JAPAN WITHDRAWS FROM THE LEAGUE

Formally Notifies Geneva That Membership of Over 13 Years Is Ended — To Hold South Pacific Islands.

Tokyo, Japan, March 27.—(AP)—Japan formally ended today a membership of more than 13 years in the League of Nations.

The final action was taken by the Privy Council, meeting in the Imperial Palace, and the long awaited decision was transmitted to Geneva with the approval of Emperor Hirohito.

The Emperor in a rescript issued to his subjects today, said, "His Majesty has been pleased to command his government to secede from the League of Nations following a disagreement with the League's policy in support of Manchukuo and other actions of the League."

The rescript added that despite secession, Japan intends to continue cooperation in the League efforts to assure peace and maintain friendly relations with other nations.

The resignation was telegraphed to Geneva after Premier Makoto Saito had obtained the Emperor's sanction.

The communication to the League declared the League Assembly's last month's condemnation of Japan's actions, "by attempting to challenge the position taken by Japan in recognizing Manchukuo, cuts away the ground for stabilization of the Far Eastern question."

"Nor can the terms laid down in its recommendation for further cooperation, hereby given notice of the intention of Japan to withdraw from the League of Nations."

DIPLOMAT KILLED WHEN CAR CRASHES

His Two Children and Mother Also Die When Big Auto Overturns.

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—Christian Channing Gross, a Chicago soldier and diplomat, his two children, Peter, 10, and Barbara, 8, and his mother, Mrs. Natal Gross of Chicago, were killed yesterday when their car overturned at a curve during a trip that was part of a family reunion.

Gross, who packed into 37 years of life an extensive study of the law, military service in France and Siberia during the World War and several years in the American diplomatic service, was reunited with his children and his parents at Palm Beach Saturday night.

Authorities said Peter Gross was driving the big French car at the time it left the highway at a sharp curve at Fort Lauderdale, but Charles Gross said his son, Christian, was at the wheel. An inquest was ordered.

Gross arrived in Palm Beach Saturday night from Washington while his two children and his mother were spending the winter. They leased a house and were to have moved into it today.

New York, March 27.—(AP)—Bishop John J. Dunn of the Catholic archdiocese of New York withdrew from the list of speakers scheduled to address the demonstration in Madison Square Garden tonight in protest against alleged German anti-Semitic activities.

Other speakers scheduled to address tonight's meeting are former Governor Alfred E. Smith, Senator Wagner, Bishop William T. Manning and Rabbi Wise.

The New York preachers meeting of the Methodist Episcopal church today voted a protest against "cruel treatment of Jews in Germany" and exhorted Christian peoples to repent the treatment accorded Germany since the war.

The statement adopted by the ministers called "our people, and Christian; generally, to repentance for that treatment of Germany since the war which began with the making of peace based upon the false assertion that Germany alone was responsible for the war, as is stated in the Treaty of Versailles; which has continued upon that false premise; and which has resulted in the attitude of national despair which has raised Adolf Hitler, as its symbol to power."

BREWERIES OF STATE HAVE BIG OUTPUT Able To Turn Out 860,000 Barrels of Beer Yearly—Tax Will Help Balance Budget.

Hartford, March 27.—(AP)—If Connecticut breweries swing into full operation again as they did before the war and even if the long thirst does not produce new business, 860,000 barrels of beer will be rolled into cellars during the next year, it was estimated today.

The state tax department is anxious to estimate the probable output as a possible new source of revenue and some state officials believe a beer tax will be the only salvation of the state budget this year.

Inquiry among brewers has disclosed that during the regular order of things during the prewar period, one Hartford brewery turned out 160,000 barrels of the liquid, annually with a New Haven brewery second in production of 100,000. The New Haven and one Bridgeport brewery brewed about 80,000 barrels annually it is reported.

STATE PENSIONS
 In its desire to put on record its opposition to the principle of state pensions for state employes in a form of society where there is no such thing as a general pension system for other workers The Herald may have been a little less than fair to the Commission on State Pensions which for more than two years has been studying the subject. The other day we applauded the Commission for its recommendation that no pension legislation be adopted at this session, expressing our opinion of the whole theory of creating a pension class out of state job holders at the expense of people who work harder and longer for less compensation—and we let it go at that.

We do not agree with the Commission on its earlier pension program. We couldn't, very well, since we disagree with the pension principle when it is applied, without the most compelling reasons, to special classes of citizens, and since the Commission has been trying to work out such a system. But it is only just to say that the Commission has not been trying to create a pension system, it has been trying to improve one already in existence—an extremely bad one.

It has been striving to set up a pension system that would be, as to state employes, uniform and mandatory and which would require the presumptive beneficiaries to participate in its financing. If there should be any pension system—which we are far from admitting—it certainly should be one based on beneficiary participation and on segregation of income producing capital in amounts sufficient to take care of the constantly mounting pension expenditures of the state. Any system of state pensions which must rely for its annual funds on taxation of the people would necessarily impose upon the taxpayers of the state, on top of all their other burdens, an ever growing mountain of obligation, eventually quite impossible to bear.

Connecticut already has a state pension law, not so burdensome in fact as it would be possible for a pension law to be but probably the worst pension law, in principle, that ever was devised, since it lends itself to the rankest and most outrageous favoritism and to out-and-out political graft. It is embodied in Section 170 of the General Statutes (Revision of 1930) as follows:

Any person who shall have been in the service of the state thirty years, or any person who shall have served in any department of the state twenty years or more in the aggregate and reached the age of seventy years, may be retired by the Board of Finance and Control, and thereafter shall receive a salary equal to one-half of his average salary for the five years next preceding such retirement. Any person who shall have been in the department of state police as a state policeman for twenty-five years or more and shall have reached the age of sixty years may be retired by the Board of Finance and Control and thereafter shall receive a salary equal to one-half of his average salary for the five years next preceding his retirement. Any person who shall have been in the service of the state forty years or more may be retired by the Board of Finance and Control and any person who shall have been in the service of the state for such period and shall have been retired, and any person who retired previous to 1923 and who, at the time of such retirement, shall have been in the service of the state as prescribed in this section, subject to the qualification of age as applied to such term of service, shall, from the time of such retirement, receive a salary equal to three-fourths of the salary he was receiving at the time of his retirement. . . .

