

STATE MILK BOARD IS ASKED TO RESIGN

Independent Dealers of Greater Hartford Says Control Body is Trying to Wipe Out Small Dealers.

BULLETIN!
Hartford, Aug. 7.—(AP)—With the threat of a milk strike muttering in the background, developments in the state's milk situation continued rapidly this morning.

In reply to a question as to whether the milk control board would adopt the plan of the group of producers who say they will request the board's resignation by the governor, if the plan is not adopted by Thursday, and will strike if the governor does not remove the board in twenty-four hours, Charles G. Morris, chairman of the board, said this morning, "No complete plan has as yet been presented to the board by any outside group."

Hartford, Aug. 7.—(AP)—A new group, the Independent Milk Dealers Association of Greater Hartford, was presiding today for the resignations of the state milk control board members, already harassed by the demands of independent milk producers.

The new attack, launched yesterday, asserted that "milk control board has openly aligned itself with the milk trust in an effort to wipe out the independent milk dealer and increase the price (of milk) to the public."

Meeting Tonight
Meanwhile, independent milk producers announced milk producers will meet tonight at Goshen, to continue the circulation of a resolution asking for the passing of the control board, and a petition demanding the resignations of the control board members.

The board's action in increasing the retail price of milk to 14 cents while at the same time it met a demand of farmers that a minimum price of 7 1/2 cents a quart of 8 1/2 milk be fixed, the basis of the independent dealers' attack.

In a statement given out by Robert Reishambler, the organization said, "Before a greater crisis is precipitated, we call upon the governor to remove the present incumbents of the milk control board and appoint men truly representative of the industry. The governor must step in now, before the smoldering wave of discontent flares out in the open."

Under the excitement incident to the "National Recovery Act," the statement charged the board had aligned itself with the larger milk dealers.

Price Increase
The statement asserted "the supposed price increase to the farmer is merely a blind, a deception practiced on the farmer through the pooling contract system. The farmer does not want this system. Members of this association buy their milk from their producer farms on a straight contract basis, and under the new price set by the control board will be forced to pay 7 1/2 cents per quart, while the large dealers, buying their milk on the pooling plan, will pay an average of

NINE MEET DEATH OVER THE WEEK-END

Shipwreck on Sound—Man Kills Wife and Self—Other Cases Reported.

(By Associated Press)
A former Yale swimmer emerged as the hero of a Long Island Sound shipwreck that took one life as nine persons met violent deaths this week-end in Connecticut.

John Chester Vaden, 24, member of the 1927 Yale swimming team and three others were saved after their sailing sloop capsized off Middleground Light, but their efforts to save Edward Jay, 27, of New York City proved unavailing.

Jay, who was an inexperienced swimmer, went down after struggling out of the arms of Vaden and the latter's 15 year old brother, Alan. The Vadens struck out for land, and were taken into boats from the water several miles from shore after their other two companions had been rescued.

"It was a terrible experience," said Vaden after the four were reunited at Stratford. "We just couldn't hang onto him (Jay), any longer, and he got away from us. He sank at once."

Double Tragedy
A double tragedy at Southington took the lives of the mother and father of six children, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Belomisi, who were found shot to death near their farmhouse. Police said they believed the farmer had shot his wife and committed suicide after a quarrel.

Otto J. Schwartzwalder, 32, of New York died at the Sharon hospital from a gun shot wound. In a deathbed statement he told authorities he was wounded Friday at Dover Plains, N. Y., by a bullet from the revolver of a motorist whose car had been in collision with a bus.

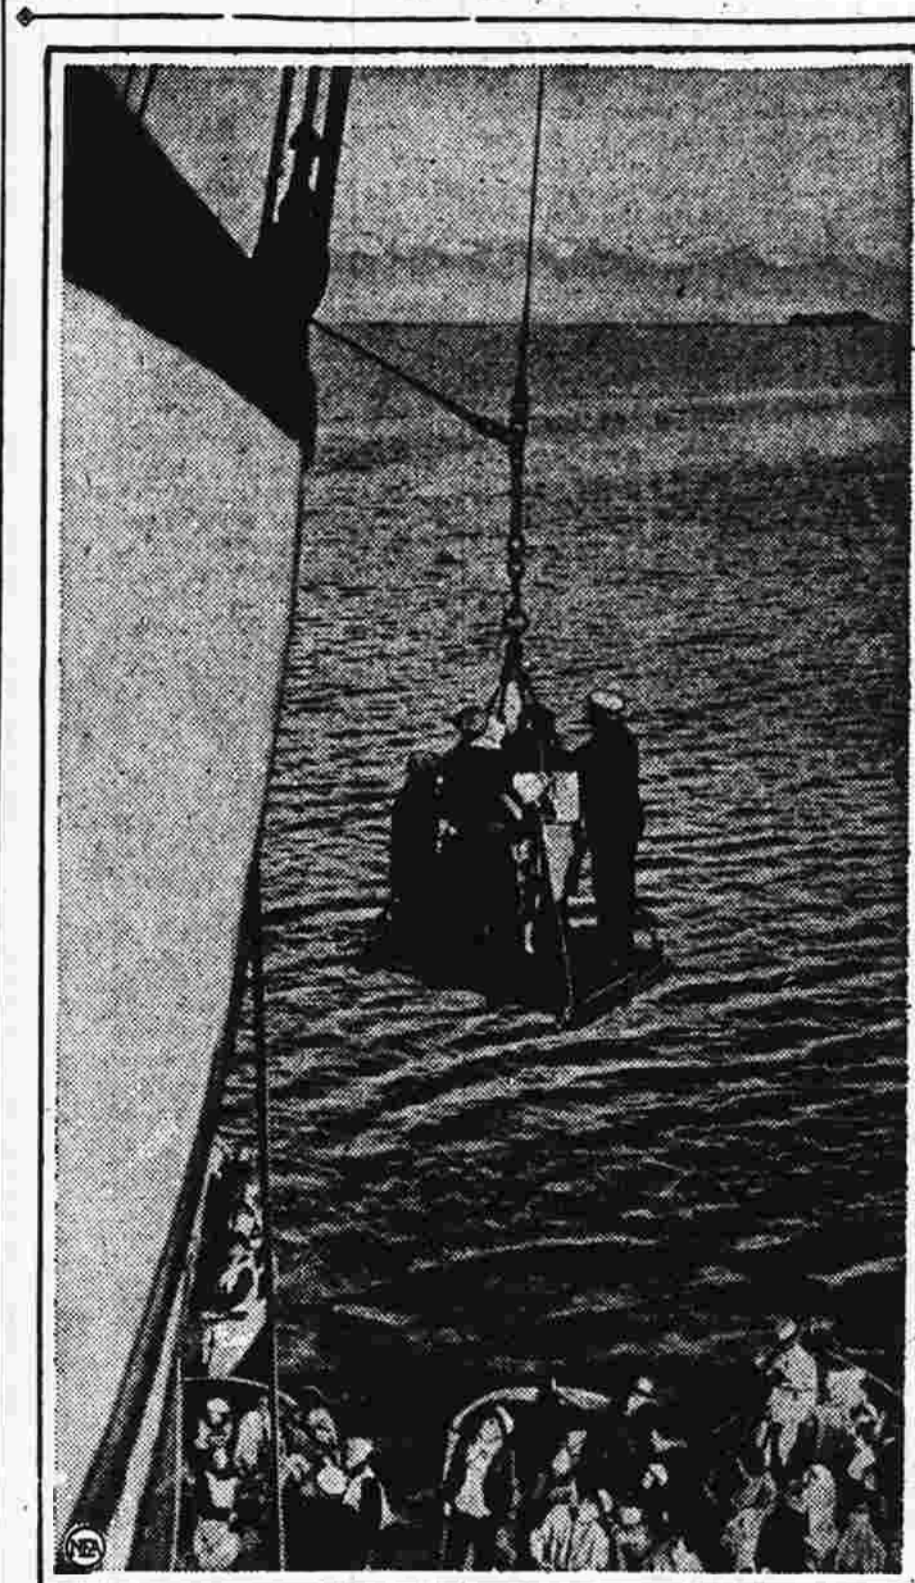

Schwartzwalder said he was a passenger in the bus at the time of the collision and that the shooting took place after an argument between the motorist and the bus driver. The motorist escaped. Schwartzwalder's statement was

Arizona Is Next To Favor Repeal
No Anti-Repeal Candidates Nominated in Any County, Wets See Victory.

Phoenix, Ariz., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Arizona voters will decide whether this state is to become the twenty-first in the Union to sanction repeal of the 18th Amendment.

Having lost, five days before the date of election, a court battle to restrain the casting of ballots, anti-repeal forces conceded the popular vote of the state likely would be overwhelmingly in favor of ratification.

A "Gripping" Moment

It was a moment of genuine suspense for passengers aboard the Alaskan steamer Northwest when, a half dozen at a time, they were lowered into lifeboats as shown here after the vessel struck a rock near Juneau and was beached on Eagle river sandspit. One hundred passengers and members of the crew were lowered without mishap.

WOMAN'S NAME FIGURES IN SANBORN MYSTERY

Brooklyn Blonde Says She Was Engaged to Noted Railroad Executive Who Was Murdered.

New York, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Two disclosures heightened interest in the Henry F. Sanborn murder mystery today, as police hunted in the realms of business and romance for light on his last days.

1.—Sanborn, a 44-year-old railroad executive, drew $2,000 from a bank July 17. That was the day he vanished, never to reappear until his body was found Saturday, bullet torn and buried in a scooped out grave in a Queens thicket.

