TOWNS BOMBED BY JAP PLANES; BATTLE IS ON

Hostilities Resumed in North- ern China; Chinese News- papers Criticize Lake- warm Attitude of Leaders.

(By ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Hostilities were reported renewed today between Chinese and Japanese troops drawn up on opposite shores of a river between the northwestern Chinese cities of Shanhaiwan and Chinwangtao.

Foreign observers in the area, however, said the Japanese gave no indication of starting an advance farther along the railroad which leads to Tientsin and Peiping.

A Shanghai dispatch said an exchange of rifle fire began between the opposing lines and from Peiping came word that Japanese planes were bombing villages north of Shanhaiwan.

This is the direction the Japanese would take for a campaign into Jehol, which has long been predicted by Chinese and threatened by Japanese military leaders. They came into Shanhaiwan this week along the Manchurian coast from the northwest. The easiest course into Jehol, however, is up the Lwan river, 60 miles from Shanhaiwan by the railroad.

Chinese officials at Nanking said peace negotiations were off and that Japanese claims they would "localize" the conflict at Shanhaiwan were a "smokescreen" for further moves.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, ousted Chinese commander-in-chief, blamed the 1931 Boxer war, permitting troops of Japan to enter world powers in North China, for his defeat.

Chinese newspapers criticized "lukewarm" Chinese military leaders and lauded the "Shanhaiwan heroes."

FIGURING IS RENEWED
Shanghai, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Two days of fighting on the Shanhaiwan front was broken today by a renewal of hostilities between Japanese and Chinese forces.

Rifle fire broke out on the battle line extending from one mile west of Shanhaiwan to near the limits of the city of Chinwangtao, the seaport which is several miles southwest of Shanhaiwan. The opposing armies faced each other from opposite banks of the Tashih river.

Driven from the Walled City of Shanhaiwan, China's northern railway exit, the Chinese were reported bringing up reinforcements from Tientsin on the railroad which passes through Chinwangtao. Japanese warships were gathering in the Chingwangtao harbor and today additional Japanese troops and ammunition were reported having been brought into Shanhaiwan from Manchuria.

Further operations on the scale of the terrific three-day bombardment and street battle for possession of Shanhaiwan early this week were believed indicated.

FATHER, CHILDREN SLAIN BY RELATIVE

Brothers Quarrel Over Living In Same House and the Tragedy Results.

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Three members of the Donaldson family—Silas, the father, and a son and daughter—were shot and killed last night by Charles Donaldson, 48, brother of Silas and uncle of the children.

Police said that Charles Donaldson, who had been drinking, shot George, 18, and Mary, 14, after breaking down the door to their bedroom, and killed his brother during a fierce struggle on a stairway and in the living room of their home.

Mrs. Agnes Donaldson, the mother of six children, told police that her brother-in-law had lived with them, and there recently had been quarrels over all living in the same house.

DEMOCRATS ARE AGREED ON FINANCIAL PROGRAM

Leaders Say There Will Be No Extra Session of the New Congress and the Budget Will Be Balanced.

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A Democratic program to balance the National Budget now without the necessity of an extra session of the new Congress this spring has been evolved here at a conference between President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt and Congressional leaders.

The plan calls for an increase in income taxes; enactment of the proposed levy on 5.5 percent beer; continuation of the gasoline tax and a $100,000,000 slash in appropriations below the Hoover budget.

The new tax plan provides for a boost in the normal income tax rates from 4 percent on the first $4,000 net income and 8 percent on in-

PREDICT SENATE WILL O. K. REPEAL

Former Dry Members Express Their Willingness To Vote For the Measure.

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Forecasts of early Senate approval of a resolution to repeal the Eighteenth amendment came from leaders today as a sharp division of opinion toward it developed among friends of prohibition.

Senator McNary, assistant Republican leader, predicted that the measure, approved by a Senate judiciary subcommittee yesterday, would pass the Senate at this session of Congress. His view was echoed by others. The full committee will consider the proposal Monday and must approve it before it reaches the Senate.

The split among former leading prohibition supporters in that branch was emphasized by a statement from Senator Fess, (R., Ind.), a Republican, indicating he would vote for the resolution.

"That does not differ in the main from the Republican position which I shall support," Fess said.

Others who have indicated they would vote for the resolution in its present form include Senators Hastings (R., Del.), and Ashurst (D., Ariz.).

Without dissent
On the other hand, two prominent defenders of prohibition—Senators Shugart (D., Tex.), and Borah (R., Idaho)—are withholding judgment. The only outright declaration of opposition has come from Senator Robinson, Indiana Republican.

The House a month ago defeated by six votes a resolution for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment which was reported to be withholding judgment on the measure approved yesterday.

The proposal as it came from the subcommittee calls for repeal through submission to State Legislatures of a new amendment which would protect dry states and permit Congress to legislate against the saloon.

CAPITAL RECALLS COOLIDGE STORIES

Intimates Say He Was Not "The Silent Man" When Among Friends.

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—There was an almost endless stream of Calvin Coolidge lore in the capital with the news of his death. All who knew him unhesitatingly "threw themselves" of little humorous tales of wit and warmth of heart possessed by the man who was famed for his silence and undemonstrative exterior.

Some told their anecdotes with tears in their eyes, others with a whimsical smile as they recalled some frank mood, or a well-timed joke by the former President. But few who knew him could resist the urge to tell a story.

The whimsical stories were in the majority. Edward T. Clark, his secretary for eight years, pronounced the Coolidge silence a myth.

"He could talk, always, with the utmost freedom, to those in whom he had confidence," Clark said.

Mrs. Harry S. New, wife of Coolidge's postmaster, general attested to the depth of his emotions.

Was Warm-Hearted
"I don't think people knew how really warm hearted he was, and what understanding he had," she said. "I remember the funeral services for his boy in Northampton. The President and Mrs. Coolidge sat and listened with faces that did not show their grief. But just at the end, I saw him reach toward her hand. He took it softly in his and held it for a moment. That one gesture told more than words or tears."

Others, too, resident in his lifetime to speak of personal tributes, hurried forth with their own testimony of his deep feeling. But above all ran those curious, economically worded outbursts of his innate humor.

Many newspapermen recalled his answer when some query asked he was asked what he thought of the current attacks on the private life of George Washington. He turned from his desk, walked to a window which looked upon the tall white shaft of the south of the White House. He smiled as he turned and said: "Well, I see the monument's still there."

The White House staff attested to the many pranks he would play on those about him, usually without even cracking a smile to betray the amusement he got out of their reactions.

"They had to move an alarm button once to keep him from stepping from his office on days when nothing pressed him, ringing the alarm that rushed all guards to their posts and then disappearing before they could find him at it."

The tales ran on and on, some proven fact, some on the borderland of fiction or accident, but all seemingly without end.

Hartford, Jan. 6.—(AP)—War was declared today on married women who are keeping their jobs at the expense of depriving unemployed men of their jobs.

Miss Wylie, 24, of 245 Buckingham street, Miss Wylie has started a movement here, perhaps the first of its kind in the country, which she hopes will bring sufficient pressure on employers through public opinion to take some action for the re-employment of the jobless single girls.

Her purpose is to organize these girls and women so that they may be in a position to present their demands as a unit. At present, she said, these girls are organized and have nobody to protect their interests.

Miss Wylie, a native of this city, and a graduate of local grammar and high schools, went among the unemployed trying to find jobs for some of them.

COOLIDGE RITES TOMORROW; PRESIDENT, NATION'S LEADERS TO ATTEND SIMPLE SERVICES

Epigrams by Coolidge Culled from Speeches

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—There would put a little more emphasis upon the observance of the law than they do upon its enforcement.

"I am a Republican, but I cannot on that account shield any one because he is a Republican. I am a Republican, but I cannot on that account prosecute anyone because he is a Democrat."

"Promises and good intentions are not enough. We cannot afford rash experiments."

"I am all through looking for ideal candidates for public office. They don't exist. We have to make the best of what we have, for it is only in that way that we are able to make any progress."

"The resources of our country are sufficient if we use them to help each other."

"There is only one form of political strategy in which I have any confidence, and that is to try to do the right thing."

"I do not choose to run."

"We draw our Presidents from the people. It is a wholesome thing for them to return to the people. I came from them. I wish to be one of them."

COOLIDGE DIED ALONE; LOVED SECLUSION EVER

Preferred Fishing and Hunt- ing Without Companions; Details of Happenings On His Last Day.

By THOMAS HORGAN, JR.
Northampton, Mass., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Calvin Coolidge, thirtieth president of the union, is dead.

He died alone. At "The Beeches," the home in which he sought seclusion, that tree-clad dwelling to which he repaired when the cares of a nation fell from his shoulders, the former President succumbed to a fatal heart attack.

But he had whipped elder fringed Vermont streams—alone, and quenched to the plunge of a speckled trout.

He had heard, alone, the heart-stopping whirr of the partridge as it left its tangled covert, when frosted autumn leaves called him to the hunting grounds of his ancestors.

So Calvin Coolidge was found, alone in his dressing room. No one saw the spirit depart yesterday, after he had returned from his law office. His secretary waited below, until he should be dismissed for lunch. Grace his wife found him, as she returned home from family marketing.

Earlier in the day Harry Ross, the secretary, had been called upon by the former president to consider a jig-saw puzzle, a New Year's gift.

Mrs. Coolidge had been away, to town, when the former President died. He had asked her if she cared to use the car, relics of the days they spent in Washington.

"It is too nice a day, I'd rather walk," she told him.

And so, home to that rugged land of his ancestors, all that was mortal of Calvin Coolidge will thread the hills and valleys that separate Massachusetts, a state that honored him before the nation, to Plymouth, Vermont, in a motor cortege Saturday, there to lie with his father, John, who swore him in by the light of an oil-lamp as the nation's Chief Executive many years ago.

TO HOLD BURIAL IN PLYMOUTH, VT.

Body of Former President To Lie In State For One Hour At Congregational Church In Northampton — Mem- bers of Cabinet, Congressmen, Senators Start At Mid- night Tonight From Capital On Special Train — Mes- sages From All Over the World, Offering Sympathy, Arrive For Mrs. Coolidge—Plan Brief Services At the Church.

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 6.—(AP)—The body of Calvin Coolidge rested today in his home, The Beeches, as plans for his funeral tomorrow were completed.

The body will lie in state for one hour in the Jonathan Edwards Congregational church tomorrow morning. Friends, from world famous dignitaries to laborers, will be given this opportunity to pay their final respects to the man who rose from a lawyer in a small city to the Presidency.

President Hoover, members of his Cabinet, Congressmen and Senators will file past the bier. Behind them will come men like James Lacey, the aged cobbler who was one of the former President's closest friends, and George Dragon, the barber Mr. Coolidge frequented.

Delegations from the National capital and from the New England and neighboring states will be present to hear a 30-year-old minister in his first pastorate intone the prayers for the dead.

Homelike in Home
With her only surviving son, John by her side, Mrs. Coolidge remained in the home where at noon yesterday she had found her husband lying dead on the floor of his dressing room.

Mrs. Coolidge's death was sudden and wholly unexpected and that it should be her fate to find his body was a severe shock to Mrs. Coolidge, assured friends that she was "bearing up very well."

She found consolation in the visits of scores of neighbors in the hundreds of messages of condolence that reached the Coolidge home and in the steady presence of her clan, Mrs. R. B. Hill, who has remained by her side since Mr. Coolidge's death.

Hardly a man or woman who had served with Mr. Coolidge from his early days in the Massachusetts Legislature to the time he was Chief Executive of the Nation failed to extend sympathy to Mrs. Coolidge.

