Hale's and House's Observe Birthdays

Stress Rapidly Rising Prices in Advertising—Hale's 36 Years Old and House's Is Now 80 Years Old.

Two of Manchester's leading stores are to celebrate birthdays this week. Both the J. W. Hale Company and C. E. House and Son will observe anniversaries—the 36th for Hale's and the 80th for House's.

The events will be noteworthy for Manchester people and those in nearby communities since prices have been slashed to the bone in the face of a rapidly rising inflation market.

Higher Soon All merchandise offered in today's big advertisements of the sales will be at a higher level as soon as the sale is concluded. The present prices are made possible because Hale's and House's buyers saw the inflation period coming and put in their orders weeks ago when whole sale prices were down. The same materials purchased wholesale today would cost more than either store is asking for the stock from the customer.

In many instances individual items listed in today's advertisements compared with the same items in other stores out of town show that Hale's and House's are far below in the money asked. However, both local stores are warning their customers that an increase in living costs is coming and are urging local people to take advantage of their great bargains.

A good example of price comparisons is given in Lally Pepper sheets measuring 81 by 99 inches. Hale's is selling these sheets at 59 cents and the same articles priced in Hartford today sold at 99 cents in the city. Women's hosiery selling in the local store today for 47 cents a pair will go to 69 cents a pair almost immediately. The Herald reader and prospective shopper can find many other items equal in excellence by reading today's advertisements.

Such a trip was made not so long ago by A. F. Tachiffely, who is a horseman by avocation and a teacher in an Argentine school by profession; Mr. Tachiffely's "Tachiffely's Ride," which tells about the trip, as a tremendously interesting account of this most amazing feat.

Tachiffely took two horses, riding one and mounting and dismounting the other. He rode from the Argentine capital up through Bolivia, crossed the Andes over passes three miles high, worked down to the coast, went across swampy deserts, where the bones of man and horses bleached in the sands, plunged into the jungles of Ecuador, struggled up through Panama and Central America, crossed Mexico and finally reached his goal after three years of great hardships.

It was a remarkable trip and this is a remarkable book. One might have wished, perhaps, that its author had been able to tell us more about the spiritual adventure which goes with every great physical adventure; but we can't have everything, and as it stands the book is an absorbing record of an almost incredible journey.

Published by Simon and Schuster, it sells for $3.

FIREWORKS BAN GIVES THE TOWN QUIET HOLIDAY

Big Crowd By 8 o'clock the field was filling rapidly, indicating a large crowd. There were three lines of cars parked at the base of the hill on the north side of the lot, extending diagonally to Brookfield street, and the slope of the hill on the south side was covered with people.

But an hour passed and the huge crowd became impatient. Mothers with small children stood or sat on the cold slopes of the hills waiting for the fireworks. Drivers of cars blew their horns. The crowd—growing more and more impatient—plauded. The crowd patronized the Legion's refreshment stand, causing the committee to replenish the supply of food and drink. Still no fireworks.

Those in attendance last night at the third showing of the Legion's fireworks display went home in a rain puzzled at the long delay—fully an hour after darkness. It was explained this morning that the delay was caused by the fact that Frank Zimmerman, chairman of the Fireworks committee would not give the word to the Elm City Fireworks Company to go ahead with the show until after 7 o'clock, necessitating a large amount of work placing the pieces and other fireworks at that late hour. The delay was caused, it was stated, because of threatening showers.

It had been stated previously that in the event of rain, the fireworks display would be held the evening following, but hesitancy on the part of the committee after darkness had rendered the proper showing of the fireworks an unsatisfactory event. Last year the show was rained out when a sudden shower drenched thousands.

The parking arrangements under the personal direction of Superintendent Samuel G. Gordon were well carried out, cars being allowed to park in the visibility areas from the Brookfield street entrance and from East Center street. There were over 600 cars in the field and it was estimated that nearly 10,000 people crowded the slopes of the hill from 7 o'clock until shortly after 10 o'clock when the display ended.

There were no accidents in Manchester but three people were treated at the Manchester Memorial hospital early this morning for injuries received in an accident which occurred on the Crystal Lake road at 3:30 this morning.

Miss Mildred O'Neill, 30 of 91 North Main street, Wallingford, suffered lacerations of the leg, wrist and chest; Holden Browning of the Hotel Central, Wallingford, cuts on the left hand and Anthony Mirabile, 19, of 16 Bethane Road, Framingham, Mass., received injuries to his left side. Miss O'Neill and Browning were discharged. Mirabile remaining for X-ray examination.

A BOOK A DAY

VERY ARTY, BUT NOT SUCH GOOD READING

"Stallion" Has Drawn Praise, But It's Just a Bit tiresome

The secret of writing novels, evidently, is to load your book full of symbolism and misty allegory. Then the reviewers, even if they can't quite make out what it's all about, are apt to conclude that it's very fine stuff anyway and call on their readers to hop to it.

"Stallion," by Marguerite Steen, seems to come in this class. A number of reviews have hailed this book for its penetrating psychological insight, its symbolic overtones and what-not. But the ordinary reader is apt to find it pretty dreary, dull, forced and self-conscious.

It's one of those studies of English farm life that the bright metropolitan novelists are so fond of doing. It deals chiefly with a slovenly groom whose job it is to lead a prize stallion about the country at regular intervals and who uses these excursions to kick over the traces.

He comes to grief when he encounters a girl from his wandering arrival outfit. They drift along together, quarrel violently, and at last he throws acid in her face. He goes to prison, and his wife—a patient-Griselda sort of person who seems to represent true womanhood, or the sturdy peasantry, or the spirit of progress or something—takes the groom who job it is to lead a prize stallion about the country at regular intervals and who uses these excursions to kick over the traces.

And, all in all, it's apt to strike the average reader as arty and tiresome. Little, Brown and Co. is the publisher; the price is $2.50.

10,000 MILES ON HORSEBACK

This Book Tells of an Incredibly Adventurous Ride

The ordinary American, accustomed to doing his traveling by auto, thinks he has had an adventure when he hires a horse and goes as much as ten miles in the saddle. What, then, should be the thrill of a man who goes on horseback all the way from Buenos Aires to Washington, a distance of 10,000 miles, through jungles, deserts, mountain passes and some of the worst roads in existence?

Such a trip was made not so long ago by A. F. Tachiffely, who is a horseman by avocation and a teacher in an Argentine school by profession; Mr. Tachiffely's "Tachiffely's Ride," which tells about the trip, as a tremendously interesting account of this most amazing feat.

Tachiffely took two horses, riding one and mounting and dismounting the other. HAGEN LEADS FIELD IN BRITISH TOURNEY

Gets a 68, Five Under Par at St. Andrews for the First Round.

St. Andrews, Scotland, July 5.—(AP)—The great American golfing champion, Walter Hagen, topped the field today in the British Open championship with a 68, five under par, for his first round. With the Prince of Wales among the onlookers, Hagen gained a two stroke lead over his nearest rival at the outset of his bid to win this classic tournament for the fifth time in a dozen years.

Hagen's 32-36 over the "old" championship course withstood a general outburst of sub-par golf, including the challenge of Ed. Dudley, fellow American pro, who was out in a dazzling 31, five under par, but back in 39 for a total of 70.

Tied with Dudley in second place with seventies, were Cyril J. H. Tolley, British amateur, and Tom Ferrie, Scotch pro.

POLICE USING DIVER TO LOCATE MAN'S BODY

Sherborn, Mass., July 5.—(AP)—A diver today assisted in the search for the body of Lawrence L. Willard of Natick, whose machine was found, bottom up and empty, in the Charles River at the Sherborn-Medfield line.

The car left the road at a bridge yesterday and plunged into six feet of water. Search for occupants of the automobile was fruitless and it was unknown whether Willard was alone when the accident occurred. Willard's brief case was found at the bottom of the river early today.

The accident was discovered by a Medfield man, who reported a "break" in the fence railing to state police. Investigation revealed Willard's car in the river and National Guardsmen were called to assist in the search for the Natick man's body.

Guardsmen and police searched the river from both banks for some distance up and down stream without success and the services of a diver were secured today.

MOTORBOAT MISSING

Providence, R. I., July 5.—(AP)—Coast Guard boats in Narragansett bay were searching today for the thirty foot motor cruiser Fram S., owned by Dr. Edmund A. Sawyer, Providence, which left the Rhode Island Yacht Club yesterday morning to cruise in the bay with Dr. Sawyer's mother and father, brother, sister-in-law, and their two children aboard. Search of the east and west passages failed to show that the Fram S. had taken refuge from the gale in any of the island coves.

FUNERALS

William A. Sloan

Funeral services for William Arthur Sloan, one and one-half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Sloan, who was struck by a hit-and-run driver Sunday night about 8:45 in front of his home and died at 10 o'clock, were held yesterday at the home, 474 North Main street, yesterday afternoon at 2:30. The house was filled with relatives, neighbors and friends, and there was a profusion of beautiful floral tributes.

Rev. Marwin S. Stokking of the North Methodist church officiated, and the bearers were four young girls, all of whom were graduated this year from grammar school and wore their white graduation dresses. They were Helen Zopher, Georgiana Dewart, Arline Holme and Eleanor Davis. Burial was in the East cemetery.

25TH ANNIVERSARY FOR RUDAZ COUPLE

Party on Saturday Evening in Celebration of Event—Table Silver Presented.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Rudaz of 582 Center street were surprised Saturday evening at their home by about 28 couples. The party was in recognition of their twenty-fifth anniversary on July 1, and was planned and carried out largely by Mrs. Marie Marcantonio and Mrs. Rudaz's brother, Wilfred Jolly. Mrs. Joseph F. Sullivan composed and read an original poem for the anniversary, as follows:

"Just twenty-five short years ago This loving couple as you all know Were pledged together, man and wife, And entered then the race of life.

