LEAGUE DENOUNCES JAPAN'S POSITION IN WORLD REPORT

Makes Recommendations For Settling Manchurian Dispute But Japan Refuses To Accept Them.

Geneva, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Less than an hour after the League of Nations had transmitted to all the world's governments its report and recommendations on the Manchurian dispute today, Yosuke Matsuo, the Japanese spokesman, said his government would not accept them.

Another snag appeared in the attitude of the spokesman for Russia whose government together with that of the United States, the League asks to cooperate in negotiations for a Manchurian settlement.

SEES AID OF U. S. Geneva, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The League of Nations report on Manchuria, sent today to all nations of the world by the League's own wireless telegraph station, denounces Japan's policy in that territory and seeks the aid of the United States in settling the dispute.

It declares against the maintenance and recognition of the State of Manchuria, proposes new negotiations between China and Japan, with the League again assisting, and extends the invitation to all nations to assist in the effort to bring about a settlement.

The report already has been subscribed to by nineteen leading members of the League. It will be submitted on Tuesday for ratification by the full League Assembly, and will be debated on Friday and Saturday of next week before a final vote is taken.

In asserting that Manchuria must be retained under Chinese sovereignty, and in opposing recognition of the State of Manchuria, the reports takes a position alongside that of the United States as enunciated in the Stimson doctrine that the powers do not recognize territorial acquisition made by use of force.

Lytton Report The report is based largely on the findings and conclusions of the Lytton Commission which, under the auspices of the League, investigated the situation in Manchuria. But the Assembly report goes even further than that commission went in censuring Japanese military aggression and in defending China's right to the three eastern (Manchurian) provinces.

As a sequel to the Lytton report, the Assembly's pronouncement constitutes a strong condemnation of the most ambitious international effort ever exerted to regulate a warlike struggle through peaceful means. It embodies the most severe and arresting indictment of the policies of a great power which ever was undertaken.

Apprehension and Hope In issuing the report the League leaders experienced the extremes of apprehension and hope—apprehension lest their bold move for concerted condemnation of a strong state might lead to rupture and a world conflagration; hope that this organized and solemn effort might prove a tremendous victory for the world's peace machinery, and a powerful guarantee against later international disturbance.

The Manchurian question must be settled according to the principles of the League Covenant, the Kellogg-Briand Pact and the nine-power treaty, the report asserts. It calls for withdrawal of Japanese troops from Manchuria, but it does not set a definite time limit for that retirement.

Negotiations between China and Japan, with a League committee assisting as a third party with a view to settling the dispute are recommended. The United States and Soviet Russia would be invited to participate in the work of this League committee.

The Assembly recommends the establishment in Manchuria within a reasonable period of organization under the sovereignty of and compatible with the administrative integrity of China, said the report. The governments of Japan and China will be asked to accept this report without any reservation except that of acceptance by the other party.

TRASURY BALANCE Washington, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for February 15 were $77,658,742.11; expenditures $68,255,146.20; balance $9,403,595.91. Customs duties for 15 days of February were $5,971,974.28.

IT'S DOLLAR DAY HERE TOMORROW

Extra Fine Values Offered For Supreme Bargain Event of the Year.

Tomorrow is Dollar Day and Manchester merchants are offering extraordinary values. With depression prices in effect, the event is being called, "The Bargain Event Supreme."

Dollar Day offers values that will provide buyers with merchandise for dollar bills that two-dollar bills couldn't have purchased a short time ago; values that exceed all previous offers; values so positive that they will be talked about for weeks to come.

An ample parking space will be provided for automobiles on Main street and adjacent streets not to mention areas in the rear of several stores. Extra salespeople will be on hand to make the shopping easy and convenient for the buyers.

The Dollar Day sales drive is being sponsored by the Merchants Division of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce. Expectations are that the town's business scene will be crowded tomorrow night.

Read today's advertisements. Readers will find many extra fine bargains listed. Ten pages of those included in today's Herald have been added to the supplement that has been distributed to outlying towns. This is expected to bring large crowds from places near here. The early shoppers will get the best buys.

GUY IS ACQUITTED; THANKS THE JURORS

Wanderwell Murder Case Comes To End—Mystery Remains As Deep As Ever.

Long Beach, Calif., Feb. 17.—(AP)—The state's explanation of the sensational slaying of "Captain" Walter Wanderwell—a mystery with background and developments rivaling detective fiction—was rejected by the jury.

On the fourth ballot, the jury last night freed 23-year-old William James "Curly" Guy of the charge he slew the leader of an adventure-seeking band of eight young women and seven men the night of last Dec. 5.

The almost fantastic career of Wanderwell, 39-year-old Polish-born soldier of fortune, was ended by a pistol bullet aboard his yacht "Carna," docked in the ocean harbor here.

In a few days, the Carna, a former rum-running craft bought at a Customs auction, was to have put out for Hawaii, the South Seas and Oriental ports on a vagabond cruise for which the strangely assorted "crew" members were charged $190 each.

Guy was not a member of the crew but he and his wife were members of a 1931 automobile-ship expedition, Buenos Aires to San Francisco, which they left in Central America after a quarrel with the leader, Wanderwell. This quarrel was offered by the prosecution as a motive for Wanderwell's killing.

Thanks the Jurors Receiving the verdict with a characteristic smile and thanks to each of the jurors, Guy was taken immediately to the county jail at Los Angeles to await disposition of a charge of illegally entering this country. The charge has been pending almost since the time he was arrested December 7 in the murder case.

The jury took the case at 5 p. m. yesterday and reported a verdict at 10:35 p. m. A vote of 9 to 3 for acquittal was unofficially reported cast on the first ballot.

A. R. Montgomery, jury foreman, said the jurors believed lighting conditions about the yacht afforded too great a possibility for error by members of the crew who identified the demopur young Welshman as "the stranger in gray" who appeared at a porthole and asked for Wanderwell just before the shooting.

ASSASSIN HELD BY MIAMI AUTHORITIES

Immediately after he had attempted to kill President-elect Roosevelt—an attempt which resulted in five other persons being wounded—Giuseppe Zangara was seized by the police, as the crowd advanced shouting "lynch him," and taken to jail. He is shown (center), being guarded by Sheriff Dan Hardie (left) and Patrolman L. G. Crews (right). After his arrest, police said Zangara admitted he also wanted to kill President Hoover and shouted that he hated all governments.

REPEAL OF DRY LAW IS NOW UP TO HOUSE

Wet Leaders Confident It Will Pass On Monday—Senate Approves It By Vote of 63 To 23.

Washington, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Confident House leaders today summoned their full strength to throw the Democratic majority solidly behind prohibition repeal and speed the Senate-approved Blaine repealer to the states.

Speaker Garner promised a House vote Monday under the drastic procedure of suspension of the rules. The repeal resolution was jammed through the Senate yesterday by 63 to 23.

A Democratic caucus was called for late this afternoon to bind the party's members to vote for repeal. Representative Snell, the Republican leader, gave assurance of more than 100 Republican votes.

Senate galleries were crowded as anti-prohibitionists rent dry lines to force the resolution through by five votes more than the necessary two-thirds. Vice President Curtis had to rap five minutes to restore order after the voting which marked a long stride in the wet's drive against the Eighteenth Amendment.

Protects Dry States The Blaine repealer provides for repeal of the amendment, gives protection to dry states from liquor importations and provides for ratification by State Conventions.

Ratification by State Legislatures and power for Congress to legislate against return of the saloon were stricken out by the Senate.

Those changes brought the resolution, sponsored by Senator Blaine (R., Wis.), into line with the Democratic platform and won the support of Garner and other House leaders who were defeated by six votes last December 5 in an attempt to rush an outright repeal measure through the House.

Will Be Passed Party leaders expressed confidence today that if the Democratic caucus succeeds in whipping the majority into line and keeping the solid block intact in Monday's vote the Blaine repealer will be passed and sent to the states.

The signature of President Hoover is not necessary, but three-fourths of the state must ratify to make it effective.

With repeal out of the way, the Senate today turned to unemployment relief, with the $500,000,000 general relief program advanced by Senators La Follette (R., Wis.)

CAPTAIN BEAUPRE IS UP ON CHARGES

Head of Massachusetts State Police Suspended; Probing Board Is Appointed.

Boston, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The suspension of Captain Charles T. Beaupre, executive officer of the State police, on charges of misconduct, became effective today as plans went forward for an immediate trial before a police board.

Alfred F. Fogel, state commissioner of public safety, announced the appointment of a trial board to hear charges against Beaupre last night.

ZANGARA TELLS JUDGE HE NEEDS NO LAWYERS

But Court Answers That Best Counsel Will Be Provided For Man Who Tried To Kill President-Elect.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—The judicial government of Florida is determined that Giuseppe Zangara—a beady-eyed man who "hates" governments—will have every legal opportunity to defend himself against charges that he tried to kill the next President of the United States and wounded five persons in the bloody gesture.

Zangara—he says he has "been" pains in his stomach and thinks he should kill Presidents and Kings—doesn't want "anybody to help me."

Florida has elected not to arraign Zangara—he says now "my wounds" has been a "fatigue" my life is "nothing"—on charges of "previously" assaulting Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago and Mrs. Joe Gill of Miami until outcome of their wounds is determined.

Without Hearing About a Single Phase of Case, Judge Postpones Trial Until Tomorrow—Courtroom Crowded As Radical Is Brought Forward Under Heavy Guard; Has Nothing To Say—Conditions of Victims Called "Satisfactory"—Roosevelt Speeds Toward Home On Special Train.

Bridgeport, Feb. 17.—(AP)—John J. Egan, secretary of the State Federation of Labor today called attention to the possibilities of relief for unemployment to be found in the Federal Emergency Relief and Construction Act of 1932 as analyzed by the American Federation of Labor.

Egan said the Federation, from statistics it had compiled estimated approximately the number of persons in the United States who were engaged in gainful employment in normal times to be 43,000,000. Today over 12,000,000 of these workers are out of work and at the present rate of decline in employment one million more workers will be added to the total.

"The Real Solution" "The real solution for our employment and economic problems," he said, "lies in initiating work of a kind that will furnish the greatest amount of useful employment and consume the most materials without adding to the present surplus of marketable goods. One of the most feasible plans and one which would bring the greatest return per dollar invested would be the widespread acceptance and use of the government's offer to loan municipalities money to finance the construction of self liquidating public works projects as provided for under the provisions of the Emergency Relief and Construction Act of 1932."

Applying the bill to the state, Egan said: "Communities in this state can avail themselves of this offer and provide work for their unemployed without any increase of the tax rate or any increase in the amount of the bonded indebtedness. The money will be loaned only for public works which are proven necessary and which will produce income sufficient to pay for themselves over a term of years."

HEARING POSTPONED Miami, Fla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Without hearing a single phase of the case, Criminal Judge E. C. Collins, in a 30-minute court session, today postponed until tomorrow the arraignment of Giuseppe Zangara, charged with the attempted assassination of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Walking to the front of the courtroom, in front of the bench, Judge Collins briefly announced the appointment of three lawyers to represent the 33-year-old Italian, and then ordered him returned to the county jail pending formal arraignment at 10 a. m.

Arraignment of Zangara on charges of intent to murder three of five other persons, shot during an unsuccessful attempt on the life of Roosevelt, also was postponed until tomorrow.

These three persons are Miss Margaret Krus of Newark, N. J.; William Sinnott, New York policeman, and Russell Caldwell of Coconut Grove, Fla.

But Slightly Wounded They were slightly wounded when Zangara attempted to kill the President-elect shortly after he returned here Wednesday from a fishing cruise off the coast of Florida.

No charge has yet been placed against the man for the shooting of Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago, Deputy Guy Reeve, and Deputy O. J. Augenbaugh, and seated inside the rail. The courtroom was filled with spectators, and more than a hundred stood in the corridor, unable to gain admittance.

Dressed in a light blue, spotted shirt, open at the throat, and white sport trousers and shoes, Zangara gazed about the courtroom and chatted intermittently with the two deputies, while waiting for Judge Collins to appear.

Sheriff Dan Hardie had 20 deputies stationed throughout the crowded courtroom to prevent any demonstration. There was no disturbance, but as the crowd was filling out of the courtroom, Zangara was pushed by a deputy to pose for photographs.

When Judge Collins arrived, he strode to the front of the room and without mounting the bench, held up his hand to quiet the spectators.

Before the hearing started, Judge Collins said, "I want to announce I have conferred with several prominent attorneys, who are Lewis Tryman, president of the Dade County Bar Association; J. M. McCaskill, past president of the Association; and Alfred A. Raisa—a bar of our own bar, who speak Italian. "They have consented to represent the defendant. I will now recess court until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning."

Hold Conference Judge Collins conferred briefly with the attorneys and then deputies escorted Zangara over to them for a conference.

Six deputies surrounded Zangara as the spectators, craning necks for a good glimpse of the prisoner, slipped out of the room. Zangara seemed uninterested in the crowd or the short proceedings.

Soon after the adjournment, the prisoner was led back to his cell in the jail atop the 21st floor of the county courthouse, where he again talked with the attorneys.

EGAN SETS FORTH NEW RELIEF PLAN

State Labor Leader Says Towns and Cities Can Get Government Loans.

VICTIMS' CONDITIONS CALLED SATISFACTORY

Miami, Fla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago was sleeping and his condition was "very satisfactory," a bulletin issued by six physicians at 12:30 p. m. today said.

The bulletin read: "Mayor Cermak is sleeping and his condition is very satisfactory. Pulse 98; temperature 99.8; respiration 22."

Mayor Cermak was shot in the abdomen when he got into the line of fire from the gun of Giuseppe Zangara who attempted to assassinate President-elect Roosevelt in Bayfront Park here Wednesday night.

Dr. T. W. Hutson, attending Mrs. Joe H. Gill of Miami, another of the assassin's victims, said a second blood transfusion would be performed in the afternoon. He said a laboratory report on Mrs. Gill's general condition was favorable with red blood count but slightly below normal and hemoglobin at practically normal level.

REPEAL OF DRY LAW NOW UP TO HOUSE

Cutting (R. N. M.), and Cortigan (D. Colo.), up for debate.

The House continued work on the District of Columbia appropriations measure and also passed a memorial service in honor of members who have died within the year.

After the Senate action on repeal, Garner said: "As perfected by the Senate and with the Robinson amendment for the convention ratified of ratification, the resolution is satisfactory and in conformity with the Democratic platform."

Anti-prohibitionists in the House will meet tomorrow morning to decide their attitude.

In the Senate voting 38 Democrats, 29 Republicans and one Farmer-Laborite voted for the repeal. Nine Democrats and 14 Republicans were recorded in opposition.

Soon afterwards the Senate passed the appropriation bill carrying the reduced prohibition enforcement funds, limited to $8,440,000, and prohibiting the use of money for wire tapping or purchase of evidence. The measure was sent to the House for approval of amendments.

LEGAL MECHANISM Washington, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Just what legal mechanism will control ratification of prohibition repeal and when submitted to the people—may depend on how quickly some State Legislatures act.

Should the House follow the Senate's leadership in repealing the Eighteenth Amendment would it be State conventions for ratification. This method was favored by both party platforms.

