philadelphia (6); Jimmy Stewart, Philadelphia, stopped Midget Mike Moran, Pittsburgh, (5).

Paris—Panama Al Brown, World bantamweight champion, outpointed Franz Machters, Belgium (10), (non-title).

Falmouth, N. J.—Steve Hams, Wallington, N. J., and Duane Duncan, Kalamazoo, Mich., "no contest", (1).

Savannah—Lou Terry, St. Louis, outpointed Spagett Decaro, Sandusky, Ohio, (10).

NOTRE DAME RULES 10 TO 8 FAVORITE

But Trojans Are Undefeated In Last 18 Games On West Coast.

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.—(AP)—University of Southern California's football team went into seclusion today to meditate its impending grid battle with Notre Dame here Saturday.

"I am satisfied," said Coach Howard Jones, "that everything that could have been done on the training field has been accomplished. I am not certain as to the physical condition of the players. We will not know until after the game whether they have been worked too hard or not hard enough."

"I like their mental attitude though, and know they are ready to play the best game they know how to play."

Jones also went into seclusion with the team, unbeaten in 18 starts. There was an air of expectancy over the Ramblers' arrival late today although no one was sure just what to expect beyond an array of great gridsters. The squad has been at Tucson, Ariz., for nearly two days.

Despite pessimistic reports from the Notre Dame coach "Hunk" Anderson, no one contemplated seeing a parade of ambulances from the railroad station to the hotel. The setting continued at odds of 10 to 8 in favor of the invaders, with Southern California's backers asking a touchdown margin.

GAMES TO CONTINUE

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The Notre Dame-Southern California football series has been extended through 1935.

Athletic directors of the two schools met here late yesterday and agreed on dates for games which will extend the series which has been running uninterruptedly for six years.

The Trojans will play at South Bend next Nov. 25, and Notre Dame will play the West Dec. 8 in 1934. On Nov. 23, 1935 play again will be on Notre Dame's field.

The agreement put to rest rumors Southern California would be stricken from the Rambler schedule after 1933. The game has developed into one of the biggest drawing cards in intercollegiate sports.

SUB ALPINES WIN OVER SCHOOL STREET

The Sub-Alpine Juniors chalked up another victory defeating the School Street A. C. to a score of 26 to 13 last night. The game was well played by P. D'Ulado and S. Moorehouse availing basket after basket. S. Krajewski led for the School Street A. C.

BOTH SOCCER TEAMS PLAYING ON SUNDAY

The Manchester Junior soccer eleven will join the Northern Connecticut Junior League starting a week from Sunday. It was announced today. The team has played one game, losing to Glastonbury 3 to 2 and on Sunday will play the Chance Vought second eleven in East Hartford. A practice is scheduled for 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The Manchester Club—the senior local team—will play the German eleven of Glastonbury at the Charter Oak street field Sunday afternoon in a Northern Connecticut senior league contest.

"OUT OF THE RED," IS BASEBALL GOAL

Columbus, O., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Still unsettled upon a complete program to take the minor baseball circuits "out of the red," the National Association of Professional Leagues today entered the final session of its convention here.

However, several proposals intended to round out a "prosperity program," were promised additional consideration before the convention adjourns. The association also planned to elect a governing body composed of an executive committee, a president, a treasurer, vice president and secretary.

Second Round Starts In Billiards Tourney

The first round of the British-American Club pocket billiard tournament has been completed with the playing of eight matches and the second round will start immediately. The pairings for the second round which must be finished by December 10 are as follows: H. Flavel vs. J. Boyce, W. Robinson vs. J. McCollough, W. Jones vs. G. Moorehouse.

Rec Five Loses Close Encounter in Pittsfield

Manchester Team Defeated 25 To 22 After Stubborn Fight; Bycholski Stars; Waddell Is Released.

The Recreation Center basketball team journeyed to Pittsfield, Mass., and back last—a distance of 170 miles—and arrived back in Manchester on the short end of a 25-22 score. The Pittsfield Eagles, who bowed to the National Guards here a week ago tonight, 51-33, were much stronger on their own floor.

The game was close all the way, no team ever having more than a few points advantage. A large crowd watched the two teams play and showed its sportsmanship by applauding the visiting as well as their own players. The game was played under the old-fashioned rules with the ten second and pivot play rules not in effect. However, there was very little stalling, even in the closing minutes of play.

The game was decided on personal fouls. Referee Bob Boyd called 16 personals and a technical on the Rec team compared to only nine on the Eagles, a team on which his brother played. The Manchester team took pride in the fact that it scored one more field goal. Pittsfield won by virtue of five more flips from the foul line. The Eagles led 11-8 first quarter, the Rec was out in front 18-16 at the half and Pittsfield gained a 23-20 advantage as the third period ended.

Once again it was "Whitey" Bycholski who led the Rec team scoring. He made ten points which tied Johnny Stack for game honors in this respect. "Cupie" Waddell, Rec center, arrived from Stamford after the game. He started and Tony Salmonds played well in his position. After the game Manager Ben Cline announced that he had released Waddell because the latter has failed to show his former ability.

"Bingo" Sturgeon played unusually well for the starters and Tony Salmonds played well in his position. After the game Manager Ben Cline announced that he had released Waddell because the latter has failed to show his former ability.

NEW BACKSTOP FOR NORTH END DIAMOND

In preparation for baseball next spring a new wire backstop has been erected at the North End playgrounds. In laying out the new playground field last spring there was a shift made in the home plate that hid the wire backstop in short right field, but did not prevent balls going up in back of home plate entering private grounds. The backstop was ordered and has just been set up. It is located only 15 feet behind the catcher's box.

FOXY PHANN PRIZEFIGHTERS BEGIN EVERY ROUND BY SQUARING OFF

The regular Friday evening gym class will hold its session tonight at seven o'clock and any member of the Rec is invited to attend.

Durham, N. H., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Faced the stiff schedule in history and minus three of the regulars on last year's team, which failed to win a game, Coach Ernest Christensen has called upon his sophomore candidates to give the New Hampshire Wildcats a representative hockey team this season. Six lettermen are on the squad of 31 that has taken advantage of the natural ice here during the past week.

The New Hampshire scheduled: Jan. 7, Bowdoin; 11, Bates; 13, Brown at Providence; 18, Northeastern, 20, Amherst at Amherst; 21, Massachusetts State at Amherst; 25, Boston University; Feb. 1, M. I. T.; 4, Army at West Point; 8, Northeastern at Boston; 11, M. I. T. at Boston; 14, Colby; 18, Bowdoin at Brunswick; 24, Boston University at Boston.

LOTI HORMA

Prizefighters begin every round by squaring off.

Bidding for a share in the title now claimed jointly by Chocolate Tommy Paul and Baby Arismendi, is Fidel La Barba, once world king of the flyweights.

La Barba's third chance at the 126 pound crown in less than two years takes him into the ring at Madison Square Garden to face Chocolate in a 15-round bout duty

BASKETBALL PROBLEMS

By NAT HOLMAN Star Player, Coach and Author of "Winning Basketball."

Question: Some players shoot at the basket with a great deal of spin on the ball; others throw what we call a "floater." Which do you recommend?

ANSWER: I have always advocated the spin shot. My opinion is based upon many years of experimentation, and observation of both types.

In that time I have found that the average player has more control over the ball and shoots with greater accuracy when spin is employed. A decided improvement will not be noted immediately after changing over to the use of the spin shot; accuracy comes only with practice.

WISDOMY FAVORING FIDEL LABARBA TONIGHT

New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—One-legged with a championship label by the state commission. The overnight odds favored Chocolate but the fast and clever Havana negro was no better than a seven to five choice, and what is more, to the point, the so-called "wise money" was going, hook, line and sinker for La Barba.

The sturdy Californian has met Chocolate twice before and held the Cuban all even. Chocolate won their first duel on points in May 1929 but La Barba a decision in a return battle in November 1930. The main bout of the show is scheduled to start at around 10 p. m.

GOLDEN CYCLONES WIN WITHOUT BABE

Miss Didrikson Sits On Sidelines While Her Mates Roll Up Easy Victory.

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Mildred Babe Didrikson, suspended amateur athlete who sat on the sidelines last night while the basketball team the captains won its first game of the season without her, prepared to defend her amateur status today.

Lawrence Di Benedetto, chairman of the registration committee of the Southern Amateur Athletic Union, was scheduled to start here an investigation of the appearance of her name and testimonial in an automobile advertisement.

Miss Didrikson denies the advertisement, which brought her suspension by the National A. A. U., had her approval. Her request for reinstatement is the reason for Di Benedetto's investigation.

Before leaving his New Orleans office, Di Benedetto said his inquiry will require two or three days and no ruling will be announced until a report has been made to the National A. A. U. headquarters.

Miss Didrikson's team, the Golden Cyclones of Dallas, defeated the Fort Worth Walkovers last night, 44 to 16.

The Emeralds defeated the Kaceys in the West Side League last night 36-24. Eddie Boyce and Johnny Gribbon were the gems for the Emeralds while McAdam was high scorer for the losers.