They had much joy, some sorrow too But lived their lives as good folks do. And now, I'm happy to relate That they have won the silver plate. And if they step this way they'll see A little gift from you and me. And when their golden race is run, We hope to hear that they have won, We also hope to gather here And give them both a hearty cheer.

Ladies and Gentlemen! Need I say? We wish them lots of luck today. And now to them a toast we'll drink. As for ourselves we'll surely think How well they're matched and mated." Their health—God bless them. M. A. S.

Their friends presented to Mr. and Mrs. Rudaz a set of table silver and other acceptable gifts in silver. They warmly expressed their thanks for the splendid remembrances and the party in honor of their silver wedding. A delicious buffet lunch, furnished by the guests, was enjoyed, and dancing the social pastimes continued until Sunday morning.

Mr. Rudaz has been employed as a velvet weaver by Cheney Brothers for 27 years. They were married by the Rev. W. J. McGurk, at that time rector of St. James' church, who was later transferred to Waterbury and died within a year.

morally obligate this country to export gold.

Mr. Roosevelt realizes that the question of stabilization of currencies in international exchange means much to some of the European nations, but does not regard it as a factor at all affecting the United States.

He is looking to an eventual permanent basis of stabilization, but holds to the opinion that such must come about first after each country has stabilized its own domestic purchasing power.

The President does not regard the establishment of stabilization funds, as has been demanded, as on the agenda of the conference.

Not Enough Time

As for finding the true purchasing power of the currencies of the various nations, the President does not consider there has been time sufficient to determine this as yet. England has been off the gold standard almost two years, it was pointed out this afternoon, and France was off at one time for four years.

The United States has been off the standard only three months. In seeking to establish the permanent purchasing power of the American dollar, Mr. Roosevelt is considering several factors. Some advisors have urged that the 1928 price levels be taken as a basis.

Level Too High

Others believe that level too high and point to 1925 and 1924.

No fixed date of prices can be selected, Mr. Roosevelt believes, and a "mean average" is probably the solution.

In connection with Federal Reserve bank operations to aid in temporary stabilization of currency in international exchange, it is the understanding at the White House that this is very likely impossible on the basis that the Federal Reserve banks have no right to speculate in foreign exchange.

The President is going to keep a determined grip on the gold supply of this nation, which he intends shall be held as collateral for the American currency in contrast to the theory understood by him to be held in question abroad that gold should be used as a medium of international exchange rather than as collateral.

AGREE IN PRINCIPLE London, July 5.—(AP)—The four principal wheat producing countries of the world, "having agreed in principle on a policy of temporary adjustment of production and trade to world demands," decided today to determine what measure—if any—of co-operation can be expected from European producing and consuming states on the restriction program.

A committee of three men—Thomas Lebreton of Argentina, Stanley M. Bruce of Australia, and Frederick E. Murphy of the United States—was set up by the Big Four to begin negotiations with European states to see what can be done in obtaining their collaboration.

Meanwhile, the meetings of the four powers were adjourned, probably until after July 10 when the American crop reports are expected. It is believed that the complexity of the problem and the necessity for restriction to some degree.

Issue Statement The following official statement upon the wheat agreement was issued:

"The four overseas exporting countries—Canada, the United States, Argentina and Australia—today agreed in principle on a policy of temporary adjustment of production and trade to world demand with a view to improving the price of wheat and liquidating surplus stocks now hanging over the market."

"We recognize, however, that the solution of the wheat problem depends on the co-operation of European countries." Prime Minister Bennett of Canada and his three colleagues agreed to this arrangement.

Restriction Plan Mr. Bruce was described today as being even more favorable than formerly to adoption of some sort of a restriction plan, although it was stated that his official stand was that the Australian government could agree to nothing unless a sufficient measure of co-operation on the part of European states was obtained.

The Americans do not consider that the Australian insistence upon mere limitation of exports as against limitation of acreage by other countries obviates the possibility of a general agreement upon method.

It was stated authoritatively, however, that no figures were discussed, but only the principle. The argument was advanced and conceded and while crop reports are being awaited the time should be employed in discovering what European states are willing to do.

Meetings of the committee with representatives of European countries will probably begin at once.

Miss Belle Crosby of Robert Road and Miss Hazel B. Shepard of Hartford sailed from New York at noon today on the S. S. Washington of the United States Lines for a vacation tour of Europe.

They planned to visit Paris, Florence, Italy and various points in Switzerland. They are not taking a conducted tour and will plan their side trips as time allows. They expect to sail for home on August 18.

The regular meeting of Mary C. Keeney Tent, Daughters of Union War Veterans, which would ordinarily take place tomorrow evening at the State Armory, will be postponed until a future date.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hurley have returned to their home on Fairfield street after spending the holidays in New York City.

ABOUT TOWN

Miss Dorothy May Siggins of 178 Hilliard street was graduated Friday from the Stone Secretarial school in New Haven. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Siggins attended the graduation exercises which were held at Calvary Baptist church, Chapel and York streets.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary committee of the South Methodist church will hold a silver tea tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. Rosa Brookings, 141 East Middle Turnpike. Mrs. Brookings will be assisted by Mrs. Ella Towle and Miss Jean Towle.

Mr. and Mrs. August Rochur of Torrington spent the Fourth with Mrs. Rochur's mother, Mrs. Malinda Russell of Maple street. The young couple have taken up housekeeping at 184 East Pasty street, Torrington. Mrs. Rochur prior to her marriage, June 24, was Miss Margaret P. Russell.

Mark Holmes, chairman of the joint committee from the North Main street churches sponsoring the vacation church school, has called a meeting for this evening at 8 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. to complete plans for the school which will open on Monday.

The regular monthly meeting of Hose Company No. 3 will be held this evening in the company headquarters, Spruce and Florence street. The meeting was scheduled for last night but was postponed because of the holiday.

Because of the falling off of passengers in the Hartford division of the Connecticut Company during the summer months when schools are closed seventeen different employees of the company have been given furloughs for the summer. Two Manchester men are effected by the change, Joseph L. Sullivan and Edward J. Joyce.

Ben Cohen, manager of the State Theater was host at a back stage party Monday night after the last show. The party was given for the personnel of the theater in celebration of Mr. Cohen's winning second place in a contest held by Warner Brothers for their theater managers in this district. A beer luncheon was served and entertainment was furnished by members of the party. Collins Driggs and Fred Werner popular theater organists played several piano and organ duets.

Miss Belle Crosby of Robert Road and Miss Hazel B. Shepard of Hartford sailed from New York at noon today on the S. S. Washington of the United States Lines for a vacation tour of Europe.

They planned to visit Paris, Florence, Italy and various points in Switzerland. They are not taking a conducted tour and will plan their side trips as time allows. They expect to sail for home on August 18.

The regular meeting of Mary C. Keeney Tent, Daughters of Union War Veterans, which would ordinarily take place tomorrow evening at the State Armory, will be postponed until a future date.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hurley have returned to their home on Fairfield street after spending the holidays in New York City.

Officers for the coming year will be installed by Memorial Lodge, K. of P., in their hall in the Balch and Brown building tonight. The installing officer will be Leon Davis, with his staff, from Thompsonville. The committee in charge of the installation have arranged for a supper to be served after the meeting.

Manchester is to have another tavern. It will be located in the one-story building adjoining the Montgomery Ward company store. The lease is to be taken by out-of-town men. The store has been closed up and plans are being made to get the tavern in operation by the end of the week.

The repairs that were made necessary at the Home Club on Beacon road were such that the work was not completed in the time expected. A rock ledge under the building, which is on a side hill, held up the work considerably and instead of the tavern opening Saturday, as planned, the date now is set for Saturday of this week when the club rooms will also be completely done over and new furniture installed.

Miss Doris Roy of Henry street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Roy, left this noon for Camp Aya Po in Massachusetts.

John Howard of Henry street was among those who drove to New York yesterday and witnessed the double-header between the Yankees and the Washington baseball teams.

Third place in the regimental tent-pitching contest on the holiday program yesterday at Camp Cross, Niantic went to the Iowitzer Company of this town.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Robertson and daughters, Miss Marion and Miss Eleanor Robertson, are spending their vacation at Black point.

The family of William Rush of South Main street will spend the next week at the Northfield Hotel, East Northfield, Mass.

Miss Hulda Butler, principal of the Nathan Hale school is taking a course of study at the Y. M. C. A. college in Springfield, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Johnson of Linden street have opened their cottage at Grove Beach, Clinton, for the summer.

Mr. Volmar Thornfeldt of Cambridge street is spending two weeks at the Millford shore.

Mrs. Allan Dexter and children of Brookfield street are spending their vacation at "The Elms", Crescent Beach.

Mrs. A. M. Johnson and Miss Selma Johnson of 28 Gerard street are spending the summer at Point O'Woods beach.

The Sewing Circle of Mons-Yves Post auxiliary will postpone its meeting which was to have been held with Mrs. Victor Duke of 61 Pearl street tomorrow afternoon, to Thursday, July 13 at the same place.

Miss Ariene C. Moriarty of 88 Florence street left this morning for Burlington, Vermont, to take a summer course in music at the University of Vermont.

ITALIANS HALF WAY ON HOP TO ICELAND

Left Ireland This Morning on Journey Which Will End at Chicago Fair.

