OVER 1,500 KILLED, THOUSANDS INJURED BY JAP EARTHQUAKE

Tidal Wave and Fire Follows Shocks—Scores of Villages Entirely Levelled; Loss Runs Into Millions.

Tokyo, March 3.—(AP)—More than 1,500 persons are known to have been killed in the earthquake, tidal wave and fire which devastated a section of the northeastern seaboard of Honshu Island, largest of the Japanese archipelago, early this morning.

Damage was expected to total millions of dollars. More than 1,200 persons were reported injured and thousands of their folk lost their boats and nets—their means of livelihood.

The earthquake drove terrified populations of hundreds of communities to the chill streets in the dark when electric currents failed.

Heavy snow began to fall later today in the stricken area compelling relief planes to turn back. Five destroyers, carrying doctors and medicine, are en route.

NATION'S BUSINESS GROWING STEADIER

Percentage of Decline in Retail Sales Constantly Gets Narrower, Is Report.

New York, March 3.—(AP)—A business review issued today under the name of "Dun and Bradstreet, Inc.," representing consolidation of the two old mercantile agencies, said that "the steadier course of trade was somewhat more evident this week."

"It was to be expected that there would be a holding back of prepared programs for expansion, awaiting the settlement of banking disorders, and that reports of betterment would be lacking in uniformity," the review said.

"Further evidence of a greater degree of stability in general business is present in the constantly narrowing percentage of decline of retail sales from last year's figures, both by stores in the large centers of distribution and in the outlying districts. Firmer price levels in some lines have strengthened the movement of trade, with a wider swing in the upward direction swaying a further increase in employment."

"Accumulating facts bear clear evidence that buying restraint in all directions soon must be relaxed."

"While reports of general industrial activities are less encouraging than they were a few weeks back, there is unmistakable evidence that the ground which has been gained is not being ceded without a struggle."

BIG BANK CENTERS ARE NOT WORRIED

Holidays in 23 States Find Them Calm—Say Majority of the Banks Are Sound

By Associated Press

Twenty-three states have now taken protective steps of one sort or another in regards to banks and their depositors.

Action ranged from holidays, mandatory or optional, to legislation giving banks power to limit withdrawals if they deemed it necessary.

Holidays of varying duration were declared yesterday or early today in eight states—Texas, Washington State, Oregon, Idaho, Arizona, Nevada, Utah and Wisconsin.

At Washington, where President-elect Roosevelt is preparing to put his hand to the helm of state and President Hoover is getting ready to relinquish it, the situation was receiving close attention.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, after conferring with Mr. Roosevelt at the head of a delegation of Democratic Senators, said last night "a definite statement on the banking situation and other matters will be forthcoming in the near future."

In authoritative quarters it was reported President Hoover was ready either to issue a statement or send a message to Congress centering on banking conditions and remedies.

Banks Are Sound

In the great money centers of New York and Chicago, as well as in other sections, banking business went on untroubled by difficulties elsewhere. In many of the states where holidays were declared or recommended, business was normal.

President Makes Last Award

A posthumous award of the Congressional Medal of Honor to Ensign Henry Clay Drexler was among the last official awards of President Hoover. Drexler was killed trying to save shipmates in a fire aboard the U. S. S. Trenton. President Hoover is shown presenting the award to Louis A. Drexler of Dover, Del., father of the hero, while retiring Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams stands on the left.

WASHINGTON CROWDED FOR THE INAUGURATION

In Tens of Thousands From Every State of the Union They Pour Into Capital For Imposing Ceremonies.

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—With a cheer on his lips and a prayer of transcendent hope in his heart, the Nation turned its capital city into one vast parade ground today as it prepared to welcome a new Chief Executive amid inaugural tumult unmatched in many years.

In tens of thousands, and from every state, fellow-citizens of Franklin D. Roosevelt were pouring into Washington to see him take up at noon tomorrow the duties of that high office in which Herbert Hoover today was spending his last full working day.

But the death of Thomas J. Walsh touched the hearts of high and low alike, injecting a somber note into the atmosphere of gaiety.

Although the main functions of the inauguration were unchanged, the Roosevelts decided not to participate in any of the purely social activities.

Headed, Cheering Sections

Many of the incoming delegations brought their bands and cheering sections with them. Under a cloud-flecked sky—which the Weather Bureau said would clear by morning—they made holiday

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—After a conference with his administration's financial leaders, President Hoover today authorized a contradiction of reports that he intended to issue before nightfall a statement relative to banking and business conditions.

Almost indirectly, statements came simultaneously from the President through three sources.

Secretary Mills and Governor Eugene Meyer, leaving the White House a few minutes apart, told neither they nor Mr. Hoover, so far as could be seen, could be looked to for a statement today.

TROOPS MUTINY IN JEHOI CITY, IS JAPS' CLAIM

Report Advance Planes Saw Soldiers Pouring Out of Capital Enroute For Passes To China Proper.

Chinchow, Manchuria, March 3.—(AP)—A picture of utter collapse of what is left of China's hold on Jehoi Province, with its troops revolting and leaders fleeing, was brought today to this Japanese headquarters in military and press dispatches.

Major-General Tadashi Kawahara, continuing the Japanese advance on Jehoi City after capturing Pingchuan, only 60 miles eastward, this morning, asserted that the capital's fall was only a matter of hours.

Despite a blizzard, his troops relentlessly continued their drive while Japanese reports said Chinese troops in Jehoi City have retreated and that the city was in chaos.

General Tang Yu-Lin, governor of Jehoi, is missing and Chang Tzu-Hsiang and Wan Fu-Lin, sent to Jehoi by Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang, North China war lord, to command the defense, suddenly departed for Peiping in defiance of orders, these reports said.

Fleeing To China

Despite the snow, two Japanese airplanes were reported to have scouted the capital and confirmed reports that troops were pouring through the city many heading for the passes in the Great Wall to China proper.

The rapid swing of the Japanese over the greater part of the province in little more than a week, hurried by several Chinese leaders transferring their allegiance to the victorious side, has left only a small southwestern slice of Jehoi for the defense of Peiping.

That former Imperial capital, now the seat of the North China government, is believed by foreign observers to be the next objective of the Japanese. They believe Japan must inevitably take Peiping because it controls the main highway from Jehoi City to the provinces which is now practically in Japanese hands.

Pingchuan Falls

Pingchuan, 50 miles east of Jehoi City, and the last important town aside from the capital which the Chinese held, was captured by the Japanese this forenoon. Another Chinese force which was approaching Jehoi City from the north, was last reported still at Chihfeng, 92 miles northward.

Major General Tadashi Kawahara's 16th Infantry Brigade marched into Pingchuan this morning from Yehsin, 22 miles to the northeast. It was the first important town to fall.

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—Connecticut Democrats brushed aside factional differences today as they dropped into the capital to share in the inaugural spectacle.

The "New Guard" which supported President-elect Roosevelt for the nomination before the Chicago convention, was in the majority, but sprinkled through the hundreds of visitors from the Nutmeg State were several scores of "Old Guard" members cheering lustily for the man who defeated their own choice, Alfred E. Smith.

Conference With President Hoover Put Off Until Later In the Day—President-Elect Busy All Day With Conferences; Rumor That Homer Cummings Will Be the Attorney-General.

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—Busy both with weighty matters of state and with personal affairs, Franklin D. Roosevelt had little time today to rest for tomorrow's inaugural ceremonies.

Even before rising in the morning, he received Vice President-elect Garner and other special session plans. Upon arriving at the Capitol utter the visit to the auto of his chief in the Mayflower hotel, Mr. Garner indicated an expectation that the session would be called this month earlier than has been indicated, but he declined to speak for the President-elect.

In making ready to deal both with international and national problems with a minimum of delay, Mr. Roosevelt had several members of his Cabinet by his side one by one, including Cordell Hull, to be secretary of state; James A. Farley, to be postmaster general; and Claude Swanson, to be secretary of the Navy.

Call Deferred

His scheduled formal call upon President Hoover was deferred until after mid-afternoon, having originally been set for midday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt took time aside to convey their personal condolences to the widow of the late Senator Walsh of Montana at the Walsh residence.

While the President-elect was engaged in this ritual consolation, Mrs. Roosevelt looked earnestly at the affairs of the family. As she moved from door to door to see to the comfort of the members of the family, she was constantly besieged by autograph seekers and those seeking her photograph.

A crowd of curious onlookers gathered outside the roped off area leading to the President-elect's suite, guarded by Secret Service men and uniformed police.

Among the callers upon Mr. Roosevelt was Senator Bulkeley of Ohio; Raymond J.oley, to be first assistant secretary of state; and Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, of Polar flight fame.

Harold L. Ives, Chicago lawyer and Roosevelt's secretary of interior, called with a check to pay his respects to his chief.

With the arrival last today of William H. Woodin of New York, the secretary of the Treasury, all the new Cabinet will be here—save for the vacancy caused by Walsh's death.

His place as attorney general will be filled, in all probability, by the early appointment of Homer S. Cummings, of Connecticut.

LEADERS CONFEE

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—President-elect Roosevelt called today on Congressional leaders and his economic advisors today as he prepared for action on both National and International economic problems.

STOCK MARKET PRICES TAKE SUDDEN UPTURN

Active Buying Movement Develops Shortly Before Noon—Prices in Leading Issues Climb $1 To $4.

New York, March 3.—(AP)—Shares rallied swiftly on the New York Stock Exchange today as an active buying movement got underway shortly before noon.

Prices of many leading issues climbed $1 to $4 or more under a wave of buying which followed the quotation facilities of the Exchange following putting the ticker a couple of minutes behind actual trading on the floor.

Wall street was at first perplexed by the sudden rally which followed a lower opening. Brokers variously attributed the swift advance to expectations of constructive news relative to the general banking situation. They also pointed out the huge expansion in currency circulation reported for the week ended Wednesday had been received calmly and that initial offerings of shares, in small blocks, had been readily taken.

Shorts found themselves badly pinched in a number of shares. American Telephone, for example, which opened at $95.62 off $2.25, shot above $101 for a net gain of $5.38. Allied Chemical climbed $4 to $78.50.

Other Prices

United States Steel Common rallied $2 to around $27; Union Pacific $4 to $71.50; J. I. Case more than $2 to above $35; Aitchison, To

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—The most speaker of the House—Representative Rainey of Illinois—today made plans for divesting that high office of much of its power and giving it to the Democratic majority.

A steering committee is to be formed. Rainey announced last night soon after his nomination to caucus, which henceforth will shape the policies of the House.

"Our failures in the '22 Congress, what few there have been, have been entirely to the fact that the direction of policies has come entirely from the Speaker's chair," he said. "From now on it will come from the Democratic Party."

Rainey, white-haired, 73-year-old veteran in the House, will succeed John N. Garner, the vice president-elect. He was chosen over Representative

PLAN COMPROMISE ON WAGE CUT BILL

Senator Bergin Appointed On Committee To Discuss Problem—Dull Session.

Hartford, March 3.—(AP)—Senator Frank S. Bergin was appointed member of a committee of conference to discuss a possible compromise on the wage cut bill, which was amended in the Senate to provide salaries for members of the tuberculosis commission.

The appointment featured an otherwise colorless session in which a large number of routine unfavorable committee reports were received and the bills rejected. No bills were started for action on the calendar.

The wage cut bill, providing for a saving of $2,400,000 to the state for the biennium, was adopted in the House last week with a clause providing that members of the tuberculosis commission receive no salaries. In the Senate an amendment, voting the commissioners salaries of $2,150 was included, with the Senators voting on strictly party lines. The House refused to reconsider its former action.

Many empty seats were noted throughout the Senate chamber. Senator Huxford of Fairfield presided in the absence of Lt. Governor Roy Wilcox.

Favorable Report

A resolution approving Clyde A. Clark deputy judge of the Windsor Town Court was reported favorably. Three bills making reductions in the interest rate on unpaid taxes, reported unfavorably by the finance committee were rejected without discussion when Senator Cooney re-

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—The special session of the new Congress apparently will be called early this month.

Returning to the Capitol today after conferring with President-elect Roosevelt, Vice President-elect Garner indicated that plans were in the making for getting Congress together much earlier than had first been expected.

Leaders were conferring today on the banking situation, and indications were that it would be dealt with in the special session, but just how was unrevealed.

"Mr. Roosevelt has the information and he can give it to you," Garner said in answer to a question as to whether the special session would be called about March 15.

WALSH'S FUNERAL PROBABLY MONDAY

Ceremonies To Be Held In Capital—President-Elect To Attend the Services.

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—A state funeral for former Senator Thomas J. Walsh will be held at the Capitol probably on Monday and Franklin D. Roosevelt will attend if possible.

Plans were formulated as President-elect and Mrs. Roosevelt paid a call of respect on Mrs. Walsh, the Cuban widow of the man who was slated to be attorney-general in the next Cabinet.

Mrs. Walsh told her visitors she intends to live here in the apartment she expected to share with the former Montana Senator. He died suddenly early yesterday in North Carolina while enroute to the Capitol with his bride after their marriage in Havana last Saturday.

After the funeral services, to be attended by the Capitol's members, Walsh's body will be started for Helena, Montana, for burial Wednesday or Thursday beside that of his first wife, who died in 1917.

Roosevelt has called a meeting of governors for Monday, but he said he hoped to be able to go to the Capitol for the services.

WASHINGTON CROWDED FOR THE INAUGURATION

STATE DEMOCRATS REACH WASHINGTON

"New Guard" In Majority Among First Arrivals At Capital For Inauguration.

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—Connecticut Democrats brushed aside factional differences today as they dropped into the capital to share in the inaugural spectacle.

The "New Guard" which supported President-elect Roosevelt for the nomination before the Chicago convention, was in the majority, but sprinkled through the hundreds of visitors from the Nutmeg State were several scores of "Old Guard" members cheering lustily for the man who defeated their own choice, Alfred E. Smith.

Governor Cross and his staff will not arrive until tomorrow morning. As a result they will miss the brilliant reception at the Pan-American Union tonight for the state executives.

All the other Democratic dignitaries from Connecticut, however, were on hand for the preliminary functions. Homer S. Cummings, believed by many to be Mr. Roosevelt's choice for attorney general to replace the late Senator Walsh, was one of the first arrivals.