In the second game after a seesaw battle the Kaceys finally nosed out the Dixies in the final minute on two long shots in rapid succession by Joe Breen and Jack Hewitt. The score was 32-28. The Dixies played a sparkling game against the Kaceys in spite of the absence of some of their star players. Hewitt and Breen were the big guns for the Kaceys and "Ollie" Brown stood out for the Dixies.

Maloney, however, has packed on a lot of weight since his last appearance against Schaaf. Following that disaster, he quit Boston for Florida, where he started to study law, only to toss away his books to become a wrestler. After an unprofitable mat career, he returned to Boston and resumed the active management of his diner-attached gasoline station.

Matchmaker Billy Adams has arranged a six-round semi-final between two other Boston heavyweights, Al Grayson and Dick Madden, and the preliminary card included three five-round contests and two four-rounders.

CARAS PLAYS WELL IN BILLIARD LOOP

New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Except for young Jimmy Caras, veterans have completely dominated the first four days of play in the national pocket billiard championship now in progress here.

Caras defeated James Mills, San Jose, Calif., 125 to 78; Natalie and Erwin Rudolph and Pasquale Natale, both of Chicago. Two other experienced contenders, Eddie Allen of Kansas City and Andrew Ponzl of Philadelphia, also had perfect records with one victory apiece.

Caras, Natalie and Rudolph, all won their second games yesterday. Caras defeated James Mills, San Jose, Calif., 125 to 78; Natalie whipped Walter Franklin, Kansas City, 125 to 73, and Rudolph defeated George Kelly, 125 to 68.

MALONEY FIGHTS DIXON IN BOSTON

Veteran Favored Over Former Boston College Football Hero Tonight

Boston, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Another one of Jimmy Maloney's comeback campaigns, his third to be exact, will be launched tonight when that veteran Boston heavyweight clashes with young Johnny Dixon, former Boston Garden football hero, in the Boston Garden's 10-round feature.

The 25-year-old Maloney, whose second return to the rosin wars was ruined in a few minutes by Ernie Schaaf here about a year ago, is favored to handle his inexperienced opponent without great difficulty. Dixon, who has never before battled for more than six rounds, will be making his first major start. He has been handled carefully and brought along slowly and has displayed a better than average right hand punch during his brief career as a preliminary contestant.

Dixon's only hope for victory, which will advance him many files in the sadly depleted ranks, rested on a speedy knockout. He has high hopes that he will be able to land his right on Maloney's weak jaw; before the latter wears him down with the ring tricks he has learned while Dixon was running about his native Norwood in short trousers.

Maloney, however, has packed on a lot of weight since his last appearance against Schaaf. Following that disaster, he quit Boston for Florida, where he started to study law, only to toss away his books to become a wrestler. After an unprofitable mat career, he returned to Boston and resumed the active management of his diner-attached gasoline station.

Week-end MURDER

by GABRIELLE E. FORBUSH

BEGIN HERE TODAY

AMOS PEABODY, elderly cousin of LINDA AVERILL, falls to his death from the second story balcony of the Averills' Long Island home. Linda reaches him just before he dies. In time to hear him grasp a few words which convince her he was murdered. Linda rushes upstairs. Someone tries to strangle her and she falls in a faint.

There are four guests in the house—all suspects of the crime. They are: MR. STANTLANDER, business associate of TOM AVERILL; CAPTAIN DE VOS, handsome Belgian; MARVIN PRATT, former suitor of Linda's; and LIAN SHAUGHNESSEY, Irish writer. When Linda tells her husband what happened she persuades him they must keep these four men in the house until they can decide which one is guilty. There is no evidence sufficient for arrest. Tom and Linda are aided in their plan when DR. BOYLE, official medical examiner, sends word that everyone must remain until he has questioned them. Boyle is on a fishing trip and can not return for several hours.

Linda overhears a conversation between Shaughnessey and ROSIE, the maid, concerning a shirt Rosie has promised to launder. Tom and Linda talk to each guest but learn little. Linda believes it was a Turkish towel with which she was strangled and thinks she can identify the towel because she had put a sunburn ointment on her shoulders. She finds the towel in the hamper of Stantlander's bathroom. Tom is about to tell Linda of another find when they hear voices above them.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVII

There was no mistaking Rosie's words. "An extra towel!" she said. "Certainly, sir, I'm sorry—" "Just the bath." That was Pratt speaking. "I have plenty of the other kind." Rosie's voice seemed to come from farther down the hall. Before the linen closet, probably, "I must have skipped you, sir. I can't think now. You should have had enough. I always allow for the beach. Will this do you, sir?"

"More than enough. Thank you." "That's that!" thought Tom. "Changing towels?" asked his wife. "But it doesn't necessarily mean—after all, he shares the bath with DeVos. Would he take it for granted he was short one, though, and ask Rosie for another if he was missing one he had left his own? Rosie doesn't forget—and I'm sure Binks tells her to leave plenty."

"I do," agreed Linda when at the sound of the door closing they turned on one accord to each other. "But I'm a little low on towels just now and having all these extra people has cramped me a bit. But I told Rosie to let me know if she needed any more."

"Never! It's her regular routine. She wouldn't vary it." "There's a double supply needed there." "She'd remember." "Then you think—"

"I think I found that missing towel in Mr. Stantlander's hamper. And I know it was the one that went around my neck."

"But wherever you found it, it was Pratt who asked for another." "Mr. DeVos might have if he hadn't. All we know is that there was one short. And that Mr. Stantlander had the smeary one in his possession."

"Of the two, I'd rather be the one who asked for another than the one who had it in his hamper. Binks, even if we have to ask him point blank, we must learn where Stantlander got it and why he hid it away."

"Marvin's gone back to his room. Tom, you were going to say something?"

He snapped his fingers in irritation. "Damn it! I wonder if I've lost my chance. I must get over to the garage, Linda. Did you see Shaughnessey?"