Here, obviously, is a pension system based entirely on whimsey. Whether or not a state employe shall be retired on a pension depends on whether the Board of Finance and Control likes his looks or on whether he has friends or whether he has been a good boy politically or is expected to be. It is always possible for Connecticut to have a political board of control. It is always possible for such a pension system as we now have to be used corruptly. That is not a safe pension system for any state to have.

Even under the administration of our own very respectable board the result has not been good. We are already paying out, in such arbitrarily bestowed pensions and others jockeyed through the General Assembly as special enactments, some $80,000 or $90,000. Under it there was retired on $1,200 a year for life a state department employe whose activities for years had been one of the standing jokes of the capitol. Again, a nice old gentleman who for many years had been maintained by the state in a job where he was just an amiable ornament was put upon a permanent vacation at full pay for the rest of his days.

And not one of these beneficiaries had ever contributed a cent toward a pension fund.

It is only just to recognize the fact that the Commission on State Pensions has been striving to do away with an unfair, injurious and morally unjustifiable condition through its advocacy of a participating system. It is only fair, also, to admit that there are some valid arguments in support of pensions for state employes. In spite of all of which we are firmly of the conviction that the weight of argument against any pension system at all—save perhaps one predicated on death or disability directly associated with the service of the state—is overwhelming.

CEMETERY ROADS

In these days, when one of the problems is how best to utilize the labor of workers for whom employment must be found, there would seem to be the best of reasons for doing something about the roads within the town's cemeteries. Everybody knows that there are three of these, the East, the West and the Northwest or Buckland, but not everybody knows that in none of them have the roadways and drives ever been developed in keeping with modern practice.

Ordinarily and for the greater part of the years there is no particular fault to be found; but during the spring thaws it frequently occurs that the drives are impassable to vehicular travel, particularly the modern form of it. The result is that for some weeks every year or almost every year the burial lots of all three public cemeteries are inaccessible to funeral parties and attendants on interment rites have to leave their cars on the highways and wade through inches of mud, sometimes for very considerable distances.

This is a rather barbarous state of affairs and yet one for which it is hardly fair to attempt to place blame. Roads—good roads that are weatherproof—are expensive. Cemeteries are pretty largely made up of drives. And there is always so much demand for public funds in a hundred other directions that it is natural that the building of proper roads within the burial grounds should have been neglected.

Now, however, with plenty of labor available for which outlet must be found, it would seem that immediate and serious attention should be given to the cemeteries. It is not to be expected that all the drives in all the cemeteries should be rebuilt; that would be too big a job. But it should be possible to provide drained and surfaced roads enough in each of them so that all parts of each would be reasonably accessible at all times of the year.

A large amount of labor is being expended at Center Springs Park. It is just a little doubtful whether a park of the character of Center Springs is really greatly improved by so much "improvement." At all events it will seem to many that the cemeteries are in more urgent need of attention than the park.

The attention of the Manchester Emergency Employment Association and that of the Board of Selection are respectfully called to the cemetery situation. It is suggested that a reasonable program of road improvement be determined on and systematically followed. If this necessity of finding work for the jobless should continue until such time as the essential program for the town cemeteries is completed it should be extended to embrace the two Catholic cemeteries if their authorities so desire, since while they are not public properties in a legal sense they fulfill the same function as the town burying grounds and those who use them are contributors to all public funds on the same basis as those who use the town cemeteries.

FEDERAL DIRECT AID

The half billion dollar federal direct aid bill laid before Congress today is pretty likely to become law in some form or other. At this writing the terms of the bill had not been made public except insofar as it was stated that the measure proposes that the huge sum be turned over to the states for relief purposes, not as loans but as direct grants. One need not be surprised, however, if there develops a condition that no state shall share in the distribution unless it has previously tapped its own resources for this purpose. Just where Connecticut would stand, in such event, is problematical. Up to yet this state, as a state, has done nothing for the relief of unemployment. It has left that burden to its cities and towns.

It is not to be anticipated, of course, that this commonwealth will actually be rated by the federal government as one not deserving of the relief grant and therefore as one to get nothing from the huge fund; but we may find that we are up against complications that may prove bothersome.

At all events we may be prepared for the saying of some unfriendly things in Congress about states that are so little affected by the plight of the rest of the country that they have found no necessity of loosening their own purse strings to help take care of the jobless.

TROUT

Anyway, despite depression, bank troubles, freezing nights, rain, snow, scant sunshine and the devil and all trout fishermen are sanguine. They are actually hopeful that there may be, this year, a few real trout.

Last year, for some reason or other, the trout never did get to striking with any enthusiasm. The total catch was relatively small in Connecticut. A good many of the fish distributed are believed to have lived over. Conditions have been excellent for their thriving. There has been an abundance of water. Fewer fish have fallen victim to the herons and the minks, in all probability. There ought to be a good many decent sized trout in Connecticut waters, well naturalized by a year of living on their own.

At all events, that's the anglers' dope. Let it be hoped we have turned the corner of the depression in trout fishing. It has been pretty bad.

IN NEW YORK

Tax Tattlers Busy
 New York, March 28.—If you have been grudgingly admitting Uncle Sam for his keen nose in detecting those who have tried to cheat a little on your income taxes, this may disillusion you.

It seems that every year anonymous letters by the thousands pour into the Internal Revenue Collector's office suggesting that he look into this or that John Doe's return, pointing out just where John chisel- ed. Some of these letters are written on fine stationery, in a beautiful hand. Others are typed. Many come on ruled paper. "A Friend" is the usual signature.

These letters are said to come from jealous brothers and sisters, ex-business partners, ex-wives and ex-husbands, men or women who either they received a real deal from the one they tell on, from mothers-in-law, even from the children of the man or woman named. "Squealing" seems to offer them a way to revenge. . . .

Frugality Plus
 "Run Little Chillun", the new all-colored show hit, was produced by a lawyer, Robert Rockmore. During the six weeks rehearsal, he housed and fed his cast of 175 singers on $50 a week by converting two apartment houses into dormitories and feeding them mostly on rabbit and other cheap foods. . . .

