JAPANESE FORCES MASS FOR FINAL JEHOL CITY PUSH

With the Worst of the Mountain Fighting Over Japanese Expect To Reach Capital In Few Days.

Chinchow, Manchuria, March 2.—(AP)—Japanese units operating over eastern and northern Jehol were converging today at Lingyuan and Chihfeng for the final advance on Jehol City, the capital. The worst of the mountain fighting was over and once the movement resumes, the Japanese expected to reach the walls of Jehol City in a few days.

The 16th Infantry brigade under Maj. Gen. Tadashi Kawahara, entered Lingyuan this morning and merged with Maj. Gen. Heijiro Hatatori's 14th Infantry. They have only 75 miles by motor highway between them and Jehol City.

Meanwhile Maj. Gen. Kenosuke Mogi's Fourth Cavalry Brigade waited at Chihfeng, 92 miles north of Jehol City, for the 11th Infantry led by Maj. Gen. Kuniso Matsuda. The latter was continuing its advance after having taken Chingping.

Final Offensive
It was believed Tang may decide to make his flight from Jehol City with a fleet of fast American automobiles he owns. This would enable him to carry his harem and a large part of his wealth.

Tang is popularly known as the "Opium King of Jehol."
Japanese reports said recently the Chinese were holding one of his favorite wives at Peiping as a hostage to make him offer resistance. This report followed futile attempts to persuade him to join the Japanese side. An associate of Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang, the Peiping military ruler, before the latter was driven out of Manchuria, Tang has governed Jehol as a special administrative state under Chang's rule.

Chinese Retreating
Marshal Chang's own troops, sent into southern Jehol to aid in the defense of the province, were reported retreating today in the direction of Pingchuan, a small but important strategic town about 50 miles due west of Jehol City. They fled before Major General Hatatori's advancing column after his two

COURT DECISION FOR C. S. PAYSON

Kin of Late Payne Whitney Now In Key Position In American Steel.

New York, March 2.—(AP)—Charles S. Payson, youthful son-in-law of the late Payne Whitney, came by court decision today into an apparently key position in American steel.

He won it by backing with his wealth one of the most unexpected scientific processes in the history of metallurgy.

Payson, age 34, Yale oarsman in '19 '20 and '21, is chairman of the Rustless Iron Corporation of Baltimore, makers of stainless steel by a novel process. Four years ago the company's rights to this process were contested in patent suits in the United States District Court at Baltimore.

Today the Chemical Foundation, Inc., of New York announced that Judge Coleman in Baltimore had decided in favor of Payson and his company, the Chemical Foundation is interested through licensing some of the stainless patents not under contest.

Direct From Ore
Payson's company makes this steel direct from ore. Other industrial methods require intermediate steps. The unexpected trick in the direct method is a way of extracting oxygen from chromium, the latter is an essential element in the stainless alloy.

Oxygen has a greater affinity for the metal ferro-silicon than for chromium. Hence ferro-silicon is brown into the stainless steel furnaces and thereupon the oxygen dears the chromium and sticks to the silicon. The latter is skimmed off as molten slag, taking the oxygen along.

Previous Methods
In all previous metallurgical practice, according to Dr. J. O. Downey, director of the rustless iron concern, the added silicon would have been just enough to balance the estimated oxygen. But that would have ruined the stainless steel by emitting a little added silicon to it.

This ruin was avoided by the easy

BOARD IS NAMED FOR LIQUOR PROBE

Governor Cross Announces Commission Which Will Study the Problem.

Hartford, March 2.—(AP)—The Commission to study the problem of intoxicating liquor manufacture and sale in Connecticut, if and when the 18th Amendment is repealed, provided by joint resolution of the Legislature was named today by Governor Wilbur L. Cross as follows:

John Buckley of Union, United States district attorney; the Rev. Robert W. Barstow, president of the Hartford Theological Seminary; the Rt. Rev. William H. Flynn, chancellor of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Hartford; Dean Edgar S. Furness of Yale graduate school and Thomas Hewes of Farmington, a member of the governor's staff.

To those would have been added the president pro tem of the Senate, Senator David Goldstein, of Bridgeport, and the speaker of the House, William Hanna, of Bethel, but when the matter came into the Senate, Goldstein named Majority Leader Frank S. Bergin in his place.

It was expected Hanna would name House leader Raymond Baldwin in his place.

Public Hearings
The governor said in making his announcement that it was expected the commission would hold a public hearing that the people of the state may have opportunity to express their opinion as to the manner in which the problem of manufacture of liquor, its sale and the regulation of the traffic might be met.

Under the resolution the commission will report about the middle of April. Its members of procedure will not be known until the members meet which is expected to be without delay.

Cross Suggestion
The commission to study the liquor problem was suggested by Governor Cross in his inaugural message. It developed no opposition in the Legislature. Yesterday, the body committee considered to report unfavorably three bills proposing state liquor control systems, but it will send the commission the subject matter in these for its information. The committee holds another bill, filed by Representative Peck of Bristol, to set up a commission to control the liquor traffic modeled in respect to the Quebec plan. This bill may be the vehicle to bring before the Legislature a plan meet conditions which will be faced if and when the 18th Amendment is repealed.

FOURTEEN STATES ON BANK HOLIDAY

California, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Mississippi Latest To Join Movement.

By Associated Press
California, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Mississippi entered today upon bank holidays, bringing to 14 the number of states in which limitations on withdrawals now exist.

The proclamation of Gov. Rolph at San Francisco makes mandatory the closing of California banks for a three-day period ending Saturday. The three-day holiday called by Gov. Murray in Oklahoma for the same period also is mandatory.

The proclamation of Gov. Allen of Louisiana provides for the cessation until the end of the week of "all public institutions including banks and other public enterprises." In Mississippi the decree of the state banking commissioner called only for limitation of withdrawals.

In Alabama the holiday which began today is effective until March 10, but is not mandatory. Banks in many parts of the state indicated business would go on as usual.

Call Disregarded
Many Tennessee banks disregarded the governor's call for six day holiday beginning yesterday, and still others which were closed yesterday announced they would open today. Restrictions, such as the 60-day rule against savings deposit withdrawals above $100, were invoked in some cases, but again these were waived in cases where depositors were threatened with hardships.

Kentucky banks, operating under a holiday proclamation, went on a restricted withdrawal basis today, the limit being five per cent. The holiday is to end after Saturday. In Michigan the holiday which be-

STATE SENATE REJECTS REORGANIZATION PLAN

Senator Blackall, Democrat, Absent So Lieutenant-Governor Wilcox Votes With Republicans To Break Tie.

Hartford, March 2.—(AP)—With Senator Blackall, Democrat, absent, Lt. Governor Roy Wilcox voted with the Republicans today to break a tie and reject a bill to appoint a commission to study the reorganization of state departments.

The Senate voted on a strictly party basis, 17 to 17 to accept an unfavorable report of the judiciary committee and reject the measure. Senator Hackett of Waterbury, Democrat, was absent when the roll was first called, a few minutes after the Senate convened, but hurried into his place as the roll was completed and voted with his party.

Other seats were empty as the Senate gathered rapidly as the roll was called. The vote was taken after only a brief debate between Senators Howard W. Alcorn, minority leader, and Frank S. Bergin, majority leader. Senator Bergin moved the roll call.

Alcorn's Explanation
"One of the matters the commission would have to consider," Senator Alcorn said, "would be the possible amalgamation of state departments. That information is now available. The vast majority of our departments keep very complete records, and it seemed to your committee that it would be unnecessary

ECONOMIC SHAKEUP ROOSEVELT'S AIM

New President Plans a Thorough Housecleaning That Will Save Nation Millions.

Washington, March 2.—(AP)—A shakeup in brewing for Washington such as past March fairs never have brought, for, barring a misstep today, Congress will place in the hands of Franklin D. Roosevelt, power to tear wide open the government's huge bureaucratic structure.

That he intends to use the power, and use it thoroughly, experienced observers here have no doubt whatever. The very secrecy with which the preparations of his trusted advisers have been guarded for weeks past, is taken as evidence of a serious intent to houseclean.

By comparison the removal of Republican office holders not under civil service protection as the substitution of Democrats, become a small item.

Cuts Millions
The scope of the power given Mr. Roosevelt in the reorganization bill is wide enough to cut millions off the budget. Not the full 25 per cent of expenditures—roughly a

NATIONAL CITY MADE 450 P. C. IN MERGER DEAL

Official Tells How Battle Creek Manufacturer Got Away With Secret Profits As Both Buyer and Seller.

Washington, March 2.—(AP)—The Senate banking committee was told today that Mason B. Starring, Jr., a director of a Battle Creek farm implement company, had a secret interest in the profits to be made from the merger of his company with two others.

The merger of the Nichols and Sheppard Company with the Oliver Chilled Plow Works and the Hart Farm Company was effected in 1928. Stanley A. Russell, a vice-president of the National City Company, told the agreement, saying that in addition to receiving a share of the company's profits from the merger, Starring participated in the selling group that marketed the stock of the new company—the Oliver Farm Equipment Company.

Russell said he did not know whether the stockholders of Nichols-Sheppard knew of Starring's part. "It was not our responsibility," he said in answer to questions.

"If I had been in Starring's place, I would have disclosed that information. He may have done so."

Russell told the committee that in the Oliver Farm Equipment Company merger in 1929 stock which cost his firm $10 a share was sold on the Exchange a week later at four and a half times that figure.

Mitchell Recalled
Washington, March 2.—(AP)—Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the board of the National City Bank of New York, was recalled to the stand today as the Senate banking committee resumed its Stock Market investigation.

The hearing opened with Senator Brookhart (R., Iowa) questioning Mitchell about the salary of George E. Roberts, a vice president of the National City Bank.

Mitchell said he was not certain but thought it was about $25,000 a year. How much additional Roberts received in bonuses he said he could not tell.

There were conflicting reports, the committee counsel, asked Mitchell when he had seen an opinion by F. W. Lehman, former solicitor general, which said formation of the National City Company by the National City Bank

KIDNAPING VICTIM BACK HOME AGAIN

Charles Boettcher, II, Released After the Payment of a Ransom of $60,000.

Denver, March 2.—(AP)—After nearly 17 days in the hands of kidnapers, Charles Boettcher, 2nd, heir to a fortune, was returned safely to his home last night.

There were conflicting reports on whether the family had paid the $60,000 ransom demanded in a note which two men left with the young wife of the 31-year-old wealthy broker when they kidnaped him from the driveway of his home at 11:50 p. m., February 12.

Claude K. Boettcher, multi-millionaire father of the kidnap victim, announced "all obligations in the case have been fulfilled." But he would not say definitely the ransom had been paid.

Albert T. Clark, Denver chief of police, said he was "uncertain" about the ransom payment.

Harry A. Halsey, brother-in-law of young Boettcher's mother, announced in Kansas City that his wife, who was in Denver, had tele-

SENATOR WALSH DIES SUDDENLY ON TRAIN

DEATH HALTS HONEYMOON

Here is the latest photograph of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, who was to be Attorney General in the Roosevelt Cabinet. Walsh died suddenly this morning in his sleep while aboard an Atlantic coast line train near Wilson, N. C. Walsh was married February 25 to Senora Mina Peres Chaumont De Truffin and the picture above was taken soon after the ceremony.

ROOSEVELT IS SHOCKED OVER SENATOR'S DEATH

"It Is a Grievous Loss To the Nation," He Says When He Hears the News—Speculation Over a Successor.

New York, March 2.—(AP)—President-elect Roosevelt spoke of the death of Senator Walsh, his attorney general today as a "grievous loss to the whole country."

"The death of Senator Walsh," Roosevelt said in a statement issued soon after he was informed of the Montana Senator's death, "is a grievous loss not only to the whole country and to the incoming administration in which he was to play so prominent and important a part, but in deep measure to myself personally."

"He was one of my oldest and most trusted friends and one on whom calm judgment I could always rely."

"While properly to fill his place in my Cabinet will be difficult, to fill

SENATOR WAS ILL, DOCTOR DECLARES

Bay State Physician On Board Train Said Mr. Walsh Was Not Well.

Richmond, Va., March 2.—(AP)—Persons traveling on the train with Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, who died unexpectedly while passing through North Carolina this morning said on their arrival here that on yesterday they had noted and commented on the fact that Mr. Walsh did not look well.

Dr. R. J. Costello, of Cambridge, Mass., occupant of a berth next to the drawing room occupied by Senator Walsh and his bride, said that he was called in this morning just before 7 a. m., and found the Senator already dead. He could not tell just how long before death had occurred, he said, but it was "a clear-cut case of heart trouble."

"The very nice doctor came and she was hysterical as she grieved. She expressed her love for and sorrow at the death of the man she married last Saturday, Dr. Costello said.

Did Not Look Well
James J. Conley, also of Cambridge, who is traveling with Dr. Costello, said that he knew Senator Walsh slightly and when they boarded the train at Daytona, yesterday afternoon he had made the comment that Senator Walsh looked ten years older than he did at the Democratic

New Attorney-General Is Stricken With Heart Attack On Way To Washington For the Inauguration; Only His Bride of Few Days, Conductor, Maid and Porter With Him As He Passes Away.

Rocky Mount, N. C., March 2.—(AP)—Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana died suddenly of a heart attack aboard an Atlantic Coast Line train near Wilson today while enroute to Washington with his bride whom he married Saturday in Havana.

The Senator, who was to be attorney-general in the Cabinet of President-elect Roosevelt, was a stricken and died within a few minutes as he lay face downward in a berth in his drawing room.

He was 73 years old. Senator Walsh died at 7:10 a. m., as Conductor Herbert Weatherespe, held his pulse.

Only the conductor, Mrs. Walsh, her Cuban maid, and a porter were present.

Mrs. Walsh was described as hysterical by Conductor Weatherespe, who said he reached the Senator's side at 7:05 a. m.

"The Senator died while I held his hand," Weatherespe said. "Mrs. Walsh was hysterical. Dr. Costello was located on the train but he arrived after the Senator died."

Dr. Richard J. Costello is from Cambridge, Mass.

Bride's Statement
Mrs. Walsh, who speaks little English, told Weatherespe her husband awoke suddenly about 6:30 a. m., and that he was "doubled up" in pain. She said she found Senator Walsh holding his stomach with his hands.

The Senator rose from his berth in his drawing room and crossed over to his wife's berth and there collapsed face-down, Mrs. Walsh said.

A negro porter was called and he raced seven cars away to find Weatherespe whom he told the Senator appeared to be dying.

