SILK INDUSTRY ON THE UPTURN THINK LEADERS

aid the present situation pointing out that too many are "payment bound." Gibson said he and several other factors bringing back prosperity. Gov. A. Barry Moore, of New Jersey pleaded with silk executives for confidence. National Democratic Chairman James A. Farley said that President-elect Roosevelt would "toe to no procrastination in his construction effort to bring about restoration on a sound and equitable basis." Farley added his own belief that the textile and silk industries would lead in the return of general prosperity.

Asks Co-operation
Pauline Geril, president of the Silk Association, urged co-operation rather than "ruthless competition and frank avowal of the interdependence of our interests." Despite her own plea for co-operation, Geril said she believed that silk "has its field and will continue to have it."

HOOVER, ROOSEVELT ARE IN ACCORD ON BRITISH WAR DEBT

was one to be discussed between the United States and individual debtor nations.

Although both Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt were represented as feeling that the problem of debts could not be divorced entirely from the world economic conference, it was said that an agreement was reached that no direct debt discussions should take place at the projected world parley.

Besides France, the countries which default on their December 15th payment were Belgium, Hungary, Poland, and Estonia. The total defaults were $24,996,511. Those countries which paid their installments besides Great Britain, were Czechoslovakia, Finland, Italy, Lithuania and Latvia. The total amount received was $38,885,910 of which the British paid $85,550,000.

Poland notified the Treasury September 15 that it would take advantage of the optional clause of the debt agreement to postpone $1,120,000 of the principal due for the period of two years. Latvia similarly postponed $37,000 in principal and Estonia $90,000.

To meet its payment the British earmarked gold in the Bank of England for the account of the Federal Reserve banks of New York which in turn credited it to the Treasury. Great Britain's appeals for a debt review in its notes before the payment of the December 15 installment were the basis upon which the decision was made to discuss the matter with that country "early in March."

The appeals of Great Britain for debt reconstruction were similar to those made by other debtor nations who were seeking an extension of the moratorium. Similar Requests
Both nations which paid their December 15 installments and those which defaulted made similar requests.

In all the American reply Secretary Stimson urged that the payments due on December 15 be made to create a better atmosphere for the consideration of proposals for a readjustment of debt arrangements. On December 11 Secretary Stimson wrote to the British government that "a great importance is attached by our government and people to the maintenance of the original debt agreement in force and that a satisfactory approach to the whole question would be greatly increased by the pursuance of such a policy. It would seem to me, therefore to be undesirable that any steps be taken which, by causing misunderstanding, would increase the difficulties that must be overcome in finding an ultimate solution satisfactory to both nations."

TALES WITH SENATOR
Washington, Jan. 20.—(AP)—President-elect Roosevelt informed Senator Robinson of the debt floor leader, this morning that he was anxious for enactment before March 4 of the farm relief bill now in Senate committee and of projected legislation reviving bankruptcy laws.

Starting on the day that was to carry him to the White House for discussion of "foreign affairs" with President Hoover, the next Chief Executive gave his time to the legislation. He was in the legislative jam on Capitol Hill. On departing from the hotel room where their meeting took place, Senator Robinson said: "The President-elect is anxious to see as much legislation disposed of at this session as possible."

"It will be my purpose to carry out his desires." He declines to be specific as to what bills Mr. Roosevelt wished passed other than the farm relief measure and the bankruptcy bill. Brief Farleys
As on yesterday, one after another caller spent a few minutes with the President-elect, including General John J. Pershing, who will lead the inaugural parade March 4. Others were Senator Burkhead of Ohio, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; E. A. O'Neal, of the Farm Bureau Federation; Representatives McPherson, Oliver and Bendler, all of Alabama; McClintock of Oklahoma; Stovick of New York; and Douglas of Arizona, Democrats; Kvale,

NOTED FINANCIER, NORMAN, TO MARRY

friend of Mr. Norman's family, she has been active in public affairs and is at present a member of the London Society Council.
The unexpected announcement of Montagu Norman's approaching marriage is in character with this "mystery man" of world finance. He has been governor of the Bank of England for thirteen years, but although the bank itself is one of the most conservative institutions in the world Mr. Norman is like a figure out of a mystery novel. He looks like a retired sea captain and there are those who describe his appearance as that of a romantic poet or a dashing gun runner.

World Picture of Him
His trim, pointed beard, his dark piercing eyes, his long, nervous fingers which tap on the table when he is impatient are familiar in the highest financial places of the world. He wears an old-fashioned tie threaded through a golden ring and he never fits in with the accepted conservative correctness of the London business man.

Time after time he has gone off in intriguing secrecy, dressed in his black coat and his black sombrero hat to Paris or Berlin or New York, but the steamship passenger list never bears his name. He is "Mr. M. Collet." Collet is his middle name.
When an important banker comes over to talk with him Mr. Norman would rather conduct the conversations in secret anywhere but at his office in the Bank of England.

More than once he has stopped an Atlantic liner in the middle of the English channel, clambered down a ladder to a motor boat and dashed back to England, his coat and a foreign financial giant completed on the ship. He professes to dislike publicity, but he gets more of it than Lawrence of Arabia. The directors of the Bank of England think they could never get along without him.

JAPAN CALLS OUT ITS ARMY RECRUITS

predicted it would take two or three years and 80,000 Japanese soldiers to suppress "banditry" in Jehol.

Using Airplanes
Airplanes flew ahead of the Japanese converged today at Chihai, the newly disclosed concentration point.
A cavalry regiment from Chinchow and infantry detachments from Lienhsan moved westward to the border to join a cavalry brigade which "mopped up" the border in a northward advance from Shanhsikwan.

It met with opposition at Chumonkwo, where it left the Great Wall of China, and at Yungnanpo, both of which were occupied last week. Japanese bombing planes attacked those towns to clear the way for the cavalry. Native Manchurian troops, stationed at both points as garrisons, were holding those towns today.

Other Contacts
Dispatches from Chinchow indicated their contacts since then between the advancing Japanese column and Chinese. General Cheng Kuelin was reported as commander of the Chinese forces in that area.

Meanwhile, another Japanese concentration point was at Tungliac, near the northeast Jehol boundary and about 200 miles north of the Chinese concentration. Japanese planes there crossed the border and bombed Chinese troops in the Kailu district.
This the Japanese believed, prevented an attack by the Chinese on Tungliac. Japanese citizens in that city were ordered to seek safety in the barracks. There were no reports of activity today.

Japan accused the Chinese force near Kailu, estimated at 85,000 under command of General Chu Ching-Lun, of planning depredations on the railroads centering at Tungliac. (Chinese dispatches said General Chu's troops, on the contrary, were digging in to prevent an expected Chinese advance into the province. Kailu is on the main route from the northeast to Jehol City, capital of the province.)

NUMBER IN ALMSHOUSE LARGEST IN HISTORY

28 Men and Women Live At Home On East Middle Turnpike Now, It Is Learned.
The number of patients at the Manchester Almshouse on East Middle Turnpike is the largest since the building was founded, it was learned today. There were 28 men and women at the home last week but the number is one less today because one of the inmates found a job for himself.

When Mr. and Mrs. Abram L. Oliver came to take charge of the town farm eight years ago, there were but 13 persons living there. Mrs. Oliver has been confined to her bed for several days with an attack of the grip but she sent out word today that all of the 24 men and three women living there are in fine health. Only last week, Dr. D. C. V. Moore examined all of the inmates.
A few have to use crutches or canes but none of them are confined to their beds. There is one case of arthritis, but this woman is able to join the rest for her meals. The ages of the men and women run from 55 to 83 although a short time ago a man 21 years old stayed there a few days. The inmates on the whole are a jolly group and keep themselves contented with reading, sewing and doing odd jobs about the house or farm.

New York, Jan. 20.—The New York Central Co. has obtained a loan of $2,000,000 from the Railroad Credit Corporation to meet interest charges. It was announced today, Baltimore and Ohio is applying for a $1,000,000 loan for similar purposes. The former road contributed $6,000,000 and the latter about $4,000,000 to the Railroad Credit Corporation in 1933, so that the roads are reclaiming in this form portions of their own earnings.
Stocks of lead in the United States at the end of December were 175,821 short tons compared with 174,529 at the end of 1931, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports. December production was 24,863 tons against 27,333 in November and 37,607 in December, 1931.

FAMOUS INVENTOR DIES IN NEW YORK

Augustine Davis Who Discovered Acetylene Lighting and Welding Processes.
New York, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Augustine Davis, who invented and manufactured acetylene lighting and welding apparatus, is dead. He succumbed yesterday at his home in his 82nd year.

A native of Ellader, Ia., he lived for a time at Dubuque, moving to Galeville, Wis., in 1867. He later organized the Galeville Independent, now the Galeville Republican.
Two years after marrying Miss Sarah A. Crouch in Galeville in 1878, he emigrated with his wife to Huron, Dakota Territory. He had extensive newspaper and business projects there and was a leader in the movement which obtained the division of the territory and ultimately the admission of South Dakota as a state.

A few years later he became publisher of the National Journalist in Chicago and still later, in Lewistown, N. Y., he organized and published the Lewistown Searchlight and the Dewey Herald. He took a leading part in the construction of the Niagara power canal.
After inventing the acetylene lighting generator in Chicago, he formed, in Elkhart, Ind., the Davis Acetylene Company.
He also had several other business interests. His winter home was at Coral Gables, Fla.

