THIRTY-SIX RESCUED WHEN TANKER SINKS

Collides With Liner and Catches Fire — Scene of Accident 200 Miles Off Cape Fear, N. C.

New York, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Thirty-six men were saved from death by fire or drowning when the tanker Coldwater burst into flames and "presumably sank" after a collision with the liner President Wilson, wireless messages announced early today.

The coastwise tanker and the liner, bound for the coast, collided about 200 miles off the coast of North Carolina at 11 p. m. last night, a message from the master of the latter vessel to Radio Marine Corporation, said.

"On Sept. 1, about 11 p. m.," the message said, "the Coldwater caught fire after a collision with the steamship President Wilson and presumably sank."

The position given was Latitude 33.51 North, Longitude 75.45 West, which is approximately 200 miles off Cape Fear, N. C.

The first message did not say what happened to the tanker's crew, but shortly afterwards the vessel's owners announced at Savannah, Ga., that they had saved all of them and was taking them to Norfolk, Va.

The liner, owned by the Dollar Steamship Company of San Francisco, was enroute from New York to Caribbean ports, Honolulu and the Orient when the accident occurred. The Coldwater, a 390-foot vessel, sailed from Jacksonville, Fla., on Aug. 26 for a trip up the Atlantic coast. Her home port is Savannah, Ga.

GERMAN LEADERS PLEDGE LOYALTY

Hitler's Political Organizers to the Number of 160,000 Attend Parley.

Nurnberg, Germany, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Brown-shirted political organizers of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's Nazi Party, to the number of 160,000 stood shoulder to shoulder in Nurnberg's largest meadow today and vowed anew their undivided loyalty to the leader and the movement.

"We found the key which, for all time, will close the door to our enemies," the chancellor assured them.

"This meeting is a visible demonstration of the result of our four-year fight. The party has become a state. Now our duty is to educate every German to be a citizen of this German state."

"You must form an iron front encompassing every German. We plan that we will meet here two years hence. So will we meet ten, a hundred, and a thousand years hence."

"From new political organizers will continually emerge the nation's leaders on a selective principle."

The gathering was a part of the biennial National Socialist convention.

Not Storm Troops
The assembled brownshirts were not storm troopers, but represented the elite of political strategists.

The gathering was a part of the biennial National Socialist convention.

Dry Leaders Plan Last-Ditch Fight

Though the 24th consecutive state has voted for repeal, the Anti-Saloon League of America won't give up the ship. Above is a group of its leaders in convention in Chicago to make plans to continue their fight. Left to right, seated: F. Scott McBride, general superintendent; Ernest H. Cherrington, educational secretary; George B. Safford, Illinois superintendent; and Thomas W. Gales, North Dakota. Standing: S. P. McNaught, Ohio; L. S. York, Indiana; A. C. Graham, Kentucky; H. B. Bowers, National treasurer; Warren S. Jones, Wisconsin; P. A. Tate, Missouri.

COAL CODE IS DELAYED; FORD STILL KEEPS MUM

Washington, Sept. 2.—(AP)—A new rift in soft coal negotiations today joined reticent Henry Ford as twin disturbers of NRA's first week-end rest.

Conferees on labor contracts between Appalachian bituminous coal operators and the United Mine Workers of America were at so complete a standstill that the advice of Hugh S. Johnson again was sought by the disputants.

But in the case of Ford, NRA officials simply waited word from the Detroit manufacturer who has until Tuesday to accept the automobile code or do business without the Blue Eagle.

Both were paralleled by two events hailed as recovery achievements: The $12,000,000,000 oil industry's code today became effective. The American Federation of Labor attributed to the recovery program a $5,000,000,000 increase in purchasing power—an amount insufficient to raise retail sales 17 per cent.

Shorter Hours
Today provided NRA's first taste of its own fever-work-hours doctrine. Johnson, who says his staff has worked on a "30-hour day," ordered all offices closed at 1 o'clock not to reopen until Tuesday morning.

The present coal tie up clouded hopes of putting written agreement in President Roosevelt's hand Tuesday.

LOST FOR A WEEK SUDDENLY APPEARS

Seattle, Sept. 2.—(AP)—A young man identified as Bernard Elterman, Denver apartment store executive who vanished August 24, was today after having been found wandering about the streets yesterday.

Authorities said he apparently had been a victim of amnesia and was attempting to recall events of his eight days since he left the store where he is employed. They said he was uncertain as to whether he had been kidnapped and then released.

"I remember having an argument with someone in a car," he said falteringly. "I remember riding in a train with the blinds pulled down. I saw ships somewhere."

"I don't think I was drugged. I don't know why I don't know that."

BUSINESS IN U. S. READJUSTS ITSELF

New York, Sept. 2.—(AP)—With business readjusting itself to the new deal, as exemplified by NRA, September finds the financial community somewhat uncertain as to near term trends but none the less hopeful that autumn will witness a fresh upturn in business activity.

Industry has been slowed down by seasonal tendencies, by hesitancy incident to codification and by a reaction from the ambitious spurt that characterized early summer. However, a gain in consumer buying is indicated and with the government's inflationary powers as potent weapons for use should occasion demand, observers trust that the pause noted in recent weeks will prove temporary.

The week was uneventful in the Stock Market, which reflected the approach of this week-end's suspension as well as a willingness to go slowly until post-Labor Day trends could be defined. President Roosevelt's order permitting regulated sale of newly mined gold appeared to carry no immediate inflationary implications, although some observers suggested that the question of the dollar's ultimate gold value might be involved.

New Factor
Codes have introduced an entirely new factor into the industrial situation, probably overshadowing other influences. Their long term effect, especially, is a subject of wide interest; their nearby results, such as immediate increases in production costs, became quickly discernible. Undoubtedly, the newness of so vast an enterprise as NRA has contributed to whatever unsettlement has developed.

September is expected to witness a test of the consuming public's response to the higher prices which

SOCIALISTS URGE SPECIAL SESSION

Norwalk, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The Socialist Party of Connecticut in a letter to Gov. Wilbur L. Cross made public today asserted a special session of the General Assembly was "imperative" to act on "a forward looking program to adequately care for the unemployed and needy and to protect the small home owner."

The letter, signed by Arnold E. Freese of Norwalk, state secretary, advocated a graduated state income tax to finance relief measures not provided for under the Federal recovery program.

The Letter
"In urging that Your Excellency convene a special session at once, we express the wish that Connecticut shall lead the states in discarding the present disgraceful and inadequate 'dole' method of caring for the unemployed and needy."

Subjects which the party said should be considered included: "Immediate completion of the Merritt highway; a public works program to include construction of municipal electric and gas plants, slum clearance and municipal housing in larger cities and highway construction; enactment of old age pension and unemployment insurance legislation; and ratification of the child labor amendment to the Federal constitution."

Animal Experts Stumped; Unable to Rescue Deer

Watkins Glen, N. Y., Sept. 2.—(AP)—When it comes to rescuing a deer from a precarious mountain ledge, the experts in wild animal life admit they are practically stumped.

Frank Edminster, animal expert of the State Conservation Department, ordered from his laboratories at Cornell University to Watkins Glen state park to remove a seven point buck from eight days of captivity, arrived at the scene early today.

"I have no definite plans," Edminster said.

All other plans to rescue the animal were held up when Edminster and Gardner Bump, state superintendent of game, decided what they would do.

Park authorities last night were preparing to try to lure the deer across the bridge by the use of an illegal "jack-light" and two stuffed deer equipped with rollers. They suspended their work when informed that the state was sending its game experts.

A record influx of tourists over the double week-end holiday was expected by park officials, who have been opposed to closing the park to curious visitors in spite of the fact that on several occasions they have nearly frightened the animal into leaping from the cliff.

PINEDO, FAMOUS FLIER, DIES IN BURNING PLANE

Storm Lashes at Cuba; Nicks Tip of Florida

Miami, Fla., Sept. 2.—(AP)—The passing of a storm that nipped the tip of the Florida peninsula and lashed at Cuba was followed today by west of four ships aground, one damaged by collision and reports of another disturbance moving over the Caribbean.

Florida felt gales at Key West and winds up to 26 miles an hour yesterday at Miami.

The new tropical disturbance was reported about 170 miles northeast of Puerto Rico and moving west or northwest. Advice from the Weather Bureau said it was of at least moderate intensity.

Word of ships in distress in Cuban waters came in intercepted wireless messages last night. The Josephine Gray, British vessel, was reported ashore off Cayo Bahia del Cadiz but with the crew safe.

The Stahl, a Danish ship, broke anchor at Calbarien Bay, 200 miles east of Havana, struck and slightly damaged the Swedish ship, the Consul Corlitzon, and then settled in nine feet of water. The Thyra, registry unreported, was aground somewhere, apparently in the vicinity of Matanzas Bay, reports here said. The Baron Harris, of British registry, was reported ashore at Matanzas.

7 DEAD, 64 INJURED
Havana, Sept. 2.—(AP)—A swift, fierce hurricane visited its wrath on western Penar del Rio province today, after causing at least seven deaths and 64 injuries and uncounted property losses. As communication lines were repaired reports came from communities of shattered houses, broken power lines and damaged crops.

Havana spent much of last night in darkness, which meant looting in many districts. Soldiers and police, under orders to shoot looters at sight, killed two men caught pilgaging ruins in the Vedado section.

Capital Warned
The capital had been warned of the storm's approach but nevertheless an unidentified man was killed and more than 60 hurt here as the gale tore at signs, trees, buildings and walls.

In Santa Clara six were killed and an undetermined number hurt. How much territory was included was not determined early today, but the south coast port of Cienfuegos suffered greatly, indicating that the width of the island was affected.

Unverified reports said two freighters were grounded off Calbarien. The Tiscornia radio station received an SOS from the British freighter Josephine Gray, five miles off Cape Bahia de Cadiz in Camaguey province, and was advised unidentified ships nearby were going to her rescue.

Huge Craft, Unable to Rise Because of Load, Crashes Into Fence and Bursts Into Flames — Aviator Was Attempting to Take Off for Try at the Non-Stop Record.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 2.—(AP)—General Francisco de Pinedo, one of Italy's most famous aviators, met flying death shortly after dawn today when his huge plane crashed and burned up at the start of a take-off for Baghdad, Iraq.

A tremendous load of gasoline,

F. De Pinedo

1,027 gallons, caused his giant red, green and purple plane to swerve from a concrete runway and hit a fence at Floyd Bennett Airport. In a second it was a roaring mass of flames, and the flier was burned beyond recognition.

The start of what the gallant flier had hoped would be a non-stop record flight became a scene of horror. Spectators shuddered and covered their eyes as they saw fire engulf the aviator.

Attendants rushed to the scene and tried to pull him out, but the flames forced them back. Michael Hicks Beach, a naval aviator's mate, was badly burned about the face trying to reach De Pinedo with a fire extinguisher.

Body Is Found
The plane burned only a few seconds before it was a mass of metal wreckage. The body was found lying beside it and field officials said that the flier had jumped and attempted to crawl away before the fire killed him.

De Pinedo's plane was traveling about 70 miles an hour when it hit the steel wire fence at 6:02 a. m. e. s. t.

He had covered about 2,000 feet of the mile-long concrete runway before disaster overtook him. The plane, lurching under its great load of fuel, refused to rise. One wheel got off the ground but fell back, then the plane swerved into the dirt along the runway.

STATE'S CHILDREN READY FOR SCHOOL

In Most Cases Programs Will Go Forward With Big Enrollments.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Augmented this year by children released from industry by the NRA, Connecticut's army of school children will begin trudging back to the classroom for the start of another school year next week.

E. W. Butterfield, state commissioner of education, announced at Hartford that all schools would re-open, although in some districts the work was expected to be hampered somewhat by curtailed budgets, an aftermath of hard times and resultant slow tax collections.

Lack of employment
This will be true, Butterfield said, because of the lack of employment and growing social demands for more education in case of children of high school age, and the declining birth rate in the cases of the first year pupils.

