MAINE VOTING WET BECOMES NUMBER 26

Smaller Towns Cause Surprise by Coming Out for Repeal—Vote 113,827 to 52,077.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Maine, where prohibition was granted away back before the Civil War, has voted to strike the 18th Amendment from the National Constitution.

At least 39 states will have voted on the repeal proposal by November 7. The next states to vote after today are Idaho and New Mexico.

Other separate groups sponsoring individual candidates with or not with organized support, were using space in the building today.

IN COLORADO
Denver, Colo., Sept. 12.—(AP)—Colorado held a special election today to determine whether its state will retain the 18th Amendment.

New York, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Hints that the Stock Market might move out of New York had failed today to shake the city administration's support of an emergency tax program.

Richard Whitney, president of the exchange, was one of the first to protest yesterday against proposed taxes of 5 per cent on the gross income of brokerage houses and 4 cents on each share of stock transferred by shares.

SEVERAL FACTIONS WORKING AT POLLS

Light Early Vote Cast in Party Caucuses Being Held Here Today.

The voting in the town party caucus primaries this morning was very light. At noon but 405 men and 180 women, both Republican and Democratic had voted on the eight machines in operation in the Primary contests.

Some Take Four Minutes
Many of the voters this morning were having considerable difficulty in selecting their choice of candidates from the long list on the party machines, and in some instances voters were clocked taking four minutes for their vote.

Other Quarters
Other separate groups sponsoring individual candidates with or not with organized support, were using space in the building today.

MOVIE PRODUCERS DISCUSSING CODE

Will Hays Reports That Industry Employs Almost 300,000 Persons Now.

Washington, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Will H. Hays, motion picture czar, opening the motion picture code hearing today, pledged the industry to stand by the standards in the production of pictures.

In the production department, Hays said, it was estimated that the wage scale proposed in the code would increase wages from 12 to 15 per cent above the 1929 level.

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 12.—(AP)—Fearing he said to quit business altogether than to operate under the NRA, Benjamin A. Fearsall, today was preparing to close his plant at the end of the month.

If newly-inaugurated President Grau San Martin of Cuba felt any uncertainty as to the reception which Havana would accord him, there was no indication of this in the smiling greeting which he turned upon throngs in the street below when this picture was taken of him on a balcony of the Presidential Palace.

NEW LONDON DEMOCRATS WIN SWEEPING VICTORY

Three City Councillors Elected and Six Out of Seven Members of School Board Chosen.

In the first major election in Connecticut since President Roosevelt was swept into office last November, the Democratic Party in the state forged ahead to make an almost clean sweep of the New London town election.

Strikes, fatter pay checks, brighter employment statistics and plans for an NRA parade hailed as the biggest New York has ever seen dotted the picture.

The defeat came after one of the bitterest fights between party members that the town has seen and included charges and counter-charges as each of the two factions sought to consolidate their position.

James T. Rose, leader of the anti-Gallagher faction, was nominated for First Selectman, 369 to 209. After Gallagher's candidate for the post was defeated, he conceded the rest of the caucus to the reorganization element and it proceeded to the nomination of its ticket without further opposition.

Britain Doesn't Want U. S. Bank Deposits

Toronto, Sept. 12.—(AP)—A large volume of "unwanted" United States money deposited in banks of the United Kingdom, constitutes a problem that defies solution, two prominent United Kingdom delegates to the British commonwealth relations conference said today.

"The bank rate in England is very low now," Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, chairman of the United Kingdom group, told an interviewer, "and one of our chief problems is the flood of unwanted money that is pouring into the banks."

"These funds, deposited in the main by U. S. investors, are subject to withdrawal at 24 hours notice and are of little or no value. Their deposit appears to be actuated by a desire on the part of the depositors to find the safest place possible to house their assets."

Sir John Power, member of Parliament and treasurer of the Royal Institute of Internal Affairs, remarked that American money on demand deposit in Great Britain was a problem both "distressing and difficult of solution."

"I suppose they consider the English banks are a safe place to put it," he said.

OLD KLONDYKERS TO HOLD REUNION

Sourdoughs Revive Tale How "Soapy" Smith Was "Bumped Off."

Los Angeles, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Ever hear tell of a feller named "Soapy" Smith?

A thousand or more sourdoughs, members of that famous Arctic Brotherhood of '98, intend to clink glasses at their annual reunion here this week to the Skagway mucker who bumped him off.

"Soapy" was a mining camp scourge. Denver knew him as a crooked gambler and he was lucky to get away to Alaska with his life.

His place at Skagway soon became a grave menace. Muckers bound to or from the Klondike had to come through Skagway, either by way of White Pass or by Dyea and the Chilkoot.

And "Soapy" got the pay dirt of those who had hit it rich and the savings of the incomers for the big adventure. If it didn't go over the tables at cards it was taken by force, and many a mucker disappeared in Skagway.

A group of miners met one raw cold night in Skagway and elected E. J. Reed to put "Soapy" out of the way. Smith heard of the meeting and learned its purpose. He knew Reed. He sought him out at the dock and shot him down without warning. Reed, however, fired from the ground and got his man. He lived three weeks. With "Soapy" gone his crooked shell games and other pastimes without chance disappeared. Reed's headstone in Skagway is the most elaborate of all, and "Soapy's" unmarked grave is outside the city limits.

Dave Griffith, one of the first into the Klondike in '97, remembers that year. Now an Auburn, Wash., grain dealer, Griffith, a familiar figure at the sourdough reunions, can tell many more. He hit the Skagway trail over White Pass.

A bookkeeper, he found ready employment at high wages as cashier and gold weigher in the big gambling houses in Dawson.

"And I remember of selling 10 gallons of coal oil to Emerson, Moran and Thagaard of the Northern Saloon for $250, says Griffith.

"There were no electric lights and coal oil and candles were at a premium. I went out in March, 1898, and returned behind the ice breakup with two copies of a Seattle newspaper containing the first news of the Spanish-American War that was received in the interior.

"Everyone was astonished and all wanted to see the papers. One copy finally was sold to Jim Morrison of Elmer Creek for $50. He in turn rented the Pioneer Hall and had two men—Leroy Toner and another fellow I don't remember—read the paper from the stage. For this he charged $1 admission and cleared over $600."

Most of the trail blazers of those earlier days will be here, among them J. H. Robinson, marshal of Yukon 25 years; Major George D. Beakmont, once marshal of Juneau; P. B. Brownman, marshal of Valdez; and J. Harmon Caskey, who took the first news of the Dawson strike to Nome.

HOTEL IS ROBBED

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 12.—(AP)—Five gunmen held up the night staff of the Hiltop hotel at Coney Island early today, bound and gagged the night manager and telephone and elevator operators and escaped with $484 of the hotel's cash and several thousand dollars belonging to Coney Island concessionaires.

Two of the men engaged a room at the hotel late last night and at 5 a. m., today, rang for the elevator. When the lift reached their floor they had been joined by three others. Two of them were armed with sawed-off shotguns and three with revolvers. Descending to the first floor they bound and gagged the three hotel employees, placed them in the check room and the two men with the shotguns guarded the two main entrances to the hotel, one of which leads to the Coney Island boardwalk.

GOVERNMENT AIDS CONSTRUCTION CO.

To Pay Additional Amount So New London P. O. Work May Continue.

Washington, Sept. 12.—(AP)—The payment of approximately $25,000 to the Central States Construction Company, in addition to the contract price because of unexpected difficulties met in the construction of the New London, Conn., postoffice, was approved today by officials of the supervising architect's office of the Treasury.

By means of this payment officials hoped further delays due to legal difficulties between the contractor and the sub-contractor would be avoided. The money is to be turned over to the surety company which provided the contractor's bond with the understanding that it be used to pay outstanding debts owed sub-contractors.

The exact amount, officials said, has not yet been agreed on but it will be set at between $20,000 and $25,000. The construction company had asked $25,000, because of unexpectedly hard material encountered in excavation.

The construction has run far behind schedule owing to legal difficulties between the Central States Construction Company and L. E. McLaughlin, a sub-contractor, who claims the Central States Company owes him $28,000.

BODIES DISCOVERED OF MISSING FLIERS

Indiana Harbor, Ind., Sept. 12.—(AP)—The mystery of the disappearance of an autogiro while on a flight from South Bend, Ind., to Chicago, had been solved today with the finding of the bodies of the three occupants in the storm tossed waters of Lake Michigan.

The bodies were recovered yesterday and identified as those of Charles W. Otto, Haverford, Pa., the pilot; H. W. (Spud) Manning, Plio, Calif., world's champion parachute jumper, and Miss Majenta Gerard, 22, River Forest, Ill. No traces of the plane were discovered.

The trio left South Bend last Wednesday morning after attending a party the night before at the home of Vincent Bendix for participation in the international air races.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12.

NEW YORK'S ELECTION.

Residents of those nearby states which have no important political battles of their own on hand this fall may find an outlet for their enthusiasm for party conflicts by observing the New York mayoralty campaign and in speculating on the prospects of success or failure of the fusion movement to oust Tammany and its auxiliaries from control of the great city.

There is a very widespread belief that it is impossible for the Tammany-rudé hosts of the New York City Democracy to be defeated, no matter how conclusive the proof of their rottenness, because there is such an overwhelming volume of normally Democratic votes in the metropolis and because so many of the people who cast them are completely indifferent to every question of morality or honesty in politics. When one contemplates the half million majority that the people of the city plied up for Jimmy Walker four years ago, even in the face of plenty of evidence that he was a mere political racketeer, it must be admitted that there is plenty of reason for not minimizing the task on hand. Nevertheless it probably isn't as hopeless as it seems at first sight.

It is true that the Democratic enrollment in the city exceeds the Republican enrollment by more than a million, even if we put the unenrolled voters in the Republican list and there are about 200,000 of these. So it is plain enough that, if all Republicans vote the fusion ticket and the majority of the last Socialist vote—which admittedly wasn't Socialist at all—should go as well to the fusion candidate, Mr. LaGuardia, there would still be no chance of winning without a very heavy defection from the normally Democratic ranks.

Whatever hope there may be of turning out the Tammany grafters depends then on the hope that about two out of every seven Democratic voters in the big city will abandon Tammany's lead this year and vote for decent government.

