BEER SALE DATE STILL A PUZZLE

New Control Act Needs Some Fixing Before Its Meaning is Clear, Say Legislative Leaders.

Hartford, April 22.—(AP)—The problem of liquor control dominated the activities of the General Assembly during the precedent-breaking week and gave every promise today of bobbing up again with the start of a new legislative week next Tuesday.

Legislators, wearied by hours of debate, were frankly relieved when the liquor control measure finally completed its stormy passage through the legislative channels and passed on to the governor for his signature. But their relief has been short lived, for from some quarters has come the contention that the control act, after all, needs some fixing if the intent of the General Assembly is to be carried out.

The new problem before the Legislature is whether the control act became operative immediately after it was signed by the governor, or whether it becomes effective July 1, the emergency act.

Contra to the intent of the General Assembly, it is held that the act does not go into effect July 1, this would mean the present ban on the sale of beer and wine will be lifted April 23 under an emergency law passed two weeks ago.

The General Assembly, its leaders agreed, intended to have the emergency act voided by the control law. Under its plan, the present ban on beer would continue until the governor through a proclamation declares effective these provisions in the control act dealing with beverages already legalized by Congress.

The phraseology of Part III of the control act was responsible for the new power. Most legislators agreed that the wording of this portion of the act presents an interesting legal question, but they expressed confidence if it needed any clarification, the necessary changes would be made speedily Tuesday morning.

Governor's Program: Meanwhile indications came from Governor Cross he will proceed to act under the liquor control law under the assumption it is now operative. He probably will name the state commission of three members created by the law early next week.

The commission will then set up the necessary regulatory machinery, with the likelihood of a clamorous objection by the governor will follow soon after declaring the sale of beer and wine legal in the state the early part of May.

JAPANESE ABANDON ADVANCE IN CHINA

War Office Announces All Objectives Gained South of the Great Wall.

Tokyo, April 22.—(AP)—The War Office announced today that Japanese troops have been ordered to cease their attacks on, and halt their pursuit of, Chinese troops south of the Great Wall of China.

The campaign south of the wall, it said, has gained all objectives the termination of Chinese pressure on the southern boundary of Jehol province and the pushing of the Chinese beyond artillery range of the wall.

A War Office spokesman said the Chinese have been expelled entirely from the district eastward of the Luan river and also from a zone extending an average depth of 10 miles below the wall west of the Luan river as far as the Miyun area.

The triangular area east of the river, which cuts through the wall and extends nearly 100 miles to the sea and about sixty miles at its base, along the seacoast.

Occupied Section: The occupied section along the wall to the west of the river extends another 100 miles inland.

Without seeking Chinese agreement, the Japanese army intends to maintain a neutral zone in this area it was stated. Any Chinese troops attempting to reenter will be bombed by Japanese planes. If this fails infantry operations will be reinitiated.

The war office spokesman admitted the Japanese were anxious to return a portion of the brigades participating in the Jehol and North China campaigns to their former stations in North Manchuria, owing to a revival of bandit and insurgency against the Manchukuo government.