There are more than 1,024,000 persons by the name of Johnson in the United States.

FIND LADY BAILEY IN AFRICAN DESERT

out cracking up in that section of the Alps where he was operating. Had New Club Captain Hoppe believed he had a new clue indicating Hinkler fell in the mountains south of the Wetterhorn, the most imposing of the Swiss Alps.
Hinkler was lost after starting from London in an attempt to lower C. W. A. Scott's Englishman's record of less than nine days, falling to reach Brindisi, Italy, his scheduled first stop, the search for him began in the Alps.
Although Lady Bailey, South African aviator and mother of five children, failed to beat Army Mollison's record when it was almost within her grasp, her flight of 1,600 miles over the Sahara Desert was acclaimed as a splendid achievement.
It was learned she strayed 350 miles off her course; otherwise she would have had an excellent chance of success.
She was found uninjured, 15 miles southwest of Tahoua, in Niger Colony, French West Africa.
She was overcome with relief when rescuers reached her, the Paris edition of the London Daily Mail said. She was standing beside her tiny machine, miles from even the most remote outpost. She had endured choking sandstorms, and tropical heat in the day time and bitter cold at night with only the plane as shelter.
She was taken in a caterpillar car to Tahoua. French cavalry and the native camel corps and French airplanes conducted an intensive search for her over the vast desert but it was considered remarkable they were able to find her. She was in one of the most desolate regions of the Sahara.

VIRGINIA SUSPECT TO BE SENT BACK into the Haley cottage but that he didn't want to go because he once worked there.

"Crawford claims," Galleher said, "that he watched outside while Jackson went in the house. Jackson, Crawford said, went into a kitchen and down a corridor toward a bedroom. Crawford said he heard a scream and that Jackson came running out to the kitchen as he stood in the doorway."
"The two then went back toward the bedroom and Crawford said he saw Mrs. Haley there on the floor near her bed and thought she was dead. Crawford said he took a wrist watch and $5 from a pocket-book and that both returned to the kitchen. Jackson, he said, returned to the bedroom for more loot."
Galleher said Crawford told him they then left in Mrs. Haley's car, drove toward Washington and deserted the machine on the Virginia side of the Potomac.
"Crawford said he had a fuss with Jackson in Washington," Galleher said. "He would take his freight to Philadelphia. He (Crawford) then made his way to Boston."
The Virginia attorney said the stone Crawford claimed Jackson had in his possession during the murders had not been found but that the negro said he "could take him there" where it is if I took him there."
Galleher said a blood-stained boot jack had been found in Mrs. Haley's room.
Crawford is being held without bail pending a hearing on the fugitive charge.

BALEMAN'S GIFT QUICKLY ACCEPTED

People are in a mood to take things nowadays. A salesman called at a local home recently with the usual line: "My company wishes to make you a present; certainly you cannot refuse to accept. Now here is the plan."
Wherever he placed an electric lamp on the table, and described how the "gift" was to be made. After the salesman had told his story, the man of the house quietly said, "Thank you," and then added, "Now try and get it."

nation for the freely admitted incapacity to pay. In the long run, of course, she will see the error of her way and will be glad to pay her honest debts. Only thus can she retrieve her credit, honor and self-respect.
"In any event, the American people will never consent to reduction or cancellation. The money is due to the taxpayers of America." Despite America's "unheard of generosity" in postponing debt payments over 63 years and fixing the amounts to be paid, Robinson said, "we have not only the debtors content with but propagandists throughout the length and breadth of America who are apparently far more interested in European warfare than that of our own people."
"The international bankers continue ceaselessly to spread the propaganda that these debts should be cancelled for the good of Europe and transferred to the backs of our own overburdened people. Of course, they have a selfish interest in the matter."
"They have lent hundreds of millions of dollars privately to foreign governments and their people and they believe their chances for receiving payment of these private loans will be enhanced if the taxpayers of America can be sacrificed."
"Nations may default in payment of their honest debts to the United States if they insist on doing so, but the American people will go on their way refusing to permit either reduction or cancellation. Proudly conscious of the fact that they are undertaking to set up a standard of honor and decency by which they themselves are not willing to be judged."

UNUSUAL MUSIC SERVICE HERE SUNDAY EVENING

Organist Byles of the South Methodist Church Arranges Numbers From Cantata.

G. Huntington Byles, acting organist and choir leader of the South Methodist church, is arranging a program for Sunday evening at 7:30 which those who enjoy the beautiful in music will not care to miss. The principal feature will be the cantata from the cantata, "Cantata of the Sun" by Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, president of the church. Mrs. Beach has been responsible for many compositions of merit. It is generally acknowledged that this work is her finest by musical authorities and critics. Miss Eleanor Willard will sing the soprano solo, and Miss Mary M. M. will sing the alto solo. The cantata number "Cantata of the Sun" is by Bach.

An invitation is extended to all to attend this well balanced musical service. Mrs. Beach's composition has not heretofore been sung in this vicinity, and the choir of the South Methodist church has graciously accepted an invitation to repeat it Sunday evening, January 29, at the Congregational church in New London.

276 EMPLOYED TODAY UNDER M.E.E.A. PROJECTS

Number Will Be Increased Next Week. It Is Expected—Next Meeting Next Friday.

Work was begun Wednesday morning on Broad street under the new allotment made by the Board of Selectmen last Tuesday night. No increase in the number of workmen will be made until next week. The total number employed today on the Broad street extension, Center Springs Park, and miscellaneous jobs, is 276.

The highway committee of the Board of Selectmen will inspect the Brookfield extension job, negotiated by the Works Creation committee of the M. E. E. A. last Tuesday night at the Selectmen's meeting, and upon their favorable recommendation, the Selectmen will allot a sum not to exceed $5,000 for this work. It was reported by the committee that the nature of the work on Brookfield street was suitable for the employment of a considerable number of laborers.

The next meeting of the directors of the M. E. E. A. will be held Friday afternoon, Jan. 27, in the office of Superintendent of Schools, F. A. Verplank.

SLAYER EXECUTED
Three Rivers, Que., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Aired Colombe, indicted for the murder of Mrs. Marie Valcourt at Massachusetts, July 20, 1932. The woman was struck down with an iron bar during an argument over financial matters.

FINANCIAL NEWS

By AARON COOK

(Questions may be submitted to this column. Those questions deemed of general interest will be treated in articles. Those deemed otherwise will be treated individually. Dial 8861 with questions.)

Pessimism predominated Wednesday marketwise. Attention was focused on Congress and its inability to do anything constructive. Pulling political strings in order that the next party in power may receive the credit for measures enacted is very evident and is going to make it very hard for Mr. Roosevelt to stimulate activity in his "new deal" plan for the United States. The market was not heavy but showed lack of interest in bonds, stocks and commodities. Short selling has been taking place in volume which will strengthen the internal position of the market.

Prices yesterday were little changed. Wheat and a somewhat firmer bond market helped the market stage a little rally about the middle of the day. The market has been taking its cue from wheat recently and action follows very close thereto. Public participation seems to be all for it if it were present we would see more of a rally when an attempt is started. The market is thoroughly liquidated and a little buying could do wonders. Car loadings for the week ending January 14, shows a seasonal upturn. The increase in car loadings for the week ending January 14, shows a seasonal upturn. The increase in car loadings for the week ending January 14, shows a seasonal upturn. The increase in car loadings for the week ending January 14, shows a seasonal upturn.

Brokers' quarters still look toward Washington for constructive news. They feel that should the news culminate that the market would have ability to push forward. The market opened today at about last night's close and firming very materially in the first few minutes with prices on the upside.

A brief historical note on Hartford Fire Insurance Company was shown that it was organized in 1821 and is the oldest fire insurance company in the state of Connecticut. The original capital was $100,000 of which $10,000 was paid in cash, the rest being secured by notes of the shareholders. The present capital is $12,000,000. In 1897 there was a stock dividend of 66 2/3 per cent. In 1904 a stock dividend of 100 per cent and in 1917 a stock dividend of 25 per cent. Increases by subscription have been at various amounts, the last in 1930 when the capital was increased one for five with subscription at par.

In August, 1918, the Hartford Accident and Indemnity Company was started under the control of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company. The stock of this company is carried on the books of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company at $211 per share (though as of December 31, 1931, the actual liquidating value was $64 per share). The Hartford Fire Insurance Company also owns and operates the Hartford Live Stock Insurance Company, New York Underwriters Insurance Company, the Twin City Fire Insurance Company, the Citizens Insurance Company of New Jersey and the London-Canada Fire Insurance Company and has substantial stock holdings in other insurance companies.

Hartford Fire Insurance Company writes either directly or indirectly practically every form of fire, accident, health and casualty insurance. It operates in all states and territories in the United States, Canada, Cuba, Mexico and transacts a worldwide business through membership in the American Foreign Insurance Association.

BOY CYCLISTS CARELESS, MANY NEAR ACCIDENTS

Several Fatalities in Town But Youths Still Ride Without Lights and in Middle of Road.

