

LABOR TO DEMAND OLD AGE PENSIONS

State Federation Announces Bill Plans To Present At Coming Session of the General Assembly.

By Associated Press Labor bills in the Connecticut General Assembly which begins its 1933 session next week promise a greater range in subject than in any recent session.

Organized labor will ask for certain remedial legislation to meet, or to end, conditions which have arisen out of privations of workers in industry and in the various trades.

While an old age pension bill is placed at the top of the list the organization expects to throw its weight behind bills which seek maintenance of a fair wage, less hours for women in industry, an increase in the compulsory school age for children, and unemployment insurance.

The Federation will advocate a change in state enforcement laws to let in 2.5 per cent hike if it comes.

John J. Egan, secretary, said today the old age pension bill sponsored at last session will be reintroduced.

"This will be our most important bill," said Egan. "We feel certain the bill will pass, in that the Legislature will be more convinced than ever before on the need of such legislation with the report of the old age commission in hand."

Egan said the prevailing rate of wages on building will be the next item on the agenda.

The former was defeated in committee on the second time, but will be reintroduced at this time in order to relieve the unemployment situation.

The minimum wage bill for laborers on highways will be an important one as it is a long way toward correcting unfair competition among the road building contractors.

The fifty hour week bill for women in mercantile establishments will receive support from many quarters.

The compensation law change asked for will be of importance to (Continued on Page Three)

QUARTER MILLION YEARS, GARDEN OF EDEN'S AGE It Had a Mild Climate, Say Scientists, If It Was Where the Popular Belief Places It.

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 30.—(AP)—If the Garden of Eden was where popular belief places it, an archeological report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science today shows it probably existed more than a quarter of a million years ago.

It had a mild climate, some of the animals most likely were rhinos, hippos, deer, oxen and horses, also rodents.

This archeological report covers not the Garden of Eden, but events likely to have occurred long after, concerning the manner of man who lived in Palestine from 30,000 years ago, back to a misty, uncertain past that some scientists would estimate at a quarter million years.

THE REPORT was the principal archeological event of this year's science meeting, entitled "Latest Old World Discoveries of Fossil Man," by Dr. George Grant MacCurdy, of Yale University. He detailed studies of the American School of Prehistoric Research, in several caves whose floors were built up, layer by layer by successive races of men.

Each occupied the caves for periods of a thousand or more years up to far longer terms, with still other great stretches of time, sometimes separating the occupancies.

Each left on the floor remnants of his tools, a little evidence of the animals he hunted and occasionally some of the bones of his own kind. These were covered over during the vacancy periods by drifting sands, so that the succeeding race packed down a permanent record which the archeologists are now digging up.

IN THE CAVE of Mugharat El Wad were found the tools of Mousterian men, implements of flint and chert, bone and horn. There were so many that the place appeared to have been a tool factory for the Mousterians.

MRS. MOONEY SEES PRESIDENT-ELECT Mr. Roosevelt Promises That He Will Write a Letter To Gov. Rolph.

Albany, Dec. 30.—(AP)—President-elect Roosevelt today promised Mrs. Mary Mooney, mother of Thomas Mooney, that he would write a letter in behalf of Mooney to Governor Rolph of California.

The 84 year old mother of Mooney, serving a life sentence for the Preparedness Day bombing in San Francisco 18 years ago, failed to see Mr. Roosevelt yesterday as she reached Albany after the governor had left the Capitol.

Entering the governor's study, on the reception hall, Mrs. Mooney asked Mr. Roosevelt to visit her at the executive mansion today.

AL SMITH IS 59; GIVES INTERVIEW "Happy Warrior" Refuses To Talk On Serious Subjects On His Birthday.

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Alfred E. Smith, the "happy warrior" of many campaigns, donned his famous brown derby today and it wasn't for a battle, but for a birthday.

ENTERING his office high above the sidewalks from which he rose to be four-times governor of the Empire State and a Democratic presidential candidate in 1928, he hung the rust colored "iron hat" on a peg and settled down at his desk to cast a reminiscent eye back over his 59 years.

NO, I CAN'T pick out the highlights," he said. "There are too many. I prefer to remember the whole period as one of service and labor."

QUESTIONS started flying and he raised a hand. "Now, wait a minute. Wait a minute," he said. "I'm declaring a moratorium on all serious discussions. This is my birthday, Christmas trees are still up and the children are playing with their toys. I refuse to talk about—what's that? Technology?"

IT'S TOO DEEP "Say, I've written an article on that and you can read it next month, but I draw the line on discussing it now. Besides, it is too deep to talk about on birthdays."

HOW DOES he feel at 59? "At 59" said the famous Democrat. "I feel just as I did at 20. At 50 I felt just as I did at 40. I can see no difference. Why, I didn't really start work until a few years ago."

HE WAS glancing from a window which looks down on the lower east side tenement district in which he was born, he said softly.

THE ENTIRE resources of the state police were thrown into the search for the four bandits. Every cruising car in the service was placed in touch with state police headquarters through broadcast from the state police radio station at Framingham. Fourteen cars loaded with troopers were patrolling the highways in the vicinity of Fall River immediately after the robbery was reported.

MOVING MOUNTAIN FRIGHTENS FOLKS For a Week It Has Been Trembling and Moving Toward City.

Durango, Colo., Dec. 30.—(AP)—While cantankerous Carbon Mountain mumbled in its sleep and shook a few more tons of rock and shoria into Anilmas valley today, Durango folk took comfort in the words of a geologist who said there was little likelihood of "tanger to the city."

There had been uneasiness in the mountain city over the possibility that the mountain, which seems to be tumbling into the valley through a faulting action, would push down its neighbor, Smelter mountain, in Durango.

Smelter mountain rises as a barricade between Carbon Mountain, three miles away, and Durango.

James Wigglesworth, graduate of the University of Colorado School of Geology, made a detailed examination of the action of the moving mountain, and said:

"In my opinion the phenomenon, while on a very large scale, is of a local nature and it is not likely it will lead to a regional disturbance sufficient to cause slides to run on Smelter Mountain."

Burning Coal

"A distinct sulphurous odor could be detected coming from the crevices on top of the mountain, which in my opinion is coming from a burning coal vein. The coal vein in this vicinity is known to contain iron pyrites in large quantities, which would account for the odor. If the burning coal theory is correct, then the burning of the coal vein under Carbon Mountain, which might have been in progress for a great period of time, has caused the caving or slumping of the formation. To what extent it will continue, no one can predict."

Further investigation of the antics of the shaking peak brought out that the angle of inclination of the peak is 28 degrees and this inclined face offers a key to the phenomenon. Geologists say the stratum of shale which overlies the picture cliff formation, which is sandstone, probably never had been firmly cemented to the stratum beneath and having had its lower base cut away by a gulch to the south could no longer cling to the face of the picture cliff formation. Thus hundreds of thousands of tons of the fruitland formation have broken loose and are steadily moving toward the Anilmas valley. The final outcome may be the complete exposure of the inclined face to the top of the mountain, a distance of approximately 1,600 feet above the valley floor.

The slip to the southeast today became more marked. Trees and brush are being uprooted and rolled beneath the moving debris.

Smelter Mountain is approximately 2,500 feet above the Anilmas valley. The cliffs on which mountain, an exceptionally sharp incline from perpendicular, is capped by the Mesa Verde sandstone formation.

OLD AUTO MARKER SET WERE ON LOCAL MAN'S

Over at the State Office building in Hartford some of the oldest automobile license plates issued in the state are on exhibition and it has been observed that the second oldest plates that were the property of a Manchester man.

The plates were those of L. Jones Comstock, formerly of this town. Mr. Comstock, who used to live on the old Charles Bissell farm and had a real estate office in Main Street, obtained the plates in March, 1905, for what was described as a two-seated steamer Locomobile runabout.

Mrs. Maxwell Hutchinson of Andover was admitted at 7:30 last night and given emergency treatment for injuries to her nose and forehead, fingers of the left hand and bruises of the left knee received in an automobile accident at Bolton.

Mrs. Hutchinson was discharged after treatment.

Nell Pearson, 21, of Ellington, was treated for an injured right index finger, received early this morning while cranking an automobile. Pearson lost the nail of his index finger.

Y. M. C. A. Notes

The various groups of school boys have had a lot of extra periods in the gymnasium this week and seem to enjoy it but no doubt will be glad to get back to school again next week.

The Manchester Y. team of the County "A" group went to New Britain last night and again took the honors in a fine game against the South Church boys. The game was played in the Boys' club building of New Britain, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The Collingens of South Manchester were over today for a game with the Y Tigers but as we go to press the game had not been finished so we do not know whether the Tigers were able to finish their play or not.

Ed Wilson's North End boys had a good workout last night and got down to brass tacks on some passing plays. This is what the basketball should do rather than take all their practice periods in game play with some other team.

Joe's Service station had a good rather one-sided game with the town team from Torrington. The boys did the visitors give Joe's boys any sign that they might walk away with the game. Ray Coleman officiated.

