Ernest G. Liebold

Ernest G. Liebold, Henry Ford's chief secretary, was returning home today from an unannounced "vacation" that had the extra state hunting him for nearly 34 hours. He had been missing since 11 a. m. Monday. Anxiety was growing and searching parties were laboriously following his trail northward when he telephoned from a Traverse City, Mich., hotel last night to say he was all right but "very tired."

For two weeks Liebold, entrusted with most of the Ford fiscal policies, had been working literally night and day on Detroit's tangled banking situation and his labors had been intensified by the apparently imminent entry of the Fords into the banking business.

Last night he told Harry Bennett, chief of the Ford Service Department, with whom he first talked, that "I was worn out—mentally exhausted."

Wanted To Drive
"I didn't know what I was doing," Bennett said. Liebold related, "I couldn't think of anything but to get away from everything. I wanted to drive and drive—somewhere to get some rest."

CERMAK IS BETTER, HIS DOCTORS SAY

Report Today That Chicago Mayor Is On Road To Recovery.

Miami, Fla., March 1.—(AP)—Attending physicians announced today that, barring unforeseen developments, Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago will recover from Giuseppe Zangara's bullet wound and the complications which followed it.

"Mayor Cermak definitely is on the upgrade now," Dr. Frederick Tice said. "His lungs and heart sound good."

"Barring unforeseen circumstances, we now can say he will recover."

Dr. Karl A. Meyer and other physicians concurred in the statement. Full chest examinations today showed lessening of the pneumonic consolidation in the lower lobe of Cermak's right lung.

The colitis that caused some concern last week has lessened considerably, and he now is able to take by mouth sufficient foods to sustain him. The kidney action also has improved.

The pneumonic consolidation was localized in the lower lobe of the right lung. It was this lobe that was pierced by Zangara's bullet and doctors said the pneumonia was directly traceable to the bullet.

Meyer announced his plans for returning to Chicago, and said he probably would leave tonight. Previously, he said he would depart tomorrow night.

Mayor Cermak slept comfortably much of the night, and the sleep restored his strength. Today is the 14th day since he and four other persons were shot down by Zangara in an attempt to assassinate President-elect Roosevelt in Bay Front park here.

"Mayor Cermak is getting more irritable and it is a good sign of returning strength," Dr. Meyer said early today after remaining on watch at the bedside during the night.

HUEY LONG IS SUED FOR HALF MILLION

Louisiana Senator To Be Defendant In Action Brought By Retired General.

Washington, March 1.—(AP)—The fight of a member of Congress to waive his immunity from legal action for speeches made on the floor probably will be ruled upon by the courts in a $500,000 suit filed today against Senator Huey P. Long (D., La.) by Brigadier General Samuel T. Ansell, retired, a local attorney.

The action grew out of a speech by Long in the Senate last week in which he attacked the procedure of the senatorial committee under the chairmanship of Senator Howell (R., Neb.) in its investigation of the election to the Senate of Representative Overton, who defeated Senator Brewster, the incumbent.

Ansell was named by the committee and Long directed much of his attack against the attorney. In the course of the speech Long said he would waive the immunity granted members by Congress for remarks made in speeches on the floor.

Bill of Complaint. The bill of complaint filed in the District of Columbia Supreme Court by Burr Tracy Ansell, son of the general, and George Wilmsch, claimed that the elder Ansell's reputation had been damaged by the speech and that he had never been guilty of any misconduct as claimed by Long. It said the terms of "scoundrel," "crook," "liar" and "dog faced son of a wolf" had been applied by Long to the elder Ansell.

Legal authorities said two courses were open to Long. One was a motion to dismiss on the ground that he had not waived his immunity, while the other was to claim waiver of Senatorial immunity and permit the case to be heard. In the latter instance, it was said, the court would have to rule on Long's right to waive immunity.

Senator Long told newspapermen today he would not waive his Senatorial immunity against libel suits to permit a suit against him in District of Columbia courts, but would if the action were brought in Louisiana.

Long said that in his statement of last week he meant he would waive it if suits were filed against him "in my own domicile, Louisiana."

BINGHAM'S FUTURE PLANS UNCERTAIN

who defeated him last November by four thousand votes. The retiring senator, a lieutenant colonel in the Air Service during the World War, will make a full time job out of his present more or less inactive position as president of the National Aeronautics Association. He will spend a large portion of his time in Washington, aiding in the advancement of aviation.

Hopes To Return. Most of the friends of the man who served one day as governor of Connecticut, before he came to the nation's capital believe he hopes some day to return to the Senate. At present, however, Bingham is keeping to himself any such aspirations.

Time after time during the last eight years the eyes of the nation have been focused on Connecticut's senior senator. There was the occasion in 1929 of his censure by a majority of his colleagues for placing an officer of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association on the stand in committee hearings on the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill.

There were occasions—many of them—when Bingham in the appropriations committee and in other committees, had a prominent hand in shaping important legislation. There were other times when he spoke in the Senate chamber, seldom raising his voice but always weighing in remarks with facts and figures gleaned from long study.

In Last Session. In the last session he has devoted his interests largely to two subjects—governmental economy and Philippine independence. He has been chairman of the special economy committee in the Senate and also has headed the territories committee which guided through the bill for Philippine freedom.

But the climax to Bingham's career to date undoubtedly came last summer when on a hot June night he stood in the Chicago auditorium to plead that his party go on record for complete prohibition repeal. He long had been an ardent anti-prohibitionist and had unsuccessfully sponsored a bill to legalize beer during the last session.

Then his drive for a repeal plank in the Republican platform began—and he almost won. In the campaign he went into the middle west to urge the election of anti-prohibition candidates to Congress. In his own state he always received an applause when he told his audiences: "You all know where I stand on prohibition."

Y. M. C. A. Notes

The entertainment given by Ernest Schiedge at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon and last evening did not draw out the crowd that was expected although ample notice of the performance had been given.

There was another large gathering yesterday afternoon at the cooking demonstration given by Mrs. Arra Mixer at the "Y."

Tonight the Junior League A and B will continue their basketball game for the championship of the north end. The first game is to start at 8 o'clock. The Oxford and North Ends will meet in the opening chapter. At 7 o'clock the Wildcats and Ramblers take the floor to settle their little argument. The Falcons and the Original Bulldogs will clash at 8 o'clock and at 9 o'clock the final game will be between Community Fillers and Tigers.

Tomorrow afternoon the Falcons will have an extra period from 2 to 3 o'clock the Wildcats from 3 to 4 and the Midgets from 4 to 5. On Saturday night a five-man bowling team composed of James Shearer, Harold Norton, Jay Rand and Fred Harvey will travel to Meriden to bowl a team in that city.

The finals in the ping pong tournament will be played tomorrow night, starting at 7 o'clock to decide the championship which is now tied between Mike Swika and Art Korch. The match is scheduled for five games, but the first taking three games will be the winner.

MRS. ROOSEVELT BIDS HER PUPILS FAREWELL

Invites Them To Visit White House If They Ever Go To Washington.

New York, March 1.—(AP)—At opening exercises at a private school for girls in East 80th street, the future First Lady of the Land bade farewell to her pupils and relinquished with regret the job that she has liked above all the others she has held these last few years.

"A revoir—and good luck," Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said softly, "I'll be coming back to see you at your opening exercises whenever I am in New York, and I hope that whenever you are in Washington you will come to see me."

She invited the nine girls of the class which will be graduated in June to spend a week-end with her at the White House sometime in April and announced she would be back herself for the annual school party and for June commencement.

Except for her talk and several songs by the school Glee Club, today's opening exercises at the school did not differ from the regular program. All of the students, ranging from first grade to high school seniors sang two of Mrs. Roosevelt's favorite songs, "Old Man River," and "Carmela."

MORE STATES JOIN BANK HOLIDAY PLAN

Legislature to provide effective laws for meeting the situation, and a bill to permit the calling of bank holidays was passed by the West Virginia Legislature. A similar measure is before the Nevada Assembly. Banks in several cities of Indiana have followed the example set by some Indianapolis institutions and placed restrictions on withdrawals. In Ohio the withdrawal of deposits had been curbed by more than 200 banks.

Some Pennsylvania banks have taken advantage of new legislation permitting limitation of withdrawals, but the number is not large. Gov. Flinchbaugh expressed the belief that the legislation will obviate any possibility of a statewide holiday.

At Washington the Internal Revenue Bureau announced that bank holidays would not be accepted as an excuse for failure to pay income taxes due March 15, but it was indicated that payment of taxes might be deferred in such instances by arrangement.

editorial in the Shanghai Evening Post today. "As a practical measure to hasten the end of hostilities in the Far East the British embargo is absolutely futile, and as a moral gesture it is grotesque," the newspaper said. "The British policy is to deprive the defender as well as the offender. This embargo which Sir John Simon described as dictated by complete friendliness for both countries is in effect an unfriendly act to China, an irritant to Japan and a most damaging blow to the British aircraft industry in this part of the world."

"It is a colossal blunder and it will have absolutely no effect on the present hostilities." Next to a robin's song, there's no surer harbinger of spring than an urchin with cracked knuckles, bulging pockets and a nicked glass.

Climbers Race Fliers In British Rivalry To Reach Top Of World's Highest Peak

London.—(AP)—Two great adventures, which may develop into a race, are pointing toward the conquest of Mount Everest.

Loftiest known peak, its head towering 29,141 feet, Everest is to be assailed by land and air expeditions.

Climbers Start Ahead. First away to the task no one has yet accomplished, though many lives have been lost in attempts, was the van of the land expedition headed by Hugh Rutledge, a retired officer of the Indian civil service.

The other seekers for the glory to be first in the conquest, compose an air expedition, financed by Lady Houston, England's "Lady Bountiful." It includes the Marquis of Clydesdale, member of parliament for East Renfrewshire; Air Commodore F. F. M. Fellowes, who will be in charge as technical expert, and Flight Lieutenant McIntyre. They are flying to their base in light planes.

Plan March Flight. Two airplanes will be used, with the main base at Furnea, about 180 miles from Mount Everest. The effort to photograph the world's highest peak from above is planned to take place about the first week of March.

Longer is the task of the land party, which expects to reach the base camp north of Everest in April and have nearly two months to make its attack before the monsoon. This effort to scale the peak aloft, was formed by a joint committee of the Royal Geographical Society and the Alpine Club.

Altogether, the expedition will number 14, including L. R. Wager, a member of the British Arctic air route expedition of 1930-1931, and Thomas A. Brocklebank, who stroked the Cambridge crew to victory for the third successive year in the 1931 varsity race.

Unsuccessful attempts to scale the monarch of the Himalayas were made in 1921, 1922, and 1924 and this is a dramatic possibility for both expeditions that they may find traces of Mallory and Irvine, two climbers who never returned. The base camp 12 miles north of Everest will be at the height of 10,000 feet, Mr. Rutledge said, is where "climbers and porters don windproof suits, goggles, helmets, special boots, and everything calculated to turn a respectable citizen into a figure of fun." Three camps are to be kept permanently, each three to four hours apart, with camp Three as the advance base at 21,000 feet.

Mt. Everest, unconquered tip of the world, is to be attacked by rival British expeditions. The map shows Furnea, whence venturers some 180 miles led by Air Commodore F. F. M. Fellowes (left) will try to fly over the 29,141 foot peak and photograph it from above. A climbing party will attempt to scale the mountain from the north, overcoming conditions illustrated (upper left) by the camp of a 1931 expedition 21,000 feet up.

The fourth stage which they expect to reach about May 17, will be at an altitude of 23,000 feet, and two more temporary camps are planned at 25,500 and 27,300 feet. The last 1,000 feet, Mr. Rutledge said, will be "an epic fight." Oxygen will be used if it seems necessary and effective. This will be the first expedition to provide its porters with sleeping bags. They are lined with feathers and exceedingly light.

INJURED BY LADDER

Meriden, March 1.—(AP)—Christopher Bishop, injured last night when struck by a falling fire department ladder at a block located at West Main street and High School avenue where he works as a janitor, was reported from the Meriden hospital today as resting comfortably and his injuries are not considered serious.

SELECTMEN SAY A 24 MILLS RATE WILL BE NEEDED

five of which concerns acceptance of deeds of land to the town on Broad street extension and Cottage street; an appropriation of $70,000 for charity, additional to the amount appropriated at the October meeting; a proposal to purchase the six additional voting machines; to see if the town will authorize the awarding of a private contract for garbage collection are listed.

Rate Case Petition. In response to a petition signed by Joseph C. Doyle and 19 other taxpayers three additional articles were inserted in the call asking that the town become a party to the appeal, now pending before the Superior and Supreme Courts of Hartford County and the State, of the petition to have the Manchester Electric Company reduce its rates.

Article ten provides for a vote of the town, asking for an appropriation of $500.00 for legal and court expense for the appeal. Sherwood G. Bowers, president of the Taxpayers League, in answer to a query by Chairman Wells A. Strickland estimated the cost of the appeal to be approximately $200.00 exclusive of attorney's fees.

Municipal Plant. Article eleven of the call asks for the sponsorship of the town and the issuance of a petition to the present general assembly, for permission to establish and operate a plant for the manufacture and distribution of electricity for municipal and general use upon a vote to that effect by a majority of the voters in any one duly called town meeting.