Highly Scientific
 The nearest trick of the week was effected by a mild-mannered publicity man for a mechanical refrigerator company. Somehow he got wind of the reception that the patients were giving at the Waldorf Astoria in honor of the great Einstein. The refrigerator company was having a convention, with full display of their new models, in another suite at the same hotel. The publicity man, just as the meeting finished, button-holed Einstein and, in a suitable manner, told the celebrated scientist that he had some machinery that he thought would interest him.

Immediately following the reception, he whisked Einstein away from Mrs. Einstein, Elmer Rice, Norman Thomas and dozens of other important people who waited to speak to him, and escorted him up to the refrigerator display rooms. Then, to the delight of the half dozen high-powered seamen and two two hard-boiled, ex-news photographers waiting to "shoot" pictures, Einstein got down on his hands and knees to see how the refrigerator worked. Then he stood up, peered quizzically into this compartment and that, and at every pose, flashlight bulbs announced that the photographers had got their man.

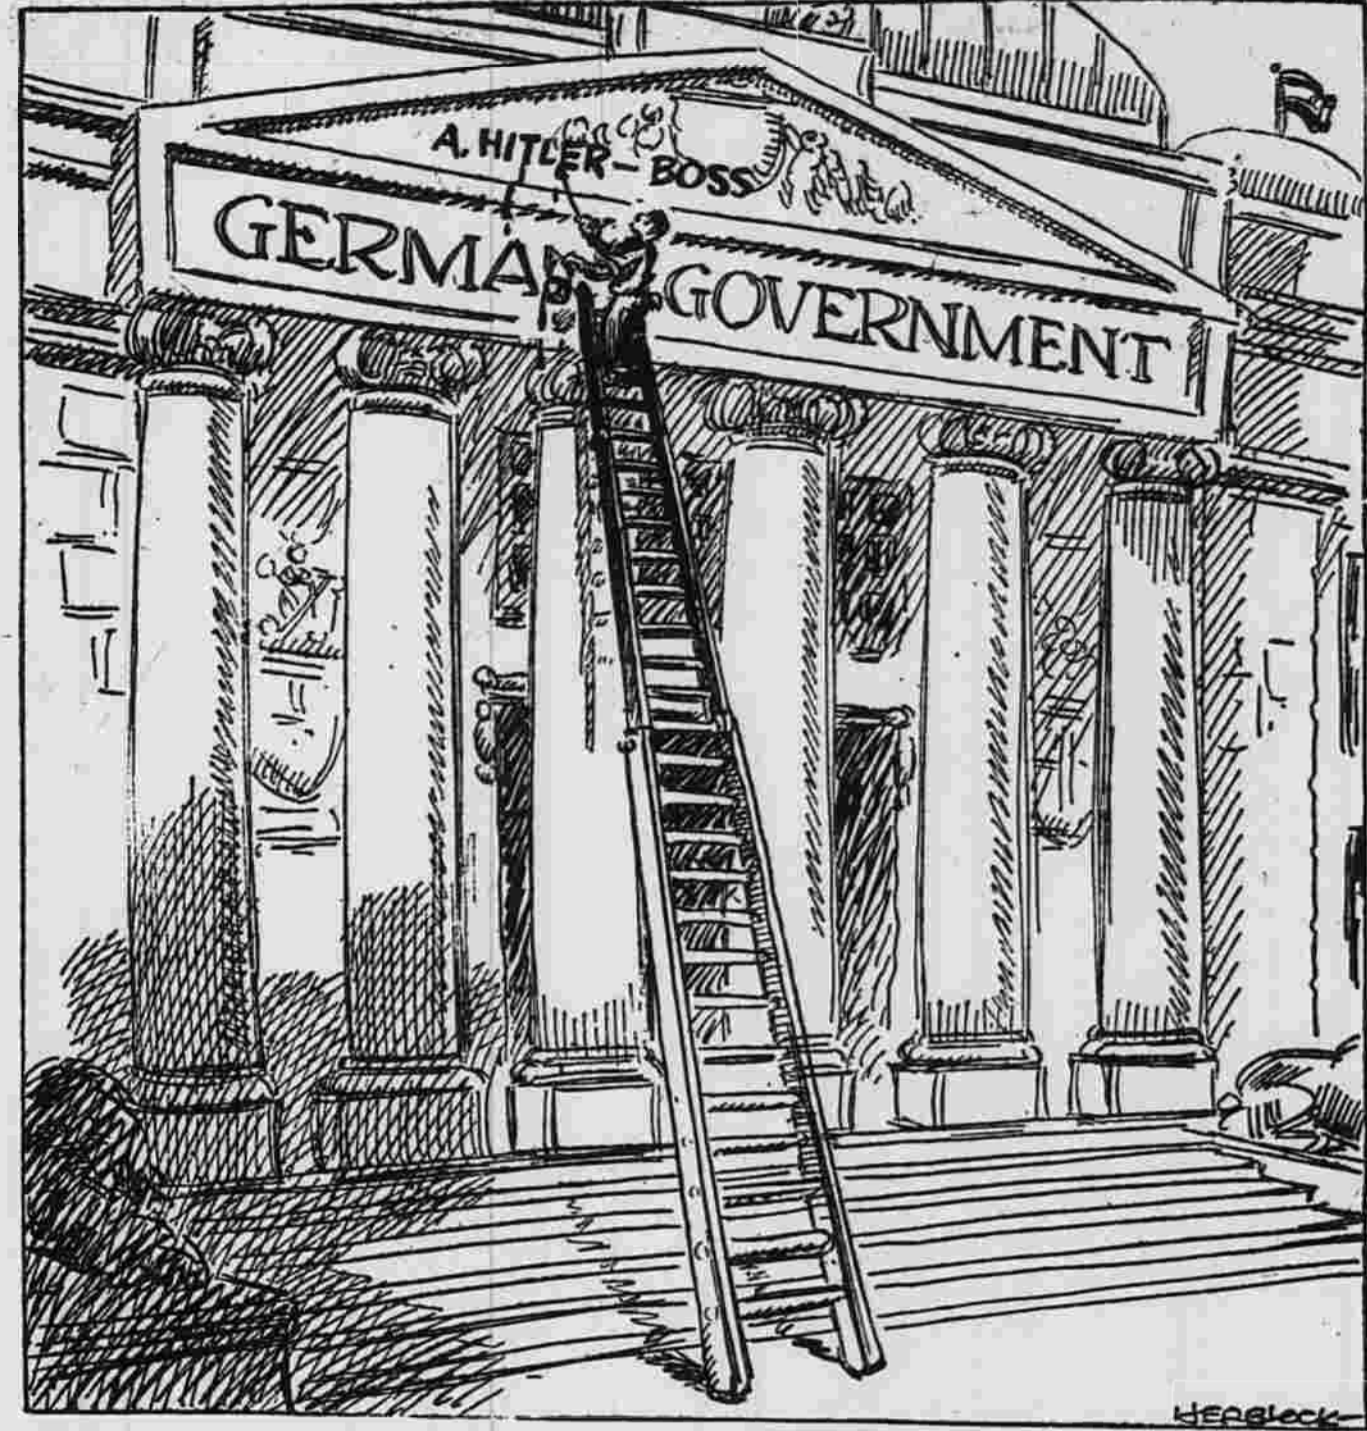

The inspection over, Einstein courteously shook hands with the man who had been "nice" enough to show him his new machines and left, apparently unaware that he had been photographed for display purposes. . . .

Gymnastic Norms
 At the movie tea given for Miss Norma Shearer at the Waldorf Astoria, Miss Shearer, Irving Thalberg, her movie magnate husband, and their little two-and-a-half-year-old Junior, presented as pretty a domestic picture as any old-fashioned early American could wish. Thalberg, delicate, sensitive, far from well now and on route for a year's vacation in Europe, with his wife and child, is never too tired or too busy to tell Junior his bedtime story, it seems. Also to answer questions. Norma, however, wanting to mean something definite to their child, decided on the merry-making role. She turns handspinnings, walks on her hands, turns cartwheels and chins to the vast enjoyment and appreciation of her fair little curly-haired son. . . .

Queer Twists In Day's News

Chicago—Bridge is to have its turn at the world's fair. George Keith, official of the U. S. Bridge Association, announced there would be an historical exhibit showing the evolution of the game, as well as play for trophies and lectures by masters of the art.

Stockley, England.—The inhabitants of this Whitshire hamlet say it will open a school for the education of all new members.

"The art," he says, "of tending bars can't be acquired by an ordinary 'hash slinger' by changing his uniform. Drawing a glass of beer looks simple, but it's an art."

Cobham, England.—Men who were boys when Charles Dickens used to come to Cobham are rallying younger villagers and Dickens lovers the world over to save a landmark.

The death-watch beetle has damaged the village church which Dickens knew so well and money is being raised for re-roofing.

In Cobham they still talk of Dickens, the man, as though it would not surprise them if he walked suddenly out of the Leather Bottle Inn, which he liked so well and made famous.

Dickens lived at Gad's Hill, near Rochester, and he used to walk to the village for lunch at the Leather Bottle Inn, which stands opposite the church.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Large Glands in Neck)
 Question: Mrs. C. writes: "We have adopted a child who was born of a consumptive mother. She has many tubercular glands in her neck. Do you think there is any way of preventing consumption in this child? Should we have the glands lanced?"