No constitutional amendment ever has been ratified by a convention. State Legislatures always have done it.

Opinions differ over the United States convention plan. Some legal students believe Congress must create the convention. Others contend it is purely a state function.

One of the Capitol's outstanding constitutional authorities—Chairman Sumners of the House Judiciary committee says Congress has the power. But he adds that should a state go ahead and call a convention of the type which ratified the Constitution itself, "I would not go so far as to say that action was illegal."

That is, if the House votes repeal Monday and a State Legislature took immediate action to summon a ratifying convention properly representing the people.

Sumners believes such ratification would be constitutional. He says that a state go ahead and call a convention of the type which ratified the Constitution itself, "I would not go so far as to say that action was illegal."

ABOUT TOWN

The social planned for the Intermediate Department of the South Manchester church tonight has been postponed. Members of the department are invited to attend the basketball game between the Intermediate Boys and the Hazardville team at 7:30 o'clock in the church gymnasium.

Cain Mahoney, Jr., of 25 Hollister street, has been selected as the junior at the Manchester post office at the Center and will start upon his new duties Monday. He is the son of Mrs. Cain Mahoney of Walnut and Cedar streets and is one of five brothers who served in the World War.

Raymond McKivver and Mrs. William Williams of Brimfield, Ont., Canada, are spending ten days visiting relatives in Manchester. They returned from their trip to Canada for the past six months, since leaving the employ of the Southern New England Telephone Company, is back in Manchester for a short visit before again returning to Canada.

A dinner meeting of the Hartford County Federation of Democratic Women's clubs will take place Thursday evening, March 9 at 6:30 o'clock at the Hotel Hartford. One of the interesting items on the program should be a report of Mrs. Harry Rylander of Grove street.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Milkowski attended the meeting of the State florists at Norwich yesterday at the Scholastic of New York on how to stimulate business, also floral arrangements for the use of florists and commercial flower dealers.

There will be another sitting in the Masonic social club setback series tomorrow night. Winners last Saturday were Adolph Carlson, first; George Olds, second; William Erickson, consolation; and Ewald Erickson, door prize.

Another large crowd of men, women and children, took advantage of fairly good skating conditions at the Center Springs Pond last night. The skating party was for tonight or tomorrow so the chances of further good skating are not good.

The fish and game committee reported unfavorably on five bills which would permit hunting of deer during one week each year and pay bounties for the heads of wild cats, crows and other predatory birds and animals. The bills were rejected.

A measure which would require all corporations to rebuild their capital structure or forbid their charters was also rejected.

Cat licensing was again considered by the House when the bill on the subject again found its way to the clerk's desk, this time for a change of reference. Majority Leader Baldwin said that there had been such a "yowl" over the bill that he suggested it be tabled along with the yowl, and that action was taken.

The Senate received a favorable report on a measure changing the name of the state agricultural college to Connecticut State College. A favorable report was also received on a bill permitting banks of the state to borrow from the Federal home loan bank and to purchase stocks of this institution.

Eight Predictions. Indications were given that fight might be provoked in the Senate by a measure proposing to abolish the dual judgeship system in the Ansonia City Court. This measure has been rejected by the House, but when it came to the Senate action was deferred on it until Tuesday.

A hearing on the District Court bill before the judiciary committee was the only legislative activity on the program for this afternoon. Governor Cross has recommended to Democratic Legislators that they use their one-vote majority in the Senate to block action on the judgeship bill. The committee has acted on this measure.

Because of the delay in including the judgeships in the Senate file, it is now possible for the governor's course to be followed, providing, however, that the judiciary committee reports the District Court bill promptly.

HOSPITAL IS GUARDED Miami, Fla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Sober faced policemen stood guard in the flower filled corridors of Jackson Memorial hospital today as Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago fought for recovery from the wounds inflicted by an assassin's bullet intended for President-elect Roosevelt Wednesday night.

The Roosevelt train is due in New York just before dinner tonight.

He is willing to accept the heavy bodyguard which has been placed about him. But he took the front seat with the chauffeur as he rode about Miami yesterday en route to the hospital in the train. The police and Secret Service men huddled closely about him though. They were taking no chances.

Maximum Penalty. The maximum penalty for assault with intent to murder charges Zangara faces now is 20 years imprisonment. The state decided to arraign him for attempted assassination of Franklin D. Roosevelt and intent to murder William S. Cullen yesterday, but the jurist wouldn't arraign him because he had no counsel. "You're the judge and you can do what you want to do," said the hater of governments—an emotional, little man with a lean and haunting face.

Judge Collins, however, delayed the arraignment so counsel could be selected.

Not An Anarchist. "I am not an Anarchist," said the restless Zangara. "I want to kill all Presidents," he said. "In Italy, 10 years ago, I want to kill the King, but I cannot get to him. Sometimes I get beg pain in the stomach, too, and then I want to kill these presidents who oppress the working man."

He has no grudge against policemen, even when he has the stomach ache, he said. "I no care to kill police," said Zangara. "He was quite loquacious for awhile yesterday—they were for leaving."

Apparently, he thinks Presidents and Kings are men of leisure. He was awake late last night in the steel cell on the 21st floor of the Dade county courthouse. His keepers peered at him through the bars—the man who tried to kill the next President because Presidents don't work for a "living."

Zangara said his body eyes shined from his raw-honed face and were visible even in the gloom of the prison. He brooded—refused food. Zangara is an immigrant, an Italian by birth, an American by adoption.

One of his victims—Anton Cermak—also is an immigrant. Cermak became mayor of America's second largest city. Zangara became an assassin.

ASSEMBLY WARNED TO SPEED UP WORK

William Harney, engraving clerk, for proof reading.

Under normal procedure measures must appear in the file at least one day before they can come up for action.

Senator Cooney of Hartford said he had suggested to leaders of both parties that all judgments be acted on under suspension of the rules. He said he favored this course as an economy measure, since it would eliminate the necessity of having the resolutions printed.

If Senator Cooney's suggestion is followed it will be possible for the Senate to act on the judgeships Tuesday, otherwise these must go over at least until Wednesday.

Favorable Reports. Favorable reports were received in the House on bills affecting education on 13 bills affecting the schools of the state. The majority of these measures were on technical matters which have troubled the State Board of Education.

The first selection of Monroe was named a member of the school board of his town, with authority to dissolve all the votes, in one of the bills favorably reported. Opponents of the bill charged at the committee hearing that the measure would put politics into Monroe school matters.

Other education bills set the school year at 180 days and the fiscal year to start on July 1 and end on June 30.

The bill which would cut the salaries of all Bridgeport office holders and employes was reported back to the House by the judiciary and reassigned for hearing by the cities and boroughs committee.

The fish and game committee reported unfavorably on five bills which would permit hunting of deer during one week each year and pay bounties for the heads of wild cats, crows and other predatory birds and animals. The bills were rejected.

A measure which would require all corporations to rebuild their capital structure or forbid their charters was also rejected.

Because of the delay in including the judgeships in the Senate file, it is now possible for the governor's course to be followed, providing, however, that the judiciary committee reports the District Court bill promptly.

HOSPITAL IS GUARDED Miami, Fla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Sober faced policemen stood guard in the flower filled corridors of Jackson Memorial hospital today as Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago fought for recovery from the wounds inflicted by an assassin's bullet intended for President-elect Roosevelt Wednesday night.

The Roosevelt train is due in New York just before dinner tonight.

He is willing to accept the heavy bodyguard which has been placed about him. But he took the front seat with the chauffeur as he rode about Miami yesterday en route to the hospital in the train. The police and Secret Service men huddled closely about him though. They were taking no chances.

Maximum Penalty. The maximum penalty for assault with intent to murder charges Zangara faces now is 20 years imprisonment. The state decided to arraign him for attempted assassination of Franklin D. Roosevelt and intent to murder William S. Cullen yesterday, but the jurist wouldn't arraign him because he had no counsel. "You're the judge and you can do what you want to do," said the hater of governments—an emotional, little man with a lean and haunting face.

Judge Collins, however, delayed the arraignment so counsel could be selected.

Not An Anarchist. "I am not an Anarchist," said the restless Zangara. "I want to kill all Presidents," he said. "In Italy, 10 years ago, I want to kill the King, but I cannot get to him. Sometimes I get beg pain in the stomach, too, and then I want to kill these presidents who oppress the working man."

He has no grudge against policemen, even when he has the stomach ache, he said. "I no care to kill police," said Zangara. "He was quite loquacious for awhile yesterday—they were for leaving."

Apparently, he thinks Presidents and Kings are men of leisure. He was awake late last night in the steel cell on the 21st floor of the Dade county courthouse. His keepers peered at him through the bars—the man who tried to kill the next President because Presidents don't work for a "living."

night several hours after he had ordered the captain's suspension.

Beaupre, who worked his way from the ranks to the highest of the uniformed division of the State police, turned in his badge a short time after Governor Ely made public the report of an investigating board.

The special order, suspending Beaupre from duty without pay, became effective today "until further orders."

Footes was expected to complete his preparation of the charges and specifications against the captain today.

Beaupre declined to comment and Governor Ely said he expected to study the transcript of evidence presented to the board of investigation appointed to inquire into charges against Beaupre.

The board investigated charges of fictitious expense accounts, negligence in the handling of certain mail, and employment of a police corporal on private work.

The special trial board, appointed by Footes to hear the charges against Beaupre, included: Lieut. James P. Mahoney, Framingham headquarters, president; Lieut. William V. Hinton, Essex headquarters; Lieut. Harry L. Avery, Northampton headquarters, and Lieut. James E. Hughes of Boston. Lieut. Hughes will act as judge advocate.

Duty of Board. The board was appointed, the order to study the transcript of evidence prepared by A. E. Footes, commissioner of public safety, against Captain Charles T. Beaupre, executive officer, division of the State police, for violation of Rule 21, Chapter 23, Acts of the Massachusetts State police.

Lieutenant Hughes will notify the above named officer and see that he is given a copy of the charges.

This board will meet at the State House training school quarters at Boston at the call of the president and shall convene at the earliest opportunity.

WOMAN HERE GETS MEXICAN DIVORCE

Oscar J. Chetelat Gets Notice Decree Has Been Granted In Juarez.

Oscar J. Chetelat, of 36 Birch street, has received notice from the clerk of the court in Juarez, Chihuahua, Mexico, that his wife, formerly Miss Statia Berk, of 88 Somerset street, this town, has been granted a divorce. Mrs. Chetelat is now in California.

The Chetelats were married here in 1929 and last Spring agreed to disagree. Mrs. Chetelat went to Mexico with the idea of securing a divorce and last December papers were served on her husband here announcing her intentions. He did not contest the action since the couple had agreed on a divorce. He received notice that the decree had been granted this morning.

SUES FOR INJURIES

Bridgeport, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Leonard Sigiorillo, 17, of Stamford, who was engaged by Andrea Cappabiano a year ago to cut down a tree on his place and who was badly injured when he fell from the tree when the limb he was sitting on gave way, filed a suit for $10,000 damages in the Superior Court today against Cappabiano. He alleges that Cappabiano knew of the rotten condition of the tree.

The Game
Tomorrow will be a day of delight for the true bargain hunter, the buyer who enjoys tremendously the job of stretching a dollar as far as it can possibly be made to go. Dollar Day will give the bargain hunters plenty of opportunity for this game. And judging from what we've seen of the merchandise to be offered tomorrow at special prices, the dollar will be stretched three and four times its normal length in many cases.

Lemon Queens
"Lemon Queens" are delightful little cup-cakes finished off with a lemon butter frosting. For a dozen and a half cakes use:
1-2 cups cake flour
1-4 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon soda
Grated rind of 1 lemon
1-2 cup butter
1 cup sugar
4 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored
3-4 tablespoon lemon juice
4 egg whites, beaten stiff.
Sift flour once, measure, add salt and soda, sift together three times. Add lemon rind to butter and cream well. Add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks and lemon juice. Add flour, small amount at a time, and beat until smooth. Fold in egg whites. Pour into greased cup cake pans, filling 2-3 full. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 25 minutes, or until done. When cold, cover tops with lemon butter frosting.

Reflecting Beauty
It is a well known fact among interior decorators that the grouping of pictures and mirrors can make or break a room. Mirrors should be placed across the room from your most attractive spots. If you have a fireplace, a mirror might go on the wall opposite to reflect the brightness of the fireplace. Perhaps one corner of the living room is particularly attractive and if so, this might be reflected in a mirror right opposite. Plain unadorned mirrors are best for small, unpretentious homes. The big ones with fancy gilt frames must be left for grander houses.

All these were in the second classification.

Glendale, 30 miles from the harbor at the time Wanderwell was killed. Guy was captured in a small, unlighted house in the Los Angeles river bottoms two nights after the killing. He said that he, knowing he would be sought in the case, was hiding for fear his alien status would be disclosed and he would be deported.

He admitted having a "grudge" against Wanderwell but denied he slew him.
The Carma crew included a titled Englishman—Lord Edward Montagu, second son of the Duke of Manchester; a waitress, an actress, a campfireman and several students and seamen, all lured into a guest for adventure and romance on the high seas and in distant ports by Wanderwell's promotion advertising.

Four On Board
Four of these were aboard the Carma when Wanderwell was killed. They were Miss Marian Smith, writer, Rockmart, Ga.; Miss Mary Fazio, student, East Saugun, Miss. Cuthbert Wills, engineer, and Edmund Zeranski, Hollywood cameraman.

A pistol shot—a man's high pitched scream of terror—Wanderwell's body slumped down against a couch in the dining salon—a fruitless search for the gray-clad stranger—these were described to the jury in a courtroom within earshot of the pounding of seas.
Dressed in a smart semi-military uniform, Mrs. Aloha Wanderwell, attractive young widow of the adventurer, told of emphy between her husband and Guy.

She said Guy presented Wanderwell with a "muddy paper" written in Spanish during the 1931 expedition and that Guy was dropped from the party in Panama. She told also of a quarrel between the two in Los Angeles last fall over money. Guy claimed Wanderwell owed him.

The Midgies got another team lined up for their hour this week. The new team is called the Polish Chicks as all of them are Polish boys. This group is all under ten years of age.

The North Ends got even with the Collegians in a real game of basketball last night. They came out just one point to the good, 31 to 30, after a struggle all the way through.

The Pinehurst players succeeded in keeping the honors which Joe's men had planned to take away from them after the defeat of last week. Even with our big tall center Welles on deck Joe's men could not run up 23 points to the Pinehurst's 41. Well they got just as much exercise and a lot of fun out of it anyway.

Tonight at six o'clock every team now in any of the leagues is asked to have a man here to represent them in the basketball set up for the next month. Any new

REFEAL

The adoption of straight-out repeal of the Eighteenth amendment by the Senate yesterday was a proceeding of historic significance. It was the first time that the opponents of federal prohibition had ever succeeded in bringing about a Senate vote on the question of repeal since the amendment was put into effect thirty years ago. The fact that the repealer was adopted free from the disqualifying rider which the drys sought to attach to it, in the form of a police regulation forbidding the saloon, indicates a tremendous change in the Congressional outlook since the November elections.

It is probable that Speaker Garner is not promising better than he can fulfill when he forecasts a very early and favorable vote in the House, perhaps on Monday.