2.—The name of his fiancée—hitherto kept secret—was made public by police. They said she is Maginild Almskaar, a Brooklyn interpreter, 27 year-old and blonde. Police, seeking to interview every-one acquainted with Sanborn, said they desired to question her. They said they understood the Queens district attorney had already examined her.

Mrs. Grant Van Sant, socially prominent sister of the dead man, said she was puzzled by the $2,000 withdrawal. She said Sanborn, although a man of independent means, had never carried much cash with him.

Inspector John J. Gallagher made it clear today he suspects no one. He added that besides seeking information from the girl, police would like to question Bancroft Mitchell, described by authorities as a son of William D. Mitchell, former attorney general of the United States.

Gallagher said Mitchell and Wil-

HUNDREDS PAY LAST TRIBUTE TO C. E. HOUSE

Center Church Is Crowded Long Before Service for Funeral of Dean of Town's Business Men.

The townspeople of Manchester turned out by hundreds late this afternoon to pay final homage to one of its outstanding and most respected citizens at the funeral services for Charles E. House, held at the Center Congregational church.

In his 61 years as a local merchant, Mr. House won the friendship and esteem of countless numbers of people and his death at the age of 75 marked the passing of the dean of Manchester's business men.

Stores closed at 3:45 o'clock for the remainder of the day out of respect to Mr. House. At a meeting of the Kiwanis Club this noon, a moment of silence was observed as the members stood with heads bowed in silent prayer for the deceased. Mr. House was a charter member of the club.

Church Crowded
Long before the simple service at the church began at 4 o'clock the auditorium was crowded to capacity and many were forced to stand. The service was brief and impressive in its simplicity in accordance with the wishes of the bereaved family.

Rev. Watson Woodruff, pastor of the church, where Mr. House served as treasurer and clerk for more than forty years, conducted the ritual service. Mrs. Jennie Aborn, organist of the church, played several of Mr. House's favorite hymns before and after service, including "Jesus Lover of My Soul," "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go," "By Cool Silome's Shady Hill" and "Peace, Perfect Peace."

A quartet, consisting of Helge E. Pearson, Philmore Gustafson, Harry Pearson and G. Albert Pearson, sang "Lead Kindly Light" and "We Shall Sleep But Not Forever."

The honorary bearers were F. A. Esplanck, Dr. D. C. Moore, Theodore H. Bidwell, Frank Cheney, Jr., A. W. Hyde, Charles R. Hathaway, C. Elmore Watkins, Lawrence W. Case, C. R. Burr, E. A. Lydell, Frank G. Baulkner and Thomas A. Brennan.

The active bearers were Fayette B. Clarke, Holger Bach, John Hood, Lucius Foster, W. W. Harris and G. E. Willis. Burial was in the East cemetery. The funeral cortege was one of the longest ever seen here.

The church was banked with beautiful floral pieces, many of them tributes from the business, fraternal, civic, social and religious organizations with which Mr. House was identified during his long and active life. A partial list of the groups sending flowers follows: The employees of C. E. House & Son, Inc., the Center Congregational church, Manchester Evening Herald, Chamber of Commerce, of which he was a charter member; Building & Loan Association, of which he was secretary for thirty years; Sphinx Temple, A. O. N. M. S., Manchester Lumber company, Delta Chapter R. A. M., Manchester Lodge, A. F. & A. M., and the Kiwanis Club.

MOLEY DISCUSSES CRIME PREVENTION

Assistant Secretary of State Sees Cummings on Directing the Campaign.

Washington, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Plans for co-ordinating the government drive against crime were discussed today by Raymond Moley, assistant secretary of state, Joseph E. Keenan, special assistant to Attorney General Cummings in charge of the drive against racketeering, and William Stanley, first assistant attorney general.

Moley was named last week by President Roosevelt to work out plans for co-ordinating national and state drives against criminals and prepare legislation to make criminal laws more effective and punishable with more effective and punishable swifter. He spent most of the day at the Department of Justice.

He wished, he said, to familiarize himself with what the department was doing and to discuss the entire situation with Keenan.

Moley said he was discussing the questions in a preliminary way and would have nothing to say about his plans until after he had talked with Attorney General Cummings later in the week.

FRENCH FLIERS SMASH LONG DISTANCE MARK

Miners Ignore Truce; Refuse to go to Work

Brownsville, Pa. Aug. 7.—(AP)—Ignoring a truce effected by President Roosevelt, thousands of miners in the vast coal fields of South-western Pennsylvania refused to go back to work today.

Here, an, there, a mine re-opened but for the most part, the diggings were shut down.

The H. C. Frick Coke Company, which operates dozens of mines in Fayette county—heart of the area which has been strike-bound for two weeks—postponed reopening of ten mines until tomorrow at the request of Governor Pinchot.

The executive said he feared trouble if resumption were attempted today.

The strikers, who say they want more time in which to study terms of the agreement, had their picket army in the field, but most picket lines dwindled after no resumption was attempted.

The last mine operating in Fayette county—the Davidson mine of H. Purdy Coneller's Coal and Coke Company, employing 150 men—closed this morning.

Renewed outbreaks of disorder, which last week resulted in the death of one man and the wounding of more than a score are feared.

A basis for the mines movement got under way in Allegheny county, but pickets gathered at several mines and forestalled resumption.

Paris, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The Air Orient Company received a message this afternoon, saying the French airmen, Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos, landed at Damascus, Syria at 4 p. m., 8 m. 11 a. m., e. s. t., thus completing their non-stop flight from New York.

The message came from Beirut, important Syrian seaport.

ROSSI AND CODOS, STILL UP AFTER TRAVELING 5,340 MILES—ARE NOW HEADING FOR RAYAK, SYRIA—HAD MUCH TROUBLE WITH LEAK- ING OIL PIPES.

Paris, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The Air Orient Company received a message this afternoon, saying the French airmen, Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos, landed at Damascus, Syria at 4 p. m., 8 m. 11 a. m., e. s. t., thus completing their non-stop flight from New York.

The message came from Beirut, important Syrian seaport.

By Associated Press.
Lieut. Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos, in one of the most spectacular and skillful of recent aviation achievements, carried the tri-color of France to a new non-stop record flight today.

Leaving New York Saturday, they were reported over Aleppo, Syria, this morning, about 200 miles to the good of the previous non-stop record of 5,340 miles set in February by two British flying officers.

A wireless message received at Ory, France, from the Frenchmen said they planned to fly over Syria and land at Rayak, Syria, fifty miles north of Damascus. Their message was received at 3:17 p. m. (10:17, eastern standard time.)

Meanwhile, John Grieron, British flier, completed another lap of a leisurely cruise from England to New York, landing at Reykjavik, Iceland, this afternoon, from the Faeroe islands.

FIGHT GASOLINE LEAK
Paris, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Fighting a gasoline leak which threatened a wireless message here, saying a record, Lieut. Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos whizzed across Europe today toward the Orient in an effort to set a mark which will stand for a long time.

The French aviators pushed their heavy silver sea-lark, the Joseph Lebriz, for its maximum speed, after the leak developed over Germany, in a desperate attempt to avoid an eleventh hour defeat and reach Aleppo, in Northern Syria, by way of Budapest.

At Aleppo, the present record of 5,340 miles set last February by Squadron Leader Oswald R. Geyford and Flight Lieutenant Gilbert E. Nicholls of the British Royal air force, would be surpassed.

From the Austrian-German frontier, the aviators who left Brooklyn at 4:41 a. m., 8 a. t. Sunday, sent a wireless message here saying that unless the leak increased, they believed they had sufficient gasoline to reach Aleppo and perhaps Baghdad, Iraq.

SEE IMPROVEMENT IN COAL INDUSTRY

Financial Observers Say Strike Moratorium Does Much to Help Trade.

New York, Aug. 7.—(AP)—With the recent strike moratorium expected to bring peace to the Pennsylvania fields, financial observers are holding out high hopes for further substantial improvement in the coal industry.

In the anthracite decision production since early June has been running appreciably higher than a year ago, although output for the full year to date is still somewhat behind that for the corresponding period of 1932. A further mild stimulant to the anthracite section was furnished by the price increase of 25 cents a ton on July 1. Possibilities of further advances have also brought some heavier purchases by consumers.

With firming prices, it is believed

POLITICAL LEADER DIES OF INJURIES

Director of Illinois State Finances Succumbs to Self Inflicted Wounds.

Washington, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The plea to "buy because buying supports your job" started today the recovery administration's attempt to utilize the increased purchasing power it feels is being created by hour shortening, wage raising agreements of the government, with business and industry.

Along with that request from Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, went this boycott threat:

"Where should you spend? Can there be any question? You should spend under the blue eagle. If you spend there, you are spending for increased employment. If you spend elsewhere, you are hurrying the chance to end unemployment because you are helping to destroy the business of the men, who are paying more for help, you are aiding them who refuse to do so."

Yesterday, Johnson looked over the score sheet. He found five industries—cotton textiles, coats and suits, shipbuilding, electrical manufacturing and woolen textiles, each employing thousands, operating under permanent codes.

He found 26 other groups working additional thousands, "unclinging" under the temporary agreements.

Through the week, speakers will emphasize the "buy now" message. Meantime today, the new Presidential board named to arbitrate labor difficulties, was called into its first meeting, to make preliminary surveys of causes behind various strikes, big and small and the attempt to arbitrate the causes into nothingness.

OUT OF POLITICS BINGHAM ASSERTS

Ex-Senator Says He Is Not a Candidate for Any Office at Present Time.

Salem, Conn., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Former U. S. Senator Hiram Bingham has withdrawn to his home at Salem with the announcement he is through with politics at least for the time being.

