STATE'S TROOPS CALLED OUT TO GUARD MINERS

Whole Indiana County Placed Under Military Rule; Min- ers' Homes Bombed By Strikers.

Sullivan, Ind., Oct. 9.—(AP)—State troops moved into Sullivan county today to preserve order after the bombing of several miners' homes and a skirmish at the Starburn mine between miners and union sympathizers.

The Starburn mine, being worked on a cooperative plan, was the storm center of the trouble. Union officials have been declaring it to be in violation of the agreement between the operators and the United Mine Workers.

Rex Bridwell, prosecuting attorney, made a formal request for troops following the bombings and the clash at the Starburn mine during which stones were hurled and two shots were fired. No one was reported seriously injured.

County Under Control
Governor Paul V. McNutt sent Brig. Gen. D. Wray Deprez to Sullivan bearing a proclamation declaring the entire county under military control effective at 8:30 p. m. tonight.

The proclamation placed military authorities in control of all activities for the preservation of peace and designated the civil authorities as the agents of the military.

It directed that no assemblage be permitted throughout the district that no one except civil and military officers and troops be allowed to carry arms and that no person other than those designated by the military authorities be permitted ingress or egress from the district.

Two Terre Haute companies of the 151st Infantry were moved into Sullivan county and three other companies stationed at Attica, Evansville and Martinsville were directed to be ready to move immediately.

HALF WORKERS BACK
Pittsburgh, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Thousands of western Pennsylvania coal miners began a "back to work" movement today and at noon the United Mine Workers of America estimated half of the 76,000 strikers had returned to the fields.

Confusion in the coal fields followed President Roosevelt's plea that the miners end their strike pending adjustment of differences with the operators but as the day wore on reports of resumptions filtered in.

PREDICT O'BRIEN WILL RUN THIRD

Tammany Leaders Begin To Worry — May Ask Al Smith To Help Them.

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The possibility of a re-shifting of Tammany's battle lines, with some one to substitute for Mayor John P. O'Brien at the head of the ticket, was speculated upon widely today as the first phase of New York's mayoralty race came to a close.

With the tickets of the three major parties completed and the excitement of announcements subsided, everyone concerned turned to getting out a heavy registration this week. Tammany set itself to open its campaign formally tomorrow.

The speculation upon the possibility of changes in the O'Brien lineup resulted from forecasts that the Tammany candidate for mayor might run third in a three-cornered election race.

Smith is Mentioned
The name of Alfred E. Smith was heard again as a possible substitute for O'Brien. In most quarters, this was minimized, although it was generally acknowledged Smith would virtually insure a Tammany victory November 7.

Tammany's allies are said to be strongly inclined toward a revision of the ticket, particularly since Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, Fusion candidate, and Joseph V. McKee, independent Democratic candidate, have adopted the view that the battle is to be strictly between themselves.

Voters Confused
The wigwag can never be counted out of any race, it is pointed out by old timers wise in the city's politics, but the fact remains that not in 40 years since the days of "Dick" Croker has a three-cornered race so confused Tammany's lines of allegiance.

Another factor which all political camps regard as mitigating against the chances of Mayor O'Brien, is what promises to be certain heavy registration of voters this week. Interest in the coming election is widespread and the appeal of the three widely differing candidates is drawing voters ordinarily not active.

ORDERS FLORAL PIECE FOR HIS OWN FUNERAL

Riverside, N. J., Oct. 9.—(A.P.)—Four days before he died Anton Putnis, 47, walked into a florist's shop.

He was disturbed by the statement of his doctor that he was seriously ill of uremic poisoning.

"I want a floral clock," he told the florist. "Have the hands set at 2:30. I'll be dead by that time Sunday."

He was right, almost to the hour, his landlady said.

KELLYS IN FIGHT WITH THEIR GUARDS

Kathryn Slaps Officer—He Strikes Her In Return And Bandit Interferes.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 9.—(AP)—As George (Machine Gun) Kelly and his wife, Kathryn Kelly, started building today just before the start of their kidnaping trial, they engaged in a fight with a guard.

As Kathryn paused to kiss a man relative, the officer, raising his hand, struck her, giving her a slight shove. She stumbled and nearly fell.

Angered, she turned and slapped the officer in the face. He returned the blow and Kelly, raising his hand, struck the officer, attempted to attack the officer.

Another officer drew his pistol and struck the outlaw over the head several times.

The guard snatched by Mrs. Kelly was J. C. White, Department of Justice agent.

Taken to Courtroom
As soon as the excitement died down, the Kellys were taken into an officer's heavy guard.

Determined to drive a hard and a fast case against the notorious couple, District Attorney Herbert K. Hyde said as court opened:

"I think about 12 witnesses are all that will be needed."

The previous Urschel trial, from which Harvey Bailey, Albert Bates, and Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Shannon drew life sentences, consumed two weeks.

Kelly stumbled into the courtroom, bound with arm and leg chains, a knot on the left side of his head was visible. His dyed yellow hair was slightly stained with blood.

He developed his wife had tried to kiss her father, J. E. Brooks, thus precipitating the elevator ruckus.

"Yes, I slapped that officer," she snapped. "And I'd slap him again."

Kelly's attorney, James M. Mothers, quoted him as saying he was "willing to take the stand for my wife, if I'm called."

Hyde said the woman's plea that she was forced to aid in the conspiracy was probably would have figured in the crime more than Kelly, the prosecutor told newspapermen.

Were at Farm
He said he would use either Mrs. T. M. Coleman or her 21-year-old son, Gay, of Stratford, Okla., to testify as in the first trial, that both Kellys and Bates were at the Coleman farm for several days before the kidnaping and brought a kidnaped man there the day after the oil millionaire, Charles F. Urschel, was seized.

"Coleman again will testify," said Hyde, "that Kathryn told her they had a kidnaped man with them that day, and that Kathryn spoke of being 'in the big money.'"

In Conspiracy
Later the prosecutor added, testifying.

AMERICAN DENIES LIBERIAN CHARGES

Mayor Winship Says U. S. Never Induced Capital To Invest In The Country.

Geneva, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Major General Blanton Winship, the American representative, today described as inaccurate, misleading and without foundation Liberian claims before a committee of the League of Nations that an American finance corporation loan had been forced on the country and that the funds were misapplied by a financial adviser.

(Liberia has defaulted on loans made to that country by the Finance Corporation of America, a Firestone affiliate.)

The Liberian representative, however, reasserted there had been a misadministration of the funds by the American adviser and said that an experts' report had confirmed this.

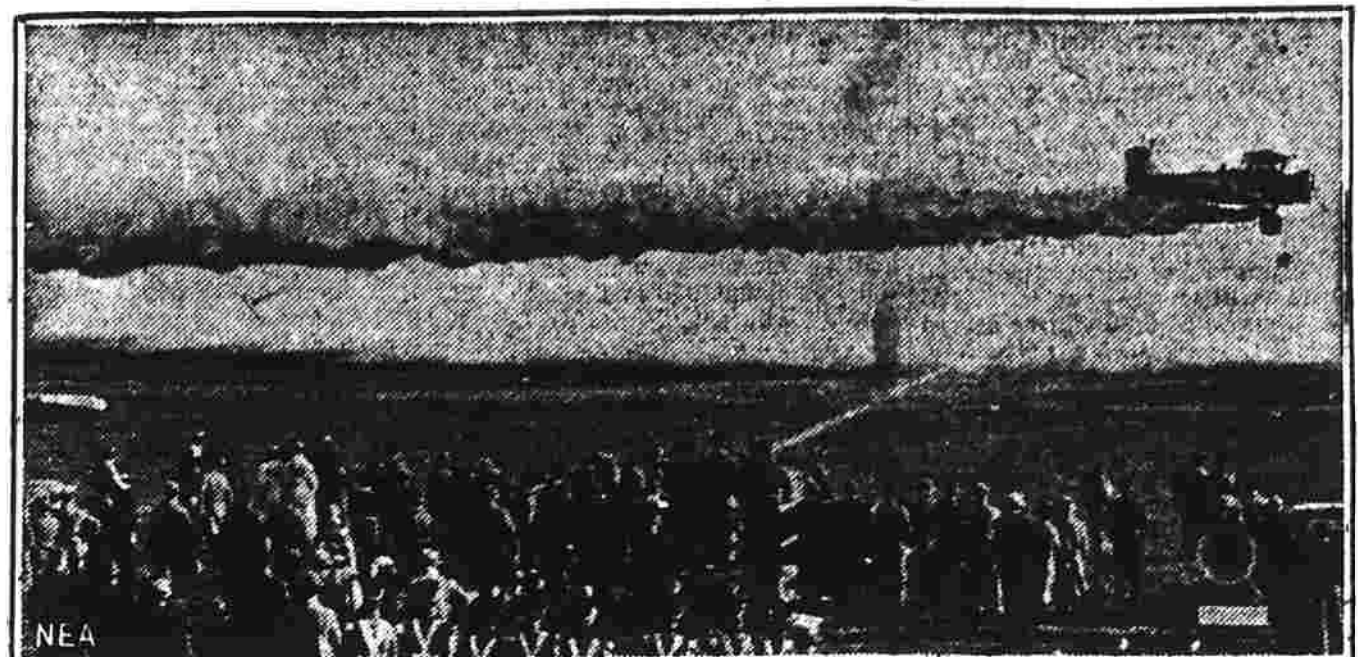

30 Natives Killed
Previously telegrams were read saying 30 natives had been killed in a recent resumption of fighting between Liberian tribes as the committee began study of a League plan for assisting the Liberian government in internal rehabilitation.

The Liberian delegate insisted that the chief adviser envisaged in the League plan "should not be a citizen of any country whose nationals had special financial interests in Liberia, or of a country having territory contiguous to Liberia."

He protested that the plan creates a financial burden too heavy for Liberia.

Winship declared the efforts to assist Liberia with the loan had met "with opposition and indifference," adding that the United States government had only extended its good offices and had "never induced American capital to invest in Liberia."

Marines Take The Air At National Charity Fete

Not to be outdone by the Army, the Quantico Marines showed their prowess in the air by spectacular plane stunts at the national charity pageant at Roosevelt Field, N. Y. Here's the scene as a Marine plane lays down a smoke screen as it streaks by a gallery of 30,000 spectators.

SERIOUS FOOD SHORTAGE NOW REPORTED IN CUBA

Thousand Hungry Beggars Walk The Streets; Rail- way Employees Threaten To Strike.

Havana, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Oriente Province and its capital, Santiago, seethed with unrest today because of labor troubles and serious food shortage.

Adherents of former President Mario G. Menocal were reported preparing for a revolution in several Oriente towns.

Labor unions met to formulate demands and to plan a general strike, food stocks dwindled, a thousand hungry beggars walked the streets.

In Havana, soldiers and radical members of the A. B. C. secret society were shot at from house tops while troops searched for arms in homes of leading positionals.

Attempts to conciliate political differences between the Grau San Martin administration and its opponents, meanwhile advanced with the appointment by the pro-Grau student directory of four professors to start negotiations.