The State Y. M. C. A. Convention is announced for the week end of Dec. 31. This year the convention will be held at Bridgeport and it is expected that Manchester will have several delegates. Charles W. Holman has already signified his intention of going. Anyone interested in the report to the Y. M. C. A. within the next week. John R. Mott the most famous and influential leader of the Y. M. C. A. has had will be one of the main speakers. Dr. Mott has gone to almost every station of the world a great many times in the interest of the Y. M. C. A. work. He is a powerful speaker, a genius for organizing work and a tireless emissary for the best there is in life for men and boys. It is worth a lot of sacrifice to get in touch with this great world leader.

Another speaker of note will be Wilbert W. Smith who has just returned from Cairo, Egypt, after more than 20 years of service there and in India. Mr. Smith is the present Secretary in Poona, India, during the World War days. Poona is the town where Mahatma Gandhi first came into the center of the field of his great influence and where he has been in jail and having his periods of fasting during recent months. Mr. Smith lost one limb a number of years ago but while going on one limb and a crutch he was the single tennis champion of his city in an exciting game against many world champions. How he could reach and cover so much territory was a marvel to all. His service was that of a canon ball type and about all most of his opponents would see on the average service was a dust spot where the ball had been.

The bowling games scheduled to be rolled in the "Y" bowling league next Monday will be bowled to-night as next Monday will be observed as a holiday.

Hamilton and Max Joseph, Inc., of Worcester, Mass., for injuries sustained in an automobile accident which occurred last May 27 on the Tolland Turnpike near the Rockville Fair grounds. Mrs. Fred Carpenter, chairman of committee, pleased at results of sale.

Mrs. Fred Carpenter, chairman of the Christmas Seal committee of the Educational club, is anxious to make a final check-up of the lists of stamps applied to people in Manchester.

"We trust that all who have so far not made returns on the stamps sent them will do so as soon as possible.

The results of the sale are quite gratifying. While the total amount raised will be less than last year, the interest shown. A genuine willingness to help was evident in many cases where people who formerly accepted the full quota of 100 stamps, this year retained half of them, indicating that the work while more carried on by the Educational Club with the funds raised by the sale of stamps, has the confidence of all."

INSANE SOLDIER KILLS 4 PERSONS

Fort Huachuca, Ariz., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The brooding of a negro soldier over his demotion from sergeant to private was admitted today as a possible motive for the negro slaying two Army captains and their wives at this historic post.

Another white officer was wounded last night before the soldier was shot and killed by a private guard of the provost guard. Although the official statement suggests no motive, the investigating board of officers was emphatic in stating "no breach of discipline" was involved.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Turkington desire a correction made in the reported percentage in the duplicate bridge tourney, in yesterday's Herald. Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Quimby are in the lead with 62.07. Mr. and Mrs. Turkington and Mr. and Mrs. John I. Olson stood 57.47 and 57.35 respectively, the error occurring from the use of the figure 8 instead of 6.

Mrs. Wessely, wife of the slain officer, of 604 E. 12th st., Torrington, Conn., was in command of Company M, 20th Infantry. Mrs. Palmer, wife of Captain Palmer, the former Miss Mary Louden of Dedham, Mass. James E. Abernathy, negro private, quartermaster's corps, of Houston, Tex., slayer of the four. First Lieutenant Harvie R. Matthews, 28th Infantry, assigned to Company K command, shot twice through both legs. He is 32 years of age and came from Chapel Hill, Tex. Physicians said he will recover.

Official Statement

The official statement of the board of investigators summoned by the post commander at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., regarding the crimes is shown to the officers at Fort Huachuca, but Abernathy undoubtedly was suffering from temporary insanity. He was employed at the filling station on the military reservation.

"All of the officers concerned were unusually popular with the men."

Col. R. S. Knox, commanding officer of the 28th Infantry Regiment, who has been in command of the post at Nogales, later added:

"Insofar as the regiment is concerned, there is no breach of discipline, but on the other hand, there is great commendation for Corporal Peter Hardley, Company L, member of the provost guard, who pursued and killed the murderer on his own initiative."

Officers at the post unofficially advanced as a possible cause of the negro's madness, his brooding over a recent demotion from the rank of sergeant to private, and a supposed involvement in a fatal automobile accident. He had been released to state courts and was placed on 30 days probation.

Captain Wessely was the first to be killed. He was shot down without warning as he drove into the service station where Abernathy was employed. After killing the captain's home where he apparently burst in upon Mrs. Wessely and killed her.

From the Wessely home he went to the Palmer residence where he apparently killed Captain and Mrs. Palmer without a struggle. The two Palmer children, David, 12, and Emily, 10, Barrett, farm manager at Nogales, Ariz., who accompanied his sister into a closet, slammed the door and ran from the house to notify post headquarters.

After killing Captain and Mrs. Palmer, Abernathy ran to the home of Lieutenant Matthews, and opened fire on him. Matthews, the provost corporal had been attracted by the shooting and, obtaining a rifle, ran toward Matthews' home. He found the officer lying on the ground and the negro firing shots into his face. The corporal then killed Abernathy.

His officers said Corporal Hardley has an enviable record with the regiment. He enlisted from Cambridge, Ala., in 1918, and has four honorable discharges, all because of "exceptionally excellent" work.

Both Captain Palmer and Captain Wessely had served in the World War with the ranking of majors.

TO EXPLAIN STOP WATCH USE ON TRUCK GARDENS

Modern Farm Management Expert To Address Conference At New Haven.

Hartford, Dec. 30.—Efficiency in the various labor operations is one of the most important items running a successful market garden farm. Rollin H. Barrett, farm manager of the Massachusetts Vegetable State College, who has spent considerable time with stop watch and camera on vegetable farms throughout his state, will give illustrated lectures on this subject at the two-day address of the Connecticut Vegetable Growers' Association when it meets in New Haven on January 4 and 5.

Mr. Barrett finds that in eastern Massachusetts from 40 to 50 percent of the average total expenses goes for hired labor. Therefore, any economy in labor which are worked out can be quickly translated into definite financial saving. He finds that there is a large difference in the time required on different farms to perform identical tasks. The difference is due largely, he says, to variation in physical layout; equipment; methods; and technique.

In his talks at New Haven Mr. Barrett will explain some of the obsolete methods, followed from force of habit, which are increasing production costs. He will also show how many of these unnecessary expenses may be eliminated by adopting improved methods of handling the various crops so as to reduce the labor costs.

TO EXPLAIN STOP WATCH USE ON TRUCK GARDENS

Modern Farm Management Expert To Address Conference At New Haven.

Hartford, Dec. 30.—Efficiency in the various labor operations is one of the most important items running a successful market garden farm. Rollin H. Barrett, farm manager of the Massachusetts Vegetable State College, who has spent considerable time with stop watch and camera on vegetable farms throughout his state, will give illustrated lectures on this subject at the two-day address of the Connecticut Vegetable Growers' Association when it meets in New Haven on January 4 and 5.

Mr. Barrett finds that in eastern Massachusetts from 40 to 50 percent of the average total expenses goes for hired labor. Therefore, any economy in labor which are worked out can be quickly translated into definite financial saving. He finds that there is a large difference in the time required on different farms to perform identical tasks. The difference is due largely, he says, to variation in physical layout; equipment; methods; and technique.

In his talks at New Haven Mr. Barrett will explain some of the obsolete methods, followed from force of habit, which are increasing production costs. He will also show how many of these unnecessary expenses may be eliminated by adopting improved methods of handling the various crops so as to reduce the labor costs.

STREET LIGHTS

If, as now appears probable, nearly half the electric street lights in Manchester have to be extinguished in order to bring the cost of the lighting within the appropriation, this is going to be a diurnal looking town.

Manchester has been proud of its street lighting plant and service. It has spent its money liberally on them, and ungrudgingly. It has become accustomed to the comforting luxury of efficient street illumination and has felt that in safety of movement at night and in protection against crime it was getting its money's worth. The townspeople are going to miss very sorely the comfort and sense of security they have been getting out of their abundant street lights.

There is no sense in trying to minimize the hardship of the situation. It is real. If, as now appears, it is unavoidable that there must be such a serious cut in the volume of street illumination, it is going to be necessary for the inhabitants to take measures for self protection beyond any to which they have been accustomed. They will have to be more particular about locking doors and windows; they may feel the necessity of loading the gun and keeping it handy; it may be advisable to avoid being alone and afoot on the streets at night.

In this paramount duty of cutting the municipal garment according to our cloth no single deprivation is going to be more acutely felt than this one of a darkened town. How to reduce the hurt of that deprivation to its least acute degree is the problem of the moment.

It seems to us that heavy reduction in street lighting service would be less felt if the cut were made by reducing the lighted area and retaining in the lighted zone a reasonably adequate service rather than by thinly covering the whole town with widely scattered street lights. There is more than one reason for this.