Judging from the comment of motorists, there is still need for further caution on the part of bicyclists in Manchester as a precaution against accidents. A well known local physician says that he has observed several boys riding bicycles without any light after dark.

Another motorist told of a case a few days ago when he narrowly averted what might have been a serious accident. He was driving along at an unusually slow rate of speed when a boy on a bicycle suddenly swerved out into the middle of the road. The boy was unable to properly control the bicycle due to the fact that he was wearing roller skates while trying to pedal.

The motorist in question had little difficulty bringing the car to a sudden halt and thus avoided a collision. After doing so he reprimanded the boy for his carelessness. The boy's remark was "How could I help it with roller skates?" During the past few months there have been several accidents between automobiles and bicycles and some of them have been very serious.

CAT WRECKS MODEL

Stratford, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Officials of the Sikorsky Aviation Corporation aren't cheering very loudly over Mike's latest conquest.

Mike is the corporation's pet cat and he dished "getting" me. To avoid the rain yesterday he jumped through an open window. He landed squarely on top of a delicately constructed airplane.

Mike, infuriated when one of his wings broke off and toppled to the floor, "bought" the plane model until it was reduced to wreckage.

BUILDING REPORT
Washington, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Buildings costing $1,982,000 were constructed in 52 New England cities last month.

The total which included a small amount of repair work was a 3.6 per cent increase over the $1,919,000 of the same month last year. According to the bureau of labor statistics reported today, one hundred four families were provided with new dwellings costing $604,900 during December.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

DECIDE TO HOLD THE JUNIOR PROM

Announcement Made Today That Annual Event Will Be On Saturday, Feb. 4.

The announcement was made from the principal's office today that the Class of 1934 will be permitted to hold the annual Junior Prom in honor of the Senior Class. The prom will be held at High school hall, Saturday evening, February 4. To gether with this announcement Mr. Quimby made an additional request that every effort should be made by the class and by individuals to keep the expenses down to "depression levels." President Eric Rautenberg of the Class of 1934, the chairman of the committee on arrangements, said the C. C. L. musical contest will be held this year in Middletown on May 6 in the afternoon. The combined chorus of over 300 voices will sing "Unfold Ye Portals," "The Hunting Song" by Kun, is the required number for the boys while the girls will be required to sing "Passing By" by Purcell. Each group will choose one selection of their own and this will be sung a cappella while the required number has a piano accompaniment. In each case the accompaniment must be a student of the school and Mr. Pearson,

The child fell backwards while seated in a section of the railing from which a picket had fallen out.

Y. M. C. A. Notes

Boys' Union entertained the boys and young men last night with an indoor and a hall program of games. The most of them were prepared to be had taken in his summer travels and down at the beach. The boys' union will have a full program of games on Saturday night.

The business men's class was a very live one yesterday and the games were so warmly contested that it took an extra game to settle the affair properly. Fayette Clark and F. C. Allen were the high men when they ran up eight points while serving. Real volley showed so much enthusiasm that the stand and dignified business men forgot all their troubles. They nearly laughed their heads off when George Gienney made a stellar play in a trifle off style manner. He kept his feet, however, and so saved the day.

The North Ends put in a good hour of practice last night. This is a wise move and shows that they really mean business and are studying the game. They are now tied with the Oxford for first place in the Junior league. Joe's Service station had a good fast game with the Spartans. It looked for a while as if they were in for a trimming but they finally worked their way out to victory.

The gymnasium had only thirty minutes free time yesterday from two p. m. until past ten. This is the usual schedule these days. There are several other teams being organized which would like to get a period in the gym also.

Tonight the Rabbit club will have the gym after school till four-thirty then the grade school girls while an hour. At five-thirty the Church League will have a game

MILD WEATHER PREVENTS FISHING THROUGH ICE

Very Few Licenses Issued Since Season Closed February 1—Want It Extended.

Ice fishing for the season of 1933 does not appear to be very promising at the present time. Several local fishermen assured good catches during the latter part of December when five or six inches of ice formed on lakes and ponds in the vicinity of Manchester. Very few licenses for fishing or combination hunting and fishing licenses have been issued by the town clerk or the P. T. Blish Company, during the month of January.

There is considerable agitation among local fishermen for a proposed extension of the open season on pickerel into the month of February. The closed season on pickerel and walleyed pike begins February 1. There is no closed season on yellow or white perch. It is considered questionable whether the Fish and Game Commission can extend the ice-fishing season due to the fact that the statutes governing fish and game are enacted by the state legislature.

A social hour will follow the meeting. The supper committee consists of David Neville, Stephen Adams, Ernest Vennard, James Vennard and Thomas Corbett.

EX-GOV. WEEKS TO MIDDLETOWN

Middletown, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Former Governor Frank B. Weeks observed his 79th birthday anniversary today. He became chief executive in 1909 when as lieutenant governor he succeeded Gov. Arthur Lilly on the latter's death.

A man's temper can be told from his hands, palmists declare. But it's the other way round at the bridge table.

DOWN TO RED ROCK
 We said here the other day, in relation to the discussion as to whether the Philippine independence bill was good or bad, that it was our belief that the country as a whole wasn't interested in the details of any particular measure for Philippine freedom; what it was interested in was the undoing, somehow or other, of the blunder the United States committed, more than thirty years ago, in taking over the islands at all; that about the only definite opinion the average Americans had concerning the Philippines
 was that we had no business there,
 never did have any business there
 and ought to get out.

At the close of a lengthy and detailed criticism of President Hoover's veto message on the Philippine independence bill Senator Cutting of New Mexico said in the Senate on Tuesday:

My feeling is just this: We should never have gone into the Philippines in the first place. The Filipino people had won their independence with practically no assistance from us. We injected ourselves into a situation where we had no place. . . . We have heard a great deal of talk about this legislation being promoted by selfish interests. No doubt there are a great many interests of people in this country involved. . . .
 But the ultimate force behind this legislation is the force which has been behind it ever since the late senator from Massachusetts, Mr.
 Hoar, protested in this body
 against the imperialistic adventure on which the United States
 entered at his time.

Senator Cutting admitted that the bill under veto—subsequently passed over the President's objection—was a bad bill; he used the term "highly imperfect." But he very reasonably contended that any bill that might be passed at any time would necessarily be a bad bill from some viewpoint or other and that the utterly important thing was to pass a bill
 that would give the Filipino people
 the right to work out their own salvation as a free people, whatever its minor demerits.

And that, we believe, exactly represents the attitude of the American people toward Philippine independence. The American people can be politically fooled over and over again; they are capable of enormous follies and even of shocking political immorality. But they cannot be converted from rigidly immovable
 sanity to imperialism.

That's why President Hoover's veto of the Philippine bill failed. In a clumsy fashion the bill undoes the error of 1899. The country was and is stoutly for that.

SENATE DEBATE.
 While the failure of the cloture
 resolution in the Senate yesterday
 put one more small nail in the coffin
 of the nation's respect for that body,
 it is gratifying that the pressure of public opinion has prompted the Senate to put an end to the filibuster
 against the Glass bill by agreement. More than a week of the Senate's time was wasted, however,
 and it had to be fairly kicked into redemptive itself from a shameful
 situation.

If the Senate cares anything about preserving any shred of prestige it will now proceed to do something about this business of unlimited debate, always an edifice of performance, and all too frequently the ally
 of deliberate obstruction and injurious coercion.

There are two measures before
 the Senate now, both offered this week, by which the rules would be amended. One of these would make a majority vote sufficient for the opinion of the whole rule—a very great improvement over the existing provision for a two-thirds vote. The other will appeal with more to the country, we feel sure,
 if it provides that no Senator shall

speak more than twice per week
 than two hours in all at the same day upon any question under debate
 without leave of the Senate. This,
 of course, will strike the key chord
 as a long way from a strict
 rule but it would be immeasurably
 better than the present law of Senate debate.

However, having stilled off growing popular anger over the filibuster,
 the Senate will probably go along in the same old way for a while longer, adopting neither of these measures. The system of unlimited debate, nevertheless, must be steadily approaching its last days.
 It is too completely odious to survive indefinitely.

TOWN REPRESENTATION
 The proposal of Representative
 McGill of Salisbury for an amendment to the Connecticut Constitution
 reducing to one member the legislative representation of towns with less than 5,000 people will seem to many like much ado over very little. If the Constitution needs revision as to the make-up of the lower house of the General Assembly the requirement is for a good deal more drastic change than that proposed by the Salisbury member.
 It can hardly be worth while going to the trouble of changing the Constitution merely to accomplish in some tiny degree a condition which is fundamentally wrong.

We have, in Connecticut, an almost religious veneration for the institution of the town. Very few of us would care to see any constitutional change that would deprive the town unit of its historic significance.
 At the same time very few of us, if
 put to it, would be able to explain
 satisfactorily the basis for that veneration. It would probably turn out, upon thorough analysis, to be wholly sentimental. But in any event it has resulted in our working, for a great many years, under a system
 of representation in our Legislature
 which is not supportable by any logical argument.

It will probably take considerable
 more time yet for this state to get itself into a frame of mind where
 a proposal to reconstruct the House of Representatives on a basis of assembly districts would receive even momentary consideration. In the meantime we might as well leave
 the present allocation of representation alone. What difference does it make whether an "old town" with ninety voters has two representatives while a "new town" with 2,000
 voters has one representative, when the representation of either is so outrageously unfair in comparison
 with the representation of the cities
 and big towns?