School budget cuts have been general throughout the state, and in the aggregate, savings were made possible by the reduction of teachers' salaries which constitute 70 to 80 per cent of the average school costs.

The postponement of repairs to some future date, the failure to renew school equipment and the almost complete stoppage of new building program everywhere, also will allow school districts to continue their educational programs without changing despite sharply reduced funds upon which to draw.

State officials saw the addition of several thousand boys and girls, released from industry, as a problem of application which would not increase school expense. As interpreted by N. S. Light, it would be a question of finding a suitable educational program rather than adding to present school facilities.

THREE MEET DEATH WHEN BOAT UPSETS

Party of Four Just Arrived at Lake Go Out on Midnight Row.

Sebago Lake, Me., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Three of a party of four persons who went for a midnight row on Sebago lake last night were drowned and the fourth was rescued after an oarlock broke and they were plunged into the water.

The dead were: Mrs. Harold L. Hodgdon, of Portland; Kenneth H. Hodgdon, her son; and Mrs. Anna Cates, of Woburn, Mass., a cousin of Mrs. Hodgdon.

Harold McCarthy, of Wollaston, Mass., the fourth member of the boating party was pulled from the water by men who put out from

ROOSEVELT RESTS ON OCEAN CRUISE

First Day in Months That the President Did Not Transact Business.

Washington, Sept. 2.—(AP)—A leisurely cruise down the Atlantic coast today was President Roosevelt's schedule after a restful anchorage in Fort Pond bay, off Montauk, Long Island.

Vincent Astor's yacht Nourmahal on which Mr. Roosevelt is voyaging toward Washington, spent the night in the bay awaiting better visibility at sea. Nearby the escort destroyers—Triggs and Manley—were anchored.

Stephen Early, one of the President's secretaries, reported by wireless to Washington that the first day of September also was for Mr. Roosevelt "the first time in many months" that a whole day passed "without seeing any official calls or transacting governmental business."

In his message through the Navy Department last night, Early said: "He remained aboard the yacht with his friends and host, Vincent Astor."

"The President made most of the day resting, reading and chatting with his friends."

GEORGES LEYGUES, OF FRANCE, DEAD

Former Premier and Foreign Minister Passes Away — Was 75 Years of Age.

Paris, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Georges Leygues, former premier and foreign minister of France, and minister of marine in the present government, died this noon.

He had been ill the last few weeks. Recently his condition became serious but news of it was kept secret.

M. Leygues would have been 75 years old in November.

He entered Parliament in 1885, and ever since he represented his native department of Lot-et-Garonne in the Chamber.

He first attained Cabinet rank in 1894, assuming the portfolio of public instruction and fine arts in the Dupuy ministry. From the autumn of 1920 until January, 1921, he was premier, giving way to the late Aristide Briand.

Known as "The Grand Old Man" of the government, M. Leygues was an uncompromising believer in a Navy adequate for the home defense of France and for the protection of her drifting possessions overseas. At the London Naval Conference in 1930 he proved to be a stiff negotiator.

Until a few years ago he was a fervent mountain climber. In Paris his favorite exercise was riding, and until recently he was often on his horse in the Bois de Boulogne.

DETAILS OF CRASH

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Associated Press wireless Commander Makepeace Ridley, master of the S. S. President Wilson, for his own story of the collision between his vessel and the Coldwater. Follow the account of the accident received from the President Wilson.)

S. S. President Wilson, enroute to Norfolk, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Last night about 11 p. m., 80 miles south of Cape Hatteras in a very sudden and unexpected cloudburst of rain, the S. S. President Wilson collided with the S. S. Coldwater.

The latter vessel's cargo on deck and in the holds immediately took fire and soon the ship was in a mass of flames, sinking within an hour.

All on the vessel were saved, including one lady passenger and two children.

The vessels Gulf Breeze, Christy Payne and J. C. Donnell arrived and stood by until assured of all being saved and that no help was required.

The President Wilson's bows are damaged and the ship is now proceeding towards Norfolk safely and expects to arrive this evening.

SUN CELEBRATING 100TH BIRTHDAY

New York Newspaper Issues 104 Page Edition to Observe the Event.

New York, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The New York Sun today celebrated its 100th anniversary.

Grown from a small, four page newspaper whose publisher also was editor, reporter, compositor, pressman and mailing clerk, the present journal observed its centennial with an issue of 104 pages of eight columns each.

The mammoth edition appeared on the streets at the usual hour of 10 o'clock in 1833 when the population was 220,000 until 1933 when its population is 7,000,000.

Along with its own story also was told that of New York City itself. In 1624 when the population was 220,000 until 1933 when its population is 7,000,000.

The story of the Sun is told of the realization of the dream of its founder, 28-year old Benjamin I. Day, to establish the city's first penny paper as a journal whose object was "to lay before the public, at a price within the means of everyone, all the news of the day, and at the same time afford an advantageous medium for advertising."

In a box at the bottom of the first page today the Sun said: "The request for advertising space in the Sun today has been so great that all advertisements offered cannot be printed. We regret that lack of space compels the omission of more than eighty columns."

On that first day—September 3, 1833—1,000 copies were printed; the present circulation is more than 300,000.

After five years of operation Day sold his newspaper to Moses Yale Beach for $40,000 and ten years later Beach passed it on to his two sons. One of the sons became the sole owner four years later and leased it to a religious group. This group held a prayer meeting in the editorial rooms daily.

Beach resumed control in 1842 and after the Civil war sold the paper to a group headed by Charles A. Dana for $75,000.

Paul Dana assumed direction of the paper upon the death of his father in 1897 and after several others had succeeded him in control of the Sun Frank A. Munsey became its owner. He bequeathed it to the Metropolitan Museum of Art and it was purchased from that organization in October, 1926, by William T. Dewart.

As president and treasurer of the Sun Printing and Publishing Association, Dewart carried out Munsey's wishes, expressed orally, and issued stock to several hundred employees. Today's paper sold for three cents.

FOREST WORKERS ARE GOLFERS, TOO

Members at Camp Robinson Build Putting Green — Other Activities.

New Haven, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Company 180 of the Civilian Conservation Corps at Camp Robinson claimed a new distinction today—the first forestry camp to have its own putting green.

The green was built under the direction of Captain Hughes, the company commander, and used frequently by officers and men in their spare time to improve their short shots.

The first distinction which came to Camp Robinson was its camp museum which has grown until it includes specimens of most of the rocks, minerals, trees and so forth within the immediate vicinity of Hartland.

Many Peds
The camp has added to its collection of mammals which began with a puppy and some kittens, with the addition later of "Andy" a raccoon, by the capture of a black snake and rattlesnake, "tamed" for pets by their captors.

Members of the Camp also assert that that one of their number gained 22 pounds in weight since joining the C.C.C. places it near the top of the list as one of the healthiest and best fed of all Connecticut camps.

Camp Loneragan
At Camp Loneragan near Voluntown, work started on the conservation and improvement of a road and trails into the Green Falls pond section of Pachaug State Forest.

Noted as the only spot where rhododendron flourishes in the wild state, the forest is considered one of the most scenic areas in the state. The Conservation Corps will build picnic and camping grounds along the road into the forest for the convenience of public visitors.

meeting last night of the St. Louis Medical Society, which was attended by nearly 1,800 persons who were interested in learning something about the epidemic which has gripped the city and its suburbs.

Dr. Howard McCordock, Washington University pathologist, who announced Dr. Smith's laboratory findings, said it had long been suspected such a virus was responsible for the strange malady, but that Dr. Smith's discovery was the first scientific proof.

Narrows the Search Determination that the disease is caused by such a virus, Dr. McCordock asserted, does not isolate the cause of encephalitis, but said it narrowed the search materially.

As the number of cases increased to 276 in St. Louis county and 155 in the city, Dr. E. T. McCaugh, state health commissioner, announced that his department had effected plans to acquaint medical men of the state with all available information concerning the disease.

Meanwhile city and Federal health officers here, upon hearing that visitors were avoiding St. Louis and Missouri because of the "sleeping sickness" outbreak, issued statements designed to allay fear in the minds of outsiders.

They pointed out that there was no evidence that the disease is contagious, and that business was going on the same as usual.

THREE MEET DEATH WHEN BOAT UPSETS

Had Just Arrived The four had come to a cottage at the lake about 11:30 last night to spend the holiday week-end and within half an hour started in the rowboat for another cottage a quarter of a mile away.

McCarthy said he was rowing a short distance from shore when a corklock broke, the boat rolled, Mrs. Hodgdon leaned to the other side and they were all tossed from the boat.

He said he tried to support Mrs. Hodgdon but finally she slipped from his grasp and he hung onto the partly submerged boat.

Mrs. Hodgdon's body was floating on the water which indicated she might have died of heart disease while the other bodies were in about 15 feet of water.

Manchester Nudist Camp Has Only One Customer

Buttermilk And Sunshine Farm In Oakland May Suspend If Patrons Are Not More Numerous—Shorts The Style.

Manchester has a semi-nudist, rubdown treatments have been from New York as it was in New York papers that he advertised the opening of the camp. He pointed out the large house that could be used for boarders, the sunbathing that could be secured on the hillside and the large number of acres, back from the road, little used, that could be used.

The contract calls for twenty hours of treatment a week and the contract that he entered into with Mrs. Close was a payment of $5 a week for each person who came to the camp for a week. Several have made a stay of but one or two days and he has offered, he says, to pay on a pro rata plan. Mrs. Close has objected to this and as a result there has been a falling off in the number of patients.

Basking in the sun in the nude, Jones J. Brotman says, is not necessary. Shorts and bathing suits expose the arms, legs and face to the sun and the thinness of the garment worn will allow the sun rays to penetrate to other parts of the body. The nudist diet, with proper rubbing of the body that follows is sufficient. He had expected, he said, to build up a good business, but the trouble that he has encountered may prevent his continuing the place much longer. If a settlement can be reached it will continue.

The one member of the campers that remained was at the camp this morning. She had just finished her butter milk and was smoking a cigarette and waiting for her sunbath at noon, which would be just too late for publication so the reporter hurried away.

PINEDO, FAMOUS FLIER, DIES AS PLANE BURNS

"Of course, when you start to fly in a plane everyone knows that the farther you get the more you get. I thought sure he would cut the switch, but he had been here so long, he was determined to go.

"I think he still thought he could lift the load even though he had got off the runway.

By flying the 6,300 miles to Baghdad, de Pinedo had hoped to smash the long distance record of 5,653 1/2 miles, set by Paul Codos and Maurice Ross in a flight last month from New York to Euyak, Syria.

As he stepped into the plane, clad in an old gray jersey and blue house slippers, his last words were: "I shall try to do my best."

DE PINEDO'S CAREER New York, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The Marquis de Pinedo, whose life and career ended in the flames that enveloped his airplane today, learned to fly in 1927 and gained his first international recognition in 1929 by a flight from Rome to Tokyo, Australia and return.

He attended the secondary schools of Italy and graduated from the Royal Italian Naval College. He subsequently rose to the command of a destroyer.

After flying for his country through the war he remained with the air service and when that arm was separated from the Army and Navy in 1923 he became an officer in the Italian Royal Air Force.

After his Tokyo flight he was acclaimed as a national hero and selected with Captain Carlo del Prete as his aid to make Italy's four-continent flight to the Americas and return in 1927.

The venture, which involved air crossings of both the South and North Atlantic and flight over South America's trackless jungles in a plane that could land only on water, was generally hailed by airmen as an outstanding feat of the time.

He lost his ship at Roosevelt Dam, Ariz., when a careless bystander dropped a lighted match on gasoline-covered water during refueling. The accident failed to stop the flight. De Pinedo obtained a substitute plane and went on.

On his return to Italy he was showered with new honors, promoted to a generalship and given command of the Third Aeronautical Zone which included Rome.

