Makes Declaration Against Bolivia After Months of Fighting in the Chaco — Populace Hails Proclamation With Cheers, Prepares for Air Raids.

Aunacion, Paraguay, May 10. (AP)—Paraguay today formally declared war against Bolivia.

WAGE INCREASES ARE INCREASING

Thousands of Workers in Nation Get Raises from Five to 20 P. C.

By Associated Press. Thousands of employes went to work today with lighter step and a brighter outlook as a number of manufacturers encouraged by business upturns announced wage increases ranging from five to 20 per cent.

The raises were in keeping with President Roosevelt's appeal to employers to keep wages up and followed the trend established by other employers earlier this week.

In Pennsylvania ten per cent pay boosts were announced by the Supreme Shirt Company of Philadelphia and the four and feed brokerage firm of George E. Rogers and Company of Harrisburg.

From Cleveland came reports that the steel mills of that district had recalled from 10,000 to 20,000 men to work and provided employment for 5,000 more.

In Akron, Ohio, the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company announced additional working hours would result in an increase of 12 1/2 per cent.

The largest single wage boost—20 per cent—was announced by the Planters Nut and Chocolate Company of Suffolk, Va.

In order to reduce working hours to a straight 8-hour day, a group of independent Cleveland bakers announced a one-cent a loaf increase in the price of bread.

FIRST NATIONAL ALONE SELLING BEER IN TOWN

Demand is Steady But Not Great as First of New Brew is Made Available Here Today.

Beer of the 3.2 per cent variety, legalized throughout the state today by proclamation of the governor, was for sale in Manchester through only one medium—the nine stores of the First National chain.

At an early hour this morning close to 3,000 persons stormed the commission's office with applications for licenses.

ASSEMBLY RECEIVES BUDGET FOR STATE

Totals Over 67 Million, Nearly a Million More Than Estimate.

Hartford, May 10.—(AP)—A budget totaling $67,888,585, nearly a million dollars more than originally recommended by the State Board of Finance and Control, was ready today for presentation to the legislature by the appropriations committee.

The budget provided for inclusion in the state expenditures during the next two years of several items the abolition of which was recommended by the board.

Only one major capital outlay item was recommended. The committee suggested a total of $208,750, with an additional $11,000 for equipment for the Seaside Tuberculosis Sanitarium.

Senator William H. Haskett, chairman, said he declined to vote on the budget, which was adopted with the support of the Republican majority. Senator Joseph Lawlor of

SEES MILLION CHILDREN HEADED FOR INSANITY

Philadelphia, May 10.—(AP)—Due to parental discord and over-emphasis of "text-book knowledge," Dr. Kenneth E. Appel, University of Pennsylvania psychiatrist, predicts that a million school children, now normal, will be at least mildly insane at some period of their lives.

Dr. Appel, who with Dr. Earl D. Bond, has attracted wide notice for his work in combatting the after-effects of sleeping sickness in children, made his prediction last night at the annual meeting of the Philadelphia County Council of Home and School Associations.

"Much of this mental instability will be due in large part to parental discord, which is all too common in the American home," he declared.

STATE DEMANDS CHAIR FOR YOUTHFUL SLAYER

Playmates Tell How School "Bully" Roped 12 Year Old Boy and Then Stabbed Him to Death.

New York, May 10.—(AP)—In a Queens courtroom today a 16-year-old school boy sat stolidly listening while his erstwhile playmates gave testimony on which the state is asking that he be sent to the electric chair for murder.

John Miller, aged 10, the state's star witness, began the recital yesterday, telling the court and jury that Harry Mure, described as "the playground bully," roped and tied 12-year-old Willie Bender and stabbed him to death because Willie had "snatched" on him.

"I went to school with Harry," John said. "He lived about two blocks from my house, and I saw him after school on January 31. We were at the corner butcher shop talking, and I asked him if he was going to 'take' the Bender boy."

Gets Rope and Rags "Harry said, 'Come on, let's go and get the rope and the rags.' Then he got them out of an old basket in the garage. He tore the cloth in strips and put them in his pocket and put the rope under his coat. He had a knife in his pocket, and he told me, 'This is the knife I'm going to do the job with.'"

"We didn't find Willie right away, and I told Harry, 'Let's wait until we see him.'" (Continued on Page Twelve)

TO CHANGE RITES FOR YALE TAP DAY

Ceremonies Hereafter Will Not Be Conducted Outdoors on the Campus.

New Haven, May 10.—(AP)—Tap day ceremonies under the spreading oak tree on Yale College campus have been abolished by the senior societies.

Tap day with its picturesque setting, more so in the years when undergraduates were permitted to have guests in dormitories which overlooked the old campus, has been an institution for more than half a century.

Announcement was given today that from five to six tomorrow afternoon all campuses would be closed. These are the old college campus, Memorial quadrangle and Calhoun Jonas Edwards, Frisvold, and Trumbull colleges which are present.

BRITAIN ACCEPTS U. S. SUGGESTIONS

Proposals on Tariff Truce Are Passed on to Six Other Governments.

London, May 10.—(AP)—The American tariff truce project was strengthened somewhat by suggestions from the United States government which were conveyed to British quarters this noon by Norman H. Davis, the United States ambassador-at-large, American circles here said.

Suggestions made in a note from the United States government were minor, but were accepted immediately by the British and submitted at once to six other governments for their opinion, it was expected today or early tomorrow.

The text of the proposal, as now arranged, provides not only for the acceptance of an immediate tariff truce by the eight principal nations but includes also a recommendation to other nations of the world to join in.

Mr. Davis, who first presented the truce idea more than a week ago, lunched today with Walter Runciman, president of the British Board of Trade, and talked over the matter.

This afternoon the American envoy conferred with foreign office officials. He said that he hoped the acceptance by other governments would be received in time to meet the world economic conference tomorrow morning, so that he could depart for Geneva tomorrow afternoon.

LITTLE BEER IN STATE WHEN BAN IS LIFTED

Plan A Huge Bonfire Of Books In Germany

Berlin, May 10.—(AP)—Blacklisted books from private as well as public libraries were piled high today on "Kultur's altars" throughout Germany for public burning tonight.

School boys enthusiastically rushed final preparations for the huge bonfires. Nazi student committees of action have been working at top speed more than a week arranging for the great purging of the libraries of "unGerman influences."

Some 20,000 books are collected for the big fire to be set off at 11 p. m. in Opera Square in Berlin.

All books of a Socialistic, Jewish or Pacifist trend are especially marked for destruction.

As insurance against student zeal doing irreparable harm, a commission of college professors will "separate the wheat from the chaff," preserving valuable and semi-rare tomes.

FORMER COMPTROLLER TELLS SENATORS DEFECTIONS OF BANK PRESIDENTS COMMON IN HIS OFFICE.

Washington, May 10.—(AP)—John W. Pole, former comptroller of the currency, told a Senate investigating committee that defections of bank presidents are "common matters" in the comptroller's office and that therefore reported irregularities in the Harrison bank of New York were handled in a "routine" way.

Pole was called as a witness in the prosecution of Joseph W. Harrison, former president of the National Bank and Trust Company.

Questioned by Senator Robinson (R., Ind.), he said he made no personal investigation of the Harrison irregularities, but relied on the examiner's report.

"Defections are common matters in the comptroller's office, you know," he said. "It's only a routine matter."

"You mean defections of bank presidents are common?" Robinson asked.

Repeats Statement "Yes," the former comptroller replied, calmly.

"To the amount of more than a million dollars?" "No," Pole replied.

"If defections of bank presidents are common, no wonder the people have no confidence in the banks," Robinson remarked.

No wonder at all," Pole agreed. "No wonder the irregularities were reported to him by telephone from New York in June, 1932, but that he recommended no action against Harrison because the statute of limitations was not invoked and the condition of the banks was such that it 'might have proved disastrous.'"

"BIG BILL'S" BONFIRE

Chicago, May 10.—(AP)—The German Nazis' plans for the public burning of "blacklisted" books recalled to Chicagoans today a noted bibliographical cremation in their own front yard.

It climaxed, in 1927, the campaign of former Mayor William Hale Thompson, who had just achieved the mayoralty for his third term, to "purge the city" schools of alleged pro-British histories and literature.

The literary conflagration—staged on the lake front opposite the Loop and only a short distance from the public library—had been preceded by months of busy campaign promises by Thompson to "burn King George on the smout" and was followed by law suits, political harassments, public apologies, and the disbarment of at least one lawyer confidante of "Big Bill."

When the ban was lifted at 5 p. m., e. s. t., in package stores, and at 9 a. m., standard time, in hotels, clubs, restaurants and taverns the proprietors for the most part were at the Superior Court.

In three counties, Middlesex, Toland and New London—no permits had been filed, in another, Litchfield, only one permit had been filed.

Most of the permits filed during the day were for chain grocery stores. As soon as this final step had been taken, the 3.2 beer went on sale in schools, hotels, clubs, bars and saloons.

An early rush taxed all delivery facilities and many stores had not received their supplies at noon, but the managers were optimistic they would have beer on sale before nightfall.

One large chain grocery in New Haven placed the brew on sale at 10 a. bottle and $1 a case.

Meanwhile changes in the state liquor control act were being urged. Several hundred pharmacists appeared before the judiciary committee of the legislature yesterday to ask an amendment liberalizing the restrictions on pharmaceuticals.

Hotels Protest. Another hearing at which hotel owners and managers were expected to protest against clauses forbidding sale of beer in rooms and permitting sale of beer only with meals, was scheduled for this afternoon.

Connecticut dealers were reported today ready to meet the initial needs of local citizens. In addition, brewers and wholesalers in surrounding states were believed to be ready to rush in large stocks.

The druggists asked two changes, one making it possible for them to compound medicines containing alcohol without a permit and the other giving them the right to sell hard liquor without prescriptions if the 18th Amendment is repealed.

Hugh F. Bairne, of New Haven, secretary of the state board of pharmacists, told the committee druggists prefer the 18th Amendment without prescription limitations to the liquor control act in its present form.

INSPECTORS NAMED

Hartford, May 10.—(AP)—Eight field inspectors were named today by the state liquor commission as crews seeking applications for beer permits continued to swarm into the Capital.

The inspectors named follow: C. H. E. of Bolton. John D. Dana, New Haven. Bob F. of East Hartford. William D. of Norfolk. Simon Nichols of Waterbury. William E. Donoghue of Bridgeport. Fred A. Booth of Portland. and Walter B. Clark of Torrington.

The commission announced that two other inspectors will be named later. All of the appointments were explained as necessary to meet the needs of the state in the process of implementing the liquor control act in its present form.

Revolution, Death, Poverty Figure In Radium History

New York, May 10.—(AP)—Revolution, death and destitution have figured in the history of a small quantity of radium, framed in gold, just purchased by the Presbyterian hospital.

The radium was bought in this country 16 years ago by two Russian physicians who operated hospitals in Russia for the treatment of malignant diseases.

After arranging for later shipment of the radium to Russia, the Russians returned to their native land at the outbreak of the revolution of 1917. They were killed before the radium was shipped.

who assigned it to the National City Bank for safekeeping.

Working through the offices of the Chinese and Mexican consular services, families of the Russian doctors traced the radium to New York.

Destitute through the loss of their fortunes and homes in Russia, they negotiated for its sale.

Only 48 Establishments Had Complied With Law — Almost Everyone Forgot to File Permit With Superior Court — Big Rush There Today — Expect Larger Flow of the Beverage Tomorrow.

By Associated Press. Legal beer came back to Connecticut today, but the thump of the bung starter on the barrels was faint at first, and the flow of the new brew was only a trickle.

For throughout the state, only 48 establishments had complied with all legal requirements and were ready to meet the demand when the new market was thrown open, under the provisions of the state liquor control act.

The liquor control commission had issued some 400 permits but many holders of the documents had overlooked the final legal step of filing of the permit with the clerk of the Superior Court.

Courts Are Crowded. When the ban was lifted at 5 p. m., e. s. t., in package stores, and at 9 a. m., standard time, in hotels, clubs, restaurants and taverns the proprietors for the most part were at the Superior Court.

In three counties, Middlesex, Toland and New London—no permits had been filed, in another, Litchfield, only one permit had been filed.

Shifting Turns The ingenuity of style designers shifts its emphasis from season to season. Sometimes hats get more than their share of attention; another season coats go to the front. Irving P. Campbell and Edgar W. Dynes Named to Surplus Group Last Night.

Close to one hundred were present at the Tolland County meeting of the Connecticut Milk Producers' Association which was held at the Town Hall, Rockville, at 8:30 o'clock last evening. Two members of the State Surplus Committee were elected at this time and plans discussed for increasing the sale price of milk in Connecticut. The meeting was called to order by George Jacobson of South Coventry who was named as chairman on motion of George Robinson. Edward Horton of Hebron was named clerk.

This meeting was a follow up meeting of the one held at the State Armory, Hartford, and was called primarily for the purpose of organizing the members so that they can find a market for their surplus milk. Irving P. Campbell was named a candidate upon motion of William J. Bowler; Edgar W. Dynes of Coventry upon motion of Goodwin Jacobson and Edwin Horton of Hebron by Daniel Way. The following is the result of the ballot which was by check list of the members: Irving P. Campbell, 54; Edgar W. Dynes, 62; Edwin Horton, 34; Horace McKnight, 3. Campbell and Dynes were declared unanimously elected as the Tolland County "Surplus Committee." Following the counting of the vote, William J. Bowler asked if it wouldn't be possible to have an early morning delivery of the milk as there was no ice this season. Several of the members favored an early morning delivery of the milk and it was suggested that the newly appointed committee take it up with the Connecticut Milk Producers' Association. Edgar Dynes delivered a short address to the meeting stating that "if the price committee can't get the price we want we ought to ask them to resign." This remark was met with hearty applause.

Irving P. Campbell, of Tolland, who was elected a member of the "Surplus Committee," promised to secure just as high a price as possible for the members of the Connecticut Milk Producers' Association. The meeting adjourned about 10:30 o'clock.

The following meetings were held last evening: Windham County, Town Hall at Waverletts; New London County, Town Hall at Union Square, Norwich; Tolland County, Memorial building at Rockville; Hartford County, Moose hall, Hartford; Middlesex County, Town Hall at Middletown; New Haven County, Town Hall at Centerville; Fairfield County, Town Hall at Newtown; Litchfield County, Legion Post hall, between Goshen and Cornwall.

School Nurse Report
The report of Miss Margaret E. Dornheim, school nurse, was presented at the regular meeting of the Board of Common Council, held last evening at 7:30 o'clock at which Mayor Albert E. Waller presided, showing an active month with close to five hundred visits. The report of Miss Dornheim was as follows: "During April a total of 449 children were inspected, 16 health talks were given, 44 were given first aid and 11 were excluded from school."

"Nineteen children of the city schools had their teeth cared for by their dentists during the month and 11 are now under treatment. Medical inspection was resumed with Dr. Thomas F. O'Loughlin and Dr. George E. Dickinson in charge. Four calls were made to follow up the children who were found to have physical defects when they were examined earlier in the school year; few corrections have been made. Four dental clinics were held in the rural schools. The work was done by Dr. E. J. Brennan and is supported by the Vernon Parent-Teachers Association. A great deal of good is being accomplished."

"Milk is continued as usual, more than 1,700 bottles of it were given free during the month."