TECHNOCRATIC HOAX
 Columbia University is now busy,
 it appears, in making it as clear as possible that technocracy is no child
 of that institution but merely a sort of waf which, out of something closely resembling charity, it has permitted to occupy desk room and perhaps some other facilities of the big educational plant. Of course, Columbia, it admits, has been considerably interested in the "factual" researches of the technocratic engineers, but it wants it very definitely
 known that it assumes no responsibility—not the slightest—for those extraordinary deductions
 about impending collapse of the industrial system being only eighteen months away, and so forth.

Pretty soon, we think, Columbia
 will appreciate the wisdom of divorcing itself, as well, from the technocratic "factual" reports. When they solemnly assure us that, by the employment of this devastating machinery thing, an agricultural laborer can do in one hour what it would have taken him 3,006 hours to do a hundred years ago, it would seem to be about time that somebody called for a demonstration.

Three thousand hours was pretty nearly a year's work, even for the horny handed son of the soil of a century ago. It would be interesting to know just what machine has ever been created—or what group
 of machines—that would enable that farmer's great-great-grandson to accomplish that year's work in sixty minutes.

It is gradually beginning to dawn
 on the country that possibly the technocrats have been putting over on them a gigantic hoax—perhaps with a view to ascertaining if there is any limit to the size of the whoop-ere the public will swallow when they are surrounded by a "group of engineers." Also whether the Red haters would recognize Communism
 if all the usual terms were scrapped
 and an entirely new line of patter employed.

It is not light regards as the multimillionaire part of wealth—New England, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. The purpose of this would being question. It would have 20 states walk out on the Northeast and leave it flat to them
 to do all the fighting.

Nevertheless, it might have seemed like an appropriate question if the representatives had been asked,
 which is the more heinous crime, to propose disunion or to suggest secession? Because there is always some policy talk but since Appendices there hasn't been, until now,
 any serious proposal—even of the one-man variety—of a secession of the members on which the Southern Confederacy embarked in '61.
 Now, however, in all the dignity of a formal secession presented to a state senate, Mr. Martin proposes to have 20 states gang up and limit the show. Luckily for him he isn't asked the Georgia authorities can get hold of him. His white hair—he's 23—
 wouldn't save him in that aspect-uous state, where they seem to have completely forgotten that, only 70 years ago, they were shedding their blood in a frantic effort to break up the combination to which they are now so utterly devoted.

Of course Senator Martin is a traitor. Of course, he would tear nice stars out of the national firm-
 ment and show them in the occupation of their own Connecticut.
 Or would it be thirty-nine?—we are a bit mixed as to whether we and our small gang would still be the United States or whether North Dakota and its big gang would be
 it and we would be something else.
 But anyhow what we are getting at is that we doubt if anybody will suggest hanging, drawing and quar-
 tering the old gentleman for his gentle little suggestion about putting the blast on Uncle Sam. He didn't sing the Internationale, or mention the rule of the proletariat,
 so we needn't be much concerned
 over a scheme to blow up the American republic.

IN NEW YORK

Keeper of the Book.—You might
 call him the keeper of Manhattan's
 "book of the night."
 His entries, to be sure, are blunt
 and impersonal; direct and undra-matic matters of record. Yet he knows all the plots; a thousand-and-one nights when terror stalked half-
 lit streets; when a nerve-shattering
 shriek came suddenly from a dark,
 dank dwelling place; when white faces seemed to walk toward the river, clutching hopeless tragedy to their hearts; when the figure of a broken man dropped like a limp

 shadow from some high place—
 "I speak of Edward Vane, who records the cases coming out of the night into the morning. Vane was in New York's morning papers for his usual morning in the streets,
 and he was in the papers for several days in a hospital. He was found in the street. It is
 New York's central police hospital.
 As might be expected of such a man,
 his description of the cases is unemotional, without rage, without sympathy, without pity, without emotion of any kind. He is a man of a steady, steady, steady pace. Vane has been on hand many years. As "keeper of the book" he will continue to be taken aside by someone and he will tell tales such as Gorky or Chekhov told; such as the lives of the newspaper participants and the newspaper editors.
 They are ancient and part and parcel of New York.

Many of his favorite donors
 derelicts who hid fortunes in their rags, yet were brought in suffering
 from exposure or hunger. One night, several years ago, started some $10,000 in a divided house. He plodded the streets and haunted
 park benches in the midst of winter.
 His fellow vagrant could have smothered the fortune from his head,
 had the secret been known. But the man would have dreamed of comfort, food and warmth, hidden in a beggar's bandana?

Not since the lurid exit from this life of Arnold Rothstein, has Broadway had so much material for character and legend as at the moment—
 with Larry Fay as the subject. And,
 as usual, the old Broadway moralists come out. Fay, who rose from a petty race track plunger to a bright lights character of wide renown, died with his dress suit on—
 but with little money for his burial.

Most of them go the same way.
 Fay's rise and fall started on a certain day when he put over a 100 to 1 shot on the cracks. From that moment he was a convert to the "easy money" notion.
 Soon he was using gambling as a mere side-line and plunging in the night club business. Broadway concedes that he was a pioneer; if not
 the father, of the "mixed society"
 night life as it now obtains. His first ventures were a bit too young
 for the ultra-ultra speakeasy clubs
 which come and go with the moon.
 He backed Tex Guinan and the El Fay spot found the Blue Book mixing with the very questionable. He graduated to a $75,000 place and another on the Florida sands. He jumped from racket to racket; from taxis to milk.

But he had learned to strut his stuff on Broadway; to put on the big gesture. Few of them ever escape—and that's the way the easy money goes. They plunge in flash
 and show when the "easy money"
 starts rolling.
 Rothstein was dodging gaming
 debts on the very night he was
 "taken." Fay was said to be arguing over a small sum a few minutes before the shooting began. Best barrels, gaming kings, night club
 gents—alike. When the hearse arrives, the fortunes have evaporated
 in varied gestures.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SHEILA SHAYNE, 18, whose parents were well known vaudeville entertainers, is a dancer. After weeks out of a job she is hired to substitute for DAISY GLEASON, another dancer, who has sprained her ankle. While rehearsing at JOE PARI's song shop Sheila meets DICK STANLEY and TREVOR LANE, both rich. Dick is much attracted by Sheila and urges Lane to include her in the program of entertainment at a party he is giving. Sheila declines to come but later accepts.

At the party she meets GORDON MANDRAKE, well known producer. She sees Dick frequently after that. Daisy returns to the show and Sheila again has a job. Then Mandrake offers her a part in a new play. Rehearsals begin at once. Sheila becomes friendly with JIM BLAINE, one of the principals in the play.

They go to Atlantic City for the try-out week. MARION HANBOLFE, the star, becomes jealous because of the praise Sheila receives from critics and therefore Sheila is discharged. She is out of work for some time. Then through Trevor Lane's influence she secures a part in a show which is given on "four wheels." Dick learns the new job will take her out of town he begs Sheila to give it up.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVII

Sheila and Dick drove to Greenwich Village and sought out an Italian restaurant where dinner was still being served. Parking the roadster near the entrance, they passed through the half deserted dining room into the September tables were set with a few diners lingered. A girl in lavender muslin wearing a wide hat, intriguingly simple, faced a middle-aged escort. A group of newspaper men were nearby discussing a late book. Farther away sat two women waiting for a waiter.

John the proprietor, wandered from table to table, a muffer wrapped about his throat as was his custom in any except the hottest July temperature. John had been a singer.

He hurried to greet the newcomers and ushered them to a table. "Would Madame like the special salad?" he asked eagerly. Then he frowned at his mistake. The young lady was not "madame." She looked much too young.

"It's very good," Dick assured her. "Would you try it? All right, John. Two dinners with the special salad."

"Would you like to see the chicken cooked?" Dick asked. Grateful for the interruption, Sheila rose and followed Dick into the kitchen which was lit with gas. She did not want, just then, to hear more of his pleas that she should give up her part in the road show and stay in New York.

It was a large, airy kitchen with a huge range and spit. Three white-coated waiters were wandering about, apparently aimlessly yet actually with definite purpose. This one with a fork lifted the curling, colling spaghetti and let it fall once more with a shake of his head. That one watched the chicken or spit and held it over a sharp cleaver on a smoothly scrubbed pine board. Another stirred, sniffed and seasoned a reddish sauce, thick and fragrant.

John himself, at the farther end of the kitchen, was busy with the plates in what Dick called a "hood." A stranger stood beside him and gazed negligently and impatiently on some snapshots and cabinet photographs which John seemed bent on displaying.

The stranger took his head. "I can't help it, I can't do a thing about it. Those are the orders. Pay up or get out."

"But my grandmother! My mother in Italy! They will starve if I close! You are wrong. I never sell one drop in this place!"

The restaurant keeper flung down the family portraits on a bare table. They were instantly swept aside to make room for a huge soup kettle. Bending, with tears gathering aghast, John collected the photographs together and held them to his breast.

"Is he in trouble?" asked Sheila hesitantly. Dick frowned.