Shortly after the Italian mass flight about the Near East in 1929 De Pinedo was sent to Argentina as air attache of the Italian Embassy and was probably the highest ranking officer ever to hold such a post. His friends considered the assignment virtual exile.

COAL CODE IS DELAYED; FORD STILL KEEPS MUM

The oil code started functioning officially with the industry's planning and coordinating committee reported as favoring Federal price fixing from the well-mouth to the gasoline pump.

Business Survey. In its monthly survey of business, the American Federation said that "since the speculative rise of figures are beginning to reveal a solid foundation for business advance."

It added that from March to July 2, 933,000 persons returned to work, resulting in the latter month in a four per cent increase in department store sales over July, 1932.

A memorandum from Joseph B. Eastman, Federal coordinator, told President Roosevelt that an NRA code for the much regulated railroad would not be entered into if it were legally applicable.

In Cleveland, A. F. Whitney, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' Association, expressed "disappointment and shock" and promised to become politicized without a reduction in wages.

Still going forward at NRA headquarters today were negotiations from which administrators hoped to evolve for presidential signature next week a code covering the entire retail trade field.

SAYS WIFE BOUGHT LOMBARDO'S HOOCH

Unusual Testimony in Court Case Here Today; Heavily Fined, He Appeals.

When two women testified in Police Court this morning that on various occasions they had hauled their husbands, drunk, out of Carmelo Lombardo's kitchen den at 104 Homestead street it was a very unusual event because such direct testimony the police find hard to get.

But when a male neighbor of Lombardo swore in court that he had had to perform a similar service for his wife, who persisted in hanging out in Lombardo's place and getting full of Lombardo's high-powered beer and wine, a record in local Police Court history was broken.

Examples Analyzed Lombardo was arrested in a raid made on complaint of the aggrieved husband on August 24. His case was continued until today to provide time for analysis of samples of liquor he had become politicized.

There was plenty to sample from a large quantity of wine and illegal beer was captured by the raiding officers.

This morning Sergeant John McGinn and Patrolmen David Galligan and Joseph Francis testified to the facts of the raid and to the reputation of Lombardo's place as a place where liquor was sold. McGinn said that Lombardo, to his knowledge, had been arrested on liquor charges three or four times within eight years.

Wife Testifies Mrs. Rose Burk, a Homestead Park resident, testified that she had seen many persons go into Lombardo's place and come out drunk and that repeatedly she had gone to the place to bring her husband home when he had become politicized.

Lombardo's attorney, B. Ackerman of Hartford, had no luck when he sought to make Mrs. Burk amend her story. Mrs. Katie Bakulski, another neighbor, testified to having found Mr. Bakulski in Lombardo's place on several occasions.

Adolf Savadonia, also a Homestead Park resident, was the complainant husband of Lombardo's steady woman customer. He testified to having asked the police to raid the establishment.

In his own behalf Lombardo swore that during the thirteen years he had been in Manchester he had never done anything worse than keep chickens and raise a garden. He sold no intoxicants, ever, he said. All that the state's witnesses had said was untrue.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Charles R. Hathaway, who had submitted the official analysis of the seized liquors showing them to be far above any legal limit, said he thought it would be silly to argue the case.

Attorney Ackerman declared that under the existing law there was no provision for a prosecution on reputation but Mr. Hathaway pointed out that the old law had not been repealed and a motion judge R. A. Johnson sustained him by fining Lombardo $100 and costs and sentencing him to thirty days in jail on the charge of keeping a place reputed to be one where liquor is sold, besides imposing a fine of $200 and costs and a thirty day jail term for keeping liquor with intent to sell.

Attorney Ackerman, who had taken the precaution to demur to the complaint at the opening of the case, gave notice of appeal. A bond of $500 was supplied by Lombardo's brother from Burnside.

Mrs. Savino Suspended Mrs. Antoinette Savino, arrested yesterday for the theft of vegetables from one of the home gardens of the unemployed on Charter Oak street, escaped with a suspension of judgment. Francis Purphy of Wells street testified that he saw Mrs. Savino and her boy picking vegetables in the garden plot of a Mrs. Elliott and Patrolman Wirtel testified that foot tracks led from Mrs. Savino's own home garden plot into the other. The Savino plot, the officer said, had been pretty well depleted.

Mrs. Savino told the court that she only took four tomatoes and since she knew Mrs. Elliott she didn't think her neighbor would object. Besides she had plenty of vegetables of her own she said and didn't mind stealing.

John M. Bailey, attorney representing Mary Alford, went to jail several weeks ago to work out a fine for drunk-driving, presented to Judge Johnson a petition in behalf of his client asking for the suspension of the remainder of the fine. The petition set forth that Miss Alford's mother was very ill at her home in Wapping and needed the services of her daughter. There was no chance of the prisoner's being able to pay the fine.

Judge Johnson told the attorney that inasmuch as Mary had already been in jail nearly a month and considering the circumstances he would order her release.

BUSINESS IN U. S. READJUSTS ITSELF

(Continued From Page One) code operation is making necessary. Numerous price increases, effective early this month, have already been made; hence an answer to the very pertinent query "can and will people buy?" should not be long delayed.

Steel Production Major industry indices scaled downward during August compared with their levels at the beginning of that month. Thus steel output, which went into August at 57 per cent of capacity, lost about ten points. (A year ago this time it was 13 per cent); electric power output reduced the size of its gains over 1932; percentage increases in railway freight loadings tapered off; and automobile activity lessened.

On the whole, buyers in primary markets seemed reluctant to venture further commitments until they could better appraise the future. Nevertheless, it was recalled that there had been vigorous replenishment of inventories while inflation was the chief talk of the day; hence the continued absence of inflation, as it was then being forecast, brought a scaling down of purchases.

"I am Bernard Bitterman," he replied. Later, a fraternity brother, E. F. Stern, definitely identified him as Bitterman, police said. He was taken to the city hospital.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

DAVID'S AMAZING CAREER

Text: 1 Samuel, 16:1-18. The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Sept. 3.

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist

The career of David, both in its original progress and in the place that it occupies in religious history, most amazing and full of conflicting elements.

Religiously David has been given a place almost of sanctity, and the association of his name with his name, and the conception of him as a sweet singer, have suggested his place as a leader of praise rather than as a leader of armies.

It is characteristic of the Bible that with fine honesty it presents both aspects of this remarkable man.

We see him as the young shepherd boy, fearless and confident, going out with his sling and his smooth stones to smite the giant Goliath, swaggering in his armor and defying the armies of Israel.

The story of his putting Uriah, the wronged husband, into the line of his sword, for the murder was as real as if he had struck down Uriah with his own hand.

It is well to remember the story of David in connection with the world's sin and the world's sinners, for the story is instructive in reminding us that a man's sins are not always the indication of what he is capable of becoming.

It was this that Jesus supremely recognized in his dealing with men and women. He refused to see them in terms of their lowest and basest acts. He saw them rather in terms of their higher aspirations and of their repentance as conscience accused them of their weakness and wrongdoing.

The view that sees David chiefly as a sinner is a wrong as the view that sees him chiefly as a bandit chief. We must study in him the conflict between right and wrong, of violent passions with the higher aspirations and the generous impulses that conquered in the end.

REAL VALUES

By GEORGE HENRY DOLE

International Sunday School Lesson Text, Sept. 3rd: "Man Looketh on the Outward Appearance, but the Lord Looketh on the Heart." — 1 Samuel 16:7.

If one could repeat the whole Word from memory, were possessed of all learning, and had unlimited wealth, he would not be profited in true happiness one iota either here or hereafter, unless something else were added. Happiness is not in material possessions, but in the spirit, the disposition, the love in which we use what we have.

"Man looketh upon the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh upon the heart." Our possessions, mental, material and spiritual are of profit in proportion to our love of others and of the public good, or in the degree that we use them for the welfare of others and our spiritual advancement.

Trials, cares and afflictions so oppress us while in this world, that many do not feel that they have any love. The Lord admonishes "To love thy neighbor as thyself." Possessions, melting love in the heart.

EMPLOYMENT GAIN GREATEST IN JULY

Percentage Increase Over June is Largest in Last 13 Years, It Is Disclosed.

New York, Sept. 2.—An increase of 10.2 percent in employment in July over June was reported by the manufacturing plants included in the monthly survey of wages, employment, and hours of work conducted by the National Industrial Conference Board.

The employment gain of 10.2 percent over June is the fourth successive monthly increase that has been reported by the Conference Board. The total increase in employment since February of this year, according to the Conference Board figures, is 19 percent.

Even more impressive, the Conference Board states, is the increase of 14 percent in man-hours worked in July as compared with June. It is possible for employment to advance without any increase in volume of work performed and with a decrease in average earnings, as was demonstrated during the period of widespread work-sharing a year ago.

Changes in average hourly earnings, however, averaging weekly earnings increased from $18.49 in June to $19.15 in July, an advance of 3.6 percent.

In spite of this increase of weekly earnings, individual purchasing power remained almost unchanged in July, as compared with June, because of a sharp rise in the cost of living, the index number of which computed by the Conference Board advanced 3.3 percent from June to July.

The purchasing power of the weekly earnings, however, averaged weekly earnings increased from $18.49 in June to $19.15 in July, an advance of 3.6 percent.

HILLYER PIONEER EVENING SCHOOL

Scarcely Year Passes That Y Institute Does Not Add to Its Courses.

More than forty years have passed since the Hillyer Y. M. C. A. schools of Hartford, now affiliated with Northeastern University, began a pioneering work in evening education. Throughout this period, as some new educational need developed, it was met at Hillyer.

Started in 1892 when gifts from Appleton R. and Clara V. Hillyer made possible the establishment of Hillyer Institute, a real expansion of the curriculum took place. Elementary courses in bookkeeping and business were conducted, and classes in Carpentry, Forging, Plumbing and Printing were taught; also large classes in Mechanical Drawing and Architectural Drafting. After these courses were given in the high schools and State trade schools, the emphasis at Hillyer changed to more advanced work in Mechanical Drawing, Tool Design and Machine Design, and Architecture as well.

With new developments in science and industry, courses in Automobile Mechanics, Electricity, Radio and Aviation were added. Today more than forty courses are given in the Hillyer Schools. These courses are arranged in three divisions: the Junior College of Business Administration, the Engineering Institute, and the School of Practical Arts. Hardly a year passes without some addition to the Hillyer program. This year is no exception.

The Junior College of Business Administration, in which commercial subjects of college grade have been taught for ten years, has a very important announcement to make. This school is now affiliated with the School of Business, Evening Division, of Northeastern University. The Hillyer program, which is similar to that at Northeastern has been adjusted to correspond with it. The arrangement completed makes it possible for men and women to start a college course at Hillyer leading to a degree at Northeastern. At least three hundred young men and young women who are unemployed may begin their college work without incurring the large expense of living away from home and in the meantime may seek employment for employment. The fact that Hillyer is an endowed institution makes it possible to offer courses at a minimum tuition cost, which, of course, is an advantage to those who are beginning a business career. These advanced courses may be enjoyed without sacrificing the quality of instruction, because in Hartford it has been possible to engage teachers of unusual ability. A number of the instructors have been taught in colleges and high schools and others are successfully engaged in industry, business, law, and other professions.

This Year's Plans In looking forward to the fall term, the Director, Julius S. Augur, announces that in the Junior College of Business Administration, which will open the week of September 25, Introductory Accounting will be taught again by R. E. Stuckley; Advanced Accounting and Auditing by A. T. Bierkan; Cost Accounting by E. S. Wolston; Marketing by E. W. Clark; Economics by E. W. Clark; Investments by P. S. Day; Fundamentals of Bookkeeping and Business Statistics by J. P. Walsh; Legal Aspects of Business by F. S. Locke; Money, Banking and Financial Organization by H. A. Norwalk; Salesmanship by R. E. Stuckley; L. St. Clair Burr; Business English by W. Stoddard; Income Tax Procedure by P. G. Graham; Real Estate Law by L. A. Winslow; Business Letters by L. L. Brooks; and Effective Speaking I and II by J. S. Augur.

