BRITAIN REFUSES GERMANY'S REQUEST

Nazi Government Wished to Purchase Airplanes to Patrol Over Cities.

London, July 26.—(AP)—Britain has informed Germany that the British government is unable to countenance the sale of British aircraft to Germany in violation of the Paris agreement.

The foreign office spokesman declined to reply to a question about whether Germany had made any direct approach to aircraft manufacturers in Britain.

He also disregarded a question by Arthur Capron, Conservative, about whether other countries would follow suit in this matter.

Anthony Eden, foreign office spokesman, told the House of Commons today.

His statement was brought out by a question about whether the government had any information regarding the ordering of police airplanes by the German government and whether any action was being taken.

German authorities announced several weeks ago that they intended to purchase police airplanes. This announcement was made after they had asserted that a foreign airplane had conducted a pamphlet-dropping raid on Berlin.

The Treaty of Versailles forbids Germany to own military planes. Captain Eden's reply brought out information that Germany had sought to buy 25 to 50 British aircraft for police purposes but had been refused.

Capt. Eden's Answer
Replying to a question by Frederick S. Coombs, Labor member for Roxton, Captain Eden said:
"Yes, the German air minister expressed to the British air attaché at Berlin July 15 the desire to purchase 25 to 50 British aircraft for police purposes. His Majesty's charge d'affaires in Berlin informed the German government yesterday in reply to this communication that His Majesty's government could not countenance the sale of British aircraft to the German government for purposes forbidden by the Paris air agreement."

He also disregarded a question by Arthur Capron, Conservative, about whether other countries would follow suit in this matter and whether America and Italy will sell airplanes to Germany."

OPEN FORUM

RUNNING THE WATER PLANT

Editor, The Herald:
Now that the purchase by the Town of the Water Company and the sewage disposal plant are assured, we are wondering just what some of the arrangements for the most successful and satisfactory method of handling these utilities might be.

Naturally, when they become Town property they will be in the custody of the Board of Selectmen as are our schools and public buildings as well as all other Town property.

The question arises, how can the Board administer the trust so as to best serve the interests of the town; having in mind both economy and service?

It cannot be said that the present owners have been over-zealous in their endeavor to accommodate patrons or "would be" patrons. It might seem to be wise and far-sighted policy to consider the needs of all who reside or own property within the area served by the two utilities. Who will have charge and oversight of the business? Why not have the Selectmen act as a Board of Directors, a general manager selected by them, responsible to them and holding office only at their will and pleasure?

Such a manager could have immediate supervision of affairs and in minor matters could have authority to decide. In matters of more importance he could refer to the Selectmen with recommendations. There is excellent reason for believing that the work can be carried on by the town fully as well and as cheaply as it has been.

One fact stands out prominently: We do not want any over-size salary grab. The big salary idea does not mean that we are getting a Napoleon of Business. It does mean plain graft.

Wouldn't it be a good plan to put some of the town's unemployed, now on dole, at work on some of the jobs that Cheney Brothers have refused to have done?

We have a school committee working without pay. Why not an advisory committee that could relieve the Selectmen of some of the work of investigation and supervision, meeting with the Board as occasions seemed to require? In all matters the Board of Selectmen should have the final word.

I should hope that the new management would abolish the abominable practice of charging by the faucet instead of by the amount of water used. A minimum charge is all right but it's none of the business of the Water Company when the meter is driven through one faucet or a hundred. Imagine a grain dealer telling you that his charge for grain would be, for the first ten 50 cents, for each additional ten 10 cents. For the first rooster 75 cents, and each additional rooster 40 cents, and so on. "AD Infinitum, Ad Nauseum."

Yours,

manifold devices, without the courage, skill and stamina of a Wiley Post your remarkable flight would not have been possible.

"It was the man in the machine who conquered the stormwinds, who pierced the fog, who dove on through rain and sleet with dauntless determination and who landed his plane back whence he started, after the fastest trip ever made around the world. The flight was, most certainly, a notable personal achievement."

The mayor presented Post a gold medal, specially cast, "In honor of a valorous deed well done and of a brave, skillful and resourceful pioneer in aviation."

At the mayor planned the medal on the flyer, Mr. Post, who stood at his side, took charge of the leather case for it. She kept in the background during the exercises and her only reply to questions as to what she thought of the ceremonies was, "It's great to have Wiley home again."

After the mayor had concluded, Post walked forward and with one hand thrust deep into a pocket, said in a low voice:
"Mayor, the people of New York have given me great applause. I want to express my appreciation of their enthusiasm. Thank you."

The exercises at the City hall concluded, Post entered an automobile and was driven up town to a luncheon of the Advertising Club of New York, at which he was the guest of honor.

TOBACCO WORKERS NOT PAID ENOUGH

State Official Says Conditions in Some Places Worse Than Sweatshops.

Hartford, July 26.—(AP)—"Conditions in some of the tobacco plantations are far worse than the sweatshops of the state ever thought of being," Deputy Commissioner of Factory Inspection, William J. Fitzgerald said today in commenting on the employment of children on tobacco.

"Despite the Gentlemen's agreement," signed several months ago by most of the tobacco growers of this section, in which it was agreed that children under 14 years of age would not be employed, it has been found that the agreement has been broken by at least one grower," said Mr. Fitzgerald.

"We have obtained the names of 21 employees on one plantation taken at random, and of those now on strike from this plantation, five are under 14 years of age. Two of them do not yet know how much they are to receive for their services, but in contradiction to the assertion that all are receiving fair wages for the work performed in the terms of the agreement has been broken by at least one grower," said Mr. Fitzgerald.

would be satisfied with the $100 a week she gave him as expense money, in addition to the use of her 12-cylinder automobile and the use of the home.

"I seem to have been wrong," Andrews who was in the state-room, said he knew why Hutton had asked for a divorce.

"He thought he could take the temple and run it, but he found out differently."

The receipt of the wireless message on board the City of Havre sent her, to use her own words, "spinning" across the room to collapse in a corner.

Was Shocked.
She had viewed the knock at the door herself and was so shocked she could not believe it for days. Just yesterday, she added, the full significance had come over her.

"And I thought all the time his love was an undying and perfect love."

Never Spoken.
Aimee's dark-eyed and serious daughter, Mrs. Smyth, interposed a few words.

"Mother didn't think of herself for days after the message was received. All she thought about, was the temple and the Four-Square members."

Mrs. Smyth said she had seen the divorce as a possibility for some time but said nothing about it to her mother "because she might have thought I was just biased." She did not amplify this statement.

Never Spoken.
Reverting to her mother's unselfishness and tenderness, Mrs. Smyth said "she has never spanked me."

Aimee said Hutton's apparent devotion to the temple and religion seemed in view of his divorce petition and his desertion of the temple for the stage to have been a case of "acting."

GOVERNORS BACK PRESIDENT'S PLAN

FUNERALS

Wilson Campbell The funeral of Wilson Campbell who died on Sunday was held this afternoon at his home, 267 Oak street. Rev. Kimber Moulton who is in charge at the Nazarene church during the absence on vacation of Rev. H. B. Anthony, conducted the service.

The bearers were Henry Burbeck, Robert Pierson, Samuel Strain, Robert Guthrie, Samuel Richardson and Mathew Moriarty. Burial was in the East cemetery.

At a banquet here last night the governors heard the President assure them of his "deep appreciation of the cooperative spirit you have shown in your resolution" pledging support of the recovery program.

In response Governor John Garland Poliard of Virginia, Governor James Rolph, Jr., of California, and Mayor Angelo Rossi of San Francisco.

Today Governor George White of Ohio opens the final business session of the conference with a talk on "unemployment insurance and reserve funds" in the morning meeting, to be presided over by Governor Guy B. Park of Missouri.

A paper prepared by Governor Poliard on "mortgages" stated that the "demand by any one group of investors for fulfillment of obligations made during the peak of boom prosperity without regard to changes in basic real estate values and their obvious decrease in earning power will delay any lasting economic recovery."

"Any sponsorship or encouragement which can be given toward general acceptance of voluntary offers of readjustment," he said "will go far toward creating a sounder condition in the real estate field, will serve the best interests of bondholders and homeowners alike and make a genuine contribution to the cause of National recovery."

Attend a Luncheon
At noon the governors attend a luncheon of the Commonwealth Club to hear Secretary of War George H. Dern talk on the operations of the War Department.

Governor John G. Winant of New Hampshire speaks during the afternoon on "Hours of Labor and the Minimum Wage" and a general round table discussion follows.

Late tonight the governors leave for Yosemite National Park. Thursday night the governors go to southern California.

Two hundred yards off shore, buoys were placed at 100-yard intervals to mark the landing place for the aviators and crates containing engine parts and spare wings were broken open in a specially constructed shed—the headquarters of the mechanics.

A squad of police was sent from St. John's to guard the materials and on the same train the welcoming party of Newfoundland government officials arrived at Shoal Harbor.

Forty-eight small motorboats, each one of the property of Newfoundland fishermen, darted back and forth across the harbor as they participated in a series of drills instituted to expedite the refueling of the planes. Huge tanks held 35,000 gallons of fuel to be taken aboard by General Balbo's armada and it was expected the refueling operations would be completed within four hours of the arrival of the aircraft.

Many of the inhabitants of the small Trinity Bay villages brought their families. It was not an uncommon sight to see a wind-burned fisherman row in from some village miles distant with his wife and children. The crews of fishing schooners were called into port to see the fliers and take a holiday from their toils at sea.

The Italian armada was expected today from Shediac, N. B., where they stopped on the first leg of their flight from New York back to Italy.

Children's shoes are needed more than shoes for adults but the welfare department can use all kinds and types of shoes. In some cases youngsters are deprived of outings and picnics simply because they have no shoes to wear. Fathers and mothers cannot look for work in some instances because they have no shoes to wear. Look over your supply of shoes at home. You perhaps have exactly what is needed by some needy family. Call 5868 and Miss Reynolds will gladly call for the shoes and deliver them to the needy people.

NO ACTION YET TAKEN ON NEW H. S. PRINCIPAL

It is expected that the list of applications will be weeded out to leave the outstanding prospects, which will be made of the Board of Education will be held to select the most likely candidate for the post. PLAN FIRE DISTRICT MEETING IN AUGUST

Would Levy Tax to Meet Notes and Incidentals Before Annual Session.

A special meeting of the South Manchester Fire District will be called next month, it was learned today, to consider the levying of the regular tax earlier so that funds needed now for district expenses may be secured. There is not sufficient money on hand now to carry the district through the fiscal year which ends in November and the district is unable to borrow sufficient from the Manchester Trust Company to pay its debts.

If the meeting called in August votes to levy a tax, possibly at the two mill rate, it will be collectible in October or November and will be levied upon property of ownership as of the date the tax is laid. If the district waits until the end of the fiscal year in November it would be unable to raise any money through taxation until the following spring.

The district's indebtedness now is $40,000 of which $13,000 is owed the Manchester Trust Company. Under the bank commissioner's ruling the Trust Company will not loan enough money to the district to meet its expenses. The tax collected in the fall would meet the notes due and carry on the expense of the fire district.

It is believed by the district commissioner that this action would save the district interest money. It is not planned to spend money on new apparatus this year, but it may be necessary to purchase new tires and otherwise repair the present equipment. By levying the tax and meeting the notes due the saving now on interest will be reflected naturally in a lower tax later.

The tavern at 119 Spruce street in the Levechuk building will be conducted by Florantino Zanlungo and Joe Levrio, it was announced today. They hope to have their opening announcement ready soon.

At a banquet here last night the governors heard the President assure them of his "deep appreciation of the cooperative spirit you have shown in your resolution" pledging support of the recovery program.

In response Governor John Garland Poliard of Virginia, Governor James Rolph, Jr., of California, and Mayor Angelo Rossi of San Francisco.