Aside from the size of the vote—63 for the resolution to 23 against it—the most satisfactory feature of yesterday's action lies in the fact that the resolution as adopted provides for ratifying action of the states by Constitutional conventions instead of by vote of the legislatures.

The federal Constitution itself provides that Congress shall propose the method of ratification which has heretofore, nevertheless, always been by the legislatures.

This innovation was a particularly solid victory for the advocates of repeal. For some time the extreme drys have been organizing their strength among the legislators of a number of the smaller states in the hope of holding in line at least thirteen of these little commonwealths in refusal to ratify the repeal. In not more than two or three of these there is the least likelihood that there exists a bona fide majority of voters still favorable to federal prohibition. It is the expectation of the wets that honestly representative conventions, made up of delegates elected directly by the people on the straight issue of repeal, will quickly ratify the repealer in a number of states where, were it left to the legislatures, the will of the people might be disregarded.

All this does not mean that, even if the House promptly follows the example of the Senate, full ratification of the Staine resolution is certain to be a matter of only a few weeks or months. It may be some time yet before the approval of thirty-six states is obtained. Quite possibly it may be a year or two before the country sees the last of its experimentation in using the Constitution as a policing instrument. But when it is over it will be over. Here is one country that won't ever be likely to try that scheme again.

TOUGH ON RAILROADS

Beyond doubt the majority of people in this country will accept the statements of facts made in the report of the National Transportation Committee, of which the late President Coolidge was a member, even where they contradict certain declarations heretofore made by spokesmen for the railroads. While the deductions of the committee may be open to dispute in any quarter, there can scarcely be successful conversation of its factual findings. It is interesting to note, then, that the committee flatly disavows the implications of a tremendous volume of railroad propaganda that the roads have hopelessly involved and, unless rescued by extraordinary governmental favors, must collapse. The committee's finding that even with their present bad management the roads would be making money if their business were increased by 20 per cent will astonish a great many people who have been subjected for years to the walkings of the transportation corporations; but they will be disbelieve it. The authority is so good—and too indisinterested. It is perhaps unfortunate from the point of view of the New Haven road that this committee's report had to come along just at the time when the New Haven is exerting itself to the utmost to obtain restrictive legislation on motor trucks. Unhappily for that legislation it has not been sufficiently advocated on its own merits but very largely as a rescue measure to save the railroad from undeserved disaster.

It may be difficult, in view of the National Transportation Committee's report, to now make the members of Connecticut General Assembly see the suffering railroads in the same light as they might have seen them before that report was made.

ALL ABOUT MONEY

An airplane view of the program of legislation on which the Connecticut State Teachers' Association, the Connecticut Teachers Federation and the Connecticut Association of Public School Superintendents are centering their attention discloses an interesting fact. Of the six measures receiving the united support of these groups and the nine bills which they are unanimously opposing, not a single one deals with the subject of education; every one with two exceptions—a measure which would empower the State Board of Education to grant degrees and another prohibiting it from doing so—have to do with money.

If it is true that the education of youth is a commodity, so much for so much—then this money-measuring outlook on the subject may be warrantable, and there may be at least plausibility to these concerted attacks on every school economy measure that is proposed. There is, however, a growing conviction that money and education are not the same thing and not interchangeable terms.

It may be of especial interest to a good many thousand distracted taxpayers—and tax owners—that one of the measures under the fire of the teachers and superintendents is House Bill 189, which reads:

No board of education of any town shall enter into any contract for the performance of any work, labor or service, or for the furnishing of any material, to take effect during the succeeding fiscal year of such town, until it shall have submitted such contract to the board of finance of such town and shall have received its approval.

"Boards of finance" in Connecticut towns lacking such special institutions in their charters means boards of selectmen.

The position of the teachers groups is, of course, that boards of education should have unlimited power to legally commit their towns to any amount of expenditure, wholly regardless of the ability of the towns to pay or the taxpayers to raise their assessments and without the consent of the town government or the voters. What does the taxpayer think?

NEW YORK ALIVE

Since the Connecticut Legislature convened at the beginning of the year and while it has been accomplishing nothing at all aside from skirmishing over patronage, the New York Legislature has authorized a commission on the control of alcoholic beverages in anticipation of change in or abandonment of federal prohibition; the commission has been appointed; it has held a long series of sessions; it has already formulated a plan for controlling the traffic in beer without involving the return of the old saloon system and it has reported back to Governor Lehman.

The commission has not, of course, completed its work; but it has done the first thing it was given to do—it has handed to the governor a plan for the handling of the sale of legal beer if Congress should see fit to legalize it within Constitutional prohibition. That was the more urgent need, for in any event beer legalization might be expected to precede ratification of repeal. The commission will now go ahead with a general plan for the disposition of the hard liquor problem.

The merits of the demerits of the commission's plan are not of primary interest to Connecticut. It is, of interest, however, that our General Assembly is doing nothing by way of preparation for the hour, which may arrive at any time, when the control of liquor, or at least of the beer traffic, will be entirely a state responsibility.

Everybody knows that federal prohibition is on its last legs. Yet Connecticut appears to be as indifferent to the matter as though it made no difference whether the liquor traffic were controlled at all or permitted to run wild.

WOMEN GET BUSY

Perhaps the women will evolve the solution of the depression. They seem to be doing almost everything that the men ought to have done. Mrs. Karr of Lynn cut down her clothes line, tied it to a ladder and slid the ladder out over the ice to the rescue of two imperiled boys.

All any man did was to contribute his muscles to the hauling around of the ladder. With men all around and the assassin shooting over the shoulder of a reporter who had the gall to brag about it afterward, it was a woman, Mrs. W. F. Cross of Miami, who jumped at Joe Zangara Wednesday night, grappled with him and deflected his last shot. "Ladies Day" seems to be every day nowadays. Maybe the women will be first to realize even the fact that the degree of education their children get depends not on the amount of money that is spent on the education but on how they are educated.

INDUCING A FIT

Of course there never has been such a thing as actual overproduction of any useful commodity. What is referred to by that term is production beyond the ability of consumers to pay. If all the wheat and all the cotton were offered free to anybody, anywhere, who wanted it, all the surplusage would disappear in a jiffy. So the bill of Senator Smith of South Carolina, putting a premium on the curtailment of tobacco crops, while possibly excusable in an emergency, doesn't make economic sense. Such crops were recently compared by Lincoln Steffens to the practice of a certain quack doctor who, when he encountered a case of disease that he didn't understand, gave the patient something to throw him into a fit. "I know how to cure fits," he explained.

Our old fashioned economists know how to handle a situation where there isn't enough of anything to supply the needs of the world. They are all mixed up when it comes to dealing with plenty—so they would restore the disease of scarcity because they know how to get along with that.

THEATERS

AT THE STATE

"Ladies They Talk About" And Ed Wynn

Barbara Stanwyck in "Ladies They Talk About," and Ed Wynn, the popular radio favorite in "Follow the Leader," make up the double feature program at the State tonight and Saturday. "Ladies They Talk About" is a story of women in prison—their lives, their thoughts, their hopes and fears. Written by a woman who was sentenced to San Quentin prison in California, and whose experiences while serving her time, have been made into this movie. A unique attachment that blossoms into a glowing romance is unfolded. It involves the love of a stalwart young evangelist for an attractive girl bandit and prisoner in San Quentin prison. Miss Stanwyck is seen in the role of the girl bandit, a new type of role for her, while Preston Foster is seen as the young evangelist who eventually sweeps her off her feet with the depth of his love. Miss Stanwyck is marvelous in her new role, and she is given a splendid support by a very capable supporting cast that includes Lyle Talbot, Lillian Roth, Ruth Donnelly and Dorothy Burgess.

Ed Wynn, popular radio favorite, comes to the screen in a riot of laughter in "Follow the Leader." Ed Wynn has created an enormous following over the air, and this is the first opportunity many thousands of his admirers have had to see him as he actually is. The famous fire chief keeps the laughs going from the first foot of film to the last fade-out. Here is a real treat for those who just cannot afford to pass up.

Cecile E. De Mille's "The Sign of the Cross," a stupendous spectacle revolving around the persecution of the Christians by the pagan Romans, will be shown at the State for three days, starting Sunday night.

AT THE CIRCLE

Two Features
The picture "Goonas-Goonas" which had been booked for a three-day run at the Circle, this week Friday, Saturday and Sunday, has been cancelled and the usual Saturday and Sunday program will be shown at this popular movie house. It is expected that "Goonas-Goonas" will be shown in Manchester at a later date.

The program for Saturday and Sunday will consist of Spencer Tracy, Marian Nixon and Stuart Erwin in "Face in the Sky," and Adrienne Ames and David Manners in "The Death Kiss." "Face in the Sky" is an idyllic romance of a hugely self-confident young signboard artist and a country girl—dreamers both, but towards different goals. He firmly intends to marry an heiress, the sort of girl whose face he is always painting on barns and billboards. She, on the other hand, is a practical girl who has a home and happiness. It is one of the most enjoyable comedy dramas shown in town for a long time. Stuart Erwin is cast as Tracy's loyal, but hopelessly stupid helper and exactly the right note of pathetic comedy.

"The Death Kiss" is a story of Hollywood and takes one right into the studios of the picture capital. It reveals the workings of Hollywood where romance is more real than anywhere the writers can produce. The excellent cast headed by Adrienne Ames and David Manners also includes Fela Lugosi, John Wray and Barbara Bedford. Another chapter of the thrilling serial "The Last Frontier," completes the bill.

DALE HARRISON PICTURES ZANGARA, THE ASSASSIN

Feature Writer Analyzes His Philosophy—Saved His Money, Decried Rulers and Played Checkers.

By DALE HARRISON
New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—He was the kind of fellow who cursed government and then ran to the government's postal savings bank with his money for safekeeping.

That was the philosophy—if it be philosophy—of Giuseppe Zangara, who from a cheap pistol fired at Miami Wednesday night five shots that threatened to write red pages of American history.

He came to America, an immigrant, in 1923 from Italy. Many years before another immigrant had come from Bohemia. That was Anton Cermak. He elected to write his life's destiny in the golden sands of the new world which another Bohemian, the President-elect, had named Anton, had apostrophized in a great symphony.

The one, hating government and hating rulers, ranted from soapboxes in broken English or, if his audience could understand, in his native Italian. The other became mayor of Chicago.

Their paths met Wednesday night at Miami. In the hands of one was an eight dollar pistol. In his heart, by his own words, was the assassin's mind. The other was a man of peace. Back in Calabria, Italy, the father of Giuseppe Zangara has been wondering for several weeks what had become of his son in America. The money which Giuseppe had been sending home was much appreciated by the father, the stepmother and the step-sisters there.

Only a day or two ago a letter came from the elder Zangara to Vincent Cafaso of Paterson, N. J., an uncle of Giuseppe, asking where the son was. "The money has stopped," wrote the father. "Where is Giuseppe? He was always so prompt with the money."

Cafaso didn't know. He hadn't heard. But he knows now. Giuseppe Zangara is in jail at Miami, Mr. Zangara. Your son Giuseppe tried to shoot down the President-to-be, maybe, the money won't be coming to you in Calabria now—the bright American gold pieces that exchange into scores and scores of lira.

In Calabria, probably under the guidance of his father, the young Giuseppe became a stonemason and bricklayer. When he reached America he became a laborer. He had ten years ago when he found that could make good money here at his trade.

He took out papers of naturalization. He put his savings in the postal savings bank; and he began to talk from soapboxes.

To those who like to toy with thoughts, it may be set down that in the Alexander Hamilton hotel in Paterson, N. J., a hotel named for a great American who died from a pistol bullet's wound—were bricks laid by Giuseppe Zangara who, like Hamilton facing Aaron Burr, stood pistol in hand and sought to kill.

Zangara always indicated definite political ideas, yet Federal agents seeking to trace his career in America have failed to find any connection between him and any Anarchic or anti-government group. He was a lone wolf who started as a Republican, and that is the only evidence, so far uncovered, to indicate a political leaning.

CREAMERY IS GUARDED FOLLOWING THREATS

Bellows Falls, Vt., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Flood lights illuminated the plant of the Bellows Falls co-operative creamery through the night and policemen patrolled the grounds as authorities investigated threats to bomb the creamery.

The creamery, holdout in the plan of the New England Dairies, Inc., to control 85 per cent of the milk shipped into Boston, last night released information that its plant had been entered and damaged last Friday night. Creamery officials also made known threats of bombing and personal injury had been received.

The Boston and Maine railroad also took precautions to protect 24 cars of the creamery while they are sidetracked at the local station and while they are enroute to Boston every morning.

Manager MacLennan of the creamery said he believed the threats had come from cranks but nevertheless he had taken steps to protect the property of the plant.

LUTHER LEAGUERS BANQUET TONIGHT

Rev. Martin Cornell, of Worcester, To Be Principal Speaker; Expect 150 To Attend.

All arrangements have been completed for the annual banquet of the Luther League of the Emanuel Lutheran church, to be held in the church vestry tonight at 8:30 o'clock. Members of the congregation who have not yet secured tickets may do so at the door.

Herman Johnson will be toastmaster and the principal speaker will be Rev. Martin Cornell of Worcester, Mass., who will take as the subject "Speak Up." A fine musical program has also been arranged by the committee, in charge, headed by Miss Ruth Johnson and Miss Mitzl Berggren. It is expected that close to 150 persons will attend the banquet.

INCREASE IN DEBTS NOW HITS EVERYONE

Every Individual Now Feels the Pinch; Here's Finance Statement.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington.—The vast burden of debt now worries us, individually and nationally and congressionally, more than any other aspect of the depression.

Some of us have been engulfed in this great sea of liabilities. Others are going down for the third time or are in up to the neck. Many of us have only wet feet.

Farmers, revolting in grim earnest against seizure of their farms for debt, have dramatized the great national dilemma. But the $9,000,000,000 of farm mortgages is only a small part of the commonly estimated $200,000,000,000 of individual, corporate and public debt.

Every man, woman and child is involved. Anyone who supposes that he doesn't owe money is respectfully reminded of his share in the national, state and local debt. Each adult's average share is nearly $500 and, although payment won't be suddenly demanded, each of us is paying interest on public debt in billions of dollars through visible or invisible taxation.

Whereas all of us are debtors, millions of us are also creditors. Anyone who owns a bond, a stock, a bank deposit or an insurance policy is a creditor. Creditors profit when they collect interest and principal in dollars worth $1.65 as compared with 1929, but many have suffered through defaults and collapses of property, security and other values.

"National Insolvency"
The big, bad, stark fact about our debts is that they were largely contracted in days of high prices and high incomes. Now the debts remain and both the national treasure on which they were based and the income with which they were to be paid have so fallen that a large proportion of the debt and its charges simply can't be met. We hear "national insolvency" and Senator Schrah says the national income, measured against the demands of taxes and interest, is practically zero.

About 700,000 property foreclosures have been made within three years and in the last six years one farmer in every 10 has lost his farm. Railroads are at the crisis. Pressure on nearly all types of debts has intensified.

With action demanded, Congress is paving the way to speed measures for debtor relief. A bi-partisan agreement on unprecedented legislation has been reached in a desperate effort to get action in the present short session.