Answer: Young children frequently have glandular enlargements which are not necessarily tubercular. These can be cured by diet even if they are tubercular. Lancing will only make more trouble, as an added burden is thrown on the other lymphatics.

(Building a Strong Character)
 Question: Everett asks: "How can a boy of twenty become a strong character? I allow everyone to tell me against my will. I do seem to be able to make up my own mind. Would be very pleased to appreciate your advice."

Answer: Possibly you are simply going through a stage where you have not definitely formed your own opinion. Many people have gone through such periods of life and outgrown them. A study of some biographies or autobiographies of famous men should be helpful.

(White and Wholewheat Bread)
 Question: N. K. writes: "The writer would like very much to know which is the more fattening—wholewheat bread or white bread—that is from the standpoint of calories."

Answer: Both wholewheat bread and white bread could be considered fattening to one who is inclined to gain weight readily, since they are both high caloric foods. I generally advise that all cereal products be discontinued in the diet of one who is trying to reduce and instead large amounts of non-starchy vegetables both cooked and raw be used.

WATKINS FURNITURE

Behind the Scenes in WASHINGTON

By MORRIS GILBERT
 NEA Service Writer

Washington, March 27.—Swift, relentless prosecution of dishonest bankers and income tax evaders, wherever found, is promised by Homer Stille Cummings, Attorney General of the new administration.

The only limit to prosecution is statutory, since, as General Cummings pointed out to this correspondent, criminal bankers are in the happy position of being beyond the law after three years, unlike fellow-criminals in other civil fields, who are legally vulnerable for six.

"I took the oath of office Saturday afternoon, March 4," said General Cummings. "On Monday morning, March 6, I began the investigation of banking irregularities. All the energies of the department have been concentrated on it ever since."

The work of co-ordinating findings and achievements of the department under the last administration and purposes of the new has already been accomplished, he said. Arrests already have begun, and will continue as circumstances warrant.

"We have more time to investigate income tax frauds because there the statute of limitations works only after six years," the general continued. "But the banking side calls for speed, and that is what we are giving it."

General Cummings was asked if the statute of limitations on banking irregularities seemed to have supplied loopholes of escape from legal action with special regard to the crash-year of 1929.

"It should be," he said. "It would appear so," he said.

Limitation Reacts
 It is pointed out in legal circles in Washington that the handicap of a three-year limitation under which the Department of Justice is working in prosecuting bank frauds is comparatively new. It came about, lawyers say, as a result of the Stanton inquiry of a few years ago with which the name of Senator Tom Walsh, slated until his death for the attorney generalship in this administration, was so closely connected.

Witnesses, lawyers recall, frequently refused to come clean, on the ground that their statements might incriminate them. Congress, therefore, rushed a law shortening the infectious period, in the hope of prying facts out of tongue-tied guests in the committee rooms. It served its purpose, but now it is working the other way.