Within limits easily established this town is thickly settled. Outside those limits it is settled very sparsely. If all lighting were dispensed with in the outlying areas and the expenditure for street lights were devoted to illuminating the thickly settled areas alone the benefit would run to a very great majority of the town's population. The many would be reasonably well served; a small minority would not be served at all.

But the minority stands in no such need of street lighting service as does the majority. There are miles of Manchester streets in the outlying areas that almost never echo a footfall at night. Living at a considerable distance from the center of things, the residents almost invariably drive. Aside from contributing an air of cheeriness to the street lights serve no vital purpose.

Not are the lights nearly so much needed in those areas for protection against marauders. Thieves and footpads, burglars and stickups very seldom operate far from the densely populated areas in any community. Objectives are too difficult to locate, their own movements too difficult to hide.

It is to be hoped, therefore, that instead of deciding to provide a meager and wholly unsatisfactory lighting service for the entire area hitherto served, the Selectmen will decide that the best use of the appropriation will be to apply it to a very slightly reduced service over such an area as can be covered with the funds at command.

in the case. We have no disposition to join in the growing denunciation of the "power interests." Nevertheless the fact remains that the public utilities corporations of all kinds have enjoyed, in this period of depression, relative immunity from its penalties. While they are naturally reluctant to establish precedents that might affect their future profits when prosperity returns, there is a very widespread belief that the continuation of their services possible, then to have the people educate themselves into getting along without those services.

If Manchester has to greatly reduce its street illumination and has to continue to live with that reduction for a number of years—and possibly still further contract its lighting—it will inevitably get into the habit of doing without lights; and it will be a long, hard job to re-establish the community as a first class customer for electrical current. It would seem to be a serious question, then, whether it wouldn't be good business for the lighting company to give this problem one more hard look and see if it can't somehow give the town an extra good deal on street lights.

Because, in any event, the town has simply got to spend less money than it has been spending on street illumination—for the present year at least and probably for two or three years more.

A PREOCCUPATION

The Commission on Child Welfare has made public its program of proposed legislation. Under that program Alfred Emanuel Smith, who might have been President of the United States if he had received some more votes, could not qualify as a probation officer in Manchester, even if he lived here. Neither could John Napes Garner. Under the Commission's proposed law a probation officer in Connecticut would have to be a high school graduate. Neither Al nor John can show a high school diploma.

The program of the Child Welfare Commission is interesting as an example of the way in which bureaucracy develops and expands and spreads, once it gets a start. It is impossible for the born bureaucrat to see the forest for the trees. Like the termsite whose world is compassed within a space of ten square feet he is utterly preoccupied by what goes on within that zone.

Matters of microscopic importance to other people, and of proportionately very little real importance, loom enormously big in his eyes.

It is hardly to be expected that the General Assembly of the State of Connecticut, sure to be in its turn preoccupied with some rather agonizing problems of human welfare, will concern itself very much with the highly preoccupied occupations of the Commission of Child Welfare, which doesn't appear to realize that if there is no general welfare the child is sunk anyhow.

It is respectfully suggested that the program of the Child Welfare Commission be received and placed on file. In ten or twenty years from now, if we are good and lucky, the state of Connecticut may perhaps have the leisure to take this program from the files, examine it, and if there is anything good in it, adopt it. Meantime, there are things to do, work to be done.

JIM-CROWD GROWN

Leopold Stokowski, director of the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra, has taken for rehearsal the first Negro symphony written by a Negro, William Levi Dawson. It is a forty-five minute production and may prove to be one of the greatest if not the greatest musical composition by an American.

In connection with this circumstance a curious fact is stated. Dawson, who is an Alabamian and now director of the Tuskegee choir, a few years ago was high honor graduate of the Horner Institute of Fine Arts at Kansas City, Kan. On the occasion of his graduation the Kansas City Symphony orchestra played one of his compositions.

But the Negro honor graduate was not permitted to sit on the platform with the rest of his class. His diploma was handed by the governor of the state to a proxy, a white man.

Such a proceeding would be extraordinary in almost any state of the Union outside of the deep South, impossible in most of them. But occurring in Kansas it takes on the quality of the most profound irony.

Kansas is the only state in the American sisterhood—it is the only political unit in the world except Liberia—that came into being in utter devotion to championship of the Negro race. The territory of Kansas was born of the spirit of anti-slavery. Its soil was drenched in the blood of years of border warfare fought over no other cause than the Negro. Out there they still hold John Brown and Lane as heroes.

And in that state, of all states, they made the genius of a Negro sit in a Jim-crow gallery to witness his own graduation!

Many queer true stories have come out of Kansas. In some ways this is the queerest of all.

PHILIPPINES

Though the Philippines Independence bill contains elements of obvious unfairness and patently was born of a purely commercial spirit, the people of the country are not liable to manifest, or to feel, any great interest in it. If President Hoover vetoes the measure and his veto is sustained, that will be all right with the country. If he signs it, that will be all right too. As a matter of fact the country, as a whole, takes very little heed of the Philippines at any time. Just now they constitute, so far as a popular opinion goes, a negligible topic.

Besides this the nature of the Philippines bill contributes to the lack of general interest. Independence is not to come about for a long time—a dozen to fifteen years anyhow. Even then it is contingent on various eventualities that may never transpire.

People in these times are not distrusting themselves much about something more or less likely to happen along toward the middle of the century. They are too much taken up with the problems of this afternoon and tomorrow morning and of settlement day at the first of the month.

Meantime the import quotas imposed on the Islands by the bill, to be applied in the interim, show the real purpose of the measure to have been sordid. Most of us will be anxious to forget this question of Philippine independence as quickly as possible.

IN NEW YORK

Wins by an Eyelash
 New York, Dec. 30.—A success story, it seems to me, is worth recording in these times:

Yet the other day, I encountered a charming young woman who has turned an eyelash into a fortune. I refer to those false eyelashes that the gitties are wearing. And in case you haven't heard, coiffes have been made of the eyelashes and eyebrows of Clara Bow, Greta Garbo, Constance Bennett and all the other famed stars of stage and screen!

Offered a Million
 Well, it all began with the stage and an opera singer by the name of Madame Bliska. She is the greatest queen of the world. She was born in South Africa and attended school in odd spots such as Cape Town, Manila, Brussels, New Guinea and the Caroline Islands. A 17 she married an American business man and started on a musical career, studying in Berlin. She sang in Italy and she sang in Germany.

And she had to put on make-up. But she never could find eyelashes to suit her, so she started investigating. After year she got what she wanted and, coming to America with an inheritance from an uncle, decided to turn them out. Presently she was offered a million cash for her device.

But He's a Bust
 The penny restaurants, where the long lines of jobs gather daily to eat for a few cents, are as choked with human interest tales as with human types. Bernard Macfadden is the impresario of these estrifes, of which there are now three.

In one that has its location but a few dozen yards from Broadway is a dishwasher. I fell to talking with him the other day. And from a greasy hip pocket he proudly took a well-worn, thumb and stained letter. It was on White House stationery. It bore the signature of Mr. Herbert Hoover, which of course might have been imitated. However, there it was. The note, as near as I could remember, was something like this:

"We appreciate greatly the sculptured bust you executed for Mr. Hoover and consider it one of the best he has had done...."

A sculptor—who, on paper at least, appeared to have had a great deal of money and was now director of the Tuskegee choir, a few years ago was high honor graduate of the Horner Institute of Fine Arts at Kansas City, Kan. On the occasion of his graduation the Kansas City Symphony orchestra played one of his compositions.

Then there was that minister from the Middle West. He had written a play and had great faith in it. So he gave up his pulpit and came to Broadway with dreams of great success urging him on. The big street is filled with such—preachers, lawyers, bakers, stenographers, clerks and all the rest—believing they will be famous. One day they go out. He got down to $12. Day after day I saw him in the line that gathers on 43rd street. By eating meals which cost but a few cents, he was able to make that $12 stretch over long periods of time—weeks and months.

Then the money ran out. And when it was gone, he got his first nibble. At last report it seemed as though he might have a chance to sell it. At least he has a several hundred dollar advance from a producer.

Meanwhile, he goes on eating for a few cents a day.

The English are much more hard-nosed to adversity than are Americans, says Noel Coward, the English actor-playwright. Maybe Britain's reluctance to pay its war debt to America is just a conscious effort to cheer up or up a bit.

DIETARY, THE BEST TREATMENT FOR PNEUMONIA

The next three months, January, February and March, is the time when pneumonia is at its worst. This disorder has been written about in the oldest medical histories, yet today it still kills thousands, being among the most deadly of diseases. Children from six to fifteen are least likely to have it, while babies or the very old, are most likely to suffer. It is easier to recover from it if you are this, than if you are not.