"I have no political ambitions and no political plans," he says. "I am not a candidate for anything, and I am really out of politics."

But when he is asked, as he is often, whether or not he would accept an offer to run for public office again, he smiles and says: "With answer that when the time comes."

Meanwhile, the man who has at various times in his career earned the right to the title professor, colonel, governor and Senator, is now devoting much of his time to a work that carries with it the title president.

Mistake Causes Murder In the Hills of Kentucky

Vanceburg, Ky., Aug. 7.—(AP)—The tragic victim of a loquacious fellow-townsmen's mistake, Zolar Thurman, 35, was shot down mercilessly before a crowd of election voters at the small town of Petersburg, and somewhere in the hills today his slayers covered.

Thurman and Eli Stidham, 25, argued over the election Saturday night. Thurman struck Stidham, once, twice, with a rock. The man collapsed unconscious.

The brothers raised their guns, took deliberate aim, and as Thurman glanced beseechingly about for a means of escape, witnesses said the weapons blazed and he fell, riddled with buckshot.

The brothers escaped in the resulting confusion. Meanwhile, the "dead" brother, Eli, had regained consciousness. His wounds were not even serious. He was placed in jail and charged with aiding and abetting a murder.

WOMEN IN BATTLE TO ATTEND TRIAL

Stand in Line for Hours to Hear Mrs. Costello Give Her Testimony.

Salem, Mass., Aug. 7.—(AP)—The cross-examination of Jessie B. Costello, on trial for the murder of her husband, Fire Captain William J. Costello, was completed at 10:43 a. m. today and a recess was taken preparatory to what the defense expected would be a short re-direct examination of the widow.

A group of women that had waited since before dawn to get into the courtroom, which had previously been closed, stood in line for hours before the court opened when other women attempted to gain places in their line. The "crashers" were pointed out to the officers by irate women who had stood there during the long, damp hours before the sun got high and despite their vociferous objections the latter were forced to go to the rear of the long queue. Only a few men waited today.

The completion of District Attorney Hugh A. Gregg's interrogation of the defendant, which had previously occupied two days of the trial, consisted of an attempt by the prosecutor to bring out the points on which he and Mrs. Costello agreed.

At the outset of the day's examination, he had questioned her as to the presence of any capsules in the house, the prosecution having confessed the poison from which the fire captain died in his Peabody home, February 17, was administered in capsules.

Mrs. Costello said there had been capsules in the house before the death of her mother and that her husband had filled them with medicine for her mother.

"Let's see what we can agree upon," Gregg said. "You know that cyanide was poison?"

The actor and Frederick pleaded innocent to a charge of suspicion of battery on asked for a jury trial when their case comes up August 15. Frederick said he and Mulhall had imbibed a bit before they made the call.

SEWS UP HEART; BOY TO RECOVER

Unusual Operation Performed in Chicago—Heart Had Stopped Beating.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—(AP)—A 16 year old youth with a sewed up heart was alive today and his physician said the delicate operation performed after the victim was mysteriously stabbed by an unidentified assailant, probably would be successful.

The boy, Elihu Garmiss was taken to the Lutheran Deaconess hospital Saturday night by police immediately after the attack and with not a moment to waste, Dr. J. D. Koucky, assistant professor of surgery in the University of Illinois school of medicine, operated.

Stopped Beating
"The heart had stopped beating when the boy was placed on the operating table," Dr. Koucky said. Thirty seconds later, the operation would have been futile, he said. As to number of stitches, he said he knew he took four to close the inch long wound, but that in his haste, he may have taken five.

Following the operation, the heart was massaged until it resumed its normal beating. In giving Garmiss a 75 per cent chance to recover, Dr. Koucky said the greatest danger now lay in the possibility of an infection developing.

PRICES ON CONTRACT WORK GOING UP

Builders Await More Information About Code—Auto Men Also Biding Time.

Prices in lumber are advancing so rapidly that in some cases they are near 1929 prices. There has been a desire on the part of a number of property owners to make certain additions and improvements to their homes and contractors have been called upon to figure them. They have given a price, but the person wishing to have the work done, has, in several cases delayed in having the work started, with the result that the price of flooring, etc., advanced to such a figure that it could not be taken by the carpenter for the price asked. The builders have not as yet adopted any code or signed an agreement to do so until they can get some more information. There is to be a meeting held in Hartford tomorrow when local builders will be in attendance and they expect to get some information that will make it possible to start and do some work.

Much the same condition exists among the automobile dealers and repair shop men. They are awaiting a ruling to see if hours when there is no work for a repairman and he is kept around the place are to be counted as working hours or not. In Hartford, they have been informed the change is not meeting with the expected results. Manchester dealers are trying to avoid this and a decision will be reached this week.

USING GUNS NOW IN MILK STRIKE

Walk Out Enters Seventh Day—Big Milk Plants Being Guarded.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Guns entered the New York milk strike, in its seventh day today. Strikers and non-strikers carried them.

From Boonville today came the report that a caravan of seven milk trucks, convoyed by troopers, fired on 28 times between that village and Lowville yesterday, was the target of a machine gun, not of high powered rifles, as at first had been reported.

None of the trucks was damaged. Company A, 108th Infantry, New York National Guard, of Waterbury, was equipped with tear gas bombs and gas masks. Captain Cecil H. Page, the commandant declined to comment. Sheriff's deputies were guarding all Jefferson county milk plants.

STRIKES IN CUBA PARALYZE TRADE

One Shot, Two Wounded—All Merchants Refuse to Open Their Shops.

Havana, Aug. 7.—(AP)—One person was killed and two were wounded today when police at Santiago charged a large demonstration held in connection with the strike which has paralyzed commerce in almost all Cuba. Havana also was the scene of violence as police, swinging their sticks, forced many small stores to reopen. They clubbed numerous storekeepers and fired their pistols at the doors and windows of several shops.

Johnson Says, "Buy Or Pay It In Taxes"

Sends Out Address Urging Immediate Trading as Price Raises Impend and Value of Hoarded Money Is Due to Shrink.

Urging the country to buy now, to buy for re-employment and to buy because prices would soon go higher, Hugh S. Johnson, National Recovery Administrator, spoke by telephone yesterday to a public rally held in Cleveland under the auspices of Mayor Ray Miller and his local NRA committee.

General Johnson warned the country "not to trifle with the blue eagle." He drew a comparison between public opinion in regard to "slackers" during the World War and the attitude toward those who fail to enter into the spirit of the National Industry Recovery Act.

Text of Address
The text of General Johnson's address follows:

When President Roosevelt launched his re-employment drive he said to the question, "Will the American people pull themselves out of unemployment?"—"They will if they want to."

That is the true answer. No law can save the shiftless. All that a law can do is to give men a chance to help themselves. Some laws give little. Some give much. NRA gives the most that any law ever gave.

Before NRA came the law said, "You can't get together at all." NRA says, "Go all the way to get together."

And that is the whole secret of Franklin Roosevelt's great plan. That is why he says it is a challenge to our whole people. That is why he says, "They will if they want to."

Five days have passed. Great stocks and blocks of people have begun the march toward the goal. Some move promptly. Some hesitate.

It is so of cities. A few are already 100 per cent together and have employed their jobless men. Some have barely started. In other words, some want to—and some don't. Here is the big point about that. The cities that have done the job have proved that it can be done. It is not true that any community would rather wallow in its own misery than bestir itself to get out of it.

Where there is delay it is not the fault of the community. The trouble is that even when NRA says "act together," several thousands of people cannot act as one without real leadership. The cities that lag are to be pitied. Their trouble is the lack of a rallying voice.

Cleveland and New York "March" Two weeks ago I was in Cleveland. I met your Mayor, Ray Miller, and the men who had gathered to support him. From what I saw I said, "With one Franklin Roosevelt and a few Ray Millers this whole country would be on its way in a month."

A few days later the returns began to come in. With a much smaller population, Cleveland was ahead of New York City. But that was before Grover Whalen took hold of New York City. Now the very much larger city is marching like Cleveland.

I could mention many other similar cases, but these two prove the point. All this movement now needs is local leadership. The plan is sure. Any city that wants to, will.

We will be out of the depths of this depression by winter, if only each community will seize the chance that the President has given it and—as Cleveland has done—as New York is doing—make one strong pull—one long pull—one pull altogether.

the best business you could engage in.

Turn your money into things, because, almost before you can draw a breath, the things you want will be worth more than the money you can save by not buying.

Time to Buy, Not to Save
This is no time to hoard. It is no time to save money. It is a time to get things. Buy the things you need. Spend for re-employment. If you don't spend now and get something you will spend later for taxes and doles and get nothing.

On the other hand, if you do buy now you will help to start the upward spiral of business and make your job secure.

Where should you spend? Can there be any question? You should spend under the Blue Eagle. If you spend there you are spending for increased employment. If you spend elsewhere you are hurting the chance to end unemployment because you are helping to destroy the business of the men who are paying more for help; you are aiding them who refuse to do so.

The usual timid minority, which always opposes a movement of this kind, calls this a boycott and holds up hands in holy horror, saying that what is proposed will ruin some worthy people who cannot do what necessary to get the Blue Eagle.

We are making arrangements to let a man who cannot—really cannot—do all things necessary to get the full Blue Eagle, get one white bar across its breast showing the points on which that man is temporarily excused. It will take another two weeks to attend to all this, but when that time comes, no man in this country who is really doing his part will have any excuse for non-membership in NRA—at least no excuse good enough to warrant his asking for patronage at the expense of those who are making this plan succeed.