New York, July 5.—(AP)—A Mackay and Commercial cable dispatch relayed here today from the Balbo flagship in the Italian air armada which left Londonderry today for Reykjavik, Iceland, reported that the flight is proceeding satisfactorily and that more than half the distance has been covered.

A further radio message through the same channel said that the Italian expedition after five hours and 35 minutes of flight was proceeding normally with clearer visibility and a perfect sea.

As the mission had just passed over a trawler, the message said.

KING AGAIN A HERO.

Madison, Conn., July 5.—(AP)—Mosey King, Yale boxing instructor, had another rescue to his credit today.

The Ell mentor, who has run up an imposing string of rescues during his many seasons at this Long Island Sound resort, brought three Meriden residents safely to shore yesterday, after the trio became stranded in a wind tossed row boat three miles off shore. The rescued were Ray Range, his sister Lillian, and George Andrews.

King used a skiff to reach the trio. Recently he used the same craft to rescue two others.

BRIDGE TOURNAMENT

Chicago, July 5.—(AP)—New York, Los Angeles and Chicago were in the lead today as 22 pairs of contract bridge players gathered for the second day's play in the finals of the World's Fair bridge pair championship.

The leaders: Milton Adler and Alfred Sherwood of New York, with 177 match points; Clarence A. Vitouse, Jr., and Philip Ayers of Los Angeles, 176 1/2; Jack Kravatz and Robert E. Branigan of Chicago, 170. Maximum possible score was 280.

The tourney, scheduled to continue through today and tomorrow, was the last phase of a series of contests sponsored in 15 cities by newspapers.

NAVY ASKS 75 MILLION OF PUBLIC WORKS FUND

Eighty-five Per Cent of It Will Go to Labor, Secretary Swanson Declares.

Washington, July 5.—(AP)—Secretary Swanson said today the Navy will ask $77,000,000 of public works funds for battleship modernization which will give the United States a fleet of "battleships equal to those of any navy."

The program outlined would include modernization of the California, West Virginia, Maryland, Colorado and Tennessee and increased gun elevation for the New York and Texas.

Now under modernization are the Mexico, the Mississippi and the Idaho.

Battleships which have been modernized include the Arkansas, New York, Texas, Oklahoma, Nevada, Pennsylvania and Arizona.

Swanson explained that when the New York and Texas were modernized their guns were not elevated because of a belief in some quarters such elevation would conflict with the Washington naval treaty.

"If we can get this money, 85 per cent will go to labor," the secretary said.

He pointed out modernization would include new machinery, and increased deck protection, and said three of the battleships need new boilers.

Swanson said the Navy also is seeking around $37,000,000 for shore station construction.

Five state policemen from the Stafford Springs Barracks have kept on the trail of the hit-and-run driver who killed Walter Kopyrnski, aged 54 years, since the fatal accident took place on the Rockville and Springfield road at 1:05 o'clock Sunday morning.

The trail has led to a "Model A" Ford which headed towards Springfield, evidently of Massachusetts registration.

State Policeman Donald A. Crossman, who is heading the group of officers in charge of the investigation, has questioned more than 100 people in securing the facts which are expected to place the responsibility on a man who spent Saturday evening at a dance in this section.

A . . . B . . . C . . .

if you have a modern automatic insulated gas range in it!

- A LOT LESS TIME IN THE KITCHEN because the modern gas range is self-starting, self-stopping, and self-regulating. You can cook an entire meal and be miles away from the kitchen.
- B AKING AND BROILING HEAT AND COOKING VAPORS CAN'T ESCAPE INTO THE KITCHEN because the oven of the modern gas range is vented and insulated. Other forms of cooking do not offer both these essential features.
- C OOKING ON THE RANGE TOP (where 85% of the cooking is done) IS FASTER. The little sharp blue flame starts at full heat, stops completely in a split second, and does faster cooking. Naturally the result is a lot less time spent over the range and less heating up the kitchen.

FURNITURE PRICES INCREASE AT MART

C. Elmore Watkins Describes Exhibits—Much Buying Done.

By C. Elmore Watkins. The furniture market at Chicago was like old times. As soon as the doors were open at eight o'clock

C. Elmore Watkins. The morning of the first day, the popular priced exhibits were filled with buyers. In a few hours several exhibitors announced they were over-sold and prices began to advance. This was particularly true in the section selling upholstered furniture. Some manufacturers advanced their prices twice while we were at the exhibit, as the notices of increases came in from the textile people. There was of course some justification for this.

Stocks of furniture covers are so low that any advance in the price of cotton has an immediate effect on the price of the finished product. We also found higher prices imminent in dining room and bedroom furniture and a very great uncertainty as to the future.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, July 5.—(AP)—Financial markets returned from their fourth of July celebration today in rather subdued spirits attended by realizing in most departments. While stocks and staples generally weathered the "cash-in" procedure with equanimity, there were some noticeable gaps at times in the price ranges of shares and grains. Copper and alcoholic equities, on the whole, gave the best performance, with several specialties stepping out of the plodding parade. There was little buoyancy, however, in any group.

THE SALIENT FACT.

Whether the London Economic Conference continues in being or whether it breaks up, leaving to a later day the work for which it was called, is a question of minor importance.

Many people in this and other countries no doubt find very confusing the constant talk about stabilizing currencies that has filled the reports of the London Conference ever since the day it convened.

It is peculiarly unfortunate that the American news agencies and the American newspaper correspondents have permitted themselves to be influenced to the extent that they have been by the atmosphere created in London by the purposeful enemies of economic freedom.

TEACHERS AND UTILITIES.

At the opening of the convention of the National Education Association in Chicago Dr. John K. Norton of Teachers College, Columbia University, chairman of the Joint Commission on the Emergency in Education, gave out an interview in the course of which he said:

Of course there are certain bankers and certain utilities companies who are carrying on ruthless campaigns of tax reduction through advertising. Some of them want educational starvation equal to the physical starvation which has threatened growing numbers of our people since 1929.

One may forego discussing the merits of the idea that a nation of peasants could go on forever, in some wholly unexplained way, maintaining a school system giving millionaire educations to the peasant children.

IN NEW YORK

By JULIA BLANKHARD New York, July 5.—When Professor Raymond F. Moley called for the London Conference, those seeing him off got a nice, friendly laugh at the expense of Laurence A. Steinhardt, our new Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Sweden.

As a matter of fact, Steinhardt is the "Baby Diplomat" of the Roosevelt administration. He is just 40, but looks about 30. He is an out-door, well-built, straight-as-an-arrow man and has buoyant health, a blooming sun and merry gleam in his widely-spaced eyes and tremendous enthusiasm for swimming, fishing, sailing, riding, skiing and other outdoor sports.

However, he is a very serious-minded person — lawyer, doctor, economist, banker, since March, anyway, he has been spending from three to five hours a day poring into everything he can lay hands on that deals with economics and finance.

OUTDATED BALLYHOOD.

In reporting marked improvement in business conditions based on perfectly reliable reports from a variety of agencies in all parts of the country, the New York Board of Trade makes use of an expression which it might better have avoided — and which it would be well for every business hootster in the country to avoid for some time to come.

The depression is not over. It will not be over for some time to come, even under the most favorable possible realization of the most sanguine of reasonable hopes. We cannot go down hill for four years — we were going down hill in 1929 and 1930 long before the smash came — and then regain our lost ground in a few months. If, a full year from now, it is possible to say with honesty and understanding that the "depression is over" we shall have made the most remarkable economic recovery in the history of the world.

There has been a substantial gain in employment — there still remains a tremendous amount of joblessness. There has been an important gain in the people's purchasing power — it is still far below what it must be in order to have the economic machine function properly.

Nothing whatever is to be gained by minimizing the length of the road to be traveled before, at the very best, this country shall arrive at something like a stable and happy economic state. So long as the people know they are on the way upward, with a long trail ahead, they can be depended on to carry on with grim courage and with high hope in their hearts.

Overnight A. P. News

Keene, N. H.—Carl L. Demoree, 22, Manchester, an airplane passenger, fatally injured and another passenger and pilot seriously hurt in crash near Keene airport.

ing fight this country is making, it is ballyhoop. Boards of Trade, Chambers of Commerce, every such group, will do themselves and the country a better service if they will take heed of the fact that the day of creating prosperity by creating "confidence" is as much an element of the dead past as King Tut's tomb.

Naturalists and others are trying to discover the reason why seventy-five killer whales, from twelve to thirty feet long, were found dead on the Cape Sable coast at the tip of the Florida mainland the other day. The killer whale is a tough and a gangster, about as bad a fellow as lives in the sea.

What has he, and what have others like him who now see in the utilities scarcely disguised assassins of public education, to say about the perfect intelligence of an educational system which, only a very few years ago, admitted to text-book standing in hundreds of high schools throughout the country a tiny little utilities booster masquerading as a writer, printed and distributed for and by the utilities interests?

HEALTH-DIET ADVICE

BY DR. FRANK MCCOY Questions in regard to Health and Diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper. Enclosure stamped, self-addressed envelope, for reply.

When the warmer days of summer come, we find a profusion of the cleansing, juicy fruits and succulent vegetables, as though Nature intended man to make use of these wholesome foods during the summer months.

Stardom Modesty Many of the best stage stars dress in such quiet good taste, when appearing socially, wear so little make-up and have such perfect manners that they usually have to be pointed out to you, the first time you see them off-stage.

While not a gardener, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins has a keen appreciation of the country. She likes it primitive. For the past few years she has taken her daughter and a friend with two children and gone to a little house up in Connecticut where there is a plum tree and where they cook on a wood stove and use candles and oil lamps.