The great cause of pneumonia is a lowered resistance. Right now you probably have the germs which produce the disorder in your mouth or throat but you will escape the disease as long as your resistance remains high. Those developing pneumonia must first be enervated by over-fatigue, lack of sleep, over-work or mental strain. Or they may become weakened from several colds. Often the resistance is worn down because they keep themselves toxic by eating too much.

Two types of pneumonia must be considered. The first one is called lobar pneumonia and is a sudden, acute infection of the lung, with inflammation of the lung tissue, fever, headache, pain, cough, and a rusty-colored sputum. It is generally caused by bacteria, frequently found among adults, induces a severe toxemia. The second type is called broncho-pneumonia and is often found among children but may be present at any age. This type is a continuation of bronchitis which spreads downward to the lungs from bronchial tubes. It may follow a chest cold or measles or whooping cough.

During the first few days of an attack of pneumonia, no food of any kind should be taken, but if a slight fever still exists, after the first few days of this fasting regimen, it is a good plan to start giving the patient limited quantities of cooked non-starchy vegetables. No highly starchy foods or protein foods should be used until after the fever has entirely disappeared which is generally somewhere between the seventh and ninth day in lobar pneumonia, when the crisis occurs, at which time the patient breaks into perspiration, falls into normal sleep and begins to recover.

The bowels must be kept clean with two or three enemata daily and warm sponge baths should be used every two hours during the day and night. The use of hydrotherapy is often helpful during the height of the fever; the patient being given sweat baths during the first few days and on the following days being given cold sheet packs. However, these treatments may be omitted if it is possible to find a doctor who has the equipment for giving the new treatment for pneumonia with the diathermy. It will mean obtain this treatment for the patient if you can do so. If an electrical treatment which may be taken at home and is given by means of two pads placed at the front and back of the chest with a high-frequency current passing between them. While the skin feels so heat, the machine causes heat to develop within the body, and by this means heat can be thrown deep inside the lungs, exactly where it will do the most good. The use of this type of treatment have been very successful.

The patient should have plenty of fresh air at all times, a screen being placed around the bed to protect him from draughts. It may be advisable to heat the fresh air with an electric heater if it is very cold.

Everybody should know how to prevent pneumonia. The best way to avoid it is to keep the resistance as high as possible—this means using the right diet, including foods containing vitamins A. It also means plenty of outdoor exercise and plenty of sleep. Avoid over-fatigue and keep the mind calm and pleasant will pass you by. These same directions are of value to those who have had one or more attacks of pneumonia and who want to protect themselves from further attacks.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Rhubarb Harmful to Kidneys)
 Question: Mrs. Reva L. writes: "Rhubarb interferes with my kidneys. Do you believe that cooking for two hours would destroy what ever there is in it that is harmful to the kidneys?"
 Answer: Oxalic acid is the element in rhubarb that causes the formation of calcium oxalate crystals in the bladder and kidneys. Rhubarb is not a very good food to use. In some cases poisoning has occurred because of the excessive amount of oxalic acid it contains.

(Now Writes With Right Hand)
 Question: Mavis DeH. writes: "Several years ago my sensitive nose, caused from being left-handed, reached a climax and, after much practicing, I was somewhat rewarded by being able to write with my right hand. I have been told that such a change sometimes causes a mental derangement, and I wonder if I have not been affected to a certain extent. During the first year of the change I was inclined to stutter and now I am bothered by a muscle in my left knee twitching when I relax. I am planning to become a stenographer and would like to know if this change would be likely to prevent me from attaining a high rate of speed?"
 Answer: Psychologists have found it inadvisable for a naturally left-handed person to attempt to become right-handed, as it often leads to forgetfulness, nervous disorders, stuttering, etc., and I generally advise a naturally left-handed person to use his left hand, expressing his ideas in writing. However, the right hand should be used for other ordinary occupations whenever possible.

MARVELOUS MANHATTAN

By WILLIAM GARDNER

New York.—Visitors to Chinatown who stop to think at all about what they see and don't see always ask the same question: "Aren't there any women down here?"

There are very few Chinese women in Chinatown. A liberal estimate of their number is 300, and the chances are 50-50 that the visitor won't get a glimpse of a single one of them in his sightseeing rush.

Most out-of-towners make a night dash through the few blocks that constitute New York's Chinatown. And the women are not to be seen on the narrow, snake-like streets at night. Until recently they were seldom seen on the streets by day.

Modern influences have brought the activities of Chinatown's women into the daylight—but only to a limited extent. As a group they have taken some part in the work to relieve victims of clashes with Japanese troops. As individuals they have come out of their seclusion to do the family marketing hitherto left to their husbands. But it's a rare sight to find a Chinese woman so much as dining in one of the restaurants of the area after nightfall.

It is doubtful that a thousand Chinese women could be counted in all of the city. In the census of 1930 only 8,414 Chinese of both sexes could be accounted for in all New York. The men prevail in about an eight to one ratio.

That part of our little Chinatown which is open to the stranger offers some novelty but small chance for thrills. The novelty is confined to a few shops dealing in curious and strange foods, the bulletin board of a Chinese-language newspaper, Jess' house and Jess' place which, after all, are pretty much like Chinese restaurants uptown.

As for thrills there's always a faint—very faint—possibility that a long wait might break out under the visitor's nose. Nobody can tell when these infrequent bloody parties are coming off, or whether they'll ever come off any more.

Then there are some forbidden doorways that seem to hold some promise of a movie version of Chinatown inside—but, stranger, I'll lay you 100 to 1 that you won't see behind those doors.

The denizens you'll see are content to mind their own affairs and have you mind yours—unless, of course, you want to buy a backscratcher or a package of ten. Leading citizens cherish their respectability and are quick to resent an affront upon it. Not so long ago a motion picture was being made, showing different phases of New York police work, the militia was made of including a raid on a Chinatown dope den, and New York officials had to apologize to Chinatown for suggesting that such things happen.

Redness For Debt?
 All I know about it is what I hear from Kiviette, the costumer, but she is convinced that the war debt situation has done something to the women who pay big money for their clothes.

Some of those who preferred the output of Paris salons are not so much inclined that way since all the uproar about the debts says Kiviette. She finds ritz New York women giving more patronage to American designers.

FRENCH DEFAULT MAY HAVE ITS BRIGHT SIDE

There's a Chance American Resentment Will Give Way To Better Understanding, if Congress' Resolution is Fought.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

Washington.—The French debt default seems to be a culmination in the unrelenting mutual grooch which has characterized relations between this country and France since the war.

The incident has caused considerable sorrow in Congress and in the country and may cause Franco-American relations to become much more strained than before. On the other hand, there is at least a chance that it will represent a turning point toward a better understanding.

Few Americans have been able to become enthusiastic over the general post-war attitude of the French. But some of the points in mitigation have begun to be apparent and our State Department, after failing to understand the French viewpoint for about 10 years, lately has begun to take it into consideration. If there is any official attempt at reprisal or even at being hardballed with France to the extent of leaving her out of future debt negotiations, that will be the work of Congress and not of the Hoover or the Roosevelt administration.

It seems there is a Chamber of Deputies as well as a Congress and that, regarding negotiations, they are equally stiff-necked. The deputies have constituents as do our Congressmen, and their constituents are no more anxious to pay up than the Congressmen's constituents are anxious to forgive the debt.

So, in what is interpreted here as a surge of nationalistic feeling, they begin to bring to realization the longstanding contention of nearly all well-informed persons that America would never collect the war debts. The customary feeling of irritation toward America, the old French feeling that we ought to forgive the debts as our contribution to the war, resentment because Congress so emphatically refused to extend the Hoover moratorium and because France was not originally consulted about it are counted here as among the factors influencing the chamber to override Herriot.

But when the White officers tried to put over such an attack they found it utterly impossible. The spirit had gone from them. Their appeals fell on deaf ears. The last great chance to prevent Communism from seizing on Russia and uniting it and its passed chiefly because Russia itself, unconsciously had decided for a change and was ready to let its new masters do what they liked.

You can't picture of this last crisis in "Lances Down," in collaboration with Helen Woodward, tells how he crept into Moscow after the Polish lancers went to pieces and relates what happened in that city in 1917 and 1918.

His book makes a remarkable study of the revolution. Over and over again it emphasizes the fact that the old regime simply fell apart. It shows you the "intellectuals," indignant and confused, running around in circles as society came crashing in on them. There was no hope in them, no leadership.

The book lacks the blood and thunder drama of its predecessor, "Way of a Razor." That story was like the last thin bugle call of the last charge. "Lances Down" is a better book, more thoughtful, better balanced, more revealing and, I think, more inspiring.

Published by Bobbs-Merrill, "Lances Down" sells for $5.

YEAR OF CHAOS FAILS TO DAUNT CHINA'S LEADERS

Shanghai.—(AP)—As 1933 nears China looks back upon a year of tragedy and turmoil, but finds herself with the gravest of her international and domestic problems unsolved.

Leaders refuse to hazard a guess as to what the New Year will bring to this sick giant of Asia, but all professions are that in the end—meaning years or many—the big world problems now entering in eastern Asia will be settled and, for the great part, according to the dictates of China.