MARGARET E. DORNHEIM, School Nurse.
The following permits were presented and granted last evening: Catherine Regan, playhouse, 7 by 7 feet at 35 Windsor avenue; Lester Nagy wood shed, 10 by 12 feet; Julius E. S. Howard Heller's "Tin Soldier" dance was also of interest, Miss Alice Lehman replaced Miss Joan Dawkins' "Gypsy Beggar" dance due to the illness of the latter. The number "For Instance" consisted of a number by Kenneth and Janis Pitney which was of interest. The "Farmette" was of interest in the number; Jane Ryan, Edna Ann Bennett, Cynthia Fisher, Joan Smith, Ruth Lewis, H. W. Gillin, and Lorraine Sempie and Lorraine Anderson. The trio consisting of Lillian Schrupf, Ellen Marie Hippel and Alice Lehman presented the "Golden Hoop" number which was of interest, after which Miss Eunice Scheiner presented "By Hook."

Miss Ellen Marie Hippel's number, "Easin' Along", was of interest which was the last individual number on the evening's program. This was followed by an orchestra selection while arrangements were made for "Sneakin' Sadie", a musical comedy number, in which the following participated: Eunice Scheiner, Priscilla Turner, Della Worcester, Alice Lehman, Ellen Marie Hippel and Lillian Schrupf. Following a short intermission, a minstrel performance was presented by the group which opened with the number, "The Little Chocolate Drop" of Cliff Goulier's which was rendered by Howard Heller, after which Kenneth Pitney rendered the number, "Mammy's Little Red Hot" by Mac McCloud.

Jack Yost rendered two selections, "Joe Parsons" by Gilbert Weber and "That Sentimental Son of the South" by Fritz Clark. Louis Pitney rendered "Radio's Gift To the Ladies" by Big Bill Childs. Edmund Smith, well-known soloist, rendered two selections entitled "Chauncy Parsons" by William Pitney and "Middle Man" by Gene Art. Miss McCarthy and her pupils were highly praised for their efforts and much credit is due all of whom took part in the recital.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 10.

PROBABLY INVALID.

A great many people spending their lives in Connecticut have never read the whole or any part of the Constitution of their state. It is to be suspected that among them may be the framers of the Liquor Control act.

The very first section of the Declaration of Rights of that historic instrument says:

That all men when they form a social compact are equal in rights; and that no man, or set of men are entitled to exclusive public emoluments or privileges from the community.

In the face of this foundation stone of our political structure, the Liquor Control Act bestows upon the definitely limited group of surety companies authorized to do business in Connecticut the emoluments attaching to the extraordinary privileges of determining who shall and who shall not engage in the business of selling beer, how much such persons shall pay to the surety companies for the privilege and the conditions under which their operations shall be conducted.

It is our sincere belief that the bonding requirements of the Liquor bill are unconstitutional.

Under the provisions of the bill relating to bonds the Liquor Control Commission abdicates; turns over its rights, powers and responsibilities to a set of men who have no remotest connection with the state government and whose only conceivable interest in the question of liquor licenses is in connection with profit to themselves.

The whole system of liquor licenses is made, by the law, to depend on a bonding system; and the bonding system is turned over, lock, stock and barrel, to the surety companies to do with as they please, without imposing upon those companies the faintest shadow of restriction as to terms or conditions. So far as the law is concerned it would be wholly within the powers of the surety companies, working under an agreement to charge a flat fee of $5,000 a year for a $1,000 bond; they could, if they chose, determine to write no bond for any liquor licensee other than a single chain, thus establishing an ironclad monopoly of the beer business; or they could decide to write none at all, thus defeating the whole business of beer liberalization and replacing the Volstead act with the prohibitory ukase of the surety companies.

Because under the current law, he it remembered, the power to deny to any person the right to engage in the beer business lies as absolutely in the power of this little set of men as if they were in full autocratic command of the government.

Any law that places the fortunes, the property and the activities of the citizens of this state at the irresponsible disposition of a favored group is directly in conflict with the Constitution of Connecticut.

It is inconceivable that the General Assembly, its attention having been called to this egregious blunder—or possibly this intentional trick—in the new law will hesitate to so thoroughly amend Section 38 as to rid the statute of an outrageous and inexcusable nuisance.

BEER.

This beer that became legal even in Connecticut today—there are several things about it.

One of them is that it will have to be stouter beer than our friends tell us most of it has been so far, because it is going to have to pick up and carry quite a load. Inevitably it will have to bear the burden of blame for about all the intoxication in the country. It requires no great imagination to picture the ugly nose of beer, smelling into the very heaven of the fumes of fuel oil and "double cooked" alkali, who has been saturated with such stink the beginning of prohibition and who was soaked in morgue whiskey for years before that, tearfully assuring his neighbor that, "I never had a thing to drink—not in a week—but this here 'tree-two beer."

Not a plain drunk nor a drunkard will there be in any police court in this broad land, from now on, in all human probability, but arrived there riding high and wide and handsome on "three glasses of beer"—let him tell it.

Yes, it will need to be good beer with a sturdy "body", and no dishwasher concoction, to hold up its head in the face of all the slander that is going to be put upon it—and pray what good is beer that can't hold up its head?

Another thing about this beer is that most of it, according to all accounts, has quite a good way to go to get back to the position of the standard pre-prohibition beverage. It has been produced and released, so the story of the old timers goes, in far too great a hurry. It takes time to make a really good, full bodied, well flavored and easily assimilable lager beer—and this beer didn't get the time.

However, such as it is here it is. And what is there about it to get so excited over?

"RIGHT KIND" OF STATE AID.

There is too much talk about "some sort" of a measure to provide state aid to distressed municipalities in the extension of unemployment relief and not enough about determining the right kind.

That there would have to be "some sort" of a state aid measure was about the most obvious thing in the public mind more than four months ago when the General Assembly convened. It is inconceivable that after the elapse of all that time determination of the right kind can have advanced no further than its position of last New Year's.

We should, at least, have gotten beyond the stage of trying to protect "communities that have lived within their means" from the necessity of helping to pay for assistance to those municipalities that have managed their affairs less economically. If there is any serious attempt to legislate with that idea in view that it is a foregone conclusion that nothing will be accomplished.

In the first place the ethics of that kind of purism is about the same as that in holding an inquiry into the habits of a man overboard, to discover whether by chance he fell into the water as the result of being drunk, before proceeding to pull him out. There are people capable of letting a drunken man drown, whereas they would go to some risk for a sober one—but they are not many. There will not be many, it is to be assumed, in favor of letting cities or towns which have been extravagant go into bankruptcy over their relief work.

And in the next place, who is to pass judgment—who is to cast the first stone?

A definite principle should underlie any action taken by the state in this connection. Connecticut should raise the money itself, by a bond issue. It should grant or lend the money, without prejudice to the communities' respective credit, according to their real needs. The state is able to extend the relief. There are communities that desperately need it. The situation is simplicity itself. Let us not bog it through self righteousness.

ONE GOLD STANDARD.

Gates McGarrath, the young American who for three years has headed the Bank for International Settlements at Basel and who is now returning by limitation of his term, is being quoted as a firm adherent of the gold standard. He is, but the gold standard, to which he would adhere is a very different thing from the gold standard system as it has been known in the United States.

Mr. McGarrath believes, and so states, that the money function of gold should be solely instrumental; that it should be used only in the settlement of trade balance between nations.

So far is he from supporting the principle of a currency of gold or redeemable in gold that he urges the central bank to combat the misconception that gold is properly employed as a store of wealth or that the primary object is to assure internal convertibility of gold so that all who will may hoard gold coin.

It will be seen from these words of his that Mr. McGarrath is about as far as possible from agreeing with the gold redemptionists. His idea of a gold standard is something to measure values with and something to effect international settlements without something that the individual can employ in getting the better of his fellow citizen.

DUCE'S BIGGEST JOB.

Mussolini, according to current European dispatches, is about to tackle the hardest job of his career. He fought the Austrians and, by some accounts, hoked them all alone. He overcame the Reds when they had already overcome Italy. He put the king on the ice and parliament in a barrel. He planned the rebuilding of Rome and has done a lot of it. He became virtual dictator of the lives of forty-two million human beings. But it is only just now that he is credited with planning to keep Italians from killing and eating singing birds.

The Italians know more different ways of capturing birds, and more effective ways of cooking them than any other people in the world. Having almost exterminated their native varieties, they annually net countless thousands of migratory birds and catch other thousands in half a dozen kinds of traps, all in addition to the tons of wild birds that are shot, with serene disregard to such a thing as game seasons, all the year around.

Now Signor Mussolini has been converted to the belief that you can't have forests, unless you have birds to keep down the insects. The Duce has never had any particular sentimental attachment to the birds as such, but as aids to afforestation projects they arouse his interest. He is planning to stop the people from destroying the birds.

Which may turn out to be a good deal like the job that the American government undertook thirteen years ago with relation to the drinking of booze.

IN NEW YORK

OLD SPANISH CUSTOM?

No, Tango Stars Are Cosmopolitan Lot By JULIA BLANSHARD

New York, May 10.—New York has gone tango-mad. But apparently all the tango is not Spanish. Rosita, dusky, graceful partner of Ramon, whose dances delight El Gavron habitues, is an Irish lassie.

Tamiris and Margarita, the famous Band Box team of a few years ago, learned the appeal that Spanish dancers have. They had failed to get a footing when they started to South America with a troupe, stayed two years, learned both Spanish and Spanish dances, and came back speaking only Spanish or very broken English.

They became the rage. But at a party at the Irving Berlin's somebody cracked a Jewish joke and Tamiris laughed out loud. So she confessed that she had heard Helen Becker, on Delaney street.

QUICK CURES ARE NOT ALWAYS GOOD CURES

Anyone who is in discomfort naturally wishes to feel as quickly as possible, and this fact has led to the use of many remedies and treatments that will bring about a speedy relief of pain without consideration of whether or not the method used is permanently harmful.

By the term "acute diseases" one generally means those which are in themselves self-limited. Many of the most common disorders are of this type and have a tendency to recover regardless of the treatment used. When one tries to go against nature, treatment may make them much worse.

Behind the Scenes in WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer.

Washington, May 10.—Why do people go broke?

Uncle Sam knows most of the answers, after a careful study of the bankruptcies of numerous salaried and wage-earning individuals. Optimism—that's the chief reason. Most of the bankruptcies studied were traced to extravagance—often at the behest of a high pressure "buy now and pay later" salesman, endorsement of notes for friends or relatives, failed to make good, avoidance of liabilities on foreclosed mortgages that couldn't be carried, and speculation in stocks or real estate.

Less than five per cent of the 360 consumer bankruptcies covered by the survey were regarded as primarily "dishonest" by the experts of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce and Yale University's institute of human relations and law. However, the latter believe that "the number of extravagant, dishonest, incapable or speculative debtors securing bankruptcy discharge is in excess of the number of unfortunate debtors who merely receive freedom from their debts."

Credit a Factor

Only 13 per cent of the cases were laid to decreased income, although the fact that the survey covered the eight months ended June, 1931, suggests that unemployment and wage cuts may be a heavy factor in current consumer bankruptcies.

Debtors can be discharged so easily through bankruptcy that there has been a big increase in these actions among wage earners—414 per cent between 1920 and 1930. In 1929 more than $26,000,000 in retail sales were on credit, up from $8,000,000,000 of it on the installment plan.

Creditors rarely oppose consumer bankruptcies and the applications for discharge from debts are granted in 99 1/2 per cent of cases. Rarely is there any inquiry and seldom do creditors receive anything from the assets. In 262 of 266 cases creditors received an average of six-tenths of one per cent on their claims.

"During years of prosperity," it was reported, "many consumers pledged their future income in order to satisfy tastes and desires beyond their financial capacity. One family refrigerator or other physician who understands how to give a simple, effective treatment to break these addictions loose."

(Baby Has Too Many Colds)

Question: Mrs. Mary J. writes: "I have a year and a half old baby who has constant colds. I have had him on a general baby's diet under the care of a child specialist. What kind of diet would you advise?"

Answer: It is apparent that your child is not on the right diet or he would not be having constant colds. Stop using all milk modifiers and give your baby nothing but pure, certified Holstein cow's milk with the addition of one or two teaspoons of orange juice before each feeding. Your baby, at his age, should use about eight ounces at a feeding, taking this quantity at four hour periods, making only four times daily.

Queer Twists In Day's News. Philadelphia, Pa.—Solomon would have been a welcome ally to Philadelphia police trying to decide which motorist struck Harry Iretroff and broke his leg. Instead of having to hunt the guilty one, the police had to choose between three drivers, each of whom stopped and escorted the victim to a hospital and then surrendered to police, each insisting he thought his car caused the injury.

A Secret Service agent came here yesterday and in company of a local policeman warned bankers that persons offering counterfeit pieces of the 50c pieces minted in 1849 were in this vicinity. According to his story they disposed of counterfeit pieces for $35 in Bridgeport. Thompson is said to have entered the First National Bank and asked a teller to tell him the value of the coin. The teller, having been forewarned, signalled Theodore Johnson, the bank guard, who detained Thompson and the woman until the police arrived.

According to the police they had in their possession several packages of the coins.

GAMBA SUIT LOST IN SUPREME COURT

Had Appealed from Superior Court Verdict — Asked $15,000.

A decision in favor of the defendant, Mrs. Selma Strickland of Andover, who was sued for damages of $15,000 by Anthony Gamba of 81 Lake street as a result of an accident nearly two years ago, was sustained by the Superior Court of Errors in a memorandum released this morning.

Mr. Gamba, who was injured in the accident, being struck by an automobile driven by the defendant's brother on Nigger Hill on October 6, 1931. According to his attorneys, Gamba has suffered from the effects of the mishap at several intervals.

The memorandum released this morning was as follows: "Anthony Gamba vs. Selma Strickland et al."

"Hartford County, April Term, 1933. "Action to recover damages for personal injuries, alleged to have been caused by the negligence of the defendant, brought to the Superior Court in Hartford County and tried to the court, O'Sullivan, J.; judgment for the defendants and appeal by the plaintiff. No error.

"Robert P. Butler, with whom was William J. Shea, and, on the brief, Arthur E. Howard, Jr., for the appellant (plaintiff).

"Warren Maxwell, for the appellees (defendants).

"Per Curiam. The plaintiff brought this action to recover for injuries suffered when he was run into as he was walking across a highway, by an automobile driven by one of the defendants and owned by the other. The trial court gave judgment for the defendants, finding that the driver of the automobile was negligent but also concluding that the plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence. The controlling facts which the trial court has found may be briefly stated as follows: The accident occurred at night, the plaintiff came down some steps from a house on the north side of the highway to cross it to his automobile parked on the other side; when he reached the bottom of the steps he looked in both directions to the east, while the highway curved slightly, he had an unobstructed view to the brow of a hill, three hundred feet away; he saw no automobile approaching from that direction but he did see one coming from the west a short distance away; he waited for this to pass and then started to walk across the highway, proceeding at an ordinary rate of speed; from the time he started from the position where he had paused at the bottom of the steps until he had gone sixteen feet into the highway he did not look again to the east; he then heard a noise, turned his head and saw the defendant's car coming toward him about fifty feet away, too late to avoid it; the defendant was proceeding at a speed of about forty miles an hour with its headlights lighted; it had reached the brow of the hill between the time the plaintiff had looked to the east and the time when he started to cross the road. This last finding the plaintiff attacks, but whether or not it was a proper inference from the trial court is not a material consideration. The defendant's automobile was not visible and evidently had not reached the brow of the hill when the plaintiff came to the bottom of the steps and looked to the east. He paused there to let the car go past and, despite the fact that his view to the east was limited to three hundred feet and that an automobile might come in sight over the hill at any moment, he proceeded into the highway without looking again. The conclusion that the plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of fact was one which the trial court could reasonably reach. The Connecticut cases relied on by the plaintiff are all cases where we held in more or less analogous situations that a pedestrian was not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law but that the question was one of fact for the trial court, and that accords with the general current of decisions elsewhere. Huddy, Automobile Law (9th Ed.) Vol. 5-6, p. 189.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Plans for graduation week for the class of 1933 at Manchester High school were announced this morning at a class meeting in assembly hall. Principal Quimby went over the program in detail and the whole program for Senior activities was adopted. "The Senior Year Fests" was the theme suggested for graduation this year and the program will be built around this idea. Worked out by committees composed of honor students, in the main, five different episodes will be presented by as many departments of the school, each based on the most outstanding event in that field during the past year.