Another Conference
American Ambassador Sumner Welles and Colonel Fulmeier Batavia, held another consultation, in which Mr. Welles said, the protection of American property was a major topic.

Mr. Welles was absent from the Embassy on 2 p. m. Sunday until early this morning. It was understood he conferred with certain leaders.

Street car workers have asked officials to grant them an audience to.

TRADE COMMISSION OUSTS HUMPHREY

But He Refuses To Be Re- moved And Says He Will Remain In Office.

Washington, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The Federal Trade Commission today officially recognized President Roosevelt's order removing William E. Humphrey as a member.

After meeting an hour and a half, the membership resolved to recognize the validity of the executive order removing Mr. Humphrey, and we hereby decline to further recognize Mr. Humphrey, as a member of the Federal Trade Commission."

The ousted Humphrey attended, presenting a letter saying "I refuse to recognize such order (referring to the President's removal order) as valid, or as being within the President's rightful powers. I am convinced that the order is without warrant of law and is ineffectual."

Still a Member
"I am, therefore, notifying you that I am still a member of the Federal Trade Commission and am ready and willing to exercise the powers and functions of my said office."

Should the commission decide to.

New York, Oct. 9.—Morris Hillquit, lawyer, author and the most noted and possibly the ablest leader of moderate Socialism in the United States, died at his home here just before midnight on Saturday, at the age of 64. He had been ill for a year but attended to many affairs at his home almost up to the hour of his death.

Was Very Popular

He was a native of Latvia and came to America in 1884. He was associated with the Socialist movement for almost forty years and was the author of a number of widely read works on the subject. The funeral is to be held on Wednesday.

JOHNSON LAUNCHES BUY NOW CAMPAIGN

Price Going Up And Buying
Will Really Save Money,
He Tells Nation.

Washington, Oct. 9.—(AP)—NRA's "buy now" campaign today was up to the American housewife. To her spender of 85 per cent of the family income, Hugh S. Johnson, secretary of the NRA, addressed his appeal to buy, "not only to save money but also because every dollar spent now is helping to keep the wage earner in her family on a payroll."

For her, as she made up Monday's shopping list, store windows were refurbished and advertising intensified in a joint effort with the government to stimulate consumer demand into a buying wave that will boost the entire recovery program.

Asks For Support
Noting today's opening of the long planned buying drive, Johnson asked the country's support:

"For four years, the American consumer has been skipping—putting off buying more than bare necessities until better times. But these are here—better times always mean higher prices. Now, is the time to buy for purely selfish reasons. Prices are going up. Buying now is an investment."

Other Activities
As the big drive gathered momentum, other NRA activities progressed along routine channels. Interest centered on the ultimate form of the retail trade code with its provision to stabilize prices by prohibiting sales at less than wholesale cost plus ten per cent.

Johnson was expected to send this master charter to President Roosevelt tomorrow. Today the farm administration opening a hearing on a grocery store code with similar price regulating provisions. While Johnson favors such price regulation, farm administrators have declared their opposition.

LEAP FROM TRAIN AS CARS COLLIDE

Railroad Men Owe Their Lives To Quick Action Be- fore Crash.

New Haven, Oct. 9.—(AP)—William A. Lamb of New Haven, a freight conductor, and James E. Tierney of West Haven, a flagman, owed their lives today to the leap they made from a caboose just before it was struck by a freight train. The caboose and the car immediately in front of it, were crushed by the freight train, and three other cars and the engine of the freight were derailed by the crash yesterday morning in Cedar Hill yards of the New Haven railroad.

Two investigations, one by the Public Utilities Commission and the other by railroad officials were started today.

FIVE POWER PLAN TO REDUCE ARMS

Ambassador Davis Arranges Conference Between Ger- many And France.

Geneva, Oct. 9.—(AP)—As a result of American initiative, an era of 5-power disarmament conversations, with Germany included on a basis of equality, began today.

Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour of France and Count Rudolf Nadjoly of Germany were scheduled to confer before night-fall, American Ambassador Norman H. Davis having been successful in bringing the two together in an attempt to iron out their differences.

Arthur Henderson of Great Britain, president of the disarmament conference, was expected to insist upon the wisdom of general conversations in his address before the steering committee, which began its discussions today, and also to insist that the conference reopen on Oct. 16, as scheduled.

Heavy Armaments
Indications were that one rock on which the conversations of the conference may be wrecked is the question to what extent Germany's neighbors will record in a treaty their intention to scrap heavy armaments.

A German delegate, clarifying Berlin's attitude in the matter, said that his government wants the right to possess from the start types of defensive armaments which any treaty would not prohibit to signatories as a whole.

This means, he said, that the Reich wants tanks, pursuit planes and artillery up to 155 millimeters, although the problem of submarines may be postponed until naval treaties are revised.

Germany's Stand
"Germany will not ask any heavier armaments than any treaty provided other powers pledged themselves by a treaty eventually to destroy them, whether it be one year or eight years from now," he added.

Should the convention be silent on this point, the German spokesman added, Germany will want the right to possess such armaments.

Asked if Germany claims the right to build fortresses along the eastern frontier, the spokesman replied:

"We have not mentioned it officially. The Geneva treaty which we hope to elaborate will be a substitute for the military clauses of the Treaty of Versailles."

"I see no reason why Germany, however, cannot claim the right to fortify the eastern frontier if it deems it necessary in the interests of defense."

The second obstacle to a disarmament convention appeared to lie in whether France and her allies would approve the immediate allocation to Germany of defensive armaments, including tanks and airplanes.

EXPLOSION ON SUB KILLS 2, HURTS 4

British Naval Officials Start Probe In Attempt To Find Cause Of Blast.

Cambellown Harbor, Scotland, Oct. 9.—(AP)—An investigation proceeded today into an explosion and fire in the submarine L-26, which caused two deaths and serious injuries to 14.

This was the worst British naval accident since January, 1932, when the submarine M-2, sank off Portland with seven officers and 53 men.

The L-26, a sister ship of the L-24, which was rammed off Portland, in 1924, by a warship with the loss of 43 lives, was about to go to the autumn maneuvers after being grounded five hours at Kintyre Peninsula.

Under its own power and apparently in good shape, the L-26, was refloated and proceeded here. The blast occurred yesterday and was due, officials believed to water reaching the batteries, which were being recharged.

Crew at Dinner
The crew was at its midday meal in the mess room, just above the battery room. Batteries were hunched upward through the floor by the blast. Walls were splintered. Men were thrown in many directions.

Officers and the unhurt members of the crew of fifty rushed to the scene, but they were hindered by barriers of twisted steel, smoke, fumes and flashes of flame.

Rush to Rescue
Boats from the destroyer Mackay, three-quarters of a mile away, were rushed to the ill-fated craft. Several fishing boats and other harbor vessels gave help.

The Mackay's crew equipped with water masks, helped put out the blast and carry off the injured.

The damaged craft lay last night alongside the Mackay, to which it was roped.

Boats in the "L" class were built before November, 1924. They have a displacement of 845 to 1150 tons and are about 230 feet long.

THINK TEN LOST ABOARD SCHOONER

Nothing Has Been Heard Of Nova Scotian Ship For Al- most a Month.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The schooner Dorin's adventurous career appeared ended today. The turbulent Atlantic alone knew the fate of the three-masted Nova Scotia ship which put out of Nassau, Bahamas, a month ago for Yarmouth, N. S.

Perhaps, with her crew of blue-nosed sailors, she still floated, perhaps she had gone down in one of the tropical storms which lashed the Atlantic seaboard as she proceeded north from the Caribbean. In any event, Captain Jack Cruickshank of Halifax, her owner, had given up hope for the big steel craft and her complement of 10.

"Maybe she'll turn up," he said last night, "but there isn't much use kidding ourselves. I guess it's all day for the Dorin. Cruickshank's young brother Nelson was aboard, second engineer under Captain Owen Williams of Ontrea Lake, N. S."

Nelson was just 22 when the Dorin put out of Halifax "little more than two months ago. Even younger was 18-year-old Joe Nichol of Dartmouth, N. S. who joined the auxiliary schooner at Halifax for his first sea voyage.

Others on Board
Others of the crew were all residents of Nova Scotia, although some

DOCTOR EXHIBITS JIU-JITSU TRICKS Dr. Cuyler Y. Hauch Shows Kiwanians How Japs "Get Their Man."

Members of the Kiwanis club were treated to an exceptionally interesting exhibition of Japanese jiu-jitsu tricks by Dr. Cuyler Y. Hauch, resident physician of the Manchester Memorial hospital, and to highly illuminative explanations of the fine art of boxing by Frankie Busch, director of the Recreational Center, at a weekly meeting this noon in the Manchester Country Club.

Using Mr. Busch as his opponent, Dr. Hauch cleverly revealed how the wily Japanese, through their knowledge of jiu-jitsu are able to put up a stiff self-defense against persons heavier than themselves, and can apply the dexterous holds with such speed and efficiency that they quickly render their attackers helpless. Dr. Hauch was born in Japan and spent many years of his life in that country. He is well versed in the habits and customs of the Nipponese, a fact clearly indicated to the Kiwanians today. The physician took occasion to point out that professional wrestlers in this country are merely bluffing when they attempt to emulate the jiu-jitsu skill of their Japanese contemporaries. Several local physicians attended the meeting today as guests of the club. The attendance was unusually large.

Boxing Blows Mr. Busch graphically described the various punches connected with boxing, and explained the vulnerable parts of the human body which boxers strive to reach. Vocal numbers were pleasingly rendered by a quartet consisting of the "Four Elms": C. Elmore Watkins, Elmer Welden, "Elmer" Olson and Elmer Thines. "Jim" Nichols won the attendance prize, which was donated by Fayette B. Clarke. Much interest was evinced by the members in the informative report on the recent district convention of the Kiwanis club in St. Johnsbury, Vt., which was read by Mr. Clarke. George E. Keith and Mr. Clarke attended the convention as delegates from the Manchester club.

WRONG ALARM SENDS FIRE FIGHTERS ASTRAY

Small Blaze At Lynn, Leather Plant Does No Damage; Mistake In Sounding.

A spark falling from the chimney at the northwest corner of the Lynn Leather Company's plant at 12:20 this morning started the Manchester fire department on a long run because the wrong number was sounded. The fire was discovered by employees of the plant and while some of them went out to fight it an alarm was telephoned. The number sounded, however, was 22, which is at Main and Hudson street, but instead the whistle blared 23 which called the companies to woodland street.

The two companies got away to a good start and pulled out of headquarters and headed up the hill. The apparatus turned into Woodland street and came to a stop after crossing the South Manchester railroad tracks. Harlowe Willis, who was out on the first truck went into a home and telephoned and found that a fire should have been 22 instead of 23 and that the fire was at the Lynn Leather Company's plant. Both companies came across lots from Woodland street to Hilliard street and back to the plant, to extinguish the fire, which was extinguished. The recall sounded at 11:45.