A New Englander, who is unlikely to catch specific cases already thus outlawed, lawyers say. It would be considered "ex post facto," and therefore beyond the judicial power. It may well be, however, that new banking legislation will bring about a return to the old limit.

General Cummings looks like what he is—a shrewd, successful, veteran New England lawyer. He is tall and broad-shouldered, keen-armed, loose-jointed. He has a cold, analytical pose-face. Finances rigidity bridge a prominent, straight nose. His forehead is high, his head baldish, fringed with gray-sandy hair. He speaks slowly and only after due consideration and only when he really wants to say what he is to say.

Outragious in Politics
 General Cummings has shown

persistent, courageous, if not always successful, political capacity since graduating from Yale in 1901. A Democratic National Committeeman since 1900, active in party councils for years, he never won the vote of his own state for national office—connected having long been normally Republican, to be sure.

Stamford made him mayor for three terms. He was State's Attorney for Fairfield County from 1914 to 1924, his record in office bearing marks of independence and liberality. As for instance, when he refused to prosecute a Jewish youth charged by circumstantial evidence and a police-gleaned confession with the murder of a popular priest.

Keynote in 1920
 A high peak of his career occurred when he was temporary chairman and keynote of the Democratic convention in San Francisco in 1920. Connoisseurs of keynote oratory say it was a brilliant example.

General Cummings struck a political reef in 1924. At the notable Madison Square Garden convention, he appeared as a stout, McAdoo man, holding the Connecticut delegation firm against Al Smith and its own inclinations for a number of ballots. It did Cummings no good just then. He went, for a time, into political eclipse in his own state.

But he emerged in good season, as a leader of the "New Guard" supporting Wilbur Cross for Governor of Connecticut. And last spring, he came to Washington with the purpose of putting the Roosevelt pre-convention drive on a nationwide scale.

May Go To Philippines
 General Cummings has another post—Governor-General of the Philippines—waiting for him at the President's pleasure. But it is quite possible that the President will want to keep this pugacious, courageous, astute counsellor in the hurly-burly of Washington rather than send him to the spiced breezes of Manila and the comparatively restful company of the Filipinos.

Washington gathers that General Cummings has proved himself a shrewd advisor at White House conferences, in which he has been a very frequent attendant. His law firm—from which he resigned on taking office—has just won a highly important decision against Andrew Mellon's aluminum organization which, unless overruled, will bring about the revelation of costs of producing aluminum, "a dark secret for twenty years," according to Cummings.

ENGLISH FORD PLANT IDLE
 Dagenham, England, March 27.—(AP)—Work ceased entirely today at the Ford factory as the result of a strike of 2,000 employes over the question of wage reductions.

The dispute started among members of the Amalgamated Engineering Union and workers of the Ford plant who were as they always reported that the entire work force at a standstill.

The plant is reputed to be the largest motor car factory in Europe. It employs 7,000 persons.

A conference is expected to be held tonight when a settlement will be effected if possible.

The reduction was said to have come from three to seventeen times an hour. (About 4:15 to 4:25 p.m.)

The Human Fort STOPS CANNON BALL! It's fun to be fooled... it's more fun to KNOW. A performance sometimes staged in cigarette advertising is the illusion that cigarettes are made easy on the throat by some special process of manufacture. EXPLANATION: All cigarettes are made in almost exactly the same way. Manufacturing methods are standard and used by all. A cigarette is only as good as the tobacco it contains. It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. In costly tobaccos you will find mildness, good taste, throat-ease. Smoke Camels critically, and give your taste a chance to appreciate the greater pleasure and satisfaction offered by the more expensive tobaccos. Other cigarettes, we believe, will taste flat and insipid to you forever after. NO TRICKS... JUST COSTLIER TOBACCOS IN A MATCHLESS BLEND

One I Love

BEGIN HERE TODAY

When JANET HILL learns BOB CARLYLE has been breaking engagements with her to meet BETTY KENDALL, a society girl, she tells him their marriage is off. Janet is 23, pretty and secretary to BRUCE HAMILTON, advertising manager of Every Home Magazine.

She still loves Bob and cannot forget him. JEFFREY GRANT, young engineer who lives at the same rooming house as Janet, appears one night in time to save her purse from a holdup man. Janet becomes interested in the SILVANI family, almost destitute. Jeff helps provide food and clothing for them and later they find a job for PAT SILVANI, the father.

Jeff and Janet become close friends. He asks her to help him select a gift for a girl and they buy a purse. Later Janet sees in newspaper heading that Bob has eloped with Betty Kendall. She tells Jeff about her broken engagement and says she will never care for anyone else. Jeff gives the purse, which he had bought for Janet, to Dolores Calahan, DOLORES CALAHAN.

Bruce Hamilton leaves the magazine and, because of retrenchment, there is no job for Janet. However, Hamilton tells her his sister, MRS. CURTIS, needs a social secretary and Janet secures the job. She finds her new work pleasant and rather interesting. One day she learns Mrs. Curtis is Betty Kendall's mother. Janet feels she should go away but has no place to go. She decides to remain as long as Betty and Bob are out of town.

quickly and there had been so many things to do in the little time she had to herself that her resolutions had failed completely. "Why, yes, I would," she said. Mrs. Curtis was away and she was free for the evening. "All right, I'll take me about 20 minutes to drive out there. I guess. Can you be ready by that time?" Janet said that she could be ready. It was exactly 20 minutes later that the doorbell rang. Janet answered and found Jeff waiting. She said, "Good evening," and there was something so stiff and formal about the way she said it that the young man eyed her quickly.

He asked about what she had been doing and her answers came in the same cool, formal tones. He said that her room at Mrs. Snyder's was still vacant, that the landlady had been having a good deal of trouble with her neuritis and that Hattie, the maid, had been replaced by another girl who seemed to have great difficulty in remembering to bring around clean towels. He didn't mention meeting Janet at noon. As a matter of fact, Jeff had forgotten about it but to Janet the omission was significant.

