

BANKS HERE HOLD TO CLOSED POLICY

Change Window and Safe Deposit Vaults Active—Only Skeleton Force At Work.

The local banking situation remained without change today as the officials here marked time awaiting state or national developments. The Manchester Trust Company continued its policy of making change for merchants in order to serve the community in the interest of keeping business moving as satisfactorily as possible under the conditions.

Only a skeleton force of the employees of the Manchester Trust and the Savings Bank are on duty, there being no work for the remainder of the force until such time as the banks re-open. President R. LaMotte Russell of the Trust Company repeated his statement yesterday that he has received no new orders regarding the functions which the bank is allowed to perform. This means that only the admittance of people to their safety deposit boxes and the making of change are being performed.

Regarding the small denomination of checks to be given by Cheney Brothers to their help, which will be acceptable to practically every place of business in Manchester, several merchants went so far today as to state that they will cash checks to a reasonable extent. This should not be misinterpreted to mean that checks will be cashed without a satisfactory trade in merchandise. For example, one merchant said that he would give change for a five dollar check if the patron spent about four-fifths of it yesterday.

GOODMAN ON BOARD FOR LIQUOR CONTROL

West Hartford Man Is Named As House Member On State Commission.

Hartford, March 8.—(AP)—Representative Richard J. Goodman of West Hartford, was today named by Speaker William Hanna as the House member of the commission to recommend legislation for the handling of liquor in the event of ratification of the amendment repealing prohibition.

Immediately following the announcement of the appointment, the committee met and during its long conference discussed preliminary plans for its survey of the situation. The bill providing for the commission requires that a report be made to the Legislature by April 14.

Goodman is a House member of the finance and military affairs committees. The other members of the commission are: John Buckley, chairman; Dr. Robbins W. Barstow, president of the Hartford Seminary Foundation; Rev. William H. Flynn, chancellor of the Roman Catholic diocese of Hartford; Dean Edgar S. Furniss of the Yale Graduate School; Col. Thomas Hewes of Farmington, and Senator Frank Bergin of New Haven.

bureau should prove itself equal to meet this new situation. "While it will not operate very effectively against speakseasies themselves, it should operate much more effectively in the future than in the past upon the sources of supply of such speakseasies. "If the local authorities care to assume their share of responsibility it would seem that the restrictions Congress has, in its wisdom, placed in the law, will effect a fairer distribution of responsibility than has been possible under mere administrative action.

New Plans. "The new plan of operation will also enable us to reduce the force after July 1 to conform to the smaller appropriation without so much loss to enforcement. "I confidently believe this bureau can be made to operate more efficiently under the new plan than the old."

When the enforcement funds legislation was before the House, it also adopted an amendment by Taver (D. Cal.) preventing the payment of funds to informers for evidence.

Later the Senate modified the language to make it possible for agents to purchase liquor for evidence when specifically ordered by the prohibition director, but stipulated that it could not be consumed.

Congress also reduced the budget estimates for prohibition enforcement by several hundred thousand dollars.

try may contend," he said, "that lowered wages reduce costs of production, they fail to consider that any alleged benefit resulting from such lowered cost is offset by the further limitations placed upon the consuming market and the further reduction imposed upon the purchasing power of the people. x x x

"It has been a very costly lesson. Many industrial managers are publicly admitting the mistake made, stating that industry has gone too far in its market-destroying policies."

Declaring that the Nation's consuming market in 1937 was $26,420,000,000 (billions) less than it was in 1929, Green added: "These figures represent facts which cannot be controverted by those who, if the nation is compelled to buy less of manufactured goods, there must be a proportional decline in the sale of manufactured products."

"Here is the answer to why markets were destroyed, why there is a contraction of the Nation's consuming power, and why there are closed factories and workshops throughout the land. x x x Immediate action x x x The present situation calls for direct, immediate action. The call of the moment is for industrial management to make such adjustments and to initiate such policies as may be necessary to provide employment for idle people and to return them to the wage-earning class where they may exercise their maximum buying power and thus create a demand for marketable goods."

COOLIDGE'S SUCCESSOR

New York, March 8.—(AP)—Dr. James Rowland Angel, president of Yale, was elected today to succeed the late Calvin Coolidge on the board of directors of the New York Life Insurance Company. Thomas A. Tucker, president, announced after a meeting of the directors.

Mr. Coolidge had served as a director of the company from May 5, 1929, until his death, January 5, last.

Japanese and Chinese opposition was directed from Peiping. Americans There Peiping's importance in the Japanese scheme for the new regime in Jehol is in the fact that it dominates the main southern route into the province. The American population of Peiping comprises 544 Marines and 700 civilians. There was no information as to whether Marshal Chang's resignation would influence the Japanese to remain out of Peiping.

