LEGION FIREWORKS SHOW ON TUESDAY

Committee Arranges to Give Another Display to Make Good to Public for Pro- gram Rained Out Night of Fourth—To Make Public Statement on Finances for This Year.

A big display of fireworks, set pieces and aerial bombs will be given at the Old Golf grounds off East Center street Tuesday night under the auspices of Dilworth-Cornell Post, The American Legion, as a "make good" show to the public for the program that was "rained out" the night of the Fourth. The Legion fireworks committee today announced that it had made satisfactory arrangements with the manufacturer of the Fourth's display to put on another exhibit absolutely free. The New Haven fireworks manufacturer seemed anxious to put on another display here in order to maintain the good will of the Legion post and the people of Manchester.

To Start at 9 P. M.
Tuesday night's show will start promptly at nine o'clock. The fireworks company has agreed to have the display here Tuesday morning set up in time to be shown at nine in the evening. Should anything develop in the meantime to interfere with the showing of the fireworks the committee will let the public know through Tuesday evening's Herald.

Crowd Disturbed

As is known to the people the program on the night of the Fourth was an hour late in starting due to inability of the manufacturer to get his set pieces arranged after given the word to go ahead. Rain threatened during the evening and it was doubtful that the fireworks could be shown. When the first set pieces were started rain began to fall. It fell heavily during the rest of the hurried program and many of the pieces did not discharge properly. The delay in starting, the failure of the set pieces to behave properly and the rain served to fix the big crowd and considerable criticism followed.

Owed Show To Public

The committee members felt as badly as anyone at the outcome and were anxious to explain their position in the affair so that the townspeople would be satisfied. It was agreed that the Legion owed a fireworks program to the people and in turn the committee felt that the fireworks manufacturer owed the Legion a "make good" display. Last night a conference was held with the New Haven manufacturer and it

SHUTE WINS OUT IN BRITISH OPEN

Defeats His Countryman, Craig Wood, in An All- American Playoff.

St. Andrews, Scotland, July 8.—(AP)—H. Denmore Shute, 28-year-old American professional from Philadelphia, today captured the British open golf championship, beating his countryman, Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., in an All-America 36-hole playoff.
Shute led from the first hole to the last and defeated Wood by five strokes with a fine exhibition of all around shot-making.
The new champion shot the double round in 75-74—149, only three strokes over par for the 36 holes. Wood's score was 78-76—154.

SUSPEND NEWSPAPER

The Taegliche Rundschau championed the cause of Friedrich von Bodelschwingh, whom the Non-Nazi elected as bishop of the Reich.

ROCKEFELLER, 94, WOULD REACH 100

"After That I Shall Really Begin to Live," He Tells Reporters.

By MELVIN E. COLEMAN
Stepping toward the sunset of a long life, John D. Rockefeller reached his 94th milestone today. He wants to reach 100 and then—"After that I shall really begin to live."

The old man of the firm glasses, giving away dimes or reading bits of verse to chance acquaintances on golf courses, is but a reflection of the 17 year old bookkeeper, who worked for $4 a week in Cleveland six years before Sumner was fired. "It is the duty of every man to get all the money he honestly can and give away all he can," was his creed then. He still lives up to it. His account book of the early days shows such items as "50 cents to a poor woman." The records of his New York accounts today show he has given away publicly in the last twenty years something like $48,000,000. His unannounced benefactions cannot even be generally known. Once it was estimated he was

EDUCATIONAL PLAN FOR FOREST CORPS

Young Men in State Camps Listen to Lectures on Na- ture Subjects.

New Haven, July 8.—(AP)—A broad program of education for the boys who are working in Connecticut's forests and parks has been launched by State Forester Austin F. Hawes, of Hartford.
Fire service rangers, foresters, game wardens, fire wardens, nature students and forestry experts have been enlisted to speak at each of the 12 Civilian Conservation Corps camps in Connecticut.
The program started this week with one man speaking at each camp, talking to the boys informally over the camp fire, and outlining to them the forestry and fire prevention work in this state.
State Forester Hawes spoke at one camp, while District Foresters S. E. Parker and Eugene Winch, Forester R. M. Ross and J. A. Gibbs, extension forester at Connecticut State college, went to others.
Fire Service Ranger C. W. Standish, State Game Warden A. J. Williams and Forest Engineer W. F. Schreeder also gave talks.
Other Speakers
Among the other speakers were E. M. C. Eddy, supervisor of wardens; Professor H. H. Chapman of the Yale School of Forestry; Russell F. Lund, in charge of nature trails; and Arthur Clark, superintendent of the state board of fisheries and game.
Further educational talks have been scheduled for July 13, 20, and 27, with a new program to be arranged for the month of August.
Boys Are Interested
Meanwhile, the weekly reports submitted to Forester R. M. Ross of the Connecticut forest and park association in New Haven, showed the recruits have undertaken educational pursuits on their own initiative.
J. J. Dagnall of Camp Toumey reported numerous ambitious entomologists chasing about the woods, net in hand, in quest of butterflies.
At Camp Walcott an orchestra has been organized and musicians are practicing assiduously under the direction of Lieutenant Haggerty.
Walter Shaw of Camp Graves reported the workers there have taken a keen interest in books and magazines contributed by charitable organizations, while all camp foremen said their men are becoming versed in nature lore from their observations in the forest.

GLASS-STEAGALL BILL IS AID TO SMALL TRADESMEN

Another Article Written in Simple Terms Explains Important Laws Recently Passed by Congress.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another of a series of stories explaining new legislation.
Washington, July 8.—(AP)—A main objective of the Glass-Steagall bank reform law is to make more bank credit available for business loans at home and less for speculation.
It empowers the Federal Reserve Board to control the uses to which banks put credit they derive from membership in the reserve system. Senator Glass says this will help prevent stock market booms and crashes like that of 1929. He contends too much bank credit went to Wall street to build up that boom.
The Federal Reserve system was created in 1913 to help banks combine their strength to supply business with the capital it needed.
Details of Plan
The banks that joined as members had the right to discount commercial paper with the Federal Reserve bank of their district. That meant that after lending most of the money in their vaults to merchants, contractors, banks could get more cash by selling the notes of these merchants and contractors to the reserve bank. The new cash was generally supposed to go into the community for normal operation and growth.
Instead, in boom times, many

To Exchange Art Objects With the Spanish Republic

Cambridge, Mass., July 8.—(AP)—Directors of the Fogg Art Museum of Harvard University today announced an unusual exchange of valuable art treasures with the Spanish government.
The transfer restores to the Republic of Spain the famous Sahagun Tomb, most ancient sculptured sepulchre of the Middle Ages period in Europe. The tomb was long sought by the National Archaeological Museum of Spain because of its great historical significance and was recently located in the possession of the Fogg Museum.
The directors said arrangements have been completed for return of the tomb to Spain and as an act of gratitude, the Spanish authorities have arranged a presentation to Harvard of a collection of objects of great artistic value.
Included among the articles to be sent from Spain to the Fogg Museum is a marble column from the monastery of San Poyo in Santiago; a double capital of the 13th Century from a monastery in Palencia; and a collection of ancient Spanish pottery and figurines.
The Sahagun Tomb was presented to the Fogg Museum in 1926 and has recently been on display in the great hall of the museum. It is a striking piece of marble carved with the figures of angels, which served as the sepulchral stone of Alfonso, son of Count Pedro Ansur, and tutor and counselor of King Alfonso XI. The date of the tomb is placed between 1093 and 1131 and is described by museum authorities as "the most ancient sculptured capital existing within the Middle Ages in Europe."

After more than five hours questioning Schuster has come forward with a clean confession State Police say, admitting his guilt and lying to liquor.
State Policeman Thomas Hunt and Donald A. Crossman placed Schuster under arrest at 10 o'clock yesterday morning and late in the afternoon the confession was made.

BRIDGEPORT YOUTH TRIES BLACKMAIL

But Is Trapped Near Cem- tery Where He Goes to Collect $800.

Bridgeport, July 8.—(AP)—Trapped near a cemetery, where he had gone to receive $800, demanded in a threatening note, Cornell Vangor, 25, of Bridgeport, today was held in $5,000 bond at Fairfield, charged with attempted blackmail and extortion. H. Thurston Decker, of Fairfield, the intended victim, is a supervising manager for a chain store organization.
Police, who with citizens captured Vangor, who had used a telescope in an effort to prevent them from approaching unawares at the place of rendezvous among the lonely graves of the Fairfield cemetery, declared today that the youth had threatened to abduct Decker's eight year old daughter if he did not pay the $800 demanded.
Youth Confesses
Vangor, who has been identified as an employee of Decker, is said by police to have confessed his part in the extortion attempt and to have identified a letter and a map which Decker early yesterday received by special delivery through the mails.
Decker, immediately upon receipt of the letter appealed for protection to the Bridgeport police. With an intricately devised map of the Mountain Grove burial grounds aided by stones that had been smeared by paint, it was ordered that Decker make payment near a certain monument bearing the name of Edwards, and located within a stone's throw of monuments erected to the memory of P. T. Barnum and General Tom Thumb.
Two bodies recovered, a man and woman, were still unidentified today. Among the missing were Mrs. Sylvia Soderman of Denver, and her daughter, Eunice, 4, who were swept from the arms of the husband and father, Vincent E. Soderman.
"I was clinging to my wife and daughter, when the flood struck us and we were whirled about like straws," Soderman said.
They Disappear
"I was crushed against a tree by a wave and I lost my hold on them, and they disappeared."
Soderman said he was in the water for a half hour before he was washed against a bank and found he could touch bottom.
Several hundred terror stricken motorists and residents of the towns escaped death by clambering up the mountainside.
Besides the Sodermans, others missing included:
Leon Conde, 14 and his brother, Buddy, 12, both of Evergreen, Colo.
Marietta McIntyre, 20, of Denver.
Jack Burton, 52, of Middlefield.