"Don't know. If he's been selling booze he is. That's certain. But I'm sure he pays his rent. Trevor owns this block, you know. I'll see what I can do."

While Dick proffered his assistance Sheila returned to the table in the garden.

At the next table, vacant when she and Dick had arrived, a tall, blond young man was sitting. He was smoking thoughtfully. Presently a waiter, napkin on arm, hurried to the young man's side, bearing a steaming plate of soup. Suddenly the stranger's eyes met Sheila's and he smiled. It was a frank smile, ingenuous and winning. There was nothing flirtatious about it. Sheila smiled back.

"Aren't you Miss Shayne?" the man asked in a low tone. Without waiting for an answer, he nodded slowly. "Yes, of course you are. I've seen you on the stage. I saw you at Atlantic City and I wanted to see you here. Where have you been?"

"You mean you saw me in 'When Lights Are Low'?" He nodded.

Having secured another part, Sheila didn't mind in the least admitting what had happened. Others knew it now anyhow.

"I lost my job in that show in Atlantic City," she said. "I guess I wasn't much of a success."

"But you were! You were excellent! I suppose it was Marion—yes, of course, that was it! Marion doesn't like competition. Do you have a job now?"

Sheila nodded. "I'm going on the road."

"Not really? Why, she can't be

MARVELOUS MANHATTAN

New York—As you may have heard, the Morton Downeys have a baby.

How you could help hearing about it, I don't know. The coming and goings of the Downeys and Barbara Bennett Downey's sisters—Constance and Joan—put the town on edge for the great event.

Waiting impatiently in his Central Park apartment for the star's arrival, Downey—with Jack Erickson—was inspired to turn out a song giving vent to an expectant father's feelings.

Setting the mood, Twilight, it appears, sprouts a few laps to catch up with the Quiet of the Night:

"Twilight finds me dreaming
"In the quiet of the night"

Sentiment wells to overflowing in the greeting:

"Welcome home little stranger
"Welcome to your little manger"

Then the touching bid for filial affection:

"Smile for me—stop your frownin'
"Can't you see your Daddy clownin'?"

Was Daddy Clownin'?

When afternoon had dispelled the quiet of the night, Downey, a full-figured father, opened a stage engagement at a Broadway movie house and, as a special treat for the audience, sang his composition.

Did Daddy croon it as a lullaby? He did not. He put his whole lung power into the welcoming lines until one feared the little stranger would be rudely awakened in his little manger.

The theater production chief, falling in with the spirit of the occasion, and the telephone company hook up a direct wire from the movie house switchboard to Mrs. Downey's room in a sanitarium.

Her husband used to be a mere soloist with Paul Whiteman's band. But here was Whiteman sharing starring honors on the same bill with his ex-employee, and watching Downey grab the lion's share of notice in the excitement of the moment. It was all very hoarse for the radio singer.

Then came the high light of the whole welcome for the Downey baby.

It was decided to let the theater patrons name the 7½-pound baby. A ballot box was placed in the foyer of the theater, and all comers were invited to drop in their suggestions. Whiteman's slip read "Upon Downey."

Somewhat it does seem that the Bennetts, their husbands and even a Bennett heir just have no luck

HEALTH

WHOOPING COUGH, OFTEN SLOW IN "SHOWING UP"

Victim May Not Start Coughing for as Long as Ten Days After Exposure to the Disease; Symptoms Resemble Common Cold.

This is the second of three special articles by Dr. Fishbein on the nature and treatment of whooping cough and precautions to prevent its spread.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBELN,
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The incubation period in whooping cough is the period from two to 10 days before the child begins coughing. During this period the child is infected but not sick. Therefore, the youngster who is exposed to whooping cough must be watched carefully for at least 10 days after his contact for the signs of whooping cough.

During this period there may be symptoms resembling those of a common cold. After the characteristic whoop and the paroxysms of coughing appear, the child is likely to be able to spread the disease for at least three weeks longer. Therefore, doctors advise that children be kept apart as long as the cough continues and for two weeks after it ends.

The doctor diagnoses whooping cough not only by the typical coughing spells, which are usually accompanied with redness of the face and at all trying to shrink from the spotlight.

The Good Sport

Hours before Jameson, who won laurels as the disciple John in Don Marquis' short-lived pageant, "The Dark Hours," was almost felled to the sidewalk by a match of conversation he overheard.

At a bustling Fifth Avenue corner, down the traffic light to change, two stylishly gowned women caught his ear. One, a white haired queen mother type, was consoling her flashing young companion:

"I think you were a mighty good sport, dear. Everybody says it's a thing it was very sporting of you."

"Well," responded the younger one, "I tried to give her a chance to be a sport."

"Yes, I know, dear. We all understand."

"But when she acted that way I told her she could just keep her darned husband."

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

BE SURE TO HAVE GOOD POWDER

Only a woman who has experimented in different face powders realizes how far apart are fine textured, expensive powders, and cheap, gritty ones.

If possible, treat yourself to one small box of fine face powder and then be very careful to stretch it so it lasts as long as possible.

The way you apply your face powder makes almost as much difference in the way you look as the type of powder you use.

I have spoken of the new peach and apricot tones of face powder that throw a look of youth and bloom about you. Whether you have this new powder or not, be sure you know how to put your powder on the best advantage.

First, never powder your eyelids, nor get powder into your eyebrows. Always go over your eyebrows either with an eyebrow brush or the tip of your finger, covered with cotton or a piece of gauze.

Second, use a big, soft puff as a brush. If you can afford it, French women always use this type. It is much easier to dust powder lightly with it.

Third, never just stick your puff into the powder and then apply it. Always shake the loose powder back into your box, leaving only a thin film on the puff. That will be enough. If it isn't, it is safer to dip the puff into the powder box again, rather than have too much the first time.

Fourth, always dust upward on your cheeks and from the center up and out of the forehead.

Fifth, the better-groomed women always use a slightly different shade of powder for the chin, a darker tone. However, if your chin gives the impression of sticking up and out, use the lightest of rouge on your chin, before powdering, but just the tiniest bit, no more.

Sixth, always dust your neck with your face powder, particularly right up under the chin.

MUSOLINI HAS NO WISH TO BE A KING, HE TELLS WRITER.

BY BRUCE CATTON

Mussolini is not interested, and never has been, in any scheme that would turn him into a king, according to a writer who has interviewed the controlled capitalist.

An enduring thing in Italy. He owes much to the patience and self-discipline he learned during his various terms of imprisonment before the war.

These are among the things one gathers from "Talks with Mussolini," by Emil Ludwig.

Ludwig went to Rome and arranged for a series of evening conferences with the Italian dictator. He has set down the result in this book, and it makes a moderately interesting, though rather unimportant, collection of dialogues in which Mussolini appears in his familiar guise.

Mussolini, we read, is something of a fatalist, and refuses to take any special precautions to avoid assassination. He has a tremendous personal magnetism—I've read that before, somewhere, I think—and a vast amount of executive ability; he believes that an anarchist is a potential dictator gone wrong, and he has studied the life of Napoleon with profit to himself.

And so on. Reading it, I got the impression that an over-rated writer was interviewing an over-rated statesman, but maybe I'm wrong.

The book is published by Little, Brown and Co., and costs $2.75.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

When I write about the care of children these days, almost invariably a picture is before me, not of the child I am writing about, with a home and loving parents and enough to eat and wear, but of these little souls who scarily know what these things mean.

Even the family that has to measure and grip an almost nothing but something that nobody can take from it—being together, loving each other and feeling that somebody cares.

But there are children by the thousands these days who do not have any home life at all. I am not speaking particularly about those in institutions, although even their security is threatened if more help is not soon forthcoming. The children I speak about are those whose mothers go out by the day to work, or whose parents are so destitute that these little people are passed about to any one who will take them in and give them a corner to sleep in and a bite to eat.

Facilities Lacking

Day nurseries do all they can, but in so many cities today they are either overcrowded or lack funds to carry on. Besides, many working mothers live beyond reach of these nurseries, or settlement houses where they can leave their children.

The truth is that there are thousands of little children all over the country who get along, heaven knows how, while their mothers are at work; or their fathers, for many men try to keep their homes together after their wives are dead. We know the story; some of these

SAFETY ON ROAD

Huge rectorized signs from eight to ten feet high are now being placed at important highway intersections in California.

AND THAT'S PLENTY!

The state of California allows automobiles traveling its roads to use nine lights on the front of the car, all of which must be of amber or white color.

Protests From High Salaried Performers Mount Rapidly; Ruth Prepared To Accept 10 To 15 Per Cent Slash In Pay.

By HERBERT W. BARKER

New York, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Under the impetus of Babe Ruth's much publicized salary argument with the New York Yankees, baseball through its holdout parade, has just about swept all other athletes off the sport pages. Protests from high class performers against the size of the pay cuts they've been asked to take have been mounting rapidly and apparently major league magnates will be swayed by their recalcitrant attitude before the spring training season.

It's not the principle of the thing, the athletes say, but the amount of cash involved. The world champion Yankees, of course, have been most prominently mentioned in the holdout news. Ruth, asked to accept $50,000 for 1933 instead of the $75,000 he was paid last season, said yesterday he was prepared to accept a cut of 10 or 15 per cent.