Today Governor George White of Ohio opens the final business session of the conference with a talk on "unemployment insurance and reserve funds" in the morning meeting, to be presided over by Governor Guy B. Park of Missouri.

A paper prepared by Governor Poliard on "mortgages" stated that the "demand by any one group of investors for fulfillment of obligations made during the peak of boom prosperity without regard to changes in basic real estate values and their obvious decrease in earning power will delay any lasting economic recovery."

"Any sponsorship or encouragement which can be given toward general acceptance of voluntary offers of readjustment," he said "will go far toward creating a sounder condition in the real estate field, will serve the best interests of bondholders and homeowners alike and make a genuine contribution to the cause of National recovery."

Attend a Luncheon
At noon the governors attend a luncheon of the Commonwealth Club to hear Secretary of War George H. Dern talk on the operations of the War Department.

Governor John G. Winant of New Hampshire speaks during the afternoon on "Hours of Labor and the Minimum Wage" and a general round table discussion follows.

Late tonight the governors leave for Yosemite National Park. Thursday night the governors go to southern California.

Cartwright, Labrador, and was tied up at the railway wharf. Ray and Cleopatra and a diner were side-tracked on the dock and eating quarters were set up in the Odd Fellows' hall to care for any overflow.

Mark Landing Place.
Two hundred yards off shore, buoys were placed at 100-yard intervals to mark the landing place for the aviators and crates containing engine parts and spare wings were broken open in a specially constructed shed—the headquarters of the mechanics.

A squad of police was sent from St. John's to guard the materials and on the same train the welcoming party of Newfoundland government officials arrived at Shoal Harbor.

Forty-eight small motorboats, each one of the property of Newfoundland fishermen, darted back and forth across the harbor as they participated in a series of drills instituted to expedite the refueling of the planes. Huge tanks held 35,000 gallons of fuel to be taken aboard by General Balbo's armada and it was expected the refueling operations would be completed within four hours of the arrival of the aircraft.

Many of the inhabitants of the small Trinity Bay villages brought their families. It was not an uncommon sight to see a wind-burned fisherman row in from some village miles distant with his wife and children. The crews of fishing schooners were called into port to see the fliers and take a holiday from their toils at sea.

The Italian armada was expected today from Shediac, N. B., where they stopped on the first leg of their flight from New York back to Italy.

LEND A HAND

Miss Jessie M. Reynolds, local welfare nurse, reports the need of shoes for men, women and children among the jobless families in Manchester. Children's shoes are needed more than shoes for adults but the welfare department can use all kinds and types of shoes. In some cases youngsters are deprived of outings and picnics simply because they have no shoes to wear. Fathers and mothers cannot look for work in some instances because they have no shoes to wear. Look over your supply of shoes at home. You perhaps have exactly what is needed by some needy family. Call 5868 and Miss Reynolds will gladly call for the shoes and deliver them to the needy people.

HOSPITAL NOTES

A son was born at the hospital yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. William Munnis of 52 Benton street. Mrs. Munnis delivered a healthy son, Theodore Charles and infant daughter of 21 Stone street were discharged yesterday.

ROCKVILLE

ORGANIZERS INTERFERE WITH WORK PROGRESS

Rockville Disturbed at Presence of Outsiders Who Urge 30 Hour Week.

The interference of organizers in the woolen mills of Rockville is expected to be disastrous both to the manufacturers and the contented workers in Rockville at the present time. A canvass of more than a score of employees in all branches of the woolen mills in Rockville indicated that they are not seeking a thirty hour week as has been urged by organizers who have visited this community.

The local tendency is for an eight hour day and either a five and one-half or a six hour week meaning either 44 or 48 hours a week. This was formerly the working hours of the industries in Rockville for many years. It is hoped to bring about a minimum wage of $24 weekly for the employees of the different departments in the Rockville mills. At the present time the wages are much higher but carding, spinning and dressing departments are working much longer hours.

The fact that organizers are at work in Rockville at the present time in an effort to bring about an organization to regulate the wages to be paid under the new schedule, has been the cause of much concern among the manufacturers. Very little discontent has been expressed in Rockville during the spring months with both employers and employees being satisfied with the wages paid.

Under the present schedule the Rockville mills are working two shifts for a total of 210 hours a week. This has necessitated one shift working a total of 11 1/2 hours a night. The fact that the Rockville mills have been working day and night all during depression brought about a feeling of all local people settle the difficulties in Rockville at this time relative to the new woolen code.

The idle code for Rockville's mills is reported as being the 48 hour week which is being advocated by both the Hockanum Mills Company and the James J. Regan Manufacturing Company. Orders are reported as being on the books of the local through until the fall months on both day and night shifts. The readjustment of the working hours will necessitate a change in their schedule and with the reduction of practically all being advocated by the time it will be impossible to fill these orders.

The Hockanum Mills Company have expanded during the past few months and re-opened two capital mills. Within a few days more mills working in the New England mill many additional weavers were put to work, necessitating the bringing of weavers to Rockville from other towns. The re-opening of the Capital Mill for carding and spinning has also brought about the employment of more carders and spinners from other communities.

Rooming houses are scarce in Rockville and private families are now taking roomers in an effort to accommodate the incoming workers. Serious Illness of Boy
The injuries to Stanley Gerich, son of Steve Gerich of Southford, now a patient at the Hartford Hospital, is of much concern to the authorities at the present time. Rumors have been rife as to how he received the injuries. The boy was taken to the Rockville City Hospital last Thursday evening. He was later removed to the Hartford Hospital.

The boy was found in a coma but it is also reported that there are no marks on the body to show violence. Reports on the several investigations now underway are expected within a few days.

Income Tax Returns
The fact that Rockville residents have paid income taxes by the scores indicates that property has returned to Connecticut's smallest city of less than 10,000 residents. A total of 788 income tax returns have been filed for the year ending in 1934 for the City of Rockville. The report for Tolland County for the past year is as follows:—Vernon and Rockville, 288; Coventry, 21; Ellington, 18; Mansfield, 19; Somers, 34; Stafford, 152; Tolland, 11; Willington, 27; total for Tolland County, 618.

The income tax returns for Rockville and Vernon are very high in comparison to the number of returns, indicating considerable wealth in Rockville.
Damon Lodge Install Officers
Damon Lodge, Knights of Pythias, installed their newly elected officers for the fiscal year of 1935-36 on last evening. Three buses will be used in transporting the number that have already signed to go. There may be others who will take the trip who have as yet not signed and another bus may be needed. In addition to those making the trip by bus others are planning to go to Danbury in privately owned cars.

Four of the 14 mills around Klamath Falls were closed as employees demanded a 25 per cent wage increase. Five hundred men were on strike at the Weyerhaeuser Timber Company plant which shut down last week and about 400 at the other three plants.

At Burns, Ore., the large Edward Lines Western Pine Company resumed full operations following a two-day partial shutdown. Pay increases of from four to 12 cents an hour for skilled labor were reported.

Chicago, July 26—(AP)—Action against criminals before they commit crimes was demanded today by State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney who issued a joint declaration of war with Mayor Edward J. Kelly against gunmen of all descriptions following the fatal shooting of three policemen.

Courtney said the campaign would be waged as an offensive fight with the battle carried to the enemy's lines. The mayor called upon the police to win it even if they have to work 24 hours a day to do it.

Meanwhile, John Schack, accused of murder, who attempted to shoot his way out of the Criminal Court building by slaying Policeman John Sevik in a court room, was reported recovering from wounds he received when other officers captured him.

Two other policemen lost their lives last Saturday night when hoodlums they stopped to question in an automobile shot them.

STATE THEATER

Two Feature Program

"Reunion in Vienna" with John Barrymore and Diana Wynward plus "The Circus Queen Murder" with Adolphe Menjou are the two pictures on today's double feature program at the State. On Friday and Saturday the State will present Lew Ayres and Ginger Rogers in "Don't Bet on Love" a race horse story and Zane Grey's "Sunset Pass" with Randolph Scott and Harry Carey. Next Sunday "When Ladies Meet" comes to the State with "What Price Innocence" coming on next Wednesday.

John Barrymore goes from the extreme of dashing uniforms to tatters in his latest screen role as the romantic Archduke Rudolf in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's talking picture version of "Reunion in Vienna." In the spectacular palace scenes of the picture Barrymore is resplendent in imperial costumes of the old Austrian regime, goldbraided and embellished with medals.

Other episodes show him in chauffer's garb, Alpine outfit, and in one hilarious moment—in shirt tails.

Diana Wynward, who recently won acclaim for her brilliant performance in "Cavalcade," plays opposite Barrymore in the photoplay version of the noted Robert E. Hoar play which was a success. Prominent supporting roles are played by Frank Morgan, star of the Broadway production of "Topaze," Henry Travers, May Robson, Eduardo Cinnelli and Una Merkel. The picture was directed by Sidney Franklin, who produced "Smilin' Through."

REPEAL PROBLEM.

A couple of years ago repeal of the 18th amendment looked like a very remote possibility. A year ago the possibility, far less remote, was still only a possibility. Two months ago it began to change into a probability. Today it looks like a dead certainty.

The unanimity with which all sections of the country are endorsing repeal marks the culmination of one of the strangest and most surprising shifts of public sentiment in American history.

But the truly interesting and important part of it all is still to come. A majority of Americans, evidently, have decided that federal prohibition is a mistake. No one knows, yet, what laws the several states will devise to control the liquor traffic once the amendment is repealed; and, for the moment, that question is unimportant.

Whether or not we are acting wisely in repealing the amendment will ultimately depend less on the new laws we pass than on the mental attitude with which, individually and collectively, we face the problem of alcohol itself.

To boil it down to a colloquial phrase, it is the question whether we are going to have sense enough to take it or leave it alone.

A complex industrial civilization like ours cannot operate on a tradition of hard drinking. Probably it was a dawning recognition of that fact that made us willing to experiment with federal prohibition 13 years ago. And now that we have learned the failure of that method of coping with the problem, we are going to have to find some new system of social control which will keep alcohol from becoming a menace.

Our best bet, oddly enough, may well be this dawning economic system by which the ordinary workman is going to get more leisure, better living conditions and a higher wage.

Strong drink, traditionally, has been the wage slave's method of escape from unpleasant reality. Excessive drinking was not so much the cause of subject poverty as subject poverty was the cause of excessive drinking. And from this it is clear that the success of the repeal experiment will depend largely on the success of the industrial "new deal."

Bringing the "submerged tenth" up into a freer and happier life is our best chance of making alcohol a useful servant and not a ruinous master.

NOW IS THE TIME. Anyone in Manchester contemplating doing any kind of repair work about their properties had best do it now if their personal finances will allow it. At least, it would be good business to purchase the materials now. With the farmers getting better crop prices, the mill workers getting increased hours of employment at better wages and with both state and federal expenditures on public works programs increasing it is easy to see that commodity prices will soon be going up. Already there have been increases in several commodities. The others will follow rapidly.

Building supplies, all of them, cement, lumber, paint, structural steel, electrical equipment, have been at price levels the present generation may never see again. They will start upward in price at almost any time now. Some of them have started, but the increases have not been sufficient to alarm the prospective builder. The end of the summer will see substantial increases no doubt.

The owner of property can repair and rebuild an old structure or build new one at a price now that he may never live to see again. Labor is plentiful and the cost of labor is still at a low level. It is not often that the man planning to build finds both labor and materials at a low price at the same time.

With this combination so attractive it seems that the man with money to invest cannot afford not to put some of his money, at least, in construction activity. Not only will he find a good return on his investment but he will help start the ball rolling. The investment of money in an activity that means an increase in employment is better than putting one's funds into charity.

BETTER FILMS.