With that attended to, it is no boycott for people who are rich of this course of depression to patronize those who are working to get us out of it.

It is what bees do to drones.

The statement added that "milk could be sold at a lower price and the farmer could receive more, but the milk trust will not permit it."

LATEST STOCKS

New York, Aug. 7.—Dullness ruled in the security markets today as both bulls and bears apparently observed a monetary truce while conversely attempting to estimate the strength of each other's ammunition.

Trading activity in stocks was at the lowest ebb since the 1933 upswing got under way. The ticker tape stood still for minutes at a time and most board rooms were almost deserted except by a few sleepy-eyed and indifferent customers. Grains in the restricted Chicago market were narrow and listless. Cotton was a bit easier and other commodities mixed.

Bonds were irregularly lower. The dollar continued to advance in terms of leading foreign exchanges.

Stocks generally mullied about in a fractional range. Among the steadier issues were American Telephone, Case, Celanese, United Aircraft, Chesapeake & Ohio, Delaware & Hudson and Chrysler. Consolidated Gas, ex-dividend, was off 2 points while shares down fractionally to around a point included Montgomery Ward, General Electric, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, National Biscuit, American Can, Santa Fe, Western Union and Auburn.

While security prices generally were inclined to move uncertainly at times, financial observers pointed out that the technical condition of the market had been highly improved during the past week or so and that much of the recent overhanging liquidation had been eliminated without many usually severe casualties.

The cooling down of the inflation fever is viewed as encouraging by Kinney was for years active in state Republican circles and at various times held the posts of chairman and treasurer of the state Republican committee and was director of the finance department during the administration of former Governor L. L. Emmerson from 1928 to 1932.

The charges against him grew out of state funds he deposited in the Ridgely Farmers' state bank of Springfield and the Ayers National bank of Jacksonville.

● ABOVE—TWO CONTINENTS CHEERED when slender Densmore Shute, brilliant young American golfer, with wrists of steel and nerves that never wavered, won the British Open—the tenth American champion in ten years!

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

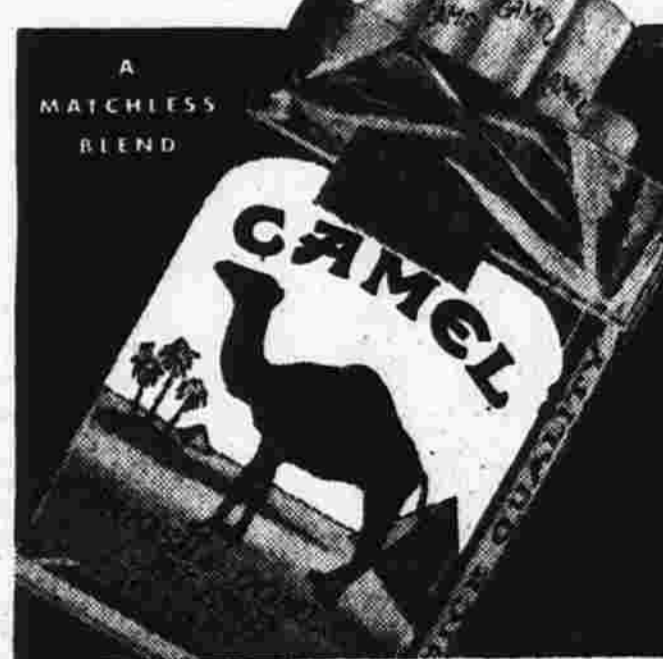

When it comes to healthy nerves, "DENNY" SHUTE speaks with authority. "I couldn't have won the British Open if my nerves hadn't been in perfect condition," says Shute. "Healthy nerves are essential to any golfer who wants to turn in a good score. The enjoyment of cigarettes has not interfered with my golf game because I have smoked Camels right along. I have tried all the brands and long ago found that Camels are milder, and what is even more important to any golfer, they do not jangle the nerves."

"Denny" Shute offers conclusive evidence that Camels are milder. That they don't interfere with healthy nerves. That smokers like Camels better, the more they smoke them. Consider the fact that Camels are made from costlier tobaccos—and switch to them yourself. You will also discover that Camels are better for steady smoking.

● RIGHT—"I'M NOT A CHAMPION GOLFER—not even a fair one, according to Mr. Shute's standard! I'm a young married woman, interested in home and children. But I'm inclined to be the nervous type. So I switched to Camels, for the sake of my nerves, and because Camels are definitely a milder cigarette."

How are Your Nerves?

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW
Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. Leaf tobaccos for cigarettes can be bought for 5¢ a pound to $1.00...but Camels pays the millions more that insure your enjoyment.

MONDAY, AUGUST 7.

GOLD STANDARD AGAIN.

Last February Edward R. Grier, chairman of the board of the Arrow-Hart & Hegeman Electric Company of Hartford, a large industry employing many persons, published a little book of his own authorship entitled "The Depression as it Appears to a Business Man." In it Mr. Grier placed the responsibility for the crash in commodity values, and therefore in large part for the paralysis of business and the plight of the debtor class, upon the gold standard.

The book went through four printings in as many months. Perhaps it contributed to the mitigation of degree of shock with which even the New England business world sustained the sudden elimination of the gold standard as the foundation of America's currency system which came, unexpectedly to the vast majority of our men of affairs, shortly after the book was published.

Much water has gone over the dam since last February. The stupendous job of National Recovery is being carried on under a managed system of currency, the one complete merit of which is that the country is no longer being dragged to the bottom of an economic sea by a fatal weight of gold. Because the task of rehabilitation is no longer being utterly defeated by an impossibly erroneous and impracticable monetary system, the public is largely divided into those who take it for granted that the present system is altogether right and the whole currency problem solved and those who have become converted to a belief that the problem was, after all, relatively insignificant as compared with other economic concepts and measures.

One of them was this: "The simple fact remains that over a long period the value of gold as a money unit has been for all practical purposes invariable." Measured, of course, by itself. Take a piece of rubber elastic and pull it a yard. Mark it off into feet and inches—that is, into thirds and thirty-sixths. Then stretch it until it is twice as long as it was before—and calmly assert that it has not changed a particle in length because it is still a yard, the marks on it prove that. Then use it to measure the size or price—of any other thing. Do this and you will be doing with a piece of rubber exactly what is done with the "value" of a unit of gold. The rubber yard is immutable. It is never anything but a yard—a rubber yard.

Another extraordinary statement in the editorial is this: "The existing supply of gold in the world is so great that yearly additions to it are of little consequence in determining its value. Unlike other commodities, practically all of it that has ever been produced is still in existence."

When on earth the Courant editor got that notion it would be interesting to be informed. As a matter of fact there is in the world only about twelve billion dollars of monetary gold as the accumulation of all time, whereas the gold production of the world in a single year approaches 400,000,000, or, roughly, a thirtieth of the combined monetary hoards of all the nations. Since gold has been mined from the beginning of history—not of course at the present rate but in very large quantities at various times, instead of a dozen billions of dollars worth of it the world should possess it by the hundreds of billions if the Courant's astonishing declaration were not altogether erroneous.

Millions of dollars in gold have gone into the graves of human beings in the form of dentures alone. Many millions have been lost at sea—are still being lost at sea. Gold coins carried in the pocket lose an appreciable percentage in weight. So much gold, rubbed off jewelry, watch cases, coins and gold-leaf signs gets into the dust of London that the sewage reclamation plant alone recovers a ponderable amount of the metal, along with many other by-products, every year. On top of this, only about one-fourth of the gold production gets into the coinage anyhow, three-quarters being consumed in the arts and industries.

There are, as we remarked before, only a few remaining of the multi-tude of quite recent believers in the magic quality of a metal which "is not a commodity like other things," but among them still remains, apparently, our neighbor the Courant—one of the persisting adherents of a superstition not at all worthy of its own superior intelligence and scholarship but which has so far held its grip because, apparently, the Courant has regarded the merits of the gold standard as one of those things too obvious for serious examination; like, for example, the perfectly obvious fact of a little while ago that "the earth is flat."

A BECLOUDED ISSUE. This newspaper's applause of the decision of Judge Ellis, made the other day in denying an injunction against the State Milk Control Board brought on the ground of unconstitutionality of the milk control law, should by no means be construed as approving of the proceedings of the Board itself. Our comment had to do only with the powers of the state to regulate business when business manifests its inability of unwillingness to regulate itself in the interest of fair dealing and the good of the public. It had nothing whatever to do with the capacity, purposes or good intentions of the Milk Board's personnel.

Concerning these things we confess to being without as much enlightenment as we could wish. That there is an immense amount of dissatisfaction with the proceedings of the Milk Board so far seems to be obvious. So far as the public goes, it is only aware that it is being compelled to pay much more for its milk; and that, apparently, without bringing any adequate degree of satisfaction to the producers.

There has always been a suspicion, whether warranted or not we do not know, that the chief interest of the Milk Board personnel, since its inception, has been to smooth the path of the big milk dealing concerns and to insure to them highly satisfactory profits. At all events the big dealers appear to be about the only parties involved who have been at all gratified with the various rulings, promulgated by the Board.

and or corporations have exhibited the temerity necessary to declare oneself bigger than the United States government in connection with the NRA movement. At the moment only two come to mind, Mr. Lamont of steel and Mr. Ford of automobiles.

King Canute is often cited as a prime fool because he thought he could command the tide to turn and ebb when it was on the flow; but Canute was malign; he knew he couldn't do it—merely wished to get back at his courtiers who were forever assuring him of his unlimited powers.