The five fields will consist in literature and drama, under the direction of Misses A. Walsh and Estes; science, under Mr. Robinson; art, under Miss Conroy; politics, economics, under Messrs. Potter and Wright; athletics, under Miss Feder and Mr. Clark. Each teacher or set of teachers will select the six outstanding honor students in the various fields and these to decide will proceed to determine the event to be dramatized. A reader or "historian" will weave the five events together to carry on the pageant theme and a conclusion will be given at the end of the program. These last two tasks will undoubtedly fall to James Toman and Lucy Barrera, who were second and first respectively in scholastic rank.

It has been suggested that in the field of athletics the Olympic games will probably be the event to be dramatized, while in art the architecture of the Chicago Fair compared with the architecture of the World's Columbian Exposition, 1893 may be the selection. Mr. Potter's group has mentioned the events of March 4, 1893, as a possible choice for a day in which history was made. The story of the program will be to enact or dramatize in some striking fashion the particular bit of history likely to be permanently remembered as having affected the course of human events during the year 1933. The editors of sketches in "The March of Time" have been invited to assist in choosing and depicting the various episodes and they will give suggestions from their own sketches.

Class Day will be Tuesday, June 20. It is now planned to have the class walk, class history and planting of the ivy in the Educational Quadrangle. The under classes can all attend these exercises if they are held outdoors but only the Sophomores and Juniors would be able to get into Assembly Hall where the exercises will have to be held on Wednesday afternoon if it rains on Tuesday night. Class night will be on Tuesday, June 29, with presentation of gifts, prophecy and vaudeville, followed by the Senior dance. Mr. Bailey, class advisor, will be the Senior home, and the Nat. League of the school will select committees for the various class day parts. The home rooms will elect an ivy orator on Thursday.

Of still greater interest to the boys at least, was the making of plans for a Senior Demonstration Day. The class has been invited to give this day a particular name but the nature of the activities will remain something of a mystery until the eventful day. It was decided that June 5 would be a good time for the demonstration and preliminary plans were formed this morning. Elmore Hultine, president of the class, conducted the meeting which decided upon the general plans.

It is probable that the girls will celebrate with hair-ribbons and lolly-pops as in previous years. The boys indicated that they will wear coats of their own creation. In connection with the afternoon celebration, it is planned to excuse the Seniors a bit early when two rival teams will fight it out over a stream. The teams with a captain, Robert McCormick, captain of the track team, and Ernest Nell, captain of the basketball team. Nell chose as his adjutant Herman Heck, president of the H-Y, while McCormick's right hand man is Clifford Treat, prominent in football and swimming. The two teams were chosen, the captains picking in alternation. Each team will choose a man from the faculty as coach and the captains will agree upon an umpire. It will be remembered that last year the contest took the form of a rope pull across the brook at Charter Oak corner. The captains are planning on a different sort of contest. The contest will be held early enough to permit contestants and spectators to attend the baseball game with East Hartford High school at Mt. Neo at four o'clock and go to Highland Park Community Center for the evening. The contest will be held on this one day and to avoid the old custom of "shirking."

Y. M. C. A. Notes

The lecture by Miss Greiner on Interior Decorating drew a full house last night and was greatly appreciated. Miss Greiner is exceedingly well versed along all lines of decorative art and entertained the ladies for nearly an hour and a half with her very unusual gift of description and illustrated many points by having the works of art with her.

The Oxford group had a room full also to hear Miss C. Jane Altman of Hartford. Miss Altman gave a very interesting story of her interest in the movement and how she had come to be taken up so much in the work of Christian things.

If the weather permits this evening the track men are asked to be here at 8:30 for a work out. The Woodstock Camp reunion of the boys and young men will be held next Thursday evening and not tomorrow at Highland Park. All who have attended or are interested in attending the camp at any time are invited to take their supper along and go to Highland Park Community Club building at 8 p. m. May 13.

COUNTY "Y" FUND COMES IN SLOWLY

Little Over $700 Raised — To Make Another Effort Later in Year.

Clarence F. Quimby, chairman of the local Y. M. C. A. financial drive committee which is seeking to raise a quota of $2,800 for Y activities in the Manchester District, said today that the drive had fallen far short of its mark, only little more than $700 having been obtained in cash and pledges to date.

Mr. Quimby said, however, that enough prospective donations are in evidence to indicate that at least $1,000 will be raised. The drive was scheduled for one week but has been continued in an effort to bring it closer to the total amount sought.

Eckmanian extends a cordial invitation to the parents of students and the townspeople to attend and view the work being done in the Manchester school.

There will also be individual exhibits in every department, including a special display of upholstery fabrics in the textile department and special drafting tables constructed by the machine and carpentry departments. A class in social studies, part of the related work, will also be in session giving the public an opportunity to see this work for the first time since it was inaugurated.

The Trade School orchestra, under William Hanna's direction, will furnish music in the assembly hall.

SAYS RAIL BILL WOULD CUT JOBS

Counsel for Labor Executives Declares 50,000 to 300,000 To Be Affected.

Washington, May 10.—(AP)—The contention that the administration's railroad measure would put thousands of railroad employees out of work and retard economic recovery was laid before the Senate, interstate commerce committee today by Donald R. Richberg, general counsel for the Railway Labor Executives Association.

Richberg said the measure would deprive between 50,000 and 800,000 employees of jobs and would promote policies that would work harm to the public interest.

"The bill entrusts only an infant car under the regency of railroad managers," he said.

"The railway labor organizations during the period of the development of this legislation protested in vain against the theories which seem to underlie it."

Richberg said the time had come when a choice should be made between continuing the operation of the railroads as privately owned competitive systems and accepting the necessity for complete direct Federal control.

"If, even as an emergency measure," he said, "it is necessary for the Federal government to assume any such authority and responsibility as is proposed in the present act we submit that the Federal government can only effectively exercise such control and meet its responsibility by assuming complete emergency Federal control."

While Richberg testified before the Senate committee, Joseph B. Eastman, interstate commerce commissioner, was repeating to the House commerce committee the arguments for the bill he put before the Senate committee yesterday.

IL DUCE BALKS AT HITLER IDEA OF "ANSCHLUS"

Rome (AP)—Where the fascism of Mussolini and the nazism of Hitler meet and where they sever has been demonstrated by recent events here.

Most of the points were cleared during the visits of Engelbert Dollfus, chancellor of Austria; Franz von Papen, vice-chancellor of Germany; and Hermann Goering, right hand man of Hitler.

Disagree On 'Anschluss' The conversations of these men with Benito Mussolini showed that the program for Italy's black shirts and Germany's brown shirts conform in their concentrated nationalism, their desire to curb an over-powerful France and their wish to see the treaty of Versailles and other peace pacts revised.

TIBETAN SYMBOLS THEME OF REPORT BY ITALIAN SAVANT

Rome (AP)—Unaccustomed lips are experimenting with "m'od rten" and "t'za t'za" as a result of the publication of Giuseppe Tucci's book on Tibetan religious symbols.

A member of the Royal Academy, Tucci spent months studying the religious manifestations of the people of Tibet. He reports they are intensely devout and mystical in their religious concepts.

The "m'od rten," pronounced "chee-or-ten," Tucci says, is a sort of combined tomb and receptacle for holy relics.

Tucci says that orations, prayers and fervent incantations accompany the making of these receptacles. Once made and the relic sealed within, the "t'za t'za" are placed in the "m'od rten" with solemn ceremony.

FALLS TO DEATH

Montreal, May 10.—(AP)—Charles Rinfret, 50, brother of Mayor Fernand Rinfret, member of Parliament, plunged to his death from the Dorchester street bridge over the Canadian National railway's terminal excavation today.

Charles Rinfret was a director of the Munro Electrical Company and was connected with several other firms. He was a prominent Rotarian and a member of the Canadian Club of Montreal.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, May 10.—(AP)—Financial markets shook off recent reactionary tendencies today and climbed up the ladder a few more rungs.

Stocks had a brisk start in the early dealings, although a somewhat smaller than expected gain in U. S. Steel's orders was a restraining influence after midday.

High fliers were Allied Chemical and Columbian Carbon, up about 4 at the best. Motors, motor equipments and steels were particularly active and strong.

U. S. Steel's monthly report of the orders on its books showed a gain of 23,572 tons for April. This was the first increase since October.

CHANGE OF RULERS IN CHINA EXPECTED

Bank Notes Are Falling in Value Which Usually Predicts a Political Upset.

Canton, China, May 10.—(AP)—Bank notes are falling in value, which usually is a precursor of political changes, and much uncertainty has arisen in Canton as a result of the arrival last week of Eugene Chen, former foreign minister of the Nationalist government.

Mr. Chen plans to live in Canton and is being appointed a member of the southwest political council.

The arrival of General Chen Ming-Shu from Europe and his cordial relations with members of the Canton government also are causing speculation, especially as he still commands the 19th Route Army.

This army, known the world over for its defiance of Shanghai against the Japanese, has units at Hsinchow still awaiting the completion of a southern expeditionary force to participate in the anti-Japanese campaign in the north.

Political circles in Canton increasingly believe that Chiang Kai-shek, highest military commander in the Nationalist government, is reaching an understanding with Japan. This certainly would produce another Canton rebellion.

DARLING FOOL

BEGIN HERE TODAY
MONNIE O'DARE, in love with DAN CARDIGAN, local heir to a fortune, believes she is losing him to SANDRA LAWRENCE who has pretended to be Monnie's friend. In spite of the attentions of CHARLES EUSTACE, handsome newsboy, Monnie pleads for Dan. After neglecting her for some time Dan again seems interested. At a big party which Sandra gives, Dan is missing. There is a scene between Sandra and HETTY, her maid, who believes Sandra is "wamping" JAMES, the chauffeur. Monnie and KAY, her younger sister, have been trying to keep secret from their mother the fact that their brother, BILL, is in love with a married woman. MRS. O'DARE learns this through a neighbor's gossip.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XX
 "It's all—pretty unsatisfactory," Monnie murmured, pleading the folds of her white scarf. "I know that—I know that." Dan protested, eying her uneasily. "They were seated on the bank of the river under the low hanging branches of the willows. The day was clear and hot. No blue of the sky. Monnie's white linen looked cool in the glow."

"It's uncomfortable for me," Monnie went on, speaking quickly, eagerly, as if to justify her complaint. "Mother wants to know where I'm going and I tell her. She doesn't say anything—but of course I know what she feels."

"Well, what does she feel?" Dan's tone was almost sullen, although he tried to keep a bantering note in it. "That—that I oughtn't to go on like this, seeing you all the time, being serious about it," the girl explained with a difficulty.

"Now we're engaged, Dan. That part of it's all right! But so long as you want to keep it in the dark, well, it makes it so much harder for me. You know how well as I don't know long was. And we've been going places together for a long time, Dan," she reminded him, trying to speak lightly.

"It's nobody else's business!" he declared. "You know—and I know. Whose affair is it, anyway? My mother'd raise the roof if she knew about it. All I want is to keep things dark until I come into my own money. That's in January, right after my birthday. Then we can walk off and tell them all to go to—"

He reached over and drew her toward him, his tone softer. "Monnie, sweets, let's forget all about them. We're wasting our time talking about things that don't matter. Let's talk about ourselves."

Inwardly the girl sighed. Their discussions always ended this way. Dan's kiss stopped her protests. While she was with him she, too, could believe that their affairs were distinctly their own. But when she thought of the man who had taken her friends, she longed for the right to tell them her glorious secret. "Dan Cardigan and I are engaged."

The joyful comments, the pleased, envious, interested looks—all these would be part of being formally engaged. Notes, little presents, the right to be seen everywhere with Dan, his acknowledgment of her. Being all her mother's sense of security. She sighed aloud now, thinking of all this.

Dan turned to look at her. "What's the matter now?" he demanded. "I thought we had it all thrashed out?" He was frowning. Monnie, anxious to keep him in good temper, flashed him a reassuring smile. "Just happy as I can be. It's been a wonderful day. Let's gather up the things now and go along. I want to pick some raspberries."

At all the rest of the long, golden afternoon her mind kept harking back to the conversation. Dan was perfectly right about whole thing, she would assure herself. And yet—and yet she would be willing to give up everything, all the brilliant hopes of Uncle Frank's money and the rest, if Dan would say to her, joyously, some afternoon, "Let's dash over to High Springs and get married."

He had, once before, but he hadn't really meant it. He would have been terribly surprised if Monnie had taken him at his word. Now she would give anything to the world to hear him say those words. She would take the supreme chance, the chance of a battle with poverty, to be the acknowledged wife of Dan Cardigan, junior. To more meetings, Dan by stealth, so that the argus-eyed Mrs. Cardigan would not hear of their renewed devotion. No more eluding the subject, blushing and stammering, when people asked her about Dan. No inward rage and torment of jealousy when Sandra's name and his appeared, linked, in accounts of social activities.

"I know you love me, Dan," she would explain patiently. "I understand. Of course it's right. In January—in January—"

It would not be long until January. The could wait. They were both young. But this was high summer. The days and nights were achingly beautiful. Never did Monnie see the moon riding high but that she wanted to share the light with Dan. She wanted to share homey things with him, too. Breakfasts and casual rides in the country. All the sweet privileges of the young wife seemed to her. To her it was difficult, sometimes, to believe that all this would be theirs a little later.

Meantime she had to be patient. Charles Eustace came to the house rather often these days. Monnie, resting, Miss J. and relaxed, in the porch swing, would hear a light step on the walk, would look up to see Charles, handsome, dark, smiling, towering over her. She could be easy with this man. They could talk, simply, deeply, for hours. Charles, she felt certain, was enormously attracted to Kay. Of course, it was absurd—Kay was not yet 17—10 years his junior. And yet, what a splendid thing it would be for her little sister if this man were to want her for his wife! He had everything—looks, family, money, what the world called "background." He had too, character of a fine sort, apparent in every look, every single gesture.

"He's fascinating," Monnie acknowledged to herself when alone. "I like him so much. But Love—no, I could never love Charles." It was just as well, she reminded herself, that Charles was attracted to Kay. Kay was a sparkling, animated. She made a splendid foil for his dark and slightly mysterious good looks.

"He," averred Kay one night, discussing him, had some sort of heavy-love affair in France last year." "How do you know?" "Key shrugged. "Lib Waterman told Risay. Risay doesn't know the details but part of it got into the papers."

Monnie couldn't have explained the queer little tug at her heartstrings. Charles involved in an affair with a woman—important enough to have gotten into the papers! Absurd! She didn't like it. "I don't believe it," she said stoutly. "Risay talks such nonsense and so does Lib."

"Well, I don't know," Kay told her carelessly. "He always sheers away from the subject of his stay abroad. He won't say anything about it." "Monnie had observed this. But she refused to credit Risay's gossip. It all sounded so—well! so shady. She just didn't believe it. Key gave her a sidelong, glimmering look at the end of this discussion.

"Anybody's think you were annoyed to find that Charles had ever looked at anyone else," she said abruptly, her tone extremely irritating and said so. "I think that's perfect nonsense," she said. "I never heard anything so silly." Her cheeks, she discovered, were hot—were blazing. She felt furious with Key—with everybody.

"I can't see what possible difference it makes to you," Key giggled. "As far as Charles is concerned you're the original Ice Maiden." Monnie stared at her. Was it fair to this distinguished young man who lent her books and weed under the trees and told her amusing stories in his lazy cultivated voice?