SPAGHETTI EATING FOX ON SHOW HERE

Reynard Insists On Cheese With Delicacy; Thinks Fried Chicken "Great."

A young red fox which has thrived for seven months on spaghetti, providing it is well smothered with grated Italian cheese, is on exhibition in the front window of the Manchester Plumbing & Supply company's store on Main street.

One of a litter of five fox puppies, which Angelo M. Angelo, of 50 Pine street, captured after digging down eight feet into a hole situated in the field of an Andover farm, the sly-faced animal has a pronounced weakness for spaghetti. It refuses to touch this delicacy, however, unless it is plentifully sprinkled with sippy Italian cheese, according to Mr. Angelo's son.

Hamburg steak, done up rare, and fried chicken also are favored by Reynard. Mr. Angelo said the fox is lively as a kitten and five times since its capture has broken its chain and run away, only to return to the vicinity of its kennel. Once it wandered to Center Springs Park, and last Wednesday it again decided to see the world. It was picked up on Walnut street Thursday morning and since then has been attracting the attention of passersby in its cage in the store window.

Mr. Angelo pointed out that his pet will not bite unless annoyed and that the neighborhood dogs keep a safe distance from the fox's living quarters. The parents of the fox escaped, while the four other puppies were divided among a group of men employed at the time constructing a new dirt road in Andover. Reynard is about eight months old and was caught last April.

RELIEF FUNDS

While the Selectmen and citizens of Manchester appear to be satisfied that they have performed their full duty to themselves and their community by levying a 17-1-2 mill tax to cover what they regard as an adequate budget, stern facts may bring later realization that they have done nothing of the kind.

It would be a very happy state of affairs if we could calmly assume that the depression is over and that the problem of unemployment no longer exists. Unfortunately it is only by the extreme of self deception that we can rest under any such pleasing conviction. We may, indeed, confidently expect that fewer Manchester people will have to be assisted through the coming winter than was the case last year but by no flight of imagination can we assume that there will not be a very large number of unemployed and of dependent families. Yet the 17-1-2 mill tax was made possible only by ignoring in very considerable degree the inevitable necessity for relief funds.

Last year this town expended, from public funds, $208,260 on its regular charities and on unemployment relief. This year it has appropriated exactly $80,000. There is, in this fact, a fact assumption that there will be needed $118,000 less to provide for the barest wants of the jobless and the helpless than was needed a year ago. This assumption is wholly unwarranted.

Forecasts for the coming winter, by economists and sociologists, range from predictions that there will be about one-half as much destitution as in the two or three winters last past to gloomy anticipations of "the worst season of the whole depression." Only pop-eyed optimists dream of a normal winter period. Here in Manchester there is, happily, much ground for expectation of considerably better times than we have known for several years; but there is none at all for hoping that we shall not have a serious relief problem to contend with. And we have not provided for it.

It is possible that the failure of the Selectmen and the town meeting to deal effectively with the problem of financing unemployment relief can be satisfactorily accounted for by saying that it is proposed to raise the funds for job-making through private subscriptions by the "drive" method. But we did that last year; all the public funds expended were in addition to what was raised in voluntary gifts.

Does anybody suppose that it will be possible to delve into the pockets of contributors to relief funds, in the winter of 1933-4, and get as large a sum total as was obtained last year? We, at least, do not. The depression is one year older; the givers have been under one more year's strain; if they were close to the end of their resources a year ago they are closer now. The newly re-employed, the new beneficiaries of higher wages—not, after all, numerous enough to constitute an important contributing class in any event—have too many back bills to pay up and too many pressing needs of their own to be ponderable as prospective contributors.

There is, besides, a feeling of resentment against a system which year after year squeezes contribution, in all sorts of drives, out of a group which, though large, does not by any means include all those in town who are capable of giving. Every drive manager and every leech captain knows that there are certain individuals, altogether constituting a considerable class, who never hand over a cent to any cause though in some instances they are well able to give ten times as much as the "regulars" are tapped for in every drive.

Most of these tight-wads are taxpayers. They can be reached, for such purposes as unemployment relief, only through the tax rate.

Manchester will have to spend a great deal more money for relief, during the coming year, than has been provided in the budget or the tax rate. We might as well recognize that fact right now. And it would appear that the sanest way to meet this situation is to be prepared to lay a special relief tax.

STEP ON THE GAS

With many thousands of coal miners clean off the reservation, defying the authority of their union, the United Mine Workers of America, and completely ignoring the pleas of President Roosevelt that they return to work, the coal situation is putting to a very serious test the capacity of Mr. Roosevelt to drive the machine which he and his associates have designed and rushed to completion.

There is a growing feeling that the NRA conception is sound and that its parts have been machined and fitted in conformity with correct principles; but that there is a disposition on the part of the administration to do more bragging about it than courageous driving of it; that the President is afraid to give it the gas, so to speak. If it coughs and stalls, as beyond any question it is doing on this coal mine grade, it is not necessarily because of any fundamental fault with the mechanism but because you can't drive a truck or a tractor by benignly smiling at the hood and mildly urging the machine to "Gid-dap!"

There was another Roosevelt who had a motto, "Speak softly and carry a big stick." Franklin D. Roosevelt speaks softly and he has a big stick, but he appears to labor under the delusion that a mere sight of the big stick is bound to be sufficient. It wasn't sufficient in the case of Henry Ford. It wasn't sufficient in the case of the Frick coal operators. It isn't sufficient in the case of the insurgent striking miners. It isn't the case with a swarm of minor chiselers. Nobody is afraid of any big stick in the hands of an individual who obviously isn't going to do anything but flourish it.

The National Recovery Act is one of the most powerful devices ever planned in the entire history of government. With its supplementary fiscal legislation it, put into the hands of the President ample authority for the restoration of business and for the return of the people to decently compensated employment. Congress gave Mr. Roosevelt tremendous powers. If those powers had been used to the full as it was intended they should be used we should not now be contending by the chaotic state into which countless American conditions are falling through labor troubles, nor by the spectacle of banks stuffed with cash and credit money while thousands of employers are being driven to distraction to meet their Blue Eagle payrolls.

The country has been tremendously loyal to the NRA. It is beginning to doubt whether the administration itself is matching the ordinary citizen in the courage and determination necessary to make this magnificent effort succeed.

HUMPHREY CASE

It will appear to most persons as extremely unlikely that any responsible leadership in the Republican party will attempt to make an issue out of the removal of William E. Humphrey from the Federal Trade Commission, despite reports from Washington that some such step is contemplated.

These days are not favorable for the setting up of technicalities as obstacles to the carrying out of the program of the administration, and the question whether the President has the power to remove a member of the Federal Trade Commission without actual evidence of malfeasance becomes extremely technical in the light of the purposes of the removal. It is the present plan to make the Federal Trade Commission an effective instrument for the prevention of stock exchange abuses with which the public is only too familiar and which, obviously, must be corrected. If Mr. Humphrey represents a class of stock manipulators who, quite naturally, are opposed to sterner regulation and if he is therefore not the type of commissioner that would be most useful in the furtherance of needed reforms, no large class of citizens will be anxious to see him retained in a place that some other man could fill to better effect. Not in a place that the courts will be much more sympathetic with Mr. Humphrey than the public. Judicial opinion, no more than popular opinion, ever totally disregards changes in times and conditions.

It is obvious, on the face of it, that Humphrey is not making all this fuss over a mere job for himself. He is a lawyer of standing, a former member of Congress and no doubt could tomorrow make some connection that would be fully as profitable as his place on the Federal Trade Commission, probably more so. He is, beyond question, endeavoring to hold on to his place because his presence on the board can be made obstructive of present administration tendencies.

It would not be good politics for the Republican party to put itself behind Mr. Humphrey in this attempt. This is a Democratic show, and one of the finest bits of political strategy ever adopted by an American political party has been the Republican policy of putting no obstacles in the way of Rooseveltism; of giving, on the contrary, every possible measure of support to the recovery program.

It is extremely improbable, then, that for the sake of influencing the future course of the Federal Trade Commission, the Republican party will provide Mr. Roosevelt and his associates with any such alibi as would be created by denying them the right to run the show in their own way.

Besides, Mr. Humphrey very decidedly got off on the wrong foot. He ran headlong to the country with a loud complaint that the President was violating the law by packing the Trade Commission with Democrats—almost at the very moment when Mr. Roosevelt was announcing the appointment in Mr. Humphrey's place of a Republican who had voted for Hoover.

This episode has made a good deal of noise but it will probably soon be forgotten in the midst of matters a thousand times more important. Which will be just as well.

IN NEW YORK

By JULIA BLANSHARD
 New York, Oct. 9.—New York radicals are chuckling over what they consider a significant discrepancy in the new three-cent postage stamp which has been issued to celebrate the NRA.

Look closely at the design on this stamp and you'll see why. The farmer, the housewife and the laborer are seen marching along in unison. But the capitalist—the other member of the quartet—is out of step with them!

Yes, it already has been called to the government's attention, so you needn't write to your Congressman about it.

Today's Fad

The latest fad among Connecticut "New York farmers" (commuting—Manhattanites) is to unearth old cobbler's benches. The older and more worn, the better. Connecticut is being combed for them.

John Eraline started the fad. He found a handsome, worn old cobbler's bench that might have come over on the Mayflower, dusted it off, rubbed it until it shone, and installed it in his Connecticut living room as a table-of-many-uses.

Where the nails and pegs used to go, cigarettes fit perfectly. Where the cobbler used to sit is a space just the right size for a tray with glasses, and the center part will hold coffee services or bottles and ice. The benches are about 18 inches wide and five feet long. You now buy them on smoochy stores (reproductions, that is.) But the trick is to scour the countryside and find your own. Where you got it and how and what price you finally paid for it and how long it took you to rub it up, by hand, furnishes the newest topic for conversation.

Literary Note

Upton Sinclair, life-long Socialist who has just gone Democrat, is enjoying every minute of the fight the Communists started here over the fact that he allowed Eisenstein's movie, "Thunder Over Mexico," to be edited in Hollywood. Probably no one enjoys a good fight more than Sinclair.

Ordinarily he is the most protected man in America. He retires daily to his study in his California home, has no phone there, has a flat rule that nothing and nobody must disturb him, and works his full day with absolutely no interruption. His lunch is left outside his door for him to get at his convenience. His wife, Craig Sinclair, is a veritable polio-maniac. Nobody can get by her while Sinclair is at work.

He goes out rarely, doesn't enjoy social events because he has no "small talk," never has been known to gossip or even listen to gossip. He is not particularly interested in people anyhow. He dresses plainly, drives his old flyover with real skill, and plays a scientific game of tennis.

Mabel Walker Willebrandt is just back from her first vacation in 16 years, which she spent in Bermuda. In the suburbic setting Mrs. Willebrandt was revealed as a true sportswoman. She swam with a handsome stroke, was one of the best anglers on the Islands, and was the envy of all because she can ride a bicycle without handlebars!

The Research Division of the Aeronautics Branch of the Department of Commerce has developed an improved type of airplane radio direction finder, which tests have proved to be very satisfactory.