There has been considerable publicity recently on the Better Films League. Branches have been formed in nearly every community. Here and there we have heard of the Better Films League discussing the good and bad in motion pictures. As far as Manchester is concerned nothing has as yet been done to either encourage or discourage the local showing of good or bad pictures. The League becomes somewhat suspicious as to its origin because of this fact. It is generally believed that the movie folk themselves started the idea of offset and defeat the aims of any group of really sincere self-appointed censors.

If there is a League in Hartford it has this week an opportunity to assert itself and at least make known its stand with regard to the discreet subjects the screen should handle. At one theater in Hartford this week a film is being shown describing life among the nudists. There has been a growing disposition on the part of believers in the back-to-nature movement to make their beliefs more public. Art and literature on the subject have become more daring. For those who believe in that type of living there can be nothing wrong in its practice, but when the publicity attendant upon the movement nearly reaches depravity something should be done about it.

The showing of the nudist colony films in a Hartford theater would not attract as much attention if it were not for the art display along the sidewalk fronting the theater. Stills of life in some of the nudist colonies are displayed and they are not attracting the elders who might understand what it's all about, but rather a crowd of youngsters hearing and making lewd remarks that are anything but pleasant for passersby. At least the show could be confined to the theater proper where those who want that sort of entertainment would be obliged to pay the price and those not interested might pass the theater without embarrassment.

DANGEROUS KITCHENS.

The kitchen doesn't ordinarily seem like a dangerous place—except, perhaps, when a truly inexperienced cook starts concocting indigestible dishes for defenseless diners. But figures released by the National Safety Council show that a huge number of fatal accidents take place in American kitchens every year.

The highway, of course, is the scene of more fatal accidents than any other spot. But there were 28,000 deaths last year from accidents which took place in the home, and fully 84 per cent of these occurred in kitchens.

Falls and scalds seem to be the most prolific sources of home accidents. And while it is a bit difficult to see just how a safety code can be devised and enforced for the home, a little care and forethought in the midst of the daily round of activities ought to save a good many lives each year.

OUR SHIPS FOUNDERING.

Ten years ago this summer Manchester was affluster with plans for its Centennial celebration. Committees had been organized and plans were pretty much perfected by the first of August in 1923. It was the purpose of the general committee to give the town and its guests during the period one of the finest celebrations of the kind ever witnessed in his particular section. As all remember the committee succeeded.

Just about ten years ago under the committee's supervision Manchester's famous "ship signs" were being erected on posts placed at the various entrances into town. It was never explained by the committee what the ship with reference to Manchester could mean, but they made attractive signs nevertheless. The ship signs are still located at the entrances to the town, but most of them are sorry sights. From their appearances they seem to have been erected 20 years ago rather than just a decade. They have been neglected and are anything but attractive now. The flag on the ship is drooping. The sails are in tatters, even the water in the ocean has dried up. We trust that their present condition isn't understood to be symbolic of the town.

The Centennial committee has long since ceased to function so its responsibility in the matter is naught. The Chamber of Commerce assumed care of the signs and two or three times has had them repainted. Whether the Chamber intends to continue to keep them up we do not know, but it would be a far better advertisement for the town if they were taken down rather than leave them in their present condition.

FRANCE STARTS COINING NEW SILVER FRANCS

New Coin to End Muddle Over Change—To Make 3 Billion Francs.

By MORRIS GILBERT

Paris—Silver coinage is coming back here after 13 years. By the end of next year, according to present plans, three billion francs in silver coins will be in circulation in denominations of 10 and 20 francs. At par, 10 francs is about 40 cents American.

That means that France, for the first time since 1920 is bringing out 80-cent pieces. There may be also a big issue of new silver five-franc pieces. Also, the government is issuing new base-metal currency for two francs, a franc, and a half a franc. We would think of them at par as eight-cent pieces, four-cent pieces, and two-cent pieces.

The new French coinage has already begun to appear but the substitution of government currency for all the queer money that has been in use since the war isn't expected to be finished before December, 1934.

France stopped coining gold pieces in 1915. She stopped coining silver five years later. At first, after the war, there was nothing but paper—and the silver minted up to 1920. The government didn't back any bill smaller than 50 francs. Paper money of lower value was issued and backed by the French Chamber of Commerce. It was "token" money, but it served very well.

So when inflation set in, after the war, and the French franc dropped from a value of 20 francs to four cents, there was lots of speculation in French silver. The five-franc pieces—as big as the old American "cartwheel"—were especially good for this kind of trafficking.

A speculator would gather up five-franc pieces and take them to Switzerland. There he would trade them for Swiss paper francs—which they approximated in value—and bring these back to France. In France the Swiss paper francs were still at par. The profit was enormous.

The effect of trafficking and hoarding was that silver disappeared from circulation. There was a "crise de monnaie"—a crisis of cash. Thereupon the French had to invent new ways of buying their newspapers and their cigars and other small purchases. They even used little packages of stamps, wrapped up in oiled paper, for money.

The Chamber of Commerce of France stepped into save the situation. It began issuing "jetons" or counters made of bronze, aluminum, with the symbol of the Chamber of Commerce on one side and the promise, "Good for 50 centimes" or a franc, or two francs, on the other.

These "jetons" became the principal small change of the country, backed by nothing but the Chamber of Commerce's say-so. Small change is still queer here. The "jetons" still persist. So do the government base-metal coins. There are three kinds of sou's. One is copper, one solid nickel, one nickel with a hole in it. There is diversity of two sou, or 10 centime, pieces, and there are five-sou pieces with and without holes.

This is approximately as if there were in the United States three kinds of cents, three kinds of two-cent pieces, two kinds of nickels, and two kinds of dimes; not to mention paper 20-cent and 40-cent notes.

The French, bored with the variety of their postwar coinage, are attempting to straighten it out again. They have already begun with government issues of francs and two-franc pieces, and the new silver-alloy coins.

Health and Diet Advice

By Dr. Frank McCoy

MILK DIET FOR STOMACH ULCERS

About five out of ten cases of stomach ulcer will report such digestive disturbances as nausea and vomiting, and nearly all of them report having noted belching, flatulency, a gnawing sensation, a bloated feeling and other disturbances which show that digestion is not going on normally.

The symptom that may be most frightening to the patient is the vomiting of blood. This bleeding is caused by a tearing open of small blood vessels located near the ulcer. If the blood remains a long time in the stomach before being vomited, it may have a dark brown color like coffee grounds; but, if vomited early, it comes up a bright red. If it passes on through the bowels, it may appear on the next day as a black tarry consistency of the stools. The vomiting of blood does not necessarily indicate stomach ulcers since it is possible for one to swallow blood, say, as from a bleeding in the back of the nose which may afterwards, usually in a small amount of hemorrhaging from the stomach is not noticed, but a patient who has a large amount of blood in the bowels, and who has vomited a small quantity of blood, should always be an examination with the X-ray whenever stomach ulcers are suspected for it constitutes the only definite method of diagnosis. An emergency treatment for one who is bleeding from gastric ulcer is to have the patient lie flat on the back and place cold or ice packs on the stomach, keeping him as quiet as possible until the physician arrives.

As I stated in yesterday's article, I believe the milk diet is the best that can be used to allow the inflamed surface of the ulcer to heal. Ordinary foods or foods containing roughage might serve to prevent the healing by causing a rubbing on the ulcer, and the acid fruit juices would cause a burning sensation. Milk is valuable in that it seems to act as a salve or coating on the ulcer, thus preventing injury through friction as the stomach churns. Milk also serves the purpose of absorbing the digestive juices so that they do not act on the sore ulcer surface.

The best method for taking the milk diet is to use the eight ounce glass of milk every hour during the day and night while awake. The milk should be raw and sweet and slightly warmed by placing the glass in a pan of water which is warm but not hot enough to burn the hands. The milk should be sipped slowly through a straw and taken exactly on the hour intervals. No water should be added. The taking of milk at irregular periods does not agree with the stomach and is apt to lead to some indigestion, and the suffering from stomach ulcers do not be so careless. After being on the milk diet for some time, the stomach usually becomes a very good time clock and will tell the patient almost to the dot when the hour is up and it is time for another glass.

Holstein milk is the best to use but, if this is not obtainable and it is found necessary to use a milk that is thick yellow cream, for it is better to remove about half of this heavy cream. The raw milk is better for the purpose than pasteurized but it should be of a certified kind. If the raw milk is not obtainable, then, a pasteurized milk would have to be used, and a small amount of lemon or orange juice should be added to the milk or diet which is given by many authorities is very rich and often brings shaken with it. The milk and cream about liver and gall bladder trouble. I have found the plain milk is better for the average case. In some cases it is advisable to add a half teaspoonful of milk of magnesia to each glass of milk. This is useful in the beginning in cases where the stomach irritation is excessive, but it need not be continued after the irritation subsides.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Does Vaseline Help Anemia?) Question: Miss A. writes: "It is my conviction that I am somewhat anemic. Someone has suggested that I take one teaspoonful of vaseline every night before going to bed to provide more blood, aid elimination of waste and put on weight. Will you kindly advise me if there is any good in the idea?" Answer: The use of vaseline internally as mentioned by you can in no way improve your anemic condition. It may act as a lubricating substance for the alimentary canal and, as such, be a temporary aid to constipation, but I believe you will derive more benefit from following the instructions outlined in my articles on Anemia, which will be forwarded to you if you will write me again, giving your name and address on a large, stamped envelope.

(Spring Dock and Alfalfa) Question: Mr. Stanley H. writes: "I would be much indebted to you if you will please advise me as to the following: Are the leaves of Spring Dock beneficial to health? Also please state how to prepare alfalfa as a green spring tonic." Answer: The leaves of the Spring Dock have no particular virtues other than those which are inherent in most green leafy vegetables, such as spinach, Swiss chard, sorrel, etc. Dock leaves do, however, contain a small amount of oxalic acid, making their use inadvisable for anyone with kidney or bladder trouble, but are wholesome for other people. The tonic effects of alfalfa may be obtained by using the leaves and flowers chopped up in a salad like spinach.

IN NEW YORK

By JULIA BLANSHARD

New York, July 26—Hot days are bringing out various curious-looking costumes labeled "reform clothes for men" . . . One consistent clothes-reformer is Russell Patterson, noted illustrator of young moderns. His latest idea of the best hot-weather outfit is an immaculate, double-breasted white coat, worn with dark pants "because the coat part of your costume stays clean so much longer" . . . He also wears Ascot-tie shirts (no collar), just a matching Ascot tie, knotted in easy, comfortable manner) . . . He has just finished designing comfortable hot-weather shoes for men and is now at work designing some new types of smart clothes for little women . . . Winters he is addicted to having his suits tailored in two tones of the same color, coats slightly lighter in hue than the blue, brown or gray trousers that go with them.

Skyscraper Alligators New Yorkers go to extreme lengths for their pets. Margaret Bourke-White, photographer de luxe, who charges 500 for a session in her studio, and who has gone twice to Russia as guest of the Soviet government to take pictures, laid aside all her work one day this week to do her bit for one of her pet turtles. She has two alligators, "Mercury" and "Mars," and eight turties in her skyscraper studio on the 61st floor of the Chrysler Building. Incidentally, it is on her floor that the Chrysler sprouts those huge metal gargoyles of the metal peak and Miss Bourke-White's porch includes two of them, "Min" and "Bill," but these animals cause her no trouble! On the exciting day mentioned, however, one of her turtles laid an egg—the first turtle in history ever to lay an egg 800 feet above the sidewalks of New York. Not knowing what to do under the circumstances, "Peggy" called the head of the Herpetology Department of the Natural History Museum, got him out of a conference, and found out that she must keep the egg in a box of moist sand . . . Finally they got the egg all fixed up. . . They "are expecting" around Labor Day.