"He's been awfully nice to me," she said. "Naturally I hate to think he's not—not all I thought him." She couldn't understand why it was odd how Charles name cropped up in conversation these days. When she met Dan she talked at the turn of the road where he had waited for her in the summer dusk he said, "Doesn't that fellow hang around an awful lot nowadays?" of other things, frankly stated. "Who?" Grimly Dan indicated Charles' car, at that very moment stopping at the O'Dares' gate some hundred rods away. "Dan, don't be a goose. He comes to see the family."

"Expect me to believe that?" Dan's tone was milder. "He's interested in Kay. He's been wonderful to her. Dr. Waterman has recommended her for a job in the library. She's starting next Monday and is wild with joy."

Dan said nothing but he seemed, for the moment, mollified. Later, lying awake in the little room under the hot roof, listening to Monnie thinking of Charles Eustace—of what Kay had said. She turned and twisted from side to side. She could not get to sleep. After all, what did it matter what Charles had been in the past, what adventures he had known? He was nothing to her. She was engaged to Dan Cardigan—although no one knew it.

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famous Authority

EXERCISES FOUND HELPFUL IN CORRECTING FLAT FEET

(This is the second of three articles by Dr. Fishbein on the cause and care of flat feet.)

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
 Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Exercises have been found helpful in correcting flat feet in children. Among those recommended are the following:

1. Stand barefooted with the feet parallel, and about two inches apart, straddling a seam or a line in a rug. On the count of one, force the feet apart without really letting them move apart, thus throwing the weight on their outer borders; on the count of two, let them roll in slowly, but not all the way. This is repeated 10 times at first, with a gradual daily increase that may run up to 100.

2. Same as No. 1, except that the two big toes are held together and on the floor.

3. Straddling a seam in the rug or a line on the floor, walk across the room with all the weight on the outer borders of the feet, and the toes curled downward and inward. Make the round trip five times.

4. Same as No. 3, except that you lift one foot so that it is opposite the other knee, and walk across the room in that way, using the so-called "ostrich step."

5. The feet are held parallel, and the knees are maintained in a straight position. The knees are then rolled outward. This is repeated from 10 to 25 times.

6. Rise on the toes, tilt the weight to the outer borders, and come down in two points. This should be done 10 to 25 times.

7. The subject is seated on a chair with legs crossed, so that the raised foot can relax. He then holds the foot at right angles with the leg, and not turned in or out. The exercise is done in four counts. On the count of one, the foot is allowed to relax into the position of toedrop. On the count of two, it is swung in; on the count of three, it is forcibly pulled upward; and on the count of four, it is brought back to the starting position, describing a half-circle. This is performed 10 times at first, and may gradually be increased to 25 times.

8. The subject sits on a table and a second person sits on a chair. The subject forcibly swings his foot inward and upward, and attempts to push this position with all his power. The second person attempts to swing the foot outward and downward. The exercise is carried out from 10 to 25 times. At no time should the second person use as much power as the first.

9. Older children and adults can perform this exercise as follows: The right foot is turned inward and upward and held in that position, firmly. The left foot is placed against the right, and attempts to force the right outward, which effort the right foot resists. Then the feet are reversed.

PLANNING TO UNITE TWO CHURCH BODIES

Evangelical Denomination Willing to Merge With United Brethren, Bishop Reports.

Akron, O., May 10.—(AP)—An invitation from an evangelical church bishop to enter into negotiations with the church of the United Brethren in Christ for the "fullest possible spiritual and organic union" was before the 31st quadrennial general conference of the United Brethren today.

Asserting the background of the two churches were so similar as to time, place and nationality that the communions resembled "two streams flowing from the same high mountain," Bishop Matthew T. Mass of Harrisburg, Pa., informed several hundred delegates to the Brethren conference that the Evangelical church was ready to open negotiations for a union at any time.

The bishop said, "should comprehend a careful and mutual study of spiritual and economic problems and a mutual willingness to make such unit adjustments as will make possible the greatest measure of efficiency for the united body."

"The one great problem the church should face today is to spiritualize the moral conscience of every citizen. Working individually, the task is tremendous and perhaps impossible."

Addresses by F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, and Congressman U. S. Guyler of Kansas will feature tonight's program.

BUSINESS IMPROVES

Detroit, May 10.—(AP)—The National Steel Company today was preparing to start work on a construction program which will cost $250,000 and require the services of 300 men.

The company announced plans for erecting a new slag plant and relieving two of its blast furnaces. The plant has been running at capacity since early in April.

FIRES NEW GOVERNOR

Washington, May 10.—(AP)—Designated upon speedy vote of the inflation powers, given him by Congress, President Roosevelt has been reported today to have chosen Eugene S. Black, Atlanta banker, to be the new governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta.

BRIGHTEN UP YOUR CLOTHES-CLOSETS

Give Them Color And Personality At Little Cost.

Curtains and Garment Bags To Match.

Closets give you the real key to a home-maker's personality. If she has imagination, merely opening the door of a closet gives you a thrill of pleasure.

If she is a fastidious housekeeper, even if she lacks artistic qualities, the neatness of closets will please you.

Coat is slight. Paint, chintz, gingham and a given amount of cat hangers, hat stands and shoe trees can make over any closet. And it needn't cost much. Spring is the time of year to do it. A properly arranged and a pretty closet makes life much easier and pleasanter.

You will need at least three garment bags, one for long evening gowns, one for daytime and one for blouses and evening wraps.

You can make delightful boxes for hats, shoes and incidentals by covering the most expensive boxes with chintz to match your curtains, garment bags or the decorations in your room. It's an excellent idea to have a drawer or two in your closet. You can make them or buy cardboard or wooden ones and attach them to your shelves or stand them to one side, perhaps under your shorter garment bags.

Shoe Bag in Chintz. If you don't have drawers for your shoes, by all means make yourself a shoe bag. A yellow chintz shoe bag, in a sunny yellow closet had a lining of brown satinet and 12 yellow chambray envelopes, 12 by 4 inches, closed with snaps finished with brown buttons.

Stuffed into every shoe toe was a brown satinet, filled with cotton and having a gold-cord attached which had its other end fastened to the bag, so you can always keep the trees without losing them, just slipping off the shoes you want. If you want a nice shiny closet, celophane fixings are excellent and cheap. With summer coming, don't forget some moth-proof bags.

BOXER IS KILLED

New Orleans, May 10.—(AP)—Jack Holland, who turned to professional boxing after a brilliant football career at Tulane University, died in Charity hospital here at 7:30 a. m., today from what was described by physicians as cerebral hemorrhage. Holland fell unconscious after a bout last night with Tony Marullo of New Orleans. He remained unconscious to the end.

A single pipe is sufficient to carry away the fumes on a modern steamship. The other funnels are used merely to give an illusion of power.

GIVE REFRIGERATOR EXHIBIT TOMORROW

Annual Show to Include Practically Every Electric Box Now on Market.

Tomorrow The Manchester Electric Company will open the Third Annual Electric Refrigerator Show which will be held in their demonstration room in the State Theater building. This show has been sponsored each year by the Electric Company for the benefit of all the local dealers. In the previous two years it has met with great success from the point of view of all the merchants cooperating and the public too. The show, which lasts for three days, Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be in charge of Mrs. Marlon Rowe, home economist of The Manchester Electric Co.

The following dealers are participating in the year's show: Ernest H. Benson, General Electric Center, Auto Supply Co., Crosley; Home Pride Oil Furnace Co., Apex; G. E. Keith Furniture Co., Leonard; Kemp's Inc., Frigidaire and Majestic; Standard Plumbing Co., Kellogg; The Manchester Electric Co., Westinghouse; Watkins Brothers, Inc., Norge; and Westheller Motor Sales, Mayflower.

Electricity has for years been an exciting servant and today as never before it is being put to work in new and various ways. Perhaps it is one group to ask any representative of women just which service electricity performed in the most efficient manner, they would be at a loss to reply, but the large majority of them would agree that electric refrigeration is one of the greatest assets one can have in these days of the lean pocketbook.

Today's electric refrigerator is no experiment, it is proven and trustworthy, economical to operate and actually does save you pennies for you, day after day, year after year. It is a boon to the homemaker in more ways than one. We all realize that quantity purchase makes for economy, but unquestionably that is out of the picture without the proper methods for keeping food in proper condition until the last bit is used up. With electric refrigeration your field of buying is enlarged at least 50 per cent and when you see a bargain in luscious berries, or an especially low price on butter you need not wonder if a portion of these products will spoil or lose their freshness before being eaten. Odors are not easily transmittable in an electric refrigerator, and only a housekeeper can fully realize how much this means in the purchasing of melons, berries, cucumbers and other food produce that used to mean a meager purchase, consequently an expensive one.

Probably most families have one left in the corner and that is the much hated "left-overs" but to a very large degree this situation is relieved with your electric refrigerator at the helm. It is actually possible to prepare left-overs into dishes that make families ask just why they had never been served something like that before. For one thing food does not have to be eaten up just as fast as possible, therefore giving more variety to meals. When you purchase a roast, you do not have to have it appear the next meal cold and the following thinly disguised as hash. You may put it away carefully covered and have chops or whatever you desire, then bring forth your meat sliced thinly surrounded by potato balls, stuffed tomatoes. Or you may have it reappear as a cornucopia garnish for a vegetable salad. Still later it can be made into fascinating individual meat pies, with never a thought of the meat spoiling, and the family will forget to mention the fact that the roast lasts forever.

There are any number of mouth-watering deserts that can be made in the freezing trays of your refrigerator and they are made at a surprising "little" cost. Truthfully, there seems no limit to the ingenuity that the clever woman can devise in the use of the refrigerator. It is indeed the silent servant that works in the unobtrusive fashion that makes the perfect servant, that gift valued far above all others.

COACH SAYS McCLUSKEY IS GREATEST RUNNER HE HAS KNOWN OR TRAINED

Jack Weber Praises Persistence and Winning Spirit of Local Track Star, Recently Dubbed "The Iron Duke"; Can Beat Them All.

(The following story is taken from the column "Sport Slants," written by Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor, which is a regular feature of this page.)

By Alan Gould
Faded Miami may have been the most successful and methodical foot-racer of our times.

Sitting around the big table the other night, a group of America's most famous track coaches, including Jack Hensley of Cornell, Emil Van Wining of New York University and Harry Hillman of Dartmouth, agreed with Alvin "Alky" Weber, Fordham's coach, that when greater persistence and more winning spirit is developed, the McCluskeys probably will be responsible for it.

Weber, without the slightest hesitation, named black-haired Joe as the greatest runner he has ever known or trained. "I don't actually go back to the days of the pony-express, at least can recall the times when he developed Lawson Robertson as a big sprinter or dwell on the running glories of the mauve decade.

"I have seen plenty of 'em come and go," remarked Weber, warming to his theme. "I have taken the kinks out of more muscles than the Greeks ever heard about. But I have seen only one runner like McCluskey. For the last four years he has been the most consistent winner I ever knew.

"The times he has been beaten by anybody," at any distance, can be counted on the fingers of one hand. I don't care whether it's three miles on board tracks, 3,000 meters of cross-country or six miles of cross-country, McCluskey can go out and win from them all.

"He was sick before the Olympics last summer or he would have shown that Finn some running. This is no bluff, but I do not think any guy named Leo-Hollo can beat a McCluskey. I guarantee they are both in A-1 condition."

RED SOX ACQUIRE TWO NEW PLAYERS

Surprise Trade Gives Boston Brown and Ferrell of St. Louis Team.

Boston, May 10.—(AP)—The quarter million baseball which Tom Yawkey brought into baseball about two months ago was probably $50,000 short today but the Red Sox had two new players who promise to boost the pennant contenders a few notches in the American League standings.

Going to Cleveland yesterday, ostensibly to attend a special league meeting, during which he was elected a director, Yawkey and Eddie Collins, his general manager, made a surprise trade with Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis Browns, for Lloyd Brown, a high grade left-handed pitcher and Rick Ferrell, ace of the Browns' catching department.

These stars cost the Red Sox an unannounced sum, reported to be $20,000, and the services of Mervin Shea, a smart enough catcher, but a weak hitter. The cash was the big inducement to Ball. The purchase of Brown gives manager Marty McManus a sixth starting pitcher.

Ferrell, brother of Wesley, the Cleveland pitcher, is regarded as the Cleveland Indians' best pitcher. He pitched in the American League having batted for .315 last season and .300 in 1933.

Late reports from Cleveland had Hawkey and Collins dickering with the Cleveland Indians for Willie Hudkin, a right-handed pitcher and outfielder Joe Vosmik, said to be suffering from weak eyes, while casting envious glances at Lynn Lary, the New York Yankees shortstop.

MCCREY IS ILL
Chicago, May 10.—(AP)—Bill Dickey, headman of the New York Yankees catching staff, today was permitted to be absent, until noon, to aid in recovery from an attack of acute indigestion.

For a while yesterday, it appeared he had appendicitis but an examination showed his blood count to be normal.

'Jinx' With Any One Club Mostly Mental, Says Gene

This is the sixth of a series of articles in which Gene Sarazen, British Open champion, tells the average player how to out strokes from his score.

By GENE SARAZEN
World Golf Champion
(As Told To Alan Gould)

How often have you heard a fellow club player say: "I can't do a thing with this club; I haven't any confidence in it and I seldom get a decent shot when I use it."

It may be true that or that particular club is a maddie in a player's bag and should be left in the locker, but more often than otherwise, he has simply developed a complex and slighted his eyes so he rates the shaft in his hands.

The moral to this is: Don't let any club conquer you!
Have You Looked Your Over?
If you shake your long iron shafts or another maddie maddie maddie, the fault generally is yours, not the club's. If you will have the pro look you over, he will make them with the same confidence he hit his tee shots or used "Calamity Jane," his famous putter.

So what did Bobby do? He practiced plenty and was the National Open champion two years in a row.

Shallow Clubs On Fairway
I need not go into an exhaustive analysis of different types of clubs, their weight, etc., because mostly it is a matter of personal adjustment or preference.

References
I recommend that no deep-faced wood clubs be used on the fairway. They reduce the chances of getting the ball off the ground. A shallow faced spoon or wedge, with a lower hitting center, will bring better results.

THE LURE OF SPEED
Don't scream at your taxi driver when he takes a corner on two wheels. . . or goes roaring through a tight opening.

The Lure of Speed calls them from all over the world to the oval track of the big brick oval . . . this year Paul Butler, who clicked his taxi through Indianapolis street, dreaming of the day when he could "cool the old bus" against the country's racing champions, will have his hands on the wheel . . . of a car entered by his wife, Jean.

CHECK BREAD NINE TO OPPOSE LOCALS
Hartford Team to Play Recs at Mt. Nebo Field Next Sunday Afternoon.

Being unable to book the Rockville Clerks because of a previous engagement, Manager A. G. Kamm has secured the Check Bread nine of Hartford, formerly the Columbus, to furnish the opposition for the Manchester Recs at Mt. Nebo field next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

A baseball autographed by nineteen leading figures in the major leagues, will be given away and free score cards will be distributed.

Manager Kamm is now working to strengthen his team as much as possible before Sunday's game. He said today that Dan Redding would positively be in uniform. The latter was called away suddenly last Sunday but has promised to appear.

Kamm is seeking the services of a catcher, first baseman and a south-paw purler.

The visitors lineup will include Foley, ss; Susick, 2b; Campion, 1b; Welch, 3b; Hurley, lf; Jenkins, cf; McMillan, rf; Cline, c; and Hayes and O'Connor, subs. The starting pitcher is in doubt.

According to the official High school scorer, Norm Lashinke reported out his first hit in two seasons Monday afternoon when he got a single against the Traders.

Coach Tom Kelley is more than pleased with his infield and says that the combination of "Chucky" Smith, "Stewie" Kennedy and "Chester" Sendrowski, the trio that completed two double plays Monday, is the best he has ever had. They certainly can handle the ball!