National Committee Arrives

Dozens of the visitors swarmed into the office of Senator-elect Loneragan, who was forced to devote the entire day to greeting his friends. Many planned to attend the inaugural concert tonight to hear Rosa Ponselle, a native of Meriden and Metropolitan Opera Star.

Besides Governor Cross, Connecticut will be represented in the inaugural parade tomorrow by the Sedgewick Guard of Waterbury.

RAINEY IS CHOSEN AS NEXT SPEAKER

Illinois Congressman Declares Democratic Party Will Dictate Policies.

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—The most speaker of the House—Representative Rainey of Illinois—today made plans for divesting that high office of much of its power and giving it to the Democratic majority.

A steering committee is to be formed. Rainey announced last night soon after his nomination to caucus, which henceforth will shape the policies of the House.

President Hoover arranged a press conference for mid-afternoon, but whether he would have anything to say at that time could not be ascertained.

Art Director Turns Down $40,000 Bid for Picture

Chicago, March 3.—(AP)—There's a chance of turning a tidy profit of perhaps $40,000 here, and it's going begging.

It has to do with a painting which since 1911 has hung in an inconspicuous place with hundreds of others in the galleries of the Chicago Art Institute.

Until now the world has credited it with being the work of the Dutch artist, Jacob Ochtervelt who lived from 1635 to 1700.

CONGRESS HUSTLES IN PASSING BILLS

Both Senate and House To Work Into the Night To Clean Up Work.

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—Starting early and working with a vim, Congress moved with dispatch today to rid itself of a jam of appropriation bills demanding final action by noon tomorrow.

As the Senate started work at 9:30—two and one-half hours earlier than usual—only five of the eleven measures which provide money for running the government next year had been sent to the White House.

Both the Senate and the House, which met at 10 a. m., worked in unison, however, as soon as the legislative status of the various bills was changing so rapidly difficulty was had keeping up with them.

The Senate adopted the conference report on the Treasury-Post-Office bill, giving the new administration broad powers to reorganize the government, and sent it to the White House.

President Hoover had signed the interior, first deficiency and four-department and legislative bills and has the Agriculture Department measure awaiting his signature.

The remaining five bills all had been passed by the Senate and House and were in conference to adjust differences between the two branches.

It was expected Congress would continue in session into the night and a majority, if not all, of the remaining bills would be jammed through.

The remaining ones carried funds for the war and navy departments, independent office and the second deficiency bill and the District of Columbia.

APPOINT RECEIVERS FOR S. W. STRAUS CO.

New York Dealers In Investment Securities File Involuntary Petition In Bankruptcy.

New York, March 3.—(AP)—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court today against S. W. Straus and Company, Inc., dealers in investment securities, which yesterday consented to appointment of receivers and an injunction restraining it from doing further business in New York state.

Today's petition did not set forth the amount of assets or liabilities, but stated that the company was unable to meet its obligations and asked that receivers in bankruptcy be appointed to protect its creditors.

The company consented to having receivers appointed to handle its affairs and to stop business in this state at the opening of an action begun yesterday in Brooklyn Supreme Court. That action was brought by the state attorney general under the Mart'n Act designed to prevent fraudulent stock sales. William Calder and Robert Moses were appointed receivers by the Brooklyn court shortly before today's action was taken in Federal Court in Manhattan.

POLICE QUELL RIOT

Detroit, March 3.—(AP)—A squad of Detroit patrolmen, called to quell an uprising of picketers, said by officials to number more than 150, at the Mack avenue plant today threw 50 tear gas bombs before they reported the crowd finally was subdued.

Reports to police headquarters said one patrolman and several picketers were slightly injured. Police said the crowd was trying to break into the plant to rescue workmen who were throwing stones at them from upper windows of the plant.

A strike at the Briggs plant was reported ended several weeks ago when 6000 men returned to work. Pickets, however, have been active at the plant since that time.

ROCKVILLE

MRS. LISK SUES CITY FOR ACCIDENT INJURY

Asks Damages of $10,000—Claims Sidewalk Was Defective and She Suffered Bad Fall.

Summons were served in Rockville yesterday on several witnesses who are to appear in the joint suit against the city of Rockville and the owners of the Prescott block brought by Mrs. Emma Lisk of Union street who is claiming damages of $10,000.

The case has been assigned for trial in the Hartford County Superior Court on Tuesday, March 7th, at Hartford.

The city of Rockville will be defended by Judge John E. Flisk, corporation counsel of the city, who will be assisted by Attorney Robert P. Butler of Hartford.

It is alleged in the complaint that Mrs. Lisk was injured because of a defective sidewalk. She claimed that one of the sections of the sidewalk had sunk sufficiently to permit her to trip and fall over the adjoining section. She has been under the care of a physician since the injury according to the complaint. A detailed survey of the section of Park street mentioned in the complaint was made this week by surveyors preparatory to the trial of the case.

Several days are expected to be needed in the trial of the case.

The possibility of a sixteen mill tax rate being recommended to the taxpayers at the regular meeting on Monday evening now seems a possibility. Information to this effect is now available through the Board of Selectmen will not disclose the exact figure until the meeting is called on next Monday evening. This is the same rate and the Board of Selectmen have hopes of having the same rate in the Corporation Tax, which has been a deciding factor in setting the tax rate in the town of Vernon, which includes the city of Rockville. It is the lowest this year in the history of the town.

Indications are that the total amount which the town will receive will not be much in excess of $8,000 whereas a year ago this tax totaled $17,000 and before depression fell as high as $100,000. The average tax for the town to receive in normal times has ranged from $60,000 to $75,000.

The large amount which has been received in the form of a corporation tax is due to the holdings of insurance stocks in large quantities by residents of Rockville and Vernon.

Funeral of Walter P. Eraman, of New Haven, aged 55, who died on Monday evening, following a short illness, was held from the Lucia Memorial Chapel, Grove street, Rockville, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Mrs. Sarah Tierney, a former resident of Rockville, died at her home at St. Peter'surg, Florida, on Tuesday following a short illness. Mrs. Tierney was the widow of Frank Tierney of Rockville and spent many years in this city. She leaves a brother, Andrew Fay of East street, Rockville and another brother, John Fay of Rocky Hill. The body will be brought to Hart-

Asks Damages of $10,000—Claims Sidewalk Was Defective and She Suffered Bad Fall.

Summons were served in Rockville yesterday on several witnesses who are to appear in the joint suit against the city of Rockville and the owners of the Prescott block brought by Mrs. Emma Lisk of Union street who is claiming damages of $10,000.

The case has been assigned for trial in the Hartford County Superior Court on Tuesday, March 7th, at Hartford.

The city of Rockville will be defended by Judge John E. Flisk, corporation counsel of the city, who will be assisted by Attorney Robert P. Butler of Hartford.

It is alleged in the complaint that Mrs. Lisk was injured because of a defective sidewalk. She claimed that one of the sections of the sidewalk had sunk sufficiently to permit her to trip and fall over the adjoining section. She has been under the care of a physician since the injury according to the complaint. A detailed survey of the section of Park street mentioned in the complaint was made this week by surveyors preparatory to the trial of the case.

Several days are expected to be needed in the trial of the case.

The possibility of a sixteen mill tax rate being recommended to the taxpayers at the regular meeting on Monday evening now seems a possibility. Information to this effect is now available through the Board of Selectmen will not disclose the exact figure until the meeting is called on next Monday evening. This is the same rate and the Board of Selectmen have hopes of having the same rate in the Corporation Tax, which has been a deciding factor in setting the tax rate in the town of Vernon, which includes the city of Rockville. It is the lowest this year in the history of the town.

Indications are that the total amount which the town will receive will not be much in excess of $8,000 whereas a year ago this tax totaled $17,000 and before depression fell as high as $100,000. The average tax for the town to receive in normal times has ranged from $60,000 to $75,000.

The large amount which has been received in the form of a corporation tax is due to the holdings of insurance stocks in large quantities by residents of Rockville and Vernon.

Funeral of Walter P. Eraman, of New Haven, aged 55, who died on Monday evening, following a short illness, was held from the Lucia Memorial Chapel, Grove street, Rockville, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. George S. Brookes, pastor of the Union Congregational church, officiated. Burial was in the family plot in Grove Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Sarah Tierney, a former resident of Rockville, died at her home at St. Peter'surg, Florida, on Tuesday following a short illness. Mrs. Tierney was the widow of Frank Tierney of Rockville and spent many years in this city. She leaves a brother, Andrew Fay of East street, Rockville and another brother, John Fay of Rocky Hill. The body will be brought to Hart-

K. OF C. PLAN DANCE JUST AFTER EASTER

Semi-Formal Affair To Be Held in Lieu of Ball—Committee Named.

Campbell Council, Knights of Columbus, plans to hold a semi-formal dance in lieu of a ball this year, it was announced today. Wednesday evening, April 18, the first Wednesday after Easter, has been set as the date for the affair and it is possible that it will be held at the Sunset Ridge Country club, East Hartford, although that has not been definitely established.

The local Knights of Columbus ball is usually an important social event in Manchester and it was with regret that the affair was abandoned this year. However, the committee members made a careful survey of the situation and arrived at the opinion that it would be best to suspend it this year. Later it was thought advisable to hold a semi-formal affair that would, in part, at least, make up for the elimination of the ball.

Those who desire to attend the semi-formal affair asked to get in touch with one of the members of the committee named herewith. Although the committee states that the affair will not be in the nature of a public dance those who care to attend can readily make arrangements by notifying the committee. Those included in the group making arrangements follow: Philip Mahoney, Paul Egan, Walter Hennessey, Henry Viers, Bernard Fogarty, Michael Sheridan, John Rohan, Walter Anderson, and Michael Murphy.

CANNED RATTLESNAKES

Westfield, Mass., March 3.—(AP)—Canned rattlesnake has a "pleasant but odd flavor" according to one member of a local research laboratory staff who "took a chance." After chemical analysis had determined the meat was not otherwise objectionable. The analysis was a routine procedure.

It is hoped experiments to determine the availability of rattlesnake meat have been under way for some time in the belief that its food qualities were excellent.

DOYLE FINED $150

New London, March 3.—(AP)—Daniel J. Doyle of this city pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter, arising from the death of his close friend, Michael L. O'Connell, last Christmas eve, and was fined $150 without costs by Judge John A. Cornell at a specially convened Criminal session of the Superior Court here today.

O'Connell had died from a blow alleged to have been given by Doyle with his fist in an argument which ensued at a fraternal hall here.

COUNTY HOME BAND TO BE HEARD HERE

Women's League of Second Congregational Church To Bring Musicians Here March 12.

The Women's League of the Second Congregational church will sponsor a supper and musical program for Friday evening, March 17, with the music committee, Mrs. James M. Shearer, Mrs. Millard Park and Mrs. William A. Knoda in charge. This committee, through County Commissioner Robert J. Smith, has been able to secure as an attraction the boys' band from the County Home at Warehouse Point.

The band was organized less than two years ago and has made wonderful progress under the leadership of Jack Crawford of this town. The band practices every day and Mr. Crawford gives instruction about once a week. There are upwards of 20 musicians assembled as follows: five cornet players, 3 trombones, 3 saxophones, 2 alto horns, bass and baritone horns, snare and bass drums. The band has played in public on several occasions, but this will be its first appearance in Manchester. The boys range in age from 13 to 16 years.

The music committee in February assumed the task of organizing a volunteer choir of the best singers in the congregation. Their success and enthusiasm has resulted in the co-operation of the members of the Women's League which voted to give a supper and entertainment the proceeds to be used toward the purchase of vestments for the choir.

WOULD ASK LOANS FOR U. S. SCHOOLS

Educators Appeal To Congress To Endorse R. F. C. Loan To Keep Up System.

Minneapolis, March 3.—(AP)—Congress was asked to endorse Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans to the nation's schools in a resolution presented to the Department of Superintendence, National Education Association.

Another resolution submitted at the five day conference on emergency measures for educational relief secured an end asked creation of a national social economic planning council.

The educators requested federal legislation to make both proposals possible.

The suggested national planning council would follow the plan presented to President-elect Roosevelt recently by a group of 220 educators.

The council, consisting of a membership drawn from all professional and industrial fields, would concentrate on coordination of the economic mechanism.

Keynote Resolution. The keynote resolution presented to the conferees by the committee, headed by Superintendent H. J. Gerlin, of St. Louis, urged the American people to "rise to an active protection of the schools because the principle of equal educational opportunity for all is being seriously attacked."

Revision of taxation systems, with a substantial increase in the proportion of educational expenditures borne by the state and Federal governments to assure proper instruction in hard pressed localities was recommended.

Other resolutions urged greater emphasis on the social studies in school and college curricula; deplored the "apparent desire in some quarters to penalize the school in comparison with other governmental functions," and commended the moral disarmament program of the American and British delegations to the disarmament conference proposing study of pacifism in public schools.

Prohibition was not mentioned in the committee report. Last year the Department of Superintendence reaffirmed its faith in the principles of the Eighteenth Amendment.

ARMSTRONG IN COLORFUL ROLE IN STATE FILM

"Billion Dollar Scandal" and "Past of Mary Holmes" Make Up Bill At Local Theater.

Finger Partos ex-convict, ex-prize-fighter and trainer, champion and aviator of one hundred and twenty million people! That's the character around whom revolves the action of "The Billion Dollar Scandal," a well-knit, dramatic, timely melodrama which is one of the pictures today and tomorrow on the double feature program at the State Theater. And Finger Partos, as played by Robert Armstrong is one of the most interesting characters that has come out of Hollywood in a long time.

"The Past of Mary Holmes" with Jean Arthur, Skeets Gallagher and Eric Linden is the story of a mother who had lost her popularity when her son was born. Rex Beach, popular novelist wrote the story.

For Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, the State theater management announces the presentation of the season's greatest cast in a story that pulses with romance, excitement and gaiety in the one picture, "State Fair" with Janet Gaynor, Will Rogers, Lew Ayers, Sally Eilers, Norman Foster, Louise Dresser, Frank Craven and Victor Jory.

The new Radio City Roxy Theater broke all time attendance records for two weeks in New York City recently with "State Fair." The Manchester movie patrons will be pleased to know that the State Theater will soon play such outstanding hits as "She Done Him Wrong" with Mae West and "The Mystery of the Wax Museum" with an all-star cast.

