

ROCKVILLE

LOYD WILL CASE IN SUPERIOR COURT

Son Contesting Mothers' Disposition of Estate—Mortgage Case Also Contested.

The interpretation of the word "heirs" to determine whether it means children or simply the heir named in a will, is the question to be decided in the case of Irwin F. B. Lloyd of Hartford against Mrs. Cora Lloyd Weir of Rockville, which opened in the Tolland County Superior Court yesterday.

The case has resulted from the will of Mrs. Ellen Bown Lloyd of Rockville, who died in October, 1931, leaving practically all of her estate to her daughter, Mrs. Cora Lloyd Weir and only about $500 to a son, Irwin Lloyd of Hartford, who instituted the court action.

The action was brought seeking the construction of the will of Francis Bown, grandfather of the plaintiff and defendant. As the will was interpreted in the case of Irwin Lloyd Weir and only about $500 to herself as sole heir.

The will in question, that of Francis Bown, dates back to 1877, and upon her death to his only daughter, Ellen B. Lloyd for life and then on her death to the legal heirs of Ellen Bown Lloyd.

Mrs. Cora Lloyd Weir, through her attorneys, states that Irwin Lloyd took no action until the death of his mother, Ellen Bown Lloyd, and then brought action to have the administrator of the estate, Francis Bown estate, the late George M. Smith, file an accounting.

Whether a mortgage of $1,000 "died" with the late John Miller of Mansfield, is the question which occupied nearly two days of Judge John Rufus Booth in the Tolland County Superior Court this week.

It was brought out in court that John Miller took a mortgage on the Mordals farm for $1,000. Miller died in the meantime and the mortgage was assigned to his wife by William E. Cramm of Eastford, administrator of the estate.

John Makosky, a retired Willimantic merchant, who formerly conducted a cigar store, put a knife in the whole case when he made a statement in court which was as follows: "Miller dead and mortgage dead and don't have to pay."

Close friendship was the reason given by Mordals for not immediately seeking a receipt from John Miller on either of the occasions when he paid the money. Judge Booth reserved his decision and took the papers in this particular case. With the completion of the Irwin F. B. Lloyd vs. Cora Lloyd case, no other business is on the docket until next Wednesday, April 19th, for court trials. A jury panel has been summoned in for Tuesday, April 18th, with four cases on the docket for that day.

Small Blizzard Arrives Rockville traffic was seriously handicapped during the early part of last evening by a miniature blizzard and practically paralyzed after midnight. There was over six inches of snow at one o'clock which made travel without chains practically an impossibility for autos.

The last trip from Hartford to Rockville, due in Rockville about midnight, suffered the same difficulties. They also were unable to complete the trip up the steep grade to East street. The electric service of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting Company failed about 11:35 o'clock for about five minutes.

Between Rockville and Manchester three autos were ditched when they skidded off the road. Due to the large flakes of wet snow it was practically impossible to see twenty feet ahead. Wreckers were needed to bring the cars back into position to operate. No one was injured.

The Union Church club held a meeting last evening at the church social rooms. A short concert was presented by the Maple street school orchestra. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Fagan have moved from their home on Nye street to South Manchester. Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Arran have moved from Church to Ontario, Canada, where Mr. Arran has accepted a position.

The Congregational meeting of the First Lutheran church will be held on next Wednesday evening, April 14th, at the church. A rehearsal will be held tonight for the "Radio Frolic" to be presented on Wednesday evening, April 26th, under the sponsorship of the Children of Mary Sodality for the benefit of St. Bernard's Catholic church.

Feels for His Friends the Bootleggers — Finds, "Jigsaw" Successful Rival with Widow.