Flood of Messages
Messages came from President Machado of Cuba, Charles G. Dawes, Andrew W. Mellon, Walter Edge, ambassador to France, Joseph Drew, ambassador to Tokyo; Hugh Gibson, ambassador to Belgium; Eltham Root, Sir Eame Howard of England and from the high and the low in the executive life of most of the states of the union.

Most of the expressions were simple and sincere, as simple and as sincere as the expressions of Mr. Coolidge himself during his public life, and Lucy, the now feeble cobbler who poured philosophy and wisdom into the ears of a young lawyer destined to be a President, summed all of them up in his simple statement: "I have lost a great friend."

By dawn tomorrow the friends of Calvin Coolidge will have assembled in this small city in northwestern Massachusetts. At 8 o'clock Mr. Coolidge's body will leave his home at "The Beeches" for the church.

A guard of honor from the National Guard will stand by the bier while it lies in state. At 10:30 o'clock the services will begin. They will be brief and simple with Rev. Albert J. Fenner, the young cleric who in past months was often pleased by the former President's official on his sermons, officiating.

Six stout policemen will represent official Northampton at the service. They will bear the coffin in and out of the church and place it in the automobile hearse which will bear it to Plymouth, Vt., where Mr. Coolidge will be laid to rest beside his father and son.

A motor cortege will accompany the body to Plymouth. Mrs. Coolidge will be accompanied in her car by her son John, and his wife, the former Florence Trumbull, daughter of a former governor of Connecticut.

At Plymouth
At Plymouth the cortege will be met by the residents of the Fruit Corners where Calvin Coolidge was born and spent his boyhood and

A real "find" for the housewife is The Home Bakery, 34 Church street. Their home-made breads and pastries add zest to any meal... they're delicious. Phone 3288.

Parisian Ina
Ina Claire, one of the most Parisian of actresses... in spite of the fact that she was born in Washington, D. C., she has always commanded attention. At the Guild Theater in New York, she appeared in a red velvet coat and a shirred red velvet hat with a gull pointing forward. This outfit went with an off-white chiffon evening gown and jacket trimmed with sable.

Today it is a vital matter to get value for your money. Careful spenders find that they get good value when they use the services of the New Model Laundry. Fresh, dependable, careful in handling, relieving the housewife of her hardest job for a small sum.

Keeping Their Shape
Woolen dresses need to be pressed every few days, if not cleaned. Even inexpensive little woolens keep their shape much better if pressed often. Don't use a wet cloth over a woolen when pressing, but spread a dry cloth on and sprinkle it lightly just before you put the hot iron on.

Mrs. Harriet Skewes has moved her dressmaking business to 60 Hanlin street. Dial 3496.

Magic
This is the time when people think of brightening up their winter wardrobe. So why not freshen up the house too? A bright new pillow in the living room, newly laundered curtains, a new print on the bedroom walls, and some gay dishes for the breakfast set will make a lot of difference these winter months.

CARABINO NOT BLAMED IN MERZ BOY'S DEATH

Deputy Coroner Schofield Relieves Auto Driver of All Responsibility In Accident.

Deputy Coroner Harrison D. Schofield of Hartford County announced yesterday that he does not find John J. Carabino of 12 Glenwood street in any way responsible for the fatal accident which caused the death of Edmund Merz, 12 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Merz of 145 North Main street, who was struck on Main street while riding a bicycle December 6.

The coroner's finding says that the boy's death was not caused by any criminal act, omission or carelessness on the part of Carabino or any other person. Carabino is technically under arrest on a manslaughter charge but this is expected to be nolle by Prosecuting Attorney Charles R. Hathaway. Young Merz was riding in a north-easterly direction and he was struck by the automobile when he (Merz) suddenly swerved to the left to talk to someone walking along the sidewalk.

The big population of the United States has fallen three per cent. in the last year, says the Department of Agriculture. We hadn't noticed any reduction in the number of road hogs.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 6.

CALVIN COOLIDGE

The utterly unexpected death of Calvin Coolidge, coming many years before it was to have been anticipated by the natural course of events, has dealt the country a blow peculiarly shocking as well as of great poignancy. This taciturn, reserved New Englander had always seemed to possess something of the physically enduring quality of the rocks of his native state. During all his public life he never appeared to be ill or even wearied. His was the spare, rugged, long-living type, never qualified by self-indulgence nor susceptible of attrition. Of all Americans of his years in the public eye it is probable that Calvin Coolidge would have been picked by a great majority of his countrymen as the one least likely to soon have the finger of the Reaper laid upon him.

But following the first stunning impact of the sad news from Northampton comes realization of the degree to which this sudden passing impinges upon the nation's affections. For Calvin Coolidge, with all his tight-lipped caution, his self-watchfulness, his restraint in friendship and his somewhat notorious thriftiness, was beloved of the common people of this land as, after all, few of our Presidents have been.

There was a little—just a little—of the Lincoln about him. The clean, honest perfume of the soil. The simplicity of his daily life. The remoteness from sophistication. The impeccable personal code by which he managed his relationship to men and affairs. The capacity for self-control. A hint of the whimsically dry humor of the cracker-box and the store stove.

And there was nothing at all about him that was not essentially American. He was the kind of President, the kind of man, that the ordinary man and woman in this country can understand. And because they could understand him the people loved him—not with adoration but with a deep and friendly affection. He was never, to them, anything but "just folks."

Shrewd, analytical, a born reader of the other fellow's mind, Coolidge was terribly hard to fool. And he didn't try to fool the other fellow. The other fellow fooled himself sometimes, why that wasn't Calvin's fault any more than it was the fault of his grandfather if the other fellow didn't get too much the best of horse trade. If Calvin—this country will never have come calling him Calvin or even Cal—had his limitations; if his speeches sometimes seemed to have come bodily out of an encyclopedia and their delivery to bore him to death; if his state papers were marked by no stellar achievements in rhetoric, the country didn't mind that. They preferred a president with a reputation for common sense and profound honesty to some fascinating individual into whose heart they could not see.

Calvin Coolidge was not a genius. But he was an outstanding American of a type far too uncommon in our public life—wise and truthful and free from the taint of self-deception. Also he was tremendously the man for his hour.

The nation's sorrow at his passing is very real.

A MONTH'S NAME

January is proverbially a tough month for business. This one, if no worse than was to have been expected, is certainly nothing to throw parties for; yet at worst it is only one of a long string of Januarys, in which the business world has experienced that sunk feeling.

We are not particularly superstitious; but if Congress or anybody else were to seriously propose changing the name of the first month of the year we should probably go pretty slow about opposing the idea. We have never been able to get away from a feeling that names are important; that they have some mysterious influence or other on the people who bear them. We have known too many Blodgetts who were physicians, and not enough Blodgetts who were anything else, not to be convinced, for example, that your name has something to do with your destiny.

And if names of people affect their lives, why not the names of things—even of months?

The trouble with January is that it is hesitant. It doesn't seem to be able to make up its mind. It takes a look ahead and initiates a forward step only to pull its foot back and look over its shoulder. It seems and haws and fiddle-faddles and marks time—and the first thing you know it is February and the month's bills are due and it hasn't got anywhere. That's the usual January performance, even in good times.

And why not? It was named for the Roman god Janus. And Janus had two faces. One looked forward and the other back. That was supposed to be an advantage in his job as doorkeeper of the pagan heaven, as he could see into the past and the future at the same time. But it is to be submitted that it didn't help him particularly in his other assignment as presiding genius of the beginnings of all enterprises. It was no use to anybody or anything that seemed to be on its way. Perhaps that's why Old Rome wound up by going around in circles till it flattened out.

Perhaps if we got rid of the first month's heritage of seeing too many things at once, and of being held static by back-pull and forward pull that neutralizes each other, we might get a better start. Perhaps Letsgo would fill the bill as a name and get the month off its habitual dead center.

FUT IT ANOTHER WAY

The finding of the coroner's office in the death of young Edward Mera of Manchester, fatally injured by an automobile while riding a bicycle, should command the attention of parents. The finding is to the effect that neither the driver of the automobile nor any other person than the unfortunate victim should be held responsible for the tragedy.

It is difficult to make boys and girls realize the extent of their responsibilities when, as cyclists, they use the public highway. It should not, however, be altogether impossible. Youth is almost always self-confident, cock-sure of its ability to take care of itself. Perhaps the most difficult way of inducing boys and girls to exercise proper precaution against accident while cycling is by accentuating the danger to themselves. Secretly they are quite sure that their own skill and alertness will preserve them from harm.

But there is another avenue of approach. Would it not be more effective, perhaps, for parents to point out to their children the danger they create for others by erratic or unconventional operation of their machines on the roads?

That danger is very real. Many accidents to automobiles, in which no bicycle or its rider becomes physically involved, are the result of automobile movements forced upon their drivers by the improper intrusion of some cyclist into a highway situation—the inconsiderate, heedless action of some boy or girl on a wheel.

If parents—and school teachers—would frequently stress the necessity of the boys and girls to guard against making trouble for motorists it is possible that the young riders would less frequently make trouble—and cause tragedy—for themselves.

SHINING DICKIE-BYRD

In the United States Senate on Wednesday Senator Swanson of Virginia, in the best style of old-fashioned Southern oratory, proclaimed the grandeur of soul, the beauty of character and the unparalleled patriotism and valor of that great fellow-Virginian, Richard Evelyn Byrd, who, with the dash of youth still upon his patrician features, is a resident near Admiral of the United States navy at $4,600 per annum, less the general 8 per cent out. We knew that sooner or later some Congressional Demagogue would paste the adjective "peerless" on the classic brow of Dickie Byrd; Swanson proved to be the pastor.

It was an impressive speech that the Virginia senator made. Any one, reading it, whether he has been particularly favorably inclined toward the rear admiral or not, must feel his veins glow at the privilege of living in the same fair land with such a shining hero as the transcendent Dickie. However, if the Swanson passage should some day be carved in hundred foot letters on some Old Dominion mountain side, perhaps it would be as well to include a foot note explaining that Admiral Byrd did not, exactly, invent the airplane as well as fly to both poles in one; otherwise there might be some slight confusion in the minds of generations yet unborn.

Nevertheless we remain of the opinion, now seemingly shared by quite a number of other persons, that the scintillating Dickie has feathered his own nest just a feather too snugly to be an ideal head of an organization devoted, as the National Economy League so obviously is, to suppressing the greed of the veteran organizations while very carefully laying off practically every other variety of greed—of which the country is suffering from plenty.

Three retirements from the United States navy, each at a smacking advance in retirement pay, is a pretty fair record in self preservation for a man still in his early forties. The splendid admiral, as an apostle of governmental economy, is a serious and injurious misfit.

CHAIN STORE COLLEGES

The proposal to start a Hartford Branch of the Boston University School of Business Administration possibly initiates the idea of the extension of the chain store system to the field of education. What an opportune time to expand the production of stock and bond salesmen!

IN NEW YORK

Success Strug.
 New York, Jan. 6.—The careless shoulder shrug which has become identified with the torch singing of Ethel Merman is just as closely associated with her off-stage mannerisms. Miss Merman is one performer who literally shrugged her way to the heights. And at this moment Miss Merman is being classed as the greatest of the scooby singers.

Yet she is one individual who did not have to struggle to "get there." Nor does she make the slightest pretense at being one of the many whose careers were achieved with hard labor and insuperable ups and downs.

Just a few years ago she was pounding a typewriter in Astoria, Long Island, and way points. Even then she had the voice and technique for putting over the rough, red-hot ballads. One evening she attended a party at which were several guests from the theatrical belt. She was called upon for a song and sang. A few weeks later she was being summoned from her desk to a Broadway office. She shrugged and closed up her typewriter desk—and never went back. A few nights later she was attracting attention in the town's night club floor shows.