The Japanese are establishing garrisons in the Great Wall passes which have been fortifications of the Chinese since their construction in the Third Century B. C., as a defense against Tartar invasions. With Jehol brought within its boundaries, the Japanese-sponsored state of Manchukuo is to have the wall for its southern defense line.

The Japanese reported the Chinese put up a much fiercer fight in defense of Kupukow than at any of the other strategic centers of Jehol which fell to the Japanese during the past two weeks.

Tri Brigade occupied Kupukow, the Great Wall gateway to Peiping, at noon today. The brigade was engaged in a six-hour battle in ousting Chinese from the last pass they held in the wall on the southern Jehol frontier.

Chinese fled in the direction of Peiping, 65 miles southwest of Kupukow. Airplanes bombed the retreating columns. The Chinese commander in the last stand was Wang Yichu.

The Japanese halted at the pass. For the time being they are remaining there. They have denied they intend to push on to Peiping unless reprisals against the Japanese population in that city forced them to.

A Peiping dispatch announcing the resignation of Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang, North China warlord, recalled the warning by the Japanese military command that Peiping might be invaded if Marshal Chang resisted them in Jehol. Despite this warning, Chang's troops fought the

She told him their son, Elliott, was about to leave for Wyoming and he would have to enter the room to bid his father good-bye.

The queries came in fast sequence after the conference opened. Answers Quickly The President replied to most of them, virtually all on the banking situation, with little hesitation. Several times his remarks caused a quick burst of laughter. He himself laughed repeatedly at quips from the men packed around him.

Twice during the conference he obligingly turned his chair toward photographers in one end of the room or pictures, a distinct innovation permitted by Mr. Roosevelt personally after his secretaries had vetoed cameras.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8.

A REAL BARGAIN TIME

In a few days this bank tie-up will be cleared away, the crisis of the hard times will have been passed and the country will be entering on its period of convalescence. It has been a pretty sick country. It is out of danger now but, like any patient who has just passed through such a critical period, it is "weak as dishwater." For a little while, in all probability, the country is going to find it a great effort to move its arms and legs. We must be prepared for a brief spell of feeling pretty helpless. We'll hit the log no such betts, for a while, as we did before our collapse. But we'll be getting well all the time.

All of which is merely preliminary to the suggestion of an idea. One of the very first symptoms of returning vigor in our national life is bound to be a pretty substantial upturn in the general price level. Expansion of the currency inevitably, unfailingly, puts up prices—if it is a genuine expansion of currency rather than of credit and debt. We are now going to work under a policy of currency inflation—it begins with the authorization of clearing house scrip, it will certainly be followed in a few days by a more logical and planned system. There is to be enough money to put an end to the money corner from which we have been suffering for years. And prices will go up.

Nothing in the world can be surer than that we have seen the lowest general commodities market any of us will ever see in our lives. Beyond shadow of a doubt money will not buy, a year from now, anything like as much as it bought last week. In the phrasing of the economists, the "command of money over goods" is certain to weaken.

In such case the hoarding of mere money will be an expensive practice. For a number of years it was a highly profitable one. People who huddled their cash, either in their pockets or in savings accounts saw it grow daily in purchasing power while the value of the things they might have bought with it daily was growing less. That's why it was the most nonsensical thing in the world to keep prating at the public that they could restore business by spending their money—so long as prices were sinking. The Herald calls attention to the fact that it never indulged in such exhortations during the progress of deflation.

Now everything is different. We are face to face with a rising market for goods—a falling market in the valuation of money. It is no longer sensible to expect your money to grow; it will not be worth as much, in goods or property, a year from now as it is today. It is unlikely to be worth as much, by an appreciable amount.

What then is the logical thing to do with your cash? Put it to work, of course. Convert it into goods, possessions, property of which you stand in need or may stand in need.

and building lots and every useful thing. Buying makes business; this, of all times in a lifetime, is the time to buy—from the point of view of the man who has been holding on to his cash.

"SANCTITY" OF CONTRACTS

Among the powers reposed in Congress by the United States Constitution one is: "To coin money, regulate the value thereof, and of foreign coin, and fix the standard of weights and measures."

After the disposition of the first emergency measures for the relief of the fiscal difficulties of the country, when Congress gets down to the task of establishing a workable banking and currency system, one of its jobs will be the reassertion of its exclusive right to regulate the value of money.