This may not be such a crazy hope. After all, less than half of Tammany's voting strength comes from either actual members of "the Hall" or from voters with whom the organization has direct and controlling contact. While the ramifications of Tammany are widespread and while it reaches into every neighborhood and into every city block, it does not, as a good many people suppose, know every Democratic voter and keep an unbreakable grip on him and his ballot. The city is too big and its streets too great for that.

And there is excellent reason for the belief that not by ones or twos, but by half dozens or by tens, but actually by hundreds of thousands these customary Tammany voters who are not tied neck and crop to the machine may this fall go clean off the reservation.

It is not to be expected that the average New Yorker will desert his Tammany voting habits through any sudden accession of high moral ideas, for any such thing as that is a cut beyond Mr. Average New Yorker. But what he must be getting through his head by this time is that if the city isn't pretty quickly rescued from the vultures it will not be habitable at all, that nobody can do business there and that nobody will be able to pay the exorbitant rents necessitated by the exorbitant taxes.

There are undoubtedly a great many Democratic New Yorkers who this fall will vote for LaGuardia in sheer self defence. Whether there will be enough of them to overcome the tremendous Democratic majority of past years remains to be seen.

It would not surprise us greatly if there were.

"VOLUNTEER PATROL."

There has been some discussion of a rather mild type over the recent proposal of Motor Vehicles Commissioner M. A. Connor for a volunteer motor patrol whose members would make it their duty to report to Connor's department all instances of reckless driving and disregard of the rights of others. Somebody has found himself under the apprehension that if such a system were adopted it might lead to the making of complaints for the gratification of private grudges; and that very minor aspect of the case seems to have received a good deal more consideration than is its due.

In the first place there is nothing in the world to prevent any person, without the existence of any such organization as Mr. Connor proposes, from entering a complaint with the Motor Vehicles Department against any person for whom he may wish to make trouble. This opportunity would not, so far as we can see, be enlarged by the vengeful individual's membership in the projected "patrol." In the latter case the complaint would not be of greater effect than it made now, wholly on the personal responsibility of the complainant.

Standing alone, no single complaint in either case could have any effect beyond calling the department's attention to a possibly offending driver and causing him to become the subject of a certain degree of observation.

The idea of the "patrol" is that with a large number of drivers committed to the duty of reporting violations of the code of the road, persistent and flagrant offenders would naturally become the subject of repeated complaint, and when there came numerous complaints from a large number of motorists against a certain individual it would be at once pretty good evidence that he was a dangerous driver and that the complaints had nothing to do with anybody's private grudge against him.

To our mind there are much better reasons than this matter of possible "grudge" complaints for fearing that commissioner's project may not amount to much. Principal among them are the facts that it is enormously difficult to get any considerable part of the people to take part in any public movement that calls for effort and persistent application to an idea with no tangible reward, and that it is not the easiest thing in the world for the motorist to catch the registration number of an offending driver while employing all his skill, perhaps, to keep out of a crash likely to result from the other's action.

Nevertheless we do believe that some such organization as that proposed by the Motor Vehicles Commissioner could be of the greatest usefulness if even a substantial percentage of the orderly automobilists of the state would enter it and assume its duties seriously.

MAINE NO. 26.

Maine yesterday made the Republican-Prohibition score stand 26 to 0. If all the three states voting on the Eighteenth Amendment's elimination today should register in favor of repeal—and there would seem to be an excellent chance of their doing so—there would remain the need of only seven more states in order to perfect the ratification of the Twenty-first amendment taking prohibition out of the Constitution.

The result in Maine was really surprising. Of course there was very general expectation that there would be a pretty substantial majority for repeal in spite of the state's special historic position in opposition to the liquor traffic; but it is doubtful that even among the wet leaders in the Pine Tree State itself there was any expectation that the country towns would record such overwhelming antagonism to a continuation of the federal dry laws.

But Maine as a border state has really had more first-hand experience with the liquor smuggling business than other communities which may regard themselves as more sophisticated. And she has become sick and tired of having her highways and byways converted to the habitual use of swarms of blacklegs and criminals.

Of particular interest in connection with this election is the following paragraph of the Associated Press report this morning, sent from Portland at an hour when the result was almost as accurately known as it is now, as follows:

Prohibition leaders declined to concede defeat even as they saw the rural places, where they have always found their greatest strength, slip into the wet column.

This is typically illustrative of the curious propensity of the drys to hope for the alteration of facts by denying them. Throughout this whole wearisome conflict over federal prohibition ever since its complete failure became evident at least ten years ago, this has been the keynote of opposition to repeal—stubborn denial of facts.

FORD'S TARPULIN.

There seems to be a question of veracity between an unnamed member of Henry Ford's camping party and spokesmen for the Ford Motor Company as to whether Henry had under a tarpulin on a trailer on his way back to Detroit from his vacation in the North or whether he set-up in his car like an ordinarily sane person.

The fate of the world does not rest on the settlement of this puzzle. It is perhaps a little significant, however, that the picture of the great manufacturer bestowing his elongated bones under a canvas baggage cover as a sty means of dodging reporters was one that possessed credibility enough to meet with general acceptance until met with denial—and possibly to persist in a good many minds in spite of the contradiction.

There is probably not another individual of one-tenth of Ford's prominence concerning whom such a story could be told and receive any credence at all. Yet it did not seem to call for any extraordinary degree of credulity to believe it in the case of Ford.

Anybody who imagined that a peace ship loaded with automobile manufacturers and old ladies could stop the World War at its height and who conceives himself to be stronger than the United States government might very naturally be expected to hide under a triller tarpulin or to jump off the Empire State building with a paper parasol for a parachute if he happened to conceive it to be a smart thing to do.

A Theme Song for the New Deal... Irving Berlin's Discoverer... Making Hot Spots Pay... Who Owns the Night Clubs... Gossett of Broadway.

By PAUL HARRISON

New York, Sept. 12.—Wonder was expressed in this space recently that George M. Cohan hadn't been persuaded to write a song to whom up the NRA drive. Well, Mr. Cohan is writing one—although it may only take the form of a song-lyrics to the great wit ditty, "Over There." Incidentally, the original manuscript of the latter song is in the government archives at Washington as one of the treasured "official documents." The late Leo Feist, music publisher, bought the song outright from Cohan for $25,000, and later gave the manuscript to the government. Cohan, in turn, gave the $25,000 to a war relief organization.

Berlin's First Backer

Broadway is popularly supposed to be a place where a lot of sentimentality, but sometimes it forgets important but obscure roles in its development as a Gay Way. The other day, for instance, there were small items about the death of a "retired sportsman" named Henry Watterston and his summer estate near Saratoga Springs. As a matter of fact, Watterston was the discoverer of Irving Berlin, and thus was partly responsible for the change in tempo of America's popular music.

In the days when Berlin was a pretty terrible performer and absolutely unknown as a composer, he was making the rounds of Tin Pan Alley with his first pieces, and being laughed out of the very best offices. . . . Watterston, who had managed the Crystal Palace and then become a music publisher in a small way, decided that ragtime had a chance of catching on, so he accepted Berlin's early efforts. Then came "Dorando," "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and others; also the fame of Watterston, Berlin and Snyder. . . . In 1912 Berlin broke away and formed his own company.

That Was Chinatown

Incidentally, one of the places where Irving Berlin used to sing those early days is going to be revived. It's the Mandarin in Chinatown, which and remains a hot spot of the Bowery some 25 years ago. George White, today's producer of the Scandals, danced there too, and there were many others. The waiters all wore queues, the food was genuinely Chinese, and the atmosphere thrills were real. . . . Now, of course, there'll be chop suey and a jazz orchestra, and if you see an Oriental slinking around a corner with a dagger in his teeth you may be pretty sure he's just a stooge for the management. . . .

For all that, the district could use another good restaurant. Right near the Port Arthur and the Chinese Delmonico's are about the best, most of their erstwhile rivals having moved up to the Broadway belt, and right into the capitalistic clutches of Messrs. Chin and Lee. These two gentlemen have made themselves quite wealthy selling chow mein and chop suey, which they deliver regularly to hundreds of restaurants and also sell in the numerous places they have come to own by now. Chin and Lee live in Greenwich Village and are next to feel Oriental domination in the old Delmonico's at Forty-eighth street and Broadway. It already had failed miserably under four different night club managements, and once had borne the name of

JAUNDICE IS A SYMPTOM, NOT A DISEASE

If you have ever seen a patient with a severe case of jaundice, with the skin a deep yellow and whites of the eyes of a peculiar yellow tint, you will never forget the experience. When jaundice is present, we see a very interesting example of how the body fluids, which are beneficial in their own places, may become poisons when in the wrong part of the body. Bile in its proper place in the gall bladder, liver or intestine is an absolutely essential fluid, but when it finds its way into the blood, it acts as a harmful substance in the body as though it were a material foreign to the body. If enough bile is introduced into the body through a vein, under the skin, or into the peritoneum, the patient shows alarming symptoms of poisoning; in fact, experiments have shown that death will follow in less than a day's time if enough bile is introduced into an animal. The bile has been found to act in this poisonous manner, whether it contains bacteria or whether it has been sterilized. From this you will understand why the patient with a severe jaundice, whose blood stream is carrying bile, so often becomes a very sick person.

Jaundice is not a disease, but it is a symptom that the normal flow of bile has been obstructed and that the liver cannot eliminate the bile through its normal channel, the bile duct, which leads to the gall bladder and the duodenum. The backed up bile is absorbed by the blood and is the cause of the yellowish discoloration of the skin, the whites of the eyes, and even the mucous membrane. Such a stoppage may occur when a gall stone has passed into the common bile duct; it is unable to pass through; or, more rarely, the outlet may become clogged due to a pressure upward due to a tumor or during pregnancy. The most common cause of what is called "catarrh of the jaundice" when the small tube is clogged by a catarrhal inflammation. Whatever the cause, the jaundice will subside as soon as the normal outlet is opened.

Some of the more common symptoms noticed when jaundice or poisoning are: a yellowing of the skin, loss of appetite, dizziness, nausea, and vomiting. There may be irritability, extreme itching of the skin, bad breath, light or clay colored stools, low blood pressure, irregularity of the heart beat, sweating, and the liquid waste excretion of the kidneys may be of a very dark color. The treatment of the simpler forms of jaundice may usually be accomplished by diet measures alone. One of the first things to do when this disorder is noticed is to go on a fruit juice fast, using orange or grapefruit juice and taking an eight-ounce glassful every two hours. Also drink large quantities of water during the time one is on this fast which should last at least five days or

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON
HE LIKED TO BET— BUT SHE HATED IT
Gambler and His Wife Are Depleted in "Dark Hazard."