BLADDER IRRITATION

The liquid waste from the kidneys is thrown out, a drop or two at a time and passes down into the bladder, which acts as a storage bag until it is convenient to expel its contents. In a normal person the bladder is emptied about 4 to 5 times a day, and not at all during the night. If large amounts of water or other fluids are taken, it may be necessary to increase the number of times the bladder is relieved. The bladder is triangular in shape and when full holds a pint or more.

The technical name of bladder inflammation is cystitis. A bladder disorder is easily mistaken for some other condition, for example, what most people call kidney weakness is really bladder irritation and what seems to be an ache in the lower back is often due to bladder trouble.

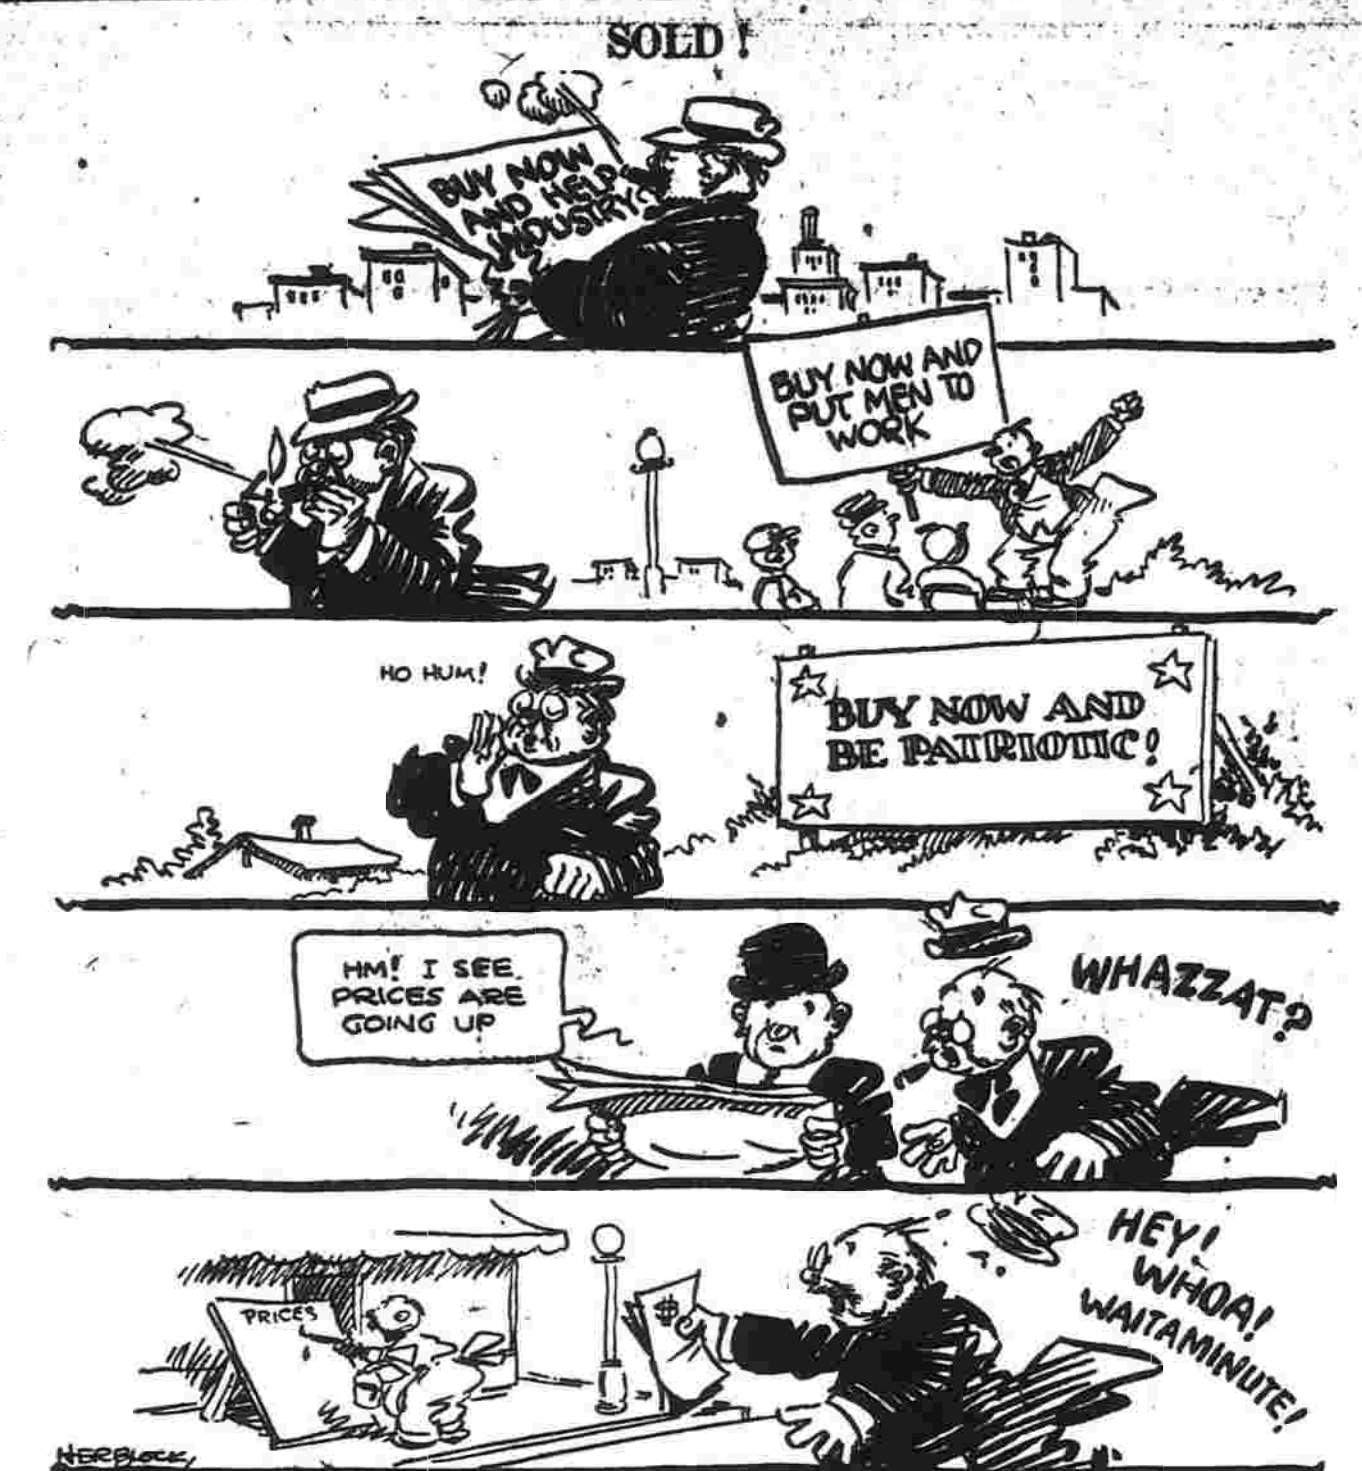

Some common causes of bladder irritation are: pressure on the bladder wall from fallen organs, from a nearby tumor, during pregnancy, or, in men, from an enlarged prostate gland, and chemical irritation due to the presence of excess amounts of poisons or toxins in the waste which poisons attack the lining of the organ and cause it to inflame. If certain foods containing irritating substances which must be thrown out of the body by way of the bladder are eaten, they will have the direct effect of increasing bladder inflammation when it is present. Such articles as onions, garlic, strong spices, together with alcohol and certain drugs must be placed in this class and should be avoided by one with bladder trouble.

In some cases the outlet of the bladder becomes swollen shut or partly shut and the organ cannot be completely emptied, with the result that the liquid waste decomposes and aggravates any tendency to irritation. Other causes which may bring on bladder inflammation are: kidney stones, bladder stones, stricture of the passage leading downward from the bladder, and certain infections.

Some of the symptoms of bladder irritability are: a desire to empty the bladder frequently, especially at night which may disturb the rest; painful, straining or burning sensations while voiding; lack of a feeling of relief afterward due to difficulty in entirely emptying the organ; the presence of blood, pus or mucus in the liquid waste which may have a strong odor of ammonia and may appear cloudy after standing. Pain through the lower back or directly over the bladder in front may cause much discomfort.

In overcoming cystitis in those cases due to irritation from an excess of wastes and toxins in the liquid waste the following treatment will be found to give satisfactory results. You are to begin tomorrow on a water fast, using distilled water. Take at least one glass every half-hour during the day as this will produce a copious flow of water through the body and will keep the irritating substances so diluted that they do not affect the bladder. After two or three days on the water change to orange juice or grapefruit juice, using one eight-ounce glass every two hours. Two enemas daily should be taken to empty the colon and relieve pressure against the bladder.

It is often a good plan to follow the fast with a milk diet, beginning the milk about 5 days after being on the water and fruit juice together. While on the milk you do not need to drink water. The above instructions should be followed in those cases in which the bladder empties freely but in cases where a part of the liquid waste is retained it is not wise to use so much milk as is will only increase the sensation of fullness already present.

In those cases where the bladder irritation is caused by some other trouble such as prostatic organs, or an enlarged prostate, it will be necessary for the patient to employ suitable treatment for relieving such conditions, in addition to using the bladder instructions as I have outlined them. If there is any question as to the cause of bladder irritation it is advisable to have a thorough physical examination in order to determine whether the trouble is in the bladder or elsewhere.

In order to relieve the intense discomfort during acute attacks, I would suggest that you take the hot sitz bath at home; or the soothing applications of towels which have been wrung out of hot water and then laid over the bladder. In addition the patient should take treatments for thirty minutes each day directly over the bladder region as given under the deep therapy lamp, these treatments are very helpful.

Bladder irritation is so distressing that most patients are entirely willing to follow the simple and common sense directions I have suggested especially when they find their relief bring it in so short a time.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Apple Juice Fast)

Question: Mrs. Lee J. asks: "Would it be all right to use fresh cider while fasting, instead of the orange juice? We have a plentiful supply of apples, but oranges are a little hard to get."

Answer: I have found the apple-juice fast, (if the juice is used fresh and no fermentation has taken place), to be productive of very good results. Use it as you would the orange juice—an eight-ounce glass every two hours—with what ever water is desired. You will notice it has a mild laxative effect. However, a daily enema should always be taken during a fast, even though the bowels move without it.

(May Be Lumbago or Rheumatism)

Question: S. N. writes: "I have been suffering with my back for four months. Either strained it or it is lumbago, don't know which. As long as I am standing straight, there is no pain, but when I stoop continually, it seems to hurt worse than even heavy lifting. My work is very heavy. Have taken treatment from a chiropractor but got no relief. Seems to be very low in my back, sometimes going into my hips."

Answer: If you received no relief from chiropractic treatments, it may be because you have a form of lumbago or rheumatism. In that case it will be necessary for you to eliminate the rheumatic poisons before you will be free from your suffering. Send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope, and I will be glad to send you my article on rheumatism.