COLORFUL HISTORY OF JEHOI CAPITAL

It Is Traced Back For Centuries To the Days of First Manchu Emperors.

New York, March 3.—(AP)—Jehoi City, which became today China's last bulwark in her defense of Jehol Province, has a colorful history.

It is traced as far back as the days of Genghis Khan, through more recent centuries when the walled city was summer playground of the Manchu Emperors.

Fortions ruins, overrun by weeds and ravaged by decay, are all that remain of the Imperial Palace and temples which until about 100 years ago gave it the name of the "Chinese Fontainebleau."

Amid Jehoi City's pagodas and temples silk-robed potentates, concubines, eunuchs and slaves lived, plotted, fought and died. About the cedar-covered park are the plains where in yet earlier days Genghis Khan led his wild horsemen in battle array to conquer half of Asia.

Winding southward are the flagstones of the once-superb imperial highway to Peking across which the Emperor built the great Potala Temple.

Urged partly by religious motives and the treacherous ambitions of one of their leaders, who wished to remove them from under the suzerainty of Russia and assume full power, the Torgots left their sistered settlements by the Ural mountains and migrated to distant China in 1771.

For seven months the several hundred thousand members of the tribe their camels, their baggage and tents, lumbered across 2,700 miles of icy steppes and torrid valleys. The Torgot horsemen fought savage battles with the avenging Cossacks of Lord McCartney, emissary of King George III of England, and listened graciously to the trade proposals of the British sovereign.

About the gung, or park, rise in a semi-circle a number of majestic temples. Most impressive of these is the p-tala, a fortified Lama temple.

Huge Buddha. Among these religious edifices also is the huge Buddha shrine enclosing a 42-armed, 72-foot high image of the god, and the original brass pagoda.

Claiming he was attacked by Jehoi's temperate climate but actually wishing to keep an eye on the powerful Mongol prince, Emperor Kang Hsi began constructing the villa in 1703.

After his death his son Yung

Chen and later his grandson, the mighty Chien Lung, spent huge sums in further beautifying the spot.

It was during the latter's reign, comparable in splendor to that of Louis XIV of France, that occurred some of the most unusual events in Jehoi's history. Most romantic of these was the Emperor's unhappy love for the lovely Mohammedan princess, Hsiang Fei.

Hearing of her beauty, which had become a byword in distant Asia Minor, the Emperor ordered that she be brought to the Imperial Court at Jehoi.

Sorrowing at the death of her husband, killed as a consequence of the Chinese campaigns in Turkestan, Hsiang Fei scorned the Emperor's attentions.

Fiends For Death. Realizing that the Emperor never would grant her permission to return home, the Princess threw herself lobbying at the Emperor's feet and implored for the mercy of a swift death.

Moved by her sorrow the Emperor granted her death and bade an eunuch lead her to a distant pavilion and consummate her wish by strangulation.

Also during this Emperor's reign occurred the disastrous Torgot funeral march in commemoration of which the Emperor built the great Potala Temple.

Urged partly by religious motives and the treacherous ambitions of one of their leaders, who wished to remove them from under the suzerainty of Russia and assume full power, the Torgots left their sistered settlements by the Ural mountains and migrated to distant China in 1771.

For seven months the several hundred thousand members of the tribe their camels, their baggage and tents, lumbered across 2,700 miles of icy steppes and torrid valleys. The Torgot horsemen fought savage battles with the avenging Cossacks of the Empress Elizabeth of Russia. Finally a tattered handful reached safety within the middle kingdom governed by Chien Lung.

Hartford, March 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Anna Mothes, 50, was fatally hurt last night after being struck by a car driven by Miss Ruthigan Shaker, who claims, according to the police, that Mrs. Mothes stepped out from between two parked cars in Washington street and into the path of Miss Shaker's car. "GENTLEMAN BURGLAR" HELD IN NEW YORK Dressed in Evening Clothes He Tells Police His Specialty Was Robbing Maine Homes.

New York, March 3.—(AP)—A youth respondent in evening clothes was locked up today after police said he confessed being a "gentleman burglar" who looted the homes of two well-to-do Maine men.

Detectives described him as Edward C. Kingsbury, otherwise known as Texas Blackie or Edgar C. Anderson. They said he admitted escaping in 1920 from the Rahway, N. J., Reformatory after serving only 40 days of a seven-year sentence for burglary in Englewood.

Kingsbury, who was held as a fugitive from justice, told how he entered the home of F. G. Deering in Saco, Me., last Monday while the family was asleep. He took things easy in the house from 1 a. m. to 6:30 a. m., he said, eating and drinking.

Then he departed with loot valued at about $15,000. Part of it, two fur coats and $6,000 in jewelry, was found in his furnished room here.

Kingsbury, producing a key to prove it, said that thrice recently he had committed burglary at the home of E. C. Hyde, shipbuilder, of Bath, Me. He admitted serving 18 months in Thomaston, Me., several years ago for burglary. The prisoner, who is addicted to evening clothes and riding habits, was found driving a new coupe which he bought yesterday. When detectives stopped the car early today and arrested him, he told them he was heading for New Hampshire and Maine to continue his operations.

FRIDAY, MARCH 3.
MR. ROOSEVELT

Before the next issue of this newspaper reaches its readers this country will have a new President; a new administration will have assumed power—and responsibility. Never before, in the nation's history has there been a change of government in the face of such critical and bewildering conditions. Never before, since the days of Washington, did the element of partisanship enter so little into the public's contemplation of a forthcoming Presidential election. It is only the occasional individual, if we set aside the professional politicians, who is in the least interested in the effect of Mr. Roosevelt's administration upon the fate of parties. The people have but one thought: Will this new President, working with an ample majority in Congress, prove himself capable of meeting and solving the complex economic problems that confront him? Will he prove himself wise enough and strong enough to bring back a reasonable degree of security and prosperity to the American people? Nobody knows. But everybody, of whatever party, sincerely hopes that the Roosevelt administration will be utterly successful—for the success of the administration and the well being of the nation are but two terms for the same thing. Here is one political adventure that is bound up, to the last moment and the last ounce, with the salvation of the country from the economic morass in which it is foundering. Nothing could be more completely impossible, at this juncture, than a political success traveling side by side with an economic failure.

In such circumstances the significance of political parties dwindles. The only thing that counts is economic vision and pure statesmanship. The country knows, after all, not so very much about what is going on in the mind of Franklin D. Roosevelt. It does feel that he has absolutely unbounded confidence in himself; it believes him to be quite unafraid of uncharted ground; it is pretty well assured that he is unfettered by tradition; it is convinced that he fully realizes that his career and his place in history depend on the last degree upon the measure of his success in solving problems which, so far, have been too big for everybody else. Nowhere is there the slightest suspicion that the incoming President doesn't evaluate the magnitude of his task. What the country doesn't know is whether he is overconfident in the worthiness of whatever solutions he has in mind. It sincerely trusts he is not. There is one thing about this new President that contributes to hopefulness. He is, indeed, self-confident to an almost frightening degree; but there is ground for expectation that he will not prove to be an obstinate man. He has already gained a deserved reputation as a listener. He has the rare capacity of opening his mind and of genuinely weighing the opinion of others. Opinionated stubbornness, so often mistaken for strength by its victims, is a mark of weakness instead. There is reason to believe that the certainly nimble mind of Mr. Roosevelt is not likely to be governed by this shortcoming. He is capable of changing his mind—an attribute, in such times as these, of the utmost value.

A hundred and twenty-two million Americans, Democrats, Republicans, Socialists and Independents alike, are wishing Mr. Roosevelt a completely successful administration. For they know that they must stand or fall with him.

HERBERT HOOVER
 At midnight tonight Herbert Hoover will cease to be President of the United States. He will go down in history, it is fair to say, as the luckiest chief executive that the nation has ever known. Four years ago, as the culmination of a career full of deserved honors, he was acclaimed by the people of this country with such huzzas as have seldom greeted a new head of the nation. His heart beat high in his serene faith that his task was to lead his country on to new heights. He envisioned a land forever freed from the grind of poverty; he saw it to be his duty to guide his fellow Americans in permanent progress toward a higher, spiritual and cultural existence; his only fear was that universal prosperity might lead them away from the truer values and into the softening demoralization of luxurious sloth.

And all the time the cards were stacked against him. Forces of destruction were at work which not he or anyone else suspected. The economic emancipation which he and so many others devoutly believed had come to pass, and whose only need was a few finishing touches, was sheer mirage.

When the crash came President Hoover battled against it with the valor of a brave soldier surprised in his camp, with no sentries out, by an utterly unexpected enemy of overwhelming strength. It was a fight in the dark. Nobody knew what was happening. Nobody could identify the foe nor see the openings in his armor. And when at last the first glint of dawn made the figures of the enemy faintly discernible he found his own army disorganized, demoralized and pulling and hauling at each other rather than at the forces of distress.

In the dimness Hoover, the Chief of Prosperity, never for a moment ceased to deal sturdy blows upon the Vandal of Disaster. He never had time or opportunity for the canny slow plotting of a scientific counter-offensive. His resistance was of the kind that generals make who must slow down the assailant's attack, hold up the assault, until their own forces can be rallied on a new line. Tireless, grimly determined, Hoover has fought on. And in the midst of his sacrificial rear guard action he has been deposed. A new general has been sent up from the rear, fresh and unwearied, reinforced, to take over the defenses hastily thrown up in the midst of a devastating fire.

The profound tragedy of President Hoover's administration does not lie in his heroic struggle against overwhelming odds. It lies, rather, in the failure of so many of his countrymen to render him his due.

Herbert Hoover believed with all his heart and soul in the things in which the propertied, managing classes of this country believed. He was utterly convinced of the rightness and humanity and spiritual soundness of the system under which we were living when he became President. He was, in this, at one with the preponderating intelligences of the country. His conceptions were fine and high. And he stuck to his beliefs and his principles—and sticks to them today. Thousands of his most noisy supporters of four years ago are blaming him for consistently holding to the creed which then made him their idol.

"I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."
 Herbert Hoover has earned the crown of righteousness.

slightest intention of burning any firecrackers, he said.
 "Why the wrath?" asked the newspaperman; "you don't have to do it, do you, just because Sam Wong said you were going to?"
 "Of course I do," replied Charlie in profound scorn. "I do not, what people think about Charlie Lee?"

So Charlie spent a hundred dollars for firecrackers and the building of frames to tie them to. It was a good show. But Charlie never forgave Sam Wong.

Mr. Roosevelt is not a Chinese laundryman. He is not going to submit to having his hands tied in advance in the matter of currency reflation. Arthur Krock, informed Washington correspondent for the New York Times, put it this way in his paper yesterday:

But the report and hope which were strong some days ago that Mr. Roosevelt would give specific pledges of policies in his inaugural address have faded. Hyde Park dispatches, which report him as intending to make no definite anti-inflation promises after he takes the oath on Saturday are generally accepted as reflecting a fact which will not alter. His political advisers here are inclined to believe that his intention is wise, that Mr. Roosevelt should not say something he cannot positively guarantee, and they do not think it certain that he can make good on a pledge that there will be no sort of inflation during his term.

There is nothing for which the people of this country should be more profoundly thankful as the new administration comes into power than for the fact that it will be free to adopt whatever attitude toward the currency question the next few weeks show to be for the good—perhaps the salvation—of the nation. We are facing a most extraordinary crisis in this almost daily extension of bank holidays. Mr. Roosevelt will find himself, at the very outset of his administration, under the absolute necessity of countenancing some sort of inflation as an alternative to a hundred thousand bankruptcies and commercial chaos. He would be unfit for his job if he allowed a cheering section from a blind asylum to chart his course for him.

MR. SMITH'S PARTY
 The Democratic Party, says Alfred E. Smith in his New Outlook "must rid itself of the counsels of the minority of bigots, fanatics, populists, demagogues, and crackpots who masquerade as leaders and give the party a bad name with sensible people—the fanatics who dragged religion and liquor into politics, the populists who blighted the party for so many years with their free silver and economic heresies, the demagogues who support the other party more than half the time and who are without loyalty to person or principle, the mountebanks with their clownish antics and their irresponsible ravings against millionaires and big business."
 From which, we take it, Mr. Smith thinks a pretty good kind of national Democratic party would be one made up of his Tammany Hall friends and the plethoric gentlemen who hold the mortgages on his Empire State Building.

If business would go straight, politics would go straight, too, says a writer. Yes, and if politics would go straight to where most business men say business has gone it would be O. K. with practically every-

EAGER LITTLE HELPERS
 Probably no President-elect ever approached the hour of his inauguration surrounded by a bigger mob of uninvited Little Willing Helpers than Franklin D. Roosevelt. Every publicist, every editor of a financial page, every solemn magazine contributor on economic subjects, who eagerly hopes for the preservation of the gold standard, is thanking God all over the place and at the top of his voice proclaiming that Mr. Roosevelt and all his cabinet are resolutely and determinedly and forever and ever opposed to any "monkeying with the currency"—being animated in all this by the hope that by shouting loud enough and often enough they can make the country believe it—and possibly commit the new President, in the minds of the people, to strict adherence to the existing money system. They appear to be laboring under the delusion that Mr. Roosevelt, like a Chinaman, can be jockeyed into doing something entirely against his will through his devotion to "saving his face."

"Charlie" Lee was a Connecticut laundryman. While he was out of town one late June day a rival laundryman, no friend of Lee's, told a young newspaper reporter that Charlie was going to give a marvelous display of "Chinese fireworks" at a certain public point in the town on the night of July 4, at his own expense. When Charlie got back to town next day and saw the item in print he was fit to be tied. He called on the city editor and blew him up properly. He hadn't had the

Behind the Scenes in WASHINGTON

Washington—Running back and forth between the Senate Finance Committee and the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, a fellow is likely to get all mixed up as to which of our world-famous financiers and other magnates are being called on to tell how to save the country and which ones have gotten themselves into trouble or are being questioned concerning suspicious practices.

The Finance committee is asking 250 or more of the nation's "best minds" to tell it some trick which will make a poor country richer and the Banking committee is questioning other experts about stock market tricks which make rich individuals richer. Sometimes both committees find it necessary to question the same man.