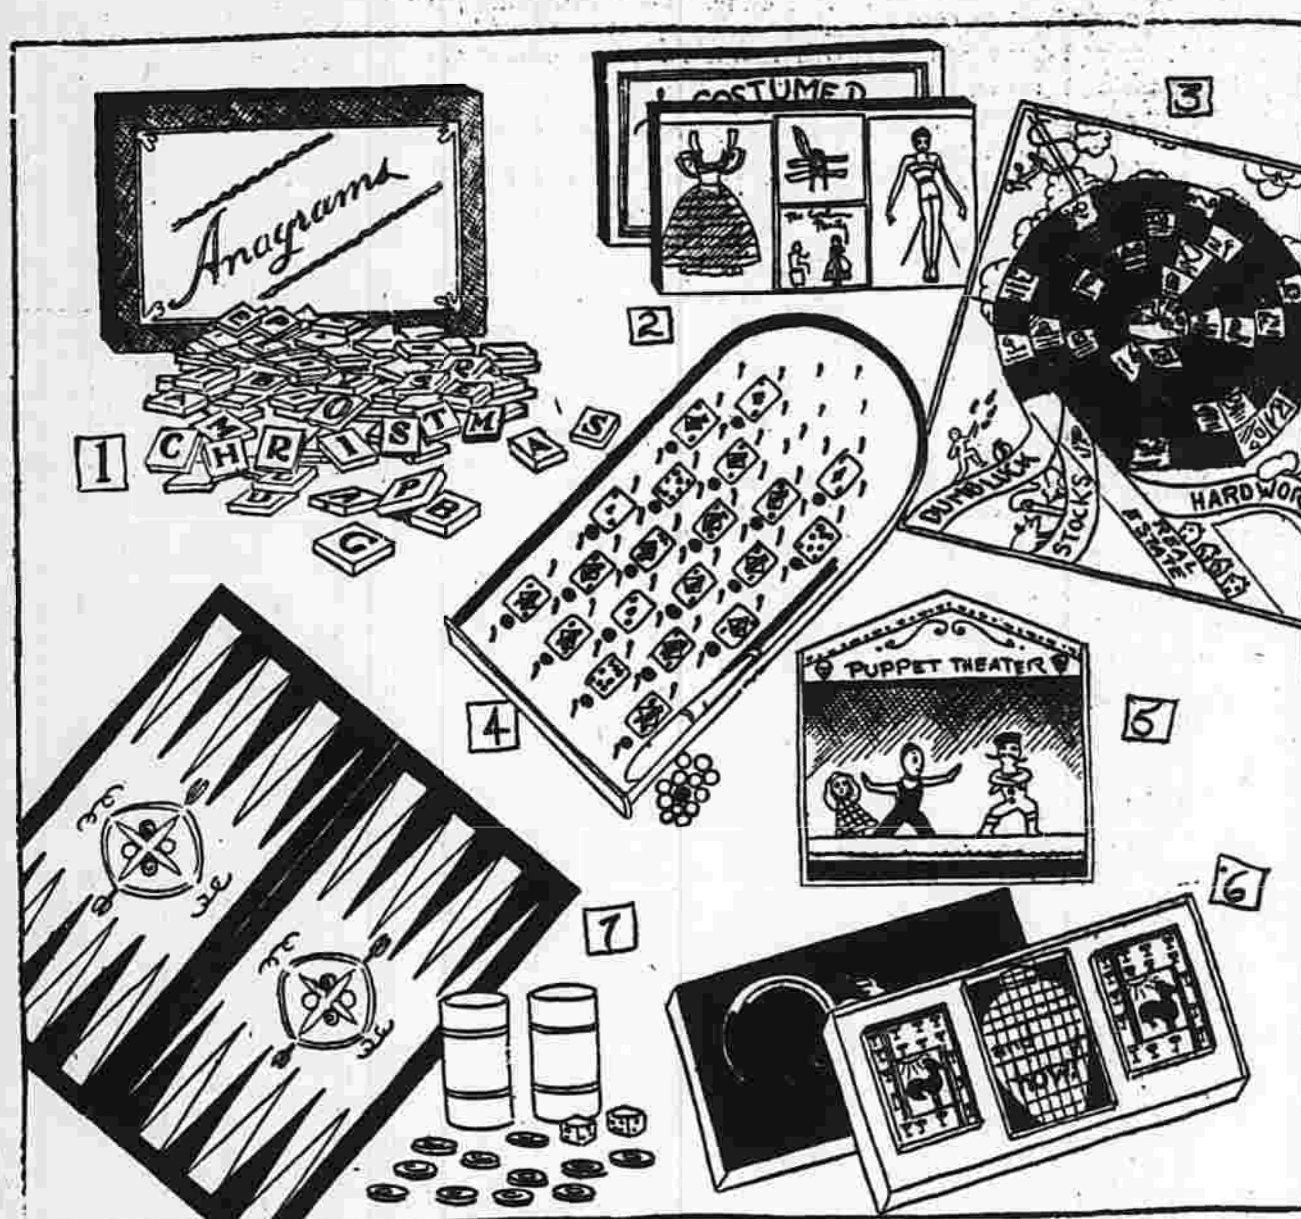

"No, he didn't come in with the other men. Haven't you seen him down here?"

"No, and I've been watching to be sure. I did see Rosie though, and she was going over there—very quietly and furtively, I thought, hurrying alone. She had a white package—flat like this." He motioned in the air. "Just the size of—"

"A folded shirt," said Linda. "Exactly. She simply flew up the stairs and down again because she came right out. That made me think he couldn't be there. He couldn't have resisted a little chat even if she was anxious to get back."

the doorway which opened off the stairs at his head. Still silence—and he stepped into the larger of the two rooms, long, low, many-windowed, delightfully inviting, and he was relieved to see, for the moment unattended.

By the door a broad, many-cushioned couch ran parallel to the wall, reaching almost to the first of the casement windows along the front of the room. On that couch where it might have been hastily dropped by anyone in a hurry the linen closet, probably, "I must have skipped you, sir. I can't think now. You should have had enough. I always allow for the beach. Will this do you, sir?"

Tom still stockstill, listening. Behind him, on the other side of the stairs, was the bedroom. He stepped quickly to that door, also open, and glanced into the smaller room, with windows on two sides through which the breeze from the water flirited the curtains in waving spirals. This, too, was empty.

It was the work of a second to ease the folded paper from under the string and open it. The sheet, torn from a lined pad, was creased only once and the message was scribbled in pencil.

"The shirt is ruined entirely," he read. "I fixed the tear as best I could but the stains got worse not better. I hope—" the words ran closer here, at the bottom of the sheet, and Tom stepped to the window for a better light. Below he saw the road, the bit of lawn, and, beyond, the house door. Standing in it was Linda, chattering with forced gaiety, her eyes turned anxiously up to the garage window, and just coming through the screen door was Shaughnessey.

What Rosie hoped Tom did not stop to discover. With one quick motion he was beside the bundle, tucking the note under the string, and just coming through the screen door was Shaughnessey.

But his urgent desire to see the freshly laundered shirt seemed now unattainable. Linda apparently had been unable to detain their guest long enough to give him a free hand, but perhaps he himself could prevent Shaughnessey from going upstairs. Then there always would be the chance that he could slip over again, unseen, and complete his investigation.

"Hello, Shaughnessey!" he called cheerfully and thought that as an actor he was improving. Not all the laurels could go to the artful Linda. "Are you coming to tell me there's a telephone call?"

"No—there's none that I know of," he said. "I was going upstairs."

As Tom offered his cigaret case he neatly blocked the narrow door. "Thought Boyle might have been heard from," he explained. "I'm afraid we're in for the evening, Shaughnessey. That fellow's a bad egg and if he can make things uncomfortable for us he will. Has Mrs. Averill said anything about staying over?"

"No. I spoke to her just a moment ago."

"Oh, Linda!" Tom raised his voice in a rather hearty shout and thought he observed a flicker of surprise in the other's eyes. Somehow he had to keep this man downstairs and occupied until he could get back. To his delight Linda appeared at once at the door and Tom dropped his arm familiarly over the Irishman's shoulder.

"Come on back a moment," he said. "Linda—I was just telling Mr. Shaughnessey that Boyle was likely to be long. We should love to have you and then his being so late will make no difference."

As she repeated her invitation of a few moments before Tom managed to direct them all slowly but definitely toward the house. The effort of doing so, however, preserving his ordinary outward calm brought beads of perspiration to his forehead. Now they were at the door. Linda had caught on that he wanted her to steer Shaughnessey inside—would they succeed? He hardly noticed whether the Irishman was agreeing to her request or not, so getting the man inside and keeping him there.

Just then Rosie, like an angel of rescue, appeared at the screen door. "Dinner is served, ma'am," she said and retired into the shadow. With hospitable heartiness, Tom flung back the door.

"Fine! I'm hungry, in spite of tea. Go ahead, Linda. Step in, Shaughnessey. Want to wash your hands?" He flung open the door of the little hall lavatory. "Right in here," and he hurried ahead to join his wife.

"When, what an escape! He whispered. "Hurry up—did I act all right?"

"You're positively pale," Linda answered hastily, hearing steps on the floor above, "but you did all right otherwise. Straighten your tie."

Tom mopped his brow. The steps were coming down the stairs. "I'll tell you later. Keep him here after dinner, Binks. I didn't quite—Hello, there—here we all are! Shall we go in, Linda?" He smiled mechanically but walked forward as in a dream. Things were happening with a vengeance! How much longer would it be?

Children don't mind old clothes, but they are as sensitive about old ones as adults. They do not like to be conspicuous or different. We should try to keep this in mind.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Betty watched the expressman turn into her walk with a great box. By the time her mother answered the door and was signing the slip, she was there, too, bending curiously over the package with the New York address in the upper corner. "It's from Aunt Louise," she cried excitedly.

"Sh!" warned her mother, looking to see if her neighbor's porch were empty. Then she added loudly, "It must be something for Christmas."

But she knew better. It was the semi-annual box of clothes that came from her richer states. Louise had two daughters older than Betty. Once inside the house the box was laid on the dining room table and the strings rapidly cut.

On top was something green trimmed in beaver fur that, lifted in Mrs. Brown's damp hand, proved to be a coat, a very rich one, beautifully lined and tailored. In one pocket was a beaver cap to match.

"Thank heaven!" exclaimed Mrs. Brown, "and me at my wife's end to know how to get you a coat. Here, try it on, darling. I would not buy you green, blue's your color, but beggars can't be choosers."

A Poor Fit Betty slipped off her old chinchilla coat and bore and slipped her arms into the sleeves.

"It's just lovely," admired her mother, "but turn around—it's too long and too big across the shoulders. And the sleeves almost cover your hands. But you'll grow into it. Here put the cap on, too. You look wonderful. Just go out to the mirror and look at yourself."

Betty went out to the hall and gazed. She didn't look like herself, not like Betty Brown. She looked sort of—well—like she did when she put on her daddy's overcoat. Cousin Marie must be getting very tall.

"Aw, mother, I can't wear this. It looks awful. And the girls don't wear fur caps."

"There isn't a thing wrong with it. It's good and warm and I just know Aunt Louise paid fifty dollars or more for it."

"Could it be fixed?" "Maybe—at you'll grow. By next year it will be just right."

"I feel funny in it. Can't I just wear my other coat? It's all right. People will know this isn't my coat."

"You don't need to tell." "I heard you tell Mrs. Lyle you couldn't get me a coat. What'll she think? And all the girls ask so many questions. Please, mother, don't make me wear it."

Wife: No, you'll have to walk. The finance company has taken the car.—Fathinder.

FESTIVE INFORMALITY

By JOAN SAVOY

New dinner dresses and dresses for informal Christmas parties have a way of incorporating the dinner-jacket idea into their making. They flatter a girl no end, because the skirts usually are black or brown or blue crepe or other plain material, and the little short or long-sleeved jackets are rich, fancy fabrics.

Whatever your figure is, this type of Christmas informal party dress is likely to put you in a festive mood. For there is something handsome about them and at the same time they become most women. The trick to these dresses is to have ravishing material for the jacket-blouse. And rather simple neck-lines, low enough to give you an evening feeling, high enough to be grand for five o'clock parties too.

This little holiday dress makes you study in browns and old ivory, with a touch of gold. The high-waisted princess skirt is made of rough crepe, and remember that brown is smarter right now than black for such tricky little what-nots.

The blouse, with its gathered sleeves, is a real departure; from things practical that you wear by day. It is rich, creamy satin, brocaded, with its little brocaded snow-ers outlined in gold to give it that glamorous touch.