Alcohol can be made from petroleum cheaper than from corn, asserts Dr. Gustav Eloff, famed research chemist. Maybe in the future the expression "Getting well oiled" will really mean what it says.

Give your body a chance to profit by the cleansing wholesome juices that are so abundant now. You can now avoid those heavy, high caloric, dulling foods that were used in the cooler seasons and make use of the lighter, succulent, energizing summer food crops.

PROGRESSIVES RETAIN POWER, SAYS DUTCHER

Washington, July 5.—All their old enemies have been saying that the Senate's Republican progressives have disappeared as an influential group and have killed themselves finally by opposing the administration in the final stage of the recent session of Congress.

But there are quite a few flaws in the theory and the fact that the Republican and Democratic progressives played a more influential role in the special session than in any previous session hardly lends support to the view that their days of glory are over.

Roosevelt made a deep bow to the Republican progressives when he named his cabinet and let them have an unprecedented voice in shaping legislative measures. The progressives had a lot of essential measures already worked out and Roosevelt called them in and worked with them.

---take, for instance Steamer Chairs! There's no shortage of varieties at Watkins. In fact selections throughout the store are larger now than ever before in our history. So we say, "take, for instance steamer chairs." There are no less than eleven different styles and colors. At seven different prices. Due to the advance season, however, there is only one of each kind. So hurry for this large, well rounded selection.

HOUSE'S 80th ANNIVERSARY

Everyone Should Invest
In These Pre-inflation
SAVINGS!

Probably at no time in the memory of this generation has such a great money-saving opportunity been staged. Realize that right on the eve of rising costs due to inflation here comes a broad-gauged event that not only enables you to anticipate rising prices but also offers you deep reductions from Pre-inflation prices. Costs on nearly all commodities will shortly advance from 10% to 20% yet these offerings are at 10% to 25% reductions from current price levels. The thrifty will invest to full capacity of their needs and ability to buy.

Readers of this column sometimes call us asking for recipes which they have clipped and later lost. Sometimes they are very apologetic and reluctant about calling, thinking that "Jean" is glad to hunt up back copies of recipes for any reader. This morning we read over the telephone a recipe for "Old-Fashioned Jelly Roll," which appeared some time ago. A reader who had had success with this recipe, claimed she had tried any number of jelly roll recipes, and found this the best.

Women are delighted with the Croquignole ringlet ends resulting from permanent waves given by the Lily Beauty Parlor, Home & Hair Shop at 83 up. The ends need only to be combed over the finger. Phone 7484.

Seasonal Foods: Midsummer vegetables for salads are plentiful. Be sure to mix them well in a dressing of olive oil, seasonings and lemon juice or vinegar. The plentiful this week also are the Plentiful fruits, and cantaloupe and watermelon. Desserts that go well just at this time are iced watermelon, fresh raspberries and lemon pie—all three are light and contribute attractive color to the table.

Cherry Pie Glace: Something colorful for the table is a Cherry Pie Glace, made this way: 2-2 cups (1 can) red cherries, drained. 1-2 cup sugar. 1 package cherry-flavored gelatin. 2-4 cups boiling cherry juice and water. 1-2 teaspoon salt. 1 baked 9-inch pie shell. Combine cherries and sugar. Dissolve flavored gelatin in boiling cherry juice and water. Add salt. Pour over cherries, stirring occasionally as mixture cools. Chill. When slightly thickened, turn into cold pie shell. Chill until firm.

The Beauty Nook: The special oil treatment given at no extra charge by a permanent wave at Mary Elizabeth's Beauty Nook, Rubenow Building, revives your hair. Permanent wave charges are $3 up; curly ends guaranteed.

Smart Outfit: You can make yourself an attractive outfit by using a bright colored washable fabric for the dress and by lining a white linen or plique jacket with the same color.

RUSH FOR WATER FROM AQUARIUM

(Continued From Page One) With skin disease sufferers; fish in the last analysis we are fish enthusiasts. "It is true, we have come upon this—ahem—bacteriophage, and it is true that it seems to possess qualities which may revamp the skin of the nation. That is a matter to be determined. We have passed it on to several New York hospitals, and they have not yet reported on its effectiveness. The Massachusetts Health Department has tried it and has asked for more. It reported no results of consequence. We are continuing our experiments. If it should develop that the bacteriophage is the answer to a skin sufferer's prayer, I have no doubt that in the course of time proper announcement will be made in the usual manner. Meanwhile, we continue to be deeply concerned with fish."

Racketeer's Threat: One hoodlum in a checkered suit and weighted down with diamonds, barged up to the curator and offered one thousand dollars for some bacteriophage which he referred to as "that stuff that does the business on the skin." The curator explained he was not operating a clinic, but an aquarium. The racketeer—he must have been a racketeer at the very least—raised

FOREST RECRUITS HELD FOR MURDER

(Continued From Page One) arrested and brought to Henrico county jail H. Owings, 40, and P. B. Heffer, 40, against whom the murder charges were lodged in connection with the death of Crist, whose mangled body was found on the Chesapeake and Ohio railway tracks near the camp on Sunday. Others Arrested: C. E. Lee, 43, and W. C. Planter, 43, also were brought to the Henrico county jail charged with felonious assault upon Cox, who was injured Sunday and is in the military hospital at Fort Monro.

The arrests last night followed a call yesterday for state police to patrol highways in the neighborhood of the camp and for the office of the attorney general to cooperate in curbing sale of intoxicants around the camp. Captain C. B. Deshields, camp commander, said that there has been no disorder within the boundaries of the camp which was established June 22 and manned with

15 GOLFERS BREAK PAR BY HANDICAP

Benson and Thomson Card 73's—Ricky Anderson Turns in Even 70.

Aided by their handicaps 15 players broke par in the sweet-stake tournament at the Manchester Country club golf course yesterday. The best medals of the day among the amateurs were turned in by Harry Benson and Alex Thomson who posted 73's. Ricky Anderson, assistant pro at the club, turned in an even par score of 70 in the afternoon. He needed a duce on the short 18th to give him a 69.

Scores in the morning round were as follows: Harry Benson, 73-69; Alex Thomson, 73-68; Charlie Johnson, 76-67; J. C. Cary, 83-18-68; Pete Turkington 80-11-69; Bob Boyce, 82-19-69; Morgan Alved, 87-18-69; Dr. M. M. Moriarty, 89-20-69; Dr. E. C. Higgins, 89-20-69.

In the afternoon round the scores were: George Brown, 77-15-62; Joe Handley, 75-14-63; Joe Moteyka, 80-30-64; Andy Brown, 79-15-66; George Evans, 81-15-66; Alex Thomas, 74-7-67. For the entire 36 holes the scores were as follows: George Brown 163-80-133; Alex Thomson, 147-14-133; Joe Moteyka, 138-9-134; Andy Brown, 143-24-134; George Evans, 166-30-136; Ray Bowers, 163-26-137; M. J. Turkington, 162-22-140; J. C. Cary, 170-30-140.

FIGHT OVER CHACO BREAKS OUT ANEW

It was recently announced that representatives of England, France, Spain, Italy and Mexico will compose a League of Nations committee which will seek to end the Gran Chaco dispute. A general committee to designate the limits of the disputed area is expected also to be formed by the League.

Meanwhile, Paraguay acceded Tuesday night to a Bolivian demand that the League arbitration committee consider the basis of peace and an armistice at the same time, rather than arrange a truce between the combatants first. Paraguay previously insisted that fighting cease before an arbitration basis be sought.

Washington, July 5.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today issued an executive order continuing the 15 per cent cut in pay of Federal employees. The slash was first made effective under the economy bill to extend until June 30, the close of the fiscal year, with Mr. Roosevelt authorized to continue it if justified by living costs. The pay cut today was ordered to stay in effect until the first of the year.

The order said that the living cost index for the first six months of this year was 130.3 as compared with 121 for the base period, the six months ending June 30, 1934.

Latest figures indicate that $11,000,000,000 of the $32,000,000,000 in gold mined since 1899 cannot be located. People are so careless.

TOBACCO MEN GATHER TO DISCUSS AGREEMENT

State Directors and County Agents Meet in Hartford to Talk on Reduction Plans.

Hartford, July 5.—(AP)—The five directors who have in charge the administration of the tobacco reduction plan in the Connecticut Valley are in conference this afternoon at the county building, Washington street, with Connecticut county agents and extension service representatives in Massachusetts.

The five directors, whose nominations are approved by John D. Huston, acting chief of the tobacco section production of the agricultural adjustment administration, are Sumner R. Parker of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Allen W. Manchester of the Connecticut State College, Theron L. Warren of Sunderland, Mass., vice-president of the New England Tobacco Growers' Association; James Sullivan of Suffield and Fred B. Griffin of Hartford.

The county agents present were Charles D. Lewis, Hartford county Farm Bureau; Philip F. Dean, Middlesex county; Raymond Atherton, Litchfield county; Ernest E. Tucker, Tolland county.

TO STUDY TAX SYSTEM

Hartford, July 5.—(AP)—With the appointment of Dr. Benjamin F. Whitaker of New Haven as research director, the state tax commission is prepared to undertake the task of surveying the state's tax system as instructed by the 1933 General Assembly. The selection of Whitaker for full term service with the commission was disclosed today by Professor Fred R. Fairchild of New Haven, who is chairman of the commission. Offices have been allotted to the commission in Rooms 75 and 80 in the state capital office building and Dr. Whitaker will make these rooms his headquarters.

MILLS WIFE AND SELF

Fiskdale, Mass., July 5.—(AP)—Dwight Whittemore, 42, of Main street, a farmer and his wife, Marion, 41, were found dead today in the bedroom of their home, killed with a shotgun.