A year or so thereafter, a music show producer called for her. Miss Merman shrugged her shoulders and answered the call. She was an overnight hit. Today her "Eadie Was a Lady" is one of the town's classics.

Two a Day
 Notes on this and that: Fred Mearns, since the marriage and departure of his dancing sister, Adele, lives with his mother and does little gadding about with the playful boys and girls of Broadway. . . . Walter C. Kelley, "the Virginia Judge," refers to himself as "one of those magnificent antiquaries." . . . George M. Cohan always springs original stunts at rehearsals. . . . It was formerly his policy to write one act of a play at a time, and put each act into rehearsal, writing additional scenes and dialogues as the try-outs went on. . . . In his newest effort he limited rehearsals to some eight or nine days, instead of the usual long work-out period. . . . And, as usual, he opens in his home town, Providence, R. I., where he actually was born on July 4. . . . The vaudeville situation has been so tough that trouper now refer to two week engagements as "a big business" and Richy Craig pens that "two a day isn't a variety policy; it's the salary you get!"

Hopper Inspired

That ruction over Roxy's tossing three nude statues out of his new Music Hall theater is said to have been inspired by the veteran De Wolf Hopper. Hopper has been married six times. As he walked through the lobbies he stopped to look at the statues and is quoted as saying: "Yes, I've had a number of wives and viewed a number of women, but I never have seen any that looked like that."

From the Actors' Unemployment Relief Committee comes a note that an effort will be made to turn over empty theaters to the cold and jobless players who now haunt the sidewalks. These theaters have been gathering dust for many months and would at least provide a warm spot for the unfortunate ones. Also there's a movement to take over a number of old-fashioned actors' boarding houses, which have been abandoned; furnish them cheaply and give a roof for the thousands out-of-work.

GILBERT SWAN.

EVEN THEY AREN'T SAFE

Birmingham, Ala.—Even the guardians of the law aren't immune from burglary. The other night a couple of bold bandits entered the police station and sawed a five-inch hole in the liquor locker and made off with a suitcase filled with liquor. Police were sitting in the next room. They believe that the bandits were some men who knew that 25 gallons of liquor had been seized a few days previous.

LOADED FOR BEAR

Los Angeles.—Three bandits who held up the service station where Frank Steinbiller is attendant, must have expected trouble. They were armed with sawed-off shotguns and heavy caliber revolvers. After robbing the station of $80 they forced Steinbiller into the back room threatening to pepper him with bullets if he came out before ten minutes elapsed.

Semi-Annual FURNITURE SALE

THERE are two ways to operate a sale: (1) Order in a lot of cheap merchandise away below your regular standard of quality and price; mark it sky-high; and then reduce these exorbitant prices so you still make a whale of a profit. Some stores run sales in just this way. (2) The second way is to take your regular, high quality stock, which, according to modern storekeeping, should be moved after a set number of days following its arrival in your store, and reduce the already low prices for immediate clearance. This second way is the only way Watkins Brothers operate sales. NO CHEAP MERCHANDISE IS EVER ORDERED IN. You can be sure that the savings you make at Watkins Semi-Annual Sale are genuine. Our store is open Thursday and Saturday evenings until 9 o'clock, and other evenings by appointment.

HICCUPS OR HICCOUGH.

Hiccups, although usually a passing annoyance, may persist for as long as several weeks in which case it is a very serious affliction, as the patient's rest and vitality are reduced. An intense soreness and pain through the upper chest may result in these cases, and death sometimes results from exhaustion.

Hiccups is caused by a spasmodic contraction of the diaphragm either from an irritation of the nerves leading to it or from a pressure or irritation of the diaphragm itself. The sound occurs as the air is drawn in and is produced by a sudden convulsive gasp of the air as it hits the partly closed glottis.

When hiccups is started because of too much food being eaten at a meal, it may remain until the stomach is empty, which in these cases often requires eight to ten hours. By this time the diaphragm, a flat muscle, may become so sore and irritated as to keep right on with its spasmodic contractions unless something is done.

When excessive stomach gas produces the pressure upon the diaphragm, the hiccups can usually be stopped quickly by producing a belching. Hiccups sometimes result ers, or the patient can treat himself by placing the fingers of each hand at the sides of the neck just in back of and below the ears and bending the head back as far as possible, pressing forward with the fingers at the same time. If these treatments do not stop the hiccups, it is a good plan to call in an osteopath or chiropractor who will make the right pressure at exactly the right spot, stopping the spasms almost instantly.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

(Peristalsis)
 Question: X asks: "Will you kindly explain to me what peristalsis is?"

Answer: Peristalsis is a peculiar contractile expulsive muscular movement of any hollow organ of the body. You probably refer to this action of the intestines. Both the small and large intestines are provided with longitudinal and circular muscular fibres. These contract alternately and force along the fecal matter, pushing it toward the rectum, except in some peculiar cases when this action is reversed.

(Twisted Foot)
 Question: Mrs. David LeP. writes: "My little girl's foot was injured during childbirth. The nerve on the inner side of the limb seems to have been stunned. She wears half inch pads or 'lifts' in that shoe, and the orthopedist who is taking care of her wants to operate before she is three years old. He wants to transplant the tendons of the muscle on the outside is stronger than that on the inside and pulls the foot to one side. What is your advice?"

Answer: If the nerve of your little girl's foot has been injured but not entirely destroyed, it could probably be benefited by the use of properly administered sinusoidal electrical treatments. Sometimes manipulative treatments are also helpful. I would advise you to try these methods before resorting to the operation, as the transfer of tissue sometimes results in improper control of the foot. If the electrical treatments do not prove beneficial, you could, of course, try the operation.

(Fruits Good in Diabetes.)

Question: Sibyl S. asks: "Will you please tell me if grapefruit, oranges or melons are good fruits to give a person who has diabetes and is taking insulin?"

Answer: All fruits are good foods for the diabetic to use, even though they do contain a certain amount of fruit sugar. A fast on any of these fruits is the best treatment to use in overcoming the faulty metabolism which causes diabetes.

MID-OCEAN FUELING

Berlin.—The new installations on the steamship Westfalen include a catapult and radio range beacon. The Westfalen will serve as a mid-ocean fueling station in a proposed trans-Atlantic airplane service between Europe and South America. A towed canvas urgent arrangement will protect planes from the waves and prevent them from being on the ocean surface and taxi to the ship, where they will be hoisted aboard. After refueling and inspection, they will be launched by catapult.

HEALTH COST LOW IN CONNECTICUT

Only Few Cents Spent Each Year Per Person For Protection In This State.

The cost of health is extremely low no matter whether it is viewed from the governmental or personal standpoint and the old adage about the ounce of prevention being worth a pound of cure still holds good, it was explained by Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, State Commissioner of Health, in the weekly broadcast of the State Department of Health today.

Dr. Osborn first discussed the cost of health from the governmental angle and showed that only a very few cents a year is spent per person for public health work. The cost of maintaining a health officer or a local department of health varies, but in most cities and towns in Connecticut it is less than thirty cents a person per year. In only three or four cities does the cost of the department of health exceed one dollar per person annually. The yearly cost of maintaining the State Department of Health amounts to about twenty cents for each person in the state. Other state health activities raise this figure but little.

The whole cost of the health protective machinery, including the federal, state and local agencies, would not exceed two or three dollars per person per year, a trifling fraction of what each person spends yearly for candy, tobacco, chewing gum or moving picture shows.

decreased nearly to extinction, are only kept down by constant vigilance. Some communities have failed to take advantage of modern preventive methods and the greater incidence of these diseases, for instance, has been cut from 3,000 cases annually to 300, but these 300 cases could be eliminated by immunization. The community should broaden their health work.

Personal Responsibility While governmental health activities succeed in reducing to the minimum many diseases, there are other preventable diseases of a chronic nature which it is necessary for the individual to help himself in checking. Among these are the various types of heart diseases, cancer, liver conditions, kidney complaints and many others. If discovered early, most cases are readily treated and many cured. The best way to achieve early discovery is to have a thorough health examination by the family physician at least once a year.

The cost of the periodic examination is negligible and may save heavy expense. Likewise, it is cheaper to go to the physician immediately when an ache or pain develops than to attempt self-cure by the use of medicines or equipment about which one knows little or nothing. Self experimentation may be fascinating, but it is costly and may delay proper treatment to the point where medical or surgical care cannot effect a cure.

"It pays to guard your health," Commissioner Osborn concluded. "A few dollars spent for health whether for yourself or your community is money well spent."

BOY IS BADLY HURT IN CRASH WITH CAR

Ernest Wolfram, 15, Cyclist, Collides With Automobile; Is In Critical Condition.

Ernest Wolfram, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Wolfram of 40 Hawthorn street, was seriously injured at 5:50 last night when the bicycle he was riding crashed into the side of an automobile driven by Clarence O. Anderson of 60 Haynes street at the intersection of Russell and Main streets. The Wolfram boy was on his way to the Center to get some groceries, and Anderson, a Postal clerk, was on his way home.

No witnesses to the accident were found but Anderson reported to the police that as he was starting to turn into Russell street from the west, he saw a boy on a bicycle coming south on Main street near the west curb. He said he put on his brakes but the bicycle crashed into the rear end of his car. The rider fell to the street unconscious.

In Critical Condition Carl Noren of 100 Washington street and Thomas Ferguson of 176 Main street assisted in putting the Wolfram boy into a car. He was taken to the Manchester Memorial Hospital. Before his arrival at the hospital he regained consciousness, momentarily, and told Officer Herman Munko, who investigated, that he had a light in his pocket. He lapsed into a convulsion upon his arrival at the hospital and was placed on the danger list.

Examination at the hospital disclosed that there was a deep laceration on the back of the head and a possible fracture of the skull. At the hospital today it was reported that he was still unconscious and his condition was critical. Anderson was not held by the police. The Car in Side Officer Herman Munko found a dent in the right rear side of the Anderson car, indicating where the boy's bicycle had struck the car as it turned into Russell street. The automobile was going slowly at the time and moved but 10 feet after the accident, tire burns in the street indicated.

Wolfram, a freshman in the Manchester High school observed his 15th birthday Wednesday. Russell Wolfram, a younger brother, died of a brain affection at the Manchester Memorial Hospital Nov. 27. There are several other brothers and sisters in the Wolfram family.

They then held him up and robbed him of $18. They had been riding around waiting for an opportunity to stage the holdup.

THEY HAVE FOUND A 3-MINUTE WAY TO RELIEVE SORE THROAT

All Pain And Soreness Eased In Few Minutes This Simple Way

Proves Only Medicine Helps A Sore Throat

Modern medical science now throws an entirely new light on sore throat. A way that eases the pain, rawness and irritation in as little as two or three minutes.

Results are among the most extraordinary in medical science. On doctors' advice, millions are following this way... discarding old-time "washes" and "antiseptics." For it has been found that only medicine can help a sore throat.

Simple To Do. All you do is crush and dissolve three BAYER Aspirin Tablets in half a glass of water. Gargle with it twice—as pictured above. If you have any indication of a cold—before gargling take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets with a full glass of water. This is to combat any signs of cold that have gone into your system. Keep on taking if cold has "held." For Genuine Bayer Aspirin will not harm you. Your doctor will tell you, it does not depress the heart. Get a box of 12 or a bottle of 100 at any drug store.

Reduces Infection, Eases Pain Instantly. Gargling with Bayer Aspirin will do three things: Relieve soreness at once. Alleviate inflammation. AND—reduce infection, which is the important thing in fighting a sore throat.