When President Roosevelt the other day went a bit out of his way to assure the country that the government was not seeking to establish permanent control of industry he put a very definite threat into the gentlest and subtlest possible form. The significance of that word "permanent" can hardly escape even such infatuated individual as Ford and Lamont; because it is crystal clear that it indicates a very definite purpose to exercise whatever control may be necessary, temporarily, over whatever business may become recalcitrant and inimical to the processes of recovery—even the steel industry or the Ford Motor Company.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

WHAT NEXT, IS QUESTION NOW IN WASHINGTON. Capital is Busy Talking About Possible Developments in Recovery Plan.

By RODNEY DUTCHER, Herald Washington Correspondent. Washington, Aug. 7.—Much of the capital's after-dinner conversation concerns the "next phase" of the New Deal.

There will be no return to the old uncontrolled system, most everyone says. Whether the summer recovery drive succeeds or fails, industry probably will become subject to more control than the administration has yet proposed.

The "Brain Trust" and the various amateur "brain trusts" agree on that.

The first step toward a planned economic system is restoration of employment, but NRA officials look forward to controlled, balanced production. Both production and prices must be kept from galloping ahead of buying power.

Fascism? State capitalism? Limited dividend corporations? Reduced capitalization? How to tie up a monetary policy with the "R.A. program"? What controls will prevent another great crash one, three or five years after we're out of the present woods?

Such questions are asked by the capital's best minds. Administration experts discuss them freely. They will out their plans to developments now unpredictable.

HOW TO AVOID FILTH-CARRYING FLIES

Not so very many years ago window screens were very scarce and methods for keeping flies out of the house on the farm or in the city were unknown. When the family sat down to dinner, one of the youngsters was usually given a long green branch and assigned to the job of shooting the flies away from the food on the table.

Today, however, the common fly is one of the ordinary house fly which may carry dirt, filth and disease into the home. This fly feeds upon unclean material, particularly on garbage, decaying substances and manure. In feeding, he picks up a small amount of filth on his feet and carries it into the kitchen. He may light on food or dishes or on the mouths of children where he will deposit dirt and disease germs.

Swatting flies is to be avoided. Swatting campaigns are started and you are advised to "swat that fly." In spite of the campaigns, flies radiating dirt is to wipe out their breeding places and thus prevent them from hatching. It is also important to keep flies as far as possible away from their feeding places. Flies like garbage pails, outdoor toilets, stables and piles of decaying material.

Swatting the flies makes an active form of exercise since a fly has about 250 eyes and is an expert at keeping out of your way. It is advisable to use more of your attention in removing the filth which is the real source of the fly. Then you will not have to do so much swatting, and you will be free to secure some other kind of less exasperating exercise.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. (Neck Snaps, Arms Become Numb) Question: Mandel J. writes: "Every time I turn my head to the left my neck snaps. What causes it? It is not the neck, but the arms and my legs at the knees become numb and ache if I don't keep them perfectly straight when I sleep. Is it improper circulation or my nerves?"

Answer: The neck-snapping is caused from some faulty position of the vertebrae or ligaments in your neck. It is probably being corrected by osteopathic or chiropractic treatments. The numbness of your elbows and knees may be caused by a mild form of rheumatism or by poor circulation due to insufficient exercise.

(Avocado Fast) Question: Mrs. Daniel McCoy asks: "If one could afford to take an avocado fast, how should they be taken, in what quantity and when eaten? Are they good for catarrhal troubles?"

IN NEW YORK

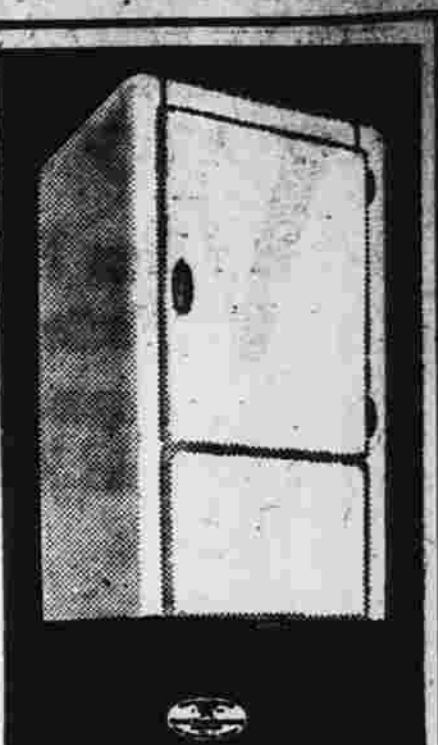

By JULIA BLANSHARD

New York, Aug. 7.—Not the least among New Yorker's many wonders is the efficiency of its Post Office department. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has received many letters and one parcel from abroad marked merely "Lindy", America. Babe Ruth, Amos and Andy and other celebrities have had delivered in short order mail that had no address except New York.

Checking Pets. Checking unusual pets at hotels in New York is next to impossible. The Plaza turned down a man last week who wanted to leave a few snails in a safe box. The Waldorf-Astoria will gladly care for any dogs, cats, goldfish or birds, including loudspoken parrots. But they drew the line at a couple of fighting dogs that a motion picture man brought home from Africa.

Newcomer Among Morrisws. Just before the Lindberghs took off on their Greenleaf flight, the whole family celebrated the birth of a little son to Anne Lindbergh's favorite cousin, Richard Brown Scandrett, Jr. and his wife. The baby is christened Dwight Morrow Scandrett, for his celebrated grand-death. So no make of any brand, age or value is allowed now. Gilda Gray's old home in Ocean-side, on the Long Beach road, has become a funeral home. It has a new coat of white and freshly painted green shutters, but every shutter still bears the monogram of Gilda's ex-husband, Gil Boag, "G. T. B." The old colonial home is really the house that "almighty" built. Gilda bought it with her money and it was her pride and joy. In the days when she danced both in the Follies and at the Rendezvous, she used to drag her tired self out there every single week end, because she loved it so. Sunday night she kept open house, serving delicious, strange Polish dishes that she herself prepared and served, dressed in colorful Polish peasant costume. When she and Gil separated, Gill kept the house.

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

CHAPTER I

It was a brief and hurried marriage ceremony, not at all imposing. Eve Barnes had dreamed her wedding would be just she and Dick, at the Little Stone church, with the rectory housekeeper and a young civil engineer whom Dick knew for witnesses. Monday noon—and the hastily prepared ceremony was like an anticlimax to the passionate scene of parting. Thursday night when Eve had decided she wanted to be Dick's wife with a little loss of time as possible.

And now, even while she was being married to Dick, there was the menacing ghost of the morning hovering between her and her happiness.

To Eve her wedding was like a disturbing dream. Would she get back to the store before Mr. Barnes sent for her? Would Dick be angry and storm when she told him what had happened that morning? Or would he be hurt and silent? Until she had learned for sure—this evening after dinner. No use to spoil the afternoon for him. She tried to focus her attention on the words that were blinding her to Dick but there were so many thoughts that kept interfering.

Now the earnest young pastor was giving them his blessing. Dick's ring was on her finger, Dick's arms were around her. Dick's lips, possessive yet very tender, pressed to hers. Eve's heart melted. In that moment she was almost ready to give up everything for Dick. Her eyes were covered almost within reach, the career she had dreamed of through her girlhood—these she was moved to heap on love's altar as a sacrifice.

It was Dick who broke the spell. Abruptly his arms released her. It was he who suggested, almost brusquely, that they'd have to hurry or they would be late to work.

But by the time his roaster had nosed its way through the noonday traffic to the side entrance of Bixby's department store, where Eve was employed as a copy writer in the advertising office, Dick's mood had changed again. His hand closed over hers. "Eve, sweetheart, don't go back! I don't want my wife out earning her living. Let me take care of you, darling. You know—the kind of marriage we talked about last night—just a change of a garden and a baby—"

"Dick," she pleaded, "let me go! We can't tread that out again. At least not here. No now. Wait for me here this evening. I'll try not to be late, but I don't know. Some-thing came up in the office this morning—something unexpected and terribly important. I'll tell you about it this evening. "Eve, dearest."

Eve consulted her watch when she reached the third floor. She had just five minutes to work, the brown ensemble which was her wedding costume into her smart but simple black office dress. The change was accomplished in the allotted time and the brown costume and the corsage of white and yellow orchids that Dick had sent, put away in her locker. Thank goodness none of the girls who knew at Bixby's had spied that corsage! They could scent a wedding months away.

She slipped off her wedding ring, the little circle of pale yellow gold engraved with orange blossoms which she had chosen instead of platinum because it matched the golden lights in her amber eyes and honey-colored hair and harmonized with the October browns and yellows that were her favorite colors. She put the ring in the chamois envelope which guarded her money and trinkets. Eve had told no one at Bixby's that she was to be married. She would not tell them for a while—not until she was certain she wished them to know.

Oh, she should have waited until June to be married, she told herself unhappily as she went into the office. If it could have been done she should have married Saturday instead of today, it would have helped the situation some. But the state law had been changed and a three-day notice was required before a marriage license could be issued. She knew she should not be thinking about all this now. She must keep her nerves steady and her mind clear for that conference with Mr. Barnes at two o'clock. She hoped, yet feared, the outcome of that interview.

Eve was relieved to find there was no one in the advertising office except Marya Vald, the fashion artist, who was working at her drawing board. She knew she could be trusted. Perhaps Marya was not so obvious to what went on about her as she seemed. Perhaps her candid blue eyes were more penetrating than her fellow workers realized, but at any rate she was too courteous and considerate to ask questions that might prove unwelcome. She merely looked up and smiled as Eve entered.

"Did anyone ask for me?" Marya knew of the conference with Mr. Barnes, scheduled for two o'clock. "No one. How lovely you look today, Eve."