In the Hillyer Engineering Institute, Architectural Drafting will be taught by Willard Wilkins; Mechanical Drawing and Tool Design by W. L. Muller; Machine Design by A. B. Lindstrom; Power Engineering by C. L. Johnson; Automobile Mechanics by A. L. Lamb; and Welding by R. J. Dampman.

The School of Practical Arts, E. M. and M. G. Ing will teach Art, and Robert Drew-Bear the History and Appreciation of Art; English Literature will be taught by Paul W. Stoddard; French, German and Spanish by C. M. Walsh; Vocational Building by J. G. Gilmer; Algebra, Geometry and Trigonometry by E. K. Wilson, and Chemistry and Physics by E. C. Weaver.

In addition to the formal educational classes there will be a number of study clubs, such as the Toastmasters' Club, open to those who have taken courses in Effective Speaking at Hillyer; the English Engineering Club, open to former students in that field; the Geography Club, open to those who wish to undertake the study of man as influenced by and modifying his environment; and the Aviation Club, open to men and women interested in the fundamentals of flying.

Additional Courses The Hillyer Schools will also sponsor informal discussions of economic and economic subjects, and in the second term will conduct a course in mental hygiene. The Hillyer Schools are also co-operating with a number of insurance companies in the arrangements for conducting the Life Insurance Office Management courses.

With the NRA code extending the hours of leisure and increasing general employment, there should be a real enthusiasm for further education this fall, and Hillyer is preparing to do its part in meeting the educational needs of the men and women of Hartford and vicinity.

SCIENTISTS REPORT BRAND-NEW FIND

Ordinary Chemical Can Be Made to Grow Tissues on Animals, They Say.

Woods Hole, Mass., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Science has discovered that the "organizer" a substance which induces the formation of body organs, is a chemical which can be bought in drug stores. It is glycogen, the sugar "fuel" common in muscles.

This "dead" chemical is not the only regulator: it is at least one other. How the two work is described by Dr. Oscar Schotte, of Yale University, in the "Collecting Net," unofficial science publication on Woods Hole.

It tells how the work of other scientists and his own recent successes in "inducing" the growth of a salamander's suckers on the face of a tree toad, where there are normally no suckers.

In all animals the embryo begins as three "primordial" streaks of tissue.

Streaks Are Mapped Scientists first learned that they could accurately "map" these streaks, while they were still nothing except unorganized layers of tissue. The "maps" showed which areas respectively would develop into brain, eyes, mouth and so on.

They proved the "map" by lifting out a mouth or brain area with instruments and transplanting it into a test tube. There it would still grow into a mouth or brain, rudimentary but convincing.

Next it was discovered that some times the primordial streak areas would run wild. They would grow into quite different organs. A brain could be caused to grow into simple abdominal skin if properly transplanted to the abdominal region.

More startling was the result of transplanting abdominal skin of crickets, a species of newt, to a different newt species, taniatus. This crickets skin area was transplanted to the other newt's head area. There crickets skin became brain. Yet no taniatus brain, but typical crickets brain.

It was found that some unknown substance in the tissues acted as "organizer." In some experiments this "organizer" induced formation of a head in a trunk region of the body. This "organizer" also had its definite location on the primordial streak "map." It could be dried, boiled or frozen, and was as durable as its work. It was so universal it did not even have to come from the same animal.

Very recently Dr. Schotte states "a sensational discovery" has been made in Europe that produces inductions that is, the organizer, is glycogen. Dr. Schotte concludes that the control lies not in any one factor, but in interaction, particularly between "organizer" and "host." But he says the problem still has an astonishing diversity of unknown aspects.

"We know the organizer is 'dead' he says, "we can buy it in a drug store, and yet, is it really dead?"

LABOR DAY.

This year's Labor Day season is, at all events, a happier one than that of 1932. There is, for one thing, more to labor at—more jobs. But particularly there is more of expectancy, of hope, of sunshine on the road ahead.

The human soul is capable of taking an awful licking—not licking it but taking it with fortitude—if it has any assurance that the beating is not going to keep on forever. This Labor Day does not mark the end of the licking for the people of the United States. Maybe the next one will not have seen the last of the falling blows. It would be a grave mistake to allow our hopes to run away with us; the very worst enemies of the country are those who pretend that the depression is over and that further extraordinary effort is rather silly. But there is very real reason, now, for hopefulness; and the nation, if it has not yet been able to place its feet squarely on firm ground, at least has found a toehold and is no longer taking its beating while hanging by its fingertips over an abyss.

And there is a lessening in the force of the blows. We can feel, at this Labor Day season, pretty confident that we are going to survive. Last year it was difficult to find any ground for such confidence. That makes a splendid gain to the credit of the last twelve months.

We shall probably have a pretty tough winter. We shall have to make fresh sacrifices in continuing to help one another along the road where the sunshine still lies ahead. But we're going somewhere, all together. We're going up, not down. So Labor's anniversary will be, by sharp contrast, a happy one. With high hearts the people of America will straighten their backs in defiance of the lash, sure that their strength and their courage will outlast the waning storm of punishment.

FACTOR OF TIME AGAIN.

The other day this newspaper, commenting on disagreements between economic and political experts as to methods to be followed in crises, said:
 All, or nearly all, overlook the fact that what might be completely right tomorrow and is theoretically right today is not applicable at the moment and will not be applicable until the ground has been cleared for it. On the other hand some economic policy or recourse that is far from being a dependable reliance at long range may be of the utmost usefulness as a temporary measure.

A very able member of the National Recovery Administration, Dudley Cates of Chicago, has resigned as Assistant Administrator for industry because he was out of sympathy with General Johnson's acceptance of existing labor organizations as qualified representatives of the employees of industry under the Recovery Act.
 Mr. Cates made a public statement explaining his position. In it he very convincingly sets forth the kind of labor organization he conceives to be a workable agency for proper representation of employees of industry in the collective bargaining provided for in the law. That the kind of organization Mr. Cates advocates would be immensely superior to what he calls "traditional trades-unionism" scarcely any disinterested person would dispute. To our mind he has thought out a pretty nearly ideal arrangement.

Having a mental picture of a smoothly working machine it proved quite impossible for Mr. Cates to reconcile himself to the recognition and use of a very imperfect machine indeed. So he could not get adjusted to a policy which proposed to make shift with such tools and junklike machinery as were at hand in the building of a bridge for emergency use.

As a long range, permanent device for governing the relations between employer and employe there can be hardly a question about the desirability of such a structure as that evolved by Mr. Cates. There can hardly be a question about the crudity and ill balance and astigmatism of present day trades-unionism. But the trades union system, twisted and mishapen and full of blemishes as it is, is the growth of many years of stress and travail—and it is the only kind of protective organization that labor knows. It would take a long, long time to reconstruct that system into the ideal one envisioned by Mr. Cates or to get labor to accept an entirely new system.

General Johnson is a soldier. He has the soldier's mind. A good soldier will always provide himself with the best weapons he can obtain—in time. If the battle can be safely fended off until his army is the enemy's superior in equipment he will concentrate on gear. If it must be fought today he will fight with such troops, such arms and supplies as are available, wasting no moment on impossible requisitioning. He would be a poor soldier and win no campaigns if he left a long gap in his lines because he would not employ the only available reserves, a badly trained mob with antiquated arms.

This war on the depression is necessarily a rough-and-tumble, dog-fight kind of conflict. The factor of time is a vital one. It would never in the world be won by a McCallan. Its episodes crowd on one another's heels. The codification of industry and the provision of machinery for collective bargaining are but elements in the strategy. There is no opportunity for constructing perfect implements of warfare as we go along.

Mr. Cates we take to be one of those who, absorbed in a detail, might bring it eventually to entire perfection—only to find that the chance to use it had long passed. The war must be won in rough. After that there will be a century, if necessary, for the mopping up of the wreckage, the replacement of boat bridges by stone ones, the filling in of shell holes and regrading the terrain.

KINGFISH MEDALS.

An idea put forward in the most casual way in my may quite possibly develop into a very serious stimulus to the Louisiana women's movement to oust Huey Long from the United States Senate.

A day or two after some still unidentified person smacked Long in the eye in the washroom of the Sands Point Bath Club someone proposed that a medal be struck of a kingfish with a black eye, to be presented to Long's chastiser. Reaction to the suggestion was instantaneous. "I'd like to have a copy of that medal," was a comment heard in all directions. Owen D. White, a New York magazine editor, saw the possibilities and went to work seriously on a plan of his own. The plan is to have a medal made in gold, representing a kingfish outfitted with a shiner and boxing gloves, reclining in a washstand. This medal would be reserved for the "soaker" if he can be found, otherwise to be placed in the trophy room of the Sands Point Bath Club. A large number of cheaper copies of the medal would be struck and sold, the money to go to the campaign fund of the Women's Committee of Louisiana, which is planning a nation wide organization of women for the ousting of both Long and his satellite, Overton, from the Senate.

The number of these medals that could be sold would be, it is to be anticipated, very large. It would not be in the least astonishing if many thousands of dollars were to pour into the coffers of the Women's Committee.
 It is doubtful if any other individual in public life in this country ever aroused in so many persons who had no dealings with him and no personal grievance against him, exactly the same variety of disgust and resentment as Huey Long. Long just naturally "makes 'em mad." They would jump at the chance, if the sum involved were not too big, to buy one of these funny but highly significant "Kingfish" medals—and wear it for a few days as a sort of badge of decency and emblem of protest.

A WISE TALK.

Louis A. Johnson, national commander of the American Legion, made an address before the New York State Department on Thursday that deserves the serious consideration of the country. In its course he not only called upon the government to adopt a fixed policy for its treatment of veterans—something he truthfully said had never yet been done—but he demanded that the Legion submit to the country "a program for veterans' protection which is so fair in its treatment of both the veteran and the taxpayer that public opinion will be solid in its support."

This is in refreshing contrast to most of the utterances of leaders of the veterans who, curiously enough, so often overlook the certain fact that public opinion not only never has but never will solidify behind any veteran relief proposal that does not consider the necessities and self defence instincts of the ordinary citizen. There is very little doubt that the people as a whole would always be ready to maintain, in good weather or bad, any "program for veterans' protection" which was, in fact, as fair to one side as to the other.

This is the kind of talk which, if consistently adhered to, will go far toward reestablishing the ex-service men in that place in the affections and respect of the nation from which they have been, in some very small measure, displaced by the activities of ruthless benefit boomers. Commander Johnson scored heavily again when he pointed out a way in which the veterans could do much toward providing the government with the funds to meet the cost of a legitimate policy of veterans' relief. If all the ex-service men in the country would make it their business to work as credulously for the elimination of tax-exemption of securities it would not be long before the government, instead of being harassed by successive deficits, would find itself with money enough on hand every year to meet the costs of any proper veteran program.

Seemingly a Daniel has come to judgment in the Legion.

IN NEW YORK

By JULIA BLANCHARD

Paris—American films are having a tremendous influence on European women's appearance. Mae West in her "She Done Him Wrong," which is called "Lady Lou" here, has taken Paris by storm. Feather boas, swishing lampshade skirts, handsome costume jewelry and that inimitable undulating walk stimulated by Paris women attest her popularity. Lines stand outside the movie house running "Lady Lou." It and "Cavalcade" are the most popular motion pictures in Paris. American newswires shown in Europe all have translations of the speeches printed below the films as the pictures are shown on the screen. Talkies of the "Chicago Century of Progress" are particularly popular.