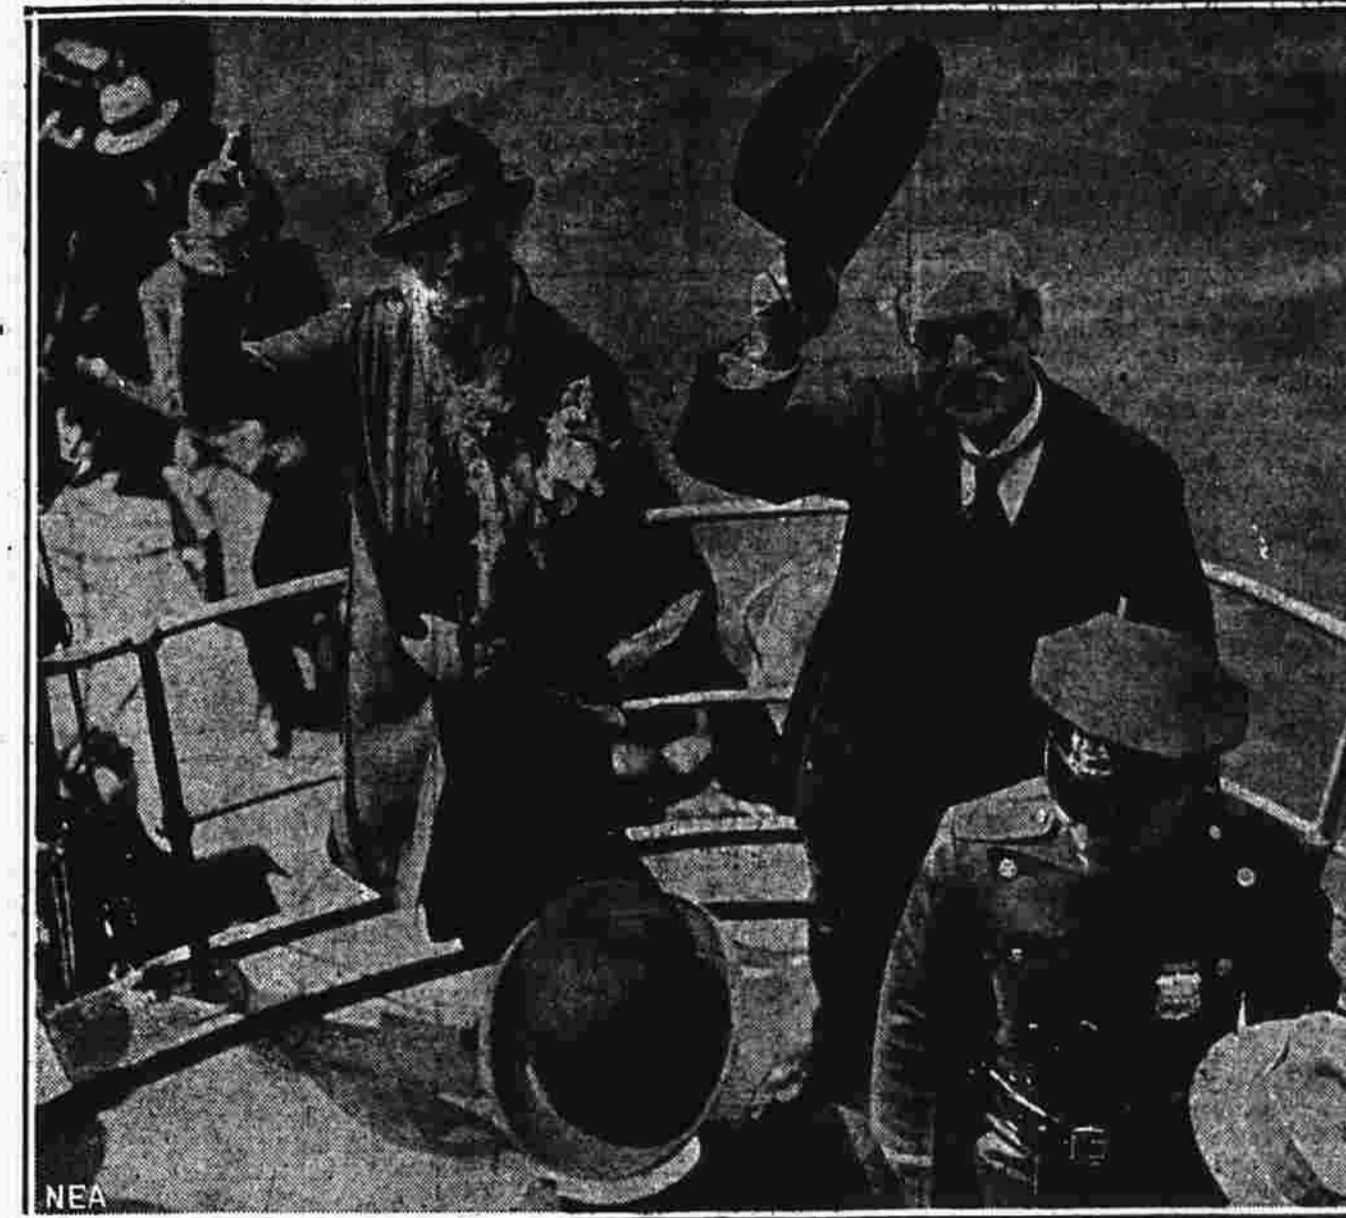

Since the Japanese offensive south of the Great Wall began there were reports that it was not likely to halt until it reached Peking and Peiping, the two cities where most of the three thousand Americans in the area live.

RUSSIA PUTS EMBARGO AGAINST GREAT BRITAIN

All Trade Prohibited in Surprise Announcement—But Britons Determined to Force the Issue.

London, April 22.—(AP)—Russia's sudden prohibition of all trade with England, in retaliation for the 80 per cent British embargo against Russian goods, will not affect the London government's stand, it was authoritatively stated today.

While the action of the Soviets came as a surprise to the general public it was not unexpected by the government, which had rather anticipated some such move.

The Russian action will not affect England's position that the anti-Soviet embargo will be made effective next Wednesday as scheduled unless L. C. Thornton and William L. MacDonald, British spies found guilty of espionage and sabotage in the Soviet Union, are released from prison.

Since the controversy developed Moscow has summoned home the heads of its trade delegation here.

The announced full embargo against British goods and restrictive measures against British commerce and shipping were viewed as much more serious than the British action against Russia.

There were unconfirmed reports, however, that the British prisoners held in Moscow, the center figures in the conflict, would be released shortly.

If this proves correct it may be that neither of the threatened actions by the two governments will go into effect. The British 80 per cent embargo on Russian goods is to go into effect Wednesday, unless in the meantime the British prisoners are released.

FRANCE TO REMAIN ON GOLD STANDARD

Finance Minister Declares Hopes All Other Nations Will Return Soon.

Paris, April 22.—(AP)—France declared today for maintenance of the gold standard.

After the first Cabinet meeting to consider the present monetary situation, Finance Minister Georges Bonnet said the government hopes "all countries will return to gold as soon as possible."

Former Premier Edouard Herriot, arriving in New York tomorrow, was sent new instructions by the Cabinet and told to inquire immediately from President Roosevelt as to his intentions in removing the United States from the gold standard.

He was told to inquire whether the action was temporary or the beginning of a definite policy toward devaluation.

It was stated the Cabinet surveyed the situation without alarm and decided to urge the speediest possible meeting of the world economic conference.

Cause of Crisis: "All experts, have unanimously proclaimed that monetary instability is one of the primary causes of the crisis," M. Bonnet said at the conclusion of the Cabinet session.

Government commercial experts, he learned, believe that the dollar will approach par and consider it unnecessary at present to impose an exchange tax or tariff.