It is but surplus, with its ends fastening in the back with a gold buckle.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

NEW HATS DEMAND HAIR CARE

It's a rare woman who looks her best when she is distinctly wind-blown. Winter is hard on ladies' locks. Winds send hair flying this way and that and if there is one thing these diminutive hats ask of a woman this winter, it is to have the hair under them stay put.

There is more to keeping hair in place this year than just keeping it in condition, though that is no small task with too-hot houses and too-cold outdoors.

First, you need a hair dressing or lotion or liquid to keep a well groomed lock.

Second, if you have one side of your hair that seems a bit fractious, try using a few pins to hold the waves in place. Some women can use invisible hair pins nicely, others prefer those bob pins which often stay put a little better.

Third, perhaps a veil will help you if you are having trouble keeping that left side waved and in place. This year they do not wrap around the hat, but are attached to the edges of little hats. However, even that much of a veil does something to help a wave hold its reputation?

Fourth, and very important with this season's hats, do keep your hair cut the right length. There is a certain balance needed between your hair's length and the size and slant of your little hat. Just let your hair get too long and you'll lose that urbane, smart look; perhaps without even knowing why. You really need a cut every fortnight, if only to keep the edges neat and trim.

Hints on How to Keep Well by World-Famous Authority

DIPHTHERIA GERMS MAY SURVIVE LONG AFTER VICTIM'S RECOVERY. Strict Caution Urged to Avoid Spread.

This is the second of a series of six articles by Dr. Fishbein on the prevention and treatment of diphtheria.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

There are various ways in which diphtheria may be spread from an infected person to a well one. The germs have been found on the bed-clothing, on handkerchiefs, candy, shoes, hair, pencils and drinking cups used by infected children.

They are, of course, found in any discharges coming from the nose or throat of children who have the disease, or who are recovering from it.

There are, moreover, healthful carriers of diphtheria who, although they have recovered from the disease, still carry the germs about and distribute them to people who have not had the disease.

It is not safe for anyone to gamble on the possibility that a child infected with this disease does not really have diphtheria but simply some mild throat infection. Most of the serious results can be avoided if the child is seen early in the course of the disease and if proper treatment is given immediately.

If a child complains of sickness, and particularly of sore throat of the type mentioned, a physician should examine it promptly. A physician should be summoned immediately if the child complains of swelling of the neck or of any croupy condition with hoarseness.

Early attention is particularly important in small children, because 85 per cent of the deaths from this disease usually occur in the first five years of life. Children are much more likely to catch diphtheria than are grown people.

Moreover, the disease is likely to get a better start in a child, before it is properly diagnosed and treated, than in the case of a grown-up person.

The child should not be released to play with other children until it has been pronounced free from the germs. Cases are known in which germs capable of causing diphtheria have been carried in the throats of children who have recovered from the disease for as long as 10 months.

In more than 10 per cent of all cases a few of the germs can be found in the throat two weeks after all signs of the disease seem to have disappeared from the throat, and in 1 per cent of the cases the germs are still found in the throat four weeks after the child is apparently well.

It is the duty of the physician in charge of a case to pronounce it cured and he will not wish to do this as long as the germs are still in the throat. Sometimes when the germs persist for longer than three or four weeks it is necessary to use active antisepsis in the throat, and in a few instances the germs have been killed until the tonsils of the child have been removed.

NEXT: Importance of early diagnosis.

A BOOK A DAY

PICTURES REAL GREATNESS OF PLAINS INDIANS

A thoughtful and sympathetic view of aboriginal Indian culture on the western plains is something you don't often find these days.

Writers usually make one of two mistakes: they romanticize the Noble Red Man out of all resemblance to reality, or they paint him as a fending savage just one degree above the wild beasts and rejoice in his extermination.

You will find almost an ideal study of Indian life in "Wah-kon-tah," by John Joseph Mathews. This writer, himself a member of the Osage nation, a college graduate and a World War aviator, has presented a plain and unvarnished picture of tribal ways and habits of thought, and has clothed it in a remarkably fluid and poetic English style.

Mostly, "Wah-kon-tah" deals with Major Laban J. Miles, who was Indian agent on the Osage reservation for a good many years beginning in 1874. Major Miles lived the Osages and was liked by them, and did what he could to make easier their painful transition from nomadism to civilization.

Writing about his work, Mr. Mathews pays a tribute to the man himself, and to the tribesmen among whom he worked.

Out of these pages there emerged a clear, unselfish picture of a thoughtful, proud and mystic people who were fouly dealt with by their white conquerors. "Wah-kon-tah" will give you a new slant on a much misunderstood subject.

Published by the University of Oklahoma Press at $3.50, the book is the November choice of the Book of the Month Club.

THIS FILM ACTOR GRINS AT TROUBLE, GETS NEW CHANCE

Hollywood—Whenever a story like George Hackathorne's comes to light—and it's usually only when the forgotten star gets a job of acting again—it inspires speculation as to how many other bright lights of yesterday are going through similar sieges of poverty.

We know a lot of actors who are having rough sledding at the moment, people who once knew luxury and now haven't a dime except the one they borrow for today's cup of coffee, but many of these go on pretending and living, to outward appearances, as though they hadn't lost an inch of ground.

Which is one reason Hackathorne's case was different. He pocketed his pride, took a cheap room, and weathered the depression with a philosophical cheerfulness that surmounted, I'm told, many a day that was foodless.

Troubles Overtake Him.
Talking about his troubles now, George falls to give the usual excuses for his fall from prominence. Not very many years ago he basked in the full light of popularity, and enjoyed a big salary and all it afforded him.

What happened? A series of coincidental misfortunes that, taken singly, he might have weathered. First there was his health. Naturally frail and nervous, the intense parts he played brought on what he feared, a nervous breakdown. A trip to London to make a picture, intended for rest and change, proved arduous and led to more illness.

Came The Talkies.
Then the talkies, stage actors, competition, less production and more actors out of work, he among them. A big opportunity came in Gloria Swanson's "Queen Kelly," but before his part was reached the film was shelved.

He did a few quickies, won several good parts that petered out in story changes. He had a call for "Journey's End," and virtually signed, he was asked if he were British. He is not, and another player took the part. The sequence in which he was to have played in "Grand Hotel" was dropped in the screen adaptation, and he took an insignificant role in "Night Court" instead.

HOW'S SHE MITTIN'?

One of the troubles the motorist is constantly beset with in winter is the cooling system. This unit, due to lack of care, becomes frozen and causes a lot of grief and expense.

The first step in preparing the car for winter should be conditioning of the cooling system for freezing weather.

This is done by going over every hose connection between the water pump and radiator and tightening them. If the hose itself is worn, it is an excellent practice to replace it, as anti-freeze compounds will find their way through the tinest leak in the rubber.

It is a good plan, too, to flush out the radiator and cooling system. Do this by running the engine while a solution of water and about two tablespoonful of baking soda is poured into it. This will free the rust and scale from the inside.

Make sure the cylinder head is tight, the petcock at the bottom on side of the engine closed, and you're ready to fill the radiator with an anti-freeze solution.

The question of what type of anti-freeze to use rests solely with the car owner. Alcohol is satisfactory, although some object to its evaporation during warm spells and its effect on paint finishes. Glycerine is a safer protection, but it requires a little more glycerine to prevent freezing than alcohol. Also, it is more expensive.

The big question is to know the average winter temperature in your locality and then protect your engine accordingly with the proper amount of anti-freeze.

The following table shows the amount of anti-freeze recommended for various temperatures:

Degree Fahr.	Per cent Alcohol	Per cent Glycerine
20	19	22
10	30	32
0	38	40
-10	45	47
-20	52	54

The alcohol concerned with this table is the denatured variety, 168-proof. The glycerine is the pure, distilled chemical that is now prepared especially for radiators.

In the case of alcohol, only as much should be used as is necessary to protect against winter conditions at the time, or at least for a time until a rise in temperature is expected. This can be gauged by the time of the year and the average temperature conditions.

If glycerine is used, however, the problem is simplified. The lowest possible temperature of the winter can be considered at the start and prepared against by the addition of the proper amount of anti-freeze.

Motor Hints

Timely Suggestions on the Care of the Car by the Automobile Club of Hartford.

Test Plugs in Motor
Spark plugs should not only be tested under actual operating conditions but also in the motor in which they are to be used. Until the development of special testing equipment this sort of check-up was not possible.

Even if a plug is tested in what is known as a compression box it may not reveal a tendency to miss. That is because the tester does not provide sufficiently high operating temperature. It is also just coming to be recognized that a plug must match the particular engine's ignition system.

Take a worn plug, allow it to cool off and place it in an external testing device and it will fire reasonably well. The temptation would be great to put it right back into service. Back in the motor, however, the high compression acts as a resistance to the flow of spark current and high temperature causes preignition.

Brakes Wear Two Ways

The idea that brakes wear out, irrespective of whether new lining is used, does not seem to occur to the average owner. He wonders why at 60,000 miles, with a reining job, he cannot stop as easily as his friend with a brand new car.