Josephine Nears a Record

Paris newspapers are still flowery in their appreciation of Harlem's colored Josephine Baker (pronounced here as "Jo-Cake") who will soon make her 40thth continuous crowded performance at the Casino de Paris. Josephine came here with the first American colored jazz band eight years ago, to do the Black Bottom. She stayed on, learned French and applied herself with superhuman zeal to developing other types of dancing. Today she is given tremendous acclaim. She speaks French as few Americans learn to speak it, with a concise, almost-perfect, Paris accent. She has had her voice trained and though it is a soft, little voice, it is sweet and musical and she has sense enough not to strain it. She has studied dramatics and in this present production she runs the gamut of emotion, from dolg her animated, famous "strut" to a little skit where she shows real emotional ability. She works day and night perfecting herself. At Saturday's evening performance, which is the night that the middle class attends, "Bravo, Josephine" sounded again and again, with ringing applause from all sides when she sang, when she danced, when she led her melodious, rhythmic Josephine Baker jazz orchestra, and when she did her dramatic skits.

All kinds of knick-knacks are named after her, attesting her widespread popularity. Dolls, bracelets, buckles, perfume, lamps, ash trays, glove boxes, handkerchiefs, all reproducing little, golden-colored, extremely animated Josephine herself. In this production she wears something new in jewelry, which was undoubtedly copied. It is an ornate, striking bracelet, which starts as a great star ring of diamonds on the second left finger, extends as two small flexible chains of brilliant diamonds to the middle of the back of her left hand, where a smaller diamond star appears, then the chain widens to join an entire half out of diamonds in formal design which extends clear of her elbow, on the upper side of her arm.

Paris and "Prince Mike"

Arthur Garfield Hays had a difficult hour speaking to the Paris Civil Liberties Association because they asked him to explain the way and wherefore of America's "Prince Mike." The French seem to think that "Prince Mike" is a psychopath and cannot understand America's laissez-faire attitude towards him. Hendrick Willem Van Loon has been literally overlooking Paris from the high sunny balcony of a suite on the top floor of a secluded Left Bank hotel. He has the page proofs of his new Valoisienne novel book, "Thephant Up a Tree"—being the adventure of Sir John, the elephant who was knighted for rescuing the Prince of Wales from a crocodile. "Jimmie," Van Loon's wife, is bound for Holland to close up the famous house on the Kade at Veere. Hendrik is leaving soon for Bad Gastein, in Austria, to take the cure which, he says, is guaranteed to make him feel like sixteen.

Our lives are made up of groups of habits which may be either good or bad for us. Those who are sick should very carefully choose only the best mental habits for themselves. Form the habit of immediate substitution of helpful thoughts for any harmful thoughts which flash into your mind. The dark, poisonous thoughts of fear can always be displaced by the emotion of courage. Do this every day. Substitute the good attitude of confidence for lack of confidence.

By following these instructions I am sure you will be able to overcome any mental hazards of sickness so that you can give your attention to the physical regimen which will bring about a cure.

like a pear. Can you tell me also if this is a beneficial food? We steamed some carellias or hogweed, which is similar to stinging nettle, for eight minutes and found its taste very palatable, even more so than any other leafy vegetable grown commercially. Is this weed wholesome?"
 Answer: Mango is a wholesome acid fruit and is best if used by itself and not in combination with other foods. They should be fairly soft and juicy when eaten. The vegetable peach is an unfamiliar name to me, but from the description given, it sounds as though it were similar to the chayote of vegetable pear which is a healthful non-starchy vegetable and may be used just as one would use summer squash. The carellias is probably also a local name. The hog-weed or lambs quarter are edible as is the nettle. If this weed resembles resembles either of these, it should be quite wholesome.

THE MENTAL HAZARDS OF SICKNESS
 In the game of golf certain handicaps or obstacles are placed on the course which the player has to overcome in order to play the game in the fewest number of strokes. Many players become so engrossed in trying to find a good game that they can no longer co-ordinate well and they miss their strokes. This mental handicap is called a mental hazard. The player who can ignore the mental hazard finds that he is able to play a good game.
 I believe that there are definite mental hazards which apply especially to the sick. In nearly every one of the thousands of letters which come to my desk asking for advice I find a hazard such as this: "Doctor, I find I have the great white plague," or "I know that I cannot become well," "My parents died of this disease," "I am an outcast," since I got this dreadful disease," "I am afraid of the future."
 I believe that these mental attitudes on the part of the patient constitute a definite mental hazard or handicap.
 It would be a good plan for every patient to learn to adopt a more healthful attitude of mind than these statements show. Word pictures such as these are definitely harmful. If you want to become well you should learn to talk health, strength, energy, pep and vigor. The patients who recover the most successfully are those who not only try to learn the laws of health, but keep talking about health.
 Our thinking is done by a series of words or pictures in the mind. Pictures are brought out by words with which we are familiar. When we think of disease and imagine ourselves to be victims of a terrible plague or incurable disease, our subconscious mind dwells on these pictures. If a patient always thinks of himself as an outcast or a sufferer, the more he repeats these mental pictures, the weaker the stronger they become. If the patient will teach himself to avoid those words and ideas, and this way of thinking about himself, and begin to use such words as "vigorous," "feeling better," and "stronger," with just as much enthusiasm, he is already on the road to health.
 By repeating the story of illness, one only develops the habit of self-pity, worry and fear. How much better it is to build health, strength and vigor into the mental personality. You will find that you have much more energy when you identify yourself with the healthful emotions such as courage, tolerance and calmness, and coach your mind to adopt the habits of think-

Pacifists, Defeated on Navy, Work for Peace Program—Kingfish Gets Another Spanking from Administration—West Virginia Told to Produce Relief Funds—TVA Asks Job Applicants Some Personal Questions.

BY RUDNEY DUTCHER.
 The Evening Herald Washington Correspondent.

Washington.—The pacifists feel they have a "big navy" president in Roosevelt, but they try to take the fact philosophically.
 Expert lobbyists, they had helped keep Congress from bringing the Navy up to treaty strength. Then Roosevelt, who had been an assistant secretary of the Navy, came along and decided to do just that.

He took $240,000,000 from the public works fund for the Navy and the peace societies could only groan. The recovery act gave the president that power.
 Pacifists then lobbied against public works grants for the Army, with more success.
 They are all busily engaged in promoting success for the Geneva disarmament conference, which convenes in October. They are urging Roosevelt to present a strong new program.

Pacifist Objectives.
 Also, according to Miss Dorothy Deizer of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, they seek:
 Proof from Secretary of the Navy Swanson of his statement that 85 per cent of naval building expense goes to labor.
 Repeal of the Japanese Exclusion Act.
 Immediate withdrawal of the Atlantic Fleet from the Pacific, leaving only the Pacific Fleet there.
 Withdrawal of marines from China.

Happy Days.
 Dame Rachel Croddy, for 12 years head of the League of Nations social service section, was a recent White House guest. She had arrived in America from England about the time of the bank holiday and spent most of the intervening time in Canada.
 "What's happened?" she demanded.

Two old friends, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth and Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, former congresswoman and unsuccessful candidate for the Senate in Illinois against J. Ham Lewis—are summering at a Massachusetts seashore resort, far removed from the worries and complexities of the New Deal.

"Everyone seemed miserable and depressed. Now you're all cheerful. Surely you can't be all straightened out and prosperous again in so short a time?"

Huey Spanked Again.
 Huey Long has taken another spanking from the administration. This one hurt especially because the honors went to Senate Leader Joe Robinson of Arkansas, whom Huey disliked.

Rice is grown in Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas, but mostly in Louisiana. Long was insisting on one of his New Orleans pals as Agricultural Adjustment Administrator. But the man chosen was Charles G. Miller, Joe's brother-in-law.

TVA's Curiosity.
 The Tennessee Valley Authority denies that it asks applicants for jobs to sign the pledge, but the applicants say it asks that in effect. So they are invariably conservative in answering the question on the blank:
 "To what extent do you use intoxicants?"
 Another TVA question which is arousing comment is this one, sent to persons whom applicants cite as references:
 "In your opinion, is the applicant's wife an asset or a liability?"

Poverty Free Falls.
 West Virginia, rich in national resources, is regarded here as a wealthy state. That's why Governor Kump got nowhere with his hard luck story to the Emergency Relief Administration.

Director Harry Hopkins told Kump the federal government had been carrying 95 per cent of the state's relief load and wasn't willing to carry more than 80 per cent. Kump expected to call a special session of the legislature to provide the other 40 per cent.

ADVERTISEMENTS Make the Pennies Bigger

WHEN James Buchanan was President and tall beaver hats were in vogue; when gentlemen wore broad cravats and ladies wore hoop skirts, the pennies they tossed to children were as big as quarters. But the cart-wheel coppers your grandfather got for keeping his lace collar clean were not as big in buying power as the pennies of today.
 A penny then might buy a pastry, or ten of them take one to the Fair, but your great-aunt and great-uncle couldn't have gone to a movie at any price.

Sixty years ago the ladies could go shopping for dry goods, buy silks that would make you green with envy, linens that were linens and broadcloths that beggar description. But what their favorite store did not have they usually got along without.

You can pick up your daily newspaper and in fifteen minutes you can know what the different shops are offering in fabrics, patterns, varieties and qualities that great-grandmother never dreamed could be gathered together under any conditions.

Times have changed, and so have merchandise and business methods. One of the influences that has helped to bring about so much of change, that has helped to multiply opportunities and increase the spending size of our pennies is advertising.

Every merchant, every manufacturer knows that advertising materially reduces selling costs by increasing the demand for and the distribution of the products of hundreds of thousands of mills. Indeed, many of the things we count today as necessities or simple luxuries could not be made and sold at their reasonable prices except as advertising has created a broad market for them, making millions of sales at little prices and little profits.

DUTCH ELM DISEASE UNKNOWN IN STATE

Experiment Station Botanist Says That Citizens Need Not Be Alarmed by Fungus.

New Haven, Sept. 2.—Dr. George F. Clinton, botanist of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, said today that the Dutch elm disease had not been found in Connecticut, and that there was yet no need for citizens of this state to be alarmed about the trouble.

Dr. Clinton, who has spent a lifetime in the study of fungous diseases and other plant troubles and who has been closely acquainted with this problem, issued the following statement:

"So far the Dutch elm disease has not been found in Connecticut and there is perhaps no need for great alarm even should it be found. However, it is well to be on the lookout for it here. This is why the Agricultural Station has had it in mind the past six years—since its injury to the European elms began to attract attention in this country.

"At least one other fungus has been found here in Connecticut in the twigs of elms. This causes similar but apparently less serious damage. To this must be added various winter, drought, and other injuries showing on elms (as well as shade trees) which might be confused with, or possibly influence, the development of this trouble.

"These factors make it impossible so far to identify the Dutch elm disease except through artificial cultures from infected elms. Even when this determined there still remains what if any influences these other factors may have had on the health of the trees. There is also the question of the spread of the disease, since the fungus is said not to fruit abundantly on the infected trees, except apparently internally. Hence insects are necessarily assumed to be the carrying agents.

"Cultures from semi-suspicious trees are now being made at the station. Licensed tree workers of the state have been warned to be on the lookout for suspicious trees. Should the trouble be found in Connecticut, it still remains to be learned just what practical measures should be used for its control. Caution should be exercised in this matter. Certainly no one wishes to see our New England elms destroyed through fear of the same."

CHICAGO'S BALLOON RACE STARTS THIS AFTERNOON

Curtis-Wright-Reynolds Airport, Chicago, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The annual James Gordon Bennett balloon races held the spotlight of interest today. The pilots, representing five nations, prepared to float away in their balloons this afternoon in the hope of establishing new distance records.

The task of inflating the big bags with hydrogen was begun last night and with the weather man providing favorable forecasts arrangements were made to release the first one at 3:30 o'clock (EST) this afternoon.

The defending pilot was Lieut. Commander T. G. W. Settle of the Navy, who won the race last year at Basle, Switzerland. He was scheduled to be the third to leave the field, preceded by Ward T. Van Orman, pilot of the Goodyear CX, and Philippe Meunier of Belgium in the order named.

Weather forecasters said the balloons probably would float to the east and south of Chicago, but they were waiting until shortly before the take-off before attempting to compute probable wind velocities.

The pilots are expected to stay aloft about 24 hours and a distance of about 500 miles would be considered "average."