Weatherespe said he reached the Senator's side in a few minutes, felt his pulse and that death came while he held his hand.

Doctor Arrives
Dr. Costello had reached the drawing room by this time and, as the train rolled into Wilson, Dr. M. A. Pittman was called to attend Mrs. Walsh, who was in a highly nervous state.

Dr. Pittman said the Senator was dead when he arrived and that, in his opinion, he died of a sudden heart attack.

When the train reached here, the body was taken to the Bulluck funeral home and embalmed, preparatory to sending it on to Washington on the next train which leaves here at 2:30 p. m. today.

Mrs. Walsh was first taken to the Ricks hotel by Dr. Pittman, who said she was "in a highly nervous state" and that she was showing "much emotionalism." A short while later she was removed to the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Sprull. Sprull is a prominent Rocky Mount attorney and local counsel for the Atlantic Coast Line railway.

Wife Highly Nervous
At the Sprull home, Mrs. Walsh "calmed down considerably," Dr. Pittman said, although she was still "highly nervous."

Dr. Pittman quoted Mrs. Walsh as saying Senator Walsh was ill when they left Daytona Beach and that his blood pressure there registered 200.

Weatherespe said Mrs. Walsh insisted her husband's trouble was not with his heart but that it was his stomach.

Dr. Pittman said there was no way of determining immediately the exact cause of death but it was his opinion it was a sudden heart attack.

Dr. Pittman said he was uncertain whether he would continue on with Mrs. Walsh to Washington and that while she had not said so, he believed she would board the same train that takes her husband's body to the Capitol later today.

Sensor Walsh was long an outstanding figure in the Senate and only last week flew to Havana to marry Senora Mina Peres Chaumont de Truffin, widow of a wealthy Havana business man. The marriage took place Saturday and the couple then proceeded on their honeymoon to the United States.

Director of Hartford Association Speaks At Meeting Here Last Night

Miss Marion Douglas, director of the Hartford Public Health Nursing association, was the guest speaker at the monthly business meeting of the Manchester Public Health association last evening at the Health Center on Hayes street.

Miss Douglas stated that the Hartford organization had a mental hygiene worker on its staff and the results are wonderful, saving the city many hundreds of dollars a year.

Miss Douglas warmly praised the splendid assistance of volunteer workers at the health stations in weighing and measuring the babies and the service rendered by both young men and women who have the time to spare.

The board of directors of the Hartford Nursing association is composed of 25 women, with an advisory committee of six business men and six physicians.

Rev. K. E. Erickson, a new member of the board of the Manchester Public Health association, stated that in Chicago where he formerly lived when a baby for born, the mother is notified of the health center where she is expected to present the baby for a check-up monthly on its health condition.

Banking Situation In Various States

Detroit—All banks in lower Michigan operating under limited withdrawal restrictions permitted by the bill "merely calls for a commission to advise, recommend, and examine the organization of the state government."

Columbus—Approximately 500 of the state's 600 banks are operating under the restrictions permitted by state laws passed February 27, which allow the state superintendent of banks to limit withdrawals from any bank "in any manner" for a maximum 120 days and segregate funds.

Montgomery—Alabama banks closed Thursday under proclamation by Governor E. M. Miller, to reopen Friday with withdrawals limited to five per cent of deposits on March 1. New deposits to represent "trust deposits" and not subject to restrictions.

Charleston, W. Va.—West Virginia banks today limited withdrawals to five per cent of existing deposits but accepted new deposits without any strings attached. The protective measure was approved by emergency legislation.

Louisville—Kentucky banks generally restricted withdrawals to 5 per cent save in Paducah, Mayfield and other scattered towns and some other scattered towns.

Trenton—Only few scattered financial institutions in New Jersey taking advantage of recently adopted legislation permitting commercial banks, trust companies and savings banks to pay deposits on an installment basis.

Oklahoma City—Three day bank holiday in effect in Oklahoma, both National and State banks, by Gov. Murray's proclamation, with a few banks remaining open and reporting virtually no withdrawals.

San Francisco—All State and National banks in California, closed today upon Gov. Rolph's proclamation of banking holiday tentatively set to last three days pending enactment of legislation governing withdrawals. Deposits aggregating $2,877,873,000 tied up.

Portland, Ore.—Gov. Meier declaring three day state holiday, effective today. Large Portland banks did not observe the holiday and said they would pay on checking and savings accounts up to a "reasonable amount" to enable depositors to purchase necessities.

Indianapolis—Luther F. Symons, state banking commissioner, said approximately half the State and National banks in Indiana have put into effect rules restricting withdrawals. In most instances the withdrawal limit is five per cent.

District of Columbia—Three banks have restricted withdrawals, nine savings institutions have invoked sixty day notice privilege on withdrawals.

Peoria, with Russell assenting, gave the total cash and paper profits which accrued to the National City Company at the outset as totalling $1,288,000.

Russell refused to agree when Peoria said this profit was reaped "for merely conceiving this merger."

The witness contended it was compensation also for persuading Peoria to accept the merger to agree to it.

Peoria then placed in the record a letter from Herbert L. Dillon of Eastman-Dillon & Company, bankers for Nichols and Shepperd, asking a share of the National City Company at the outset as totalling $1,288,000 on the merger.

Peoria then read Russell's reply which said Eastman-Dillon was using a misapprehension about the facts in the case and said the latter had participated in the profits of the distributing group.

Peoria then asked if Russell felt that $10 a share was a "fair and reasonable figure" for the common stock.

STATE SENATE REJECTS REORGANIZATION PLAN

to appropriate money for a study of this sort at this time." Senator Bergin pointed out that the bill "merely calls for a commission to advise, recommend, and examine the organization of the state government."

"There is a financial side in that there is an appropriation for expenses," he said. "But I am afraid it is now too late—this bill should have been adopted many years ago. We do not know how we are coming out of this depression, and we must have a rapid canvass to see where our expenses can be trimmed."

"Of course it may cost a few jobs. But the bill hurts no one. It merely calls for information for the Legislature and what fear can we have of information?"

Senator Joseph Cooney said he believed Senator Blackall was in court. "That shows what might have happened to the judgeships," he said. Senator Cooney was one of the three who voted with the Republicans in favor of Judgeship resolutions reported favorably by the judiciary committee.

The Senate confirmed unanimously nine nominations to state commissions named by the governor, although a resolution naming Charles C. Hemenway of West Hartford and William M. Harris of Waterbury as directors of the State Reformatory at Danbury for the unexpired portion of the term ending July 1 was tabled on motion of Senator Cooney.

Hemenway, Harris, and Sanford Stoddard of Bridgeport were confirmed for the four year term. The Senate confirmed the nominations of Schuyler Merritt of Stamford, Helen E. Lewis of Stratford, and H. E. Bond of Greenwich as members of the Merritt Highway commission for two years starting January 1, and of Edward E. King of East Hartford, Bernard M. Donnelly of Hartford and William T. May of New London as members of the board of trustees of the State School for Boys for terms of four years, July 1.

The Senate refused to follow the lead of the House in speeding up the judiciary resolutions by adopting them until after the adjournment. They are reported favorably. Twenty-eight resolutions, reported favorably by the judiciary committee were tabled for the calendar and printed and will probably be acted on next week.

The resolution appointing Robert Rives LaMonte, judge of the New Canaan Town Court, was ordered recommitted to the judiciary committee.

The bill providing that school registers be turned over to the superintendent of school instead of town clerks, which was not acted upon yesterday after Senator Howard tabled the wording was adopted today. The only other bill ready for action on the short Senate calendar which was adopted without comment, would provide for the registration lists in East Haven to be made out according to street and number instead of alphabetically.

A measure authorizing a school and hospital in Greenwich to connect with the down sewer system, adopted yesterday was reconsidered and amended today to provide that the cost of the improvement be assessed against that property.

Judgeship Resolutions Judgeship resolutions adopted today, all sent up from the House, included: Herbert L. Ross, judge of the Hartford City Court; Edward L. Reynolds, judge of the East Haven Town Court; John T. Barry and James H. Shepperd, deputy judges of the Groton Town Court; Daniel M. Cronin and John McGarry, judge and deputy judge of the New London City and Police Court; Stanley N. Brainard, deputy judge of the East Hartford Town Court; William P. Wynn, judge and Miles Oddy, deputy judge of the Wallingford Borough Court; Cornelius C. Costello, judge of the Groton Town Court; William A. Vasa, deputy judge of the Bloomfield Town Court; Edwin R. Kelsey, judge of the Stratford Town Court; Walter B. Johnson, deputy judge of the Seymour Town Court; Vine R. Parmelee, judge of the Windor Town Court; William J. Malone, judge of the Bristol City Court; Abraham Markle, deputy judge of the Hamden Town Court; Robert C. Stoddard and Arnon D. Thomas, judge and deputy judge of the Milford Town Court; Stanley J. Tracecki, judge of the New Britain City Court and Police Court; James E. Horan, judge of the Bloomfield Town Court and Haddleigh H. Howd, judge and Hallett F. Clark, deputy judge of the Winchester Town Court; John F. McGrath, judge of the Waterbury City Court; and James C. Shannon, judge of the Bridgeport City Court.

Resolutions appointing Edwin H. Hall and Ivan L. Morehouse, judge and deputy judge of the Stratford Town Court were adopted under suspension of the rules.

PREDICT RAINY AS NEXT SPEAKER

Only a Terrific Upset Will Spoil His Chances Say Democratic Leaders.

Washington, March 2.—(AP)—It looks as though before the day is out the name of Rainey of Illinois will be joined to the list of Speakers of the House of Representatives after Cannon, Clark, Gillett, Longworth and Garner.

Eventualities may change the prospect, but out of a swirl of developments at the Capitol today emerged indications that only a terrific upset would suffice to do so.

Supporters of Representative McDuffie of Alabama, party whip, would not concede; but Rainey's managers contentedly predicted he would win on the first ballot at the party caucus in the late afternoon.

Managers for Representative Byrns of Tennessee, the third leading candidate, frankly stated that Byrns had withdrawn in support of Rainey and would make a speech in his behalf.

Representative Cullen of New York, a leader, plainly indicated that his powerful Tammany delegation would support Rainey.

This strength, barring other developments, make Rainey's selection almost certain.

Representative Arnold of Illinois, chairman of the caucus, said Byrns "will be a candidate for the leadership," meaning that Representative Bankhead of Alabama, who was boosted by the Rainey supporters for the floor leadership, has been thrown overboard.

"There is no doubt in my mind," Bankhead said, "that a deal has been made."

Bankhead had not been a candidate for the leadership but was supporting McDuffie for Speaker.

The swing indicates that the Rainey and Byrns groups, which have opposed Speaker Garner on many policies in the past twenty years, have finally defeated the Texan's followers.

McDuffie was understood to have the support of Garner, although the vice president-elect has taken no active part in the campaign for his successor.

Garner becomes vice president and presiding officer of the Senate Saturday.

In addition, the Rainey-Byrns forces have agreed to seek to oust South Trimble, clerk of the House now, and elect Representative Nelson of Missouri, a "lame duck."

Texas, with more than 14,436 miles of railroad, leads all other states in this respect.

DR. HIGGINS CLAIMS HE'S NO REFORMER

New Congressman Remarks That It Is Not His Place To Work For Changes. Washington, March 2.—(AP)—Dr. William L. Higgins, Representative-elect from the Second District of Connecticut believes that new members of Congress, like children, should be seen and not heard.

"I am not a reformer and I am not a new broom," said the veteran Connecticut Congressman.

"While there are many things about the operation of Congress that seem to me to be out of keeping with legislative efficiency, I realize that as a new member it is not my place to try to change them."

Dr. Higgins spoke particularly of the present session and compared it with the Connecticut General Assembly.

"I appreciate the fact that with 485 members the House is certain to be noisy," he said, "but it is not my place to try to change that."

Dr. Higgins was fortunate in obtaining a suite in the new House office building—only 23 new Republican members were so honored—and will move into it as soon as the quarters are ready next month.

CROWDS GATHERING FOR INAUGURATION

with several thousands of followers due here Saturday. Among the governors looked for today was Theodore Green of Rhode Island, accompanied by his military staff, all traveling by air. Among the distinguished persons already here was Mrs. John E. King of Texas, to represent Governor Miriam Ferguson at the inauguration.

Another center of activity was the White House, almost completely now by the huge reviewing stands built all along its Pennsylvania avenue front. There it was a day of farewells, devoted followers and even political enemies of Herbert Hoover seeking opportunity to wish him well in retirement from official life. The handshakes had to be squeezed in between times devoted to the last bills being sent down from Congress for signature or veto.

The city's hotel keepers were rejoicing. Houses were sold out, and thousands of visitors were being quartered in private homes.

Tonight festivity begins. First event: A concert at the Pan-American building, open to everybody, featuring musical compositions of the new secretary of the treasury, William H. Woodin, played by the Marine Band.

WOODIN RESIGNS POSTS New York, March 2.—(AP)—William H. Woodin, who is treasury head in the Roosevelt Cabinet, today resigned his connections with the American Locomotive Company and his connections with subsidiaries of the company.

The resignations were accepted with regret.

Later American Car and Foundry directors accepted Woodin's resignation as president and named Hardy as his successor. William C. Dickerman, president of the American Locomotive Co., was elected Woodin's successor on the executive committee.

William H. Woodin, Jr., and Noah Stanfield, the latter a law partner of Hardy, were also elected to the board. The son of the new secretary of the Treasury will fill his father's place on the board.

American Car and Foundry Co. has held a controlling interest in American Locomotive Co. for several years, the deal having been arranged largely through the efforts of Woodin, as its president.

NATIONAL CITY MADE 450 P. C. IN MERGER DEAL

The opinion, or memorandum, was given to George Wickert, former attorney general, in 1911 and was not made public until last year.

"I think I saw it at one time," Mitchell replied, "but my memory of it is very vague. I could not say definitely when or where."

Russell on Stand The next witness was Stanley A. Russell, a vice president of the National City Company, in charge of its industrial and public utility financing.

In response to questions, Russell told of the National City Company plan in bringing about a merger of three firms making agricultural machinery and implements.

Russell named them as the Nichols and Shepperd Company of Battle Creek, Mich., the Oliver Chilled Plow Works, South Bend, Ind., and the Hart Farm Company, Charles City, W. Va.

"As I recall," Russell said, "M. J. Starring of the Battle Creek firm, first suggested the consolidation to us."

"Your real purpose in participating was to make some money for the National City Company?"