There are certain points of the brake assembly which are especially apt to cause trouble. Drums, for example, not only get out of round but wear down to such a point that it is difficult to obtain any sort of equalization. This means that one or two brakes have to carry the whole load of stopping, wearing them prematurely and at a faster rate than the others. Unless clevis pins and connections are well lubricated there will be sufficient wear to lower the efficiency of the system.

Bent brake rods, worn cams, warped shoes and various other conditions reduce the ability of the brakes to function as they were originally designed to.

This Checks Oil Loss

If the engine develops the chronic habit of permitting oil to be sucked through to the clutch housing the trouble can be remedied by a radical but nevertheless simple stunt. Before trying this plan, however, it is important to adjust the rear main bearing since its looseness is the primary cause of the leakage.

If one understands that the clutch sucks oil through a loose or worn bearing the remedy for the oil loss will seem less radical. To counteract this suction it is necessary to create a partial vacuum in the engine crankcase. This is easily done by tightly capping the oil filler pipe, and by then running a suction tube from crankcase to intake manifold.

Power Wears Out Tires

In considering reasons for tire wear engineers seem to lay too much stress on braking distribution and not enough on the effect of motor power. In one fairly comprehensive report on tire wear the matter of power is ignored. It should be obvious that much of the wear on rear tires is due to rapid acceleration, to carelessness in starting and to high speed. It is not unusual to see drivers engaging the clutch suddenly as to cause rear wheels to spin even on a dry surface. An idea of the slippage of rear wheels is had from the simple observation of noting how rear wheels will spin during acceleration in second gear when streets are wet and tire treads are worn down.

Even if the distribution of braking power between front and rear brakes is ideal the rear tires are more likely to wear sooner than the front ones, assuming that front end alignment is normal. This is entirely due to high power and lack of care in applying it.

To Test Anti-Freeze

In taking readings of the specific gravity of anti-freeze mixture containing denatured alcohol it is important to have the temperature of the solution between 58 and 68 degrees Fahrenheit. Failure to observe this rule accounts for serious errors made when checking up on the strength of the mixture from time to time during the winter.

Assuming that the temperature is correct for the test the solution will protect to anything from 19 degrees above zero, if the specific gravity reads .9780. This calls for a 20 per cent solution of alcohol and 80 per cent of water.

Down to 2 degrees above zero the specific gravity should read .9870. This calls for a 40 per cent solution of alcohol to 60 per cent of water. In extremely cold climates where the thermometer may dip to 18 degrees below zero the specific gravity should be .9950. This calls for a 50-50 solution of anti-freeze.

New Riding Comfort Here

After many years of experimenting automotive engineers have at last decided that the present method of smoothing the path of an automobile are all wrong.

Axle chatter and "dancing" of the wheels is due to the fact that the trend has been to control their action instead of that of the car body. This has been illogical because the wheels must of necessity follow the rough contour of the road.

Under the new plan, when a wheel goes into a hole it is permitted to drop in without carrying the car's body along with it. When it climbs out the shock absorber immediately comes into action and prevents the springs from tossing the car body upward. When the wheels strike humps in the road the springs are free to compress but the shock absorbers catch them on the recoil.

ACTING IS WORK TO FRANK MCHUGH; MONEY IS HIS GOAL

Hollywood—Comic Frank McHugh makes less to-do over the acting profession than any actor I've met in long time.

He came from the stage and nurses no secret desire to go back to it. He believes a few of those who do profess such a desire are sincere, he says, but the majority are posing.

"We're all working to make money—at least I am," he says, "and the needling of money is the incentive that keeps us at it. I'm working harder in Hollywood than I did on the stage, but I'm making more money."

Acting Is Work

The so-called glamour of the legitimate stage is lacking for McHugh. Perhaps it's because he was virtually born to it—he is one of the four children of Edward A. and Catherine McHugh, stage veterans. Glamour requires the perspective of distance, novelty.

"Acting was always work for us," says Frank. "I was on the job at five years of age. Stock companies, 'rep' shows, tent shows. I played a breaded coroner when I was 14—unconscious comedy, that was. I tried college for a while, but lasted two months, and whenever I tried to get into any other kind of work I always came back to acting. But you can get bored with acting, the same as with any other job."

"What I plan to do once I'm through with pictures—and I hope that won't be too soon, though it probably will—is to travel a couple of years, and then maybe go to school again. Learn a lot of things I've missed knowing, read a lot of books—that's what I want to do, not go to a regular college where you take courses and have to pass examinations."

POLICE SEEK IDENTITY OF WOMAN IN HOSPITAL

Bridgeport, Dec. 9.—(AP)—A young woman, red haired, well dressed, and believed to be about 25 years old, lies in the Park City hospital today in a weakened condition while police and hospital authorities are striving to establish her identity.

Dazed and unable to tell her own name or address, the girl was brought into the hospital just before 11 p. m. last night by a man of unknown identity who told the authorities the young woman had collapsed at Park and South avenues after asking him where she could locate a doctor. Physicians were unable to tell exactly what had caused her condition.

ANOTHER BODY FOUND

St. John's, N. F., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Another body was brought to St. George's today, increasing to four the number picked up since the wreck of the New York salvage steamer Sandbeach, which is believed to have foundered in Bay Saint George during a gale last week-end. Six life belts bearing the steamer's name have been found.

"Whoever said the human race was lazy must have had a chip on his shoulder. If human beings were really lazy, they'd work for food and shelter—least the rest of the time."—Tiny Tim.

Magnell's Drug Store has packages of 12 assorted large Christmas cards with matching envelopes, 39c.

Steaming Dessert. Since hot puddings are not very attractive in summer, now is the time to make the most of them. A Steamed Spice Pudding makes a filling dessert. If your pudding would be heavy meal. If your pudding would be heavy meal. If your pudding would be heavy meal.

2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1-2 teaspoons ginger
1-2 teaspoon nutmeg
1-2 teaspoons cinnamon
1-2 teaspoon cloves
1-2 teaspoon allspice
4 tablespoons butter or other shortening
1-2 cup brown sugar, firmly packed

1 egg, well beaten
3-4 cup milk
1-2 cup molasses
Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt and spices; sift together three times. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream together thoroughly. Add egg, then flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Add molasses. Stir until smooth. Pour into greased molds, filling them half full, cover tightly, and steam two hours. Serve hot with Yankee Sauce (see recipe below), to which 1-2 cup of coarsely put raisins has been added. (12 servings).

A complete selection of those "hard to get" special cards at Dewey-Richman Co. includes greetings to doctor, all relatives.

For Him
We suppose you're wondering what gift to give some fellow who has a car. The right thing among these suggestions: A ring if he is a member of an order, or a watch charm; an evening scarf (with monogram if you want something extra special); a set of poker chips; a silk or wool bathrobe; a manicure set (how many men have to use their wives!); gray suede gloves for best or pigskin for everyday; a pair of real good suspenders; binoculars. We could go on indefinitely... and yet, truth to tell, when you have to be so set down, and think of a gift for any particular man, we're always stumped!

A special shipment of finest pure dye flat crepe for lingerie is priced $1.00 per yard at Cheney Hall Salesroom. Colors are white, eggshell, flesh and pink. This material is in such demand for gift lingerie. It is just the right weight for slips, nightgowns, pyjamas, negligees and bed-jackets. If you do not sew, a length of this flat crepe will be a welcome gift for the woman who makes her own things.

Fad
People are temporarily abandoning puzzles to gaze at "Depression Flowers," which now are made blue with ink and white by leaving out the coloring matter, and red with mercurochrome.

A red and silver combination cigarette holder and humidifier for the living room table is a useful, attractive gift for 99c at Magnell's Drug Store.

Once a Year
Card sending is certainly one of the most delightful aspects of Christmas. And card receiving! Once a year, we have this opportunity to say Hello and send good wishes to friends whom we can't see often, to teachers who encouraged us in school, to men and women who helped us to get a start in business, and to countless others who have had some beneficent influence on us. The host of messages received at Christmas time from such friends revives so many memories... rich ones. We wouldn't abandon this custom of sending Christmas cards for anything.

A splendid assortment of 25 Christmas cards—large ones with matching envelopes, attractive designs—are only 50c at Dewey-Richman Co.

Easton stationery is especially lovely this year, in various decorative cellophane-wrapped packages featuring smart colors. Packard's Pharmacy has a complete line of Easton boxes from 50c to $1.00.

Same To You
"A little misfortune," says Mrs. De Don By As You Did in "Water Babies," "A little misfortune is the best thing I could wish for you."

It's time to order Christmas cakes and pies—any kind you want—from the Center Cake & Pie Shop. Phone 8500 days, 4830 evenings.

MERRITT IN CAPITAL
Washington, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Former Congressman Schuyler Merritt, of Stamford, Conn., who will return to his old seat in the House next March, came to Washington for a brief visit today and was hailed by friends as one of two Republicans who displaced Democratic Congressmen in the November election. The veteran representative, who will be re-elected next year, was

Spice Sauce for Ham
To bake ham with spicy sauce you need:
2 1-2 lb. sliced ham, 1-inch thick
1-4 cup tomato ketchup or Chili sauce
1 teaspoon sugar
1-3 cup cold water
1 tablespoon vinegar
2 teaspoons flour
1-2 teaspoon prepared mustard.
Brown ham in skillet, then place in casserole and cover with sauce made this way: Mix ketchup or Chili Sauce, cold water, vinegar, flour, sugar and mustard. Bake in moderate oven or simmer until tender, (about one-half hour).