Japan's military occupation of Manchuria and institution of the protectorate of Manchukuo constituted the greatest foreign threat to China since the disastrous Sino-Japanese war in the closing years of the previous century.

In 1932, Manchuria's volunteers continue to hammer the beleaguered officials. The coming year promises to be one of those there even while the League of Nations tries to settle the problem.

In memory, too, since the result which Japan launched upon Shanghai last January. For six weeks an army of more than 50,000, backed by a naval armada, was held at bay by the Chinese nineteenth route army. Eventually there was a truce.

Huge Losses Counted
 What was gained remains a matter of opinion. Japan says she broke the Chinese boycott. China declares she showed the world that her soldiers on defense were equal to those of any other nation.

The principal results were—huge losses of lives and property.

But Shanghai has survived a long way along the omnibus road, and today, under increased traffic, is the source of a stream of revenues for the Nationalist regime.

Homo Politicus Minded
 Domestically the unity of China continues more of a theory than a fact. The powerful militarists of Chiang Kai-shek maintain only a nominal allegiance to Nanjing, the national government.

Small boys about the city, who are now making their own little empires, are as much at the head of the parade as the big boys.

But most important of all will the assurance that Germany isn't going to pay any more reparations to the allies and that the Lausanne agreement was really a recognition of that fact. France would lose heavily by that agreement if she kept paying us.

The State Department in its recent notes reiterated its old wisdom that there's no connection between debts and reparations, but the French leaders shouted as one man that this quaint notion had been officially killed by the Hoover-Laurel conference.

Defaults by Belgium, Poland and Hungary are mentioned here as largely resultant from the willingness of the small nations of France's continental hegemony to fall in line with the French political policy.

France still hasn't got over her soreness over the fact that we consulted England in advance of the Hoover moratorium announcement and didn't consult her. She held the moratorium up for many days. The omission appeared to be a serious American diplomatic blunder at the time.

But France had been carrying a chip on her shoulder before that—ever since we failed to ratify the Versailles treaty, in fact. She always yelled louder than any other nation about the debts, and took years to ratify the Mellon-Berenger funding agreement.

She restricted results of the Washington naval conference to limitations of capital ships, refused to attend the Geneva naval conference and prevented the successful conclusion to the London naval conference. Now she has gone her own sweet way again, although taking only a step more than Britain, who warned us that she was making her last payment under the present agreements. And it can't be denied that her default may have serious, far-reaching effects. If Franco-American negotiations do not soon begin with the aim of making the best of a bad business she may prove to be a great wiser than she seems. If any satisfactory conclusion can be reached diplomats believe they may get nearer to friendly relations with France than we have been having.

MAREK WINDHEIM IS GIVEN ROLE

Young Polish Tenor To Play a Cockney In the Opera "Emperor Jones."

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Marek Windheim, a young Polish tenor is ready to sing the role of Smithers when "The Emperor Jones," has its world premiere at the Metropolitan Opera House the afternoon of January 7.

Windheim has been six years in America, and is now his fifth season of opera here. He sings in six languages. When he learned he had been selected for the role which portrays a treacherous Cockney trader, Windheim sought to play with a cockney in his cast, and sat night after night watching every move and catching every word and inflection of the cockney.

There are two other roles, one assigned to Pearl Beguner, who will be the role of Brutus Jones, stowaway American negro, who made himself Emperor of a tribe of savages in the West Indies. Queer Twists In Day's News

Los Angeles—Joe Biscar was driving his truck and a wheel broke off. The wheel shattered a hydrant and water shot 25 feet into the air. The torrent descended upon the roof of a restaurant. The downpour was such that the drain pipes were unable to carry it off and the sides of the building, a small frame affair, collapsed. No one was hurt.

A taxidermist's shop here has the answer. The Zoo keeper tried first to sell animals, then to give them away, and couldn't. Now the animals, including polar bears, buffaloes and grizzly bears will be slaughtered, mounted by a taxidermist and put in the city museum.

St. Paul—L. E. St. John escaped jail by the skin of his teeth but (he shuddered to think of the prospect) perhaps only to have some minion of the law thrown in in the goal again. It came about thus: The question before the court was: Where did St. John, a salesman, get his liquor.

"I don't like to say," he told the court. "But I want to know," insisted Judge John W. Finehout. "All right, then, I'll tell you the truth," sighed the dejected St. John. "I stay at a Minneapolis hotel and yesterday they had a sheriff's convention there."

U. S. NATURALISTS START ON JOURNEY

To Visit Island in the Pacific Made Famous By Charles Darwin.

Los Angeles, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Just 100 years after Charles Darwin revealed the little string of volcanic Galapagos Isles on the Equator in the Pacific to be a paradise for naturalists, a little band of scientists embarks today on a survey that is expected to result in these now scientifically famous islands being made a sanctuary for the strange forms of animal life existing there.

The expedition is the third and roundup investigation headed and financed by Captain George Allan Hancock, Los Angeles banker and oil operator by vocation and explorer by avocation. The Smithsonian Institution of Washington, the San Diego Zoological Society and the University of Southern California are represented.

Captain Hancock explained one of the objects of completing the survey is to provide a report for the government of Ecuador, which owns them, with recommendations that they be set aside as a permanent sanctuary of scientific research. Used by Pirates. Buccaneers and whalers based in these islands, 730 miles off the coast of Ecuador, long before Darwin visited them on the Beagle 100 years ago. A few years before the Darwin visit, Charles Island, one of the 10 islands of the Galapagos, was made a convict settlement to which political exiles were sent.

WAPPING

The Wapping Farm-Teachers Association furnished candy and oranges for 250 children and distributed through the principal, Mrs. Mae Holden, 204 bags of toys and food to the home of needy children.

Mrs. Katharine Regan spent the week-end with her sister, Miss Anna Regan. Miss Regan is a teacher in the fourth grade in the Stanley school of New Britain. Wapping Grange at its twenty-third meeting of the year observed the "Tuletide Festivities" with Mrs. John Kirkina as the chairman of the committee. After the business meeting, there was a program presented as follows: A roll call, "What I like best about Christmas," a violin and piano duet by Miss Dorothy Drear and Mrs. Grace Kirkina, a reading by Mrs. Kirkina, "The Visitor," a vocal duet by Miss Dorothy Frink and Homer D. Lane, Jr., followed by a grand march when each one received a present. Games were played and cake and coffee were served.

Truman Hills spent the day last Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Bristol and family of Canton. Mrs. Anna Morowski of the Vin-ton district was taken to the Manchester Memorial hospital last Tuesday. There were seventeen members of Wapping who motored to Manchester Grange last Wednesday evening, and Miss Anna Smola received the third and fourth degrees with their class.

STALIN CRITICIZES CAMPBELL'S BOOK

Soviet Leader Claims American Used Imagination In Writing About Russia.

Moscow, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Joseph V. Stalin, in a signed magazine article published today, accused Thomas D. Campbell, Montana's reputed owner of the largest wheat farm in the world, of showing "a real American fancy" in a book he wrote about Russia.

Stalin, head of the Communist Party and "strong man" of Russia, said Campbell, who was a special agricultural adviser to the Soviet government, "invented" details of an interview he had with Stalin in Moscow in 1929.

Stalin's attack on Campbell's book, entitled "Russia, Market or Menace," appeared in Iskra, the official Communist Party newspaper in Moscow in 1929.

Its publication, the article said "would be the most reliable means of establishing facts."

"Mr. Campbell, in his book, mentions the 'word of the interview' with Stalin but he did not consider it necessary to publish it in his book," the article said. "Why? It is not because publication of the record would destroy Campbell's whole plan concerning sensational tales built around the 'interview' with Stalin, which would be a creative advertising for Campbell's book in the eyes of American petty bourgeois?"

A feature of the article was that Stalin referred to himself in the "third person" except in only two instances where he used the word "I." His article was entitled "Mr. Campbell Tells Tales."

The article "A book in the English language written by a well known agricultural man, Mr. Campbell, who has been in the U. S. S. R., under the title 'Russia, Market or Menace,' recently appeared in America," the article said.

"In this book Mr. Campbell exposes incidentally the interview with Stalin which took place in Moscow in January, 1929, (Campbell, who was special agricultural adviser to the Soviet government in the United States during the World War, became adviser for Russia in the operation of 10,000,000 acres in that country in 1929). The interview is remarkable in that each sentence is an invention of the author to create advertising for the book and its author.

"In order to reveal those tales I consider it necessary to make a statement," the article continued.

Mr. Campbell is obviously using his fancy, he says, to create a conversation with Stalin, which started at one o'clock p. m., continued long after night into the dawn. Indeed the conversation lasted no more than two hours, Mr. Campbell's fancy is a real American one.

Called Fabrication

"Mr. Campbell evidently fabricates when he affirmed that Stalin took my hand with his two hands and said 'my name is friends.'