I went into seclusion almost a year ago and intended to remain so for the rest of my days. All on account of that widow, if you remember, who coaxed me along until I thought I had her almost in my grasp, then to be cast aside like an old worn-out shoe. I tell you it hit you just about where it hurt the worst. Of course a young chap would have gone out and found another. But when you are old and tottering you can't go very far afield. There is an old widow within walking distance—if you start early in the morning. I don't think she ever knew I was around. She was too busy trying to "frigger" out a jigsaw puzzle. That seems to be about all they do out here.

to correct a few errors made by your worthy correspondent. He stated I had come to town to see a doctor. I had come in to see the fellow who takes charge after the M. D. is through with you, namely, His Royal Highness the Undertaker. The roads, or the place where they used to be, are simply impassable. If you doubt my word ask some of your best citizens who were out to the Game Club last Friday night. Our mail man comes through somehow—how he does it nobody knows.

Who gets the blame? The first Selectman, of course. When it is not his fault. He can't do with nothing to do with. The trouble is that's why I thought, when I had a little steam left, I would get as near the undertaker as possible.

But when I got to town and found that beer and hard liquor were coming back I changed my mind and went to see a doctor. I think it is a great mistake. I for one always believed in and did patronize home industries. And I was always noted as being loyal to my friends. I have hundreds of them both in Manchester and Highland Falls and as these are or were, bootleggers I naturally will stand up for them. Think of the hundreds of men, women and even children who earned their bread by the sweat of their brows—what are they going to do? Again, what are you going to do with the Police force when there ain't any more bootleggers to "ketch."

I saw one stumbling down Main street the day I was in town with his coat hanging open. I don't know who he was, but, if this new order of things puts him out of a job I would like to fire him for a few weeks in corn planting time.

I have never seen a spring when the crows were so plentiful as they are this spring.

SENSE and NONSENSE

The following poem was brought us by a certain well-known young man. Evidently he lacked the necessary nerve to either read or give it to his Sweetheart. Anyway, here it is:

To My Dixy Sweetheart
I love the mascara that smudges
your eyes.
And your red finger nails that
shriek to the skies
I like your complexion right out of a jar.
And the curves of your figure
like a new model car.
Oh, Sweetheart, you're wonderful,
My darling, My pet
You're the dizziest dumb-bell I've ever seen!

Nowadays when you hear bottles
clinking on your front porch, you don't know whether it's the milk-
man or the bootlegger.

A bore had been talking for hours
about himself and his achievements Bore—I'm a self-made man,
that's what I am—a self-made
man!
Voice from the Corner—You
knocked off work too soon.

THOUGHTS FROM HERE AND THERE: . . . In times like these it doesn't take much effort to laugh until it hurts. . . . Some people's idea of a swell bedroom suit is a pair of colored silk pajamas. . . . It is true that you don't get as much when you live in a small town, but what you hear probably makes up for it. . . . The next project Eastman Kodak Company
should develop is a photographic pose of a disagreeable matter by stuffing the papers in the drawer of a desk. . . . A lot of people who belong to exclusive clubs can't afford to eat in 'em. . . . The best ticket to a better world is an honest effort to make this one better.

A certain man wants to know whether Congress has included in its beneficence any compensation for men "like me who didn't quite get into the Army but sprained both wrists" applauding Liberty Loan orators."

It was in a small town down South on a hot and dusty day. The Negro population were engaged in an important ball game. It was a big event and all the good-looking
"high yellow" girls were there—razors flashed at random and at Negroes.

The umpire was a big, ragged replica of the eight ball. The visiting team's clean-up man was at bat
and the bases were loaded.

"Ball one, high."
"Ball two, low."
"Ball three, inside."
"Ball four, low and wide—you is
out."
"How does yo' talk, Mister
Ump?" Ah gets a base for dat."
"Brother, you're right, but de bases am loaded, and I ain't got no place to put you. You is out."

IT DON'T MAKE MUCH DIFF-ERENCE HOW OFTEN SOME PEOPLE CHANGE THEIR MINDS
—THEY NEVER SEEM TO GET A GOOD ONE ANYWAY.

Doesn't it give you a pain in the

Agent (reaching for a time table)
—Morning or night.
She told him at night. After she had asked every conceivable question, she said:
Woman—Tell me, do you think
there'll be a moon that night?
The agent admitted he wasn't sure.
Woman (sweetly)—Because, if there is a moon, I'm going to take