Every woman owes it to herself to have the household laundry done if she possibly can, and the cost is so small that few cannot afford this service. Her valuable time can be used in ways better than washing clothes. Let the New Model Laundry do it—dial 8079.

Millikowski, The Florist, is offering a very nice special for Saturday only. Young dwarf Boston ferns at 39c and 79c. These are exceptional values. Dial 6029.

Ready for Orders
Certain special orders for Christmas should be in now—for example, for specially made plum puddings or other pastries—so that tradespeople won't be too rushed at the last minute and will have a little time to do their own planning and shopping.

For Foot Troubles
At the Arthur Drug Store, Rubinow Building, a graduate of the American School of Podiatry invites all those suffering from minor foot troubles to come in for free advice.

Yankee Sauce
This sauce, to be used with the Steamed Spice Pudding, is made with 1-2 cup brown sugar, firmly packed; 2 tablespoons cornstarch; dash of salt; 2 cups water; 2 tablespoons butter; 1-2 tablespoons vinegar.

Combine sugar, cornstarch, salt, and water and butter. Cook 10 minutes. Add vinegar. Serve hot. Makes 2 cups sauce. If desired 1-2 cup raisins may be cooked with sauce.

The woman side of the question is easily settled at Hale's Gift Shop (rear balcony), where gifts at 50c and $1.00 are collected for your convenience. To name a few: Picture frames, lamps, stationery, toys, cosmetics, lingerie, linen, ash trays.

Mold It
When measuring brown sugar, it is necessary to press it down in the cup so firmly that when turned out it will hold the shape of the cup. This is the only way to get accurate measurement with this "gooey" type of sugar.

Gifts for men at Marlow's are most reasonable and useful: All linen handkerchiefs of fine quality, 25c; cravats from 10c to 89c, the latter for handsome silk brocades; fur-lined gloves, $1.98; wool socks, 25c; rayon socks, 10c to 25c. Marlow's also has excellent values in shirts, jackets, and smoking outfits. Everything for boys is also found here.

You've Heard This, But...
Although Christmas wares in the stores are all very tempting, some are inevitably more attractive than others, so there follows the advantage of shopping as soon as possible, to have a wider choice and to see the best that is offered. Christmas always involves so many activities, besides gift buying that you will have a better time if your shopping is completely finished next week... all of a week before the big day.

The Beauty Nook
Gifts of useful cosmetic preparations attractively priced from 25c to $3.00 are displayed at Mary Elizabeth's Beauty Nook (Rubinow Building). Just the thing a woman would welcome for Christmas or as a bridge prize.

Half and Half
Bluing and water, mixed in equal proportions, make a preparation for window washing that leaves the glass beautifully clear.

Specials in candies at The Tea Room, 888 Main street, all home-made right there, are offered at wholesale prices. Among week-end specials are molasses or peanut butter kisses, 15c a lb., chocolate Roulettes, 25c a lb.

They're Out
Yesterday the Christmas tree and wreath stands bloomed forth in various strategic points. How delightful is the spicy smell of the needles—an odor so full of Christmas associations. These decorations add so much to the atmosphere of the Yuletide—and the decorated tree is indispensable, we think, to a real Christmas.

week, defeated Representative William L. Tierney. The latter had won from Merritt in 1930. Merritt conferred with Republican members of the Connecticut delegation and later went onto the floor of the House greeting old acquaintances. "I am happy to find," he said, "that many of my friends are going to be here in the next session despite the heavy turnover in membership." Merritt will entertain a group of his former colleagues at dinner tonight and then will return to Stamford.

MOLDED CHEESE SALAD:
Pour a can of tomato soup or milk canned tomato juice into a squeapan, drop in a whole clove, and heat but do not boil. Add an envelope of gelatin which has been soaking in a little cold water, stir well, and remove from fire. Let cool slightly, and beat in pound of grated yellow cheese, smoothing out as many lumps as possible, then fold in a cup of whipped cream (measured after whipping). Line molds with thinly sliced stuffed olives and fill with cheese mixture. Place in ice box, and when ready to serve dip contents into hot water and turn contents onto plates of lettuce.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Dried Fruits
Question: Mrs. Evelyn St. L. asks: "Will you please advise if prunes or dried peaches are dangerous if eaten raw? Also, if any of the following foods are fattening: Raisins, figs, dates, pickles, eggs, tomatoes, peanuts, apples, pineapples, or beets?"
Answer: Prunes or dried peaches are not dangerous even if eaten raw. The following foods you mention are about as fattening as they are rich in calories: Raisins, figs, dates, eggs and peanuts. The foods low in calories and hence not fattening would be tomatoes, apples, pickles, pineapples and red beets.

Underweights
Question: Cecilia W. writes: "I am a girl twenty years old and am very much underweight for my height. As I eat all beautiful foods and my appetite is fine, I have decided this failure to gain is due to a sunken chest. I have had several corrective gym teachers tell me this is so. Do you think it is the cause of my underweight? Can this be corrected?"
Answer: The teachers may be right about the sunken chest being responsible for your underweight. At your age, if you will take proper physical culture and breathing exercises, you can surely correct the chest deformity.

LAST BANDIT SENTENCED
Putnam, Conn., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Joseph Correlle 19, who surrendered at Stockton, Calif., as the eighth member of the gang which held up and robbed a truck laden with silver bullion, a metal used in making some grades of silverware, was given an indeterminate sentence at Cheshire reformatory today by Superior Court Judge John Richards Booth. Seven others of the gang are in state prison. Correlle is the last one. His home was in Providence, R. I. The holdup was on a hill in Killingly in October, 1930. The truck was on the way from Waterbury to Providence. Leniency was granted because of his surrender and because of his age at the time of the incident. He pleaded guilty today.

EXTEND CAROLING THIS CHRISTMAS

150 In Emmanuel Church To Spread Cheer By Song During Season.

Some 150 voices from the Emmanuel Lutheran church will devote considerable time during the Christmas holiday season by spreading Christmas cheer and greetings throughout the town.

There are four singing groups at the church that will take part in the work, the Beethoven club, G. C. C. Club church choir and children's choir.

Helge E. Pearson, director of the Beethoven Glee club said that it is hard to know all of the homes at which there is need for their singing and that the carolers would more than appreciate receiving the names and addresses of shut-ins to whom such a help would bring much cheer and happiness.

DIFFICULT NON-SUPPORT CASE IN COURT TODAY

Zenophon Piperas Charged With Assault Committed In August—Wife Living With Brother.

Zenophon Piperas, known to most of his shoe-shine or hat-block customers as "Jimmy", gave Judge Raymond A. Johnson a difficult case upon which to pass judgment when presented this morning on charges of assault upon his wife and non-support.

Mrs. Piperas, who does not speak English has been in this country but a short time. She told her story through an interpreter, Mrs. George Adams, of Hartford.

Although it was not admitted as evidence it was intimated that Mrs. Thomas Dadamos who lives over the shoe-shine parlor had been involved in the family quarrels. The assault with which Piperas was charged was committed last August and while Mrs. Piperas has been living with her brother she never actually asked for support and will living here was never refused, support according to the testimony offered by Attorney Older.

Judge Johnson continued the case for two weeks to give the parties in question an opportunity for reconciliation.

MAJOR DEXTER GETS NEW ASSIGNMENT

Given Command of First Battalion Succeeding Late Major Morrison.

Hartford, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Major Allan L. Dexter has been relieved of his assignment with the headquarters of the 169th infantry, C. N. G., in adjutant general's orders today, and given command of First Battalion, vice major Morrison, deceased.

Major Donald J. MacGillivray has been relieved of command of the Medical department detachment, 169th infantry, and transferred to the National Guard Reserve.

Captain John H. Williams, Company K, 169th infantry has been ordered to take an examination for promotion to major of infantry.

It is understood that Major Dexter will be in charge of the First Battalion only until such time as Major John Williams is ready to take over that work, at which time Major Dexter will be returned to his former post as plans and training officer in regimental headquarters. Major Dexter, a World War veteran, formerly commanded the Howitzer Company of Manchester. He has been in command of the First Battalion since the death of Major Joseph Morrison of Willimantic.

ARRANGING DETAILS OF DEBT PAYMENTS

can refusal to postpone the December payment.

Nevertheless it appeared the government had quietly seized upon what it regarded as the fundamental points of the Anglo-American debt problem. It was reasoned that the most essential point of the British note was the request for a review of the whole debt's question, and that the American reply virtually granted this.

The British government appeared to be prepared for a broadside of criticism because it was not insisting upon French debt payment to the British in March, but the Cabinet was believed to be prepared likewise to defend the action taken by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain in Paris.

The government's position appeared to be that the policy was aimed to save the Lausanne reparations agreement which sealed down German payments, and thus protect the progress Europe has made toward a final settlement of those inter-governmental obligations which were a heritage of the World War.

Official quarters emphatically discounted reports and predictions in the press were that American insistence upon the December payment necessarily means "smashing" the Lausanne agreements. While the consensus in political and financial quarters today was that Great Britain intends to pay and that the situation already was being discounted on the exchanges, it is obviously a matter which the Cabinet must finally consider before a definite announcement can be forthcoming.