The police are convinced that Whittemore shot his wife, then reloaded the single barreled shotgun and committed suicide.

Mrs. Whittemore was in bed and had apparently been shot while she slept. Whittemore's body was on the floor, with the gun lying nearby.

The couple's two children, Marcus 12 and a daughter, Severy, 14, slept through the night without hearing the shots which ended their parents' lives.

KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY
BARRETT COLVIN, back in New York after years abroad, falls in love with 26-year-old ELINOR STAFFORD. Bessie is 35, wealthy, and has made a name for herself as an archeologist. Years before he shielded his half-sister, MARCI, when a youthful romance ended disastrously. Marcia had a son whom Barrett adopted. She is constantly in fear that her husband will learn of the affair.

LIDA STAFFORD, Elinor's beautiful and unscrupulous mother, is carrying on a flirtation with VANCE CARTER. Lida schemes constantly to keep in the good graces of Miss Ella Sexton, her husband's aunt, in order to inherit a share of the Sexton fortune.

When she learns Barrett is about to propose to Elinor she deliberately breaks up the romance. The girl is heart-broken when she does not hear from him. One day they meet at her aunt's home. Barrett offers Lida a cigarette and she refuses, declaring she does not smoke. Rebellious at her mother's hypocrisy, Elinor takes a cigarette, thereby offending Miss Sexton who once more revises her will.

A few days later she dies, leaving practically her entire fortune to Barrett. He does not want it and yet cannot turn it over to the rightful inheritors.

Vance Carter asks Lida to keep her promise about divorcing her husband. She agrees, and Vance leaves. After drinking heavily he returns and shoots Bentwell Stafford who has only a slight chance to recover.

Barrett, hearing the news, goes to ask Bessie for Elinor. Elinor's aunt, what he can do to help.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XX
 Bessie said honestly, "You can do anything for Lida Stafford; nothing for Elinor."
 Barrett Colvin looked up quickly. "You mean — Miss Stafford has pride?"
 "An immense amount. I don't know where she got it nor all the lovely qualities she has, though I always liked Bentwell when he was a boy. She turned her head to hide this hot tear." "Would Miss Stafford resent my offering her mother help?"
 "I think it would kill her!"
 She heard him mutter, "God—!" Bessie disapproved of blasphemy and she understood the need that had to be met.
 "I've got to get out of this damnable will," Barrett said. "I want you to let me put your boys through college. You will, won't you?"
 For the first time he saw the room and read the need that was apparent everywhere. He must manage to help them somehow!
 "I don't know, Mr. Colvin. I'd have to talk with Jim, my husband. We don't take help very easily. We aren't just that kind," she answered hesitatingly.
 "But this isn't help, Mr. Thorpe. It isn't my money. It belongs to you and the Staffords!"
 She shook her head. "Aunt Ella was in her right mind," she reminded gently. His colorless face stiffened. He said battle with pride, he saw. Perhaps his arguments would do no more than strengthen the pride he saw before him in a frayed wash house dress that had cost $2. If the battle were futile he would be haunted by the shabbiness of that room; by the chair that he could not sit on because the springs were broken; worse—by three boys who must go to work before they should have stopped their schooling.
 "Mrs. Thorpe," he confessed, "this whole thing makes me miserable."
 "I've no doubt of that, Mr. Colvin," she agreed in her kind way. "But you couldn't help it and it's done and over."
 "But," he protested, "one can't fight a wrong when it's as simple as this one!"
 "I don't know about that, Mr. Colvin," she said slowly, uncertainly.
 He rose. "You're going to think it over," he urged, "and the needs of your boys."
 Bessie rose too, a little stiffly. "I always thought of you as her kneecap" to clean the refrigerator, a household god before which she must kneel.
 "I never forget the needs of my boys," she answered. "But you see, Mr. Colvin—it's difficult to explain this way. I feel that the boys' biggest need will be answered by their knowing that we made our own way in the world, that even if we failed we didn't beg. I've seen too much of what talking one down to people—and it isn't a pretty thing to see. It makes lying and cheating and all the things that are so much worse than not having things."
 She was thinking of Lida Stafford. Barrett looking on her, felt humbled.
 "You're a fine mother," he said. She brushed his tribute aside with an embarrassed, "Oh, no!" Because he saw that she had been deeply embarrassed by them he asked quickly if there was any news about Bentwell Stafford. How had he passed the night?
 The night had been a bad one, Bessie told him. There could be no encouragement for a few days, if indeed there could be then.
 "If he goes," she ended, "we're going to ask Elinor to live with us."
 Again he saw, and felt, the room. Again his heart chilled. He could not imagine Elinor so happy in that house, so shabby, dark and depressing.
 "The poor child isn't fitted to do a thing except teach music," Bessie went on. "He hadn't known Elinor played." Bessie said, "so hard to be useful and the results are pathetic."

She wipes and wipes my dishes and they weep on the shelves when she's done with them, bless her!"
 Elinor had a strong ally, he recalled. He thought, "If you weren't so good yourself you'd know her better."
 "Well," he said wearily, "I'll be on my way." The trip had been useless. "If there's anything I can do you'll let me know?"
 "Oh, yes, Mr. Colvin. If there's a thing we can ask of you I promise—I'll let you know."
 "I'd appreciate it, Mrs. Thorpe. Sometimes you proud people don't know how much you hold on to with your pride!"
 "I know, Mr. Colvin," she admitted, "but the one thing the poor clinging to is self-respect. If that should go we'd have—nothing."
 He went down the cement steps, covered for the winter with slats of wood. Bessie stood smiling at the door until Hutten had closed the motor door after Barrett. Barrett waved at her. "God bless you!" he reflected. "You're right, but it makes things worse for me!"
 Hutten chose the bridge over which Barrett had once ridden with Elinor. Riding across its span again Barrett thought bitterly of his happiness that day.

The look of Bessie's parlor haunted him, as he looked dully on the gray stretch of water chilled by floating patches of slush-ice. The look of that room had told Barrett too much of Bessie Thorpe's needs, her husband's needs, the boys' needs. It was a clear and depressing chart.

Suddenly, as they reached the other side of the bridge, his eyes became a slit. He saw the way out. The one way out! He had been leaning back in the seat. Now he was suddenly erect and tense. He lighted a cigarette with nervous fingers, staring ahead with concentrated gaze that took in nothing before him.
 The thing had to be planned. He must think it through carefully, then go after it. Yes, it was the one way out!
 Bessie Thorpe evidently cared deeply for her niece. She was not the sort of woman who would blink to desert herself by leaving a family in a fix. She was fair. And with enough loving talking was possible. Pride could be surmounted.
 He could reach them all through Elinor, who had been cheated by an old lady's caprice and his unhappy place in Miss Sexton's affections.
 The car had halted before his door and he stepped from it briskly.
 "Wait," he instructed the chauffeur. He ran up the steps and into the mansion, picked up his library telephone without removing his heavy coat.

He gave a number and heard the answering voice. He said, "This is Barrett Colvin speaking. I wish to talk to Miss Elinor Stafford. Please ask her to speak with me. Tell her the matter is extremely urgent."
 There was a pause that seemed years. Barrett waited restlessly. Then Elinor's voice, a trifle unsteady, came over the wire.

CHAPTER XXI
 The last thing Elinor wished that morning was the further strain of seeing Barrett Colvin. He had, with a blunt, inconsiderate strength she had not dreamed he possessed, overridden her suggestion that she should wait for the interview until her father was better. As she said those last words her voice caught. "I must see you," Barrett repeated. "It is important for both of us."
 "I don't see how it could be, Mr. Colvin."
 "I'll explain that. I wouldn't bother you unless it was really necessary." He had not meant to bid bitterness creep into that last sentence but it had, in spite of the defense of will that he had erected against it. Well, since she enjoyed toying with aging hearts it might amuse her to laugh at their stiffened creakings.
 There was a silence. He broke it by saying, "I'm coming to see you immediately. I'll only stay a few moments. Will you see that I am admitted? I'm only asking because it's really necessary."
 "Yes, I'll see you for a few moments," Mr. Colvin, she promised after another brief silence.
 "Thank you," she heard. She put down the telephone. Benson stood waiting and she knew by his dejected look that something else of a troublesome nature had come up. "It's the druggist, Miss Elinor," Benson stated miserably. "He won't leave the medicine unless it is paid for—"
 Furze in hand, she hurried to the foyer where the delivery boy waited, a trifle insolent because of his instructions. She could still settle these small charges. But the two nurses, the doctor, the endless needs made by a critically sick patient—how would she manage to pay such bills? She had talked the money the rent's overdue two weeks. He had stammered that he needed his salary. He had two little girls and a w.e. who was not well. He had his own bills. Elinor dropped to a chair rather too suddenly, talking with him.