The dyed-in-the-wool gambler is not just a man who likes to bet. He is an improvident and heedless chap who has managed somehow to become an adult viewpoint, and between himself and the settled citizens of the world there is a chasm that cannot ever be bridged.

These profound meditations arise from a reading of W. R. Burnett's excellent new novel, "Dark Hazard."

"Dark Hazard" tells about Jim Turner, who follows the ponies. Jim is the most confirmed of gamblers. He is rich one day and flat broke the next, and whatever else life may be for him it is never dull. Jim presently enters a strait-laced Ohio town and marries one Margaret, a girl who is everything that Jim is not. She longs for respectability and he does not; she wants a settled home and he wants to wander; she wants a steady income, even if it is small, and he wants the gambler's succession of rich windfalls and long dry spells.

Naturally enough, they don't make a go of it. They can't; one or the other has to be crushed out of shape. Marg takes Jim into her confidence for the first time. She leads her husband to a very good story out of it all. He has the knack of making his rough-edged characters real enough to sock you on the jaw. Jim Turner is one of his best; "Dark Hazard" is perhaps his best book.

Printed by Harpers at $2.50, it is the September choice of the Book of the Month Club.

GILEAD

Rev. Sherrod Soule of Hartford preached at the Hebron and Gilead Congregational churches Sunday as his custom once a year.

Sunday evening the local Christian Endeavor Society joined with Hebron. Merton W. Hills was the speaker. The topic was "The Story of the Church against Public Opinion." Act 5:29.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Buell and their son Irving of Berlin, N. Y., spent the week-end here. The J. F. Rogers Co. of Berlin, Md., has purchased buildings for their woodturning business in Laconia, New Hampshire and will move there in a short time.

D. L. Buell accompanied his son D. L. Buell on a business trip to Wallingford and Bridgeport Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hills accompanied by Mrs. Clark and Mr. Parker Monday for the weekend at the home of Mrs. R. I. visited Mr. Hill's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hills in Willimantic Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Daniel Wyer are having a busy week in their dining room. Clifford R. Perry is doing the work.

The Messrs Griswold of Berlin entertained the Griswold and Connor families at their cottage here Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Buell's and Mrs. A. H. Post, Mrs. E. E. Foot's, Mrs. D. L. Buell and her son Irving and Mrs. Charles Fish and her son were also present.

Notice has been served on the local farmers who haven't had their dairy herd tested for bovine tuberculosis that they will soon be tested by the order of the Commissioner of Domestic Animals.

Mrs. Herbert Wells, and her father in law, Mr. Wells of Kingston, R. I., were callers Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Buell's.

Mrs. A. H. Post, Mrs. E. E. Foot's, Mrs. D. L. Buell and her son Irving and Mrs. Charles Fish and her son were also present.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hibbard of Manchester were visitors Sunday evening at Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Foot's and at Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Foot's.

Mrs. Benjamin Varley of New Jersey is visiting her brother Roy Hooker and family.

WAPPING

Mrs. Anna M. Risley and son, Wells M. Risley are expecting to leave this week for Indiana where Wells is to enter Tri-State College of Engineering. They plan to drive through in their automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. Dyer Carroll of Danbury street, Wapping, had as their guests over the week-end Mrs. Dyer's mother, Mrs. Henry Young and Mrs. Abel Lopez both of Massachusetts also Miss Nellie Young from the Hamden.

Last Saturday evening George W. Skinner was struck by an automobile, a hit and run driver, while walking along the roadside near Mrs. Edith Stubbens's. He was found later near the roadside and was unconscious. He was taken to his home where he is still in much pain.

Quite a number of members of Wapping Grange, No. 30, motored to East Hartford to the First Congregational church where they attended the Pomona Grange annual church service last Sunday evening, which was very interesting. There were three Past Chairmen of Rhode Island state Granges present, and all three spoke.

Mrs. Emma Parsons of Hartford, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Anna (Mecham) Risley, over the week-end and attended the services of the Federated Church services on Sunday morning.

Mrs. Inez Files and son, Judson G. Files, Jr., who have been spending the summer at their home at "Bonny Eagle Camp," West Burton, Maine, returned to their home here last Sunday afternoon.

Richard Jones and Oliver Jones returned to Jersey City, N. J., last week after spending their vacation with their grandmothers, Mrs. Olive A. Jones. They are staying with their uncle, Fletcher Weld in Jersey City.

Miss Jane Newberry returned to New London, New Hampshire, Monday, where she is attending school.

13 SAILORS DROWNED

Cades, Spain, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Wireless messages today told of the loss of 13 sailors in a collision off the Portuguese coast near Lixois between the "Trans-Mediterranean" Company's mail liner, Romeo, a 2,000-ton ship in the Canary service, and the Spanish steamer Echano.

The Echano, vessel of nine hundred tons, sank immediately. Thirteen of her men were lost and several were rescued with considerable difficulty by sailors in life boats put out by the Romeo. The Romeo was badly damaged but reached Lixois under convoy of an English ship which answered her appeal for help.

BANKRUPT DISCHARGED

Hartford, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Three New Britain men were discharged from bankruptcy by Referee Paul Bertram, after hearings this morning. They were:

N. Newton Nelson, salesman, who reported no assets and liabilities amounting to $5,796.76; Frank A. Morton, merchant, with assets of $608.41; and Louis Tullin, doing business as the Tullin Specialty Company and the American Botta and Sales Company, with assets of $39,650, of which $20,000 was in insurance policies, and liabilities of $3,800.95.

Hope to Have Joe McCluskey at Special Meeting—Other Plans.

Columbus Day, October 12, will be observed in a fitting manner by the local Campbell Council, Knights of Columbus, with a special meeting to be held on that date at a place to be announced later.

District Deputy Present District Deputy William J. Shea was present at last night's meeting. He spoke briefly concerning the success of the Fourth District clambake which was held at the Hartford City Guard clubhouse in Windsor last Sunday.

It is the plan of several members of Campbell Council to form a glee club. The work of organizing this group gets under way this evening.

WARNS ARCHITECTS TO GET LICENSES

State Examining Board Announces Applications Should Be Made Before Sept. 28.

Bridgeport, Sept. 12.—Warning to all Connecticut architects to apply for licenses by Sept. 28 was issued today by the State Architectural Examining Board appointed after the last Legislature by Gov. Wilbur L. Cross.

Registration before Sept. 28 will permit the state's properly qualified architects to receive the certificates without examination. Failure to register embodies a maximum fine of $500 and a year in prison.

Officers of the State Architectural Examining Board chosen at a meeting in the office of Gov. Cross, August 31, are: Dean Everett V. Meeks of the Yale School of Fine Arts, President; William F. Brooks, Hartford, Vice-President; Edward B. Caldwell, Bridgeport, Secretary; and George H. Gray and C. Frederick Townsend, both of New Haven.

Section 2 of the Licensing Act reads as follows: No person shall practice architecture under the title "Architect" unless he shall hold a certificate of registration as provided in this act, provided any properly qualified person who shall furnish satisfactory evidence to the Examining Board that he is exclusively engaged in the practice of architecture at the time this act shall take effect and who shall, within ninety days from such time, apply for a certificate of registration, shall be granted the same without examination upon payment of the fee for such certificate provided for in Section 4 of this act, and provided nothing in this act shall prevent any person from making plans and specifications of or supervising the construction of any building if he does not represent himself to be an architect and does not use, in any form, the title "Architect."

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE OPENS SEPTEMBER 20

Enrollment of About 600 Expected—Freshman Week Opens Thursday.

Connecticut College will begin its 19th year September 20. An enrollment of approximately 600 students is anticipated, the largest student body the college has ever admitted.

The entering class which will number close to 200, will arrive on the campus Thursday for Freshman Week, which precedes the formal opening of the college.

During this period the newcomers will be introduced to the faculty as library and the campus and various features of the college work and play. They will be given medical and physical examinations, psychological tests and lectures on the curriculum. President Katharine Blunt will receive groups of the freshmen informally at her home.

Several social events have been arranged for their enjoyment, including a boat ride around New London harbor and Long Island sound Friday afternoon, a picnic breakfast preceding the religious service Sunday morning, and a reception in Knowlton salon Tuesday evening.

ROCKVILLE

TWO CONTESTS DEVELOP IN CAUCUS OF G. O. P.

More Candidates Than Places as Vernon Republicans Name Their Town Ticket.

For the first time in several years a contest took place at the Republican town caucus, held last evening in the Memorial Building and attended by about 75 voters.

The contest was for nominations as committee member of the school committee.

Town Chairman Francis J. Prichard called the caucus to order promptly at 8 o'clock and Farley E. Leonard was chosen as chairman.

Town Clerk John B. Thomas was the caucus clerk.

John L. Brown was nominated assessor for a term of four years and William V. Sadlak was renominated as assessor for the term of three years upon motion of Henry Schmidt.

The Board of Relief nominations went to Joseph Christ for a term of four years upon motion of Sherwood C. Cummings and William C. Johnson for the term of one year from October, 1934, upon motion of George B. Milne.

First Selectman Francis J. Prichard was renominated for the term of three years by Town Attorney Bernard J. Ackerman.

Orlando Ransom was renominated for the term of two years for second selectman upon motion of Roland Usher.

Town Clerk John B. Thomas was renominated for the term of one year by Henry J. Schmidt.

Renomination as town treasurer also went to Mr. Thomas for the term of one year.

First Selectman Francis J. Prichard renominated William H. Yost as auditor.

Tax Collector Charles M. Squires was renominated by First Selectman Prichard after John B. Thomas had explained that there was a question whether the Rockville National Bank would permit Mr. Squires to accept because of the law holding the town treasurer responsible for the entire tax on personal property.

In the contest for the position of town constables there were four to be chosen from the five nominated and a total of 72 ballots cast.

William V. Sadlak renominated town constables Roger J. Murphy, Julius Kosiorek, Howard Dimock and William J. Douglas.

James R. Quinn nominated John J. Connors for the position of constable.

A vote by ballot was taken with William V. Sadlak, James R. Quinn and William J. Austin as tellers.

The ballot resulted as follows: Roger J. Murphy, 68; Julius Kosiorek, 63; Howard Dimock, 69; William J. Douglas, 70; John E. Connors, 10; William J. Austin, 1; Ernest Waiters, 1.