Governors and legislatures are acting. Michigan talk is in the air. The federal government considers converting billions of bonds to cover lower interest. Big life insurance companies holding $2,000,000,000 in farm mortgages, promise to postpone foreclosures in western states. In New York, where there is $8,500,000,000 in mortgages, a strong movement begins to cut real estate mortgage interest to 4 per cent.

The fact that all debtors are in more or less the same type of boat is shown when you examine some of the chief types of debt.

A Look at the Books
First, there's the general total of debt, which has been estimated both below and above the loosely accepted sum of $200,000,000,000, or about $1,600 per capita. The debt increased about 40 per cent in the prosperity period, but it didn't seem so menacing before the national wealth dropped from $329,000,000,000 in 1930 to an estimated $280,000,000,000, or $1,964 per capita, in 1932. Or before the $85,000,000,000 national income of 1929 had fallen to an estimated $37,000,000,000 last year, or $296 per capita. Taxes run about $15,000,000,000 a year, and interest an estimated $10,000,000,000 for a combined per capita of about $200, which would be two-thirds of the average per capita income.

Farmers are hardest hit as a group because the prices they receive have gone down far beyond other prices. He piled up most of his debt when farm prices were two to five times as high as now. Rural taxes meanwhile have risen 286 per cent. Farm income has declined by $9,000,000,000 since 1919. Farm values have declined 25 to 30 per cent during the depression.

But a harassed, mortgaged farmer perhaps is as well off as the city dweller with mortgage payments and taxes to meet who has lost his job. Banks, which had about $37,000,000,000 out in loans in 1929, have been just as hard on the city borrower, in their anxiety to raise cash, as on the farmer.

Railroads owe some $13,000,000,000 of an estimated $75,000,000,000 of corporation debt. Their earnings fell from $1,275,000,000 in 1929 to $324,000,000 in 1932. Only 38 of 138 Class One railroads finished 1932 without a deficit. Of the others, 45 didn't earn operating expenses and the rest didn't earn fixed charges. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation lent the roads $360,000,000 in 1932, generally to make interest payments, but now some of the big roads are facing bond maturities and have exhausted their collateral.

Cities Feel Pinch
Reduced income not only makes more difficult the carrying of the public debt but also adds to it. With incomes, property value and business activity at low levels the old taxes didn't come anywhere near paying national, state and city expenses. Deficits resulted. The national debt has gone back above $20,000,000,000 and the state and local debt is around $16,000,000,000, each having increased three or four billions during the depression.

Congress and state officials are giving special attention to farmers, partly because rural revolts against evictions represent an attack on the

Seek Fawcett

A new search for Col. P. A. Fawcett, who disappeared into the "Green Hell" of the Brazilian jungles in 1926, will be made by two American youths, now in Rio de Janeiro ready to plunge into the Amazon wilds. They are Nathaniel R. Rogers, top, and Matthew Knapke, both of Cleveland. They believe they picked up a new clue in Rio as to the fate of Fawcett, who vanished on an expedition which sought a "lost civilization."

capitalistic system and processes of government. Also because restoration of national prosperity requires farm prosperity. The LaGuardia-McKeown bill passed by the House provides for voluntary scaling down or extension of debts by agreements between debtors and creditors. Applicable to railroads, industrial corporations, farmers and other individuals, it is designed to encourage settlements without bankruptcies. Under it a debtor who can't pay at maturity would file a petition with a court stating the inability and would be safe from bankruptcy pending negotiations with creditors for reorganization or extension. Railroad reorganizations could be effected with the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Refinancing of farm mortgages and a temporary financing of the farmer's tax and mortgage payments are growing issues in Congress. Senator Fraser of North Dakota, whose bill has been endorsed by seven farm state legislatures, would have the government issue notes to take up mortgages and let farmers pay 1 1/2 per cent interest plus 1 1/2 per cent amortization until the debt was paid off. Senator Hull of Tennessee has a bill proposing that the R. F. C. finance mortgages and give the farmer a two-year breathing period. Senator Robinson of Arkansas would set up a billion-dollar corporation to make 3 per cent loans to farmers. And of course there are dozens of proposals for inflation.

HOUSEHOLD FILE A HANDY DEVICE FOR BUSY WOMEN

A cardboard or wooden box filled with cards can serve many useful purposes in the household. The cards are valuable for recording anniversary and birthday dates, insurance policy information or dates when certain household articles were purchased.

Menus, recipes, household suggestions, shopping lists and home nursing ideas can be jotted down on the cards and indexed in the file. Various headings or entries should be made and even temporary ones are helpful such as "Unanswered Letters," "Calls to Make," "Social Engagements" and miscellaneous reminders.

Cataloging the names of the family to whom Christmas gifts are sent as well as the names and addresses of friends to whom Christmas cards are mailed will be found most convenient for reference. These little reminders not only aid the busy woman, but also make for systematic housekeeping. The size of such files will depend upon the size of the household.

It might not work in bridge, but clearing the throat is still a good sign-off bid on a three-party line.

To Play the New Leads

When spring invades the Hollywood scene, clever actresses change their moods and their costumes to play the new season. Adrienne Ames assures herself an enthusiastic reception as she catches the light, bright spirit of spring, wearing a filmy frock of yellow corded organdie. This is an interesting feminine contrast to Marlene Dietrich's mannish spring costume.

NITTI SAYS DUCE LEADS TO WAR

Ex-Premier Spurns Amnesty and Hits Fascism As Being "Racket."

By MINOTT SAUNDERS
Paris.—Benito Mussolini's widely advertised gesture of amnesty to political exiles means nothing because Italians cannot be free in their own country under the present regime, according to Signor Francesco Nitti, war-time premier, who still looks with concern on Fascism and all its works. He has nothing but scorn for the general invitation to Italians to return home. "Bandits" is Nitti's term for Mussolini and his men. The old patriot is as implacable as ever and denounces Fascism as a form of lawlessness and organized robbery. Were he an American, he would call it a racket. He is firm in his belief that it is leading Italy to ruin.

Nitti was asked if he intended to take advantage of Mussolini's declaration of amnesty, and return to his native land. "Certainly not," he said. "There is no freedom in Italy. There is only one party and no means by which another party could raise its standard. A man can neither discuss politics nor think aloud for himself. Mussolini is making an effort to influence sentiment abroad in his favor, but he cannot influence us until we may return home and be free men again."

Nitti, in Paris, is still looked upon by political exiles as a leader, but he regards the future as vague. He appears as vigorous and alert as ever, and his penetrating eyes remain keen. He estimates there are 40 former deputies, many intellectuals and about 200,000 Italians in France, practically all of whom, he says, prefer to remain here.

"If we went back we would only increase Mussolini's prestige, which is the last thing we want to do," he explains. "If there could be a popular vote in Italy today Mussolini would be overwhelmingly defeated. But under the regime there can be nothing like a popular expression of opinion."

Asked about the welfare of political prisoners in exile on the islands of Lipari and Ponza, off Sicily, Nitti declared that Mussolini's so-called amnesty meant nothing for them. "Nitti feels, in put it mildly, that Mussolini's policy is a menace to the world."

"If he keeps on there will be war," Nitti declared. "He is driving blindly to war."

Picking up business is better than waiting for business to pick up.

SPEEDSTERS FLOCK TO RACING CAPITAL

Ascot Speedway At Los Angeles Beckons Drivers From Everywhere.

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
Los Angeles.—This city, long famous for film stars who eat home-grown, sun-kissed oranges for breakfast, and for bathing beauties who inevitably pose for photographers on oil derricks, or at a safe distance from the Pacific Ocean, has something else to crow about. Ascot track here, it may be said without fear of libel suits, is the nation's automobile racing center, from the standpoint of the number of races held. True, there is only one track here, but, on an average, 35 races are held here annually. Moreover, America's best known drivers have made it their stamping ground.

Ernie Triplett, 1932-33 Pacific Coast racing champion, "Wild Bill" Cummings, "Shorty" Canton, Leon Dury, Bob Carey, present national champ, Babe Stapp and about as many other notables of the roaring road as one can mention, most all ways are on hand for every Ascot thriller.

Yet accidents are few, and fatalities almost unknown. Interspersed with shorter events on each program, the main events vary from 65 to 200 laps. A crowd of 30,000 persons, at $1 and $2.50 a throw, is not unusual for the long grids, and the 65-lap affairs, with the same tariff, consistently attract from six to 8,000 spectators.

Night racing, first introduced at the Los Angeles oval, has proved the biggest money maker for the American Legion promoters who took over the plant in 1928. The year's schedule includes races every Wednesday night from May to October, with day races on Sunday twice a month during the rest of the year. Film stars always are on hand to congratulate the victors.

No Snow to Stop 'Em
Los Angeles' mild climate, perhaps, has a great deal to do with the success of the races. While eastern tracks are covered with snow, the local plant is running full blast. And since the best of the nation's drivers flock here, it's easy to see why other speedways fail to prosper.

Financially speaking, the track is a huge success. In 1931, a depression year, the plant made a $68,000 profit after paying out slightly more than $84,000 in prize money. A profit of only $6,000, with $72,000 prize money, was made last year. But that's big money these days, and ex-service men in charge at Ascot don't have to worry, for a while, at least, about hunting jobs or standing in breadlines.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

About forty per cent of Germany's foreign obligations is held in the United States, the remainder being distributed among several countries. Her total foreign indebtedness is $4,312,000,000. There were about 178,000 saloons in the United States when the 18th amendment became effective.

Speaking mechanically, what the world seems to need is a few more self-starters and a few fewer cranks. Iron was once so valuable that the ancient Greeks once gave a lump of it as one of the prizes in their great athletic games. A baby is born in New York on the average of about every four minutes. In Berlin a noisy machine is condescended to by the police and fitted with a silencer at the owner's expense. Several families, as a rule, share a communal kitchen in which they do their cooking, in Moscow.

Members of the Confucian Society in China do not believe in divorce; the wife is subject to her husband's authority throughout her life. Never rub an eye that has something in it. Wash it in a boracic acid solution with an eye cup. Australia, New Zealand and Argentina are the world's greatest wool producing centers.

The Chinese land covers one-quarter of Asia, from the Pamir mountains to the Pacific and from Siberia to India. The Cathedral of Seville is the second largest Gothic edifice in Europe and was dedicated in 1482. It contains the tomb of Christopher Columbus. Georgia, with an area of more than 59,000 miles, is the largest state east of the Mississippi river. Florida is second.

According to a wall tablet in Florence, Italy, spectacles were invented in the thirteenth century, by an inhabitant of that city. Burning pine wood gives off more heat than hickory, the U. S. Forest Service has found. The stem of a giant bamboo tree may grow more than a foot a day. Governor Finchet says we think too much of our bankrolls. Well, there's no harm in reminiscing once in a while.

THE MERRY WIDOW ENTERS THE MOVIES

Jeanette MacDonald As the Widow and Ramon Novarro As Prince.

By GILBERT SWAN
New York.—"The Merry Widow," after waiting around these many years to the fitting and internationally familiar tunes, is reported to be adding a few new jazzy melodies to her repertoire and adopting a few 1933 manners. Ernst Lubitch, film director recently returned from a broad, brought a tale that Lehár, composer of the famous numbers, was hard at work on revisions and additional numbers. Lubitch, Broadway hears, has been retained to direct the new musical-talkie version silent film back in the days when Mae Murray was being discovered and Eric Von Stroheim was a busy little megaphone wielder.

The "widow" is to be sung, danced and played this time by Jeanette MacDonald, who is now in France. The film will be made in Paris; or at least the sets and street scenes. And there is a Broadway rumor that a stage version of the revised "Widow" may be tried out before the film is begun.

Novarro As Prince
One of the particular surprises has to do with Ramon Novarro, who has been far from a secure figure in the current film world. Now, a close friend of Miss MacDonald advises, Novarro has been grooming for the role of "the prince" and will undoubtedly get it. Novarro, has a trained singing voice and dances well. While "The Merry Widow" has been sent across the land a score of times, once with several of the original cast, few changes in either the book or score would have been frowned upon by fans. Well, while the old favorites will still be there, changes in tempo will be made and the newly written numbers will bring a bit more to the music of the moment. Meanwhile, as Lehár changes tunes and Lubitch thinks things over, La MacDonald will be working with Herbert Marshall in "The Queen," to be filmed in Paris and London, with a United Artist release.

Strange Kidnap Story

Kidnaped from home in Hamburg, brought to New York and abandoned, found by a stranger who took care of her and finally turned her over to authorities in Los Angeles. That is the strange story told here by the pretty six-year-old German girl shown above, who remembers only the name "Hedwig." She was turned over to authorities by a man who said he found her in a New York railroad station.

Brussels Campus Likes Prof. Piccard; He Can Give A Joke And Take It Too

Brussels.—(AP)—Prof. Auguste Piccard, the hero of the stratosphere, is one man.

The modest, amiable professor who teaches physics at the University of Brussels, is another.

The young professors at the school call him "Auguste." He is one of the most popular figures on the campus.

With his seemingly endless legs, his scholar's head screwed on a cygnet neck, emerging from an over-ample collar and his lank body, he has provided easy material for student fun. And especially so on the night of the annual revue when the faculty is a broad target for satire.

But the good-tempered scientist, whose contortions during his lectures have won him the campus nickname of "Snakehead," is the first to laugh at his own caricatures and highly enjoys the revues.

Freshmen, sighting him for the first time, cannot help being disturbed by his antics before his blackboard, one of his long legs held in the air, his two hands simultaneously writing signs and numbers, or musing a head covered with abundant and rebellious curls.

The seniors hold him in high esteem. He never falls with his experiments, but he usually starts with this phrase: "This experiment seldom succeeds."

Good natured, nevertheless, he is a hard examiner and likes trap questions. Frequently he mixes in a hoax, like this one:

Question: "There are two lions in a cage. One is thirteen, the other is eight yards. Halfway between are seven pounds of potatoes. What is going to happen?"

His answer: "Nothing. Lions do not like potatoes."

Prof. Auguste Piccard, shown in a typical pose, is a popular figure on the campus of the University of Brussels.

CLOSED A TOWN TO SAVE A BANK

Illinois City Took Nine Day Business Holiday As Ruin Threatened.

Mt. Carmel, Ill.—"Myrtle, I give you my word, I hardly knew you—that make-up and all."

"Hyah, Charlie, finally got a shave and a haircut, I see."

Small talk? Not among Mt. Carmel's 7,200 souls.

That's testimony that Mt. Carmel is back to normalcy after perhaps the most exciting nine days in America's depression history.

For Mt. Carmel, county seat down on the Wabash river, has just finished a nine-day business moratorium and has come out of the experiment smiling, confident of its success.

For nine days Mt. Carmel's wheels of commerce didn't turn. Its citizens loafed, played and attended community revivals that rivaled old-time camp meetings in fervor.

The Bank Is Saved

And now that it's over, business is rushing. And the bank is saved. That was the big idea, to save the town's one bank.

A few months ago Mt. Carmel had two banks. They merged. Then a run developed. The bank paid and paid, until there was little cash left. Unless something happened, the bank would have to close. Here's what happened:

1 p. m.—The bankers called in a number of leading citizens and laid the financial cards on the table.