Jeff assured herself that it was not jealousy she felt. Of course it was nothing like that. She wouldn't for the world have him think that she cared or was even interested. If that was the sort of girl Jeff Grant cared for she was disappointed in him. That was all. And so the evening was somewhat of a failure. Mrs. Silvani and the two children were well and happy and delighted to see their guests. Jeff and Janet stayed for three-quarters of an hour while Rosie talked about the squirrel she had seen in the park and Tommy showed Jeff the new puzzle he was working on. Mrs. Silvani had been sewing and she sat by the lamp, making buttons. Jeff and Janet talked. It was a pleasant enough visit but after Janet and Jeff had said good-by and gone back to the car the coolness Jeff had felt before persisted.

In a few more nights the moon would be a complete golden sphere. It shined down brightly and a warm breeze was blowing. There was time enough for a drive through one of the parks or out on the hill road. Jeff looked at Janet and then his face set determinedly. All right. If she didn't want to talk to him she didn't have to. Maybe it was because she was living out on the west side now, because she rode around in a limousine and knew a lot of rich people that she had become so changed. This was a new idea and because of it Jeff drove with his eyes straight ahead on the road. When Janet spoke he answered with monosyllables and when the roadster drew up before the brick house he said good-night and drove away quickly.

Steak Lifted to Aristocracy—Filet Mignon—A Food Fit for Kings

Beefsteak is the one food that is known the world-round. Say the English word and writers in China, Japan, Germany, France and even Russia will know what you mean and bring you their idea of it.

Filet mignon is the deluxe edition of this universal dish. When you serve it at home, take time out to make it a food fit for a king.

The secret of broiling steak just right is to have your oven piping hot when you put the steak in. Light the oven at least 15 minutes before you want to cook your steak. This heat helps seal your steak quickly, which keeps the juices in and makes it tender.

When all is ready, have your platter piping hot, place the pleasurable circles carefully and top each with a piece of steak. It is necessary to use a dash of cayenne pepper over the steak, to add zest to the combination that the steak makes with the pineapple. Place the diced pepper around the pineapple, as a garnish.

When they are sauted, to a brown paper and place in your warming oven, which should be kept hot. Then put another tablespoonful of butter into the sauce pan, and carefully saute your slices of pineapple, with the juice drained off. Brown lightly on both sides. While this is being done, of course, your steak should be broiling.

Must Have Hot Oven To prepare the setting for your steak, put one tablespoonful of butter in sauce pan and slowly saute one large diced green pepper, or two small ones. Remove pepper dices, when they are sauted, to a brown paper and place in your warming oven, which should be kept hot.

TISSUES BEHIND LENS SUBJECT TO INFECTION Physician Looks Into Eye to See Cause of Trouble; Detachment of Retina May Impair Vision; Operation May Be Needed.

The tissues of the eye behind the lens are also subject to infections and inflammations. There are the delicate membranes of blood vessels and pigments, the rigid outer coating and the retina or membrane of light perception. The large cavity is filled with vitreous, the fluid of the eye.

When the retina itself is loosened so that the condition called detachment of the retina occurs. As soon as any part of the retina becomes detached from its bed, the vision controlled by that part is disturbed, and unless it is reattached in a short time the vision is lost permanently.

When the vision of the eye becomes diminished, and without any pain, without any redness or inflammation, the physician looks for the cause. Sometimes he sees changes in the retina which indicate a systemic disorder, such as diabetes, tuberculosis and high blood pressure. Obviously that condition must be taken care of before any attempts are made in relationship to the eye itself.

EX-OLYMPIC CHAMP IS BACK IN SCHOOL TO STUDY TEACHING

Harold Osborn, Former Decathlon Star, Returns to College After 11 Years; May Coach On Side.

Philadelphia, March 27.—(AP)—It's 11 years since Harold M. Osborn, former Olympic decathlon champion and world record holder in the running high jump, was graduated from the University of Illinois, but he is re-entering college here as a freshman.

A desire to increase his efficiency as a teacher prompted him to make formal application for entrance to the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy, but an eight-year-old hip injury played a large part in his selection of that institution.

He plans to enroll for the regular college course next fall, preparing himself in the meantime by signing up for the summer courses.

Back in 1925, Osborn's hip slipped out of joint during a summer competition at the University of Illinois. Dr. Francis D'Eliscu, who now is director of athletics at Osteopathy, treated the injury, and the two struck up a lasting friendship.

May Coach On Side Recently Dr. D'Eliscu had a conference with Osborn, regarded as one of the greatest high jumpers of all time, and announced their association would be renewed this summer, as Hal had decided to come East to school.

Hal still is an amateur, and Dr. D'Eliscu said he plans to continue his track career. The athletics director said he hoped to have Osborn take charge of the Osteopathy runners and jumpers in an amateur capacity.

Osborn will be no stranger to Philadelphia, for, besides appearing in several indoor meets in this city, he scored signal triumphs during the National A. A. U. meet held in connection with Philadelphia's Sesqui-Centennial celebration in 1926.

At that time he captured the decathlon title with a total of 7,187.832 points. Mark Never Broken Osborn's greatest triumph came after his graduation from Illinois.

In 1924 he established a new world's outdoor record for the running high jump, clearing six feet 8 1/4 inches at Champaign, Ill. That mark has never been bettered.

At the Olympics in Paris in 1924 he set a decathlon mark of 7,710.775 points.

FILLERS PREPARE FOR TITLE CLASH Meet North Ends Saturday For Local Y Championship; Evenly Matched.

Saturday afternoon the Merz's Fillers team sponsored by "Matt" Merz, will have its national championship fight against the North Ends winners of the first round of the "Y" League. Each team is anxious to win the first game of the series.

Merz's Fillers 33, North Ends 35. Merz's Fillers 24, North Ends 24. Merz's Fillers 21, North Ends 18. The total number of points scored are North Ends 77, and the Fillers 78. It can readily be seen that the two teams are very evenly matched.

The betting odds are on the North Ends because the Fillers have lost the services of their center, Walt Wright. In a practice game he severed a cartilage between the lungs and will not be able to play.

The North Ends have won 23 games and lost 10 and the Fillers have won 20 and lost 11.