Another new addition to her studio is an interesting cactus park for her alligators. These parks are almost too healthy. They fight ferociously when given their once-a-week half pound of fresh beefsteak. They hiss at everybody who comes in. However, they both seem quieter and more contented, now that they have a cactus park.

Isn't Such A Tall Town Little bits that go to make the crazy-quiet, New York: The average height of buildings, in this city of skyscrapers, is six stories . . . Men taxi drivers, no matter how hot the day, cannot drive in their shirt sleeves but must wear coats. It is a hang-over from the Grover (Gardens-in-his-buttonhole) Whalen regime. The three girl taxi drivers, however, can wear any cool costume they please. . . One drives in white cotton slacks and cotton polo shirts, another in sunback, sleeveless dresses . . . The Public Library has newspapers from every city in the U. S. A., which you can read by dropping in . . . The Chanin Building on East 42nd Street, has a theater with a capacity of 300, on its 54th floor . . . Don't wear a flower in your buttonhole or carry one if you are walking through Central Park or any other city Park with blooming plants. You can be arrested for same. There is a law against picking park flowers and cops always assume you have broken it.

New Yorker Continues Sensational Play in Seabright Invitation Net Tourney.

Seabright, N. J., July 26.—(AP)—Baroness Maud Levi, of New York, continued to be the sensation of the classic Seabright Invitation tennis tournament today by conquering sixth-seeded Virginia Rice, of Boston in straight sets, 6-4, 10-8.

Seabright, N. J., July 26.—(AP)—Little Sarah Palfrey of Brookline, Mass., who failed last year to gain a position in the first ten of national women's tennis, surprised Alice Marble of San Francisco with her variety of strokes today to enter the semi-finals of the annual Seabright Invitation grass court tournament with a 6-2, 6-0 victory.

Miss Marble, ranked seventh nationally in 1933 and seeded fourth in this 46th annual classic, failed even to give the black-haired New England miss a battle. Miss Palfrey has all over the court in giving the women's division of the tournament a second surprise, not as much an upset as the defeat of Carolin Babcock by Baroness Maud Levi yesterday, but still an unexpected result.

Seeded eighth and ranked twelfth in the country, she volleyed well and her smashes caught Miss Marble off guard time and time again. The loser had won two important tournaments this year, at Longwood and Essex Court.

The defending champion, Helen Jacobs, who also is national title holder, caught on to her game in her quarter final bout with Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn and scored an easy 6-1, 6-3 triumph to keep in the running.

In the other match in the top half of the draw, Josephine Cruikshank, fifth-rated player in the United States, overpowered Marjorie Sachs, diminutive left-hander from Boston, 6-4, 6-4, and the two Californians will face each other tomorrow.

Miss Jacobs, despite the fact she had been successful in two rounds earlier this week, had been playing poor tennis. Today, however, her powerful service and her high-speed smashes began to work and she never gave Mrs. Van Ryn, wife of the Davis Cup doubles player, a chance.

Drawing her out of position with drives down the middle, she then would rush the net and smash the returns of the nation's eighth-ranked player for certain points. Miss Sachs, who heads the last position in the first ten, gave her fifth-ranked opponent a merry chase before losing, but Miss Cruikshank had the extra amount of ability needed.

Summary: Third round: Miss Helen Jacobs, Berkeley, Calif., defeated Mrs. John Van Ryn, Philadelphia, 6-1, 6-3. Josephine Cruikshank, Santa Ana, Calif., defeated Marjorie Sachs, Cambridge, Mass., 6-1, 6-4. Baroness Maud Levi, New York, defeated Virginia Rice, Boston, Mass., 6-4, 10-8. Sarah Palfrey, Brookline, Mass., defeated Alice Marble, San Francisco, 6-2, 6-0.

TRIAL FOR AMERICANS IN MAJORCA SHORTLY

U. S. Ambassador Bowers Notified That a Hearing Will Be Held Very Soon.

Madrid, July 26.—(AP)—Claude I. Dawson, consul general at Barcelona, reported to United States Ambassador Claude G. Bowers today that trial of the five Americans involved in an alleged attack on a civil guard in Majorca was expected to be scheduled shortly. He informed the Ambassador that Theodore Pratt, American writer who asked the Majorcan authorities for protection because he had been threatened in connection with a magazine article in which he criticized a statement promising to refrain from expressing anti-Majorcan feelings in future writings.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, July 26.—(AP)—Financial markets mullied about rather indecisively and indifferently today, the trading temperature cooled down to somewhere around normal and brokerage houses began to breathe easier. Stocks, after a firm but unenthusiastic start, slid off a little, rallied again moderately and maintained a fairly steady and dull pace for a while. Most of the leaders recorded early advances to 1 to 3 points, and later yielded substantial portions of these gains. The market opened at 11 a. m. instead of noon, with the closing set for 2 p. m. instead of 3. Grains were firm at both Chicago and Winnipeg, cotton was fairly steady and other commodities moved indifferently. The dollar rallied rather sharply in foreign exchange transactions. Bonds were somewhat irregular.

MOST BARBERS SIGN ASSOCIATION'S ROLL

Agree on Hours and Prices But Not on Half Day They'll Stay Closed.

With but one or two exceptions all of the barbers in Manchester have signed the roll of membership in the Barbers Protective Association and have agreed upon prices that will prevail as the minimum in all shops. There is but one question that is unsettled and that is the afternoon on which the shops will close. The hours are set by law and provides that the shops shall open from 8 o'clock in the morning to 7 o'clock in the evening year around. There shall also be one afternoon a week off and the hours on Saturday or a night preceding a holiday will be extended until 9 o'clock in the evening for closing but any patron inside the shop at that hour can remain and have work done.

STORM WARNING

Washington, July 26.—(AP)—The Weather Bureau this morning issued the following storm warning: "Tropical disturbance of considerable intensity probably attended by winds of hurricane force over small area centered about 75 miles north of San Juan, Puerto Rico, moving northwest about 16 miles per hour. Caution advised vessels in path."

HAS HAD 53 OFFICERS

During the 47 years of its existence as a medium for God in the community, the Manchester Corps, then known as the South Manchester Corps, has had 53 commanding officers, starting with Captain A. Estis in 1886. The Salvation Army hall was then located on the corner of Spruce and Florence streets. Later a new building was built at a point near the north end of the present Nathan Hale school. Later the citadel was built on Main street when the Corps grew in numbers. A former prominent officer advanced out into world service from this town including the present Provincial Commander, Colonel Joseph Atkinson of Boston, commanding this section of New England; Commissioner Eva Parker; Major Edward Atkinson (retired); Major Perrett, Captain William Addy, brother of Bandmaster David Addy of this town; Adjutant Myrtle Turkington and Adjutant Florence Turkington, the famous "Doughnut girls" of the French battlefield. Mrs. Adjutant Bevens and others of the younger group.

McMAHON CALMS DOWN AT TRIAL

Costello Witness Continues Story of Relations With Fire Captain's Widow.

Salem, Mass., July 26.—(AP)—Edward J. McMahon, Peabody policeman and confessed inamorato of Mrs. Jessie Costello, on trial for husband-murder, today testified he once heard the slain fire captain threaten to punish his wife unless she ceased her attention to McMahon.

"I will break you in halves, if you don't keep away from that boy in there," McMahon quoted the husband as saying as he met Mrs. Costello outside of the hospital room, where McMahon was convalescing from an appendicitis operation.

Mrs. Costello is charged with having administered poison to Fire Captain William J. Costello, who on February 17, last, was found dead in the hallway of their home in Peabody.

More Composed McMahon, who was on the point of collapse yesterday as he answered questions of the prosecution which bared the alleged intimacies existing between him and the attractive widow prior to Costello's death, appeared more composed today.

—Do you remember an incident, at the hospital, when Dr. Pomeroy came to visit you, as to where Jessie was?

—One morning she hid behind the door.

—What were her actions with you in the hospital—in detail?

—Jessie was very improper.

—Loaned Him Money The former reserve officer admitted Mrs. Costello loaned him money to pay the balance of his wife's hospital bill and he never paid it back.

—When did you learn of Bill's death?

—The morning he died she called me on the telephone and said "Eddie, its come."

—McMahon swore she told him in the kitchen of her home that morning, "in one way, I'm glad he's gone."

HORNBY IS SIGNED TO MANAGE BROWNS

Rajah Is Given 3-Year Contract to Pilot Last Place American Loop Team.

St. Louis, July 26.—(AP)—Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis Browns, today announced signing of Rogers Hornsby as Manager for the remainder of this season, 1934 and 1935. Hornsby succeeds Bill Killefer who resigned recently. Ball made his announcement as soon as President John Heydler of the National League had informed the St. Louis Cardinals, with whom Hornsby has been playing this season, that all clubs in the league had waived on Hornsby's services. As the Browns are in last place they had first claim to Hornsby under baseball law.

While no details of the contract were made public, it was understood that Hornsby will be given more authority than any other Manager Ball has had. Ball will retain the owner's right to do what he wants with his property, but Hornsby will have entire charge in the contemplated rebuilding of the Browns and will be responsible to no one except Ball.

Hornsby, who wore a Cardinal uniform yesterday, coaching on the first base line on Frank Frisch's first days as manager of the Redbirds, will take charge of the Browns within a day or two. The Browns are in Detroit today and it is probable Hornsby will leave tomorrow night for Chicago to take over the reins in the first game of a series with the White Sox.

In assuming management of the Browns, Hornsby, a stormy petrel of baseball, is taking his fourth managerial job and his best position in the American League. Previously he directed the Cards, Braves and Cubs.

MCCLUSKEY WINS VASTERAS RACE

Records Second Victory in Three Starts; Makes Fast Time Yesterday.

In his third start on foreign soil, as a member of the American rack and field squad now touring Europe, Joe McCluskey swept to an easy victory in his specialty, the 3,000 meter run, yesterday.

The American setbacks occurred in the 400-meter relay, in which Sweden, with a ten-meter handicap, won in 45.9 seconds against 46 flat for the invaders, and in the discus throw, where John Anderson of New York, Olympic champion and world record holder, yielded to A. Hedvall, a newcomer, and H. Anderson, Swedish champion.

Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette's Negro sprint ace, won the 100 meters and 200 meters, defeating E. Anderson by eight-tenths of a second, the shorter sprint and N. Erikson by two and one-tenth seconds at 200 meters. Metcalfe's times were 10.5 and 21.5.

Johnny Morris, Louisiana timber-topper, won the 110-meter high hurdles in 1:51 seconds, beating Gustafson by one-tenth of a second. George Spitz, of New York, captured the high jump at six feet, one inch, his nearest rival, E. Norman, clearing five feet, eleven inches. The 3,000-meter run developed an easy victory for Joe McCluskey, former Fordham star, who was clocked in 8:57.1, against 9:04 for the runner-up, T. Jensen.

Hedvall's winning toss in the discus was 155 feet, 27-64 inch. E. Anderson was second at 150 feet, 51-64 inches, and John Anderson third at 144 feet, 10 35-64 inches.

ORDER NEW TRIAL IN CUSTODY CASE

cre, if admissible at all, could be proved only by a copy "and that copy should be in the entire decree and not a small part of it."

The opinion pointed out that while it would have caused some delay in trial, a copy of the Paris decree and obtaining testimony of various persons—"the case discloses no reason why some temporary disposition of the children might not have been made," which would have safeguarded their interests.

His Paris Decree.
Hogewoning was given a decree in Paris on the ground of alleged scandalous and notorious conduct of his wife and her alleged habitual intemperance. He was given custody of the children. Mrs. Frank V. Bierck, of West Port, Conn., mother of Mrs. Hogewoning, took the children and brought them to her home. A year ago Hogewoning kidnaped them and still has them. He was arrested charged with kidnapping but the case was dropped. He claimed Mrs. Hogewoning had violated an agreement that she would not take the children from France until he consented.