MATTERN NOT INJURED WHEN FORCED TO LAND

Where Mattern Is Reported Safe

Unreported since June 15, when he took off from Khabarovsk for Nome, on a perilous leg of his attempted round the world flight, Jimmie Mattern, American aviator, was reported safe in Anadyr (see map), a trading post in the far northeast Siberia.

AMERICANS TO PRESENT CONSTRUCTIVE PROGRAM

President Sends New In- structions to London in Support of Plan to Discuss All Topics at Parley.

London, July 8.—(AP)—After having saved the life of the world economic conference by his order to fight to the finish against adjournment, President Roosevelt provided his delegation 19ra today with more ammunition to strive for the parley's success.
Cordell Hull, secretary of state and chief of the delegation, received the American President's instructions, which while it had not been entirely decided at midday, was known to contain guidance and was expected to tender assistance in carrying the American President's assignment for a world-wide price recovery.
Mr. Roosevelt's latest move aroused entirely different emotions in the two embattled camps — the gold bloc and the countries which support American policy.
The American group was jubilant at the prospect of being able to present concrete proposals to the parley in support of their desire for treatment of the full original agenda.
Leaders of the gold countries, however, declared that the President's program is designated to solidify what they characterize as the dollar sterling bloc, comprising the United States, the British Empire and a number of smaller states, and assist it to oppose the European gold standard nations.
The new dollar-sterling alliance was filled with vigor as the result of successes during the past two

FLOOD NEAR DENVER CLAIMS 2 VICTIMS

Nine Others Are Missing — Two Bodies Recovered Not Yet Identified.

Denver, July 8.—(AP)—A wall of water rushed without warning down Bear Creek canyon after a cloud burst, swept through the resort hamlet of Idaho Falls and the village of Albert T. Clark, Denver chief of police in command of rescue squads, said he believed at least nine were trapped by the waters late yesterday, and drowned.
Two bodies recovered, a man and woman, were still unidentified today. Among the missing were Mrs. Sylvia Soderman of Denver, and her daughter, Eunice, 4, who were swept from the arms of the husband and father, Vincent E. Soderman.

HUNDRED ENTERED FOR GRISWOLD CUP

Glenna Collet Vare Will Not Play Golf This Year at Eastern Point.

Eastern Point, Conn., July 8.—(AP)—One hundred or more women golfers will be entered in the annual invitation tournament for the Griswold cup at the Shenecott Club, beginning Monday.
The field will probably be the smallest in a decade which has seen as many as 280 competing at one time.
Among the missing this year will be Mrs. Glenna Collet Vare, last year's medalist and champion, whose interest in motherhood will prevent her from defending the trophy she could win permanently by taking it a third time.
In the absence of Mrs. Vare, there will be at least one and probably two possibilities that the Griswold Cup will be retired. Mrs. Dorothy Campbell, Harp of Philadelphia, is another possibility.

But Conflicting Reports Re- ceived As to Condition of Plane —Message Picked Up at San Francisco Says Machine Was Smashed to Pieces —Also States Flier Wandered for Weeks in Wilderness Before He Was Found.

By Associated Press.
Jimmie Mattern escaped unhurt in his forced landing in the Siberian wastes on his solo world flight.
Fragrant details of the plight of the Texan filtering through today from the northern rim of the Pacific brought that reassuring word. Messages picked up in both Moscow and San Francisco, relayed by the Coast Guard ship Northward, agreed on that point.
There was, however, disagreement as to the severity of the damage to Mattern's ship. As translated from Russian, as it was received in San Francisco, that message said the plane was "crushed to pieces," whereas the message picked up at Moscow by Tass (Russian news agency) said the flier was forced down by engine trouble and added that a new motor would be supplied to enable Mattern to continue his round-the-world flight.
The message received at San Francisco which wraps its brain in original stories to screen for the public, today presented all star cast in marquee lights which advertised two imminent divorces and one elopement.
The principals:
Richard Dix and his wife; the former Winifred Cox of San Francisco, for whom the actor says divorce is "inevitable."
William Powell and Carole Lombard, whose marriage is scheduled for dissolution in Nevada.
Dorothy Jordan, actress, and Merian C. Cooper, movie studio vice president, whose elopement to Williams, Ariz., last May 27, was revealed by Miss Jordan's mother.

SCATTERED DETAILS

Moscow, July 8.—(AP)—Fragmentary details received by Tass, (Russian news agency), today said Jimmie Mattern had been forced down 46.7 miles from Anadyr, Siberia, by engine trouble after leaving Khabarovsk, Siberia, June 14, on a projected flight to Nome.
The reports received from Khabarovsk said the American aviator had been given immediate assistance by Soviet frontier guards.
He will be supplied with a new motor and will continue the round-the-world flight, it was reported. A telegram was received yesterday from Mattern reading simply: "Safe at Anadyr, Chukotka, Siberia."
Jimmie Mattern said about the engine was so badly damaged it was impossible to make repairs with the limited facilities available at Anadyr.
Undoubtedly the Soviet government dispatched expert assistance to the flier's airplane, but detailed steps to rescue Mattern so far have not been disclosed.
The Tass dispatch did not give the date on which the American landed, or was it explained how much a long time was required to receive word that he was safe.

MESSAGE TRANSLATED

San Francisco, July 8.—(AP)—Jimmie Mattern, who started his world flight, crashed 80 miles west of Anadyr or his flight from Khabarovsk to Nome, a radio message relayed here from the Siberian city, said today.
The plane was demolished, the message said, but Mattern escaped unhurt.
The message was picked up by the United States Coast Guard cutter Northland, now in the Bering sea, and relayed here in Russian.
As translated by the Examiner, the message read:
"Flier Mattern on fourteenth of June had accident 80 miles west of Anadyr. Plane crushed to pieces. Mattern unhurt. On fifth of July, Mattern was found and brought to Anadyr where he is now staying."
The wireless as picked up by the Northland was not signed.
One of the translators, Alexander Mattison, dean of the Russian Trinity church of San Francisco, said the Russian phrase which he interpreted as "brought to Anadyr" implied the flier was in a state of exhaustion when found.

OTHER FLIGHTS

By Associated Press.
While preparations were under way today for rescuing Jimmie Mattern, plans for other flights were being pushed.
Mattern, an American airman missing since June 14, when he took off on a leg of a projected world tour, is safe in Northeastern Siberia and Russians and Americans started to find him.

VILLAGE WRECKED BY A HURRICANE

Hundreds of Animals Killed But No Loss of Human Lives Reported.

Mexico, D. F., July 8.—(AP)—Dispatches from Tampico today said that the village of Zacatecas in the state of Tamaulipas was destroyed by a hurricane. Heavy damage in other localities in northeastern Mexico also were reported.

All buildings in the village, which has a population of 300 and is about 165 miles south of Brownsville, Texas, were leveled. Hundreds of animals were reported killed, but it was not learned whether there was loss of human lives.

The weather bureau said the tropical storm which resulted in considerable damage in the states of Nuevo Leon and Tamaulipas, turned southwestward through the states of San Luis Potosi and Zacatecas and toward the Gulf coast.

Communications were interrupted throughout that part of Tamaulipas and it was feared there had been loss of life.

Ciudad Victoria was cut off by flood waters that submerged the National railway station. Nearby points also reported high water.

Rivers in that vicinity drain into the Rio Grande between Laredo and Brownsville, Texas, and floods along the lower Rio Grande were expected.

Days and received new inspiration from the incident that it was being given concrete material to place before the conference for consideration.

Opponents of the Anglo-American party frankly admitted concern at seeing Great Britain swing away from the gold bloc toward the dollar along with its dominions.

Organize Defense. There has been much talk that the gold countries should organize to "defend" themselves against what they consider a menace to their position as gold nations.

In high quarters connected with the dollar group it was said that there was a steadily growing tendency favoring going ahead with the full business of the conference irrespective of the gold bloc's attitude.

The gold countries do not like what is being done against their reservations but supporters of the dollar group said that there was much in the monetary field which could be done even without their support.

The gold allies, according to an authoritative source, at the moment have a two-point program providing first that while they will not quit the conference they will do everything possible to obstruct so that its proceedings may be ineffective and adjournment will come shortly.

The second reported point was to work to shift from the shoulders of France any responsibility for torpedoing the parity.

Georges Bonnet, French finance minister and chief of the gold group, remained in London over the week-end and was busy today with the week-end conferences. Among those he talked with American and British delegates.

Little activity over the week-end, but many of the leaders were busy working on plans for the coming week.

"Winifred loves her parents so sincerely that she is afraid that she finds a haven in being with them. For my part, I love my home, my pipe, my daily newspaper, then a shower and to bed."

FAMOUS NOVELIST DIES IN LONDON

London, July 8.—(AP)—Anthony Hope Hawkins, world famous under the pen name of Anthony Hope, died here today.

Sir Anthony Hope Hawkins, born February 9, 1863 in London, was widely known in America for his romances among the most popular of which were "The Prisoner of Zenda," "Rupert of Hentzau," "Tristram of Blent," "Quisante," and "Double Harness."

The author was knighted in 1913. Lady Hawkins, a native of Vermont, was Miss Elizabeth Somerville Sheldon.

The novelist was educated at Oxford, where he was president of the Union Society, and later was called to the bar.

Hope's "Prisoner of Zenda" set a fashion for what was called "Ruritanian Romance" after the fictitious locality in which the novel is set.

Another romance, "The Dolly Dialogues," was the forerunner of a whole school of epigrammatic drawing room comedy.

"The God in the Car," a novel which appeared in 1894 was suggested by the influence of Cecil Rhodes' career on English society. "Half a Hero" was a complementary study of Australian politics.

From an earlier book of "Light comers and tallies," and "Inventions" Anthony Hope advanced to a graver type of fiction which was embodied in a series of novels.

HAWES-COOPER MEASURE WORRIES PRISON HEADS

Inmates in State Institutions May Be Forced to Give Up Working.

Hartford, July 8.—(AP)—Officials and welfare workers are concerned over the effect which the Hawes-Cooper bill may possibly have on the morale of inmates at the Hartford county jail, the state prison at Wethersfield and similar institutions.