The mainstays in the Fillers' lineup are Captain "Art" Korch and "Dicky" Katkewicz. In the past few games these two players have scored many points when the team was coming from behind to win.

"Cy" Comber and "Johnnie" Rykowski are the threats of the North Ends. The North Ends' scoring is generally pretty evenly divided because of their team play.

"Matt" Merz's charges have been coming from behind to win in the last few games. This shows that they have a real hard fighting team. The last game each team played was against Buckland. The North Ends won a nip and tuck battle by the score of 22-21. The Fillers had to stage a tremendous rally to win, 38-34, by overcoming Buckland in the last period 14-4.

The Fillers have played much better teams than themselves but the North Ends put a feather in their cap when they took the Collegians into camp in an overtime period.

CARDS ARE FACING UNCERTAIN SEASON Manager Street Seems Due For Stormy Year With St. Louis Ball Club.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one of a series of articles surveying the big league teams as they prepare to leave training camp.

St. Louis, March 27.—It is just as well that Gabby Street, manager of the Cardinals, had the benefit of training under fire in the World War.

His experience should make it easier for the Old Sarge to face what looks to be a stormy year in St. Louis.

The Cardinals' infield is shot. The outfield lacks a robust batting punch. Whatever hope there is for fighting out of that sixth place position which the club sank last year rests with the pitchers.

It is common history that a manager of the Cardinals never knows what the morning mail may bring. A man may sit down to breakfast and learn of the team's misfortune before he has had time to discover whether his coaching at Danville.

Gabby is a great guy, a fine manager and his players hustle for him to their utmost. But, you know how those things are.

Hornbly is trying to come back at second base. The chances are 100 to 1 that he won't. Charley Geibert will be out with a leg injury sustained while hunting during the winter. That puts it up to Slade, from Brooklyn (and a typical Brooklyn ball player), or Charley Wilson to play second or short. Wilson, who has worked his way up through the various Cardinal chain stores, probably gets the call at short. He is no hot act as a hitter.

If Frisch refused to undergo the major operation the Cardinal front office performed on his fee, the third base job may go to Spaky Adams. Jimmy Collins at first is the only insider who measures up to major league standard.

Allen, Crabtree and Martin, outfielders, played dead as batters last year. Watkins and Orsatti hit above .300 switching positions. Joe Medwick, a right-handed batter who punched out .354 at Houston last year, is the best prospect. Not much class there.

The pitchers improve the appearance of the team. Walker from the Giants and Vance from Brooklyn add strength to the staff. Hallahan and Derringer are capable flingers, who slumped badly last year. Of the youngsters, Carleton and Stout appear ready to win some games.

The big shot of the staff is Dizzy Dean. He won 18 games last year, and if confidence means anything, he'll knock off 25 this year.

The catching also is better than average. Jimmy Wilson will catch him in the infield, but it looks to be no go. Martin probably will open the season in center field.

There are too many question marks at important positions this year for the Cards to hope for any success. Pepper Martin, hero of the 1931 world series, is fighting for a job this year. Gabby has been trying to get him in the infield, but it looks to be no go. Martin probably will open the season in center field.

Frank Froeschauer, brilliant University of Illinois football and basketball player, has been to the university hospital seven times from athletic injuries in his first two school years.

Don't Look Like That! Maybe Gallant Sir, Favored to Win Agua Caliente Handicap, Doesn't Like Cameraman.

THERE'S an evil omen in that bad eye of Gallant Sir for the other mare entered in the Agua Caliente $35,000 handicap race, April 2. The brilliant horse, owned by Norman Church, is a favorite to win, and, judging by his recent record at the track, he should cop to a walk.

TORNEY'S LOSS TO INJURE PANTHERS 1933 GRID HOPES

Coach Sutherland Seeks To Fill Center's Shoes At Spring Practice But Finds It A Hard Task.

Pittsburgh, March 27.—(AP)—The question, "who'll take Torney's place?" is bringing furrows to the brow of Coach Jack Sutherland of the Pitt Panthers as he puts his lieutenants and backs through their spring practice paces.

"Big Joe," from Erie, Pa., a slugging pivot man who was always his best against Notre Dame, was a made-to-order center for the Sutherland brand of football.

Was Fine Blocker "Torney's ability to 'pull out' and participate in the thundering wave of interference, which the astute Scot loves to throw ahead of his ball carriers, was an attribute which endeared him to Dr. Sutherland.

In addition to this, Torney usually could be relied upon to "make a hole" for a back; to block progress through his sector on the defense, and to knife through and hobble opponents' plays in the formation stage.

George Shotwell, 165-pound relief center from the 1932 squad and Art Dettel, up from the freshman crew of last autumn, are the chief choices for Torney's place, but Sutherland indicates he'll by no means be convinced they'll fill the big-man's shoes.

Backfield Replacements Plenty of replacements are available for the varsity in the backfield, but the freshman crew through the campus gates for good. The backfield question will be settled by numerous talented candidates—members of last year's team or hopefuls from the freshman squad.

Warren Heller, all-America half, also will say "so long" to the squad as he goes to the varsity, passing through the campus gates for good. The backfield question will be settled by numerous talented candidates—members of last year's team or hopefuls from the freshman squad.

Arrows Hold Lead In Ice Playoffs To Resume Competition In Canadian-American Hockey League.

Boston, March 27.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Arrows today held top place in the Canadian-American hockey league playoffs for the Fontaine Cup, emblematic of the five-championship championship.

The regular season comes to end Wednesday with the Reds and Arrows clashing at Philadelphia. But two other games remain: Monday, New Haven at Providence, and Tuesday, Philadelphia at New Haven.

Two Philadelphiaans held top scoring places. Paul Runge led with a total of 43 points and his teammate, "Fam" Boyd, came within 42. Alex Cook of Boston ran third with 40 points. Joe Jerrva, Boston defenseman, held the doubtful honor of being the highest penalty carrier. He had a total of 44 minor penalties and four majors, which kept him off the ice for 108 minutes.

Both Legs Broken In Ski Race Fall

Former Harvard Crew Captain Plunges 200 Feet To Bottom of Ravine.