A report of the Board of Relief submitted to the Selectmen last night quotes a net reduction of $9,878 on the assessor's grand list of $47,450,721. The total additions and corrections were $29,140 and total reductions were $35,713. The net grand list for the year, less the Board of Relief reductions, is $47,444,148.

A discussion of the two-payment tax plan which becomes effective this year revealed that it will cost the town more money, due to the fact that notes due May 10 will have to be carried over until August 15. The first installment of taxes before, comes due April first and the second installment payable July 1.

Selectman George E. Keith, chairman of the Charity committee reported an increase of 177 in the number of families added to the charity list since August 15, the total to date being 649 families.

Town Cemeteries. George H. Waddell, clerk of the Board of Selectmen was authorized to take the necessary steps to secure legislation to consolidate the town cemeteries under the park commission. Consolidation of the town's cemeteries under the direction of the park superintendent is considered a forward step under the existing conditions.

The Manchester Emergency Employment Association in co-operation with the park department expects to provide several labor projects for the unemployed shortly in several of the town's cemeteries.

Nothing will come before the voters of the town at the adjourned town meeting but the tax rate matter, the charity appropriation and other items being included in the call for the special meeting. The Selectmen plan to meet before the first meeting for a final decision on the garbage contract proposal, all phases of which have not yet been approved to their satisfaction.

NO ERROR FOUND IN MANNING CASE

Money Withdrawn When Official Knew That Bank Would Fail.

Hartford, March 1.—(AP)—Two opinions were handed down by the Supreme Court of Errors today and in neither was error found. In the New Haven County case of the First National Bank and Trust Company, receiver for the Broadway Bank and Trust Company vs. Mrs. Carrie Manning et al., of New Haven, the view of the lower court was upheld that a certain deposit withdrawn during a run on the bank and just before it failed was a payment in contemplation of insolvency and therefore void. The receiver sued to recover an alleged preferential payment by the Broadway Bank. The facts as submitted were that Mrs. Manning had a $500 deposit in the Broadway Bank in December, 1931, at the time of a run on it. Her son-in-law, Robert Treat, was treasurer and her agent. Mrs. Manning had asked Treat to look after her money as she did not wish to have it "tied up" in event of the bank's closing. The opinion said Treat knew the bank was about to fail and when at ten minutes of three, he had the teller close Mrs. Manning's account and bring him the money, advising him to say nothing about it, a preferential payment was made by an insolvent bank and was void under the statutes. Judge W. H. Pickett in Common Pleas Court had held the withdrawal of the deposit was not made in ordinary course of business and that the intent was to prefer Mrs. Manning over other creditors. The Supreme Court held the same view. It did say, quoting from other cases, that preferential payments by an insolvent bank are void in absence of a secret trust for the benefit of the debtor. When, however, a depositor receives preferential treatment not accorded to depositors in general resulting in a preferential payment of his debt, such payment is void. The second case was an appeal from awards of damages and assessment of benefits by the Board of Commissioners of Hartford from a judgment for the Fourth Congregational Church, Inc., of that city. The Court of Common Pleas had found for the church. The damages arose out of the layout of a new street, building and veranda lines.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Chicago—For a weapon Joseph McGowan chose a steam shovel, his wife, Rose, charged in a bill for divorce. When she went to his place of employment to ask him for his pay check, she said, he swung the boom of his steam shovel and scooped her up. The judge said she could have an injunction preventing Joseph from annoying her with or without the steam shovel. Kandy, Cayton—The favorite book in a local hotel is the complaints book—but only once George Bernard Shaw stopped here on a cruise around the world. Before leaving the hotel Mr. Shaw asked for the complaints book. The management was astounded, but the book was produced and Mr. Shaw wrote severely. Then the manager read: "Nothing to complain. An earthily Paradise." Minneapolis—Wearing trousers — If you are a woman—is as bad—according to law here—as wearing nothing at all. A 66-year-old ordinance says: "No person shall appear on any street or in any public or exposed place in a state of nudity or in any dress not belonging to his or her sex." The maximum penalty is $100 fine or 90 days. Chief of Police William J. Meehan says he will enforce it. Philadelphia—Many a baseball manager has "lost his shirt" at one time or another but for the first time Connie Mack, veteran pilot of the Philadelphia Athletics had had that experience with his pajamas. Connie lost his traveling bag in the confusion of getting the squad away to spring training quarters. The situation looked serious for a time until one of the accompanying photographers loaned Mack a pair of pajamas—bright green ones with stripes. Chicago—Amateur weathermen pulled that old one from their bag of forecastings today and announced with a long face that if March comes in like a lamb it must go out like a lion. But C. A. Donnell, official forecaster for the Chicago Bureau, chuckled and said: "The weather is always unusual and if the month of March goes out like a lamb it'll just be a coincidence."

PREDICT 46 STATES TO ENDORSE REPEAL

Literary Digest Poll Indicates All But Two Will Ratify Amendment.

The Twenty-First Amendment for repeal of Prohibition will probably be ratified by as many States as the Eighteenth Amendment was, according to analysis of The Literary Digest Prohibition polls, tomorrow's issue of the magazine will state. An analysis of the 1922, 1926 and 1932 nation-wide polls on Prohibition, all of which had overwhelming wet majorities, discloses the forecast that forty-six states will endorse the new repeal Amendment to the Constitution, the magazine points out. These deductions are based upon the proven accuracy of the magazine's straw balloting system in Presidential election years, when the post-card returns have been compared with the official returns. In the last twelve years it is pointed out that The Literary Digest's Presidential polls have forecast the winning candidate in all instances with an error of less than 5 per cent. Assuming that the Prohibition polls should be as accurate as the Presidential polls, inasmuch as both were conducted in the exact same manner, The Literary Digest will state that the drys will be unable to muster more than one or two states to vote against ratification of repeal if the issue is put to a direct vote of the people.

Wet 11 Years Ago A majority of the American electorate was wet in sentiment eleven years ago, the magazine shows by a review of the returns in their 1922 Prohibition Poll, when Kansas and Oklahoma were the only two states to vote for the Eighteenth Amendment.

The opportunity for a direct vote on the bitterest issue since slavery comes to them almost a year after the great Literary Digest Prohibition Poll of 1932, "the current issue states" which showed all but two states favoring repeal. "Kansas and North Carolina were the only dry states in the latest poll and this by scant margins. The 1930 Poll "Our first Prohibition poll, taken eleven years ago, showed a strong anti-Prohibition sentiment, and the same was true of our 1926 poll. Thus The Literary Digest reflected the will of the people eleven years in advance of the legislators. "At the risk of seeming to pat itself on the back, but with a high pride in the accuracy of its polls, whose integrity often has been attacked, The Literary Digest begs leave to point out how it has served as the voice of the people in this great issue. "In 1924 it forecast the election of Calvin Coolidge as President with a margin of error of less than 2 per cent. "In 1928 it was 85.6 per cent correct in forecasting that Herbert Hoover would defeat Alfred E. Smith and that the 'Solid South' would be shattered. "In 1932 it was 99.6 per cent correct in forecasting the electoral vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt and 98.8 per cent correct in forecasting the popular vote. "Work On 16 States "In view of this record and with the results of the 1932 Prohibition Poll in mind, it would seem that the drys would be unable to get more than one or two states to vote against ratification of repeal. "Although the drys are preparing to fight in every state, it has been announced, they count their chances best in sixteen states. Of these the only two voting against repeal in The Literary Digest's Poll of 1932 were Kansas with a dry percentage of 50.23 and North Carolina, 50.08. "The wet percentages of the other states as they voted in the poll were: Oklahoma, 54.8; Iowa, 53.4; Georgia, 63.8; Utah, 69.6; Nebraska, 62.9; Kentucky, 67.4; Tennessee, 51.6; North Dakota, 76.5; South Dakota, 69; New Hampshire, 68.8; South Carolina, 60; Alabama, 55.4; Mississippi, 56.2, and Florida, 74.9.

MANY AMERICANS IN NORTH CHINA

Although Warned They Refuse To Leave Their Homes In Danger Zone.

Washington, March 1.—(AP)—The safety of 3,000 Americans in the Peiping and Tientsin area is the cause of much concern to State Department officials as Japanese and Manchukuo forces sweep southward through Jehol toward North China.

Civilians in China never leave when orders to do so are given by diplomatic or consular officials. This is true of Europeans as well as Americans who have been through so many revolutions and civil wars that they generally refuse to quit their homes.

The 1,300 Marines and soldiers of the United States has at Peiping and Tientsin could not be evacuated except by agreement with the Japanese, Italians, British and French, who also have small defense forces in the two cities.

Military observers say American lives would be menaced should Chinese mobs attack the Japanese colonies in those cities, because of the possibility that the uprisings might develop into a general anti-foreign movement similar to the Boxer uprising in 1900.

Japs Issue Warning The Japanese have given warning that they will be forced to throw additional defense forces into North China if Japanese lives and property are threatened.

Europeans and Americans live in practically all parts of Peiping and Tientsin. They are not grouped in foreign concessions as they are in Shanghai. Air raids over these cities would be a source of danger.

Foreign military men also fear the retreat of disorganized Chinese forces southward into Peiping if the Japanese and Manchukuo forces drive out the Chinese soldiers from Jehol City.

The Far Eastern crisis is receiving attention both in and out of Congress. Senator Borah of Idaho, yesterday spoke in opposition to any action by the United States in joining with European nations in placing an embargo on arms shipments to the Orient.

Democratic House leaders blocked action this session on President Hoover's proposal to empower the President to institute embargoes against countries in conflict.

FRANCE TO NAME NEW AMBASSADOR

Andre de la Boulaye To Succeed Paul Claudel At Washington.

Paris, March 1.—(AP)—Andre Lefebvre de la Boulaye, personal friend of President-elect Roosevelt, will be named ambassador to Washington to succeed Paul Claudel, it was learned in semi-official quarters today.

M. La Boulaye was selected, these sources said, especially to carry on negotiations for a new debt agreement with the United States.

An official announcement was expected after the Roosevelt inauguration on Saturday at Washington. At the foreign office it was said the matter could not be discussed at present.

M. La Boulaye made the acquaintance of Mr. Roosevelt as first secretary of the Embassy at Washington during the Wilson administration, when Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the Navy.

They have maintained their friendship since then. When Mr. Roosevelt was in Paris a year ago, he was entertained by M. La Boulaye. The latter is an assistant director in the foreign affairs ministry at present.

TURK BECOMES DEAN Washington, March 1.—(AP)—Ahmet Muhtar, the Turkish ambassador, will become dean of the Washington diplomatic corps with the withdrawal of Ambassador Paul Claudel of France.

Andre Lefebvre de la Boulaye, former counsellor of the French Embassy here and at present assistant director of political affairs in the Paris ministry of foreign affairs, is reported to have been selected as Claudel's successor and his approval by the Washington government is expected shortly.

Claudel has been in Washington since March 28, 1927, and became dean of Washington diplomats a few weeks ago on the departure of Noble Glacomo de Martino, Italian ambassador, who had been in Washington for seven years.

Forty years ago Claudel came to New York as French vice consul. Since then he has served his country as consul at Boston and in China, as minister to Rio de Janeiro, and ambassador to Tokyo.

His plays "City" and "Tete D'Or" are probably his best known dramatic works and his "Three Poems of the War," written in 1915, won wide attention.

While in Washington the ambassador has had to deal with many vexing problems, war debts as well as tariff disputes, but he won the high esteem of American officials through his tactful, patient methods.

INFORMAL AFFAIRS ROOSEVELTS' AIM

Less Social Splendor To Mark Capital Life When New Cabinet Moves In.

Washington, March 1.—(AP)—An official social life less resplendent, more centered on home and family and distinctly more feminine was foreseen by Washington today as the new administration began moving in.

Setting its swift and informal tempo will be the numerous, vigorous Roosevelt family in the White House—four generations of it.

For the most part Cabinet wives will start their careers in hotel apartments that preclude entertaining of the type done by the Stimsons in stately Woodley.

Outstanding figure in the new social life, of course, will be the exceptional Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, aristocratic of birth, democratic of instinct, whose habit is to entertain in informal affairs, and to make the few formal ones as informal as possible. She'll be assisted, on occasion by pretty and vivacious Anna Dell, and her daughter-in-law.

Mother of such a clan, Mrs. Roosevelt logically heads up a Cabinet group more stressful of the "home and children" theme than has come here in many a quadrennium.

Herself a writer, she also meets that new note in the hitherto conservative Cabinet circle—the "career woman" whose job cuts into mere social amenities.

There are three: Miss Francis Perkins, bona fide Cabinet member with the Labor portfolio; Mrs. John N. Garner, secretary as well as wife of the vice president; tall, dark-haired Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, (wife of the Secretary of Interior), active Republican member of the Illinois Legislature.

In contrast with these professional women are two whose tradition has been to shun the limelight—that Virginia-bred socially-gifted pair, dark-haired Mrs. Cordell Hull, (State) and diminutive, blonde Mrs. Claude Swanson (Navy).

Mrs. Hull is of the group—a majority—who with Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Garner have declared for "as simple a social life as possible."

"Probably more interested in my six grandchildren than in thoughts of public life," modest, retiring Mrs. Woodin (Treasury) was quoted as saying.