The second contest resulted in the vote for the Vernon Town School Committee.

Dr. C. Hensing and Francis S. Nettleton were renominated for the term of three years without contest.

John G. Talcott and Fred W. Bradley were renominated for the term of four years from October, 1934.

Mr. Bradley, whose present term does not expire until next year, declined renomination and named George Arnold, Jr., as his successor from October 1934 to October 1937.

James R. Quinn named William A. Kuhnly as a member of the school board. A vote was taken by ballot with the same tellers as previously.

Of the total of 71 ballots cast, the result was as follows: George Arnold, Jr., 42; William A. Kuhnly, 27; Fred W. Bradley, 1; William J. Austin, 1. As the result of this ballot George Arnold and John G. Talcott were declared the nominees.

The position for Registrar of Voters went to Henry Schmidt by renomination upon motion of Judge John E. Fisk.

of the qualifications of electors and admit to elector's oath those who shall be found qualified at the town clerk's office on Saturday, September 16th.

This will be the only session this year for the making of electors and the Board of Registrars are now preparing a list of those who have filed applications to be made electors.

Through some error it has been stated that the board would be in session today for the making of electors but the notices posted at the town clerk's office today states that the board will be in session on Saturday from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m., standard time.

Notes A large shipment of wool is being placed in the brick mill of the Rock Manufacturing Company this week, reported as being owned by the Hockanum Mills Company.

Plans for the season were discussed last evening by the Longview Parent-Teachers Association at a special meeting held at the Longview schoolhouse.

The regular meeting of the Board of Selectmen will be held tonight with First Selectman Francis J. Prichard presiding. The meeting is expected to adjourn very soon after opening their session because of the Elks banquet at the Rockville House.

A members supper was held last evening by the Ellen G. Berry Auxiliary in the G. A. R. hall, Memorial building. A special meeting was also held during the evening with Mrs. Alice Chapman in charge.

The annual meeting of the Rockville Methodist church was held last evening in the church for the election of three trustees.

A social will be held on Wednesday afternoon by Victory Assembly, Catholic Ladies of Columbus. Bridge will be played in the Ladies of Columbus rooms in the Prescott block.

This will be the first of a series of bridge sessions to be held this fall. Nathan Hale K. Knowlton, state director of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases, will address the Vernon Parent-Teachers Association at the meeting to be held on Wednesday evening at the Dobsonville schoolhouse.

Miss Esther Meyers of Hartford will sing and President Saul L. Peizer will address the meeting.

AUTO VICTIM DIES Hartford, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Lorenzo Livechi, 46 years old Hartford baker, died last night in Hartford hospital of automobile injuries.

He suffered a fractured skull last week when he was thrown off a truck as it swerved onto a sidewalk and struck a pole. Charles Livechi, 22, the baker's nephew, was driving the vehicle.

GAIN OF ONLY ONE PUPIL IN SCHOOLS

Enrollment This Year Is 4,892— Was 4,891 Last Year, It Is Announced.

The total enrollment of pupils in the thirteen public schools of Manchester was announced today by Superintendent of Schools F. A. Verplanck as 4,892, according to a census taken yesterday at the beginning of the second week of the fall term. This figure places the increase over last year's enrollment at exactly one pupil, the figure for 1932-33 being 4,891.

High School's Roll The High School, of course, has the largest enrollment, with 1,326 students. This, however, is somewhat lower than the anticipated enrollment, but an increase is expected following the mid-year grammar school promotions next February.

The Hollister Street School has the largest enrollment of the twelve grammar schools, with 627 students. The Barnard School is next with 542 students and the Nathan Hale School third with 523 pupils. The lowest enrollment is found at the Keeney street school, with sixty pupils.

By Schools The enrollment by schools is as follows: High School, 1,326; Barnard, 542; Nathan Hale, 523; Lincoln, 505; Washington, 388; Bunce, 68; South, 68; Keeney, 60; Hollister, 627; Robertson, 227; Green, 232; Highland Park, 151; Buckland, 112.

Extensive Alterations AT THE MOHR BAKERY Modern Baking Equipment Being Installed— Plan for Grand Opening.

Mohr's Bakery located at 18 Gorman Place is undergoing extensive alterations that when completed will make it one of the most modern baking plants of this section of the state. This concern is Manchester's oldest established bakery and has always maintained an enviable reputation for quality merchandise.

Mr. Mohr stated today that the alterations in the bakery have been planned so that when the work is completed they will have not only a snow white clean and sanitary baking department equipped with the most modern baking equipment but a sales room where customers may purchase products at the bakery.

To really make it worth while for the residents of Manchester to visit the bakery and see for themselves the new home of Mohr's bakery products a grand opening is planned as soon as alterations are complete. At that time an extensive entertainment program will be offered details of which will be available in a few days.

TRINITY EXTENSION CLASSES OPEN SOON

Late Afternoon and Evening Courses of College Grade for Both Men and Women.

Trinity College will offer this year in Hartford twenty-eight different extension courses in many different fields including chemistry, literature, mathematics, education, psychology, sociology, history, geology, music, astronomy, art, and philosophy. These courses are open to both men and women who are high school graduates and to such others as seem to have sufficient ability to profit from them. Class members who do not desire credit towards a degree are not required to take tests or examinations.

College credit is given for these courses—toward a Bachelor's degree for all and toward a Master's degree for many. Although Trinity College does not award the Bachelor's degree to women, credit for these courses can be transferred to other colleges awarding such a degree. Many students of past years have done this. Definite arrangements have been made with several colleges for such transfer. These courses present an opportunity for an ambitious person to secure college credits while employed. A recent high school graduate may start his college course in this way.

Dr. Irvin A. Buell, Director of Extension, will be glad to mail a bulletin describing these courses and stating time of meeting, fee, and credit for each course. Classes begin September 27.

EVEN SOBER, YOU COULD SEE 12 CARS ON A TRUCK

Road Conveyance That Looks Like Cathedral Just One Of Things To Be Seen 'n' Nights.

The fleets that pass in the night—through Manchester—are presenting new and strange types of wheeled transport. The wakeful citizen who might experiment with his own credulity by hanging out at the Cent and watching the heaving show for three or four hours after midnight would behold sights that he never does see in this man's town in the day time.

In the small hours of yesterday, for instance, there came marching up East Center street from the direction of Hartford a lighted cathedral. That is to say, if it looked to you like a cathedral it did not follow that you had been to a speaking party before coming to the Center, and that it was a grand and imposing spectacle to ever sober a person.

Bridgeport, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Official notice was received today from the Federal public works administration under the NRA that the first Connecticut project, calling for the expenditure of $250,000 for the extension and improvement of the water system in the first district at Norwalk, has been approved. Archibald McNeil, chairman of the Connecticut Public Works Advisory Board, who received the notice from Washington, said Norwalk will receive $75,000 on the money from the Federal government as an outright grant.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

The baseball game at Jarvis Grove, last night, between Troop 1 and 3 was called on account of darkness after five innings with the score at 5 all. The game will be played on next Monday evening at Jarvis Grove at 8:30 p. m. Scouts please be on time as it is important that the game be started on time because of the early darkness. The equipment used during the game was donated by the Manchester Green Community Club. Troop 3 will resume its regular weekly meetings at the Center church next Tuesday evening, Sept. 19, at 7 o'clock.

MOVE TO CONSERVE DUCKS THIS SEASON

Federal Government Announces Limits Effective Through Nation.

The Department of Agriculture which yesterday announced that the open hunting season for waterfowl, coot and jacksnipe would again be limited to two months this year as it was last year, will be effective in every state in the United States. Due to the alarming conditions caused by disease, drought, and other conditions affecting wild life, the hunting season was reduced by one third its length, and the bag limits reduced in accordance with the Federal plan for conservation of the rapidly disappearing ducks and geese.

The Federal limit on ducks was reduced from 15 to 12 not more than eight of which may be canvas backs, redheads, scaups, teal, shovellers or gadwalls. The possession limit for ducks was reduced from 30 to 24 and on the accepted species, from 20 to 16. The amended regulations provide no open season for brant on the Atlantic Coast, although hunting for them on the Pacific Coast is permitted. For the first time since 1930 cackling geese may be hunted. A new provision limits the number of woodcock that one person may have in his possession to 12. The season on this bird has been changed in Maryland to November 15-December 15, and in Wisconsin to September 23-October 22.

The regulation provides for a new open season for ducks (except wood ducks, Ruddy ducks, and buff-breasted ducks) geese (except Ross's geese and snow geese in Florida and all states north of Colorado, Nevada, and in the five northern counties of Arizona, October 1 to November 30; in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York (except Long Island), Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Illinois, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, Utah, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, (except in the five northern counties and the northern zone of New Mexico, October 16 to December 15) in Wisconsin, North Dakota, and the five northern counties of Idaho, September 21 to December 20; in Long Island, Delaware, Indiana, Kentucky, California, and the northern zone of Texas, November 1 to December 31; in New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Arizona (except in the five northern counties), and in the southern zones of Texas and New Mexico, November 16 to January 15; in Florida, November 20 to January 15, and in Alaska, September 1 to October 31.

For the LOVE OF EVE

by Lucy Walling

EVE RAYLESS, pretty assistant to EARLE BARNES, advertising manager of Bixby's department store, marries DICK RADER, a construction superintendent. Dick wants Eve to stop working but she refuses.

Unknown to Dick, Eve plays the stock market on borrowed money. ARLENE SMITH, stenographer at Bixby's, buys stock on Eve's advice but loses all her money. SAM HOLDRIDGE, an advertising man employed by another store, is infatuated with Arlene.

MONA ALLEN, copy writer, dislikes Eve and is responsible for several errors at the office for which Eve is blamed.

The building on which Dick has been working is completed and his employers tell him they will have no more work for him for at least two months. He tries to make the best of this situation but Eve is irritable and discontented.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXII
Dick had refused to let Eve pay the housekeeping bills, even though he was not working. Privately she was glad of this because she still owed her mother and sister and her pay envelope never contained the full amount of her salary because of deductions to apply on her charge account.

The seasons changed rapidly and Eve felt it necessary for her to keep one step ahead of the average woman in fashions. She was rather hard on her clothes. With more care they would have lasted longer but Eve preferred to buy new things and felt she had no time to mend old wearing apparel.