STUDYING U. S. NOTE

Paris, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Finance Minister Louis Germain-Martin advised a joint session of the foreign affairs and finance committees of the Chamber of Deputies today that the French government was disposed to make the December debt payment to the United States with reservations.

Frederic Herriot, who also addressed a joint session, to the committees, told them he wants time to study the latest American note before deciding upon a definite course.

Several of this morning's newspapers said M. Herriot and Prime Minister Laval tentatively agreed at their conference yesterday to pay the instalments due in December, but that M. Herriot stipulated he would have to submit his recommendations to Parliament.

The newspapers expressed the hope that a general conference with the United States participating will clear up the entire debt problem. The Paris press obviously is preparing the public for the necessity of paying the $20,000,000 due next week, and thereby is reflecting the views of the government.

After the premier and M. Germain-Martin had made their explanations before the committees, the opinion was expressed in the Chamber lobbies that M. Herriot will get the Chamber's approval of payment of the December instalment provided he receives formal assurance from the United States that negotiations for reconsideration of the debt structure will begin before the next payment is due in June.

Diplomatic Problem A communique issued by the committees said the premier had explained that the matter of the debt is at once a diplomatic problem and a financial problem. He gave the history of the issue from the ratification of the Mellon-Berenger accord up to the negotiation of the Lausanne agreement relieving Germany of the bulk of reparations payments.

The premier told the committees about his conversations with Mr. MacDonald yesterday and also discussed the wisdom of convoking a world economic conference.

The semi-official Havas News Agency said it had received the impression that the government is getting ready to pay the $20,000,000 due next Thursday, but with the proviso that this shall be the last under the Mellon-Berenger accord, and with the request for immediate negotiations to obtain a new debt arrangement.

"The last American note, said Havas, establishes a connection between revision of the debt agree-

THE AUTHOR SPEAKS

Dear Editor: With the series on Education nearly over I would like to acknowledge their writing.

Last fall when we came back there was much to be heard and read about the schools. And much of the opinion among us indicated a lack of sound reasoning; many seized upon one item and proceeded to prescribe for and judge the entire matter therefrom. But it is not surprising to find people mistaking a consideration of the whole problem when we consider the great growth of our schools.

At the outset I realized that many in town were more fitted than I to accomplish the purpose of writing a little for the schools. But matters of greater concern claimed their attention. And I felt that the name of a verdant amateur would add little merit to a piece of writing.

I have avoided sensational ideas and exotic arguments and I have tried to present a view of education of greater concern to the attention. And I felt that the name of a verdant amateur would add little merit to a piece of writing. Y. M. C. A. Notes

We will have a fine program tonight. Come and spend the entire evening. The Church League with St. Bridget's and the North M. E. Boys play basketball from 6:30 to 7:30. At 8:30 the Southington Y team will be here to play our "A" team. After this game there will be a dance for who have paid their entrance fee to the games. Those who enjoy the games and the dances are welcome to come and enjoy the evening.

Stafford Springs Olympic team of basketballers was here last night and gave our local Y team a good game. The Stafford players were left behind the first half but seemed to have the greatest endurance and rallied in the second half and finally walked away with Joe's team.

Tomorrow night the Highland Park boys are playing here from 7 to 8 and at 8 p. m. there will be two games. The first one will be between the Wapping Y and a team to be picked from the Y players by Joe Zepaska and his team. Saturday afternoon from 2 to 4 is scout period of this week. The boys from Troop 8 of Manchester Green are inviting in several other troops as their guests.

The Community boys will have the hour from 4 to 5 and the Wildcats from 5 to 6. The Wildcats will be on the floor from 6 to 7. This week and for several weeks to come we have all but one period for the entire week from 4 p. m. until closing time scheduled with some event. Surely it looks as though the association is filling a need for Manchester.

INSURANCE PROFESSOR CONVENTION SPEAKER

Wharton School Faculty Member To Address Next Week's Gathering in Hartford.

Dr. S. S. Huebner, professor of insurance and commerce at the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce, University of Pennsylvania and Dean of the American College of Life Underwriters, will be one of the principal speakers on the Connecticut Insurance Day program at Hartford on Thursday, December 16th, his subject being "Business Depressions and Insurance."

Dr. Huebner is one of the outstanding economists of the country, his activities consisting not only of teaching, lecturing and writing on insurance, commerce and finance, but of serving on many governmental committees and boards.

Connecticut insurance men are assured of an unusual opportunity in hearing and conferring with Dr. Huebner for besides his address of the morning he has consented to serve as leader of the life insurance departmental conference in the afternoon.

Plans for Connecticut Insurance Day are rapidly nearing completion. Besides Dr. Huebner there will be numerous other prominent personalities on the program, including Hon. Wilbur L. Cross, governor of Connecticut, Hon. Howard P. Dunham, Connecticut Insurance Commissioner, Paul L. Hald, president of the Insurance Executives Association of New York, and Professor William Lyon Phelps of Yale University. Both morning and afternoon sessions of this one-day meeting of Connecticut insurance men will be held at the Aetna Life Insurance Company building.

Any insurance man may attend, the only cost being the $2 registration fee which includes luncheon.

TOLLAND

The Busy Bee's Clothing Club of Tolland of which Mrs. Eldred Doyle is leader, presented their achievement program and sale Saturday evening. A large audience of parents and friends were present to enjoy the program.

Mrs. Doyle was presented with a lovely necklace from her club girls in appreciation of her work, also with a beautiful fern from her Advisory board consisting of Mrs. Edward Wochomurka, Mrs. Charles Leonard, Mrs. I. Alden Jewett, and Mrs. Arthur Bushnell. The public may be interested to know that the money which was realized from the sale will be used to pay the expenses for Junior Short Course at Storrs College this summer, the remainder to be used to send another member to Junior Short Course this coming year.

The Busy Bee Clothing Club for three years has been the most active club of the town of Tolland, ever had. Last year they were awarded the Legion Cup for being the most outstanding homemaking club in the County. Other clubs have come and gone in this town; but although records show 7 health clubs, 3 poultry clubs, 1 dairy, 3 clubs, 3 other clothing, 1 rabbit, and 1 canning club within the past five or six years, no other club in the town has persevered through three years of work so consistently creditable.

Tolland clubs have worked more or less individually rather than as a town. This past summer an attempt has been made through the organization of a town club committee to co-ordinate the work of all the clubs.

It is hoped that during the coming year this committee, working with the local leaders and backed by the townspeople, will be able to make club work a more vital factor in the enrichment of the lives of the

Christmas Customs FROM FOREIGN LANDS

In Greece, the "Blessing of the Waters" climaxes the Christmas season on Jan. 6, the Orthodox Christmas Day. In maritime towns, the priest from the church nearest the waterfront, carries a wooden cross to the water's edge, followed by the clergy, troops and a whole city. As he hurries the sacred emblem into the water, youths plunge in from boats to recover it and receive the priest's blessing.

HOW TO RECAPTURE BEAUTY

Good looks are often a matter of good health. Sparkling eyes and a smooth complexion are outward signs of an abundant vitality.

To be charming, conserve your health. Guard against constipation. If so often brings wrinkles, sallow skins, dull eyes, pimples.

Try the pleasant "cereal way" to protect yourself from constipation. Science has proved that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron, which helps build up the blood.

The "bulk" in this delicious cereal is much like that of lettuce. How much safer than abusing your system with pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

the parents of a son born at the Rockville City hospital last week. Mrs. Hirth was formerly Miss Grace Kramal. Dec. 18th is the last day to pay the personal taxes for Tolland residents and the tax collector, Emery Clough will be at the Tolland Town Hall all day on that date and all day Dec. 10. After Dec. 10 delinquents will be charged $1.00 extra. Mrs. and Mrs. Otto Vonsaak of Willington are the parents of a son born at the Johnson Memorial Hospital in Stafford Springs. Mrs. Vonsaak before marriage was Miss Catharine Zelinka of Stratford district, Tolland.

James Sabo is confined to his home with illness. A large number of members of Tolland Grange attended the meeting in Rockville Union Congregational Church Sunday evening last to hear the address given by Charles M. Gardner of Westfield, Mass., high priest of Demeter, several hundred members of neighboring patrons of the Grange were present.

The next meeting of Tolland Grange will be a Christmas party. The following committees have been chosen, Entertainment: Mrs. Emery Clough, Mrs. Charles Broadbent and Mrs. Rupert West. Decorating: Lathrop West, the Misses Maud and Gertrude Von Deck. Refreshment: Mrs. L. Ernest Hall, Mrs. Hoyt Hayden and Mrs. Ivan Wilcox.

5 Advantages of "Self-Serve" Shopping Worthy of Your Consideration

1. The largest and most complete stock of groceries, meats and vegetables in Manchester.
2. A small delivery charge of 10c whether you buy one can or a truckload. Consequently delivery overhead not added to our 3,000 items in stock.
3. Ample free parking space is provided in rear of the store. Entrances at Oak and Maple streets.
4. Competent telephone service permitting you to phone your order which will be carefully filled and checked awaiting your arrival.
5. Courteous service. Honesty in advertising with a money-back guarantee on your own statement should any article you get prove unsatisfactory. Remember 3,495 customers last Saturday can't be wrong. And twelve years of uninterrupted service to Manchester housewives is sufficient proof that "It Pays to Wait on Yourself."

