SATURDAY, JANUARY 7.
TAX REFUNDS

There popped up in the United States Senate on Wednesday, in an interval of the filibuster of Senator Long and others against the Glass banking bill, a subject than which none is more profoundly obscure and puzzling to the American people.

Mr. McKellar of Tennessee was trying to engineer an amendment to the first deficiency appropriation bill. His measure was calculated to prevent the payment of tax refunds of more than relatively small amounts without having them become matter of public record in the Court of Tax Appeals or without the approval of that body.

One point brought out by Mr. McKellar and denied by no one was that during the last nine years tax refunds and abatement to the extent of no less a total than the staggering sum of four billion dollars has been made by the government—astonishingly without any detailed knowledge of the proceedings on the part of any really responsible member of the government at all.

I am sorry I have not the testimony of Mr. McLean, of Mr. Bond, the assistant secretary, or Mr. Blair, the internal revenue commissioner at that time and the testimony of a solicitor of the Treasury department. It is all in the Record. I brought it to the attention of the Senate on a previous occasion and I will refer to it again.

Asked if he did not think that was a monstrous thing Mr. McKellar said: "I think it is the most monstrous thing I have ever known of here for nine years but this is the first time the Senate has ever really listened to me about it."

The Tennessee having conveyed the impression that the refunds and statements had practically deprived the Treasury of an average of close to half a billion dollars a year for nine years, Senator Smooth asserted that most of the refunds are accountable for on the ground that they never should have been assessed. They come about because of taxes which were paid under jeopardy assessments in the early beginning of the income tax law.

the process by which refunds are made. If his explanation was by way of news to the members of the Senate it will probably be news anywhere. He said:

A field agent of the bureau makes investigation throughout the field. When he comes to a case where he thinks too much money has been paid to the government he takes up the matter with the board of review in the field. If it approves the recommendation of the field agent, then reports the case to Washington.

It was brought out, however, in the debate, that the Joint Committee has no real authority over the machinery of refunds and could not prevent even if it disapproved of it. Its operation therefore is largely perfunctory.

What we said yesterday about the pending farm parity bill applies and always has applied to the federal income tax law. It tries to do about a hundred times too many things. It is about a hundred times too complicated.

Instead of trying to reform the tax handling situation in the Treasury department by sniping operations like McKellar's the law should be rewritten—preferably by some intelligent small town lawyer who knows how to draw a city ordinance.

The legislative measure amending the charter of the Ninth School District by eliminating the school committee, which has become a ghost through the operation of school consolidation, is a logical step in the gradual advancement of this community into a unified municipality.

It is fitting that the recreational and library activities of the district should be merged in the same body but there is really no very good reason why these services should be combined with the administration of the South Manchester Fire District, a move which may have suggested itself to some as logical while we are on the way toward centralization.

It will probably not be many years in any event before further unification of the town's scattered controls will make its desirability obvious and there is no doubt that with this charter change the South End's special interests can be satisfactorily handled for some time to come.

AS TO PRISONERS
A certain large American city is having quite a time these days because the sheriff is accused of setting too good a table in the county jail.
It was discovered, not long ago, that more was being spent, per capita, on food in the county jail than on food for jobless men at the city's unemployment relief stations.

It is very easy to arouse public indignation by the charge that law-breakers are being coddled. It is almost impossible to make more than a very few people angry by charging that law-breakers are being mistreated.

As the hour when a new administration will take office at Washington draws nearer, it is increasingly reported that one of the first things the new administration will do is to recognize the Soviet government of Russia.

In the first place, it is slightly absurd for Washington to pretend that a government as firmly established as that of Russia has no official existence. And in the second place, non-recognition has cost American industry a good many million dollars in the last two or three years.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 14.—There is, perhaps, no better instance of Manhattan's jolting memory than the case of Texas Guinan.

All right—whatever did become of Tex Guinan? At the Lament she is back in Montreal with the girls who have been given such a walloping that it is said to be a bit of a "kresome."

There may be one or two or a dozen rouders who, passing certain spots, may say: "Oh, yes, that was Guinan's old place. To the transient, it's just another door."

Guinan's place, even as she boasted, was filled with "suckers." Suckers' money was all over the town. The market was booming. Gents who are leaning against down town buildings today were cashing in on Anaconda, American Can, Steel and the rest.

OH, MY GOODNESS!
The lights in the crowded bus had failed, and it was rush hour. "Can I help you find a strap?" a tall stranger inquired of the young lady who had got on at the last stop.

THE CURE OF MEASLES

Measles spreads so rapidly that one case of measles in a schoolroom of youngsters is almost as infectious as a lighted firecracker in a box of unlighted firecrackers.

Measles occurs most frequently between the years of six and ten, or the first years of grammar school, but the disease may occur at any age, and every once in a while an adult may be attacked.

In most cities, epidemics of measles may run through the school on the average of every two years. This is explained by the extremely epidemic nature of this disease.