JESUS REBUKES SELF-SEEKING

Text: Mark 9:33-43. The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for April 23.

A quarrel had arisen among the disciples. It was not very creditable to Christian disciples that they should have been quarreling...

Emboldened by this, John, always impetuous, ventured to show how loyal he had been by reporting the disciples and forbidding a man whom they found casting out devils...

SATURDAY, APRIL 22.

over in anything proposed by Mr. Roosevelt to indicate even the remotest purpose to lead the world back to the gold standard. There is something about the establishment of a stable medium of international exchange but nothing about any such intention as the one set up by the Times as a Presidential objective.

Again, and also on the front page of the Times, appears this explanation of the currency legislation:

The aim is to restore commodity prices, hold them up and then create expansion, not of currency but of credit.

What that would mean, if it were true, would be to re-establish exactly the rotten conditions of 1928 and 1929. It is not, of course, true. There is no respectable element in the United States which wants to see an "expansion of credit" after there has already been expansion enough in the currency to restore prices and hold them up. The mountain of debt under which the country is now swooning is the direct result of over expanded credit and over-extended currency upon which to base it.

A newspaper with a reputation like that of the New York Times has no moral right to distort the news to fit the private views of its owners. It has, regretfully, an immense power to deceive. It should be ashamed to employ it.

BRITISH-SOVIET MESS.

The action of the British government in ordering an embargo this week on 80 per cent of imports from Soviet Russia, quite frankly takes as a reprisal for the imprisonment of two Britons for espionage, is likely to be regretted. Since the Russians promptly have replied by withdrawing their trade delegation from London, it is highly probable that Britain will lose more commerce with her Soviet customers than the Soviets will lose in Britain.

It is difficult to see, any way, how the British government expected to help the case of the convicted engineers. In effect what was done was to make an implied demand that the Soviet government release these alleged spies or take the consequences of a British boycott. That was hardly a wise ultimatum to issue, publicly, to a group as headstrong and as proud as the men who make up the Soviet government. Even if they had been only half-hearted in inflicting punishment on the men in question, and had imprisoned them merely to save their own faces, such a roughshod reply from Britain could hardly fail to stiffen their determination to keep the men, for a while at least, in jail. Russian leaders could ill afford to have their own people believe that the Soviet Union had trucked and bowed the head to the threat of a "capitalistic state."

It would seem that an involved and injurious situation has been created for very insufficient reason. Just how the parties to it will get out of the mess isn't very clear. Just the same we're guessing that they will get out of it. British statesmen have a miraculous facility of somehow or other undoing their own mistakes and at the same time saving their dignity.

TRAINING NEW SOLDIERS.

Having spoken his mind with refreshing frankness about faulty organization in the War Department, the useful and outspoken Maj-Gen. Johnson Hagood is now proposing a radically new system of training army recruits.

At present, as everybody knows, the new recruit spends weeks and months just in learning how to do squads right. The intricacies of parade-ground maneuvers, the manual of arms and so on make a long primary course in the school of the soldier, and it takes a long time for the pupils to graduate. It is commonly stated that it takes from one to three years to fit a recruit for actual combat service.

General Hagood thinks this is all wrong. He would teach rookies to handle their guns in the field first and let them learn the other stuff later; and he asserts that it ought to be possible to fit a rookie for service in no longer than 10 days. His battalions doubtless would be sorry sights on the drill field; but he says they would be able to fight acceptably—and that, after all, is the main job of the soldier.

INVITING TERRORISM.

The news that an attempt on the life of Adolf Hitler was thwarted by German police leads one to hope that, in the interest of the oppressed minorities in that suffering country, no more such attempts are made—and, above all, that no such attempt ever succeeds.

That Hitler should be a target for assassins is not, everything considered, to be wondered at; but that no one could do the German minorities a worse turn than by trying such an act of violence ought to be obvious. So far the Nazi oppression, grievous though it has been, has been kept

MATERNITY DEATHS.

As the time draws near for the annual observance of Mother's Day, the Maternity Center Association of New York points out that the best way to celebrate the day would be to crystallize public opinion on the vital need of improving maternity care.

Every year some 16,000 American women die in childbirth—a record that is disgracefully worse than the records of many other countries which some of us like to feel are not as far advanced as our own. Experts assert that at least half of the 16,000 deaths could and should be prevented.

"There is a biting irony," says a statement from the association, "in the fact that in several countries where Mother's Day is unknown, motherhood is twice as safe as in America."

There is, indeed, our Mother's Day celebration ought to include a new drive to reduce the maternity death rate.

IN NEW YORK

By PAUL HARRISON

New York, April 22.—Whenever Mary Pickford pops into town by train or Atlantic liner, the first thing she says is: "Where's Philip?"

She asked that the other day as she came down the gangplank of the Rex, and later when she left her hotel to catch the Century for California. As a taxi line in front of the hotel leaped forward, the movie star, looking in that characteristic sign of displeasure, "No, I want Philip!" she told the bewildered doorman. "I'm Philip here?"

Just then a big gray cab zoomed around the others and stopped, precisely before the little movie star. Out scrambled the driver, a tallish, black-haired man of about 40, with a lot of white teeth revealed in a delighted grin.

Miss Pickford smiled too. "Oh, here you are, Philip. I did hope you hadn't forgotten me."