The guards of the baseball correspondents were that the Babe and Colonel Ruppert eventually would split the difference between $75,000 and $50,000 on a contract calling for a salary of $65,000 for 1933. Low Gehrig, when available to play for the Yankees last year, also has balked at the size of the cut the Yankees have asked him to take but expects to settle his differences with the club this week.

Verdon Games, one of the two members of the champions lineup who were granted increases, also is prepared to argue his work last season entitled him to a bigger boat than has been offered him.

With Other Clubs
The New York Giants have had little trouble signing their players so far but it was understood that Fred Fitzsimmons, star right-hander, can be added to the list of holdouts. Freddie was asked to accept a sizeable cut and indicated yesterday he expected to do considerable negotiating with the club before putting his name to a contract.

Al Lopez, clever catcher, is the only member of the Brooklyn Dodgers roster who has squawked publicly over the contract offered him but it was expected that Dan Aycock would be heard from as soon as he learns what the Dodgers are preparing to offer him. He worked for $15,000 last season and it was understood he would be asked to accept a reduction of $6,000.

Fete Jablonowski, pitcher, is one Yankee who will not be among the holdouts. He said at Terryville, Conn., yesterday that he was satisfied with the terms the club offered him.

Gene Sarazen's proposal that the size of those little cups toward which golfers putt be increased in diameter from 4 1/4 inches to 8 inches has brought a storm of comment from other golfers.

Walter Hagen and Mike Brady, companion pros of Sarazen at the Miami-Biltmore Hotel course at Coral Gables, Fla., offer objections. Telegrams to these two brought the following responses:

HAGEN: "Why, the dorgone cups aren't small enough now. It seems to me that four inches would be a better size than eight if we are going to keep putting as part of the game. However, the big ones would hand me back my touch, so I wouldn't mind."

BRADY: "Sarazen's suggestion would defeat his aim to force accurate approaches. Demon chippers like Denny Stute and Paul Runyan would redeem all mediocre seconds."

Shute, however, Cleveland pro and one of the "demon chippers" named by Brady, declares he doesn't like the larger cup idea. Says Shute: "The game seems to me to be good enough as it is, but if you want a suggestion from me, why not make the greens smaller for force accuracy? Big cups would dull the thrill of putting which is a big kick in the game which is good enough as it stands."

Phil Perkins, the Americanized Britisher who has joined the golfers in the south, believes the big cups would banish as an asset the putting touch. Says Phil: "With such big cups all a player has to do is to ram putts straight at the hole because the ball can't jump across an eight-inch gap."

Billy Hicks, who has been in Coral Gables brushing up her game under the watchful eye of Sarazen, also believes the big cups would lessen the need for a careful study of putting. Says Billy: "The larger cup would take the premium of putting skill but would be an advantage to accurate shotmakers because a putt of 10 feet or less would rarely be missed."

Revolta, the young iron man from Manassas, Mich., who amazed the golf world by shooting a 278 to win the Miami Open, thinks Sarazen's suggestion is a splendid idea. Says John: "Larger cups would stimulate interest in golf. The possibility of hitting long brassie shots appeals to me. I have been thinking about the big cups for a long time and will practice with them if the plan to use them in some of the southern tournaments goes through."

MIDDLETOWN HOST TO H. S. TONIGHT

Red and White Quintet Seeks Victory In C. C. I. L. Encounter.

By ART KRENZ
NEA Service Golf Writer

With high hopes of remaining in the winning column, Manchester High's basketball quintet departed for Middletown tonight to face Middletown High in a Central Connecticut Intercollegiate League encounter. The Red and White is tied for third place with East Hartford and a victory tonight will keep them in the race for runner-up honors.

Manchester began its season with three successive victories then lost three in a row before defeating West Hartford last week. Merides seems an easy victim for Bristol tonight and East Hartford looks too strong for West Hartford.

The local freshmen team traveled to Middletown this afternoon and the second string squad will play at 7:30 o'clock with the main game an hour later. The Trade School five is playing the Meriden Trade School team this afternoon at the School Street Rec.

GURSKIE IS PROVEN ELIGIBLE TO PLAY

Birth Certificate Shows Bristol Star Is Nineteen Years Old.

Persistent rumors of the ineligibility of Albie Gurskie, Bristol High's outstanding basketball star, have been set at rest by Principal Henry E. Cottle of Bristol in a letter to Principal Raymond P. Walker of Meriden High School, which meets Bristol tonight in a C. C. I. L. contest.

A certified copy of Gurskie's birth certificate was enclosed with the letter. This document shows that Gurskie was born on August 11, 1913, which proves him to be 19 years of age. He is therefore eligible under league rules to play until he has passed his 20th birthday.

Gurskie is the main cog in Bristol's basketball team this year and has been a consistent high scorer in the nine consecutive victories of the Monahanites. Gurskie's stellar play as a back on the football team brought Bristol another C. C. I. L. title last fall. He is also a good baseball player.

Another garden feature, a heavy-weight bout between Ernie Schaeff and Primo Carnera, threatens to fall through because Carnera's managers disapprove of a slash in the Garden's seat prices.

Local Team Goes To Pieces When Hewitt Leaves Personnel; Campion Scores 13 Points For Bristol.

By ART KRENZ
NEA Service Golf Writer

The Bristol West Ends proved too much for the Rec Five at the Silver City last night, winning handily, 40-19, to hand the team their third successive defeat. Following a good game during the first quarter, the Rec team went to pieces when Hewitt, the center, went out of the game in the second part of the second period, via personal foul route.

From that point on the team played inferior basketball, while Bristol exhibited a smooth working combination. The individual scoring of Campion stood out and Fulkowicz played a stellar game throughout. The playing of Lincoln and Estarick was best for the West Ends.

The Rec Five is scheduled to play the Meriden North Ends at Meriden tomorrow night in one-half of a double header attraction. The Meriden Knights will meet the Bristol West Ends (40)

Bowling

LOCAL GIRLS WIN THREE

The Charter Oak Girls traveled to Hartford last night and got sweet revenge by taking three straight games from the Capitol Girls in a State League match which gives the local girls 16 wins and 8 losses in the league standing. Flora Nelson was high with 331 and high single of 111.

Manager Belletti of the Charter Oak Girls team is burning up the wires to lead a banner attraction in bowling for this town to take place Saturday night, Jan. 26 at Fara's alleys. The team Manager Belletti is trying to book in the strong girls team of Bridgeport. The team boasts of four of the members being ranked in the first ten girl bowlers in the United States. But their real star is none other than Miss Julie, who it will be remembered carried off the individual honors in the Sweepstakes held in Hartford last week. She also set a new world's record last for the rest of the girls in the country to shoot at when she hit over 700 for five games.

TOBACCO GROWERS TAKE OVER WAREHOUSE HERE

Between 50 and 60 May Eventually Be Employed At No. School St. Building.

Employment for between 50 and 60 men and women is to be given to Manchester people as a result of the signing today of a lease between the Manchester Trust Company and the Farmers' Public Warehouse Company of South Windsor for the tobacco warehouse and sorting rooms formerly the property of the Woodland Tobacco Company, on North School street. The Farmers' Public Warehouse Company has been operating in South Windsor, taking in the tobacco of the individual growers in the bundle, sorting and packing it and getting it on the market. The demand for more such co-operation between the growers and the buyers of crops of those living in the Wapping section of South Windsor and in part of Manchester was so great that negotiations got under way for the leasing of the warehouse on North School street. This building has all the necessary requirements for the work to be done and this morning an agreement was signed whereby the property will be taken over under a lease by the Farmers' Public Warehouse Company. Already many are ready to bring their present unsold crops into the warehouse and an effort will be made to get the goods into the warehouse at once. The place has already been cleaned out and there will be nothing but new tobacco brought to the warehouse which will be owned by the different growers and work is expected to get under way next week with a gradual increase in the number to be employed until the force will be increased to over fifty. There are many living at the north end who are familiar with the work and an improvement in conditions in that end of the town is hoped for.

SUNDAY SCHOOL COURSES TO BE OPEN TO PUBLIC

Center Church Training Classes To Be Popular According To Present Indications.

The training school for Sunday school teachers, to be held in the Center Congregational church parish house, starting Sunday, February 5, is open to any person wishing to attend. The advance registration indicates that this will be as popular a session of the school as have been the others held in Manchester. Dr. A. J. W. Meyers and Dean Stoltz are well known in this section and many are expected to take advantage of this opportunity to work under them. Dr. Meyers will take as his subject, "Principles of Teaching" and will use the text book "Teaching Religion." Dean Stoltz will use "The Christian Message and Program" by Cleland Boy McAfee and he desires especially that many will join the course who are not now teaching Sunday school. The local school is fully accredited by the International Council with George H. Wilcox of the Connecticut Business College as dean. Further information may be obtained by calling or writing Mr. Wilcox.

SWINDLER IDENTIFIED IN UNUSUAL MANNER

Suspect Taken From Ship Says Man's Office Was Next To His In Berlin, Germany.