"Oh, I'm glad you think so! I have a special occasion for wanting to look well today."

"Is that so?" echoed a voice in gay rallery and Ariene Smith, Earle Barnes' stenographer, entered the office, only a few steps behind Eve. "Don't tell us you're turning to such tactics to land a promotion," Ariene went on. "Not after the way I've been bragging to my family about the high-mindedness and all-around superiority of this office force!"

"Sometimes I really believe you prefer domesticity to a business career," Eve said.

"Just watch me help myself to the first chance at sweet domesticity that comes my way," was Ariene's fervent reply. "I'm fully as domestic as Marya, here, and twice as domestic as you, Eve. But do the men see that? They do not! I'm all right to play around with but when they begin to shop around for an engagement ring they have some sweet young thing like you or Marya in mind."

Eve laughed uneasily and slipped a fresh sheet of paper into her typewriter. The conversation was on dangerous ground. It had been on the top of her tongue a moment ago to tell Ariene that she had just been married to Dick.

The second of the most important events in Eve's life was to take place within two hours after her wedding. Two sharp sounds of the buzzer summoned her to the office of Earle Barnes, advertising manager at Bixby's. Although the work took her to Barnes' office many times each day, Eve felt half-sick with trepidation this time. She trembled involuntarily, and her head throbbed with a dull ache. A swift glance in the wavy old mirror hanging over the washstand in the corner reassured her, and the group gathered about Barnes' desk little suspected that the lovely, flushed face and eager, bright eyes of the girl who had long engaged in a real fight, Eve's chin was held high, however, and she managed a smile as she acknowledged the salutatory nod of white-haired Mr. Bixby, founder and owner of the store. So much depended upon the outcome of this conference.

Barnes drew up a chair for Eve, next to Alice Marshall, who was first assistant advertising manager. Mr. Bixby brought from his vest pocket a pair of Oxford glasses which he unfolded and adjusted on his dignified nose. "The better to see you, my dear," thought Eve, and she felt that with the aid of those powerful lenses he could pierce into her innermost thoughts and discover her secret.

"Miss Bayless," he began with customary dignity, "you are undoubtedly aware that it is the policy of the Bixby store to watch carefully the progress of each of its employees. In the time you joined us we have noted with satisfaction your spirit toward your work, your co-operation and your initiative. Mr. Bixby smoothed the narrow white ribbon attached to his glasses before he went on.

"Miss Marshall is leaving us, as you, of course, know. And it becomes necessary for us to choose a successor to fill her position. Mr. Barnes discussed the matter of the New York trip after my talk with you this morning, Miss Bayless, and it has been definitely decided that you are to go."

"Oh, how nice!" Eve managed to articulate.

"It will give added interest and importance to the launching of your special column and ought to give you talking points for many weeks to come. Women read and are interested in advertising primarily for the purpose of learning of bargains and new merchandise. I've always contended, however, that in addition advertising should be chatty and interesting in itself. Well, we're counting on you to make Bixby's advertising chatty and interesting."

"What this change may lead to eventually depends largely upon yourself. The selling power of your copy, your initiative and the ability you display in other ways."

"Thank you, I'll do my very best," Eve promised. "Do you—did you definitely decide that I'm to go tonight? I could go a little later just as well." Eve was praying in her heart, "Not tonight. Dear God, don't let it be tonight!"

Mr. Bixby frowned slightly. "Yes, you are to go tonight. I thought that point was definitely understood. As you know, Miss Marshall leaves Saturday. We want you here the following Monday."

"Go up to my office," Mr. Bixby went on, "and Miss Birney will take care of your expense money. She's wired for a hotel reservation and ordered your transportation. Take whatever time you need this afternoon to go home and pack or for shopping." With an indulgent smile he dismissed an exultant yet frightened Eve.

Eve knew that this trip to New York meant that the management at Bixby's had almost certainly decided upon her as the successor to Alice Marshall. When she accepted the expense money for the trip she felt she had sealed her fate. It was the thing she had wanted, of course. She had slaved to get where she was. Eve's work always had come before her pleasure and here even after she could have afforded more attractive and comfortable quarters. This decision was prompted entirely by economy. The building was conveniently near her work and provided room and board at a very reasonable rate.

Eve preferred to economize thus and put the money saved into pretty clothes and educational advancement. Eve was careful, thrifty. She did nothing without a definite purpose.

From the little table that served as a writing desk the pictured face of Eve's mother smiled at her from its cheap frame—the warm, steady mother-smile that had been unflinching all through Eve's life. Now she paused critically before that picture of Kate Bayless. It was wrong, of course, not to have written to her mother that she was marrying Dick today. It was the first time she had ever shut her mother out from any important event of her life. True, she and Dick had decided hastily. And of course her mother was certain to approve of Dick, Eve reflected proudly. Her father, too, Dick Eader was exactly the sort of dependable, industrious young man to please the most exacting parents. Nothing to worry about on that score.

Suddenly Eve was conscious of that cheap, nondescript frame that held her mother's picture. Always she planned to buy a better one but always there had been something she had wanted to herself. Now she was ashamed that Dick should see her mother's picture in this frame. It almost seemed to her that he would know about it. Dick Eader was exactly the sort of dependable, industrious young man to please the most exacting parents. Nothing to worry about on that score.

As she packed for the trip Eve remembered regretfully that she really had very little besides her clothes to take to her new home. She had never, as do so many girls, bought pretty things to adorn her future home. Esther, her sister, had dozens of lovely gifts to take with her when she married. But Esther had long engaged in a real fight, Eve's chin was held high, however, and she managed a smile as she acknowledged the salutatory nod of white-haired Mr. Bixby, founder and owner of the store. So much depended upon the outcome of this conference.

TRY ONE OF THESE NEW COOL FRUIT DRINKS

soft organ music came from the chapel. At their table—a small one set for two—the southern California influence for which Mission Inn had been named was even more in evidence. A starred ceiling of heavenly blue shut out the winter night and storm. Wisteria trailed along the eaves and hung in purple clumps. Brilliantly colored parakeets looked saucily at the diners from their ringed perches near the fountain. Here was a lemon tree in a green tub and there an orange tree or an oleander. The air was fragrant with exotic blossoms. On a wrought iron balcony above sat a senorita in yellow, wearing a black lace mantilla and a red rose in her hair. She was picking out soft melodies on a golden harp.

Dick had reserved the table and ordered the dinner. Excited and worried as she was, Eve realized that she was hungry. She remembered now that she had eaten nothing since breakfast. She sipped the mushroom soup, with its unusual piquancy of flavor, for which the inn was famous and ate with relish a baked quab which was another specialty of the place. When the dessert arrived—frozen cream moldings in the form of mission bells—she looked thoughtfully across the table at Dick.

"Our wedding bells, Dick," she smiled wistfully. "I like it this way," he said. "Without all this fuss and excitement. Just we two in a world by ourselves."

"By ourselves... by ourselves," Eve murmured. Then she took the plunge. "Darling," she began, "I've been trying to tell you for an hour. I—nothing has ever been so hard for me! I can scarcely begin—but would you feel dreadfully if I had to leave you?"

(To Be Continued)

According to a bulletin, 94 per cent of record—earthquake deaths in two narrow, clearly defined belts—one called the Mediterranean, with 53 per cent, and the other the Circum-Pacific with 41 per cent; the rest of the world has only 6 per cent widely distributed.

A box car was once held on a siding at Tacoma, Wash., while a robin hatched a nest of eggs on the air dump.

When days are hottest, nothing in the world tastes as good as an ice cold drink.

If you're tired of serving the ubiquitous lemonade, why not try a few new cold drink recipes? Many a woman has earned new respect for her culinary accomplishments from her family and a reputation as a popular hostess by having a few good cold drink recipes up her sleeve.

A cherry drink which is simply delicious and, in addition, looks handsome in your tall glasses, is very easy to prepare. You will need two pounds of red, four cherries, six ounces of sugar, one lemon, one-half pint of maraschino cherries and one pint of ice water.

Put the cherries and pass them through a sieve. Crush the pits, using a hammer or rolling pin. Add the cold water and sugar, stir well and filter through a piece of clean cheese cloth. When ready to serve, pour in syrup from the maraschino cherries. Garnish each glass with a maraschino cherry and a slice of lemon.

A melon concoction is something new and delicious. Here's the way they make it at Mayfair House: One pound of ripe melon pulp, two tablespoons of orange blossom water, six ounces sugar, a pint of ice water and carbonated water to taste.

Pass the pulp through a sieve and pour in a boiling syrup made of six ounces of sugar and a pint of water. Filter through a piece of fine cloth. Pour into your glasses add a large piece of ice, orange blossom water and carbonated water to taste. Serve with two small melon balls in each glass.

Iced mint tea is something to make your guests sit up and take notice. To make it, you need six balls of tea, one ounce of fresh mint, three lemons and one-half pound of sugar.

Make a quart of strong tea. Boil together the sugar, water and the rind of one of the lemons. Add finely chopped mint and juice of two lemons to this syrup. Boil a few seconds strain and place in ice box to cool. When you are ready to serve, mix the syrup with the serve in tall glasses with a slice of lemon and sprig of mint to each glass. You may add a drop of green coloring if you like your drinks colorful.

Bavarole is a drink to make you enjoy a hot day. You need six ounces of sugar, yolks of four eggs, one vanilla bean, two pints of strong tea, one pint of milk, one-half pint of whipped cream and a few drops of your favorite flavoring essence.