"In reality nothing of the kind took place nor could have taken place, Mr. Campbell could not 'take' Stalin's hands as he was sitting in a chair and I was standing.

"Mr. Campbell fabricates more and more when he ascribes to Stalin words like 'Under Trotsky' and 'I'll tell you a story that really tried to extend Communism all over the world and this was the first reason for the rupture between Trotsky and myself' (Stalin). Communism while I was in the United States wanted to limit its activity in his own country.

"This senseless fabrication which turns facts upside down can be believed only by deserters to the camps of Kautsky, Wells and Mr. Trotsky. (This reference apparently was to Ch. Kautsky, the German Socialist, and H. G. Wells, the British novelist who caused a sensation several years ago by publishing Russian institutions.) In fact, the conversation with Campbell had no relation to the question of Trotsky and Trotsky's name was not mentioned during all the conversation," the article went on.

"Mr. Campbell is inventing more and more x x x M. Campbell, in his book, mentions the record of the interview with Stalin but he did not consider it necessary to publish it in his book. x x x I think the best punishment for the tale-telling Mr. Campbell will be to publish the text of the record of the conversation between Mr. Campbell and Stalin."

The article was signed "J. Stalin" and dated "December 28."

In the published record of the interview, Stalin was quoted as saying to Campbell:

"It is very clear to me that the United States, more than any other country, has reasons to provide business relations with the Soviet Union, not only because the United States is rich in technique and capital, but because in no other country would our business and people have enjoyed such a cordial reception and hospitality.

Stalin then went on into the question of propaganda, denying that the Soviet government or any of its agents could undertake such work of "interference" with internal affairs of another country, adding the Soviet government could not be held responsible for "legal activities" of the American Communist Party in that respect.

FIVE DAY WEEK PROVES A SUCCESS

New York Newspaper Tries Experiment With 800 Un-organized Employees.

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The Daily News reported editorially today on the results of its trial of the five-day week plan among its un-organized employees and concluded: "We think our experience proves the feasibility of the five day week in the newspaper business; and that many other business concerns would find it feasible for them, though perhaps with more paltry reductions necessary than the News found necessary."

The newspaper pointed out that the five-day week trial affected about 800 employees, the remainder about 1,300—being affiliated with unions and having their working hours and conditions arranged for by blanket contract. Among the union employees, the printers have themselves applied the five-day week, each printer donating his sixth working day to an unemployed printer.

The trial, which began three months ago, applied to the editorial, accounting and auditing, advertising and administration departments, and part of the circulation department. The News found during the summer that by staggering work, each employee could take a two-week vacation without extra help being employed. This led to the decision to give the plan a trial at other times of the year.

Works Successfully

"We wondered," the News said today, "whether this scheme could be made to work all year long so that every body could have two consecutive days off a week. We have found that it can."

"A little extra effort is put out for five days by workers in the advertising and accounting departments with a vacation staff maintained on the sixth day. On the editorial side, departmental walls have broken down a bit, so that workers in one department can take up the slack here and there for workers in another."

The News found that key men in various departments were able to participate in the five-day week without appreciable loss of contact with events. This two-day rest, the News found, resulted in a "correspondingly valuable training of understudies—something which any business organization will do."

The relaxation resulting from the two consecutive days off, according to the News' experience, "seems to make most employees fresher and more fertile during the other five days of the year."

"We weren't bawling in for philanthropy when we adopted the five day week," the News said. "We were hoping chiefly for the same efficiency in production with less expenditure of time. We haven't been able to work out a five day week yet for the building department, some additional workers have had to be hired by the circulation department."

"To meet these extra expenses, about a dozen of the highest salaries were reduced somewhat. The rest of the salaries were not affected by this move."

"The result is that the News is now producing as much on the five-day week as it did on the six-day week, and at no higher cost."

MCKEE TO LEAVE POST ON JAN. 1

Question In New York Is Will Scotsman Run For Mayor Next.

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The day that greets the New Year on skyscraper time will herald also the descent of a scholarly young man into the obscurity of a $25,000 job, and all over town they're asking "What will Joseph V. McKee do then?"

The former teacher of Greek, the Scotsman, with hardly a wisecrack in his system, who stepped up from the Aldermanic presidency to the mayoralty when the city James J. Walker stepped out, goes back to his old post the first of the year.

YOUTH steps aside. An older head in the person of John P. O'Brien, Tammany man, goes back to the city hall to lead the city's supporters.

But among the McKee supporters are those who say that their man, who found time in his four months as mayor to tweak the Tiger's tail, will be back in the fight next fall. Several weeks ago he spoke at a luncheon to a group against what he called waste, extravagance, and abuses in the city government, a speech that was interpreted by newspapers as an open break with Tammany.

Fusion Movement

Although he has said nothing of his intentions, the stirrings of a possible "Fusion" movement have been noted, and the slogan "McKee for Mayor in 1933" has been voiced in some quarters.

McKee, a Bronx Democrat, was a political "X" when Walker suddenly resigned. His name soon was shouted in headlines. For one thing, he traveled to City Hall by subway, waving Walker's imported limousine into storage. He cut the mayoral salary from $40,000 to $25,000, and started slashing other people's pay as one means of chipping $100,000,000 off the budget.

He "fired" the commissioner of public markets for not presenting what he called a satisfactory plan to make a $19,000,000 terminal market in the Bronx pay.

Made Enemies

Soon he ran into heavy weather in the board of estimate, where Tammany and its allies predominate. The board, having ideas of its own on how to slash the budget, took his budget making powers away from him. The fight over methods of economy continued, until the city's bankers finally forced a $40,000,000 reduction.

Between times, he found leisure to return a verified answer to a poet who asked that the municipal statues be bathed; to sit atop the free lodging house to see how it tasted; to suggest wholesale remodeling of the machinery of city government.

Politicians say the "write-in" vote he obtained the day O'Brien was elected showed his political potency. Although he gave no sanction to the movement, 232,801 citizens wrote his name on the ballot. In order to vote for him, each person had to carry his own pencil to the polls in, counting the McKee vote. It was found that his name had been spelled 75 ways, from J. V. McGee to Joey X. Magoo.

As president of the Board of Aldermen, McKee has one more year to serve.

TRYING TO SAVE GEMS MAN LOSES HIS LIFE

Hartford Salesman Dashes Into Burning Building Despite Warnings.

Hartford, Dec. 30.—(AP)—A futile effort to save two diamond rings and $900 cash cost the life of Myer Blumenthal, 58, of 248 Smedley avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Unloading the estates of a fire and jeweler Blumenthal, a jewelry salesman, dashed into the burning structure of his boarding house at 8 Windsor street last night, fought his way through flames and smoke to his room on the third floor and collapsed just as a rescue crew reached him.

He was carried to the street and taken to the Hartford hospital but he succumbed at 8:30 this morning.

Wall Street Experts Predict Several Knotty Problems Will Be Solved.

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Commerce, now dragging along at the bottom of historic low price levels, are not without their friends in Wall Street who believe, or hope, that developments in 1933 may reverse the trend.

It is pointed out, however, that any worthwhile recovery of wheat, cotton, sugar, silver, etc., probably will be due to external factors rather than to changes in the statistical position of individual items.

The Standard Realties Company, after a curfew, holds that definite progress may be made next year toward settlement of several knotty problems which now indirectly affect the commodity field.

Among the roughest spots to be ironed out, it is said in the international domain, liquidation of which might tend to lift the pressure on foreign exchange prices. Even with the present low prices in the United States, the slump of various foreign currencies precludes extensive purchases in this country.

In line with the debt barrier, the matter of tariffs is cited as another commodity handicap. Some financial quarters feel there must be a satisfactory adjustment of trade restrictions to promote resuscitation of international commerce.

Some critics bring forward the matter of balancing the national budget as one of the principal commodity restoratives. It is vitally necessary, they argue, that the credit structure be strengthened and confidence in the monetary system maintained.

Finally, the statistical authorities declare there must be wide-scale capital readjustments which would bring some relief from debt created when prices were at materially high levels.

More volences which have been active within historic times are located in the Central American Republic of Salvador than in any other country.

WALL STREET EXPERTS PREDICT SEVERAL KNOTTY PROBLEMS WILL BE SOLVED

WILMINGTON, MASS.—FEDERAL AGENTS seize two 200-gallon stills 600 gallons of alcohol and other liquors, valued at $150,000, in the case of a bootlegging operation in the state division of accounts, reports departmental overruns and revenue deficits total more than $100,000 in the accounts of the city of Revere between Jan. 1, 1932 and Aug. 30, 1932.

GROTON, MASS.—FIRE DESTROYS the Boston and Maine passenger station, damage is estimated at $2,000.

BOSTON—REPRESENTATIVES of the New England Dairy Producers' Association all members of the temporary organization have signed an agreement to prolong the life of the dairies for one month from Jan. 1.