The bill, which passed the House of Representatives July 6, would require that inmates in state prisons, keeping prisoners actively employed, have been finding markets outside the state.

The effect of the law's passage, which next year will require that inmates in state prisons, keeping prisoners actively employed, have been finding markets outside the state.

The men to work at State Prison Warden Charles S. Reed said today. "To keep them in their cells doing nothing all day is a terrible condition."

MRS. MOODY WINS WIMBLEDON TROPHY

Wimbledon, England, July 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody successfully defended her Wimbledon championship today against Miss Dorothy Round, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3, after losing her first set in women's singles competition in six years.

To Save Court Expenses Two Negroes Fight It Out

Crisfield, Md., July 8.—(AP)—A unique method of dispensing justice was resorted to here recently. Algie Crippin and Louis White, two negroes, were brought before Magistrate Fred N. Holland on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

The magistrate conferred with Sheriff Luther Daugherty and they agreed it would be futile to put the couple to a $50 expense for imprisoning the negroes five days, the customary penalty.

ELLINGTON ROAD KILLER, CAUGHT, HAS CONFESSED

London, July 8.—(AP)—Anthony Hope Hawkins, world famous under the pen name of Anthony Hope, died here today.

After striking Kopyrnitz, Schuster left the body lying on the road, and proceeded to his home.

Replaced Parts of Car. Parts of an automobile found by the state police near the scene were identical with parts of the Ford owned by Schuster, which had been replaced by him. He did his own work in making the repairs.

The state police have suspected Schuster from the first due to the fact that he was mysteriously missing from his home and from this section of the state. Schuster has admitted that he left to avoid arrest.

For almost a week the state police checked up automobiles and worked with the Massachusetts state police, suspecting that the hit and run driver was from Springfield. It was at first believed that the hit-and-run car was of Massachusetts registration.

Coroner John H. Yeomans is expected to set a date for an inquest within the next twenty-four hours. Before that a score of witnesses will be brought before the coroner for the hearing.

SCHOOL JANITORS BUSY ON REFURBISHING JOBS

Several of Them Engaged in Turning 8th District Library Room into Kindergarten.

Regular janitor service is going on in the town's schools and will continue until July 15, when the new school year closes. The janitors are employed in all the schools getting the buildings cleaned up and making repairs where conditions require.

In the Eighth District there are a number of changes made or in the making. The ventilation system in the Hollister street school, which has never been good, has been given considerable attention and when school opens in the fall it is expected there will be no more trouble.

Perhaps the best kindergarten quarters in town will be provided at the Robertson school on North School street. The large room formerly used by the Manchester library, now quartered in the Whitton Memorial building provides ample space and several of the town's school janitors are at work there.

The floors have all been scraped and cleaned, sanded and put in first class condition. The sidewalls, covered for years by book shelves, have been retouched. There is ample light and air.

SEE HUGE VALUE CUTS IN EQUALIZATION PLAN

Sound Values of School Properties Likely to Be Only Third of Assessment Figures.

Gerald Patterson and Neal Cheney, engaged in establishing the equalization tax for the town, have progressed satisfactorily with the work to date. Contacts have been made with the district treasurers and much of the detail work in connection with the equalization is shaping up.

Brownsville, Tex., July 8.—(AP)—Torrential rains on the Mexican watershed of the Rio Grande, accompanying the destructive tropical hurricane which lashed the Gulf coast region between Brownsville and Tampico were expected today to cause floods along the lower Rio Grande.

However, high water was not considered likely to damage the rich agricultural lands on the American side of the river, for they are adequately protected by a flood control system. Land on the Mexican side was not so well protected.

Coast Guardsmen battled heavy seas yesterday to rescue Captain Angelo Rose and nine members of the crew of the fishing schooner "Mary Jane," of Galveston, wrecked on Padre Island 25 miles north of Point Isabel Thursday.

Efforts were being made to locate the schooner "Audley," which also took to sea when the storm swept westward across the Gulf Thursday. Fishermen Marooned.

Van Stromvogel and Cody Mitchell, fishermen whose shack was carried away, leaving them marooned on the sand dunes of Padre Island were rescued by coast guards and brought to the mainland.

Another fisherman caught on the island, Van Law, swam several hundred yards to the jagged end of the Don Patricio causeway, part of which had been washed away, and finally reached the mainland exhausted.

A fishing party of four persons from Brownsville, who had flown by airplane to the Chamel ranch in Mexico, were reported safe.

SEEK SOLOMON SUSPECT

Boston, July 8.—(AP)—The special duty squad of the Boston police department was on the prowl today for James J. "Skeets" Coyne, wanted in connection with the slaying of Charles "King" Solomon.

Police acted on a tip that Coyne had been seen in Boston speaking easily. Officers were warned that Coyne was heavily armed and "would use his guns if cornered."

An all-night tour of speakeasies failed to reveal Coyne but the special duty squad continued its search convinced their tip was good.

Coyne was last reported to the police in New Orleans, where it was said he was dying. He was believed to have come to Boston within the last few days.

SUES HIS LAWYER, GETS BIG VERDICT

Innocent Man Convicted of Murder Awarded $25,250 Damages for Negligence.

Rockford, Ill., July 8.—Convicted six years ago of a murder which he did not commit, Henry T. Olson has obtained an award of $25,250 in damages granted by a jury, against the attorney, Harry B. North, who failed to save him at his trial.

Several witnesses testified that North knew at the time of Olson's trial that the murder had been committed by two youths who have since confessed and are now serving terms in Joliet penitentiary.

North, a former State's Attorney, emphatically denied this.

The jury, agreeing with Olson that he had been greatly wronged through alleged negligence of the lawyer, reached a verdict on the first ballot. Olson had sued for $50,000.

Olson was falsely accused of murdering Floyd Starn, a gasoline station attendant, during a robbery. He was arrested, indicted and identified by the father of the slain man as the killer. This jury disagreed, but on a retrial Olson was found guilty and sentenced to a life term at Joliet.

A man convicted of a crime while a motion for another trial was pending, He went into seclusion in New Orleans.

Months later the real killers, George Bliss and Maurice Mehan, were apprehended. They made full confession, exonerating Olson, and Bliss was sentenced to thirty years and Mehan to fourteen years in prison.

Had Certain Knowledge. When Olson learned that he had been cleared, he came back to Rockford and by an exhaustive investigation which, he said, convinced him that North knew for certain that Bliss and Mehan had committed the murder.

This suit for damages was filed July 11, 1929, but came to trial only last week.

Two of the jurors who sat in the trial which resulted in Olson's conviction testified that North, in his opening statement, declared that he would "produce the killers at the proper time."

Another witness was Bliss, who declared that two weeks before the Olson conviction he was called to North's office and told by the lawyer: "I have known for some time that you were in that killing."

This was one of the points flatly contradicted by North.

FAMOUS BOW BELLS RING OUT AGAIN

London, July 8.—(AP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury touched a rope today and the famous Bow Bells rang for the first time in 117 years, sent a happy peal over the city of London again.

The bells, now restored and ringing in good, easy times of long ago warned apprentices their day's work was done, and legend says, sent a message to dependent Dick Whittington and his cat on Highgate hill to "turn again" and become lord mayor of London.

In the uproar of modern London's traffic, however, only those in the immediate vicinity of the famous Church of St. Mary-le-Bow heard today's joyous notes.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

CALEB, THE COURAGEOUS

Text: Joshua 14:6-14 The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 9.

By WM. E. GILROY, D.D. Editor of The Congregationalist

With Joshua is inevitably associated Caleb, called the courageous. He shared Joshua's faith in the ability of the people of Israel to conquer and possess the Promised Land when their 10 fellow spies admitted the glories of the country but assured their people that there was no hope of conquering it.

In our present lesson we have Caleb as an old man recalling to Joshua, in the presence of the people, their common service in days gone by and the promise that Moses had given them that the land which he had trodden would be an inheritance to him and to his children because of his faithfulness and courage.

Possibly it was something of an old man's boast, or a matter of illusion, but we still admire his spirit and his strength. As we grow older we like to feel that the years have not ravaged us, that we have as much forcefulness and vigor of character as we had in the days of our youth; but it is not always true that a man is as young as he feels. Age leaves its marks upon us as it probably had left its mark upon Caleb.

In asking for his heritage, and in setting down in the hill country, but we still admire his spirit and his strength. As we grow older we like to feel that the years have not ravaged us, that we have as much forcefulness and vigor of character as we had in the days of our youth; but it is not always true that a man is as young as he feels. Age leaves its marks upon us as it probably had left its mark upon Caleb.

Perhaps that was why he chose the hill country. The hill country has always offered its challenge. If it gives invigorating atmospheres, it presents hardships and problems that are not associated with the more fertile plain, but the hill country usually develops strong characters, and Caleb was looking to the future.

The lessons of the life of Caleb must be carried over into a different age and a different sphere. Most of us who read and study the lesson will not be engaged in any task of military conquest, nor even in a task of tilling or defending farms in a hilly country; yet a promised land opens up before us every day, and every experience presents opportunities which energy and heroic endeavor can turn to blessing.

To have the spirit of Caleb, to feel in the presence of gigantic difficulties our own strength and the greatness of the spirit which sources upon which we can draw, to attack our difficulties and our problems without fear and without hesitation, that is the way of achievement and satisfaction today as it was in the day when Caleb recalled his years of service and turned to his hilltop shop.

To live with the faithful and the courageous so intimately that the contagion of their spirit laws hold of our lives—that is the purpose and the benefit of the studies in the life and religion of the past.