(Olive Oil and Liver Trouble)

Question: S. P. writes: "Is olive oil good for constipation, liver and kidney trouble? If so, what amount and when should it be taken?"

Answer: Olive oil is a very good oil and may be taken in large quantities if one enjoys the taste. One suffering from constipation and liver trouble will often be greatly benefited by taking as much as four ounces of olive oil just before retiring. If this is combined with about four ounces of grapefruit juice, it will be found more palatable. The mixture should be taken in small sips through vigorous shaking or stirring. This may be taken with benefit at least once a week, and some have found quicker results through using this large quantity of olive oil every night before retiring for a period of two or three weeks.

YOUR CHILDREN

TRAINING EMOTIONAL SIDE OF CHILDREN

There is a controversy among philosophers about who is the happiest man.

Is he the person with blunt feeling, little emotion, prone to satisfaction not depression or is it "Allegro," the one with intense emotional make-up who suffers keenly one minute, rises to the pinnacle of ecstasy the next, and spends his days going into emotional trances of a hundred varieties?

Most of us are of the latter type. We differ slightly in degree, that is all. Analyze yourself and discover the fact that in one short day you have been all these things: discouraged, encouraged, angry, mollified, humiliated, proud, depressed, happy, jealous, kind, afraid, brave, suspicious, trusting, generous, stingy, bored, interested, annoyed, pleased, excited, anxious, relieved, sympathetic, cruel. Use almost any adjective you want. This is just an ordinary day.

Machine or Soul

Is this person of this nervous make-up happier than the "cold-blooded" person who takes life as he finds it and lets nothing either give him pain or great pleasure? Capacity for suffering is usually equalled by capacity for pleasure. The nerveless citizen loses much as well as being spared much.

Probably the question never will be answered.

If it could be, it would govern absolutely the way in which we train our children. How do we want them to be when they grow up? Machines who think and function automatically, or souls who live? What kind of citizen would make for a better world? "Probably the nerveless ones," some reply, "because there would be no jealousy, no hatred, no anger and no war." Others would say "The highly imaginative, emotional individual is by far the best. It is he who gives up art, literature, music, and the needs of the spirit. And as these people are the most imaginative, we can add invention."

The Emotional Side

In the above debate we have both sides. We can make our own decisions. I have made mine. I choose the nervous one.

Why?

Because we cannot possibly keep all emotion out of life. If it there,

Behind the Scenes in WASHINGTON

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

Indians Claim Billion in Balm and They'll Get Most of It... Forestry Campaign Fumbles... Follies Shocking to Scriber.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 The Herald's Washington Correspondent

Washington, Oct. 12.—The Indians claim more than a billion dollars in lawsuits against the whites. Eventually, they will get a part of it.

Indian Commissioner John Collier wants them to have some of the money now. At the present rate of speed, it will be more than a hundred years before all the cases are tried.

Taxpayers now support virtually entire tribes. "Aliotted Indians" have lost their lands through Federal operation of what Collier calls the "indefensible" allotment laws until two-thirds of them are pauperized, demoralized, or headed that way.

One of the first Indian Bureau reformers in the New Deal was prohibition of further sale or alienation of allotted lands. Now Collier wants money to restore land to landless Indians, claiming the large future savings for the Treasury in the plan, and a re-drafted allotment law which will prevent any more sale of Indian land to whites.

The necessary money, he will tell Congress, should be advanced against Indian court claims, repayable from the final judgment, which will be several times as large as cost of the land program. Congress has approved the suits.

Forest Campaign Fumbles

As part of a forestation campaign, Governor Robert H. Gore of Puerto Rico offered $100 reward for apprehension of each person caught cutting down a tree.

The reward plan didn't work, because $100 represents fabulous wealth to most Puerto Ricans whereas "fall meant free board" many buddies began to plot tree-chopping.

Widespread disappointment followed when the first tree-chopper went to the hoosegow for 60 days and no reward was paid.

Follies is Shocking

Assistant Secretary of State Harry Payer, the eloquent Cleveland lawyer who is called "Mr. Follies" because that's the way his looks, is happier every day. He's the first secretary or assistant secretary who ever bothered to visit every nook and cranny of the state department. He was delighted and amazed that the chief of the Far Eastern division was a cultured doctor of philosophy.

Payer appalled correspondents at a Hull press conference when he burst into a flowery panegyric which referred to them as "distinguished gentlemen" and expressed his sense of the honor of being allowed to work "shoulder to shoulder" with them.

Worker is Benefited

Figure it out from available wage and hour tables and you'll find that the average worker in manufacturing industries received a weekly wage increase from $18.06 to $18.72 between mid-July and mid-August. In the cotton goods industry, the effect of the NRA code, which became operative July 17, is shown in an average increase from $11.37 to $13.18.

Cost of living increased 2.3 per cent in that period, according to the National Industrial Conference Board, so the average factory worker would seem to be about 25 cents a week better off and the average cotton mill worker $1.81 to the good.

We are made that way. To strike an even and sane balance we need more training in the other thing. No, not emotional control, that is merely a sop, but in an early training that gets us away from feeling too much about every little thing. Each generation finds us more emotionally vulnerable. There is too much excitement and too many things to pull our feelings about.

To treat a child kindly but not to go to extremes in sympathy is best. Don't let fear play any part. Don't let self-pity play a part. Do not harangue too much about generosity, or sympathy. Make him as generous and as sympathetic as you possibly can, but don't let him get a feeling of grandeur about it. Better let him get the idea that he must be "feeling" some way or other about everything. Don't let him feed on excitement either.

We can train children to all the virtues without accentuating the emotional side of those virtues. We can make them contented.

And to my mind the contented man is the happy man.

BUSINESS BOOMING IN SCHENECTADY

General Electrical Co., Gets Two Big Orders—Adds 1,200 To Payrolls.

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Government contracts and an increase in general business has brought blue skies to this industrial city where Thomas Edison and Samuel Insull dreamed of the electrical empire they later created.

Within the past two weeks the General Electric Company, keystone of the community's industrial life, has received two public work jobs aggregating more than $4,000,000. One, a Navy order, is for turbine equipment to be installed in six new destroyers. The other is for two generators for the Boulder Dam hydro-electric plant.

Between April 1 and September 1 the General Electric Company added 1,200 men to their working force, increasing the number of those drawing checks to almost 11,000. Last year the employees roster showed no more than 7,000 workers.

An examiner for a building and loan company said September marked the upturn here, citing as his reason the fact that many "G. E." employees resumed payments on homes and many others increased their payments.

At the peak of "G. E." business, in 1928 and 1929, there were 26,000 workers in the Schenectady plants. The city's population was no more than 90,000. Today it is 98,000.

Schenectady was an unknown village when a friend of Thomas Edison, from a passing train, saw an empty factory building. Edison wanted to get out of New York with his struggling manufacturing company.

Telephone operators always try to co-operate with the authorities during emergencies such as those of which Fire Prevention Week is a reminder.

In many of the smaller exchanges of The Southern New England Telephone Company the operators spread the alarm of fire at the first telephone call by calling fire headquarters and notifying the chief or assistant.

During big emergencies such as second and third alarm fires, when seconds count and all firemen in the city may be needed at a moment's notice, the chief operator prepares for the emergency by calling for additional operators and supplying certain operators with cards showing the telephone numbers of firemen known to be on duty.

Beyond this initial service of spreading the alarm, during fire emergencies operators work harder than in normal times because of the greatly increased number of calls following alarms.

The fire and police departments are indispensable to the welfare of the community. And it is apparent, too, to both departments that the ready, prompt co-operation of the telephone company is just as indispensable to them in speeding and coordinating their work.

ROCKVILLE IS CRITICALLY HURT IN STOLEN JOYRIDE

Walter Koelsch's Skull Fractured As "Borrowed" Car Collides With Pole In Chicopee.

Walter Koelsch, aged 22, of 82 Village street, Rockville, suffered a fractured skull in an automobile accident in Chicopee, Mass., on Saturday evening about 7:30 o'clock.

Koelsch took a Ford roadster, owned by Joseph Marcinowski, of Rockville, which was parked on Chicopee street in that town, without the permission of the owner. He struck a trolley pole, demolishing the roadster which rolled over three times. The trolley pole was broken off a short distance above the ground.

Marcinowski and Frank Dalley of Rockville were attending the wedding in Chicopee of Miss Adele Baras, of that place and Vincent Diadsideski of Rockville. Marcinowski reported to the police that the roadster was missing and was told that such a car had been found on Chicopee street, wrecked beyond repair.

Marcinowski went to Chicopee yesterday afternoon to recover his number plates and learned at the Chicopee hospital that Koelsch was still in an unconscious condition with but little hope held for his recovery. He had a fractured skull and internal injuries. No hope was held for his recovery.

Lose On Prison Grid The All-Rockville football squad, under the leadership of Carlo Genovesi, lost its opening game at the Connecticut State Prison at Wethersfield on Sunday afternoon by a score of 13 to 0.

More than 100 fans accompanied the Rockville team to Wethersfield and the team received a big cheer as it marched onto the field led by the Prison band.

The following were in the All-Rockville squad: Carlo Genovesi, manager; Roger Tansey, coach; Stanley Key, timer; Peter Genovesi, lineaman; players, Captain John Zira, Andrew Doboz, Frank Deboz, Alec Gross, Chester Prackniak, Ruddy Gessay, Joseph Gessay, Charles Gessay, "Porky" Parick, Everett Theumiller, Leo Stone, Olyn Phillips, Edward Bresnahan, Vincent Gessay, Frank Geissler.

This was the second game played by the State Prison team but the first time they scored as the game on October 1 was tied when they played the Sons of Italy from Middletown without either team scoring.

Wins State Championship A. G. Ornsbee of New Haven won the state championship in the 410 bore skeet shoot at the first annual Connecticut state championship held Sunday afternoon at the Rockville Fish and Game Club on Mile Hill in Tolland.

More than twenty marksmen participated in the shoot and sportsmen were present from all parts of Connecticut and Massachusetts. Two events were held in the 410 class, the first being the 410 short shoot followed by a 410 long shoot.

The first match consisted of 50 targets open to all registered Connecticut shooters using two and one-half inch shells, or the old style, and the winner is recognized as the 410 short champion.

The results of the 410 short skeet shoot was as follows: First, B. W. Clardige of Hampden, score 43; second, F. Scott of New Britain, score 42; third, E. Field White, of Hartford, score 41. There were three shooters tied for third honors but E. Field White won the shoot-off contest.

The second match for the 410 long championship with 50 targets per shooter, but with the new three-inch shell for the official state championship resulted as follows: First, A. G. Ornsbee of New Haven, score 49; second, F. Scott, New Britain, score 47; third, "Tim" Weatherhead, Hartford, score 44.

The championship events had the approval of the National Skeet Shooting Association and the matches were in accordance with the 1933 rules and regulations. Ready for Fair Rockville will be well represented at the 64th annual Stafford Springs Fair which opens Tuesday and will continue until Thursday, closing with a big "Columbus Day" celebration at which Governor Cross is expected to attend.