"Why certainly," Russell said the new firm incorporated in Delaware as the "Oliver Farm Equipment Company."

Peoria testified that the National Republic Company of Chicago and Starring, identified as a director of the Nichols and Shepperd Company, got an interest in the new company.

Starring's share was 7 1/2 per cent.

"He got that because he got the business for you, in other words he put you onto the deal?" Peoria inquired.

"That's paid quite frequently," Russell replied. He added, however, that "this did not come out of the profits."

Russell added that the National Republic Company got 15 per cent. "To make up for profits they

NATIONAL CITY MADE 450 P. C. IN MERGER DEAL

"Well, yes," Russell said. "It would be a ready recognition of their position."

"Is that a common practice?"

Peoria, with Russell assenting, gave the total cash and paper profits which accrued to the National City Company at the outset as totalling $1,288,000.

Russell refused to agree when Peoria said this profit was reaped "for merely conceiving this merger."

The witness contended it was compensation also for persuading Peoria to accept the merger to agree to it.

Peoria then placed in the record a letter from Herbert L. Dillon of Eastman-Dillon & Company, bankers for Nichols and Shepperd, asking a share of the National City Company at the outset as totalling $1,288,000 on the merger.

Peoria then read Russell's reply which said Eastman-Dillon was using a misapprehension about the facts in the case and said the latter had participated in the profits of the distributing group.

Peoria then asked if Russell felt that $10 a share was a "fair and reasonable figure" for the common stock.

"No, it was our cost price."

The Real Value "Well, what do you think was the real value of this and the convertible stock?"

Russell finally answered that he felt that the prior convertible stock was worth about $100 but which it sold, and convertible $80 and the common about $20 "on a guess."

"To summarize it," said Peoria, "this common stock that your company got cost $10 a share and exactly a week after it concluded those negotiations it sold on the public exchange for 4-1/2 times the cost price to you and 2-1/4 times what you felt under ordinary times it might sell for or ought to sell on the exchange."

"That's quite right," said Russell. "Who made the market for that stock?"

"I don't know."

Before leaving the stand, Russell said the preferred stock was selling at $3 1/2 a share and that the common and convertible had been reclassified and was selling at about $1 1/2.

FREIGHT CARRYING TRUCKS

May I be granted opportunity to reply to the editorials published in The Herald of February 21st and 24th regarding the question of regulating the freight carrying trucks in this State as proposed in certain bills now before the Legislature.

On February 24th, in quoting from information furnished by the Motor Truck Association, it was no doubt overlooked that the figures on taxation which were used by the Motor Truck Association have practically no bearing on the situation which the proposed legislation aims to correct.

The Truck Association have evidently used all the fees derived from the commercial vehicle registration, estimated gasoline taxes, operators licenses, and property taxes, all of which covered the 47,523 commercial vehicles which were registered in this State last year.

This is unfortunately misleading because the Legislature will reveal the fact that the proposed regulation is directed at only about 6-1-2 per cent of the commercial vehicles registered in this State, leaving 45,700 trucks completely out of the proposed regulation.

The regulation, which specifically excludes farmers, merchants, manufacturers, or the persons who transport only their own property and persons not regularly engaged in the transportation business, consequently, instead of setting up the figures for the entire number of commercial vehicles registered, consideration should be given only to those trucks which come within the provisions of the proposed legislation.

After a careful examination of the most recent reports of the Motor Vehicle Commissioner and discussion of the subject with persons qualified to analyze these reports, it has been determined that so far as can be stated, motor vehicle fees for the trucks covered by the proposed legislation amounting to $225,703 and gasoline taxes to $311,414, a total of $537,117, instead of $3,896,834, which is as stated by the Motor Vehicle Association.

The Motor Truck Association further states that the maintenance costs on Connecticut highways for the last year amounted to $2,749,771, and indicates that the State is making a profit out of the motor vehicle fees.

The report of the Highway Commissioner recently published shows that the State Highway Department spent $6,250,401 for what are called ordinary re-occurring expenses, namely, maintenance on State aid highways. In addition, there were fixed charges amounting to $108,542 and new construction amounting to $7,621,498, a grand total of $14,979,442 spent by the State as compared with $2,749,771, which is as stated by the Motor Truck Association.

The new construction which took more than one-half of the total highway expenses was necessitated to a large extent by the wearing out of former roads principally by heavy trucks and cannot be eliminated in any consideration of the cost of highways.

In addition, it should be remembered that the State system embraces only 2,285 miles of highway out of a total of 13,767 miles of roads in this State, consequently, very large additional amount was paid by the respective Towns and Cities to repair and rebuild the 11,502 miles of roads and streets, which are not cared for by the State Highway Department, so that the above figures do not include heavily as much money as might otherwise be taken into consideration.

Another feature which, however, was ignored by the Motor Truck Association consists of out of State freight trucks who do not register their trucks or pay property taxes to the Town.

The Motor Vehicle Commissioner has made very careful tests of the volume of traffic moving over our main highways and according to his report an average of over 12,000 out of State trucks come and go over our highways every day and the number is constantly increasing, so that he anticipates the number of out of State trucks will be over 15,000 per day within the next year or two.

The geographical location of our State is such that practically all trucks moving between the New England States and New York City cross our State as they come and go.

These out of State trucks are receiving the free use of millions of dollars worth of modern highways paid for by the citizens of Connecticut.

If it were not for these splendid roads it would be impossible for them to transact their business and to the hard pressed taxpayer of the present time, there is every reason to feel that in requiring these out of State men to register their cars in Connecticut the proposed legislation is extremely conservative. Probably there are a few States over which such a heavy proportion out of State trucks operate as in Connecticut, and there is every justification for our Legislature to enact laws which will require the people to pay a fair sum for the use of our highways.

Mention is also made of the amount of tax paid by the Steam Railroads which represents 3-1-2 per cent of their gross income notwithstanding the fact that the Railroads make no use of the public highways. On this point, may I mention that the amount of tax received by the State of Connecticut

LIONS CLUB NETS $257 FROM BENEFIT SHOW

Members Get Report At Meeting Last Night - Rev. Joseph Cooper the Speaker.

A total of $257 was raised by the Rockville Lions club for their "Milk Fund" by the play, "I'll Take Vanilla", which was presented in the auditorium of the George Sykes Memorial school last month.

Announcement to this effect was made last evening by Dr. Clarence E. Peterson, chairman of the general committee which had charge of the production. Notwithstanding the fact that there were 400 less tickets sold, the receipts were within ten dollars of what they were a year ago.

This is due to the fact that the Rockville Lions Club did not have to split with the producing company which directed the presentation.

Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor of the Stafford Springs Methodist church, was the speaker at the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Rockville Lions Club held last evening at the Rockville House at 6:15 o'clock. Following a members' supper, Rev. Cooper delivered an interesting lecture on the topic, "A Visit To London".

The affair was a big success and largely attended as many people were eager to hear Rev. Dr. Cooper speak of his trip to London.

Wilton As Banquet Speaker

Lieutenant Governor Roy Wilcox of Connecticut will be the principal speaker at the Eighth Annual Banquet of the Rockville Fish and Game Club which will be held at the Rockville House tonight at 6:30 o'clock.

Clark of the Connecticut Fish and Game Commission, who was recently appointed to office and who will make his first public appearance at this time.

Another prominent speaker will be State Senator Edwin R. Dimock, of Merrow. Chief Game Protector Joseph Williamson of the State Commission will also attend. A short entertainment program will be presented by professional entertainers.

It is planned to have about one hundred and fifty present at the banquet. The committee in charge of arrangements consists of the following: Kenneth W. Little, chairman; Archibald Hewitt, Edward Conant, Leo Fishery, Edward Tomlinson, Edward Colburn and Edward Kreyszig.

BOETTCHER TELLS OF THE KIDNAPING

Released After Being Held Prisoner 16 Days; He Describes His Experiences.

Denver, March 2.—(AP)—The kidnaping of Charles Boettcher, 2nd, wealthy Denver broker, was graphically described by him today in an interview published in the Denver Post.

"Sixteen days and nights of blackness, discomfort and threats! "Thank God it's over," Boettcher said.

"Where I was held and by whom I do not know. It appeared to be the basement of some house 18 hours by fast automobile from Denver.

"Neither do I know who my abductors were, but there were two of them—possibly three.

"I am thankful that they treated me as gentlemanly as possible under the circumstances. They even shaved me when I complained that my beard was growing so long.

"Desperadoes?—undoubtedly. But that's all over now. Unless I dream about it.

"About 11 p. m. on February 12, my wife and I had just returned home and I started to drive into the garage when two men in a small sedan drove up.

Both Men Armed

"Both men were armed. They put me in their car and started to drive. One man was in the back seat with me.

"He immediately put a strip of adhesive tape over my eyes and another piece over my head to hold the first strip on. They also roped my wrists—see the marks?"

"We're going on a long trip and will get along all right if you behave," they told me.

"They meant what they said. A long trip—we drove all that night, all the next day and into the next night.

"Occasionally the man sitting with me would poke me with his gun and remind me to be good or else."

"We stopped for gasoline" three times. Where I do not know. Each time we stopped, the man made me lie down in the back of the car so I couldn't be seen. I couldn't tell what direction we were going.

Sometimes we seemed to be going in circles.

"When we finally reached our destination, I was put in what I took to be the basement of a house.

"Most of the time I was kept in a corner of that basement room.

"During my stay I heard no evidence of any women in the place—only the two men who brought me. I believe they were Americans.

"I was fed principally on sandwiches and soup. I hope I never eat either again. The reason I believe it was a basement room was that the only light seemed to be artificial. There was a bed in the room and I slept remarkably well considering the circumstances.

The days were the worst part—they seemed interminable.

"Twice I was made to write letters to my father. Both times the bandages were taken from my eyes and the ropes from my wrists for only a few minutes and my captors stayed behind me so I couldn't get a good look at them.

If you feel sour and snaky and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, laxatives, or anything else that makes you sweat and burn and feel like a furnace.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement don't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, something which it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Demand a substitute. 25¢ at all stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

WOMAN BADLY HURT

New Haven, March 2.—(AP)—Miss Carolyn Tibbals, 36, of Center street, Milford, was critically hurt this morning when her car skidded on the highway in Clintonville, (North Haven) and struck a tree.

At noon Grace Hospital officials said her name was on the danger list. She has a fractured skull, a fractured right ankle and lacerations.

Constable William Kober said Miss Tibbals tried to pass another machine and swung too far to the left and lost control. She was brought to the city by Michael Simeone, a resident, close by.

As for an extradition is concerned, those former Chicago magnates seem to have been insured.

Special warnings were issued yesterday for the clearing of the sidewalks of snow. Prosecution has been threatened by the police.

THURSDAY, MARCH 2. THOMAS J. WALSH. The totally unexpected death of Senator Thomas J. Walsh on the very eve of his elevation to the headship of the Department of Justice.

A somewhat dour and unsmiling personality, Senator Walsh enjoyed the unlimited confidence of many Americans, who believed him to be, more than other men, superior to the influence either of wealth and power or of personal friendships and associations.

His death is a tragedy, a tragedy because it follows so closely upon the occasion of his marriage, politically and economically because of the unsettling effect of a necessarily hasty choice for the attorney-generalship.

A RECKLESS PROPOSAL. There is a proposal before the Legislature to provide for permanent forfeiture of the right to operate an automobile upon a second conviction for reckless driving.

Forfeiture, automatic and permanent, is provided for upon conviction of two other offenses in a measure proposed by Motor Vehicles Commissioner Stoeckel.

There is very little ground for sympathy for any person twice found guilty of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

But these are very definite offenses. Reckless driving, largely because of the lack of prima facies in the statutes, is another matter.

It is a criminal charge it is sadly lacking in boundaries; it is widely inclusive; it may mean almost anything.

It is easy to imagine a situation in which a very decent driver, through combinations of circumstances including perhaps the evidence of honest but prejudiced witnesses, might twice in a number of years be penalized for reckless driving.

It would be a more or less reckless proceeding, it seems to us, for the Legislature to make life-long revocation of license applicable to second convictions for reckless driving.

It is a lovely thing for Japan to have that arms embargo to blame for it. Of course everybody would know better—but what difference would that make to Japan?

Anyhow the embargo, which on Monday was going to help Japan, on Wednesday suddenly becomes a reckless driving and not leave the definition of such operation completely up in the air, as it is at present.

And let the Legislature not forget how extremely easy it would be, under such a law, for an innocent driver to be "framed" and deprived of his driving rights in the state of Connecticut for all time.

THE NEW CABINET. The cabinet of Franklin D. Roosevelt, incoming President of the United States, with the position of attorney-general unfilled at this writing because of the death of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, will consist of the following persons:

Secretary of State—Cordell Hull of Tennessee. Secretary of the Treasury—William H. Woodin of New York.

Secretary of War—George H. Dern of Utah. Postmaster-General—James A. Farley of New York.

Secretary of the Navy—Claude A. Swanson of Virginia. Secretary of the Interior—Harold Ickes of Illinois.

Secretary of Agriculture—Henry A. Wallace of Iowa. Secretary of Commerce—Daniel C. Roper of Washington.

Secretary of Labor—Frances Perkins of New York. This list of names is very far from those lists that suggested themselves to the mind of the average American when it became known that Mr. Roosevelt had swept the country last November.

Visions of Alfred E. Smith, Newton D. Baker, Governor Ritchie of Maryland, Carter Glass and other such giants of the Democratic party sitting about the council board of the nation delighted the imagination of those who had favored the election of the New York governor.

Yet about the only individual who at that time was popularly thought of in connection with a cabinet job and who was really picked for the new President's official family was Senator Walsh. He was always a good bet as the probable attorney-general.

As it stands the cabinet is made up of, to say the most, second-string material. Yet we would be reluctant to express the opinion that this is not just as well.

Mr. Roosevelt has quite obviously picked his cabinet less for the outstanding celebrity of its members than for his anticipated loyalty to himself and to the policies he intends to pursue.

It has been stated by publicists best equipped to pronounce upon this group that there is not a real conservative in the lot—some of the members are liberals, some a shade further removed to the left and described as "progressives." None is accused of being tied in with any special private interest.

Such a cabinet should at least render to the new President as full a measure of co-operation as he could wish. If it starts off lacking in the element of surpassing greatness perhaps it will have plenty of opportunity to achieve greatness through deeds.

It may turn out to be a better administrative machine than one made up of men of larger fame who might yet pull and haul against each other and possibly balk under the driving of a master who, it is becoming increasingly evident, proposes to boss his own show.