LAWYERS OF NATION END THEIR PARLEY

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Their debates on grave constitutional issues at an end, the 800 delegates to the annual convention of the American Bar Association turned homeward today.

During their three-day gathering they had heard their colleagues express fears that the new Federal legislation has jeopardized the basic concepts of the law of the land, had listened to eminent jurists and high Federal officers deny such dangers and had discussed ways and means of waging a successful campaign against the underworld.

Reiterations that the Constitution was not in danger came from at least one speaker at the annual banquet last night. Judge Morris A. Soper, of the Fourth United States Circuit Court of Appeals, told the delegates that the Supreme Court of the United States "will use its whole power to guarantee to every man his constitutional rights."

Canadian interest in the workings of the National recovery program was expressed by Judge Andrew K. Dyson, of the King's Bench, Manitoba, who termed the program "the greatest experiment ever attempted by any representative government in modern times."

It is anticipated that approximately ten to twelve thousand people will be in line of march.

The surviving members of the Original Princess Pat Regiment of Canada are to be our special guests. Already ten Posts of British and Canadian Veterans have accepted our invitation, also veterans of other nations.

An invitation is extended to your Post and your organization to participate in this great parade and by so doing you shall be entered for the cash prizes which will be awarded in the following sums:

- For Bugle and Drum Corps, 1st prize, 125 dollars. 2nd prize, 75 dollars. 3rd prize, 25 dollars. For other bands of the Army and Navy, 1st prize, 125 dollars. 2nd prize, 75 dollars. 3rd prize, 25 dollars.

I would suggest that Commander Baker take this matter up with the members and see if a strong delegation from the Post could not be present. It has also been suggested that the Manchester Pipe Band be asked to attend.

We extend our congratulations to Comrade Bill Moore who became the father of another baby boy born last Friday. Both mother and baby are fine and Billy is very happy.

All members of the Post desiring to attend the V. F. W. outing, Sunday, September 10 are requested to make reservations as soon as possible. This will be one big time as a very extensive sports program has been arranged. The affair will be held at Roaring Lake, Buckingham. Cars will leave from the Army and Navy Club at 10 a. m. Dinner will be served at 1:30. For information call 8833.

Mons-Ypres Auxiliary The Sewing Circle met at the home of Mrs. Victor Duke on Pearl street last Thursday afternoon and another fine and enjoyable time was had by those present. The next session will be held at the home of Mrs. James Thomson on Center street on Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. In order that more ladies may enjoy these classes it was decided to hold them at night.

The member of the Auxiliary are requested to rally around Mrs. Scott and give her some assistance in her Christmas card sale. The idea of this sale is not for each member to buy a box but to sell them to their friends. The auxiliary needs the money. Here is a wonderful opportunity to make some. The chairman of the committee is carrying out this work practically single-handed. Let's get together and give her some help. For every ten boxes sold you get one free.

The card party which was held at the home of Comrade Victor and Mrs. Duke was very successful, eight tables being filled. The playing was enjoyed by all and refreshments were served after the games. The next party will be held at the home of Comrade James and Mrs. Hamilton on McKee street at a date to be announced later.

Dilworth-Cornell Post. After a month's vacation the post resumed its meetings at the Army last Monday night with the authorization given the commander to appoint a nominating committee who will bring in a slate of officers for the ensuing year. Robert Hathaway was chosen chairman and his committee will be A. N. Foster, Donald Hemingway, Marcel Donze, Ronald Ferguson.

The meeting also adopted a resolution to support President Roosevelt and his NRA program. This is in line with the remarks made by National Commander Louis Johnson at the New London convention last Saturday, who stated that the national organization had already made known to the president that the entire legion would do all in its power to bring back prosperity. In our own country, members of our organization are enrolled as workers in the drive now in progress to sign up as consumers, and they are doing a good job.

After a lapse of two years the post voted to conduct an outing on September 17th, and the following were chosen to arrange for this affair: William George, chairman; Peter Curran, Arthur Sullivan, Harold Olds, Henry Weir. According to latest reports the place will be either Osano's in Bolton or Laidlaw's Grove in East Hartford. The committee will no doubt put over a good time at a minimum of expense, so get in touch with any member of the committee and make your reservation. More details later.

is chairman of the arrangements committee with power to select his own committee which has not been done as yet. All chairman of standing committees will please take note that a written report of the activities of the respective committee should be presented at the annual meeting.

American Legion Auxiliary The State Convention of the American Legion Auxiliary was held last Thursday, Friday and Saturday in New London, at sessions being held at the Bulkeley school. Delegates from Manchester were Mrs. Ida Woodhouse, Mrs. Minnie Carrington, Mrs. Hilda Kennedy, Mrs. Sophia Holmes and Mrs. Mary Brosnan, delegate-at-large. A most interesting time was reported by these delegates.

The first session opened on Thursday morning with a very large attendance in spite of the stormy weather. Reports of the various chairmen were read at this time. On Thursday afternoon the trophies and awards were given out, after which a very impressive Memorial service was held in honor of our sisters who have passed on during the past year.

In the evening the auxiliary banquet was held in Hotel McHican and was very largely attended. Guest speakers at the banquet were Senator Wolcott and Post Department commander Neary of New York state.

During the Friday morning session the Resolutions Committee brought in various resolutions which were acted upon by the convention. A resolution pledging our allegiance to the N.R.A. campaign was passed and copies of same are to be sent to President Roosevelt, Governor Cross and Administrator Hugh S. Johnson. The auxiliary went on record as favoring to continue kindergartens wherever possible. They will also recommend that all teachers take the oath of allegiance to the flag before being allowed to teach either in public or private schools.

The district caucuses were held Friday afternoon, followed by a Golf Star tea in honor of the Gold Star Mothers.

Saturday morning started with the rehabilitation breakfast which we well attended. Major Bannigan, Chief of Veterans' administration, was the guest speaker.

At the regular session Saturday morning the election of the officers of the state took place, with the following results: President, Mrs. M. Evelyn Weir, Stamford; treasurer, Mrs. Evelyn Parker, South Coventry; chaplain, Mrs. Laura Otis, Otis; historian, Mrs. Carrie Payne, Milford; National executive committee woman, Mrs. Madelyn Weir. The vice-presidents for the seven districts were also elected and Mrs. Mary Brosnan of Manchester was re-elected to the office of vice-president of the First District.

The delegates elected to go to the National Convention to be held in Chicago are: Mrs. Frances Krause, Mrs. Margaret Hartle, Mrs. Fleta Ensworth, Miss Rosemund Burke and Miss Maude Clarke.

Alternates to the National Convention are Mrs. Lillian Yerrington, Mrs. Ruth Fleming, Hartford; Mrs. Fleta Ensworth, Milford; Mrs. Mary Brosnan, Manchester; Mrs. Madelyn Weir, Stamford.

Mrs. Minnie Carrington has again been appointed district secretary for the coming year. Mrs. Agnes Hess, district color bearer and Mrs. Olive Charlier, district fidac chairman.

Our next meeting will be held Monday evening, September 11, at 8 o'clock in the State Armory. As this is the first meeting of the fall we are hoping for a large attendance.

ANDERSON-SHEA V. F. W. POST NO. 2048 The regular meeting of the Post will be held Tuesday evening September 5th, at 8:00 in the State Armory, this will be the first of the fall meeting, so we hope for a large crowd.

If you haven't already purchased your ticket for the outing to be held Sunday, Sept. 10th please get it this week as the committee is very anxious to know how many to plan on.

The next County Council meeting will be held Sunday, Sept. 10th, the time and place will be announced later.

Today is "V. F. W. Day" at the World's Fair and we feel sure that a large number of our comrades are having a gala time in Chicago.

Comrade Andrew Hottelheimer is still anxious to secure the names of any comrades who are out of employment at the present time, as he is securing this date for the State Department, who in turn will turn the same over to our Americanization office at Washington, in hopes that some plan can be arranged for the employment of these veterans.

In this manner, there is no consistency in a demand that industry should increase wages. There is no justification in general wage increase if there is an insufficient purchasing power to buy the things that industry can sell at a profit.

"Furthermore, the administration promised these pay cuts would be restored in proportion to the increase in the cost of living. We already have evidence of increase in prices for all commodities and it is up to the administration to fulfill its pledge in this direction."

Queer Twists In Day's News

San Francisco—Orators at an NRA rally admitted that the best address was that of four years old Marjorie Ann Peterson. She said: "Please help the NRA. It helped my uncle get a job."

Brooklyn—Mrs. Susan Cleveland Yeomans, sister of President Grover Cleveland, is 90 years old today and wondering what her brother would think about the NRA and other wonders of 1933.

"Grover would be 98 years old next March 15," she said. "He lived through two or three depressions. Times are repeating 'hemselves.' As for herself, she expressed conviction the NRA is a great piece of legislation."

Durant, Okla.—The NRA could do little for six gentlemen who lost their jobs yesterday. The six, known in this Oklahoma-Texas border community as marriage solicitors, had worked for four years directing Texas couples, fleeing from a stringent marriage law, to local peace justices and pastors.

Repeal of the Texas law became effective yesterday. New Waterford, N. S.—Napoleon Audon and his bride Constance are something more than man and wife. While they were being married yesterday at one church, another wedding was going on a short distance away. If united, Napoleon's mother, Mrs. Mary Audon, with Constance's father, Peter F. Chaisson.

Alton, Ill.—"Doc," said Adolph E. Adkins, "there's a crick in my neck. He explained that it got there after a motor car collision."

"What," asked the medical man, "have you been doing since?" "Just running around and working a bit, why?"

"Is broken," replied the doctor. Seattle—Justice of the Peace Jacob Kalms maintained his judicial calm when his ten year old daughter awakened him, saying: "Daddy, there's a burglar in the house. I saw him strike a match."

"Nonsense, my child," he replied. On awakening in the morning he found his trousers gone along with $150 and his watch.

A & P SELLS BUTTER WITHOUT A PROFIT

Responds to Agricultural Department's Suggestion That Product Be Moved Quickly.

Secretary Wallace, concerned over the difficult situation of the dairy farmers upon whom the enormous surplus of butter is especially burdensome, has suggested that retail stores cooperate with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration by moving butter into consumption as quickly as possible, reducing the price of butter to make it attractive to the consumer on the basis of two cents per pound above local wholesale market.

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company announced that its cooperation is immediately effective, and that, beginning today, butter will be sold in all its stores throughout the country without profit. For example, if butter is selling at twenty-three cents per pound in the wholesale market, A & P has set the retail price of twenty-five cents per pound. This two cents only partially covers the retail store's expense. The twenty-three cents goes to the dairy farmer.

HONEYMOON ENDS—WHEN? IS CONTEST

State Theater Offers 25 Pairs of Tickets for Best Answers to Interesting Question.

The Evening Herald in co-operation with the State Theater, offers 25 pairs of free passes for the best answers to the question "When does the honeymoon end?" "Another Language," co-starring Helen Hayes and Robert Montgomery for the first time, a fascinating and dramatic study of the life of a family.

If you're logical and right-thinking and correct in your surmise, you'll stand a very good chance of winning one of the 25 pairs of Guest Tickets contributed by the State Theater in this contest.

The picture is "Another Language," coming to that theater for three days, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 10, 11 and 12. It brings together for the first time Helen Hayes and Robert Montgomery, whose respective dramatic qualities make it one of the most touching and human dramas to reach the screen this year.

It deals frankly with the eternal problem of marriage and relatives. As Stella and Victor Helen Hayes and Robert Montgomery elope under romantic conditions, are ardent, devoted and madly in love during an idyllic honeymoon, then return to encounter the critical analysis of the husband's staid family.

When? Is it ended—WHEN? Be a winner! Tell us when in 25 words or less. Contest closes Friday, Sept. 8. Mail your letter to Honeymoon Editor, page of this paper.