The Story of Philip Lewis, Gotham's Chauffeur Plenipotentiary to the Queen of Movieland, is being made into a picture.

Back in 1915 Lewis was hired by Adolf Zukor for the newly organized Famous Players company and assigned to the star who, of course, was Miss Pickford. He drove her to the studio on Twenty-sixth Street, to the suburb in Riverdale, and out into the country on location. Sometimes as her chauffeur, he even got into the pictures. Those, as he says simply, were happy days.

Then, in 1917, the studio caught fire. Was Miss Pickford safe? She was. Well, then, were the new Pickford films safe? No, they were probably roasting in the vault. So Lewis went into action, and while firemen concentrated streams of water on the steaming vault he dashed into the building and unlocked the storeroom. Pretty soon he came back, shouting low through the spark shutters and smoke, with "Poor Little Poppin'!" and "The Girl of Yesterday" in his arms. Naturally, Philip was a hero, especially when in cause into those cans of film had gone most of the respective Pickford and Zukor fortunes.

But he quit then and went to France, a sergeant of motor transport with the First Division. He returned, recovering from a wound, in 1919. Miss Pickford and Mr. Zukor were in Hollywood. Mr. Lewis went back to taxi driving.

Since then he has read the papers diligently, and always managed to be on hand when Miss Pickford comes to town. Taxi starters at the stations and customs officials at the docks have learned to give his car precedence when the diminutive star appears. And she, in turn, never fails to demand: "Get Philip. I won't ride with anyone but Philip."

You Never Can Tell!

Speaking of other years, and movie stars, here's a story that has rankled in the breast of a publicity man since 1920. It goes back to the time that the old Mayflower Pictures outfit launched a scheme designed to prove that any remarkably beautiful girl, however unknown, could be speedily developed into a successful film actress. Entrants from all over the United States were to submit their photographs to a committee of prominent artists. These judges were to select the winner from the sole standpoint of facial loveliness. Then the lucky girl was to be given a six-week job in the Ziegfeld chorus, and thereafter was guaranteed a star part in a Mayflower picture.

Along toward the climax of the ensuing excitement, a Mayflower press agent who had been scouting around in Massachusetts dashed into headquarters with a photo of a pretty girl—the girl, he vehemently contended, had looked and figure, and acting ability, and personality and—well, everything required to be a movie star. Frowning executives told the enthusiast that this contest was strictly on the level. The nominee could be entered only in the regular way, and without benefit of company influence. There was even covert suspicion that the press agent was trying to do a favor for a girl friend.

When the judges held their final session, the contest had narrowed down to two, and one was the entrant from Massachusetts. The judges scanned, squinted, scrutinized—and chose a girl from Wisconsin.

With due ceremony the winner was brought to town and started jockeying in the chorus. She kept right on kicking. She couldn't act; she abhorred the very idea of acting. By her own demand the picture was never filmed. Even her name's forgotten now.

And the other girl?—the one the judges wouldn't qualify? That was Clara Bow.

WHEN YOUR NOSE KNOWS

A woman who was unable to smell went into a basement where a gas main was leaking. She remained until she was unconscious, when a relative happened to smell the gas, hunted for it, and found her. Most of us could have easily detected the faintest gas leak. Indeed, the nose often warns us of dangers even though we do not regard the sense of smell as very important. It is very easy for us, for example, to detect the odor of burning wood or cloth.

Most of us take the sense of smell as a matter of course until we get a cold and then we find that many foods do not taste quite right. This is because the sense of smell is closely tied in with the sense of taste. It is said that one with a total loss of smell can detect very little difference in the flavor of an apple from an onion. The sense of smell is vitally bound up with the appetite. A dish that smells good to us when sitting down to the table starts a flow of the digestive juices in the mouth and stomach which in turn stimulates a large digestion.

Sometimes doctors have such a delicate sense of smell that they can determine the different odors of the skin in health and disease, and can often determine the disease from the odor alone. Whenever one has a foul perspiration, there is sure to be some diseased condition of the body accompanying it.

The more civilized a man is the less likely he is able to smell. It is said that the snake-eating tribes of Queensland are able to follow the trail of the boat for many miles, as they particularly prize this reptile in making their snake stews.

The rat-nosed animals, such as the dog or cat, can recognize the direction from which an odor comes, but before a man can do as well he has to wet his finger in his mouth and then hold it up and he can then tell that the odor comes from the direction that his finger is coldest.

The emotions are very closely related to the sense of odor and smells, and can cause pleasantness or depression or delight. This is the origin of the use of incense in churches. Many perfumes are known to have the effect of stirring up the wooing instinct. The fragrance of flowers is not for the purpose of pleasing or displeasing man. It is more definitely designed to please the butterfly, the moth or the bee which is going to cross-fertilize the blossoms. It is said that there are so many romances in the springtime because of the many fragrant odors in the air at that time. Male butterflies are said to have a peculiar perfume which is said to attract the female. Among human beings, the sense to be reversed, although most men have a better sense of smell than most women, it is the women who use most of the perfume.

There are two important smells which are known as social smells. One of these is the smell from the wood fire, another is the smell of roasting or searing meat. These two odors have a greater appeal to all men at all times than that of any other odor.