Recognizing the fact that it would always be to the advantage of the creditor to insure the payment of obligations in the most powerful kind of money conceivable the practice has grown up of specifying that securities of many kinds shall be payable in gold; and carrying the idea still further it has more recently become the practice to specify the exact finess and weight of the gold dollars (theoretical gold dollars) for which they are not now minted at all) in which the debt shall be redeemed.

Now this practice would, if it could obtain final recognition, defeat the Constitutional prerogative of Congress to regulate the value of money. For years, whenever a change in the money standard of the country has been suggested, the gold standard supporters have countered with the declaration that there exists a sacred contract between borrower and lender that funded debts shall be discharged in the kind of money nominated in the bond; and that the existence of such contracts makes it impossible for the standard to be changed or the gold content of the dollar altered.

It is absolutely astonishing, the reverence that these people develop on such occasions for the "sanctity of contract." It becomes them not only the cornerstone of their religion but the side walls and the observation tower as well. Shylock himself could have had no such veneration for the pledged word.

However Shylock's contract may have been good enough in Venice but it would have been no good in the United States. It would have been declared void by any competent court because it was "contrary to public policy." The gold clause in every bond issued by or in the United States is contrary to public policy. It is contrary to public policy to permit any individual or corporation or public official to take over the right reserved to Congress to determine what shall constitute a dollar. We need not even invoke the fact that it is squarely unconstitutional.

There should be for all time an end to this particular kind of trickery. It can be terminated by means of a federal enactment denying recognition to any standard of money other than "lawful money of the United States" and by making it an offense against the law for any person to demand payment of a contractual obligation in anything but such lawful money.

NO CREDIT IN THIS

If the Motor Vehicles Department and other state departments to which citizens have to make payments have not already rescinded their decision to accept no checks during the period of the bank holiday they certainly should do so forthwith.

automobile owners. And the same thing is true of the other departments.

If there was anybody or anything to whom we might have been expected to look for a show of confidence it was the state government. Instead the Motor Vehicle Department adopted a course very well calculated to make the people of the state needlessly apprehensive.

The panicky performance of these state departments does small credit to the intelligences that direct them. In the case of Commissioner Stoessel we are frankly astonished.

WALCOTT'S JOB

The appointment of Senator Frederic C. Walcott of Connecticut to the only Republican vacancy on the Senate Finance Committee, coming just at this time, is not only peculiarly gratifying to his constituents in this state but fortunate for the country. Senator Walcott is deeply experienced in major finance but so are a number of other Republican senators. His especial strength lies in the essential liberalism and genuine patriotism of his mind and character. He can be depended on to lend his every effort to the solution of the stupendous economic and financial problems to be faced with out suffering from the conscious or subconscious handicap of partisan or class prejudice.

IN NEW YORK

MEET THE FIRST "CABINET HUSBAND"

"Mister Frances Perkins" New York, March 8.—Being the first "Cabinet Husband" in the United States may seem like an honor that men in general might not appreciate having. However, it is doubtful if anyone could carry off the title with more perspective and quiet humor than a man like Paul C. Wilson, husband of Frances Perkins, new Secretary of Labor in the Roosevelt Cabinet.

Paul Wilson is an aloof intellectual, an expert statistician who can analyze figures and get down to fundamental meanings behind them as few men can today. He has been consultant for some of the outstanding insurance and financial companies in America. He looks like a professor, yet his dry humor can send a dinner party into gales of laughter. He is in his early 50's, slender, frail-looking, fair, of sensitive, high-strung temperament, wears glasses, is something of a social recluse, yet is deeply devoted to his close friends, and kind to everybody who really needs something done.

One of his friends described the difference between him and his wife this way: "If you were interested in a bug in a meadow and asked Paul about it, he would go deeply and profoundly into the social and personal life of the bug. Nothing could divert his attention until he had finished his analysis. Frances, on the other hand, might look at the bug, but again she might miss it altogether, and see the sweep of the meadow and the meaning of it to the country at large."

A Village Romance

The Wilson-Perkins romance and marriage harks back to Greenwich Village days of 1915-19. They were part of the Sinclair Lewis, Arthur Bullard, Lincoln Steffens, Hypolyte Havel, Howard Brubaker, Max Eastman, John Reed, Mary Heaton Vorse group that used to meet in the Dutch restaurant that Nora Van Loovan opened just off Washington Square. It was one of the first of those eating places by which the Village became famous.

Frances Perkins had a little apartment on Waverly Place where the crowd often adjourned. Paul Wilson lived, along with most of the bachelors in the above-mentioned group, in the famous old Benedict Club on Washington Square, a site which New York University now occupies.