Outside the Banking committee room, where Samuel Insull, Jr., was being questioned about his family's stock deals—Mr. Insull, Sr., being absent and unextraditable in Greece—your correspondent encountered Mr. Oswald F. Schuette, the remarkable ex-war correspondent who recently fought the "radio trust" to a standstill in the courts and has lately tackled the "aluminum trust"—which he says is a comparative pushover.

"Funny thing," remarked Mr. Schuette, "it's only a mere accident, or a few months' miscalculation, that keeps those Insulls from being down at the Finance committee telling it how to save the world. Next year a lot of those witnesses at the Finance committee will be in here explaining to the Banking committee."

Mr. Schuette is a prophet of doom, but your correspondent spent a day between the two committee rooms and came away all mixed up. Perhaps Owen D. Young is mixed up, too. First he had "stuck by the ship" by holding Insull stocks until the crash. He admitted he hadn't known the crash was coming, but said he didn't think that made any difference as long as he had "stuck by the ship."

leaving Mr. Young out when men are called in to tell the Senate how to save the country, but it appeared that Mr. Young—along with Charles G. Dawes and Melvin Traylor, two other experts on saving the country—had also been called to help explain the affairs of the Insull companies.

But Mr. Young wasn't testifying anywhere that day and he spent more time listening raptly to President Jackson Reynolds of the New York First National Bank and Chairman Myron Taylor of U. S. Steel help save the country than to young Mr. Insull's explanations of the Insull stock deals. Mr. Young had been one of the famous Insull "preferred customers" and had approved a late loan to the Insull interests.

You sure do see big men at these hearings, what between senators and plutocrats—and it's hard to tell which of the two groups are least impressive.

The powerful Mr. Reynolds especially was something to look at—a somber, hard-faced, thin-lipped, broad-bottomed banker who admitted that he had no panacea but insisted that budget-balancing was the chief requisite for recovery.

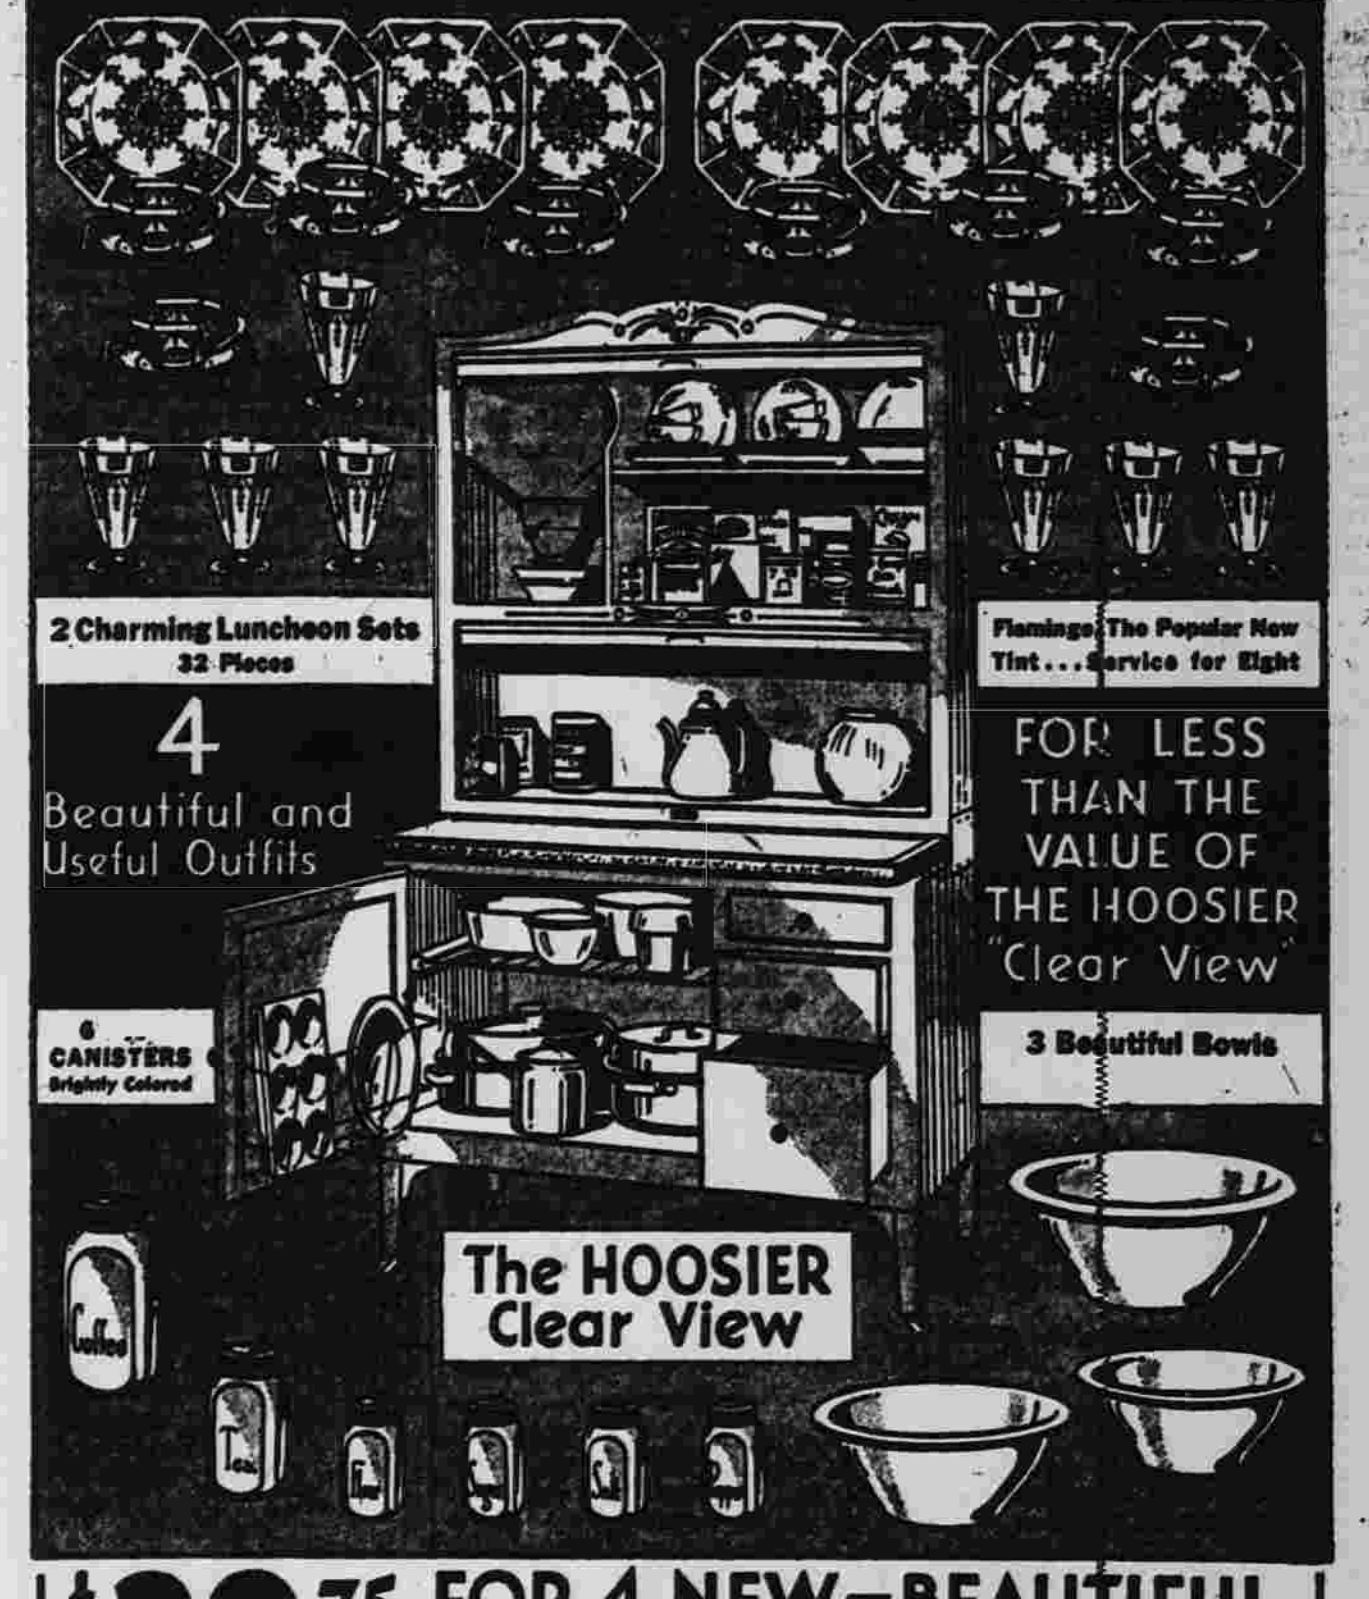

Mr. Reynolds said that 99 men out of 100 didn't have "good sense" and nobody disagreed with him. Then he sat, looking very much like a man about to be hanged, and listened to Traylor say he had no panacea but that the first requisite to recovery was budget-balancing.

On the sidelines Frank A. Vanderlip, in gold-rimmed glasses, white hair and moustache, a vest with white facings and a long-tail coat with buttons on the back, sat listening with his mouth half open. One almost forgot poor young Mr. Insull before the other committee rooms—a young, open-faced, high-colored, gold-spectacled, spruce-haired fellow who boasted that he had "stuck by the ship" by holding Insull stocks until the crash. He admitted he hadn't known the crash was coming, but said he didn't think that made any difference as long as he had "stuck by the ship."

HEALTH--DIET ADVICE

OXALIC ACID IN FOODS AFFECTS FEW PEOPLE
 Correspondents frequently inquire if they should avoid spinach or tomatoes because of the oxalic acid contained in these vegetables. For example, this letter came in the other day: "I read your circular, 'Why so Much Spinach,' recently but did not find out about whether or not there was much oxalic acid in spinach and, if so, what effect it would have. I read somewhere that spinach has a very large amount of oxalic acid and that it is necessary to parboil it and throw off this water in order to render it fit for consumption. If this is true, it is unfit for use in its raw state, and that is the way I like to take it. As it is, I have practically stopped using it. Would appreciate your advice as to what to do." This letter is an illustration of the puzzlement a person may get into in regard to diet by getting glimpses of the half-truths by various authors who may be some paid or special product to boost? It is true that spinach contains oxalic acid, but then the majority of common foods contain a small amount. Fortunately almost everyone is able to oxidize all of the oxalic acid naturally found in common foods and especially make use of it in the body to produce heat and energy; otherwise, everyone would have kidney and bladder stones of the oxalic acid type.
 The only way to find out whether or not you are one of those rare cases where this substance is not properly oxidized is to have a laboratory analysis of the excretion from the kidney; then, if a large amount of calcium oxalate crystals are found in the microscopic examination, it may be advisable to temporarily avoid some of the foods which contain the greatest amount of this acid until such time as you are willing to correct the perverted metabolism that is responsible.
 The correction of the metabolism fault is readily accomplished by increasing the alkalinity of the blood through eating foods containing large amounts of mineral elements, drinking plenty of pure water and taking a fair amount of exercise each day—exercising vigorously enough to cause deep breathing. The blood becomes less alkaline than normal because of bad living habits, then a portion of the oxalic acid in foods may pass through the kidneys and form calcium oxalate crystals or stones in the kidneys or bladder. Spinach, being one of the most

 EDDIE, A GENIUS OF THE SIDEWALKS OF NEW YORK.
 New York, March 3.—He stands in an attitude of utter dejection, a heart-clutching picture of a beaten young man. Hands in pockets and expressionless eyes cast down, he slumps in corners of unfrequented doorways, heedless of sympathetic glances from the passing crowd. Now and then his body seems to sway, almost imperceptibly, as though fighting against actual physical collapse.

Yet he makes no move to seek aid. He has found it better not to. SHOPPING NEWS

Here's the simple lesson which the world today is learning. The man who keeps from spending keeps another man from earning.

Daytime handkerchiefs come now in huge sizes and gay colors. They give a bright accent to a sober dress, flaunted from a purse, belt, pocket or cuff.

So quickly was the first lot of fine tweeds sold at the Manchester Neckwear Factory, 130 Center street, that a stunning new selection was secured and is now on sale, at only $1.00 per yard, far less than their value.

Well we remember wearing school dresses of the famous Anderson gingham, now terribly smart for grown-ups as well as children.

Boothing. Asked how he accounted for the excellent health and mortality rate of the American people in depression, a federal physician answered, "Gigawatt puzzles."

Mrs. W. W. Tannar, William and Mary Hat Shop, Cheney Hall, charges only $2 to $3 for making a hat to order, in any material.

Children's Room. When buying new furniture for children's rooms, consider the taste of the child who is to use each piece.

Zotos Demonstration. Mary Elizabeth of the Beauty Nook, Robinson Building, will give a demonstration of the Zotos Machineless Permanent Wave at the evening program of the Spring Display and Fashion Show to be given by the Hospital Lane Auxiliary at Masonic Temple, Tuesday, March 7.

Accepted Now. Brighter nail polish is now fully accepted. There are some who object to the brilliant crimson and blood red colors, and we can't blame them for shrinking from these.

During these Lenten days, why not serve crisp salads such as sliced tomato on lettuce with avocadoes, or sliced cucumbers and chopped peppers with French endive—as well as broccoli or cauliflower served with Parmesan cheese, all to be found at Garrone's, 1099 Main street, Phone 6367.

Tiny Cupboards. Small cupboards with glass doors often make a kitchen more attractive than do the large cupboards.

Marvelous Manhattan. New York.—From the number of those little key makers' shops scattered over the city, one might think New Yorkers were rankly careless about losing keys.

Harplst's Racket Stilled. Stella Errol, wife of the well known comedian, Leon Errol, is active in movements to help needy actors. She was telling me the other night of a recent Hollywood experience.

Out there she was an investigator for a charity assisting hard-up movie people. One girl called at headquarters and sobbed out a story about being a studio musician in terrible straits.

Hold Two Suspects. POLICE TO IGNORE FEDERAL COURT RULE

Hartford Authorities to Go Right Ahead in Prosecuting Owners of Slot Machines. Hartford, March 3.—(AP)—Notwithstanding the ruling of Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas this week in which he declared that the slot machines seized Feb. 10 by the Hartford police are legal, Prosecuting Attorney Louis B. Rosenfeld stated today that he was prepared to proceed in Police Court Saturday against the five men implicated in the transportation of the machines to this city.