2 p. m.—The Wabash Valley Protective Association was born in the meeting.

3 p. m.—The charter members called in ministers, civic leaders, merchants, several bank depositors.

4 p. m.—Each of these made up a list of names to be enlisted.

4:50 p. m.—Each name on each list had been reached by phone or by messenger.

5 p. m.—Another meeting was held, attended by 400 citizens.

Before morning Mayor T. E. Wright had issued a proclamation, closing the town's business places, "for the suppression of disorder and to maintain the peace." The proclamation was distributed from house to house. Mt. Carmel's newspaper went extra.

Town Takes Holiday

Mt. Carmel was startled by the speed of the action, a few questions its legality—and then everybody fell into the holiday spirit.

Every place of business except restaurants, one drug store and a few groceries was closed. The drug store sold only drugs. No smokes, no sodas, no movies, no marcel waves. Flat tire?—Tough! Fix it yourself or borrow a spare. Gasoline?—The stations remained open, mostly to serve the Wabash Valley Protective Association members—and its members were taking no holiday.

Cash?—If you had none the grocery would charge your purchase. Amusement?—Well, there was Main Street to be sure, but a nice place to visit with folks who always were working before.

"It Was a Lot of Fun"

The only people working were those 400 citizens who started it all, and they were working furiously to save the bank. They took pledge cards to each depositor. Signers agreed to leave their deposits in the bank, to return what they had withdrawn.

Then came the climax, a mass meeting, packed by 4,000 persons. Forty speakers—and many of them never had made speeches before—explained the bank situation, pleaded that the bank be given a chance to save its deposits. The most enthusiastic religious revivalist never had a better audience. The town was sold.

And it is staying sold. Mt. Carmel's merchants were rushed when the moratorium ended. There was a riot on drug store, barber and beauty shops, tobacco counters. But there was no run on the bank when it, too, reopened.

Mt. Carmel is looking back proudly on its economic experiment.

"It was a lot of fun," is the consensus.

In the bedroom is below, the baby should wear a nightgown, stockings as well as a warm nightgown. Federal child experts advise. A soft, roomy sweater may be put over the nightgown. The baby's hands should be covered either by the sleeves of the nightgown or mittens. A hot-water bottle or a warm bag of sand may be used to warm the bed before the baby is put in it.

Betting Craze Hits England Endangering Nation's 'Pubs'

London.—(AP)—English "pubs" of the better in some suburbs are keeping have opened a heavy offensive against the thousands of legalized gambling clubs which have spread over the nation like dandelions in spring.

The reason is the intense competition which the club bars offer the public houses.

To serve beer and whiskey the "pubs" must pay heavy license fees and maintain certain standards of sanitation and service.

The betting clubs, which make use of the part-mutual system, are organized under the club regulations, escape the heavy tax, and figure on making most of their money out of the betting.

Many of the clubs are operated in chains, and one system of 30 clubs is said to cater to more than 100,000 persons daily.

Betting is permitted on horse races and dog races and 50 per cent

BRAIN TRUST TO AID ROOSEVELT'S WORK

Those Who Helped His Campaign Will Stick By Him in Washington.

New York.—The celebrated "Brains Trust," which helped to elect Franklin D. Roosevelt and to mold pre-inaugural policies, will continue to be a powerful extra-political entity after March 4. But the work it has done and the men who comprise it will continue to carry on for the new administration.

Thus, although Mr. Roosevelt may be confronted by the most stupendous and widely-scattered problems that ever were the responsibility of a new President, he also will have recourse to one of the most impressive collections of the practical and practical intelligence that ever gathered unofficially about a Chief Executive.

To be sure, there will be no more regular meetings of the little group that was christened the "Brains Trust" by Roosevelt himself. But if he wants information or advice, and if he chooses to summon from New York any members of his original fact-finding commission, they will be at his beck and call.

Roosevelt's Idea
The Brains Trust is still, potentially, the same super-planning organization that it was nearly a year ago, when a small group of liberal specialists in economics and government began to work for the nomination of Roosevelt. They have demonstrated that the President-elect has but to properly pigeon-hole his problems among them, and that in due time the data is returned for the correlation of the executive mind.

Samuel I. Rosenman, New York attorney, and former State Supreme Court Justice, started the trust. For three years he had been personal counsel to Governor Roosevelt, and had engaged in scores of informal conferences concerning the affairs of government. So when his chief began to look for a presidential nomination, Rosenman suggested that academic experts as well as practical politicians be called in to help. Roosevelt told his 37-year-old counsel to carry on with the idea, and himself departed for Warm Springs, Ga. That was last April.

Moley Was First
Rosenman went first to Prof. Raymond Moley, professor of public law at Columbia University. The pair had worked together as members of the State Commission for the Administration of Justice. Moley was not an economist, but he was a keen student of government and was widely acquainted with economic.

From this small nucleus grew the Brains Trust. Moley called in dozens of men for an exchange of views, but few ever became definitely identified with the group. Basil O'Connor, law partner of Roosevelt, attended conferences for a time, but dropped out because of his impatience with theories. His principal contribution was the negative one of picking flaws in the ideas of the enthusiasts.

Another Columbia professor became one of the chosen few. He was Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell, teacher of economics, author, liberal and a contributor to the New Republic. Tugwell knew the most about the economy of agriculture, and he also knew other economists willing to present their opinions.

Several Economists
Next came Adolf Berle, Jr., a third professional member of the Brains Trust. Berle teaches corporation law at Columbia, and is the author of a famous work on corporation finance. Only 38 now, he has had a long career in the law, when he was only 17. Berle sat in the Versailles Conference as an expert on Russian affairs. He also is a student of conditions in the Caribbean.

A fifth prominent member of the group was Hugh S. Johnson, economist, lawyer, author, and a Brigadier General during the war. It was Johnson who formulated the selective draft plan. In 1927 he became associated with Bernard M. Baruch, prominent Democrat and powerful Wall Street financier.

Johnson had conducted a personal study of Hoover's foreign economic policies, and it was at the suggestion of Baruch that he began to attend the conferences of Roosevelt's advisors.

Charles William Taussig, 36-year-old president of the American Molasses Co., and an expert in foreign trade and tariffs, was another associate of the Brains Trust. James Farley, fabulously energetic campaign manager for Roosevelt, also served. Farley was the Trust's first line of defense against the scores of experts, real and pseudo, who besieged the strategists with plans and suggestions.

Their Work Vital
When Roosevelt returned from Warm Springs the organization was well under way. Later, many of its findings and opinions were incorporated in his speech of acceptance. But it was not until after the national convention that the Brains Trust really settled down to work. At a New York hotel—not the hotel where Democratic national headquarters were located—a suite was engaged consisting of dining room, bed-room and reference library.

Several evenings each week the group gathered there, with Governor Roosevelt, to evolve facts, theories and policies. They dined together and usually sat about the table until midnight. The bed-room was at the disposal of out-of-town experts who frequently were called in for consultation. Roosevelt always dominated the discussions, mainly by directing them along the lines he selected. Most of the time he merely sat and listened—accepting this, rejecting that, making mental notes. Sometimes the Brains Trust would be in unanimous opposition to one of his views, but Roosevelt went ahead anyway.

Rosenman and Johnson were general advisors; Berle was the expert on pure academic theories of economics. Tugwell's researches and opinions were partially the bases of the present Domestic Adjustment Plan. Moley became principally concerned with questions of foreign debts, and subsequently made two trips to Washington in the capacity of Roosevelt advisor on war debt problems.

With Roosevelt in the White House, and the members of his Brains Trust at their respective businesses in New York, the group must officially go out of existence. But as individuals they will continue to work, even as they are today, on fact-finding missions for their chief.

FOR BABY'S BREAKFAST
Washington.—Breakfast for the young child usually should consist of fruit, cereal, toast with butter and milk. A strip of two of bacon cooked crisp and drained of fat may be served occasionally for variety. There is no objection to eggs for the child's breakfast now and then on days when he is not having egg for dinner or supper.

CRANBERRIES ACIDITY NOT AT ALL HARMFUL
Eaten in Moderation, This Winter Fruit Does Not Lower Body's Alkali Reserve; Iodine Content Is Regarded Beneficial

By DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Despite the fact that Americans annually eat about 500,000 barrels or 50,000,000 pounds of cranberries, many persons hold the belief that the fruit is harmful to the system by increasing too greatly its acidity.

Actually, however, the alkali reserve of the body shows no decrease until more than 54 grams of cranberries, equivalent to five ounces, has been eaten ounces of cranberries in sauce on any single occasion.

There need be but little, if any, worry of harmful effects of the cranberries in decreasing the body's alkali reserve. The consumption of large amounts of cranberries is followed by a slight decrease in the amount of alkali reserve of the blood. Fortunately, however, the body has a fine system for readjustment and can take satisfactory care of most food products taken in moderation.

In a review of the value of the cranberry in the diet, Dr. Carl R. Fellers points out that the cranberry is the last of the fruits to mature before winter, and one of the few fruits regularly available in fresh form during the autumn and early winter.

When cooked, cranberries develop a firm sauce or jelly with some 40 to 45 per cent of sugar, whereas other fruits require from 65 to 70 per cent of sugar. The sugar content of the cranberry is relatively low and the acid content high.

Most of the acid is citric, the same acid that is present in the orange, the lemon and the grapefruit. Also present is malic acid and some benzoic acid, the latter helping to exert a preservative action on both the fresh fruit and that preserved by canning.

Like all other fruits, the effect of the cranberry is mildly laxative. The protein content is low and the vitamin content is chiefly vitamin C. Vitamins B and D are present in the cranberry in such small quantities as to be of little or no importance. Vitamin A is present also in small quantity, but from that point of view the cranberry is not important.

The chief value of the cranberry is for its content of vitamin C, its iodine, and its contribution of caloric value to the diet. It is exceptional as a sauce or a flavor for other foods, tending thus to vary the diet and to improve the appetite.

In several rural districts, the trading of commodities has taken the place of purchases in which money changes hands. Wonder how a man would go about acquiring a toothbrush that way?

MARVELOUS MANHATTAN
By WILLIAM GARDNER

New York.—There is keen fascination in watching a portrait develop under the sure artistry of a painter such as Wayman Adams.

I went to his studio the other night, thinking I would stay just a few minutes while he started a painting of Richard Haley-Lever, Australian artist. It was so interesting that I sat for three hours—the time required to complete the portrait, with several brief rest periods included. Adams works swiftly, wholeheartedly.

Haley-Lever was a good model, a distinct type. At first I couldn't understand how Adams could go ahead, with his subject keeping up a constant line of chatter. But that, it seems, is what an artist desires. Conversation keeps his model's expression animated. Sometimes when a man is sitting, Adams requests a wife to come to the studio and read to him. If a possible mind goes blank, so does his face.

Where Art Thrives Adams has one of those spacious, two-story studios with broad, tall windows. It is on Fifty-seventh street near Carnegie hall, where you don't find artists starving in garrets.

For a head, Adams gets $2,000. For a three-quarter portrait, his price is $2,500, and for a full length, $3,000.

Enough persons have that money to pay for their pictures these days to keep him busy, although of course things were better for him before prosperity turned out to be a corner loader.

He has won so many prizes that it would take a good part of a column to enumerate them. He has painted so many celebrities that the list reads like a "Who's Who." Last year he went up to Northampton to paint Calvin Coolidge. Mr. Coolidge told jokes while he was posing.

He began a portrait of Herbert Hoover, but Mr. Hoover was so busy winding up President's affairs that he hasn't completed his sittings. His paintings of fellow artists make up one of the largest collections of the sort in the world.

Former Indiana Man Adams was born in Muncie, Ind., in 1883. His wife is a Texan and an artist herself. They have an 8-year-old son, nicknamed "Smig." "Broadly academic" best describes Adams' technique. He says he finds modernism "stimulating," and some of the modernists (those who are not guilty of outright grotesquerie) claim him for their school. Nevertheless, he remains

Jail for Duke

The Duke of Manchester, above, ninth holder of a title dating back more than 200 years, has been ordered to prison for 42 days because he couldn't pay his hotel bill. Sentence was passed when he failed to appear in court on a judgment summons. The duke is the father of Lord Eugene Fernando Montague, who was in the crew of the yacht on which Walter Wanderlind, adventurer, recently was murdered.

aligned with the academicians. He studied abroad, but had

American teachers over there. He thinks it is "absurd" for a young artist to go to Europe, to see the work of old masters in the galleries over there. But contemporary American art, he believes, is as good as any the world is producing.

Adams is rather small in stature and there is something in his appearance reminiscent of Henry B. Walthall, the "Little Colonel" of the movies. He makes no display of temperament for the crowd—his for his family. Mrs. Adams tells me (she was my art teacher when I was a second or third grade Michelangelo, by the way. That was before she left Austin, Texas, to come to New York and get married).

YOUR CHILDREN
By Olive Roberts Barton

Which child do you prefer? The one who never is bad, or the one who with all his naughtiness gets things done?

It is so often the case, although not always, of course, that the child who never goes out of his way to look for trouble never goes out of his way to look for anything else either.

Occasionally, on the other hand, we meet up with a boy or girl who is just a plain nuisance and with all his flare for keeping everybody in hot water seems to lack the ability to do one good thing on earth.

There are exceptions. These exceptions, however, are exceptions; the spiteful, goody-goody and the downright imp. Those people observing children agree that the types I speak of usually run rather true to form—that the adventurous spirit is the hunter and go-getter as a usual thing, and that the perpetually perfect is likely to possess a too-hiddable disposition.

I like the child who is hard to control, the child who has enough spirit to think and act for himself, uninhibited by fear, and showing enough spunk to exert his rights and demand a certain freedom of living.

This does not mean that I prefer those who are wild and untamed, or that I admire a boy or a girl who will not recognize discipline. His energy, curiosity impetus and determination get him into difficulty. Yet these are the qualities that, unless pounded or scolded out of him, are going to carry him through life to success.

Easy Control Done Such boys and girls too, have not the easy control that quieter, more tractable children have. They do not give up easily, and fight or wrong, pursue an idea to its end. That it is the right course is largely up to us. Another thing that seems to be the wise thing is tremendous tact and sympathy in handling them. To antagonize is usually fatal, or to reduce liberty to a dull monotony. These methods only make things worse.

The way to reach such children is not to continually thwart, nag, or persistently punish, but to keep them busy and interested. Give vent to their driving thoughts and impulses by supplying certain activities that can only be of benefit. Keep them going. But here again let suggestion rather than coercion be the guiding star. Be a friend, not a policeman. Say to yourself, "I can't break such a spirit; I won't, but I will walk beside it and influence it all I can."

The child with the right material in him usually secures justice as quickly as he does injustice. The question of discipline has to be settled. And although there may be an occasional war, for the most part, he will mind, especially if you have become an ideal he respects and loves.

WOMAN IS HEAD OF BIG BUSINESS

Directs Distribution of 100 Million Eggs Yearly For Poultry Raisers.

Portland, Ore.—(AP)—From a tiny office in a black-long building, a slender, alert woman directs the destiny of a farm cooperative whose members number 2,500 producers throughout Oregon and Southern Washington. She sees to the receiving, storage and distribution of 110,000,000 eggs a year and directs a sales organization with 60 per cent of its markets in the east.