In the trial court, which lasted three days Hogewoning offered testimony from the Paris hearing in which he had named Canon George C. Gibbs, of Holy Trinity church, Paris, as co-responder.

The opinion written by Chief Justice Malbie also alluded to the brief of Mrs. Hogewoning's counsel saying it contained reflections upon the trial court and expressed hope that while no action was to be taken in regard to this, counsel would not err again in such a way.

Mr. and Mrs. Hogewoning were married in Paris in 1922. They frequently visited this country and Hogewoning later became an American citizen. In the Paris divorce action the wife counter-charged drunkenness and cruelty but these accusations were dismissed. Mrs. Bierck is a sister of William S. Hart, movie actor.

Other Opinions
In the suit of Ruth Pallman against the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company the decision of the trial court, Judge McEvoy was upheld. The suit was for compensation for injuries alleged to have been caused by attack and bite of a cat on the plaintiff while she was in a store of the company. The opinion said the company would not be liable unless it knew the cat was of vicious disposition and for lack of evidence that it was there was no basis for the jury to find for the plaintiff.

The Torzano-Clemente case was an appeal from a judgment by Judge Foster for the defendants on conversion of a motor truck. The trial court found Clemente delivered the truck to Scipino to avoid creditors and the conditional bill of sale was without consideration. The opinion by Chief Justice Malbie was that the transaction was void and ordered a new trial against Clemente.

Auto Accident
The Gaines-Wesley actions were one by Gaines to recover damages for personal injuries, and the other by Fanny Gaines for damages to her automobile from collision by a truck belonging to Wesley. The Stamford court gave verdicts for each plaintiff. Wesley claimed Dr. Gaines negligent in not observing if

N. Y. Stocks

The road was safe for crossing, the opinion in upholding the verdict said it was reasonable to conclude the defendant's driver did not have his truck under proper control when he approached the intersection.
The Barnes Company vs. Zack Case was one to recover on a guaranty embracing notes given in purchase of merchandise, the company having obtained a judgment before Judge O'Sullivan from which defendant appealed.
The Went-Schmidt action was to recover for services in which Judge Ellis had found the claim for damages had not been sustained. Chief Justice Malbie found no error.
The Cleariglio-Jones action was one to recover damages for personal injuries due to collision of trolley car in which Mrs. Cleariglio was riding with defendant's automobile. Judge Pickett at New Haven had refused to set aside a verdict for defendant. The opinion was that negligence had not been proven and the accident was merely an error of judgment.
The Berman-Stanciliff action was to recover damages for injuries sustained by plaintiffs in an automobile collision, due, it was claimed, to refusal of defendant to yield right-of-way. Before Judge Dickinson judgments were for the plaintiffs and the opinion found no error in these.
The Lasarevich-Scooke appeal was based on refusal of Judge Inglis to issue an injunction to plaintiff against the Commissioner to compel him to issue a permit for a gasoline station at a certain location in Guilford. The warden and burgess had approved the location but the commissioner ruled a station at that site would imperil public safety. Chief Justice Malbie said the complaint did not allege sufficient basis for relief asked.
Four other opinions in which no error was found, dealt with cases which originated in Hartford, one being an appeal from a compensation commissioner's award, two arising out of injuries and death, in automobile collisions, and a suit between banks, involving a deposit in the Riverside Bank which had been assigned to the Hartford National Bank. In this last mentioned case, the opinion was that when the Riverside bank took back its assets from the assignee, it was obligated to pay the deposit to the other bank.

ELECTRIC CLASSES TO BE TRANSFERRED

Pre-Vocational Course to Be Given at Nathan Hale School in Fall.

The pre-vocational course in electrical training, offered to students of the seventh and eighth grades of the local schools, which has been housed at the State Trade School for many years, will be transferred to the Nathan Hale School when the fall term opens, it was learned today. This department has already been installed at the latter school and will be ready for use in September.
Has Been in Trade School
In past years this training has been offered to grammar school students by the State Trade School, the public schools defraying the expense of the course. Last year the State Trade School announced that its purpose was to teach vocations and not avocations and that in the future the public schools would handle the pre-vocational training entirely. It is said that this change has also resulted in a financial saving to the public schools.

CATCHING BIG TURTLES IN STREAMS NEAR HERE

Hockanum Pond Traps Produce 60 in Two Weeks—Protection for Fish.

In an effort to clear the streams of Connecticut of turtles, that each year destroy fish in large numbers, the Connecticut Fish and Game Commission has had wardens set traps in some of the ponds in which turtles are known to have existed in large numbers. The Hockanum Pond, located partly in Manchester and partly in East Hartford has been known for years to be one place where turtles could be found in large numbers. They have ever been molested until two weeks ago when the state provided 30 traps to be set in different places in and around the pond. The results were surprising.
In the two weeks that the traps were set in the pond 60 turtles were captured, sometimes the number running as high as six or seven a day and on two occasions three turtles were captured in one trap. They were not small turtles as in the catch were turtles that weighed between 40 and 50 pounds. They were old settlers.
There is but little fishing in the Hockanum pond and the turtles have held command there for years, the river furnishing an ample supply of food. The turtles finding very little fish to eat have made their way upstream driving out any fish that may have inhabited those places. Deputy Game Warden Walter E. Luettgens of this town is assisting in this work.

BARGAIN BRIDE

KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ELINOR STAFFORD falls in love with BARRETT COLVIN. She is 20 and he is 35. LIDA STAFFORD, Elinor's jealous, scheming mother, breaks up the romance by convincing Barrett that Elinor is a heartless flirt.

When Elinor's aunt, wealthy MISS ELLA SEXTON, dies she leaves her fortune to Barrett. Then drunken VANCE CARTER shoots BENTWELL STAFFORD, Elinor's father. Barrett tells Elinor that if she will marry him and live as a guest in his house for a year he will give her the entire Sexton fortune to divide among her relatives, the rightful inheritors. Knowing the money may save her father's life, Elinor agrees.

The marriage takes place. Barrett, still believing the lies Lida has told him, finds himself more in love with Elinor than ever. The doctor orders a change of climate for her father and Elinor goes to Alken with him.

Years before Barrett shielded his half-sister, MARCIA RADNOR, when a youthful romance ended disastrously. Marcia had a son whom Barrett adopted. He has promised Marcia never to reveal the boy's story. Lida Stafford learns about the boy's existence and concludes he is Barrett's son.

Barrett makes an unannounced trip to Alken. He becomes jealous and tells Elinor he knows all about her affairs. Later he apologizes.

Elinor's father dies that night. The girl is close to collapse and Barrett tries to comfort her. Elinor's mother tries word that she is coming.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIX

Lida arrived wearing black crepe and looking tragically dramatic. She murmured brokenly that she was alone now, of the long years she and Bentwell Stafford had known together. Elinor listened and her expression chilled.

To keep Lida Stafford from persecuting her daughter would be a genuine task, Barrett saw.

After dinner on the evening of her arrival Lida asked Barrett to walk with her on the terrace. Unwillingly he found himself pacing the close-clipped grass by her side.

"We must have a frank talk, Barrett," she began.

"It can't be a long one," he said bluntly. "Elinor may want me."

"You are quite devoted to her, aren't you?" Lida questioned. He noted in the half-twilight the bitter menace of her smile.

"I love her with all my heart," he said loudly.

Lida's comment was a dry, "Delightful!" Suddenly she forgot her tragic role and laughed.

"I don't understand you, Mrs. Stafford," said Barrett, coming to an abrupt standstill.

"You will," she assured him suavely. "I shall be happy to explain."

Leaning gracefully against the balustrade that guarded the terrace from the sheer drop, she spoke of Gerald and the woman in Connecticut. "I know only the bare facts now," she admitted as she finished speaking, "but I can easily fill in the gaps of the tale—if I need to fill those gaps."

That, Barrett realized, meant having Marcia's story broadcast to the world. He stood with teeth set on his lower lip and a glower in his clustered lights in the hollow, lights that he did not see.

The tale might mean the end of Elinor's happiness, for he had promised Marcia that he would not tell Elinor the true story.

"How much, is it you want, Mrs. Stafford?"

She laid a hand on his arm and at the touch he drew back. "I'm not going to be unreasonable," she said smoothly, "but I do like to think that when I really need help I can come to dear Elinor's husband."

"Suppose we omit flowers," he suggested dryly. "I asked how much you want for silence."

Lida admitted that she really did need a little help. Things had gone so badly for her in a financial way. "But I think I could manage with $30,000," she told him.

After a moment's consideration he promised her his check.

"Suppose," Lida suggested sweetly, "we attend to it now?"

Smiling ironically Barrett agreed. They were in the dining room and he had just given her the check when Elinor appeared in the doorway.

"Inopportune!" Lida murmured. She trailed off languidly. Elinor's expression showed mild surprise but nothing more than that. Barrett understood that her sense of loss was so great she scarcely noticed anything around her.

He drew her arm through his. "Come outside," he urged. "I want to talk to you."

Miss Hemmingway had said, "Divert her. Do all you can to divert her thoughts."

She went with him without objection. They were to leave for New York the next day. After that her father would be gone for all time! Elinor could not forget that she had clung to him at her funeral. She had felt that she and her father—alone of the large group—shared the same emotions. Perhaps her father was the only person who would ever understand her, the only soul who would ever comprehend those needs that can not be voiced. A hunger for trust was one of them. She could not feel that Barrett, thoughtful as he was—quite trusted her. And love without trust was not love at all.

He stilled with her in a broad, low, crestome covered swing. Drooping an arm around her shoulders, he drew her close.

"Mind that?" he asked. "No." "Have you ever been to Cuba?" he wanted to know. She said she had not. "I think you'd like it," Barrett went on. "It's a gay, pert, laughing sister of Italy. Suppose we start down there in a few days? I'm certain I can get reservations easily. Travel's all going the other way just now. Would you like it, dear?" "It sounds very pleasant."

"It may be a bit warm but the wind sways blows." "Barrett," she said, she shivered.

"We'll take long drives. You'll love the country." "It sounds pleasant," she repeated dully.

He lightened his arm. "Barrett," "Yes, dear?" "I don't want this house."

"I know you don't!" She began to cry again softly. He drew her closer. In a moment she was clinging to him and his heart began the pounding it knew so well.

June in New York was hot. Houses with drawn shades told the world their inhabitants had departed for the seashore or mountains. Stay-at-homes shed garments and sweated. In newspaper headlines the heat wave took precedence over all other events.

Marcia, however, left her Long Island home on a train bound for New York. She had not seen Elinor or Barrett since their return from Cuba and she longed to be certain that Barrett's happiness, indicated so plainly in his letters, had made him forgive what she called, "my little sins."

She was not comfortable about the matter. She had gone to Dr. Arthur Palmer, rector of the church she had attended for so long, expecting to pour her problem into sympathetic ears. She had been sure that he would absolve her after she had given something in atonement to one of his favorite charities.

But her visit had not taken the pattern she expected it would. Dr. Palmer heard her faltered tale without a word.

"I am burdened!" Marcia ended a bit dramatically.

"You will be as long as you refuse to tell the truth," he answered. She stiffened.

"I came here thinking I could be helped by giving generously to one of the needs about which you know so well," she said.

"Give generously instead to the need you know," he responded. He leaned forward toward her. "What you have done is unfair," he went on, "because some day the facts will come out and make trouble for your brother. Those facts are sure to be misunderstood. If that happens they will break his heart. Your brother's wife has seen too much deceit and dishonesty to forgive it easily. Unless you are brave enough to tell the whole truth she may read a lie in the circumstantial evidence. That lie will end her happiness as well as the happiness of your brother who has so long shielded you!"

Hands trembling, Marcia plucked at the clasp of her bag. "I certainly do not expect this from you, Doctor Palmer!" she said shortly. "I expected help!"