BIG BANK CENTERS ARE NOT WORRIED

Strict action taken, officials said their banks were sound, but must be protected against withdrawals and repercussions from other sections.

In Texas, Gov. Ferguson proclaimed a five-day financial moratorium, ordering all banks to close until March 8 in the interests of the people.

Flower Arrangement. Just a few blooms, chosen for their harmony, can do more to decorate a house than almost anything else.

The epicenter of the quake which occurred at 2:32 a. m. and lasted upwards of ten minutes was 125 miles southeast of Kinkasan cape. The tidal wave followed in from 40 minutes to a little more than an hour later, reports along the coast said.

It is the same region where a tidal wave in 1896 took 30,000 lives.

McCLUSKEY OUTCLASSES ALL RIVALS AT TWO MILES

Fordham Runner Is Favored To Win Title For Third Consecutive Year In Intercollegiate Tomorrow Night; 24 Point Winners Are Back.

New York, March 8.—(AP)—Twenty-four of last year's point winners will be back for the 12th indoor track and field championships of the intercollegiate A. A. A. to be held tomorrow night at the 25th St. Madison square arena. Two of these, George Weinstein of New York U. and Joe McCluskey of Fordham will be defending titles they won a year ago. Weinstein faces a field of more than fifty in the seventy-yard dash. On the basis of the form he has shown so far this season, Weinstein may be hard pressed even to qualify for tomorrow night's final. The favorite is Al Kelly of Georgetown.

McCluskey's rivals include the two mile run in which he set up a new meet record of 9:17.6 last year. Among his rivals will be John Ryan of Manhattan, fourth last year, George Barker of New York U. and Arthur Foot of Harvard.

George Lockwood of Yale, who was fourth, is the only one of last year's point winners to return. Against him will be arrayed a large field including John Hayes and John Grady of Harvard.

Mike Andrusky of Penn. and Dave Burns of Cornell in the broad jump, Tom Gilbane, Brown, and Harrison Garret, Princeton in the shot put, and Grant McDougall of Penn. and Mortimer Reznick, N. Y. U., in the 35-pound weight, again are entered in their specialties.

In the pole vault, Keith Brown of Yale is an outstanding favorite along with his college mates, Frank Pierce and Wirt Thompson. Thompson was third last year and Pierce tied with George Munger of Penn. for fourth. The Penn star, incidentally, also is entered once more.

Local Sport Chatter

The Yale Tournament will be held at New Haven next week Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Announcement of the teams selected to play is expected within a few days and it is expected that the list will be headed by Bristol and New Britain and Naugatuck.

The Rec Five is scheduled to travel to Winsted tomorrow night to face the Winsted Town Team defeated here by a score of 38 to 36. This will be the Rec last game before the town series next Tuesday night and will serve as a warm up game. The Guards haven't played since they traveled to New London and smothered the Coast Guard Bears but regular practice sessions have been held to keep the players in trim.

The closing date for entries to the national bowling tournament at Hartford has been extended to one week from this Saturday to allow teams time to select their lineups. Over 100 teams have entered to date, it is reported, and it is possible that the Charter Oak Girls of this town will send a team. Teams are entered from throughout the east.

BASEBALL INTEREST NOT GAUGED BY FANS

Middletown, Conn., March 3.—(AP)—College baseball may be drawing smaller crowds, but in the opinion of Coach Carl Wiggins of Wesleyan University, the game is far from dead. The Wesleyan mentor expressed the belief today that the interest in the game should not be gauged by the number of fans.

"I feel that the number who actually play the game rather than those who watch it indicates the interest that is shown in the sport," he explained.

"Here at Wesleyan nearly 50 per cent of the undergraduates play baseball during the entire season. Our varsity and freshman squads are as large as ever and with four-team intramural teams playing regularly scheduled games, we have about 250 students playing baseball."

Wiggins said most of the candidates who report for the team lack experience and have to be taught the game from the bottom up. He expressed the opinion that this was probably due to the wider variety of sports now offered in secondary schools. Wiggins has ordered his squad to report for its initial practice next Monday.

RANGERS LOSE
The Rangers dropped the first of a three-game series in the quarter-finals of the County Y Senior "B" League to the Central Baptist Church in New Britain, 37-28. The Rangers played their usual fast passing game, but could not find the hoop for the majority of their night. Schultz was high for the Rangers and Stohl and Carroll were best for New Britain. The Rangers will play New Britain in the second game Saturday at 8 o'clock at the local "Y."

GOLF

Babe Gets An Ace
Tampa, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Babe Ruth carried a souvenir golf ball around his pocket today. It was one he lammed 185 yards with a number two iron for a hole in one on the number three hole of the Pasadena course near St. Petersburg yesterday. When the ball tipped into the cup, Frank A. Willard, cartoonist, made a grab for it, but Babe picked it up and said, "I'll keep that ball myself."

Meet in Finals
Palm Beach, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Leo Goss of Bedford, Pa., faced William H. Hyde of Ridgeway, Pa., in the final round of the annual Palm Beach amateur golf championship today.

It was the first time either of the players had reached the finals during the winter campaign. The tournament has been marked by upsets from the start. Probably the most spectacular was Eydes' victory over Jack Eyerson, medalist from Cooperstown, N. Y. Goss carried on to the finals by eliminating W. L. Carey of New York.

Favorites Are Missing
St. Augustine, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—The favorites were missing today as two British and two American contenders clashed in the semi-finals of the Florida East Coast golf tournament for women and it looked to be anybody's championship.

Buddies to Play
The West Side Buddies will play the Torrington Whippets Saturday evening at 9 o'clock at the West Side.

Baseball Briefs
St. Petersburg, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Joe McCarthy, pilot of the New York Yankees, is seriously considering the dispatch of a posse in search of pitchers Vernon Gomez and Wilcy Moore, both of whom are A. W. O. L. Both were reported en route to the training camp, where they were due on Wednesday, but they failed to show up.

Los Angeles, March 3.—(AP)—Smoky Joe Martin appeared in the New York Giants training camp roster as an outfielder, but already Manager Bill Terry has decided he'd look better at third base. The Winston-Salem rookie was given a thorough workout at third base and did a pretty good job.

Coral Gables, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Jack Quinn went to his first baseball training camp 24 years ago, but the old boy still is a handy fellow to have around. Pitching against the Brooklyn Dodger batters yesterday, Quinn seemed to be in the condition, much farther advanced than other members of the Dodger hurling staff.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—"There'll be no pampering of pitchers at the Braves' camp this season," Boss Bill McKechnie has long believed that big league pitchers were pampered too much in the south and that the hurlers should be able to get into shape after a fortnight of warming up practice.

His theory already has been put into effect and with but two days of spring training gone, the Braves hurlers are cutting the ball loose as they never have before at this stage of the game.

Sarasota, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Manager Marty McManus was praying for fair weather today when he and his Boston Red Sox battery squad arrived at the new training camp.

"We're starting three days behind the rest of the American League," he said, "and they will get the jump on us if we run into rain." Manager Mack, planned to hold a squad meeting to lay down a few ironclad training rules before sending his players out for their first workout of the season.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Connie Mack was called for the spring training camp of the Philadelphia Athletics today by a telegram summoning him immediately to the bedside of his eldest daughter, Mrs. Margaret McCambridge, ill in Asheville, N. C.

Avilaon, Calif., March 3.—(AP)—Burling Grimes plans for a big comeback with the Chicago Cubs this year already has received a setback. The veteran spital pitcher, here of the Cardinals in the 1931 World Series, was in the hospital today with an attack of influenza.

French Won't Give Davis Cup to U. S.

Expect To Retain Net Trophy Another Year, Using Star Players.

Paris, March 8.—Although Jean Borotra is making more resolves that he is finished with singles play in big tournaments, and Henri Cochet declares he will not play in doubles this year, the Musketiers of French tennis have by no means given up hope of retaining the Davis Cup.

They hope to save the cup for France at least another year. After that, they admit, youngsters will have to come forward.

Borotra's annual declaration that he cannot be counted on for the singles is being taken more seriously this year. His sensational shoe-changing victory over Allison last year proved that he is getting rather old to stand the strain of two fierce matches in three days.

The popular Basque, who is a successful business man, says he hasn't got the time for the intensive training he requires. He still has flashes of his old form, as he showed recently when he won the French indoor championship for the eighth successive year, but where the honor of his country, he is concerned—and the French feel this way about the Davis Cup—he prefers to appear only in the doubles.

Cochet reasons similarly. He is not so old as Borotra, but he has said upon his return from America after being beaten a second time by Ellsworth Vines: "I am no longer 21."

Cochet, therefore, will concentrate on the singles in defense of the Davis cup. He has planned a careful campaign designed to put him in the best possible shape for the big event. He hopes to win both singles matches, and Jacques Brugnon, whom both he and Borotra are favored to win, will be called upon to play two singles matches. There are a half dozen who might qualify, but no outstanding star. Cochet feels, however, that a younger man should be given a chance to get the experience and to strengthen the French side after this year.

Another problem will arise about the inscription on the Davis Cup after the close of play this year. There is no one to come through the bowl, which is the base for the trophy, for any further inscription.

When the draw was held in the Salon des Ambassadeurs at the Elysee Palace, for the sixth successive year, there was a little uncertainty.

"Where was we going to put the signatures?" asked Brugnon. "Leave that to the Americans," volleyed a good compatriot of Dwight Davis.

It's a tribute to the good showing these girls have made in the bowling world and by putting Manchester on the map in this indoor sport. You will lose nothing by turning out tonight. The money you pay to enter the sweestakes pays for your bowling and also gives you a chance to win one of the four prizes donated by Manager Joe Farr. So let's go you bowlers! A special match at 7:30 and the sweestakes at 8:30. Place—Charter Oak alleys.

DIXON KAYOED IN THIRD
Boston, March 3.—(AP)—Outweighed by 40 pounds, Johnny Dixon, former Boston College football captain, gave a splendid account of himself against six feet nine Jose Santos, Portuguese heavy-weight, until he ran into a wild right halfway through their six round battle last night at the Boston Garden.

Dixon was miles ahead on points when the third round started but Santos lashed out with a right and floored the former football player as he rushed in. Dixon was half dazed when he arose and Santos dropped him for the second count with another right to the jaw.

Passadena, Calif., March 3.—(AP)—About the most pleasing item in the Chicago White Sox training development to date is the apparent return to health and form of Vic Frazier, young right handed pitcher. Frazier reported in excellent shape and has made the most rapid progress of any of the Sox hurlers.

Boston, March 3.—(AP)—Ed George, new wrestling title claimant, will return here tonight to grapple with Nick Lutz, lanky Southern Californian, in the feature match of the Boston Garden match show. George gained his honors here several weeks ago, when he disabled Henri DeGlane with a bone-crushing flying tackle.

Almost 600 pounds of wrestlers will be involved in the semi-final for which the 300-pound man mountain dean has been matched against "Tiny" Roebuck, former Haskell Indians football star who now scales counts on Borotra, partner, and Jacques Brugnon, whom both he and Borotra are favored to win, will be called upon to play two singles matches.

O'NEIL SLUGS WAY INTO FINAL ROUND

Local Fighter Trounces Joe Christy In Semi-Finals of Fistic Tourney.

Tommy O'Neil, Manchester lightweight, slugged his way into the finals of the Connecticut Golden Gloves Tournament last night in St. Mary's hall, East Hartford, by trouncing Joe Christy of Hartford in each round of his three rounds with the Hartford fighter. Christy earned his first decision of the evening by a technical knockout over Ray Miller of Rockville. A large delegation of Manchester fight fans attended.

The best bout of the evening was a slam-bang affair between flashy Joe Sulots of Hartford and Mike Murphy, southpaw of East Hampton. The first round was hot throughout, both fighters connecting with damaging blows. Sulots forced the fighting during the three rounds but took a terrific body lacing about the body in the second. Murphy finished strong but could not overcome the big lead Sulots had piled up in the first two rounds. Sulots, by his win last night, enters the finals in New Haven.

Billy Duffy of Hartford, one of the coolest little novice scrappers to don gloves in the present tournament, easily won his bout with Ritchie Roland, piling up a big lead with left jabs and right hooks. Fred Foran, Hartford bantam, scored a clean cut victory over Joe Rossia of East Hampton, but lost to Al Pinkham on a technical knockout in the final bout of the evening's card.

The results of the other bouts were as follows:
Billy Satryb, Rockville bantamweight, won on a technical knockout in the third round over Charlie Pignone of Hartford; Eddie McGraw of East Hampton beat Al Futters, New Britain, decision; Henry Gentile, East Hartford, won the decision over Billy Satryb of Rockville; Al Pinkham, Hartford bantamweight, won on a technical kayo in the second round over Fred Foran of Hartford.

Here's a new simile for you, by the way: "Longer than a comie strip prize fight."

M. H. S. Faces Old Rival In Windham High At State Armory; Visitors Have Best Record But Locals Are Favored To Gain Victory.

Manchester High school's basketball season comes to an end tonight when the Red and White faces Windham High of Willimantic at the State Armory. It will be the 18th game of the season for the local quintet, which will seek its eighth victory and its third in three starts.

The chances of finishing the season in triumph appear bright in view of Manchester's decisive win at Willimantic by a score of 36 to 26. The first string varsity has come back to its early season form somewhat beatified and dowered Rockville and Middletown in succession last week.

Windham may be staking its chances of competing in the Yale Tourney on this encounter, claiming a record of nine victories and only two defeats. The latter to Manchester and Weaver of Hartford. At all odds it should be a close fought game as Manchester and Windham resume their athletic rivalry on the basketball court.

The first game will start at 7:30 o'clock with the main attraction at 8:30 o'clock, followed by dancing.