Still she complained to Dick, "Well, never get ahead like this!" "Like what?" he demanded. "Well, you seem to be content not to be earning anything this summer."

Dick lost his patience then though he made an effort to control his temper. "Listen," he said, "I don't like this better than you do but there's nothing I can do about it. There isn't any building going on now. When the firm has another contract for me to work on I'll be notified!"

Eve saw that her insinuations had hurt her husband's temper. But she told herself it was fortunate that she was working. As it was, Dick's temporary unemployment caused her no privation. She did not even have to give up the luxuries she had come to take for granted—frequent visits to the beauty shop, expensive cosmetics, fragile lingerie. Such things no longer seemed luxuries to Eve but necessities.

She could never, she felt sure, be content to live as simply and economically as Mrs. Penney, yet she could not fail to respect the artistry for her gentle dignity, the more superior to such details as a suit or blouse two years behind the fashions and fingers roughed by housework.

Eve sometimes wondered what Dick really thought of her down in her heart. Of course she knew he adored her youth and beauty and that her little affectations usually amused him. But what about her ideals and ambition for a business career? Did he merely tolerate them because he barely fascinated him?

If she should lose that beauty would she lose his love?

Once she questioned him about this. "Dick," she said, "suppose my face should be marred by an illness or an accident of some kind. Would you still love me?"

"Of course I would," he assured her. "It's easy to say that. Perhaps you believe it now but I'm not so sure! If we should become dreadfully poor I don't think I'd be patient and cheerful about it. It wouldn't make me sweet and self-sacrificing like my mother or Mrs. Penney. I don't seem to be like them at all. I guess I'm rather hard!"

"Hard as nails, aren't you?" grinned Dick. "Say, do you think all I miss in you is powder and rouge and mimosa perfume and a silk marcel? No, Mrs. Rader, I see your mother's daughter. I guess if you had to you'd meet hard luck as well as your mother or Mrs. Penney, though it would probably be in a different way."

"Eve was not so certain of this. "Any way," she exclaimed to herself, "he's still enough in love with me to remember the kind of perfume I use and that's a good deal for a man like Dick!"

Perhaps it was the certainty of her husband's trust in her that helped Eve through that trying summer. Eager for the promotion that now seemed within sight, she willingly undertook each new task that Barnes gave her, though the extra work taxed her strength and the vexation of numberless petty annoyances frayed her nerves.

MONA ALLEN was responsible for most of these annoyances. Eve was sure, though it was always impossible to fasten the responsibility on the other girl. Important bits of copy would disappear, only to be found after much searching under a wire desk basket, on a hook used for filing memoranda, or perhaps even in the wastebasket. Advertising copy, properly addressed and dropped in the correct basket, would be gone when the messenger boy arrived for it.

Once such a search caused so much delay that a small but important advertisement missed the home edition of the evening newspapers.

To make matters worse Barnes appeared while the search was in progress. Mona, pretending a desire to be helpful, appealed to him. "Oh, Mr. Barnes, is there some copy on your desk in the Times? That Chain 15 stitches. Put 1 a o in each stitch. To obtain a ribbed effect, crochet back and forth, inserting the hook in the back loop of each stitch. Continue until the bag measures about 10 1/2 inches across.

Why I gave it to you an hour ago," Barnes said, turning to Eve. "There wasn't a thing for you to do but put it into an envelope addressed to The Times and give it to the boy." "I did put it in an envelope, correctly addressed, and left it on my desk where I always leave the copy. Some one must have mislaid it when I was out of the office."

"How long were you away from the office?" Barnes put the question crisply. "About half an hour," Eve answered. "Perhaps a trifle longer." "A half hour!" Barnes stormed. "Anything could happen in a half hour. What kept you away so long?"

"I was shopping," Eve said. She had been shopping in the morning hour set apart by Bixby's for employees to do their buying and was

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Heal the Wounds of Sorrow
I am sad today. A lovely little girl has died, a child who had everything to live for, full of beauty, grace and character, and yet she is gone.

Seldom do I write to the mothers and fathers who have lost children. It is something I have deliberately avoided. Because years ago I lost a child and the wound has never healed.

Perhaps it is why I have turned champion to the little folk. The mother who has been thus bereaved becomes more sensitively attuned to growth of life. She may not be a better mother, but she has I think, in some mysterious way, been given a special understanding and insight into the hearts of children.

Drawn Sorrows in Work
The great things of the world have so often seemed to come out of death. It is not attribute this altogether to sensitiveness of spirit refined through agony, but partly to the fact that men and women so bereaved have so often turned feverishly to hard work. To forget the travail of the heart in the labor of the body and the intricate details of children in the past. Who knows? We cannot see it, but it seems to me it must be true.

The path of progress, they say is strewn with the bodies of martyrs. Isn't it so, then, that the path of spiritual achievement, a far finer thing than progress, may be strewn with the broken hearts of parents? We who have lost children are an army, big one, with high courage and hearts that have learned acceptance, a far deeper sense. Let us carry on the world's work, then, not to a requiem but to the chant of victory.

We wonder why a child dies. We are quick to say, "Why did an angel have to be taken while so many terrible people are permitted to live?" It is hard for our limited minds to conceive a Providence working out

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

There comes a time toward the end of the season when markets and gardens are filled with odds and ends of the summer's crop. There may not be enough of any one vegetable or fruit left in the individual garden or orchard to serve on the table or can for winter use, but a variety of appetizing soups, salad mixtures, relishes, chutneys and preserves may be made by combining the left-overs.

If thought is given to the pre-dominating taste desired, almost any combination of vegetables can be used for some purpose. For other uses a careful study of combined flavors is needed for satisfactory results.

To Add to Meat Stock
An excellent soup mixture to add to meat stock in the winter is made by filling a sterilized jar with layers of all the vegetables at hand. Late peas, beans, carrots, corn, celery, okra, tomatoes, onions, turnips, cauliflower and cabbage can be used in numerous combinations. The mixture is canned according to the usual hot-pack method, processing the cans for the period required by the vegetable needing the longest time.

Salad mixtures are canned in slightly sweetened vinegar. The vegetables are fresh and delicious tasting when served in the winter with plain French dressing or mayonnaise dressing. They also are good added to a jellied salad. Lima beans, small uncut beans, carrots, red and green peppers, silver skinned onions and cucumbers are particularly good for this purpose. With the exception of cucumbers, which should be soaked overnight in a salt solution, the vegetables are prepared as for canning.

When vegetables are ready, pack them in sterilized jars and pour over a solution made by bringing to the boiling point 3-4 cup sugar, 1-4 cup water, 2 cup vinegar and 2 teaspoons salt. Process in hot water bath for 30 minutes or at ten pounds pressure for ten minutes.

Fruits are canned in light syrup when wanted for salads.

Soup Mixture
One cup lima beans, 1 cup corn cut from cob, 1 cup diced carrots, 1 cup diced celery, 1 small onion minced, 4 cups diced tomatoes, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 tablespoon minced parsley.

Prepare vegetables as for the table. Combine and bring to the boiling point. Add salt and boil five minutes. Pack in sterilized jars, half seal and process in hot water bath for three hours or under ten pounds pressure for forty-five minutes.

GO WEST, YOUNG WOMAN, GO WEST!

Strenuous Life and Times of Buxom Actress Who Is Restoring Curves To Feminine Favor.

Sweeping, generous curves, frills, puffs, big hats... those are some of the things that Mae West, above, is bringing to women's styles.

By WILLIS THORNTON

Away with depression, repression, suppression, at a single sweep. Long live expression, confession, and exposition!

All this is very much of a personal triumph for Mae West. Like every woman who triumphs in a long and holy crusade, Mae West has suffered for her cause.

When Irene Castle was converting a nation to bobbed hair and the slender silhouette, where was Mae West? Doing a weight-lifting act in vaudeville, that's where she was, and being just as buxom about it as though Irene Castle had never existed.

When the short skirt, and Marlene Dietrich were focusing attention on legs, where was Mae West? She was being Cleopatra in Shubert Avenue number called about it as though Irene Castle had never existed.

When the short skirt, and Marlene Dietrich were focusing attention on legs, where was Mae West? She was being Cleopatra in Shubert Avenue number called about it as though Irene Castle had never existed.

—and a very swell Cleopatra she must have been, too, for it's highly unlikely that the Serpent of the Nile was addicted to 10-day diets.

Triumph Comes at Last
Mae West has worked long and hard in comparative obscurity for this moment of triumph, been true to her curvilinear ideals when fanished flappers scoffed. She's no frail flower, but she's really rather small, Buxton, yes, but under average height, and she says 119 is her best fighting weight.

She is a natural blond, and has a most amazing pair of true West, let eyes, slightly slanted. Her skin is soft and fair, nostrils wide and eager, and her mouth is just a little voluptuous, and very insolent.

And is Mae pleased? Say! Listen: "I always knew that men, and women, too, preferred to see us with the natural curves that God gave us. It was all a mistake—a great, fatal mistake, this giving women's clothes a straight line."

"I think this return to the graceful, comfortable curves of yesteryear will be a wonderful thing for the women of America," continues Mae. "It will improve their health, give them vitality and added magnetism, and enhance their natural charm."

Mae West's mother was a native Parisienne. She died a few years ago. Battling Jack West, the time lightweight prize fighter who was her father, is now a Long Island chiropractor. Mae grew up in Greenpoint in the far reaches of darkest Brooklyn. She was one of those kids that every neighborhood knows: she "had talent."

Mae won most of the prizes at amateur theatrical affairs. Before she was five she was giving performances at church and club socials, doing impersonations of Eva Tanguay, Eddie Foy, George M. Cohan, and the popular idols of a day.

Doesn't Smoke or Drink
As she dropped these philosophies, Mae was in Los Angeles, all agog over a Labor Day trip to the mountains. For the bad girl of the screen and stage is not nearly so black as she is painted. West, those cigarettes the smoker, called with such an air in "She Done Him Wrong," are lit for her by her maid just before the scene is shot. Mae herself doesn't smoke. "I smoke 'em on the stage just because it makes me look hard," she confides.

Further, in her off-stage moments, Mae doesn't drink or go for "night life."

It's not that she's narrow-minded time. She dictates plays to a dictating machine. Many a rehearsal in the afternoon has worked out lines Mae wrote in the morning, and then incorporated lines she "ad-libbed" on the rehearsal stage herself.