Both Paul Wilson and Frances Perkins were interested in social problems, in internationalism, in votes for women and all the other "causes" that "perked" intellectuals of that era. Paul was one of the few who had a responsible position in those days. Whenever anybody wanted anything, the whole group would say, "Ask Paul. Paul will help you."

BRONCHIAL ASTHMA

After publishing an article on asthma I get many voluntary letters telling of cases which have been cured through following my directions. For this reason I am always glad to write on this subject, since I am sure it will help still others.

Most patients develop their first attack before the age of 25 and it has been estimated that more than thirteen million working days are lost each year from attacks of bronchial asthma alone. One of the strange things about the disorder is that many patients never have an attack during the day time, all of them coming at night.

The three principal causes of asthma are: 1—Excessive stomach gas, which pushes up against the diaphragm. 2—Weakness of the diaphragm which is the large, flat muscle used in breathing. 3—Excessive secretion of mucus by the mucous membranes lining the bronchial tubes. More and more attention is being paid to the bronchial tubes.

(Have Teeth X-rayed) Question: Mrs. Bedelia O. asks: "Could a dead tooth cause neuritis or rheumatism if the tooth shows no pus-bag in the x-ray picture?" Answer: It is possible to develop neuritis or rheumatism from abscessed teeth. X-rays cannot be depended upon as a positive diagnosis of pus pockets at the roots of the teeth. X-rays are a very valuable aid to diagnosis however, and I advise patients to have their teeth x-rayed about every six months.

(Best Fats) Question: Mrs. Mattie McK. asks: "Can a person get digest fats after the gall-bladder has been removed? If so, what kinds are best?" Answer: The digestion of fats should not be affected through the removal of the gall-bladder. I consider the best fats and oils to be butter, cream, olive oil and that obtained from ripe avocados.

that the reason for the attack may be that the body has become so toxic that wastes are thrown out through the mucous membrane of the tubes, which become truly siphon-like channels. The presence of such large amounts of waste causes irritation and swelling of the tubes, and when these poisons are washed away by the copious discharge of mucus, the patient recovers. He is then free from attacks until enough toxic wastes accumulate in the tubes to cause another attack. It is significant that one of the complications of asthma is a chronic bronchitis, which occurs when the bronchial tubes are damaged sufficiently to become chronically inflamed.

During an attack of bronchial asthma the following symptoms appear: difficult breathing, fullness of the chest, sweating and blueness of the face, and distress from a hard gas pocket which pushes upward. The attacks may last for hours and plunge the patient into the most distressing agony as he finds himself deprived in so large a degree of the breath of life. Once they are over, health returns and the patient may seem to be as usual.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS (Dietetic Clinic)

Question: Mr. Elmer B. asks: "What would cause cramps from the knees down, on the second day of an orange fast which was being taken to overcome indigestion?" Answer: These cramps were probably due to a "dietetic crisis."

Home means much to both of them, and nowhere in New York does one find a more fascinating or cosmopolitan group of interesting people than these two gather together, when they entertain. Wilson is proud of his wife and is interested in the things that hold her attention. He has perhaps a surer grasp of politics than she ever has had, and undoubtedly his aloof perspective on labor and other problems has been of great benefit to her.

When they were married, in 1917, there was one of the very first Village doorways that held two cards over one bell—"Frances Perkins" and "Paul C. Wilson."

CATCH TWO NEGROES TRANSPORTING LIQUOR

Uncover Still On Perry Farm in Windemere—Held in East Hartford.

Catch in the act of transporting liquor from a distilling plant to Hartford, two negroes sent the state police to the scene of the still which they are to be charged with operating at Windemere, not far from Rockville and closer to the Ellington town hall.

State Policeman Thomas A. Hunt of the Stafford Barracks and State Policeman Carroll Shaw of the headquarters barracks at Hartford, raided a 35 gallon still on the farm owned by Mrs. Grace M. Perry, colored, wife of Joseph Perry, white, of Windemere.

The 35 gallon copper still was set up on a large oil burning range in the barn on the Perry farm. There was also 250 gallons of mash in the shed. No liquor was found on the premises although the mash was in the process of being heated when the officers arrived.

Election Contest. The first group of testimony in the contested election of Congressman William L. Higgins of Coventry, Conn., has been taken with the second group of testimony to be taken on Monday, March 13 and the third group on Monday, March 20.

The first group of testimony was held in Norwich, N. H., before Superior Court on Monday before Ex-Congressman Edwin L. Higgins of Norwich. All of the Tolland County witnesses were heard at this time, numbering twenty-one witnesses.

The contestants, William C. Fox, Democratic candidate for Congress, is represented by the law firm of Fitzgerald & Fitzgerald, with Attorney Curtis Morgan as counsel presenting the evidence. It is assumed that two more days will be consumed in hearing the contestant's testimony and as a result March 15th and 20th have been assigned upon agreement of counsel.