TRUST

By GEORGE HENRY DOLE

International Sunday School Lesson Text, July 9th: "Blessed is the man that maketh the Lord his trust."—Psalm 40:4. What is it to make the Lord our trust? Who are they that make Him their trust? Let us examine these two questions to see how fully we make the Lord our trust. Trust, like faith, is not merely of the intellect. Let us take the shell off and look at the kernel. Genuine trust must sink in the heart. If one fears that keeping the Divine law will not in the end be best for him, he does not trust the teachings of the Word. If one so fears a bank that he will not deposit in it, he does not trust it. If one believes he trusts falsely, if one defrauds he trusts fraud. The Lord is the way, the truth and the life. "To make the Lord our trust is to learn His way, His truth, and live His life. By intelligently putting our trust in Him, we make Him our trust. When this is so done that the heart finds peace, trust is put in the Lord. They make the Lord their trust who, though of necessity they must think of the morrow, have no enervating anxiety. They are not grieved if they do not get the pleasures that they anticipated. If they lose,

Anderson-Shea Post, V. F. W. The next regular meeting of the Post will be held Tuesday evening, July 18, at 8:00 in the State Armory. Remember we are holding only one meeting a month during the summer, so let's all go. The Hartford County Council meeting will be held in East Hartford on Sunday afternoon July 9, same will be held out of doors, picnic form. Comrade Ernest Ubert, manager of the baseball team, is busy booking services for the several ex-service organizations, and is in hopes to be able to start the first game Friday of next week between the Dilworth-Cornell, American Legion team and the Post team. We are in hopes to be able to start our baseball tournament, on the next week, between the Mons-Ypres Post team and the Anderson-Shea team. The delay has been caused due to the fact that the members of the Post team are still nursing sore feet resulting from a 23 day trip, at the State convention.

Despite vast unemployment and depressing economic conditions, more than 235 new local units of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. have been organized since September 8, 1932, according to an announcement dated July 1, and received by the local Post from the National headquarters. "This certainly testifies that the Veterans of Foreign Wars are still as rapidly forging to the forefront in veteran circles," commented Commander Peterson.

While other organizations are suffering from economic conditions through large losses membership in the Veterans of Foreign Wars, U. S. is actual increasing its numerical strength and the general scope of its activities through the institution of additional units. "The continued growth of the V. F. W., despite economic handicaps and the fact that the ranks and file of veterans are in thorough accord with the militant and unselfish policies of our organization. Our leaders have remained loyal to the mandates of our membership, and the policies adopted by our national encampments in the past. They have refused to accede to the wishes of political leaders and they have spurned every compromise which would in any way betray the cause of the disabled veteran."

"This explains why there is a spontaneous demand for V. F. W. posts in all sections of the country, and this is why the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. are enjoying one of its best years of growth in the face of economic conditions that are extremely discouraging."

Anderson-Shea Auxiliary The Ladies Auxiliary, Hartford District Council, Veterans of Foreign Wars will hold its district meeting, Sunday, July 9 at 3 o'clock at Leidertafel Grove, East Hartford. Rochembeau Elms Post and Auxiliary will be hosts to the district. All delegates alternates of Anderson-Shea Auxiliary are requested to attend this meeting if possible. A good time has been planned by the committee in charge and important business will be discussed. Refreshments will be served.

Directions for reaching the Leidertafel Grove, its by Lane to Forbes street, turn left and drive about two miles. The V. F. W. posts will mark the route to the grove. D. A. V. Now that the new deal is on "Raw Deal" for the veterans with 3257 U. A. cases wiped off the books and our 25 per cent cuts coming up next week, we stop to wonder what next can happen to the disabled man. No doubt it will be plenty unless we profit and that must be done soon. Our advice to the disabled man is to get going on the petition that the D. A. V. has in the works. Get every man or woman in town to sign up. It doesn't cost a cent to sign and the name and address is enough, and remember you men of the D. A. V. that every chapter in the U. S. A. are around with these petitions. Don't depend on them, get busy yourself. Ask Ed Kelly in town. Most of us remember to send a letter or telegram to their Senator, Congressman and demand his protection. We must remember that the V. F. W. and the Legion are doing this and this is still our fight. Although our line in Washington is bent it is far from broken and if each man will help, we can still hold that line. But we must help those that are helping us. A short time ago we had Ed Kelly in town. Most of us remember the talk he gave us. If we read the papers we can very easily see that Ed was 100 per cent right. He told us he expected a long line of suicides. How true were his words? Remember the men still in hospitals who can't help themselves. It is our right to help them. Now let's try to sign up every man in town who can join the D. A. V. If they can't join us then talk it in to him to join one of the others. Every chapter in this state is at work now so step on it men. Remember the eyes of the State of Connecticut are on the Manchester chapter so it is up to us from now on.

We want to congratulate the V. F. W. and their ladies for the splendid showing they made in Bridgeport at their convention, but somehow or other the Vets just seem to know every put things across in a wink every time. We are still waiting for a ball game between the Vets and the British war vets, what about it Cap? And you, too, Jimmie?

We also want to give the good old A. and N. club a big hand for the way they have fixed up their camp. It sure is a credit to the of-

In Rockville Air Circus

TO OPEN AIR CIRCUS IN ROCKVILLE TODAY

Capt. and Mrs. Sansom to Be at Bamforth's Field for Two Days.

The flying season for the Rockville and Manchester district will be formally opened today to continue through Sunday at Bamforth's Field across from the Rockville Fair Grounds. At least one passenger carrying airplane which seats four passengers and pilot will be available for sightseeing trips over the city and surrounding towns. The demands warrant it another passenger ship will be sent by Captain Sansom from his base at Brainard Field, Hartford.

The feature of the air celebration will be Mrs. Mary Sansom, who will fly her famous "Fleet" stunt and racing airplane during the two days. She will do stunts and other novelty flying. Mrs. Sansom, who is the wife of Captain Frederick F. Sansom, of Hartford, has been flying almost four years. She has won many prizes and trophies throughout the east as well as at Cleveland National Air Races last September. Recently she placed fourth in the $50,000 Amelia Earhart Gipsy All Woman Air Race at Floyd Bennett Airport, New York, against 21 contestants who came from 11 different states to enter the race. After the race she put on a stunting exhibition before a crowd of 75,000 spectators at New York's Municipal Airport, winning praise from all sides.

Two weeks ago, Mrs. Sansom won three prizes, and on points placed first in the trophy for women pilots at the Meriden Air Meet and pilot's party. Mrs. Sansom holds the only state N. A. A. official looping record of 246 consecutive loops made at the American Legion Air Meet, May 22, at Hartford. Captain Frederick F. Sansom, a native of Waterbury, Conn., graduated from the U. S. Army flying schools at Brooks and Kelly Fields, near the experimental field at Hartford being manager of Colonial Flying school base at Brainard Field before going with Interstate Airways, also of Brainard Field. Mrs. Sansom is a member of the flying school under the name of Capt. Sansom's Air College, and offers the most complete ground school facilities as well as engine and airplane mechanics, both theory and practical for every type of aircraft. There are present 45 students enrolled in various courses. The entire school routine is fashioned after the high standards the army schools have maintained. Capt. Sansom is a senior officer in the 43rd Division Aviation C. N. G. based also at Hartford. He has led many army ship formations throughout the state, flown difficult aerial photographic missions, and has been of material assistance in directing from the air rescue parties on the ground searching through wooded sections in the state.

"Bomber" has credit for knowing the sound of her mistress's plane, and never makes the mistake of running out to meet the wrong plane.

All flying operations will be under the supervision of Captain Sansom who will visit Rockville and the field in one of the Army ships Saturday and Sunday. Horace Wetherell who was a graduate of years ago from the College of the passenger ship most of the time. AWAITS CLARIFYING OF ROAD RELIEF ACT

Cannot Use Fund Until Washington Interprets Word "Municipality."

Expenditure of the $2,800,000 made available to Connecticut for highway construction under the provisions of the National Industrial Recovery Act, passed by the last Congress, must be held in abeyance until further interpretation of the Federal rules and regulations governing its expenditure can be obtained and until then no decisions concerning its use can be made, Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald explained in a statement issued today.

"Due to the fact that so many questions concerning the expenditure of the highway fund provided in the National Industrial Recovery Act have been asked during the past few days, the exact position of the State Highway Department with respect to this appropriation at the present time should be made known," Commissioner Macdonald said.

"The National Industrial Recovery Act provides that not less than 25 per cent of the highway appropriation shall be spent upon extensions of the Federal Highway System into and through municipalities. This is an amount equal to approximately $716,000. The act further provides that not more than 25 per cent shall be spent on secondary or feeder roads. It also provides that not more than 50 per cent shall be spent upon the Federal Highway System.

"Although the State Highway Department has been working about three weeks in an effort to arrange expenditure of Connecticut's share of the appropriation in accordance with the above provisions, it has not been possible to determine exactly what could be done with the money, since the rules and regulations for its expenditure were not received from the federal administrator until last Saturday.

"The regulations require further study and interpretation. This interpretation will come from Washington. We have requested particularly a definition of the word 'municipality.' The dictionary definition of a 'municipality' is 'an incorporated borough, town or city.' What the interpretation of the word is as used in the National Industrial Recovery Act we have not yet been informed. After the definition has been determined against twelve grave hazards to the lives of swimmers and would-be swimmers.

DOZEN SWIMMING DANGERS IS LISTED BY HEALTH DEPT.

State Bulletin Covers Hazards Which Have Been Chief Causes of Deaths and Injuries.

With the waters along Connecticut's shores in lakes and rivers continually tempting thousands to plunge in and enjoy themselves during the next two or three months, the State Department of Health in its weekly bulletin today cautions against twelve grave hazards to the lives of swimmers and would-be swimmers.

Says the bulletin: "It is dangerous: 1. To swim out in deep water until you have mastered the art of swimming. 2. To swim out so far that you have not sufficient strength to make the return trip. 3. To go in bathing directly after eating—wait two hours before taking a dip. 4. To dive in unfamiliar places until you are sure of the depth of the water and the absence of rocks.