"How are things at the office, Mr. Gerould?" she had asked. "Bad," he told her bluntly, though his eyes were sympathetic. "You see," he stammered, "so many people were waiting with the expectation that Mr. Stafford would be remembered rather generously in Miss Sexton's will. The place is alive now with folks trying to collect what they can. I went down and saw the line this morning and turned right around and came away. The rent's overdue two months. The collector let it go, thinking—"
 "Yes, I know," she answered dully. She moistened her stiffened, drying lips. "How much did my father owe you?" she asked. She could not let that go. The man had worked faithfully for her father for years. Besides there were his two small daughters and his ailing wife.
 She paid him his salary with a ring worth twice the amount and $30 from her purse.
 "I'm awfully sorry for you, Miss Stafford," said the clerk, leaving. Her answering smile was a trifle twisted despite her effort to keep it genuine. "Thank you," she answered. People were kind but kindness would not buy drugs, comfort and ease for her father. He must have the right treatment, his chance to get well.
 Barrett Colvin's telephone call had come just after that. She received him in the drawing room. She had not been able to step into the library since she had seen the blood stains on a Chinese rug that light in hue, showed them clearly.
 "Miss Stafford," she heard Barrett say and saw him bow. She murmured something vague.
 "I'm going to sit down just a moment, please."
 She satiated after his words and he dropped to a chair facing her.
 "I have a business proposition to make to you," he began bluntly. "Yes?" she prompted.
 "A proposition that is—will be entirely one of a business nature. Will you keep that in mind, please?"
 "Yes."
 "I know, Miss Stafford—I have made a point of learning—that your credit is almost exhausted and that your father's business was on the verge of collapse before this—accident."
 Her rounded chin went up with a little jerk. He saw this and went on swiftly, smoothly.
 "I know and you know that Miss Elinor Sexton's will was unfair to your father and to your relatives, the Thorpes!"
 "Yes, but I don't blame you—"
 "That doesn't matter. What you and I feel about blame—or anything—can't matter in this affair. We must discuss it. It's entirely a business matter, a cold, emotionless affair which has to do with the righting of that unjust will. I want to give back to the Thorpes the money they should have had and need. I want to give your father the money that will help him in his chance to get well. I shall never touch a cent of the money left by Miss Sexton. Unless you help me it will go to charities in no particular need of it. The money really belongs to the Thorpes and your father."
 "You can help me right a tragic wrong," Barrett went on. "You can give your father his chance to get well, give peace to the Thorpes and an education to those three boys. Will you do this?"
 "How?"
 "By marrying me," he said slowly. She lost color and he went on hastily. "I'm asking you to live in my house as my guest for one year. In that way I can turn over to you and the Thorpes the money that is morally, if not legally, yours and theirs. It's the only way to rectify the mistake your aunt who unfortunately was sound of mind, if not of heart, when she made her will."
 "But why for a year?" Elinor asked brokenly. She was oddly dizzy and disoriented.
 "Because," he answered, "a year will quiet any idle talk there may be. I don't want anyone to know the reason for our marriage. The world would misunderstand. It might possibly see me as a hero instead of a man who merely happens to be honest enough not to want to rob others. I might see you as a girl who sold herself instead of a girl willing to forget herself in order to help someone else."
 He paused. He saw her draw a deep breath. She looked remarkably like a little girl who is balked at her lessons.
 "The Thorpes and their boys, your father—" Barrett reminded slowly.
 She hesitated. "I don't know—" She held a finger against her lips and he noticed that her hand was trembling. For a fleeting space and against her reason the old tenderness for her returned. He was shaken by the emotion which must, he felt, be wholly physical. How it persisted!
 "All I'm asking," he said, "is you immediately. I'll only stay a few moments. Will you see that I am admitted? I'm only asking because it's really necessary."

 "You can help me right a tragic wrong," Barrett went on. "You can give your father his chance to get well, give peace to the Thorpes and an education to those three boys. Will you do this?"
 "How?"
 "By marrying me," he said slowly. She lost color and he went on hastily. "I'm asking you to live in my house as my guest for one year. In that way I can turn over to you and the Thorpes the money that is morally, if not legally, yours and theirs. It's the only way to rectify the mistake your aunt who unfortunately was sound of mind, if not of heart, when she made her will."
 "But why for a year?" Elinor asked brokenly. She was oddly dizzy and disoriented.
 "Because," he answered, "a year will quiet any idle talk there may be. I don't want anyone to know the reason for our marriage. The world would misunderstand. It might possibly see me as a hero instead of a man who merely happens to be honest enough not to want to rob others. I might see you as a girl who sold herself instead of a girl willing to forget herself in order to help someone else."

He paused. He saw her draw a deep breath. She looked remarkably like a little girl who is balked at her lessons.
 "The Thorpes and their boys, your father—" Barrett reminded slowly.
 She hesitated. "I don't know—" She held a finger against her lips and he noticed that her hand was trembling. For a fleeting space and against her reason the old tenderness for her returned. He was shaken by the emotion which must, he felt, be wholly physical. How it persisted!
 "All I'm asking," he said, "is that for a year you will, in public, conduct yourself as my wife. You will have to forego, for the time, the admiration to which you have been accustomed."

 She smiled a little at that but he did not understand her smile.
 "And in turn," he continued more weightily. "I give you my word that I will never raise my hand to touch you except before others. We may have to masquerade a little before others. You can have my word that you will be safe and that I will do everything to make the situation as easy for you as possible."
 He saw her moisten her lips, hesitate.
 Benson appeared in the broad doorway. "It's that Mr. Streeter again, Miss Stafford," he said apologetically. "He pushes past me and refuses to go. He says he must see you. He won't wait."
 "A collector?" Barrett asked. Elinor nodded and his gaze followed a swallow on the rounded, solid column of her throat. For a moment she closed her eyes.
 "I'll deal with him," said Barrett as a small, round man appeared in the door.

SIMPLICITY STYLENOTE FOR SOCIETY'S "YOUNGEST" SET

You'll See No Frills Or Gee-Gaws On Children Of The Rich.

NO FURBELOWS FOR THEM!

By JULIA BLANSHARD
 New York—When you see the little children of millionaires on an outing it positively makes you believe in being rich—they are so healthy, so well-cared for, so cute. Quite contrary to some misconceptions, no children's clothes in America can compare in simplicity with those of the little Master and Misses. If you want your children to look smart, take a lesson in simplicity from them.
 However, they usually are of the fine materials, all more by hand, with exquisite hand-worked touches or edging; of real lace. Simple they are, but luxuriously expensive in that simplicity.
 White linen suits for little boys are practically ubiquitous, except for little shavers four years old and under, who are apt to appear in shorts of blue, pink, yellow or green, often with white batiste or other sheer little white or matching shirts, buttoned on. Little girls' dresses often simulate the boys' collars, belts and short little sleeves of their Mama's new dresses. But they are always restrained.
 Dressing alike, Little Linda, at her grand mother's garden party the other day, had on a sweet little very fine embroidered Swiss dress (embroidered all over in the tiniest little sprig of flowers) made with a few little gathers at the neck, with a little Peter Pan collar, armholes and the bottom of the dress scalloped and then edged in the narrowest of little fine laces.

That for a year you will, in public, conduct yourself as my wife. You will have to forego, for the time, the admiration to which you have been accustomed."
 She smiled a little at that but he did not understand her smile.
 "And in turn," he continued more weightily. "I give you my word that I will never raise my hand to touch you except before others. We may have to masquerade a little before others. ## YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton
 CHILDREN'S HEALTH SERVICE, INC.
FACE THE FACT THAT BOYS MUST SWIM
 "Jerry, where are you going?" Jerry looked at Tom and Al as much as to say, "There—didn't I tell you? She won't let me."
 No use holding his bathing suit in a little ball under his off-side arm any longer.
 "Why just over to the park pool—it's open today. It's all right, isn't it?"
 "No sir, it isn't. I'm not going to have you going in that little bit of a lake with a couple of hundred children. There are germs in that water. You'll get water in your mouth and it works up into your ears from inside. I haven't any time to worry with an ear infection all summer!"
 "Aw, Mom, I went in last year and nothin' happened. It's Cousin Annie, I know. She was tellin' you 'not to let me. I heard her talkin' about germs."
 "Never mind Cousin Annie."

A Debate on Germs
 Jerry started to "chew at his nails, then remembering something he stooped and got the wad of gum he had stuck under the porch step that morning when eating an ice cream cone bought when Tony came around with his car."
 "The lake's nice and clean," said Albeit. "They make you go in under a shower now first and wash your face and hands and feet with soap."
 "That helps some," said Jerry's mother, but not enough. Germs aren't all on faces and hands and feet."
 "My mother says it's safer than the river," declared Tom.
 "I don't believe in swimming any place but lakes and oceans," was her answer.
 "But, Mom, there aren't any lakes and oceans around here and we're awful hot."
 "Well, go on this time, but I know I shouldn't let you. I'll speak to your father tonight."
 The boys raced off before she could change her mind.
 Giving it a Try
 That night Jerry's dad said, "I don't suppose it's any worse than any place else. It's a good pool with a lot of fresh water running in and out and it gets the sun. Besides they have the shower now. There is also a life guard."
 "Germs!" The kid sets all kinds of dirt. It's more important to get him to stop biting his nails and stop sticking his gum around the way he does. And those cones of Tony's you let him eat are made in a dirty cellar. Germs lodge in throats and work up into ears in many other ways besides swimming. And by the way, swimming in the country in a creek isn't so safe either. Springs with typhoid empty into creeks, you know. This pool is at least filled with filtered city water."
 "I hope it's all right," she sighed. "Why do boys have to swim?"
 "I don't know. Just the nature of the beast," said dad. "Let him gargle with salt water when he comes home and we'll just have to take a chance, that's all."