It is assumed that two more days will be consumed in hearing the contestant's testimony and as a result March 15th and 20th have been assigned upon agreement of counsel.

How many days needed for the presentation of the contestee's evidence is not known but 40 days are allowed upon completion of the contestant's case, who also has 40 days.

The exact procedure in the contesting of an election of a Congressman was described by Major Buckley yesterday as being of considerable interest. Under the government regulations, the two parties who in this case are L. Higgins of Ellington, of Coventry, Republican Congressman-elect, and William C. Fox, of New London, defeated Democratic candidate, each have 40 days to present their case.

The contestee's attorney, Major John Buckley, has forty days after the completion of the Fox testimony, after which Fox's attorney again has ten days for rebuttal. As yet no date has been set pending the volume of testimony which is to be presented for the Fox interests.

WILHELM ABANDONS PLAN FOR THRONE

Ex-Kaiser Wants To Spend Rest of Life As a Private Citizen.

London, March 8.—(AP)—Any prospect of former Kaiser Wilhelm II seeking to regain the throne of Imperial Germany as a result of recent events there was said today to have vanished through the former sovereign's own act.

If the London Daily Mail's correspondent at Doorn, Holland, is accurately informed, Wilhelm Hohenzollern has completely and voluntarily abandoned the aim with which he has often been credited—of again wielding power over his own people.

Instead he is reported seeking permission to spend his declining years in the privacy of his castle at Homburg near der Hohn, the famous mineral spring resort in Hesse-Nassau.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

A FRIEND INDEED IS ONE WHO ISN'T IN NEED.

Ever see anybody who didn't have a weakness for punching the air?

IF AN ENGAGED MAN ANSWERED HIS FIANCEE'S QUESTIONS TRUTHFULLY:

- 1. How much are you making a month? $50 per month less than I am spending.
2. How much of your salary do you save? See above.
3. How do you like your position? Do you know of another?
4. What do you think of your boss? Deleted.
5. How many positions have you held? Kept changing. Haven't held any.
6. What did you do with the first money you ever earned? My boot-logger got it.

Patient-Why doctor, you told me to show you my tongue, but you haven't even looked at it once.

Doctor-No. It was only to keep you quiet while I wrote the prescription.

Fashion dictates suspenders again this spring. Judging from the appearance of some of our young men, the present suspense is terrible.

Never make fun of 'HER' coffee. You may be old and weak yourself some day.

LET'S ALL GIVE IT A CHANCE. Come on! Let's chase those frowns away, and muster up a smile!

Alert, and asking, but a chance, has wavy hair a mile. Let's give old man depression, a swift kick in the pants.

Prosperity is on the way, let's all give it a chance. This country is the best on earth--as solid as a rock.

Has weathered harder storms than this, and overcome the shock. We've had our lesson--learned it well, we're ready to advance.

On every hand Plus Signs are seen--men going back to work. Let's put our force behind the ball, this is no time to shrink.

We've paid the fiddler--paid him well. Let's profit from our dance. Prosperity is in the way, let's all give it a chance.

Everybody is impatiently waiting for the appearance next Friday of the Tenth Anniversary Number of The Brushville Eagle, because Editor Clay Mudd has been holding back all the important local news for several months to use in this special issue.

Aunt-Tommy you showed your agility when you jumped over that fence.

Tommy-Gosh! And I told Maw to sew that button on my pants.

A woman entered the meat department of a local grocery store the other day. With her was her small daughter. Seeing some tripe in the refrigerator case, the little one asked what it was.

Her Mother-Tripe, dear. Little One-That's funny. Daddy says that's what we get over the radio.

Never strike a man when he's down. You can't tell how big he'll be when he gets up.

Bride (sobbing)-I'm sorry I married you, you brute. Groom-You ought to be. You cheated some other girl out of a mighty fine husband.

SPARKS... Many a student who knows nothing of electricity wires his home for money... Our idea of an optimist is a man who takes a frying pan on a fishing trip... A woman's mind is as uncertain as a grapefruit squirt... Publicity has put over many a punk product... Beauty is only skin deep and some are skinned trying to get it... The man who buys watered stock gets soaked... Some people worry because they worry so much... The disappointed lover is often more fortunate than the bridegroom.

Henderson-What makes Mrs. Patterson say that her husband doesn't love her any more?

Perkins-When he left her to go to New York he flew by airplane, but when he returned home he took a slow passenger train.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

The girl who tries her hand at everything has only herself to blame if she gets into hot water.