5. To swim when fatigued. The heart may not be able to strain. 6. To make swimming an endurance test for speed or distance unless your preliminary training makes this safe. 7. To take a dare in the water no matter how much you may impress the other fellow, unless you are sure you can make good. 8. To create a hazard for other swimmers by childish pranks and smart tricks unless you know that they will not lose their heads. 9. To "make believe" drowning—you may not get the help when you really need it. 10. To let young children go out in deep water even if they know how to swim, unless some older person is with them. 11. To lie out on the sand in the blazing sun for long periods after bathing until you have acquired a protective tan. 12. To go swimming alone in deserted places—no rescue is available in case of an emergency."

PRESIDENT REDUCING Washington, July 8.—(AP)—President Roosevelt has less than eight ounces of the excess seven pounds brought back from his vacation—maybe because his negro valet put one over on him.

The President said he was going to get back down to 175 or 176. But he did nothing about it, so Dr. McDuffie, the valet, reduced the usual presidential breakfast by one egg one slice of bacon and one piece of toast. Mr. Roosevelt didn't notice the difference. But the scales, at last reading, registered half a pound less. Of all trees, tall oaks are most susceptible to lightning; but trees are immune and valuable trees are often rooted.

SATURDAY, JULY 8.

THE DEATH ROLL.

At the battle of Bunker Hill, New England's hardest fought and bloodiest episode in the military history of this entire area, the British lost 1084 men killed or wounded. The American loss, in killed and wounded, was 420.

Because in those days surgery and medication were crude it is probable that the fatalities among these casualties reached a far higher proportion than in subsequent wars.

To allow that one-half of the casualties were fatal would, however, be to go to the extreme of probability.

Last year more than twice that number of persons were killed in New England by automobiles.

Last year the deaths from motor accidents in Connecticut alone approached to within a bare dozen of the total American casualties at Bunker Hill and were almost twice the number of the slain colonists on that historic occasion.

There is one more comparative fact in connection with the grisly statistics of automobile fatalities which must be of somber interest to the people of this state: Connecticut's total of motoring fatalities in proportion to population was the largest—among the six New England states.

Twenty-five deaths per 100,000 of population, while even Massachusetts showed only 18.1 and Rhode Island but 15.9, is a condition that should set even our thickest General Assembly to thinking.

Our own opinion is that years of country-wide advertising of Mr. Stoekel's theory about each driver being his own speed law interpreter have given this state a reputation, among outsiders, of being a place where the sky is the limit and you can drive any way you please.

Now, there is that appalling death rate, not otherwise explained.

FRIENDLY WILDERNESS.

The calm confidence of the Alaska airman that Jimmy Matern, globe girdling aviator who disappeared in Northeast Asia more than three weeks ago and has just been heard from, would eventually turn up all right was based on something more than a wish.

That is a pretty rugged part of the world where Matern disappeared, and from which he has announced his safety. But it is not on the whole an unfriendly one, nor altogether unpopulated.

From the Kamchatkan coast of Asia to the Alaskan coast a flier would be scarcely ever out of sight of land if following the natural route of the Aleutians; and any aviator or any sailor dumped on any of those islands or on the Asiatic mainland in their vicinity, if he escaped death or serious injury in whatever accident landed him there, would stand a good deal better than an even chance of eventually returning to civilization.

There are not a great many Aleutians and not a great many people living along the Kamchatkan coast, but they are widely scattered in tiny communities and are constantly moving about in the pursuit of their hunting and fishing; and so a castaway, on the lookout for rescuers, would not be likely to go a great while undiscovered.

Nor would he be in any danger at the hands of the natives of either region. On the contrary they would be quite sure to aid him in his desire to get back to his own environment.

Meantime, despite the rigors of the climate, it is a comparatively easy region for an able bodied and resourceful white man to maintain life, for it teems with small game and fish.

Knowing these things, when an Alaska flier turns up missing and it is suspected that he may be marooned somewhere among the Aleutian Islands or upper Alaska or across Bering sea in Asia they do not permit themselves to be greatly concerned, even if they can't find him. They know that the probabilities are that he has fallen or soon will fall into friendly hands and sooner or later make his way home or to some point from which he can send word.

OLD CEMENT DOG.

It's pretty hard to teach an old dog new tricks. It isn't easy to get it through the heads of some of the industrialists who have fallen into the confirmed habit of doing business crookedly that it is possible to do it straight—and not only possible but imperatively necessary.

There has long been a suspicion that something very like a "gentlemen's agreement" existed between the cement making corporations, contributing to the splendor of the profits in that particular line of production. When Secretary of the Interior Ickes asked for bids on cement for the huge job at Boulder Dam the offers he got were such as to support that belief. They were surprisingly alike and, in the opinion of the secretary, much too high. So he sent them all back.

New bids were submitted. They looked as if they had been put together on an assembly line, differing about as much as one Ford sedan from another Ford sedan. Ickes threw out the whole lot.

"Well," inferentially suggested the cement makers, "suppose you go ahead and build your dam without any cement. You have our prices—what are you going to do about it?"

Ickes made, to this threat, a shocking, unheard-of reply. "We will build our dam," he said in effect, "but not without cement. We'll build our own plant and make our own cement."

"Don't shoot!" said the well known coon: "I'll come down!"

So the cement men came down and made new bids—and Ickes had saved half a million dollars on that lot of cement—and goodness knows how much on all that will be used at Boulder Dam.

Which leads to the conclusion that even an old dog can be taught a new trick sometimes—if his teacher is sufficiently in earnest about it.

WHAT MAKES BANDITS.

According to the Hitlerite theory upheld by a German court we must have a lot more communists, and much more dangerous ones, than anybody outside the super-patriotic societies ever realized.

Four young Germans were sentenced to death at Berlin Thursday for killing a guard in an attempt to steal a street car company's payroll.

"The deed of the accused," said the court in passing sentence, "have grown out of the communistic morale of recent years and there is no doubt that the communistic views which they imbibed in their youth determined their action."

That makes it all perfectly clear how the gangsters and the stick-up get that way. It's their political views. Still and all, we'd sort of like to know whether it was shown, in the Berlin case, that these four young bandits were stealing that payroll to distribute it among the poor or were just intending to blow it in on their own particular selves and their own particular molls. In this country, at all events, we've never heard much about hold-up men raiding payrolls under—or for—the red flag.

LONDON PARLEY.

Whether the strategy of the American delegation, in saving the Economic Conference at the very last moment from a long recess adjournment, was the best from all points of view remains to be disclosed by events to come. It may be that the next two months will be better employed if the conferees set themselves seriously at work on the Conference agenda than if they went home and soaked in realization.

On the other hand, there is some possibility that questions may arise in which the gold bloc may imagine it sees opportunities for bargaining with the United States, thus renewing the hopeless stabilization discussion.

At all events it is probable that the London conference, now that it is known that it cannot possibly be used to force the United States to abandon its policy of controlled expansion, will figure less conspicuously in the news of the day and retire, very soon, to a place in public attention more exactly commensurate with its importance.

CHINESE CHRISTIANS.

A falling off of some 75,000 in Christian church membership in China, representing a decrease of about 20 per cent in the number of native converts to the Christian faith, is accounted for by the Layman's Foreign Missions Inquiry as due partly to the civil wars, partly to the growth of the anti-Christian movement and partly to the failure of the missions to take any adequate interest in the reconstruction of the social order in China.

Somewhat linked with the last named cause is the thought that probably Pearl Buck could amplify that explanation rather extensively. Christian missionaries cannot achieve greatly and permanently among a non-Christian people as intelligent as the Chinese by exploiting them, by living the lives of grandees and by being generally self-seeking and contemptuous of the culture into which they have intruded.

The Christian churches in China would probably be more successful if they picked their missionaries instead of permitting the missionaries, in so many instances, to pick their vocation.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER, The Herald Washington Correspondent.

Washington, July 8.—The emergence of organized labor as a potentially powerful factor in national affairs is one of the most important changes brought about by the National Recovery Act.

Already the contrast is startling. A labor movement battered and beleaguered by depression to the lowest ebb of its influence suddenly finds its representatives sworn in as government officials, helping to plan industrial control and in a position to demand and receive advantages for which unions have fought vainly for decades.

Two phases have developed in what appears to be a new struggle between labor and industry. One is confined to the hearings and the conferences of the recovery administration. The labor group there has been fighting ever since announcement of the cotton textile industry's proposed competition code for all rights "restitution and reforms it thinks should be coming to labor under the new regime.

To Bar Child Labor. It seems to have convinced Administration Hugh Johnson that labor's right to organization and collective bargaining should be written into all codes, that child labor should be eliminated and that new company unions suddenly organized by employers should be carefully scrutinized.

The other phase involves the ability or inability of labor to organize itself into unions on a large scale now that the employers are to be forbidden to bar union activities. The vast majority of wage-earners are unorganized. Optimists foresee an early day when nearly all of them will be organized and labor will be wielding great economic and political power.

Up to Labor Leaders. But that's up to labor and its leaders. There's considerable doubt whether there will be any large wave of organization, although President William Green of the American Federation of Labor has issued a call for it. The federation has organized craft unions and not industrial unions, which leaves it without any set-up with which to tackle some of the great unorganized industries such as steel and automobiles.

The government isn't going to organize workers, although Secretary of Labor Perkins thinks Johnson's labor advisory board should set up machinery to foster it. And employers who have been antagonistic are going to aid organization unless they can have company unions which they can dominate.

Activity Reported. Reports of accelerated union labor activity have been coming in and it appears that the militant labor organizations are on the job. President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America has become a hero to the labor group since it was learned that he had been busy before the act went into effect and had acquired 35,000 or 40,000 new members.

On the other hand, steel, automobile and some coal companies are reported to have been organizing company unions whose approved codes they can submit to the recovery administration with the assertion that it represents the agreement of their workers. Coercion is said to have been used in some cases.

HEALTH-DIET ADVICE

BY DR. FRANK MCCOY. Questions in regard to Health and Diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, for reply.

STICK TO A REGULAR DIET

Often times, it seems that the best patients are those who do not have homes and who eat their meals by themselves in restaurants. These people seem to be better able to stay on the diet prescribed than those who live at home and eat with other members of the family. The patients hardest to do anything with are those who go out to partake a great deal and who are constantly tempted by the sight of appetizing dishes, the use of which will upset a carefully planned diet which has been prepared for them.