"Chester" Sendrowski has more than justified his selection as clean-up man on the High school team and if he continues his present pace he should show the way to every batter in the C. C. I. L. in two games he has hit at a .700 clip, getting six hits in eight times at bat. These included a triple, two doubles and three singles. He has driven home eight runs all told and scored three times himself. Playing first base he has made twenty-one put-outs without an error.

The Sub Alpine baseball team will play Highland Park at Highland Park tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Yesterday's Stars
Ruddy Moore, Braves—Hit two home runs and three against Pirates.

Fred Schulte, Senators—Hit three singles against Browns scoring three runs and driving in one.

ROOKIE SHOWS ABILITY WHEN VET IS INJURED

Bob Bokon Replaces Myers in Senators Lineup and Helps Team to Win; Only Two Games Played Yesterday, Due to Rain and Cold.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
A bit of tough luck for Buddy Myers, regular Washington second baseman, has turned out to be rare good fortune for youthful Bob Bokon and the Senators have profited thereby to the extent of being the only eastern club in the American league to get better than an even break in the current western invasion.

Considering just a promising player, Bokon got his big chance last Saturday when Myers was hit on the head by one of Whitlow Warr's pitches and was forced out of action. Since then the rookie has played four full games, made nine hits, driven in nine runs, and provided the winning wallop in two games.

Single Brings Win
Monday Bob crashed a homer in the 12th inning to give Washington a ten to 8 victory over St. Louis and yesterday he walloped a single that climaxed a ninth inning rally against the same club and won again for the Senators 7 to 5. Luke Sewell, Washington catcher collected four hits for a total of nine in two days.

Only one other game was played yesterday and that saw the disastrous downfall of the Pirates. National league leaders, before the curving of Fred Frankhouse and the slugging of his Boston teammates, Frankhouse gave the Braves only three hits while the Braves pounded Waite Hoyt. Hal Smith and Leon Chagnon for 15 blows and a 7 to 0 win. Hoyt's defeat was his first of the season after two smart victories.

Wet grounds and cold weather forced the postponement of all other major league games.

When the Trade School met the High school in baseball Monday afternoon it was brother against brother. Andrew Raguclus plays third base for the Red and White and his younger brother, Edward, covers first for the Mechanics. The two completed two double plays Monday, is the best he has ever had. They certainly can handle the ball!

Coach Tom Kelley is more than pleased with his infield and says that the combination of "Chucky" Smith, "Stewie" Kennedy and "Chester" Sendrowski, the trio that completed two double plays Monday, is the best he has ever had. They certainly can handle the ball!

"Chester" Sendrowski has more than justified his selection as clean-up man on the High school team and if he continues his present pace he should show the way to every batter in the C. C. I. L. in two games he has hit at a .700 clip, getting six hits in eight times at bat. These included a triple, two doubles and three singles. He has driven home eight runs all told and scored three times himself. Playing first base he has made twenty-one put-outs without an error.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Some folks never "feel well" when there is any community work for them to do. They see this same old excuse so often it is a wonder the good Lord doesn't indict them with chronic invalidism sure enough just as punishment for their lying.

How Did They Get By?
Whenever I go to the movies and consider a love-making scene, so smart, so modern, so perfect, so ardent and so saccharine, I wonder old folks ever married. The courting of yore was so crude, when they hadn't the art of the movies.

To teach them how maids should be wooed.
Judge (to negro who had been accused of assault)—Did you hit in defense?
Negro—No, sah, ah knocked him in de jaw, an' he fell ovah de fence.

The two things in a woman's life that she has the most trouble to keep from running, are her stockings and her husband.

Wife—My dear, the doctor says I am in need of a little change.
Husband—Then ask him to give it to you. He's got the last of mine.

Fluent—Oh, doctor, I am suffering so much I want to die.
Doctor—You did perfectly right to call me.

The country will not be quite back to normal until President Roosevelt slaps a moratorium on "Hooley" Long.

The farmers are still free to sow and reap. Where they fall down is when it comes to marketing at a profit.

Professor (lecturing to sleepy class in astronomy)—Because of the fact that the gravity force on the moon is only one-fourth as strong as that of the earth, any person could jump four times as high there as here.

Fretty Co-ed (dreamily)—Professor do they dance the toddle on the moon?
There's one thing about poetry, music, love and cooking, one does not have to understand them to enjoy them.

Another reason why cattle production is low may be that it takes too many cow hices to buy the farmer a pair of shoes.

Jasper—May I call you by your first name?
Edith—By your last name if you wish.

Frequently a chorus girl's success depends upon her understanding.

There are no moratoriums or artistic holidays for the newspapers. They have to deliver the goods or shut up shop.

PHONY GEMS OF THOUGHT...
Like stale bananas, advice is cheap... News judges the size of a woman's foot by the price she pays for shoes... There isn't much hope for the person who can not see and take a joke... What's become of the small boy who used to get licked for running off to the old swimming hole?... Girth control, we understand, is favored by the fat... There is no use hurrying life's morning up to afternoon... It often costs more than it is worth to tell a man what you think of him... The man with no appetite finds most fault with the cook... There are no millionaire poets... To kill time try hard work... A last line is the caboose on a train of thought.

Housewife—But that is not the same tale you told me a few days ago?
Charterl Baggart—No, lady; you didn't believe that one.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
Eggs will not crack if they are dampened with cold water before being dropped into the boiling water.
Women should always precede their escorts down a receiving line.
Ralph Waldo Emerson once defined a great story as one which would evoke both tears and laughter.
Wax used to seal letters is made of shellac and contains no wax.

ESCAPING STEAM GIVES FIRE SCARE

Escaping steam from a disconnected radiator in a vacant room in the front of the Johnson block which was noticed coming under the door of an apartment adjoining, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Zalders was the cause of a needless alarm at 9 o'clock this morning from Box 45, which brought out Companies 2, 3, and 4 of the South Manchester Fire Department.

Zalders tried to telephone the fire department when he noticed the steam coming under the door of the apartment and when he found the telephone out of order he ran to Box 45, Main and Bissell street and turned in the alarm. Upon arrival at the scene, Chief Albert Foy notified all firemen and trucks to return to quarters and caused recall to be sounded.

SHERIDAN CLOSES THIS AFTERNOON

Hotel Doors Locked After Mid-Day Meal is Served; Property of Closed Bank.

The Hotel Sheridan closed this afternoon after the noon meal. All the remaining regular boarders and guests left the hotel this morning, breakfast being served as usual. No new guests were received at the hotel during the day and the morning was taken up in moving out the personal belongings of those who have made their home at the hotel. This noon the dinner was served as usual and when it was out of the way the doors were locked.

Mrs. Ann Waddell and Miss Mills Erickson, who have been conducting the hotel, remained during the afternoon and will be at the hotel tonight, superintending the cleaning up about the place and getting it in order. Tomorrow morning they will vacate. The hotel has sixty rooms and was built in 1923. The property is owned by the Manchester Trust and Safe Deposit Company.

It is the plan of Mrs. Waddell and Miss Erickson to open a summer place as soon as the weather permits, as has been their custom for several years. To date they and other employees have not been paid salaries for two months.

Association Executive Says Manufacturers Have Done More Than Their Share.

"Two fallacies have been brought to light by the depression," declared Sidney Cornelius, executive secretary of the Hartford County Manufacturers' Association, at the May all-membership meeting of the Chamber of Commerce last night at the local Country Club. "The first fallacy," he said, "is that employers are not aware of their responsibilities to employees; the second that employers are responsible for the depression."

Employ More Than Needed
The speaker quoted statistics gathered by his Association to point out that manufacturers in Hartford County are employing twenty-five per cent more persons than are actually necessary to handle the present volume of production. He also outlined the many factors that contribute to depression and are entirely out of the control of the manufacturer.

Mr. Cornelius said that January of 1929 was adopted as a normal point by the Association. He said that ninety-three per cent of the factory employees of the state are employed in Hartford County, that 54,000 persons are employed in normal times with ten million man hours per month. The yearly payroll amounts to $0 to $90 million and the value of products was placed at $71 million dollars. In 1929 county factories expended 122 million dollars.

Not Drastic
The picture has been modified somewhat in the past few years, week speaker stated, but not as drastically as report would have it. He pointed out that at present the man hours are thirty-seven per cent of the normal point and the number of employees sixty-two per cent of normal.

These figures, Mr. Cornelius said, show that production has dropped sixty-three per cent and employment has dropped only thirty-eight per cent. Whereas the man hours per month have dropped from ten million to three million, the number of persons employed has dropped only from 54 million to 29 million, proving that the employer has not taken advantage of the volume of production at present to decrease his payroll to the limit.

Raps 30 Hour Bill
The speaker also touched on the proposed thirty-hour week. He said that while the state unemployment insurance bill, he illustrated how impossible it would be to force expert workmen to stop their labors after six hours and putting another less skilled man on the job. He likened this to a painter working on a canvas for six hours and then stopping to allow another to finish the work.

The speaker also maintained that a thirty-hour week would increase production costs tremendously and make it impossible for manufacturers to compete in foreign markets, thereby driving them out of business.

Benefits of Cooperation
Mr. Cornelius also spoke of the tremendous amount of free advertising a community receives from its manufactured products when the products are sold in all parts of the world. He said that 98 per cent of products manufactured in this

CHAMBER ELECTS NEW TREASURER

John F. Pickles Succeeds R. B. Hathaway — $3,500 of Quota Raised.

The resignation of Russell B. Hathaway as treasurer of the Chamber of Commerce was received by the Board of Control last night at its regular monthly session, preceding the May all-membership meeting of the Chamber at the Country Club. The resignation was accepted with regret and John F. Pickles of 55 Holl street was named to fill Mr. Hathaway's unexpired term.

$3,500 Raised
E. J. Holl, chairman of the Chamber financial drive, reported that $3,500 in pledges and cash had been raised to date, leaving about $2,000 more to be obtained. He said that prospects are bright for filling the quota of $5,500 necessary to carry on the Chamber activities for the remainder of the year.

William Haldet, chairman of the post office committee, reported that a thorough inspection of the local post office by Washington officials will take place in the near future and that meanwhile Postmaster Frank Crocker is doing everything

Sure It's A Passing Fad, Jig-Saw Makers Agree, But Busy Presses Turn Out 30,000,000 Weekly

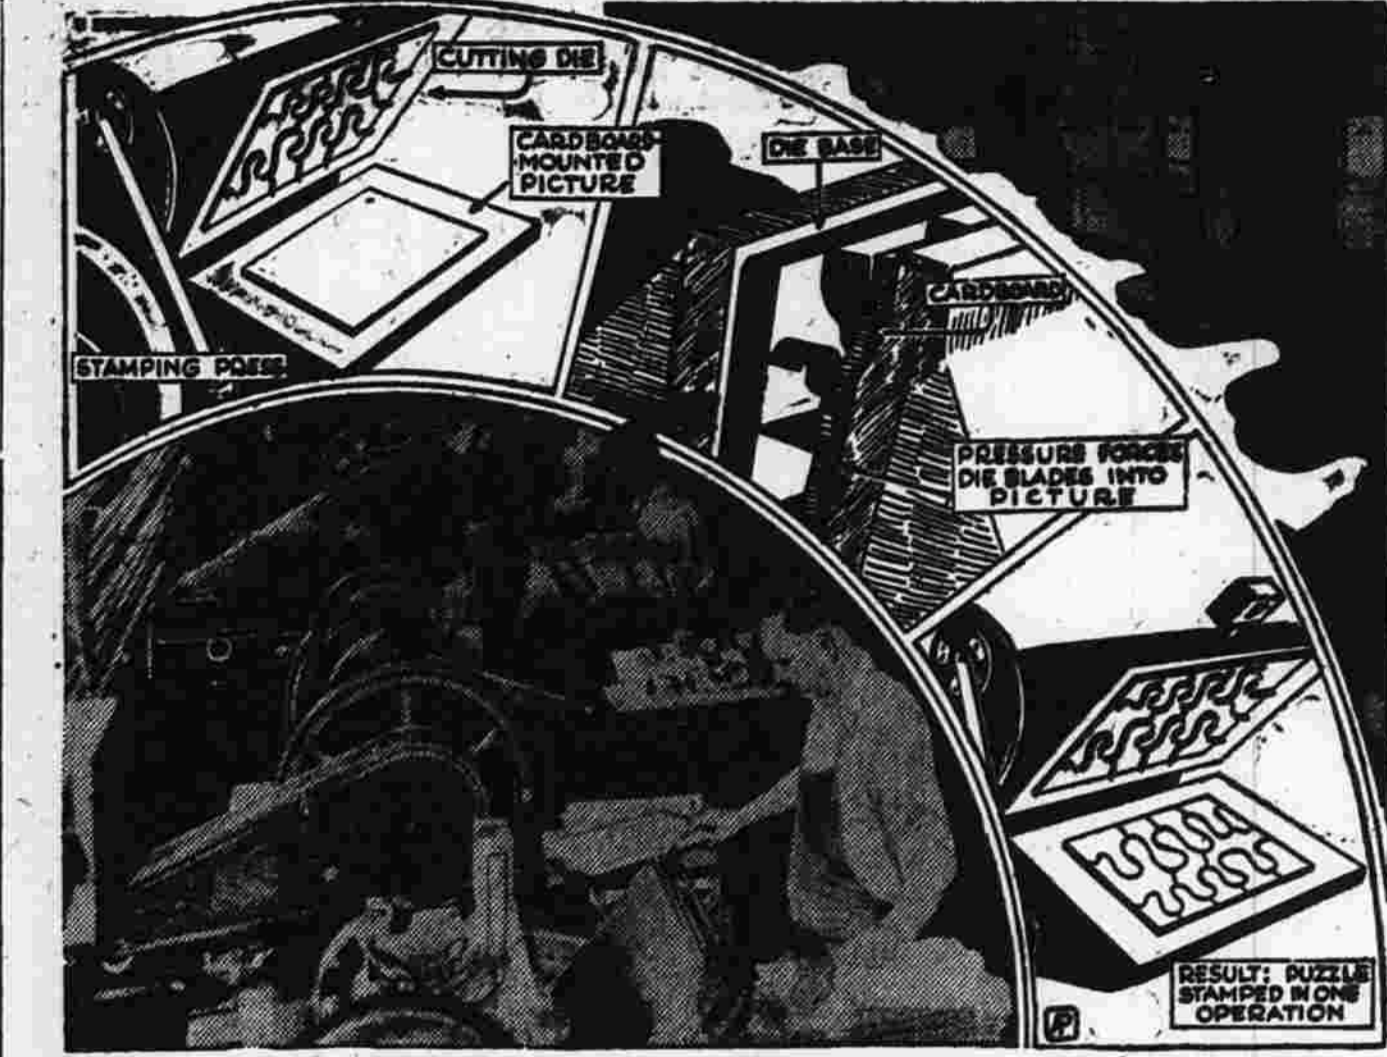

New York (AP)—Approximately 30,000,000 jig-saws go to gushing minded Americans every week.

From a business devoted to merely nominal production of elaborate wood puzzles a few short months ago it has jumped to mass production of enough paper puzzles to bring about $1,500,000 weekly to manufacturers and another $500,000 to $1,000,000 to retail distributors.

Sales Drop, Rentals Rise
Outdoor sports coming to the fore now have reduced jig-saw sales, say manufacturers, most of whom are willing to admit the jig-saw is a fad; but while sales have been falling, renting has increased. A large New York chain book store reports demand for the many-piece wooden puzzles on a rental basis. This chain has been renting puzzles for 20 years at fees varying according to the puzzle's size.