CHANGES HER MIND. Japan has attempted to correct the tactical error she made the day following the announcement of the British arms embargo against the East.

"Fool!" said the Japs without stopping to think; "a lot we care about that! It will hurt China a great deal more than it does us." Which was true enough.

Within two days, however, it has occurred to Tokyo that that was no way to talk, under the circumstances. Things were not going so swimmingly in Jehol.

The gains made were at heavy loss, more losses in front of Jehol City were probable. The success of the campaign was far from certain. At the same time local revolutionaries in Manchuria were reported to be capturing small towns right and left, along with Japanese garrisons and quantities of ordnance, small arms and ammunition.

handicap so heavy as to constitute an unfriendly act. Everybody's picking on Japan—how can she be expected to win any wars?

THE MAD HITLER. We were quite wrong about Hitler when, on his assumption of power, we ventured the guess that when he found himself shouldering the responsibilities of the German chancellorship he would calm down, pull in his horns and gradually fade out of the spotlight.

It was really difficult to believe that all these German Nazis would be following a sheer madman, and short of his being a madman it didn't seem possible that he would attempt the utter tyrannies—archaic in their crude simplicity—that he was forever threatening. Yet he does seem now to be just that, crazy.

If ever a country was headed straight for the horrors of a dreadful civil war, that country would seem to be the Germany of March, 1933. It is simply inescapable that the present course of the Nazis can lead to anything but the wildest disorder throughout the Reich.

If it is persisted in. Perhaps Hitler and his mob will take fright at the inevitable consequences of what they are doing. If they continue in their infatuated policy of brutal repression there can hardly be more than one issue; and that a bloody and shocking one.

IN NEW YORK. HOWARD SCOTT WELCOMED IN OLD BOHEMIAN HAUNTS. New York, March 2—Howard Scott came back the other night to the Meeting Place, his former favorite Greenwich Village club, which he has shunned assiduously since Technocracy gave him national fame.

He looked like a well-groomed man, but he did not look like the American Society of Engineers gave him his big, exclusive dinner at Pierre's, with all the distinguished guests in full dress and top hats.

But he was much more dapperly dressed than he used to be, in the seven years I knew him before his ride into the blinding limelight of publicity. "Yes, we still call our organization 'Technocracy,'" he told me.

"No, we haven't the rumored 1,000,000 members, but we have an astonishingly large number. They are packed seven Technocracy periodicals under one arm, two engineering books under the other. He was greeting old friends right and left, some of them clapping him on the back, others merely waving and then going on with their dinner.

The meeting place is used to members "with ideas." Whether they succeed in putting them over or not, once a Villager, always a Villager. Your place is there, when you come back.

Actresses and Dresses. "One Grand" seems to be about the average cost of four costumes for a stage star, this year of depression. Judith Anderson's three costumes and one negligee came to about that, at Jay Thorpe's. Claire Luce's costumes in Gay Divorce were the same price, $1,000.

The stage management pays for the clothes and then refused to give Claire fur on her suit. So she plunked $500 out of her own purse for the cross fox cape she wears.

Before a dress house makes clothes for any star, the procedure is to read the script, then an additional "clothes script" which may specify what type of costumes is expected at a given point, such as "a sinister dress" or "a seductive tea gown."

Then the dress-maker gets to work planning, submits sketches, swatches of materials contract is signed before scissors are touched to cloth. The clothes belong to the show, not the actress. If it closes in a fortnight usually the management lets the star buy the clothes, if she wants them, at reduced prices.

Health and Diet Advice

By Dr. Frank McCoy

WILL RHEUMATISM STAY CURED?

When a patient with a tendency to mild attacks of rheumatism sits for a while, perhaps with one leg in a cramped position, and gets up, he notices the leg is stiff and sore and craves a little "massage."

After several months the rheumatic pains have slowly grown worse and he has definite attacks of rheumatism which last for a few hours then go away, but leaving some sore muscles may exist for years, until the congestion of toxins locates in some joint of the body.

The fingers may be first, but it often spreads to the elbows and shoulders, and at this stage is called "arthritis rheumatism."

If the disease is not arrested in time, the trouble extends to the hips and finally to the spine. Every effort must be made by the patient to keep the inflammation from reaching this dangerous point.

If you have ever seen a patient hobbling along, all crippled up with rheumatism, bent over, wracked by pain, you will understand why the disease must be stopped before this stage is reached.

Many factors must be considered, not only the attack itself, but the crippling of the body, and the loss of work.

The cost in money of a well-developed case of arthritis reaches an astonishing figure. If you add in the total cost for liniments, medicine, lamps, treatment, and time lost from employment, the cost is very high.

Several measures may be used which will temporarily relieve the attacks but they cannot be considered permanent cures. After handling thousands of cases of rheumatism, I have discovered the use of the fasting cure will be found to give the patient the quickest relief.

JOBS GALORE—BUT NONE FOR HOOVER'S SECRETARY

I spite All His Reputed Power, President Finds He Can't Pull a Judge out of the Fire for Walter H. Newton Loyal Aid

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

Washington—The President of the United States is supposed to be the most powerful man in the world, but you could not convince Herbert Hoover of it.

While Roosevelt is picking men for the highest posts in the government and will be filling tens of thousands of jobs after March 4, the president can't even make his own secretary a federal judge.

This state of affairs seems all the more poignant when you recall that the Senate, which must confirm presidential appointees, has more Republicans in it than Democrats.

Twin victims, Mr. Hoover and Walter H. Newton of Minnesota sit in the White House awaiting the day when employment will overtake them.

Newton is a former Congressman and for the last two or three years has been Hoover's political secretary. The other day the President sent his name to the Senate for confirmation as a Federal district judge in Minnesota.

Such are the ways of partisan politics this year that the Senate would have none of this nomination and at last accounts the Republicans who were arguing that confirmation would be a nice, gracious, inexpensive gesture to the retiring President were not making much headway.

It seems that Mr. Hoover originally had scheduled Newton for the Federal court of appeals, but when there didn't seem any chance of confirmation on that, decided to appoint him to the minor place on the bench.

The Democrats have refused to confirm Mr. Hoover's nominations ever since the election, even refusing to approve some prominent members of their own party who were appointed to bi-partisan commissions, such as those made from white flour.

East Only When Hungry. Question: Milton J. asks: "Should one eat his meals if it is time but he is not hungry?" Answer: There would not be much sickness or many digestive disorders if people would eat only when hungry.

Question: Mrs. Alice H. asks: "Is there a cure for lispng. What causes it?" Answer: Lispng is usually curable. Sometimes this trouble is caused by an impediment of the tongue because of small cords tied to its under-surface, or other mechanical defects.

Question: S. writes: "Have gone through much sickness and disease and nothing but your way of dieting has ever helped me, but I still have a tired feeling, no matter how long I sleep. What about a constant craving for sweets?" Answer: Try taking more systematic exercise and see if you cannot build up your strength so that your sleep will do you more good.

'Drunken House' Of Foggia Doomed By Plans For Beautifying Italian City

Foggia, Italy (AP)—The "drunken house of Foggia," one of the world's strangest buildings, is to disappear in its 82nd year as part of a city beautification program. Eleven intoxicated youths erected the house in a single night. They mixed the cement for its main walls with wine.

BRUCE CABOT SETS STIFF ATHLETIC PACE FOR MOVIE CAPITAL

What is said to be the world's largest plow cuts furrows from 36 to 42 inches deep, and three feet wide, in California. HOW'S SHE HITTING?

If the engine of your auto isn't hitting properly, and you must do the repair work yourself, by all means leave the carburetor until last in checking for the cause of the trouble. At least eight out of every 10 motorists who set about this operation commence fussing with the carburetor, a finely adjusted mechanism which, although delicate, is generally the last part of the engine to fail. This instrument is the heart of the automobile system, and is properly adjusted at the factory with little reason to readjust it after it has been broken in to the climate.

Roosevelt to Take Oath on This Bible

Franklin D. Roosevelt is shown with the old family Bible which he will use in taking the oath of office as President. The Bible has been in the Roosevelt family for almost 300 years and the first entry—that of a birth—is dated 1870. The Bible will be opened to the thirteenth chapter of the Epistle of Paul to the Corinthians—words on charity—for the oath.

ROOSEVELT IS SHOCKED OVER SEN. WALSH'S DEATH

(Continued From Page One) his place in the circle of my friends will be impossible. Mr. Roosevelt heard the startling announcement of the death of the Montana Senator, whom he had announced just two days previous as his attorney-general, while preparing to depart for Washington for his inauguration. News of the death was transmitted to the Roosevelt home by the Associated Press and the President-elect issued his words of regret through Marvin H. MacIntyre, one of his secretaries. There was no hint of whether the President-elect would fill the vacancy in his Cabinet before he takes office on Saturday. Already many names have been heard in the discussion of a possible successor. Prominent among these are Arthur Mullen, of Nebraska, and Professor Felix Frankfurter, of Massachusetts.

JAPANESE FORCES MASS FOR FINAL JEHOI CITY PUSH

(Continued From Page One) stiff battles at Shamaoshan, and at Peichangyintze. If Marshal Chang's own troops are defeated again or fail to continue resisting the Japanese onslaught, General Tang is expected to immediately pledge allegiance to the Japanese-sponsored Manchukuo government or start his flight to Peiping. REPORTS QUESTIONED Peiping, March 2.—(AP)—Dispatches from the Jehoi front which reached here this afternoon contained no confirmation for Japanese reports that the city of Lingyuan had been captured. The battalion of the troops commanded by Tang Yu-Lin, Jehoi governor, broke and the Japanese penetrated the defense lines at Taipingfang, 15 miles southwest of Chaoyang. Then the Japanese pushed up the motor road to Lingyuan, pounded the Chinese with artillery until two shattered Chinese brigades holding that city withdrew. Two more brigades were hurled up from Pingchuan, a few miles to the west, to aid the defense. The Chinese dispatches said that at 1 p. m., regulars from Chang Hsiang-Liang's army commanded by General Wan Fu-Lin, former governor of Heilungkiang province in Manchuria, were still holding Lingyuan. At that time a brisk fight was going on in the outskirts of Lingyuan but the Japanese had not yet crossed the river into the city. The situation at Chihfeng, north of Jehoi City, was uncertain, for communications were cut off since 11 o'clock this morning. It was admitted by the Chinese, however, that the enemy was within striking distance of Chihfeng at 8 o'clock last night. There were doubts here regarding the loyalty of Sun Tien-Ying.

Once a day is often enough to shake—less frequently in mild weather. 2 Use less draft — Because Koppers Connecticut Coke is High Test Fuel, it burns evenly without forcing the fire and wasting heat up the chimney. It responds at once to closing as well as to opening of dampers. 3 Fill the fire pot heaping full — You can do this without danger of smothering the fire. Koppers Connecticut Coke is lighter than coal and burns most economically and effectively when you keep a deep fire. These 3 rules mean less work and less attention. Your Koppers Connecticut Coke fire requires less work in firing and in taking out ashes, burns perfectly and provides a steady warmth for less cost.

FOURTEEN STATES ON BANK HOLIDAY

(Continued From Page One) gan February 14 still is in force as the Ford, Senator Cousins and bankers continue efforts to reopen Detroit banks. Maryland's day-to-day bank holiday was continued pending passage of legislation to remedy the situation. Indiana banks continued to act in accordance with local conditions, some limiting withdrawals and others doing business as usual. At Newcastle a modified form of scrip was circulated, banks issuing the scrip against deposits, the paper being accepted as currency. Under this arrangement no currency leaves the bank. But the "frozen" deposits serve as security for the bank orders. The situation in Ohio was easing, with many bankers considering the possibility of raising the limit placed on withdrawals. Nine states in which bank holidays exist by proclamation of governors or authorized state bank officials are: California, Oklahoma, Michigan, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky and Maryland. In five other states restrictions on withdrawals are in effect in some of the banks. The states are: Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Arkansas and Illinois. In the latter state a five per cent withdrawal limit has been made operative by three East St. Louis banks as a temporary measure. No holiday has been called in Minnesota, but Gov. Olson signed a bill yesterday by which the state commissioner of banks is empowered to suspend the business of a state bank for a maximum period of 15 days at his discretion. Likewise in Idaho a bill was passed by the Legislature before its adjournment last night, empowering the governor to call bank holidays if such action is required.

This injured all the silicon being skimmed off also. The seemingly simple plan was so revolutionary that it was patented. It was the idea of Ronald Wile, a metallurgist of Sheffield, England. By its methods of applying this patent the Rustless Iron Corporation eliminates the extra steps, also expense and claims to produce the metal more cheaply than any other process. Dr. Downey said the company increased its business even during the poor steel year of 1932, and has doubled its output since the beginning of depression.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, March 2.—(AP)—The Stock Market was bolstered by fresh buying, after giving away rather abruptly in the first hour today. Trading was quiet, and selling did not at any time reach large proportions, but dividend news and the spread of banking restrictions resulted in momentary weakness. After prices had sagged 1 to more than 2 points in several instances, however, there were recoveries of from fractions to a point. American Telephone, American Tobacco B, and J. I. Case each lost about 2 1/2 points, then came back roughly a point. In the rally, Delaware and Hudson reacted 2 3/4, before recovering partially. Two-point losses in Dupont and Allied Chemical were reduced by fractions. Miscellaneous issues of 1 to 2 points in the early afternoon included American Can, Public Service of New Jersey, Trans-America, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Johns Manville, Sears Roebuck, Coca Cola and J. C. Penney. International Business Machines, however, moved up more than a point, on publication of its 1932 statement. U. S. Steel lost nearly a point. Moderate trickles of selling, brokers reported, came from areas where banking activities are restricted. Restrictions on withdrawals, however, act in one way to withhold pressure from the securities markets, for they save banks from the necessity of liquidation loans and investments. At the same time, the market was regarded by brokers as in a fairly good technical position, with a relatively large short interest. Recent declines have been checked by short covering, as traders are wary of maintaining short positions, on the theory that any decisive action to ameliorate the banking situation might give the list a sharp boost. March is likely to be a time of rising prices, as traders buy in anticipation of a spring revival in business. The business outlook has now been obscured, but none the less some buying is reported on the theory that the present banking crisis may be likened to a clearing shower. In corporate news, International Business Machines' 1932 earnings report, showing net of $2.1 a share, against $1.55 in 1932, was a bright spot. Dividend cuts by Loew's and Penney, and Johns-Manville's proffered omission brought selling into those shares. Dividend news, however, contained a number of regular disbursements, notably by W. T. Grant Company, Lehman Corporation, and Chase National Bank.