It requires medicine—like BAYER ASPIRIN—to do these things! That is why throat specialists throughout America are prescribing this BAYER gargle in place of old-time ways. Results are quick and amazing.

Be careful, however, that you get real BAYER Aspirin Tablets for this purpose. For they dissolve completely enough to gargle without leaving irritating particles. Watch this when you buy.

NO TABLETS ARE GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN WITHOUT THIS CROSS

HIGH SCHOOL, GUARDS PLAY AT EAST HARTFORD TONIGHT

Red and White Seeks Win In League Game; Soldiers Oppose All-Burnsides In One of Season's Best Attractions; Clarke Coaches Both Local Teams.

East Hartford will be the mecca for local basketball fans tonight when the National Guards oppose the All-Burnsides at Manchester High school's gymnasium.

First in importance is the semi-pro contest between the 1933 champions of East Hartford and Manchester. The Guards and the All-Burnsides have both lost three games this season and are regarded as the best court quintets in the section of the state.

The fact that the All-Burnsides lack capable reserves prove a factor in the outcome of the game, should there be a flurry of personal fouls. A preliminary game will be played at 7:30 o'clock with the main encounter scheduled for 9 o'clock.

This game will mark the return of "Ding" Farr to the lineup of the National Guards. Farr has been out with a foot injury but has recovered sufficiently to play tonight.

Coach Wilfred Clarke of the High School is the man most vitally interested in both games. He will first take his High School charges against Coach McGraith's team.

Local Sport Chatter

Inadvertently, the sports department overlooked the fact that Earl Bissell, runner-up for the town tennis title this summer, played left guard for the Kevin Barry five Wednesday night and acted as captain.

Pete Hanson is drilling his St. Mary's Sunday School class in basketball, practicing every Wednesday night at the Franklin Gymnasium from 5:15 to 6:15 o'clock.

Prospects of a most interesting church league has fallen by the wayside. Nothing has been heard or seen of the teams the past several weeks.

Locals Lead 13-7 At Half Time But Fail To Halt Furious Sprint In Closing Quarter; Seconds Win Overtime Thriller By 22-20 Score.

After piling up a comfortable lead in the first half, Manchester Trade School was unable to halt a furious rally by Meriden Trade School at Meriden last night and as a result dropped its third game in seven starts this season by the close margin of 17 to 16.

The contest between the second teams was more exciting and thrilling than the first team encounter, the score being deadlocked at 18-18 at the end of the regular playing period.

In the final period, however, Meriden held Manchester scoreless and chalked up six points to emerge with the victory. With seconds remaining to play, Coach Walter Schober's team held a one point margin when Goldberg of Meriden chucked up six points to tie the game to win for his team.

In the game between the seconds, McCurry was high scorer for the locals, getting 15 points, while Kliski made 13 points for the losers.

YOUNGSTERS PLAY DOMINATES GAMES IN HOCKEY LEAGUE

Last Night's Results Leave Standing Entirely Unchanged; Many Ties Occur In Four Tilt.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR. New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The "kids" of the National Hockey League have been having a great season.

The list includes Gus Forslund of Ottawa, Fudge McKenna and Eddie Wiseman of Detroit, all of whom came from the American Association; the International League graduates, Ken Doray of Toronto and Carl Voss of Detroit; and Ossie Assumundson, who moved Voss off the New York Rangers.

Wissman and Voss had little share in the scoring in Detroit's 6-1 triumph over the Canadiens in the only game which went to a decision although the former had one assist while Gaudreault scored the habitant's only goal.

Earl Robinson, who has shuttled back and fourth from the Montreal Maroons and their International League "farm" at Windsor, scored both Montreal goals in a 2-0 victory over the Toronto Leafs.

His appointment to succeed Warner as head coach awaits approval of Dr. Robert E. Swain, acting president of the University, and the University's board of trustees.

East Hartford Team, Coached By Warty Waterman, Comes Here For Game Next Week; Is One of Best Fives In State.

The Rec Five will make a serious attempt to establish themselves locally Tuesday night when they will be opposed by the St. Mary's of East Hartford.

The St. Mary's has established itself one of the best teams in Connecticut and this holds true despite its defeats at the hands of several teams.

The Recreation Five has been seriously handicapped in recent games by the lack of height and experience. To overcome this weakness Ben Clune will possibly have two new faces in his lineup for Tuesday, which means that two men will be released.

Harrison Stafford, outstanding Southwest conference halfback at the University of Texas, is in line for a West Point appointment.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SHELLA SHAYNE, 19, whose village actress, is in New York looking for work. She is a dancer. She has spent almost her entire life on the stage, first traveling with her parents, now dead, and later in vaudeville and road shows. Shella lives at MA LOW-ELL'S theatrical rooming house. -MYRT-, a vaudeville performer also out of work, lives there, too. Over the breakfast table Jess morning Shella confides to Myrt that her great ambition is to marry and have a home like those which she has seen in small towns in which she has played.

Ma Lowell interrupts her to announce that a telephone call has come for Shella. It is an offer for her to fill in for DAISY GLEASON, another dancer, who has sprained her ankle. Shella agrees and goes off for JOE PARIS' office to rehearse.

At about the same time two wealthy young men, TREVOR LANE and DICK STANLEY, are discussing plans for the party. Lane is to give the party. He has decided to give the party at his father's office to hire some entertainers. They arrive while BILL BRADY, dance instructor, is teaching Shella the new routine. Stanley sees her dancing and is impressed with her skill and grace.

Joe Paris' Curious

Joe Paris' curious. So Joe Paris knew that! That he had known his father did not seem so unusual as did this meeting with him.

"We are playing Jackson Heights," Shella murmured in confusion. "I've been resting lately. I'm—well, pretty stiff."

Joe grinned broadly. If he thought some musician a joke, Shella decided, it must be because he had never experienced them. Or had he?

"Mr. Joe said, while Bill stood by attentively and the others remained silent." "Jackson Heights could make it in a taxi. Well—you know that, Lane? Or a song."

Bill leaned forward confidentially, though his lowered voice reached and was heard by Shella every corner in the room. "Shayne never sang a song number in great style."

Dick Stanley's pleading eyes met the girl's for an instant as she wavered.

"I would like to accommodate you," she began, then added hastily, "but I haven't been dancing. I'll be awfully glad to see you."

"You seem in excellent practice," Trevor Lane began politely. "It's not that!" Shella snubbed. "I may be too stiff by that time to dance well. Maybe you've ridden horseback—and know the difference."

Her heart was pounding, saying loudly, "You little fool! Why are you refusing? Mr. Stanley will be there! You'll see him. Maybe he will take you home. Tell him you'll be glad to fill in."

"Seventy-five!" announced Dick bravely, slyly nudging Trevor. "And," grinning boyishly, "we guarantee you an awfully good time. For you'll stay for the party of course."

This, she knew, was irregular. Unbusinesslike. They got things from you they didn't pay for—extra songs, maybe dances, even a lesson or so. The men gathered around, considering a chorus girl fair prey. The girls snubbed you for your good-looking, or if you if you were good-looking, or if you No, the wisest thing was to keep away. Still $75 is $75—a full wardrobe with careful buying! A new evening gown, new hat, new suit, shoes!

But why put herself at a disadvantage? Why appear beside society girls, wealthy young women of this man's own set, with the comparison all in their favor? He meticulously groomed, born to be thought of as a social success, a social success, never a worry or thought for tomorrow.

"I'm sorry, I'd love to some other time. It's awfully nice of you to ask me."

Some other time, then? Trevor Lane said simply. He did not look at her. He looked at Dick Stanley. He looked at Dick Stanley. He looked at Dick Stanley. He looked at Dick Stanley. He looked at Dick Stanley.

"I'll change your mind. I'll expect to hear from you."

Why hadn't he asked for her telephone number, Shella wondered as he disappeared in the direction of the others. Didn't he know she had burned her bridges? That she couldn't telephone him now? He thought he could find her in the telephone book, perhaps. As if she could afford her own apartment in these days!

Shella sighed. An opportunity had vanished. But work remained. Doggedly she went into the routine, her clucking heels beating out the rhythm as faithful Timmy played.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Joe Paris moved toward the practice rooms followed by the other two men. "Miss Shayne is booked at Jackson Heights tonight," he said.

Without preamble Joe opened the door. This time Timmy was not taping out or cessation of the music. It was Joe, the great Paris, and welcome indeed! Joe's presence in a practice room always meant something. Shella continued with the difficult routine. She was dancing beautifully.

Her eyes met Dick Stanley's as, without stopping, she glided swiftly down the stairs. She smiled guardedly, a trifle mischievously. So he was a producer, Joe! Maybe he had brought Joe back. Maybe he was a producer. He had decided against this attempt immediately, skimming like a bird across the room, breaking into kicks, tapping again. It wasn't that the newcomer was too young to be a producer! It was providing the had money. This young man was too interested in the things about him. He didn't look bored. And a producer has to learn very early to look bored and unimpressed if he doesn't want to be besieged by would-be hangers-on at every turn.

She didn't think the other man was a producer either. Had he been filling the cast of a show he would have watched her for a few minutes and then disappeared. Instead he was talking to Joe and beckoning to Bill. He didn't look at her. He looked at Dick Stanley. He looked at Dick Stanley. He looked at Dick Stanley. He looked at Dick Stanley.

"This girl's a real dancer," Bill began amiably. And again Shella smiled. Not five minutes before, when she had muffed a turn, Bill had called her hopeless. Five minutes more and he would make the world's leading dancer. That was the world's business for you.

Timmy reached the end of the theme and began again, but Bill cut in briskly. "That's all, Tim. You, Shayne—come here!"

She was going to meet Joe Paris! He had noticed her! Equally marvelous, she was going to meet this boy who had been watching her. She must look a sight now, her hair every which way, her little hands shaking. Shella attempted to repair the ravages of the last two hours. What a moment to come face to face with any young man!

"Well, if he liked me this way he'd like me dressed up. That's the only comfort," she thought despairingly. "I didn't get it to occur to her to wonder if Joe Paris liked her—Joe, whose approbation could mean instant recognition."

Bill was beaming at her as though she were one of his own prize pupils and drew her into the circle.

"Miss Shayne, Joe. Miss Shayne. Mr. Lane, and—er, your friend there—I didn't catch the name? Oh, yes, Stanley. Mr. Stanley, Shella." Bill's voice was impetuous. His eyes were on Joe Paris' face.

"Shayne," repeated Joe meditatively, acknowledging the girl's bow with a curt nod. "Shayne. You're Johnny England's daughter, aren't you? How come you changed your name?"

"I—I wanted to make good on my own, Mr. Paris." Her voice was trembling. "I didn't want managers to hire me or agents to book me on my parents' account. You see, if I get anywhere I want it to be because I am a dancer, not because my mother and father were."

The big man nodded approvingly. "Still that doesn't keep you from inheriting Johnny's spunk," he said reflectively. "John Madison can dance all right. You're good!"

"Good! You can dance all right." Such words as those from Joe Paris! If Joe troubled to praise a routine it meant something. Always considerate, always helpful to a dancer in trouble or a down-and-outer, Joe never scattered undue praise.

"The kindest thing," he would repeat firmly and frequently, "the kindest thing you can do for some of them is to send them back to the five-and-dime stores. But if they are good, tell them so!"

Shella's eyes widened expectantly.

"For a party he's giving this evening."

"We thought perhaps you'd dance for him," Joe Paris added. "Just a number or two. I know you're booked with Roscoe Moody in Gleason's place."