One I Love

By LAURA LOU BROOKMAN
© 1935
NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JANET HILL and ROSE CARLYLE have been engaged almost a year. They have put off their marriage because Janet insists they must have $500 in a savings account first. Rose enjoys spending money and the rigid economy necessary to save this amount is distasteful to her. Janet works as secretary to BRUCE HAMILTON, advertising manager of Every Home Magazine, and Rose is employed at an advertising agency. Janet, deeply in love, is not suspicious when Rose begins to make excuses for not coming to see her. One night he breaks an engagement with her. MOLLIE LAMBERT, who lives across the hall, tells Janet she has seen Rose entering a theater with another girl. Janet meets Rose next day after work and tells her what Mollie has said. Rose becomes angry, says their engagement is meaningless and that if Janet really wanted to marry her she would have done so long ago. They quarrel and Rose leaves. Janet is about to board a street car when someone calls her name.

CHAPTER VIII
 The voice was a man's but Janet knew before she turned that it was not Rose's. She looked back and saw Howard Cressy hurrying toward her. Cressy, promotion director at the Every Home office, was as usual smiling too broadly. Janet would have avoided him any where. The man seemed absolutely sub-proof. A dozen times she had refused his invitations and still he persisted in offering them. Tonight, when she wanted more than anything to be alone, meeting Howard Cressy was too much.
 "Hello, Janet," he cried. "Going home? If you'll walk a block to the garage where I keep my car I'll drive you out."
 The street car had halted. Its doors slid back and the men and woman waiting pushed forward. Janet told herself she had to board that street car.
 Cressy was beside her now. "I'm sorry," the girl began, "but I'm afraid I can't wait. Some other time."
 She mounted the car step. Over one shoulder she looked back and called, "Thanks just the same."
 The young man stood on the curb and watched the car disappear. Janet did not see him. She found a seat, sank into it, and turned her face to the window pane. It was as much as she could do to shut out the sight of the other passengers, to protect herself from staring, curious glances.
 The street car jolted on its way. It passed the business district. Now it was moving along a street where the only buildings were low, dark, deserted-looking—that least desirable section of Lancaster, known as "the flats."
 Janet dressed nearer to the window. The blackness outside was no more dismal than her own heart, no more hopeless than the future that seemed to stretch ahead. Everything she has counted on was gone. All the happiness she had planned, all her dreams. She and Rose were not going to be married. They were not engaged any more. Rose didn't love her. He had as much as said so. Oh, how could it all have happened? How could such things be true?
 The whole day had been miserable but she had never imagined anything so terrible as this. She remembered how insistent she had been on seeing Rose. All day long she had assured herself that as soon as she saw him and talked with him everything would be right again. Why had she telephoned? Why had she urged him to meet her? If she hadn't done that this terrible thing couldn't have happened.
 She pressed her two hands together until they hurt. She must not give way before these other people.
 The car joggled along, stopping, starting. The 40-minute ride had never seemed so long but at last it came to an end. Janet hurried up the walk, let herself quietly into the rooming house. She was glad she did not meet anyone in the hall. Without stopping to see if there were more letters or a message she ran up the single flight of stairs.

 Then at last—the blessed sanctuary of her own room! Janet entered, closed the door behind her and turned the key. Without turning on the light she hung herself face down on the bed and let the tears come.
 There were times during the days that followed when Janet was able, by means of frequently rehearsed reassurances, to convince herself that it was only a matter of time until she would hear from Rose. He would telephone, she told herself. He would ask in an apologetic voice when he could come to see her. Each time she answered the ringing telephone her heart quickened, hopefully. Once when she said, "Mr. Hamilton's office" in the pleasant, low-pitched tone that had become mechanical her pulse pounded a sharp tattoo as the voice at the other end of the wire replied, "This is the Acme Advertising Agency." But it was somehow lives through.
 Over and over she reviewed that brief meeting, repeating to herself all that Rose had said, all that she had said. There were so many things she wanted to know. Who was the girl he had taken to the theater? How long had he known her? Was he really in love with her? He might have explained if she had given him a chance but she had not.
 Recalling the hot-tempered words she had used Janet felt an impulse to telephone to tell Rose she hadn't meant those things. She could not quite bring herself to do that.
 She was listless, preoccupied, and when she went to meals she scarcely ate. Evenings she spent at home. When one of the girls at the office invited her to a birthday party she pleaded an aching head. She said the same thing when Mrs. Snyder asked her to come down stairs and play bridge. The excuse wasn't entirely untruthful. Part of the time Janet's head did ache. It came from sleepless nights, from failure to eat properly.
 Thursday morning—six days since she had seen Rose—Janet, sitting at her desk, stopped trying for a few moments and put one hand on her forehead. It was aching fearfully. She closed her eyes and opened them almost immediately.
 She saw that Bruce Hamilton was watching her. "Aren't you feeling well, Miss Hill?" he asked.
 "It's nothing. Just a headache."
 "Then you'd better do something about it. Take the rest of the day off."
 "Oh, no, Mr. Hamilton. That's not necessary."

YOUR CHILDREN

"Put on your rubbers, Mildred."
 "What for, mother? It isn't wet outside."
 "The ground is very cold and this is tricky weather."
 "None of the girls wear them."
 "Yes, they do. I have seen several. But anyway you have a cold and it's not going to have you sick with pneumonia now. You're in good shape to catch almost anything now."
 "Goodness me, mother. You're always thinking I'm going to be sick. I won't get sick."
 "You thought that in the fall, too. I suppose you don't remember the bronchitis you had. I worked with you night and day and it was a close squeak enough. The doctor's bill for that spell isn't paid for yet, and I can't run the risk of any more sickness now."
 Arguments
 "Well, I don't catch cold through my feet. It's my coat. All the girls have fur collars on theirs, and mine's just plain. Besides it's too short."
 "It's a good coat and if you'd wear that wool scarf I got you you would be warm enough."
 "I hate that scarf—it's plain, and I look like a hunk of cheese in it."
 "Don't talk that way, Mildred. It was the best I could afford. It looks very pretty and smart; the trouble is you just get silly notions in your head."
 "No sillier than you always being after me to wear overcoats. Just come and look out. There's the sun. See!"
 Mrs. Brown went to the window, but held her argument.
 "It just starts thawing and by four o'clock the ground will be coming. Do please obey me, Mildred, and go and get your overshoes like a good child."
 "There go Ruth and Louise. They haven't any on. And Ruth has just had grip," cried the little girl triumphantly.
 "Honestly, mother, I'll be the only one in school with them on. And they always get hicked around and lost. You remember I never did find the one to the last pair and Miss Adams and I hunted for days."
 Her mother looked out again at the sun.
 Mother Was Right
 "Well—all right. But if you're sick don't ask me to take care of you. It's on your own head."
 That night Mildred's face was flushed. She coughed in short, hacking jerks and her head ached. Again Mildred was in bed for a week—her overworked mother at the breaking point with worry and care.
 What she should have done was not to argue about the rubbers, but to give in when the only course is to give a command and let that be the end of it. When a child asks why the answer should come quickly and firmly. "Just because I say so."
 Children usually get the best of an argument. Moreover they get the argument habit.
 There are times, of course, when it is only just to show a child the reason for a command. But this can be done without descending to argument. That is a lost cause from the beginning.

There may be something in that proposal to make motor fun out of it. It may be better to give over to the motor instead of the driver.

WHITE HOUSE SUMMONS HER, ALSO

Mrs. Roosevelt's Secretary is Calm in Face of Her New Duties.

One of the nation's greatest social honors is a bid to enter through the stately doors of the White House (shown in inset) and it will be Miss Malvina Thompson's task to extend many of those coveted bids. She is shown above at her desk.

By JULIA BLANSHARD

New York, March 3—Would you like to meet the new First Lady of the Land?
 Well, meet Miss Malvina Thompson first. She is Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt's personal secretary, the woman who has been called the new social secretary of the White House. You will have to get in touch with Miss Thompson before you can see the new First Lady, or get a letter to her or find out anything you want to know about her. It will be through Miss Thompson that personal invitations to the White House will be sent out, honored guests invited for a week-end, or parties arranged.
 Meeting Miss Thompson, moreover, you really get a new and pleasant insight on the rubbers, personality. For Miss Thompson has been her personal secretary for 10 years!
An Efficient Person
 First of all, you can't possibly be uncomfortable with Miss Thompson. She is the efficient type of person who has everything so well in hand that at all times, under any circumstance, she is natural easy-mannered, pleasant, approachable, direct. I imagine nine out of ten persons who meet her will be glad to have her somewhere, or perhaps she will remind them of one of their favorite friends or relatives! You know, instinctively, that if she didn't like anything, she would tell you in a considerate, frank way, and if you made a mistake, you could tell her. "I feel real humility about going to the White House," Miss Thompson answered the query about the thrill the anticipation must give her. "Naturally I am excited, but none of us can possibly realize it until we are actually there!"
 "Of course the whole official etiquette will be new to me. But there will be plenty of folks in Washington who know exactly what should be done. Somebody will help! You see, working with Mrs. Roosevelt, you acquire a kind of calmness about anything that happens. She lives her philosophy of not worrying.

An Informal Regime
 "Moreover, I think it will be a very informal regime. Mrs. Roosevelt will make the White House a home. She would make any place comfortable to be in, and the whole family is the most hospitable one imaginable."
 Miss Thompson, of course, will live at the White House too.
 "But I'll have to get a little apartment soon," she smiled. "For I'll have to have a home of my own when my husband comes over."
 Her husband is Frank Schneider, a professor in this city. They have been married for years and she rather imagines that their home is one you'd like to visit, too. Born in New York, of old New Hampshire stock, Miss Thompson likes the details of home-making, though she has had a maid for years because of lack of time. How, she hasn't forgotten her mother's early training in cooking. Lemon meringue pie is her specialty, along with some heavy German dishes that her husband is particularly fond of. In her spare time, such as it is, she knits sweaters, socks and afghans. Cooking an occasional meal is her hobby, for she has no time for any other kind.
 "Clothes bother me no more than is necessary to keep neat and becomingly dressed, her chestnut hair, with a touch of gray, has only its natural wave, and she uses no make-up. Her hazel eyes and warm smile give her a most pleasant, friendly look.

No Worry Over Clothes
 "I always wanted to be a domestic science teacher," she smiled at her childhood ambition. "But I went into the Atlantic Division of the American Red Cross during the war, then into the Democratic State Committee office, as secretary to one of the men. Ten years ago, when Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Daniel O'Day started to organize the women's end, they had nobody to work for them, so I started to handle their work, along with my own. I knew state politics and worked for all the women in the office. Mrs. Roosevelt did a lot of outside work, such as making speeches and raising money for organizations, like the Women's Trade Union League, in which she was interested. So I gradually did more and more of her work, until she took me over, full time. I've been with her ever since, through three national campaigns! My new job will be more a personal secretary than social one, I am sure."
 To date, Miss Thompson hasn't had a minute to think about clothes for Washington. "I'm sure I can get some things there, when I have more time," she tossed off this most-important-to-most-women problem. "However, I had one piece of luck. In January I was out shopping one day for some office things and got two very nice evening dresses. I am mighty glad to have them now!"

Hints on How to Keep Well by World-Famous Authority

HOSPITAL INSURANCE IS FILLING A NEW NICHES
 "Be Sure to Read the Fine Type in This New Kind of Policy," Dr. Fishbein Advises; Limitations May Make It Almost Valueless.

This is the first of two articles by Dr. Fishbein cautioning the public to think twice before signing up for "hospital insurance."
 By DR. MORRIS FISHBIEIN
 Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

In times of sickness and epidemics cholera and typhoid. They know that a desperate public will grasp at any scheme that seems to offer something for nothing, or more for less than it costs.
 The report of the Committee on the Costs of Medical Care has served to focus the attention of the public on the problem of "hospital insurance" who have found it difficult to operate in other fields at this time have invaded the field of medical care.
 We have in this country approximately 2000 hospitals with a million beds, many of them devoted to the care of the tuberculous and psychiatric cases. The country would not seem to be over-hospitalized. Nevertheless, the hospitals of the country are approximately 33 per cent unoccupied.
 Among possible causes for this condition is the government's hospitalization of vast numbers of veterans suffering from non-service connected disabilities and well able to pay for hospital care.
 However, it seems certain that because of the economic stringency conditions that would otherwise bring people to hospitals are being cared for at home or perhaps postponed until the moment when postponement is no longer necessary. Even Henry Ford seems to have postponed his operation for hernia until the hernia strangulated and included the appendix.
 The publicity promoted by the Committee on the Costs of Medical Care established in the public consciousness the idea that hospital care is likely to be an exceedingly costly matter, and that the only hope of meeting hospital costs is some scheme of insurance whereby the costs will be distributed over vast numbers of people.
 During the past two years the public has been deluged with new schemes of insurance against medical costs, but particularly against the cost of hospital care.
 The best piece of advice that could possibly be given to anyone who is approached by an agent who is selling such a policy is to ask the agent to bring the policy back with all of the fine print reprinted three times as large as the largest print in the policy as offered.
 It is in the fine print that the limitations will be found which make such a policy in many instances undesirable.
 Here are the clauses limiting the number of conditions covered by the policy; here are the clauses limiting the stay in the hospital under the policy; here are the clauses which make it possible for the insurance company, when it finds itself pressed by economic stringency due to wrong calculations, poor mathematics and unfavorable health conditions to wiggle out from under all responsibility.

The little Girl who wouldn't EAT

Nature knows best! Never coax a child to eat! Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite and you'll see the child eating again.
 Children who don't eat are sluggish. Not to correct this is inexcusable. It is so easy to do, if you will only use the "California treatment." Read what it is doing for listless children in every part of the country!
 When appetite fails, tongue is coated white, eyes are a bilious yellow, don't give small children any constipating cathartic that drains the system and weakens twenty feet of tender bowels! California syrup of figs is the only "medicine" they need!
 That girl or boy with a furry tongue and a bad breath should not be dosed with salts! California syrup of figs will gently stimulate the colon muscles—and the child you use it on will eat with a relish!
 Try the California treatment! Begin tonight, with enough of the pure syrup of figs to cleanse the colon thoroughly. Give less tomorrow, then every other day, or twice a week until the child's appetite, digestion, weight, complexion, tell you the stasis is gone.
 Be sure to get the real California syrup of figs. Any drug that has it, all bottled, with directions. It's a natural, vegetable laxative. Just as good for babes of two years as boys of ten. They all love its taste!
 There are imitations of California syrup of figs and those who would buy some substituting even when a child's health is concerned. Don't ever take any bottle that is not plainly labeled CALIFORNIA—Adv.