Is Old Fashioned "Just an old-fashioned wife and mother who doesn't want any fuss made about her," was the description given of herself by Mrs. Daniel C. Roper (Commerce) whose grown children number seven.

"Home and family always have been her chief interest to the exclusion of social functions," was the report of young Mrs. Wallace (Agriculture), mother of Henry, Robert and Jean.

"Light, plump, jolly, full of life and ginger," was the "word picture" for Mrs. Farley (Postoffice Department), said to be far more actively interested in her two girls and one boy than in politics.

More feminine, Mrs. Dern (War) was listed as a former Utah regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution and once the Democratic National committeewoman of that state. Her two daughters, three r are grown. And she has grandchildren.

Colorful among the Cabinet wives will be the beautiful Cuban bride of Attorney General Walsh, called "Mina the Magnificent" in Havana. Socially brilliant also are her two Cuban daughters, and Senator Walsh's daughter Genevieve—Mrs. Emmet Guider—is a hostess of rare charm.

GUARD INVESTORS WHITNEY'S APPEAL

Head of New York Stock Exchange Says Every Possible Means Must Be Adopted

Cleveland, March 1.—(AP)—Every possible means must be adopted to safeguard the vast number of investors who furnish capital to industry, in the opinion of Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, in order that it's return to normal conditions can be assured.

Speaking before the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce here today, Mr. Whitney deplored the "ephemeral prophets" of by-gone "boom" days, urged better corporation reports, stricter accounting practices, and uniform laws relating to the issuance of securities and the formation of new corporations.

He pointed out that "we shall need all of our wisdom and all of our courage" in solving the existing economic problems.

"In spite of present discouragements," he said, "we must remember that the depression has not paralyzed scientific progress nor halted invention. New products and new services are at this very moment awaiting the return of economic equilibrium and a new flow of investment funds into the productive effort of men's brains and hands."

Imperative Need "Thrift and private investment are not, therefore, simply a phrase of our phase—they are an imperative need now and for the future, and they must be safeguarded. We have borne the risks of pioneering and colonizing a continent. We must now, through thrift, self-control and individual initiative, complete the task of building a great civilization."

Mr. Whitney believed that one of the insistent demands of the day is for the re-establishment of sound principles and sound business methods in every line.

"Confidence must be restored," he continued, "if we are to return to a normal level of business conditions, and assurance in need of the errors of the past will not be repeated. I do not hold with some people in believing that mere criticism of what has happened in the past will solve our present problems, but one fact cannot be ignored—in the days of prosperity, we were careless of the qualifications of many of those who were entrusted with positions of importance and power and gave them our confidence too readily."

Following the war, Mr. Whitney added, people were ready to listen to anyone who promised prosperity.

"The appearance of success," he said, "was enough to establish leadership and to attract large numbers of followers. The entire civilized world has seen the rise and fall of these ephemeral prophets. Stinnes of Germany, Oustric in France, Hatry in England, Lowenstein in Belgium and England, Krueger in Sweden and elsewhere throughout the world, and others in this country, had their day."

Reported Huge Profits "It now develops," he declared, "that in almost every case the apparent success of these men lay not in the fact that they were establishing sound enterprises but in that they were reporting huge profits which, in some instances, were entirely fictitious and in others were unrealized profits existing only on paper."

"These examples of false leadership illustrate the tendencies of that period. In our haste to achieve wealth, in our desire to expand business too rapidly, we closed our minds to the necessity of making progress slowly and of building sound foundations. Now we have awakened to the grave reality of an impoverished world."

Mr. Whitney said that it was generally recognized that the lack of complete disclosure of the results of business operations contributed to the inflation of security values which preceded the panic of 1929. But the public, he added, now insists upon more complete and accurate financial statements from publicly owned companies. He recalled that the Stock Exchange for years "has been urging the publication of corporate reports in such manner as to show not only the true facts but also to serve as far as possible as an indication of earning capacity."

"Blue Sky Laws" "Blue sky laws," Mr. Whitney believed, are not a substitute for "sound uniform laws governing incorporation."

"If we wish really to prevent the distribution of unsound securities," he said, "we should strike at the root of the matter and prevent the issuance of such securities instead of merely preventing the sale of them after they have been issued. The attempt of our states to regulate security sales is an example of the old adage that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

A uniform corporation law, he explained, could "establish proper penalties for officers or directors who publish misleading statements or prospectuses."

"In short," he added, "by a uniform law governing incorporation, the possibility of abuse in the issuance and sale of securities which is inherent in the existing situation can be prevented. A Federal corporation law might be enacted, but for any reason that should be impracticable, then the adoption of a uniform law by the several states is a vital necessity."

"Make people smile again," is one of Bernard Baruch's suggestions for combating the depression. Maybe somebody ought to hitch a horse to an automobile.

AMERICA WARNED AGAINST EMBARGO

Senator Lewis Says There Is Danger of Becoming Involved In War.

Washington, March 1.—(AP)—Senator Lewis (D., Ill.) said in the Senate today that the United States should not make the "blunder" of joining other countries in an embargo against shipment of arms to the Orient.

The Illinois Senator, a member of the foreign relations committee, called attention to newspaper accounts that Great Britain was seeking to have America join in an arms embargo against Japan and China, now struggling furiously over the great North China Province of Jehol.

He then warned the Senate that such an action would mean danger of involving this country in a situation "similar to that which came about in our relations with Germany when she was at war with Great Britain and France."

While America should not seek complete isolation in its foreign policy, said Lewis, its statesmen should realize that an attempt to work with other nations on that occasion "led her into a conflict so serious in its nature as to involve the loss of twenty-five billions of dollars and 200,000 of her sons."

He advised against an arms embargo particularly "at a time like this" when he said "there are in the Philippines vast millions of property belonging to Americans and thousands of United States citizens" all of which he said could be made the subject of immediate assault by a Far Eastern power should it take offense.

AVOID POLITICS IN RUM CONTROL

Governor Cross So Urges In Address—Would Be Same Old Situation, He Says.

Hartford, March 1.—(AP)—Avoidance of politics in any liquor control plan which may be adopted for Connecticut was urged last night by Governor Cross during a speech in which he referred to the minor judgeship fight in the Legislature as an attempt by politicians to dominate the liquor business.

"There is a great deal of talk about deals in police, town and borough courts," the governor said at the annual dinner of the Laymen's Association of Christ Church Cathedral. "But that isn't what the politicians are expecting wholly. They are looking forward to repeal and for the proper division of county commissioners."

Depends on Commissioners "The one who was to receive the licenses depended on the commissioners," he said. "You can see what that meant. Licenses were sold and what a beautiful racket you have there—county commissioners, and municipal, town and borough courts in the hands of politicians of either one party or the other."

The government warned that "we will have that old political situation that we had before the 18th Amendment," unless a suitable plan for state control of the manufacture and sale of liquor is adopted in the event of repeal.

"The people of this state, although they voted wet in the referendum are not for the saloon or for conditions that existed before the 18th Amendment was passed," he said. "What they want is a great question. I've got to take that up at once in the hope of solving the most difficult question you can imagine."

The governor made his speech several hours after signing the bill creating a commission to recommend such legislation as may be necessitated by repeal of the 18th Amendment.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1.

RUM AND DEALS

Governor Cross seems to have taken over, hook, line and sinker, the sublime thought of Senator Bergin of New Haven that the so-called "judgeships" deal in the General Assembly was linked with the desire of certain politicians to control the county commissionerships and so the legalized liquor business of the state in the event of Prohibition repeal. The governor parroted Bergin's accusations in an address at a dinner of the Laymen's Association of Christ Church Cathedral, Hartford, last night.

If there is any such sinister scheme on foot, whose fault is it? When Governor Cross took office more than two years ago it should have been evident to the most ordinary intelligence that prohibition repeal was rapidly approaching. One of the most obvious of all duties of the Connecticut state government at that time was to prepare for such an event by planning a system of liquor control, to become effective on repeal, that would make any return to the old political manipulation of the saloon and the old abominable tie-up between rum and government groups forever impossible. No one more completely ignored the urgency of such preparation than Governor Cross. Apparently it never occurred to him that his office was incurring, in the circumstances, the greatest responsibilities in connection with the future liquor traffic in this state.

And even at the present moment, when Connecticut is immediately confronted by the likelihood of having to handle the liquor question without federal interference, the utmost that the governor has suggested was the appointment of a commission to "study" a liquor control plan, to report in April.

If the governor had been deliberately anxious to restore the old system of liquor laws, to recreate the rotten system of saloon politics, he could hardly have adopted a course more effective than this one. There is very little chance indeed that an efficient and decent liquor code can now be made into law at the present session of the Legislature. The General Assembly, for lack of the leadership that it and the people had a right to expect from the governor, is more than likely to leave the state with the old archaic system on its hands.

It comes with mighty poor grace from Governor Cross to berate politicians for utilizing a gateway into the fields of racketeering which he himself, with unpardonable negligence, has left wide open.

SMITH'S VIEWS

We may—and most of us do—admire the candid, forthright fashion in which Alfred E. Smith attacks his problems. He sees straight and he talks straight—and he acts straight. He has faith in himself. He believes with all his heart that there is an answer to every problem of government. What he says, on public questions, is therefore always worth listening to. What he said yesterday in his conversation with the Senate Finance Committee was worth listening to. If anyone expected, however, that Mr. Smith would have something of extraordinary value to present by way of a solution of the depression he could hardly fall of disappointment. The famous ex-governor of New York didn't, really, propose a new idea. Nor did he manifest any marked degree of familiarity with economic principles.

Mr. Smith sees straight but he doesn't see far enough. He is a bit too inclined to take certain things for granted. His point of view, in fact, is just about that of the intelligent man in the street, sharpened by some years of successful experience in the handling of immediate situations in an intelligent if not exactly a scientific way. He has a great deal of common sense and a great deal of sturdy honesty. But common sense and honesty will not help an unprepared student to read a demonstration of differential calculus; and no amount of practical experience in ordinary governmental technique, however creditable, can fit a politician for the job of unraveling economic knots unless he has thought deeply on the subject of fundamental economics.

BETWEEN JOBBOLDERS

It is now time for the experts in matters of Presidential succession to figure out who will be President of the United States between midnight next Friday and the midday hour when the incoming President takes the oath of office. Certainly for that period it will not be either Herbert Hoover or Franklin D. Roosevelt.

There is no provision under the law that the retiring President shall hold office until his successor qualifies. We have the word of the celebrated Chief Justice John Marshall for it that the term of the President expires at midnight on the third of March. That disposes of Mr. Hoover. We have the same authority's ruling that a President cannot be a President until he has taken the oath of office. That will dispose of Mr. Roosevelt until the hour of the inauguration.

The succession of cabinet officers is out, because the old cabinet officers cease to be cabinet officers the moment their chief retires; the new ones cannot become cabinet officers till the new chief appoints them. And there will be, for that period, no speaker of the House.

Of course, in an emergency the incoming President could and probably would take the oath of office on the very stroke of the midnight hour. But no such emergency has arisen and so, every now and then, the country has been, technically, without a President.

There is always in the background, however, some individual, far down in the succession list, who is theoretically President de facto for a few hours in these intervals—some holdover official so remotely associated with the Presidency itself that hardly anybody can remember who he is or what his job is and on whose official identity no two authorities can ever agree.

Perhaps the best practical answer to the question, Who will be President at 6 o'clock next Saturday morning? is, Nobody.

SALUTING A BLUFF

Greetings, March—you roughneck! You don't scare us a mite, old sock, with your scowls and your bluster, your roarings and your bad manners. Oh, we know all about it—you're tough and you're hard and you don't give a damn—just as soon kick sand in the eyes of a prince as a pauper, just as lief spit snow in the eye of a baby as of a bone-breaking wrestler. You're hard boiled and you've got a terribly icy eye and you love to make folks tremble at your awfulness. But we've got your number and it's a big, round squashy nose, like a raw doughnut. Your badness is all bluff. You can't even keep the twinkle out of your eye.

Go ahead; thrash around and make a lot of noise; swallow your palate and put a double bass stop on your voice—and see if we care! You've got buds in your pocket and crouches in your hat and you're all knobby with hidden benefactions for the children of men, and anybody with half an eye can see them and anybody with half a memory knows what you're going to do with them. You're going to drop them right where they'll do the most good, secretly, even while you're acting like all get out and trying your best to keep up your reputation as a ruffian and a terrible fellow.

Whoop and brag all you want to, old March! We all know you for a pretty darn good scout, with nothing vicious about you but instead a big tender spot in your heart for humans and beasts and birds and flower. You're a long, long way from being as snooty bad as you try to make out. Shake—and come in and stay awhile.

WHY WASTE WEEKS?

Nobody seems to be paying much attention to the demand of Representative Wolcott of Michigan that President-elect Roosevelt call the special session of Congress for as early as possible in March instead of putting off its assembling until the middle of April. Wolcott's idea nevertheless is a good one.

Why should there be a sheer waste of five or six weeks at such a time as this? Certainly the incoming President has his program formulated by this time, at least so far as the more pressing remedial measures are concerned. The new senators and representatives have had opportunity enough since November to get their personal affairs in order—and besides, since their salaries will date from March 4 their time belongs not to themselves but to the nation.