Her heart was pounding

Her heart was pounding, saying loudly, "You little fool! Why are you refusing? Mr. Stanley will be there! You'll see him. Maybe he will take you home. Tell him you'll be glad to fill in."

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

REVIVIFYING NIGHT BATH

There's nothing like the luxury of a fragrant bath to revive lagging spirits, at the end of a hard day.

Right now you can get bargains in bath salts and bath powders and soaps that will make you feel you just must be swallowed.

If you have that chrye, try the pine needles bath salts. They'll give off an aroma that makes you feel like breathing deeply and you'll get some of the refreshing zest that a real woods would give you.

Next to pine needles, one of the best scents you can have is lavender. It's so delicate and so inoffensive. Nobody could object to lavender, even sick folks who can't bear the fragrance of flowers in their rooms. At the end of a day a lavender scented warm bath does wonders as a pick-me-up.

If you want to do things up brown, use bath salts of the same scent as your perfume, your powder and bath powder. That is the trickiest way to keep your perfume lasting a long time: For if you use the same fragrance for everything, you'll find that you need only a touch of the perfume to finish off your toilet.

One of the best things you possibly can do for your skin and your satisfaction is to catch rain water in a regular rain water bath once in a while. It is impossible in cities, usually, for people lucky enough to live in suburbs or small towns or the country, the value of soft rain water cannot be over-estimated.

And have one of these pick-up baths, as you can stand it. Tepid water just won't relax you, and that is that. And at the end of a day a cold shower is worse than nothing, usually. But a very warm or even hot bath that you can sink into and get your spine all relaxed is what you need.

If you find yourself terribly discouraged, don't do anything rash until you've had a scented bath. You'll be surprised how you rise out of it with courage to carry on. Just try it!

Hints on How to Keep Well by W. Wood Famed Authority

Medical Progress in 1932—No. 3

KNOWLEDGE OF VITAMINS ADVANCED IN PAST YEAR

Concentrates Are Made Available in All Sorts of Food; X-rays Made Increasingly Valuable in Visualizing Internal Organs.

This is the third of six articles by Dr. Fishbein reviewing the progress of medical science in 1932.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The year 1932 has not seen the discovery of any new vitamins, but it has seen the development of more knowledge concerning the vitamins already available, and the correction of certain beliefs formerly held concerning some of them. Vitamin B is now definitely recognized to be composed of two parts, which are sometimes re-named B and G, but which are also called B1 and B2. The first of these is concerned with the condition called polyneuritis, "beriberi," and the other with pellagra.

Vitamin D has now been made available not only in cod liver oil and through the use of ultraviolet rays on the body, but by the addition of vitamin D concentrates to all sorts of food, and by the irradiation of various types of foods so as to permit them to develop the vitamin D. A further step has been the development of additional vitamin D in milk and in bread, two of the staple foods used by mankind.

The laboratories throughout the world are attempting to find active principles for all of the glands for which such active principles have not yet been found. Particular attention is being given to the male sex gland, the thymus gland, and to the possibility that some glands, like the pituitary, may have active principles beyond those already discovered. The discovery of new active principles makes it possible to give it to people who have deficient glands, and thereby to overcome various types of diseases which depend on such deficiencies.

The X-ray continues to be a special medium for study by physicians. Formerly the X-ray was used only to see bones or to see various substances swallowed or inhaled. Now substances have been developed which can be injected into the veins, thereby making visible some of the soft tissue of the body.

Moreover, air can be injected into various cavities and thus make visible the outlines of the organ. Previous to this year it was possible to visualize the kidney and the gallbladder. Now means have been discovered for visualizing the liver, the spleen and the connective tissue in the body, but the means have not yet been so definitely perfected that the method can be considered established.

It seems reasonable to believe, however, that continued research will soon make it possible for the physician, by the aid of the X-ray, to visualize every tissue in the human body, at least so far as the outlines are concerned.

VASA ORDER HONORS A. THEODORE ANDERSON

Gives Local Man Certificate of Merit For His Services in Behalf of Lodge.

A. Theodore Anderson, of 92 Ridge street, was the recipient of an unusual honor last night at the regular meeting of Scandia Lodge, No. 23, Order of Vasa, at Orange hall, when he was presented with a Certificate of Merit from the Supreme Lodge of the Order of Vasa of America in recognition of thirty-two years of outstanding service and achievement in the order.

The beautifully engraved certificate presented to the local man was one of only three presented in the United States by the Supreme Lodge. The presentation was made by Chairman Johnson of this town, secretary of the Executive Board of the Connecticut Grand Lodge. The certificate was signed by the Supreme Lodge president, Albert J. Coburn of Boston, Mass.

Mr. Anderson recently retired as treasurer of the state Grand Lodge, after serving seventeen years. He is a charter member of Scandia Lodge, joining in May, 1900. He passed through the chairs of the local lodge and served as its treasurer for many years and was a delegate from this state to the Supreme Lodge convention in Chicago in 1919. He was recently presented with a writing desk by the state Executive Board as a token of esteem and recognition for his services.

The other two certificates presented at the first time went to another Connecticut member and to Massachusetts. The award came as a distinct surprise to Mr. Anderson as well as other members of the lodge. Mr. Anderson spoke briefly, expressing his appreciation of the award.

Recently elected officers of the lodge were installed last night by Mrs. Helga Johnson, district deputy of Hartford, and her staff. The slate was headed by Herbert Johnson as president, succeeding John Johnson, the new president called on Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Augusta Purinton, past district master, for remarks.

During the meeting, the outgoing officers submitted their reports for the past term. Refreshments were later served in the basement of the hall.

TWO MEN SUSPECTED IN $5,000 SWINDLE

Hartford, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Two are under arrest charged with obtaining nearly $5,000 from the New England Equity Corporation by making false representations. The police operate as an industrial lending organization with headquarters in Boston. The Hartford officers are at 607 Main street.

The men arrested are Earl H. Sanderson, 36, of 39 Arlington street, manager of the local branch of the corporation, and Wilfred F. Callahan, 37, of 272 Edgewood street. Callahan is in the employ of a Hartford insurance company.

The accused were arraigned in Police Court today. Sanderson is charged with a conspiracy with Dennis O'Connor, 33, 185 Broad street, in the swindle. Attorney William Glavin represented Callahan, who is charged with obtaining the money under false pretenses. Prosecution Attorney Wilson C. Janney agreed to a continuance in the case to January 10.

Judge Richard T. Steele fixed the bail at $2,500 in the case of Sanderson and $1,000 in the case of Callahan.

SOUTHERN FLOODS

KEEP UP MENACE OVER NOTED STATE

Five Breaks On St. Francis River Overflow 68,000 Acres of Lowlands.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Valley dwellers here the St. Francis river separates northeastern Arkansas from southeastern Missouri soured for higher ground today as flood waters poured through five levee breaks and gushed over 68,000 acres of lowlands. The river was falling in the vicinity of Kennett, Mo., as the breaches relieved pressure from upstream but down at Big Lake near Hytheville, Ark., a crew of 150 worked to sandbag breaches against rising tides.

Meanwhile, through the Mississippi delta and elsewhere that swollen streams have caused concern, tension slackened as anticipated heavy rains failed to materialize.

The Tallahassee river and Chesapeake bayou still bothered the delta communities of Sumner, Glendora, Webb and Swan Lake, but the waters were rising more slowly. Swan Lake and Webb were out of from high water connection.

In West Tennessee West Tennessee streams, swollen by bankwaters from the rising Mississippi, have covered some 100,000 acres of lowlands and evicted numerous lowlanders. The Ohio, Forked Deer and Hatchie all were out of their banks.

Rivers expressed fear that the Mississippi would back additional floods into its delta tributaries. The river went up a foot here in the last 24 hours to 28.8 and flood stage of 35 feet was forecast for January 11. Observers expressed the opinion that territory protected by the main levees, however, would not be affected.

Memphis, high up on the Chickasaw bluffs, is safe. Still, the river dwellers are watching the gauge, for the lowlanders have to figure what would happen if upstream rivers ran into floods lower down. River stages are figured from a zero point based on low water averages.

Zero at Memphis means a 60-foot depth. Thus, now that a stage of 28.8 feet has been recorded, it means the big river is 88.8 feet deep.

LEADERS STILL PUZZLED OVER NOTED STATE

Wonder Why Coolidge Would ed Down the Nomination For President That His For the Asking.

By FRANCIS M. STANTON
(Associated Press writer who covered the White House through much of President Coolidge's administration, who was with him in the White House in 1927 when he announced "I do not choose to run for President in 1932.")

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Through the years since Calvin Coolidge startled the nation by announcing he did not "choose" to run, political leaders have pondered and almost unanimously agreed he would have accepted another term.

It was the first time since George Washington that a President had turned aside a nomination admittedly his. Naturally, the decision created wide speculation before the 1932 convention and hours of discussion afterwards.

Whatever is written hereafter, it may be said that except for Mrs. Coolidge no one knows or knows definitely what the third term decision had in mind. He disclosed his innermost thoughts to no one. He made his own decision.

Sense of Fairness

It is known that he had a acute sense of fairness and a profound regard for American political tradition and government.

Being his judgment on the premises, Republican leaders at Washington, with some exceptions, have concluded that Mr. Coolidge realized a third term nomination had in mind. He disclosed his innermost thoughts to no one. He made his own decision.

Coolidge went into the White House to finish the term of Warren Harding—one year and five months. He was elected in 1924.

He would be seeking a third term if he ran again in 1932. That was concededly a moot question. It was raised in the Senate even before Coolidge made his announcement and it was accepted as an issue at the Republican convention, who became President under the same circumstances in 1901, announced upon his election in 1904 that he would not run again.

There was a precedent and Mr. Coolidge felt it.

But Republican leaders were accepting Coolidge as their 1932 nominee, despite his five and a half years in the White House. He realized that, too.

So, in the matured judgment of Washington Republican leaders, Calvin Coolidge intended to leave the field open and to make it plain that if he were nominated it was not by his own choosing.

Also, this statement was accepted as the door open for his nomination in 1932 if an emergency developed or for later years, 1936 or 1938.

Mr. Coolidge's own words on this must be considered. He informed Republican National committee men meeting in Washington in 1927 that his statement must be accepted at its worth.

This declaration was taken by all party leaders then to mean that he was definitely against a second term. Herbert Hoover, a member of the Cabinet, went to work. So did Charles Curtis of Kansas, then Republican leader of the Senate and perhaps the closest of any to Coolidge. Senator William Borah, Idaho, and Frank P. Rowland, Senate, Georgia, of West Virginia, all went in to action and behind the scenes was Vice President Dawes.

Question Raised

Significance is attached to the fact that Curtis offered the official trip of the presidential yacht Mayflower with Coolidge. Mr. Coolidge went Curtis for President or Hoover stopped and a declaration convention? That is another question raised at Washington. On the other side of the question are those who say Coolidge wanted to retire; that he considered another term would violate American tradition and that he wanted to step out without counting any successors on the matter of a third term.

Whatever his thoughts, Mr. Coolidge carries them with many others to the grave.

He did send Everett Sanders, Republican convention to inform certain delegations he did not want a move for his nomination from them.

These delegations were from his own territory. If the move was to be made it must come from at large and not from his closer territory. Very few delegations were invited by Sanders. No statement was made to the press by him which was questioned closely.

With the Republican convention in session, Coolidge made his departure from Washington. He is summer home in Superior, Wis., and the night presidential election occurred.

Intended of the result upon the arrival in the deep woods surrounding Superior the next day. Coolidge's departure from the city is being watched by the press. He is being followed by the press. He is being followed by the press.