The fractured legs, both of which were broken just above the ankles, were set by Dr. G. H. Gerish of Berlin, a spectator at the races, and Halliwell was taken to a North Conway hospital, where he was visited last night by his brother, Roger, star on last season's Harvard football team.

The race in which the Rev. Halliwell was injured was run under the auspices of the Nansen Ski Club of Berlin. Three thousand were watching when the accident occurred. William Knight of Wells River, Vt., received a fractured shoulder earlier in the 3.3 mile race.

 What's always behind time?—The back of a clock.

Man—Does your wife let you laugh at relatives?
 Neighbor—Mine, yes—hers, no!

What we'd like to find out is how these smart paragraphs learn that the women wear such scant clothing.

Parents of a generation ago made a great fuss about the danger of the "dime novel," but they weren't half so dangerous or pernicious as much of the so-called literature that is openly read today in the best of families.

Business Man—So you say the world owes you a living?
 Beggar—Yes.

Business Man—Want to hire a good collector at $50 a week?

CHINESE STUDENT AT Y. TELLS OF FAR EAST WAR

Says China is Not an Aggressive Nation—Are Naturally a Peace Loving People.

Dr. Alfred C. T. Li Ph. D from New York University was the speaker at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. Dr. Li has just returned from a trip again to his native land and brought a lot of interesting sidelights on the Chinese-Japanese or as is usually stated the Sino-Japanese trouble.

Naturally Dr. Li sees the thing from a Chinese angle but he also added that China is not an aggressive nation. They love peace and if Japan will not let alone their differences will soon be righted. Dr. Li has a good command of the English language. Dr. Li also stated that Japan would sooner or later have to make recompense before the bar of judgment of world opinion if they would not listen to reason now.

His address Rev. Erickson's address follows in part: "I have lived in the East almost a year. It has been a happy year. We have learned to love New England communities, New England winding roads, hills, woods, streams and lakes, as well as New England folk. We have seen some of the most glorious moonlight in New England that we have ever seen anywhere." The charm of the New England moon ought to "keep the wedding bells ringing merrily as a long while ago."

Mr. Byles related that he used to hear the cheery farmer, "this is the best morning of this kind I have ever seen."

"I have always liked the spirit of that man. There was sunshine in his soul though the sun was hid behind the clouds. He was cheerful, hopeful and grateful under all circumstances."

"It seems to me that a goodly measure of that spirit has characterized our people throughout these trying and distressing times. That was surely the spirit of the folks who rallied to the support of our local bank last week. Surely if we can only continue a little while longer in that same cheerful, hopeful, courageous spirit our ship will soon sail out from these troubled seas into more quiet and sunny waters."

"The same spirit characterized our Pilgrim Fathers. After having passed through a year of suffering and sorrow, a year of grievous losses, not of silver and gold, but of loved ones, they nevertheless had the heart to celebrate a season of thanksgiving, the influence of which still touches our hearts at least once a year, and helps us to cheerily say: these were the best times of this kind we have ever seen."

The attendance prize, donated by President William B. Halsted, was won by Charles E. House, Hartford. Willis contributed a stunt to the program that caused considerable merriment. Milton Mape, a member of the New Haven Kiwanis Club, was guest of the local club at the luncheon.

Rev. K. E. Erickson, Kiwanis Speaker Today, Hopes For Spiritual Revival, Too.

Rev. Knut E. Erickson, pastor of the Emanuel Lutheran church, was the speaker at the regular weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Hotel Sheridan this noon, giving an inspirational address, in which he lauded the fortitude and optimism of the people during economic stress and expressed the hope that spiritual revival would come with business revival.

"Up to the Wets" Rev. Erickson also touched briefly on Prohibition, pointing out that recent legislation has given the wets a chance to prove their stand and that "from now on it's up to them to deliver the goods in more ways than one."

The attendance prize, donated by President William B. Halsted, was won by Charles E. House, Hartford. Willis contributed a stunt to the program that caused considerable merriment. Milton Mape, a member of the New Haven Kiwanis Club, was guest of the local club at the luncheon.

His address Rev. Erickson's address follows in part:

I have lived in the East almost a year. It has been a happy year. We have learned to love New England communities, New England winding roads, hills, woods, streams and lakes, as well as New England folk. We have seen some of the most glorious moonlight in New England that we have ever seen anywhere.

The charm of the New England moon ought to "keep the wedding bells ringing merrily as a long while ago."

Mr. Byles related that he used to hear the cheery farmer, "this is the best morning of this kind I have ever seen."

"I have always liked the spirit of that man. There was sunshine in his soul though the sun was hid behind the clouds. He was cheerful, hopeful and grateful under all circumstances."

"It seems to me that a goodly measure of that spirit has characterized our people throughout these trying and distressing times. That was surely the spirit of the folks who rallied to the support of our local bank last week. Surely if we can only continue a little while longer in that same cheerful, hopeful, courageous spirit our ship will soon sail out from these troubled seas into more quiet and sunny waters."

"The same spirit characterized our Pilgrim Fathers. After having passed through a year of suffering and sorrow, a year of grievous losses, not of silver and gold, but of loved ones, they nevertheless had the heart to celebrate a season of thanksgiving, the influence of which still touches our hearts at least once a year, and helps us to cheerily say: these were the best times of this kind we have ever seen."

"This was also the spirit of the early pioneers in the West. A little group of colonists founded a church in old Chicago back in 1838. There were only 86 of them. A year later there were only 30. The cholera plague mowed them down right and left. Then came the hard times of '87 when men were glad to work for

Dr. Alfred C. T. Li Ph. D from New York University was the speaker at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. Dr. Li has just returned from a trip again to his native land and brought a lot of interesting sidelights on the Chinese-Japanese or as is usually stated the Sino-Japanese trouble.

Naturally Dr. Li sees the thing from a Chinese angle but he also added that China is not an aggressive nation. They love peace and if Japan will not let alone their differences will soon be righted. Dr. Li has a good command of the English language. Dr. Li also stated that Japan would sooner or later have to make recompense before the bar of judgment of world opinion if they would not listen to reason now.

The girls will have the gym tonight from 7 till 9. At nine o'clock the Falcons will play a group of basketballers from Wapping.