"Take the rest of the day off," she repeated. "Better see a doctor. A head-ache is a good one. Over in the Phoenix building. His manner was that of an executive giving instructions expected to be obeyed."
 "But—"
 "You're to see Dr. Allen," he told her crisply. "You had a headache the other day, too, didn't you? That's bad business. Don't come back tomorrow unless Allen says you should. An office is no place for sick people. Can't do their work—make mistakes. It isn't efficient. And it isn't businesslike."
 Janet did as she was told. She put on her coat and hat and walked to the Phoenix building. There the young woman in Dr. Allen's office told her the doctor could see her in half an hour.
 It was longer than that, but Janet didn't mind. The session with Dr. Allen concluded with the statement that there was nothing wrong organically. The doctor outlined a nourishing diet. He advised plenty of sleep, plenty of fresh air and exercise. He said Janet had a tendency toward an ailment common among young women who spent their days in offices—nervous exhaustion. Rest was the best remedy. Rest and exercise out of doors.
 Janet paid for the examination and took the street car home. More than what the doctor had said Mr. Hamilton's words had alarmed her. She would have to stop the headaches or she might find herself without a job. Mr. Hamilton had said an office was no place for sick people.
 She lay down for a nap and was surprised to find when she awoke that it was almost five o'clock. Janet arose, bathed and dressed more carefully than she had for days. She walked a dozen blocks in the February dusk before she entered a restaurant and ordered dinner. The brisk walk had made her hungry and she had to admit to herself that the food made her feel better.
 She was at work next morning 10 minutes before Hamilton arrived and greeted him, smiling. Yes, she told him, the headache was gone. She was following the doctor's instructions and felt improved already.
 "But all her resolves could not kill the quickening of her heart when the telephone rang, the chill of disappointment when the voice over the wire was not Rose's."
 She went to lunch with Pauline Hayden from the business office and that evening, instead of staying in her room alone, she knocked on Mollie Lambert's door and asked if Mollie would like to see a movie.
 The other girl was in pajamas reading a newspaper. "Sure I would," she said. "Be ready in two minutes. Get a load of this, will you? Do some girls have all the luck!"
 She sighed heavily and held up the newspaper, pointing to headlines that proclaimed the discovery of a new "baby star" in the movies. The future screen celebrity had just signed a contract for $500 a week.
 Janet took the newspaper and sank into a chair to read it. All at once a picture on the opposite page caught her eye. She stared at it as though hypnotized.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

NEA SERVICE, INC.

Half a hair cut always is better than none.
 Perhaps you haven't found out yet, in these days of economy, that practically any barber will give you a neck trim for only a fraction of what a whole bob will cost.
 Nothing is more demoralizing to a woman than to let the back of her neck get straggly with too long hair. You may not even realize just why you feel depressed and hate to look at yourself in the mirror. Go get your neckline cleaned up and you will be a new woman!
 Then there are barbers who will give you bangs a trim, along with your neckline and charge you not more than half the price of a bob.
 If it is a whole bob that you want, the best way in the world to keep looking your best is to patronize the same barber or beauty parlor time after time. Almost all women are fickle in this regard. Every time anyone mentions a new haircut, they have the yen to rush right out and get something new done to their hair.
 That urge is a worthy one. But if you have the same operator working on your head, the chances are that by consulting him or her, you can work out between you some kind of a coiffure that will be distinctive, and your own. Copy some that you like, perhaps, but give it touch and tone that will be unique with you. That is one sure way to express your own individuality.
 Perhaps the most outstanding trait American women have is this fickleness. Of course there is no denying that it spurs everybody on to new and better things. But for constant good-looking and a constant high degree of perfection, you must not fit from one thing to another constantly. Use your head. But settle on something and give it a decent trial. And if your present haircut and coiffure really expresses you, stick to it! It will give you individuality.
 What a charming tete-a-tete it would be if some hostess should bring together the consultant attaches who guided Einstein on pacifism, the examiner who asked the citizenship applicant to be believed in technology, and the customs inspector who thought "patrol" of the Vatican (Einstein was a priest).

A BOOK A DAY

By BRUCE CATTON
It's a Fascinating Way To See Germany, Says Woman

Cycling may be the accepted manner of "doing" the old country, but in Germany faliboating has become the rage and scarcely a stream is to be found which isn't dotted with these little rubber, collapsible craft.
 In "German Summer," Cornelius Stratton Parker, American author of numerous travel books, relates how she and her daughter spent a charming summer paddling and floating on the quiet streams of Germany and Austria—and all for $850, including the boat.
 It seems that the Germans—man, woman and child—have become faliboat conscious. Faliboat clubs dot the river banks, and do tourists' lodgings where the tired paddler can get his fill of German potato cakes and apple pie, with a night's shelter, for as little as ten cents.
 Down the Blue Danube floated these two—adding, incidentally, that the Danube is gray, not blue. Then, folding up their faliboats, they made short rail journeys to other streams and new scenes. Leisurely traversing the Dnieper, the Main and the Isar, they had but to beach their boat and go exploring whenever nearby castle or cottage intrigued them.
 It is a delightful story, brightened with a profusion of charming snapshots, and offering the advice that Americans, in America, taste the joys of faliboating.
 "German Summer," published by Liveright, costs $3.50.

"CHRISTIAN CHARACTER" TO BE SERMONS SUBJECT

Rev. F. C. Allen Plans Series of Discussions on Attributes That Make Up a Christian.

Rev. F. C. Allen of the Second Congregational church is arranging for a series of Sunday morning sermons on the general theme of "What is Christian Character?" The first will be given Sunday, March 12 and the final or sixth sermon on Easter Sunday. "The Optimism of a Christian" will be the subject of the first. On March 12, "The Home of a Christian"; the Sunday following, "The Brotherhood of a Christian"; April 4, "The Humility of a Christian"; April 5, "The Courage of a Christian"; and the final one, "The Love of a Christian." All will center around the life of Jesus, its teachings and parables.

Tomorrow afternoon at 4 P. M. Allen will give the second in a series of motion picture entertainments, showing glacier and Algerian scenes and several reels taken in the great potato growing section of Aroostook County, Maine. Sunday afternoon at 5:15 he will meet with a group of boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 15, for the purpose of organizing a junior choir.

Sunday evening the Christian Endeavor society will omit its regular meeting in favor of the union meeting at the North Methodist church at 7 o'clock.

PLAN COMPROMISE ON WAGE CUT BILL

ported other measures were still under consideration. Two other bills concerning unpaid taxes were rejected. A bill including the Norwalk-Newtown highway in the trunk line system was reported favorably. The Senate rejected four bills regarding protection against "parrot disease" when Senator Hackett of Waterbury reported their provisions were already included in the present laws.

IN THE HOUSE
Hartford, March 3.—(AP)—New Haven was given the right to issue $2,500,000 in funding bonds today when both Houses passed the measure under suspension of the rules. The bill was rushed to the enrolling clerk that it may be signed by Governor Wilbur L. Cross before he leaves for Washington to attend the inaugural ceremonies.

With many members of the Democratic side of the House in Washington for the inauguration, minor judgeship resolutions were held up today and the reports will be re-submitted Tuesday.

A bill abolishing the Juvenile Court of Bridgeport was passed. Majority Leader Raymond E. Baldwin said that the people of Bridgeport were not receiving value for the $8,000 yearly salary paid the judge of the court. The measure provided that the work and records of the court be transferred to the City Court.

Favorable Reports
Favorable reports were also received on bills providing for Sunday basketball; pensions for Andover policemen over 60 years of age who have served 25 years or have been permanently disabled in the course of duty; the appointment of a clerk of the Town Court of Orange and increasing powers to the Board of Selectmen of Stratford and direct primary elections. A communication was received from the state of Washington, asking the Legislators to endorse a memorial being sent to Congress to "prevent loss of revenue, to provide employment for American labor and to maintain the industries and agriculture of the United States against depreciation in foreign currencies."

Support was asked for a bill bearing that title introduced in Congress by Representative Samuel B. Hill of Washington.

Bills were passed amending an act incorporating the Mystic fire district, concerning the admission of electors in the towns of West Haven and Orange; amending an act incorporating the Hillcrest fire district and concerning the suspension tax book.

The three voting districts of West Haven are changed to six in another bill passed today.

RIOTS IN GERMANY

Berlin, March 3.—(AP)—Political clashes at Hamburg, Bernburg, Duesseldorf, Hoechst, Kassel and Bremen left five dead and scores of injured today.

HOUSE GETS WATER CO. PURCHASE BILL

Provides For Referendum On Question—Local Hearings Held Yesterday.

The Cities and Boroughs committee of the General Assembly has approved the bill which would permit the town of Manchester to purchase the franchise and property of the South Manchester Water Company and the South Manchester Sanitary and Sewer District and the bill was received by the House today. It was tabled for the calendar and printing.

At the suggestion of Howell Cheney of Manchester, the proposed bill was amended to include permission to buy the Manchester Water Company rights as well should the town so desire in some future year. Representatives Thomas J.

Rogers and William J. Thornton endorsed the proposed bill. It provides for a town referendum, approval of the public utilities commission and issuance of necessary bonds.

There was also a hearing on the bill which calls for a change in the Ninth School District charter to merge the recreation and library committee into one body now that the district school committee no longer exists. This will be placed on the calendar and come up for a decision shortly. Also attending from Manchester yesterday were Frank Cheney, Jr. and Judge William S. Hyde, town counsel.

The chain store bill which proposes a special tax payable to each town where such stores are located, was assigned to the finance committee yesterday and no date has as yet been set for its hearing. It is understood that the chain stores are circulating petitions for people to sign in order that they may not be taxed. This exemption is being vigorously opposed by the individual store owners who claim they are being "undermined."

President John Adams, and his son, President John Quincy Adams, were both born at Quincy, Mass., both lived there when elected, and both are buried in that city.

R. F. C. HAS PLAN TO ASSIST BANKS

Senator Couzens Outlines Program That Has Been Adopted To Arrange Loans

Detroit, March 3.—(AP)—Senator James Couzens, who came here this week to aid in unraveling the Michigan banking situation said today that he had been advised the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has "undertaken a national program" to deal with banking difficulties.

Senator Couzens said he talked over the telephone with Charles A. Miller, president of the R. F. C., in Washington last night. "The program he recited over the telephone," Senator Couzens said, "briefly is: 'That all loans must be predicated on adequate security. That was fundamental. Then, whenever any state is operating under a moratorium authorized by law, the R. F. C. would advance money to any bank within that state to pay deposits whatever percentage of deposits had been agreed on in that community and sufficient money to maintain reserves on a very strict adherence to the rule that every depositor must be treated alike.

Further Provisions
"It further provided that, should any applicant have money on hand to pay the agreed percentage of deposits, that applicant should not receive a loan; that in the case of any bank that had only part of the necessary money to pay the percentage agreed on, a loan would be made to make up the necessary amount."
Senator Couzens added that he wished to emphasize that "it is wholly at the hands of the controller of the currency whether he is satisfied that any National bank, anywhere, shall be permitted to keep open."

SUSPECT BOUND OVER

Hartford, March 3.—(AP)—Lorenzo Hayes, 26, of Cleveland, Ohio, was arraigned in the Hartford police court today on a technical charge of breach of the peace. On request of Prosecuting Attorney Louis B. Rosenfeld, the accused's case was continued to March 10 pending further investigation by the detective bureau. Judge Richard T. Steele fixed bail at $1,000.

Hayes, who admits having been arrested in Cleveland, Chicago and Memphis, Tenn., was questioned by the police in connection with recent burglaries committed in the west end of the city. He was picked up on suspicion by Patrolman M. J. Walsh late last night as he was walking through North Main street.

15 FROM MANCHESTER GO TO INAUGURAL

Most of Party Takes Special Train Last Night—Dr. E. G. Dolan Heads Group.

At least 15 Manchester persons and probably several more, will be in Washington tomorrow for the ceremonies which mark the inauguration of Franklin Delano Roosevelt as president of the United States succeeding Herbert Hoover. Most of them went by train on the Connecticut Inaugural Special which left the Hartford railroad station last night reaching the capitol this morning.

Heading the Manchester party will be Dr. Edward G. Dolan, state central committee man, conductor of a drive to raise funds for the Democratic party campaign, and a staunch supporter of Roosevelt. As a reward for his support, Dr. Dolan is understood to be in line for appointment as collector of internal revenue for this state.

Dr. Dolan is accompanied by his wife and by his daughter, Miss Mary A. Dolan. Several members of the Young Peoples' Democratic Clubs which Dr. Dolan organized here, also made the trip. They include Raymond Shea, Miss Catherine Shea, Miss Mary Donahue, Miss Mary Dielenschneider, Miss Ruth Smith, and Miss Esther Radding. Others who are in the party include Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Kemp, Jr., and Miss Caroline C. Bendeson.

Mrs. Isabel N. Hubbard, matron of Chestnut Lodge, will also make the Washington trip. She is going for a twofold purpose, to see the inauguration and to visit her sister, Colonel and Mrs. William C. Cheney who also is in Washington at the time of the ceremonies. In most cases the Manchester people will return home either early Monday morning or Tuesday.

CLEGYMAN DIES

Albany, N. Y., March 3.—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. Charles Valentine Grismer, a retired minister in the Troy conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, died last night in Delmar, age 81 years.

During 43 years of active service in the Troy conference he had held pastorates at Glens Falls, Plattsburgh and Mechanicville, in New York state, and at Burlington, Vt. For six years he was superintendent of the Plattsburgh district of the conference, embracing more than 20 churches.

He is survived by his widow, a son, Professor Raymond L. Grismer of Minneapolis, and a daughter, Mrs. F. Carl Gamble of Camden, N. J.

BROTHER RESPONSIBLE

Bridgeport, March 3.—(AP)—Carl E. Savage of Lisbon, Me., truck driver, was held by Coroner Phelan today to have been criminally responsible for the death of his brother Charles E. Savage, 32, fatally hurt Feb. 24, in a truck collision on the Boston Post road at Westport.

The coroner said Carl Savage fell asleep while driving and his truck swerved off the highway and into a truck which had been parked while its driver was having his lading bills examined by an officer. The coroner said he regretted his finding had to be as it was, but saw no other decision. Charles Savage died at a hospital.