Fortunately, Nature seems to have provided a safety period for young babies during the first four or five months, during which time the infant is very unlikely to catch measles.

The majority of measles cases occur during the winter and early spring. The first indications of measles are usually a catarrhal discharge of the nose, accompanied by sore spots in the mouth known as Koplik's spots.

At the first symptoms of the disease the child should be given frequent small enemas, at least two or three times daily.

When Should We Eat?
Question: Bertha M. asks: "Should one eat his meal if it is time but he is not hungry?"

Answers: There would not be much sickness nor many digestive disorders if people would eat only when hungry. Appetite and hunger are quite different, but you should and to practice in principle, is to increase your exercises each day, both by taking calisthenic exercises and by long walks.

Diverticulum of Esophagus
Question: Mrs. Y. asks: "What kind of a diet would you advise for one afflicted with diverticulum of the esophagus?"

Answer: About the best diet regimen for diverticulum of the esophagus is a short orange juice fast of about five days followed by the milk diet for a period of several weeks or even months until the digestive difficulties become lessened.

Behind the Scenes in WASHINGTON

By ROONEY DUCHER, NEA Service Writer

Washington.—The speakership of the next House, a position of enormous power because of the huge Democratic majority coming in, is still a prize at stake.

Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey of Illinois has been fishing a bit among the new members and appears to have had excellent luck, since he has announced promises of support from 166 Congressmen—a majority of the 312.

There are some minor candidates in the field who still seem to clutter up the picture, and if the House gets into another budget-balancing bledium this session there are likely to be developments bearing importantly on the speakership.

Joe Byrns of Tennessee, popular and powerful chairman of the Appropriations Committee, and John McDuffie of Alabama, Speaker Garner's close friend and the Democratic whip, are the other important candidates.

Some Democrats think it is important that Rainey forego the speakership to accept chairmanship of the tax-proposing, tariff-making Ways and Means Committee, since Bob Doughton, the big picturesque North Carolina stock raiser, led the insurgent Democrats in last year's sales tax revolt and voted for the soldier bonus.

It is reported that the Rainey and McDuffie forces might be willing to get together on that basis, the Alabama taking the speakership position. Or that a group supporting William B. Bankhead of Alabama, who withdrew from the speakership fight but is highly regarded, might help put Rainey over in return for the leadership over in return for the leadership for Bankhead.

It Rainey should lose that to a southerner and take the chairmanship to which he is now entitled; the leading candidates would be Cullen of New York and McCormack of Massachusetts.

WHITE HYACINTHS to feed the soul

A GREAT department store, one of the largest in the country, published a most unusual advertisement. "Buy something you don't need," it read. And there is a sound and worthy philosophy, beneath that seemingly cold and calloused plea... a philosophy that has endured for centuries.

"If I had two loaves," wrote the Persian poet, Sadi of Shiraz, "I would sell one, and buy white hyacinths, to feed my soul." And throughout all history, men have sold their loaves to buy white hyacinths.

We would modify the exhortation of the department store. Buy something you could do without, but something you very much want. . . . The antique chair you've been promising yourself. The new carpeting for the dining-room. . . . The electric grandfather's clock, or the sterling silver.

Values were never so great, for the amount expended, as now. You have only to turn to the advertisements in this newspaper to be convinced. Here is written a story too important for you to miss. And very often you will find you may keep both loaves. . . . and have your hyacinths as well.

Condition Of State Roads

Road conditions and detours in the State of Connecticut had necessary highway construction announced by the Connecticut Highway Department as of January 11, 1933.

Connecticut At The Capital

Washington, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Leaders of Connecticut Democracy will share in the brilliant inauguration ceremonies March 4, marking the close of 12 years of Republican rule.

Headed by Governor Wilbur L. Cross, who reserved a hotel suite for the occasion nearly a year ago, dozens of officials and private citizens from the Nutmeg state are planning to attend the capital's quadrennial spectacle.

The inauguration committees here has been notified by National Committee Archibald McNeil that Dr. E. G. Dolan of South Manchester, will serve as chairman of the Connecticut committee.

While Democrats are holding their jubilee services during the first week of March, other Connecticut groups will be leaving public service.

Some of the "lame duck" members of Congress already have started to pack their personal belongings but the Connecticut men are planning to carry on to the last minute.

The government provides each outgoing Congressman with a sizeable trunk in which to store his books and papers. Even that piece of baggage however, will not hold the large bust of George Washington which each member was given during the bicentennial celebration.

Disposal of that object of art is causing some of the men concern.

Meanwhile the Connecticut Representatives have a thousand and one forcible reminders that nearly seven weeks remain in their terms.

At present most of the requests concern the War Department supply bill. Friends of National Guardsmen and American Legion members from all parts of the state are flooding the Congressmen with appeals not to cut the appropriations for the various service units and with pleas to reinstate the funds for the citizens military training camps.