GRIDIRON PRACTICE TO START AT M. H. S. NEXT WEDNESDAY

COACH TOM KELLEY HAS BACKFIELD OF CAPABLE VETERANS

To Build Team Around Ball Carriers; Open Season Sept. 23 Against Hartford; Rowe Is Captain.

The opening of school next Wednesday will also see the start of practice for Manchester High's 1933 grid season. Coach Thomas F. Kelley planning to call the first meeting of candidates Wednesday afternoon with practice on Thursday and Friday. Manchester opens its season

Coach Thomas Kelley

Saturday 23, against Hartford High.

Expects Good Year
Coach Kelley, who returned from vacation yesterday, is loath to talk about prospects for the season but admits that he expects to have a fine backfield, composed of last year's veterans, and also expects to find plenty of line material in the field of candidates. All in all it looks like this year's team is expected to show promise of being of a championship caliber.

Rowe Is Captain
Eddie Rowe, chunky guard, is captain of the Red and White this season. The team faces one of its toughest opponents in the opener with Hartford High, losing last year by a score of 20 to 2. Manchester had a fairly successful season last fall, much better than was anticipated at the start, winning four and losing four.

Bristol Loses Gurske
The team defeated Middletown, Meriden, Bulkeley and Windham and lost to Hartford, Bristol, East Hartford and West Hartford. Eight regulars were lost through graduation.

The year 1933-34 is expected to mark the end, at least temporarily, of Bristol High's dominance of the Central Connecticut Interscholastic League. Manchester and West Hartford are picked as the most formidable obstacles to Bristol's drive for the grid title this fall.

Bristol has lost the great Albie Gurske and a large number of other regulars. The team is captained by Kwiatkowski. Meriden has ten regulars back but lost four of its best performers through graduation.

The Local Schedule
Manchester's schedule consists of eight games this year, the first league battle being at Middletown, Sept. 29. Bristol and Meriden will play here this year, as will Windham. All the other games will be played away from home.

The complete schedule follows:
Sept. 23—Hartford High, away.
Sept. 29—Middletown, away.
Oct. 7—Bristol, home.
Oct. 13—Meriden, home.
Oct. 20—East Hartford, away.
Oct. 27—West Hartford, away.
Nov. 4—Bulkeley, away.
Nov. 11—Windham, home.

SOCCER NOTES BY OBSERVER

(Editor's Note: Following is the second of a series of three articles on soccer, written by "Observer," whose accounts of the sport in The Herald last season gained a wide following. The remaining article will be published early next week.)

The previous article explained the relationship between the various bodies governing and promoting Soccer. This one will deal with the league in which the local teams hold membership and the part being played by different Manchester residents in promoting the game.

Local Coach Is Head
The commissioner for northern Connecticut is Matthew Paton. Well known throughout the state as a player and manager of the old Manchester club, Mr. Paton, after an absence of several years, has returned to the game. In town he is coach for the Olympic A. C. and has a number of juveniles under his direction also.

His duties as commissioner will bring him in contact with the various clubs and leagues in this vicinity. Principally his work will be with the local schools and he will probably play an active part in introducing the Junior State and School Cups previously mentioned.

Other Local Officials
As president of N. C. S. L. and also of the local team, John T. Munsie will be kept busy. Long connected with soccer Mr. Munsie has held many offices both in leagues and clubs. One of the pioneers in organizing the Rec team he has worked hard to get it on a stable footing. Important in his decisions Mr. Munsie will continue his present associations in town and at the same time guide the destinies of the N. C. S. L.

Hartford County Junior League chose as its president, J. A. Pratt of this town. Associated with soccer for a number of years as a player, Mr. Pratt assisted in the formation of the local senior team and acted as its secretary for the better part of last season and, when necessary, assisted as a player.

Having strong inclinations towards the promotion of junior and juvenile soccer, Mr. Pratt has his energies to the formation of the present Olympic A. C. His enthusiastic efforts as manager were instrumental in placing the club in its present position.

His work as a member of the Junior League won for him his present position as president. As such he will find plenty of opportunities for teaching the younger element the soccer game, and that is a job he himself without stint.

Bob Pratt Secretary
The secretaryship of N. C. S. L. is vested in Robert Pratt. Connected with the old Manchester club and the State League and State Cup Mr. Pratt assisted in formation of the local senior eleven. He was a member of the team selection committee and represented the club at league meetings. When he was offered the secretaryship he very reluctantly severed his official connections with the Rec team so as to leave himself free to render impartial judgment to all questions as they arose. Later he was offered and accepted the presidency of the local junior team and still holds that position. As a progressive Mr. Pratt has little sympathy for ancient shibboleths. He assails state boundaries as imposing and advocates sectional and inter-state champion to do battle with the Green for the title of "Best Team in Town." In the mean time, the Green club has decided to confine their playing to games with teams from out of town, feeling that by doing so, any disruption of schedules, misunderstanding of qualifications, etc., will automatically be avoided.

Manager Hubbard intends to keep his charges in the "pink" by playing teams of equal ability, and hopes to arrange games so that the Green will play at about three or four-day intervals, and at home much as possible, until the town championship series gets under way.

All Star Field FOR TENNIS TILT
Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 2.—(AP)—An all-star international field of 80 today opened first on the national tennis championship. Ellisworth Vines has held for the past two years.

Vines himself, despite a disastrous campaign here and abroad, ranked as one of the four outstanding favorites along with big Frank Shields of New York, unbeaten on grass this year, Jack Crawford of Australia, French and British champion, and Fred Perry of England whose smash-hit at Auteuil enabled Great Britain to capture the Davis cup from France.

PROFESSORS LINE UP WITH STUDENTS FOR GOOD OF CREW

Freshman Coach Is Made Instructor of History at Washington; Has Given Huskies Six Titles.

Seattle, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Professor and athlete, who generally annoy each other over scholastic standings, co-operated at the University of Washington when an instructor of history was made freshman crew coach.

Or maybe it was the other way around when they made Tom Bolles, who has given the Huskies five Pacific Coast championship titles and one national championship, a member of the history faculty.

The status of Bolles, who started coaching here in 1927, was somewhat in doubt, with at least two other schools offering him positions but his ambition to teach turned the scales.

He was a major in history in his undergraduate days, and since that work does not interfere with coaching, the athletes cheered when the professors took him in.

Two of the most conspicuous developments in connection with the 1933 college gridiron campaign will be the presence of a much fewer "set up" games for the bigger schools and the renewal of many rivalries broken off before or during the boom days for various reasons.

Low Receipts Cause
The agitation for the big fellows to stick to their own class gathered steam headway when they were assured of sell-outs for all climaxed engagements and could therefore afford to ignore the gate receipts as well as the criticism associated with early season gallops over inferior foes. It was not until athletic budgets failed to balance and salaries began to be trimmed that the larger schools decided it was perhaps the best policy, after all, to have a "well-rounded" schedule, furnishing as much action and box office appeal as possible from the outset.

Shatter Precedent
Yale for instance, instead of further considering the suggestion to cut its schedule to five games, has let seven consecutive engagements shatter this fall with opponents of major rank from the South and East. The Yells will shatter precedent by playing Princeton's their final game as late as Dec 2, meaning that they will have an extra week of preparation between the Georgia and Harvard games.

In the Big Six conference, the rule limiting members to eight games for the season has been waived, again, to achieve a financial situation. This year the maximum is 10 games.

Customary On Coast
Longer seasons have been customary for years in the South and West, as well as on the Pacific Coast, due to weather advantages.

Eastern developments have indicated progress toward the formation of a conference of eight or ten major universities, to achieve common aims and advantages. Meanwhile many a hatchet has been buried and ancient grudge forgotten in the get-together of natural rivals.

Bluefields to Meet MILLER'S NINE TODAY
Due to a last minute cancellation, the Bluefields will not play the Highlanders as scheduled but will meet R. G. Miller's team and a close battle is expected.

Stewart Kennedy, Bluefield shortstop, will not be at his position today because his arm was not quite recovered from the blow he received Sunday when he was hit by a pitched ball.

Bill Jones will pitch for the Bluefields. This boy has plenty of smoke and curves and is sure to cause plenty of trouble for the visiting team.

The game this afternoon will be played at the West Side Oval and will start promptly at 3 o'clock. The umpire for today's game will be James O'Leary.

The Bluefields will not play Sunday or Monday due to the fact that many players are going away.

Expect To Click
The Olympics will be represented by the same players as last year. With one year of experience behind them they expect to give a good account against what will be a heavier team. They will wear the well known red and white sweaters with black knickers, black stockings with red and white tops. All players are to be on hand at the School Street Rec at 2 p. m.

To Hold Practice
The Baldwin A. C. one of the fastest junior football teams in town during the season of '32, will hold a practice tomorrow morning at ten o'clock at the Charter Oak field. Any junior player in town is invited to attend this session for a tryout. The manager of the Baldwin's would like to see Patsy Vince, star end of the Eagles of '32, at this meeting.

Fast Car Is Standard Equipment For Referees Of Maori Football

Auckland, New Zealand, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Maori Rugby footballers need careful handling when they break the rules.

At a rugby match at Te Huiti between two teams, one of which contained 12 Maoris, the latter's captain was ordered to leave the field for arguing with the referee.

"All right," said the captain, "and take my ball with me, 'and we go, too,'" decided his two brothers. The three left the field with the ball.

After a slight delay a second ball was found and the somewhat one-sided game restarted.

Suddenly the dismissed captain rushed back on the field shouting "That's my ball, too," and took it away.

Spectators at this time rushed on the field and a melee ensued, during which the referee made for home in a fast car.

Set Ups Are Much Fewer On Collegiate Grid Slates
Lower Gates Force Schools to Have Well Rounded Schedules to Attract the Fans; Many Old Rivalries to Be Renewed This Fall.

This is the last of a series of three stories dealing with plans and prospects for the forthcoming college football season.

Bill Jones will pitch for the Bluefields. This boy has plenty of smoke and curves and is sure to cause plenty of trouble for the visiting team.

The game this afternoon will be played at the West Side Oval and will start promptly at 3 o'clock. The umpire for today's game will be James O'Leary.

The Bluefields will not play Sunday or Monday due to the fact that many players are going away.

Expect To Click
The Olympics will be represented by the same players as last year. With one year of experience behind them they expect to give a good account against what will be a heavier team. They will wear the well known red and white sweaters with black knickers, black stockings with red and white tops. All players are to be on hand at the School Street Rec at 2 p. m.

To Hold Practice
The Baldwin A. C. one of the fastest junior football teams in town during the season of '32, will hold a practice tomorrow morning at ten o'clock at the Charter Oak field. Any junior player in town is invited to attend this session for a tryout. The manager of the Baldwin's would like to see Patsy Vince, star end of the Eagles of '32, at this meeting.

OPEN FORUM
EFFICIENT CANDIDATES
Editor The Herald: Perhaps politics in Manchester doesn't get exciting until after the holiday but it seems to me that there is considerable apathy in this town this year over the men who will be chosen to guide the affairs of the citizens through one of the most perilous eras the world has ever seen...

Looking over the list of aspirants for office it comes to my mind that several of the new candidates are men who have been unable to make a success of their own businesses. Isn't it ridiculous to think of anyone desiring a hand in the great task of managing a million dollar business such as Manchester's who himself hasn't been capable of handling a little $5,000 job. I am sure if every voter would give thought to that point the right men would always be elected to office in Manchester. Very truly yours, CONSIDERATE.

New York, Sept. 2.—Security and commodity markets throughout the country were generally closed today and will not reopen until next Tuesday morning.

The New York Security Dealers Association, comprising brokers who deal in stocks and bonds on the "over-the-counter" market, has adopted the new two-day delivery plan recently approved by the New York Stock Exchange. Deliveries of securities sold on the counter market, effective next Friday, will be made the second full business day after the transaction or a day later than under the present system.

AUTOIST RESPONSIBLE
Hartford, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Deputy Coroner Harrison D. Schofield holds Jules Fontaine of 166 Babcock street criminally responsible for the death of Captain Austin E. Dungan of the Hartford Fire Department, July 29 in the coroner's report filed in the Superior Court.