The 20th anniversary celebration of the founding of the Ellington Congregational church closed yesterday after a three-day celebration which attracted many former parishes from all parts of New England.

Rev. Charles H. Ricketts of Norwich opened the Sunday morning service while Rev. James T. Carter of Worcester, Mass., did the preaching.

A Sunday afternoon program was held in the form of a "fellowship service," with greetings from Rev. George S. Brooks, pastor of the Union Congregational church of Rockville, who represented the Tolland County Association of Congregational Churches.

Rev. Sherrod Soule, representing the Congregational Fellowship of Connecticut, delivered the Sunday afternoon address, taking for his topic, "A History for God," by Rev. Dr. Robbins W. Barstow, president of the Hartford Seminary Foundation.

Saturday's services were unusually interesting, opening with a historical service at 2:30 o'clock with Rev. Dr. E. L. Cook of Somersville in charge of the devotion, with an address of welcome by Deacon H. H. McKnight. An address on the topic, "The Early History of the Ellington Church" by Rev. John T. Nichols, pastor, was also given, as was an address entitled "Our Inheritance" by State Librarian George S. Godard of Hartford.

An informal program was held Saturday evening in the church auditorium with greetings from the mother church by Rev. Harry S. Martin of South Windsor and from the "grandmother" church by Rev. Theodore E. Frank of Windsor. Former Attorney General Charles Phelps, of Rockville, brought greetings from the Rockville churches.

Inspection This Evening The annual inspection of Ellen G. Berry Auxiliary, U. S. W. V., will be held tonight in the G. A. R. hall, Memorial building. The inspection will be in charge of Mrs. Eva E. Stewart, of Bridgeport, and staff.

The program will open at 8:30 o'clock with a supper for Mrs. Stewart and staff after which the inspection will be held. Mrs. Alice Chapman, president of the auxiliary, will be in charge of the event which will close with a social hour.

Notes Commander William C. Pfunder, of the Fourth District, American Legion, who hails from Rockville, is in charge of the district installation held Sunday afternoon at William's Field. This district includes both Tolland and Windham Counties. The auxiliary of the Fourth District also installed their newly elected officers on Sunday afternoon.

A public card party will be given on Wednesday evening by the Children of Mary of St. Bernard's Catholic church in both the Ladies of Columbus and the Knights of Columbus halls in the Prescott block. Both bridge and whist will be played after which refreshments will be served.

The regular meeting of the Board of Common Council will be held on Tuesday evening with Mayor Albert E. Waite presiding. Considerable routine business remains to be acted upon at this meeting because of the short meeting held two weeks ago.

The work of constructing the new road on Market street, popularly known as "Opera House Hill," has been completed and the street opened to use.

The annual minstrel show of Stanley Dobos Post, No. 14, American Legion, which was scheduled for November 11, has been postponed until December 11. Alderman Francis E. Cratty is directing the production.

"BAD GIRL" CLAUDETTE PLAYS TORCH SINGER Colbert Gets Kind Of Part She Has Always Wanted—Coming To State.

"He was her man—and he done her wrong!" That's the lamentation of "bad-girl" Claudette Colbert, now starring in her latest vehicle for Paramount, "Torch Singer," playing a 2-day engagement at the State theater Wednesday and Thursday.

After her ultimatum against "goody-goody" roles, the part of a hard-boiled girl of the night clubs provides her with a role that's more to her liking. She is surrounded by a group of well known names, including Ricardo Cortez, David Manners, Dvya Robertson and Baby LeRoy.

In the picture, adapted from the well known Liberty Magazine story, "Mike," by Grace Perkins, Claudette sings a number of new songs, written especially for her by Ralph Rainger who authored America's first modern torch song, "Moanin' Low" for the "First Little Show."

As Sally Trent, whose man has "done her wrong," Claudette vows vengeance after she is forced through lack of funds to give up her baby for adoption. She changes her name, turns hard and brazen, and looks to the night-club world for a chance at success. She changes her name to Mimi Benton and as a waller of torch songs, wins fame, wealth and men.

None of the three, however, she learns to her sorrow, quite com-

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO WIN THE WORLD SERIES 21 out of 23 GIANTS WORLD CHAMPIONS Smoke CAMELS "GREAT TEAM WORK and healthy nerves carried us to the top," says Bill Terry, brilliant Giants manager. "A check-up of the team shows that 21 out of 23 of the World Champion Giants smoke Camels." "I LONG AGO learned that Camels are the cigarettes for me," says "Blondy" Ryan. "I like Camels better, and they don't get on my nerves." "JIMMY NERVES and home runs don't go together," according to Mel Ott. "So I stick to my Camels when I get a minute to enjoy a smoke." "I CAN'T RISK getting ruffled nerves to smoke Camels," says Carl Hubbell. "I like their mildness and I know they won't interfere with healthy nerves." WELL, THE RETURNS ARE IN. Congratulations to the new World Champions—the Giants! Rated by the experts as a hopeful contender this amazing team, playing under inspired leadership, fought successfully through one of the hardest National League races in years... and, again in the under dog, went on to win the World Series. It takes healthy nerves to play "better baseball than you know how."

AUTO REGISTRATION "DEADLINE" NOV. 15

Commissioner Conner Says All Applications After That Will Be "Rush."

Commissioner Michael A. Connor of the state department of motor vehicles stated yesterday that the so-called "deadline" for securing the same registration for 1934 as an automatic owner has for this year will be November 15th, the customary date. The commissioner pointed out that the main office of the department and the branches in Waterbury, Bridgeport, Danbury, Stamford, New Haven, New London, Norwich and Willimantic will make every effort to comply with requests for special markers or reservation of present numbers. After November 15, the commissioner said, the issuance of 1934 markers will be made on the plan of "first come, first served." Because of the annual rush which develops late in the year for the new markers, Commissioner Connor asks everybody to apply as early as possible for 1934 markers and "avoid the rush" to the program, which is being held in observance of Columbus Day. Due to the fact that Columbus Day falls on Thursday of this week, however, the dinner, sponsored by the local Campbell Council, K. of C., will be held Monday evening, October 16. Jere Williams, Country Club caterer, will serve the dinner. There will be an important meeting of Campbell Council tonight at 8:30 in the club's rooms in the State Theater building. All members are urged to attend.

TO SPREAD TRADE COURSES IN STATE

Local School Broadens Scope In Inaugurating a New Program.

A widespread program of educational guidance is being inaugurated this fall under the jurisdiction of the local State Trade School, it was made known by Director J. G. Echmanian today, in announcing that unit courses of instruction would be given throughout the state in the various trades. Those Already Planned. Mr. Echmanian said that classes are already being planned in Tattleville, Stoughton, Mystic and Norwich, where applicants are now being registered. Classes will be established in whatever trade in which the applicants are interested and if the demand is sufficient, special instructors will be engaged. Mr. Echmanian points out that instructions may be obtained in architectural drawing, mechanical drafting, silk textiles, general textiles, machinery, tool making, carpentry and electricity. All classes will be free of charge. Great interest in vocational guidance has been manifested throughout the state, since classes in rug making were established last year in Thompsonville. These classes, with instructions in the entire method of carpet manufacture, are being continued this fall, starting tonight at Thompsonville with forty students. Thompsonville Class. Mr. Echmanian had personal charge of the Thompsonville class and this year found it necessary to create two classes for advanced pupils and beginners, meeting Monday, Tuesday nights and Saturday afternoon. Mr. Echmanian believes that there is a great field for vocational guidance in the state and expects that many will take advantage of the opportunity for further learning in the respective trades in which they are interested. Evening school classes in the local school will be started next Monday night. Applications for enrollment will be received at the trade school office tonight and daily until the classes get underway. Already more than twenty-five persons have registered.

Sport Chatter

Manchester's line functioned so well against Bristol Saturday that Coach Tom Kelley made only one substitution, Rautenberg for Hutchinson, when the latter injured his ankle. Engle, Bristol signal caller, was the first to leave, also with an injured ankle. Captain Eddie Rowe probably spent yesterday with a juicy beefsteak as he got a beautiful shiner Saturday. His right eye was all the colors of the rainbow and was almost closed when the last half began. West Hartford ran against a snag Saturday, bowing to Bulkeley of Hartford by a 6-0 score. West Hartford is as yet still untried in League competition but is expected to give plenty of trouble to the other teams in the circuit. On the basis of opening games, there doesn't seem to be an outstanding team in the C. C. I. L. Manchester, however, has made the best showing so far. Meriden High comes here Friday afternoon and a victory for Manchester will place the Red and White at the top of the list of contenders for Bristol's grid crown. Meriden was held to a 6-6 tie in the season's opener against an admittedly inferior Bristol team and lost 18-17 and East Hartford last Friday. East Hartford was beaten by Bristol, 6-2. Jim O'Leary and Bob Mercer, two Manchester High athletes who are continuing their sports activities at Wesleyan University at Middletown, saw action against Connecticut State at Storrs Saturday afternoon in a game won by Wesleyan, 19-0. O'Leary subbed at right end and Mercer subbed at left end. At high school O'Leary was an outstanding backfield man. Much of the action of the Manchester-Bristol game took place near the sidelines and the spectators were kept on edge in their efforts to avoid tackles. In the last quarter, it took almost the entire Bristol team to stop Alton Judd and when the play was over, a small boy sitting on the bench about two feet from the sideline had also been tackled. It was some time before his cries were uttered. Manchester certainly doesn't have to feel ashamed of its Mount Nebo side, as the gridiron at Mount Nebo is easily one of the best scholastic fields in the state, perfect for spectator and player alike. Just when the West Sides were to start for Danelson for a grid contest yesterday, the Danelson team called up and cancelled the game and the locals spent the afternoon in practice instead. Another practice session will be held tomorrow night at the West Side at 7 o'clock. FARRINGTON FUNERAL. Honolulu, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Funeral services were held Sunday for Wallace R. Farrington, former governor of Hawaii, who died Friday from a heart ailment. A strong overclouded the Central Union church as Dr. H. E. Leavitt, pastor, conducted the last rites for the New Englander who governed from 1921 to 1929. Masonic services followed at Nuuanu cemetery.