SENATOR WALSH DIES SUDDENLY ON TRAIN

figure in the capital for twenty years, ever since he left the private practice of law in Helena to come to the Senate.

He probably gained his greatest prominence as the prosecutor in the Teapot Dome oil scandals in 1924. But to Democrats all over the United States, he was known as the man who presided over the tumultuous Democratic convention of 1924 which fought out the long deadlock between Alfred E. Smith and William G. McAdoo for the nomination. The deadlock was finally broken by the selection of John W. Davis as the standard bearer.

Again in 1932, the Montanan was chosen to preside over National convence of his party, this time at Chicago where after three ballots Franklin D. Roosevelt was nominated.

Active in Campaign
Senator Walsh took an active part in the campaign. Throughout the long western trip of Mr. Roosevelt, which took him into every far western state except Nevada, the senator conferred frequently with the nominee and appeared often on the rear platform.

Through the west on this rear platform appearances, the announcement that the Montana Senator would speak was the signal for immediate applause from the crowds. Through the remainder of the campaign, he was a frequent visitor to Albany and often accompanied Mr. Roosevelt on his campaign trips.

Immediately after word was received today of his death, Senator Democrats prepared to move as soon as possible that the Senate adjourn as a token of respect.

Plan to Adjourn
Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, and Senator Wheeler of Montana, Walsh's colleague, planned to ask the Senate to lay aside its work today, in tribute to the veteran Montanan.

Robinson, informed of the death at his home this morning, was shocked so much that he at first could not believe it and then said: "Senator Walsh's death comes as a great surprise. He was an outstanding leader in the Democratic party and a man of undoubted integrity and notable ability."

"I am overwhelmed at this news of the passing of this great friend of mine."

Senator Wheeler said "I am so shocked that it is difficult for me to say anything."

"Senator Walsh was one of the great men in American life and the nation loses one of its outstanding figures. As his colleague for a number of years I have been in close touch with his many admirable traits."

There immediately arose the discussion of who might be selected to fill the attorney generalship in the Roosevelt Cabinet.

In this connection, the name of Arthur Mullen of Nebraska was heard frequently. It was believed that Mr. Roosevelt had Mullen in mind for another post in the Department of Justice and that he might elevate the Nebraskan to the head of the department.

Mullen was closely connected with the campaign activities and was a floor leader for Mr. Roosevelt in the convention fight for the nomination.

The Senate, which had called a 10 o'clock meeting to expedite the heap of important legislation piled up before it, was informed of the death at the outset.

Robinson Speaks
Speaking slowly and obviously with deep sorrow, Democratic Leader Robinson of Arkansas made the announcement. Some of those present who had not heard it showed their surprise.

"Mr. President," Robinson began as he presented his resolution that the Senate adjourn as a tribute to Walsh. "Senators have been greatly surprised and shocked by the information that one of our ablest and most beloved members has passed away."

"Senator Walsh of Montana has served for more than 20 years in the Senate of the United States," Robinson continued, "and during that period of his service, he has demonstrated exceptional ability and great loyalty to his duty."

The resolution, formally expressing the sorrow of the Senate and requesting the appointment of a funeral delegation was read and agreed to by the Senate without further discussion.

It promptly adjourned until 9:30 a. m. tomorrow as a further token of respect.

Brilliant Statesman
Speaker Garner, the vice president-elect said: "In the death of Senator Thomas Walsh, the country has lost a brilliant statesman and able lawyer. Few men have been closer to the hearts of the American people, and no man has been more conscientious and diligent in protecting the interests of the people as a whole. His death leaves a void that will be difficult to fill."

Republicans as well as Democrats were outspoken in their praise of Mr. Walsh.

Senator McNary of Oregon, the assistant Republican leader said: "He was one of the conspicuous men in public service."

Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee of which Walsh was a member: "It is not only a deep personal tragedy, but I look upon it as a National calamity. With all due respect to the other members of the Cabinet, he was the man who had been tried and tested in public service and who stood out as an able and patriotic public servant."

MONTANA MOURNS
Helena, Mont., March 2.—(AP)—Montana was stunned on receiving news today that Senator Thomas J. Walsh had died suddenly on a train in North Carolina.

in D. Roosevelt plunged the state into its deepest grief.

As a result of his many years in the Senate and his prominence in National politics, Senator Walsh was Montana's best known citizen.

His sudden death follows closely the unexpected deaths within the past three weeks of two other prominent Montanans, Thomas J. Ryan, chairman of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, and Benjamin E. Thayer, vice-president of the company.

Senator Walsh had transmitted to Governor J. E. Erickson his resignation as United States Senator.

WAS A GREAT MAN
New York, March 2.—(AP)—Commenting on the death of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, George H. Dern, secretary of war in the Roosevelt Cabinet, said: "Senator Walsh was one of the great men of the country. He would have been a strong man in the Cabinet. His death is a great loss to the administration."

"I am inexpressibly shocked and grieved at the news," said William H. Woodin, Secretary of the Treasury for the new administration. "His death is a great loss to the country."

Claude G. Bowers, Democratic keynoter of 1928, said: "Senator Walsh has an established place in history as one of the greatest reformers and one of the best minds we have had in public life. He was one of the most humane and human men I have ever known."

Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state in President Wilson's Cabinet: "The sudden passing of Senator Walsh is a great shock. It deprives the government of an outstanding man upon whom the whole people placed their unqualified reliance."

Oswald Garrison Villard, contributing editor of the Nation, said: "The United States has lost one of the best, one of the ablest and most devoted public servants. His record in the Senate has been one of the very best in recent years. His courage and determination as a prosecutor were shown at their best in the oil scandals and the same vigorous determination to uphold honor of the United States and to prosecute the guilty marked his entire career. I deeply mourn his going both for personal and public reasons."

FAMILY HEARS NEWS
Norfolk, Va., March 2.—(AP)—A brief Associated Press dispatch, read to Captain E. C. Gudger by a newspaper reporter, was the first news of the family of Senator Thomas J. Walsh here had of his sudden death early today on a train near Wilson, N. C.

Mrs. Gudger is a daughter of Senator Walsh.

He had been a frequent visitor at the Gudger home at the naval base here where Captain Gudger is executive officer of the local naval supply base.

A few minutes later by telephone from the attending physician in Rocky Mount, N. C., Captain Gudger was informed that the body was being prepared for burial there and is being sent to Washington later today.

Captain and Mrs. Gudger and their two small daughters, Ellen and Gloria, will leave for Washington tomorrow. They had planned to attend the Roosevelt inauguration as guests of Senator Walsh who had been named as Attorney General in the new Cabinet.

IN WEDDING SUIT
Rocky Mount, N. C., March 2.—(AP)—Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, who died of a sudden heart attack near Wilson today, will be buried in the clothes in which he was married Saturday to Senora Nieves Perez Chaumont de Truffin, widow of a wealthy Havana, Cuba, business man.

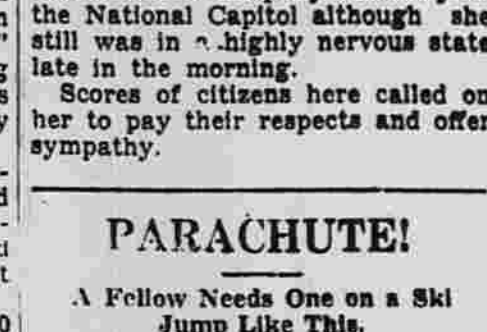

The body was taken to a funeral home here, embalmed, and dressed in his wedding suit while plans were under way to have it lie in state here a short while before taking it on to Washington.

Reservations were made on an Atlantic Coast Line train which leaves here at 2:55 p. m. and arrives in Washington at 10:45 tonight.

According to present plans, Mrs. Walsh will accompany the body to the National Capitol although she still was in a highly nervous state late in the morning.

Scores of citizens here called on her to pay their respects and offer sympathy.

Boston, March 2.—(AP)—Nicholas Porasso, 30, of Everett was in critical condition at the Massachusetts

General hospital today after being stabbed by "friends."