While attempting to cross in front of the steamship American Legion, a 30-foot shark was caught by the ship's bow and the water pressure as the ship sped along held the fish doubled around the bow until the ship was stopped several hours later.

PLAYGROUND AT Y CLOSERS IN CARNIVAL
Prizes Awarded for Best Dolls, Floats and Pets Displayed in Parade.

The north end playground closed for the season yesterday with an all-day kiddies carnival that attracted a large crowd of youngsters all out to win one of many prizes. Winners were finally named as follows:

1st prize, prettiest and best dressed doll, Barbara Keeney; 2nd, Barbara Newbury; 1st prize best doll carriage, Winifred Juiz; 2nd, Florence Moriarty.

Pet and Hobby Show
1st prize prettiest pet, won by Alina Kas'c, "dog." 2nd, oddest pet goat, Sophia Lukas. 3rd, cutest pet cat, Ronald Lynn.

Best all round playground boy, George Banke. Honorary mention for good playground booster, Freddie Lukas. Six P. M. Parade of Floats.

1st prize, all around best work, Howard and Arthur Holmes. 1st prize, most original float, Eddie Favech and Alphonse Lukas. 1st prize, the most work on float, Joe Varrick and Fred Lukas.

Most interested and active baseball booster, Billy Archivy. Best camper, Joe Sudoff. Smallest boys tennis, Joe Napoli. Tennis senior boys, not finished yet.

Girls' tennis, 1st, Frances Wanylich; 2nd, Mary Kovas. Best girl for all round sports, behavior, interest etc., Eleanor Vittner. Best worker in craft work, Mamie Buckler.

The dolls were judged on the following points: Cleanliness, type of clothes, a Neatness; b. Simplicity; c. Home-made; evidence of care of doll.

The pets were judged on: Cleanliness, health, appearance, evidence of care, beauty.

The six o'clock parade with decorated tricycles, doll carriages and the various floats followed by the many children of the north end was a grand success and had about two hundred children taking part. The parade was led by Faith Gall as a bugler and was followed by the Y. M. C. A. through the north end of town on Main street and around on Oakland and a few of the other nearby streets.

Interesting floats were made by the boys and several of them showed a good deal of ingenuity. Another year when they have caught the idea from this parade there will be no doubt there will be a lot more interest and many more and varied types of floats in the parade.

The Highland Park boys gave the Y boys a good game of baseball to close the season. The bases had two teams for playground ball sponsored by Mary Kovas and Lillian Malek, the latter group winning by 15 to 10. The senior boys and boys from 13 to 15 have to finish their tennis tournaments within the next day or two. Miss Helen Maloney, Edward Coleman and Christian March were the judges for the floats. Mrs. Agnes Dwyer, Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. Simonds were the judges for the dolls and pet show.

party before 1930 were allowed to come to the Nurnberg party. Each local group brought its Nazi banner, whose bearer marched in with fifteen thousand others in an impressive parade of twelve columns, of which eleven were in single file, while twelve in the center marched twelve abreast.

Loud speakers carried the snappy commands by Robert Ley, chief of the political division, to the utmost corner of the huge Luitpoldian Field, which was lined by hundreds of thousands of spectators.

The exercises thus gave a remarkable physical demonstration that Hitler's organization reaches into every German hamlet and village. As invariably happens, the chancellor's appearance on the meadow was the signal for a tremendous ovation.

Mr. Rubnow returned, yesterday from New York. He reports that most of the garment factories expect their employees will return to work sometime this coming week.

Accompanying Mr. Rubnow was his daughter, Miss Charlotte G. Rubnow, who returns next month to Wellesley College for her Junior year. Miss Rubnow made some special selections designed expressly for the wardrobe of college girls. The fact that Miss Rubnow has been a student for the past two years at one of the finest women's colleges in the country, and actually knows from experience the needs and tastes of college girls, makes her especially well fitted for selecting apparel for college wear.

College girls in Manchester will no doubt make Rubnow's their headquarters for purchasing their fall and winter wardrobes.

A tiny insect, the gall midge, causes the spiny growths on the wild rose.

Winsted, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Lillian J. Halliwell of Litchfield filed suit for divorce today in Superior Court against Walter Scott Halliwell, wealthy farmer. She charged cruelty, intemperance and statutory offenses and seeks to take custody of her children and a trust fund valued at $1,500,000.

Mrs. Halliwell, asking alimony and custody of her children, charged in the suit that her husband is beneficiary of a trust fund from which he derives an annual income of $120,000. In addition, she said, he owns property and goods valued at $300,000 exclusive of their $30,000 home in Litchfield and a $300,000 home in Southern Pines, N. C., which they own jointly.

The suit is returnable in the September term.

THE TINYMITES
By HAL COCHRAN
Illustrated by GEORGE SCARBO

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tynmites reached the county fair and there were lots of people there. A dandy band played music and the Tynmites danced around.

And then when Duncy danced alone, a man bought him an ice cream cone. "Who are you, little fellow?" asked the man. "Where are you bound?"

"Why I'm one of the Tynmites. We've all come here to see the sights. "That's fine," the man replied. "Here are some tickets for you boys."

"They'll take you on a lot of things. On shoot-the-shoots and big, high swings. Now, have a good time while you're here, and make a lot of noise."

The man then left and Scouty cried, "Come on, I'm going to have a ride on something that will be real fun. What shall we try out first?"

"Let's wait a while," another said. "I'd like some lemonade, instead. A little stand is nearby and I have an awful thirst."

And so the whole bunch had a drink. The diver then said, "Well I think I'll find out, from the judges, if my pumpkin's won a prize."

Then Scouty cried, "Where's Duncy? Gee he's missing. Just where can he be? The diver smiled and said, "He'll soon be right before your eyes."

"The rest of you just follow me and you will very shortly see that I have pulled a little trick to make folks laugh out loud."

They found the diver's pumpkin and wee Scouty shouted, "Look! That's grand! Your pumpkin's won a first prize. I should think you'd feel real proud."

"I do," replied the man. And then, the Tynmites were thrilled again. The pumpkin top rose in the air and up popped Duncy's head.

"Hello," he shouted. "I'm still here!" One of the judges, standing near jumped two feet off the ground. "My, my, that startled me," he said. (Scouty has a wild ride in the next story.)

SENSE and NONSENSE

A man has been found who swears he never drives his car faster than 20 miles an hour. Now the next thing to do is to find somebody to believe him.

The tramp who used to be satisfied with a slice of bread and a cup of coffee now demands 5 gallons of gas.

Speedit—Was it a bad accident when the brak broke?
Skiddem—Well, I was knocked speechless and the wheel was knocked spokesless.

As soon as the airplane is developed fully, the automobile won't be of much more use in the world than a corset cover is today.

When a motor car strikes a bump the young lady always bounces toward the young man at the steering wheel.

Police Sergeant (to chauffeur, who has been in collision)—Will your employer go your bail?
Chauffeur (thinking)—He might bail me out—; he sees me before he sees the car.

Safety in numbers is a myth when it comes to automobile drivers.

Mrs. Rideout—What lovely fleecy clouds! I'd like to be up there sitting on one of them.
Mr. Rideout—All right, you drive the car.

A traffic expert says that many motorists seem to have no sense of right and wrong — to say nothing of right and left.

Jefferson — Pennington expects 100 per cent disability on his accident policy. He says he is completely incapacitated by the loss of a thumb.

Remington—What's his vocation?
Jefferson—He's a professional hitch-hiker.

A comely young lady started to drive past the red traffic light and was halted by an officer.

Officer (growing)—Say! Do you know what red and green lights are for?
Fair One—Oh, most assuredly, sir, to trim Christmas trees.

Bachelors are hitch-hikers in a girl's life. They expect to go places and see things in a girl's car and on her gas.

A young man took a girl for a ride in his new car. On a particular deserted stretch of road the engine went "dead." While waiting for help the young man began to make love to his companion.

Young Man (passionately)— My kisses will put new life into you.

Young Lady (fed up)—Then for goodness' sake kiss the car, and let's get home.

Traffic Cop—Hey, who do you think you are?

Driver—Oh, I'm just one of the taxpayers that pays your salary for insulting me!

Ch-ap automobiles would be all right if they weren't so expensive.

Father—You've been calling on my daughter rather frequently of late. Are your intentions serious?
Youth—Yes, indeed! I'm trying to persuade her to buy the make of car I'm agent for.

The Mayor—You are charged with running your car 60 miles an hour, smashing a telegraph pole, going through a plate glass window, and injuring 8 people. What do you say?
Lovely Young Miss—Don't the $15 I pay for my license entitle me to any privileges?

SHOEMAKERS' PRICES. Editor, Evening Herald.

Dear Sir: Apropos the announcement of prices by the Master Shoemakers' Association which appeared in your column of Thursday night of this week, I presume that this list has been adopted in accordance with the spirit of the NRA the seals of which I have seen in the windows of the stores of members of the association intimating they do their part. While one would hesitate to even question the sincerity of the master shoemakers to do their part, yet the price list just promulgated may cause many to wonder if they have not become just a trifle confused as to what is meant by "we do our part." My conception of it is not that one is doing his part by helping oneself at the expense of the fundamentals of the NRA that increases in prices should lag behind the increase in purchasing and spending power of the consumer? Unless my memory is at fault I recall that a very short time ago we had on Main street, very prominent signs loudly proclaiming rubber heels attached for 25 cents and soles and heels for $1.00. Now, without the slightest explanation the public is told that there will be an increase of 100 per cent in the former case and 50 per cent in the latter. But, perhaps the public need not be alarmed at all. The NRA forces in town may have already seen the price list and may even now be quietly investigating. I sincerely hope so.

The master shoemakers are entitled to share in the prosperity of the country when it returns. I say when advisedly because a few may now be advancing up the hill, most of the people are still on the level and many are patiently trying to climb out of the pits of debt into which they have been driven during the past four years. Why not be a little patient and if prices have to be advanced do it on a more gradual scale and in accord with the increasing purchasing power of the general public. I believe that is the spirit in which the NRA is intended to work.

Yours very truly, Fair Play, Editor's Note—NRA anticipates price advances. The act as interpreted by the administration does, however, warn against undue price increases.

Recreation Center Items of Interest

The final picnic of the season, closing the activities of the Play-ground branch of the Recreation Centers, was attended by a throng of boys and girls at Globe Hollow yesterday afternoon. There was plenty of ice cream and candy, the weather was balmy and the water warm and the youngsters had a great time, swimming, splashing in the pool, playing games and waving flags from 3 o'clock till it was time to call it a day.

These periodical picnics have been a successful feature of the play-ground work this summer and Director Busch says that next season they will be even more systematically developed.

Director Busch asks that the appreciation of the Recreation Centers be expressed to those who contributed sweets and other items to yesterday's affair, as follows: Sweets Company of America, Orbit Gum Co., S. and S. Cone Co., Life Savers Co., Inc., Curtis Candy Co., Capitol Candy Co., Royal Ice Cream Co. of Manchester.

YOUTHS DEFACE MANY CEMETERY MEMORIALS

Throw Stones in East Cemetery Damaging Some of the Monuments Beyond Repair.

Sexton Alexander Duncan of the East cemetery has reported to the police the damaging of several fine memorial headstones in the cemetery evidently by boys throwing stones. Mr. Duncan has attempted to catch the youths while up to their tricks but as yet has been unable to.

Boys, evidently living in the neighborhood of the cemetery, have been making a practice of going into the grounds, placing vases, and whatever other small objects they can lay their hands on, upon the top of the monuments, then standing back throwing stones using the vases as targets.

In many cases the youths have been poor shots and the stones have hit highly polished surfaces of the monuments damaging some of them beyond repair. A large number of valuable stones have been defaced and Sexton Duncan says that in many cases the owners of the memorials will probably make trouble for the town when they discover the damage. If the guilty youths are caught they will be prosecuted for their offenses.