"I am trying to give you help," he said sternly.

She rose. "I presume that even with you, Doctor Palmer, such affairs are private and personal matters?"

"Even with me," he admitted, smiling a little wearily.

After he saw her out he went back to his study, dropped into a deep chair and smoked thoughtfully. He could understand Elinor Colvin's passionate devotion to honesty. Sometimes he felt, especially after such an interview, that there was no honesty in the world, that he was beating his head against a stone wall that would never yield. How Elinor Colvin would take the affair he dreaded to think.

Your guests will imagine that they are sitting at a sidewalk restaurant on a continental street, and half expect a strolling minstrel to begin a Viennese waltz.

String paper lanterns for light if the stars aren't bright enough. Or have pump candles that will not sizzle and burn out. They are easy to make and will save you a lot of money.

One thing is certain. Your guests will loiter if the table is attractive. They will eat ever so much more—of than they intended to eat.

If the party is very special—somebody's anniversary or in celebration of a new job or the beginning of a new year—you may think it worthy of paper plates that carry out a design which follows the ones found on the loveliest china. There is a tulip design that will compete with any dinner plate.

Don't serve hot food. Iced soups, iced tea, or fruit juices in which the ice floats, platters of cold meats, salads as crisp as an orchard, fresh bread, are necessary for the stage the paper dishes have arranged. Pickles, olives, rolls and jelly, salted nuts and bonbons have their places on a summer table.

If you weary of paper dishes and think you would like to get out your shining dishes once in a while and play in the sun, there are wooden dishes that are refreshingly new. You may obtain everything from a plate to a cocktail glass in maple or walnut. If you use such a set-up, iced grapes and apples and pears and plums are much more inviting than flowers. Besides, as you linger at the table, you can eat them, which is an important part of the program.

If you set your table for comfort, and serve your food with the same thought in mind, you will discover that the most simple menus are most effective. Your front door may open on a busy, hustling street, but if your table is right, and there is a west wind coming through the window before your table is placed, or a tree drooping over it, you will create an atmosphere of cool a crisp white sail on a dark blue bay.

You may prefer a white background adorned with flowers for your table cloth. There are all types of garden designs. Daisies and goldenrod and rambling roses are quite as willing to bloom on your table as they are in a bush-bordered lawn.

But if you want to be gay, in a crisp-crisp fashion, choose plaids. There are plaids that wear the plaid in red and white, yellow and green and white. There are plaids that wear the plaid in red and white, yellow and

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

UNDERSTAND A GROWING BOY'S CONDUCT

"Hello, Jimmy! Been a good boy today?" It was dad's usual greeting. Jimmy only answered when he had been good. Now he just grunted and held his book closer to his face.

"What has he been doing, mother?" "Oh, everything! Such a day as I've had with him! Look at his knee, will you?" "What happened?"

"He cut it on a stone. He was in his bare feet and he knows I don't allow it."

"Well," blurted out Jimmy, "you said to wear those good stockings and I knew if I'd get a hole in them I'd get scolded."

"You needn't have gone with those boys." "I didn't know they were going down by the pond to hunt crabs. I left my shoes and stockings at Scrapy's just to save them."

"Yes, I suppose so. Well, that's not all. He left his wheel out in the yard. When I went down street it began to rain. It was out in all that downpour and now it will be rusty. I worked and saved to get him that bicycle and now he can't take care of it."

The Mother's Version "I do take care of it. I cleaned it and oiled it yesterday. I wouldn't have left it there but when I came back from the store you said to call Tommy to get away. So I ran in to the telephone and after that I forgot it."

"That's not all," went on his exasperated mother. "He lent Tommy one of the books out of his library a month ago. I just missed it today and now Tommy's mother can't find it. The set is ruined."

"It'll turn up. Tommy always lends me books. This one's his. I didn't know it would get lost." "All right. You always have a million excuses. But you won't get up when you're called, you don't keep yourself clean, you don't do anything. You are just a bad boy."

"I'm ashamed of you, son," said his dad. "Sit up there and get off your neck. You're going to be a hunch-back some day. And stop frowning. You haven't anything to scowl about. Your mother and I are the ones to be mad."

His parents are in the house now so you and I will have a whispered conversation about Jimmy.

The Urge For Activity Do you think he was a bad boy? I don't.

In the first place his greatest crimes were thoughtlessness and perhaps some carelessness. Who can be both many times a day?

In the second place, not only natural but rather decent motives prompted his seeming lapses in conduct. In the third place, he is a boy, a growing boy, with sudden impulses and a terrible urge for activity. In the fourth place, for every one thing he did wrong, there were probably a dozen he did right.

His parents continue to be blind to his good points and to judge him too harshly, he will get a permanent scowl, not only on his face but on his very soul.

SPARE CHILDREN HEART STRAIN You have read, no doubt, of the two-year-old child who died of heart failure when bitten on the cheek by a chow dog, a pot of the family.

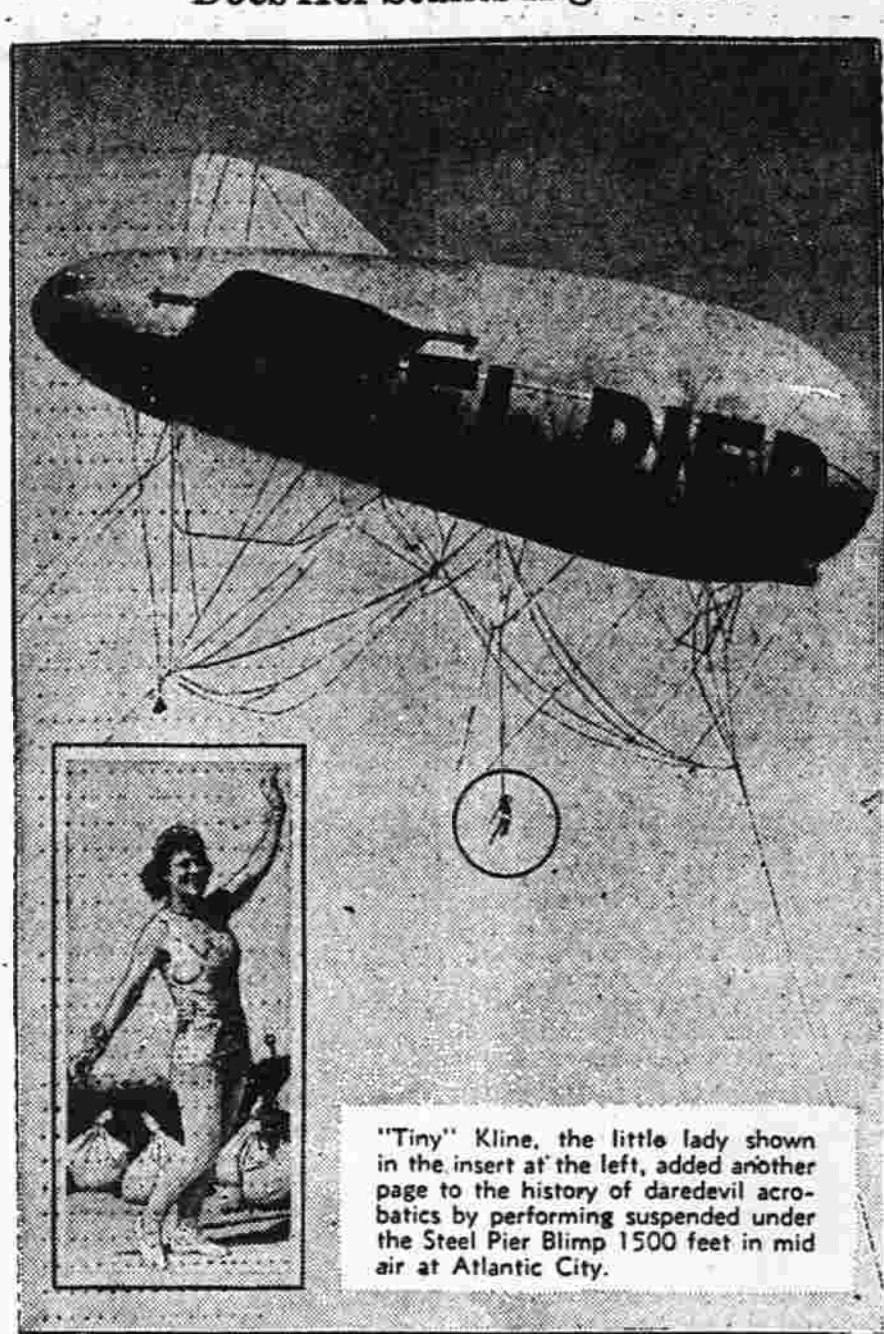

I rather imagine this sad news has been doubted by some people. "Older people frequently die of fright, but for a child to do so is incredible!" they say.

It is not incredible. Every now and then we hear of a child dying of shock or sudden terror. True, it is not common, but it does happen.

Certainly the parents of the baby have the sympathy of the whole country. But I wonder if his mother may not learn a few things from this accident. Such things, although a tragedy to the family, often bring in their wake a certain benefit to others. They open our eyes and make us think and we begin to take precautions that otherwise would be overlooked.

dogs. If we were to do that we should have to remove a hundred and one things from a child's life, fighter or even to kill him.

What we need to do, I think, is to realize that hearts are subject to various kinds of strain, some of which kill quickly, but most of which merely weaken it. Every time the heart is weakened it is just one little bit more susceptible to shock than it was before. Also very much weakening tends to permanent heart trouble.

Doctors today are very much alarmed by the rapidly increasing number of cases of "heart disease" in children.

Heart disease may mean several things. One is derangement due to nerve control. This condition often follows a serious illness. A child who has had a long and serious illness should be watched very carefully for a long while after he has apparently convalesced. Besides the heart muscle itself is often weakened by the germ poison of the disease.

Permanent dilatation is not a frequent disease of childhood, because the heart of a child is elastic and the stretching after an over-exertion is likely to subside in a well child. If the heart is weakened, however, these muscles may stay permanently dilated. Also there may be valvular imperfections, or other trouble in the heart structure itself.

It is very necessary therefore to prevent all over-exertion after an illness until the heart, sometimes long in returning to normal, may be trusted to do its work.

We should think of hearts. All fear weakens them. It need not be a dog. Children have died from fear of a whipping.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Rouge is one of the most important cosmetics which you use. It serves two purposes: first, to heighten the natural color in your cheeks, and second, to bring out the luster of your eyes.

Your entire attention should center around your eyes when it comes to selecting makeup. And never buy cosmetics which give you anything but a healthy look.

In selecting rouge it is always well to remember that the natural color of cheeks should be red. Hence orange or pink are not the most discrete selections to make.

Powder should be bought before you get rouge. A rosy shade of powder—the same tone as your natural skin color—and then the same shade rouge as your cheeks would be if they were naturally a high color.

You should wear your rouge high on your cheeks. Why? Cosmetics say that it blends more smoothly and looks more natural.

The ideal way to blend cream rouge is to dip your forefinger lightly in your jar of cleansing cream and then touch the rouge. Use very, very little cream and not much rouge at a time. Never put on more until the first bit is thoroughly blended. Keep adding a little to your cheeks until a natural-looking high color is attained. Your eyes will gleam brightly if the rouge is put on correctly.

Hints on How to Keep Well by World Famed Authority

EARLY SYMPTOMS OF TYPHOID ARE HEADACHES, PAINS AND FEVER

On Average, Disease Develops Ten Days After Germs Enter Body; Blood Test Establishes Its Presence.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of three articles on typhoid fever.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene the Health Magazine.

Typhoid fever follows a long and serious course once a person becomes infected.

After a person gets the germs in his body from three to 21 days elapse, known as the incubation period during which the germs develop and liberate their poisons. The average length of time is ten and a half days.