BOSTON—FINANCE COMMISSIONERS charges that a "Comedy of Errors" by the school building Department in the construction of the Dorchester High school for girls cost the city nearly $100,000.

NORWOOD, MASS.—NORWOOD and Dedham police are asked to search for Miss Mary Mitchell, 25, who disappeared after leaving to accept position as a domestic in Dedham.

BURLINGTON, VT.—RUTLAND RAILROAD company brings suit before the Public Service Commission of Vermont against the Burlington Rapid Transit Company for selling tickets "unreasonably low, unjust and unlawful rates."

ROSELAND, MASS.—MRS. FREDALINE Beyle, 59, drowns in Massachusetts lake while attempting to cross the ice with a sled.

CAPE TOWN, UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA, Dec. 30.—(AP)—COMMERCIAL banks today opened South Africa's "non-gold standard" exchange dealings with the quotation 11 pounds (South African) per 100 pounds (British sterling).

Dealings showed much hesitation, some houses considering the rate too high to bring money to South Africa from London.

This was the first quotation since South Africa went off the gold standard and obviously was a relief for the value of South African pounds.

REC FIVE DRUBS WESTERLY; FOG STOPS THE GUARDS

New London Trip Cancelled
By Guards But Rec Goes
Way Down To Westerly
To Score 50-19 Victory;
Oppizzi Leads Scorers.

Both the National Guards and the Recreation Center basketball teams were scheduled to make lengthy trips "out east" last night but owing to the dense fog the Guards decided not to risk the possibility of an accident. They were due to play the Coast Guard Bears at the Fort Trumbull gym in New London. The Rec Five, however, traveled much further and returned home with an impressive 50-19 victory over Battery B of Westerly, R. I.

Great Improvement
Playing for the first time this season on a foreign court, that was spacious, the Rec Five have had a superior brand of basketball and received many comments from the spectators for their wonderful play. The Rec Five used a fast passing attack and at half time there was no stopping them.
Westerly used a zone defense but could not stop the speed and accurate shooting of the winners. Manager Ben Clune used all his men and though the scoring was done by Oppizzi, Kovich and Salmons, the general all around play of the Rec players was very noticeable, at times their speedy passing dazed the fans. Rover and Sullivan played best for the losers.

Play Again Tonight
The Rec Five travels to East Hartford tonight to oppose the All-Burnides who have compiled a record this far that they are proud of. Realizing that they have a tough assignment in the All-Burnides, the Rec Five have hopes of winning their third game in as many days. The team will leave the East Side Rec at 7:30 p. m. and the following men will make the trip: Faulkner, Salmons, Sturgeon, Kovich, Dowd, Campbell, Opizzi and Bycholski.

On Tuesday night Ben Clune has booked the Barrington A. C. of Great Barrington, Mass. This team defeated the Rec Five recently in that city. The Rec Five to attain revenge that night and will have to be at their best as the visitors use a zone defense that is difficult to penetrate.

On the following night, (Wednesday) the Rec Five take another long journey when they oppose the Pawtucket Panthers. The Rec no doubt will establish a new record in local circles for traveling as well as competing in a most extensive schedule of games.

GUARDS TO PLAY NEW LONDON LATER

Manager Jimmy Neill of the National Guards said today that his team will play the Coast Guard Bears in New London later in the season. The game last night was cancelled due to the dense fog which hung over this section of the state.

Neill said he called the Coast Guard manager by telephone at 6 o'clock and told him of the conditions, offering to come down but warning him that such an attempt would be more than an hour late in arriving.

The Coast Guard manager reluctantly agreed on a postponement, rather than the game be cancelled due to the dense fog which hung over this section of the state.

Stalling In Hockey Is Irritating Fans

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The Rangers to go a point ahead of their rivals for the division lead, the Boston Bruins, who were idle last night. Ottawa was left in second place in the Canadian section, five points behind the Toronto Maple Leafs, who defeated the third-place Montreal Maroons 1-0. Two more changes in the standings came as the Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens played a 3-3 tie with most of the action coming in the third period. The Canadiens moved into fourth place in the International Division, a point ahead of the New York Americans while Detroit tied Chicago for third in the American section.

King Clancy's long shot in the first period brought Toronto its victory, and the Maroons their fifth straight defeat. He fired from the blue line and caught goalie Pete Welch in a last moment. The rest of the game was fairly even and unusually clean, only five penalties being called.

Despot jumped into a two goal lead in the first period of the game with the Canadiens. Van and O'Keefe scored but as the game jumped up the puck hit the Canadiens in the second when they managed to score two goals while the Senators were short handed through penalties.

The hard-earned victory enabled the Rangers to go a point ahead of their rivals for the division lead, the Boston Bruins, who were idle last night. Ottawa was left in second place in the Canadian section, five points behind the Toronto Maple Leafs, who defeated the third-place Montreal Maroons 1-0. ENDEES AND DIXIES QUINTETS WINNERS

Former Trims Emeralds 56-47 and Laiter Tops Kaceys 52-30 in W. S. Loop.

The Endees defeated the Emeralds last night in the West Side Basketball League in a free scoring game, 56 to 47. Superior passwork proved too much for the Emeralds who fought all the way. Gribbon, Hewitt, and Anderson played well for the Endees while Boyce and Kerr kept the Emeralds in the running.

In the second game which proved to be more or less a repetition of the first the Dixies smothered the Kaceys, 52 to 30. The Dixies led at the half-way mark, 25 to 16, through the superb shooting of Russel, Brown and Quinn. Mo Adams and Brimley tried hard to bring their team out of the rut but the work of the aforementioned trio of the Dixies was too much for them.

Shav, Hollywood amateur; and Abe Espinoza and John Dawson, Chicago, pro and amateur.

Football's Death Toll Called Disconcerting

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Football, faced with a "disconcerting" number of serious and fatal injuries in 1932, for the second straight year must grapple for a solution of the problem of supplying greater safeguards for the boys who play the game, according to the annual report of the National Rules Committee.

Presented today to the convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association by the committee secretary, William B. Langford, the report appeared as a suspension of the game combine with coaches, officials and other college leaders in their continued efforts to locate remedies for new-found hazards and make the sport as safe as is humanly possible.

The report also decried the continued indiscriminate use of the forward pass to a point where new rules may be needed to check it, dwell on the accomplishments made under the rules changes of 1929, pointed out the lessons learned from the Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens played a 3-3 tie with most of the action coming in the third period. The Canadiens moved into fourth place in the International Division, a point ahead of the New York Americans while Detroit tied Chicago for third in the American section.

MANY SEATS LEFT FOR ROSE BOWL'S BIG GAME MONDAY

Los Angeles, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Southern California's unbeaten football team moved into the final stage of its Rose Tournament campaign today with bold intentions of meeting only disappointment to Pittsburgh Monday.

Coach Howard Jones planned only a casual workout this afternoon as the final important gesture to the game at Pasadena which will mean either the termination of the Trojan winning streak at 19 games or 20 straight triumphs.

With the squad in fine physical condition, his team continued favorites over the Panthers who have not lost 4 games in 14 starts, although two ties mark their grid iron journey since last suffering defeat.

Coach Jones contemplates starting the same team which terminated the regular season with a 15 to 0 victory over Notre Dame.

When elderly AMOS PEABODY falls to his death from the second story balcony of TOM AVERILL'S...

Linda finds the towel with which the attempt was made to strangle her (identified by a smear of sunburn ointment) in Stalander's bathroom...

"I suppose he's right," Tom had listened attentively to Linda's report of her talk with Shaughnessy...

"That is, allowing you forgot to lock the door," Tom said. "Yes, I wish I could remember! And I can't mention it to Shaughnessy because it would show I still have suspected him..."

"In other words, it would have been deliberate—which is exactly what we feel sure it wasn't."

"Possibly. Overconscientiousness as far as the office is concerned. He certainly gave me the impression that he was a man in perfect shape. I'd say it was the habit of mind of a person who always has been systematic and is suddenly faced with the possibility of a break in the routine..."

"There are two things I hold against him still," said Tom slowly. "The way he said 'nothing' when you asked if he'd found anything. Remember, Linda? He admitted to the towel, but he contradicted himself..."

"Yes, and what was the other?" "The way he turned away from the railing when he was straightening it up, according to the nobby's account. That's one of those curious, unnecessary acts that often reveal a lot—and it's also the sort of thing no one could make up..."

"Tom," she made a gesture of weariness and distress. "You're going round and round. You know, Blinky—but I honestly think we're going further ahead each time. Like a spiral staircase, we go round and round but we also go up. The more we go over it the more important little things—like the time element and the way Stalander behaved since that—come out clearly..."

"Smitten with Fleur's millions! I think he's a cold and calculating customer."

"Oh, but, Tom, she is quite a charmer! You have to admit that!" "I don't see it," he asserted stoutly. "You've got twice the looks and can put it all over her for style and — well, all-round sportiness. She's all for herself and doesn't even know how to hide it..."