TO WED FOURTH TIME
Hollywood, Calif., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Coincident with the revelation she had obtained a divorce from her third husband, Winifred Sackville Stoner Harrison, former child prodigy, announced today she was considering a fourth marriage. She declined to name the man.

Mrs. Harrison, who at the age of 12 had written several books and mastered several languages, said she was divorced in Las Vegas, Nevada, last July 26— from Earl Winston Harrison. They were married in Yuma, Ariz., in August, 1931, and separated last summer. Cruelly was the grounds on which the divorce was granted, she said.

The young woman's first marriage was to Count Philippe Chateau de Bruche. It was annulled in 1929. Louis Hyman, New York broker, was her second husband. Divorce terminated this union.

POULTRYMEN TO MEET AT GLASTONBURY
Roy E. Jones To Discuss Brooding Tricks At John Tom Hill Meeting On Wednesday.

Alvah A. Russell, Glastonbury, member of the Hartford County Farm Bureau poultry committee, has arranged a meeting for poultrymen on January 11, at the John Tom Hill Community Club, Glastonbury, at 1:30 p. m. All poultrymen are invited to attend. Roy E. Jones, poultry specialist from the Connecticut Agricultural College will discuss "Tricks of Successful Brooding" and will also show movies on the national baby chick meeting.

Brooding's Importance
In regard to brooding, Mr. Jones says, "The success with which a man can brood and rear chicks determines very largely on his financial success as a poultryman. Feed prices are low, egg and poultry prices are low and the margin of profit is low. Nevertheless a reasonable margin of profit exists for those who will use good brooding practices and rear strong, healthy, vigorous pullets. It is not too early to make definite plans for brooding chicks."

Seven years ago the First Connecticut Grow Healthy Chicks Program was organized, and put into effect. The total chick mortality for the season previous to that time, according to survey reports, was 26 percent. The last Grow Healthy Chicks survey for six years of careful work brought the average chick loss, figured on over half a million chicks, down to 12.7 percent. Hartford County chick brooding results were better than the average, the chick loss having been brought to 11.3 percent.

Six Point Program
The chick brooding practices developed in this campaign and responsible for these very satisfactory results are well worth continuation. The original 6-point program has been condensed to a 3-point Grow Healthy pullets program.

Clean chicks means chicks known to be absolutely free from pullorum disease. Connecticut accredited chicks fulfill this requirement. It is good business to buy chicks from nearby sources where you can visit the poultry breeder, see his breeding flock, and know the quality of the chicks you are getting, from the standpoint of egg production and egg size as well as freedom from disease.

All brooder houses should be thoroughly cleaned out and moved to clean ground now in order to be ready for the brooding season. Brooder house cleaning cannot be hurried. Thorough cleaning and scrubbing cannot be replaced by the use of strong disinfectants. The brooder should be clean and dry. About all it must be kept dry. Cleaning each week for the first eight weeks is advisable, with more frequent cleaning if the floor becomes damp. Disease contamination through feed and water should be carefully guarded against. After the chicks are one week old, if feed hoppers and water dishes are placed on wire platforms, so that waste cannot be picked up out of the litter, or moist dirt or litter be picked up around the water dishes, much of the possible trouble will be avoided.

A great deal of the disease risk in rearing chicks comes from the contact between old and young chicks. Chicks should be brooded away from the old stock as possible. Chick brooding and rearing practices, planned and carried out during the next spring and summer, determine the profits to be made on egg production next winter.

Banana oil is not made from bananas or any other fruit. It is one of the hundreds of products obtained from coal tar.

TOWNS BOMBED BY JAP PLANES; BATTLE IS ON

ament's announced policy to "localize" the Shanhai-kwan incident was a "smokescreen," and they feared the Japanese would push along the railroad or else begin their long predicted drive northward into Jehol in a campaign to add that province to Manchukuo, the Japanese-sponsored Manchurian state.

The Chinese Nationalist government officials stated no negotiations were under way at the present time seeking a settlement of the conflict.

Restrictions that world powers imposed upon China in the Peking protocol of 1901, an outgrowth of the Boxer siege of Peking, forced China to share her strategic positions "with the enemy" and it can only result "in tragedies like Shanhai-kwan," General Ho Chukuo, commander of the ousted Shanhai-kwan garrison said today in a statement explaining his defeat.

Had No Defense There was widespread condemnation of Marshal Chang Hsiao-ling, military ruler of northern China, for not providing adequate defense for Shanhai-kwan. In contrast, General Ho has been praised for his "magnificent battle" and his statement was receiving nationwide circulation.

The statement referred to the agreement by which other powers, including Japan, are permitted to station troops in north China to keep open traffic from the coast to Peking.

General Ho stated the Chinese position has been even more anomalous since September, 1931, (when the Japanese invasion of Manchuria began.)

"It has been neither peace nor war. My troops were at Shanhai-kwan but could not take action against one clearly our enemy," he said.

"Despite these handicaps and fighting against an enemy possessing superior arms and equipment, the fact that we held the city through three days and nights of fighting must be considered a redeeming feature of the situation. x x x There may be criticism among those unacquainted with the situation, but as far as I am concerned, my conscience is clear," he concluded.

The chorus of Chinese condemnation of Marshal Chang's alleged failure to meet the emergency at Shanhai-kwan continued with newspapers throughout the country branding the young marshal as "an enemy within our own camp."

Ask Court Martial Canton patriots urged severest action against northern leader in a resolution calling for "a court marshal and extreme penalty" for the loss of Shanhai-kwan.

There were rumors here that the Nationalist government was removing Chang and that General Ho Ying-Ching, the Nationalist government's minister of war, was proceeding to Peking to take over the duties of the defense of North China.

Local Chinese authorities have taken a firm hand to halt the exodus of Chinese from the area in this vicinity, who feared a renewal of last February's Sino-Japanese fighting in those districts.

Chapel residents, who since the Shanhai-kwan incident have been bringing their possessions into the International Settlement of Shanghai, today were forced to return to their homes. Chinese authorities threatened to arrest anyone evacuating hereafter.

A considerable exodus also occurred in Kiangwan and Woosung, scenes of the heaviest Sino-Japanese fighting in February. The Woosung exodus began when a Japanese warship appeared on the river enroute to Shanghai. Chinese authorities stated that repressive measures were necessary to prevent the circulation of "damaging and groundless" reports hereabouts.

TO SEEK BODIES

Nahant, Mass., Jan. 6.—(AP)—The U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey today joined the Coast guard and Navy in the search for the bodies of two Harvard university students who plunged to their death into the sea in an airplane off Nahant last week.

The students were Edward Malinckrodt, 3rd, son of a wealthy St. Louis chemical manufacturer, and Donald Mackay Frost of Boston.

The Coast and Geodetic survey loaned two steel wire drags to the search which were to be attached to Coast Guard patrol boats and drawn over the area in which it was believed the plane rested on the sea bottom.

ABOUT TOWN

Because the regular meeting day of the Manchester Improvement Association fell this month on a holiday, no meeting was held and it has been decided to omit it for this month. Arrangements will be made for an interesting program for February's meeting.

Forget-me-not Junior Circle of King's Daughters will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 with their leader, Miss Beatrice L. Lydall of 22 Hudson street. A special program will be given and all members are urged to be present, especially those who have joined the circle recently.

The annual meeting of the Memorial Hospital Linen auxiliary is called for Monday afternoon at the Centze church house, Group 2, Mrs. Le Verne Holmes, leader, will be hostess. A good attendance of all members of the four groups is hoped for.

Tonight at the Windsorville Methodist church another meeting in the North Methodist larger parish series will take place at 7:30. Rev. Howard Seymour of Wilson will be the guest preacher. Cars will leave the North Methodist church this evening about 7:10 and all desiring transportation should be there at that hour.

Jarvis Grove, located on Walker street, will re-open Saturday night with a modern and old-fashioned dance, sponsored by Treat's Orchestra, Ernest Hodge, Henry Smith and Anthony Paulina. This former rendezvous for dance lovers has been renovated and arrangements made for heating. It is hoped that all who enjoy modern and old-fashioned dancing will visit Jarvis Grove Saturday night.

Having served their purpose of lending holiday cheer to the business area for approximately a month, the decorative colored street light paraphernalia today was being placed in storage to await another Christmas season. The wiring had already been taken down and the lamp globes removed and today the rolls of wiring were picked up by Manchester Electric Company employes.

A union strike of the North Main street churches will be held Sunday evening at 7 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. building on North Main street, and all interested will be welcome. The guest speaker will be J. Franklin Pinos of the Harvard Y. M. C. A. There will be special musical features.

PREDICT SENATE WILL O. K. REPEAL

Blaine of the subcommittee and Senator Bingham, Connecticut Republican, long an opponent of prohibition, announcing they would vote that provision.

Chairman Norris, of the judiciary committee, said today he probably would oppose the entire amendment.

"I'll be against it I guess, but I'm ready to vote on it in two minutes," Norris said. "But it's not a bad amendment. I would like to try it, however, before we repeal the amendment."

Norris said he saw no reason for hearings by the judiciary committee on the repeal proposal, and predicted early action, though he said there probably would be "a lot of discussion."

With repeal out of the way, the subcommittee will turn its attention tomorrow to the House 3.2 per cent beer bill. Six hours of hearings have been ordered with the time divided equally between those who contend it is constitutional and those who say it is not. Blaine hopes the subcommittee will complete action on the beer bill early next week.

DEMOCRATS ARE AGREED ON FINANCIAL PROGRAM

come above that to 6 percent and 8 percent, respectively.

It also proposes a cut in exemptions for married persons from $2,500 to $2,000 and a continuation of the present slash for single persons from $1,500 to $1,000.

Mr. Roosevelt, who has banned the sales tax recommended by President Hoover, presided over the conference, which was held last night. In a subsequent talk with newspapermen he declined to comment except to say he did not disagree with these suggestions for legislation.

Hoover Estimate. The Democrats said the Hoover estimate of the deficit for next year was $492,000,000. They accepted this disputed figure and based their calculations accordingly.

Their plan calls for raising $125,000,000 by the proposed levy on beer; $137,000,000 by continuation of the gas tax; reduction of an additional $100,000,000 in expenditures; and $130,000,000 by the new income tax rates.

The first general conference between the President-elect and Congressional leaders—and probably the last for a while—lasted for more than two hours. It was also the pilots from Congress—Speaker Garner and Senator Robinson—who did the talking.

In the informal way of the Roosevelt family, newspapermen were received in the home after the conference. Garner and Robinson were plled with questions and then Mr. Roosevelt received the group at his desk on the second floor.

It was learned that the President-elect looks favorably on the "parity plan" farm relief bill pending before the House. He recalled to newspapermen that he had asked organized agriculture to get together. He also was of the opinion that they were together on this legislation.

If organized agriculture agrees on the legislation, he said, he was ready to support it, recalling that farm organizations never before had been in unison on farm relief.

With the Democratic program for the present session of Congress apparently rounded into form, the issues now lie with: 1. The Democratic House, 2. The Senate, where the Republicans nominally control but where Republican Independents supporting Mr. Roosevelt give the Democrats a majority; and, 3. President Hoover.

There is no desire on the part of Mr. Roosevelt for an extra session. The Democrats are represented as feeling if a special session is forced, now that a Democratic plan is ready, the onus is on the Republicans.

Turning from national problems, Mr. Roosevelt expects very shortly to confer here with Secretary Stimson on international affairs. His request for this meeting was disclosed yesterday at Washington. He would not comment on it other than to say that "you will have to ask Mr. Stimson" about it.

To Make Study However, the President-elect is looking forward to an early study of the whole international situation with a view to taking prompt action on the pending economic disarmament and debts issues confronting this country.