Cream together the sugar and yolks of eggs. Pour in boiling milk, perfume with vanilla, and the boiling tea. Whip vigorously. Allow to cool, add a few drops of flavoring essence and serve ice cold with a spoonful of whipped cream on top of each glass. The trick of Bavarole lies in the whipping. The drink must be foamy when it is served.

Kaltschale is something to delight the heart of any cold drink connoisseur.

Take one-half pound of peaches, one-half pound pineapple, one-quarter pound melon, one-quarter pound of raspberries and white currants, one pint of strawberries, one pint of red currants, two lemons, one-half pound sugar and one quart of ginger ale.

Feel the peaches, pineapple and melon and dice them. Clean raspberries, strawberries and currants, put them in a bowl and set the bowl on the ice.

Boil a piece of cinnamon in a pint of water, add sugar, juice of two lemons and rind of one. Allow to cool. Crush strawberries, currants and raspberries, mix them in the syrup and strain. Add a quart of ginger ale to the syrup and pour the mixture over the fruits. Serve with a large piece of ice in a punch bowl.

Whenever the skin is opened, torn or punctured the injury is called a wound.

The greatest danger from wounds, after the immediate danger of hemorrhage, lies in infection. Taken by and large, it's a satisfactory way to prevent infection by disinfection.

In taking care of a young one must be certain that his own hands are clean. Surgeons wash the hands thoroughly with soap and water and then wash them in antiseptic and thereafter wear sterilized rubber gloves.

All materials applied to the wound should be sterilized. If a sterile package of material ordinarily bought at a drug store is not available it may be made by boiling thoroughly materials available in the home. Also a freshly laundered handkerchief or towel is likely to be relatively free from germs.

Among the best of antiseptics is used as a first-aid dressing, as are also mercuric chrome, saturated solution of boric acid and hydrogen peroxide. When a wound has been contaminated with dirt this should be washed out by a suitable solution. It is not well to apply hydrogen peroxide to a fresh wound because it may cause pain and unnecessary crusting.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton
©1933 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

She sat up at the breakfast table and waited like a little lady. Her mother brought her food, then broke bread up into the egg cup and mixed it round.

"The little girl started to cry. 'What's wrong, darling?' 'I don't like little bread. I want big pieces.'" "Oh, I'm sorry. I'll break it bigger the next time. It tastes just the same."

The child ate the egg, or part of it, then pushed it away. "All right. You didn't eat your cereal though. Come on, I'll feed you." More tears started. "It hasn't any sugar on it."

"Well, don't cry. You have to stop crying for every little thing, dear. See! There's another spoonful. It's very sweet now. And I'll put more milk on. Come, now, be a good girl, and eat your breakfast."

Tears for Everything
A mouthful or two was the end of that. At last the little bib was untied and the star boarder allowed to leave the table. Her mother blew the nub of a nose and she was off for the day.

In a few minutes she was back crying again. "There's a big bee on the porch. He'll sting me." "I'll chase him away. Come on, he won't hurt you. But stop crying. You cry for everything. I don't know what I'm going to do with you."

It was the same every few minutes. The children next door had found a doll of hers. The truck on the street back-fired and scared her. The button came off her party-waist. A boy called her "yellow-headed." She couldn't find her book. A hundred things happened. Tears—tears for everything.

It was a typical day. What was her mother to do? For a long time she had sympathized. Then she tried indifference. And at last she got impatient.

With a cry-baby child it is nearly always the same.

Methods of Handling
Such a child is to be pitied. She is, if we are to know the facts, deeply selfish. No, not in the grabby way natural to most children, but in the quiet miserable way of turning her eyes in on herself.

She interprets the smallest commonplace in terms of her own feelings. She feeds on emotion, preferably sad emotion. And is invariably unhappy.

She wasn't hungry for her breakfast. A little boy would probably have pushed back his food, upset his water and run off. This is better. He isn't eating himself up with misery over it. He isn't dramatizing it. The hell-leather youngster is a healthy type.

Too drastic handling only makes the cry-baby worse. Never call them cry-babies. That is cruel. They cannot help it. Sympathy or indifference are not cures either. To be very busy with interesting things. Pleasant children to play with. Patience. To cultivate an interest in doing things for others. To turn thoughts out instead of in. These are wisest ways.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON
A ROMAN GHOST IN AN ENGLISH HOUSE

This Murder Tale is Creepy and Out of the Ordinary

By BRUCE CATTON
One mystery story that might give you a few pleasant chills on a hot summer night is "He Arrived at Dusk," by R. C. Ashby (Macmillan; 22).

This one has to do with funny business in an old English country house, the funny business being apparently caused by the ghost of a Roman centurion, dead these 1600 years and more. A young London curio-shop owner gets mixed up in it and tells his friend, the Scottish Yard man, and it's all explained satisfactorily in the end, but not before a bit of blood is spilled and a lot of excitement is stirred up.

Taken by and large, it's a satisfactory yarn of the creepy variety. It was inevitable that someone would sooner or later work the Century of Progress affair into a detective tale. John Ashburner has done it in "The World's Fair Murders" (Houghton-Mifflin; $2). telling how a distinguished European scientist gets plugged in full sight of thousands of visitors at the Fair, how a mysterious death ray machine is found in a taxi and how the professor's corpse disappears en route back to Europe. It's all very puzzling if you can keep your mind on it.

By this time you've probably heard about "Obituary at Sea," by Dal King (Knopf; $2). A capitalist gets murdered on an ocean liner, and four assorted psychologists volunteer to lay the finger on the murderer. Successively they pick four innocent people and in the end an ordinary copper solves it. The story is longish, but entertaining.

GERMAN ACE TOPS McCLUSKEY AGAIN IN BERLIN EVENT

Wins 3,000 Meter Run in Close to Record Time; Americans Sweep All Other Races from Rivals.

Berlin, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Despite the handicap of a heavy cold, Glenn Cunningham, great middle distance runner from Kansas, defeated Erik Ny, of Sweden, and Dr. Otto Feltner, of Germany, in a race over the 3,000-meter route in the chief race of an international track and field meet sponsored by the Charlottenburg Sport Club today.

Cunningham was clocked in 2:24.6 as he defeated Ny by 2-8/10 seconds and Feltner by 5, and he might have bettered Jules Ladoumeurg's lister world record of 2:23.6 had he been pushed.

The Kansas runner's triumph was one of another near-clear sweep for America's touring athletes, as they told the Americans won eight of the nine events in which they participated.

Their sole defeat came in the 3,000 meters, where Max Byring, of Germany, again took it. McCloskey, of America, was clocked in 8:38, three seconds behind the group of Argentinian athletes who competed.

Ralph Metcalfe, of Marquette, again cleaned up the sprints, winning the 100 meters in 10:04, second from Berger and Jonath of Germany, and the 200 in 22:16 from Berger and Mueller, of Germany.

Ivan Fuque, of Indiana, accounted for the 400 in 48.3, with Imhoff, of Germany, 17 seconds behind. Johnny Morris, of Louisiana, captured the 110-meter hurdles in 15 seconds flat. Wegene, of Germany, was second in 15.2.

Cunningham, Fuque, Metcalfe and Morris ran to outdistance the field in the 1,000-meter relay, which they ran in the fast time of 3:16.

George Spitz, of New York, won the high jump at 6 feet 4 inches, and Henri Laborde, of Stamford, and John Anderson, of New York, finished one, two in the discus. Laborde's winning toss was 154 feet 5-1/2 inches, while Anderson, Olympic champion, was runner-up at 151 feet 1-1/2 inch.

Wisman, of Germany, shattered the German record for the javelin with a toss of 235 feet 17-1/2 inch. Poljamevich, of Argentina won the pole vault at 13 feet 2-1/4 inches.

LEGION IS WINNER OF DECIDING TILT

Turns Back Wapping Uncas, 7-3, In Third Game; May Allows But Three Hits.

The deciding game of the Legion Uncas 3-game series was won by the Legion team Friday night at Spencers Field, 7:30. The Wapping players could not solve James Harburda's left handed delivery and he had little trouble in holding them to 3 hits while his teammates nipped D. Berge for 11 safe blows.

Dick Cobbs was the heavy hitter of the game getting 3 hits, in as many times at bat, 2 of them being of the 2-base variety. The players of both teams put up a good brand of baseball. Freeheit pulled off a good catch of a foul fly ball after a hard run for the best play of the game.

Harburda nipped a potential Wapping rally in the 4th when he caught Waldron's line drive and doubled Foster off first owing to the late hour at which the game started only 5 innings were played.

TOP WEST SIDES, 9 TO 5, IN TOWN TITLE BATTLE

Play Heads Up Baseball to Take Early Lead; Outthit 11 to 8 But Come Through in Pinches to Pile Up Margin; Errors a Factor.

The Bluefields team in a fine exhibition of head-up baseball yesterday afternoon at the West Side, won the first of a series of three games in the playoff for the so-called town championship, defeating the West Sides 9-5 in a full nine inning game.

The Bluefields jumped into an early lead in their half of the first inning when Brennan walked after fouling off five fouls. On an attempt to sacrifice Brennan to second, Chuckie Smith beat the hit to first. Rautenberg advanced the runners and was thrown out. E. McCann took Stavnitsky, at first. With the stage set for scoring, Bob Smith lashed a terrific triple to the roadway in deep right field, scoring Brennan and Smith. Eddie Raguskus fled out to Burkhardt in right and his brother, Andy also fled out to Holland to end the first inning scoring.

The West Sides scored one run in their half of the first when Dowd walked on four straight pitches. Holland sacrificed and McCann drove a wicked double through second, scoring Dowd. Stavnitsky struck out and S. Hewitt fled out to C. Smith.