Those who are trying to live on diets, such as I recommend in this column, should have no difficulty in selecting a meal of good combinations from any meal which is served to them at their friends' houses. The good foods are usually there, but in addition to the three or four good articles which are necessary, the average table contains as many as ten or fifteen more unnecessary dishes which are prepared apparently with one sole object in view, namely, to tempt the appetite of adhering to certain strict business principles. The same man who would not change his business methods which have proven successful will sit down to a friend's table and throw over all dietetic rules, eating foods which he knows will be harmful to him as has been proven in times past.

A chemist, who knows that there are rules of food chemistry as well as those of inorganic chemistry, needs only a little urging by some friend to put into his stomach an inharmonious conglomeration of soup, meat, bread, pie and coffee which he knows to be a bad mixture from a chemical standpoint.

Few people have the willpower to stay on a regular diet when their appetites are tempted by foolish friends who wish to "treat" them to some favorite food or drink. It takes a good deal of "uncommon" sense for one to have the courage of his convictions enough to be able to eat with his friends and still stick to a strict diet, and not be harmed by bad dishes with which he is tempted. One who can remain on a strict regimen, however, will be well repaid by the admiration of his friends, and better still, by his own estimate of himself.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Tooth Transplantation. Question: F. S. Z. writes: "I have heard of a dentist who advertises that he can extract a tooth and immediately replace it with an artificial tooth by inserting it into the cavity of the gum. Do you think this would give satisfaction, and do you believe it would be advisable from the standpoint of health?" Answer: There are two methods of tooth transplantation. The first consists in immediately replacing the removed tooth with one adjacent, or with a transplanted tooth from an individual having the same type of blood. The second, is that of introducing a smooth porcelain tooth, of the same shape as the one extracted, as quickly as possible. The first method is successful in only about 10 per cent of the cases. The second, in about 5 per cent. However, in the latter there is more danger of an abscess forming. These two methods of transplanting teeth are the only ones so far being used, and they have not proven very satisfactory. I would suggest, instead,

IN NEW YORK

By PAUL HARRISON

New York, July 8.—The curtain having been lowered, with appropriate shudders, on the late, lambasted Broadway theatrical season, statisticians of the stage are now offering corroboration for the contention of the critics that it was the leanest dramatic period since the war.

The magazine Variety lists 117 productions, out of which only nine were hits and seventeen moderate successes. But one of the so-called hits, the Jimmy Durante-Lupe Velez revue called "Strike Me Pink," took the largest loss of the season, since it cost $150,000 to produce and garnered only $40,000 at the box office. "Take a Chance," another "hit," and a better musical show, has scarcely made a dime of profit. Which gives you an idea of the financial hazards involved in stage gambling.

Dramatic Endings

Within a few more days the Rialto will have reached a new low in summer theater fare, with only four legitimate shows remaining. Some have moved out of town, but more than a hundred have gone into the gloomy limbo of Cain's warehouse. In fact, there's a story which has been told about practically every one of those dead dramas. It has to do with the producer who asks a friend what he thinks of the show. "Well," says the party of the second part, "I think you better polish up that third act, or even Cain won't take it."

Speaking of Cain, though, he and the warehouse he has conducted for 18 years are only symbols of the theatrical undertaking business. For there are other such storage places where the props and scenery of dreams-that-didn't-come true are put away in the hope that some later use may be found for them. The Shuberts, Gilbert Miller and George M. Cohan have their own warehouses. The Metropolitan Opera has four. Tons of drops and props from Ziegfeld's warehouse were burned after his death. The laces and penates of George White, Sam H. Harris and dozens of other managers are in the custody of Patsy Cain. But even some of these are being carted away to oblivion.

Not all are destroyed, though. Along the edge of the Hudson, overlooked by Riverside Drive, some of this scenery is making a last brave stand. For there, in an orderly row of patched-up shacks, is a remnant of the first Bonus Army, 150 strong. The men have appropriated the more substantial sections of scenery to make roofs and walls and inconspicuously decorative fronts for "Hoover City."

Happy Exception

One of the plays just closed, a revival from the previous season, furnishes a happy chapter in the success stories of two people. They are Rose Franken and Arthur Beckhard, the author and the producer of "Another Language."

She is the young and pretty wife of a dentist, and had no idea of being a writer until she came into ownership of a typewriter some years ago. While looking after her house, her husband, three sons, two daughters and a cat, she turned out some short stories. Finally she decided to do a play, which she accomplished in six days flat.

The Shuberts turned it down, as did Al Woods and Arthur Hopkins. After they refused it, other producers decided it must be terrible, and didn't even want to read it. Beckhard did, though, and being a concert manager and not a producer, he thought it was pretty good. He plunged, with all his savings, in the hope the show would last three or four weeks and return his investment. It ran for a year, and then sold to the movies at a handsome figure.

LOOK at the packages on your pantry and bathroom shelves, and see what a multitude of brand names you recognize. Some of them have been familiar for years. You may have made the acquaintance of others only a few weeks ago. But even these are not suspected strangers. You have bought them confidently because they were advertised. And it is the same with your sheets and towels, your shoes and clothes, your electric appliances, the car in your garage—nearly everything you use.

Advertised products have a standing that commands respect. They are not nameless, but vouched for by responsible firms. The fact that they are advertised is in itself an indication that their standards of quality are strictly maintained, that they represent honest value.

As science and discovery go on, newly developed products are constantly being advertised—ready to help you save money and improve your standard of living. Every advertisement of such a product you read in your daily paper is a letter of introduction to a new and possibly useful friend.

It will pay you to read the advertisements in this paper every day. By so doing you will meet many choice products—worthy to become friends of the family.

"Sky-Hung" Dome At Chicago Fair

Larger than the dome of St. Peters or the Washington capitol, this "sky-hung" dome of the Travel and Transport Building strikes a new note in architecture at Chicago's Century of Progress exposition. The roof is formed of metal plates suspended by steel cables hung from a circle of twelve steel towers and anchored by huge slabs of concrete. It is the first application on any significant scale to architecture of the principle of the suspension bridge. The Travel and Transport Dome is 125 feet high and 200 feet across, without a single arch, pillar, beam or other support to break its expanse.

Here is an unexpected opportunity for readers of The Herald to see the "Century of Progress" Exposition in all its masterly panoramic glory; to see a scene of life, with its constant striving for comfort, convenience and happiness; to see a vivid and dynamic visualization of man's endeavor in all its countless aspects; to see a drama depicting the power of the human mind to conquer the elements — nature's forces — and to harness them for the benefit of mankind. Tomorrow also marks the beginning of an Aladdin-like contest which literally offers, as in the mythical days of Aladdin, "new lamps for old." Full details of both these novel contests may be had from your Sears, Roebuck store, Hartford, where a bit of the "Century of Progress," its carnival spirit, and its colorful enchantment will be available for you.

HEBRON

Many things have happened here since last I wrote my column. On Sunday at Columbia Lake, where many folks their leisure take, to swim or picnic on the sands or camp about in cheerful bands, two girls that swam were nearly drowned, and high excitement ensued around Mr. and Mrs. Grinton. Some from St. Albans College over the hill, and brother Robert, instructor at Storrs, were at the lake among the scores. A woman shouted, "Save that girl!" Grinton was in a boat sawing. Robert was swimming in the water. The girl was sinking. Some one's daughter! Then Grinton yelled to brother Bob to save the girl. There rose a sob from all spectators looking on, who thought the girl was surely gone. But see! Her sister swims to save, and very nearly her life she gave! The strength of both has given out, and both will drown without a doubt. But Grinton hurries in his scow, and Robert swims and swims (and how!) Another boat is pushing out, and from the crowd goes up a shout. Now boat and swimmer reach the two, and Robert knows just what to do. His hands might nevermore be seen, and with his strength keeps her afloat. The other clings onto the boat, and swiftly all are towed ashore—that they had thought to see no more. If it had not been for Grinton's boat, even Robert couldn't have kept afloat, for the victim tired him so, he'd have had to let the other one go. And the older sister, 16 or so, down to the depths would have had to go. Then up there rose a mighty cheer from all the people sitting near. Names of the girls were called, even the names of their parents. Relatives and friends were present, and everything passed off so pleasantly. Refreshments served were quite delicious, as well as timely and nutritious. Professor E. Dean, who plays the fiddle was of the group the night alone, for long on Sunday. erick Wyman talked very severe, of boys that bothered him, hovering near, at midnight, popping and lying in wait, threatening to carry off his gat. They were saucy, too, and shouted out things they ought to regret without a doubt. However, they did not do any harm, only to cause a bit of alarm. Why is it that boys will act as they do? When they get old it may prove true that they will be bothered the same as now by other others. (Hope so, I vow). The state police were out, I hear. That's why things were so quiet near. They chased the boys from church to church, but always got left in the lurch. In St. Peter's field before the Episcopal minister. The soldiers went to Gilead Hall the night of the Fourth to a sort of ball, in an open meeting of the Grange, and as pleasant a program as they could arrange. Down in the village baseball was at stake, on the Kibbe base at Amston Lake. The Hebron Athletics played quite prettily and wrested victory from "The Sons of Italy," by a score of something like 10 to 8. The Cardinals lost, as will be seen, in the game they played with "Manchester Green" the night before, the Flashers state, they beat the Cardinals, and felt just great. On Sunday, too, it must be said, the Athletics beat the Pomfrets dead, the score, they say, was 10 to 1. On Kibbe's field the game was won. The Cardinals held a strawberry fair on the library lot, a crowd was there. It rained a little, which was too bad, but you cannot dampen a Cardinal lad. That evening they danced in the old town hall, a regular old time village ball. Music was by the Jolly Four, and dancing and prancing went on all night. After all the expenses were deducted the Cardinals gained, I've been instructed, about ten dollars to help their club. It will soon be spent, and that's the rub. Many people here went to Willimantic, to Recreation Park, where things were antic. Claude Jones, Hebron's first selectman, with his "Great Express" in the races ran. He won second place, his horse was so snappy, a feather in his cap, which made him happy. There were floats, a play, brass bands, and fun. A fine time had by every one. Another event was the Forty-five descendants in all were there. They left behind all thought of care. All brought provisions in picnic style, and tables groaned with their loads while Mr. Perry's remarks were heard with cheers. He has been a lawyer for many years. It is his and his relatives' intent to make this reunion a yearly event. Edward Raymond has now got through carrying mail from Amston and Colchester too, to the post office on Hebron Green. Now Clarence Jones' face is seen in the new little car which he has bought to carry the mail and around to cavort. To Mr. and Mrs. George F. Kibbe's came too many friends to attempt to name. 16 or 20 there were in all, some visited, others came to call. Among them recently there came Mr. and Mrs. William Worthington of Wallingford fame; Mr. and Mrs. Emil Johnson and daughter Betty, and two little girl friends so pretty, Mrs. Lull: Lord of Vernon town, her son Morgan and wife were also down. George H. Dyson and daughter, Mrs. Ruth Aude of Hartford, came the day of the Lord. All these within the past few days, and Mrs. Kibbe's name they praise.