It would even be something of an inspiration to the country to see Mr. Roosevelt issue a call for a special session as his first official act. It would look as if he meant to make every day of his time in office count in the direction of accomplishment. We need some such assurance.

APPRECIATION

When the governor of Kentucky yesterday was confronted by the emergent need of a bank holiday because of the distressed situation of many of the state's financial institutions, and when he was at something of a loss to find warrant for action in the state's statute laws, he had an inspiration. Let March 1, 2, 3 and 4 be days of public thanksgiving, he proclaimed—under a law giving him authority to declare holidays of that nature.

There is a measure of irony in this, to be sure—a four days fiesta of rejoicing over the fact that the banks are unable at the moment to pay their depositors and over the prospect of having to resort to wooden money and the payment of side-ment for moonshine! Still and all that isn't the only angle of the situation. Perhaps the four days of thanksgiving may well be held in celebration of the possession of such an ingenious governor.

IN NEW YORK

Dog's Best Friend
 New York, March 1.—The dogs of the universe, in convention assembled, should get together and give this little girl a great big bark.

I refer to Mrs. Geraldine Rockefeller Dodge, rich social leader upon whose the smoothest kennel show of Manhattan has thrown the spotlight by electing her "the best judge of dogs in America."

No canine is too nondescript to win her attention, yet she owns and breeds some of the finest dog flesh in the world.

To be more specific: Mrs. Dodge has a 7,000-acre country place near Madison, N. J. Kennels pop up everywhere and scores of gold-ribbon winners have been born and raised there. Among her dog stars is the internationally famous "Tuetilde," better known as "Tillie" on this side of the pond. This German shepherd boasts of 28 championships, won on both sides of the Atlantic.

The Rescue of "Louie"

Yel, just a few months ago, Mrs. Dodge was strolling in Central Park when she met Louie. Louie was apparently and admittedly "on the loose"—a waif, a mongrel. No one ever has been able to figure Louie out, for he seems to combine a bit of collie with a trace of fox-terrier, spaniel and even dachshund.

Mrs. Dodge picked up Louie and transplanted him suddenly to the luxuries and appointments of her Fifth Avenue mansion. Mrs. Dodge recently she rescued another hungry mutt from the predatory life of a park ranger. When she doesn't know what to do with such strays, she turns them over to swanky friends whose youngsters seem to appreciate mutts of questionable ancestry.

Kept Doggedly at It
 There's another interesting angle on Mrs. Dodge's interest in dogs. She began as a fancier and breeder as a gesture of revolt. Her father, the late William Rockefeller, was a horse expert. He did not approve of his daughter's interest in dogs. So she began to convert him.

This season, when the Westminster Kennel Show is held, Mrs. Dodge will be the sole judge of the best dog in all America.

Her own kennels, containing at least 150 blue-bloods, will not complete. And nobody seems to know exactly how many pooches she has rescued and given homes.

Changing Faces

Chinatown's younger generation, they tell me, is keeping the plastic surgeons busy. Having learned to wear snappy Occidental attire and to go about with collegiate Nordics, they seek to remove the many-eyed sign of the Oriental. Scores, I am informed, are haunting the offices of the face changers.

Modesty and Romance

Marjorie, daughter of the Banker Otto Kahn, son of Sarah Jane Heilker, one-time music show figure, recalls an amusing chapter from the romance.

Sarah Jane, as she was known to the show world, had a little part in "Take a Chance," which was certain to become a hit. The role she played called for a partial disrobing. The show went to Newark for a try-out, and young Kahn sat in. When he observed the particular episode from down front, he protested, told Sarah Jane that she was not thus to uncover herself for the three business men, and the management was thus informed. Sarah Jane, being in love, did not wish to displease the young man who threatened to become her husband, and so asked the management to change the scene.

They argued, showed how it was impossible, and finally had nothing to do but dismiss her.

So Sarah Jane had to walk out a hit show. But she married the rich young man—and all is well.

SWAPS FLOUR FOR BOOZE

Middletown, March 1.—(AP)—Peter Lee, 44, trudging down the street this morning with a bag of government flour on his shoulder, Lee got the bag in a distribution of relief to unemployed. He disappeared in a place which was said to be a speakeasy.

An hour later Lee was arrested but the bag of flour had disappeared. He had an empty pin bottle. The charge was made that of obtaining goods under false pretenses.

Mayor Frederick J. Bielefeld a few days ago said there was some fraud in the obtaining of charity relief and workers have had a watchful eye on the distribution of some kinds of relief.

A New York customs inspector was shocked at a photograph of one of Michel Angelo's sacred paintings. If that had been a modern painting it might have passed without a question—no customs inspector could understand it.

CAUSES SIMILAR IN MANY TYPES OF RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is one of the oldest diseases found on earth. It has been known since the Stone Age and records left in the skeletons of early man show that he suffered from a form of rheumatism which affects the bones.

The Greeks named it, and used the word rheum, meaning to flow. As one doctor has pointed out, this is a good name, for the disease easily flows along in the blood stream, affecting first one portion and then another before it finally locates in any one part.

Due to its ease in troubling different areas it has come by many names, depending on which one is crippled. If it attacks the joints, it is called arthritis; when the rheumatic poisons irritate the nerves we have neuritis, while if they settle on the sciatic nerve it is called sciatica; when the muscles of the neck suffer we call it wry-neck; if the pain is in the lower back, the complaint is termed lumbago. Children suffer from joint pains due to acute rheumatic fever and this form of the disease is one of the chief causes of heart trouble developing in children. In addition, there is the familiar condition of muscular soreness which is meant when we say rheumatism. Many physicians object to the term chronic rheumatism, and would class it as a fibrositis, claiming the inflammation is in the white fibrous tissues.

ONE MAIN CAUSE OF RHEUMATISM

Many causes of rheumatism have been advanced such as cold, damp, exposure, over-straining, stooping, flat feet, poor posture, occupational factors, etc. Some persons consider it to be a germ disease, but many believe it is caused by the presence of focal infections in the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, nose, etc.

My point of view is that infectious causes must be considered secondary to what I would call the primary cause, found in a special type of self-poisoning which may be called the "rheumatic toxemia." I believe that focal infection from the teeth or tonsils may be sufficiently irritating to start the attack of rheumatism whenever there is present the rheumatic toxemia. For instance, a pus pocket at the root of a tooth may serve as the match which causes the rheumatic flare-up; but the fuel must have been ready and that fuel is always a toxic, poisoned state of the body. The poisoning usually arises in the intestines.

Every case of rheumatism will be found to have an absorption of toxins from the intestines and cannot be permanently cured until the intestines are functioning normally.

(Sensitive Stomach)

Question: Mrs. Nancy G. writes: "My little girl is only fourteen and yet a small patch of her hair close to her neck is turning grey. She worries about it because many times when she is so young, I see there any remedy to stop it?"

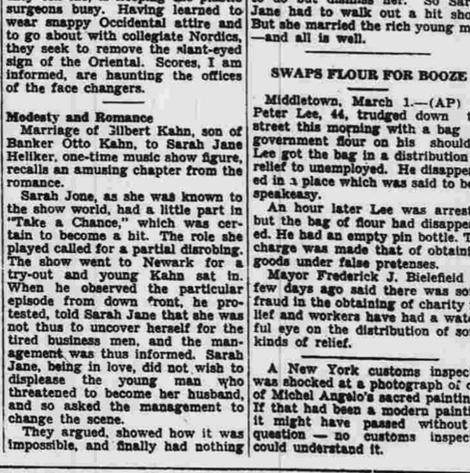

Answer: Small patches of grey hair in a young child are not usually of any particular indication that the hair is turning grey entirely but may be due to a different type of hair pigmentation secreted by the hair-cells of that small patch. If the greyness is due to defective circulation or the nerve supply of the hair roots, it might be helped by shaving off that region and then burning the skin with ultra-violet light so that peeling will result. Sometimes the hair will then grow out in its natural color.

(Lemon Milk)

Question: Theresa asks: "What is lemon milk and how is it prepared?"

Answer: Lemon milk is a kind of sour milk or substitute for buttermilk and is made by mixing the juice of one or more lemons with a pint of sweet milk and shaking vigorously together. Lemon milk is very easily digested and may be taken by anyone. It should, however, be used as a meal itself or be taken in the same way as a milk diet, that is, a glassful every hour.

Behind the Scenes in WASHINGTON

HOOPER, G. O. P. ADOPT WATCHFUL WAITING POLICY

Capital is Certain President Expects to Remain Head of His Party; Foes Content to Wait and See What Happens to Democrats.

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

Washington.—President Hoover's early plans for life as an ex-president are now fairly well worked out and it is understood that he doesn't intend to make any speeches, publish any writings or accept any job until at least nine months after he leaves the White House.

Nevertheless, the impression has grown steadily that Mr. Hoover has no idea of renouncing politics for all time and that he expects to continue as leader of his party. Republicans who don't want him to continue in control have thus far failed to get together and do something about it and there is no assurance of a definite crystallization of the anti-Hoover sentiment even after March fourth. Many Republicans, after the manner of Hoover himself, prefer to wait awhile and see what happens to the Democrats before making any drastic reorganization. The understanding that the president will take Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills along with him if he returns to California by boat through the Panama Canal, with a few days off for fishing en route, is taken to indicate that still—a political power in New York state and often suggested as the G. O. P. 1936 presidential candidate—is not likely to participate in any early movement within the party which would conflict with Hoover's desires, such as the ousting of National Chairman Everett Sanders.

Meanwhile there is great interest in the likelihood that Hoover will make a political speech to Republicans sometime before inauguration day.

Whether Hoover returns to California through the canal or by train, he and Mrs. Hoover are reported both confirmed in their intention to sail through the South Sea and perhaps around the world later this year.

Cabinet members are beginning to take their chairs from the White House cabinet room, in accordance with an old custom. Secretary of the Interior Wilbur was the first one to get his. Retiring cabinet members pay for these chairs.

There's apparently no longer any doubt about what Mrs. Nettie Hoover is going to do after December 31. Jack Garner becomes vice president. She insists that she is going to keep right on being his secretary. The Garner force will be reduced, as the secretarial work of the vice president's office is not nearly as heavy as that of the speaker.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's pop-tas and pop-outs by airplane have become so frequent as no longer to attract attention. When Mrs. Clifford Finckh invited her to the executive mansion at Harrisburg she sent her automobile to the airport here to drive the president-elect's wife 120 miles to the Pennsylvania capital. Mrs. Roosevelt was met at the airport by Harry Slattery, the inconspicuous, publicity-shy Washington lawyer who is described by liberals and progressives as the most useful man in private life here from the standpoint of the public welfare. Slattery made the first public attack on the naval oil leases 11 years ago, played a leading part in the Ballinger case during the Taft administration, has exposed various lobbies and has been known throughout the country for 35 years as an active watchdog of the nation's natural resources.

Since his effectiveness is so much matched by his passion for the effacement, an incident such as his meeting Mrs. Roosevelt on behalf of Mrs. Finckh is about as near as he ever comes to a public appearance.

EDWARD H. KELLY DEAD

Urberville, Conn. March 1.—(AP)—Edward H. Kelly, former secretary of Mayor O'Brien of New York in the law firm of Whelan and Dunn, died suddenly last night of heart disease. He was about 57 years old.

For some time he was troubled by arteriosclerosis, which was made worse by his passion for the effacement of his name from the present Census Bureau.

His widow and two children survive.

HOW BRIDGEPORT CUT CITY COSTS

Chamber Executive Tells Local Members What Means Were Followed.

Before an attentive audience of seventy-five persons, Robert A. Crosby, executive secretary of the Bridgeport Chamber of Commerce, outlined the activities of that Chamber's "Committee of One Hundred" in meeting the problem of mounting municipal expenses, resulting in high taxation.

Interesting Plan. Mr. Crosby proved an effective and interesting speaker and his one hour address was highly beneficial to local Chamber members, who have already authorized the appointment of a committee to study municipal affairs in Manchester with a view of adopting a plan similar to that tried in Bridgeport.

The speaker presented charts showing the trend in government costs during the past twenty years, pointing out that taxes are mounting steadily skyward while the ability to pay is rapidly going down. In the discussion period that followed the address, it was the consensus that his picture of the problem was true in nearly all communities in the state, including Manchester.

Big Increases. The series of graphs shown by Mr. Crosby presented many significant factors as brought out by the committee's findings. They included a fifty per cent payroll drop in 1932 compared to 1926, a fifty per cent drop in railroad freight, an 1800 per cent increase in debt and 400 per cent increase in cost of government since 1911, 250 per cent rise in educational costs over 1917 with population increase of only thirty per cent in the same period, 53 per cent of police department members rated as sergeants or better and paid accordingly, fire department mechanics and painters rated and paid as captains at $5,000 per year and chauffeurs as lieutenants at $2,700.

Mr. Crosby said that the Committee of One Hundred made a thorough study of municipal affairs in an effort to discover means of eliminating waste. The committee found that after fixed charges had been deducted from the budget, nearly fifty per cent of the budget was in payrolls. Therefore one of the big recommendations was an adjustment and standardization of salary rates.

Must Cut Salaries. The speaker stressed the fact that salary reductions are absolutely necessary and that in his opinion municipalities have just scratched the surface in cuts already made. Mr. Crosby stated that all suggestions were not necessarily cost cutting, that in some instances the recommendation was advanced that more money be spent along certain lines was desirable to increase efficiency.