Keen Business Woman
Mae West has a shrewd money sense—ask the movie managers who brought her to Hollywood, and who were tickled at getting a great Broadway star at what seemed a low contract figure. Then they

SOURCE OF 'SLEEPING SICKNESS' INFECTION REMAINS A MYSTERY
Doctors at St. Louis Baffled in Effort to Trace Strange Epidemic; Symptoms are Confusing

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Recently three articles were published in this column describing the condition known popularly as "sleeping sickness," but scientifically as epidemic lethargic encephalitis.

Shortly thereafter newspapers began to carry accounts of an epidemic which developed in St. Louis. In the areas which have appeared in St. Louis older people are more frequently affected than are the young.

The condition begins suddenly with headache, nausea, fever, mild inflammation of the throat and stiffness of the neck. As evidence of the way in which the brain is affected there is also fine tremor of the hands and of the tongue.

Many of the patients become quite unconscious, some have convulsions but the majority develop a lethargy or sleepiness from which they can be aroused momentarily but with difficulty. Moreover, they are confused, unable to place themselves in relationship to their, and frequently have loss of memory.

Whereas in most previous instances of epidemics of this character one of the early symptoms has been dropping of the eyelids and double vision, this condition has not been prominent in the cases which have occurred in St. Louis. In the examinations that have been made of the spinal fluid signs of inflammation are apparent through an increase in the number of cells found in the spinal fluid.

Thus far in St. Louis about 10 per cent of the patients have died. Many have already recovered after two weeks without apparent symptoms, but the time is too short to say what the eventual condition of these patients will be. Examinations of the brains of those who have died indicate that the portion of the brain known as the cortex, used in thinking, is more often involved than those portions of the brain which control movement and action, this having been the case in previous epidemics.

The United States Public Health Service has sent officials to St. Louis, and representatives have come from the health services of surrounding states to study the condition seen to be localized in St. Louis and its immediate vicinity, and there is no reason to believe that it will spread generally throughout the United States but the possibility does exist.

In the cases thus far studied it has been impossible to trace contact between the patients except in one instance when two members of one family were affected. There is nothing anyone can do personally to prevent the possibility of infection with this disorder, but it is useless to become alarmed since the condition is not so seriously contagious as the common infectious disorders.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

HOW TO SPEND AN HOUR ON BEAUTY
A DAY ON BEAUTY

Learn to make the most of the hour which you set aside for your beauty routine.

After getting the necessary creams, lotions and cosmetics and deciding to devote one hour each afternoon to the business of glorifying herself, the housewife should figure out just what she has to do and how to do it in an hour which she has allotted to herself.

Clean your face first. When you have removed every trace of the cleansing cream, apply your skin toning lotion, astringent, bleaching cream or face cream—whatever you use. Then get into a tub of warm water. Leave the cream or lotion on during your bath.

While relaxing in the tub you can "do" your nails. There are little table top nailers which fit right across the top of the tub in front of you. Put your manicuring tools on the table top and you can use them all while you are bathing.

Finish your bath with a cool rinse and then use your eau de cologne or dusting powder.

Lie down for at least fifteen minutes. Forget all about your household duties and whether or not the children will like the dessert you have fixed for dinner, and relax.

When you arise, feeling simply grand, brush your hair and put on your cosmetics. It will be an hour well spent.

KAHN'S EX-WIFE HURT

New York, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Improvement in the condition of Mrs. Anne Whelan Kahn, former wife of Gilbert W. Kahn, was reported today at the harbor hospital where she is recuperating from a fall yesterday from a window of her Park Avenue apartment.

Physicians at the hospital who attended her for the internal injuries she received in the three-story drop felt sure she would recover. Mrs. Kahn, who divorced her husband in Reno eight months ago, was reported to have been suffering from a nervous ailment. A nurse said she fainted and fell through the window.

ROSS IS CONFIDENT HE'LL DEFEAT TONY

Lightweight Champ Breaks All Traditions by Giving Ex-Champ the First Crack at the Title.

New York, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Barney Ross' 49th professional fight won him the lightweight championship. His fifth fight took him into the ring at the Polo Grounds tonight for a 15-round defense of the crown against the veteran, Tony Canzoneri.

Champion Confident
Ross thus disregards all the traditions of the game not only by putting his title in jeopardy so soon, but by giving Canzoneri the first crack at it. It's an old pugilistic custom for champions to risk their titles only when pushed to it and then only against the "safest" foe that can be located.

But though Ross will be traveling the 15-round route for the first time, a word will be meeting Canzoneri in the town where Tony has been a fabled idol for a half dozen years. The 23-year-old Chicagoan has shown no lack of confidence in the outcome. He thinks he will whip Canzoneri more decisively tonight than he did in Chicago a couple of months ago at an outdoor bout.

Bout Excites Interest
The bout has excited more interest than local fans have shown in a lightweight match since the palmy days of Benny Leonard. Promoter Tim Mara reports advance sales of $70,000 and, with fair weather, predicts a crowd of 40,000 and gross receipts of close to $150,000.

The betting odds remained just where they have been for several weeks—9 to 10 against and take your choice. Tony is so confident he'll win back his title, he has bet $3,000 on himself.

Both have gone through the long training rite in first rate condition. Canzoneri probably will scale about 135 pounds at weighing in time this afternoon, Ross about a pound and a half heavier. The main bout is scheduled for about 9 p. m. e. s. t. here will be no broadcast.

PYTLAK DRAWS THE FEMININE FANS TO CLEVELAND'S PARK

He's Just About the Smallest Catcher in Baseball; His Ability Wins Favor Among Fair Sex.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 12.—(AP)—"Ladies Day" is becoming an institution in Cleveland baseball, and one of the "babies" is Frankie Pytlak, diminutive catcher of the Indians.

When 25,000 feminine fans turned out one day to see the Indians play, practically all of them were cheering for Frankie. And the "mob scene" frequently staged about the players' entrance on ladies' day when autographs are in demand respond to demands for the appearance of the "little guy."

Several things apparently make Pytlak the idol of the feminine fans. He is little—just about the smallest catcher in baseball. He smacks the ball—he is leading the Indians at bat with an average of .335—and the feminine contingent likes to see the ball smashing into the outfield. He is a fast base runner—and the lady fans love to see a fleet, smart runner.

And finally, there are lots of stories about Pytlak that arouse curiosity and cause some of the ladies to refer to him as the "funny little guy."

Big Hearted Frankie
For instance, here is the story that he sent a 75-cent box of candy to his best girl back in Buffalo for a birthday present. For a big league ball player that is a modest present, but Pytlak's friends explain that he is not ungenerous—merely careful, whether with his money or his health.

There is the story, too, that he considered moving his mother to Cleveland when he joined the Indians, because he feared he would miss his mother's sauerkraut, and sauerkraut, he thought, improved his batting.

Asked by a woman reporter to give his idea of the "ideal" girl, Pytlak pointed to a peach and said, "That's her, but she's got to be a good girl."

BASEBALL

TRADE SCHOOL BASEBALL

The second half of the Trade School baseball league opened up with the favorites in both games going down to defeat.

In the Textile-Carpentry game the Carpentry nosed out the Textiles in the last inning when Wilkoyka opened up with a single and scored the winning counter on a solid bingle to center by Jarvis.

Electric-Machine
The playing of a game between the Electric Shop and Machine Shop at Charter Oak opened the beginning of the second half of the Inter-Department baseball league.

The Machine Shop came out on top because of the outstanding hitting of Olander, Yost and Bionias, who kept their team ahead all of the way, and the return to school of Karkevich who displayed his ability as a pitcher.

After having played two previous four inning games, the Hill Billies downed the West Side Buddies 9-2.

In a previous game, called at the fourth, the West Side claimed victory as they were leading 4-1. The umpire called it no game. An argument started which very nearly ended in a free-for-all.

Last Wednesday the Hill Billies won from the West Sides 6-2. The West Sides delayed the game so much that it was called for darkness.

CONNIE MACK FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

Today the "lean and kindly leader of the A.'s" rounds out a half-century in baseball. . . . a career that started as a gangling kid catcher with East Brookfield, Mass., in 1883 . . . and took him through Meriden, Hartford, the Washington club of the old National League, six years with the Pirates, three of them as manager, four years as Milwaukee manager, and finally the Athletics in 1901. . . . Nine pennants and five world titles is his record. . . . four of the flags with that wonder team he broke up in 1914. . . . Sport 'Holiday' At Cornell Relieves Financial Strain

Ithaca, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Cornell University athletes—speaking financially—are back in the fold of the athletic association, but the frugalities practiced during the "holiday" from January to June are going to be continued.

On the assumption that the country's financial and business situation will show improvement this fall, the association is again manipulating the purse strings, fortified by its own highly improved financial standing.

We're in better shape than a year ago," was the way Romeyn Berry, graduate manager of athletics, put it.

The athletes cannot expect a return to the "days preceding the holiday. Extras will be out, travel expenses will be cut where practicable, maintenance of the athletic plant will be reduced, and some of the more expensive long-distance games are likely to be discontinued.

Football Schedule Cut
Football will go along as usual this year, although the schedule has been cut from 10 to seven games. Coach Gil Doble has fair prospects. Other sports again under the direct management of the athletic association are cross country, soccer, basketball, wrestling, fencing, ice hockey, baseball, lacrosse and tennis.

The association withdrew financial support last January deciding to conserve assets that would enable it to finish the school year without a deficit. Basketball alone was given support. An anticipated deficit of $50,000 was avoided by the association's action.

Practically, the change made little difference in the amount of competition for Cornell teams during the winter and spring seasons. The Michigan-Cornell indoor track meet was cancelled for two years, but Cornell played host to Syracuse and Colgate in a triangular meet. The cancellation of the Poughkeepsie regatta had little effect on the crew. The varsity went to Long Beach, Calif., in baseball, the players went through the Eastern intercollegiate League season by playing doubleheaders on the road, giving up their home games.

Cutting the Corners
With the students themselves contributing to the management of the teams and with the help of interested alumni, practically all teams went through full schedules. Full schedules are looked for again this year, but special teams will be replaced by automobiles, athletes will be quartered on their travels in fraternity houses rather than hotels, and old equipment will be scrapped very carefully before it is discarded.

FUTURITY CLASS ATTRACTS NATION'S FINEST JUVENILES

At Least Twenty Top-Notchers to Start at Belmont Park Saturday for the Turf's Richest Prize.