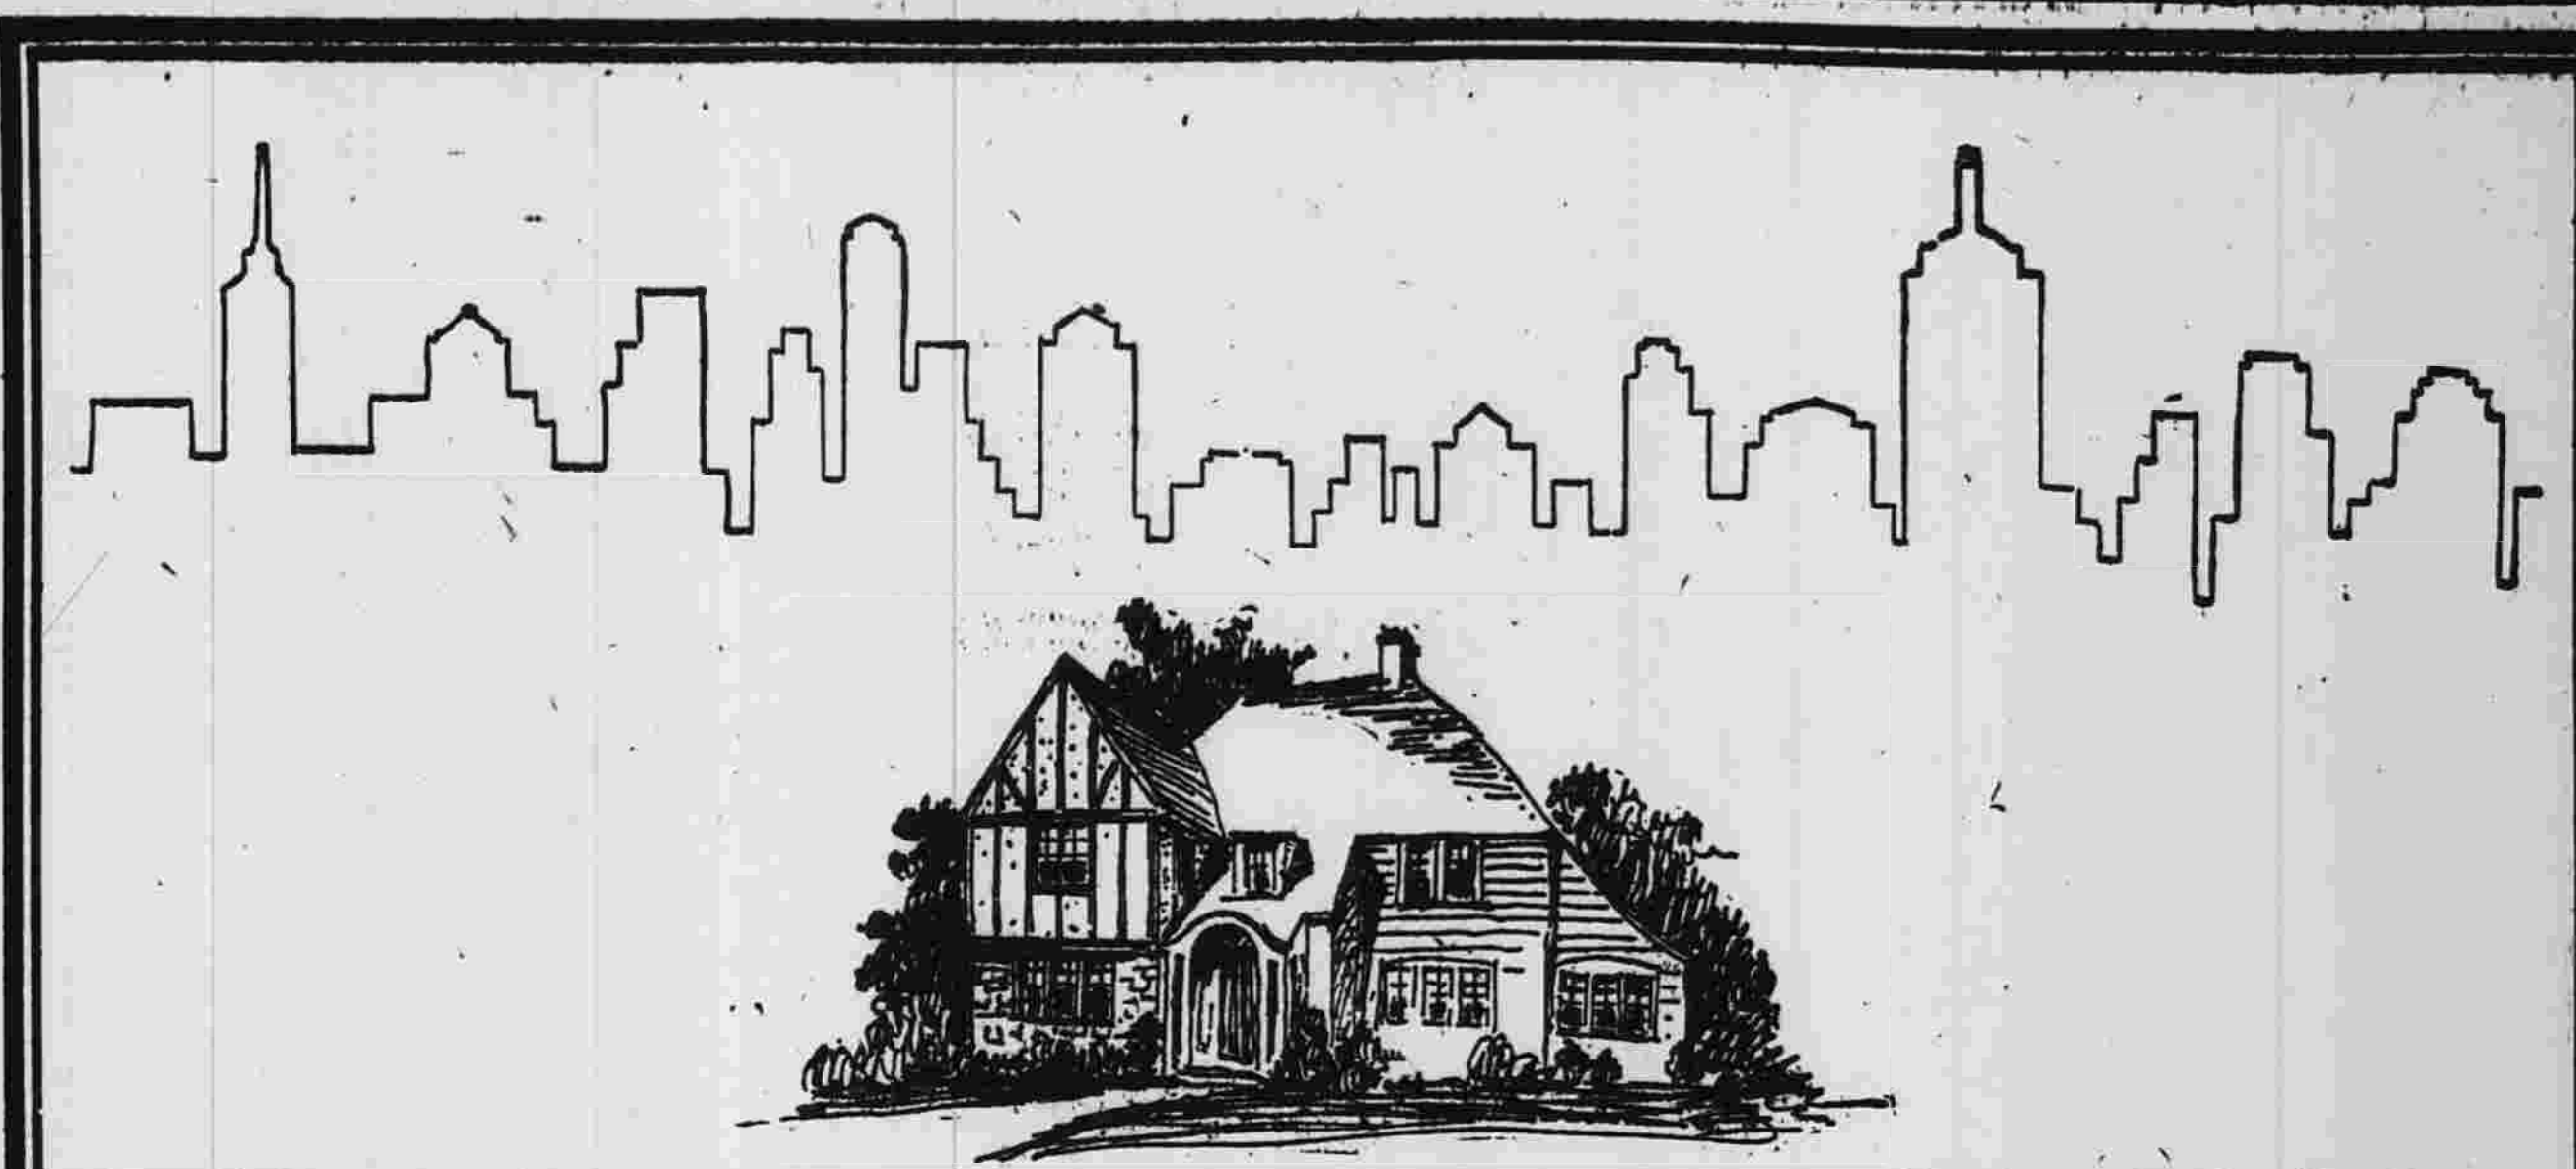

Porasso was thrown out of an automobile into the courtyard of the hospital last night. After being carried into the hospital he was found to have a stab wound in his side. Police Inspector John McCarthy questioned Porasso at the hospital during the few minutes the wounded man was conscious. McCarthy said Porasso told him

"friends" had stabbed him but refused to name them. The officer also said the wounded man told him he had been arrested in connection with some Revere gang murders but added that the "police had nothing on me." Porasso had a six-inch stab wound in the side.

JANET HILL is engaged to ROLF CARLYLE but they do not have enough money to marry. Janet is secretary for BRUCE HAMILTON, advertising manager of Every Home Magazine, and Rolf works for the Atlas Advertising Co. Janet insists they must have $5000 in a savings account before they can be married.

She hurries home from the office one Saturday to prepare a surprise birthday dinner for Rolf. On the way she sees a couple entering the fashionable Brewster Hotel Coffee Shop and she thinks the young man is Rolf. Afterward she decides she was mistaken.

The dinner party is a success. Rolf tells Janet he cannot see her next day because he is entertaining an out-of-town friend. Sunday proves to be a gloomy day. Janet visits with MOLLIE LAMBERT, who lives across the hall. Returning to her room, she encounters a young man she has never seen before. He introduces himself as a new roomer in the rooming house and says his name is GRANT.

Rolf takes Janet to lunch and later breaks a dinner engagement. That same night Mollie tells Janet she saw Rolf entering a theater with another girl. Janet tries to convince herself Mollie was mistaken. She meets Rolf the next day after work and tells him what Mollie has said. Rolf explains angrily, "What of it? You know our engagement doesn't mean anything!"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VII

Janet did not seem to hear what he was saying. "Then it's true!" she repeated. "Oh, Rolf—you were there!"

"Well, I'm not denying it. I don't see that it's anything to make such a fuss about, though. Is there anything wrong in going to see a show once in a while? For Lord sake, Janet, what's the use of pretending? Things can't go on this way—"

"No," she agreed. "They can't go on this way."

He looked at her, surprised at the quiet tone. Rolf hated scenes as do all men. Was Janet really going to be sensible about this?

"Listen," he said more kindly. "I know I said I was going to see a wrestling match. Shouldn't I have said that I suppose. But I didn't want to—well, to hurt your feelings. Don't you see, Janet? You know as well as I do that our engagement doesn't mean anything. You don't want to get married. If you did we'd have been married months ago. You think more of that job of yours than you do of me."

She was listening now. He saw that her eyes had filled with tears. "How can you say that?" she interrupted. There was hysteria mingled with the protest in her voice. "It isn't true, Rolf! Oh, you know it isn't!"

So there was to be a scene after all. The young man frowned.

"I don't know anything of the sort," he said shortly. "But I guess you were right about it. I can see now we'd never have made a go of it. You and I are different. Janet. We don't even like the same things!"

The girl started to speak but whatever she meant to say was lost in a half-escaping sob.

"You never care if you're having a good time or not?" Rolf went on.

"Well, I do. I like to get out and go places, see things and know what's going on. Sitting around home evenings gives me the creeps! Work all day and save your money—that's all you think about. Well, what's the use? We've tried it for almost a year now and it doesn't work. It never will! We could go on this way for years and we'd never be any nearer getting married than we are today. It's because you don't really want to marry me."

Janet had found her voice. The words sounded a little queer, not quite natural, but she said quickly, "I didn't know you felt this way, Rolf. Why didn't you tell me? I thought we were having good times—"

"Good times?" Sitting through movies everyone else in town has seen six months ago, dancing in cheap chop suey joints, bus rides—well that's not my idea of a good time! What does it get you? Nothing. All the pennies and nickels you and I save will never make us rich. I tell you, Janet, it's no use!"

"But you used to say you liked all those things!"

The tears were welling up in her eyes again. Perhaps it was because Carlyle felt a tinge of guilt, perhaps it was because he knew he was not blameless, yet refused to admit it, that he answered harshly. "If I said that I didn't mean it, I'm telling you the truth now."

They had been walking along a quiet cross street. At the intersection, not a dozen yards ahead, the street led into a brightly lighted avenue. Janet could not bear the thought of those lights. She halted. The sudden anger that flared in her voice was almost as much of a surprise to the girl herself as it was to Rolf.

"So you're telling me the truth?" she exclaimed. "Then why don't you tell me about that girl you were with last night? I suppose

"I wouldn't marry you now—not for anything!" Janet exclaimed.

when you were so busy Sunday you were with her, too. Oh, you needn't go on explaining! I understand. You liked to spend your evenings with me before you met her. She's the one who's changed your mind about—about everything!"

"That's not true, I mean—"

"And don't try to tell me what you mean! And don't go on trying to explain, either. I wouldn't believe you, no matter what you said! Why should I? After the lies you've told me—"

"Aren't you making yourself rather ridiculous? Do you want the whole street to hear you?"

"I don't care who hears what I'm saying!" White-faced, chin raised defiantly, Janet met his eyes. "I don't care if the whole world knows! I wouldn't marry you now—not for anything! Not after the things you've said, after the things you've done. I—oh, I never want to see you again! Never! As long as I live!"

As suddenly as her anger had come it spent itself. Tenderness swept over her face. "Oh, Rolf!" she cried in a voice that was low-pitched, frightened. "Oh, Rolf!"

The young man's tone was frigid. "If that's the way you feel about it," he said with exaggerated politeness, "I guess I'd better say good night. You can get your car at the corner here."

Janet made her voice as cold as his. "I'm not going home," she said. "I'm—I'm going to have dinner down town. Here in this restaurant."

They were in front of an eating place. It was a restaurant Janet had never entered. Food was the last thing in the world Janet wanted then but the pretext would serve as well as any other to get away. She must get away from Rolf! This hideous quarrel couldn't go on. She wanted to get away, yet with her whole soul she wanted to stay, too. Not with the cold-eyed, unsmiling Rolf who was looking at her but with that other Rolf who had been affectionate and adoring. Couldn't he see she hadn't meant those terrible things she had said? Wouldn't he understand this was all a mistake?

He was speaking again. "Then I'll leave you," he said. "It might have been any stranger using that clipped, formal tone."

For just the fraction of a second the young man paused. For just the fraction of a second Janet's eyes raised hopefully. Then with a quick gesture Rolf touched his hat. "Good night," he said, and was gone.

She stood where he had left her for several moments. She put one hand to her face and brushed away the tears. She did the same thing again without realizing that she had done it. A man and a girl were coming toward her and Janet saw that the girl looked at her curiously. Why not? People didn't stand in the middle of the sidewalk on Lombard street wiping tears from their eyes. People who were sensible didn't do such things. No wonder that girl was staring at her.

Pressing her lips together tightly, Janet turned and entered the restaurant. She found a seat at the side of the room. A waitress, short and stout and with very pink cheeks, handed her a menu card.

"Would you like the special dinner?" the waitress asked glibly. "Veal steak with hashed brown potatoes, string beans, combination salad and choice of dessert."

Janet nodded. "Yes," she said. "That will be all right."

"Coffee to drink?"

"Yes, coffee."

The waitress disappeared and returned with the food. Fifteen minutes later she was back again. "Is there anything wrong with the steak?" she asked. "Don't you like it?"

Janet looked down at her plate. She had not eaten so much as a mouthful. "There's nothing wrong with it," she said. "I'm—I'm just not hungry."

She raised the cup of coffee to her lips and drank some. It was cold and tasted bitter.

"If you don't like it I can get you something else," the waitress volunteered.

A few minutes later Janet paid her check and went out into the street. She had not been in the restaurant more than 20 minutes but in that time night had descended. The street was as dark as it would be hours later. It was cold, too. Janet pulled her coat collar more closely about her throat.

There, almost where she was standing, was the place Rolf had stood. It was there he had said those terrible things. "You don't want to marry me. You care more for your job! We'd never make a go of it—"

There were no tears in Janet's eyes now, but her hand rose as though to brush away the memory of that scene. She had said terrible things, too. She had told Rolf she never wanted to see him again. She had said she wouldn't marry him. Well, he had gone. Their engagement was ended. It was all over. Everything!

She walked to the corner, turned into Center avenue and headed toward the safety zone where the street cars stopped. She had almost reached it when she paused.

"Janet," she heard someone calling. "Oh, Janet—"

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

The new pastel shades in clothes this spring call for a definite kind of make-up.

Neutral colors such as gray, beige, string, ecru, and all the "dirty pastels" are going to be dearest to you unless your make-up is just right.

It stands to reason that if clothes are duller in shade cosmetics will have to be brighter. These neutral shades take away much of the natural color from your skin and so your first consideration should be a powder which will put some of it back. There is a new peach bloom powder which does just that.

Peach bloom powder has plenty of rich warm yellow warm quantity of healthy rose tone in it. Rachel powder has long been popular and peach bloom is really rachel stepped-up to meet the color demands this year. It will give your skin a healthy glow and do much for your clothes as well as your complexion. Remember that dull powder is better than shiny now-a-days.

You need more make-up with neutral colored clothes. But don't forget that the use of more of it calls for a careful blending. Bright colored rouge and lipstick daubed on in irregular spots and blotches is worse than none at all. There is a poppy shade of rouge and lipstick which was originally designed for navy blue but it is simply charming with gray and the beige tones. It is exactly the shade of a wild poppy and, incidentally, blends well with peach bloom powder. It gives your cheeks and lips a healthy glow if used properly.

If you have a navy blue suit for Easter try using poppy rouge and lipstick with it. Add a touch of the navy blue to your lips to use the navy blue and red poppies to your lips and see how smart the effect will be.

Red is good with gray so you can use the poppy make-up with it. But you don't have to wear red accessories, nor use either, to use the navy blue and red poppies to your lips and see how smart the effect will be.

A BOOK A DAY

IF YOU SAIL BY THE FIRE

By BRUCE CATTON

In "Log of the Sea, Felix Riesenbergs looks back at the life he lived as a sailor before he swallowed the anchor, came ashore and became, among other things, a novelist."

If you have read his "Under Sail" you don't need to be told that he is one of the best living writers on seafaring topics. He served his apprenticeship under sail, rounded the Horn on a three-kyssail yarder, as he proudly informs us, survived the transition to steam and developed the ability to tell of his experiences entertainingly.

Consequently, if you like stories of the sea you are advised not to miss "Log of the Sea."

It is a collection of short sketches. Some of them are almost too light for preservation in book form, but their general level is very high.

Mr. Riesenbergs tells, for instance, of the old training ship St. Marys, and the way in which it turned the boys into competent sailors. He rambles from that to a discussion of the famous oil liner St. Louis, the "lucky ship" which served in two wars and carried passengers and freight across the Atlantic for a quarter of a century.

He tells what it is like to sail on a coasting steamer, discusses the sinking of the Vestris—remarkably acidly that passengers on modern liners aren't nearly as safe as they think they are—and says that he owns a bottle of 1812 port taken from the British frigate Maedonian after its capture by Decatur.

Rambling and informal, his book will be good fare for the great race of arm-chair sailors. Published by Harcourt, Brace and Co., it costs $3.

MARVELOUS MANHATTAN

By WILLIAM GAINES

New York—Doubt it if you want to, but this happened. I saw it.

A theatrical fellow wouldn't stand up to get his picture taken by a room full of newspaper photographers, because he said, he was too tired.