The office, barely large enough to accommodate a desk, a filing cabinet and a few chairs, is the headquarters of Miss Edna E. Reed, chosen a few days ago as the first woman in the United States to head a farmers cooperative organization.

Miss Reed said today she "just got into" the cooperative business, entering it 10 years ago, rising steadily until she was auditor of the Pacific Poultry Products Cooperative, then finding herself appointed by the directors to assume the office of general manager, left vacant by the death of E. J. Dixon, to whom she was an assistant.

As general manager, she must attempt to strike a happy balance between production peaks and demand peaks through the medium of storage. She must conduct the business to the satisfaction of the 13 elected directors—fortunately she is not superstitious. She must satisfy the producers their eggs are being graded correctly and that the best net prices are being returned to them. She must keep the organization's working personnel—between 125 and 150 depending on the season—functioning efficiently.

She must, in short, answer for the whole business, and because a return to Oregon and Southwestern Washington producers of between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 annually is involved, she must answer correctly.

Like Her Work
Miss Reed likes this work because it gives her a chance to "help those who might not be able to help themselves" very well by marketing individually.

verton, Ore., formerly owned by the late Homer Davenport, cartoonist, and now run by Miss Reed and her brother, Calvin R. Reed, she keeps two horses "just because ponies" for her own use. The horses "are split and one has a little devil in him, but that's all right. I wouldn't want a dead horse. One threw me a couple of years ago and sent me to the hospital."
Fly fishing along an Oregon stream for trout is a favorite sport. Miss Reed is slender, hair slightly greying and she has flashing grey-blue eyes.

Dining Stars Is Easy, But Beware of Extras

Directors have their worries, but they seem to have disappeared for Victor Fleming as he lunches with Joan Crawford. . . . If Joan's appetite was at par that day, her companionship cost the M-G-M director a 30-cent luncheon check.

By DAN THOMAS
Hollywood.—How'd you like to call Jean Harlow and invite her out to dinner tonight? Sounds like a good idea—or doesn't it? Do I hear you ask, "What would it cost?"

Well, these girls around movie-land don't believe those dietitians who show that a person can eat for 8½ cents a day, or something like that. Why, Joan Crawford's breakfast mounts to a matter of 15 cents and so for the platinum blond's dinner—shoot the roll! It would set you back a full $1.25.

Take Jean to Breakfast
For breakfast, Jean Harlow usually has a glass of fruit juice, toast and coffee—total cost 20 cents.

When she isn't working (here's your chance, Scotty), her lunch consists of an extra large glass of butter-

—Norma to Lunch
Maybe you'd rather buy groceries for Norma Shearer. There's a girl who doesn't even know the meaning of the word "diet." Norma starts the day by eating breakfast consisting of a glass of fruit juice, two soft-boiled eggs, toast and jam and a cup of coffee with both sugar and cream. A bad start, my lady, 40 cents just wrecked.

For her lunch she always has a small glass of tomato juice, a salad, a cup of clear soup, meat of some kind, two vegetables, and a fruit dessert—60 cents, when there! And at dinner, worse than that, she dives into one of those $1.25 full course dinners.

And Joan to Dinner
From a strictly economical standpoint, consider Joan Crawford. Several years ago she resolved to have a slender figure at any cost. And she has it—at a minimum cost.

Joan's breakfast consists of nothing but a glass of fruit juice and a cup of coffee. Easy, 15 cents. For lunch she usually eats a green vegetable salad and a cup of tea. Thirty cents but still all right.

Her dinners are heavier, consisting of a clear soup, meat, two vegetables, a small salad and some fruit. She never eats bread, butter, potatoes or sweet desserts except that about twice a week she does succumb to the lure of ice cream. And the average cost of her dinners is a dollar.

But Beware!
Of course, if you'd be satisfied to take a mere extra girl out to dinner—well, then, you'd better mortgage the old homestead. Those poor girls are eating so irregularly these days that when they're invited out they simply order everything on the menu, figuring to store away enough to keep them going for two or three days.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

These Three Books Will Acquaint You With Technocracy

If you haven't yet got squared away on this technocracy business, there are several books on the market now that might prove helpful to you.

To begin with, there is "Introduction to Technocracy," by Howard Scott and others (John Day: 90 cents) in which the authentic doctrine, graven on stone, is handed down direct from Siam. Agree with it or not, you'll at least find it adequately expounded here, and while the book is reticent about the way in which the world of technocracy is to come into existence it is stimulating and provocative to a marked degree.

An even better way of approach —better, because unbiased—is provided in "What is Technocracy?" by Allen Raymond (Whittaker House: 63).

Here a qualified reporter not only expounds technocracy, but sketches in what he has been able to learn of the career and personality of Howard Scott, points out the fields in which the technocrats' statements of fact have been fairly contradicted, and adds a thoughtful and intelligent discussion of the entire business.

Then there is Stuart Chase's "Technocracy"—an interpretation of one of the John Day Company's 25-cent pamphlets. Mr. Chase is sympathetic to the new gospel, but his eyes are fully open to its defects; and, as you might expect, his little pamphlet is eminently readable and highly interesting.

These three books will at least give you an idea of what all the shooting is about.

When things were booming a few years ago, we heard a lot about the "muck-rack" niche. It seems a little more difficult to popularize the new poor.

TO TEACH WIVES ART OF DRESSING

Nose, Lips and Hips Are Factors—Here Are Some of the Rules.

New York.—(AP)—Nose, lips and hips are the factors; Professor Lillian H. Locke is the mentor; the new Home Service Institute of Columbia University is the place, and feminine beauty is the idea.

Professor Locke is going to teach American girls how to dress, and she doesn't mind laying down some of the rules in advance—pointing her advice especially to wives, who, she believes, are too often at disadvantage as between themselves and the stenographers.

Drooping mouth? Then avoid drooping lines in the costume. Same for the upturned lips. Same for the straight ones. That is, don't repeat it.

Square face? Gracious! Don't have any angles on the hat, dress etcetera.

Bright Colors Out

Hips? Don't let the lines run parallel, lest they accentuate the distance from one to the other. If they're wide to start with, brilliant colors are out.

Nose? Repeat its shape in the hat only if you would be eccentric. There are five principles. All one has to do is apply them properly. They are repetition, opposition, transition, subordination and symmetry. Go too far with opposition and you get the same evil that comes from repetition—accentuation.

"Lines which run in opposition to, or which tend to repeat are in themselves undesirable features," said the professor. "There are always two things to be considered when a woman dresses. First, she should dress to make the most out of her best points; second she should dress to bring out the best traits of her personality. The two are quite different things.

"The one has to do with the size of nose and lips and the shape of hips, while the other has to do with charm and grace."

Passport for Hollywood

Taking no chances of having her visit permission questioned, Elizabeth Allen, British film star, is shown—passport in hand—bound for Hollywood where government inspectors have been checking up on the legality of residence of many alien film stars.

Wells 3,000 Feet In Depth Yield Commercial 'Ice' At Temperature of 109 Below

New York.—(AP)—A new industry—"cold mining," which produces ice from wells 3,000 feet deep—is beginning in the American Southwest.

The ice is solid carbon dioxide, 109 degrees below Zero Fahrenheit. Discovery of this gas in many places and adventures in drilling are reported in Mining & Metallurgy, the scientific journal of the American Institute of Mining & Metallurgical Engineers.

The strangest part of all is that there is no ice in the ground, nor is the gas itself even cold. Its temperature—"when not flowing"—is about 90 degrees Fahrenheit.

Expansion Produces Cold

But "when flowing" is an entirely different story. For then the flow is due to expansion from enormous compression deep in the ground, and this expansion produces sub-zero cold. One mine is named the "ice cream well" because of the creamy ice which forms from expanding gas at its mouth.

Oil Domes Yield 'Ice'

All these carbon dioxide wells are found in the "domes" or the "anticlines" of oil fields. They have been located in Carbonera Dome, western Colorado, Harley Dome near Westwater, Utah, and also in the same state in the Last Chance, the Willow Springs and the Farnham structures. They are found in the Wagon Mound area in New Mexico, and in large quantities near Tampico, Mexico.

One commercial well is in operation near Price, Utah. Another is under construction in western Colorado. The Utah well yields 98 percent pure carbon dioxide. It is purified in absorbing towers and compressed three times, finally becoming a liquid.

This liquid is sprayed through nozzles. Part of the spray expands into gas, thereby producing additional cold that solidifies the rest of the spray into snow. Hydraulic presses squeeze the snow into commercial size ice cakes. These are stored in an insulated pit underground.

Diagram shows how carbon dioxide gas from 3,000 feet underground forms commercial "ice" as it expands when released from underground pressure at the mouth of the well.

CHILEAN POLICY SEEN THREAT TO HUGE U. S. STAKE

Santiago, Chile.—(AP)—With the American stake in Chile approximately $800,000,000, United States officials and heads of companies operating here, warned by the government's attitude toward foreign interests, are working for recognition of rights based on concessions and contracts approved by previous administrations.

About $300,000,000 of the American investment is tied up in a group of defaulted bond issues. The bonds are obligations of the Chilean government and the state mortgage credit bank and are held by thousands of persons in the United States.

Mines Lead Field

The two chief mining enterprises of Chile, nitrate and copper, are controlled by American capital. Despite the recent dissolution of "Cosca" the cooperative producer-government nitrate combine, the American firm of Guggenheim Brothers continues to dominate the production field. The government has promised to find a satisfactory formula for reorganization of this industry.

The chief Guggenheim properties are at Maria Elena and Pedro de Valdivia, back of the northern nitrate port of Tocopilla. The firm also owns some smaller nitrate properties.

The copper mines are those of the Anaconda company and the Guggenheims. Anaconda operates the Chile Exploration company plant at Chuquibambilla, one of the world's greatest, and that of Andes Copper Co. at Potrerillos, both in Northern Chile. Braden Copper Co., at Sewell, in Central Chile, is owned by the Guggenheims.

Covers Whole Country

W. R. Grace & Co. has a far-flung shipping, importing, manufacturing and retail business throughout at provinces, including 50 grocery stores, various manufacturing plants, steamship and airplane lines, nitrate properties and financial investments.

Chile's modern dial telephone system is owned by International Telephone and Telegraph Co. All America Cables has many offices here.

Electric Bond and Share Corporation operates electric light, power and traction companies, including huge Andean power plants.

Standard Oil interests in Chile are extensive.

National City Bank of New York has two large branches, and other banks have representatives.

Bethlehem Steel has iron mines at Cruz Grande, in the north.

E. I. Du Pont de Nemours interests control an explosive industry.

Many Lines Slack

American automobiles of all makes have agencies here, though the market is glutted and few sales are possible on account of economic conditions.

Curtis-Wright Co. has an airplane manufacturing plant here, but business is slack.

American construction firms have investments here but are doing little business.

Michigan State College will inaugurate a course in horse-shoeing. Probably to accommodate the football squad.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

It is figured that about four percent of the population of the United States is left-handed.

Roughly, from 150 to 200 gallons of oil are required to replace the fuel value of a ton of coal.

The United States is the largest exporter of lumber and lumber products in the world.

Jim Baugh, decathlon champion of the Olympics, made several political speeches in Kansas—and several of the newspapers agreed that Jim probably was a pretty good javelin thrower.

More than 1600 types of steel have been developed by steel research workers.

FIVE-INCH BRACELETS NEW PARIS NOVELTY

Paris.—(AP)—Cuff bracelets—five inches deep—are a new trick in accessories. They are made of a number of different materials and worn with all types of frocks. A platinum bracelet studded with diamonds is worn with a black velvet dinner gown, a white crystal bracelet with red velvet dots appears as accessory to a white crepe gown with a red velvet girdle.

WAYWARD YOUTHS' COURT IN NEW YORK

Judge-less and Lawyer-less Tribunal Reaches Juveniles Who "Beat Rap."

By PAUL HARRISON
New York.—A new variety of extra-judicial procedure is effectively teaching an old lesson to New York's young apprentices in crime. The lesson is that "a crook can't win." He may "beat the rap" once or twice, and feel pretty chesty about it, but he can't keep on fooling the law.

The agency teaching the lesson is called the Adolescent Court, but legally it is not a court at all. No charges are made; no lawyers plead; no official sentences are handed down. The "court" is really a committee for the reclamation of character. It specializes in straightening out the paths of adolescents who have made a false step or two, but who are beyond the reach of criminal law.

An example: Joe Blank, 17, accompanies some older pals on a stick-up expedition. They rob a cigar store clerk, escape, and dispose of the gun and the loot, but are rounded up later on suspicion. Two of the party have police records, but all are reluctantly discharged by a magistrate for lack of evidence.

This triumphant encounter with the law might go far toward converting Joe to professional gangsterhood. He has committed a crime and gotten away with it. He has "beaten the rap" on his very first job.

Then the court enters. But now it's the turn of the Adolescent Court. Joe is not summoned, but "invited," to appear, and this he does with plenty of misgivings. He finds it quite refreshing from the court where he recently was freed on a hold-up charge. There is a small group of pleasant men who include a prominent New York judge, a psychiatrist, a probation officer, a member of the Bureau of Crime Prevention, and representatives of religious organizations.

They talk to him in a friendly way, and ask him a lot of questions. Then the court says, in effect: "Joe, we don't know that you were in that stick-up gang. But we do know that you're not fooling anybody except yourself. And what's going to happen if you continue to run around with criminals. We know all about you, from your intelligence quotient to the condition of your teeth. We have investigated your family, your work record and your habits in general."

"We want to help you, Joe. We've already persuaded older pals to let you have your job back again. And we suggest very strongly that you drop the old gang and enroll in a course or two in night school."

"Give me a break," says Joe. "I'm going to keep an eye on you. Don't get the idea that the law is easy to beat. Now goodbye, good luck—and no monkey business."

The chances are that Joe will be pretty thoroughly chastened when he goes out. Also that he will have new respect for the agencies of society. An initial defeat of the law has been turned into a moral victory.

At least, this has been true of every case handled thus far by the Adolescent Court. Not a single errant youngster who has faced it has had another brush with the law. "Of course, the cases handled have been too few, and the court itself is too young to call anything more than an experiment," said Magistrate Jonah J. Goldstein, famous humanitarian of the bench who has carried on the work since it was started by Judge Goldstein and his aides, and even a staff of stenographers, have contributed their efforts to the enterprise. Investigations are conducted by the City Crime Prevention Bureau.

Having no actual standing, the "court" cannot force wayward youngsters to appear before it except by having them summoned as "wayward minors." Thus far, however, it has not had to resort to a summons. A representative of the group convinces the boy and his parents that only helpful, friendly action is intended—and the boy always shows up. Investigations as well as court sessions are always strictly private and confidential.

Most cases before the court are referred to it by magistrates who have been obliged to dismiss formal charges because of legal loopholes or the refusal of complainants to press charges. Petty thievery and automobile stealings are the commonest cases, but others range all the way from vagrancy to larceny and forgery.

KEEP KITCHEN AIDS HANDY

Because raw food is prepared chiefly at the sink the housewife should keep near the sink such implements as brushes, knives, colanders, strainers and garbage can. Small stores of the less perishable fruits and vegetables may be kept in a bin under one of the drainboards.