Boston, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Jose F. Normano, a visiting lecturer at Harvard University was pointed out today as Dr. Isaac Lewis, long sought Berlin banker, who is charged with a $750,000 swindle, under unusual circumstances. Fred Wisel, 31, a Brooklyn, N. Y. lawyer who was taken off a ship last night as a fugitive was being questioned by Federal officials today when he said he had been in the banking business in Berlin. "Did you know Isaac Lewis?" he was asked. "Certainly. His office was next to mine," Wisel answered. A picture of Normano who claims he is a South American and denies he is the Berlin banker, was shown Wisel and he was asked who it was. "That is Lewis. I knew him very well," Wisel said. A short time later Mrs. Normano came into the office to confer with officials about her husband. Wisel said nothing but after she had gone he informed U. S. Commissioner Jenney and Havin Parker assistant U. S. Attorney that the woman who had just left the room was Mrs. Lewis. Normano has been in the East Cambridge jail since his arrest Jan. 6 on evidence given by German consular officials here.

BOTH SIDES AGREE ON POWER CHANGES

Canada and New York To Treat Water Diversion As a Domestic Matter.

Washington, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The State Department made public today notes exchanged by Canada and this country agreeing that in the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway treaty the two governments leave as a domestic matter the question of diverting water for power purposes through the Massena canal and Grass river, on the American side. In Senate hearings the objection was raised by the New York power authority that the treaty favors the Aluminum Company of America by including in the engineering report estimates on the cost of works for diverting water through the Massena canal, which now supplies power to the Aluminum company. Exchange of the notes was announced at that time. In the notes, written by Secretary Stimson and Minister Herridge, of Canada, the following three principles are approved: "First, the effect of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence deep waterway treaty, signed at Washington July 18, 1922, is not, in any respect, to recognize, confirm or establish any rights or claims of any person or corporation, in respect to the diversion of water for power purposes through the Massena canal and Grass river, or to limit the freedom

JAPAN DELAYS NOTE

Geneva, Switzerland, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The League of Nations committee of nineteen gave Japan what some of its members described as an "ultimatum" today in requesting that the government at Tokyo reply by tomorrow at the latest to the committee's question as to whether Japan will accept its plan of conciliation for the dispute with China. The committee has offered to waive the proposal that the United States and Soviet Russia participate in the process of conciliation if Japan will accept the rest of the plan. Some impatience was displayed this evening at the delay in receiving a reply to this proposal from Tokyo. Pectorole will stop stubborn coughs. Sold only at Magnall Drug Co.

Marietta, Ga., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Glenn T. Fields, flying the air mail from St. Louis and Chicago to Atlanta, was killed today when his plane crashed into Little House mountain near here.

Identification of the plane and the pilot was made by American Airways officials who came here from Atlanta. Fields was more than two hours overdue at the Atlanta Airport when the plane crashed into the mountain during an early morning fog. Fields was burned so badly identification would have been impossible except that airways officials knew him to be the pilot. The plane crashed into a tree, uprooting it and then burst into flames. Fields was strapped in the cockpit, his belt around him when found.

GRETA TO RETURN TO AMERICA SOON

Screen Star To Start For Hollywood In a Week Or Two, Report.

Stockholm, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The glamorous Greta Garbo hasn't yet said "ay tank" maybe she goes back to the United States—but it was learned from reliable sources today that she would be on her way in a week or two.

From the time she left the American shores last July 31, after her simple farewell to Hollywood—"ay tank ay go back to Sweden"—the movie star has been as secretive as the ever was in the United States. There was even the unanswered question of whether she ever would return to the country where she rose to sudden fame and wealth.

She came over on the liner Grissaholm and, if she returns on the same line, the next sailing will be on the Drottningholm February 1.

Confidential sources disclosed she was experiencing no difficulty in arranging for her return.

With Her Family
Miss Garbo has spent most of the time in Sweden quietly with her family on an island near here. In the latter part of her visit, however, she has appeared more often in public, going to theaters and shopping and horseback riding. She appeared in better health.

"I shall tell you nothing of my plans," was her plain warning when she arrived here.

Shortly after her arrival she was forced to remain on her island home, away from her family in Stockholm, because of a cold. Late in November she slipped quietly out of Sweden for a trip to London and Paris.

Travels Incognito
It was not generally known that she was making the trip until she had been in Paris several days after having visited London. She traveled incognito and wore a black wig and horn-rimmed glasses, as a disguise. The Countess Wachtmeister accompanied her and spotted the hotels to see that the coast was clear for Greta to enter.

When it became public knowledge that she was in Paris, she suddenly left her trip short and returned home by way of Copenhagen.

Back in Stockholm, she expressed disgust with the way she was "persecuted" by the besieging crowds in Paris and declared her life had been made "miserable" and her holiday spoiled.

Greta Garbo was a danger in Sweden before she went to Hollywood.

COLUMBIA
Mrs. Archie Berkowitz's father and mother from New York are visiting her.

The mid-year examinations of the Windham High school started Tuesday to continue the rest of the week.

Several from here went to the school of religious education at Marlborough church Monday evening.

Miss May Turner of Willimantic spent the day Tuesday at the home of her aunt Mrs. George Champlin.

THEATERS

AT THE STATE

"Man Against Woman"

Jack Holt in "Man Against Woman" and William Haines and Madge Evans in "East Side" are the feature attractions on the double feature bill at the State tonight and Saturday.

In "Man Against Woman", Jack Holt is seen in the admirable role of a New York detective who browbeats criminals not by the threat of his gun but by the bashing of his fist. But in spite of all of his hard-boiled tendencies, he meets up with a blonde torch singer, and pits his wits against her womanly wiles—and loses. Holt was never better than as "Strong Arm" Johnny McCloud, and it is a role entirely to his liking. Lillian Mills, a newcomer to the screen, plays the part of the torch singer, and her path to stardom should be an easy one, if her work in "Man Against Woman" is true example of her histrionic ability. "East Side" with William Haines is a real honest-to-goodness picture. It is a motorboat racing thriller with very a dull moment in it. Not since the advent of the talking pictures has there been a screen attraction to equal the speed with which this feature moves. William Haines comes through with one of the most entertaining portrayals of his entire "wise-cracking" career. Right with Haines, so far as acting honors are concerned comes Cliff Edwards in his part as Bumpy, the comedy assistant who continually bewails things up. Madge Evans supplies the romance, and she is charming in a supporting role of Shirley, daughter of the boat builder. Conrad Nagel, Arthur Byron and Albert Gran have the important supporting roles.

An added attraction at the Saturday matinee, will be the Big Harmonica Contest for boys and girls under fifteen years of age. Anyone who can play a harmonica in any degree is eligible to enter. Cash prizes, and other prizes, will be awarded the winner, with the success going to the judge.

"Prison Jenny" and everything a picture needs to be great entertainment. Supporting the star is a cast in the cast and a story combined with action. Donald Cook, James Murray, Louis Calhern, Pat O'Brien, Robert Warwick, Ned Pronger, and Robert Emmet O'Connor have the principal supporting parts.

PERSHING AS MARSHAL
Washington, Jan. 20.—(AP)—General John J. Pershing today was appointed grand marshal of the inaugural parade of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

30 INSPECTORS INDICED
New York, Jan. 20.—(AP)—A New York county grand jury today indicted 30 additional election inspectors for allegedly making false returns of the vote cast at the November 8 election. This brought the number of election inspectors indicted by this body to 44.

PAYROLL KILLING NEAR THE CAPITOL
One Killed, Another Badly Wounded But Bandits Flee Without the Money.

Washington, Jan. 30.—(AP)—One man was killed and another seriously wounded today in robbing a payroll of $3,000 near the Capitol.
The two negroes escaped without the money. Bystanders said the robbers, who had been loitering in the neighborhood some time, approached Ecklund and Stumm as the latter left their house. "back of the Library of Congress."
They began firing but when their victims dropped, the negroes leaped into a taxi and covering the driver with a gun were driven away. An unarmed Capitol policeman who was a block away, commanded an automobile but could not find the taxi.
The company employing the men was the Browning Painting Company of Brooklyn.
Bystanders placed the victims in a taxi and sped them to the nearest hospital. The payroll money was found intact in their pockets. The foreman and his assistant, said other roomers at the house had just finished counting the money for distribution this evening.
It developed that Ecklund had resigned his job effective today, planning to take over another job in New York. Stumm succeeded him as foreman and took over the payroll duties, Ecklund showing him details.
Word of the fatal holdup got to Congress almost immediately. Members in great excitement looked out of windows at the scene.

MISS ASTRID M. LUNDIN NAMED PUBLIC NURSE
Committee of Red Cross Chapter Picks Local Girl For Newly Created Position Here.

Miss Astrid M. Lundin of 34 Ridge street was chosen yesterday afternoon from a list of applicants for the position of Public Health Nurse by the committee appointed recently by the Manchester Chapter, American Red Cross. The chapter at its annual meeting voted to support another visiting nurse this year instead of aiding other projects. With only two full time Public Health Nurses, Miss Dorothy Buttle and Miss Myrtle Davis, the need was acute. Miss Jessie Reynolds does not bedside nursing since she has become the relief worker of the Town Charity department, and the two school nurses are kept very busy with their health work in the schools.
For many years one public health nurse, financed by the town and helped by private funds devoted most of her time to work among the children of pre-school age, pre-natal and baby cases. At the time when the Memorial hospital appointed Miss Myrtle Davis as an out-patient nurse to work with Miss Buttle, they were able to widen the service. Due to economic conditions and the prevalence of so much illness they have been unable to cope with the situation and an additional nurse was greatly needed, as the Red Cross committee found upon investigation.
Miss Lundin is a graduate of Bridgeport General Hospital Training School for Nurses. She was assistant head nurse at the New Haven General hospital for a year. For three and a half years she was with the Hartford Visiting Nurse association, and for a year was school nurse for the Cromwell Public Health Association. More recently she has been doing industrial nursing for Cheney Brothers. She is a member of the National Organization of Public Health Nurses and the American National Red Cross Nurse Society.