The condition begins with the usual symptoms of infection, such as headache, pains in the body generally, a feeling of exhaustion and loss of appetite. Sometimes there are chills.

Quite frequently there is nose-bleed, and almost invariably there is either constipation or diarrhea.

As the disease goes on, the person becomes sicker and sicker, developing occasionally not only a high fever with a step-ladder rise, but also occasionally severe chills. There is a tendency for involvement of the blood vessels and the formation of clots. Rose spots appear on the skin at the end of the first week or at the beginning of the second week.

In addition to the loss of appetite, there is a tendency to the formation of gas with bloating of the body; and sometimes, because of the ulcers in the bowels and the bloating, sudden severe hemorrhages from the bowels.

Sometimes the infection and the poisoning affect the nervous system so that there is delirium and even the appearance of mental disturbance during the course of the disease.

The physician who examines a patient with typhoid fever makes his diagnosis from the history of the case and from the appearance of the symptoms and also by careful studies of the blood. It is possible to examine specimens of the blood and to determine by the use of a test, called the Widal test after the Frenchman who discovered it, whether or not the condition is quite certainly typhoid fever.

Any serious complications such as hemorrhage, perforation of the bowel and changes in the heart action and in the nervous system demand prompt and careful attention by a physician.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

AS A MOTHER, SHE WAS TOO DEVOTED

Heroine of Vina Delmar's New Book Is a Bit Dixey

By BRUCE CATTON

"The Marriage Racket," by Vina Delmar, is a little bundle of this and that about a gal who was a vaudeville dancer and who got so tired of the two-a-day routine that she up and married a tired business man whom she met while playing in a small city in upstate New York.

The new husband turned out to be a rather unimaginative and stolid sort of chap, but he wasn't really so bad, and the marriage might have been a success if the girl hadn't had a baby and developed a sudden, overwhelming and quite unreasonable case of exaggerated mother love.

Because she did—she was the kind who breaks up the party and makes all the guests go home if they hang so much as sneeze—she ceased to be either a good wife or a good sport, and the husband must have been considerably relieved when she finally left him and took her baby to New York, where she supported herself by dancing in a night club.

Falling as a wife, she succeeded a little better as a rich man's mistress—though the author makes her out to be such a complete and cantankerous idiot that it is hard to see how she kept the job ten minutes. Anyway, she lived in the lap of luxury for quite a while, and did her best to transform her child into the most odious kind of a mother's darling.

I am sure you'll be glad to know that it all turned out well in the end. Somebody finally made her see that she had turned into a wretch, and the end of the book finds her ready to reform and give the kid, and everybody else, a break. And that, oh gentle and fearless reader, is that.

Published by Harcourt, Brace & Co., the book sells for $2.

EIGHT PLAYERS ENTER WOMEN'S NET TOURNEY

Gladys Lamprecht to Defend Title; Is Seeded With Eleanor Huebner; Former Champ to Play; Newcomers May Furnish Surprise.

Eight entries were received for the women's tennis tournament for the championship of Manchester, including that of the defending champion, Miss Gladys Lamprecht, who last year upset Miss Elizabeth Washkiewicz, the 1934 title holder, in the semi-finals and then went on to capture the crown.

Two Players Seeded. Although the entry list is small, the players are all reported to possess outstanding ability with the racket and a hard fought struggle is looked for in the battle for the championship. TO RUN SINGLE RACES AT ROCKINGHAM PARK

Salem, N. H., July 26.—(AP)—Individual races, instead of the time-honored heats, will be run off at Rockingham Park today. When the Grand Circuit opens a 16 day meet, the longest stay the "Big Line" trotters and pacers have ever made in one spot in sixty years.

The opening program called for eight separate and distinct races, six over the mile and two at a mile and a sixteenth, to keep in step with New Hampshire's new pari-mutuel law, which does not fit in with the customary three heats system or the auction pool medium of betting.

The new arrangement will permit light harness followers to purchase straight, place or show mutual tickets on their favorites every time they start.

TRIO OF FIGHTERS CLASH WITH PRIMO

Charley Devens Only Recalls Those He Saw When Knocked Out of Box; Has Learned a Lot in Majors.

New Haven, July 26.—(Special)—Primo Carnera, the first Italian to hold the distinction of being the heavyweight champion of the world, will appear at the White City Stadium tomorrow night as an added attraction on Matchmaker Al Weill's all-star professional fight program and not only will the Italian Mountain display his freakish physical stature, but Al Weill has also secured three outstanding heavyweights to engage with the Italian idol in ring warfare.

New Haven's Italian populace is very much aroused over the forthcoming appearance of Carnera since he is the first Italian ever to attain the throne in the heavyweight class of the world. And it appears at this writing that all Carnera's countrymen will be present to witness their idol in action. Several Italian-American organizations throughout New Haven and vicinity are planning special reservations at the West Shore auditorium.

From the confines of the circus tent to the champion fighter of the world is by no means an easy attainment and this fact alone will attract many who have witnessed Primo in New Haven in exhibition bouts previously when he was rated as a third rate performer.

Buddy Howard, New Haven heavyweight and Marty Fox, New York, are scheduled to meet Carnera in one round bouts while Harold Oays, Bayonne, N. J., brilliant will don the leather mittens in a two round bout with the champion. Charlie "Trader" Horn, brilliant New York light heavy will engage Eddie Carr, popular Waterbury punch dispenser. In the semi-final of six rounds Eddie Mays, colored sensation of Hartford, will meet Al Castanillo, Corona, N. Y., in a return match. These two battlers met at the last show provided the fans with ample thrills. Both boys are hitters and willing mixers and promise to ditto their last performance.

Sparky Ewing, native Indian of New Mexico, will have a real test, being confronted by one Tony Brescia of New York whom fight experts acclaim one of the best club fighters to spring up in time. This bout is scheduled for five rounds. In the second five rounder Johnny Lado, Filipino bantamweight, will be pitted against Eddie Eddy of Hartford. In the opener of four rounds Rocco Mullo, New Haven's fighting cabbie, is paired with Marty Martino of Hartford.

PATH OF YANKEES OBSTACLE FILLED

Must Play Half of Remaining Games on Road; Are Not So Hot Away.

By BILL BRAUCHER
NEA Service Sports Editor
New York, July 26.—Important obstacles can be marshaled to show that the Yankees aren't going to win the American League pennant after all. The schedule offers the worst difficulty Colonel Ruppert's harassed athletes have to face. Beginning at Boston today the Yankees encounter the handicap of playing 31 games away from home, just about half the remainder of the baseball season.

The Yankees have shown themselves not such a hot road team this year. On their last western trip the Senators won six out of seven games less than nothing. They have been better at home for the reason that the old fellows of the club have had a little more time to rest their creaking legs.

After three games at Boston, the Yankees run smack up against the year's "crookshial" series, four games at Washington beginning July 27. Corona, N. Y., in a return match. These two battlers met at the last show provided the fans with ample thrills. Both boys are hitters and willing mixers and promise to ditto their last performance.

YANKS NEW HURLER SELDOM BOTHERED BY CROWD OF FANS

Charley Devens Only Recalls Those He Saw When Knocked Out of Box; Has Learned a Lot in Majors.

Boston, July 26.—(AP)—Big league crowds, the bane of most baseball rookies, seldom bother Charley Devens, the New York Yankees' Harvard-bred pitcher only when he has been knocked out of the box.

This ambitious youngster, who had the stuff to jump from college to major league baseball and then fight his way back from a minor league farm, has played before all sorts of crowds during his athletic career.

Never Saw Crowds. "When I was playing football," he said, "I never knew how many people were in the stands. I never looked. It was the same playing college baseball. I have probably played before large baseball crowds in Newark and more recently in New York, where I finished a game against the Chicago White Sox. But I didn't notice them."

The only crowds I recall were those that saw me get knocked out of the box. I don't know how many were in the stands on those occasions but there seemed to be at least a million people staring at me every time I have started for the bench after being tumbled off the mound. And the crowds seemed to double with every step I took.

Learned a Lot. Devens, making his first Boston appearance of the season in a Yankee uniform, admits he learned a lot about pitching since he became a professional and has seen Herb Pennock and Cy Perkins full credit for his improvement.

"I have learned," he said, "that you have to bear down on every pitch in professional baseball, especially in the majors. In college baseball, only two or three players on each team know how to hit and a pitcher can coast through most of the game. But not against the leaguers, for every one of them can belt the ball and there are no breathing spaces."

Devens said that his pitching arm is much stronger than it was in college. He has more speed but, he admits, his control is far from being perfect and his curves need all of the expert attention the Yankees coaching staff can give him.

POSTPONE ROCKVILLE BOUTS UNTIL FRIDAY

The amateur boxing show scheduled for Sandy Beach Arena, Crystal Lake last night was postponed because of rain until Friday night. Matchmaker George Grosch announced that the same card of bouts he had listed for last night's show will be presented Friday night with Jackie Clark of Hartford and Bud Gorman of Danielson in a feature return go.

Mike Murphy of East Hampton will also appear with a team of boys from the bell town. Willimantic, Rockville, Hartford, Springfield, Holyoke, Thompsonville and Danbury will be represented on this card with teams of simon pures. The first bout will start promptly at 8:30.

SIPPLES RELEASED AS PILOT OF GEMS

Savitt Gives "Indifferent Service" as Reason for Discharge of Local Baseball Star; Managed Team for Three Years; Other Local Players Are Also Ousted.

After 18 years of continuous activity on the baseball diamond, during which time he has occupied a place in the hearts of Connecticut fans which few men ever hope to attain, Tommy Sipples, 34-year-old Park street first-baseman-manager of the Savitt Gems has been released from the team's management post.

Sipples received a telegram from Bill Savitt last Saturday to turn in his uniform, the reason for such action by the owner being "indifferent service."

It developed that a conference between Savitt and Sipples was called for last Friday night in Hartford. Sipples having received a phone call from the owners while at work in Meriden. Circumstances surrounding his return home with other companions, prevented him from keeping the appointment. On Saturday he received the wire, asking him to turn in his uniform and notifying him of his release as manager.

Not First Hit. This is not the first time that the Savitts and Sipples have tangled on matters connected with the Gems. There is slight possibility that the regular manager, the Gems crack first baseman-manager will be pitched for the rest of the season, and it is due in no small measure to the attitude that the owners have taken through their ex-Major League business manager, Walter Hagood, in applying big league principles to a semi-professional club.

Sipples has been with the Savitt team for three years and has successfully brought the Twilight League pennant to the club, by his own brand of wit and his ability to get along with players.

But Sipples could not get along too well with the team's owner. Specially because of the fact that Tommy believed that he could win games with fewer minor league cast-offs which the owners thought for the benefit of the extra publicity they could muster were dragged in for the revamped lineup when Savitt decided to put a semi-professional team on the field this spring.

Seeks Sipples As Pilot. When Savitt decided to put a team in the Hartford Twilight League two years ago he sought Sipples to go along with him. On that team were "Lefty" St. John, "Woody" Walllett, Ernie Dowd and Jack Stratton, besides Manager Sipples. Bob Smith, High school pitcher and outfielder, was with the team as utility player during a part of last season.

The Gems won as they pleased, due to the managerial ability and the clever all-around play of the team that Sipples had gotten together. But this season the Savitts wanted the team's name to look on the sport pages have a major league outfit and proceeded to collect all the ex-minor and a few passive major league stars to bolster up the team. To do this he first of all had to get a suitable catcher for the team to go along with Old Man Loftus, former Hartford Eastern League slow-baller; Johnny Miller, who was re-signed (after being released by the Savitts) when he came down from Springfield and gave the Gems a good trimmings, letting them down with three hits.