Jorgotten Sweetheart

BOB WESTON, son of a millionaire, is in love with JOAN WARING, Memphis girl. Bob has come to Memphis in connection with his father's new textile plant. He first saw Joan on the train when she was returning home from college because of her family's financial difficulties. The Waring has a little money. Joan's father, a member of an elite club, MRS. WARING longs for her daughters to have the social position denied her. Joan's sister, Pat, two years younger, loves pleasure and pretty clothes. She is infatuated with JERRY FORRESTER, son of her employer. BARBARA COURTNEY, a society girl whom Bob knew in New York, is scheming to win him. Barbara invites Bob to a house party given by CAROL SHERIDAN. At first she refuses to go because of plans which include Joan. Barbara maneuvers to include Joan in the party so that Bob will change his mind. She hopes that he will be disillusioned when he learns Joan does not belong to their crowd. Joan accepts the invitation with some misgivings. "Well, here we are!" Bob said as he deftly swung the car into a wide driveway which arched the branches of enormous oak trees. "It's a lovely old place, isn't it, Joan?" "Lovely," she agreed. The beauty of Rosewood Manor was actually a great idea that she and Joan had had. They had seen a picture from a motion picture of the old south. Huge trees framed the spacious colonial home, white with green shutters. Large columns extended from the roof. Comfortable looking chairs, swings and a bench were scattered about the wide veranda. Truly it was a beautiful home. Adding a final touch to the charming scene were hundreds of jonquills braving the brisk March weather and lining the driveway. The car was coming to a stop. Bob switched off the ignition and climbed out. "Wonder where everyone is?" he asked. Just then the wide, front door swung open and a group of young people came out. "Hello, Bob! Thought you'd never get here. We've been delaying our horse-back ride for almost an hour, waiting for you two slowpokes, the darkest and smallest of the three girls came out. Joan noticed, with a sudden m.giving, that they were all dressed in riding clothes. Then she realized that Bob was introducing her. "This is Joan Waring," he announced with a little note of pride in his voice. "Joan, this is Carol Sheridan, our hostess." Carol, the tiny, dark girl whom Joan had already noticed, made a little bow. "I'm so glad you could come," she told Joan. "Barbara Courtney, Joan." Joan turned slowly to see a slender girl with red-gold hair, very blue eyes and unusually fair skin. So this was Barbara! This girl who was as exquisite and dainty as a Dresden doll. Carol introduced the others: Sally Blake, a tall girl, rather striking looking, with intelligent dark eyes; Fred Nelson who had red hair and humorous blue eyes; Jim Warfield, dark and handsome; and Charlie Ross, a large blond youth whom Joan immediately decided could be no other than the all-American tackle. Mrs. Sheridan, a charming, elderly woman, welcomed them at the door. A colored woman, a large trim shabby luggage seemed even more conspicuous. It was in sharp contrast with Barbara's small trunk and matching traveling accessories—a leather case filled with toilet articles, a hat box, a large suitcase. Barbara, it seemed, was sharing this room with Joan. It adjoined Carol's bedroom and a dainty bath between served both rooms. "Get into your riding things," said Barbara. "That is an impatient bunch downstairs." "I didn't bring riding clothes," Joan said slowly. She had thought there might be need for them but, after examining the old suit she had worn at Holbrook Hill, she had decided it was too hopeless a shabby. "Perhaps we could find something to fit you. I'll ask Mrs. Sheridan," Barbara spoke doubtfully. "No, please don't," Joan said. "I've been driving since morning. I'll just go to my room and rumble about this beautiful old place. Please don't bother." "Well, if you're sure you don't mind," said Barbara. She went out, closing the door behind her. A foot of the stairway she others Bob. "Where's Joan?" he asked. "She's awfully tired," Barbara said. She's going to rest before dinner." "Rest?" Bob said blankly. "Yes, she said the trip tired her. What poor company you must have been!" Barbara added lightly. Bob frowned. Joan had not seemed tired. She had appeared to be gay and happy. He had been saying to himself that she had supposed she felt the same way. Deliberately he had prolonged the trip because of the excitement of making it with her. The trip around Clarksdale had taken an extra hour, but he had enjoyed it. All the time he had been fighting the desire to tell her how dear and companionable she was, how much he loved her. He knew he was sentimental and romantic but he had an idea that the surrounding the trip would be appropriate when he told Joan how he felt. A public highway where attention was constantly being diverted wasn't a suitable place. What he had to say was important to risk interruptions of that sort—a blow-out or some similar nuisance. "Oh, don't look so depressed!" Barbara said, laughing up at him, crinkling her nose upon which several freckles were sprinkled becomingly. "There are others who appreciate your powers of entertainment." Bob swung up the stairs without answering. He returned in a few minutes, wearing riding togs. "Joan, here's a tan riding habit and the riders halted along the drive under her window. She went to the window and looked down. Barbara and Bob were riding in front. How well they looked together! Barbara wore a tan riding habit and the sun, falling on her bare head, brought out the lights in her red-gold hair. Suddenly she flung back her head and challenged. "Bob and I will race the rest of you!" She dashed down. Bob following. Joan heard Carol's amused voice. "Clever! They've been dying to shake us. Haven't had a moment alone since Bob came." A muffled voice said, "Oh, are they supposed to be that way?" "Well, of course!" "When they did he bring the competition along?" "It was a date he couldn't get out of. You know how things were. The crowd was clearly audible through the half-open window. Joan flamed with resentment. So that was what they believed! She moved away, resentment fading. She was feeling only very lonely and very desolate. Instinct had not failed her. She had known beforehand that she should not come. Perhaps they had not really expected she would. Joan felt that she didn't belong with these girls who had never known responsibility or worry, whose lives were so beautifully ordered and arranged for them. She felt alien in this room filled with Barbara's possessions. The dressing table was dotted with jars and bottles of expensive cosmetics and Barbara's handsome silver toilet articles. Joan laid her own comb and brush and powder box beside them bravely. A lump was in her throat. She had a sudden feeling of panic, a feeling of impending disaster. Something was threatening the happiness she had believed secured. Oh, why had she come! She left the room and went downstairs to walk in the beautiful garden she had seen from a window. As she stepped out on the porch a young man with a dark, eager face came toward her. "Hello," he said. (To Be Continued)

M. H. S.-BRISTOL BATTLE ENDS IN SCORELESS TIE

Giants' Team Should Be Good For Five More Years

SO SAYS MANAGER BILL TERRY AFTER NEW YORK CLINCHES WORLD SERIES

Baseball Classic Leaves

Enough Material To Sustain Hot Stove League Through Winter; Failure To Prolong Series Cost Magnates Considerable Money.

By EDWARD J. NEILL
A. P. Sports Writer.

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The clamor and thrills of the Giants' World Series triumph trailed off today into history as baseball bowed its way out for another season and left the sports field clear for the King of fall pastimes, football.

But from now on until the major leagues gather again in spring training, camps there was material enough for the hot stove league seasons through the long winter nights to challenge any intervening excitement in the feasts of the fall, thin soups from Oklahoma, Carl Hubbell.

Good For Long Time
Rarely have newly crowned champions of baseball's realm presented such a varied cast of heroes and near-heroes as this amazing group that came from no where through the National League season.

Furthermore, warned Terry today as the Giants' team today to the year "this is a team that should be good for five more years. Pitchers like Hubbell, the best in the world right now, Hal Schumacher, Roy Parmelee and Fred Fitzsimmons will be even better next year.

Future Assured
Certainly the future of the 36-year-old Terry seems assured for as long as he wants to handle the Giant reins. Believing implicitly in the strength he acquired in trades that took the old Giants apart last year after he had succeeded the veteran John McGraw, Terry installed a sort of town meeting form of government on the ball club, let everyone join in the strategic conferences that gather every time there is a sign of trouble brewing, and won't bowdlerize the cozier American League champions at every turn.

In fact the success of Terry's strategy and the failure of just about everything Joe Cronin tried, left the 26-year-old manager of the Senators looking about his age as a big league pilot from the moment he started left handed Wally Stewart against the Giants in the first game until Mel Ott, with two out and the bases empty, in the tenth, sent one of the fastest fast balls into the centerfield stands with Fred Schulte tumbling after it for the home run that won the fifth encounter, 4-3.

How Experts Figure
The experts agree that with Whitehall in the first game and Weaver in the second and both able to return for the fourth and fifth games, the outcome of the series might not have been different, but the battle would have been considerably stiffer. As it was, Stewart showed so little, being belted out of the first game that Cronin did not send him back again. And "General" Alvin Crandall, victim of the sixth inning uprising that drove him out with a six-run rally and gave the Schumacher a 6-1 decision in the second game, was the only pitched Cronin had left for the fifth game. Again Cronin lasted only six innings and he was patted all the way.

The failure of the Senators to prolong the series beyond five games cost the magnates considerable money.

"That hit of yours," said Charley Stoneham of the Giants to Mel Ott after the final game, "cost me exactly $200,000 and was worth every penny of it."

Financial Failure
As a whole the series was one of the poorest financially in modern history. The players' pool dropped below $300,000 for the first time in 11 years as the crowds in Washington never exceeded $28,000 and the Giants failed to sell out in two games here.

The Giants' winning shares were only $4,800 each, the Senators $5,400.

Joe Sugden, now a Cardinal coach, was one of the first backstops to catch all pitches close behind the batter instead of waiting for the ball to bounce.

Three brothers are playing football for Oregon State College, Corvallis, Ore. They are Harold, Woody and Dick Joslin.

TROUNCE GREENS

Rockville Nine Cracks Down On Local Team To Tune Of 7-2—Hurler Fans 12.

From Rockville came the champion Polish-American club yesterday afternoon, to hand the Manchester Green team a licking on their own home lot at Jarvis Grove to the tune of 7 to 2, earning their victory by out-hitting the locals. The splendid hurling of their pitcher, S. Dowgiewicz, who fanned an even dozen of the Hublarites during the contest and made one of his team's runs, besides smacking out a sweet double in the third, also contributed to the victory. Dowgiewicz allowed but four hits during the game and so scattered them as to limit their productiveness to a brace of tallies.

The first ball pitched glanced from Stanton's bat and struck Catcher "Eddie" Segar on the right knee. For a few moments it was thought that the Green's star receiver would have to retire, but he insisted on remaining in the game, and continued to the end.

Victory performed on the mound for the Green, and turned in a creditable showing. "Tuffy" struck out eight of the hard-hitting Rockvillites, but bunched his, and courtly fans, and teammates, proved too much for Viot to overcome. Pinney, first-sacker for the Green, shone at his station, making two spectacular catches of hard-hit drives, in one of which he had to hurdle a couple of fans, and partially climb the bank to spear a speeding foul.

For the Polish-American Club, Meleski started with the stick, knocking out two doubles, when Stanton hits were needed. Janton and the Rockville pitcher, S. Dowgiewicz, also laced out two-baggers. Despite the total of seven errors, five for the Green and two for Rockville, some really thrilling fielding was executed by both teams, which, judging from the applause, met with the approval of the crowd, one of the largest gatherings seen at Jarvis Grove this year.

Olympic Juniors Take Measure Of 'Y' Booters

At the Charter Oak street grounds on Saturday the Olympic Juniors proved to be a shade better than the junior soccer team from the Y. M. C. A. and emerged winners by the score of two goals to one. Sandy Pratt refereed.

Play throughout ran in favor of the reds from the West Side. They were more clever on the ball than their opponents, and their players retained their positions better than the players on the north end side. When they took the lead in the first half and later scored the winning goal in the second half the score merely represented the trend of the play.

The Y. M. C. A. players had a tendency to group and in consequence many chances were lost through

PITT-NAVY CLASH

GIVES ADDED ZEST TO GRIDIRON FARE

Panthers, Unbeaten Since 1928, Again Appear Favorites For Sectional Title.