Jig-saw puzzles are not jig-saws at all to expert sawyers who use a real jig-saw to cut the puzzle out of wood. Back in 1909 when there was another jig-saw craze, specialists used to claim they could recognize the saw work of various experts. Now for the paper puzzles only one puzzle is cut from wood. Into the crevices left by the saw are fitted thin strips of sharp-edged steel which in a machine resembling a printing press, the steel die is pressed down on cardboard, cutting it into pieces.

Picture Is First Step
The first step in making puzzles is the selection or production of a picture or drawing. This is printed and affixed to cardboard, between 16 and 20 puzzles to the sheet.

The workman at this stamping press is one of thousands busy turning out the nation's estimated $6,000,000 weekly jig-saw puzzles. The sketches illustrate the operation of the die press, after the die blades are fitted into a base of the master jig-saw puzzle, as cut out by the jig-saw tool.

four, depending on the size of the die-cutting machine to be used, and then are stamped out. Girls or machines break up the stamped sheet, feed the pieces through a hopper into a cardboard box. The boxes are sealed by machinery and the job is completed. One New York puzzle plant produces 3,000,000 puzzles a week, estimates total national production at about 30,000,000.

Makers of the traditional saw-cut wood jig-saw experienced a small boom about a year ago. A box-maker suggested a paper puzzle to an advertiser and from then on business came almost too fast for handling.

The fad brought in its wake a small-sized boom to paper box manufacturers, one firm estimating that in February the jig-saw demand consumed about half of the newspaper purchase. Further influence on the paper business came with the demand for the cardboard from which the puzzles were cut and for lithographed pictures.

MARVELOUS MANHATTAN

By WILLIAM GAINES

New York—Here's a cheerful little story from one of the major universities in this town, having to do with the rewards for serious study.

A young lady of my acquaintance developed quite a "crush" on a very important young man in the English faculty—one who has gained additional notice through his novels and who, perhaps, thinks more of his novels than he does of pedagogy.

One day when she called for him at his office, he stuffed a pile of papers under his arm. He had given his hopeful students a written examination on a part of the course, and was now out from waiting for them to get through their long and painful labors with their pens.

The first trash receptacle they came to on the sidewalk the master raised the lid and deposited the whole mass of examination papers in the open.

She gasped—"Why, you haven't even looked at them!"

"Oh, that's all right," he responded wearily. "I don't have to look at them to know who's going to pass and who's not."

Office for Santa Claus
Recently as Bob Hope, the comic, playing at a Broadway theater, left the stage door he was approached by an elderly man who panhandled him for the usual dime for a cuppa-coffee.

The man had an extraordinary beard, and beard aren't being worn by many people these days, panhandlers or no. Hope engaged the fellow in conversation—told him he looked too dignified to be bumming dimes.

"Well, I tell you, son," the ancient mendicant replied. "This beard comes in pretty handy around Christmas time, when I can get a job as Santa Claus for some of the stores. The bosses like it, see—I can let the kids pull it and it don't come loose. But right now it don't look like Santa Claus himself could find no job."

Right then and there Hope decided he'd be a little Kris Krinkle himself. There wasn't anything like the old man, but Bob got in touch with some people in Cleveland, his home, and sent the jobless Santa out there. At last reports the bewhiskered one was stage door-man for a theater in the Ohio city.

Donkey Visits Specht
Among recent visitors in town was a democratic donkey that attended the inaugural ceremonies in Washington. The Berks county, Pennsylvania, democrats, headed by Dr. A. Amerill, brought the donk here to attend Paul Specht's birthday party. They gave them one a lot to the orchestra man for putting the old home town, Sinking Springs, on the map.

Telephone operators at one of the bigger hotels have a new answer for room calls: "At your service." Takes longer to say it, and probably the repetition is pretty dreadful for the girls, but we're coming into a new Age of Politeness, you know.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart
GENTLEMAN SERVICE INC.

Are your eyes eager for spring adventure these days? The clear eyed lady wins, usually.

That is why it pays to take a few minutes each day to devote to getting your eyes that way.

First, do you wash your eyes mornings? You should. Use an eye cup and some good eye wash—boracic acid dissolved in hot water and kept in a clean bottle will do very nicely.

Do you squint? Try brimmed hat first. If that doesn't do any good, try an outfit. Don't read in bad light, don't read in sunlight. Don't read if your eyes hurt. Just let spring take care of your head for the time being and devote yourself to looking your best. Give your eyes a rest!

If you wake up early mornings when the first light of day hits you, make yourself a little blinder of black goods and put it on right, or put it under your pillow so you can adjust it morning after morning.

Wipe out the goods out, like goggles, and put an elastic strap over your eyes, rinse them out with a plain bandage will do.

During the day you should wash out your eyes, too. Keep some lotion in the office. If working over the stove, or the typewriter tires your eyes, rinse them out. It has the same freshening effect that dashing cold water has on your face when it has a drawn feeling.

Little things, these. But they add to your eyes beauty. Try them.

Earthen breastworks were used in the battle of New Orleans, contrary to popular belief that cotton was used.

It's News When Mrs. Roosevelt Talks; That White House Beer Story Shows It

Washington.—As a general thing, the wife of the President isn't usually a source of what newspaper folk call "spot" news.

That doesn't mean, however, that they haven't at times been in the day's interesting stories.

Mrs. Hoover, for example, stirred up a controversy while she was mistress of the White House by dismissing her secret service attendant and driving her own car around Washington.

So-called arbiters of etiquette protested to be shocked that the President's wife should do such a thing.

And that celebrated incident of the time Mrs. Coolidge was late to luncheon in the Black Hills and kept the President cooling his heels also was news.

But the point is, First Ladies never have been considered of sufficient news importance for the Senate and press gallery correspondents in Washington to worry about them very much.

Twice a week most of them drop everything and go to the White House to attend the President's regular press conferences. They wouldn't think of missing one of those Wednesday morning or Friday afternoon sessions with the chief executive.

But it now appears that there are other news sources at the White House than merely Mr. Roosevelt. Mrs. Roosevelt has emerged as a news-maker who will bear watching.

Once a week Mrs. Roosevelt gives a press conference of her own which is attended only by the newspaper women of the capital. The men of the craft had thought little of these weekly meetings and had ignored them.

Then the other day they had their eyes opened.

It seems that Mrs. Roosevelt told the young women who had gone to the White House, that day that while she was a teetotaler herself, if it became legal to serve beer, then guests at the mansion may have it for the asking.

And then she switched to the subject of Easter clothing and voiced objection to the purchase of gowns which in price and manner of manufacture would proclaim they must be sweat shop work.

Since the Secretary of Labor is waging a crusade on this subject at the present time the announcement was regarded as highly significant.

The men correspondents in the capital were jarred considerably when they read these stories in the paper and realized they had been scooped. What they'll do about it is not yet clear. But the general attitude seems to have been expressed by a columnist on one of the Washington papers.

"If the girls think we men," he wrote, "are going to miss out on such economic stories they are as crazy as geese."

FLARE FOR HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood, May 11.—There is youth and style under the big top sleeves and flaring lapels that Spring suits sport this year.

Mary Carlisle looks every inch the Baby Wampus Star in a new beige crepe silk suit she has. Its flaring lapels are peaked and are of lipstick red, framed in a border of the gray. She wears a pert little pancake sailor with it.

Canoeing with Eric Linden at Westlake Park, Julie Hayden looked like a demure old-fashioned little girl in a white organdy dress with puff sleeves.

It had a circular flourish around the bottom and a high, turn-over collar with a blue satin tie.

Appearing in court to have her contract ratified, Patricia Ellis (she's only 17) wore a navy blue wool dress with lapels and cuffs of bright red knitted wool. Her shallow crowned hat was of bright red felt, to match.

Lunching at Card's, Wynn Gibson wore a suit of blue wool that had wide, peaked lapels, puff sleeves that tapered down to tight cuffs, and hat, gloves and shoes matching the line exactly.

Myrna Loy, dancing at the Coconut Grove with a newcomer to Hollywood, wore a pale blue evening gown with a cape to match which fastens in the back, giving a demure covered-up effect in front but leaving the back sophisticatedly bare.

ROOSEVELT SPURS POWER DAM PLAN

President Favors Project to Build the Greatest Power Plant in Northwest.

Washington. — Construction of America's largest power project—with approximately twice the horsepower capacity of the Hoover Dam in Nevada and two-thirds more than that contemplated at Muscle Shoals—may begin this year under the initiative of President Roosevelt.

The proposed development is the Columbia Basin project in the state of Washington, where it is planned to harness the turbulent waters of the Columbia river in their dash from the Canadian Rockies to the sea. In addition to producing upwards of 2,000,000 horsepower, it would afford irrigation facilities for approximately 2,000,000 acres of immensely fertile, but arid, desert land which now needs only the touch of water to make it produce beautifully.

In view of the enthusiastic public reception given the new administration's plans for a gigantic development in the Muscle Shoals area in the Tennessee river, it is considered likely that the Columbia Basin development would be financed by a huge bond issue and provide employment for several thousand men.

A Mammoth Project

Plans for the Columbia Basin project call for construction of a dam 480 feet high and 4,290 feet long to operate a mammoth power plant on the Columbia river. Army engineers, who recently completed an exhaustive survey, estimate that power can be produced there more cheaply than at any other place on the North American continent.

Calculations show this government power could be sold profitably to utility companies and municipalities for 2 1/2 mills per kilowatt hour, which is lower than the cost at which they could generate power themselves. Army engineers have reported that if the power is sold commercially even as low as 2 mills per kilowatt hour at the switchboard this revenue will pay for the dam and power plant, with 4 per cent interest, within 30 years.

The total cost of the power project, including interest during construction, is estimated at $185,000,000.

Looking Far Ahead

The huge dam would contain more than 11,000,000 cubic yards of concrete and would create a reservoir that would extend from its site near Barry, Wash., to the Canadian border, 151 miles upstream.

In addition to the power feature, recommended by the Army Engineers and the U. S. Reclamation Bureau call for construction of a 26-mile-long reservoir south of the dam in the Grand Coulee, a huge natural depression which at one time was the Columbia river bed. The water stored there will eventually irrigate nearly 2,000,000 acres of desert land in Central Washington, when agricultural demand is such as to make it feasible and advisable to bring this vast new area into productivity. Just at present, the development of this area is not recommended by the Department of Agriculture because of the nation's tremendous agricultural overproduction.

Col. Hugh J. Cooper, American builder of the giant dam on the Dnieper river in Soviet Russia, and one of the world's greatest power engineers, recently testified before a Congressional committee in behalf of the Columbia river project. Colonel Cooper made a private survey of the dam site and the power plans and declared the project was "absolutely safe from every standpoint."

Colonel Cooper believes the power potentialities of the Columbia are greater than on any other river on the continent.

Affects Wide Area

In addition to the stimulus to business from employment of several thousand men in the project's construction, the cheap power thus made available would, sponsors say, lead to a vast industrial and agricultural development of the entire Pacific northwest. The area directly benefited would center around Seattle, Spokane, Tacoma and Portland, but the market for the power would extend to all of Washington, the northern parts of Oregon and Idaho, western Montana and possibly lower British Columbia.

Surveys of power consumption in that area in recent years indicate a future demand for electricity greatly in excess of that now supplied by existing companies.

In all probability the construction work, should pending plans be approved, will be done under direction of army engineers.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

PROFITS AND HARD TIMES

An unorthodox and interesting discussion of the current depression is to be found in "Trend of Business," by Arthur B. Adams, dean of the College of Business Administration of the University of Oklahoma. In this little book Dean Adams states bluntly that we made our own depression, and that neither war debts nor reparations had very much to do with it. The boom years, he asserts, saw our productive capacity vastly increased, while our purchasing power failed to keep pace with it. Industrial prices and industrial profits, he declares, were too high and wages were too low; and he states flatly:

"If the total amount of money paid out as wages from 1922 to 1929 had increased in proportion to the increase in value of the goods produced during that period, or if prices generally had followed the lead of declining costs, we should have had today only a very mild business depression, or none at all."

Dean Adams sees the solution in a restoration of a strictly competitive capitalism. He demands extension of the anti-trust laws to prevent trade agreements to maintain prices, revision of the income tax laws to get more money from the higher brackets, federal incorporation of all businesses engaged in interstate trade, a lower tariff, and a program by which the government would buy marginal farm land and retire it from production.

You may disagree with a lot of this, but you'll find his book well-reasoned and stimulating. Published by Harpers, it sells for $1.

FAMOUS WOMEN
EDUCATORS VIEW
INFLATION HOPEFULLY

Barnard College Trio Give Reassuring Message to American Women.

By JULIA BLANCKARD
New York—This thing called inflation will not ruin us if we keep our heads.

That is the opinion of three noted women professors who teach at Barnard College, Dr. Elizabeth Baker, Dr. Emilie J. Hutchinson and Dr. Jane Clark.

Inflation is not good or bad in itself; it depends on the way a nation uses it. At the present time, sound inflation is needed to raise prices and stimulate business enterprise, these women believe.

"It is important to remember," says Professor Elizabeth Baker, "that when a government goes off the gold standard its money does not necessarily become worthless or even devalued. In Germany it did, in England it did not."

"When England abandoned the gold standard last September she managed her currency so that a shilling continued to buy about as much as before."

Budget Encouraging Sign
"In the United States the recent balancing of the budget has given the people confidence that their government recognizes its indebtedness to them. This fact and the pronouncements of the President are strong indications that the currency will be managed with care."

"If the government borrows further from the people in order to finance a program of public works, the aim will be to stimulate business activity by enabling more workers to buy things they need. One result may be an increase in currency sufficient to raise prices to a little higher level, which may further stimulate business activity."

Just what is Inflation? Professor Emilie Hutchinson defines it, simply. She says:

Two Ways of Inflation
"Inflation" is a term with various meanings. Perhaps the most commonly accepted definition of inflation is a change in the currency and credit situation which raises prices of commodities.

"Such a change may be the result of impairing the quality of the currency as, for example, in taking away its gold backing. Or it may be the result of an increase in the quantity of money, such as the issue of large amounts of irredeemable paper money as happened in Germany after the war."

"It is obvious that an increase in quantity itself may impair the quality of money, and if carried too far it results in fantastic price levels. But this does not necessarily follow. If the issue of paper money is carefully controlled, it will not."

Market Rise Cited
"When the gold standard was abandoned, a revaluation of paper money took place. The rise in the price of cotton, wheat and other commodities and the advance in the price of securities in the stock market were the immediate results."

"It remains to be seen how the general level of domestic prices will be affected. The prospect of a rising price level is a powerful stimulant to industry, and it may be that this device for raising prices will usher in a period of recovery from the prolonged depression through which we have been going."

To handle this problem of inflation properly, we need experts at the head of our government. Professor Jane Clark does not believe that the corps of experts summoned to Washington endangers our democracy. She prefers a government with strong executive powers in the hands of experts to a government by stupid politicians. She says:

Concentration of Power
"In the turbulent days of the last weeks power has been concentrated and centralized in the hands of the President to an unprecedented degree."

"There are three prime reasons for the practically unanimous agreement to this allocation of power to the President."

"First, there is the emergency, for people with panic in their hearts are all too ready to find someone strong and ready to accept responsibility."

"Second, people have had the good sense to realize that democracy loses none of its democratic essence when one branch of the government confers on the persons best fitted to exercise them the powers necessary for efficient and rapid conduct of government."

Experts to the Fore
"Third, the developments of the last years in this country have made us more and more used to the idea of a strong executive."

"Hand in hand with the executive and administrative growth has come the need for more technical competence in government. President Roosevelt's appointment of Frances Perkins as Secretary of Labor is significant of this deep desire for highly trained specialists regardless of sex."

"Of the many problems which lie ahead, the least is that of securing and keeping political and administrative officers competent and able to deal with deeply rooted economic and social problems in the solution of which the government must bear so large a part."