By ORLO ROBERTSON (Associated Presses Sports Writer.)

New York, Sept. 12.—(AP)—With the $100,000 waiting at the end of the six and three-quarter furlong sprint known as the Futurity, twenty or more two-year-olds, survivors of an original field of 1,728, match strides at Belmont Park, September 16, for the turf's richest prize.

The probable field, largest since Marshall Field's High String beat 23 others in the famous "turfs" virtually all of the leading juveniles of the year.

The race, unique in that the horses are nominated through the dam before they are foaled, numbers many of the American turf's greatest thoroughbreds among its winners. The 48-year-old roster includes the names of Man O' War, Pennant, St. James, Mother Goose, Pompey, Soaps Flow, Ann, Featbody, High String, Whitchon, Jamestown and Top Flight.

Outsider Won Last Year
The largest purse in the history of the stakes, $105,750, went to Whitchon, flying the flag of the late Harry Payne Whitney in 1929. Lee Rosenberg's Kerry Patch, a "despised outsider," carried off the honors and nearly $90,000 last year.

Despite the fact that Bazaar and Wise Daughter, two fast fillies, will not be among those present when the field lines are for the dash down the Wiener straightaway, a filly is expected to be the favorite to whip the colts. Far Star, from Charles T. Fisher's Dixiana stable, winner of the Arlington Futurity, shapes up as the probable choice.

The little chestnut daughter of C. V. Whitney's Roustabout and Salsafra; Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Singing Wood and Mrs. Payne Whitney's First Minster and Black Buddy, the latter winner of the National Stallion and Juvenile stakes at Belmont Park's spring meeting.

High Quest Strongly Backed
High Quest, a fast stepping youngster from Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Brookmeade stable, also has rated high in pre-race discussions. The son of Sir Gallahad III was slightly thick of at Saratoga, but was beaten in the Hopeful, finishing four lengths back of Bazaar in second place. The Hopeful's third place, Mrs. Adolphe Pons' Discovery, and Mrs. Payne Whitney's Salsafra, Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Singing Wood and Mrs. Payne Whitney's First Minster and Black Buddy, the latter winner of the National Stallion and Juvenile stakes at Belmont Park's spring meeting.

BREAKS TOWN MARK WITH SCORE OF 169

Flora Nelson Better's Jennie Schubert's Record by Total of 19 Pins.

The Charter Oak alleys on Oak street were opened in a most auspicious manner last night when Flora Nelson shattered the town record held by Jennie Schubert by the wide margin of nineteen pins, hitting the wood for a total of 169.

Miss Nelson was bowling against her sister, Gertrude, when she rolled the record-breaking score. She started off with a spare in the first box, got a strike in the next and also in the fourth and fifth and another in the seventh. In the eighth she got a spare, then fell to get a mark in the ninth. She ended in a spree of perfect bowling by chalking up a triple strike that gave her a total of seven strikes and two spares. She had a score of 139 going into the final box. The third, sixth and ninth boxes were the only ones in which she failed to get a mark.

SEEK GRID GAMES
The New Britain Pawnee Football team, state-wide known, is now arranging the schedule for this season. The team has played in past years notable eleven, in the Eastern States and won it like to hear from such teams as the Thomaston Ponies, Wheel Club of Milford, Danbury Trojans, or any team of note in Connecticut, Massachusetts or New York State.

The Pawnee schedule will be comprised of road and home games. "Wh" of phone: Rudy Foghtech, 138 So. Main street, New Britain, Conn. Phone 1590; or Walter W. Turner, 691 South street, New Britain, Conn., Phone 3295.

Cronin Aided In Trades That Made Washington A Pennant-Winning Outfit

EDITOR'S NOTE: In this story, the fourth of a series of six, it is related how Joe Cronin took an active part in the trades engineered during last winter which helped to make the Washington team a pennant winner.

By RICHARD HOLLANDER (Copyright 1933 by NEA)

Washington, Sept. 12.—Clark Griffith, owner of the pennant-bound Senators, doesn't deserve all the credit for the trades last winter which made the Washington team a pennant winner.

The fine Irish hand of Joe Cronin appears in those transactions, too. And here's the story: At the end of the 1932 season, Shortstop Cronin, first class, went to "Old Fox" Griffith's office for a conference over his contract for this year.

"I'll like to get fixed up," he said, "so I can go home and forget about baseball until spring."

Griffith's reply was that he had not thought about it. He told Joe to go home and wait for his contract to be mailed to him. But Cronin stayed in Washington for an operation removing his tonsils. That was around the first of October.

Cronin Keeps Away
Joe was still in Washington when it was announced that Walter Johnson would not return as manager of the team in 1933. The newspapers started picking "logical choices."

Foremost in the running were the veterans Sam Rice and Joe Judge. Joe kept away from Griffith's office after leaving the hospital. He didn't want reporters to think he was after the job. Finally, on Oct. 7, a few days before his 36th birthday, he went to see Griffith before returning to San Francisco for the winter.

Bluntly Griffith told Joe of his plans. He wanted Cronin as manager. He pictured the job as no bed of roses. And Joe accepted just like this: "I'll take a crack at it, anyway!"

Those seven words sum up the personality of the boy wonder who has led the Senators to the top. Joe Picks His Players
Joe knew what he had to face. Griffith praised Johnson's work with the team that finished third last year. And he stated flatly that no man—Napoleon or Connie Mack—could have made that particular bunch of players better "than a third place team."

Griffith agreed that changes must be made. Cronin wrote down a list of players he wanted. They traded left-hander to face the predominantly left-handed hitting Yankees and Athletics. They got Earl Whitehill and Walter Stewart, both of whom are pitching their heads off.

They went down the line, weeding out and filling in, until now even New York sports writers admit the Nats have the best balance of offensive and defensive strength in the league.

Wobbly at Short
There was dissatisfaction among the fans when West and Marberry were traded. There was crabbiness when, early in the season, the team didn't function smoothly and when Cronin's own work at shortstop was spotty. But Cronin knew it was coming and he took it on the chin. "Kid Boots" every time he made an error—there were more than a few—and writers smugly said, "I told you so," because they had predicted that the worries of the boss's job would kill Cronin as a player.

They settled down. It took all the early part of the season to get the men, gathered from many cities, to work together. But Cronin did it. The team left for its second invasion of the west a bad runner-up to the Yankees in the National League. It was the beginning of another golden year for Washington baseball. Another 1934. Another big miracle.

NEXT: Fighting for every point.

INCREASE LEAD TO 9 1-2 GAMES WITH 16 MORE ON SLATE

Double Victory Boosts A's Into Third Place; Marcum Solves Mack's Hurling Problem; Giants Are 8 Up.

By ORLO ROBERTSON A. P. Sports Writer

Connie Mack's problem of finding a right-handed pitcher to fit into the mound staff he is building for 1934, apparently has been solved by John Marcum from Louisville of the American Association.

After Lefty Grove turned in his 21st victory of the season with a 5-3 decision over Ted Lyons and the Chicago White Sox in the first game, young Marcum ran his big league record to 18 scoreless innings with an 8 to 0 triumph.

As in his debut against the Cleveland Indians last Friday, the recruit held the White Sox to five singles. Gain Third Place
The double victory boosted the Athletics into third place, one half game in front of the Indians, who were the victims of Monte Weaver's effective pitching at Washington, the Senators winning 5 to 1.

Coupled with the Detroit Tigers 5 to 1 decision over the New York Yankees, the Senators increased their lead over the worst champions their lead over the worst champions to nine and one-half games. They used only eight victories in their remaining 10 games to clinch the pennant.

Eight Game Lead
In the National League, the Giants, with their nearest rivals, the Cubs and Pirates, rained out, increased their lead over Chicago to eight games and over Pittsburgh to eight and one-half by beating the Cincinnati Reds 5-1.

Holding a two run advantage but with Herman Bell showing signs of weakening, Carl Hubbell was rushed to the rescue in the seventh after Red Lucas had led off with a single. In the last three innings, he allowed only one hit and pitched just 27 balls to ten batters.

Braves Top Cards
The Yankees defeat at the hands of the Tigers was the largest result of Fred Marberry's pitching. He held the champions to four scattered blows and only one man reached second after the first inning. The Boston Braves retained their mathematical chance of winning the National League pennant by defeating the St. Louis Cards 2-0 behind the six hit pitching of Ed Brandt.

WEST SIDES—BLUEFIELDS TO PLAY DECIDING GAME

Tilt Is Slated for Saturday Afternoon at 3.15 as Result of Ultimatum Issued by Sub-Alpines; Latter to Play Winner Sunday.

The West Sides-Bluefields controversy was brought to an end last night, when the Sub-Alpines issued an ultimatum that forced the warring teams to reach an agreement. It returned to the deciding game of their series Saturday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock at the West Side field, the winner to meet the Alpines in the first game of a three-game series for the so-called town title Sunday afternoon.

Neutral Umpire
Saturday's tilt will be the West Sides' home game and Manager Nick Angelo has secured the services of out of town umpire, "Boggy" Muldon of Hartford will be umpire in chief. The other official is yet to be selected. The Bluefields won the opening game of the series and the West Sides took the second, 5-4, the Alpines having pointed out the decision of the umpire in the second game, which decision eliminated the two runs scored by the Bluefields in the ninth and the score reverted to the above named figures.

Winner-Alpines Sunday
Should the West Sides win Saturday's game, the umpires Sunday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock at the West Side field will be Russell and Subie. If the Bluefields win Brunan and Subie will officiate. In either case, it will be the home game of the winner of Saturday's contest.

When the dispute arose between the Bluefields and West Sides, the Alpines sided with the former team. The Alpines, after further consideration, decided they had acted hastily in supporting the Bluefields' stand, that the Bluefields were in error in not abiding by the decision of the umpire.

Force Agreement
The Alpines management, therefore, upon winning the series from the Pirates, stepped into the argument as an interested party and demanded an immediate agreement. Either the Bluefields play the West Sides to decide the series or the Alpines would ignore the Bluefields entirely and meet the West Sides for the title. This ultimatum had the desired effect and the Bluefields and West Sides had another long discussion last night with the result arrangement to play the final game Saturday.

The San Francisco Mission ball club of the coast league averaged over 10 hits a game up to mid-August.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS RETURN FROM TRIP

Spend Two Weeks at Willimantic—Attend Institute Lectures.