A species of trapdoor spider, which is native to India, Australia, Africa and South America, kills small birds and sucks their blood. It is the largest of all spiders.
 The third and final volume of "The Journal" of Arnold Bennett is out now covering the years 1921-1928. Like its predecessor, it is gossipy and informative, filled with anecdotes and chat about the people the novelist saw, the work he did and the thoughts that went through his mind during the last years of his life. Incidentally, it also gives a picture of a creative artist who was growing more and more interested in manual success, as reflected in his sales and his income.
 It's an entertaining book to dip into at random. Do you care to know what Bennett thought of Dreiser's "An American Tragedy"? He wrote when he started to read it that it was "written in a very clatteringly way... the mere writing is simply bloody-careless, clumsy, terrible." But when he had finished it, he concluded that it was "fine and impressive, and one of the finest of all American novels."
 Then he tells of a dinner party with Sinclair Lewis. "Lewis soon began to call me 'Arnold,' and once began to call me 'Arnold' about 100 times. He has things to learn, but I like him." He writes of a chat with John Barrymore, actor and reports that Barrymore told him that "the U. S. A. was the worst place to live in the whole world." He reads a volume of H. L. Mencken and comments: "This fellow is getting better. He has a general basis of common sense, and really writes very well for a journalist." You could fill columns with similar quotations... all very readable.

 Viking is offering this book at $3. It is also issuing a one-volume edition of the three volumes, priced at $5 and chosen as the June book of the Literary Guild.

HEALTH

RETARDED BLOOD SUPPLY CAUSES GANGRENE OF FINGERS AND TOES.
 Condition Usually Begins With Sudden Coldness and Numbness of Member; Nerve Operation May Bring Relief.
 BY DR. MORRIS FISHER
 Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Investigators in medicine have begun to distinguish various diseases which in different ways bring about gangrene, particularly of the fingers and toes.
 Raynaud, the French physician who first described this condition, wrote about it in 1862. In the form called Raynaud's disease there is never a complete blocking of the circulation of blood to the limb such as occurs, for example, when a clot of blood blocks an artery which supplies a toe with blood and in that way causes gangrene.
 However, there may be spasms of the blood vessels sufficient to prevent a suitable blood supply.
 Moreover, in Raynaud's disease the gangrene is likely to appear on both sides, whereas in the other form of gangrene only one side is usually affected.
 Usually the condition begins with a sudden coldness and numbness of a finger or a toe, lasting from a few minutes to hours, followed by the development of gangrene. There is, of course, another condition called Burger's disease in which changes take place in the blood vessels resulting in the appearance of gangrene in the limb.

 Raynaud's disease seems to occur more often in women than in men. It was thought up to recent times that Burger's disease occurred only in men, but subsequently a few cases have been reported in women.
 Among recent methods of treatment suggested for the control of this condition has been an operation which involves cutting away certain parts of the sympathetic nervous system, near the spinal cord, which control the upper and lower extremities. In one group of cases the symptoms disappeared for a period of five months only to recur when the function was apparently taken over by other portions of the nervous system.
 A proof of the fact that the sympathetic nervous system has been cut off, exposure to heat of the portion affected will not be followed by perspiration. At the end of eight months the perspiration develops again and at this time the symptoms of Raynaud's disease also return.
 Nevertheless, the nature of the disease is so definitely progressive and its control so difficult that the operation is considered worth while in cases in which it may be attempted with a reasonable certainty of recovery. Sometimes a change to a warm climate gives relief to patients in the early stages of this disease.

 Genevieve Tobin, whose old-fashioned couterie is mighty smart or Genevieve, wears a heavy white Shantung silk sports frock with silver buttons and a silver belt buckle as the only touches of adornment. It is particularly smart, because the buttons actually button something, those on the waist buttoning down the cape yoke and fastening the front of the waist, those on the skirt buttoning shut the skirt. She adds a few silver bracelets, for good luck!
 Colleen Moore, dancing at the Coconut Grove with hubby, Al Scott, wore heavy white pearly crepe dress with a halter, laced fastened by a single emerald green velvet bottom, and green girdle to match, topped by an emerald green velvet jacket with slit sleeves and a slit below the neckline in the back.
 Mae Clark, dancing at the Coconut Grove, wore a white pebbly crepe evening gown with a small cape of the same material held in place with large gold buttons.
 Joan Crawford, going to the movies with Franchot Tone, wore a three piece navy blue linen suit, with square silver buttons. The skirt was pleated in the back and so was the three-quarters swaggar coat. Her white linen waist was stitched in blue linen and fastened with smaller square silver buttons. Her blue linen hat was banded in white.

ALL STAR TEAMS MEET TOMORROW

Best Players from Both Leagues to Clash at Chicago — Expect 49,000 Spectators.

By William Weekes.
Chicago, July 5.—(AP)—Baseball's game of games—the American League's best against all-stars of the National League—will be played tomorrow.

John Joseph McGraw will come out of retirement for a day to lead the National League against his old baseball foe, Connie Mack, director of the American League's battle front.

The most famous sluggers of each league will swing their bats against the stuff of the pitchers considered by the fans of the country, as the best in their organizations.

The receipts, less the amount required to stage the big event, will be given to the Association of Professional Baseball Players of America, which cares for the game's underprivileged.

The teams were selected by a national vote of fans, conducted by the Chicago Tribune, plus the desires of Manager Mack and McGraw.

The receipts, less the amount required to stage the big event, will be given to the Association of Professional Baseball Players of America, which cares for the game's underprivileged.

Mack has selected as his sides, Eddie Collins, general manager and vice president of the Boston Red Sox, and Art Fletcher, coach of the New York Yankees.

McGraw has picked a pair of active managers, Bill McKechnie of the Boston Braves and Max Carey of the Brooklyn Dodgers to assist him during the game.

The Manchester Rec Girls Baseball team will play Gible's Soda Shop at the Charter Oak Street diamond tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Gible's Soda Shop is one of the best junior teams in town and proved its ability last Sunday in the preliminary to the Manchester Green game at Jarvis Grove by playing a 5 all the game with the older Hill Billy team from Bolton.

The Rec Girls have won 6 games and tied one. The game with the Saxon A. C. men's semi-pro aggregation from Norwich, who will play a return game here Sunday afternoon at 3:15 on the Mt. Nebo diamond. Four of the victories for the Rec Girls were against boys' teams and they hope to add Gible's team to the list.

The Rec Girls will use the following lineup tomorrow night:

McCarthy, pitch or leftfield.
Cole, first base.
Haugh, second base.
Prentiss, shortstop.
Webb, third base.
Mohr, leftfield or pitch.
Mitchell, centerfield.
Willey.
Wirtala, rightfield.
Emonds.

NEW BRITAIN TRIPS D-C LEGION TEAM

Hit Hard to Pile Up Early Lead — Errors Costly for Locals.

New Britain's Legion team were on a hitting spree Monday night, collecting 17 hits off two Manchester pitchers and combined these with Manchester errors to score 14 runs.

The New Britain team is a well balanced ball club and looks good in all departments of the game, especially their battery of Cox and Tierney.

The Manchester players did not display their usual game as 8 errors were made which counted heavily in the New Britain scoring. It just seemed to be an off night as errors were made that might have been easy outs, and balls hit by Manchester players seemed to shoot to a waiting New Britain man for an out instead of a hit.

All of the New Britain players hit safely. The star batsman of the game was Kaczynski who connected for three clean hits. Cox pitched a nice game showing good control and a good fast ball.

Gardner started the game for Manchester but was replaced by Sullivan in the 6th. Both pitchers pitched well but only two runs were scored during the three innings Bycholski worked.

Sullivan pulled off the best play of the game by taking a hard hit ball in right center field while traveling at full speed. Judd, who substituted for Cox as catcher, turned in a very good game behind the bat, handling the pitchers well and his throws to the bases stopped attempts at stealing.

Tonight the local team travel to New Britain for a return game and the boys are hot in their determination to avenge Monday's defeat.

DOUBLE VICTORY FOR SUB-ALPINES

Trim Pioneers 9 to 6 in Morning and Wassucs 4 to 2 in Afternoon.

The peppery Sub-Alpines cannonaded their way to a double victory yesterday trouncing the strengthened Pioneers 9 to 6 in the morning at Mt. Nebo and then they nosed out the fast Wassuc A. C. of Glastonbury 4 to 2 at Glastonbury in the afternoon.

Fraser Stars
"Chick" Fraser gave his brother "Herb" a lesson in pitching in the morning game. "Chick" allowed only six hits and fanned five batters. The Pioneers took a two run lead in the fourth inning when the Pioneers made two bad errors. The Pioneers scored three runs in the sixth inning when the Pioneers made two bad errors.

HARVARD AND CORNELL MAY REACH THE FINALS

Draw Best Positions for Trial Heats in Intercollegiate Boat Races at Long Beach, Calif.

Long Beach, Calif., July 5.—(AP)—The self-appointed experts who foregather along the Olympic rowing course and nod their heads knowingly as six racing shells knite the salt water are predicting that Harvard and Cornell are more than likely to be listening for the starter's gun in the finals of the National intercollegiate sprint race Saturday.

It's all due to the fact that both eastern boatloads crew lane Number 4 in their respective heats — Friday's tests which will eliminate two of the six contenders for honors which are sought by three crews from each side of the water — and Harvard and Cornell are more than likely to be listening for the starter's gun in the finals of the National intercollegiate sprint race Saturday.

The West Sides went to Glastonbury yesterday afternoon, playing the All-Glastonbury, 10-5. Nicholson pitched for All-Glastonbury and was nipped for 13 hits but kept them well scattered. Hewitt was also nipped for 13 hits but eight errors behind him lost the game. Hank McCann and Fritz Wilkinson both made three misplays which were very costly.

Promotional arrangements to one side, Carnera faces the following disadvantages in meeting Bear:

Bear is his own age.
Bear, unlike Sharkey who fought a rather cautious and slow fight, throws punches at the rate of a mile a minute.
Bear has one of the best right hands the many art of self-defense ever has seen.
Bear can take it, on the body or the chin, wherever the Primo may land. Bear is from the same school of apex from which Carnera has been graduated. The difference in their status is that Bear is a post-graduate.