The Stimson interview has been deferred, probably by the sudden death of Calvin Coolidge.

Late today, Mr. Roosevelt planned to set out for the week-end at his Hyde Park home up the Hudson river.

Those who attended last night's party included besides Garner and Robinson, Senators Harrison, of Mississippi; Byrnes, of South Carolina; Pittman, of Nevada; Representatives Rainey, of Illinois; McDuffie, of Ala.; Byrnes, of Tenn.; Rayburn, of Texas; James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National committee; and Professor Raymond Moley, economic adviser of the President-elect.

Speaker Garner refrained from comment on the prohibition repeal resolution advanced by the Senate judiciary subcommittee and said he would consider it when, and if, it came to the House.

Senator Robinson expressed confidence that the Senate would adopt both the repeal resolution and the pending beer bill sent to it by the House.

Belmont, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Former Supreme Court Justice Charles H. Brown, 73, died suddenly at his home here today from a heart attack. He retired from the Supreme bench January 1, 1929, after almost 25 years of service.

SWEDISH FRATERNITIES TO COMBINE FOR PARTY

To Celebrate Christmas Season At Orange Hall Saturday Night—Tree For Children.

All local Swedish fraternities will combine for a Christmas party at Orange hall Saturday night, starting at 7 o'clock. Members, families and friends of Scandia Lodge, Linné Lodge, Enighet Lodge, Benevolent Society Segar and Society of Vasa are invited to attend the affair. A Santa Claus will be present and there will be dancing around the Christmas tree for the young people. Music for dancing will be furnished by Carlson and Company of New Britain, accordionsists. The committee in charge consists of Carl E. Thoren, general chairman; Carl A. Anderson, Ernest Johnson, John Polson, Mrs. Carl Thoren, Mrs. Carl J. E. Anderson, John B. Benson, Mrs. Karin Bolin, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Brandt, Mrs. Algot Johnson, Albert Swanson and S. Emil Johnson. Refreshments will be served.

Cherbourg, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Eight tugs towing the wreck of the Liner Atlantic toward Cherbourg, encountered strong adverse currents, which retarded their progress today. They should reach here tomorrow.

Two of the men engaged in the salvage operations were injured, one of them an officer rescued from the Atlantic when she burned in the English Channel Wednesday.

ago, and his son, Calvin, Jr., cut off in young manhood.

No, the National cemetery at Arlington, with customary caisson and military escort, cannot call to its verdant folds that which is mortal of Calvin Coolidge.

Simple Services

Back to the thin surface of soil from which his ancestors fought a livelihood, after simple services in Edwards Congregational church here, will go the body of Calvin Coolidge.

Each Sunday Calvin and Grace Coolidge attended services at the Edwards Congregational church. They left promptly, at the end of the services, before curious or other organs and a choir, Saturday morning. Grace Coolidge had been accustomed to add her voice to that choir and found in the recent Christmas musical program an enchantment obvious to the congregation.

The widespread desire of people in official life to honor the former President will make the funeral a most impressive ceremony despite the desire to keep the services simple and brief.

The Presidential special, carrying President Hoover from Washington, will arrive Saturday morning and another special train, carrying Congressional representatives and other high officials, is expected.

Heartfelt tributes came from throughout the world.

The homelike, back in Coolidge's native Vermont hills, were shocked by the suddenness of his death. There was no comment or visible signs of sorrow in Plymouth, Vt. Men and women went about their chores hiding their feelings, like the man they mourned.

Wife's Husband's Body

Mrs. Coolidge still wore her street costume when she came upon her husband prostrate on the floor. She hurried down the staircase, calling for Harry Ross, who was more than a secretary—perhaps a companion—to the former president.

"She bore up bravely, remarkably bravely," said Ross, afterwards. And then Ross called the family doc-

FINANCIAL NEWS

By AARON COOK

Questions may be submitted to this column. Those questions deemed of group interest will be treated in articles; those deemed otherwise, will be treated individually. Telephone questions to 5961.

The long looked for turn in prices was recorded on Wednesday. Bonds, stocks, starting and commodities were active and strong. Over a hundred shares were traded on the New York Stock Exchange with very substantial gains being made. The local market responded and made a good showing. The way this market can turn about at the present time shows the height of position that it has reached. The local market likely has been taken care of and stocks in most cases are in strong hands. A good sized short account always helps push prices up once they have started. Yesterday, the markets tried to go higher but had not worked. The news of former President Coolidge's death unsettled the rail list. Bonds in general were strong. U. S. Governments were reactionary, it was said a while back, when attention is turned to bonds other than government we can feel assured of a better confidence in investors and look for higher markets.

The Board of Directors of the Hartford Electric Light Company has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2 1/2 cents a share payable February 1, to stock of record January 14, 1933.

Senator Borah seemingly has fallen in line with many other students of economics with the thought that the purchasing power of the dollar should be lowered. He most likely will have a large following for he has mentioned three ways of doing it, which have been propounded continuously by various groups of men who guarantee that they have found the way out of this int. Harv. But it has been said, for every action there is an equal and opposite reaction. This fact holds true in this case. The creditor has loaned that which he has saved from past labors, he has loaned it in times of inflation, his creditor used that money and naturally had to make more with it than he had to make in interest. In boom times the creditor was not receiving his just due, now the shoe is on the other foot and the debtor is paying back from current labors the right to "realize the creditor twice".

It is claimed that devaluating the currency would raise the general price level of the country. If we were sufficient unto ourselves this might be all right but we are not. We have to consider other countries that we sell our products in. The long run determine the price level. The United States had inflation during the World War even though it held to the set gold standard, but it was an inflation much less severe than that which befell every European country off the gold standard. The gold standard at present commands confidence because its history during normal times shows relative stability of the purchasing power of money.

In summary, Senator Borah's plan is a new philosophy an old economic hazard which works for a space of time but has the equal and opposite reaction at some future date.

The stability of the insurance business is attested by the remarkable record that the Travelers Insurance Company has made in the past year. Their income was nearly equivalent to 1931. Their income on investments even surpassed 1929 and shows the soundness of their investment policy. The new life business written proves that we are becoming more and more insurance-minded as a means of providing for our dependents.

An analysis of Travelers for the period from 1910 to 1932 shows that it has an enviable record to its stockholders. If a person had purchased 8 shares of Travelers in 1910 at $850 per share or at a total cost of $6,800—and had taken advantage of its capital increases, he would now own 80 shares at a total cost of $14,000—or an average cost of $175 per share. The total market value of the 80 shares would be approximately $28,000 today. The cash dividends for the 24-year period would be about $30,400.

The young newlyweds set up housekeeping in the famed two-family house which was the Coolidge home all through the days of his governorship up to the time he became vice-president, and to which they returned from the White House. Into this home, as in the White House, she put the charm and graceful dignity bred into her on the wind-swept shores of Lake Champlain in Vermont where she grew into womanhood and attended the university.

Went to Legislature.

A year after her marriage, Calvin Coolidge was elected to the Massachusetts Legislature, and was started on the road to the presidency: Mayor of Northampton, Senator, President of the Senate, Lieutenant-Governor, Governor and Vice-President. And ever by his side, making his home, bearing his children, and adding vivacity and warm social charm to the austere austerity of her husband was Grace Coolidge. Amid the worried days of the Boston police strike when her husband was Chief Executive of the Commonwealth, or the over-crowded days in Washington as the President's wife, she was ever cheerful "home-body," quiet, gracious, and affectionate.

"We New England women cling to the old ways," she once said, "and being the President's wife isn't going to make me think less about the domestic things I've always loved."

Mrs. Coolidge had that rare and unique quality of being able to be the wife of a great and illustrious man and yet maintain her own individuality.

HOCKANUM MILLS LEAD IN RECOVERY

Picked As Woolens Representative In "Buy American League."

The Hockanum Mills Company of Rockville, one of the leading woolen and worsted concerns in New England, headed by Colonel Francis T. Maxwell, is to be invited to be the woolen concern in the organization of the "Buy American League" to hasten recovery of business. The Hockanum Mills Company has made the greatest progress in recovery of the woolen business and at the present time are running their seven factories, all located in Rockville, to full capacity.

The fundamental purpose of the "Buy American League, Inc." is to make "Americans-American Conscious" according to the leaders who are working with the manufacturers and merchants in Connecticut at the present time.

No profits

This is a non-profit organization and it is being organized for the purpose of alleviating conditions for the manufacturer and working man so they can enjoy American Standards of living. Many prominent businessmen have signified their intentions of assisting the work started by the leaders of this league.

This league is fundamentally a Connecticut organization which it is hoped to make into a national organization. It was started about December 1st by J. A. Roberts, president of The Smith-Worthington Saddlery Co., of Hartford, in cooperation with a group of Connecticut manufacturers and merchants.

A bill is being prepared to be introduced into the Connecticut General Assembly to compel all merchants, selling goods to the American public, to have a card at least 9 by 12 inches on their counters, where foreign goods are sold, stating the origin of the goods.

To advertise

The radio is to be used in conjunction with the newspapers in bringing before the American public the necessity of supporting American industries. The public are to be urged to make their purchases of merchandise in places of business where placards are on display in the windows stating they are handling American-made goods.

At the present time Fred W. Hurley and Frank J. Donahue, the latter a brother of State Athletic Commissioner Thomas Donahue, are working with Mr. Roberts in the organization of this league. They are canvassing the political leaders of both parties at the Connecticut General Assembly seeking support.

Labor has endorsed this move 100 per cent. No fees or dues are collected from the manufacturers or merchants joining this league.

Information is being transmitted to the general public through personal letters to different communities seeking leaders to support the movement. No opposition has been confronted at the present time.

Postal Increase

An increase of revenues for the fiscal year of 1932 to the amount of close to five hundred dollars was evident at the Rockville Post Office yesterday in the report submitted by Postmaster George E. Dickinson.

Notwithstanding depression the net increase, totaling $432.19 has been due to the success of the local factories in keeping in operation. The total business for the year amounted to $27,684.22.

A. of alone was there a general increase for the year but the month of December with receipts totaling $4,519, showed an increase of $217.66 over the same month in 1931.

Other departments of the post office, including money orders and registered letter departments, showed no material change.

New Town Counsel

Attorney Benjamin J. Ackerman has been appointed Town Counsel of the Town of Vernon, which includes the city of Rockville, to succeed Attorney John B. Thomas who resigned. The appointment was made by the Board of Selectmen, headed by First Selectman Francis J. Prichard.

Attorney John B. Thomas, who holds the office of town clerk, town treasurer, prosecuting attorney and other minor offices, resigned recently because of impaired health. Mr. Thomas has held the position of town counsel since the death of Attorney Dennis J. McCarthy two years ago. Mr. Thomas will continue to hold the other offices for the present.

Superior Court Cases

Held under a cash bond of but one dollar on an appeal of a fine of but one dollar, Mrs. Namie Larson of Ivorytown, Conn., who was arrested on November 6 last, charged with solicitation of money for alleged religious purposes illegally, will be brought before the Tolland County Superior Court.

The case is scheduled for presentation on Tuesday next before Judge Ernest A. Ingles, of Middletown, by States Attorney Michael D. O'Connell of Stafford Springs.

This case has attracted much attention as Mrs. Larson was one of the 100 "Jehovah Witnesses" who came to Rockville for the solicitation of funds. This case is similar to the one about a year ago, prosecuted by States Attorney Thomas F. Noone, resulting in a conviction. No fine was imposed at the time.

Eight criminal cases are to be presented at the opening of the term, which was postponed from Jan. 3, because of the illness of Judge Ingles. The criminal cases are to be presented as follows:

State vs. Harry Silverstein, of Bolton, charged with violation of the liquor law.