Another tremendous item in the Bridgeport budget, the speaker said, was that of education. The committee recommended a program that cuts thirty per cent of $750,000 from this item. Enlarging classes with a resultant reduction in the teaching staff was one of the factors in attaining this decrease. Mr. Crosby said that the committee was not in favor of cutting the efficiency of the educational system but when bills cannot be paid something has to be done about it.

Cooperative Enterprise. At the beginning of his talk, Mr. Crosby spoke of the function of the government as a cooperative enterprise. He placed no blame on politicians for the present economic situation of municipalities but said that municipalities are run by political groups without the interest of the average citizen. He said, however, that the average citizen is now waking up to his responsibilities. "Business men of proved judgment must come down to the realization that they must direct the government," he said.

Mr. Crosby outlined points to have in mind when contemplating cuts in cost, namely, value of service, its degree of efficiency and parts to be eliminated with the least loss felt. Policies to be followed he outlined as follows: How to the line of tax cutting, place no responsibility for the blame, cooperate, a volunteer spirit of service and that individual members refrain from expressions of opinion and avoid public controversy.

Cut Taxes. Mr. Crosby said that practically every one of the recommendations advanced by the Committee of One Hundred have been adopted with good results. If the study had not been made with the recommendations that followed, he said that the tax rate would have been ten mills higher in Bridgeport than it actually is.

"We're in this work for the next five or six years as far as the present problems are concerned," said Mr. Crosby. "We'll be lucky if we're out of it in ten years."

Following the address, Stuart Cheney showed motion pictures of his travels in the west and also scenes at the ice carnivals held here

HOUSE LOST, OTHER DAMAGED BY FIRES

"King's episode" came when he was sent to jail following assault on his wife which later caused her death.

One reason why the Gurski home was destroyed was because of the fact that the nearest fire hydrant was 2,000 feet away. In addition to this, the pump was unable to get the full supply of water owing to the clogging of the hydrant by small stones. The fire had also made great headway before the firemen were notified. The house is insured for $2,500 and the furniture for $1,000.

The south end fire on Florence street damaged the home and furniture considerably. It started while the family was away. They had gone to a dance and entertainment at Liberty Hall on Galt street. Mrs. Douglas discovered the blaze as she opened a side door to the house. The alarm was given by James Gustafson who also discovered the fire just previously and turned in the alarm from Clinton and Oak streets. Companies two, three and four responded.

Started in Celler. Two lines of hose and chemical tanks were used to fight the blaze which centered around a stairway. The fire started in the cellar, in the opinion of Chief Albert Foy and Building Inspector Edward Elliott, Jr. The amount of damage was not estimated. Peter Happeny, driver of No. 3's truck, met with a slight accident in his haste to get the hose off the truck. One thumb was badly and he will lose the nail. Happeny was treated at the Memorial hospital and returned to the fire.

Given Coffee. At the north end fire the firemen found hot coffee awaiting for them when they returned from their work. This had been provided by William A. Knofo who felt that the refreshments would be most welcome due to the cold weather. Chief Edward Coleman of the north end department expressed his appreciation of the assistance which the south end department sent although it was not found necessary to press the extra truck into use.

Hose and Ladder Co. No. 1, S. M. P. D., was called out at 8:45 last evening for a chimney fire at the home of William Dietz on Keeney street.

NURSE FILES SUIT. Bridgeport, March 1.—(AP)—Ann King Harrison, a "practical nurse" of Darien, filed a $12,000 damage suit in the superior court today against George Warren Tower and Anna R. Tower of New Rochelle, N. Y., for alleged permanent injuries received by her when she was run down by their car on the post road in Darien, Nov. 4, last.

SENATORS HEAR STORY OF UNUSUAL CASH LOAN

C. Sylvester, Jr., vice president of the city company.

Barrett said he had Ramsey's note but had been unable to find it before testifying.

A statement issued later on Ramsey's behalf said he did not know the money came from the City company and thought it was a loan from Barrett.

None of the principal and interest has been repaid.

Sylvester testified that he himself had taken the responsibility for the loan.

Pecora asked why he had not had it entered on the books as a personal loan instead of charging it against expenses in connection with the bond issue.

"Because I expected it would be repaid," the witness replied.

City Company officers of the note because he expected the money to be repaid within a month.

Pecora then brought out that Barrett had never received any of the principal or any interest on the loan and that he had not pressed Ramsey for it.

His Salary Cut. Barrett said this was because he knew Ramsey's salary had been cut several times and that he could not pay and because he did not want to embarrass Ramsey.

The loan was not paid to Ramsey by check, Barrett said, because the former needed to pay out the money on the same day he received it.

Barrett said Ramsey had been a friend of his for 10 years' standing and that he wanted to help him.

"So you helped him with the funds of the National City Company with which you are not connected?" asked Pecora.

Barrett replied he had gone to Sylvester to see what could be done. "Did you go to him because he was connected with the Municipal Bond Department?" Pecora inquired.

Barrett answered he had gone to Sylvester because he knew him better than any one else at the National City Company.

"Yes," Sylvester answered. "I got the money from the company treasurer and gave it to Edward F. Barrett, National City Bank official on the understanding it was to go to John Ramsey, general manager of the Port of New York Authority. I understood it was to go to Ramsey as a loan."

Pecora asked Sylvester why loans were made.

"Mr. Barrett came to me and said Mr. Ramsey was in need of money and he would like very much to 'make him a loan,' he replied. 'He said the bank couldn't make him the loan and asked whether it would be possible for the National City Company to do so.'"

"After considering the matter I decided that Mr. Ramsey being a good moral risk, it would be perfectly proper to make him the loan."

When asked what "written evidence of the indebtedness" was given, Sylvester said he did not have information on that point.

Pecora reminded Sylvester that Barrett was an officer of the company but the bank.

"Do you know that any note was given for this loan?" Pecora asked. "I understood so. You mean you assumed there was."

"Why, if Ramsey was a good moral risk," Pecora asked, "wasn't this loan set up on the books in the usual way?"

"I looked upon this as an accommodation to Mr. Ramsey," Sylvester replied. "I expected it to be repaid, and was why it was charged to the reserve fund."

loan from Ramsey," Sylvester said, "but none as to price as I recall."

Pecora examined Whitney as to powers and practices of the Exchange relative to protecting the public by looking into the integrity of companies whose stock are listed.

He asked whether the Exchange required any particular kind of audit by companies seeking listing.

"There had been no default in instalment issues such as management and investment trusts."

Whitney replied "absolutely" when Senator Fletcher (D., Fla.) asked whether the Exchange inquired into the honesty and good standing of companies seeking to list stocks.

"Does the Exchange continue that inquiry after the listing?" Pecora pursued.

"There is nothing we can do about it after the company is once listed unless such a transgression takes place necessitating us to take resort to penalizing action," Whitney said. In this case, he said, the Exchange could strike a stock from its list.

Had Seen Exercised. Pecora asked whether the power had ever been exercised because the officers felt "the officers did not possess that degree of integrity necessary to protect the public."

Whitney said it had been exercised "in the case of the second manipulation of Manhattan Electrical Company stock."

The Old Wood-Pile
We know a business man who has taken for his motto these days, "Just keep on saving wood." This phrase is about as good as any to express the attitude of those who will never admit themselves beaten, and who consequently never are beaten.

For real home bakery at low prices, visit the Home Bakery, 34 Church street. Specialties are fine cookies, English crumpets, soda bread, Scotch scones, meat pies. Phone 5286.

Lenten Dish
Another suggestion for Lenten fare is Salmon Pie, made as follows:

One and one-half to two cups of flaked salmon, 1-2 cup cold mashed potatoes, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Remove all skin and bones from salmon and flake. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Add butter, well beaten eggs, pepper, parsley and salt to potatoes and beat until smooth, adding milk if necessary. Add flaked fish and mix lightly. Turn into a buttered baking dish, cover with buttered crumbs and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven. Serve from baking dish.

One of the most important considerations for the health of the family is the milk supply. When you buy Bryant & Chapman milk you know that it is pure and highly nutritious. An up-to-date dairy, where the milk and all other products are handled scientifically, gives you the protection so important to the health of the family. Plaids and checks like those the men have been wearing as ties this winter, are about to burst forth under the spring skies, this time as an important feature of feminine fashions. All fabrics—linen, silk, cotton, rayon—are featuring plaids, checks, stripes, and these fascinating fabrics are combined with plain colors in really stunning clothes. We noted especially a white linen coat with a brilliant red, green and white plaid used as facing for lapels and collar.

LEGION AGAIN SPONSORS HOME GARDENS HERE

Hope To Get Tracts of Land in Various Sections of Town — May Have Swap Basis.

Dilworth-Cornell Post, the American Legion, will again co-operate with the Manchester Emergency Employment Association in sponsoring home gardens for the unemployed this year. Victor Bronke, adjutant of the post, will head the large committee.

Last year a large tract was loaned by Edward J. Holl in the subdivision east of McKee street and the plan was very successful. An easement will be made this year and with experience gained last year the plan is expected to be extended to include other parts of the town.

Plenty of land is available in Buckland and other outlying sections which will be secured if possible. Land of the latter type is more readily adaptable to the small garden type than unbroken and unfertilized areas elsewhere. It is possible that an appeal may be made to clove-in farmers for an exchange of land, equipment for gardening and fertilizer for a percentage of the crops. The latter plan was advocated by Selectman Frank V. Williams last year when the subject of independent operation of home gardens for the unemployed was brought up.

Selectman Williams stated that it would be more advantageous and would result in better crops if those planning to grow their own produce would offer their services on the latter basis, rather than to attempt to plant their own gardens with limited knowledge on the subject.

TELEPHONE CO. EXTENDS SHORT TIME SCHEDULE

New Haven, March 1 — (AP) — Continuing its policy of making adjustments to current business conditions by reducing work hours when necessary, rather than by laying off regular employees, the Southern New England Telephone Co., today announced it would further extend its short time working schedule for officials and employees, simultaneously making a basic on working week of five days, affecting about 4,500 persons.

The employment policy for the immediate future was made known today at the quarterly meeting of departmental sections of the general conference board of the Telephone Employees Association of Connecticut.

All departments of the company have been operating on a schedule of reduced working hours for the last year. Business conditions, it was pointed out at the meeting, makes it necessary to continue that practice. The schedule will be made flexible in accordance with work possibilities in the various departments.

The nation must have been pretty excited with a prize fighter killed and the president shot at in the same week.

Planning saves steps, and never more so than when the housewife arranges her budget so that she can send her laundry every week to the New Model Laundry, located right here in Manchester. More time for planning, less for hard work, is her slogan. Phone 8072 for the delivery.

Me And My Dog
Main street offered a tableau this morning that made every one smile. A small boy seated in a toy wagon huddled to himself the most soiled white puddle we have ever seen. The puddle looked very satisfied, in spite of his change of color from the original white. He blinked his eyes contentedly as the small boy rubbed his back.

Delicious Dessert
Doesn't the thought of Lemon Banana Cream Pie topped with a creamy meringue, make your mouth water?

1-3 cups condensed milk (1 can)
1-2 cup lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind.
2 bananas.
Blend thoroughly condensed milk, lemon juice and lemon rind and stir until mixture thickens.
Line a pie pan (9 in.) with the following crust:

Corn Flake Pastry
4 cups corn flakes
1-4 cup sugar
1 cup butter (melted)
1-2 teaspoon cinnamon.
Put the corn flakes through a food grinder using the fine cutter. This will make about 1 cup of fine crumbs. Mix with sugar, butter and cinnamon. Brush pie pan with butter and line bottom and sides with crumbs. Bake in moderate oven (400 degrees F.) about 10 minutes.

Fill crust with cream mixture and top with thinly sliced bananas. Cover with the following meringue:
3 egg whites
6 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon vanilla extract.
Beat egg whites until they hold their shape, then add sugar gradually. Beat until stiff. Add vanilla. Spread on top of pie. Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) 20 minutes.

PAINTERS FORM BODY TO PASS UPON JOBS

Local Members of Conn. Council Are Named As Board of Trade Relations.

To protect the general public from the unscrupulous or unskilled contractor, and also from the occasional mistakes of a reputable employer, the Connecticut Council of Master Painters and Decorators, Inc., has established not only a State Board of Trade Relations, but also local boards in each city of the state.

John I. Olson has been named as chairman of the local board, which also includes James Ford and John Tyner. In making appointments to the Council chose master painters and decorators whose integrity, skill and honesty are unquestioned.

Any person who believes that a painting and decorating job of his has not been performed according to specifications or agreement, may appeal to this board for an opinion and finding. If the board finds in favor of the property owner, they will, if necessary, serve as expert witnesses in court without charge.

If the board finds in favor of the master painter, it will state so frankly, giving its reasons therefor. Decisions, it is declared, will be rendered regardless of whether a master painter is a member of the society or not. The membership is bound to abide by the decisions of the board.

THE JEHOL DRIVE—IF IT WERE IN U. S.

Comparison With Map of United States Shows Scope of Military Problem And Territories at Stake.