HAVE KITCHEN REST CORNER

A comfortable corner should be arranged in every kitchen where the housemaker can drop down for a rest while keeping an eye on the cooking food. It should include a comfortable chair, a small table or shelf and the mending basket.

Man Create His Own Light? Science Finds He Might Have But For Quirk Of Evolution

Princeton, N. J. — (AP)— Man might be able to make his own light like a fire-fly but for a quirk of evolution long ago.

His body cells still contain the materials that might have evolved into luminous substances used by the fire-fly, the glow worm, the luminous fishes or the light-giving bacteria.

Man could have evolved to give his own light like a fire-fly—but where would it be placed.....

A report showing rudimentary existence of this "cold light" mechanism in all living cells was made to the American Philosophical Society of Dr. E. Newton Harvey of Princeton University.

Development of light evolved from a part of the cell respiration mechanism he finds. Respiration includes not only breathing, but all the chemical changes within cells that result from absorption of oxygen. It is inside the cells that the respiration processes in some animals developed luminescence.

Dr. Harvey finds that all living cells still possess fluorescent materials, proteins which emit a light of their own when excited with the right kind of radiation. Apparently this fluorescent material was the first building block for the cold light development.

Not all the steps in the evolution are clear as yet, but the chemicals which finally were obtained are well established. There are two, luciferin and luciferase. Oxygen changes the luciferin into oxy-luciferin, the oxy-luciferin molecules strike luciferase thereby producing light. Later they are changed back into luciferin, ready to repeat the cycle.

There is very little loss of material in this economical process.

In the light-making evolution some of the higher animals, Dr. Harvey says, "developed special organs of luminescence, with accessory structures, such as reflectors, lenses, pigment screens and color screens, the whole forming a lantern.

It would be hard to imagine man giving off light, but the cells of his body contain materials that might have become the substance fire-flies use, Dr. E. Newton Harvey (above) has found. A quirk in evolution prevented.

Here we may see a use for luminescence, warning or frightening predacious forms, luring food, illumination or recognition signals in bringing together the sexes."

Dictators Govern Many Countries

Norman Thomas Believes United States Is On Verge of Dictatorship Now.

New York.—(AP)—Endowment of President-elect Roosevelt with extraordinary powers for reorganization as contemplated by some Democratic leaders would be a mild innovation indeed to a dozen nations whose constitutional governments have emerged under economic pressure as dictatorships.

Even in this country, with Speaker Garner urging the mantle of a Dionysius upon his chief, there are others who would go further. Norman Thomas believes the country is on the verge of real dictatorship; Alfred E. Smith thinks some form of dictatorial power to carry on the depression is at least partly responsible for the partial eclipse of Athenian democracy. Iron men have risen in many places to fight the economic crisis single-handed. To them and their disciples Democrats are incapable of economizing adequately, therefore they are an extravagance in themselves and must be foregone until better times return.

Modern Dictators

The modern dictators also are apostles of vigorous Nationalism. Germany's Adolf Hitler rode to power on a platform of Nationalist promises. Italy's Mussolini thinks first of his own people and their interests.

Hungary now has its "Mussolini" in Premier Julius Goemboos; Mustafa Pasha is banishing every trace of Greek and Arabic influence from Turkey; Poland's Marshal Pilsudski is a constitutional dictator and the essence of them all is Stalin.

Even England, priding itself on a government responsive to the will of the people, got around what appeared to be an inevitable series of elections by setting up a "National" Cabinet combining the strongest features of all the parties.

In France those two political rivals, Tardieu and Herriot, have put out feelers testing the possibility of joining forces against the numerically powerful Socialists, and what both conceive to be the menace of Fascism.

It's A Man's World She Says

Mrs. Charles Ringling Operates A
Circus, But She Thinks Women Leave
Leave Business To Men

Women are out of place in business, says Mrs. Charles Ringling, and this despite the fact she is operating one of the country's largest circuses this summer. Mrs. Ringling, 62, is the first woman to take a major "big top" on the road.

Do You Remember?

One Year Ago Today—Billy Fluke drove to an Olympic victory in the 4-man bobsled event at Lake Placid, N. Y. Ten thousand mat fans saw Jim London successfully defend his title by beating Jim McMillen in Madison Square Garden.

Five Years Ago Today—Phil Scott left England for an invasion of the United States. The British champion vowed he'd never fight in the United States again if he lost one fight.

Ten Years Ago Today—Glenn Collett, national women's golf champ, won the mid-winter tournament at West Palm Beach, Fla. The Brooklyn Dodgers announced the trade of Hy Myers, outfielder, to the St. Louis Cardinals for Jacques Fournier, first baseman.

Chicago.—(AP)— Even though the five Ringling brothers who started their exhibiting career with an animal show in Baraboo, Wis., in 1883 is the first woman in history to take a major circus "on the road," John Ringling, last of the brothers, is in poor health.

Details connected with the housing and feeding of 1,600 people and charting a six months' itinerary for four trainloads of animals and equipment have left no mark of wear or care on Mrs. Ringling's face.

"I was even against women getting the right to vote," she added.

Home, during much of Mrs. Ringling's life, has been under the big top and in railroad trains.

But she has a residence in suburban Evanston, and there reared her two children.

On Ogden's invitation, the grave young Episcopal ecclesiastic came to America late in 1738, arriving at Savannah in February, 1738. Here he remained until December, 1747, when he left to return to England via Charleston.

Despite his earnest religious work in Savannah, there was a society of only 17 persons to keep the embers of Methodism alive when he departed. The original building in which they held services disappeared long ago and the one that succeeded it is now a private residence. But another was erected, rebuilt for the third time in 1888, chartered Georgia legislation in 1840, and Wesley's Chapel and had its name changed to Trinity Church in 1850.

While in Savannah, John Wesley also established the first Sunday school in the world, and the Robert Ralston Sunday school in England by 90 years. It was the Christ Church Episcopal school was established. A great Episcopal church now stands on the spot.

Mt. Ranier Park officials gravely warn the country that unless something is done, Nisqually glacier will be badly damaged. There, ladies and gentlemen, is something to worry about—considering we've only 11,000,000 jobs in our midst.

M. H. S To Open Baseball Season On April 19

SCHEDULE OF 14 GAMES INCLUDES TWO TUSSLES AGAINST TRADE SCHOOL

Locals Will Meet Rockville In Opener At Windy City; Won League Runner-Up Honors Last Year; Grid Slate Also Announced.

The 1933 baseball and football schedules of Manchester High school were announced today by Thomas F. Kelley, Red and White mentor in both sports. The baseball slate consists of fourteen games and includes two contests with Manchester Trade school, added to the schedule for the first time this year. Otherwise the slate is the same as last season, when Manchester High captured runner-up honors in the Central Connecticut Interscholastic League with eleven victories and three defeats. Bristol won the title with fourteen consecutive victories. Francis Mahoney will captain this year's baseball aggregation. Manchester's opening game will be against Rockville High at Rockville, Wednesday, April 19. The games with the Trade school will be played on May 5 and May 26. Of the four team games scheduled, eight will be played at home and six away. The football schedule is exactly the same as last season, with eight games slated to be played. As usual, Manchester will open against Hartford Public High school at Hartford on September 23. Last year the locals split even for the season, winning and losing four games.

The schedules are as follows:
BASEBALL
April 19—Rockville, away.
April 21—Middletown, away.
April 22—East Hartford, home.
May 5—Meriden, home.
May 8—Trade School, home.
May 10—West Hartford, home.
May 13—Bristol, home.
May 17—Middletown, away.
May 19—East Hartford, away.
May 24—Rockville, home.
May 27—Trade School, here.
May 28—Meriden, away.
May 31—Bristol, away.
June 2—West Hartford, away.
FOOTBALL

Nov. 11—Williamantic, home.

COLUMBIA TO MEET ELI FIVE TONIGHT

Lions Will Attempt To Halt Yale's March To Title On Home Floor.

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP) — For the second time within ten days, the Columbia Lions tonight will attempt to halt Yale's march toward the eastern intercollegiate basketball league championship. This time the Lions will have the advantage of playing on their home floor. They dropped a 23-20 decision to the Elis at New Haven on February 7. The closeness of that game would indicate that the Lions might well be able to win at home. But this Yale team has been a disconcerting outfit all season, specializing in winning all the close ones. A victory for Yale would virtually clinch at least a tie for the title. The Elis' record then would stand at seven victories and one defeat with only two games to play. One of those, against Princeton at Princeton, possibly will be lost, but the other, against Cornell at New Haven, should not be. The matches are scheduled for 8:30 p. m. tonight. If the Elis can finish their season with eight victories and two defeats only Princeton could get as much as a tie for the title.

The Eastern Intercollegiate Conference will resume its schedule tonight after an eight-day layoff, Georgetown playing West Virginia at Morgantown, W. Va. West Virginia, beaten by the Hoyas 48 to 25, recently, will be seeking its first league victory in six games. Georgetown has won one game and dropped three.

DZIADUS WINS POOL TOURNAMENT AT REC

In the second bracket and semi-final and also the final matches played in the East Side Recreation pool tournament, George Henry won over Reno Cornea, 50-45; J. Mistretta won over G. Metcalf, 50-49; and Edward Dziadus drew a bye to play in the final after J. Mistretta won over George Henry in the semi-final match, 50-32. In the final 100 point match played last night between J. Mistretta and Edward Dziadus, Dziadus won, 100-74, winning the championship of the East Side Recreation Center.

Varsity 2nds Start M. H. S. Tussle Today

Red and White At West Hartford For Next To Last League Tussle; Meriden Faces East Hartford in Other Tilt Tonight.

Because of their fine performance last week, the second string varsity quintet of Manchester High school will start against West Hartford tonight at West Hartford. The next to the last Central Connecticut Interscholastic League game on the Red and White's schedule. Only one other league contest is slated, Meriden versus East Hartford on the latter's court. The last mentioned game is the most important as a victory for Meriden will improve its chances to deadlock the first place standing with Bristol. The leaders will meet in the crucial encounter on Friday, March 3. Bristol, with eight victories and one defeat, is favored to repeat its triumph of earlier in the season and retain the title.

M. H. S. Favored
Coach Wilfred Clarke will use Smith, Enrico, Garono, Sarior and Mahoney tonight and if this combination functions as well as it did against East Hartford last Friday night the Red and White seems due to return to the winning column after three consecutive losses. Faced by a fourteen point handicap, the second string varsity swept East Hartford off its feet with a furious attack that fell short of victory by a margin of only one basket. Manchester defeated West Hartford in the first game, 20 to 19, but both teams were playing far below good form.

But One Victory
West Hartford has been the victor in only one League game this season, but the Northfield game, Bristol High at a tough battle, before bowing by a few points. The one triumph was over East Hartford by two points. The preliminary will start at 7:30 o'clock with the main attraction, Manchester versus West Hartford, at 8:30 o'clock. Manchester will play two games at home next week, meeting Rockville High on Wednesday and Middletown High on Friday. Williamantic High comes here on the following Friday in the final game of the season.

Bowling

CHARLEER OAK GIRLS WIN
The Charter Oak Girls defeated Rogers Girls of New Britain three straight games in a state league match last night by a wide margin making it 28 games won and 10 lost in the league standing. Flora Nelson was high for the night, 312. A pinfall of 356, Wednesday night they also defeated Southington on their home alleys by over 100 pins. Mae Sherman had high three local girls journey to Bridgeport to roll the first leg of a home and home match with the Bridgeport girls. The downstate team is considered one of the strongest teams in the country.

18 STATES REPRESENTED
New York, Feb. 17.—(AP) — Eighteen states will be represented in the National A. U. indoor track and field championships here Feb. 25, a study of the entry list reveals. In the list of 276 will be athletes from California, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Oklahoma. Two foreign countries, Canada and Sweden, also will be represented.

HOLDOUT PROBLEM REMAINS SERIOUS

Heavy List of Dissatisfied Players Still Unsigned in Major Leagues.

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP) — Spring and the training camps are just around the corner, but for some major league clubs the holdout situation remains a serious problem yet to be solved. The magnates, when they adopted a general policy of retrenchment and cut deeply into salaries, were prepared for a somewhat larger quota of indignant protest from performers than is customary but probably not even they expected so heavy a list of dissatisfied players.

Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Bill Dickey, Red Lucas, Ernie Lombardi, Hook Wilson, Joe Judge, Wes Ferrell, Willie Kamm, Willis Hudlin, Frank Frisch and Heinie Manush are just a few of the headlines who have balked at terms. There are striking exceptions of course. The Pittsburgh Pirates, who surprised the National League by finishing second last season with experienced men at both shortstop and second base, have signed every player on the 1933 roster and are busily engaged preparing for the training season and perhaps a pennant.

The Boston Red Sox likewise have all their men under contract and the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs each have only one player outside the fold. The Giants have yet to sign outfielder Len Koenecke and the Cubs still are awaiting outfielder Vince Barton's contract. Barton, however, usually saves postage and appears at the training ground with his contract signed and sealed.

The Washington Senators, hoping to give the New York Yankees or anybody else a battle for the American League flag, have only four unsigned players—Manush, Moe Berg, Bob Burke and Bob Friedrich.

Outlook Not Rosy
The outlook for the others, however, is not so rosy. Complete information is not available in view of the fact that a number of clubs, the Phillies, Athletics, Browns, Cardinals, Tigers, Braves and Reds, decline to confess which players are signed and which are not. However, there is enough data on hand to indicate a serious situation which probably will clarify itself in time.

The Yankees have 11 unsigned players including Ruth, Gehrig, Dickey, Tony Lazzeri, Earl Combs, Charley Ruffing, Ben Chapman, Herb Pennock and Frank Crosetti. The Cleveland Indians still are arguing with Ferrell, Kamm, Hudlin, Dick Porter, Roy Spencer and three others of whose names are not given in the Chicago White Sox, so far as public announcement goes, have not yet decided in getting Evar Swanson, Chad Kinsay, Sam Jones, Luke Appling, Billy Sullivan and a couple of others of whose names are not given.

Other Holdouts
Although Frisch is the sole known holdout, only Rogers Hornsby, George Watkins, Ernie Ottaviti, Pepper Martin, Jess Haines, Jim Wilson and Chesley Gilbert are known to have signed Cardinal contracts. The situation is somewhat similar at Cincinnati where the Reds are understood to have signed only four players yet only Lucas and Lombardi are definitely listed as dissatisfied. Jim Bottomley was a holdout to have agreed to a second offer.

Notwithstanding the imposing list of recalcitrant players, baseball observers expected history to repeat itself and find them all safely in the fold before the 1933 campaign opens. Most of them, in fact, probably will come to terms within the next couple of weeks.

PINEHURST TRIUMPHS
In a rough and tumble encounter, the Pinehurst A. C. trounced Joe's Service Station at the Y last night by a score of 41 to 22, after leading 21 to 14 at halftime. The game was well handled by referee and umpire. The first quarter was close but after that the Pinehurst was never in danger. "Whitey Bycholski, "Koke" Kovis and "Louie" Farr did most of the scoring for the winners, while Ferguson and Spencer were best for the losers.