State vs. Mrs. Esther Silverstein, charged with assault, breach of peace, resisting an officer.

State vs. Agnes Petkevich, of Ellington, alias Agnes Markewich, charged with fornication.

State vs. Peter Malchuh, of Ellington, charged with fornication.

State vs. Louis Sherman, charged with violation of the rules of the road. (This case resulted from an accident at Dobsonville).

State vs. Harry W. Brown, charged with breach of peace.

State vs. Namie Larson, charged with the unlawful solicitation of money for alleged religious purposes.

State vs. Fred Burnham, charged with falsifying a license.

State vs. George Brown, charged with breach of peace and assault.

In addition to the criminal business to be heard at this session, a short calendar session will be held at which time cases will be assigned for trial.

Two jury cases are also asking assignment for the present term of the court, as follows:

Annie Stone vs. M. A. Gammino Construction Company with Attorney L. Libby appearing for plaintiff and Attorney Charles J. Fowler for defendant.

Mary Rankin vs. Thomas V. Holden, administrator, with Attorneys Benjamin J. Ackerman for the plaintiff and Attorney W. J. Shea of Manchester for defendant.

Educational Board Meeting

A meeting of the Vernon School Board of Education, the Civic Betterment Association of Vernon was given permission to use the Dobsonville schoolhouse for its meetings. The vote was taken favorably because of the fact that the association is doing such constructive work in that vicinity. The school nurse reported that 638 children had been weighed and measured, of whom 46 had been found underweight and 83 overweight. Dr. Frank M. Dickinson and Dr. T. P. O'Loughlin have made twelve inspections during the past two months. The truant officer has made 23 investigations. The Parent-Teachers Association of Vernon has donated $35 for the purchase of paper cups for the rural schools. These have been installed at the Ogden Corner, Dobsonville, Center and Depot schools.

"Hello Old Potato!"

And Al Smith would certainly have had opportunity to say it thousands of times at Hale's during the past two days—and really mean it! The response to our "bring a potato from home" drive has been more than generous. Remember! Hale's match every potato you give and make distribution of the collection to needy Manchester families. Just take a potato along with you tomorrow when you shop Hale's. Drop your potato into the barrels which you will find at each entrance and in the Grocery Department. This plan has the full approval of the Manchester Charity Department.

OWNER IN PRISON; RACE HORSES IDLE

Chicago, Jan 5.—(AP)—More than two score royally bred horses, many of them of racing age, are going to waste within a few miles of Chicago and its half dozen racing plants.

The horses belong to Terry Druggan and they are eating up oats at his Sanola farm northwest of Chicago. Druggan can't do anything about the situation, for he is in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas., serving a term for violation of the income tax law, and no one else seems to be in a position to do anything.

Several years ago, Druggan, identified the police said with unlawful activity. As a nation for the farm, Druggan purchased Sanola, a sensational mare, and there is now an untried three year old and a two year old by the pair, eating and wondering what it's all about.

The lines of Kentucky Cardinal and Sanola may have produced something great in the way of race horses, but no one has done a thing about it, beyond seeing that they are fed and kept in good health.

AMERICAN LEAGUE TEAMS HAVE MADE NUMEROUS CHANGES

President Believes This Year Will Bring a Much Better Balanced Race As Result of Player Trades.

By WILLIAM HARRIDGE (President, American League) Chicago, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A much better balanced race is my forecast for 1933 in the American League. A year ago, I predicted the Athletics would have more competition than during the previous three seasons.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

George Herman Ruth will be 39 years old Feb. 7. On the same day another old reformed left-handed pitcher will observe (not celebrate) his 40th year of life—Charles Devine Jameson.

Mr. Ruth looks forward to another big year in the big show, perhaps his last, but very remunerative just the same.

Mr. Jameson, unconditionally released by the Cleveland Indians the other day, can have no expectations of another season up there. He still is suffering the effects of sinus trouble that sent him home before the season of 1932 was completed.

When spring rolls around, the Babe will get together with Colonel Ruppert and a dozen photographers in some hotel at St. Petersburg, and sign a year's contract for something like $70,000 calling for him to park his huge frame in the Yankee outfield for another year.

Several years ago, on the way to the ball park in New Orleans where the Indians conduct their spring maneuvers, several of the players fell to kidding about the "old man" in the game.

Jamie popped right out with the answer to that one. Said he: "I'm going to play ball as long as they'll let me—major, minor, semi-pro, sandlot, pavement."

Jamie would say that, and that's what he'll do. That much-abused expression, "He loves the game," really applies to the little guy who was the last of the Indian champion team of 1920 to leave. He was always the last guy to give up in any game. He played it as hard as he could, and he will keep on doing that wherever he is.

Another Game It is a bit hard to picture him behind a counter in that grocery store in Paterson, N. J., a business in which he invested some of his baseball earnings. The old ball hawk, soaring across the reaches of greenward in pursuit of a flying white speck, the dirt and slide across the turf... with outstretched glove... just making the catch!

That old somersault catch of Jamie's remains a picture that I will never forget. One of the finest he ever made was in a game with the Athletics four years ago. It had been a wild battle, the teams exchanging the lead, every two innings. Finally, in the eighth, the Indians managed to squeeze a run across that gave them a slight margin.

In the ninth the A's filled the bases. Two were out. Max Bishop hit a low liner that barely escaped the leaping shortstop's glove. Jamie came in flying for what seemed an impossible effort.

The expanse of ground between that tearing figure and the curving white streak seemed endless... and the ball was falling too swiftly.

He left his feet, slid headlong on elbows and chest... so tense was the silence of suspense that you could hear the ball crack into glove... and Jamie came up with the old grin. Another ball game!

Major, minor, semi-pro, sandlot, pavement... Jamie will go in search of another ball game now... and from now on.

HERALD TEAM LOSES THRILLING BATTLE

Newsies Bow To Joe's Service Station, 40-36, After Leading At Half.

The Herald Newsboys, despite the fact that they used twelve men in the game could not locate a David in their ranks who could bring down Goliath in the form of Welles, playing center for Joe's Service Station at the Y. M. C. A. gym last night. As a result, the Newsies went down to defeat, 40 to 36.

BE CIVILIZED, SNAKE. New York—John McHale's pet rattlesnake relapsed into its wild state. It would have proved fatal to McHale had it not been for the fact that the poison sacs had been removed from the snake's fangs.

McHale had the snake at the garage where he is a mechanic. When he lifted the snake it struck at him and its fangs punctured his chin. McHale's friends, thinking the snake poisonous, called an ambulance.

THE TINYMITES. Story by HAL COCHRAN. Drawings by GEORGE SCARBO.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The Tinymites ran right up to do?" asked Duncy. "We can run and slide upon a stretch of ice."

"Now, wait a minute," Freesy said. "A thought has popped into my head. It's something that I'm sure each one of you will think is nice."

"You Tinymites can wait right here. A dandy sled is very near and I am going to get it. Then the real fun's bound to start."

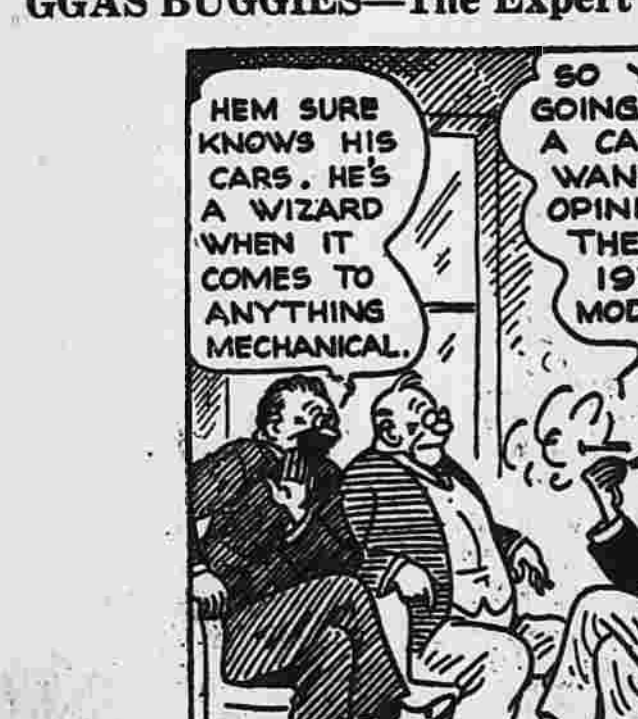

He raced away, but soon returned. Said Duncy, "I have always yearned to ride upon a sled like that, that will not fall apart."

The sled had handles in the rear. Kind Freesy shouted, "I stand here, while all the rest of you pile on. I'll steer the sled, you see."

And so the Tinymites bobbed ahead. "We're set for us," Freesy roared. And, as they started moving, everybody shouted, "Whee!"

(The Tinymites take a funny spill in the next story.)

SENSE AND NONSENSE

We'd like to ask you this: Have any of your friends or neighbors ever dropped in to borrow your weekly collection of handbills or circular letters that some users seem to think are as good as advertising in your home paper?

Man—Bill hung up his stockings on Christmas eve.
Neighbor—What did he get?
Man—A notice from the health department.

A local man is refreshingly frank and said today: "If I could live my life over again I probably would be a failure again."

He—When the elevator fell with you I suppose all your sins flashed before your eyes?
She—Not at all. We only dropped five stories.

Look Around You.
Life should be full of earnest work. Our hearts unshaken by fortune's frown. Let perseverance conquer fate, And merit seize the victor's crown. The battle is not to the strong, The race not always to the fleet, And he who seeks to pluck the stars May lose the jewels at his feet.

The difference between getting a job and getting a husband these days, giggles Giggling Gerie, is that it is difficult to find a job you can keep and equally as difficult to find a husband who can keep you.

Man—My wife is having hysterics! Can you let me have something to quiet her?
Neighbor—Sorry, old man, but I haven't got a cent!

During the day Mrs. Brown discharged her old maid and hired a new one, who answered the door bell when Mr. Brown arrived home in the evening. He carried a bunch of roses, which he handed to the maid, saying:
Mr. Brown—Present these to Mrs. Brown, telling her I want to see her at once.
New Maid—All right, but you better make it snappy, because she expects the old man any minute now.

The following amusing epitaph was noticed on the tombstones of Solomon Pease, in the Springfield, Illinois, cemetery, not far from the tomb of President Abraham Lincoln. The epitaph was said to have been written by Mr. Pease himself a number of years before his death:

Under this sod, and under these trees,
Here lies the pod of Solomon Pease;
He is not in this hole—it's only his pod.
He's shelled out his soul and gone up to God.

Time was when a girl took a husband "for better or worse." Now it appears that she has taken him for wetter or worse.

Floor-walker (to a harassed-looking customer)—Are you looking for something in men's clothing, sir?
Mere Man—Certainly not. I'm looking for something in women's clothing. I've lost my wife.

A boy in the natural history class was asked to describe a skunk. He wrote:
"A skunk is a small animal with a bushy tail and a white stripe down its back. It looks like a cat and is quite beautiful. But it eats asparagus."

HARD ON HUBBY

"Do you find it more economical to do your own cooking?"
"Certainly. Since I have been cooking, my husband eats only half as much as he used to."—Hummel, Hamburg.

AMPLE PROOF

CUSTOMER: And do you recommend this sleeping mixture?
DRUGGIST: Yes, sir. We give an alarm clock with every bottle.—Tit-Bits.

FROM HEAD TO FEET

LEADING ACTRESS: I could hardly get my shoes on this morning.

CHORUS GIRL: What? Swelled feet as well?—Tit-Bits.