As triumphant Japanese troops drive swiftly into Jehol province, the scope of the military operation is well shown by the above map, in which the Japanese islands in their relation to Jehol and the whole of Manchuria is superimposed on the map of the United States. It is as if U. S. troops were to start from Jacksonville (Tokio), sail to Houston (Korea), travel to southeastern New Mexico and fight on a battle front that stretches from there north almost to the Colorado border. Teishan, scene of last year's fighting in Manchukuo, would be west of Omaha. The territory of the new Manchukuan state plus Jehol is an area that would include all of South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and substantial parts of North Dakota, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas, Missouri and Iowa. Peiping, capital of Nationalist China, is close by the Jehol front, corresponding relatively to El Paso, Texas.

HOW'S SHE MITTIN'?
From now on to the end of winter, motorists in many parts of the United States and Canada will have a lot of trouble due to changes in weather. These changes, coming suddenly, will cause difficulty in the cooling system, motor and ignition.

There is the case when a motorist allows a lot of snow to accumulate on his car after parking it outside in a snow storm. He drives home, puts the car in the garage, and a thaw sets in. He discovers the next morning that he is unable to start the car. He lifts the hood and finds the cause of all the trouble. The dripping of thawed snow and ice through the openings of the hood had found their way to the engine. This water got into the distributor and settled over the spark plugs. In addition, water accumulated in the carburetor, and there was little chance of the car starting until these parts were dried out.

What the driver should have done the night before was to have taken a few precautions against this action of nature. He should have wiped off the snow and ice from the hood, the cowl and windshield to prevent the water dripping down and through to the motor. And he should have provided a covering for the distributor cap, carburetor and engine block.

Water in the carburetor is not so frequent as it used to be because we have greatly improved carburetors and gasoline. But there is still a collection of moisture that finds its way somehow into the fuel unit, and we must occasionally drain it of whatever water these might be in it.

Especially when there's fear of a sudden change to extreme cold, this should be done. For if there is any water in the carburetor bowl it will freeze over night and the car won't start until after this has been thawed out. To prevent this occurrence, even if the carburetor is drained, it might be a good idea to put a lighted 100-watt lamp close to the carburetor and let it remain there over night. The heat from the lamp will keep the carburetor warm and also aid in starting the car in the morning.

If water has seeped into the distributor and over the spark plugs, the ignition will be useless. The distributor must be cleaned out thoroughly, dried well and the contacts sprayed a bit before it will function again.

The water in the spark plug wells should be blown out and the wells dried up as thoroughly as possible. The connections to the spark plugs also must be taken down, wiped clean and dry, and refitted to assure good contact there.

GLOWING REPORTS IN MONEY MARKET

New York Banks Find No Difficulty In Meeting All of Their Demands.

New York, March 1.—(AP) — A firmer tendency again appeared in the New York Money Market today, resulting in some stiffening of rates for short term credits, recently at record low levels.

The tendency was attributed chiefly to the demand for funds upon the New York Money Market, which constitutes the nation's great reservoir of liquid funds, to meet requirements in localities with impaired banking facilities.

Rates on bankers acceptances — an important form of two-name commercial credit — were jacked up 1 per cent, an exceptionally wide change. Changes in acceptance rates are usually by steps of 1/4 or one per cent, although on Monday, the rates were pushed up 1/2 of one per cent.

The new rates are 2 1/4-2 1/2 per cent on maturities up to 90 days; 2 1/2-2 3/4 on 120 days; and 2 3/4-2 1/2 on 150 and 180 days. Rates have recently been as low as 1/4-1/2 of one per cent on 30 to 90 day maturities. This week's increases bring the level back to a more normal basis, the recent unprecedented levels chiefly reflecting lack of demand. Rates are now at the highest point since last April 8.

Call money in the Stock Exchange again renewed at 1 per cent, the low rate which has prevailed for recent months, but in the outside market, where business was negligible, funds were quoted nominally at 2 per cent. Times loans against Stock Exchange collateral, recently as low as 1/2 of one per cent, were quoted nominally at 2 1/2 per cent.

Later in the day, the call loan rate on the Stock Exchange was

70 VOICES OF WOMEN IN G CLEF'S CONCERT

Jenny Lind Chorus of Worcester To Join With Local Group In Event of Next Tuesday.

The fifth annual concert of the G Clef Glee Club will be presented Tuesday evening of next week at the Emanuel Lutheran church. The advance ticket sale indicates a capacity attendance for this musical event, although tickets can be obtained from members of the club.

The G Clef Club will give Manchester something which has never before been presented, namely, a joint concert with the Jenny Lind Chorus of Worcester, Mass. The choruses have much in common, as Helge E. Pearson, director of the G Clefs, is a former pupil of the late J. Fritz Hartz, organizer of the Jenny Lind club. Arvid Anderson, successor to Mr. Hartz, is now director of the Worcester chorus. He was a pupil and understudy of Mr. Hartz for more than ten years.

The combined choruses of seventy women's voices will be heard in joint numbers as well as in individual groups. All the numbers will be memorized, in itself an unusual feature.

The G Clef Glee Club, organized by Mr. Pearson in 1927, is proving itself an organization of high merit. Its singing this year has shown a remarkable improvement in quality of tone and diction and this concert promises to be the best in the history of the club. The G Clef has become widely known, not only in Manchester, but also in neighboring cities of New England.

Miss Eva M. Johnson is the G Clef accompanist.

SHARKEY IN TRAINING

Boston, March 1.—(AP) — Jack Sharkey, heavyweight boxing champion of the world has resumed training and although there is no immediate prospect of a contest for the crown he wears, sporting writers say he could be in prime condition in as little as five weeks.

Times loans against Stock Exchange collateral, recently as low as 1/2 of one per cent, were quoted nominally at 2 1/2 per cent.

MEAN HERE TODAY
JANET HILL is engaged to ROLF CARLYLE but they do not have enough money to marry. Janet is secretary for BRUCE HAMILTON, advertising manager of Every Home Magazine and Rolf works for the Atlas Advertising Co. Janet insists they must have $500 in a savings account before they can be married.

She hurried home from the office one Saturday to prepare a surprise birthday dinner for Rolf. On the way she sees a couple entering the fashionable Brewster Hotel Coffee Shop and at first thinks the young man is Rolf. Afterward she decides she was mistaken.

The dinner party is a success. Rolf tells Janet he cannot see her next day because he is entertaining an out-of-town friend. Sunday proves to be a gloomy day. Janet sits with MOLLY LAMBERT, who lives across the hall. Returning to her room, she encounters a young man she has never seen before. He introduces himself as a new roomer in the rooming house and says his name is GRANT.

Rolf takes Janet to lunch and later breaks a dinner engagement. That same night Molly tells Janet she saw Rolf entering a theater with another girl.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VI

Wide-eyed, staring into the darkness, Janet Hill told herself for the hundredth time that there must be an explanation of what had happened. Of course there was an explanation!

She couldn't sleep. What was the use of trying? She lay there in bed telling herself over and over it was all a mistake. Molly hadn't meant any harm. She had only seen someone else and thought it was Rolf. That was what had happened. Of course it was.

But suppose it were true! She could still hear Molly Lambert's slightly nasal voice, "passing the Liberty—such musical comedy. How do you think I saw? Rolf Carlyle—and you should have seen the girl with him—"

Molly had gone on to describe this girl. Little, she said. Wearing a fur coat that looked expensive. Pretty too, if you liked that type. Sort of a brunette. She and Rolf (that is the man she thought was Rolf) were with another couple. The other girl wore a blue velvet evening wrap and all of them were laughing and talking.

But didn't that prove the thing was ridiculous? How could Rolf be in a crowd like that? How could he—?

Janet refused to consider it. She wouldn't even think about such a story any more. She was making herself miserable over nothing. Rolf had said he was going to the wrestling matches—with another man. And that was what he had done.

Janet turned. She dug one hand beneath the pillow for the handkerchief that already had become a ball of moisture. The tears came and there was no stopping them.

"I ought to get up and bathe my eyes," she told herself. "They'll be red in the morning. I ought to stop thinking and go to sleep."

But then there was the whole thing to battle over again. She had seen Rolf a little lately. She had been lonely all evening.

"I won't cry!" Janet insisted. She turned again on the pillow. Life without Rolf? She couldn't imagine that. Every plan she had made, every hope for the future centered about Rolf. The saying, the things they had talked about, the little home! How could any of that come true without Rolf?

She lay staring at the dark ceiling, wondering about all that. Then with a shudder she buried her face in her pillow. Janet had been sure she could not sleep. She was mistaken but it was toward morning (still dark because it was February) before she finally drifted off. When the shrill ringing of the alarm clock woke her at 7:30 she sat up with a start. Little fires were smarting in her eyes. She felt vaguely that something was wrong with the day. Something unpleasant was going to happen.

All at once she remembered. The chill feeling settled about her heart again and then, resolutely, Janet brightened.

"It's going to be all right!" she reassured herself. "Rolf's going to telephone. I'll find out it was all a mistake. Molly was talking nonsense."

Nevertheless it was a pale, rather drawn-faced Janet who greeted Bruce Hamilton when he arrived at his office at a quarter after nine. It was with a forced, mechanical smile that she answered "Good morning."

Hamilton, sunk immediately in the papers spread on his desk, took no notice. Janet was glad that he began the morning with a rush of activity, dictating in a clear, brisk voice, calling for letters from the files, asking her to put through a long distance call. She got Joe Carson on the wire, to find Cunningham and ask him to look over the revised schedule.

She did all these things, glad to be busy, glad because they kept her from looking at the clock and wondering when Rolf would call. There were moments, though, as Janet's pencil flew over her notebook when only force of habit carried her along. She heard Hamilton speaking, scribbled stenographic symbols and all the time she was remembering Molly Lambert's voice, the way she had looked. She could hear Molly saying, "passing the Liberty theater. Rolf Carlyle—he was all dressed up. And the girl with him!"

What was that Mr. Hamilton had just said?

Janet straightened. "I—I didn't

The call came at exactly 2:15. Janet was so happy that for a moment she could scarcely speak.

get that last, Mr. Hamilton, I'm sorry." The advertising manager frowned. "Go back and read your last sentence," he said. The letter he was dictating was important. He did not even raise his eyes from his desk.

She read the sentence. Hamilton changed word and continued. But after that Janet was more attentive.

At 12 o'clock she went to lunch but when she had selected a sandwich and asked for a glass of milk she found she wasn't hungry. She drank part of the milk, broke off a bit of the sandwich and put it down again. Then she surrendered her seat at the lunch counter and went back to the office.

Should she call Rolf? "Will he?" Janet decided. "If I don't hear from him by four o'clock. Maybe he isn't in the office. I don't want to make him think anything's wrong."

The call came at exactly 2:15. There was no one else in the office. Janet was so happy that for a moment she could scarcely speak. A feeling of warmth surged over her.

"Rolf?" (She knew of course that it was Rolf but she wanted to say his name.) "Yes, I've been busy. Oh, all sorts of things. Yes, Janet, my dear, you said you'd call tonight? Well, but listen, Rolf, I want to see you. There's something I want to talk to you about."

He wasn't sure he could make it. The words didn't reach her very clearly. "Oh, but it's important! I—please, Rolf!"

Why couldn't she tell him over the telephone? Janet said that wouldn't do. That feeling of panic clutched her heart again.

"Listen, Rolf, if you've something else to do tonight meet me when you leave the office. At 5:30. It—it really is important. I can't tell you now but I'll explain then. I only want to talk to you. Yes, at Tracy's corner. Yes, I'll be there. At 5:30."

The hours of the afternoon wore away. They were slow hours that dragged. At 10 minutes after five Janet put away her work. She hadn't finished. That did not matter. If Mr. Hamilton said anything she'd tell him she wasn't feeling well. It would be true enough. Mr. Hamilton had nothing to say to the subject. Janet said "good night" and disappeared. She paused before the dressing room mirror to see that her hat was straight and noticed how pale she looked. That wouldn't do. She didn't want Rolf to know she had worried. She wanted to be able to laugh at the whole thing.

Opening her vanity case she took out the tiny rouge puff and rubbed it against her cheeks. Bright color flamed back at her. A little too bright. Janet removed some of the rouge, added powder and fastened the collar of her coat. Then she left the building.

She walked swiftly even though she knew she was early. She swung into the five o'clock crowd that poured into Eighth street.

Around a corner. Two blocks more. Now she had reached Tracy's drugstore. The clock on the opposite corner pointed to 20 minutes after five. There would be 10 minutes to wait if Rolf were punctual. He hadn't.

A crowd of a dozen or more had gathered on the corner, waiting for the next bus. Janet stood near the judge attested, who seemed indifferent and who cared nothing at all about what the children did. This side of it is too often overlooked.

It was not suggesting that a father, or a mother either, needs to give up control, or that children be allowed to run wild and work their own will on the world. Every ship needs a captain, every country a leader, and every home two parents, working as one in complete agreement and harmony.

But we cannot blink away the fact that many really "bad" children, who have thrown all law and order to the winds, almost invariably come from homes where things are too hot for them and where punishment seems to take the place of all other real living. And where they were removed to other homes and treated as sensible human beings, they right-about-faced and grew up into normal men. It is not a new story.

YOUR CHILDREN

LEARN REAL CONTROL OF YOUR CHILD

Mary Buell Sayles in her book, "The Problem Child at Home," tells of several cases of misbehavior in boys which finally wound up in the "guidance clinic" for solution.