Local Players Out. Consequently, "Woody" Walllett, who had caught the bulk of the Twilight League games was given the gate. The Manchester catcher received the major league assignment and proceeded to collect all the ex-minor and a few passive major league stars to bolster up the team. To do this he first of all had to get a suitable catcher for the team to go along with Old Man Loftus, former Hartford Eastern League slow-baller; Johnny Miller, who was re-signed (after being released by the Savitts) when he came down from Springfield and gave the Gems a good trimmings, letting them down with three hits.

RED SOX AND GEMS PLAY AT HARTFORD

American League Team in Exhibition Next Tuesday at Bulkeley Field.

Considerable interest is being manifested locally in the appearance of the Boston Red Sox in Bulkeley Stadium, in Hartford, next Tuesday afternoon when they play an exhibition game against the Savitt Gems. An attendance of at least 3,000 is expected and Manchester is sure to be represented by a large number from local fandom.

In booking these exhibition games it has been the policy of the Savitt management to insist upon the appearance of the regular line-up. This was done in connection with the recent game with the Athletics and it is part of the Red Sox contract—the Red Sox receiving a large guarantee for their appearance in Hartford—that all of the regulars shall start the game. This, of course, does not apply to the pitchers. But that is all. Fitcher Bill Morrell, who has won the three games he has pitched for the Gems and whose record of having never lost a game in Hartford will twirl against the Red Sox. Morrell was for a number of years with the Washington Senators and the New York Giants.

Savitt's flattering offer after being dumped. Billy Gleason, ex-New Haven Eastern League manager, and a brainy manager, will fill the place that Sipples has occupied for nearly three years. Gleason knows the game, as does Sipples, but there is room color to the local player than a half-dozen ex-minor leaguers—or major leaguers, for that matter. And all the fans who saw games at Colt's Park and Bulkeley Stadium will rise up and say AMEN to that.

Gus Moreland, Texas golf ace, lost 11 pounds during his successful campaign in defense of his Trans-Mississippi title.

HORNBY TO PILOT ST. LOUIS BROWNS IS LATEST REPORT

Southern Papers Say That Deal Is Nearly Completed; Rajah Has Featured in National Loop

St. Louis, July 26.—(AP)—After eighteen years of scintillating in the National League, Rogers Hornsby, ex-pilot of the Cardinals, Braves and Cubs, was expected at any moment today to become manager of the St. Louis American League club. Both the Post-Dispatch and the Globe Democrat said that signing of the contract was the only thing to be completed.

The Cardinals, whom the Rajah led to a world's championship in 1926 and then played with New York, Boston and Chicago before returning here this spring, had asked waivers on Hornsby so he could be free to sign with the Browns, and the waiver period expired last midnight.

While it is understood that President William Harridge of the American League has advised Phil Doolittle, president of the Browns, against signing up Hornsby, the latter has remarked: "If I were after Hornsby what right would anyone have trying to block me?"

Because Hornsby was still connected with the Cardinals, professional etiquette prevented both Cardinal and Brown officials from discussing the arrangement freely.

BUCS DRUB CUBS TWICE TO NEAR SECOND PLACE

Now Only a Game and a Half from Runner-Up Spot; Cards Tie Braves for 4th; Senators Increase Lead Over Yanks to Full Game; Indians Advance.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR., Associated Press Sports Writer. The Pittsburgh Pirates may not win the National League pennant but they apparently are going to have a lot to say about who will. They seem to be taking a splendid delight in pounding the higher placed New York Giants and Chicago Cubs just when it will do the most damage.

Drub Cubs Twice. Last week the Bucs handed the league leading Giants a setback by splitting a six-game series. Yesterday, to show they were playing no favorites, they walloped the Cubs in both ends of a doubleheader, 4-3 and 4-1, leaving the Giants three games out in front and Pittsburgh only a game and a half out of second place.

The work of three players, Steve Swetonic, Hal Smith and Freddie Lindstrom stood out in yesterday's triumphs. The first two pitched effectively, Smith giving only five hits and an unearned run in the second game. Lindstrom, continuing his hitting streak through 22 games, made five hits, scored two runs and batted in three.

The other National League game saw the St. Louis Cardinals, playing their first game under the management of Frankie Frisch, climb into a fourth place tie with the Boston Braves by defeating the Cincinnati Reds, 3-1. Jess Haines pitched six-hit ball in a mound duel with Larry Benton.

One inning was enough to enable the Washington Senators to beat the Philadelphia Athletics, 5-1, and increase their American League lead over the New York Yankees to a full game. Five walks off Mahaffey led to four Senator runs in the opening frame and they were plenty as rain stopped the contest after five innings. The Yankees and Boston were rained out altogether.

Indians Move Up. The Cleveland Indians, "hitless wonders" of the circuit, advanced a notch in the second division standing as Mel Harder outplayed Sam Jones 2-1 in a 10-inning duel to give the Chicago White Sox their sixth straight defeat.

The Detroit Tigers scored early and often against the St. Louis Browns, putting over four runs in the first inning and three more in the third to win 9-3 as every player except Ray Hayworth figured in the 15-hit attack.

ENGLAND HAD BEST TEAM SAYS VINES

Denies Making Statement That U. S. Squad Was Overtrained and Over-tennisied.

Paris, July 26.—(AP)—Limping slightly but apparently in the best of spirits Billwright Viney, Jr., today left with other members of the United States Davis Cup team for Cherbourg to board the Olympic homeward bound.

Viney turned an ankle during his losing match with Fred Perry of England in the interspersed final but said he believed it would mend and predicted he would be in good shape for defense of his United States singles title in September.

The angular American star issued a statement before his departure denying the authenticity of a purported interview quoting him as saying he thought the United States team was over-trained and over-tennisied.

"Before leaving France I would like to say one word about our match with Great Britain," Viney said in his statement. "I have been quoted as saying in an interview which I never gave that our team was overtrained and over-tennisied. This, in my opinion, is absurd. We were up against Perry and Austin at their best and they must be given all credit for their grand play.

"Let and Van Ryn played a great doubles match and were certainly not overtrained. If this is the case, and all who saw the doubles admit it is, then how by the same reasoning can Allison and myself be said to be overtrained? We practiced even less than they.

"As the results show we were just as good enough on those days if I do not do all over again I certainly would not change my practice and training methods in the least. Better luck next time."

Perry and Jean Borotra, the French star, were down to bid the players good-bye.

"See you next year," Perry shouted as the train pulled away and Allison jovially replied: "Good-bye you big stiff."

The West Side Buddies won a close game from the Ramblers 7-6. Trailing in the early innings by the score of 4-1, they got on their feet and had two rallies to overcome their rivals. The big guns for the Buddies were Ford and McCurry and for the Ramblers, C. Driggs and Simmon.

Mild-Mannered Hickey Stuns

Association With Big Stick

By PAUL MICKELSON

(Associated Press Sports Writer) Chicago, July 25.—(AP)—Seventy-one years old and just getting hard, boiled, Thomas Jefferson Hickey is waving the big stick with surprising effectiveness over the American Association this season.

Long noted as a mellow-mannered league president, content to forgive managers and players for their mild fights and pranks, Hickey has changed into another Ban Johnson, dealing suspensions freely, enforcing rules and almost wrecking the league leading Columbus Red Birds for violating the salary limit.

After 21 years in the president's chair, he has cast aside his kid gloves for the mallet fat. Within the space of one week he handed indefinite suspensions to three American Association club managers.

Selected Columbus

Hickey first stunned the class AA league on June 14 by ordering Columbus, a strong outpost in the St. Louis Cardinal farm system, to bar four of its star players—Art Shires, Gordon Slade, Charley Wilson and Jim Lindsey—for violating the salary limit.

Columbus was the target again for Hickey's crusade against umpire baiting and rule enforcement six days later when Manager Ray Blades and Catcher Bill Delaney were suspended indefinitely. Several days later Manager Bruno Betzel of Louisville argued too strenuously against an umpire's decision and was suspended indefinitely.

As the circuit presidents gasped, the 71-year-old prey followed that up the next day by ordering Manager Nick Allen of Kansas City benched for "unbecoming conduct." On July 12 Catcher Delaney again was suspended for throwing a bat. "Baseball is a clean game and it's going to be clean in the American Association as long as I'm president," Hickey, a husky six-footer weighing 200-pounds, said. "Naturally, excited players always will argue decisions with the um-

Wife—My dear, the doctor says I'm in need of a little change.
Hubby—Then ask him to give it to you. He's got the last of mine.

Proud Father—My son, don't forget that you are now a college graduate. You graduated with honors. Since then you'd had a nice rest at the resort. You're a man and must be ready to face the problems of life. Tomorrow you embark upon a career of work and enterprise. So don't forget to start right, by being at the office early.

Son (still fresh from the halls of learning)—Mmm—daddy couldn't you punch the time clock for me?

"Didja Hear 'bout m'Operation? ... and they took out my appendix and installed an Atwater Kent with a dynamic speaker. ... so I told him that if my pictures didn't come out any better than that, I'd go to Photographer Flynt next time. ... and what bedside manners! ... and my husband has been kicking about the gas bill ever since. ... I thought she'd never stop talking ... four operations and two husbands within a year! ... and when he put the microscope on me, I tried not to think about anything because they can see right through you with those things, you know. ... tonsils? ... you haven't seen anything yet! ... so I let my private nurse go and got my interne back again. ... she couldn't have an operation because the poor dear simply didn't have a thing to wear. I was so sorry for her ... she wanted an operation so bad. ... so I tried an osteopath, but he always rubbed me the wrong way. ... Well, that's my story, and I've got scars to prove it!

First Convict—When do you all leave heah, big boy?

THE BOY LOOKS FORWARD TO THE TIME WHEN HE CAN BE HIS OWN BOSS. THE GIRL LOOKS FOR THE TIME WHEN SHE CAN BOSS THE BOY. BOTH ARE DUE FOR DISAPPOINTMENT.

THE DAY'S WORK
If you by day
Make work your play
You will no longer wonder,
To your delight,
That you by night
Enjoy such restful slumber.

If grief or strife
Assails your life
Just grin and nobly take it,
And joys untold
Will soon unfold,
And life be what you make it.

Some men have genius for making money. Others have only a flair for spending it. Not a few can't make it and are also not spenders.

Man—My wife is suffering untold agony.
Friend—I am sorry. What is the matter with her?
Man—She has an inflamed throat and cannot talk about it.

There is a great deal of bunk about certain folks not growing old. Nobody escapes the ravages of the years, save those who die early.

Love laughs at locksmiths, but anything that's laughed at as much as love has to retaliate somehow.

ABOUT TOWN

A pre-natal clinic will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the Health Center on Haynes street.

A son, William, was born yesterday afternoon at the Manchester Memorial hospital to Mr. and Mrs. William M. Munste of 52 Benton street.

The Rev. Manning B. Bennett and Mrs. Bennett were visitors in town Tuesday, stopping at the home of Ennis Johnson of Eldridge street, Andrew Ferguson of Brookfield street and other friends, while on a motor tour through New England. The Rev. Bennett is now rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal church in New Hartford, N. Y. He and his wife are both well. They spent last winter in Florida and the previous winter in California. They were in charge of St. Mary's parish here for a number of years preceding Rev. J. Stuart Neill.

Mrs. Myra Gallinat has returned to her home in Wethersfield after spending a week with her daughter, Mrs. A. E. Loomis of Keeney street.

Manchester Grange will hold its regular meeting this evening at 8 o'clock in Odd Fellows hall. During the lecturer's program there will be a timely discussion of the milk situation in all its phases, from the standpoint of the producers, the dealers and the consumers. There will be special music, and as the evening promises to be cool a good attendance of the patrons of the Grange is anticipated.

Mrs. Arthur Anderson and children of Newton Highlands, Mass., are spending their vacation with Mrs. Anderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Johnson at their cottage at Grove Beach.