And Ray Henderson, the song writer from Buffalo, was pretty well worn out. He's a producer now, you know—with his old pal and co-author of hit tunes, Lew Brown of New Haven. He had just been snatching at sleep, a few hours out of the 24, in the rehearsal grind for their new show.

He came into his office and found it full of camera men, waiting to shoot one of the stars in the production. As Ray fell onto a couch, the photos decided it would be a good idea to get a picture of him, too.

"Please excuse me, men, I'm so tired, really—" and almost before Henderson finished his apology he was snoring a tune which won't be in his new score.

Comets Bite

Musicians speak of the ear blasting that comes from the horn at close quarters as the instrument's "bite."

"If you've ever been bitten by a cornet," says Jack Kenny, the orchestra leader, "you know it's pretty terrible."

"The fellow always carried a cornet under his arm and, in a very apologetic manner, he would ask permission to play. He said he was no virtuoso, so if the patrons were change and spare them the annoyance of listening to him."

"Nearly every one of the theatrical crowd that dined there would laugh off the racket and give him something to get rid of him. But one night one of the group asked the horn toter to play them a tune.

"But," said the nuisance, "I'm afraid I'll disappoint you. I'm only a poor player and my instrument is very inferior."

"Don't worry about that, old man," was the comeback, "we are all waiting to hear you."

"Well," the fellow confessed, "since you are so insistent, I'll have

It's a bit touching the way some actors grow so fond of "properties" they use in their stage business. I have in mind Chic York and his rubber horse.

HOW MODERN WOMEN LOSE FAT SAFELY

Gain Physical Vigor—Youthfulness With Clear Skin and Vivacious Eyes That Sparkle With Glorious Health

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—in 4 weeks get on the scales and note how many pounds of fat have vanished.

Get a bottle of Kruschen Salts—the cost is trifling and it lasts 4 weeks. If even this first bottle doesn't convince you this is the easiest, safest and surest way to lose fat—if you don't feel a superb improvement in health—so vigorously energetic—vigorously alive—your money gladly returned.

But be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at J. H. Quinn & Co., So. Manchester—or any drugstore in the world.—Adv.

But his wife was bitter and depressed. The two little girls had had to give up private school and music, and their friends. Their mother, noticing their unhappy faces getting sadder from day to day, attributed it to the jolt of separation.

It broke her heart to see them wearing their coats two seasons, and shabby shoes, and every day she said over and over again: "You poor darlings, to think you should have to suffer so. Your father is so blind. Can't he see how miserable we all are? How can he go about whistling and smiling with his family in such misery?"

Nights brought stormy scenes and no care was taken to have them in private. The girls knew about every bill that was being dunned, there wasn't any corner of their affairs they were not fully aware of. Talk of the sheriff or constables, starvation and that dread word revolution, whatever that meant, colored their lives. And above it all the tragic faces and tears of their mother. Even their father began to look grim and desperate, chiefly after those quarrels with his wife.

Their mother was mistaken. The cause of her children's pallor, their loss of appetite, and bewildered faces was the whole unhappy environment of their home. Not because they had had to move and wear shabby clothes, not because they had had to give up their school, or their friends.

Children adjust themselves with remarkable ease at that age to new surroundings. They made other friends in the new school. Their apartment was cozy and comfortable. Indeed, they were still able to live on a scale that preserved self-respect and normal home life.

Their mother was the one who, by perpetual grief, turned their world that should have been a merry one into a dailyquisition. And, of course in time they absorbed the idea that they must be miserable.

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famed Authority

WRY NECK MAY BE DUE TO DIFFICULTY IN SIGHT

By DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

When a child's neck appears to be twisted so that the head leans or is tilted toward one shoulder or the other, it is said to have a wry neck or twisted neck.

There are various causes for this condition. Sometimes an accident at birth may be responsible. This is apparently due to the fact the muscles on one side have contracted.

The expert who takes care of the patient can relieve this contraction in various ways. Sometimes an infection will get into the muscles of the neck, and, by producing pain, tenderness and swelling, cause pulling of the head to one side or the other.

Again a twisted neck may be due to a tuberculous infection of the bones of the spine in the neck region. There may be also paralysis of the nerves which stimulate these muscles and such paralysis may bring about twisting.

Finally, as Dr. I. M. Levin points out in a recent discussion of the subject, twisting of the head may result from difficulties of vision or imbalance of the muscles of the eyes, which cause the child to use one eye much more than the other, and to twist its head in order to focus the eye properly. This may occur also in case of double vision due to some difficulty of proper accommodation of the eyes to seeing.

There have been a considerable number of cases of this type which have been treated by all sorts of measures applied to the muscles of the neck, but which were not corrected until the eyes were investigated. In one case it was not noticed that the eyes were not properly balanced until the neck was straightened and the head held rigid by means of the braces, whereupon one of the eyes promptly turned upward.

It is, of course, realized that prolonged twisting of the head in one position finally results in changes in the muscles, the ligaments and the bones which may be permanent, and there may be even brought about a twisting of the whole face.

In such conditions it is necessary for the authority in diseases of the eye to combine his attention with that of a specialist in bones, muscles and joints, so that not only will the condition of the eyes be relieved, but also proper attention paid to readjustment of the nerves, muscles and bones.

Exciting Game in Prospect As Old Rivals Clash At Armory; Locals Won First Tilt, 36-26, But Visitors Should Furnish Tough Opposition.

Manchester High's final basketball game of the season against Windham High at the State Armory tomorrow should be one of the most exciting and interesting encounters on the 1932-33 slate, despite the fact that the Red and White turned back Willimantic, 36-26, in the Thread City.

Several factors support this contention. Windham comes here claiming a record of nine victories and two defeats this season and is a possible selection for the Yale Tournament at New Haven. Add to this the fact that Manchester High's basketball team has suddenly come to life in the past two games, upsetting Rockville and Middle-town High in succession.

ALL ST. JAMES WINS

The All-St. James Five defeated St. Mary's School of East Hartford in a fast and exciting game at St. James School Hall Tuesday night, 21-18. St. Mary's never were in the lead, trailing 9-3 at the end of the first quarter, 9-4 at halftime, and 14-11 at the end of the third quarter.

The last quarter was very exciting, off with Carey of St. Mary's scoring four baskets to make the score 19-18. Then with seconds left to play, St. James Five combined speed and a fast passing attack to bring the ball under the basket. Then Giglio passed the ball to Woodhouse, who tossed in the winning basket. Giglio and Woodhouse divided the scoring honors for St. James, while Carey played best for St. Mary's.

CRISLER CUT DOWN DANGER OF INJURY IN ONLY ONE YEAR

Princeton Coach Installed Methods of Physical Training That Attracted Wide Interest.

(Note: Fritz Crisler not only has rebuilt Princeton's athletic morale but installed methods of physical conditioning that have cut down the danger of injuries, especially on the gridiron. His contributions to football in this respect have attracted national-wide interest. They are described herewith in the final chapter of a series of stories on the Tiger athletic revival.)

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
Princeton, N. J., March 2.—(AP)—A year ago this spring "Fritz" Crisler put his first Princeton football squad through early practice, and the boys came out of a month's drilling with as complete a corp of injuries as the new head coach ever has seen. Scarcely a man on the small squad wound up with both knees in good working order. There were many ankle hurts, strained ligaments.

Preventative Exercises
Puzzling over this problem, the greatest that American football faces because of the toll of injuries and deaths that have lately ranged between 30 and 50 yearly, Crisler came up with an answer in the form of preventative exercise. Not only has this almost eliminated injuries from Princeton football, but it has contributed as well to the athletic system that has brought about such a surprising return to power of all Tiger sports in the short period of one year.

As the basis of a "train by mail" program, Crisler sent every squad member six diagrams, pictures of exercises designed to strengthen ankles and knees, the latter a joint nature left with little muscular protection against hurts that come so often to dodging ends and twisting half backs.

Skilfully also he rebuilt the broken Tiger morale with frequent letters to the squad through summer, laying down caustic definitions of what did and did not constitute the type of player Princeton needed in the crisis. Just as carefully he laid out a routine of training, practice and diet that brought every man back for the late Sept. 15 start fit and ready.

"There was nothing remarkable in that," Crisler said. "The boys were conscientious. There is nothing in such a system that violates the spirit of the dual agreement which barring organized conditioning and practice before Sept. 15. I believe they do similar things at both Yale and Harvard. It must be done if boys are to stand up under the rigors of a heavy schedule. It is just common sense.

In his letters were the following instructions:
"Be ready for scrimmage the opening day. There'll be no fooling with men not physically fit. Kicking, passing, catching, dodging must be perfected during the summer. Endurance is the key element for the second round and a play-off for the League Championship will be held. The Fillers hold two victories over the Oxford and have split with the North Ends one game apiece during the season.

The Tigers' Merz's Fillers game started out with the Fillers running up a good lead and the game looked as if it would be a free scoring battle. The Tigers cut down the lead in the third quarter and took the lead for about a minute in the last quarter. The Fillers came back to take the game with two successive baskets with a few minutes to play.

Watch your diet. No fried foods, chocolate, candy, bananas, coffee, ice water. Drink weak tea with three regular meals, lots of water in between, an apple before bed time. Eat once a day, lots of roughage, cereals, fruit, but no cabbage. Too hard to digest.
"If you're not in shape after that," he wrote them, "don't blame me."
Nobody did. As Princeton, with magnificent revival of its old-time spirit, rallied from the 1931 push-over days on the gridiron, not a single ankle or knee injury appeared. It was one of the most remarkable single developments of the new "Crisler system," which has now been reflected in nearly every sphere of Princeton athletic activity and put the Tigers back into their winning stride all along the lines.

TORRINGTON UPSETS LOCAL TRADE, 32-18

Mechanics Swamped By TIGERS ONLY HALF GAME BEHIND YALE

Wallops Columbia, 35-24, To Close Gap In Court League Standing.

Manchester Trade School's basketballers encountered unexpected opposition from Torrington Trade yesterday afternoon in a return game at Torrington and bowed in defeat by an overwhelming score of 32 to 18. The local Mechanics won the first game here, 41 to 29.

Torrington took the lead from the outset and was never headed, leading 9-5 at the end of the first quarter, 17 to 7 at halftime, 22-12 at the end of the third period and garnered enough points in the final quarter to remain in front by a comfortable margin. Manchester seemed unable to get started and could not cope with the home team's aggressive attack.

Szeszkowski featured for Torrington, getting half of his team's total points. Kelsch and Kovit featured for Manchester. Tomorrow afternoon the Mechanics will tackle the Herald Newsies at the school street Rec. playing both the senior and junior teams. This contest was arranged to replace the American School for the Deaf, who cancelled their game because of illness at the school.

Sweepstakes To Aid Charter Oak Girls

Bowling Event Tomorrow Night For Benefit of Local Team; Special Match To Be Rolled At 7 O'Clock.

Before the benefit sweepstakes for the Charter Oak Girls bowling team at the Charter Oak alleys tomorrow night, the girls will bowl a special exhibition match at seven o'clock against Superintendents Yerks and Friday of the A and P stores and Superintendents Johnston and Nelson of the First National stores.

The sweepstakes, open to men and women, will start promptly at 8:30 o'clock but entries will be received up until 10 o'clock. Women will bowl first and will be given handicap so that they will have a chance for the prizes.

The proceeds of the sweepstakes will be turned over to the Charter Oak girls to assist in defraying the expense of competing in various state tournaments. The girls have one of the best teams in the state and recently set several records in the State League. Manager Joe Farr expressed the hope that local bowlers would turn out in large numbers tomorrow night to lend their assistance in making a successful season for the Charter Oak Girls.

Pasadena, Calif., March 2.—(AP)—Instead of waiting until March 12 to report to the Chicago White Sox, Al Simmons probably will join his new mates by the end of this week.

Avon, Calif., March 2.—(AP)—Satisfied that the recently arrived members of the second squad can stand the work, Manager Charley Grim and intra club games scheduled for the Chicago Cubs today and tomorrow, in preparation for the invasion of the New York Giants Saturday and Sunday.

Biloxi, Miss., March 2.—(AP)—Manager Joe Cronin of the Washington Senators doesn't want any lead motion, such as a catcher planting himself with a step back-wards, before pegging the ball. So Cliff Bolton was given a bit of instruction on how to step up a stride, and let the ball fly for the batter.

Los Angeles, March 2.—(AP)—Melvin Ott is ranked among the real veterans of the New York Giants as he starts his eighth major league season, but he is having a hard time convincing the Los Angeles fans who see him for the first time. Ott won't be 24 years old until tomorrow. He was only 16 when he joined the Giants and has never played with any other professional team. Only Manager Bill Terry and Travis Jackson have been with the Giants longer than Ott.

Unexpected Development

Cancels Exhibition Game Next Week; Guards and Rocs Agree To Start Series At Once; First Game At School Street Rec.

An unexpected cancellation of the exhibition game scheduled for next week by the National Guards has caused a change in the date of the annual town basketball series and the first game will be played at the School Street Rec. next Tuesday night instead of the week following. The Guards had planned to bring Susie Sponseller, famous girl basketball player, and her Leavittsburg, Ohio, team here next Friday but developments late yesterday caused the game to be cancelled.

The team was to have played the Aetna Life girls in a return game next Tuesday. Late yesterday Coach Adrian Brennan received the following wire: "Very unexpected development prevents Sponseller playing. Disastrous late yesterday caused the game to be cancelled. Situation regrettable but unavoidable. Air mail letter on route."

Manager Jimmy Neill of the Guards was greatly disappointed as he felt that local fans would have been pleased to see the sensational Miss Sponseller in action. However, he lost little time in getting in touch with Rec Five officials, who immediately agreed to start the series next Tuesday.

CORNELL TO ENTER SMALL TRACK TEAM

Ithacans Expect To Collect Points In Intercollegiate Saturday.

Ithaca, N. Y., March 2.—(AP)—Cornell's track and field squad, under the new "cash and carry" system in vogue here, will be the smallest Ithacans have ever sent to the intercollegiate indoor championships, scheduled this Saturday night in New York, but Head Coach Jack M. Oakley has hopes of seeing his boys collect a respectable point total.

The list is headed by Joe Mangano, captain and co-holder of the I. C. A. A. A. outdoor mile title. Cornell expects a tryout with Bill Bontrush, Princeton ace, and Frank Nordell of New York University, among others.

Other prospective place-winners include Beloff, who has cleared 13 feet 4 inches in the pole vault and is one of the few likely to give Yale's great trio any opposition; Burns, 1932 scorer in the broad jump; and Merwin, sophomore hurdler who has shown sensational form.