The Bluefields tallied another run in the third when C. Smith singled over second, made third on a wild leave to catch him at second and scored on Rautenberg's sacrifice bunt. Rautenberg was thrown out. S. Hewitt was first on McCann's throw. Bob Smith struck out to end the rally.

The West Side could not use three in their half of the fourth to advantage, only tallying one run. Stavnitsky fled to center, and S. Hewitt singled to left.

Burkhardt fled to A. Raguskus. McConey singled to center scoring Hewitt and Mikian singled to left and on a fine return from C. Smith, McConey was caught at third.

Each team scored a single runner in the fifth. The Bluefields counted one when Kennedy walked, Neubauer sacrificed, and scored on Brennan's single to center. Holland's throw was late to catch the runner. C. Smith and Rautenberg both fled out.

The West Sides scored their run in the fifth on a walk to Godek, Dowd's double to right, Plitt running for Godek on third, scored on the hit. Each team scored off third on an attempted steal, and Hedlund fled to center.

The Bluefields scored another run in the sixth on B. Smith's bunt to

A'S TRIM SENATORS AS YANKEES EDGE RED SOX TO DRAW CLOSE TO TOP

Only Three Games Separate Leaders With Athletics Ten Games Behind in Third Place; Humble Reds Take Two from Cards; Giants Increase Lead Over Bucs.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR., A. F. Sports Writer

The Philadelphia Athletics, ten games or more out of the American league pennant race, has caused some bad moments for the contending New York Yankees and the Washington Senators as the leaders moved toward today's opening of another "crucial series."

After handing the second place Yankees three straight defeats to knock them four games out of first place, the A's trimmed the Washington Senators to ten ahead of the Yankees in the eleventh inning and the North Ends took the second by the score of 5 to 3.

"Cy" Cumber, who won the second game, will pitch for the North Ends with Rykond behind the bat and the Hill Billies will probably start E. Gardiner who has pitched some fine games for the American League team with Cooke doing the catching. The game will be called promptly at 6:30 and Jack Kay will be the umpire.

The Hill Billies defeated the Gibbs Soda Shop, who with the West Side Squires complete the quartet of teams that are fighting for town honors, last week by the score of 11 to 1 so the winner of tonight's game will be in first place for the present. The standing so far is as follows:

Team	W	L
Hill Billies	1	0
North Ends	1	0
West Side Buddies	1	1
Gibbies Soda Shoppe	0	1

Circuit Clout Starts Rally That Wins Final Game of Series; Both Teams Collect Eight Hits; Babel Fans 11 and Fraser Four.

Demonstrating at last that they can play really good ball against each other, the Sub-Alpines and the Manchester Green teams yesterday morning at Mt. Nebo, brought to a close the best two out of three game series, they have been playing to settle the question as to which is the better team. The Sub-Alpines settled that argument by taking the deciding game by a score of 7 to 1, and incidentally enriched their exchequer to a considerable extent by also taking the stake which backers of each team had put up.

NORTH ENDS PLAY THE HILL BILLIES

Junior Series Clash Is Slated for Tonight at 6.30 Between the Leaders.

The North Ends are out to win their second game in the town junior championship series when they meet the Hill Billies tonight. These teams have met twice this year with each team taking a game. The first game went to the Hill Billies when they scored two runs in the eleventh inning and the North Ends took the second by the score of 5 to 3.

"Cy" Cumber, who won the second game, will pitch for the North Ends with Rykond behind the bat and the Hill Billies will probably start E. Gardiner who has pitched some fine games for the American League team with Cooke doing the catching. The game will be called promptly at 6:30 and Jack Kay will be the umpire.

HUDKINS IS SHOT TWICE IN A BRAWL; IS BADLY INJURED

Noted Puglist Brandishes Pistol in Night Club; Beat Up Several Customers.

Los Angeles, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Ace Hudkins, dubbed "Nebraska Wild Cat" by boxing fans, is in a hospital with two pistol slugs in his chest received in what police described as a cafe brawl.

Physicians said his condition was serious, but not critical. He goes on the operating table today in surgeons' efforts to remove the bullets one of which lodged in the right upper lobe of his lung, and stop a hemorrhage.

Hudkins embarked on his most recent night club fistic celebration, witnesses told police, when he with several friends arrived at the cafe in an openly belligerent mood. The middleweight punched a few in the chest as he made his way into the patrons for a warmup. When the proprietor, R. H. Harris, asked Hudkins to take his fights outside, witnesses said, Hudkins decided to show him "how to run your place."

Police were told the boxer brandished a gun in the face of Harris. Harris, alarmed, drew a gun of the same moment and fired twice. One slug, of small calibre, entered the lung. The other ranged downward into the pelvic cavity.

A favorite with fight fans throughout the country, Hudkins has been arrested several times on drinking or street fighting charges.

HOLLAND WINS SECOND MATCH IN TITLE PLAY

Champion Eliminates Bob H. Smith, 6-0, 6-3; Carl Johnson Forced to Limit to Defeat Humphries in 3 Sets; Girls' Title Holder Wins.

Lamprecht, defending champion, easily disposed of Emily Cheney in a first round match, taking both sets at love 6-0 and 6-0. The champion was in smooth form, due to extensive practice and had little trouble in outplay her very erratic opponent. In another match, Mary Antonio turned back Grace Giglio, 6-4 and 6-3, and will meet the title holder in a semi-final match.

The entry list for the men's doubles tourney is now open and players should register at the Rec as soon as possible as the lists will close Friday night. A record entry list is expected.

Displaying the form that has brought him five straight tennis titles, Walter "Ty" Holland moved into the second round of the current town net tourney with a straight set victory over Robert H. Smith on the Country Club courts Saturday. The scores were 6-0 and 6-3. Holland faces H. Bassett in his next match.

Smith was nervous until the middle of the second set, when his real game was glimpsed in a series of beautifully placed drives and a powerful service. In the only other match played in the men's division, Carl Johnson, seeded No. 6, was forced to three sets to overcome Elmore Humphries, 8-6, 0-6 and 6-4. Is Over Confident.

Johnson was in a slump and seemed to take his victory for granted, a feeling that Humphries had dispelled as he forced the first set to deuce and took the second set love. The match came very close to proving an upset. Humphries' drives were remarkably effective but his service faltered him at crucial points. Johnson will meet the winner of the Holland-Bassett match in the quarter-finals.

The Point Score. The point score of the Holland-Smith match was as follows: First Set. Holland 4-4, 4-4-25-6; Smith 3-20 001-5-0. Second Set. Holland 4-4, 4-4-145-34-6; Smith 1-118 124 413-25-3.

Two matches are scheduled for tonight at 8 o'clock at the High School courts. Carl Bassett, seeded No. 5, takes on Milbur Brown. Gizi Champ Wins. In the girls' tournament, Gladys

Recreation Center

On Wednesday the West Side Playground will be the scene of another picnic for the children with an all around sports program. Director Buch announced today. Last Wednesday the East Side was thronged for one of these events. The picnic will begin promptly at 9 p. m. when sandwiches, candy and sweets will be distributed. The main feature of the evening will be the volleyball ball game between the East Side Playground and the West Side Playground. Two games have already been played in a five game series and the West Side were the victors of both games. One more game may finish the series, but the East Side boys believe they will win this time. Also Manchester will have six players of the Middletown Y. M. C. A. to face in very interesting tennis matches, singles and doubles. Most of these players are former members of the Wesleyan Varsity team. College tennis has never been played in Manchester. Some of the Manchester players to compete in these matches are Ty Holland (town champion), Earl Bissell, Lebros Urbanetti, Carl Johnson, Carleton and James Britton. Matches will begin approximately 8 p. m. Manchester will have on the program one of its former outstanding athletes, Dodger Dowd, recreation supervisor of the Berkshire School for Boys at Canaan, N. H. Mr. Dowd will bring the boys' baseball team from the school to play the West Side Buddies, at 6 p. m.

Director Buch will give Manchester people the first outdoor dance of the year tomorrow night, at the East Side Center, on the tennis courts. The courts will be specially prepared and better lighted. Seats will be placed around the courts. It is possible that more than one dance will be given during the rest of the summer. At the last meeting of the Ninth District a proposal was made for the construction of an open air dance floor similar to the one in Colt's in Hartford, but the matter was tabled until next year. Tomorrow night dancing will begin at 8:30 and last until 11. Art McKay's orchestra will furnish music.

Four fine silver loving cups are on display in the windows of the Watkins Brothers store on Main street. These will be prizes for the winners of several sporting events which the Recreation Centers are sponsoring during the next two weeks. One will be the prize for the towns' champion swimmer among the men at the Globe Hollow Pool. Edward Litwinski must win this year in order to have permanent possession of it. Another cup will be for the best woman swimmer. This honor for the past two years has gone to Miss Anne Aron. She also must compete for permanent possession. Another cup will be the prize for the best tennis player, while the fourth will be the prize at the West Side Playground on August 15, when the Recreation Center will have its annual track meet. This fine cup was given by the Giuseppe Maxzini Lodge, Sons of Italy, Jr., and it is one of the finest.

Before children are allowed to dive from the board at the deep end of the pool, they must pass the test of swimming across the pool. Those who passed the test last week are: Edward Tumieniski, Marion Vittner, Anna Napoli, Allan Kleinwachter, William Quish, Bert Brewer, Marion Spillane, Marjorie Foley, Isabella Kapella, Anna Bakus, Charles Hill, Arthur Holmes, Arline Murphy, Rose Bryant, Rose Brooks, Robert Gardner.