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

There are 250,000 boys running loose in the United States, a quarter of a million citizens without a home, enough young men to colonize a mighty nation. President Roosevelt's reforestation-employment program will prove an important help, but, of course cannot begin to put this vast army of jobless boys to work before going into the human side of this menacing situation, let us consider some of the more cold-blooded facts. We stand for law and order, everything and everyone in its place, each person belonging somewhere, with some city or state to answer to and be responsible for, refusing to return certain rights and protections.

Heretofore the man without a country or a home has been a curiosity. These last three years he has ceased to be one. He is too numerous to cause any wonder or speculation. But there is no particular problem of citizenship here, and except for sympathy and worry over their plight, these mature nomads cause us no particular anxieties.

What Will Be the Result? They have with few exceptions grown up with a static feeling of belonging somewhere. They are part and parcel of some particular community, and some special trade or work to which they will return when times brighten. They are past the impressionable period when experience sets character. In other words they are adult.

But these boys, anywhere from twelve to twenty. What will be the effect of being entirely foot-loose, of having no roots, no one to care for or to comfort them? No feeling of allegiance either to family or community?

a government that will let them shift, during boyhood, as best they may. They will not forget. Certain cities do all they can for these wanderers when they arrive in town. But on the other hand too many have adopted the "pass-the-buck" system and order them on. These boys need a home, a family, a place, a feeling of belonging.

Why not establish a sort of agency in each city where people either in the country or the town willing to house and feed a boy in return for certain services could apply. Care would have to be taken with a recruit. And the boy's own past, of course, must bear inspection. I do not believe that military camps answer the problem. Boys need a home. They need a lot of things such camps could not supply.

REQUESTS FOR PIE RECIPES ANSWERED

America's National Dessert Continually Interests All Women.

The American national dessert—pie—is of continual interest to the Cooking School audience. So many requests for the following recipe were made at the recent school, that we are hastening to put them on the page. Add them to your card index of recipes, or write them down in your kitchen note book, or cut them out and paste into the pie section of your best cook book. They are favorites with cooks in all parts of the country.

Caramel Pie

Use one cup shortening; one cup sugar; one cup damson plum preserves; five eggs; one teaspoon vanilla. Cream the shortening and sugar together, add the yolks of the eggs beaten, then the stiffly beaten egg whites, then add the preserves with the seeds removed. Bake with bottom and top crust of rich pastry. This mixture makes two pies.

Caramel Custard Pie

Four eggs, two cups sugar, two cups milk, four tablespoons flour, one tablespoon shortening. Put one egg and one-half cup of sugar in an iron skillet and heat, and when entirely melted pour it into the mixture of milk, one-half cup sugar and the flour, previously heated but not boiling. Stir slowly as the sugar and milk mixture meets, and avoid lumps. Add the shortening, cook to a thick custard and fill a baked pastry shell. Decorate with whipped cream when served, or serve plain. A meringue of beaten egg whites sweetened with two tablespoons of sugar, may be put on the pie, and browned for two minutes in the oven.

Vinegar Pie

The vinegar pie is actually the Southern molasses pie in which Northern cooks substitute vinegar for the molasses. The latter makes a more delicious flavor. Two cups New Orleans, or baking molasses; one-half cup sugar; the juice of two lemons or one-quarter cup mild cider vinegar; three eggs; two tablespoons flour; one-half teaspoon each of ground nutmeg and cinnamon; two tablespoons butter. Blend the lemon juice (or vinegar) and molasses well and gradually beat in the flour which has been moistened with enough water to make a paste. Then add the spices and butter (melted) and the yolks of the eggs beaten light with the sugar. When thoroughly mixed add the whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Mix well. Pour in pie crust which has baked lightly, but not done. Continue baking for half an hour. The crust should be a very rich and silky one for best results. Enough for two pies.

Pineapple Pie

One cup shredded pineapple; one cup sugar; one tablespoon cornstarch; juice of one lemon; one tablespoon shortening; three eggs. Beat yolks lightly, mix with sugar, cornstarch, shortening and lemon juice, then with the pineapple and cook in a double boiler until thickened. Then pour into a baked pie crust and bake twenty or twenty-five minutes. Then cover with a meringue made of the three egg whites sweetened with a little sugar. Return to the oven and brown lightly. One pie.

This may be made with one or two crusts, or with lattice top. Two cups stoned dates; three tablespoons lemon juice; two tablespoons shortening; three eggs; three tablespoons sugar; two tablespoons milk; one tablespoon shortening. Mix the cleaned and stoned dates with the other ingredients except the shortening. Fill unbaked lower crust, sprinkle with a little flour, and dot with the shortening. Bake twenty-five minutes in hot oven. If no lattice strips, or top crust is used, serve with whipped cream; or make a meringue, place on the pie, brown two or three minutes in the oven.

Coconut Cream Pie

Two cups milk; one-half cup sugar; one cup grated coconut; two eggs; half teaspoon grated nutmeg. Beat the eggs very light, add the sugar and milk and beat thoroughly, then the nutmeg and coconut. Pour into an unbaked pie crust. Bake twenty-five to thirty minutes. Serve plain. Or with meringue.

UNCLE SAM BACKS MANY LARGE JOBS

R. F. C. Finances Great Bridges, Buildings, Dams, Electric Light Plants—Even a College Dormitory.

By ROBERT TALLEY
NEA Service Writer

Washington, May 11.—Whether you realize it or not, you—as an American citizen—have a financial interest in an electric light plant at Madison, S. D., in a public market at Newark, N. J., in a college dormitory at Jonesboro, Ark., in the world's largest bridge project at San Francisco and in 51 other self-liquidating construction projects from coast to coast in which Uncle Sam is now investing a total of $147,680,000.

The explanation: Under existing business conditions, these projects found difficulty in selling their bonds in the regular market. People seem to prefer government securities and Uncle Sam finds it easy to borrow plenty of money at low rates of interest. So the U. S. Treasury borrow at rates as low as 3-4 of 1 per cent, lends it to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation at 3 1-2 per cent, and the R. F. C. buys the bonds that pay from 5 to 6 per cent.

The proposal of Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York to liberalize federal loan policies in the interest of a great public works program has directed attention to the self-liquidating phase of the R. F. C.'s activities. Wagner would ease restrictions on such loans by permitting states and cities to borrow for tax-liquidating improvements.

In financing projects that are designed to pay for themselves with their earnings, the R. F. C. operates just the same as a private bonding house. It buys securities, in some cases revenue bonds, on the receipts of the project and in other cases general obligations.

Pledge to 147 Millions

According to the latest figures, the R. F. C. has approved and agreed to purchase $147,680,000 of such bonds, of which $17,798,000 have already been purchased and the cash paid. New applications are being received.

Such financial assistance has taken the brakes off business in many cases and provided jobs for thousands of men, not only in the construction work directly, but in mills, factories and mines that supply materials.

Largest of all these projects: the government has agreed to assist in the new $70,000,000 Golden Gate bridge at San Francisco, world's largest. The R. F. C. has agreed to buy $2,000,000 of its bonds. Securing the bonds will be the gross revenue of the toll property. Employment will be given to 6000 men on the job, to 8000 others supplying materials.

Another big project is the $13,000,000 railroad and highway bridge across the Mississippi river at New Orleans. The government has supplied the total capital for this project, having already bought $7,000,000 of the State of Louisiana's bonds and $8,000,000 of the City of New Orleans. Funds for repayment will come from the state's gasoline tax and from rental charged for use of the railroad tracks. Construction is expected to give employment to 1,000 men for 25 months; to 3000 more men in producing the necessary materials.

Speeds Aqueduct

The R. F. C. has agreed to buy $40,000,000 of the bonds of the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California, Los Angeles, to help finance construction of an aqueduct system to carry water from the Colorado river to 18 Pacific Coast cities and cost, ultimately, $283,598,000. Action of the R. F. C. assures sufficient funds to carry the work forward for two years. A six-year job, it is expected to employ 4500 men at its peak.

Another large investment has been the purchase of $2,347,000 of the waterworks bonds of the City of Chicago, secured by the net revenues of the city's waterworks system. The money will be used to construct a new pumping station, which will replace three obsolete ones at an operating saving of $245,000 a year and to extend mains. The project will give employment to 340 men for 14 months, according to estimate.

In New York City, the R. F. C. has agreed to advance $3,967,000 toward construction of a neighborhood unit of low rental apartments that will house 1581 families at a maximum rent of $11 per month per room. This comes under a slum elimination program.

Other financial assistance granted by the R. F. C. on self-liquidating projects includes: $105,000 to the city of Madison, S. D., for light plant improvements; $645,000 to Ogden, Utah, for waterworks improvements; $1,491,000 to Seattle for waterworks improvements and repairs; $150,000 to Gulfport, Miss., for a cotton compress and warehouse; $3,400,000 to New York state for a toll bridge across the Hudson at Catskill, N. Y.; $2,580,000 to San Diego, Calif., for waterworks additions; $135,000 to Arkansas State A. & M. College for two new dormitories; $450,000 to St. Paul, $85,500 to Newark, N. J., and $187,000 to Dallas, Texas, for public markets; $600,000 for a toll bridge between Tampa and Clearwater, Fla.

TWO COOL FOR COMFORT

Linen Suits Will Be Co-educational This Summer

Linen suits are co-educational this year—both the boys and the girls about town will be wearing them.

For the man, there's a trig double-breasted model in roughish white linen that takes and holds its press perfectly. It has the notched lapels men like and is both cool and handsome.

The girl's suit is the new tweed linen, in natural color, made with box-pleating in the skirt and a short, swagger jacket. With it a dark blue linen blouse is hand-made and has some handsome novelty stitching in natural-colored thread.

15,000 Alabama Farmers O. K. 'Live-At-Home' Plan

Alabama, Ala.—(AP)—Alabama farmers, numbering more than 15,000, have endorsed this year under the "live-at-home" banner and pledged to raise their own food and feed for their livestock.

A campaign was carried into 56 of the 67 counties in the state under the direction of Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, to educate farmers to the value of "living at home."

County home and farm demonstration agents, with the aid of district leaders have held meetings to discuss farm plans and farmers have joined in the program.

They constitute the "high command" and formulate a program of plantings for gardens canning and raising of meat for home use. The program is then passed on to county agents who, with district leaders, carry it to the farmers.

"Our live-at-home program," said Dr. Duncan, "is based upon the necessity for and also the desire of people generally to feed themselves and of farm people to feed their livestock, thus releasing their cash income for other things—clothing, home improvement, machinery, automobiles, education, and other necessities and luxuries."

At the farmers' meetings, leaders discuss conditions on the farm, outline programs and ask for volunteers. Farmers have joined, not with formal pledges, but by voluntary agreement.

During 1933, pantries of many farm homes were laden with canned fruits and vegetables, smoke houses contained meat killed and cured at home, and milk and butter were supplied from a small herd and eggs from a growing flock of poultry.

No figures were available for the state as a whole for last year, but Miss Johnson compiled data on the work of 38,000 women and girls who conserved 2,368,273 quarts of food. This at market price represented $473,775, Miss Helen Johnson, state home agent, says.

F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician at Montgomery, says that during the depression and the numbers of hogs, dairy and beef cattle, chickens and turkeys in Alabama have increased materially.

CANADA'S 'WOODS ARMY' PLAN LIKE ROOSEVELT'S

Ottawa, Can., May 11—President Roosevelt's re-education scheme for the relief of the unemployed in the United States has a parallel in Canada where the Dominion government, through the Department of National Defense, has established a number of "work camps" under jurisdiction of the commanding officer of the various military districts.

At these camps unemployed single men are engaged in constructing and repairing airports and fortifications and other federal works. In addition to board and lodging they are paid 20 cents a day. The cost of their maintenance is borne entirely by the Ottawa administration, whereas other Canadian relief projects are financed jointly by the Dominion, provincial and municipal authorities.

Plenty of Volunteers

These camps which are run along military lines, were inaugurated about a year ago, when the Canadian government issued a call for single "volunteers." The response was so great that only a small percentage of the applicants were successful. Physical fitness and adaptability to manual labor were the qualifications most desired. Today there are between 2,500 and 3,000 men employed in more than a score of camps situated between Halifax and the Pacific coast.

Recruiting depots are at the headquarters of each military district where army leaders have become so to speak, fountains of construction jobs.

Old army equipment, which had been stored away following the general demobilization after the war, is now used by these recruits, the majority of whom, despite the comparatively small pay, prefer this means of livelihood to drifting about the country in search of work.

As was inevitable, there have been instances of dissatisfaction, and, in the case of Halifax, work on the local citadel was suspended this winter for two days on ber of unemployed, but when the pay cuts went into effect so many men "deserted" that now all who are able to reach the camps "under their own steam" are taken on. Reports state that the food served is mediocre.

By next fall approximately 174 miles of the new highway, between Pembroke and North Bay, will have been cut through virgin territory, while of the 1,200 miles lying between North Bay and the Manitoba border, 800 miles have already been cut, burned and drained, with 200 miles actually graded.

In the Dominion government's camps, only single men are employed, with one another during movements in which stealth is required.

The world record production of feldspar was in 1928, when 460,637 long tons were produced by all countries combined.

Canada produced 110,375,923 pounds of nickel in 1929, a new high mark.

Of the 160 different species of plants reaching tree size in Canada, 31 are conifers, which form 80 per cent of standing timber.

Cow's milk was at one time responsible for nearly 25 per cent of all tuberculosis in humans, according to health authorities.

The Smithsonian Institution receives approximately $3,044,692 from the government and $140,000 from private endowments annually.

HOOSIER GOVERNOR REAL MUSSOLINI

Brings Own New Deal to Indiana—Revamps Whole State Machinery.

By NEA Service

Indianapolis, Ind., May 11 — "I am no longer the servant of the people of Indiana. I am now their slave!"

That was the comment of Governor Paul Vories McNutt when he signed the bill by the Hoosier legislature which gave him complete power to reorganize the state government.

His reorganization has just gone into effect. It abolished 188 boards and commissions, and consolidated 100 others into eight central departments. He has personally wielded the ax on hundreds of state employees, and personally accepted responsibility for selection of appointees for 4000 jobs in the statehouse and in penal and welfare institutions.

Takes Responsibility
"If the state government falls during the next four years, I will be to blame," is his challenge. "I hope the day of passing the buck to boards has passed forever."

Never in the history of Indiana, since the present constitution was adopted in 1851, has a governor put through so many major measures in such rapid-fire order.

"What McNutt thinks is a good idea today, becomes a law tomorrow," is the way one critic put it. With but 61 days for the biennial legislative session, the general assembly accepted his leadership. This is what the administration claims has resulted:

Saving of $10,000,000 in governmental costs; broadening the tax base so that real property is saved from confiscation; strengthening the banking laws, so the present plight of the banks will never be repeated; fostering of a work-forages plan of unemployment relief, and direct appropriation of $2,000,000 relief to local communities.

Progressive Laws
Some of the progressive laws in effect:

An old-age pension system; three-member public service commission with a "public defender" to bring down the rates; revamping of the utilities regulation law to make public ownership easier; three full-time member highway commission; anti-injunction in labor disputes and anti-yellow dog contract laws; repeal of the Wright "bone-dry" law, which made purchase of intoxicants a felony and forbade medicinal whiskey; setting up of beer control machinery, to function when that beverage is legalized and prevent the return of the saloon; provision for a convention to repeal the 18th amendment.

Every one of these measures bears the McNutt stamp. They were passed promptly, with scarcely any opposition.

The major tax bill combines features of both a gross sales and income tax. With the money from it the state has taken over payment of $600 of each teacher's salary in all common and high schools of the state.

Other features of his tax plan include retention of a $1.50 limitation on property taxes, with $1 limit in townships. Taxation of intangibles on a reduced scale and increase of store taxes on the larger chains.