SPEEDBOAT RELEASED

New London, Dec. 9.—(AP)—La Mascotte IV of New York the vessel brought here yesterday by the Coast Guard after an unlicensed radio transmitting set was found aboard, was at liberty today.

The Coast Guard said today that the radio set was uncovered while a boarding party was inspecting the boat, a run-runner suspect, to determine whether the boat was carrying or had carried liquor or narcotics. The set was in a suit case.

In order to prevent the city of Syracuse from reverting to the Onondaga Indians, the state of New York gives members of the tribe 16 pounds of salt every year to keep up terms of a treaty made in 1795.

Beat Him Once
"They beat him in a cup race, making him cough and sneeze. But he came back the very next day and toted 134 pounds—and won the Cheshire handicap."

He had raced in late fall in America, and, with an ocean trip under his belt, had been asked for the very next day he won again, under 124, giving chunks of freight to all the other dudes.

As compared with the same date last year, this represents a decrease of $7,135,380.50. The receipts for November, this year were $1,996,206.23, a decrease of $48,044.50 as compared with November, 1933. The receipts for the period from July 1, to Nov. 30 were $9,947,850.85, a decrease of $2,409,459.85 as compared with the same period in 1933.

The expenditures for November were $1,650,337.10, or $441,540 less than in November, 1933.

SKIPPER'S WIDOW DIES

Chilmark, Mass., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Lucy L. Tilton, widow of Captain George F. Tilton, widely known Cape Cod whaling skipper of a generation ago, died suddenly at her home last night within five weeks of the death of her husband. She was 63 years old, and death was ascribed to a heart ailment.

She was born on the island of Martha's Vineyard and was married to Capt. Tilton about 35 years ago. Captain Tilton, in recent years, had been engaged as caretaker aboard the whaling ship, Charles W. Morgan on the estate of Colonel E. H. R. Green at South Dartmouth.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

by WILLIAM BRADLEY

Race track lore is full of stories about horses with "great hearts." Horsemen, repeatedly refer to this race or that in which some heroic animal drew up alongside an opponent, "looked him in the eye" and went on to win, the other horse having been conquered by the well-known fashy eye.

They say that Phar Lap, the mighty Australian runner, had one of those great hearts. There are dozens of legends about the famous Ammon Run, the Australian gelding who let be campaigned on American race tracks after the first of the year. Ammon Ra is expected to pick up where Phar Lap left off, and to fulfill the promise of a brilliant record for the boys to shoot at.

The Climate and Parole
"He may not want to run in California," said one of those present. "I know horses who won't run there else, some horses like to go where it's cold. Some quit when it's cloudy."

To that, Max Riddle, one of the younger horse sharks, responded with a deprecatory pooch-pooch of "running." "Parole?" he asked. Then, just to set every body right, he continued: "Parole ran back somewhere in the late '70s. Congress adjourned once to watch him beat Ten Broeck and Tom Ochiltree. After five years of running, he was 'ungraded' through and his owner, Pierre Lorillard, decided to take him to England as a trial horse for the Duke of Majeuta, which was tipped off as a champion at the time.

Runs As Substitute
"But the Duke got sick and couldn't start. Parole, with a racing lifetime behind him, you might say, was asked to take over the job of his young friend."

Parole had had no experience on the English tracks, which are so different from ours. They just threw him in there against one of the greatest horses England ever knew. I mean isopony, Parole carried 116. They gave him a heavy start, but he was 'ungraded' through and he won 7 to 1 against Parole.

He looked inopony in the eye and went on past to win easily. A week later he beat 16 horses, spitting some of the 'dogs' 24 pounds, and over a mile and a quarter. The very next day he won again, under 124, giving chunks of freight to all the other dudes.

Beat Him Once
"They beat him in a cup race, making him cough and sneeze. But he came back the very next day and toted 134 pounds—and won the Cheshire handicap."

He had raced in late fall in America, and, with an ocean trip under his belt, had been asked for the very next day he won again, under 124, giving chunks of freight to all the other dudes.

As compared with the same date last year, this represents a decrease of $7,135,380.50. The receipts for November, this year were $1,996,206.23, a decrease of $48,044.50 as compared with November, 1933. The receipts for the period from July 1, to Nov. 30 were $9,947,850.85, a decrease of $2,409,459.85 as compared with the same period in 1933.

The expenditures for November were $1,650,337.10, or $441,540 less than in November, 1933.

SKIPPER'S WIDOW DIES

Chilmark, Mass., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Lucy L. Tilton, widow of Captain George F. Tilton, widely known Cape Cod whaling skipper of a generation ago, died suddenly at her home last night within five weeks of the death of her husband. She was 63 years old, and death was ascribed to a heart ailment.

She was born on the island of Martha's Vineyard and was married to Capt. Tilton about 35 years ago. Captain Tilton, in recent years, had been engaged as caretaker aboard the whaling ship, Charles W. Morgan on the estate of Colonel E. H. R. Green at South Dartmouth.

Great Britain's fastest train, the Chatham Flyer, which does the 76 miles between Swindon and Paddington in just over 56 minutes, used 100 pounds of coal every three miles.

OLD MASON DIES

Wallingford, Mass., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Oliver E. Linnell, a town official for 35 years and formerly deputy sheriff of Barnstable county, died at his home last night at the age of 83 years. He was the oldest living past district deputy grand master of the 32nd Masonic District and one of the oldest Masons in point of membership in New England.

He was believed to have been one of the oldest active undertakers in New England.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The Stock Market remained quiescent today, readily absorbing occasional ripples of selling, but failing to attract anything resembling active buying.

Sentiment in brokerage quarters has grown considerably more cheerful in the past few days, but more bullish inclined traders acknowledge that they are not sure where an upward impetus will come from, and that corporate earnings are holding close to the low levels of last summer.

Oils and a few of the rails were firm for a time, but U. S. Steel and American Telephone sagged about a point, and coppers eased. Gains of a point or so in Allied Chemical and Case failed to hold. SENSE AND NONSENSE

CHRISTMAS . . . Again we approach what ought to be the happiest season of the year . . . Christmas . . . How it has always thrilled us since childhood! . . . But how about those who have not been so fortunate this year? . . . Let us spend our Christmas this year in the most unselfish way that we have ever done . . . If you do not personally, know some family with whom to share a nappy Christmas, make inquiry among your friends and they will give you the name of some worthy one . . . In name of some worthy one . . . Unfortunately, you are spreading joy in your own heart.

School Teacher (during English lesson)—I didn't have no fun at the seaside—how should I correct that, Jack?

Jack—Get a sweetheart, miss.

The answer to "no resources" is frequently "race horses."

Wife—John, the clock fell off the wall, and if it had been a minute sooner it would have hit poor mother!

John—I always said that clock was slow.

Reading in buses is very bad for the eyes, writes an optician. Especially when the person whose paper you are reading won't keep still.

Teacher—Tommy, tell the class what you know about Pat. Henry.

Tommy—He was born in Virginia. He was married and he said "Give me Liberty or give me Death."

Gangsters can be depended on to eliminate themselves. Now isn't it possible to get politicians mad at each other, too?

A Pennsylvania newspaper headline reads: "Burglar Surprised By Bank Officials Working Late."

Who wouldn't be?

When someone asked why prayers are ended with "Amen" instead of "A woman" someone else suggested that it was for the same reason that they sing hymns and not here.

Dramatist—Why are you going away already? There are three more acts to come.

Guest—Sorry, that's why I'm going away.

There appears to be no unemployment among bank robbers and bootleggers.

Most successful men are just common people who applied themselves in an uncommon way.

So many people are so busy wondering what the other fellow is doing that they themselves accomplish absolutely nothing.

Philip, seven years old, returned from playing with a little neighbor girl. After a thoughtful silence he asked:

Philip—Mother, is it wrong for little boys to kiss little girls?

Mother—No, it isn't wrong, but I think you had better keep your kisses for mother and baby sister for a while yet.

Philip—I'm sorry, mother, if I ought to have kept 'em, for there's seventeen gone already.

Tailor (measuring a new customer)—What about a small deposit, sir?

Customer—Just as you like; put one in if it's stylish.

The famous criminal lawyer had won a shockingly bad case by eloquence and trickery, and a rival lawyer said to him, bitterly:

Rival Lawyer—Is there any case so low, so foul, so vilely crooked and shameful that you'd refuse it?

Criminal Lawyer—Well, I don't know. What have you been doing now?

Slight Drafts . . . The fellow to whom harp music is distasteful is going to have a tough time in heaven . . . So long as you are happy, what does it matter where you are or what you have? . . . It is all right to "give the devil his due," but there is no sense in adding a bonus . . . Do you really think you are capable of sitting down today and telling some young man what he really should do?

RIGHT AT HOME!

"You know, you've been engaged a long time, old man. Why don't you marry her?"

"I've been thinking about it, Joe—but where would I spend my evenings if I did?"—TIT-BITS.