Although man has invented countless devices for aiding his sense organs, such as the sight and hearing, he has failed to make anything which will intensify his ability to smell. It is very interesting to observe, however, that many patients, while undergoing a fasting and cleansing regimen, will notice a renewed sensitiveness with the sense of smell, and I have seen a number of patients who, before a fasting regimen, were entirely devoid of this sense, afterwards experience a great delight in testing one odor from another—odors which are quite common and unappreciated by most of us.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Feet Perspire)

Question: Mr. George LeR. asks: "What is the cause of sweating feet and what can be done to overcome this trouble?"

Answer: The feet sweat more than most parts of the body because they are enclosed in the leathery covering of shoes. This holds in the heat and produces the excessive sweating. Those who are too much troubled with sweating feet should be careful to change their socks at least once daily and take also two sponge or shower baths daily to cleanse the skin all over the body and keep the pores clean and the sweat glands more active in other parts besides the feet. It is also a good plan to have several pairs of shoes so that any one pair is not used more than once or twice weekly. Do nothing to stop the feet from sweating, but keep them as clean as possible.

(Difference Between Rheumatism and Neuritis)

Question: E. writes: "I am very interested in your writing and have subscribed to the paper so I will not miss any of them. May I ask you to explain the difference between rheumatism and neuritis?"

Answer: I consider the cause to be practically the same in rheumatism as in neuritis. With rheumatism, the toxemia locates in the muscles or joints, while in neuritis it gathers around the nerve trunks. The treatment in both of these troubles consists in eliminating the toxemia responsible.

"Mind your own business," was the legend on one of the early coins in this country, dated 1787. Now we haven't any chance to mind it. We can't even find it.

The Road Back

Behind the Scenes in WASHINGTON

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON.
BY ROBERT DUCHER, NRA Service Writer

Washington, April 22.—Those optimists who have been assuring us for the last couple of years that we were passing through a revolution without knowing it are at last entitled to a hearing.

The sudden surge of support for a minimum wage law by the Democrats with a law limiting hours of work is the most radical manifestation to appear since the Roosevelt administration came in.

Until a few days ago the proposal for a federal minimum wage law was merely a plank in the platform of the Social Party. States which had attempted any regulation of wages always confined their legislation to women and minors.

Now the proposal has the sympathy of President Roosevelt. The support of the secretary of labor, substantial backing in Congress, and even approval from a section of industry itself. Some sort of minimum wage legislation in this Congress has suddenly become likely.

It is a tremendous jump from the restricted, often poorly-enforced state laws governing wages to the prospective spectacle of the entire huge, ailing structure of American industry being told by government boards what it must pay employees and how long they may work.

See Supreme Court Change

The fact that such drastic regulation is now under consideration demonstrates the change of attitude here as to what may reasonably be expected from the supreme court.

The court in the past 10 years has declared unconstitutional even minimum laws passed by states for women and children. While there is thus no assurance that it would uphold a mandatory federal law covering both sexes in all industries, there is a growing belief that it might.

The question in Congress and at the White House has been whether to attempt to set up mandatory minimum wage legislation, or machinery which would carry an enforcing power beyond that of publicity of public opinion. In any event, minimum wages for specific industries would be fixed by wage boards representing labor, employers and the public rather than by Congress itself.

Seek Wage Bottoms

Secretary of Labor Perkins and other protagonists argue that it is vital to the public interest to fix a bottom in the fall of wages and thus stabilize purchasing power. When the Senate passed the 48-hour week law many members warned that it might be of little aid without a minimum wage provision, and it immediately became obvious that the measure as passed would be followed by reductions in income for employees whose hours were reduced. And the demand for minimum wage legislation became irresistible after President Roosevelt had publicly urged governors of industrial states to promote minimum wage laws such as that recently passed in New York.

Wages Have Lagged

Nine states now have minimum wage laws for women and minors, nearly all of them in a rather dubious position because of past supreme court decisions and weak of their own enforcement. But several other states now have such laws pending largely as a result of publicity given to starvation wages and inhuman working hours in the sweatshops.

A striking move was death the minimum wage movement in 1933 when the supreme court voted five to three against a law for women and minors in the District of Columbia on the ground that it violated the "due process" clause of the 14th amendment by abridging the privilege of free contract.

Of 17 states only California, Colorado, Massachusetts, Minnesota, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Washington and Wisconsin still retain minimum wage laws.

Prior to the depression minimum wages for experienced women had been set as high as $16 a week in California, $14.40 in Massachusetts, $12 in Minnesota, $14.90 in North Dakota, $13.90 in Oregon and $5 cents an hour in Wisconsin. Several of these states have reduced minimum rates to conform with lowered living costs.

MEAT, POTATOES and GRAVY

MANY a meal is built around these three standbys—meat, potatoes and gravy. Invariably they are the first dishes that come to your mind as you plan your dinner.

But in spite of their hunger-satisfying and nourishing qualities, this time-honored triumvirate can become monotonous unless it is supplemented by other dishes.

However, it is often a problem to find these "side dishes" in your own head. Of course you can quiz your neighbor, or ask the members of your family what they would like. But even this source of information is often lacking in ideas.

The thing to do is read the advertisements in your newspaper. Every day your local markets display their foodstuffs on those printed pages. You'll read of new vegetables and fruits that have "just arrived." Your appetite will be aroused by the tasty creations of national food manufacturers. With pencil and paper you can make your market list and menus before you step out of the house.