The people here are ready to freeze. The thermometer has dropped so many degrees. We sweated here, 94 in the shade. But now of frosts we're much afraid. But by the time this piece comes out, we'll be roasting again without a doubt.

AMUSEMENTS

SANDY BEACH BALLROOM HAS SPECIAL FEATURES

With more and more dancers attending the newly renovated Sandy Beach Ballroom, plans are now underway for a number of feature attractions to be presented in the immediate future. For the coming week-end, two first-class orchestras have been booked to play at this popular dance rendezvous located at Crystal Lake, Conn. "Dud" Goldman and his orchestra are scheduled for appearance on Saturday night, July 8. Having played at the Hotel Bancroft, in Worcester and at Hampton Beach, this dance team has become one of the best known bands in New England. Years of experience enables them to satisfy every demand in the matter of modern dance music. Twelve fine musicians comprise the "Dud" Goldman orchestra. Their program of melodies, as presented on Saturday night, is sure to be both distinctive and delightful.

A WBZ favorite, a headline attraction at O'Brien's Black and Gold Ballroom and at Mountain Park in Holyoke, "Jerry" Falvey and his orchestra come to the ballroom on Sunday night, July 9. For the past five seasons, "Jerry" Falvey has held an important position in dance music circles. For as many years, his orchestra has been specially featured at Cook's Radio Ball in Springfield. No music is softer, sweeter, more pleasing, than that rendered by this dance team. Jerry Falvey's broadcasting orchestra is composed of eleven men, all talented and versatile musicians. Playing the irresistible type of music, they are certain to score a large success at Sandy Beach on Sunday night.

PIRATES AND CUBS IN RUNNING AGAIN

Pittsburgh Only Half Game Out of Second Place and Chicago But a Game Behind.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR. (A. P. Sports Writer)

More because of the St. Louis Cardinals' slump than through their own efforts, the Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs were back on the edge of the National League battle today.

Neither has been impressive the last three weeks, the Cubs' breaking even in 20 games and Chicago winning nine and losing 11, but as they settled down for a long home stay, Pittsburgh was only a half game out of second place and the Cubs, victorious over the league leading New York Giants yesterday, 6-5, in ten innings, were a game farther back.

Pittsburgh was idle but opens against the Phillies today.

Brooklyn's Easy Win

The Brooklyn Dodgers meanwhile gave the Cardinals a licking, 10-4, to leave the Giants 1-2 games in front.

Cincinnati's Reds slammed out an 8-5 victory over the Boston Braves, piling up 14 hits.

The Detroit Tigers advanced to fifth place in the American League by defeating the New York Yankees 9-4. The Tigers' discarded Babe Ruth's 19th homer of the season, by clotting nine of their 18 hits in four big innings.

Coming back to Shibe Park, three former Philadelphiaans, Mule Haas, Al Simmons and Jimmy Dykes led the Chicago White Sox to a 5-1 victory over the Athletics behind Eddie Durham's six hit flinging.

Has hit four singles while the other two contributed a homer apiece.

The four other American League teams were idle.

SUB-ALPINES BARELY BEAT HIGHLAND PARK

Five Run Rally in Second Too Much for Highland Park to Overcome.

The Sub-Alpine A. C. continued their winning streak by noosing out Highland Park 7 to 6. Highland Park started out with a bang scoring two runs to take the lead, but the Alpines went ahead in the next inning with a five run spur, scoring on three singles, an error and two doubles. The Alpines held this lead to the fifth and increased it by one run by a single, a walk and another single. The Highlanders made a bid for victory in the fifth inning scoring three runs on three consecutive singles. All this happened after two were out. Two runs scored when a grounder took a bad hop away from Farr in left field.

Highland Park tied the score in the next time but when Bentley got a base on balls, stole second, went to third on an error, and scored on Senkbeil's single.

With the score tied 3-3, Bentley took a double to center. Farr went to third on a sacrifice by Johnson, the next batter grounded out, catcher to first.

"Onion" Boggi went to bat with one strike called on him, Capt. "Bingo" Sturgeon used strategy and sent "Jazz" Rossi in to pinch hit.

"Dutch" Senkbeil tried to bear down hard and consequently threw the ball into the dust for what proved to be the winning run.

Sunday, starting at 1 o'clock the Sub-Alpines will play the Windsor C. team at Mt. Nebo. Either "Chick" Fraser or Mikkolet will hurl for the Alpines with "Onion" Boggi or Rossi behind the bat.

Windsor A. C. holds a victory over the All-Burnside which in turn has beaten the West Sides and Beates. The Alpines played two incomplete games with the All-Burnside and were ahead 5-2 and 8-3 in both cases. O'Leary will call the balls and strikes.

CLAY COURT TOURNEY

Chicago, July 8.—(AP)—Karl Kamrath of Austin, Texas, and Gene Mako, smooth stroking youngster from Los Angeles, had to battle it out for a place in the finals of the National clay courts tennis championship tournament, but there was a possibility Frank Parker of Milwaukee, might go to the title round without playing today.

Wilbur (Junior) Coen of Kansas City, due to oppose the Milwaukee youth in one semi-finals match today, was suffering with a blistered right foot and it was possible he might default.

BALDWIN A. C. VS. HOSE CO. NO. 3

Baldwin A. C. will play the Hose Co. No. 3 team at the Charter Oak street grounds Sunday afternoon, at 1 o'clock. The A. C. defeated the hose eaters in their first game and the men from No. 3 are grinding their teeth and out for revenge.

THREAD CITY TEAM AT W. S. TOMORROW

Willimantic Will Bring Array of Stars—West Side to Face Curtis, Speed Ball Star.

There will be several ball games in town tomorrow but the best attraction will be over at the West Side Oval. The West Sides have for their opponents the American Thread of Willimantic. The West Sides swamped the Thread team 11 to 2 in Willimantic earlier in the season. The West Sides took advantage of the second battery that Manager Barton says that he will be out to win this game and he will use Curtis and Jackson as a battery. The West Sides will use Jack Godek who also hails from Willimantic. Godek already holds one victory over the Thread men and is very anxious to win his second from the same team he once pitched for. Willimantic has also added several new men in their lineup. Dillon will play in center, Melkie shortstop and Gagnon at second. The rest of their lineup includes, F. Kegal, left field, H. Kegal, 1b, Southland, rf, Baron, 3b, Jackson, c, Curtis, 2b, or Healy, 2b. The West Sides will use their same lineup which includes: David, lf; Holland, cf; Wilkinson, 2b; Stavnitsky, 1b; Burkhardt, rf; McCann, 3b; McCann, ss; Hedlund, c; Godek, p. The West Sides have won 5 games out of 13 played and they expect to take the series from the Thread City tomorrow. The game will start at 8:15 sharp and Ralph Russell and El Cole will call them.

ONE BIG INNING WINS FOR GREEN

Thirteen Runs in the Fifth Breaks Up Tie Game—Green Wins 17-2.

Selling along on even terms with the dominating Manchester green youngsters, Joe Tedford's clan of old-time ball-tossers cracked wide open in the fifth inning of a scheduled 7 inning game at Jarvis field last night, and when the dust had settled over Green'sars, Hubard's men had scratched getting around the circuit for a tally.

The A's tied the score at 1-1 in the fifth when "King" Phillips was scored from second on Kotel's single to right. Then the danger!

At the end of the 7th inning Popoff, the umpire behind the plate, was benched for making several rank relations and "G" Wright, base umpire, finished the extra inning.

Lafonia, Ky, July 8.—(AP)—Seven heavy thoroughbreds, headed by Gift of Roses, co-holder of the track record for six furlongs at Arlington, faced the post here today for the twentieth running of the Quickstep Handicap over six furlongs. The sprint, for three-year-olds and up, carries $2,500 f.o.e.d.

Gift of Roses shares the six furlong record at Arlington with Epitaph at 1:10 1-5. The best time in the Quickstep was 1:11 turned in by Goshawk in 1924. A. B. Gallaher's Pancake set new top weight of 109 pounds, with F. C. McGeat of Jessie Deer carrying the least, 97.

Gift of Roses was assigned 108 and Supreme Sweet, last year's winner, 107.

Players in Nebraska League Wax Healthy on $50 Month

Chicago.—(AP)—Strangest of all baseball leagues in America is the Nebraska state league. It is making money!

Back of it is an amazing story. While Babe Ruth is, roughly speaking, collecting a salary of $11,000 a month, the youthful players on the four clubs comprising the Nebraska state league receive about $80 a month apiece—no more, no less.

The Nebraska state league is composed of Lincoln, Neb., with a population of 75,000; Sioux Falls, S. D., 32,000; Beatrice, Neb., 10,000, and Norfolk, Neb., 10,000.