JOHNNY MILLER BESTS PHILA. COLORED GIANTS

Gems Lose First Game, 7-3; Win Second, 3-2 — Putnam Stars at Bat.
The Gems broke even in a double header with the Philadelphia Colored Giants yesterday in Bulkeley Stadium, losing the first game, 7-3, and winning the nightcap, 3-2. Putnam's winning streak was broken when the Giants touched the former Hartford Eastern League flinger for eight hits. Poor fielding behind him was responsible for several runs.
In the second game Johnny Miller held the Gems to eight hits, well scattered. Red Putnam, Gems' centerfielder led at bat with two triples, a double and a single in eight trips to the plate.
The flinging of Ross in centerfield for the Gems was sensational. He made nine catches, several nearly against the fence in the first game.
The Gems play the House of David at the stadium Wednesday evening, July 12.

BAER MAY MAKE CLOWN OF DA PREEM

Coast Youngster No Set-Up for Man Mountain — If They Meet.

By BILL BRUCHER
NEA Service Sports Editor
New York, July 5.—Primo Carnera has just finished an easy fight. Now he faces a hard one.
The Atlativo Alp looked unbearable against a faded Sharkey, particularly in the sixth round when he sent a right uppercut crashing against the Bostonian's chin.
But Max Baer, if and when the bout is arranged (probably in September), will turn out to be a couple of horses of vastly different colors.
In the general hurrah over Carnera's crushing victory over the enigmatic squire there are several factors which must not be shelved. It was a shell of the old Sharkey that Carnera sent spinning to the floor, a Sharkey who fought hard against the defects of age, fat and shortness of breath.
Carnera expressed it aptly himself when he burst into his dressing room after the victory, looking back disdainfully upon the proceedings of the evening, it seemed even easier than that.
Sharkey's effort may be summed up in a word as futile. He made the last desperate stand of a man too old to fight. But from the very first punch he threw, it was plain he didn't have it.
Sharkey's weakness made Primo great—for the night. How great he will prove to be depends upon one man—Baer. After the fight that last month, it would be silly to send Carnera against anyone other than the California cave man. The bout stands out, crying to be made. And, facing Baer, Carnera will find an entirely different sort of tomato from the softened Sharkey on his hands.
Baer has the youth and the very first found south had slipped away. Baer had the primitive urge. Baer has the hard boyish body that Primo will find vastly different from Sharkey's. And Baer, unlike Sharkey who has been retrogressing, has been improving, just as Primo himself improved over the years ago in his cross-country tour against stumble-bums. Baer will have to learn how to get inside that left hand that Carnera poked out against Sharkey's rushes, a long, pushing left that appeared at times like a telephone pole thrust into the square's pan.
While he must school himself to avoid the uppercut that rocked Sharkey to sleep, Baer is a great deal different from Sharkey in the matter of taking them. If Carnera discovers that his best Sunday punch has the same effect on Baer as a schoolboy's beanbag, he may laugh on the other side of his mountainous jaws.
If Baer will put up against Carnera the same sort of fight he carried to Max Schmeling, the myth of the invulnerable man mountain will be destroyed.

Of course, there will be complications in contracting for this meeting between the monsters. Baer is tied up with Dempsey. Carnera is on the dotted line for one more fight under the auspices of Madison Square Garden and can be worked out in one of two ways. Dempsey will yield his privileges to the Garden, with an understanding, or Dempsey will move into the Garden himself as promoter.
Comment heard at the ringside was all for Dempsey moving into the Garden, which would mean that Jimmy Johnston, the old boy bandit of Broadway, would move out.
Promotional arrangements to one side, Carnera faces the following disadvantages in meeting Bear:

Bear is his own age.
Bear, unlike Sharkey who fought a rather cautious and slow fight, throws punches at the rate of a mile a minute.
Bear has one of the best right hands the many art of self-defense ever has seen.
Bear can take it, on the body or the chin, wherever the Primo may land. Bear is from the same school of apex from which Carnera has been graduated. The difference in their status is that Bear is a post-graduate.
From which you may gather that Max Baer is the man to bring that heavyweight championship back from Italy and sink all the gondolas in Venice.

RUTH SLAMS OUT HIS 18TH HOMER

Over 77,000 Fans See Contest — Boston Red Sox Score Double Victory Over Athletics 14-4, 9-1.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
A. F. Sports Writer
It seems to be an established fact that Babe Ruth and Company, still are baseball's best drawing cards. This has been indicated before this season when the Yankees helped set attendance records at Chicago and Detroit, but it took the Fourth of July doubleheader to prove the point.

SENSE and NONSENSE

DIFFICULTIES:
Some men smile in the evening,
Some men smile at dawn,
But the man worth while
Is the man who can smile
When his two front teeth are gone.

"What do you think of my game?" asked a local lady bridge enthusiast of her partner. He replied: "Oh, I guess it is all right, but I'd much rather play bridge."

Jones was peevish because his wife failed to keep the buttons sewed on his shirt. Finally, one day when he was about to go shopping with her, he remarked:
"Jones—Oh, by the way, remind me to get some needles and thread when we're out dear."
Wife (giving him a dazzling smile)—You silly, extravagant boy, you can always borrow mine, you know.

A miss was asked what she would do if her boy friend told her he was dying for a kiss. "I expect I'd render first aid," she replied.

Allice—You seem to like Jack's attentions. Why don't you marry him?
Beatrice—Because I like his attentions.

JULY BREEZES: A man should make his wife his silent partner, says one editor. Where does he get that "silent" stuff? . . . Still, you have to hand it to a president who has Congress under his thumb—ways provide for the worst—the heat can take care of itself. . . . Egotists are like eggs—too full of themselves to hold anything else. . . . The young man who steals a kiss without first warning the girl misses the best part of the performance. . . . Why should we worry about our growing national debt? Posterity is just around the corner, too. . . . Any woman can raise a man up from the gutter—! he is not too heavy. . . . Our idea of a poor place to spoon is at the fork of the road. . . . One advantage of being buried in oblivion is that there are no undertaker bills to pay. . . .

Mr. Henpeck—My wife has charge of the children. Also the servant, dog, cat, canary, and, in fact, the entire household, but I can say pretty much what I please to the goldfish.

Some time ago we read where germs cling to money, and from all indications they have eaten it.

If you are unable to change other people's opinions, why not try changing your own once in a while.

Smoke!
Day after day, when factory fires are dead,
The air is clean, but loitering everywhere,
Men, sullen eyed, with grim, disheartened air,
Look darkly at the blue sky overhead.

The stores are empty. Girls whose cheeks were red,
Sit, white-faced now, within their homes where
Even hungry children share
The Watch. To them, black smoke means meat and bread.

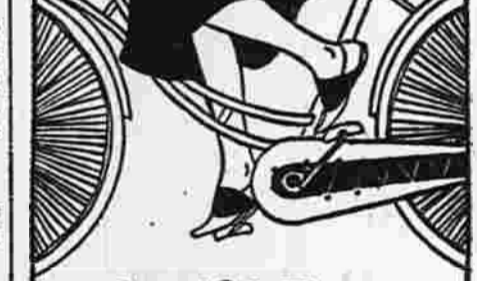

But when the rolling smoke curls toward the sky
From towering stacks, the town is swiftly gay,
The stores are filled with eager folk,
Men, whistling, go to work with head held high,
And, happy, laughing children are at play
Today there is a sign of belching smoke.

James—Two months ago I never dreamed that you would rest this blonde head against my shoulder.
Jessie—Nonsense. We were engaged then.
James—But at that time you were a brunette.

FORESTY CAMP VISIT DESCRIBED

Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson Inspect Nipmuck Foresters in Union.

Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson of Bissell street inspected the Forestry Camp in the Nipmuck State Forest, Union, Conn., yesterday and were shown through the camp by Albert L. Gibbs of Waterbury, Conn., orderly for Captain William H. Spidel, Camp Commander.

listed men and eight forestry experts or technicians, a total of 243 men in Camp. Captain Spidel, U. S. Infantry is assisted in managing the camp by Major Otto Schroeter, C. N. G., Civilian Forestry Supervisor.

The camp is on the west side of the Worcester-Hartford state road 12 miles east of Stafford Springs. The camp consists of the Captain's office, officer's tents, recreation tents, hospital, kitchen, forester's camp, and the sleeping tents for the camp personnel.

Two hundred and ten men are working, building paths, roads and fire lanes in the forest at present under the direction of the supervisors. Lanes, paths and roads will be built through hundreds of acres of virgin forest. The men work 8 hours daily, the rest of the day the men play ball, swim, or anything they like.

One of the novelties at the Union camp is a hillside underground ice-box, shoveled out of the side of the hill in back of the camp. Orders have been received to construct living quarters or barracks of wood in preparation for the cold weather. There are 11 U. S. Army trucks in camp and one mail truck. During rainy weather the men spend their time in the large recreation tent where a radio, a player piano, and magazines help to while away the idle hours.

In answer to a query by Mrs. Johnson regarding how the boys like camp, Gibbs said that there had been no complaints about 'being homesick' and that the men were satisfied with their fare and camp life in general.

A suggestion to those intending to visit any of the forestry camps is to take along a supply of current magazines, periodicals and books—they are in good demand by the forestry workers.

Mrs. Thora Stehr will present her piano pupils in their closing recital this evening at the South Methodist church parlors. Shirley Clemons, juvenile reader, will assist. Parents, friends and the general public will be welcome.