Speaking of monotony, consider this. There are 11 different cuts of beef, 9 cuts of veal, 7 of lamb, 10 of pork; there are at least 20 different breakfast cereals sold in every store, 16 different canned vegetables, 6 canned fruits, a dozen or more canned meats and fish, numberless varieties of cakes and crackers. Why should there be monotony in meals with such a variety of foods available at your store and so many of them advertised in your paper?

Not only is the Times dubious in its editorial policy but it has permitted its biliousness to affect its news columns and particularly its headlines. It announced in a leading heading the other day that the United States had gone off the gold standard "temporarily"—when there was not the slightest justification for any such qualification even in the story over which the headlines appeared. Yesterday the first paragraph of its principal news story on inflation was this:

President Roosevelt today directed from the White House the draft of legislation granting him power to employ the monetary system so as to raise domestic prices, prime the pump of private industry, place the United States in a stronger position in the world markets AND LEAD THE WAY BACK TO A GENERAL RESUME OF THE GOLD STANDARD BY INTERGOVERNMENTAL AGREEMENT.

So far as are concerned the words we have capitalized, this is the nearest inference, born of the Times' own worship of the gold standard. There is nothing what-

Olympics Oppose Portuguese of Hartford in League Match at Charter Oak Field at 2.30 p. m.; Close, Hard Fought Game is Expected.

The Hartford Portuguese junior soccer eleven will be the attraction at the Charter Oak street grounds tomorrow afternoon when they will meet the Olympians in a Hartford County Junior Soccer League game.

Both the Olympians and Portuguese juniors occupy a position about halfway up the league table having won and tied the same number of games.

Stress Team Work Following the example of their senior team the Portuguese juniors play a short passing, set-piece style of game.

Since the Olympians' style of play is exactly the same as their opponents of tomorrow the spectators will witness the boys attempt a display of the finer art of soccer.

Much comment has been heard regarding the smart uniform adopted by the Olympians. The management is pleased to learn that the choice meets with spectators' approval.

The Manchester Swedes travel to Worcester, Mass., tonight to meet the Emanuel Lutheran church boys there.

The juvenile soccer team candidates, ranging in age from 12 to 15 years, will practice at the West Side field this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The Meriden High-East Hartford High game scheduled for yesterday was postponed until next Tuesday when Coach Frank Barnhart announced that his team had been able to hold only one practice session so far.

Unable to obtain a suitable diamond Boston College's athletic officials today were forced to cancel today's baseball game with the heavy hitting Vermont nine.

Jim Bagby, Jr., son of the former Cleveland pitcher, made his debut as a high school hurler at Atlanta this spring.

ARIAL OF AUBURN THREE-SPORT STAR AND GOOD STUDENT

Baseball, Basketball and Football Veteran Makes Good Marks in College Class Rooms.

Auburn, Ala., April 23.—(AP)—A regular on the baseball, basketball and football teams, David "Gump" Arrial, finds time to make good grades in the college rooms at Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

He is a junior in the school of science and literature, but is taking enough courses in the school of education to be eligible for a certificate to teach and coach in state high schools when he is graduated in May, 1939.

His athletic endeavors now are confined to baseball—playing in the right field where he has excelled as a fly-chaser and has an offensive mark of .353.

On the gridiron he is an end and was an almost unanimous favorite for all-Southern honors last fall. His football specialties are receiving forward passes and blocking.

He plays either guard or center in basketball and is an efficient performer in the 1938 season as first string center.

Whereupon Bill's problem quit rolling around in his skull and came to a dead stop. He waved Bumpy slantly out to pitch.

The figures up through yesterday's games show an "average" hitting better than .500, and six others in the two big leagues going at a .400 clip.

Behind Frederick, two national leaguers have higher percentages than Mack's. The digits which started the season off last week at the Boston Red Sox who hit .450 to lead the circuit.

Other leading "regulars" in the national are Lee, Phillips, Al, Lindstrom, Pirates, and Davis, Giants, .368; English, Cubs, .364; Vargas, Cubs, .357 and Harriott, Cubs, .350.

A Simmons, Chicago White Sox, and Sam West, St. Louis Browns are tied for second place in the American league with .408 marks.

Sluggers Start Breaking Loose

BATSMEN IN MAJOR LOOPS SHOW SIGNS OF HITTING POWER

Yanks, Cards and Pirates Win With Barrage of Hits; Ruth Hits Homer; Pitching Explained.

While the pitchers still are in control of the situation, major league batsmen are showing signs of breaking loose and creating the usual carnage in the batting department.

One round of seven games yesterday saw five teams held to five hits, or fewer, but at the same time the New York Yankees opened up with a slugging carnival which produced 18 blows against the Boston Red Sox.

The Yankees feat recalled the way they won the American league pennant and the world championship last year as Ruth hoisted his second home run over the scoreboard in left field and every Yankee except Pitcher Charles Ruffing got at least two hits for a 7-5 decision.

The Athletics were out hit by Washington, when Ruffing (Sugar) Cain tightened in the pitcher's box and Connie Mack's club won a 3 to 1 triumph.

GOLF

WILL LADY BUCHANAN SMILE AT MAC SMITH?

The forgotten man of golf is Macdonald Smith, Carolina Scot, who 32 years ago led for the National Open only to lose to his brother Alex in the playoff.

Smith's game should have paid him good dividends and he should have been champion a number of times.

When James won his grand slam in 1930, Smith finished second to him in both Open and National. After James had slipped on the last hole he closed the door on Smith's shot by sinking a 40-footer on the 18th hole.