The Manchester Camp Fire Girls returned just in time for High school from a two weeks' camping trip at Willimantic Campground, where they occupied the Rockaway Society House. Those attending the camp were: Betty Morehouse, assistant guardian; Nathalie Morehouse, Ella and Gloria Bidwell, of Prospect street; Alice and Viola Adamson, of Cooper street; Ruth Woodward, of Pine street; Ruth Wiggins and Bertha Mikoliet, of Woodland street, and Dorothea MacAdams, of Vernon. Alice Neil, of East Center street was guest of the camp. Letters were received from Rose Sims, formerly of Manchester street, now of Johnston, N. Y., who is still a member of the group.

The girls prepared their own meals and attended classes each morning, conducted by Miss Frances Willard MacIntire, of Boston University, a daughter of the late Rev. Walter S. MacIntire who was for many years a member of the New England Southern Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. The Camp Fire Girls had organized their recreation under the direction of Revs. L. Theron French and Frank W. Gray. Miss Ethel Woodward, their guardian, took the girls each afternoon to Columbia lake for swimming. Nathalie Morehouse, aged 15, came in fourth in the state swimming championship in New Haven. The girls voted to attend Willimantic Institute next year.

The regular meeting of the Camp Fire Girls will be held this evening at 7:30 at the home of the guardian, Miss Woodward, at 121 Hollis street.

HERE IS THE FIRST STORY OF BALLOONISTS' FLIGHT

then in state and smoked one each—our last. It was a great celebration and we were two very happy men. We found a newspaper dated Aug. 23, 1933. We slept a long time like two dead men, after lighting a fire in the stove. "There was a heavy frost during the night. Monday we decided to stay in two days to build up our strength. I shot a partridge. Van showed slight improvement. At 10:30 a. m. James Barrett showed up. He was looking for line trouble and he had food, a loaf of bread. "And two cans of beans," Barrett put in. "But did we eat like a pair of horses," said Trotter. Van Orman and Trotter expected to take a train for Sudbury. On a large double cot, covered with a heavy green blanket and dressed in the logs borrowed from woodmen, the balloonists sprawled side by side. With a week's growth of beard, they looked like lumberjacks. When they left Chicago on Saturday, Sept. 2, the balloonists carried seven cans of beans, four cans of fruit, six apples, six oranges and a carton of cigarettes. They smoked the last two cigarettes 24 hours before they were found. "The judging of the entries in Kemp's Photographic Contest—Judges Have Difficult Time." "The judging of the entries in Kemp's Photographic Contest, for the prize winning picture, took place last night, and after an hour of checking the large group of pictures entered, the judges selected the entry of James Y. Munroe, of 107 Russell street, as the prize winning picture. Mr. Munroe receives the Eastman Movie Camera as the prize. The judges, Miss Josephine Pleck, local artist, Raymond Benson, window decorator at Havelock, and Louis Smith of The Herald, found it difficult to select the winning picture, as the large list of entries included many very fine amateur snapshots. In selecting the winner, the judges based their selection on the picture interest, setting, and photographic detail. The winning snapshot is a picture of a baby, seated on a large rock, and the baby turned his head to the side a trifle.

Estate of $20,000 Divided Between Two Daughters—Was Made Here. (Special to the Herald) New York, Sept. 11.—The will of the late Mrs. Mary Russell Cheney, Manchester resident, who died August 27 at Waincoat, Long Island, was filed for probate in the Surrogate's Court here today and disposed of an estate formally declared as being "not over $20,000." The will, dated at South Manchester on December 31, 1931, names two daughters as the chief beneficiaries. Mrs. James C. Spock, New York, is left one half the residue and all stocks and bonds, and Mrs. Cynthia C. Childs, also of New York, receives the remaining one half the residue. An employee, Hilda Lind, of Bennington, Vt., is bequeathed $500. The daughters are the executors.

EASTMAN MOVIE CAMERA WON BY JAMES MUNROE

Snapshot of Baby Is Winner in Kemp's Photographic Contest—Judges Have Difficult Time. The judging of the entries in Kemp's Photographic Contest, for the prize winning picture, took place last night, and after an hour of checking the large group of pictures entered, the judges selected the entry of James Y. Munroe, of 107 Russell street, as the prize winning picture. Mr. Munroe receives the Eastman Movie Camera as the prize. The judges, Miss Josephine Pleck, local artist, Raymond Benson, window decorator at Havelock, and Louis Smith of The Herald, found it difficult to select the winning picture, as the large list of entries included many very fine amateur snapshots. In selecting the winner, the judges based their selection on the picture interest, setting, and photographic detail. The winning snapshot is a picture of a baby, seated on a large rock, and the baby turned his head to the side a trifle.

Y. M. C. A. BOARD WILL PLAN FUNDS DRIVE

To Ask Outside Subscriptions to Meet Deficit of $4,500—May Raise Dues. At a meeting of the Y. M. C. A. board tomorrow evening plans will be considered for a drive to raise between $4,500 and $5,000 for the continuation of the activities of the work. The state of the association's funds is such that it is necessary to appeal for outside subscriptions in addition to dues. The amount received from dues is far short of the association's needs and it is estimated that this year, under a curtailed budget just sufficient to keep up the activities, nearly $4,500 will be needed even if there is no falling off in the present membership dues. An increase in the dues is also to be considered.

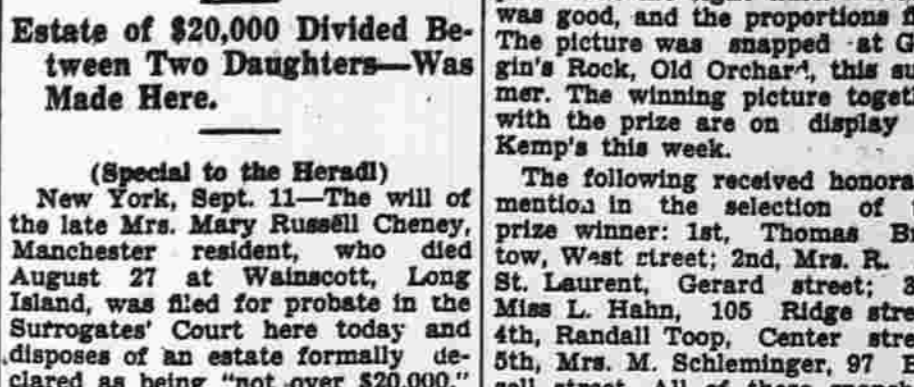

THESE TWINS

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

When all the Tines were on shore they heard the friendly diver roar. "Be careful, now, and be good, too, but have a lot of fun. "Just walk back in the trees and there you'll find a treat that's really rare. I'd like to go along, but I've work that must be done. His big scow then pulled off the sand, as the diver waved his hand, one of the Tines shouted, "Hope we'll meet again some day. "You've shown us dandy times galore. We'd like to stick with you for more, but since you are too busy, we'll be on our merry way." The diver soon was out of sight and then was Scooby said, "All right, let's start our hike. We want to reach some place before it's dark. "I'm curious as I can be to see what we are going to see." Then, suddenly, the Tines jumped, as Duncy shouted, "Hark! "I heard a noise right through those trees. Oh, my, I'm shaking at the knees. Shall we go on, or shall we stop? I don't know what to do!" "Just follow me, right now, because I'm going to find out what that was," said Coppy. "I am not a crazy fraidy cat, like you." They traveled on a little while and then the bunch began to smile, as Doty pointed to an archway, shouting, "Geel! That's grand!" "We're going to a place I'll love. Look what the sign says up above." No wonder 'twas a happy bunch. The big sign read, "PET LAND." They rushed up to the entrance where they ran into a sudden scare. Before them was a box, and from the cover came a shout. "Hey! Who has played a trick on me? In here it's dark as it can be. Won't somebody please jerk the little hook and let me out?" (The Tines open the box in the next story.)

SENSE and NONSENSE

Talkative Lady—A big man like you might be better occupied than in cruelly catching little fish.

Angler—Perhaps you're right. But if this fish had kept his mouth shut he wouldn't be here.

Joe went over to see his new neighbor who had just moved in. They were watching a chicken.

Joe—What the heck all that chicken, Bill? Is he sick?

Bill—No, I've moved so much that every time he sees me he lays on his back to have his legs tied.

"That girl's so dumb," said a sheik, "that she thinks Joan of Arc was Noah's sister."

It is said that a group of men were at a local club and were discussing the color of their wives' hair, and Jones (that isn't his real name) was the only man who couldn't remember. He decided to rush right home and find out. Dashing into the living room he found his wife sitting on the davenport. He looked at her hair and cried:

Jones—Brown!

And from behind the davenport came a surprised voice:

Brown—Now, how did you know that I was here?

A married man has faults but he doesn't thin' every unattached female he sees is scheming to get him.

Him—Oh, well, we'll split the furniture.

Her (coldly)—Go ahead. I wouldn't even waste an axe on the junk.

What a world! Nations make war and punish men for murder; parents lie to their children and lick the children for lying.

Patient—Oh, Doctor, I'm so sick if I could only die.

Doctor—I'll do the very best I can for you.

Enjoying work as we do, we're nevertheless willing to do our part toward avoiding surplus production, and will stop working whenever the government starts paying us enough for it to live in comfortable idleness.

It's An Ill Wind, Etc. Depression has its terrors, but it's not completely bad; for it teaches youths to do without.

Mildred—Why did you pick out such a pretty cook?

Marjorie—My husband is away a great deal and I wanted to have police protection.

After a man gets to be a grandfather he loses interest in his own generation.

Evelyn—Hettie has suffered plenty for 'n' bellie.

Robert—That so? What does she believe?

Evelyn—That she can wear a number 2 shoe on a number 6 foot.

Flings At Flappers Flappers—they step on it. A flapper's face is the roughest maker's fortune.

Often a red lip drives away the blues. A stout matron is a flapper gone to waist.

Flappers don't stand on ceremony—they step on it. A flapper is always one of three things—hungry, thirsty, or both.

Not only can a boy be in love with two girls at the same time but he thinks nothing of two-timing the same girl.

Fern—Tom is horrid. When we were out tonight a little bug flew into my mouth and I asked him what that was the sign of.

Judy—What did he say it meant?

Fern—That I should keep my mouth shut.

Marriage was intended to be a life sentence and the husband that gets a night out is a trusty.