COLLEGIANS LOSE THRILLER
The Collegians lost a thrilling basketball game to the North Ends, a team which has made a great change for the better in recent games. Outscoring the Collegians five to four in a five minute overtime period the North Ends won by one point. All the players on both teams played equally well and the referee did an excellent job in calling fouls etc.

GUARDS RUN WILD TO SWAMP COAST GUARD BEARS, 60 TO 32

Locals Enjoy Perfect Night At New London and Score Impressive Triumph; Lead At Halftime, 41-9; Fans Amazed.

The National Guards enjoyed one of those practically perfect nights last night—the kind that comes to a team once in a season—and went on a free scoring binge that swamped the highly-touted Coast Guard Bears at New London by an overwhelming score of 60 to 32. It was the Guards' second triumph over this quintet, their third consecutive victory and their eighteenth win in twenty-six starts this season. Returning to a circus-cross passing attack the Guards clicked from the opening whistle and only for a third period let down, producing only one point, the soldiers ran amuck, led by Holland who scored eight baskets from the floor. Farr, Dowd and McCann also had a successful night, scoring 14, 12 and 10 points respectively. The Bears sought vainly and desperately to halt the slaughter, sending in substitute after substitute. For a moment in the first period the score was tied at 4-all and then the Guards went wild. Baskets dropped in from all angles of the floor, sending the score up to 23 to 4 at the end of the quarter. By halftime the Guards held a 41 to 9 advantage and this huge margin was too much for the Coast Guard to overcome, try as they might. At the end of the third period the score was 42 to 19 and in the fourth quarter the Guards regained their stride and swept to a smashing triumph. Fans Are Amazed

New London fans who had come to witness another Coast Guard victory looked on in amazement as the Guards marched relentlessly forward. The Bears used thirteen players in their attempt to halt the carnage but it was the Guards' night and they made the most of it.

A. E. WINSHIP IS DEAD;
EDITOR AND LECTURER

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 17—(AP)—Albert E. Winship, editor, lecturer and author died today at the age of 87. He was known throughout the country through his connections with the American Educational Association and he had spoken at every semi-annual meeting for 68 years. Winship was editor of the Journal of Education.

Born in Westbridge he served in the 68th Mass. Volunteers during the Civil War. He was educated at the Andover Theological Seminary and became pastor of the Prospect Hill church in Somerville. He became editor of the Journal of Education in 1886 and remained in that capacity until his death.

Among Winship's writings was "The Life of Horace Mann." Survivors include a son, Laurence L., Sunday editor of the Boston Globe and another son, George Parker Winship of the Harvard University library.

WAPPING

The Wapping Parent-Teachers Association held its regular monthly meeting at the school hall on Wednesday afternoon, with twenty ladies present. They appointed a committee for the celebration of a Founders' Day program, which will be held at the school-hall on Monday evening, February 27. This is to be an open meeting and everybody will be welcome.

Evergreen Lodge of Masons, No. 114, will hold its seventh annual ball at the South Windsor Town Hall next Monday evening, February 20.

Miss Doris L. Benjamin and her Sunday school class of girls held a social and an entertainment at the primary rooms of the Federated church last Wednesday afternoon. They invited their mothers and other friends. They prepared quite a fine program each girl taking part. This was followed by refreshments of fancy cakes and cocoa, after which games were enjoyed.

Mrs. Leroy Strong has been confined to her bed by illness, for the past few days.

Frank E. House attended a Farm Bureau meeting which was held at the South Windsor Town Hall, last Tuesday evening.

All schools in the town of South Windsor will close at noon today, as the teachers and superintendents Arthur Young will hold their monthly meeting at the Union schoolhouse in South Windsor at 2:30.

Happy days are usually healthy days. Why not add to these sunny days!

Poor health and constipation go hand in hand. Get rid of common constipation by eating a delicious cereal.

Tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to aid regularity. ALL-BRAN is also twice as rich in iron as an equal weight of beef liver.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. How much better than taking pills and drugs—so often harmful.

Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

JUNIOR ITALIANS HERE ORGANIZED

Young Men Form Branch of Sons of Italy—To Get Degree On March 12.

At a meeting in Tinker hall Sunday afternoon, more than 75 members of Joseph Mazzini Lodge, No. 907, Sons of Italy, voted favorably on a resolution presented by a special committee, headed by Nicholas Trivigno, to form a junior Sons of Italy organization in Manchester. According to the terms of the resolution, which becomes effective March 12, members of the new group will consist of youths of from 12 to 18 years of age, who will be obligated to join the Senior lodge when they pass the age of 18.

The purpose of the junior organization, according to the terms of its proposed charter, will be to encourage its members to engage in athletic and social pursuits, under guidance of members of the senior club. Juniors will be entitled to practically all the privileges accorded their older associates, including use of the Sons of Italy hall on Keeney street. The seniors intend to construct a tennis court on the adjoining grounds this spring, both for their use and for the enjoyment of the juniors. It is also planned to map out a baseball diamond near the hall, provided members are willing to cooperate. By next fall it is hoped the hall itself will have been prepared for use as a basketball court, with quintets organized by both juniors and seniors.

On the resolution committee with Mr. Trivigno, who resides at 81 Homestead street, are Michael Benney, secretary; Louis Genovesi, assistant secretary and treasurer; James Trivigno, Robert Genovesi, James Benney, and Frank Diana. Members of the junior organization will receive first degree initiation at the senior group's next meeting, March 12. Grand lodge officials will subsequently come from New Haven for final rites.

SPOTLIGHT

BEGIN HERE TODAY
SHELLA SHAYNE, dancer, refuses to marry DICK STANLEY, son of wealthy parents who is in New York trying to learn to write plays. Shella's idea of marriage is a cozy little home far from Broadway.

She'll return to New York and a few months later joins another road company, this time as featured principal. The show plays in Jerry's home town but Shella sees no word from him. The tour comes to an end. Then Shella learns that Jerry has married a girl in his home town.

Dorothy called gayly, "Look here, Shella, are you trying to high-tail it? Well, you can't! What was the idea anyhow of sending a message you couldn't go to lunch with us? Jump in and we'll take you home."

"I can't really. I have to hurry home. They're expecting me." "Well then," said Dick, "we'll take you there. Dorothy's made up her mind you're coming with us and when Dorothy decides anything it's settled. You might as well come. We seem to be holding up traffic here."

There was no help for it. Shella would have to get in the car. "I'll have to go home," she said, laughing swiftly about. There was no one in sight. "If you will drive me there it will be awfully kind."

"You know what I mean," insisted Dorothy. She smiled into Shella's face as the car turned into the park and headed toward it. "Let's get this settled. We lured the girl into this car with a promise of taking her home. Actually nothing is farther from my mind. I want to spend the evening with you, Shella. If you'll stand for it. If you don't want to be my guests for dinner how about both of us being Dick's guests?"

"I'll feed Shella any time but once a day is all I can stand with you!" "Then let's go Dutch at an automa," suggested Shella. "Fine!" Dorothy agreed gayly. "The very thing!" She leaned forward to give instructions to the chauffeur.

Mrs. Ernest A. Legs of Main street has received a letter from a manufacturing company of Torrington, notifying her that her story on an automatic mixer, together with her recipe for chocolate cake with baked frosting, won for her one of the kitchen devices which the company manufactures.

ROCKVILLE

MERGER COMMITTEE MEETS TOMORROW

Special Legislative Action-Board of Finance Bill Presented. A special meeting of the "Merger Committee" considering the town and city government consolidation has been called for tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in Library Hall.

It is of unusual interest at this time to mention the fact that Representative Henry Schmidt presented a bill in the legislature which would permit the board of finance of the town of Vernon, if organized to act as a Board of Finance for the city of Rockville if the electors so desired to have them do so.

Much concern has been shown by the parties opposing the merger of the town and city governments in the general assembly. Prior to its presentation it was reported to be the only means of keeping the present town and city governments intact and still permit a board of finance to act jointly for the two governments.

The matter came up at the regular meeting of the Common Council on Tuesday evening at which time Mayor A. E. White, City Clerk Raymond E. Hunt and Corporation Counsel John E. Fisk, were instructed to oppose the bill if the electors were denied the final say in the matter.

The bill reads as follows, if the copy on file is not altered or changed: "Be it resolved: That the Board of Finance of the Town of Vernon be empowered to act as a Board of Finance of the City of Rockville, when, and if, authorized by the electors of said city of Rockville at the regular or a special meeting called for said purpose. The Mayor of said city of Rockville shall call a special city meeting upon petition of 100 electors."

EVERETT KENNEDY HAS HIGH SCORE WITH 167-MATCH SHOT IN EAST HARTFORD. A combined first and second team of the Chance Vought Company won over the Manchester Legion by nine points at the Chance Vought gallery in East Hartford last night.

EVERYTHING IS READY FOR BALL TONIGHT. Expect Several Hundred To Attend Annual Masonic Social Event At Armory. Everything is in readiness for the grand event of Manchester's social season-the Masonic Ball-which will take place at the State Armory here this evening. Several hundred persons will attend. The affair is formal.

The following are the members of the cast: Herbert Schelner, Carlo Genovesi, Mary Wendeiser, Gertrude White, Alice Covinsky, Francis J. Prichard, Hector Blair and Gertrude Fuller.

NO END TO CLAIMS AS FIREMEN DINE

Harlowe Willis's Supply Seems Inexhaustible To Members of No. 2.

Foreman Harlowe Willis put on a clam supper for members of Hose Company No. 2 of the Manchester Fire Department last night that won't be forgotten soon by either the firemen or the invited guests. The extent of Mr. Willis' monopoly on the clam market in Connecticut is not known, but it is known that the appetites of all the guests last night couldn't exhaust his supply.

The public works department of the city of Rockville, of which George B. Milne is superintendent had a busy week in clearing the snow from the center of the city. With the assistance of several extra trucks and twelve extra men, the snow was cleared away in several days. In compiling the cost of the work, a bill has been received by the city for $342.84.

Ernie Rock's Hotel Bond Orchestra will furnish the music tonight for the musical comedy "Till Takes Vanilla" being sponsored by the Rockville Lions Club for their "Milk Funs."

The Lincoln Comrades of the Union Congregational church held a social last evening in the social rooms of the church. Following a short entertainment program, refreshments were enjoyed and refreshments were served.

The annual banquet of the Clerks Athletic Club will be held on Saturday evening in their rooms at the Rockville Hotel. The principal speaker will be Deputy Warden Charles Caswell of the Connecticut State Prison at Wethersfield who has consented to speak in the place of Warden Charles S. Rice who found it impossible to attend.

A very interesting program has been arranged for Saturday evening with Lewis H. Chapman, president of the Rockville Chamber of Commerce and Clerk of the City Court, as the toastmaster.

"Well, we've repaired the ant hill that we fanded on and near knocked flat," said Scouty to the ant. "I hope you think the job's well done." "Now you will never have to roam to try and find another home. We're glad that we have fixed it up. The work was lots of fun."

"They are real busy little ants. Stay here and you will have a chance to see them haul some crumbs of food and take them right inside." "Said Windy, "Gee, they're doing fine. Just see how they keep right in line." The Tines watched them for a while. The Scouty dashed away.

SPORT CHATTER

Clarence Anderson, Wiley and Dick shot part of the day today, gave an exhibition at the City Club last night, driving here from his home town, Kane, Pa., a distance of 480 miles. He gave a thrilling assortment of spectacular shots and also showed his talent at pocket billiards. He said that his greatest thrill is in managing a semi-pro baseball team, an outfit that hasn't finished a season under $500 in twelve years.

Among the speakers will be the following: Deputy Warden Charles Caswell, Dr. John E. Flaherty, Thomas F. Rady, Jr., Steven J. V. Ew and others.

The committee in charge of the banquet consists of the following: John Doherty, chairman; Peter Genevieve, Oscar Phillips and Francis Dobosz.

The three-act musical comedy entitled "Till Takes Vanilla" presented last evening in the auditorium of the George Sykes Memorial School under the sponsorship of the Rockville Lions Club, proved a big success. A second presentation is to be held tonight with indications that many of those who attended last evening will again be present.

The cast were highly complimented on their success as was Miss Latham, the director. In addition to the cast being so highly complimented the "Peerless Orchestra" of Williamatic, with Ralph Gibson, local manager of the Rockville-W.L. Latham Lighting Company, as director, came in for praise.

The following are the members of the cast: Herbert Schelner, Carlo Genovesi, Mary Wendeiser, Gertrude White, Alice Covinsky, Francis J. Prichard, Hector Blair and Gertrude Fuller.

The ant then chirped a funny tone. The Tines watched and pretty soon, a string of ants came crawling out, before their very eyes.

"Sit down, and I will play you. We'll see if all the ants are true. The ant sat up and listened. I'll tell you what the ants are about. (The magic little things are big surprises in the ant world.)"

HEADS UP! A big plane is gliding to a landing in HI-HO land today. There's another plane just like this one in the puzzle pieces below. Cut them out and test your skill by rearranging them to form the plane's silhouette.

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE FIGURE. "Well, we've repaired the ant hill that we fanded on and near knocked flat," said Scouty to the ant. "I hope you think the job's well done."

SENSE AND NONSENSE

Faith without works is about as useless as a watch without wheels.

The score was tied and two minutes to play! Any second now the ball would be snapped back for that last, all-important attempt. The crowd was spellbound, breathlessly counting the seconds. Would he make that final goal kick which meant victory and honor for dear old Hooley?

"Let's go now and avoid that terrible jam," she said.

If it's true, that the good die young, this present generation ought to be here for quite a long time yet.

Harold—I just read where a flapper presented her 85-year-old hubby with a baby boy. What do you think of that?

James—The same as you do.

"He gives me a pain in the neck," says this man from India who hasn't spoken a word for several years.

"Gosh, I've been married twice that long."

Telephoning for a new ukelele string, a miss asked the music store clerk to tune the thing before sending it out.

On one very rare occasion an enthusiastic golfer arrived home for dinner. During the meal his wife said:

Wife—William Jr. tells me that he decided for you all the afternoon.

Golfer—Well, do you know, I thought I'd seen that boy before.

The great trouble with the man who says he only wants a moment of one's time is that he knows not how time flies!

What's the use? You can't start farming without a thousand dollars, and if you have a thousand dollars it isn't necessary to farm.

The manager of a Southern hotel tells a good story about the days when he was making his start as a clerk in a county hostelry. Silas Clayton came down stairs and complained to the proprietor that he hadn't slept a wink all night.

Silas Clayton—I was troubled with insomnia.

Hotel Proprietor (getting real sore)—I don't believe a word of it! Had the place cleaned from top to bottom this spring—show me one if you can; just show me one and I'll make you a present of this hotel!

George Washington Set Our Advertising Policy!

When Washington chopped down the cherry tree (and we're taking it for granted he did) the Father of our Country started to dramatize his "truth-telling" lifelong policy... and set the advertising policy for this store at the same time.

No matter what we have to say or the manner in which we say it—we stick to facts. We let the merchandise that goes on sale inspire our statements—or give us the right to use superlatives.

First the merchandise must be of the right quality to be featured in our advertisements. Second our prices must always be right for this same quality as advertised. Our policy might well be: First, with lowest prices, first with quality values, and first in the minds of our Manchester shoppers!