With only three holes left to play in the 1935 British Open, James burst through the hole in his hand, but tossed it to Long Jim Barnes because he couldn't break 80 on his last round.

Fate again beckoned during the British Open at Sandwich last year. Only once had the British Open been won with a score under 80. Mac's 88 usually would win any man's tournament but Barnes set a new record of 78 which left Mac in second place.

HORSE RACING IS SPORT OF QUEENS TO YANKEE WOMAN

Mrs. Ambrose Clark Realized Youthful Dream When Her Kellsboro Jack Won Grand National.

By HELEN WELSHIMIER, NEA Service Writer

New York, April 22.—There were two especially interesting features about the Grand National Steeplechase at world-famous Aintree, England, this year.

Year after year she has watched the horses in the big chase go down the four and one-half mile track and take the 80 hurdles. None of her entries ever had come in first, though.

Seven Wedding Gifts Were a Honeymoon

The wedding ceremony, which was performed by the famous Bishop Potter, was the first of the kind in the town since the town was decided on the loss of a coin and the Endees were the fortunate ones and named the race.

Reports from the rigid end of the town have it that the Service Station has been doing some heavy practicing and are out to take the West Side outfit.

In October of 1935, Ambrose Clark, already a well established figure in the sport, was thrown and hurt while racing. When he recovered and he and his wife went right on being a mystery but her horse, Bird of Flight II, stumbled over a jump in the Independence Steeplechase at Sheepshead Bay and was injured so badly he had to be killed.

SWEETSTAKE RESULTS

Chicago, April 22.—(AP)—That "ideal backfield" that Big Ten football fans were conjuring on paper last December may yet evolve into an integral unit driving down a gridiron.

The tentative backfield lineup Dick Hanley, Northwestern coach, has drawn for his "Midwest All-Stars" team to meet a Pacific coast galaxy as a world's fair feature the night of August 24 here.

Michigan's Harry Newman as quarterback; Pug Rentner of Northwestern, Gil Berry of Illinois and Marchy Schwartz of Notre Dame as halfbacks, and Roy Horstmann of Purdue and Jack Harvill of Minnesota as fullbacks.

This sextet has been mentioned before as one of the most choice groups of backfielders the Midwest has produced in any two grid campaign. All except Schwartz wound up college careers just last fall.

Y. M. C. A. Notes

Indoor baseball started out well yesterday and proved a good game. Many like it just as well, as the good old game out doors and we have the advantage that it can be played at night as well as in the day time. It gives you the same kick as a good outdoor game and takes a lot of skill as well because the ball is played in a smaller compass and the players are just as lively as with the harder ball out doors. This is good practice for the game out doors this summer and all the boys are urged to show up with their groups this coming week for the indoor tournament.

The control act received the approval of the House and Senate only after a severe verbal battle.

House Republicans, receiving the measure Tuesday, in the form of an amendment to the judiciary committee bill ignored party lines, and repudiated their majority leadership for the first time in the memory of veteran legislators to rally in support of a system of centralized liquor control.

In the Senate, nine Republicans also swerved from the leadership of Minority Leader Alcorn to vote with 18 Democrats in favor of the measure.

Galleries Jammed. Galleries in both Houses were jammed for the debater, the longest in recent legislative history.

The House debate centered on the question of centralized control vs. local control. In the Senate, however, this question was virtually ignored. Instead, attention was concentrated on the merits of the Buckley commission plan and many of its provisions were assailed.

A large group of Senators voted for the act only after expressing the hope some of its provisions will be changed later. Governor Cross indicated he would be "sympathetic" to strong measures.

It is generally believed proposed changes in the law will be incorporated in one amendment to be offered during the present session.

While victorious in his fight for centralized control over liquor, Governor Cross lost his fight in the House for public utility legislation.

Republicans who supported the liquor measure voted the next day against measures creating a commission to study public utility legislation and empowering the Public Utility Commission to initiate rate hearings. These proposals, embodied in two bills, have been approved by the Senate.

When the two measures returned to the Senate yesterday afternoon the government spokesman reaffirming the nation's determination to stay on gold, discounted the possibility that any action was necessary to protect the franc or to protect French commerce.

According to this spokesman, government experts believe it will be difficult to keep the dollar down without some new American action such as inflation.

Premier Daladier told the Cabinet he had sent Mr. Herriot a wireless message expressing his own hopes and the hopes of the country for success. This was in connection with newspaper reports that the Herriot mission had complained that the government apparently had forgotten it.

The Cabinet also discussed disarmament and, feeling that this question was temporarily in the background, Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour postponed his departure for Geneva. Norman H. Davis, American ambassador-at-large, also has delayed his trip there.

The finance minister reported fully on the dollar situation at the Cabinet meeting, and discussed its effects on France. Prior to the meeting a government spokesman reaffirming the nation's determination to stay on gold, discounted the possibility that any action was necessary to protect the franc or to protect French commerce.

Members of the Waltham League society of the Zion Lutheran church were praised for their work in "Ruth", drama in three acts presented at the church last night. It was the first attempt at a biblical play and the acting throughout was a credit to the coach, Miss Emily Kismann. While all were excellent, outstanding was the impressive way in which Henry Janssen interpreted the character of Boaz. Miss Mildred Matchel as Naomi had everybody weeping with her, and Clarence Freiheit filled the role assigned to him in a dignified manner. Miss Wilma Hess acted as the effectiveness of the drama by her organ numbers played softly back stage and the joyous trio furnished classical music.