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—A major battle between the Pittsburgh Panthers and the Naval Academy, an ambitious inter-sectional program and a few other contests that can be rated close to the "big game" class, lend something of a mid season flavor to this week's eastern football program.

The Pitt-Naval struggle at Pittsburgh Saturday stands out far above all the rest. The Panthers, who haven't been beaten by an eastern opponent since 1928 and who shared first honors with Colgate last year, again appear to be on the road toward the mythical championship of the section, after victories over Washington and Jefferson and West Virginia. The mid-eastern likewise promise to have a word or two to say about the situation. They have beaten two strong early-season opponents from the south—William and Mary and Mercer, in quite decisive fashion.

Next to this class in order of interest for the week come two inter-sectional ventures by eastern teams which go into the mid-west to face powerful opponents. Cornell, tuned up by two fairly easy victories, meets Michigan at Ann Arbor Saturday and Washington & Jefferson meets Detroit University in a Friday night encounter. There is little basis for comparison in either case except that Gus Dorais' Detroit team defeated W. & J. 7-0 last season.

The inter-sectional program begins Thursday when the Columbus day holiday gives occasion for a meeting between Boston College and the "Colonels" of Center. Friday "Pop" Warner's Temple Owls, who suffered a rude shock last Saturday when they went down to 0 before Carnegie Tech's passing game, will try to do something about last year's 14-1 tie with the Haskell Indians and George Washington, which already has beaten Catawba of North Dakota, enters into a contest with South Carolina.

In addition to the Cornell-Michigan battle Saturday, Syracuse takes on Ohio Wesleyan in an effort to avenge a 19-12 setback administered by the "Battling Bishop" last Saturday. Michigan goes to Cincinnati to play Xavier; Yale, which had a tough time getting past its first game with Maine as it introduced its new coach, Reggie Root, and a new system adopted from Notre Dame, meets Washington & Lee; and a Columbia team which appears to be one of the best faces a weak Virginia aggregation.

Of purely sectional interest are such promising games as the Fordham-West Virginia and Villanova-Bucknell clashes, which usually bring a lot of action. Colgate, which continued last year's unbeaten, unrecorded record in an easy opening game, faces somewhat stronger opposition from Rutgers. New York University, which was thoroughly defeated by losing its opening game to West Virginia, Wesleyan, 3-0, is slated for a comeback effort against Lafayette. The conquering Lobcats face a warm local enemy, Davis & Elkins.

Army continues its preparations for the big games to come by meeting Delaware and of a similar preparatory nature are the Harvard-New Hampshire, Princeton-Williams, Dartmouth-Bates, Brown-Springfield, Holy Cross-Providence and Pennsylvania-Franklin & Marshall games. It is the first game of the season for Penn, which delayed its start the longest of any major eastern team.

An all-veteran eleven was in the starting lineup of the first football game played by Virginia Polytechnic institute this year.

players being out of position. Smith was the outstanding player on the side and displayed an intelligent conception of the game. He got one opportunity to score and promptly took it when he equalized the score.

The Olympic Juniors' first goal was scored by Vennart, who kicked several yards neatly before shooting through. The second goal was scored by Salmonson from a 12-yard spot kick. Vennart, Ford and Cordy were slightly ahead of their colleagues though as a team the juniors combined well.

On Tuesday night the seniors and juniors of the Olympic club will meet at the West Side Rec at 7:00 o'clock to discuss plans for basketball teams. All players and managers are requested to be present.

Sales Indicate Record Racing Season In 1934

NORTH END ELEVEN SHOWS MUCH POWER IN TYING VISITORS

New York, Oct. 9.—(Special)—With the most successful season which the Grand Circuit has seen in years now history, 1934 looks as if it will be a record year in the sport with new enthusiasm at a high pitch and horse sales far ahead of expectations.

Old Glory Sale
The historic Old Glory Sale, scheduled to be held Nov. 27-30 in New York 25 in years past, is now being regarded as the next step in the transformation of what was once thought to be a dying sport into the front rank of horse racing.

The remarkable prices which trotters and pacers brought at auction in Lexington, Ky., during the recent Grand Circuit meeting there, insure like success here at the Old Glory, according to harness horse veterans.

"When it is realized that the average price of the 223 horses sold at the Lexington sale totaled $410, or about one-third more than was anticipated, there can be no doubt but what the trotting sport is staging the greatest comeback of modern times," E. Roland Hartman, president of the Grand Circuit and chairman of the Trotting Horse Club, said yesterday.

New Buyers
The Kentucky sale at Lexington, climaxing eight stirring Grand Circuit race cards in as many cities, brought new buyers into the auction ring, as well as drawing back to the harness horse fold many enthusiasts who had drifted away in years past.

Next to this class in order of interest for the week come two inter-sectional ventures by eastern teams which go into the mid-west to face powerful opponents. Cornell, tuned up by two fairly easy victories, meets Michigan at Ann Arbor Saturday and Washington & Jefferson meets Detroit University in a Friday night encounter. West Sides Drub Alpines To Sweep Series, 7 to 3

Never Any Doubt Of Superiority After First Inning; Winners Complete Four Double Plays; Hit Four Two-Baggers; Godek Features.

Adding a convincing 7-3 triumph to their first 5-3 victory, the West Sides eliminated the Sub-Alpines from the tournament for the so-called town baseball title, at Mt. Nebo field yesterday morning.

The West Sides immediately started another series, to start next Sunday, the winner of which will be able to claim the championship without argument.

There never was any doubt after the first inning of the superiority of the West Sides, who have one dropped fly played heads up and spectacular ball which included four double plays. Only for the feistiness of young Joe Raynor the game would have ended with a triple play, but Joe beat Hank McCann's throw to first by a hair.

The highly touted Alpine infield cracked and kept Frasier in the bog of the time, especially Bergin whose three misplays were very costly. Space does not permit explaining the part every West Side player contributed to the victory, and there are no exceptions but Dowd, Sam Hewitt, Miklan and Burkhardt were especially brilliant.

Hewitt getting two doubles, Little Micky Miklan performed in major league fashion around the middle sack. The West Side Club has had a very profitable season and Manager Nick Angelo, on behalf of his team, takes this opportunity to thank the fans for their support.

LEAGUE CHAMPIONS ARE OUTPLAYED BY LOCALS FROM START TO FINISH

Red And White Gain Ten 1st Downs To Four For Visitors; Shows Marked Superiority But Lacks Scoring Punch; Chucky Smith Halts Last Minute Threat.

Unleashing a furious onslaught from the outset, that continued unabated throughout the contest, Manchester High's grid stalwarts fought Bristol High's eleven to a standstill in a Central Connecticut Inter-scholastic League battle at Mt. Nebo field Saturday afternoon to gain a scoreless tie with the League champions.

Bristol was outplayed in every department of the game but Manchester lacked the scoring punch necessary to emerge victorious.

As it was, Manchester's display of offensive power and defensive strength against a team that has been in the habit of riding roughshod over the Red and White, came as a pleasant surprise to about 2,500 fans gathered to witness the struggle between two of the great rivals in schoolboy circles.

No better medium of comparison can be found than in the first downs, of which Manchester chalked up ten to only four for Bristol. Manchester's yardage was gained through the brilliant work of the backfield quartet of Ray Mosser, Bob Smith, Chucky Smith and Alton Judd, while Bristol was forced to resort to forward passes when its running attack was completely shattered by an aggressive Manchester forward wall.

The long-awaited championship game of Manchester series was at last arranged last night and commencing Sunday, October 13, a best two out of three games will determine as to whether Manchester Green or the West Sides may rightfully claim the title of best team in town.

The West Sides, by defeating the Sub-Alpines yesterday morning, earned the right to meet the Green for the title, and the managers of both teams lost no time in getting together and arranging the details of what should be a bitterly fought, and very close tournament.

Manager Angelo for the West Sides, and Manager Ehrhard for the Green, have agreed that the receipts shall be divided 70 per cent to the winner, and 30 per cent to the loser, with any and all side-bets at any odds and odds that may be obtained. The games will be played on successive Sunday mornings at 10:30. The first game to be played next Sunday at the West Side, the second game on the following Sunday at Jarvis Grove, and the third if necessary, game to be played probably on a neutral field.

SENSE and NONSENSE

A laugh is a good thing—if it is on the other fellow.

Let There Be Light
My house would be a cheerless place
Without a shining light
To make a radiant glow within;
The sun by day, the lamp by night.

And life would be a sorry one
Without the grace to see
The fire of faith to light the way
Within the soul of me.
Florence Van Fleet Lyman.

Hotel Keeper—What is that rope
you have with you?
Guest—A rope ladder in case of fire.

Hotel Keeper—Very good—guests with fire escapes pay in advance.

There's a certain young man who is in love with a girl. He has no money or no job. But he's pretty rich in promises.

First Business Man—Was the conference a success? What did you decide?
Second Business Man—It was great! We decided to have another conference next week.

The sailor entered the store and accosted the new fair and dumb young clerk.
He—Can you let me have 'A Kiss
in the Dark' for 25 cents?
Girl Clerk—I couldn't think of it.
He—But you don't understand, it's a record.
Girl Clerk—I'll say it is, at 25 cents.

Some folks get plenty to eat and sufficient physical action yet suffer from lack of mental nourishment and exercise.

Boss—Well, how'd you find 'yourself this morning?
New Steno—Oh, I just opened my eyes and there I was.

A recruit in one of the Citizens Conservation Camps wore a very large shoe. To get a pair large enough for him he was given a pair entirely too large. One day the officer in charge missed him.

Officer—Has anyone seen that recruit?
Voice from Rear—Yes, sir, he has gone to the cross-roads to turn around.

"Who dealt them cards? dolefully quote the dregs as they inspect the hands they received in the new deal.

There Are Some Tough Ones
Life is a jig-saw puzzle that I am dally fumbling at;
With all my skill and all my wit
I cannot make the pieces fit.

Friend—This is gratifying news.
I see that not a single paying passenger was killed on an American railroad in 1932.

Railroad Man—We can't afford to lose any.

Bits O' Byplay: A woman in love is more or less foolish, a man is invariably more. Some men are proud of what they do, others of what they can avoid doing. . . .
Blessed are the innocent, for they have so much to learn. . . . The penalty of being conspicuous is that your mistakes are also conspicuous.
The reason so few of us get what we want is that we don't know what we want. . . . People improve as long as they have a desire to improve. . . . Useful knowledge acquired today makes every succeeding day more productive. . . . Money makes us comfortable, but it doesn't always make us happy. . . .
Few "good times" are worth the loss of four hours' sleep. . . . The man who boasts that he can't be fooled twice the same way is usually a sucker for some other way.
Very few men are really good losers. But a good many have learned to pretend they are. . . . If you really do your best the Lord probably will overlook your mistakes. But your neighbor won't.
We are judged by what we do, and not by what we claim we do.

Auto Owner—Do you know of any way to avoid tire trouble?
Man—Try a motor boat.