Governor McNutt opposed imposition of "nuisance taxes," such as a proposed 2-cent levy on standard packages of cigars.

Postpones Elections
Because his legislative program was so vast and revolutionary, he felt that it could not be properly passed upon by the people at the present time. Having that in mind and also the saving of another $300,000, he put through a bill postponing municipal elections throughout the state until 1934. They then will be held with the county and congressional contests.

To enemies the McNutt tactics seemed extraordinary high-handed. His reorganization plan was termed "the Mussolini measure" and his postponement of elections "undemocratic" and "Fascist." The fact that his appointees are largely leaders in the American Legion, of which he was formerly state and national commander, has brought forward the appellation of a "black shirt" regime.

Governor McNutt remains unperturbed by these accusations. Throughout the epidemic of banking crises and the like he carries an almost Rooseveltian smile of serene confidence.

His energy is limitless and oftentimes when his lieutenants are fagged out at night he laughs at them and continues his work until dawn.

Always a Leader
From boyhood days in Martinsville, Ind., Governor McNutt was constantly "doing something." He is the son of a distinguished member of the Hoosier bar and former appellate court judge—John McNutt. At Indiana University he was president of his class. His education there was followed by the Harvard law school and new honors. He became the youngest dean of law in America, at his alma mater—Indiana University.

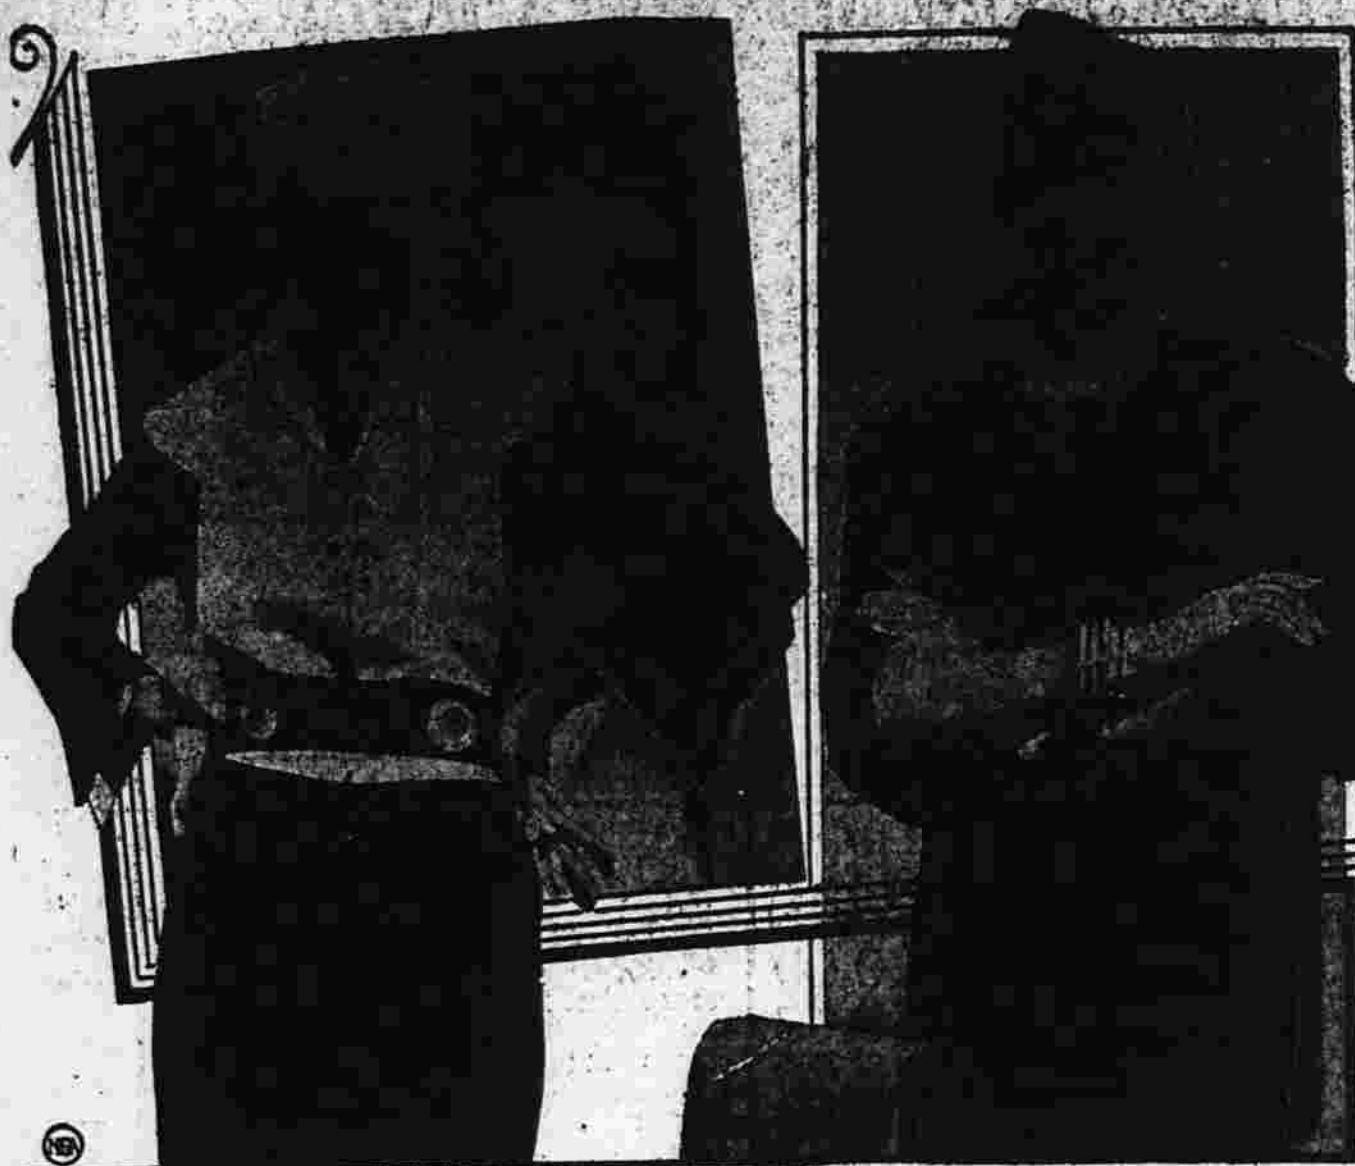

During the war he rose to the rank of colonel and afterwards to all ranks in the American Legion. While in the army he married Miss Kathleen Timolat of San Antonio, Texas. They have one daughter, Louise, age 11.

And the governor is only 41.

There are no national holidays in the United States. Legal holidays are observed nationally because several states declare them legal holidays.

Schizophrenia, a mental disease, kills one-fifth of all the hospital cases. The National Mental Health Association has a budget of $1,000,000 for its work.

TOP CHIC FOR STREET WEAR

Topping the mode this spring are street costumes whose waist treatment and hats are definitely new and intimately related to each other.

Coat frocks have distinctive chic and popularity right now. A crisp white pique vestee gives tremendous dash to this corded sheer coat frock—and at the same time is very practical for it may be removed for laundering simply by unfastening the two huge pearl buttons that anchor it at the beltline. Under outfits of pique finish the flaring sleeves. Very smart is the white hat made of the same pique.

The square, solidly cape suit with organ pleating stopped the show at Schiaparelli's Paris opening. This copy is handsome navy blue crepe, the dress made with pastel pink crepe top tied in a "bag" neckline. The removable cape has a big satin bow. The flattering lit cheapeau is shiny blue, all draped to a high-hat line.

'Let Roosevelt Do It' Is Senate Idea; Smith Farm Bill Comment Is Typical

Washington.—Perhaps no better illustration of what might be termed the present "legislative state of mind" can be found than the situation with which Senator Ellison D. Smith of South Carolina found himself confronted for the last few weeks in the senate.

Smith, as chairman of the senate's agricultural committee, had thrust upon him the task of seeing that President Roosevelt's farm bill was piloted safely through the senate. It was no easy task. "arm relief bill always have had tough sledding in the senate," Mr. Roosevelt's was so drastic in nature that the task was harder than usual.

Smith himself was dubious about the whole thing. He likened the bill to a sandwich in which the upper part was good, the lower part good, but the interior awful. Yet he undertook the task of seeing that the bill was passed without alteration. And the reasons he gave, in most respects, are typical of those given by all the gentlemen "on the hill" charged with similar tasks in this special session.

No Wrenches
"I, for one," he said, "am not going to throw any monkey wrenches to the machinery. I am not going to set my opinion against the President. I would not be guilty of mental prostitution for any man, but I will step aside and let him try this plan, and God knows I wish it all success."

Senator Fess, that regular old regular republican, was not on the floor when Smith made this statement. He was back home in Yellow Springs, Ohio. But a day or so later, in discussing another question, he echoed Smith's remarks.

"Anything Roosevelt wants," said Fess, "will be passed by congress. This is the first time since the world war that one political party had had absolute control and anything its leaders ask as a remedy, the party in control will give."

Stringing Along
And so it goes. At any other time there would be open revolt on Capitol Hill, not only among the republican opposition, but in the democratic ranks as well. As it is, almost every request is granted with a "God knows I wish it all success."

Take the question of inflation of the currency, for example. If ever there was an occasion for the opposition to bring out an issue, here it was. The republicans cried, "Uncle Andy" Mellon and Ogden Mills rushed to Washington immediately primed for battle.

But it was futile. All they could do was to sound dire warnings. They were beaten before they arrived.

London paper facetiously suggests that England code Bernard Shaw to the United States in payment of war debt. Judging from the hullabaloo we made about his visit, he seems to be good for the interest.

APPETIZING FOODS FOR THE TEA TABLE

Something Sweet, With a Tang On Bread and Butter Favored.

We never tire of discussing the parties on this page for the serving of afternoon tea is one of the easiest forms of hospitality. It is easy to prepare, easy on the pocketbook, easily served by the newest bride or the most experienced housekeeper. But before any prospective hostess can plan her menu, she should make sure her tea equipment is adequate.

A small table and a commodious tray are essentials. The table may be one of the folding bridge type, or it may be of wood to match the living room furniture, and round, square, oval, oblong, or any shape desired; its height, however, must be such that the hostess when seated in a comfortable chair, or on the sofa, can pour and serve without reaching up too far, or down too low.

The tray may be set up in the kitchen, or if it is a fine silver tray, part of a silver tea service, it is propped in place on the tea table, and fully equipped except for the post of freshly brewed tea brought in at the last moment from the kitchen. The other type of tray, in the living room, is arranged before guests arrive. On it is the sugar, lemon, cream, hot water pitcher or jug, a place for the tea pot. If very large it may also contain the cups and saucers, each with a teaspoon in place on the saucer. But as a rule the cups, small plates, napkins, spoons, as well as the food to be served, are in place on the living room tea table, when the guests arrive.

Foxtery and china tea sets consisting of tea pot, cream pitcher and sugar bowl, six cups and saucers six small plates and possibly a cake plate are to be had for three or four dollars in inexpensive, imported ware (mostly German and Czechoslovakian). In domestic colored glass, now very popular for tea. And this low average is increased to several dollars for this china or finer grade silver services with the sterling sets and matching tray of course cost more, but they are worth it in the beauty and the air of luxury they add to the home; and such luxuries make a suitable wedding gift, or anniversary gift, or an ambitious objective toward which any housekeeper may look, saving on her budget, and pin money meanwhile, and acquiring the tea service some happy future day.

A tea cloth large enough to cover the table and hang down a few inches on all sides is an essential of the well dressed table. With the fine silver service, an equally fine tea cloth should be used, of lace and embroidered trimmed linen, or fine drawn work. With the more simple china and pottery tea sets, cloths of great variety are possible; such as colored linen crash, peasant embroidered cotton and

PREPARING FLOORS FOR SUMMER DUST

How to Protect Surfaces and Rugs—Method of Washing Them.

Before hot weather is here with the house exposed to open windows and doors, fine floors and floor coverings should be given some special attention.

Washable cotton rugs may be sent to the laundry if the laundry is willing to handle them, or dipped in tubs of warm soap suds and dried flat on a table, like the hand-washed wool rugs.

If the floor is finished with wax, it should be re-finished at Spring housecleaning time.

In any case the protection of the floor for the summer is important for at this season more dust-grains, and more reach the floor than in any other season.

Floors with a hard varnished surface should also be carefully cleaned at this time, and given another coat of wear-resisting varnish.

NAZI RECRUITER IS HITLER'S DOUBLE

Detroit, May 11—Adolf Hitler's "double"—who sports a toothbrush-like mustache, wears a brown shirt with a swastika emblem on his sleeve and bears a close resemblance to the German leader—has risen in Detroit as the champion of the Hitler cause among Germans in this city.

Heinz Spanknoebel is his name. He is a former Bavarian pastor and German war hero who came to America several years ago. Until recently he held an obscure job as a collector of films for a local photographic studio that develops snapshots made in amateur, but when Hitler zoomed to power in Germany Spanknoebel announced himself as a Hitler representative in America, explaining that he had been connected with the movement for years.

Around him Spanknoebel has gathered a number of German-Americans, many of them former members of the German army, who are enthusiastic over the Hitler idea.

Spanknoebel, who lives in what he calls "Hitler Heim"—an unpretentious little house—says he is conducting the task of "selling" Adolf Hitler to the German people of America and winning converts for his cause.

We accomplish our objectives, since Hitler has come into power my work in this country has changed greatly. I am spending all my time now trying to correct false information spread by our enemies.

Hitler societies similar to Detroit's are being formed in other cities, Spanknoebel says. Their aim, he adds, is to unite Germans everywhere.

Spanknoebel says that his chief in Hamburg is Dr. Hans Nieland who, he says is in direct charge of all Hitler forces in foreign countries.

"Our work has been difficult because we had no money," he says. "We got no financial help from Germany because the Hitler party in Germany needed all its money at home. Now this may be changed. Perhaps the government will devote funds to spreading truth in foreign countries."

The Detroit leader defends Hitler's anti-Semitic movement. "Jews have acquired a tremendous large proportion of the property in Germany by unfair means," he says. "If the Jews can combine to get property in Germany by fair means, why can't the Germans combine to get it back for the people who are entitled to it?"

Spanknoebel's friends say he has been active in the Hitler movement since it began. Following his service in the German army in the World War he became a Seventh-day Adventist minister in Bavaria and in 1929 he came to America.

Last year Spanknoebel returned to Bavaria to visit his wife and family. In Bavaria the Hitler movement was going badly. Spanknoebel started making speeches. He talked in villages after villages. Just how much he accomplished he will not say, but friends assert that when Spanknoebel left there last April Bavaria had already begun to turn to Hitler.

Spanknoebel was asked by Nazi chiefs to work for the Hitler cause in America.

Spanknoebel, who lives in what he calls "Hitler Heim"—an unpretentious little house—says he is conducting the task of "selling" Adolf Hitler to the German people of America and winning converts for his cause.

Spanknoebel smiles when he is reminded that he looks like Hitler. "It is my mustache that makes people think so," he says. "I do not think that I am very much like Adolf Hitler, but—my big eyes!—I would be surprised if I did."

Bitter Nazi Partisan Installed As Hitler's Foreign Confidant

Berlin—(AP)—Alfred Rosenberg, a Sovietist, has been named director of the foreign policies of the Nazi party and installed at a desk in the foreign ministry as confidant of Chancellor Hitler.

His ideas concerning Free Masonry are indicated in the titles of his books. "The Criminals of Free Masonry" is one; "Masonic World Politics" another.

Rosenberg was born January 12, 1893, in Reval, then Russian territory and now in Estonia. He was studying architecture in Riga when the Germans drove the czar's troops out of that city and his school moved to Moscow.