Cornell won the I. C. A. A. A. indoor team title in 1922, 1928 and tied Pennsylvania for first place in 1930.

Huge Russian Power Dam Ready For Dedication To Soviet Industry

The world's largest hydro-electric plant has been erected on the Dnieper river in the Ukraine republic of the soviet union under supervision of Col. Hugh L. Cooper (right). The roaring spillway is pictured above. How the dam and its generating plant will form a source of power for the neighboring industries is shown in sketch.

(By The Associated Press)

Power! To get the power necessary for her gigantic schemes of industrialization, soviet Russia has built Dnieprostroy, the greatest hydro-electric plant in the world drawing its energy from a dam 140 feet high, which impounds the drainage of 170,000 square miles.

The dam, soon to be formally opened, is Russia's biggest construction. But the soviet union plans to build another dam at Volgastrof that will have a capacity three times Dnieprostroy's and will irrigate 10,000,000 acres.

Power has been the cornerstone of Russia's industrialization program. Since 1920 more than a score of large central stations and many smaller stations have been erected.

Science Finds That Heating Walls Keeps Person Warm In Cool Air

Basketball

East Pittsburgh, Pa.—(AP)—Keeping warm in cool air... Snappy outdoor air to breathe in a house heated by the sun.

These two seemingly impossible combinations are partly successful in a new type of room under observation in the laboratories of the Westinghouse company here.

Most persons know only two of the three ways their bodies stay warm and miss the third one with which Dr. Schad is experimenting.

They know that warm air is one necessity and proper moisture another. They do not know that their bodies also radiate away heat in rays traveling with the speed of light.

Heat Lost Three Ways Keeping warm depends on how fast heat is lost by all three methods. This loss, in standard American clothing, is found by scientific authorities to be divided into 46 per cent through the fast traveling rays, 30 per cent by convection, that is in the air currents circulating over the skin, and 24 per cent in latent heat.

Ordinary heating systems are limited mostly to warming the air, the 30 per cent factor, and regulating the moisture, the 24 per cent loss. They omit the biggest loss of all, the 46 per cent radiation.

These speeding bodily radiant rays are not very hot. So Dr. Schad estimated that if a person could be surrounded by something just warm enough to radiate similar rays back to the body the 46 per cent would be reduced. To test this he built a room whose walls were electrical heating panels.

His theory worked successfully to the extent that when the air was cooled to 63 degrees and the walls heated to 80 scores of persons said the comfort was just right. Troubles developed in regulating air currents in such an "unbalanced" heat. They have been only partly ironed out. Practical means of heating with economical costs are still to be found.

But Dr. Schad thinks these experiments point to a new era of comfort indoors, which will come when science has perfected enough of new materials and new processes. The "radiant" heating has been tested also with portable, heated screens and temporary panels.

To touch such a surface with the hand, Dr. Schad says, "one hardly gets the impression that it is heated at all. Yet with such devices in a room the air may be delightfully cool to breathe and if it were not for this almost imperceptible gentle source of radiant heat would be actually too cool for comfort."

Father's Day is always the third Sunday in June.

KIDNAPING VICTIM BACK HOME AGAIN

phoned him the ransom had been met.

Left in Stockyards The kidnapers turned Boettcher out of a motorcar in the stockyards district last night and ordered him to "walk around the block and you'll find a telephone."

Boettcher, who said he was blindfolded during the entire 404 hours of his captivity, complied and telephoned his home from a drugstore. Police, who despite reports of a breach with the family were being kept informed of progress in the case, went into action and within a few minutes had engaged in a running gun battle with a car believed to contain the kidnapers. The car escaped.

Boettcher was taken to the home of a friend where Chief Clark questioned him. Then he was taken home to bed.

Father Excited The elder Boettcher, apparently excited, drew a revolver and threatened police and reporter who were congregated in front of his home when he returned from a reunion with his son.

"Get back or I'll shoot," he cried. Patrolman Ralph Fairley drew his pistol while the others dispersed. A friend disarmed the father and later he apologized.

Young Boettcher first telephoned his mother, Mrs. Milson McCormick from the drugstore. She called two friends of her son, Dr. Jack Foster and Norman Barwise, and they sped to the spot and picked him up. He was taken to the home of Sidney Blinshelmer, a friend, and there he met Chief Clark and his father.

Boettcher told the chief the men ordered him to count 150 before taking the bandage from his eyes. In this he complied, he said. He said he was blindfolded immediately after he was kidnaped and that the abductors drove a night and a day before stopping. This verified notes sent his father by him while he was a captive.

The blindfold consisted of strips of adhesive tape tightly fixed to his skin. They were removed only when he wrote notes to his father. Then, he said, the men stood behind him. He saw neither of the men who held him prisoner.

"It was late in the evening when we arrived at the house, of which I can give no description," he said.

"The air and floor seemed damp, so I believe it was in a basement. "On the trip to the house one of the men would stop and guard me when we needed gasoline and the other would walk to a filling station. At no time during my captivity did I contact more than the two men who took me away originally.

"They were agreeable enough and I suffered no harm at their hands. When we arrived at the house they cooked meals and I was free to eat at any time and almost whatever I ordered.

"Tuesday night we began the trip which resulted in my release."

With his son safe, the elder Boettcher early today talked guardedly of the case.

Not End of Case. "This is the beginning, not the end of this case," he declared. "I might say that this is the end of one story and the beginning of another. What the outcome of the second story will be remains to be seen."

He had previously vowed to devote the rest of his life and his fortune to punishment of the kidnapers if they harmed his son.

Release of the young man ended one of the greatest searches ever conducted in Denver and vicinity.

Armed with all types of weapons, Denver police and officers of surrounding counties spread in all directions in search of the kidnapers. Sheriff Lee Templeton of Adams county hailed a carload of men and attempted to trail them. The men opened fire and the officers returned it, pursuing the fleeing car for several miles, Templeton said.

Young Boettcher, in a statement to Chief Clark, said he did not know whether his prison was in the mountains or on the prairie, but believed it was isolated since he heard no sound. One man remained with him constantly and there never were more than two men present. He occasionally heard the voice of a third man, he said. The abductors refused to allow him to shave, but one of them shaved him once.

Blindfold Removed When he was asked to write to his father his blindfold was removed and he was seated in a corner with instructions not to turn around. His arms and legs were never bound, he said.

His first letter was written after the kidnapers told him they saw in the newspapers his father was worried about his health and safety.

"You'd better write him," he quoted them as saying. They did not explain to him, he said, the reason for his kidnapping.

Boettcher wore a four-day growth of beard when he was released. His clothing was soiled and his collar was wilted. He said the men permitted him to undress when he retired at night.

Ransom Not Mentioned Late Tuesday night, he said, the men came to him and said: "Charlie, we're going to take you back and turn you loose." No mention was made of ransom at that time, he said.

The trip back consumed about the same time as the outward journey, but he was unable to determine the nature of the terrain or the route followed. He only knew, he said, that the roads were good.

Search for the kidnapers extended today to northern Colorado and Wyoming a short line after Sheriff George Carroll of Cheyenne, with two deputies, arrived here to participate in the hunt.

Detectives emerged from a conference with Chief Clark and the Wyoming sheriff and after arming

THE TINYMITE'S

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Through great, big trees the Tinies walked. For quite a time nobody talked. Then Scouty said, "I'm frightened, lads. Where can poor Duncy be?"

"He fell asleep to sleep till dawn. Then, suddenly, the lad was gone. Just why he left our daisy tent's a mystery to me."

"All we can do is move along. If our direction is not wrong, we're sure to find him shortly," answered Windy, with a frown.

"I understand why you're upset, but we can't give up all hope, yet. If he's hiding in a tree, I hope he topples down."

"You see, I do not think it's fair to give us all this awful scare. We're lucky that the lightning bugs are giving us their light."

Just then the sun rose o'er a hill, which gave the Tinymites a thrill. "You lightning bugs can go now," Scouty said. "We'll be all right." And so the bright bugs flew themselves with machine guns left hurriedly. Clark admitted they were going northward. "Our hottest leads have come from that territory," he said.

billion—which he has promised to save, but a big sum. For the full reduction more power must be had later, or Congress itself must build the axe.

Under the economy plan, now in final stages of Congressional agreement, this is what the President can do.

Abolish any executive agency of the government except the ten departments represented in the Cabinet. He may merge, transfer or abolish any and every one of the bureaus comprising these departments, so long as they do not leave empty shells.

The Real Limit He cannot abolish functions. That is the real limit on his power, for it means he must keep a staff and permit money to be spent for carrying out every job Congress has ordered by law. But there is nothing in the act to prevent abolishing the separate identity of, for instance, such huge bureaus as the Veterans' Administration or the Interstate Commerce Commission, and shifting their work and such personnel as must be retained, to some other authority.

In reserving a veto power over the President's orders, Congress made its application almost impossible.

Called Dictatorial The power, therefore, has been called by many dictatorial. It is far wider than that given to President Hoover last year, and its application is certain to bring howls of protest from countless interested groups. But the next President has offered cheerfully to shoulder all that.

One possible combination in the general reorganization might be a National Transportation Commission, combining into the I. C. C. the Shipping Board and the Aeronautics Division of the Commerce Department, and its various Marine bureaus. The combination could be carried further by tying all these to the Post Office Department, adding the Radio Commission for a Department of Communication. There has been no evidence, however, that this particular combination is in prospect.

There is a definite idea here that the swarm of big and small agencies dealing with farms, farm mortgages, land settlement, etc., is to be condensed into the Agricultural Department.

"This time was Duncy heard his name and right up to the bunk he came. 'Where have you been?' snapped Windy. 'Why, you filled us all with fear.'"

"Don't fret," said Duncy. "I'm all right. You see, I woke up in the night and heard a funny sound. I wondered what it was."

"And then I jumped up from the ground, deciding I would look around. It didn't take me long to find out what produced the buzz."

"A little locust you can see, and he's as busy as can be. He's swaying little twigs up and he never stops to rest."

"I asked him what the twigs were for and, as he sawed a whole lot more, he said that he was making them for Mrs. Robin's nest."

"Scouty helped Mrs. Robin with her nest, in the next scene."

SENSE AND NONSENSE

Some men never appreciate their children so much as in making out their income tax.

Don't judge a man by his family relations, for Cain belonged to a good family.

Don't judge a man by the clothes he wears: God made one and the tailor the other.

Don't judge a man by his speech, for a parrot talks, and the tongue is but an instrument of sound.

Don't judge a man by his failures in life, for many a man fails because he is too honest to succeed.

Don't judge a man by the house he lives in, for the lizard and the rat often inhabit the grandest structures.

Judge him not by his acts alone, but by the motives of those acts.

In this fickle day and age, girls seem to be more interested in getting a good permanent wave than they are in getting a permanent husband.

Friendly Tip: If you want to get a real kick out of a bridge game, take your wife for a partner.

Mixed Pickles . . . Perhaps radio sermons are popular because there is no collection taken . . . The modern wife seems to be able to get to sleep in two minutes and talk a husband awake all night . . . The words "Find check enclosed" are entirely superfluous if the check is really in there . . . The man who actually makes a living is something of a success. We realize this today, quite keenly . . . Smoking less may rest your nerves but it don't work in the case of factory chimneys . . . A man who begs soon gets to feeling that he is only asking for a small part of what the world owes him . . . When you see a fellow strutting his stuff, he is trying to make folks believe he is what he isn't . . . If a woman hasn't anything else to worry her, she can claim her hair is coming out by handfuls . . . We have discovered that it never is wise to interrupt a wife when she is telling you something for your own good . . . Maybe education pays. But the land has more college graduates than ever before, and look at us . . .

Friend—What have you done?

Farmer—Planted onions and potatoes in alternate rows. The onions will make the eyes of the potatoes water and so irrigate the soil.

Hope To Have Colvin B. Brown Here As Speaker On Friday, March 17. A change in the date of the March all-membership meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be recommended to the meetings committee and Board of Control of the Chamber today, due to the possibility of obtaining a most capable speaker if the meeting is held earlier than scheduled.

Colvin B. Brown, counsel to the commercial department of the United States Chamber of Commerce, is making a business trip in New England and will be in this part of the state in the near future. He will be able to speak here on Friday, March 17 and it is proposed to change the meeting from March 21 to that date.

Mr. Brown has been connected with the national Chamber for eighteen years. He has spoken before more than 1,000 Chambers of Commerce in the United States. This is considered an unusual opportunity to obtain a fine speaker and it is expected that the meeting date will be changed as recommended.

9 FIRES IN FEBRUARY AT THE SOUTH END

Two Box and Seven Still Alarms Answered—Year Ago There Were 17. The South Manchester Fire Department had nine calls for assistance during the month of February, it was stated today by Chief Albert Foy. Two of these were box alarms and seven were still alarms.

The two box alarms were for fires which caused comparatively little damage. One was for a chimney fire and the other for a garage fire, the latter being on Benton street. A year ago there were 17 fires in February, among which was the serious blaze which gutted the Rubinow building resulting in a very heavy loss. This fire took place early in the morning and was featured by dramatic rescues. It was preceded a short time by a fire at Main and Eldridge streets.

Mrs. Beulah Farris, Pochontas of Sunset Council, D. of P., Mrs. Myra Fitzgerald, Mrs. Evelyn Akridge and Mr. and Mrs. Jack White of Glastonbury, went to New London last night for the visitation of the Great Pochontas to the two councils in that town. The supper and meeting was held in Eagle hall and attended by 110, delegations coming from several councils in Massachusetts, Bridgeport, Norwalk, Stamford, Torrington, Bristol.

Slow motion pictures will be shown which give an analysis of stresses and the resulting distortion of parts while a loom is operating at a high speed. The pictures will be of a Crompton and Knowles loom. State officers of the American Vocational Association are to be present. A special invitation is being sent out by Director Eichmann to various town officials.

No Charge The entire program will be conducted without any charge to those who wish to attend. Four games of basketball were played in the Y. M. C. A. building last night, the first getting underway at 8 o'clock and the last game started at 9 o'clock. The North Ends, the team that played last star ball last week, went down to defeat in the opening game against the Oxford by a score of 31 to 18. The Tigers played a hard uphill game to win from the Tigers. The score was knotted up all through the game with the Tigers leading by one point just before the whistle was ready to sound taps, but a long shot on the part of one of the Tigers put in a clean basket to go one in the lead and added another point on a free throw, winning 22 to 19.

The Ramblers took the Wild Cats into their game bag without much trouble and the Buckland team won from the Falcons.