I shall not go into details of these cases; each was different, but the three I am most interested in at the moment, seemed to be incorrigible, paid no attention to punishment or discipline and in no way responded to any of the methods generally resorted to in such situations.

It was discovered that their fathers were hot-tempered impatient men, and especially in the case of one of these boys, the mother had gone to the other extreme of coddling and protecting.

Boys Improve
When the doctors in charge of the clinic finally got the cooperation of these men, who agreed to act less fiercely and formidably ("You do this because you're misbehave you do as I tell you"), things began to get better.

When each of these boys in turn discovered that his male parent was really interested in him for his own sake, confided more in him and treated him as a friend, things gradually righted themselves altogether.

I believe that what is true of these boys may be true of thousands of so-called incorrigibles everywhere.

I am not suggesting that a father, or a mother either, needs to give up control, or that children be allowed to run wild and work their own will on the world. Every ship needs a captain, every country a leader, and every home two parents, working as one in complete agreement and harmony.

MRS. ROOSEVELT POSES IN INAUGURAL GOWN

Inauguration will be a "blue" day for Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt! For the costume she will wear at the ceremony will be of blue shades that have been named for her, and the above pictures, especially posed by her, show how she will appear when she becomes the First Lady of the Land. The gown (left) is of Eleanor blue, crystalline velvet—a two-piece peplum dress with an unusual double-draped surplice front. The long sleeves taper to tight cuffs. The skirt, straight-line, but flaring slightly at the bottom, is ten inches from the floor. The gown and coat, as well as the matching accessories, were made by Arnold Constable, New York, and the above pictures are copyrighted by that firm. The coat (shown right) is made of a darker shade of crystalline velvet, called Anna blue. It is three-quarter length with shirred scarf collar and capulet shoulders. The hat is of Anna blue Milan straw, and purse and pumps are of matching blue kid.

MARVELOUS MANHATTAN

By WILLIAM GAINES

New York. — People used to come to this town and stand right out in the open and gaze at tall buildings while the sun beamed on their tonsils.

But now a Missourian man boasts to me of confining himself to subterranean and indoor adventures. He is the first visitor to tell me of such a stunt.

"I was in your fair city for more than 48 hours, attended to all my business, did a bit of shopping and had my fun, without once seeing the sunlight or setting my foot upon the street," he writes.

"I was out of my hotel most all of both days, too. I must have covered miles and miles, riding back and forth in subways, up and down in elevators, and walking enough to get plenty of exercise. I'm something of a hunter, but I've got my bag of game many times without walking as far as I did that labyrinth of the Forty-second street subway shuttle, following those red and green guide lines."

He goes on to say that he arrived at Pennsylvania Station and walked through the tunnel beneath Eighth avenue to his hotel.

The man with whom he was to transact most of his business was staying in another hotel on Forty-second street, just east of Grand Central station, long blocks away. But he could reach that point by subway and go up into the hostelry without venturing upon the sidewalk. They could go to an office building and a bank by underground passage.

"Too pressed for time to do any real sightseeing, he decided to make his visit a unique conversational topic for the folks back home. He wouldn't even peep out of a window for a glimpse of a street. He wended his way among the sunken shops, buying himself a suit of clothes in good style and, for the wife and junior at home, Knickerbocker and Toys.

In the evenings he and his business associate diverted themselves by listening to a couple of the best hotel dance orchestras.

Sun-Dodging in Subways
Of course, my correspondent's 48 hours of sun-dodging is not such a much to boast about. Conceivably, a person could live through a span of active years by following this same plan, with a journeying range far wider than the Missourian man describes, and no sight of a taxicab or a traffic cop.

Certainly our visitor overlooked one little angle which would have bettered his story of subway and indoor activity for home town consumption. He might just as well have stopped in a subterranean barber shop to have one of those sunlight lamps turned on him. Then he could have added:

"And just look at the tan I got!"

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

GUARD YOUR EYES IN THE SPRING
March winds play havoc with eyes.

The wind itself is hard on them. The only way to combat the ill effects is to take extra good care of your eyes during March.

Do you use an eye cup and give your eyes their daily morning bath? Well, you should. You should also add an evening bath which hases and good quantities of iron. If the skin of the white grape is taken it serves also as a source of roughage.

The grape has, of course, other factors which make it a useful item in the diet. The use of grapes as a basis for wine is entirely without merit. They contain fruit acids which have a laxative result, an alkaline effect on the body. Their carbohydrate value enables them to furnish energy and they also provide fair quantities of calcium and magnesium and good quantities of iron.

Wells' New Novel Tells of Attempt To Escape Reality
The romantic outlook on life is a tragic mistake in a scientific era. Follow it and it will lead you either to disaster or to fulfillment.

That seems to be what H. G. Wells is trying to say in his new novel, "The Bulpington of Blup." This book deals with an English lad who is born along toward the close of the last century. His name, by the way, is Bulpington; and he is a dreamy, romantic youth, with his eyes focused on the figure he cuts in a romantic dream-world.

That figure he names, privately, the Bulpington of Blup—Blup being the name of his home town, which is a dreary, romantic youth, with his eyes focused on the figure he cuts in a romantic dream-world.

As falls for the Bulpington there are two friends, a brother and sister, children of a scientist. They grow up with the scientific outlook. Where he evades hard facts they accept them and live for more. He escapes from the real world, they plunge into it with clear-eyed avidity.

And presently he comes to grief. The war comes and he is a soldier and an ardent coward. After the war he is a literary poet, a verbose faker. His friends go on to real accomplishments; he sinks into a state in which his romantic illusions blind him to his own shortcomings. In the end he is a sort of upper-class Major Hoopla, persuading himself that his dreams are real, forgetting his failure, bragging of his madcap adventures and glamor.

GRAPES VARY WIDELY IN VITAMIN CONTENT

Sultana and Malaga Varieties surpass Concord in Vitamins A, B and C; All Have Value for Their Carbohydrates and Iron.

By DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

There is a tendency on the part of many people to take it for granted that all the members of various species of fruits and vegetables are equally rich in certain food values.

This is, of course, more true than the opposite belief which would accord to any single fruit or vegetable virtues well nigh magical in character because of some special food content.

Thus, spinach has been over-stressed as a source of vitamins and minerals, whereas other vegetables have been neglected. Actually, most vegetables provide certain food values for which they are desirable. It is well recognized that the citrus fruits are an excellent source of Vitamin C, but this vitamin is also found largely in tomato juice and in most of the fresh fruits.

Miss E. P. Daniel and Miss Hazel E. Munsell, chemists in the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, have recently reported the results of an investigation which they made of the vitamin content of Concord grapes. Their studies seem to show that the pulp and juice portion of the Concord grape is a poor source of Vitamin A, poorer even than the Sultana and Malaga grapes (previously studied) which also contained but small amounts of this vitamin.

Moreover, the edible portion of Concord grapes contains very small but detectable amounts of Vitamin B, whereas the Malaga and Sultana grapes are fair sources of this vitamin. The latter two varieties also contain small amounts of Vitamin C, whereas large amounts of Concord grape pulp were unable to protect guinea pigs on a vitamin C-free diet against scurvy.

It is thus apparent that the Concord grape, from the point of view of food value is poorer in vitamins than either the Malaga or Sultana grapes. The investigators point out that a considerable amount of the vitamins is to be found in the skins of the Malaga and Sultana grapes, whereas the skins of Concord grapes are usually discarded.

The grape has, of course, other factors which make it a useful item in the diet. The use of grapes as a basis for wine is entirely without merit. They contain fruit acids which have a laxative result, an alkaline effect on the body. Their carbohydrate value enables them to furnish energy and they also provide fair quantities of calcium and magnesium and good quantities of iron. NEW BRITAIN HUMBLER LOCAL OLD TIMERS IN DECIDING GAME, 32-23

Hardware City's Not So Old Quintet Wins Third Tilt At Hartford Last Night; Lead At Halftime, 17-11; Fay, Schofield Star.

New Britain won the third and deciding Old Timers basketball game from Manchester last night at the Aetna Life gym in Hartford.

The New Britain Old Timers were not so "old" last night. Several of the veterans of bygone years were unable to make the trip and as a result considerable young blood was injected into the lineup of Harry Ginsburg's team.

This tall, well built and clever basketball player was kept in all but a few minutes of play and he was just about the difference between the two teams even though limited to two field goals.

Two of Fay's shots were long beauties and Schofield made his three in rapid succession at the start of the second half.

KENTUCKY WINNER OF CAGE PENNANT Captures Southeastern Title With Decisive Victory In Finals.

Atlanta, March 1.—(AP)—The southeastern conference basketball championship pennant flies today at the University of Kentucky.

The triumph climaxed years of unsuccessful bidding for the crown by Kentucky. For the past three seasons Kentucky has been the favorite but until last night their efforts had met with failure.

Mississippi State's sophomores put up a game battle, asking no quarter and fighting furiously until the final gun.

Kentucky's defense was just as tight as its offense was potent. There were few times that College had anywhere near clear shots for the basket.

New York, March 1.—(AP)—By popular vote, Gene Venzke's sensational victory over Glenn Cunningham in the 1,500 meter run has been selected as the most meritorious performance of the National A. A. U. indoor track and field championships.

Of the 5,141 spectators who turned in ballots after the championships had been run in Madison Square Garden last Saturday night 2,879 cast their votes for Venzke.

Runner-up to Venzke in the balloting was Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette negro who won the sprint title. Metcalfe received 1,208 votes.

PICK TROJAN ACES TO COP TRACK POT

Coch Dean Cromwell Seeks Fourth Consecutive Intercollegiate Title.

Los Angeles, March 1.—Four aces, with excellent support, often win the pot. Coach Dean Cromwell of the University of Southern California holds such a hand.

"I've never seen a better conditioned set of men for this time in the season," said Terry. "There's only one man now that I would call overweight."

San Francisco, March 1.—(AP)—Primed for what he believes will be his greatest season, Frank "Lefty" O'Doul, Brooklyn outfielder who led the National League batters last year, will leave tonight for the Miami Fla., spring training camp of the Dodgers.

New York, March 1.—(AP)—Altogether there is plenty of room for argument among the three leading teams over places in the final Intercollegiate Hockey League standing, so far as the playoffs are concerned it is merely a matter of playing dates.

There was some slight doubt about Windsor's place in the playoffs up to last night but then the Bulldogs settled that for all practical purposes.

The Buffalo Bisons and London Bulldogs meanwhile continued their first-place argument, showing the Syracuse Stars firmly down on third.

These results kept Buffalo a point ahead of London, with Syracuse two more points behind.

Miami, Fla., March 1.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers have barely had time to loosen up their muscles in spring training camp but already two rookies have caught manager Max Carey's eagle eye.

GOALIES FEATURE IN HOCKEY TILTS

Fine Defensive Work Marks Last Night's Games In National League.

New York, March 7.—(AP)—George Hainsworth, goalie for the Montreal Canadiens, accomplished a rare feat last night to bring his team back into a threatening position in the standings of the National Hockey League.

Los Angeles, March 1.—(AP)—There's only one man now in the New York Giants' training camp who is overweight, in the opinion of manager Bill Terry.

"I've never seen a better conditioned set of men for this time in the season," said Terry. "There's only one man now that I would call overweight."

San Francisco, March 1.—(AP)—Primed for what he believes will be his greatest season, Frank "Lefty" O'Doul, Brooklyn outfielder who led the National League batters last year, will leave tonight for the Miami Fla., spring training camp of the Dodgers.

New York, March 1.—(AP)—Altogether there is plenty of room for argument among the three leading teams over places in the final Intercollegiate Hockey League standing, so far as the playoffs are concerned it is merely a matter of playing dates.

There was some slight doubt about Windsor's place in the playoffs up to last night but then the Bulldogs settled that for all practical purposes.

The Buffalo Bisons and London Bulldogs meanwhile continued their first-place argument, showing the Syracuse Stars firmly down on third.

These results kept Buffalo a point ahead of London, with Syracuse two more points behind.

TOWN CAGE SERIES TO START AT REC, TUESDAY, MARCH 14

CRISLER'S REGIME BROUGHT NEW GRID SYSTEM TO NASSAU

Resurrected Old Spirit With Series of Personal Letters To Princeton Players During Summer.

(Note: In this, the second of a series of intimate stories on Princeton's comeback in athletics, Edward J. Nell describes methods installed by "Fritz" Crisler, the new athletic director.)

Princeton, N. J., March 1.—(AP) Suppose you're a big, husky fellow, a football player at Princeton, and in your home town, and the hero of the college years has ended ahead in a happy, carefree summer, lots of laying around, dances, perhaps a little work.

It doesn't take long to discover that behind this is the personal power and magnetism of one man, "Fritz" Crisler, a simple system of training and teaching, and a psychological understanding of the college boys that keeps them grinding for him, thinking, practicing, living football.

For example, last July each football candidate got a letter from Crisler, explaining how difficult the job was, and pointing out the reasons why they had failed: suggesting each practice specialities such as kicking, passing, catching, lodging.

A month later he checked all around on the conditioning work that had been outlined. The tone of his second letter was stiffer.

Then a few weeks later he told them what types he could use at all.