ELY ORDERS PROBE OF STATE POLICE Bay State Governor To Sift Charges Made By Fall River Man.

Boston, Jan. 26.—(AP)—General Alfred F. Foote, commissioner of public safety, acting under the orders of Governor Ely, today undertook to complete investigation of charges of "grafting" in the conduct of the state police.

Governor Ely ordered the investigation last night and advised the immediate removal of any individual Foote might find guilty of misconduct.

Foote said he would comply at once with the governor's order but he had not determined upon the exact nature of the investigation: He declined to say whether it would be public or private.

The governor's command to investigate the state police was accompanied by a copy of State Auditor Francis X. Hurley's report to the governor of his investigation of charges brought by Joseph M. Donovan of Fall River.

Donovan's complaints, which charges chiefly against Captain Charles T. Beapre, executive officer of the police, provoked the original investigation, ordered by Governor Ely.

Donovan's Charges

A letter from Donovan to Governor Ely alleged that open gambling was being conducted at various places throughout the state, complained of the transfer of officers, the purchase of uniforms; charges that money from a $225 check payable to the state had never reached the State Treasury, and that troops did work for individuals while being paid full pay. A copy of the letter was sent to Foote by the governor.

Hurley said in his report that he had discussed the gambling charge with Captain Beapre and that the captain told him it "had been the department policy to operate in cities unless requested by the district attorney or attorney general, or in towns where there is an organized police force x x x."

Explains the Check

Regarding the $225 check, Hurley said apparently it was issued by an insurance company for damages suffered by an automobile driven by a state trooper, Beapre. Hurley said, told him he received the check, cashed it in the treasurer's office and put the cash in a linen envelope of the Department of Public Safety. Hurley said the envelope was opened in his presence and that it contained $225.

Beapre, when asked why he hadn't turned the money in, said he intended applying the sum toward a new car.

Hurley said: "The money was put back in the envelope and it seems that Beapre's entire defense rests on his assertion that once he heard he was going to be charged with mishandling funds, he decided to sit tight on all money that was in his possession."

CAR COST DOWN

The wholesale value of the average passenger car dropped from $323 in 1919 to $240 in 1932.

February, on the average, is the least rainy month of London's year.

GILEAD

At the Grange meeting Tuesday evening, the officers were installed by Mr. F. C. Jones, treasurer of the Grange, and his assistant from Kent. The officers for this year are: Master, Homer Hills; treasurer, Florence Jones; secretary, Norton Warner; lecturer, Mrs. Ruby Gibson; overseer, Leroy Kinney; steward, James Hills; assistant steward, Wilbur E. Keefe; gatekeeper, William Warner, Flora, Ruth Raymond; Ceres, Evelyn Hutchinson; Pomona, Stella Spak; lady assistant steward, Mrs. Charlotte Raymond; chaplain, Mildred Hutchinson. There were three officers of the state Grange present, Mr. Pele of Kent, Mrs. Daniels of Lyme and Mr. Adams of Groton, and they responded to the master's invitation for a speech. LOOK OUT FOR THESE SYMPTOMS OF CONSTIPATION

Get Relief With Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Headaches, loss of appetite and energy, shallow complexion, and sleeplessness are often warning signs of common constipation. Unless checked, constipation may impair health.

Today, you can get rid of common constipation by simply eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regularity. ALL-BRAN is also a good source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than taking patent medicines.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation. Serious cases, with every meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

A PRAYER
I do not ask, O Lord, that life may be a pleasant road;
I do not ask that thou wouldst take from me aught of its load.
I do not ask my eyes to understand, my way to see;
Before in darkness just to feel Thy hand and follow Thee.
For one thing only, Lord, dear Lord, I plead—lead me aright,
Though strength should failer and though hearts should bleed,
Through peace to light.

IT IS TO BE HOPED THAT YOU ARE PREFERRED STOCK IN THE HUMAN MARKET.

Doctor—See here, I told you to stick to a vegetable diet and you're eating rabbit.
Mr. Slick—It's all right, Doc. This rabbit's the one that ate up my vegetable garden last summer.

College seems to be a place where they go in a raccoon-skin and come out with a sheep-skin.

Gladys—Mother, dear, I advertised under a different name that I would like to make the acquaintance of a defined gentleman with an eye to romance.

Mother—Gladys, how awful! Did you get any answers?
Gladys—Only one, from father.

Women are funny. They will spend hours making up their mind what dress to wear, and only two seconds in making up their mind what boy to marry.

Head Clerk—Aha! I'm glad to notice that you're arriving punctually now, Mr. Slowcombe.
Mr. Slowcombe—Yes, sir. I've bought a parrot.

Head Clerk—A parrot? What on earth for? I told you to get an alarm clock.
Mr. Slowcombe—Yes, I did. But after a day or two I got used to it and it didn't wake me. So I got the parrot. And now when I go to bed I set the alarm clock and put the parrot's cage on top of it. What that bird says when the alarm goes off would wake up anybody.

KNOCK AND THE WORLD KNOCKS WITH YOU. BOOST AND YOU OFTEN FIND YOURSELF BOOSTING ALONE.

Dessert was being served at the dinner party. The young lady before passing them, asked the rather deaf clergyman next to her:
Young Lady—Do you like bananas?
Deaf Clergyman (embarrassed)—Er-er, no, you see, I still prefer the old-fashioned night shirt.

We hear a lot about part time jobs now. And from all the evenings they have to spend alone, a good many wives must think they've married part-time husbands.

Boss (trying to trip his office boy): "What is the difference between the bull and the ox?"
Office Boy—The bull is the calf's father.

Boss—But the ox?
Office Boy—The ox is the calf's uncle.

Heaven to a girl would be having so many clothes she couldn't decide what to wear; but to a boy it would be having so many girls that he couldn't make up his mind which one to call up.

Henry—My wife's favorite book before we were married was "The Three Musketeers." And we had triplets.
George—Good Lord! Mine's was "The Birth of a Nation."

"I never spent but one dime for foolishness in all my life," said a backwoodsman from out beyond Brantville to the itinerant salesman, "and that was for a pair of socks."

One thing worse than being poor and having to work, is being poor and not having any work to do.

Can you remember when everybody wanted the most expensive room in the hotel?

Alaskan sealskins are selling for the lowest price in the history of U. S. government auctions. That's an excellent argument for friend wife this winter.

ODD FELLOWS CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY TOMORROW
Expect 800 To Attend Big Party—Arrangements All Completed Says Chairman

"Arrangements are all complete to handle three hundred members and guests tomorrow evening," declared Beverly Wright, chairman of the anniversary committee of the Odd Fellows of Manchester, today. The Odd Fellows of Manchester will celebrate the anniversary of the organization and granting of the charter tomorrow evening at Odd Fellows hall at Main and East Center streets. The affair will also include the 114th anniversary celebration of the founding of the order.

The program consists of a supper at 6:30 o'clock, prepared by the Sunset Rebekah Lodge, address of welcome by Noble Grand Harry P. Sweet, entertainment by the noted radio artist, Clayton P. Young of Madison Lodge, Grand Rapids, Michigan, and the presentation of the 114th emblem by Grand Master Frederick L. Foster of Madison Lodge after which there will be modern and old-fashioned dancing until midnight. The committee stated this morning that all Odd Fellows belonging to other lodges, living in Manchester, will be welcomed in addition to the Rebekahs, their husbands and members of their families.

Much interest has been aroused by the entertainment which will be given by Clayton Young. His positive statement that he plays the violin and piano at the same time without the aid of any mechanical assistance is believed by many to be impossible. Members of the lodge, however, witnessed this stunt about two weeks ago and immediately engaged Mr. Young and his novel act for tomorrow evening.

Another name has been added to the list of those who will receive the 35-year emblem. James Johnson was admitted to King David Lodge in September 1897 and through an oversight in the records his name had been left out. Those of the members who are to receive the emblem are requested to notify Beverly Wright, Belmont street, before noon tomorrow.

CENTRAL FALLS YOUTH RUNAWAY STOPPED HERE
Police Detain 18 Year Old Boy and Hold Him—Father Comes For Him Today

Leo Van Bala of Central Falls, R. I., decided on Wednesday that there were greater opportunities for a boy of 18 years in this world than could be found in Central Falls, so taking a few dollars from his father's savings he started to follow Horace Greeley's advice and go west. He got as far as Manchester Center last evening and was picked up by the police. He told his name, home address and his father's name. A telegram was sent to the police of Central Falls and along towards 10 o'clock came the reply that the boy's father was located and would call later. He called at 1 o'clock this morning and announced that he would come to Manchester today for the boy. An officer stated that he held until his arrival. This was done and early this afternoon the boy started back home in company with his father.