SOCK AND BUSKINS WIN SELVES CREDIT

Give Fine Performance in "Reach for the Moon" Before Large Audience.

The largest crowd of the season attended a very creditable production of the sock and buskin players last evening at High school hall. "Reach for the Moon," a drama in three acts is an interesting and fast moving comedy. It was well cast and the parts were not too difficult for any of the fourteen characters as they all handled their roles with apparent ease.

The story was laid in "Happy Valley Ranch" in Colorado and for this reason the stage was artistically arranged with bright tapestries and silk head with branching horns, Indian rugs and pillows, and the general atmosphere of the West, far off from the noise of motors, the clang of bells and the hissing of locomotives.

The story of the play had to do with Jennifer Lee, a part taken by Miss Betty Walworth, an heiress, scheduled to marry an Earl, who failing to appear in the wedding procession, and escaping to a dude ranch, obtains a position as secretary to the wealthy Mrs. Larrimore, a part taken by Miss Hazel Driggs.

John Cameron, a role played by Fred Midren, one of the owners of the ranch, has had an eventful career. The younger son of the Earl of Sherbourne—Eric—and devoted to the older brother, Clarence, he has assumed the responsibility for a disastrous act of the heir apparent and has made his way to America accompanied by his friend, Larry Kerrigan, taken by Edgar Clarke, his partner in business.

The play's smooth running gave evidence of much preparation and the casting was particularly good. The play was full of comedy and last night's audience was often in an uproar. Each character unquestionably scored from the gay modern girls in the production to the old wealthy woman. Betty Walworth as Jennifer received many compliments for the charming manner in which she handled her part. The play centers largely about Fred Midren as John Cameron but he was equal to all its demands. Eleanor Wallace as Sally and Rita Stephens as Betty played their parts as gay, vivacious, modern girls, to perfection. Barbara Hyde as Patricia had a conspicuous role and her character as that of a conscientious little girl who thought she must never say anything wrong had the audience saying "Oh no!" with her. Eleanor Robertson as Genevieve got the best laughs in the play although holding a part with very few lines. As a frightened and nervous person she waved her umbrella and fussed with her pocketbook until the audience was swaying back and forth with her. Hazel Driggs as the domineering Mrs. Larrimore has the voice and manner for the part and no student could have played it better. Evelyn Peterson as Pamela, although holding a part which called for a haughty and aristocratic air, had the audience in tears when she learned that John "loved somebody else." Edgar Clarke as Larry handled his part with ease using an Irish brogue and an easy manner which gave much to the smooth running of the play. Everett Durkee as Keewaymin the stoical Indian got laughs on his entrance and as he played cupid as well as a servant and succeeded in carrying more than one girl off. Victor Davies as Hal a young boy of the modern college type, should be given much credit for, owing to complicated situations, he was not given the part until Tuesday of this week. He was active and very much at home on the stage. James Britton as the Earl certainly put it across and Kingsley French as Anthony, who was attempting to catch the spirit of the West by shots at bears, did an excellent bit of acting. Hallett Stiles as Ted, although holding a minor role made much of it.

Coach Honored. The play ended in a burst of applause and the cast again stepped forward, this time for their final bow. Fred Midren presented Miss Helen Estes, coach of the production with a beautiful spring bouquet and with a graciousness which helps to explain her continued popularity in town turned to Hallett Stiles and said, "I cannot accept the credit for the performance alone, at least half of the credit should be given to Hallett Stiles. It is well known that Stiles has worked hard and faithfully in preparing the stage setting and arranging for the many clever 'effects' in sunshine and windstorm. All in all it was a very good production and sock and buskin may well feel proud of their second attempt for the year.

The production staff is as follows: Stage manager, Hallett Stiles; publicity, Betty Quimby; business manager, Stuart Joslin; property manager, Victor Davies; committee on properties, Emily Andrews and Marian Fraser; stage effects, Fred Stebbins; usher, Lillian Carney; Agnes Donohue, Bessie Quinn, Fred Bieber, Walter Wright and Merrill Rubinow.

Well Cast. The play's smooth running gave evidence of much preparation and the casting was particularly good. The play was full of comedy and last night's audience was often in an uproar. Each character unquestionably scored from the gay modern girls in the production to the old wealthy woman. Betty Walworth as Jennifer received many compliments for the charming manner in which she handled her part. The play centers largely about Fred Midren as John Cameron but he was equal to all its demands. Eleanor Wallace as Sally and Rita Stephens as Betty played their parts as gay, vivacious, modern girls, to perfection. Barbara Hyde as Patricia had a conspicuous role and her character as that of a conscientious little girl who thought she must never say anything wrong had the audience saying "Oh no!" with her. Eleanor Robertson as Genevieve got the best laughs in the play although holding a part with very few lines. As a frightened and nervous person she waved her umbrella and fussed with

GARDEN-APPLICANTS OUTNUMBER PLOTS

Those Most in Need Will Be Selected by Emergency Bureau and Legion.

At a meeting of the West Side home gardeners last night in the West Side Recreation building, 198 applications were received by the Legion committee, more than twice the number of plots available in that section of the town. The total number of registrations to date, 288, is in excess of the number expected by the committee. It is expected that over 800 applications will be filed. The most needy applicants will be selected by the Emergency Employment committee and the Legion, and seeds, plants and fertilizer will be given them. The next meeting of the home