Inauguration Sidelights

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—Fair weather Saturday! That brought smiles from inaugural visitors today even though the weather man put a "probably" in front of "fair," and added "not much change in temperature."

Today's program: Military and naval display in Potomac Park, at the Navy Yard and Fort Myer; Indian sports; dinner of Electoral College, with James A. Farley, presiding; concert, featuring Rosa Sells, Lawrence Tibbett, Eirem Zimballist and National Symphony Orchestra; reception to governors at Pan-American union building.

Two of the busiest men in Congress today were Vice President Curtis and Speaker Garner, each doing for the last time the jobs they like but must abandon. Tomorrow Curtis enters private life and Garner, his victorious opponent, steps into his place.

Francis A. Bishop, 91 of Retail, Washington, the Nation's oldest recognized military hero, arrived yesterday, his blue eyes shining in anticipation of the greatest thrill of his life. some time during the coming spring. All interested are invited to attend the first rehearsal at the town hall, Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

An Ash Wednesday service was held at St. Peter's Episcopal church at 3 p. m., Wednesday. Allan L. Carr, reader, was in charge. He spoke on "Mental and Spiritual Healing."

Queer Twists In Day's News

Chicago—Diplomat Louis Puffino, routed to jail for putting something that wasn't a coin in a telephone, clutched his violin under his arm.

"You can't," said the jailer, "play that thing in here."
"But I must play my favorite tune when I get lonely," the prisoner answered. "Maybe you know it. It's 'When Irish Eyes are Smiling.'"

The keeper coughed, glanced around and said:
"Well now maybe I did speak a little rough. Go ahead and play when you like."

Before writing a vigorous protest to the state, he looked in his check book for the stub, so he could tell those fellows up at Harrisburg the date the check was mailed.

Yes, there was the stub, dated early enough to get him that license. And there, also, was the check.

NAMES E. J. MURPHY TO DRUGGIST BOARD

Local Pharmacist Gets Ap- pointment For Five Year Term From Gov. Cross.

The appointment of Edward J. Murphy, well known Manchester druggist, as a member of the State Pharmacy commission for a five year term was announced today by Governor Wilbur Cross. The appointment is effective June 1, at which time Mr. Murphy will succeed Louis Montanaro of New Haven, Republican, who is the present chairman of the commission.

The appointment does not have to be confirmed by the Senate. Mr. Murphy, a Democrat, has had a lifetime of experience as a pharmacist and is expected to prove a highly capable member of the commission. He is vice president of the Connecticut Pharmaceutical Association and has been an active figure in its activities. He has conducted a drug store at 4 Depot Square for the past twenty-four years and is also prominently identified in numerous local activities in the civic and political field. He is president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Washington dispatches said Speaker Garner had indicated that Mr. Roosevelt planned to call a special session of Congress soon after the inauguration, presumably to deal with current problems.

Commissioner of Finance pointed to the aggressive measures taken by the Federal Reserve system to offset extraordinary demands for funds as evidence of the central bank's strength and their ability to cope with emergencies.

After nearly an hour of active buying stocks reacted from their highs, dipping from a few cents to $1 a share from the best prices.

GRAIN MARKET ALSO

Chicago, March 3.—(AP)—A smashing rise of almost three cents a bushel took place in the wheat market in the first hour of trading today. Heavy buying credited to eastern sources, lifted values sharply soon after Washington announcements that the government would liquidate its wheat and cotton holdings.

Traders said they were at a loss to explain the sudden sharp rise in values which carried the May delivery of wheat up to 49 1/2 cents a bushel in the first hour and the best level since the middle of January. It was a maximum rise at that point of 2 1/2 cents.

Among influences mentioned was the rise in stocks at New York and that the market was reflecting the seasonally bullish crop estimates on winter wheat which were given out yesterday. Another belief which circulated the grain pits was that the Stabilization Corporation's holdings of wheat futures had already been liquidated.

Traders also expressed confidence that President-elect Roosevelt's inaugural speech tomorrow would prove constructive.

The buying swept over into other markets too. Butter shot up more than a cent a pound on the mercantile exchange and eggs also moved forward.

Star Golfers Gather

Miami, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—A $5,000 pot of gold that lay at the end of a rainbow of 72, six-inch cups drew more than a hundred golfers, including most of the leading title holders, here today.

Gene Sarazen, American and British Open champion, led the field. Contenders included Olin Dutra, Metropolitan and P. G. A. title holder; Harry Cooper, Canadian open champion; Paul Runyan, winner of the Agua Caliente open; Craig Wood, winner of the Los Angeles open and Denny Shute who took the Miami Biltmore and the Gasparilla Opens.

Johnny Revolta, Walter Hagen and Horton Smith also were listed with the favorites.

IRISH POLITICS

The story behind Notre Dame's discontinuance of the practice of electing captains is sent along by an old grad... it centers around Paul Host, 1932 captain... in 1930, Host's last year, Host and Kosky were rivals for an end position... Host finally won the job, but injuries kept him out of the important Army and Southern California games... in the following year Coach Anderson made Kosky regular left end... players believed Host a victim of Hunk's favoritism... so at the close of the season, they gave Hunk a nice kick in the pants by electing Host captain for '32.

But Anderson kept Kosky at left end just the same... and tried to make a right end out of the captain... however, right end at Notre Dame is a very specialized

By WILLIAM BRADLEY

Boy oh boy, is Joe Jacobs burning up! The other day Matchmaker Jimmy Johnson of Madison Square Garden received a cablegram from Jeff Dickson, Parisian promoter, notifying him that Joe no longer was Jeff's American representative.

Joe says all he did for Dickson was to try to get him a couple of fighters, which cost him many bucks in expenses for which he never has been reimbursed.

Schmeling's manager further avers that Dickson is sore because Jack Dempsey grabbed off the Beer-Schmeling fight, freezing Jeff out. And what's more, says Joe, Jack Dempsey is going to be the biggest-shot promoter in the country within one year.

PRESIDENT'S CABINET BIDS HIM GOODBYE

Members of Official Family Gather To Present Cabinet With Elaborate Desk Set.

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—President Hoover today said farewell to his assembled Cabinet—received from them a parting gift. Members of the official family banded together to purchase an elaborate desk set for use in his Palo Alto, California home. It was presented with informal ceremony.

The final Cabinet meeting of the Hoover administration was comparatively brief, and much of it was devoted to what the Cabinet officers called "personal conversation." The President shook hands with all as the meeting disbanded.

The desk set presented to Mr. Hoover was so large as to be almost a small Cabinet and had the signatures of each Cabinet member engraved on the back.

A thermometer, barometer and calendar as well as a clock were a part of the set.

HITLER WILL RULE DESPITE ELECTION

German Group Now In Control Is Determined To Remain At The Helm.

Berlin, March 8. — (AP) — No matter how German voters cast their ballots in the election Sunday, the group now in control of the government is determined to remain at the helm. While Hitler, Hugenberg, Von Papen and Selts are hopeful they may obtain a Reichstag majority, failure will not mean their retirement.

They have made this plain in their speeches, and meanwhile 60,000 of Hitler's brown shirted storm troops and Franz Selts's steel helmet war veterans are being inducted into the Prussian police force as auxiliaries, and action has been taken to assure support of the Army.

Chancellor Hitler formulated this determination with the statement: "In order to satisfy God and our conscience, we have once more turned to the German people. They themselves are to decide if they should desert us in this hour when we have Heaven forgive us; we shall continue on the path that is necessary in order that Germany may not go under."

Along Same Lines
Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, minister of economics and agriculture spoke along the same lines: "All depends upon the present forces of deliverance remaining in control. They are determined to stay, come what may. We shall continue on the path that is necessary in order that Germany may not go under."

If the Reichstag election brings the celebrated 51 per cent to the groups which stand behind the government—well and good, then Parliamentarism can continue for the present, because the Reichstag will then be wise enough to eliminate itself. The 51 per cent does not materialize, even in the form of Parliamentarism devised in the Weimar (Republican) constitution will go to the devil, because there would be any Parliamentary basis for any other government, and hence the Nation must be governed in any case without Parliament.

As to the Future
"Even today we desire to leave no doubt in anybody's mind that the people of Germany are a majority of complete indifference insofar as the future course of events is concerned."

In a chat with British newspaperman Walter Funk, the new chief of the government, the election is a mere change of government but a change of regime in Germany. There could be only one of two Germanys, he said, a National or a Communist Germany.

Parliamentary government, he said, was "finished."
Dr. Ernst Oberfohren, floor leader of the German Nationalist party in the last Reichstag, told a Cologne audience that "no matter what result the elections may bring the government will remain in charge."
In the Reichstag dissolved this month, the representation of Hitler's Nazis had dropped from 37.7 per cent to 28 per cent. Their allies, the Nationalists, increased slightly from 6.9 per cent to 8.3 per cent. Thus, they need only a nine per cent increase in Sunday's election for a majority.

A Texan rode a mule all the way to Washington just to tell Vice-President-elect Jack Garner "I hope things will be better." They will until he starts back again.

BAD WEATHER BOOSTS TROLLEY PATRONAGE

Heavy Snow This Winter Has Driven Many Autoists Back To Riding Street Cars.

Importance of street railways to the traveling public of Connecticut is always emphasized in bad weather and the heavy snowfall of last month was an outstanding example of this, say officials of the Connecticut Company.

In the company's territory, the depth of the snow varied between eight and ten inches, making automobile operation exceedingly difficult, especially since the snow had blown into drifts in many places. As a result thousands of automobiles which would ordinarily have been used for transportation to and from business were left in their garages and the owners took to the trolleys.

These rides added to those who ordinarily use the street railway brought about suddenly and unexpectedly a peak condition for the company which illustrates the public's dependence upon the trolleys for reliable transportation service in times of poor traveling conditions.

To meet the requirements of occasional like this, the company keeps equipment sufficient to handle whatever portion of the riding public desires to make use of its facilities, although part of the equipment may not be called into use except on such occasions. The company, being a public utility, thus furnishes an example of the never bending principle of public service operation; namely, that the utility must be ready to serve the needs of the public at all times.

The increased riding which took place during last month's snowstorm could hardly be called a boon to the Connecticut Company, however, for the company had a huge and expensive job on its hands in keeping its lines open for operation and in carting snow off the streets.

SHAW SHOCKS SCRIBES IN JAPAN INTERVIEW

Tells Reporters That Imperialistic Wars Always End Up In Ruin of Empires.

Kobe, Japan, March 3. — (AP) — George Bernard Shaw, British author and playwright, referring to the Japanese campaign in Jehol told a horrified group of Japanese reporters here today that "The European war was Imperialistic, yet it led to the disappearance of three Empires."

Shaw, who is on a world tour, continued: "Have you in Japan ever thought that in your Imperialistic aims you may end as a Republic and that is not at all what your rulers want? European Imperialists, or what is left, would give their eyes for the return of 1914."

He urged Japan to adopt birth control to solve population problems. "There is no reason," said he, "why Japan should continue to expand and demand the right to overflow other countries which naturally resent an influx of a lower civilization."

The Coliseum at Rome accommodated 100,000 spectators, 87,000 of which were seated. Its arena measured 182 feet from side to side, and 285 feet from end to end.

REACHING for peanuts, is this hungry elephant. And there's another just like him in the rectangle below. Cut out the seven pieces and put them together in such a way as to form Jumbo's silhouette.

Were you fast enough to overtake the H-I-H-O ostrich? Here's the way the seven H-I-H-O puzzle pieces are assembled to form his silhouette.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

Life is real, life is earnest. But to save our peaky soul, matters not to what we turnest. Still we can't acquire a roll.

And it came to pass that a green business man read in black and white that business is in the red. And lo, when he beheld these tidings, he became blue, for he was already yellow.

Dinner—Bring me a cup of tea without milk.
Waiter—Sorry, but we have no milk. Will it be all right without cream?

Now that a woman has attempted suicide because her man was tardy in taking her to the movies, there's going to be a lot of husbands late for appointments.

HAPPIEST HOMES ARE THOSE WHERE THE DINING ROOM TABLE STILL IS CONSIDERED MORE IMPORTANT THAN THE CARD TABLE.

Little Girl—Package of pink dye, please.

Druggist—For woolen, silk or cotton goods?

Little Girl—It's for Mother's stomach. The doctor said she'd have to diet, and she wants a delicate color.

The trouble with golf is that a man can't complain if his wife buys a new hat just as often as he buys a dozen golf balls.

Father took his little son to the incubator in the cellar to see the eggs hatch. Said Dad impressively:

Dad—Isn't it wonderful, son, how the little chicks get out of the shell?
Son—Huh? What gets me is how they get in there.

An evangelist estimates that it costs $500 to save each individual. Maybe Uncle Sam got a bargain after all, when he saved Europe.

Asked if he ever tried sleeping on a heavy meal, old Uncle Ragson Tatters from Brushville replied: "No, I always sleep on my back."

We'd hear of fewer marriages sliding onto the rocks, says Amos Tash, if there was more teamwork and less spitwork.

Hal—What was the cause of Browning's death?
Zeb—Too much water at one time.

Hal—Don't be foolish.
Zeb—I'm not. He drowned.

FRIDE IS A WEED THAT SOMETIMES CHOKES THE CHOICEST FLOWERS IN THE HUMAN HEART.

They call Sam's twin brother "E-core" because he wasn't on the program.

"When a woman sheds tears," says a local man, "it's quite proper to say she is 'sobbing', but when a man sops over there's but one word properly to fit the case—'blubbering'."

Facts are easily accepted if they do not conflict with our preconceived notions.

The Scotchman couldn't find his railway ticket. On the conductor's second round it was still missing.

Conductor—What's that in your mouth?
Sure enough there was the missing ticket. The conductor punched it and went his way.

Sandy (after several passengers had laughed)—Aw, well, I'm not so absent-minded. It was a very good ticket and I was just suckin' off the date.

Maybe modern lads hug more than their fathers did, but they don't hug as much at a time.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Tea was probably the first artificially concocted human drink. It dates back 4700 years in China.

The janitor who leaves the heat off this winter probably will cause a lot of tenants to "burn up."

A philatelist got $15,000 for four 1918 airmail stamps, rare because of their inverted center. And still they say mistakes don't pay.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

Fighting the crowd of a clearance sale is really a bargain.