Wanting to see Cash-Offs Operating on the theory that young ball players fired with an ambition for major league fame, are willing to work for $50 monthly, like a young bank clerk starting to learn the banking business for a small salary, the league is over-lodged with ball players. ## HUSKIES FAVORED TO DEFEAT YALE

FAVOR AMERICANS—TO BEAT BRITISH

Yankees Considered Better in Every Event Except Distance Runs Today.

Cambridge, Mass., July 8.—(AP)—The eleventh clash between the combined Harvard-Yale and Oxford-Cambridge track teams, scheduled for this afternoon at the stadium, promised to be a record smasher.

The American team, highly favored because of their strength in every event except the distance runs.

Kath Brown, Yale's high jumping and vaulting ace, appeared to have an excellent chance of setting new records in his specialties and Jack Lovelock of Oxford and Walter Kerran of Cambridge, not only promised to give the British team victories in the mile and two miles runs, but also to run them in record time.

Johnny Dean, Harvard's football captain-elect, has been a consistent 48 foot shot putter a mark which would better the meet record of John Killeulen of Yale by almost eight inches. George Lockwood and Charlie Dunbar, of Yale, have run fast enough this season to set new marks for the high and low hurdles and Karl Warner, another Yale star, is expected to have little difficulty getting under the 49 seconds quarter mile mark.

The field in the 100 yard dash included Edward Davis of Cambridge, Edwin Calvin, Harvard and Arthur Walsh of Yale.

Huskies Favored The Huskies showed the fastest time in the elimination test, six minutes and 40 seconds in winning the second heat. Yale captured the first in six minutes 44-5 seconds.

A brisk wind blasted any hope of better time than that displayed by Italy in the last Olympic when the course was covered in six minutes 28-3 seconds and Yale had been installed as favorites before the preliminaries and nothing occurred there to change the rating. The Yale and Huskies not only covered the approximate mile and a quarter in faster time than their rivals but they showed a finer touch.

Cornell Caution Washington won as it pleased from Harvard and the University of California at Los Angeles when the Yale was pressed by Cornell. The California fans by pulling away from the Golden Bears. Cornell apparently was most interested in qualifying and it was evident as the crews pushed up to the finish, the Cornell coxswain was watching California and not Yale.

In the drawing for position today, Washington drew No. 4 lane, somewhat sheltered from the wind and perhaps a slight advantage. Yale got No. 2, Cornell No. 3, and Harvard No. 1.

Lets Firemen Down in Bolton Last Night With Three Bingles.

Pete Maneggia's pitching was too good for the Hose Co. No. 4 team last night in Bolton, the firemen coming out on the small end of the 4-8 count in the seven inning encounter. Bolton raised Stratton for 11 hits, including doubles by Parker and Hicking. The firemen were able to garner but three hits off Maneggia, who walked but one man, although he was a bit wild, hitting two men by pitched balls.

KILLED BY DIVE.

St. Louis, July 8.—(AP)—The immediate presence of five lifeguards and 900 other swimmers failed to prevent the drowning of Arthur W. Du Perret, Jr., 13.

An inexperienced diver, the lad was warned by guard at the municipal pool of University City, a suburb, after an landed flat during several attempts from a ten foot tower.

He persisted, however, and a few minutes later a bather reported the presence of his body on the floor of the tank. An autopsy last night showed the boy had suffered a ruptured spleen.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

What? No Fight? Primo Carnera is tearing a leaf from the book of our latter-day champions when he announces he will wait until 1934 to defend his heavyweight title. Which leaves Max Baer right out on a limb where there are no coconuts whatever.

The opinion in this corner is that the waiting will do Mister Baer more good than it will Carnera. A year of idleness will be of no help to all that flesh. Movies and vaudeville are not very good conditioners.

More Bucks Carnera must replenish his bankroll. His share of the fight with Sharkey was something like $18,397. Under the judicious handling of Bill Duffy, this amount can be run up to well over $100,000 with movie and vaudeville contracts of the sort that a champion can expect in these days of increasing costs of living.

You can depend upon Mister Duffy's knowing the quotations of all the stocks, including his 275 pounds of prime beef.

Da Freem undoubtedly will make enough to pay off that $14,000 breach of promise judgment that Mile. Tersini, the well-known waitress, obtained in a London court. But the speculative urge is not strong enough in this corner to try to buy that claim in the hope of profitable settlement.

Just a Workout. Duffy's decision to keep his big guy out of the ring leaves Baer with one choice if he wants to fight this fall, and you can just bet he does. That is a fight with Sharkey.

That sounds like rather cold potatoes in view of the form Sharkey displayed against Carnera, but Sharkey might provide a pretty good workout for Maxie at that.

It appears to be a fight that cannot go beyond 10 rounds. Sharkey has lost too much of his stamina to stay long against the punch-throwing Baer. When a fighter passes 30, and has lived in denseness as Sharkey has during the last two years, an inner tissue of fat sews itself to his body, and training will not take it off.

Baer would overpower Sharkey just as Primo did. And maybe quicker.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Ten Commandments—For Auto Drivers:

1. Thou shalt Cross Crossings Cautiously.
2. Thou shalt not try to "beat the train."
3. Thou shalt look both ways and listen for trains.
4. Thou shalt not kill the passengers within thy care.
5. Thou shalt not depend upon the driver of the car ahead.
6. Thou shalt, when in doubt, take the safe course always.
7. Thou shalt be doubly alert if there are two or more tracks.
8. Thou shalt keep thy brakes geared with effective brake lining.
9. Thou shalt learn to recognize railroad crossings and approach them with extreme care.
10. Thou shalt always use good judgment at railroad crossings that thy days may be long upon the land and the enjoyment of thy car continuous.

The news that a New York nail and tack factory has gone on high-speed production does not bring much joy to the motorists.

The flirt and the jaywalker take big chances, neither of them knows what hit him until one wakes up in the hospital and the other comes to on his honeymoon.

Man—How do you like that second-hand car you bought some months ago?

Neighbor (shaking his head)—I don't like it at all. It makes so much noise I can't hear anything my wife says.

Man (thinking)—How much will you sell it to me for?

The very best thing for an automobile driver to do when stung by a bee is to stop the car at once, or not notice the sting.

Some of the girls you meet are like the cars you see—Swell Paint Jobs.

Wife (anxiously)—What did the doctor say about you, John?

John—Huh! From the number of things he found the matter with me you'd thought it was the garage man telling me what was wrong with my car.

SPEED COP (sarcastically, to motorist he had stopped)—So you were going to a fire?

MOTORIST (breathlessly)—W-Well, not exactly, but I'm trying to prevent one.

SPEED COP (nodding grimly)—And how were you going to do that?

MOTORIST—Well, the boss said that's what he'd do if I were late again, and I was hurrying to get to the office in time.

Buying a car is like getting a wife, it isn't the cost — it's the upkeep!

Never a day passes but what you see instances of men trying to wear out tires, brakes and everything else about the automobile they are driving by racing up to a red light, then jamming on the brakes. Once free of that traffic light, they repeat the performance on the next. It is a curious exhibition of effort that brings no apparent gain, and much obvious loss, and the observer cannot help speculating as to its cause. Hurrying toward a green light is understandable because there is a chance of passing before it changes. But hurrying toward a red one is something like rushing at a concrete wall.

She—Before we were married you always gave the driver half a dollar.

He—Before we were married I had half a dollar.

"Oh, well, if we don't like the administration's new rail relief plan we can keep on buying gasoline."

A pedestrian may have the right of way, but he usually indicates real good judgment when he doesn't insist on it.

The kind of pick-up a boy likes best in a car is when it can catch two or three girls per block.

GAY GREETING SENT HOME BY SOLDIERS

(Special to The Herald)

Camp Cross, Niantic, July 7.—Greetings from the Manchester boys! Today is the first time since arriving here that we have been able to go around camp without our sweaters or sweat shirts. The sun is shining bright (believe it or not) and everybody's healthy.

The Howitzer Company has been taking gunner's tests for the past few days and have taken part in two parades since arriving in camp. The boys certainly made a fine showing. The Company went on g.u.v. Thursday and also provided the provost guard for the day.

The evenings here are spent playing horseshoes, ball, checkers, and last night a few of the boys ventured in for a swim in the Niantic river. Last night we had several good bouts and wrestling matches, much to the enjoyment of all. The Howitzer Company expects to catch a couple of boys in the coming bouts.

We have the talkies every night as soon as darkness comes. Incidentally, this is the first camp that we have had the talkies—and do they draw crowds? Here are some of the pictures we will have next week: "Employee's Entrance", "Silver Dollar", "Parachute Jump", "Max Museum", "Little Giant", "Telegraph Trail", "Blondie Johnson", "Mind Reader", "Central Airport", "Life of Jimmy Dolan", "Picture Snatcher", and "Elmo the Great."

Notes from the Streets Sarge Gustafson received a severe jolt Saturday about midnight. The Top Kick took it upon himself to close the fly on the top of the tent and while sitting on top of the tent he lost his balance. Gus met the ground harder and quicker than he expected.

Sergeant Al Phaneuf, after razing Sergeant Donahue all week, drew the job of Sergeant of the Guard—much to Donahue's delight. It is rumored that Phaneuf studied his guard manual until long past midnight for the ordeal.

Sergeant Donahue is spending his days in camp but blows during the night. Does he burn up the road after retreat between Niantic and South Cupcake (?) It seems that Old Lyme has taken on a new name among the boys of the Company.

A local C.C.C. boy has made good in the National Guard via the handshaking route. He had been seen donating a gift (?) to a certain officer of the company. Wonder if Red Gooch can tell us something about it?

A new club has been formed in the Howitzer company. They call themselves the Advisory Board. President Zaleskie calls a meeting at a later date.

Canteen Profit There will be no charge for parking Tuesday night but the committee will run a canteen on the grounds. All money received from the canteen goes into the Legion's rehabilitation or welfare fund. This end of the program is in charge of the Legion's ways and means committee.