"In order that there be no misunderstanding," he baldly listed the undesirable who should stay far away from him as follows: "Complainers, knockers, whiners, quitters; men who think they're not getting a square deal; men who get moody, discouraged and therefore hurt morale; those who are uncooperative in their own minds; selfish men; men who consider themselves hospital patients at every little bump they get; men who think they need a personal valet; those who leap to the easy assignments; those who are hard on one's lazy, indifferent fellows who can't stand the gruff; shadow players who don't mix in the rough stuff; alibis, social heroes; those satisfied just to be members of the squad."

To a man his squad snapped back from a busy summer mentally stimulated, in fine condition. They tied Cornell, Navy and Yale and almost overthrew Michigan.

Nell, full, with husky sophomore replacements, Princeton not only will put a stronger eleven on the gridiron but it will play a schedule more in keeping with its class, including games with Navy, Brown, Columbia, Dartmouth and Yale.

Postponed One Week Due To Big Attraction Next Week Friday When Famous Girls Team Will Appear At Army In Prelim To Guards' Game.

The 1933 town title basketball series between the National Guards and the Rec Five will open at the School Street Rec. Tuesday evening, March 14, it was announced today, the series being postponed a week due to another looking next week by the National Guards.

STABLEMATES MAY VIE FOR RICHEST PRIZE OF SEASON

Gallant Sir and Plucky Play Are Foremost Contenders For Agua Caliente Handicap Event.

In the far west smart horsemen say that the Agua Caliente Handicap in March, richest race of the winter season and one of the richest in the world, lies at the mercy of Norman W. Church's Northway Stable.

The Northway Stable has three entries nominated, and two of them, Gallant Sir and Plucky Play, at least, are in the highest class of race horses. The third, Whizz James, is not much to boast of.

Plucky Play is probably the better known of the two top ones. As the "giant killer," the "spoiler," and other such nicknames suggest, he has been a fly in the oats of three or four championship contenders during the last two years.

When Gallant Knight tried to give Plucky Play 21 pounds and a beating, he failed. The son of My Play won fairly easy to the tune of 47-1. He then slipped the lead pipe to Sun Beau when that great horse was trying to hang up a high money winning record. The odds on this occasion were only 9-1.

Following these surprise victories, Gallant Sir and Plucky Play are on Equipoise to spoil that great horse's long string of victories, and then administered something of a bad beating to Fairno and into, the two crack three-year-olds.

Incidentally, Plucky Play is no stranger, either to Agua Caliente or the Agua Caliente Handicap. Two years ago, when all eyes were upon Sun Beau and Mike Hall, Plucky Play was, as he usually has been, just one of the lesser lights.

When Gallant Sir finished racing at the end of the fall season a noted irf critic proclaimed him the equal of his close relative, the famed Gallant Fox. Of course, he was by no means so famous, but this critic held that it was really not his fault.

Gallant Sir, as a two-year-old, was even poorer than Gallant Fox, but he won several small stakes in convincing style last winter at Tanforan. Brought east for the Kentucky Derby, he ran unplaced. Leg injuries then kept him in retirement while the richest three-year-old stakes were being decided.

But when he did come back he proved a whale of a horse. Few horses have been able to take speedy Jygro at sprint distances, but Gallant Sir did just that. He then whipped all the three-year-olds still in training that were willing to face him in the Latonia Championship and the Southern Maryland Handicap. In the former he nearly ran away with Gusto, the year's highest money winner of any age.

Then he stepped out of his class to meet Equipoise and Jack High. The result of one race in which the three of them met was: Jack High first by a nose, Gallant Sir second by two lengths, Equipoise third. Time: a new track record. In his other start against Equipoise he forced that great horse to the limit and then was barely beaten.

It is apparent that this horse really can run. And furthermore he likes winter racing. As Plucky Play seems to have discovered a hitherto unknown ability to carry high weight, these two may be right on top in the Handicap.

Local Sport Chatter

Wesley Warsack, well known and popular local swimmer, who is now a freshman at William and Mary college in Virginia, has been outstanding on the swimming team this past season, winning first place consistently in the backstroke and diving events.

The Rhymers are well on the way to capture the Greater Hartford basketball championship, having won three games in a row. Only one more victory is needed to clinch the title, that over the Hawks, who are in second place.

The Sport Centers are third with the Knights of Lithuania and Kevin Barry fourth and fifth respectively. The Rhymers lineup includes Greenbaum, Avatons, Gray, Chubbuck, Lowery, Arbury, Avatons and Fausla.

ROOSEVELT PICKS HIS SECRETARIES

Louis Howe, Marvin McIntyre and Stephen Early, His Chief Aides.

Hyde Park, N. Y., March 1.—(AP)—President-elect Roosevelt completed the selection of his official family today and with a serious mind and light heart turned toward the White House.

He picked "Louis, Mac and Steve" for his secretaries—Louis M. Howe, senior secretary, and Marvin H. McIntyre, of Kentucky, and Stephen T. Early, of Virginia, as his other chief aides in the White House.

The Cabinet was completed officially last night with the announcement of Miss Frances Perkins, New York State commissioner of labor, as the Secretary of Labor and Daniel C. Roper, of South Carolina, as secretary of commerce.

So far as immediate appointments are concerned, Mr. Roosevelt has finished his task and has surrounded himself with trusted friends.

He will carry on the present White House staff that has continued through past Democratic and Republican administrations—Rudolph Forster as executive clerk; Pat McKenna, as executive office doorkeeper; and Erwin H. Hoover, as head of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, as secretary of the White House.

As with this ground work Mr. Roosevelt is in a position to take active control of the government next Saturday noon. It is probable that William H. Woodin, new secretary of the Treasury, around whom is revolving the National business and banking situation, will see Mr. Roosevelt in New York tonight or tomorrow.

The President-elect is represented as keenly alive to the banking problem and watching it closely.

Mr. Roosevelt was to leave here late today by automobile for New York to spend the night. He takes with him to Washington his family and personal secretary, Miss Marguerite Lehend. They have a carload of personal correspondence and official business to haul along.

Personal Servants Also there will be found at the White House next Saturday the faithful Erwin McDuffie, negro valet to Mr. Roosevelt, and the negro cook and maid of the Roosevelt household. They insisted upon going and Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt would not say no.

In continuing the three-fold secretariat established by President Hoover, Mr. Roosevelt explained he was abolishing the post of literary secretary.

By this move, he emphasized, he was doing at the White House what he expected other departments to do in the way of economy.

Charles M. Howe, citizen of Massachusetts and for years an intimate friend of Roosevelt, is going to "run the shop" and take care of the correspondence. Howe said McIntyre would make appointments and look after visitors. Early is to be the public relations man and in charge of travels.

All three secretaries are old "pals" of Roosevelt. Early and McIntyre were associated with him as newspapermen when he was assistant secretary of the Navy.

Next week Mr. Roosevelt turns to the tremendous task of naming the scores of assistant secretaries and the heads of the diplomatic corps.

The prize diplomatic plum is fast disappearing. Robert W. Blighman, Louisville publisher, is slated for London; Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, for Italy; possibly Jesse I. Straus of New York, for France; and probably Clark M. Howell, of Atlanta, or Robert Dunham, of Chicago, for Berlin.

It seems now that the career diplomats, Joseph C. Frew at Tokyo and Nelson T. Johnson, in China, may be continued together with William S. Cuberton in Chile.

New York, March 1.—Trading in the New York Sugar Market showed a substantial increase last month over January.

January employment in the silk industry was 4.5 percent higher than for the same month last year and 4.6 percent under December, says the Silk Association of America, Inc.

The "Iron Age" composite prices are unchanged this week at 1.923 cents a pound; for finished steel, 13.56 a gross ton for pig iron and 08.83 a gross ton for heavy melting scrap. Scrap markets are generally firm.

IN BANKRUPTCY

Bridgeport, March 1.—(AP)—Maurice Frankel, clothing store owner, walk today filed a petition in bankruptcy. The schedules show liabilities of $23,760 with assets of $490. Creditors met March 15.

HAIGS FIRST SPEECH

Washington, March 1.—(AP)—Representation-elect William L. Higgins, of South Carolina, today made his first speech on Capitol Hill. It consisted of only two words.

At the Republican caucus last night Higgins and Representative Charles M. McNair were the only Connecticut members who were not on the Congressional campaign committee were called for Higgins rose and shouted "Mr. Goss."

Higgins and his secretary, Charles Greenwood will remain here until next Monday. They will return for the opening of the special session.

ROOSEVELT PICKS HIS SECRETARIES

Louis Howe, Marvin McIntyre and Stephen Early, His Chief Aides.

Hyde Park, N. Y., March 1.—(AP)—President-elect Roosevelt completed the selection of his official family today and with a serious mind and light heart turned toward the White House.

He picked "Louis, Mac and Steve" for his secretaries—Louis M. Howe, senior secretary, and Marvin H. McIntyre, of Kentucky, and Stephen T. Early, of Virginia, as his other chief aides in the White House.

The Cabinet was completed officially last night with the announcement of Miss Frances Perkins, New York State commissioner of labor, as the Secretary of Labor and Daniel C. Roper, of South Carolina, as secretary of commerce.

So far as immediate appointments are concerned, Mr. Roosevelt has finished his task and has surrounded himself with trusted friends.

He will carry on the present White House staff that has continued through past Democratic and Republican administrations—Rudolph Forster as executive clerk; Pat McKenna, as executive office doorkeeper; and Erwin H. Hoover, as head of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, as secretary of the White House.

As with this ground work Mr. Roosevelt is in a position to take active control of the government next Saturday noon. It is probable that William H. Woodin, new secretary of the Treasury, around whom is revolving the National business and banking situation, will see Mr. Roosevelt in New York tonight or tomorrow.

The President-elect is represented as keenly alive to the banking problem and watching it closely.

Mr. Roosevelt was to leave here late today by automobile for New York to spend the night. He takes with him to Washington his family and personal secretary, Miss Marguerite Lehend. They have a carload of personal correspondence and official business to haul along.

Personal Servants Also there will be found at the White House next Saturday the faithful Erwin McDuffie, negro valet to Mr. Roosevelt, and the negro cook and maid of the Roosevelt household. They insisted upon going and Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt would not say no.

In continuing the three-fold secretariat established by President Hoover, Mr. Roosevelt explained he was abolishing the post of literary secretary.

By this move, he emphasized, he was doing at the White House what he expected other departments to do in the way of economy.

Charles M. Howe, citizen of Massachusetts and for years an intimate friend of Roosevelt, is going to "run the shop" and take care of the correspondence. Howe said McIntyre would make appointments and look after visitors. Early is to be the public relations man and in charge of travels.

All three secretaries are old "pals" of Roosevelt. Early and McIntyre were associated with him as newspapermen when he was assistant secretary of the Navy.

Next week Mr. Roosevelt turns to the tremendous task of naming the scores of assistant secretaries and the heads of the diplomatic corps.

The prize diplomatic plum is fast disappearing. Robert W. Blighman, Louisville publisher, is slated for London; Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, for Italy; possibly Jesse I. Straus of New York, for France; and probably Clark M. Howell, of Atlanta, or Robert Dunham, of Chicago, for Berlin.

It seems now that the career diplomats, Joseph C. Frew at Tokyo and Nelson T. Johnson, in China, may be continued together with William S. Cuberton in Chile.

CONSTABLE INJURED

Windsor, March 1.—(AP)—While investigating a shooting accident in Bristol street this morning at the home of Aleck Michachonis, who was shot in the leg, probably by a stray bullet, Constable Maurice Kennedy, Windsor's veteran officer, was painfully injured. He stepped on to a trapdoor and fell six feet, landing on his right shoulder. Both he and the man who was shot were rushed to the Hartford hospital.

The bullet hit Michachonis as he was sawing wood and is believed to have shattered a bone in his knee. Police were assigned to the case also.

THE TIMMYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The Timmymites were glad to crawl beneath the said, "I'll get all the sleep I can," said Windy. "This is just a lovely place. "It's not too cool. It's not too hot and, while I'm sleepy, like as not, I'll dream some pleasant dreams and have a smile upon my face. "I hope you're right, but please do. We can't go to sleep until you're quiet," answered Copy. "Now, don't make another sound." One of the Timmymites' bug friends said, "I guess I will not go to bed. I'll stay awake and guard you while you're sleeping on the ground." So, while the whole bunch fell asleep, the bug sat down, his watch to keep. It made him laugh to hear the snoring Timmymites snore out loud. "My goodness," he exclaimed, "they'll wake themselves and make the forest shake. Such snoring, in a place like this, should never be allowed." It wasn't very long until the snoring bug, against his will, was also deep in slumberland. He couldn't keep awake. An owl hoot then rang through the air and woke wee Scouty, with a scare. He looked around and loudly shouted, "Well, for goodness' sake!" "Wake up, you Timmymites! Duncy's gone. Let's find him ere the break of dawn." The guarding bug jumped up and cried, "Come on! I'll take the lead." "I took a little nap, you see. That's how he got away from me. I'll stay awake and guard you while the very thing we need." The bugs responded to his call, and soon it wasn't dark at all. They flashed their fire-lighters, brightly lighting up the way. The Timmymites were ready, "Hey, Duncy, do not try to hide. Step out and show yourself, even though you only left in play." (The Timmymites and Duncy in next story.)