"I wonder if you'd mind waiting a moment — ever until after dinner?" "Tom's smile was his most winning and the other, after coughing rather impatiently, seemed willing to concede the point. "I want to run that car out from the garage so that it will be ready when DeVos comes down. You can explain, Blinks — I'll be right back..."

"Through the screen door, she saw Tom disappear into the garage and she could not help noticing with a throbbing of worry..."

"The firm, clear, self-important voice went on and on but every drop of blood in Linda's body seemed arrested in its course through her veins. In her ears the beating of her heart seemed deafening, deafening. "Tom — Tom!" She did not know whether she had spoken aloud or mutely called out to him."

Los Angeles, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The torso of a man, who apparently had recently undergone an abdominal operation by skilled surgeons, was found early today in an incinerator at the city dump. A leg and arm were found near the torso. There were no marks of identification...

Chairman Cochran Announces That Even Republicans Are Against It.

Disapproval of Mr. Hoover's program by either House would block the House leaders are confident their branch will act and leave the way clear to give President-elect Roosevelt sweeping powers for regrouping...

Winter Salad Many people are apt to neglect salads in winter, yet it is just as easy to have salads in winter as any time. "Macedoine Salad" is made with 1 small cooked cauliflower 1 cup cooked peas 1 cup cooked carrots, cut in cubes 1 green pepper, chopped Separate cauliflower in small pieces. Mix well each vegetable separately in French Dressing and let stand in refrigerator until chilled. Arrange vegetables on crisp lettuce leaves in separate nests and sprinkle with chopped green pepper. Serve with French Dressing. Other cold vegetables, such as string beans, lima beans or beets, may be combined to make a delicious salad and, if very carefully arranged, will be attractive.

TYPHOID CARRIER CLUE
FINALLY UNTANGLED

Takes Decade of Tracking Down To Locate Person Who Infected 10 Others.

Instead of a "Typhoid Mary," Connecticut has its "Typhoid Dora"; it took nine years to trace her down, during which time she infected ten or a dozen others with typhoid; and assistance of the police was necessary before it could be definitely proved that she was a carrier of typhoid germs. The story is told in the monthly bulletin of the State Department of Health which was distributed today.

Late this fall, Madam Dora after a prolonged search which, because of unusual circumstances proved exceptionally baffling, was finally identified and placed under regulations which will prevent her from spreading the disease further among her friends and neighbors. In the fall of 1923, there was an outbreak of milk-borne typhoid fever in New Haven. Enforced pasteurization of the milk from the particular supply to which the infection had been traced put a swift end to the epidemic, but the problem remained of finding the source of original infection of the milk. Solving the problem sent the State Department of Health over a trail of clues that would have confused even the famous Philo Vance of fiction.

The farmer who furnished the milk had two herds, one attended by his own family and employees and the other handled on another part of the land by a tenant farmer, his wife and children. Blood tests of all concerned were taken. Those of members of the tenant farmer's family gave very slight typhoid reactions. Other specimens examined were negative except one which showed the tenant farmer to be a paratyphoid carrier, whereas all of the cases in the outbreak with one exception had been typhoid. This served to confuse things a bit more.

Most of the evidence pointed to the tenant farmer's family, however, and this was given substantial support when the tenant against orders continued to supply milk to some neighbors and three other cases of typhoid quickly resulted among those served. Mr. Farmer was moved to another part of the town and given work in a stone quarry since it was believed that he could hardly spread infection from handling crushed stone. A few years later, typhoid broke out in the neighborhood and investigation disclosed that he had purchased a cow and was selling the surplus milk supply to neighbors.

One of the cases developed about four weeks after the farmer had been taken to the hospital after an injury. The incubation period was thus rather long for the infection to have come from him. It seemed to throw suspicion from him to his wife, but still there was nothing definite. The family was prohibited in no uncertain terms from selling milk. But typhoid continued to develop in the neighborhood, three cases occurring this fall. Those infected were children who had visited the family and had partaken of food and milk at their home. Still there was no certainty that there was a carrier in the family.

Arrangements were made to have a visiting nurse call on the family periodically to collect specimens for laboratory examinations. A few days later, the local health officer called the department, stating that the family refused to furnish the specimens, refused to give information or to co-operate in any way in the search.

At this point, the department called for the assistance of the State police. The presence of a uniformed officer had an immediate effect. The woman, freed to be taken to the New Haven hospital and put under quarantine. Here after a series of tests she was definitely identified as a typhoid carrier.

Rigid restrictions have been placed upon her activities and the public health is once again protected.

PRINCE MIKE TO SPEND HOLIDAY ON ISLAND

International Faker To Be Given a Hearing By Federal Agents Tuesday.

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Harry F. Gerguson, international Jack-in-the-box who pops up every now and then in this country and that to the embarrassment of officials, is to spend the New Year week-end on Ellis Island, which is to some a gateway to America and to others an impassable barrier. Gerguson, or "Prince Michael Romanoff," as he often calls himself, turned up here again last week after being deported earlier in the year to France, where he lingered for a time in jail. Deportation was a simple matter that time because "Prince Mike" arrived as a stow-away on the Ile de France and so the French line could be given the job of taking him away again. But this time immigration officials aren't sure just how he got in and so they don't know just who is responsible for taking him out.

There were reports he came in on the Europa, as a stowaway, but the line disclaims any knowledge of having transported him. A hearing into his case was begun yesterday but was postponed pending further investigation until tomorrow. Today Ellis Island officials said it was very doubtful that the hearing would be resumed before Tuesday. In the meantime they will question several of the Europa's passengers who are reported to have recognized among the passengers the bogus prince who claims, when he is cornered, that he was born in the Bronx and therefore cannot be deported.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

The year 1932 is history. And what a year! We all hope never to experience another year of depression like 1932.

1933 holds for us many unseen things. Just what the year delivers to us will depend to a great extent upon what we put into our efforts. Business is slowly and steadily improving. Let's all look up, lift up and have faith and confidence—1933 is bound to be a good year for all of us if we only devote ourselves to right living, clear thinking, hard work and thrift.

Customer—I hear my son William has owed you for a suit for three years.
Tailor—Yes, sir; have you called to settle the account?
Customer—No, I'd like a suit myself on the same terms.

OF COURSE WOMEN HAVE GREATER ENDURANCE. WHO EVER SAW A MAN WHO COULD STAND AT A TELEPHONE AND TALK FOR AN HOUR!

The photographer was taking a picture of a father and his college-boy son during the Christmas holidays. The photographer suggested that the boy stand with his hand on his father's shoulder. The father suggested: "More appropriate if he stood with his hand in my pocket."

Orator—The man who gives in when he is wrong is a wise man, but the man who gives in when he is right.
Weak Voice in Audience—Married!

Club Wag—I know how to settle this unemployment problem. If we put all the men of the world on one island, and all the women on another, we'd have everybody busy in no time.

Listener—Well, what would they be doing?
Club Wag—Why, boat-building.

Farewell 1932

The old year, waning, near its close
Prompts us a greeting to compose.
And ere it pass, we hasten to send Expression of esteem, Good Friend.
If type were large enough, or high,
We'd spread our greeting 'cross the sky.

The present year, while not our best
Has shown that you have stood the test.
If you have had good health and peace,
Give thanks for joys that never cease.
Next year we hope that you will see Unlimited prosperity.

There is only one thing sillier looking than a man smoking a pipe, and that's a woman smoking a pipe. . . It would be easier to borrow money at the bank if you wasn't afraid they'd ask you what it was for. . . Nothing can be thinner than some excuses. But nothing can look thinner than some of the things in silk hostery. "I've tried to see you time and time again" may mean not at all. . . The chap who tries to interest you in a get rich scheme never carries any samples around. . . One thing is certain, the radio speaker. He can't hear the applause—if any. . . Every now and then a fountain pen lives up to its name by scattering ink all over your shirt front. . . Some people are kept so busy acquiring knowledge that they never have time to use any of it. . .

Our Little Willie says he would rather have a cow than a saxophone, because, although they both make the same noise, a cow gives milk.

Edith—He is the most innocent boob I ever met.

Dorothy—Yes, he probably thinks slippers are bedroom slippers and that slippers are banana peels.

SOME TAKE A SEA VOYAGE ON A DOCTOR'S ADVICE; OTHERS ON A LAWYER'S.

She—Henry, dear, we have been going together now for more than ten years. Don't you think we ought to get married?
He—Yes, you're right—but who'll have us?

Man About Town (rushing out of an employment agency)—What an idiotic place. I asked them for work and they gave it to me.

SELLING THE CAUSE

"Good morning, madam. I represent the Society for the Suppression of Profanity. It is our object to take the strong language right out of your life. We—"
"Come here, father. Here's a man who wants to buy our old car."—The Humorist.

FACE TO FACE

"If I see anything funny, I simply can't keep a straight face."

"I say, you must find shaving a rather ticklish business."—All for Allah.
